

PASTOR JOHN KLESS

A LIFETIME IN THE WORD

VOLUME 2 - NEW TESTAMENT

Dedication:

To my wonderful wife: LuAnn

Without your commitment to share together in ministry with me these 48 years I could not have had a “lifetime in the Word”! Your countless hours of caring for me, our children, our home and the church body gave me the ability to pursue the deep study of God’s Word each week so this book is as much a product of your life as it is mine. I am thankful for you and I love you.

To our five wonderful children: Andrea, Benjamin, Amy, Jennifer and Dan

You have sat under my teaching and preaching literally your entire lives. The greatest fruit of my ministry has been to see each one of you grow up to be mature believers who deeply love Jesus, understand and value His Word and are committed to serving Him, even alongside me. I am blessed to be your father and I love you.

To my church: Glenside Bible Church

You have loved and cared for me as your pastor for 42 years. It has been my great honor and privilege to preach to you and instruct you in the Word of God. Almost all of the sermons in this book were carefully prepared for you and graciously received by you as truth from God. Thank you for being patient with me and giving me the opportunity to serve God among you in this way. I love you all.

Copyright © 2022

By: Rev. John M. Kless, Jr.
2032 Fortune Rd.
Glenside PA 19038
johnkless@swissmail.org

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

How To Use This Book

From June of 1974 at the age of 19 to the present at age 67 it has been my greatest privilege to preach and teach the Word of God nearly every Sunday. Originally, I made handwritten notes on paper, most of which have been lost, but around 1985 God blessed me with a personal computer (an Apple IIc with 128K of RAM and 5 ¼ floppies if you can imagine that!) and I began to type out messages and save them as digital files. Over the years I have preached hundreds of times and because they have been stored digitally, I now have the ability to edit and format them and share them with you. This book is my collected work from a life of ministry. It literally represents A Lifetime In The Word, a lifetime of studying the Word of God for hours each week, endeavoring to understand it as God intended and faithfully communicate it to the people of God.

So, this is obviously a book of sermons, not the kind of book that you sit down and read from beginning to end. It is more like a Bible commentary, a book in which you turn to the portion you wish to know more about at the moment. To keep its size reasonable, I have divided it into three separate volumes:

Volume 1 - Old Testament in which you'll find studies covering most of the books of the Old Testament.

Volume 2 - New Testament in which you'll find a study of every New Testament book.

Volume 3 - Thematic Studies in which you'll find studies on biographical, doctrinal, missiological and prophetic themes and more.

1. Use it like a Bible commentary - If you are studying a particular passage of Scripture, find the message that covers that text and it will probably help you understand the meaning of the passage. The messages are based on a lot of thorough research including commentaries by many others, as well insights from the original language. It has always been my goal not to teach or say anything that wasn't true and accurate to the best of my knowledge, so you can benefit from the research I've put in by simply reading my explanation of the passage and its context.

2. Use it as an aid in teaching and preaching - These are expositional sermons which means that the points of the message are derived from the text as much as possible. The messages are in outline form rather than paragraph form so that the points of the outline are in BOLD type, followed by further explanation and devotional comments. Thus, here you have an outline for many of the books and chapters of the Bible and also for many of its important themes that you can use as they are or reword to suit yourself as you present them to others.

3. Use it for devotional purposes - Because the point of sermons is to motivate people rather than simply giving them information, there is much devotional material and there are many touching illustrations in this work. So, you can read through all or part of a message as part of your regular devotional life, perhaps as you read through the section of Scripture it points to.

Permission To Use This Material

You have my permission to copy, share, edit and use any of the material in this book, with or without giving any credit to me, as long as you are using it to sincerely help yourself or other people grow in their knowledge and understanding of the Bible. Freely I have received from God insight into the Word and freely I give it to you. However, it MAY NOT be sold or used to make a profit.

To the glory of God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ,

Rev. John M. Kless, Jr.

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Dedication	i.
How To Use This Book	ii.
MATTHEW	1
The Arrival Of The King - Chs. 1-2.....	1
The Ministry Of The King - Chs. 3-4	10
The Message Of The King - Chs. 5-7	22
The Authority Of The King - Chs. 8-10.....	43
The Rejection Of The King - 11:1-16:13.....	63
The Preparation Of The King - 16:14-20:34.....	92
The Presentation Of The King - Chs. 21-25.....	113
The Passion Of The King - Chs. 26-28	136
MARK	155
The Preparation Of The Servant - 1:1-13.....	155
The Ministry Of The Servant - 1:14-5:43	159
The Training Of The Servant's Followers - 6:1-10:52	176
The Rejection Of The Servant - Chs. 11-13.....	208
The Sacrifice Of The Servant - Chs. 14-15.....	219
The Resurrection Of The Servant - Ch. 16	239
LUKE	246
Jesus The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke	246
Introduction & The Birth Of The Son Of Man - Chs. 1-2.....	246
The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - 3:1-9:50.....	254
The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - 9:51-19:27.....	272
The Passion Of The Son Of Man - 19:28-24:53	288
Caring For The Wounded - Studies In Luke.....	304
JOHN	346
John - The Gospel Of Life	346
Famous Last Words: The Upper Room Discourse - John 13-17	415
ACTS.....	446
I Will Build My Church - The Book Of Acts	446
Acts - Bible School Course.....	505
ROMANS.....	524
Romans 1:1-15 An Introduction To The Book	524
Romans 1-8 Understanding Our Great Salvation.....	527
Romans 9-16 God's Government And Guidance	577

1 CORINTHIANS	600
1 Corinthians: Study Of The Entire Book	600
1 Corinthians: Eleven Church Problems	641
2 CORINTHIANS	675
2 Corinthians 1-7: The Suffering And The Glory	675
2 Corinthians 8-9: The Grace Of Giving	715
GALATIANS	732
Galatians: Grace That Works	732
EPHESIANS	767
Ephesians 1-2: Who You Are In Christ	767
PHILIPPIANS	796
Philippians: The Consistent Christian	796
COLOSSIANS	822
Colossians: Christ Who Is Our Life	822
Colossians 3:18-4:1 This One Thing: The Keys To Relationship	870
1 & 2 THESSALONIANS	889
1 Thessalonians: Jesus Is Coming!	889
2 Thessalonians: Jesus Is Coming!	915
1 TIMOTHY	929
1 Timothy: God's Design For The Local Church	929
2 TIMOTHY	949
2 Timothy: Keeping God's Perspective In A Perverted World	949
TITUS	975
Titus: Godly Living In A Decadent Society	975
PHILEMON	994
Philemon: A Beautiful Story Of Redemption	994
HEBREWS	997
Hebrews: Our Privileges And Promises In Christ	997
Hebrews 13: A Life Well Lived	1058
JAMES	1091
James: Living Out Our Faith	1091
1 PETER	1116
1 Peter: Triumphing Over Suffering	1116
1 JOHN	1151
1 John Verse By Verse: Light, Love And Life	1151
2 JOHN: An Appeal For Discernment	1193
3 JOHN: An Exhortation To Partnership	1197
JUDE: A Warning Against Apostasy	1201

REVELATION..... 1208
Revelation: Things To Come 1208

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Arrival Of The King - Mt. 1-2

The Credentials Of The King - 1:1-17

We have four inspired records of the life and ministry of Jesus Christ, four Gospels. You may have wondered why. Well, you must understand that a Gospel is more than simply a historical narrative of Jesus' life. It is a document which a writer put together under the guidance of the Holy Spirit using various sources of information to present a message about Jesus Christ to a particular audience. A Gospel is much like a tract that we might produce today. The author decides who he's going to target and then chooses material from the wealth of Bible verses, illustrations, and testimonies that are available and puts together a document that will present the particular aspect of the message of Christ that his target audience will best understand. The Gospel writers did the same thing, only under the absolute control of the Holy Spirit. Not all of the material in this or the other Gospels is arranged in exact chronological order, which explains why the order of events sometimes differs between the Gospels. Rather, each author was writing to get across a message and sometimes grouped events together in a way to better convey that message. Matthew (or Levi as he is also called) was a Jew, formerly a tax collector for the Romans, but still very much a Jew. And he wrote his Gospel around 55-60 AD as a document to proclaim to his people, the Jews, that the Jesus they had rejected was indeed their King, their Promised Messiah, the one they had been waiting for. That is why, of the four Gospels, Matthew's is the one overflowing with Old Testament quotes and references, some 125 of them! The message Matthew is trying to convey as he tells the story of Jesus in these 28 chapters could be summarized very simply like this: "Your King Has Come and He is Coming Again!"

In the first two chapters, Matthew records for us The Arrival Of The King, the story of Christ's birth. And smack at the beginning, before all the familiar birth stories that we love, Matthew places, of all things, a genealogy. Now, contrary to what you may feel, genealogies are not put in the Bible simply to bore those who read it! Nor are they put there to simply record historical facts, the way the state of Pennsylvania might mechanically keep a record of all babies born in it. To the Jewish mind, and it is the Jews who are Matthew's primary audience, genealogies are a person's credentials. They are the way of validating who a person is and therefore what a person is entitled to. Even in the United States, you must produce your birth certificate to prove that you are entitled to the benefits that come to you through citizenship, for example, Social Security benefits. Your birth record proves who you are and that you have a right to what you are claiming. And that is:

I. The Real Purpose Of This Genealogy You can see it right in verse (1). First of all, Matthew intended:

1. to show that Jesus was the Son of Abraham That's why he started with Abraham. Luke went all the way back to Adam, but Matthew didn't need to; He simply wanted to prove that Jesus was the son of Abraham. Why? Well, that made him the heir to the Covenant that God made with Abraham. You remember that covenant, don't you? Certainly, no Jew would ever forget it. God reiterated it to Abraham several times, but never more clearly than right after he had been willing to sacrifice Isaac to God on Mt. Moriah. Look with me at Gen. 22:15-18. The word offspring or descendants is literally seed. And notice in the ESV the phrase the gate of HIS enemies. That hints at something that Paul explains for us in Gal. 3:16, Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring. It does not say, "And to offsprings," [plural] referring to many, but referring to one, "And to your offspring," [singular] who is Christ. God chose His words carefully and used the singular, not the plural, meaning that ultimately this promise belonged to One who would come as the Seed of Abraham who would rightfully inherit the land eternally and would bless all the nations of earth. So, anyone claiming Messiahship or Kingship would have to be of Abraham's line. Matthew is saying, "Jesus is the promised Seed of Abraham, the One in whom all the families of the earth will be blessed!" Then secondly, in verse 1, he intended:

2. to show that Jesus was the Son of David Why? Well, that made Him heir to the Throne. Look with me at 2 Sam. 7:12-13, 16. God promised that David's throne, His authority as King over Israel, would be established forever and that throne would be occupied by one of His descendants. You see, Judah had only one dynasty of kings, the line of David. The right to rule was passed from father to son, generation to generation. God never interrupted that flow and started afresh with a new family line, even though some kings were very wicked. Therefore, anyone claiming Messiahship or Kingship would first have to prove himself a descendant of David and then of the rightful line through which the Kingship was passed. Son of David became a title for the Messiah; remember how the crowds shouted it as Jesus rode into Jerusalem on Palm Sunday? They're calling Him the Messiah, God's promised King. And that's exactly what Matthew is showing us here: Jesus stood in the line of the kings and has the right to the Throne of David. And He had no son, so the line ends right there; it is passed no farther because He is alive and seated on that Throne right now and will return to display that Throne to the world one day! Interpreting Ps. 45, the writer of Hebrews says, But of the Son he says, "Your throne, O God, is forever and ever, the scepter of uprightness is the scepter of your kingdom." - Heb. 1:8. The promise to David of an eternal throne is really about Jesus!

Jesus has the credentials; He is Abraham's Greater Son, David's Greater Son, the One about whom all the promises of God were made! Hallelujah! Now let me share with you:

II. Some Important Facts About This Genealogy First, please realize that:

1. it is a summary arranged for easy memorization (17) Matthew did not need to record every name in the line to establish his point because detailed genealogy and historical records were available in the Old Testament, in the books of Chronicles and elsewhere, so he skipped some generations here and there to shorten the list and even it out into three easily memorizable groups of 14 names that end at three major historical landmarks. There were 14 generations from Abraham to The Kingdom under David, 14 more to The Captivity in Babylon, and fourteen more to The Messiah. Memorize that and you know Christ's pedigree, but since you're not Jewish, somehow, I doubt you will. It doesn't matter to you, but it did to them! For some reason, he seems to count Jeconiah twice, in both the second and third group, but remember the point is to make a memorable list. Likewise, don't worry that he skips three names between Jehoram and Uzziah, because the word father of literally means ancestor of and easily accommodates more than one actual physical generation. As I said, it's a summary. Second, notice that:

2. it is the genealogy of Joseph (16) We might find that strange. Why Joseph, not Mary? Well, Jewish society was patriarchal; the right to authority and property was always passed through the male line. So even though Joseph was not Jesus' physical father, He was, in the eyes of his people, Jesus' legal father. The people of his home town, Nazareth, said, Is not this the carpenter's son?... It was whose SON you were that mattered. So the fact that Joseph descended from the line of the Davidic Kings placed Jesus in the line of kings. God gave Jesus the right to rule through Joseph. Now there is something none of us would notice about this genealogy:

3. it both contains and solves a hidden problem Notice in verse (12) the name of Jeconiah. In the Old Testament his name is Jehoiachin or in other places, Coniah, and he was the second last earthly king of Judah before the exile. The very last was Zedekiah, Jeconiah's uncle, Josiah's son, who was installed by the Babylonians. So Jeconiah was the last generation to actually rule Judah. Now look with me at Jer. 22:24, 30. God said, "That's it. I pronounce a curse on this man. Even though his children would have the right to rule, not one physical descendant of his will ever be recorded as sitting on the throne. They will not prosper to this level." So, it now seems as if God has painted Himself into a corner. The right to the throne must be passed through Jeconiah to get to Jesus, but none of his descendants can ever make use of it. In essence it seems there can be no more kings, right? And there weren't. But God had a plan nobody would have dreamed of, the Virgin Birth! Jesus was not a physical descendant of Jeconiah and therefore God did not contradict His own Word. Yet through Joseph he did inherit the right to the Kingship from Jeconiah, but without the curse! And I believe that Luke's Gospel really gives us Mary's genealogy, which shows that through her Jesus physically descended from David, however, through an entirely different line. What a marvelous God we have! Not one letter of His Word goes unfulfilled! And speaking of the Virgin Birth, notice how:

4. its careful conclusion reinforces and leads into the Virgin Birth (16) Matthew specifically says, Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, instead of saying the father of... as he did through the whole list! The fact that Jesus was born as a man in an identifiable lineage does not negate the fact that He was Virgin Born; God was His real Father. Matthew carefully makes that clear and then goes on to tell the story of how it actually happened in verse 18 and following. But we'll save the story for next time because we're not done yet. We have to consider:

III. The Spiritual Lesson From This Genealogy As you read it (and I hope you don't skip genealogies in your Bible reading; they have some neat gems in them), you can't help but see that:

1. it displays the variety of people God used to bring His Son into the world 41 people are mentioned here; 41 lives, all of whom God placed in the line as direct ancestors of Jesus Christ. But just look at the sheer variety of the kinds of people God chose to include. Obviously:

a. He used some outstanding, noteworthy people Right in verse 2 we find Abraham, the great man of faith who trusted God, the father of the Jewish people, along with his son Isaac and grandson Jacob, to whose lives so much of Genesis is given. In verse 6 we come to David, the man after God's own heart, the sweet Psalmist of Israel and the greatest King she ever had. In verse 9 we see Hezekiah, the godly king of Judah who prayed and trusted God and saw the Lord deliver Judah from the Assyrians when 185,000 of their soldiers were dead the next morning! And there are more great men in the list, but one would expect to find these. One would expect that from a line of spiritual giants would come other spiritual giants and eventually the Messiah. However, the list also shows us that:

b. He used many ordinary, unnoticed people Like Boaz in verse 5, who was just a well-to-do farmer with a loving heart that he opened to marry Ruth. There was Jesse in verse 6, a father trying to support his family of 7 sons by raising sheep in a day when the land was at war and some of his sons had to go. There was Joseph himself in verse 16, the man chosen to be Jesus' earthly father and to raise Him, a man who was just a simple carpenter, working all day in his shop and dying young. And there are lots of others in the list, people who just lived ordinary lives and loved God where they were, and yet their names are here. Yes, God uses the spiritual giants, the John Wesleys and the Billy Grahams, but for the most part He uses just plain ordinary people who love Him, people like you and I! Then notice that:

c. He used several people who were foreigners By the way, did you see that Matthew mentions a few mothers here along with the fathers? Five of them to be exact. Ladies, you are not left out; God uses men and women alike to bring about His purpose. But two of them were not even Jews! Rahab in verse 5 was a Canaanite woman who lived in Jericho and protected the spies Joshua sent. God rewarded her faith by sparing her family and she ended up married to an Israelite named Salmon (probably one of those spies) and became the great grandmother of King David! In the same verse, Ruth was from Moab across the Jordan and from a pagan family who worshipped idols there. But through her first husband who died young and her mother-in-law Naomi, she came to believe in the God of Israel like Rahab did. And God opened the door for her to marry Boaz and become David's grandmother. God is just showing here briefly what you see all through the Old Testament, that He loves all the peoples of the earth and wants all of them to seek Him, and when they do, He uses them to accomplish His purpose! In fact, Matthew's gospel ends with the command to make disciples of every people; from the very beginning, Matthew was showing that you don't have to be a Jew to be used of God! Good thing or we'd all be left out! Now here's something incredible. In the list:

d. He used several people who were fallen Here in verse 3 you find Judah, who deserted the rest of his family, married a Canaanite woman, and whose sons were born by union with his own daughter-in-law, who forced him to honor the cultural law of the land and give her children by disguising herself as a harlot. We already mentioned Rahab from verse 5, who, at the time the spies showed up in her pagan life in Jericho, was an actual harlot, before becoming a godly wife and mother. In verse 6 we have Bathsheba who committed adultery against her husband with King David. Yet it is HER son God chooses out of David's many to become the wisest King Israel ever had. God is reminding us that He's a forgiving God! If you think God can't use you because of your past, because of some sin back there that haunts you to this day, think again! God uses fallen people! And it's a good thing because we're all fallen people! Why, God works so out-of-the-box that:

e. He even used several people who were wicked In verse 10 you have Manasseh and Amon, father and son kings who filled the streets of Jerusalem with innocent blood and led the people fully into idolatry, even sacrificing children in the fire to idols. And in verse 11 Jeconiah was evil and God's curse rested upon him. Yet God used even them to advance the line of His Son's coming, which reminds us that God uses even the wicked to serve His purposes and the wrath of man to praise Him!

So be encouraged dear friends! Just as each of these played their small role in preparing the way for God's son, you are also a part of God's plan, God has a plan that He is working out in human history and He wants to use you! He wants to use you to prepare the way for the King, not for His coming as a baby like He did the first time, but rather for His coming again in glory.

2. God wants to use us in the line of people who bring His Son BACK to the world Look with me at 2 Pet. 3:9-12. God made a promise to send His Son the first time and it took 1800 years from Abraham for His purpose to be worked out and His promise kept. We'd say that was slow, but to Him it was the fullness of time, the exact perfect right time, the time when everything was finally laid in place. Well, God has now made the promise all over again that He will send His Son from heaven and He will reign on the earth as King of Kings and Lord of Lords. And 2000 years have gone by, but God is not being slow about it; He is waiting for US to accomplish His purpose, which is that every person in every people group on the planet would hear the Good News of what Christ did and have the opportunity to come to repentance. God is patiently waiting for all of us in each generation to play out our part in that long chain of sending forward the Good News until that Day comes, the day when the King finally arrives. We are all in the line of folks that will bring back the King!

a. our only necessary qualification is relationship with Jesus Christ We just learned that it doesn't matter who you are, great or small, well-known or unknown, male or female, Jew or Gentile, faultless or fallen. If you know Jesus Christ, you are in the line of people that He is using to accomplish His purpose that gospel of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the whole world as a testimony to all [peoples], and then the end will come - Mat. 24:14. But:

b. His coming hinges upon our faithful performance Verse 12 says we can do more than wait for that day; we can hasten it's coming; we can speed it along. We can bring Christ back sooner! How? By focusing our lives completely on His goal and purpose instead of our own! By doing all that we can to share the Good News right where we live and by devoting our time, our energy and our resources to the one third of the human race that has not yet had their first opportunity to hear it. We all play a role, a small role, nevertheless a necessary role, in the process. If we do our part, it speeds the whole process along. If we don't, God has to use someone else to get it done, but it WILL get done! Just as the day arrived when Jesus came into the world, so the day WILL arrive when He comes back.

As you know, our Jewish friends who do not believe Jesus was the Messiah are still waiting for their Messiah, their King, to come. There is a video on YouTube dated Nov. 18, 1990, when Benjamin Netanyahu, later Prime Minister of Israel, was a member of the Israeli Knesset or Parliament. It is a clip where Mr. Netanyahu meets with a group of Hasidim, a sect of orthodox Jews dressed in black garments and black hats, evidently seeking their support. The lead speaker, an elderly man, greets him by name in the Hebrew language saying, "I haven't seen you in a long time. Blessing and success. A double portion of benediction." And Netanyahu says, "I came to ask your blessing and help." To which the Hasid replied, "In everything?" and Netanyahu responded, "In all areas both personal and political." The Hasid then took the lead, saying, "Since we have last met many things have progressed." And Netanyahu agreed, "Many things HAVE progressed." But then came the old man's punchline: "What hasn't changed, however, is that Messiah still hasn't come, so do something to hasten His coming!" Netanyahu tried to brush it off by saying, "We're doing. We're doing.", to which the wise old man replied, "Apparently, it's not enough, since many hours have already passed today and He's still not here. But there are still a few hours left in the day. So, try still for today." [\[http://youtu.be/pRmk4egn_dg\]](http://youtu.be/pRmk4egn_dg) Dear friends, many things HAVE progressed, but apparently it is not enough! What hasn't changed is that Jesus still hasn't come! So do something to hasten His coming! Many hours have passed and He is still not here, yet there are still a few hours left in the day. So, give all you have to advance His Kingdom from this moment on. Try still for today!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Arrival Of The King - Mt. 1-2

The Birth Of The King - 1:18-25

So much about Jesus' birth that we celebrate in story and song and decoration at Christmas time, the angel appearing to Mary, the journey to Bethlehem, the stable and the manger, the angels and the shepherds, all these things come to us from Luke. He is interested in conveying those kinds of personal details, the human-interest side of the story, if you will. Matthew leaves them all out! His desire is to demonstrate that Jesus is the King, God's promised Messiah. So, after giving us His credentials in the genealogy in verses 1-17, Matthew proceeds to spell out and explain to us what he meant in verse 16 when he specifically said that Joseph was the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, who is called Christ. In the next verses he tells us:

I. The Circumstances Concerning Jesus' Birth (18-19) which were not all rosy and beautiful and wonderful. We love to romanticize things. So, we try to paint this picture of a young couple madly in love who can't wait to get married and their love is nearly interrupted and ruined by God asking Mary to bear His Son, but then He straightens Joseph out and there's a happy ending. In actuality, almost nothing is known about Joseph and Mary personally. Tradition has assumed from earliest times that Joseph was significantly older than Mary. This probably comes from the fact that he is never mentioned after Jesus is 12 and appears to have died before He was 30 and began his ministry. Yet Mary lived on to see the Cross and Resurrection and the growth of the early church and, since Christ placed her under John's care, is said to have much later gone with him to Ephesus in Asia Minor and died there. The Orthodox churches even hold that Joseph was already a widower when he married Mary, though there is no evidence for that. Here are the facts we do know:

1. Mary was betrothed to Joseph but had not yet brought her to his home Joseph had gone to Mary's parents and a marriage contract had been arranged between them, including payment, but Mary still lived at home with her parents. In their culture, they were considered legally married, absolutely bound to one another, but there would be a period of one year before the marriage would be consummated in a celebration where Joseph would take Mary to his home and they would live together as husband and wife. This one year period served as evidence of the purity and faithfulness of both the bride and the groom, since in the absence of birth control, sexual activity would likely result in pregnancy. It guaranteed that any pre-betrothal impurity either from the union of the two or unfaithfulness with an outsider would show up before marriage. So, Joseph and Mary were following this custom when:

2. Joseph discovered she was pregnant Luke fills in the missing details here. Look with me Luke 1:39-40. Right after the angel appeared to tell her that she would conceive and have a child who would be God's son, she left Nazareth. As confirmation, the angel had told her that her aged relative Elizabeth, who had been childless all her life, was already 6 months pregnant. So, without telling Joseph, she practically ran down to the town in the hill country of Judah where Elizabeth lived to see for herself. She found it was true and stayed, probably to be with people who believed her own news, according to verse 56. She stayed until the baby was born 3 months later. So, by the time she came home to Nazareth, her parents and Joseph and the whole community could visibly see that she was pregnant. Joseph must have been absolutely crushed. I'm sure she told him the whole story but:

3. Joseph could only assume she had been unfaithful, that while away and out of her parents' home and care, she had become involved with some guy there in Judea. Would YOU believe her story? Never in history has there been a case of spontaneous pregnancy without a man involved! He could not conceive what Matthew asserts in verse 18, that the child was from the Holy Spirit. Who could blame him? And so:

4. Joseph planned to divorce her quietly, that is, privately. Matthew comments that Joseph was a just man, a righteous man. He was concerned about obeying God and keeping the law. In his estimation Mary was no longer pure; she was defiled, not to mention being untrustworthy. Besides, if he were to go ahead and marry her anyway, to the whole community it would seem an admission that the two of them had been unchaste and violated their betrothal. So, to divorce her:

a. this would assert and maintain his own innocence It would say that SHE was the unfaithful one, not him, and would keep him pure in every way. But he had two options of how to go about it. He could publicly take her to the town elders, expose her sin to the world, proclaim his own innocence and divorce her. In an earlier era, she would probably have been stoned, because that's what the Law required. The scene would have been much like that of the woman taken in adultery that the Pharisees later brought to Jesus and made her stand humiliated before the whole group. But Joseph was not natured like that. He was also a kind man; he did not want to hurt Mary by exposing her to such a thing, just to make himself look good. So, he chose the second option; he planned to go to Mary's parents privately and sever the betrothal arrangement.

b. this would be merciful to Mary and spare her public disgrace It would keep her "sin" and shame a family matter and leave her own parents to deal with their "errant" daughter.

He pondered and thought about what to do and his mind was made up. He was resolved to pursue this quiet divorce when he went to bed. The situation looked hopeless to him. But when he woke up, his mind was completely changed because of:

II. The Truth God Delivered To Joseph Through A Dream (20-23) You know how it is when something serious is troubling you and you're trying to go to sleep. You lay there and ponder the situation over and over as Joseph did, and as he dozed off, he began to dream. And in that dream, when his thoughts were no longer under his control, an angel of God appeared to him. No details are reported, but in Scripture whenever people realize they are in the presence of angels they are struck with awe and fall to their knees. They are deeply impacted. And this angel had a direct message from God for Joseph. Look at the truths that God delivered to Joseph in this dream, truths that we hold deeply to this day. First:

1. God deliberately chose Joseph to be the father and guardian of His son The angel's first words were, "Marry Mary! Take her home as your wife! You are to be her husband and the father to this child!" God was calling Joseph. And notice the call, Joseph, SON OF DAVID.... "Joseph, I need you. This child in Mary's womb is the Messiah, the promised King of the line of David, the very One you've been waiting and longing for. And I need you, Joseph! I need you to let go of your own fears and take Him as your own, to give Him your lineage, to make Him THE SON OF DAVID, the promised King of Israel! I need you to care for Him and protect Him and raise Him with the same godly principles and heart that you have toward Me. Just as Mary is blessed above all women to have the privilege of carrying and birthing the King, so you are chosen and blessed in My plan to marry her and become His earthly father, even though He is not your physical child." Second, the angel explained that:

2. Mary conceived through the agency of the Holy Spirit She had NOT been unfaithful. She was telling the truth. Jesus had no human father; he was not the result of sexual union. His birth was a supernatural miracle arranged by the power of the Holy Spirit, a virgin conception. It is popular to doubt this today; it is probably harder for this culture to accept than that one. The Jews, at least, believed that miracles did happen, that God was able to intervene in the world, to part the Red Sea and dry up the Jordan River. To modern culture all such things are ancient myths believed by people who didn't know any better. But here we have it from God's lips straight to our ears: Jesus' conception was a divine miracle done by the Holy Spirit. The eternal Son of God entered a human embryo planted in Mary's womb by the Holy Spirit and joined Himself to it permanently to become what no other being is or ever will be, the God-man, fully God and fully man, God come to earth in human flesh through the womb of a virgin. Then the angel declared that:

3. her child would be a son, not a daughter, and she would not miscarry. She would bear him to term and give successful birth to him. That was by no means a sure thing in the world of that day. Many a woman died in childbirth and many a child did not survive. But this one would and:

4. Joseph was to name him Jesus On the eighth day, a son born to a Jewish household would be circumcised as God commanded, making him a participant in the covenant that God gave to Abraham. And on that day his father would name him; he would officially declare what he would be called. But in Joseph's case the choice was not up to him. The angel said, "You are to name Him Jesus". In Aramaic, Yeshua; in Hebrew, a variant of Joshua, which means "Jehovah saves" or "Jehovah is salvation". God chose the name that this child, His Son, would bear and He tells us the reason for it.

5. Jesus would save his people from their sins There is His life-mission. He is the King! He is the Messiah, the promised One, but He is being birthed into the world, not to save Israel from the power of Rome as they so fervently hoped, but to accomplish something far beyond that, to save all those who truly wish to be His people, His subjects, from their own sins which separate them from God! Even before His birth, God declares that the culmination of His earthly life will be a cross, not a crown! He is born to die, born to be the sacrificial lamb of God who would take away the sins of the world! And then the angel goes on to point out to Joseph that God had already promised and predicted that He would do this very supernatural thing 700 years earlier!

6. Mary's virgin conception fulfilled Isaiah's prophecy You know Is. 7:14, but it's quoted there in verse 23, Behold, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son... Even though that prophecy was originally given as a sign to King Ahaz seven centuries earlier and probably had an immediate fulfillment through some young unmarried woman he knew who then married and later bore a son, God explains to us here that ultimately, He meant those words to have a deeper fulfillment in the birth of His Son. The real sign to the world would be that a complete virgin would conceive, that is, she would be a virgin at the very moment of conception and conceive a child anyway, without knowing a man! God promised that when He sent His Son, Messiah the King, into the world, He would do it by means of a humanly impossible miracle. And He told Joseph, "700 years ago, I promised to do this very thing and you are the witness to it; this is it; Mary is THE Virgin and this is the promised Son." And because of this miracle:

7. Jesus Himself would be Immanuel. Immanuel in Hebrew is not a proper name like Joshua or David; rather it is a title, like King or Savior. It describes what the person is, one who rules or one who saves. Immanuel literally means "God with us". The point is that Jesus IS Immanuel, that He is "God with us!" Through this wonderful creative act of the Holy Spirit, God will now walk around in human flesh as one of us! John puts it like this: the Word became flesh and dwelt among us... - Jn. 1:14. God became man, a human being in a human body of flesh and blood so that He, Jesus, could save us from our sins!

Well, that's a boat-load of truth to get all at one time, especially while you're asleep! But, unlike many dreams, Joseph remembered every word. He woke up a changed man, his whole demeanor transformed by the fact that Mary was telling the truth! This was a miracle and God had chosen him and commanded him to be part of it! See:

III. The Response Of Joseph To God's Command For Him (24-25) First, it says that:

1. he obeyed God and took Mary to his home as his wife Instead of breaking the betrothal as he had planned, he went to her parents and moved the time of the marriage up. He said, "I will take her to my home as my wife TODAY!" Notice that:

a. in doing so, he surrendered to God and reacted immediately He perceived this dream as a command of God. God told him exactly what to do and he did not hesitate. He did not pause to say, "Well, Lord, let me think about that; let me weigh the consequences and figure out the most judicious time." He did what he knew he was supposed to do as quickly as humanly possible. But please don't think that it was easy for him. Knowing Mary was still a virgin may have given relief to his own sense of purity, but marrying her:

b. it meant taking Mary's assumed "guilt" upon himself In the same way that he just could not believe her, now nobody in Nazareth would be willing to believe him! They would see him as the offender, the one who couldn't wait and honor the betrothal. His own reputation as a righteous man would go down the tubes. But he was willing for that to happen, if that's what obeying God meant. He was willing to let his "good be evil spoken of" for God's sake and what's more:

2. he honored God by having no sexual union with her until after Jesus' birth The angel never commanded him to do that. To take Mary home now as his wife would normally mean having sexual union with her. But, on his own, he refused. What does that tell us? I think that:

a. doing so indicates that he believed God and did not wish to sully the miracle He now believed God had done this great miracle and saw His purpose in it. This child to be born was a "holy being" and he didn't want to take ANY chance that someone could later protest that he was the physical father of this child. From the beginning of the betrothal to the birth of the baby, Joseph treated Mary in an absolutely holy and pure fashion, reverently counting her body as being set apart for God's holy purpose during those months. What an honorable man! But again, don't think it was necessarily easy for him:

b. it meant completely denying his own desires and rights as a husband He could not touch his own wife; he could not satisfy his own dreams and desires of being with her, which were at the very heart of why he had arranged to marry her and had waited so patiently in the first place. When he saw God's plan, he died to self, he put himself aside completely, his plans, his reputation, his desires. Only God mattered! And because of that, Joseph:

3. he was used by God in a wonderful way. It became his privilege to obey God and to name Jesus. Luke 2:21 says, ...at the end of eight days, when he was circumcised, he was called Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb. Joseph did that. Joseph gave Him that wonderful name we worship and adore. When we enter Chapter 2 next time, we'll see how God used that same willingness to listen and obey God to protect Jesus from certain death at the hand of Herod's soldiers. God also used Joseph's righteousness and reverence to raise Jesus as a godly father and his patient instruction to teach him his trade as a carpenter.

You know, in the beginning Joseph didn't sign up for any of this. It was not at all what he had in mind. And he didn't have to do it. He could have said "No" and gone his own way and no one would have blamed him. Yet when God called him to something really difficult that he didn't have to do, he obeyed and stepped up. Country singer Brad Paisley has a music video titled "He Didn't Have To Be". You can watch it on YouTube [<http://youtu.be/BjO1F6oCab8>] and cry if you want, like I did. The singer pictures himself as a little boy who was the only son of a single mom. And every time any man asks his mom on a date, they always look inside the house and see that she has a little boy sitting on the steps and they always walk away. One man after the other doesn't want him. Yet one day when he's five, a man comes to call and sees him sitting there and smiles at him and invites him along on their date. That man becomes his stepfather and now, singing as an adult, he celebrates growing up with the love and acceptance of a stepfather who made their house a home and their two-some into a family. And finally, standing there beside him at the nursery window in the hospital watching the nurse bring out his own newborn son, he sings these words, Lookin' back all I can say, About all the things he did for me, Is I hope I'm at least half the dad, That he didn't have to be...you know, he didn't have to be... That thought rings so true about Joseph. Joseph signed up for something he didn't have to sign up for, to be a husband to a pregnant virgin, to be a stepfather to the Son of God, to be a protector to the infant King. He chose to be "a dad he didn't have to be". God calls all of us to hard things in our lives, to do things that will be misunderstood, to do things we don't really want to do, even things that are dangerous. And He gives us the choice to answer His call or not. We don't have to; neither did Joseph, but I'm sure glad he did. What will you choose?

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Arrival Of The King - Mt. 1-2

The Acknowledgement Of The King - Ch. 2

Matthew does not actually record any of the details of Jesus' birth. He passes over it in one statement in 1:25. He passes over the journey to Bethlehem, the stable and the manger, the shepherds and the angels. He does not mention Jesus' dedication at the Temple 30 days later and the joy of Simeon and Anna. Instead, Matthew skips six months forward to a public event that stirred the city of Jerusalem, the arrival of a caravan of wise men from the east, and to them, strangely enough, he gives an entire chapter. Matthew has a purpose in mind. He has chosen his material carefully to make a point. So first, let's look closely at:

I. The Story That Matthew Shares With Us Few scripture stories have been so added to and become so fraught with imported traditions as this one has. The wise men have been numbered, promoted into kings, seated upon camels, given personal names, immortalized in song and made to stand around the stable with the shepherds in every nativity scene we display. However, this is the only record there is of this amazing visit, and we want to know what it actually says. In verses (1-2) we see:

1. the arrival of wise men seeking a King Notice that they were not kings but wise men, Magi in Greek, part of an eastern caste who studied, not merely the stars, but many different disciplines and were regarded as having special wisdom. King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon called his magi to find out the meaning of the dream he had in Daniel 2. How many there were, Matthew does not say. But these men had seen something in the sky, a new appearance which they called a star. And to that star they somehow attached the meaning that the King of the Jews was born and that the Star was the sign which betokened his birth. Obviously, wherever they were, they must have had some connection with a community of Jews to know that the Jews were awaiting a Messiah. We cannot be sure where they came from, whether from Babylon or Persia (modern Iran) or Arabia. We do know that the Kings of Yemen at the tip of the Saudi peninsula professed the Jewish faith from 120 BC down through the 6th century AD. Among the ancient Jewish writings which had multiplied profusely by the time of Christ are some statements which show that at least a few of the rabbis taught that a star would shine forth from the east, the Star of Messiah, two years before His birth. Of course, these are not Christian writings, but merely Jewish traditions which had grown up somehow over the centuries. It seems to me that these wise men had some contact with this tradition and when the star appeared they identified it as His star. Consequently, they gathered a caravan (note there are no camels in the text either, but they probably had a few) and set out for the capital city of the Jews, Jerusalem, where they fully expected that everyone would know that the King of the Jews had been born! So, upon their arrival they began asking about Him, which soon led to:

2. their meeting with Herod (3-8) News of their arrival and of the birth of a King reached Herod's ears immediately. Now Herod has got to be a prime candidate for the "World's Greatest Butcher" award. Toward the end of his life, he was absolutely paranoid about anyone contending for his throne. He killed his own wife, two of his own sons, and anyone else whom he felt in any way threatened by. As he was dying, he had the entire leadership of Judea, dozens of people, held captive with orders to slaughter them upon his own expiration, so that all of Judea would mourn when he died whether they wanted to or not! The Emperor Augustus said it was better to be Herod's sow than his son! No wonder that when he heard of the wise men he was disturbed. And so was the entire populace, worrying about how many Herod would kill this time! Herod was not a Jew but an Edomite; he was obviously not of the rightful line to Judah's throne; the Jews saw him as a usurper. Anyone "born King" would be a great threat. So, he hatched a plot. He called together all the Jewish leaders to ask where the Messiah was "supposed" to be born, then he asked the wise men carefully when the star had appeared and sent them to Bethlehem with a smile saying, "Let me know when you find him so that I may worship him too!" His answer is what guided them on their way. Next, we read of:

3. their worship of Jesus at Bethlehem (9-12) As the magi were on their way, the "star" which they had not seen for more than a year, maybe even two, suddenly reappeared in the night sky. And it filled their hearts with joy because it was the Divine confirmation of their quest. Various attempts have been made to identify this "star" as being a lining up of several planets which occurred in that year, a comet, or some other heavenly phenomenon. However, this "star" must have been much lower than outer space because it appeared both to travel in front of them (and they were traveling from north to south which is not the normal direction of star movement) and to stop over a particular house. In reality, it was probably the glory of God shining forth for this occasion as it did in the Old Testament for Israel in the pillar of fire, and on other occasions. By dated events that we'll leave to serious scholars, the time of their arrival was probably something like six months after Jesus' birth, so Mary and Joseph had stayed in Bethlehem. They needed to take Jesus to the Temple for His dedication at a month old, so why would they travel back to Nazareth and return? Joseph found work and they found a house to rent. The star led the Magi to that very house and when arrived they came in and fell down and worshipped the infant Jesus and gave him royal gifts, the kind of gifts one would present to a King. What a night these unlikely companions must have spent together! Perhaps they stayed a day, but Bethlehem was only 5 miles from Jerusalem and Herod would not long be patient. It could be that very same night that God warned them in a dream not to go back to Herod and they departed for home by a different route where they would not encounter him. And, probably that same night, we read of:

4. the family's flight into Egypt (13-15b) Now Joseph once again had a dream and an angel appeared to him with instructions to leave immediately, explaining that the child was in danger from Herod. So, that night Joseph packed up Mary and the baby and the expensive gifts and headed out. By morning, no one knew that they were already far along the 75 mile road to Egypt. But don't think of Egypt as it was back in the days of Moses; by this time Egypt, too, was a Roman province, well-controlled, but out of Herod's jurisdiction. One ancient historian says there were about a million Jews living in Egypt in that era, so Mary and Joseph could find friends among their own people and begin to fit into a new life there. But they left none too soon because now comes:

5. Herod's slaughter of the infants (16-17) Within a day or two, it became obvious to Herod that the wise men had seen through him and were not coming back, and he was furious. So, instead of trying to find one particular child and destroy him, he did the most logical thing to his sick mind and decided to kill all the children in Bethlehem who had been born from the time the wise men had first seen the star to the present, no doubt allowing a large margin for error! In that day, Bethlehem was only a small village with possibly 300-1,000 people at most, maybe 60 to 100 families. The slaughter of a few dozen infants in a rural town hardly made the "evening news" in Jerusalem that day in light of Herod's long list of atrocities. Yet in Bethlehem there was a deep and loud mourning and wailing, a sadness which God chose to memorialize in Scripture to this day. But soon the tables were turned. We read last of:

6. the family's return to Nazareth (19-23) Mary and Joseph stayed at most only a few months in Egypt. Herod was stricken with a horrible disease and died an excruciating death, shortly after his awful deed, in March of 4 BC. Immediately, God informed Joseph in a dream that it was time to go back to Israel and the family set out, no doubt to go back to Bethlehem, but once back in Judea, he heard that Herod's son Archelaus, who was as crazy as his father, was ruling Judea, and was afraid. God confirmed his fears yet once more in another dream, and he headed north to Galilee which was ruled by Antipas, another son of Herod, who was much more level-headed. There he settled his family back into his home town of Nazareth.

Now that's the story, but what is:

II. The Message Matthew Is Conveying To Us If you put it in a nutshell, it is in the words of the wise men in verse 2:

1. Jesus was "born King of the Jews" And notice that is different from the phrase, "he who is born to BECOME King of the Jews". His office is not something that He will attain one day. He already IS King; He was BORN that way. It is His birthright! That's Matthew's message: Jesus is the King! First, Matthew proves it through giving us His pedigree, His genealogy. He is born King. Then He proves it through showing us that:

2. His birth fulfilled Old Testament promises Last week we read that He was born of a virgin as Is. 7:14 promised. In chapter 2, Matthew points out four separate promises that God made centuries before that were directly fulfilled around Jesus' birth. First, verse (6) tells us that:

a. he was born in Bethlehem, just as Micah 5:2 predicted. He was born where God had said Messiah was to be born and He lived there for several months, so that it could truly be said that He came out of Bethlehem. Had He been born back in Nazareth or anywhere else He would not have qualified as King of the Jews, for the Word of God would not have been fulfilled. The next three Old Testament texts were not quite as clear predictions as Micah 5:2. For example, verse (15) says:

b. he was called out of Egypt in fulfillment of Hos. 11:1 which says, Out of Egypt have I called My Son. No one was sitting around saying that when Messiah comes, He must be called out of Egypt. In Hosea, the first half of the verse says, When Israel was a child, I loved him and out of Egypt have I called My son. This promise was fulfilled first in His "son", the nation of Israel, but here, the Spirit says God intended ultimately to make this text have a second fulfillment in the life of Jesus, so that He not only called His son Israel out of Egypt but also His literal Son Jesus in His great love. Further, in verses (17-18) there was a great weeping when:

c. the children of Bethlehem were destroyed as Jer. 31:15 predicted. Originally this prediction referred to the weeping of the Jewish mothers at the time of the Babylonian captivity, mourning over the death and carrying away of their children from Ramah. Ramah is slightly north of Jerusalem, Bethlehem is a bit south of it, but you have Rachel mentioned here whose tomb was close to Bethlehem and who was considered figuratively to be the mother of the nation. Again, though no one was expecting it, God showed how this was fulfilled a second time through the life of His Son, in the weeping of the mothers of Bethlehem over their children. And finally in verse (23) Matthew shows us that:

d. he was called a Nazarene There is no specific statement anywhere in the Old Testament like that. But Is. 11:1 says, There shall come forth a shoot from the stump of Jesse, and a branch from his roots shall bear fruit. Isaiah predicted there would be a Branch from the stump of Jesse (King David's father) who would be the Messiah. The Hebrew for branch is netzer, which is the root of the name Nazareth. Because Jesus grew up in Nazareth, the designation "Jesus of Nazareth" or "Jesus the Nazarene" was attached to Him through His life. That is literally saying, "Jesus the Branch". So, while calling Him by His common designation all his life, people were really calling Him the Messiah, even though they did not see the significance of it! But Matthew did, and so once again, he points out that the Scriptures were fulfilled! Jesus is the King, because in Him the Scriptures find fulfillment.

Then finally, look back at the story of chapter 2 and see how:

3. His Kingship was acknowledged It was acknowledged:

a. by supernatural phenomena, by a supernatural "star" that God placed in the heavens to honor His birth, which not only fulfilled the traditions concerning Messiah's birth, but even fulfilled the expectation of Moses in Num. 24:17, when he said, I see him, but not now; I behold him, but not near: a star shall come out of Jacob, and a scepter shall rise out of Israel... The star in the sky was God's sign to the world that the True Star was here! Then His kingship was acknowledged:

b. by leaders of other nations Though His own people missed it and were clueless, wise men from the east, leaders of their peoples, came and bowed themselves before Him because they knew He was King. It was just as Ps. 72:11 says, May all kings fall down before him, all nations serve him! And one day they will! He was even acknowledged as king:

c. by the very tyrant who tried to kill Him Why else did Herod send the soldiers to Bethlehem? He didn't dismiss this as some hoax or the errand of fools. He believed the wise men. He questioned them carefully about the time they saw the star. He believed the Scriptures; that's why he killed the children of Bethlehem! He was not trying to squash a rumor; he was trying to kill the King, and probably thought he had done so. And last, Jesus was acknowledged as King:

d. by repeated Divine intervention and protection Three times God sent an angel to warn Joseph to protect his Son. And notice the order in verses 14 and 21, the CHILD and his mother... That's the inverse of normal order. It is the child that is the focus of God's protection. Why?

Dear friends, Jesus is the King! No other person could ever lay claim to that. No other could ever fulfill "to a T" every prediction and even every intimation of the Scriptures. Jesus Christ is the rightful King of all, King of Kings and Lord of Lords! And what do you do in the presence of a King? You do what the wise men did. You bow down! You give Him your all your gifts and you promise Him all your loyalty. Make this song your response to the King.

"We All Bow Down" by Lenny LeBlanc |

*Princes and paupers, Sons and daughters, Kneel at the throne of grace Losers and winners, Saints and sinners, One day will see His face
And we all bow down, Kings will surrender their crowns, And worship Jesus
For He is the love, Unfailing love, He is the love of God
Summer and winter, The mountains and rivers, Whisper our Savior's name Awesome and holy, A friend to the lonely, Forever His love will reign
He's the light of the world, And Lord of the cross
And we all bow down, Kings will surrender their crowns, And worship Jesus
For He is the love, Unfailing love, He is the love of God*

© 2002 Integrity's Hosanna! Music/LenSongs Publishing [Hear it online at <http://youtu.be/gtZHQ2UA48I/>]

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Ministry Of The King - Mt. 3-4

The Preparation For The King - 3:1-12

In Chapters 3-4 Matthew essentially records for us the launching of The Ministry of the King through His baptism and temptation when Jesus was about 30 years old. But he begins by telling us about the preparation that God planned for Jesus' ministry as the King through John the Baptist in 3:1-12. John's father was a priest from the tribe of Levi named Zachariah; his mother Elisabeth was also from that tribe, yet somehow distantly related to Jesus' mother Mary. The King James translation of Luke 1 has resulted in the false impression that John and Jesus were second-cousins, but although the events surrounding their miraculous births were connected and six months apart, it is doubtful that they really interacted with or knew each other until their ministries began. So let's look at that first phrase in verse (1) and talk about:

I. The Circumstances Of John the Baptist's Ministry

1. John's ministry began at a crucial time Luke tells us exactly when In those days... was. He says, In the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar...the Word of God came to John. - Lk. 3:1-2. We call that year 29 AD and it was a time when Israel was at its lowest ebb in every way. Under Caesar Augustus the Jews were tolerated and treated mildly, but Tiberias hated the Jews, persecuted those Jews who lived in Rome and dealt extremely harshly with Judea, which was now directly under Roman rule. He had three years earlier appointed Pontius Pilate governor, who repeatedly antagonized and offended the Jews, murdering many over the course of several incidents. The common people lived in fear of their oppressors; they understood that they were living in the iron grip of the fourth beast of Daniel's vision in chapter 2 and their only hope was that the God of Heaven would soon set up HIS Kingdom on earth and smash it to pieces! Yet at the same time, religiously, Israel had fallen to an all-time low. Most of her priests were Sadducees, who denied life after death and operated largely as political pawns of the Romans. The majority of Pharisees, considered the most pious of Jews, made a grand show of outward religiosity, but in reality, were vain, power-hungry, greedy, and equally capable of throwing poor widows out onto the street or plotting murder when it suited their purpose. Israel had not known a prophet in 400 years; they had not heard the voice of God thundering from one who proclaimed with authority, "Thus says the Lord!" I am not above suggesting that, in some senses, the day in which we live here is somewhat like it. We legitimize immorality in every form. We take human life for the sake of convenience. The pride of power and the raw greed of materialism rule the day. There's religion everywhere, but a large portion of the church has thrown out the truth of Scripture and doesn't proclaim it anymore. Like Babylon, if our society were weighed in the balances today, we are growing dangerously close to being found wanting, not worthy of continuing, and deserving of wrath and judgment. It is a crucial time in our history too; like Israel in that day, we need a massive turning back to God! Well, it was exactly at this crucial time that John the Baptist came on the scene preaching, but not where you would expect him:

2. John's life and ministry were centered in the desert of Judea. Lk. 1:80 says [John] was in the wilderness until the day of his public appearance to Israel. Now, if your translation says wilderness, don't think forests and trees. The Judean desert is a region roughly 10 miles wide and 60 miles long, stretching along the shore of the lower Jordan River and the Dead Sea to the east of Jerusalem and Bethlehem, and on to the south. Dozens of deep wadis cut across it. It is a dry, rocky, barren, uninhabited region with few oases or villages. John grew up probably on the edge of this region and lived his whole life there in the desert until he was 30 years old. But what an unlikely place to start a ministry! You would think God would have you go to Jerusalem and preach to the multitudes gathered for the annual feasts or at least send you into the towns and villages where you could go into the synagogues and teach as Jesus did or even the marketplaces. But out here? People had to come out to him from their towns and cities. They had to walk miles to find and listen to him. You wouldn't think they would do it, but come they did, first in a trickle, and then by the dozens and soon by the hundreds, as word of his preaching spread. One has to ask why? Well, one answer probably is that:

3. John's dress and demeanor identified him with the Old Testament prophets (4-5) Instead of dressing like normal people, he wore a rough felt garment made of camel's hair and a leather belt. And instead of adopting a trade or planting a crop, he lived on what was available to him in the wild, eating locusts and searching for wild honey for a sweet. Need I tell you that that was really weird, even in that day? So why did he do it? Zech. 13:4 seems to indicate that the garment of hair was the mark of a prophet of God. It was exactly what Elijah wore in 2 Kings 1:8 and everybody knew this was how Elijah dressed. Plus, Elijah spent much of his time in the wilderness also. Luke tells us that an angel prophesied of John before his birth (Lk. 1:17) that He would go before the Messiah in the spirit and power of Elijah. John wanted all the people to know that he was a prophet of God, that God had sent a prophet to His people at long last. But more than that, it said that he was the new Elijah, the Elijah whom God said through Malachi that He would send before the Day of the Lord to turn the hearts of His people back again. And come they did, from all over, crowds of people of all kinds to hear him. There were Pharisees from Jerusalem and fishermen from Galilee, soldiers, tax collectors, you name it. All came to hear his message. Now what was:

II. The Purpose Of John's Ministry Matthew explains it to us in verse (3). Matthew quotes Is. 40:3 and claims that:

1. his ministry fulfilled prophecy He says that this promise was a direct prediction of John's ministry. In fact, John even quoted this verse to identify himself when the Pharisees asked him whether he was the Christ (1:23). He said, "This is what I am! The voice of one crying in the wilderness, 'Prepare the way of the Lord!'" So, both Matthew and John himself are saying that:

2. his ministry prepared the nation for Jesus' public ministry The context of Is. 40:3 is a prediction of comfort for Israel after the exile that Isaiah said was going to come upon them. If you read the chapter, you'll see that it's a promise that the glory of the Lord is again going to come to Jerusalem and that all flesh will see it. It's a call for the people to go out and fix the roads and make the crooked places straight and fill up the ditches and level the humps, to make the rough places smooth so the King can arrive. It's a metaphor for repentance, calling on the people to turn from their sins and correct their crooked ways so that the glory of the Lord will return and the Kingdom will come. John says "I am that voice". He was purposely out in the wilderness doing that very thing preparing the nation of Israel, calling upon the people to repent and change their hearts, so that they might receive their King, Jesus, who was soon to arrive on the scene!

Ancient Kings always had the road prepared before them when they traveled. Even today, whenever the President of the United States visits a community, local officials cooperate with advance teams in an immense amount of preparation for his coming. His motorcade route is carefully laid out. Streets are repaired and litter is picked up. The people who will meet with him are carefully coached and put on their finest clothes. The offices, auditoriums, and businesses he will visit are cleaned and decorated. Everything possible is done to give him the kind of reception that his position deserves. Listen, if our President merits such thorough preparation, certainly the King and Lord of the universe deserves far more! John was the advance man for Christ, urging the people to get ready for their King. Now let's look at:

III. The Message Which John Preached We are given a brief general summary of it. First of all:

1. it was a message about the Kingdom (2) Using the term heaven was a Jewish way to reverently avoid taking God's name upon your lips, but everybody knew that when you said heaven, you really meant God Himself. Where the other Gospels say Kingdom of God, Matthew says, Kingdom of Heaven, because he's a Jewish guy writing to Jews. He's saying, "The rule or reign of God is coming; it's drawing close." By that I don't think he was as focused on the setting up of the final kingdom on earth that we look for; rather I think his message meant that the King had arrived and was soon to reveal Himself to Israel. I say that because the focus of it was personal. It was a call for personal submission to the rule of God in life. It was saying, "The King is about to arrive right here; make your life ready! Clean the streets, smooth the rough places, straighten the crooked places! Get ready to receive Him, bow before Him and truly acknowledge His rule over your life!" Therefore:

2. it was a message calling people to repentance (7-10) Wow, we don't preach like that much today! But maybe we should. You see, in John's day:

a. people counted on physical descent from Abraham for God's favor They believed that because they were Jews, God was obligated to receive them favorably and treat them with blessing because God had made a promise to Abraham that the land would belong to his descendants who would outnumber the stars in the sky, regardless of what they did or how they acted personally. They figured that as long as they were not idolaters, as long as they called Yahweh their God and were circumcised, that they were IN with Him because Abraham was their father. It did not equate to following Him or obeying Him in their personal lives. Now that shouldn't surprise us too much. We have lots of people just like them. For instance, you have plenty of neighbors who count on the fact that they are Catholic or Presbyterian or Lutheran or something else. Their minds believe, "I was baptized in the church as a baby; I was married there; I count myself part of it, give assent to what it believes and I even go there, at least on important occasions. So, God must regard me favorably." Yet the reign of Jesus doesn't mean very much in their personal lives. They live together without being married or are unfaithful to their spouses or look at pornography on the internet. With their lips they take God's Name in vain or they dishonor him with cursing. They cheat on their taxes or do what they have to to get ahead; maybe they drink too much and become abusive to their families. Their lives focus on themselves and what they want; whatever they give to God is a little bit out of the leftovers, yet they would call themselves children of God. Listen, John said, "God can make children of Abraham out of these stones, if He wants to! He doesn't need you; you need HIM!"

b. he called them to change their minds and see their own sin That's what repentance is, literally a changing of the mind. It's an opening of our eyes to see what our lives truly look like in the sight of God, a changing of our presumptive thinking that we're OK and God doesn't really care about how we live. It's a recognition that I'm a sinful human being who must stand before a holy God and feeling genuine sorrow over it! It is being overwhelmed like Isaiah in the presence of God when he cried out, Woe [is] me! for I am undone; because I [am] a man of unclean lips...and my eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts!

c. he called them to change and bear the fruit of holy lives He said, "If your hearts are changed, your lives will bear the fruit that proves it!" Look ahead to what Jesus Himself taught in 7:20-21. It is not what a person's lips say, but what their life says, that is really true. He is not Lord if our lives aren't ruled by His will. He is not King if our lives don't fulfill His command. That's as true today as it was then. And then John called people to a point of decision:

d. he called them to a public commitment of baptism as a sign of change (6) Baptism was not a new thing to the Jews. Many of the ceremonial laws about cleansing say that a person had to bathe in water before he was cleansed from defilement. It symbolized the removal of sin. For centuries proselytes converting to Judaism had been first circumcised, but then immersed in water, baptized, as a symbol of cleansing from their former sinful lives. John took this familiar symbol and said, "This is not something for the 'sinners of the Gentiles'; it is for YOU! You need to repent of your sins and then come out here into the river with me and make your intent to change your lives publicly known. Do it in front of everybody!" And they took him seriously. As the Spirit broke their hearts, they began to come for repentance and baptism first a few and then by the dozens, then hundreds. It became a movement in Israel. Now John was always found at the Jordan and, daily, crowds came to him; that's how he became known as "the Baptizer". My, but he was straight with them:

e. he warned them of destruction if they refused "The axe is already laying against the root of the tree and when the King gets here, if that tree is not bearing the fruit of a holy life, He's going to swing that axe and cut it down and burn it! Your eternal soul is in danger, Jew or not, church member or not, professing to believe or not! It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the Living God [Heb. 10:31]!" Whoa! Obviously the "seeker-friendly" service hadn't been invented yet, or at least, John hadn't read the literature! His message was straight but it was true and it's the same one we preach: there is a hell and your sin is going to send you there unless you repent and place your life under the rule of the King! Ultimately, John's message:

3. it was a message pointing people to the King, Jesus (11-12) John said: "Jesus is coming and:

a. He is the One who matters, not us I only baptize with water; it has no power to save you. In fact, I can't save you; I am nothing, nobody, the lowest of servants. I'm just a mouthpiece, a voice crying out a message. HE is everything. It's about Him, not about me. And when He comes:

b. He will baptize those who are genuinely His with His Spirit, just like the prophet Joel said, I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, young and old, male and female, servants and handmaids [2:28-29], upon all who will call upon the name of the Lord to be saved. He will put His own Spirit inside of them, writing His very laws on their hearts and giving them power to live pure and obedient lives. I can't do that, but that's what He will do! Yet at the same time:

c. He will bring refining fire like Malachi and burn up all that is impure among His gold. [3:2-5]. He'll pick up his winnowing fork, throw the harvested grain up into the air and let the strong wind of the Spirit blow the chaff into the fire and gather those who are truly his wheat safely into His barn. He knows who is real and who is not. Say what you want to people, cry 'Lord, Lord' all you want, but you can't fool Him; He can see your life and right into your heart! Either He's your Lord and King or He's not."

John's ministry was short, maybe a year, not more than two, but the impact of his message was extremely powerful. Twenty five years later and a thousand miles away by land in Ephesus, Paul met a group of men who had heard John's message, repented and were baptized and were still waiting for the King he promised to come. In the autumn of 1912, Teddy Roosevelt was in Milwaukee to deliver an important campaign speech seeking a third term as President. He was greeting well-wishers in front of the Gilpatrick Hotel, when a deranged saloonkeeper named John Schrank stepped forward, aimed a pistol at Roosevelt and fired a single bullet into Roosevelt's chest. The bullet failed to mortally wound the president because its force was slowed by a glasses case and a bundle of manuscript in the breast pocket of his heavy coat--a manuscript containing Roosevelt's evening speech. The blast knocked him across the car and into a crumpled heap. Police gang-tackled the gunman. But even as his aides begged him to go to the hospital, he said, "You get me to that speech. It may be the last one I ever deliver, and I'm not going to miss it." Minutes after the shooting, Teddy Roosevelt stood before his audience and said, "Friends, I shall ask you to be as quiet as possible. I have just been shot, and even now the bullet is in me. So I cannot speak for long, but I will do my best." With that he pulled the torn and blood-stained manuscript from his breast pocket and declared, "You see, it takes more than one bullet to kill a Bull Moose." He spoke for nearly an hour. That night his speech was more candid than scripted, more urgent than routine. It was driven by passion, not politics. It contained no campaign rhetoric, no jockeying for votes, no idle promises. Instead, he spoke with deep resolve to cure the nation's problems, even while risking his own. He was compelled to tell the truth. Declaring his deepest beliefs was the only thing that mattered that night. Even his greatest critics sat silenced and declared their respect for him. That desperate passion to do nothing save declare the truth is the way John preached every single one of his short days. It softened the hard ground of thousands of hearts and prepared a nation to meet their King. I hope, on the one hand, that you'll hear John's message and apply it to your own life in whatever way God shows you, but on the other, I hope all of us will be like John in passionately declaring the unpopular truth of God to a decadent society, that we will all be voices crying in the wilderness, "Prepare the way of the Lord!"

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Ministry Of The King - Mt. 3-4

The Baptism Of The King - 3:13-17

Last time we looked at the ministry of John the Baptist which prepared Israel for Jesus' ministry in the first 12 verses of chapter 3. Today we look at the extraordinary event with which Jesus launched His own ministry. After about six months of preaching, John's work had grown into a true religious movement with crowds coming out to him from their towns and villages every day to repent of their sins and be baptized in the Jordan River. At that point, when He was about 30 years of age, Jesus left home, left the village carpenter's life that He had known in Nazareth, to embark upon a public life of ministry for the next 3 ½ years. And as His first step:

I. Jesus Deliberately Came To Be Baptized By John (13-15) Now first let's try to visualize:

1. the physical journey involved Jesus left His home in Nazareth of Galilee and traveled 65 or 70 miles down the Jordan Valley to find John. Jn. 1:28 says that the place where John was baptizing at that time was on the east or far side of Jordan, at a place called Bethany or in the KJV Bethabara. The traditional site is just above the ford at Jericho, about 6 miles north of the entrance to the Dead Sea. Interestingly, it was about here that Israel had crossed Jordan to attack Jericho and it dried up before them. It was also here that Elijah divided the Jordan with his mantle and crossed on dry ground; he then went on up a hill to the east, today known as Mar Elias and was taken up to heaven. Today in that section, the growth along the river is lush, but the river itself has been reduced to a muddy creek because Israel and Jordan both siphon off so much of its water upstream for irrigation. Because the river has shrunk so much, the traditional baptism spot is now well inland from the river bank. It is marked by the foundation ruins of two chapels that were built next to it in later centuries (shaded now by porches to preserve them) and the alleged spot itself has been carved out into a cross-shaped pool that is now often completely dry. Naturally, through the centuries people have wanted to come here to be baptized themselves, thus there are steps, and the Orthodox Church has recently completed a new chapel close to the site. Of course, there is nothing holy about the place itself; it simply serves as a reminder that this was an event that actually happened in a real place that believers have always known about and that you can still go to today. It is not some ancient myth or story that the Church made up. My point is that when you think about Jesus deliberately traveling all that way in order to go to John and be baptized by him, it's clear that:

2. He had a definite purpose in doing this The question of why Jesus chose to be baptized by John is worth asking, because it is obvious that Jesus was not doing it for the same reason as everyone else that came. He had nothing to repent of; He was absolutely without sin; His life did not require a change to bear fruit like the rest. So then, why? Well, of all the answers that have been suggested, a few are clear. First:

a. He was personally obeying His Father's will God told Him to do it! That's what He meant when He told John ...it is fitting for us to fulfill all righteousness. In other words, God wants both you and I to do this thing so we must do it; that obedience is required both of us. We must fulfill His will. It made no sense to John and Jesus didn't offer a real explanation; He just said, "God says to do this" and that's enough. You know, sometimes God tells you WHAT to do without telling you WHY. Sometimes obedience makes absolutely no sense; it seems the very opposite of what logic would tell us we should do, but our obligation is to do it anyway, isn't it? Then the most obvious reason we can think of is that:

b. He was publicly revealing Himself as the coming One John preached John became the chief witness to Jesus in those early days of His ministry. The Gospel of John does not record the baptism itself, only what John said on several days in the weeks that followed. When Jesus showed up, he would preach to the crowd, "Look! There is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! There's the one whose shoes I'm not worthy to untie! There's the One who will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and will burn you up as chaff if you don't repent! Follow Him!" Jesus' first followers, Andrew and Peter among them, started out as John's followers. And Jesus' baptism was the link that bound their two ministries together into one, John's as preparation and Jesus' as the fulfillment. Now, from our own viewpoint living after the cross, we can see that Jesus:

c. He was graciously identifying Himself with US Luke introduces his record of the event by saying, When all the people were being baptized, Jesus was baptized too. - Lk. 3:21. Jesus stood in the line with the people. In essence, He stood with us in our place, the place of humble repentant sinners counting on the grace of God for forgiveness we don't deserve. And He became for us a living visual illustration of what would happen to each one of us at our salvation. As He came out of the water, two significant things happened to Him. The Holy Spirit descended upon Him in the visible form of a dove and then the voice of the Father came from heaven saying, "This is My Son, whom I love; with Him I am well pleased." This was a visual demonstration of what happens to us. When we take the place of a repentant sinner counting on the grace of God and identify ourselves with Christ, as Jesus did with John, each of us is instantly and permanently accepted before God as His beloved son or daughter and given the Holy Spirit to permanently indwell us. At His baptism, Jesus was identifying Himself with us to show us what He will do for us! At our baptism as believers, we identify ourselves with Him; we follow His example of declaring a spiritual message by that physical act. But that's another sermon. Before we move on, let me point out that:

d. John humbly recognized his own sinfulness and unworthiness "Me, baptize the Son of God? YOU should baptize ME! I follow YOU!" And Jesus responded, "I understand your hesitation and I appreciate your humble attitude but we have to do this thing because that's what the Father says to do!" You know, sometimes God gives us the awesome privilege of doing things that we in no way deserve to do. Not that it compares to this, but in India we got to give new Christian names to the new believers who were being baptized, names they would carry the rest of their lives. It was so humbling that we who had literally done nothing, who had no right, should be asked to do that. And that sense of humbleness, that recognition of our unworthiness, is something we never want to lose. Jesus later commented, ...among those born of women there has arisen no one greater than John the Baptist (11:11), but John's attitude was always, "Who am I?" It was the attitude of Moses, of David, of Solomon early in his life, of Mary, of Elizabeth (John's mother). It has always been the attitude of the most mature, of those whom God has chosen to use in the greatest ways. Be careful never to lose it!

So Jesus waded into the water and was immersed by John, but immediately after, a second thing happened:

II. The Father Powerfully Revealed Himself At Jesus' Baptism (16-17) The Father:

1. He directly confirmed Jesus as His Chosen One; He declared to the world that Jesus was the Messiah, the King, His chosen Servant. He did it:

a. with a vision of heaven visible to human eyes He pulled back the veil, just like He did for Stephen as he was being stoned. Their human eyes were able to see right into heaven, right into the very throne room of God. And He did it:

b. with a voice speaking audibly to human ears, a voice speaking out loud from heaven! The last time God did that in Israel was at Mount Sinai 1400 years earlier and all the people heard it and were terrified! God truly intended to make this a landmark event!

Now we are not told whether everyone standing there saw the vision and heard the Voice or not, but the text says Jesus did and the fourth Gospel says John did. In fact, he later testified that this moment verified for him with absolute certainty that Jesus was the Christ. I rather think that everybody saw and heard it, as John did, because that was the point! Every Jew knew Is. 42:1, Behold my servant, whom I uphold, my chosen, in whom my soul delights; I have put my Spirit upon him; he will bring forth justice to the nations. The whole point of this scene is that God the Father was openly, visibly, even audibly declaring to the world just who Jesus is! Now in that process:

2. He visually displayed Jesus' endowment with the Holy Spirit The Holy Spirit appeared in a visible form, something like a dove, descending from the sky and alighting upon Him. Of course, the symbolism of the dove is all over the place today, but in that day, there was no common symbolic meaning to connect it with. The dove is not the point. God had told John privately, ...He on whom you see the Spirit descend and remain, this is he who baptizes with the Holy Spirit - Jn. 1:33. The Father is saying, "This is the ONE who has My Spirit!" And please don't give any credence to the heresy that this is when Jesus received the Spirit, as though He did not have the Spirit before this. He was conceived by the Holy Spirit. His whole life was lived in communion with the Spirit; in fact, He was one with the Spirit from all eternity. This scene is in reality a visible demonstration for the sake of giving the audience a message: "This is the Man who HAS the Holy Spirit of God and He can bestow His Spirit on you!". Also note that:

a. the Spirit descended and remained upon Him. I don't take that to mean that Jesus walked around with a dove perched on His shoulder thereafter. I take it that the "dove form" kind of alighted upon Him and "merged" into His body. The Spirit remained there permanently. The Jews also knew Is. 11:2, ...the Spirit of the LORD shall rest upon him, the Spirit of wisdom and understanding, the Spirit of counsel and might, the Spirit of knowledge and the fear of the LORD. A similar thing happened on the day of Pentecost when the Spirit came down in the appearance of flames of fire and lighted upon each of the believers in the room and "rested" on them. I don't think they walked around with little flames of fire on top of their heads; the appearance "merged" into their beings. God was saying, "My Spirit is now in you and He isn't leaving!" By the way, if you're saved today, what happened to Jesus and to those guys is a visible picture of what happened to you! The Father sent His Holy Spirit to dwell in your very body and join Himself to your spirit and He's not going anywhere! But what the Spirit's permanent abiding really said about Jesus is that:

b. His every move was made under the guidance of the Spirit Look at 4:1. He didn't choose to go the places He went and say the things He said on his own initiative. Every move He made, every Word He spoke, was at the bidding of the Spirit of God who made them known to Him. Moreover:

c. His every deed was done through the power of the Spirit When the Temptation was finished, Lk. 4:14 says, Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit to Galilee. All His deeds, all His miracles, everything He ever did, was done, not on His own, but through the power of the Holy Spirit!

And isn't that the very way that we're supposed to live? Paul said, Be filled with the Spirit! "Let the Holy Spirit who lives in you control everything you do and say! Draw upon His power for every deed; don't rely upon your own strength!" The Father was saying, "Jesus will be the prime example of what it means to live life, not by might, not by power, but by My Spirit! Follow Him! Live like Him!" Now at the same time the Father sent the Spirit upon Jesus visually:

3. He clearly declared Jesus' identity as His Son verbally. His voice spoke from heaven. Can you imagine what that was like? Now on the one hand, for Jesus:

a. it was intensely personal Both Mk. 1:11 and Lk. 3:21 record the Father as saying directly to Jesus, "YOU are My beloved Son". Not that Jesus didn't know that or wasn't sure of it somehow, but the Father affirmed it to Him again, out loud, in front of the whole world. It's like me saying to LuAnn, "Sweetheart, you are the love of my life!" right up here in front of all these people! And meaning it, of course! It was a powerful affirmation to Jesus Himself and we'll see next week just how these very words prepared Jesus for the very attacks of the Devil He was about to face! However, Matthew gives us the "sense" of what the Father said by writing "THIS is My beloved Son." That shows that it was not merely personal; at the same time:

b. it was intended for the public He was making that declaration before the whole world. Read with me Jn. 1:32-34. John says, "When I saw the Spirit and I heard that Voice speak, I KNEW Jesus was God's Son. I saw and heard it and I am bearing witness; I'm telling everybody!" The Father was saying, "HEY WORLD! PAY ATTENTION! JESUS IS MY SON!" But He said even more than that, "MY BELOVED SON!"

4. He freely confessed the nature of His relationship with His Son He actually said two things. He said:

a. I deeply love My Son How it must have warmed Jesus' heart to hear His Father say, "I love you, Son, with all My being!" and to hear Him declare it before the whole world! Have you ever been at a Phillies game and seen them put up on the Phanavision screen in front of 50,000 fans, "I love you, Susan! Will you marry me?" and then the camera shows the surprised face of the girl and she is just absolutely overwhelmed with the fact that her boyfriend loved her enough to put it up in lights before the whole world! Well, magnify that feeling about a million times and you still won't begin to touch the affirmation that this was to Jesus and the warning that it was to the world! But the Father didn't stop there. He said:

b. I am completely pleased in My Son That's our word "well-pleased" from 2 Cor. 12:10. "I am completely satisfied; there is nothing that My Son needs to do for Me to be pleased with Him. I am absolutely satisfied in Him right now, today, without the cross, without all that He will accomplish. I am satisfied with HIS PERSON, with HIM!"

Dear one, have you not yet realized that God says these very things about YOU if you have trusted in Christ! ... You received God's Spirit when he adopted you as his own children. Now we call him, "Abba, Father." For his Spirit joins with our spirit to affirm that we are God's children. And since we are his children, we are his heirs. In fact, together with Christ we are heirs of God's glory. - Rom. 8:15-17! In His Word, God says about YOU, "YOU are My child, My son, My daughter. And I love you deeply. I love you with all My being. And I am completely satisfied in you! Not in your performance, not in all the things you do for Me, not in your carrying out of all the things I have for you to do, but simply IN YOU! There is not one thing you have to do to gain My favor. I am well-pleased that I made you and that I have you as My child, that you are Mine!" How does that make you feel? That's how it made Jesus feel and He went on and lived life out of it, knowing He had complete freedom and acceptance. Years ago, an unknown author wrote this: I was watching some little kids play soccer. These kids were only five or six years old, but they were playing a real game -- a serious game -- two teams, complete with coaches, uniforms, and parents. I didn't know any of them, so I was able to enjoy the game without the distraction of being anxious about winning or losing. The teams were pretty evenly matched. Nobody scored in the first period. The kids were hilarious. They were clumsy and terribly inefficient, as only children can be. They fell over their own feet, they stumbled over the ball, they kicked at the ball and missed it, but they didn't seem to care; they were having fun! In the second period, the Team One coach, pulled out what must have been his first team players and put in the scrubs; with the exception of his best player, who he left at goalie. The game took a dramatic turn. The Team Two coach left his best players in and the Team One scrubs were just no match for them. Team Two swarmed around the little guy at goalie. He was an outstanding athlete for five, but he was no match for three or four who were equally as good. Team Two began to score. The lone goalie gave it his all. Recklessly throwing his body in front of incoming balls, trying valiantly to stop them. Team Two scored two quick points in succession. It infuriated the young boy. He was shouting, running, and diving. With all the stamina he could muster, he finally was able to cover one of the boys as he approached the goal. But that boy kicked the ball to another boy twenty feet away, and by the time the young goalie repositioned himself, it was too late -- they scored a third goal. The goalie's parents were nice, decent-looking people. I could tell that his dad had just come from the office, tie and all. They yelled encouragement to their son. I became totally absorbed, watching the boy on the field, and his parents on the sideline. After the third goal, the little kid changed. He could see it was no use; he couldn't stop them. He didn't quit, but he became quietly desperate -- futility was written all over his face. His father changed too. He had been urging his son to try harder -- yelling advice and encouragement. But then he changed; he became anxious. He tried to say that it was okay ... to hang in there. He grieved for the pain his son was feeling. After the fourth goal, I knew what was going to happen. The little boy needed help so badly, and there was no help to be had. He retrieved the ball from the net and handed it to the referee -- and then he cried. He just stood there while huge tears rolled down both cheeks. He went to his knees; I saw his father start onto the field. His wife clutched his wrist and said, "Jim, don't. You'll embarrass him." But he tore loose from her and ran onto the field. He wasn't supposed to; the game was still in progress. Suit, tie, dress shoes, and all -- he charged onto the field and he picked up his son so everybody would know that this was his boy. And he hugged him and kissed him ...and cried with him. I have never been so proud of any man in my life. He carried him off the field, and when they got close to the sidelines, I heard him say, "Scotty, I'm so proud of you. You were great out there. I want everybody to know that you are my son." "Daddy," the boy sobbed, "I couldn't stop them. I tried, Daddy, I tried and tried and they scored on me." "Scotty, it doesn't matter how many times they score on you. You're my son, and I'm proud of you. I want you to go back out there and finish the game. I know you want to quit, but you can't. And son, you're going to get scored on again, but it doesn't matter. Go on, now." The little guy ran back on to the field, and they scored two more times; but it was okay. I get scored on every day. I try so hard. I throw my body in every direction. I fume and rage. I struggle in life with every ounce of my being -- and Satan laughs. And he scores again, and the tears come, and I go to my knees; sinful, convicted, helpless. But my Father rushes right out on the field -- right in front of the whole crowd -- the whole jeering laughing world, and He picks me up. And He hugs me, and He says, "I am so proud of you. You were great out there. I want everybody to know that you are My child. I love you!"

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Ministry Of The King - Mt. 3-4

The Temptation Of The King - 4:1-11

In our continuing study through the Gospel of Matthew we arrive today in Chapter 4 at the second major event that began Jesus' ministry. The first foundational event was His baptism by John, followed by the descent of the Holy Spirit like a dove and the glorious announcement of the Father from heaven, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Now, immediately on its heels, comes the powerful account of His victorious encounter with Satan that we call His temptation. Before we study it, however, I'd like to take a moment to talk about:

I. How Jesus' Temptation Relates To Us Turn with me to Heb. 4:15-16. Now right there are three important facts and three reasons for studying Jesus' temptation pretty closely. First of all:

1. He was tempted exactly like we are Of course He wasn't tempted to look at pornography on the internet; He didn't face every specific tempting circumstance we face. Rather He was tempted in every WAY that we are tempted, in every area in which we face temptation. And He experienced it exactly like we do; He felt the same exact human feelings that we feel. In other words, His temptation was real; it was genuine. The desires that Satan tried to stir in Him were actually there. He truly felt hunger and desired food. If what Satan tried to tempt Him with had no appeal to Him, it wouldn't be temptation, would it? In the scene we're about to look at, Jesus may APPEAR nonchalant as we read, but He is engaged in an intense struggle, similar to the one He later endured in Gethsemane. And because of that:

2. He understands the struggle temptation is for us and stands ready to help He knows how hard it is! He has been here; He has struggled through it just like we do. So, He sympathizes with us in our personal struggles; He literally suffers through it with us, alongside us. And He stands ready, not to condemn us for struggling, but to supply us with His mighty power and strength to help us whenever we need it! And notice those little words, yet without sin. He went through a stronger, deeper struggle with temptation than we will ever know and won! So, in that process:

3. He demonstrates for us the way of victory over temptation He shows us how it's done, how to make it through! We can look at the temptation of Jesus and see in it our own selves, in our own struggles, and learn how to emerge victorious! That's why our study today is important! So, let's begin with:

II. The Circumstances Of Temptation (1-2a) Don't skip this introduction or take it lightly. Notice this temptation happened in:

1. the desert: In our first study I shared that the wilderness or the Desert of Judea is a barren, rocky, mountainous region along the shore of the Dead Sea where John the Baptist grew up and began his ministry. It was largely uninhabited because there's no vegetation and little water. To go there is to be alone. Mark says in 1:12-13, He was with the wild animals; snakes, scorpions, vultures, they were the only living creatures he saw. And He was alone for 40 solid days without interacting with another human being. Imagine that. Temptation is often the strongest when we ARE alone or at least when we FEEL alone. Ask any wildebeest; the wild dogs always separate their target animal from the herd to devour it because there's safety in numbers. That's one reason God warns us not to neglect meeting together. God birthed us into a herd, the Church, and we help protect one another from falling into the jaws of the enemy. Now notice why Jesus went into the desert. He was, quite literally, led up there from the Jordan by:

2. the Spirit: Mark says He was driven there by the Spirit. He was compelled by God to go to the desert, the very place where He was tempted. To say it another way, He arrived at the place of temptation by the path of obedience. And often, so do we. We are quick to talk about not putting ourselves in situations where we know we'll be tempted to sin, but the point here is the exact opposite. As we obey God and follow Him, at time He leads us directly into tempting circumstances and it is no mistake! He does it on purpose and He does it for two reasons: God uses temptation to PROVE us. Now by that, I don't mean He's trying to see whether He can get us to sin. Jas. 1:13 says ...God cannot be tempted with evil, and he himself tempts no one. God was not trying to see whether His Son would sin; He was proving to the whole world that His Son WOULD NOT sin! When He leads us into temptation, God is proving to us and to the world who we really are, that we really are His followers who have transformed hearts that love Him more than anything in the world and choose not to sin! And in our case, He also uses going through temptation to IMPROVE us, to strengthen us through the experience for the more stringent attacks that will lie ahead. Now notice the actual tempting is done by:

3. the Tempter, as he is called in verse 3. Satan is the one who attacks us with temptation. It comes from him; he is the author of temptation, the one trying to drag us into sin. But why? Why bother? The bottom line is that it hurts God! He told God, "Let me take away everything Job has and he'll curse you right to your face!" (1:11). He put it right out there; that's what he wants. He wants the whole race to turn against God and hate Him and break His heart of love, especially those who claim to love Him! If he can get Jesus to sin, to rebel against His own Father he destroys the most fundamental relationship in the universe and he breaks the very heart of God. The Father says, "Have at it, Satan; it's a vain hope! Let Me show you what My beloved Son will do!" That's the bottom line every time we face temptation. Satan is trying to cause God pain, to get us to grieve, to deeply sadden and wound His Spirit who lives in us! God is wanting to show His glory through His own beloved son or daughter! Now note in verse 2:

4. the duration: Luke 4:1-2 says Jesus was led by the Spirit in the wilderness for forty days, being tempted by the devil. That seems to imply that Jesus was tempted through that whole period out there alone and the three temptations we read about are the final three, the pinnacle, the climax of all that had gone before. Here's another fact: Temptation intensifies by continuation. Potiphar's wife spoke to Joseph day after day, trying to seduce him to sleep with her. I'm sure she changed her approach daily, changed her outfit, softened her request to "Well, just sit here by me...", and finally opted for the aggressive approach, grabbing him by the garment to pull him into her arms. The longer temptation goes on, the stronger it gets. So, flee sooner if you can! For 40 days Satan changed his approach, used different tactics, maybe softened his appeals, and finally in the end, went all out and laid it on the line in:

III. The Three Ultimate Temptations Now in 1 Jn. 2:16 John basically says that everything the world has to offer us (and tempt us with) falls into three categories: the desires of the flesh, which is an appeal to our bodily drives, the desires of the eyes to have the things we see which is basically an appeal to our greed, or the boastful pride of life, which is an appeal to our pride in what we think about ourselves. Gen. 3:6 tells us that Eve struggled with all three in that very first temptation of all. She saw the tree was good for food (it appealed to her physical desire), that it was a delight to the eyes (it appealed to her desire to possess things) and that it would make one wise (it appealed to her pride). That's what tempted her to disobey God; Satan threw the whole ball of wax at her in the simple form of one act of eating a piece of fruit that hung on a forbidden tree. Here he throws the whole ball of wax at Jesus in three separate and most extreme forms. The first of these was the suggestion to turn:

1. Stones Into Bread (2b-4)

a. the apparent enticement was obvious. After 40 days with no food, He was hungry. No, He was way beyond hungry. 40 days without food would make you emaciated, literally starving. Like the little kids you see in the videos of Africa, you'd be ready to eat mud just have something in your stomach. This was the strong appeal to satisfy His physical desire for food, one of the most powerful and basic Desires Of The Flesh. And He could do it simply enough. "You're the Son of God. You could have instant relief. You could take a stone and turn it into a loaf of bread with a word!" It was a simple act that, by itself, would have been perfectly fine, except that it had a subtle:

b. the hidden snare The Father had led Him into this desert and was keeping Him there all this time. Matthew deliberately says Jesus fasted 40 days and that word almost always means to choose not to eat as a means of devoting oneself to God. To break the fast at Satan's suggestion and simply to satisfy His own hunger was to disregard the Father in order to meet His physical need on His own. God knows we have physical needs, a whole bunch of them! These frail bodies of ours are high maintenance models! But Satan tempts us to disobey God by meeting needs our own way, instead of trusting Him to meet them in the way and the time that He has ordained. Eve ate the "apple" because she was hungry that moment, rather than obey God and go eat of another tree. David went after Bathsheba to satisfy his lust, rather than obeying God and going inside to his own wives. But Jesus declared:

c. the truth: Bread is not what gives you life, starving or not; God does! His quote comes from Deut. 8:1-3. God let Israel be hungry and then every morning fed her by an obvious miracle, manna from heaven. It was a 40 year long object lesson that our lives depend on God and not simply on the food we eat! If He says we live, we live, food or not! Therefore, we must never act independent of God! We must never act to satisfy our desires as though our life depends on us and what we do and disregard what He has commanded!

Now don't think that was easy for Jesus to say; this was no religious platitude. These were the words of a near-starving Son declaring, "I AM the Son of God and My Father is more important to Me than my food, than even my own physical survival, my most basic human drive!" So, Satan moved on to a second suggestion:

2. The Temple Leap (5-7) In a moment of time the two are transported to Jerusalem. It is early morning. On the highest parapet of the Temple complex is a platform where the priest on duty watches each morning for the sun's first rays to break the horizon so the morning sacrifice can be offered. Edersheim paints the picture: In the Priests' Court below Him the morning sacrifice has been offered. The massive Temple gates are slowly opening, and the blasts of the priests' silver trumpets is summoning Israel to begin a new day by appearing before their Lord. Now then let Him descend, Heaven-borne, into the midst of priests and people. What shouts of acclamation would greet His appearance! What homage of worship would be His!

a. the apparent enticement is to prove His identity to the world. "You're the Son of God; PROVE IT! Descend! The very angels will bear you up! The Scriptures say so! Claim the worship and loyalty of your people that is rightfully yours!" This was an appeal to the Pride of Life, to that human desire for ultimate significance, for the world to recognize me, to be the one in charge. For 30 long years the very Son of God had been merely "the carpenter's son," planing wooden tables in an obscure village in Galilee. The One through Whom and for Whom all things were created lived in a simple house cutting firewood and cleaning up after animals each day. Why? Because it was the will of His father that He should be born in a manger and live as the humblest of us and have nowhere to lay His head throughout His years of ministry. And there's:

b. the hidden snare. He could cut all that short right now and set it straight. Israel would fall at His angel-protected feet and crown Him King on the spot. But that would be to refuse what the Father wanted. So often Satan uses our pride to entice us to disobey by making demands of God, putting ourselves above Him and demanding that He must do things our way as though we are in charge, instead of us doing things His way. But Jesus refused to jump and declared:

c. the truth: "That is putting God to the test, demanding that He prove Himself to me." He quotes Deut. 6:16, You shall not put the LORD your God to the test, as you tested him at Massah. At Massah in the wilderness the Israelites were thirsty and complaining that God was not giving them water. Ex. 17:7 says, they tested the LORD by saying, "Is the LORD among us or not?" They set themselves up as the judges and wanted to make God prove Himself to them by doing what they wanted right now! Listen, we must never test God by demanding that we get what we want right now, whether it's provision or healing or recognition or anything else. Whenever we come to Him saying, "MY will be done!", we picture ourselves as King and Him as our servant; we seek to "be like God" the way Eve did, to take His place and relegate Him to ours.

Jesus refused. "I AM the Son of God and I will NOT test My Father!" So, at last Satan pulled out all the stops and offered Him:

3. The Kingdoms Of The World (8-10) They stand now upon a high mountain and in a moment of time, Luke says, Satan brings a vision before Jesus' eyes. I picture it much like the video clips we're used to watching today where an unending collage of images scrolls on and off the screen, hundreds of them, each appearing only long enough to appeal to our senses. All the good things of the world, all the glory of the nations of the earth, all their splendor, all their riches, all their beauty, the whole world on the silver platter of a newsreel vision, that's what Satan offered Jesus. He said, "It's mine; I rule it all. Adam gave it to me way back in the garden and I'll give it to You!"

a. the apparent enticement is no less than to possess all the world offers. Satan appeals to the Desire Of The Eyes, that drive to possess what I see before me as my own. The kicker is that it WAS! The end game plan has always been that at the name of Jesus every knee will bow in heaven and on earth, that the kingdoms of this world will at last become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ! Satan says, "You're the Son of God! All that you are waiting for and planning on, I'll give it to you right now! No cross, no suffering, no waiting for centuries, all you have to do is one simple act! Bow down to me right here and it's Yours!" And there's:

b. the hidden snare: when we reach out to selfishly take what we want and take it in our own way instead of His, we disobey by giving homage to Satan. We trade our relationship with God Himself for slavery to an evil angel who is His sworn enemy. Instead of worshipping God by obeying His every word, we give our loyalty to the prince of darkness by obeying his. That's why all sin is against God. Jesus was quick to declare:

c. the truth: He quotes from Deut. 6:12-15 - We must never forsake God! He is the only God, the true God; He will not give His glory to another. To place anything above Him, to value anything in this world more than Him, is to forsake Him and worship a false idol.

Jesus says, "I AM the Son of God and I will worship ONLY My Father!" And to it He adds a command in verse 10, "GO! LEAVE! Now!" He knows who He is! He knows who is REALLY in charge! He knows that in all of this, Satan is simply a pawn that God is using to demonstrate to the world the flawless character of His Son. Look at:

V. The Defeat Of Satan (11a) Look at:

1. the flight of the enemy He leaves! He flees when Jesus takes a stand in His authority as the Son of God and orders him out. That's exactly what James 4:7 says will happen for us! Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Prove who you are! Choose your Father! Take a stand! Tell Satan to go. Tell him you're a son or daughter of God and you're not bowing down to him, you're not doing his will, you're not doing things his way; he has to flee when YOU tell him! And he will! But, remember, as Luke 4:13 mentions, it will only be for a season, until his next opportunity. You can kick him out of the room today, but you can't put him in the lake of fire forever, so be alert, he'll be back. But in the meantime notice:

2. the ministry of angels (11b) The very angels of God showed up. They brought Jesus food to satisfy His burning hunger and water to quench his awful thirst. They broke His loneliness and spoke of heaven with Him right there in the desert. God has not forgotten our needs! And if we will do things His way, He has angels, both the supernatural kind and the human kind that He will send to us right there in the midst of the greatest ordeal of our lives.

So, what can we conclude from this whole ordeal of Christ's temptation? Dr. I. M. Haldeman tells of a scene in New York State among the mountains. A bridge had been constructed across a great chasm hundreds of feet deep. One day he heard the first train on the railroad approaching, and looking out saw two huge locomotives drawn up on the bridge. There was a sharp challenging whistle, then the brakes crashed down, and the two great machines came to a standstill. There they stood and waited for fully half a day, right in the center of the bridge, with their great tons of iron quivering and beating and the bridge beneath like a great spider's web supporting them. What did it mean? They were there to demonstrate the strength of the bridge, to show there was no weakness in it, to prove that it was able to bear up under the greatest test put on it, and so was worthy of the fullest trust on the part of man. He writes, "All the weight of temptation was crowded on our Lord Jesus Christ in that hour when the Devil met him on the mount. He was 'tempted in all points as we are,' from animal appetites and desires, to the highest reaches of ambition for self-gratification and power. He was tempted and tried and tested at every point to prove and demonstrate to angels and to men that he could not say, "Yes" to the temptation... That we might see Him as the majestic, unbreakable bridge across the deep chasm of sin and death; and so, seeing fling ourselves without reserve, and in unhesitating confidence upon Him as the One and all supreme object of our unfaltering faith and profound adoration." [From pamphlet by Haldeman, Could Our Lord Have Sinned?] O fling yourself upon Him for salvation; He is without sin! And fling yourself upon Him for help when you are tempted; He KNOWS your struggle and He stands ready with mercy and grace to help you!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Ministry Of The King - Mt. 3-4

The Methods Of The King - 4:12-25

Having had His arrival announced by John to Israel for over 6 months, then having been affirmed by the Father at His baptism and, finally, having been proven against the enemy through His temptation, Jesus was now ready to embark upon His public ministry. So, in the second half of chapter 4, Matthew gives us an initial brief summary of that ministry. That summary is in two parts. First, Matthew tells us:

I. Where Jesus Went About His Ministry (12-13) There are some details here that you need to know about:

1. the geographical pattern of Jesus' ministry First, there is a huge chronological gap between verses 11 and 12. Matthew does not record:

a. His early ministry in Judea which lasted about 1 year That period is recorded for us only by John in Chapters 1-3 of his Gospel, because he was there with Jesus from the time that John the Baptist identified Jesus as the Lamb of God. So, John records for us the first part of Jesus' ministry, most of which took place in Judea and is often called His early Judean ministry. During the course of that year Jesus made some early disciples, traveled to Cana in Galilee to a wedding and also came to Jerusalem and cleansed the Temple for the first time. Then John says, After this Jesus and his disciples went into the Judean countryside, and he remained there with them and was baptizing. - 3:22. For some months He preached and baptized his followers in a ministry very similar to what John the Baptist was doing and not very far from him. However, when John was arrested and imprisoned by Herod, we read in verse 12 of:

b. His return to Galilee for the majority of His ministry On the way He passed through Samaria, stopped at the well and met the woman of John 4. But from this time on for about two full years, the region of Galilee would be the center of His ministry. In Matthew's record, the Galilean ministry lasts from 4:12 all the way to the end of chapter 18. It is here, away from Jerusalem, the religious center of Israel, that most of His mighty works would be done. Jesus is FROM Galilee, of course; He lived His first 30 years in the town of Nazareth. Naturally, He went home! But now, Matthew adds in verse 13, simply that He left Nazareth without telling us why. Luke 4 tells the story of:

c. His rejection in his home town of Nazareth He went into the synagogue there to teach in His home town and the people were expecting Him to do miracles like they had heard of Him doing elsewhere. But when He refused, they became indignant at His claim to be the Messiah and tried to throw Him off a cliff. However, He passed through their midst and now left His boyhood home, never to return, and so Matthew records:

d. His relocation to Capernaum as a base He actually lived there, in this little fishing village on the shores of Galilee. Whether His whole family relocated there, we don't know. But it became the center for His ministry over the next two years. From Capernaum He went on and taught in many other villages in Galilee, but He always came back. Many of His miracles were done in Capernaum and Matthew himself met Jesus and was called there. But the question we have to ask is, "Why not Jerusalem? Why Galilee?" Look at (14-16). Notice that phrase, Galilee of the Gentiles. What are Gentiles? Gentile is simply the English form of the Latin word gentilis, the same as the Greek word ethnos, which means nation or people. To a Jew, a Gentile is anybody who is NOT a Jew! What I'm trying to show you is that:

2. the ethnic target of so much of Jesus' ministry was non-Jewish peoples, or as He later put it in the Great Commission, all nations.

a. He deliberately chose to focus His ministry in Galilee for three reasons. First:

(1) because it fulfilled the Scripture Matthew quotes Is. 9:1-2. You remember that chapter! It goes on in verse 6 to say, For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given and the government shall be upon His shoulders.... God had said 750 years beforehand that when Messiah the King comes, it will not be to Jerusalem of the Jews. It will be to Galilee of the NATIONS, the non-Jews! The fact that Jesus was raised in Galilee, that He lived in Galilee, that He spent His ministry in Galilee was no accident; God had said He would do it this way. Why? Specifically:

(2) because it had a large non-Jewish population From the time of the conquest the Israelites did not drive out all the Canaanites who lived in this region, but instead lived alongside them. Later on, much of the Jewish population of Galilee and Samaria was carried away into exile in Assyria in 722 BC and their king sent people from Assyria there to colonize and repopulate the region. Besides all that, this region bordered on and traded with Phoenicia, Syria, and the nations to the east of Jordan and people moved back and forth. So, for centuries Galilee had a much smaller population of Jews living alongside people from other nations, as well as ties to other nations. And Jesus not only itinerated throughout Galilee, but repeatedly made trips into all the surrounding nations. God is making a point: He sent His Son to be a Messiah for ALL PEOPLES, not just for the Jews! The Jews had come to despise and look down on all other nations; they had missed God's purpose for them that they should be a light for the whole world to know their God. So, God chose Galilee purely:

(3) because the spiritual darkness was deepest there The people in that region were dwelling in darkness. Spiritual truth was hard to find; people amalgamated and syncretized things from the many religious notions represented by all the peoples. Of all the regions of Israel, they were living in the shadow of death; their very souls were in danger because the Word of God was so scarce. So, it was there that God chose to send the light of dawn first!

Beloved, that is the heart of God! Do you know how many peoples of the earth today still dwell in darkness? In the north of India near Nepal live 7.5 million Pasi people who believe that their ancestors came into existence because a Hindu god named Parashurama needed help to protect sacred cows one day and made five men out of tufts of grass, bringing them to life by letting drops of his perspiration fall upon them. Literally, they are the "Pasi", the "sweat" people! India alone has more than 2,000 peoples like this who live every day in darkness, controlled by superstitions and demonically invented ideas of how to appease false gods and nobody is trying to reach them with the light! If you can get the impression I'm trying to convey, Galilee was something like that and Jesus focused His life and ministry there to bring the dawning of God's light into the darkness. And it worked:

b. His strategy impacted many peoples Look down with me at (24-25) His fame spread through all Syria... Great crowds followed Him from Galilee, Decapolis, and... from beyond the Jordan, the area known as Perea, as well as Jews from Judea! The great crowds that followed Jesus, the multitudes He fed, were from many peoples. Jesus modeled in His personal ministry what He would later command His church, to go and make disciples of ALL peoples. Now Matthew moves on to tell us:

II. How Jesus Went About His Ministry Jesus was continually involved in two key things at the same time. First of all:

1. He had a private ministry of making disciples (18-22) Jesus knew that His ultimate mission was to go to the cross and die and rise again and then leave the world. But unless somebody was prepared to understand what was happening, the whole effect of it would be worthless. And unless somebody was ready to spread the message of what He did, it would be of little value. So, Jesus had these three years of ministry in which to prepare a group of people who could survive the shock of His death and understand and carry His message. Of course, He had a large number of followers, but He needed some who could become apostles, literally, missionaries. So, we have here the record of His calling the first disciples. Notice that:

a. He chose them specifically Of all the fishermen along the lake, Jesus chose to call Peter and Andrew, James and John. Now John's Gospel tells us at least three and probably all of these had met and had believed on Jesus a year earlier, and they had been with Him from time to time both in Judea and in Galilee. However, they were still fishing for a living; they still returned to their livelihoods and kept up normal family life for the most part. But, having observed their hearts and their characters, Jesus now:

b. He called them to follow Him He called to travel about with Him full-time, all over Galilee, to watch and listen to Him and then to participate in going out and preaching and healing. So they lived with Him. They learned to imitate Him, to say the things He said, to do the things He did, and even on occasion to wield the powers He had. And through impressing His life upon theirs:

c. He trained them to become missionary evangelists, or as He put it, fishers of men. Luke 5 tells us the whole story of this morning. The brothers had fished all night and caught nothing, but Jesus told them to launch out into the deep and let down their nets. They "knew better" but did it anyway, and took in such a haul of fish that the nets were breaking and the boats began to sink! THAT'S when Jesus said, "Follow Me and I'll teach you to gather in PEOPLE like that!" It became the purpose of their lives to gather people to Jesus, to "catch" them by bringing them to believe in Him as their Savior and King. Everywhere they went the rest of their lives, regardless of what they did to support themselves, their true business was hauling people into the Kingdom. And notice that when He called them:

d. they responded to His call without hesitation or reservation They left their boats and nets and the father who was in one of the boats; they left everything and they did it immediately, without a second thought.

Do you realize that the making of disciples is still our business? There will always be the mass of people who will believe and who will worship but that's about as far as it will go. But Paul said, what you have heard from me in the presence of many witnesses entrust to faithful men who will be able to teach others also. God has those waiting who have heard and stand willing to really be used of God to serve His purpose in the world. And we need to find those men and women and then train them for their higher purpose, to use their lives to be fishers of men. Whether they are in full-time Christian work or hold a secular job, we need to be preparing them for the higher calling of winning people to faith in Christ. And we do it just like Jesus did, by hooking them up life on life with someone who is already a fisher of men and having them spend time together learning and watching and listening and fishing. This private kind of discipling ministry is just as important, and probably more so, than any public ministry we have. Public ministry may produce the crowds, but private ministry produces leaders so the church will continue. Who are you investing our life in? Or maybe you're on the other end of the equation, maybe you've been living life as any ordinary earthly person and now you hear that Jesus is calling you to have a higher purpose, that God wants to use you, wherever you are, to gather people into His Kingdom. But you know you need help; you know you need to grow into a true disciple. Don't wait for someone to seek you out and ask you; tell somebody, "I want to become a fisher of men and I need somebody to invest their time and life in me to show me how!" Now secondly, we read here that Jesus:

2. He had a public ministry traveling throughout Galilee (17, 23-25) He began traveling all over Galilee, going from village to village. Now Galilee was small enough, about 70 miles by 40 miles, but one generation later Josephus records that Galilee had 204 cities and villages, each with no fewer than 15,000 people. [Expositor's Bible Commentary Vol. 8, p. 120-121] If he was right, that's 3 million people Jesus set out to touch and visiting one village every day would take 7 months; it would be a draining pace. Everywhere He went He did the same three things in verse 23; in fact, we read it again in 9:35. Wherever He went, He was:

a. teaching Teaching is instruction to those who are responsive. This happened most often in the synagogues where Jesus would exercise the privilege of a visiting teacher to teach a new understanding of the Scriptures as He did at Nazareth. But He also taught whole crowds who were eager to learn at various places. Just look at 5:1-2 and there we have the Sermon on the Mount, three whole chapters of His teaching. "You've heard it said, but I say to you...." Over and over, He explained the true meaning of the Law and the Father heart of God to those who showed interest in spiritual things so they would be drawn to believe. Then, on other occasions, we find Him:

b. preaching Preaching is the proclamation of the Good News of the Kingdom to those who need to hear it. He preached the same message that John did before Him, that the Kingdom is near and that repentance is needed. Look at 11:1, 7. Here we have a sermon He preached to the crowds about John and about their own unrepentant hearts, which ended with an invitation to come to Him to find rest for their souls. He often did this; we'd call it street preaching, more or less. But everywhere He was also:

c. healing every disease and every affliction among the people. That's what drew the crowds, the hope of being set free from a disease, from a demon, from seizures or paralysis, of having one's life changed in a day when there was no remedy for almost anything. Why did He do that? Of course, He wanted to help suffering people, but the impact this had on the crowds went far beyond that. To them He authenticated His message by miraculous signs. He proved to them that He could do what only God could do, in order to prove that the words He was saying were also from God. Look at 9:6 where He heals the paralyzed man. He proved His own authority and veracity by signs that were undeniable. The sad thing is that the crowds flocked after the benefit of the miracles but often missed their point; they failed to bow and give their lives to the King who had just proved Himself!

Now there is the pattern of public ministry we pursue even today. For the unconverted we preach the Gospel, however we choose to do it, whether from a pulpit, by radio, by film or on the internet, by one-on-one witness, in a missionary setting or in our own neighborhood. We proclaim to people their need to repent and surrender their lives to the King. Then for the genuine seekers and for the saved alike there is teaching, gentle instruction that leads them along either to conversion itself or on to full growth and maturity in Christ. And then there are, dare we say it, the miracles that prove God is at work and authenticate our message. Where are those, by the way? The way I figure it, God does those when and where He needs to do them to plant His church where the darkness is deepest. Almost every testimony we heard when we were in India involved being healed or freed from demon possession by the Name of Jesus as the thing that caused them to turn from the worship of idols. We must never be afraid to ask God to show Himself real to people. But here, as there, the greatest miracles I see are sitting before me, the living proof of lives changed forever by the power of God. On Thursday Nov. 17, a short term team of 14 men and women from Oakbrook Church in Kokomo IN, volunteers like you and I, went to bed in a compound outside Port Au Prince, Haiti after a grueling day of ministry. About midnight six armed gunmen attacked their compound. They grabbed Bruce, a team member who was sleeping outside, fired a shot and held his face to a window demanding to be let in. Jason, the first man to the door, opened it and with God given strength yanked him inside out of their hands. Three of the guys barricaded the door with their bodies but not before the gunmen had gotten a brick and a crowbar in between. They stuck their guns in the crack and began to shoot. They shot out all of the windows above and kept shooting indiscriminately. Four team members were wounded by bullets, none critically. The 5 women hunkered down in the back room and cried out to God through the whole thing. Meanwhile Jason hurled himself from the back window to run for help. Even though it was 25 ft. above the ground he was not hurt, but then proceeded to scale two 10 ft. tall gates, cross a creek-like moat and sprint a quarter mile to the missionaries' home. They returned with two pistols and began firing shots into the dark at the intruders who gave up and ran off. Does God do miracles when we cry out to Him? Just ask these guys! You can count them one after the other in this story, which happened only two weeks ago. An impossible fight was won by the power of prayer and intercession. God has no less power today than He did then and He is no less willing to use it. What He needs is those who will answer when He calls, without hesitation and without reservation, "Lord, I will follow you! My life is now yours to do with as YOU please!"

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 1: True Happiness - 5:1-16

Having covered the Birth of the King in chapters 1-2 and the Ministry of the King in chapters 3-4, we now come in chapters 5-7 to the Message of the King. We arrive in chapter 5 at what has come to be known as the "Sermon on the Mount", though Luke has a shorter version of it and records it as being given on a plain or a level place, probably a level area on one of the mountains of Galilee. I think the reason Matthew places it here and gives so much space to it is that, having summarized in 4:23-25 Jesus' ministry of traveling through Galilee teaching and preaching, he now wants to share with us His message, the content of what He taught. Now keep in mind that Jesus probably repeated a great deal of what He taught over and over again in place after place, since He always had a fresh congregation to listen and wanted to spread the same basic message of the Kingdom everywhere. He also probably taught for hours on any given occasion, which means He taught a whole lot more than we have recorded. Matthew is sharing with us some of the key things Jesus taught both on this occasion and throughout His ministry. So, in that context let's begin to consider together:

I. The Sermon On The Mount (1-2) Notice right away that:

1. it is teaching intended primarily for Jesus' followers, not the great crowds, though some of them surely listened in also. You see, Jesus was faced with a difficult task in the making of disciples. All of them were Jews who had grown up and were steeped in the Jewish teaching and tradition of that day. The trouble is that it had become a very corrupted system. It taught wrong values and it had wrong motives; it taught external behavior over internal righteousness. These things were built into the disciples and Jesus had to change their thinking, or rather, cleanse and restore it to a proper perspective. So, to understand Jesus' message, you have to set it against the Jewish thought of the day, which Jesus made very clear by saying "You have heard it said...but I say to you..." repeatedly. Second, I'd like to point out that there has been a ton of debate as to how to interpret the meaning of this sermon. Some of it seems to point to a future day and how things will be when the Kingdom has come to earth and yet other portions are clearly commands for our present life. So, I submit that:

2. the teaching has a dual application First of all:

a. it urges us to live in hope with eyes fixed on the future Kingdom We must live in the certain knowledge that this life is not all there is! There will be a Day when everything is set straight and this crooked world functions under the direct authority of the King of Kings and we'll be there to see it! We shall inherit the earth, as verse 5 says, and we must focus our eyes on that day and live for that day. But doing so:

b. it gives us principles to live by in the present Kingdom To live under the rule of King Jesus right now is to strive to live in meekness, not self-assertion, because that is what is valuable to Him and what He will ultimately reward. Now verses 3-12 have become known as:

II. The Beatitudes (3-12), from the Latin word for blessed with which each of the eight sayings begins. English doesn't really have a good equivalent to translate the Greek word makarios which means happy, but not the giggling, laughing kind of happiness. It carries with it a sense of God's favor and well-being. For lack of a better word, we might use True Happiness to define Blessedness. To put it in the form of a beatitude, the person who is like this is the one who is truly happy and here's why... Let's start with verse (3). Now who are:

1. the poor in spirit... The word literally means to cower or crouch down in fear as a beggar would, to be helpless and at the mercy of someone else to meet your needs. To be poor of spirit, I think, means to be helpless and weak, afraid, bereft of any sense of being in charge or having authority or the ability to change your situation. And, of course, the vast majority of people who are poor in spirit are those who live in physical poverty. From day one, the overwhelming response to the Gospel has come from those who are poor and struggling, with little hope of improving their lot in this world. Comparatively few believers in the world are like most of us, middle class, with a house, a car or two, and money in the bank. To them we're unbelievably rich (we just don't know it). Ever since our missionary Yallah went back to the capital city of Liberia two months ago, he's been living in a place without electricity, let alone phone or internet, without running water, going to the bathroom outside and walking or riding a bus everywhere he goes. Prices have been manipulated by a crooked economic system to put these basic things out of reach of most. I have met and worshipped with hundreds of believers who live just that way in India, in Kyrgyzstan, and so have many of you. I am always amazed at how they manage to survive, but what amazes me more is the zeal and the pure joy with which they worship. Tears coming down their cheeks, hands in the air, they sing and testify with absolute abandon. Why? Because they really know the truth of this verse that we often miss: they know that theirs is the Kingdom of heaven. They GET what James said, Listen, my beloved brothers, has not God chosen those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom, which he has promised to those who love him? - 2:5. They get that they have been elevated from being the poor of this world to being heirs of God Himself and that all that is His, is theirs! They know they are blessed, that they are the truly happy ones and so they devote their lives, not to trying to become rich and powerful, but to serving Jesus with every fiber of their being! Their joy, their true happiness is apparent! Now on to verse (4):

2. those who mourn... Just as followers of Jesus are not exempt from poverty, neither are they exempt from sadness and loss. People that we deeply love die, sometimes prematurely, sometimes unexpectedly, sometimes even intentionally. Things that we truly hold dear are taken from us and we mourn like the captive Israelites who sat weeping beside the rivers of Babylon, unable to sing the Lord's song in their mourning for their nation. Horatio Spafford was a well-known lawyer and businessman in Chicago in the 1860's. He was also a prominent supporter and close friend of D.L. Moody, the evangelist. In 1870, the Spaffords' only son was killed by scarlet fever at the age of four. A year later, every one of his numerous real estate holdings was wiped out by the great Chicago Fire. Horatio decided to take his wife and four daughters on a holiday to England, but just before they set sail on the French steamer 'Ville de Havre' from New York, a last-minute business development forced Horatio to delay while the family went on ahead. On November 2, 1873, their ship collided with 'The Lochearn', an English vessel. It sank in only 12 minutes, claiming the lives of 226 people. Anna Spafford stood bravely on the deck, with her daughters, Annie, Maggie, Bessie and Tanetta clinging desperately to her. Her last memory was of her baby being torn violently from her arms by the force of the waters. She was only saved by a plank which floated beneath her unconscious body and propped her up. Arriving in Wales she sent her husband a telegram that read: "Saved alone." Horatio Spafford boarded the next ship out of New York to join her but during that voyage, the captain of the ship called him to the bridge to say, "I believe we are now passing the place where the de Havre was wrecked. The water is three miles deep." Horatio returned to his cabin and wrote these familiar words: "When peace, like a river, attendeth my way, When sorrows like sea billows roll; Whatever my lot, Thou has taught me to say, It is well, it is well, with my soul.... Those who mourn will be comforted, not merely right here and now, by the One who is the God of all comfort who comforts us in ALL our affliction, but also permanently in a glorious eternal kingdom where we shall see our loved ones again and there will be no more tears nor mourning nor crying nor pain for the former things will have passed away! True happiness is the comfort of that blest assurance of knowing it is well with our souls! Now verse (5):

3. the meek... are the gentle, those who respond by turning the other cheek, not by avenging themselves, but rather by forgiving the wrongs of others. The meek are those who do not push themselves forward and assert themselves over others, who do not seek their own gain but rather defer it to others. Meekness is a characteristic Christ wants to develop in our character but often it's rather painful. It often means suffering in silence rather than taking justice into your own hands and retaliating. Yet we can be truly happy because we know His promise: we will inherit the earth! It is not the strong, the powerful, the violent who will rule the world, though it may seem that way today. But there is coming a Kingdom where wolves will live with lambs and leopards will lie down with goats and calves feed with lions and a little child shall lead them (Is. 11:6); there is coming a day under King Jesus when meekness will rule the whole earth! So being meek now is being in the right mode ahead of time and we are truly blessed to be so. In verse (6) we have:

4. those who hunger and thirst for righteousness... Now hungering and thirsting are not positive things but painful things. To hunger or thirst is to long for what we lack! And what we lack in this world is righteousness. My friend Almaz typed me a note from Bishkek one day, "Pickpockets stole my cell phone when I was on the crowded bus. I am so upset; it was expensive." We live in a world where people brazenly steal things, even in Glenside, where judges and officials take bribes, where some wallow in wealth while others don't have basic necessities or even starve to death, where strong men abuse little children and husbands beat their wives. Injustice is so blatant in so much of the world. I remember how a missionary was lamenting that about the country where he worked some years ago, "When you get cheated in every transaction and you can't trust anyone because everyone is out to use you, it just grinds on you. It hardens you afterwhile." I know what he means; I can remember at times feeling just how wrong everything is in the world, how evil triumphs and the innocent suffer and longing to be free of this world and in a world where everything is right! But that hungering, that thirsting, is a good thing; it is how God wants us to be and Jesus makes us the wonderful promise that we will be satisfied! Those who lust for power and money by any means will end up suffering forever, but we will have what we long for eternally! There will be a day when Jesus reigns and justice WILL roll down like waters, and righteousness like an ever-flowing stream (Amos 5:24)! The knowledge that our longing will be fulfilled makes us blessed, truly happy in our souls! On to verse (7):

5. the merciful... Being merciful is not easy either. It means to be compassionate toward the needs of others and do something about it! It means to see your neighbor lying by the road and stop and bind his wounds and take him to the inn and pay his bill! It means to see your enemy lash out in his hurt and have pity on him and forgive him because he has no idea what he's really doing. Sometimes mercy is pretty difficult; sometimes it's a struggle and it's costly and, worse, it may go unappreciated or even be rejected! But Christ had compassion on us and went all the way to the cross and gave His all for us so we shall receive mercy. We already have! And going forward, we will! Our whole eternity is a result of the mercy of God poured out upon us! So, it is fitting and right that those who have received mercy should be willing to pay the price to be merciful to others now. Those who show mercy are simply revealing the true happiness in their hearts at the mercy they have received! Verse (8):

6. the pure in heart... The word for pure means clean or washed. To keep a clean heart is no easy thing; it is much more difficult than simply maintaining good outward behavior or keeping a list of rules. It is truly a struggle. It means constantly dealing with our motives and our emotions and our feelings about people. It means keeping any root of bitterness from growing in us, keeping ourselves from unjust anger, dealing with our wicked thoughts. To desire purity in our inmost parts is a never-ending battle against our flesh. But just think, one day we shall see God! Who can do that? Who can enter His presence? He who has clean hands and a pure heart! We will walk in His presence and enjoy fellowship with Him forever. This life is merely a preparation for that, so that desire to be genuinely, sincerely pure at the deepest level is a blessed thing and the knowledge that it leads to seeing Him forever gives us true happiness. Now verse (9):

7. the peacemakers... Being a peacemaker is no easy thing either. We usually think of this word as a synonym for an arbitrator, one who tries to settle the squabbles of others, and that's dangerous and difficult enough in itself. But I would suggest that being a peacemaker often means making peace between us and someone else. It means having the courage to face up to our wrongs and ask forgiveness. It means approaching those who have something against us; it means going first, swallowing our pride and forgiving hurtful things. But listen, God was a peacemaker! He was in Christ reconciling the world to Himself, making peace for us through the blood of the cross. He has made peace with us, so when we make peace with others, we will be called sons of God. That is, we will be acknowledged both by God and other people as being just like our Father, peacemakers bearing His character! It is a tough task but in it we find true happiness for our souls. And last comes verse (10):

8. those persecuted for righteousness... They are chastised and punished and hated for doing what is right in the eyes of God, for telling the truth and being honest and rescuing those who are enslaved by the powerful. They're already living out right now the way the whole world will live one day; theirs is the Kingdom of heaven! But to this beatitude Jesus added a Personal Application which explains what He means in (11-12). To be persecuted for righteousness is to be reviled and persecuted and falsely accused for the sake of Christ Himself, for doing what HE told us to do. And to those who do that, He gives this personal assurance. First:

a. you have a great reward waiting in heaven When you get there, you'll see the tremendous weight of glory that this has produced for His Name and it will be worth it all! But what's more, when you are truly happy to suffer for His sake:

b. you stand in the very company of the prophets, of Moses and Elijah and Isaiah and Jeremiah and so many other great men and women of God who obeyed Him and suffered for it. You stand in the ranks with them; you're counted among them! What a privilege!

If I were to sum up the message of the beatitudes, it might boil down to what 2 Cor. 4:16-18 says, that if we keep our eyes fixed on the Kingdom, on what we don't see with our eyes yet, and realize the tremendous purpose and the glory that our endurance of all of the difficulties of this present world is producing, that we will indeed know true happiness; it will be well with our souls! Now as we close this first section, Jesus goes on to give us what we call:

III. The Similitudes (13-16), two big-picture statements of what we disciples are "similar" to, using common household objects. First, He says we are:

1. the salt of the earth (13) To us here, salt is largely a seasoning anymore; it is primarily used for taste. But in the ancient world salt had one primary purpose; it was rubbed thoroughly into meat to preserve it from spoiling and becoming rotten. Likewise, that is:

a. our purpose: preservation We followers of Christ are spread throughout the world to preserve it, to save it; our presence and influence keeps it from becoming thoroughly evil and wicked as it was before the flood. God is using us to impact the whole world but Jesus adds:

b. our caution: Salt in those days was not refined and pure like what we have. It was taken in chunks from salt mines, the shores of salt lakes like the Dead Sea, and salt marshes. So, what people had as salt was actually a mixture of compounds containing some salt. But, because salt is very soluble, if it got wet, the actual salt would leach out, leaving only dirt and other inert materials that were useless and good for nothing more than throwing out onto the street to harden the dirt as people pack it underfoot. Jesus is cautioning us against losing what we truly are. It is these very qualities of meekness and hunger for righteousness and mercy and purity and the rest that stem from our faith that God uses to impact the world and preserve it. If we give in and allow ourselves to become like everyone around us, we are lost to our mission on earth!

Then second, He adds that we are:

2. the light of the world (14-16) In darkness, we can't see; we grope about trying to get things done and imagine what is about us. But light is a revealer. When the sun comes up, when the lamp is lit, the light reveals the true nature of things. Jesus is saying that's:

a. our purpose as it relates to the whole world: revelation We reveal the truth of God to the world. They live in darkness; they can't grope about and find Him on their own. But when they see Him at work through us, in our righteousness and mercy and so on, they turn to Him and find the True Light of the world. And thence comes:

b. our caution: hiding the light If you build a city on top of a hill, you can't hide it! It will gleam in the sunlight of the day and will glow in the darkness of the night. You build it there so everybody sees it. If you light a lamp, you don't take a basket and hide it underneath to create darkness; you put it up on a stand so that its light is shed to the whole house. Yet so often we followers of Christ have tried to hide our light in order to save ourselves from trouble, from embarrassment, even from persecution. Jesus says, "Let it shine. That's what you're here for! They can't see Me unless you show them, unless you tell them. You are not here to be focused on yourselves. Shine your light; hold it up as high as you can with a life that reveals ME; light the world!"

It is often said that Benjamin Franklin invented street lights right here in Philadelphia, but that's not actually true. Several other cities had them first, as did cities in Europe. However, the street lamps in Franklin's day were not very efficient and the glass globes tended to become dark with soot from the oil burned inside, requiring almost daily cleaning. Franklin determined that the problem had to do with a lack of airflow within the globe. In his Autobiography, Franklin describes an improvement he made to street lights: "I therefore suggested composing them of four flat panes, with a long funnel above to draw up the smoke, and crevices admitting air below, to facilitate the ascent of the smoke; by this means they were kept clean, and did not grow dark in a few hours, as the London lamps do, but continued bright till morning."

[\[http://www.pbs.org/benfranklin/13_inquiring_little.html\]](http://www.pbs.org/benfranklin/13_inquiring_little.html) Jesus is saying, "Don't let your light grow dim with soot; maintain that godly character that results in deeds of love and humility and mercy and, by so doing, let your light shine brightly in this dark world! That is the path of true happiness, as well as your true purpose."

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 2: True Righteousness - 5:17-26

In chapters 5-7 we are studying through the Sermon on the Mount where Matthew has recorded for us a large sample block of Jesus' teaching, the message that He taught His followers. As I mentioned last time, one of the biggest problems Jesus faced in training His disciples was re-orienting their thinking which had been skewed by their Jewish culture in that day. Jesus taught them to focus on future heavenly blessing to find true happiness in verses 1-16, rather than seeking an earthly version of happiness. Their culture was also intensely absorbed with the concept of righteousness which they believed came from keeping "THE LAW"; in fact, the leaders of their society were those who taught the law, the Pharisees and scribes. The problem is that these leaders had taught everyone a wrong attitude about and understanding of the Law. Christ had to correct that and, in the second half of chapter 5, He teaches them about what true righteousness really is. Verses 17-20 are key verses for all that follows because they explain:

I. Our Relationship To The Old Testament Scriptures (17) The Law and The Prophets is a summary phrase which, to a Jew, means the whole of the Old Testament. You may have wondered about this yourself. Do I, as a Christian, have to keep the Old Testament? Does not the New Testament say I am no longer under the Law? How should I look at these 39 books which make up two thirds of the Bible I'm holding? Well, look at what we just read:

1. Christ came to fulfill the Old Testament And, lest there be any confusion, He declared plainly that:

a. He did not abolish it to start something new He did not want His followers to think that He was throwing out the Old Testament and starting a brand new movement or new religion. He didn't want to appear to be saying, "OK, now forget that; God has a brand new set of rules for you from here on." Rather He wanted us to connect Him with all that God had done before in the history of Israel. He fulfilled it. And that means far more than simply that He obeyed the Law perfectly. It means that

b. He Himself is the consummation of all that is written in it. Or to put another way, all of it was written about HIM! One day the Jewish leaders objected to Jesus healing a lame man on the Sabbath and his closing statement to them was Jn. 5:46, ...if you believed Moses, you would believe me; for he wrote of me. Moses wrote down the Law, the first five books of our Bible, but Moses was writing about Christ! He wasn't simply writing about lambs and altars and feasts and sacrifices; he was writing about Christ, the Lamb of God whose blood would prevent the angel of death from taking our souls. The Tabernacle and the entire sacrificial system, all the annual feasts, all the cleansing, all of it was merely a picture that pointed to what Christ would one day do in reality on the cross for us. Michael Horton put it like this: Once we truly grasp the message of the New Testament, it is impossible to read the Old Testament again without seeing Christ on every page, in every story, foreshadowed or anticipated in every event and narrative. Look carefully with me at Gal. 3:19. The law of Moses was an addition, a supplemental body of revelation that came after the covenant of faith that God gave to Abraham, and it was given to the nation of Israel as a rudimentary, outward means of controlling sin and keeping it in check. However, in reality its whole goal was that one day the Promised One would come who would accomplish what the law could not do because it was merely the keeping of external rules. Skip to verse 24. The task of the Law was like that of a child-trainer or a guardian; it was to point to and lead people to Christ, that they might believe in Him and be justified by faith, not by the keeping of the rules of the Law. He IS its fulfillment! But there's more:

2. He assured us that everything it declares will be accomplished (18) The things it says will happen, will happen! Many of them already have! We've seen how Jesus was born of a Virgin, born in Bethlehem, how He was Immanuel, God with us in flesh, all things that Isaiah predicted 700 years earlier. But Isaiah also said there will be a day when the wolf will feed with the lamb. Habakkuk said, ...the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD as the waters cover the sea. - 2:14. Zechariah said, ...the LORD will be king over all the earth. On that day the LORD will be one and his name one. - 14:19. And those things will happen too! Not one iota, not the smallest letter, the Hebrew Y, nor the smallest stroke of a pen, something like the right leg on a capital R, will be left to go without fulfillment; Jesus said absolutely everything the Old Testament declares will come to pass, so:

3. He demanded the utmost respect for it (19) He told us not to dismiss it lightly, not to disregard the smallest and the least of the commandments it contains. And do notice that this is not a matter of salvation; evidently you can disregard the commandment and even teach others to do the same and still be a subject of the Kingdom of heaven, even if you are the least one. That's because salvation is through faith in Christ, not keeping the law. But Christ wants us to consider carefully the meaning of every part of the Book, even the Old Testament. Of course, some of the things there were given for Israel to do and not for us to do, but that's a discussion for another occasion. Here:

4. He warned us to discern and obey the true intent of it rather than hypocritically adhering to the letter of it (20) The Pharisees and scribes were the teachers and interpreters of the Law in that day. They were strong literalists and had great respect for the exact commands of the Old Testament. In fact, they were so afraid of breaking them that over the years they had developed a whole set of traditions and commands to sort of wrap around the commands to make sure they wouldn't break them. For instance, God had said to remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy. So they had developed a whole set of new laws which specified exactly how far you could travel on that day and which things were work and which were not, so they could keep the literal command. However, they never went deeper than the external command. They never thought about why it was given and what God really meant or was trying to accomplish. They started with the exact words and went downhill from there, believing that anything that did not explicitly violate what God had spoken was OK. Your neighbor could be lying in a ditch at death's door, but lifting him up and carrying him home on the Sabbath was work! Better to pass by on the other side! Jesus started at the text and went uphill. He extrapolated it to its true point and meaning. In both the way He lived and also by the way that He taught His followers, Jesus revealed the true meaning of the Law. So, we can truly say that we are no longer under the old simple external set of commands but are bound instead by their deeper intent that is set forth in the teachings of Christ and the rest of the New Testament. Jesus is saying that the kind of righteousness that He expects of us as His followers is far greater than that of the Pharisees, the "Righteous Ones" of that day! They wouldn't even get INTO the Kingdom, much less be great in it! What He demonstrated and what He wants to produce in us is something far greater than adherence to a set of rules. So now Jesus goes on for the remainder of chapter 5 to illustrate that in one area after another. For the sake of brevity, today we'll look only at:

II. His First Illustration Of True Righteousness (21-26) We have:

1. the ancient commandment, the sixth of the 10:

a. do not murder - Ex. 20:13. We've all heard that. And, by the way, it does NOT mean "Do not KILL!" To kill another human being in battle or in defending your own life or in executing proper justice for a crime, or even by accident, is not what God was talking about; in fact, He either allows or even commands those very things in other places. Here He forbids deliberate pre-meditated murder. That's about as straightforward as you can get and every civil government in history has enacted the same law. An easy one to keep, right? Now to that, their teachers had appended the thought from Num. 35:12, 24-25 that:

b. murderers are subject to condemnation by the court The judgment referred to here is the decision of the actual ruling group of elders or judges in any given town, the town council if you will, whose responsibility was to administer, to protect the innocent and deliver the murderer to punishment. So if you commit murder, you place yourself in the position of deserving to be tried by the council, found guilty and summarily executed. That is the way the Pharisees interpreted that command and it is very natural and certainly could be memorized and forgotten about. They gave that command no further thought and neither do most of us! But Jesus did! He taught us:

2. the truth God intended to convey through that command (22) It is what's in the heart underneath the murder that God is trying to point at and you can have that without the actual deed! Jesus must have shocked everyone when He said that:

a. flaring in anger without cause deserves condemnation by the court A number of manuscripts add that phrase without a cause and that's what Jesus really means. He's not prohibiting anger at injustice. He's saying that to be angry with a brother, to flip out and lose your temper for no valid reason, to scream out the window at the guy who cuts you off in traffic, to yell at your wife for burning dinner or your child for spilling punch on the rug, is just as serious as murder. It has the same root. And although it's obvious that an actual court can't try emotions and feelings and attitudes, hot anger deserves as serious a trial as murder does before God! Then Jesus kicked it up a notch and said:

b. expressing prideful disdain deserves condemnation by the Sanhedrin Literally, anyone who says to his brother, Raca. Raca means empty. It is a term of disdain for a person, much as we might call someone worthless or good-for-nothing. We might look down our noses at them and feel that they aren't even worthy of notice. Jesus said that attitude is worthy of being taken to Jerusalem and tried before the Sanhedrin, the ruling body of the whole nation, their Supreme Court! And what's more:

c. expressing hatred deserves the condemnation of hell The Greek word for fool is moros from which we get moron but moros didn't mean stupid. It was a cursing term, a term of utter hatred. It was as though we would call someone utterly wicked. In Rwanda, the Hutu slogan during the ethnic cleansing was, We must kill the Tutsi cockroaches! The particular word you use is not the point; the Ku Klux Klan has lots of them. Jesus is saying that the kind of deep-seated hatred from which that sort of language comes doesn't even deserve a trial; it deserves the fire of hell, whether you physically commit the act of murder or not!

He's saying: "Look, God's point is not simply to keep you from murdering each other! Your teachers missed Lev.

19:17, You shall not hate your brother in your heart... That command is to keep you from being angry and disdainful and hating each other inside. In fact, the real point of the command is for you to do the very opposite, to LOVE one another!" How many times did Jesus teach that? Then He went on to illustrate:

3. the action God truly wants us to take, which is restoring relationships (23-24) That word so or therefore, is important; what He said now is the application of what He just taught. It's not enough to NOT do the negative toward your brother. The positive application of Do not murder is actually "Restore the relationship with your brother!" You see:

a. reconciliation with a brother is high priority to Christ The thing that was heaviest on His heart the night before He died was to pray that His followers would all be brought to complete unity! It is a number one priority to Him, right up there with reaching the whole world! It is so important that even if you are in the middle of offering an animal for sacrifice at the Temple, as sacred as that was to a Jew, you drop what you're doing and go find your brother and do whatever you can to change and restore the broken relationship first. Of course, that is no guarantee that it will work or that the other person will want to reconcile; you can only do what Paul said, If possible, so far as it de- depends on you, live peaceably with all. - Rom. 12:18. But Christ wants us to make every effort from our side to achieve that restoration. And notice that:

b. it should be initiated by whoever who realizes it first The other person may be totally at fault in our view of the situation and still Jesus says, "When you remember it, when God brings it to mind, don't hesitate...GO. Don't wait for the other person to come to you!" Later in chapter 18 He will say, "if your brother is at fault, GO..." It doesn't matter which party you are, offended or offender, when God reminds you of the problem, obeying God's intent in the commandment means going and working to restore the relationship. And then Jesus goes on to say that this principle even applies to those who are NOT "brothers", to those who are adversaries. He says you should:

c. even work hard to settle with an adversary taking you to court rather than letting it become a legal matter (25-26). It might be helpful to look at Lk. 12:58-59 where Jesus taught the same thing again on another occasion. Make an effort, work hard to try to settle this on your own, to make an agreement together, to make peace before it gets into the court and out of your hands. Even with an adversary, an enemy who is trying to do you harm, do your best to restore the relationship as soon as you can. And the reason is that:

d. it will quickly compound into a situation you are unable to remedy You see, the penalty for nonpayment of a debt for centuries was to be thrown into prison until the debt was paid. The problem with that was obvious: in prison you can't earn any money to pay the debt, so you could be stuck there a very long time! However, I don't think Jesus was teaching, "Reconcile quickly to save your own neck!" I think the point is that unresolved situations compound and get worse, sometimes pretty rapidly and if you don't make the effort to restore relationships while you can, they may blossom and mushroom into bigger things that it is too late to fix in a simple and personal way, things that will cost you far more than simply humbling yourself and going to your brother or your adversary.

Commenting on the unwillingness of the older brother to be reconciled to his prodigal younger sibling, Max Lucado writes: Standing before ten thousand eyes is Abraham Lincoln. An uncomfortable Abraham Lincoln. His discomfort comes not from the thought of delivering his first inaugural address but from the ambitious efforts of well-meaning tailors. He's unaccustomed to such attire—formal black dress coat, silk vest, black trousers, and a glossy top hat. He holds a huge ebony cane with a golden head the size of an egg. He approaches the platform with hat in one hand and cane in the other. He doesn't know what to do with either one. In the nervous silence that comes after the applause and before the speech, he searches for a spot to place them. He finally leans the cane in a corner of the railing, but he still doesn't know what to do with the hat. He could lay it on the podium, but it would take up too much room. Perhaps the floor. . . no, too dirty. Just then, and not a moment too soon, a man steps forward and takes the hat, returns to his seat, and listens intently to Lincoln's speech. Who is he? Lincoln's dearest friend. The President said of him, "He and I are about the best friends in the world." He was one of the strongest supporters of the early stages of Lincoln's presidency. He was given the honor of escorting Mrs. Lincoln in the inaugural grand ball. As the storm of the Civil War began to boil, many of Lincoln's friends left, but not this one. He amplified his loyalty by touring the South as Lincoln's peace ambassador. He begged Southerners not to secede and Northerners to rally behind the president. His efforts were great, but the wave of anger was greater. The country did divide, and civil war bloodied the nation. Lincoln's friend never lived to see it. He died three months after Lincoln's inauguration. Worn out by his travels, he succumbed to a fever, and Lincoln was left to face the war alone.

Upon hearing the news of his friend's death, Lincoln wept openly and ordered the White House flag to be flown at half-staff. Some feel Lincoln's friend would have been chosen as his running mate in 1864 and would thus have become president following the assassination of the Great Emancipator. No one will ever know about that. But we do know that Lincoln had one true friend. And we can only imagine the number of times the memory of him brought warmth to a cold Oval Office. He was a model of friendship.

He was also a model of forgiveness. This friend could just as easily have been an enemy. Long before he and Lincoln were allies, they were competitors, politicians pursuing the same office. And unfortunately, their debates are better known than their friendship. The debates between Abraham Lincoln and his dear friend, Stephen A. Douglas. But on Lincoln's finest day, Douglas set aside their differences and held the hat of the president. Unlike the older brother, Douglas heard a higher call. And unlike the older brother, he was present at the party. Wise are we if we do the same. Wise are we if we rise above our hurts. For if we do, we'll be present at the Father's final celebration. A party to end all parties. A party where no pouters will be permitted. Why don't you come and join the fun? [Max Lucado, "He Still Moves Stones"]

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 3: Righteousness In Relationships - 5:27-48

We are continuing to study through the Sermon on the Mount where Matthew laid out a summary of Jesus' teaching for us. Last time we looked at Jesus' relationship to the Law in 5:17-20 where He said that He came to fulfill it, to be the personal embodiment of everything the Law was pointing to. And we mentioned the problem that He had in getting his disciples to raise themselves above the mindset of their culture which merely looked at the literality of the commandments without considering their intent. In verses 21-26 we looked at Jesus' treatment of the sixth commandment, "Thou shalt not murder", and saw that God's intent was not simply to forbid actual murder, but ultimately for us to restore broken relationships. Now Jesus goes on in the rest of the chapter to deal with five other frequently-quoted passages from the Law and declare God's actual intent behind them and what God really wants of us. I think there are two important things that can happen for us this morning. First, we can learn God's viewpoint on some very key issues in our lives. But beyond that, we can learn a process for dealing with all the commandments we find in the Bible, the process of learning to focus on God's intent, rather than simply carrying out the letter of what the words say. The next issue Jesus addresses is:

I. Faithfulness In Marriage (27-30) There's the seventh commandment:

1. the original command: Do not commit adultery - Ex. 20:14 In Jewish culture it was basically assumed that if you were an adult, you were married and obeying this command seemed relatively simple. Don't sleep with someone else's wife (or husband, for you ladies). But Jesus said that simply keeping the surface meaning of those words does not fulfill:

2. the intent of the command: which really is, Do not desire another woman in your heart How many times have you heard it said even by Christians "Just 'cause you're married doesn't mean you can't look." What a superficial view of marriage and of sexuality! The whole act of adultery is rooted in the mind and emotions; it is borne out of imagination and desire. To look at a woman and foster sexual desire to blossom inside is adultery already and God sees the heart! He intended that those kinds of sexual desires should be reserved completely for one's spouse. So that means looking at pornographic materials on the internet or sexually explicit movies or TV is just as unfaithful to your spouse as the act itself. It means that suggestive flirting, risqué joking and longingly staring at the beach or the TV screen indicates the desire to violate your marriage vows! And while the physical attraction tends to be more of a male problem, as Jesus rightly stated it, ladies can easily develop an emotional bond with a man who is not their husband. What God was commanding here is absolute faithfulness in marriage. So how do you cultivate that?

3. the positive application: Jesus says, "The final step is to figure out what causes this wrong desire in you and get rid of it!" Eliminate whatever creates lust in you. Even if it's your right eye or your right hand! Now Jesus is not being literal here, though around 300 AD some of the early clergy must have taken passages like this literally and even went so far as to castrate themselves to combat lust. The Council of Nicaea had to specifically forbid it! But Jesus is speaking figuratively here. The right hand is the master hand, the one 70-90% of us use most, the most precious part we could lose. The right eye, for 2/3 of us, is the dominant eye through which we get visual input quickest and most accurately. He's saying, "Look if it gouging out your right eye would stop lust, if cutting off your right hand could stop lust, it would be worth doing! So, whatever is causing it in you, whatever is fanning that lust in your heart, cast it far away from you. If it's a relationship, break it. If it's a habit, kill it, no matter what it takes. Stop holding lust as a cherished inner secret that you enjoy and ask God to make your heart absolutely faithful to your spouse as well as to Him! Then from there Jesus goes on to bring up:

II. The Permanence Of Marriage (31-32) Now:

1. the original command here, Give a certificate of divorce, comes from Deut. 24:1-4 and, if you look there, it is not a command to divorce at all, but rather a prohibition that says that you can't divorce your wife, have her or you marry someone else and then later swap back and marry again. You could have three different women as long as you publicly said "I divorce you" and "I marry you" each time, and never break the letter of the law against adultery because you were technically married to each woman at the time. The certificate was an official document that actually protected a woman from being simply traded back and forth with such ease, much as divorce laws today are supposed to ensure fairness and protect marriage from being lightly dissolved. Anyway, in Jesus' day, the Pharisees had long debates about this divorce issue and many had drawn the conclusion that because Moses mentioned divorce and did not expressly forbid it, divorce is permissible, as long as you give a certificate to make it legal. Do you realize how little has changed in 2000 years? We do exactly the same thing; the U.S. divorce rate over the last 10 years is that 50% of all new marriages end in divorce, with 65% of second marriages failing and even a higher percentage beyond that. One source said, ...it is not a huge conjecture to say that 100% of the American population is meaningfully affected by divorce! Jesus said that:

2. the intent of the command goes far beyond paperwork and legality. God was trying to tell us, Do not lightly break the marriage bond! Marriage was intended to be permanent, for life. To divorce and remarry is still committing adultery against your partner. Of course, there are exceptions where one party is an innocent victim, but we'll save that exception clause for later when we study this more deeply in chapter 19; right now, don't let it cloud His main point which is, "Don't break the marriage bond!" Yet if you look still deeper, here's what He's really after:

3. the positive application: Respect the sanctity of your marriage Peek ahead with me at Mt. 19:6. That's what's in Jesus' thinking. Man should not separate two people whom God has made one! To be married to your spouse is a holy thing; when you make that sacred vow before Him a divine miracle happens. You are no longer two individuals; you are ONE! You are bound together in the depths of your being and that is symbolized in the oneness of the sexual union that you alone enjoy together. Respect that! Cultivate that! Grow that so that both in your thoughts and your behavior you mirror the truth of who you are! F. W. Boreham wrote: "I once said to a Jewish rabbi, 'I have heard that at a Jewish wedding a glass is broken as part of the symbolism of the ceremony. Is that a fact?' 'It certainly is,' he replied. 'We hold aloft a glass, let it fall and be shattered to atoms, and then, pointing to its fragments, we exhort the young people to guard jealously the sacred relationship into which they have entered since, once it is fractured, it can never be restored.'" [The Heavenly Octave, F. W. Boreham]. Maybe we should adopt that tradition! That's what God is trying to tell us! Next, Jesus moves on to talk about:

III. Truthfulness In Speech (33-37) The Pharisees were notorious oath-makers. They would swear by the temple or by the gold in the temple or Mt. Zion or Jerusalem. For example, "By heaven, I will do thus and so..." You see, they wanted to be quite careful to keep:

1. the original command: They taught, Keep the oaths you make to the Lord which is based on the Ex. 20:7, the third commandment about not taking the Lord's name in vain. And many other texts such as Lev. 19:12, Num. 30:2, and Deut. 23:21-23 declare that if you make a vow to the Lord, you better well keep it because God will punish you! However, underlying their thinking was that the farther the oath was removed from the name of the Lord itself, the less binding it was, and they had a whole hierarchy of the seriousness of oaths. Look with me at 23:16, 18. There is a whole tract in the Mishna, the Jewish written traditions, about this. But it was kind of an ingenious way to keep promises tentative, because as long as they didn't involve the Lord too closely, they hadn't broken the Law by breaking the oath. It's kind of like the old kid's trick of crossing your fingers behind your back to keep from having to do what you said if you don't want to. And we even pledge ourselves by saying, "I promise!" or wiggle out of something with, "But I didn't promise to do it...", as though using the word promise validates the truth of our word. We use the word promise like an oath. But Jesus focused on:

2. the intent of the command: It doesn't matter what you swear by, heaven, earth, Jerusalem, even your own head! God owns it all; it's all His. The truth is that whether you use an oath or not, Speaking any words obligates you before God. He hears you and holds you accountable for your words. If you say, "I will do this..." and choose not to do it, it becomes a lie. This whole idea of saying some things that you mean and others that you mean less or don't mean at all, comes from Satan; it's evil. So:

3. the positive application is: Always mean what you say and keep your word. If you say yes, mean yes. If you say no, mean no. If you say I will, do it. If you refuse to do something, don't! You should not have to validate your promises by an oath; your life and character should be enough in themselves to guarantee that your words are true. Then Jesus addresses another popular subject of the day:

IV. Repaying Good For Evil (38-42)

1. the original command: An eye for an eye... is found three times in the Old Testament, in Ex. 21:23-24, Lev. 24:19-20, and Deut. 19:21. It is was never a command addressed to individuals; it is part of the judicial code given to Israel for its judges to determine how to punish offenders and it teaches that punishment must fit the crime.

2. the intent of the command: was to define justice and the point of it was that Justice means punishment must fit the crime. You can't kill somebody for stealing a cow, nor can you impose the payment of a fine for murder. Punishment should be commensurate with the crime committed. But this phrase became a favorite teaching of the Pharisees to apply to personal behavior, just as it has for many people who don't know the Bible today. Do unto others as they do unto you. Retaliate in kind. If they hit you, hit back. If they rip you off, get even. You can do it and be fulfilling the letter of the law! But it was never intended to mean that. Jesus turned it around instead with a:

3. the positive application Do good to the people who do something bad to you! If someone insults you with a slap in the face, rather than slapping him back or returning the insult, offer him the other cheek. If they sue you, offer more than they want. If a Roman soldier comes along and forces you to carry his baggage for a mile like they forced Simon of Cyrene to carry Jesus' cross (that was the law), instead of being angry and spiteful, carry it two miles. In other words, Overcome evil with good, not by retaliating in kind. Look with me at Rom. 12:19-21. Justice is the business of the courts and ultimately of God Himself, not yours! Repay evil with good; that's the heart of God! And to take that even further, so is:

V. Loving Enemies (43-47)

1. the original command is one Jesus often quoted Himself, Love your neighbor as yourself - Lev. 19:18. But the Pharisees had come up with a more extensive popular rendition of it: Love your neighbors and hate your enemies! They got all hung up on the word neighbor. You remember when Jesus told them the story of the Good Samaritan, their first question was, "Who is my neighbor?" To keep the letter of the law, I only have to love neighbors; I am perfectly free to hate enemies, after all I am one of God's people and the enemies of God's people are enemies of God. So, hating the Romans or even the Samaritans is not only normal; it's good! Talk about twisting the meaning of something! Jesus pointed out:

2. the intent of the command: Love is to extend to all, not just your relatives and friends or even literal neighbors. Love even your enemies! Loving those who love you is easy; even the very people you despise, the heathen idol-worshippers and the tax collectors do that! But God loves even people who don't love Him at all. He sends His rain and sunshine on both the righteous and the evil. You see:

3. the positive application: Loving your enemies is a reflection of God When you warmly greet those who despise you, when you pray for the very people who persecute you, you're acting like God. You are expressing His nature in your actions; you are showing yourselves to be His children! And that is really:

VI. The Point: God Wants Us To Become Perfectly Like Him! (48) The goal of all of God's word is not to set down rules for us to keep, but to get us to be like God, to think like He thinks, to love like He loves, and to act like He acts! God is always faithful to us; He never divorces us, never leaves us nor forsakes us! He always speaks the truth and means every word of what He says. And He so often does good things for evil people who don't deserve it; He loves His enemies and showers them with blessing, desperately wanting them to repent and be restored to Him. And that's what He's after in you and I, not the outward keeping of some rule in order to keep ourselves out of trouble, but a life that reflects His heart toward the world! And it's important to use this principle of understanding even in reading the New Testament. There are still many commands that Paul and Peter give there that you can keep in letter and still miss the spirit in which they were intended. You can prefer others over yourself outwardly but do it begrudgingly in your heart. You can let them go ahead of you in the grocery line to be polite, while inside resenting that they're holding you up. You can pray without ceasing and yet not love to talk to God. You can be absolutely honest and moral and have a good reputation with others and have all kinds of grudges and wrong desires in your heart. The point of God's Word is for you to be moved toward the true goal, to become more and more like Jesus.

During the Thirty Years' War in Europe (1618-1648), the King of Sweden, Gustavus Adolphus, who was known as "Gustave the Great, the Lion of the North" and regarded as one of the greatest military commanders of all time, was slain in battle while his troops were winning the Battle of Lützen, in what is now Germany. Sweden was thrown into mourning, and government officials met to determine how to replace the King. While some suggested forming a republic, others thought the crown should go to Adolphus' cousin, the King of Poland. But the Chancellor of Sweden arose and said, "Let there be no talk of a republic or of Polish kings, for we have in our midst the heir of the great Gustavus, his little daughter, who is 6 years of age." Some protested that they had never seen her. The chancellor said, "Wait here and I will show you." He brought in Christina, the daughter of the king, and placed her on the throne. One of the representatives who was especially suspicious of the move pressed forward and gazed intently into her face. Then turning to the assembly, he exclaimed, "Look at her nose, her eyes, her chin! I see in the countenance of this child the features of the great Gustavus. She is the child of our king!" And immediately from all quarters of the room rang the proclamation, "Hail Christina, Queen of Sweden!" Beloved, we are the children of the Great King of Kings! The point of every command He ever gave us is simply that we might mirror His features in our actions and character, that we might be like Him, so that we might display Him to the world, so that the world might see HIM in us. Don't just keep rules; be like your Father!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 4: Our Motives - 6:1-18

The more you look at the Sermon on the Mount, the more clearly you see that the majority of it is a direct attack against the Pharisees. I'm sure the reason for that is that they were the religious leaders of their day, the ones who were shaping the beliefs and practices of the mass of common people. His own disciples had been to a large extent shaped in their mold, to believe that a person who really loved God would be just like they were. In chapter 5 Jesus attacked their teachings, showing that on issue after issue they taught obedience to the letter of outward rules, with no regard for or understanding of God's real intent. Now in chapter 6 He attacks their practices, showing that all of the seemingly righteous things they did, they did out of wrong motives. In chapter 5 He taught that it is not the rule that is important but the intent behind it. In chapter 6 He teaches that it is not the deed that is important but the motive behind it! So, it is a call for us to examine our motives, to examine what moves us to do the things we do regularly as believers. Verse 1 sets the stage for this teaching; in it:

I. Jesus Warned Against Doing Good Things To Get Recognition (1) Jesus had a special word for this concept: 1. He termed this *hypocrisy Notice the phrase He uses three times in verses 2, 5, 16, ...as the hypocrites do. By that term, He was obviously referring to the Pharisees. Our word hypocrite is actually carried over into English from the Greek and it literally means a stage-actor. So, picture the Greek or Roman theater with no microphones, no lights, and no binoculars. The actors usually wore large masks in order to be seen by the audience, masks intended to portray feelings. So, a hypocrite is somebody with a mask on, somebody who has an appearance that doesn't reflect the reality of who he truly is underneath. Now of course, there are charlatans, frauds who pretend to do good while they are secretly doing evil and they know it; their hypocrisy is an intentional deception of others. But that's not exactly what Jesus is accusing the Pharisees of. They actually were doing good things, righteous acts, and they were truly convinced that they were doing what God wanted, but underneath that appearance, in the depths of their hearts, they were, in fact, doing these out of a self-centered motive that they couldn't even see. They loved the praise and recognition it brought them from other people. To borrow Jesus' words from John 12:43, ...they loved the glory that comes from man more than the glory that comes from God. Their hypocrisy was a blindness to the truth about themselves, a self-deception. Or, to again borrow His words from Luke 18:9, they ...trusted in themselves that they were righteous, when in their hearts they were actually serving themselves through their serving God. And the bad news is that none of us is immune from following in their footsteps. You can sing to God, but in your heart do it so that people will clap and cheer for you to make you feel good. You can preach so that inwardly you are gratified by all the people who respond to "your" message. You can give all your possessions to the poor, Paul said in 1 Cor. 13, and not really care about them, but do it for show. You can even die as a martyr and not do it out of love for God but only to be remembered! And the tough thing is that we can slip into this without realizing it has happened to us, just as the Pharisees did! That's why Jesus warned us about:

2. the consequence of doing righteous acts for the wrong motive On the one hand, we might just get what we really want:

a. we may gain an earthly reward of recognition Three times, in verses (2, 5, 16), Jesus said, "It will work. You will receive your reward, the very one you were seeking. People will see you. They will clap for you. They will say 'Wow' and ask for your autograph. They will give you respect and honor and hold dinners in your behalf. But when they do, you must understand, that's it. Payment in full!" If that's what we want, we can get it! But:

b. we will lose any reward from our Father If we do our acts of righteousness, genuinely from the heart, to please God, three times, in verses (4, 6, 18), Jesus says, ...Your Father who sees in secret will reward you! It doesn't matter whether anyone else sees or notices or not; if we do it for "the Audience of One", as a friend of mine likes to put it, He will graciously reward it. But NOT if we're really doing it for the recognition, out of a truly selfish motive.

So, Jesus is warning us not to trade away our true eternal reward for a cheap earthly imitation. Now there are:

II. Three Common Religious Acts Where We Must Exercise This Caution The three chief acts of Jewish piety were giving alms to the poor, prayer, and fasting. You can see them in the story of the Pharisee and the publican in Lk. 18:11-12. The Pharisee was praying at the Temple, as was his habit, and he told God, I fast twice a week; I give tithes of all that I get. It's curious that Mohammed adopted these as three of the five pillars of Islam. Good Muslims pray five times a day, give alms to the poor and fast a whole month of every year. Every good Jew did these three things on a regular basis; in fact, we evangelicals still teach that every good Christian should pray and read the Bible, give to God, and go to church. These things are how we practice our faith, and they are the very place where this hypocrisy can creep in! First of all, Jesus warns us that:

1. we must be careful to give for the right motive (2-4) He says that:

a. we give hypocritically when we seek praise for our "generosity" We are not sure what actual custom Jesus is referring to in mentioning the blowing of trumpets. We do know that public fasts were proclaimed by the sounding of trumpets and these were occasions when prayers would be offered in the streets (as verse 5 mentions) and when alms would be given to the poor. The Pharisees would certainly be the first to stand up and pray and to give their alms on those occasions. What we know for sure is that the Pharisees loved for people to see them give and deliberately drew attention to themselves as they gave, whether it was in the trumpet-shaped offering boxes in the Temple treasury, in the synagogue or even to needy beggars on the streets! They wanted people to note how generous they were and praise them for it! But that is not true generosity, is it? That is using giving to get something! Jesus says:

b. we give genuinely when we give privately out of true compassion That word secret could be slightly misleading. It does not mean that we must all devise ways to give anonymously so that the recipient will never know where it came from or so that no one will ever see us put an envelope in the offering plate or never use a check with our name on it. The Greek word cruptos means hidden. Jesus is saying, "Do the opposite of the Pharisees. Give in such a way that others will not notice and pay attention. Give quietly, give privately, and give because your heart is moved with compassion for the need, not for the 'Thank you' you might get!" I read a story about two women walking down a city street who came to a corner where a representative from a worthy charity was soliciting donations to help feed needy children. One woman stopped and placed a large contribution in the collection box. Her companion, remembering that this woman had recently promised to make such a gift, said with a chuckle, "I'm glad you did that. Now your conscience is clear." Her friend quietly responded, "I wasn't thinking about my conscience; I was thinking about those starving children." What are you thinking about when you give? What's your heart's motive? That's the true test for hypocrisy! Then Jesus moves on to warn us that:

2. we must be careful to pray for the right motive in verses (5-15). Jesus said:

a. we pray hypocritically when:

(1) we pray to show others how “pious” we are (5) Look with me at that story of the Pharisee in Lk. 18:10-12. That’s what Jesus was talking about. The man prayed publicly about himself, reminding God how good he was and loud enough to be sure the publican next to him heard it. Does that sound far-fetched? Tell me you’ve never heard someone in a church meeting make a long-winded prayer using huge theological words and a dramatic tone of voice! Even among us there is a great temptation to pray artfully with carefully chosen words for the “Amen” we’ll hear! That’s hypocrisy. It’s also hypocrisy when:

(2) we pray to manipulate God to do our will (7) People who don’t know God, who worship false gods, pray like that. They keep on chanting phrases over and over; they go for volume, thinking that the more they talk, the more they can move God to do what they want. Buddhists have prayer wheels where they write a prayer on paper, attach it to the wheel and spin it, thinking that the prayer is repeated with each revolution! But sometimes in Christian liturgy we have stooped to the same level, repeating the same phrases over and over until they’re meaningless, thinking that God will be pleased with the fact that we’re saying the words, rather than actually talking to Him! Even we who really believe that prayer is genuine conversation with God, sometimes fall into the trap of unthinkingly reading God our list over and over, hoping He’ll listen. That’s hypocrisy. And it’s also hypocrisy when:

(3) we pray for forgiveness without forgiving others (14-15) I don’t know whether the Pharisees ever prayed for forgiveness in public but at least in private they must have, at least sometimes. Yet they saw no need to forgive other people who had offended them. They loved their neighbors and hated their enemies, remember! They taught an eye for an eye! So here they are, asking God to forgive them but totally blind to the fact that there is no forgiveness in their own hearts. Surely, WE would never pray like that! It would be hypocrisy to ask God to grant us what we won’t grant to someone else! On the other hand, Jesus tells us that:

b. we pray genuinely when:

(1) we pray privately seeking only to be heard by God (6) If we genuinely want to pursue prayer, intimate communion with God, we need to be alone; we need to get somewhere where it’s quiet, without anyone to disturb us so that our heart can hear the soft voice of the Spirit as we commune together. That’s how most of our praying should be, but Jesus is not intending to forbid praying in public altogether or even praying as a group; the early church did both and so do we. The intent of what He’s saying is that, even in the midst of a whole praying crowd, our speaking should be consumed with the Audience of One, not those around us. They may listen and agree with us and even voice that, but we only pray genuinely when we are talking directly to God. Secondly, Jesus told us we pray genuinely when:

(2) we pray out of relationship with our Father (8) God doesn’t need us to tell Him what we need; He knows it already. We have a Father in heaven and that should be the basis of our praying. Then in 9-13 Jesus says, “Pray like this...” and gives us what we call “The Lord’s Prayer”. We’ve already done an entire series of studies on this prayer, so rather than go into details this morning, let’s look at the bigger context. To start off with, after what Jesus just said about empty repetition, can you imagine that He simply meant for us to pray these exact words themselves over and over? I doubt it! They’re a model, an example of the type of praying that is genuine.

(9a) We don’t pray, In the name of God, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful ... as Muslims recite several times each day, or recite a list of His 99 Names; we come to Him as Our Father! We pray as a child speaking with his Father in heaven, heart to heart out of our relationship. (9b-10) We pray, not to get whatever we want as though He is some genie that grants wishes, but desiring His glorification in our lives and the world, asking that His Name would be revered by everyone, that His Rule as King would extend to the whole world and His Will would be done in our lives and on the earth. We pray genuinely when we pray first about the things that are on HIS heart! (11) We pray asking His provision for our needs, confessing how dependent we are on His daily supply to sustain us the way a father feeds His children! (12) We pray asking His forgiveness when we sin, not because we’re afraid He’ll send us to hell, but because we know we’ve offended our Father’s heart and desperately want things to be right between us. And finally, (13) We pray seeking His protection from the enemy, realizing that we’re in a battle against a powerful adversary and we need our Father’s strength to resist the temptations we face and to stand firm against the pressure the Evil One brings against us.

That’s what genuine praying looks like! What’s your motive when you pray? Why do you do it? Is it truly because you need your Father in your life? Slipping into praying for any other reason is hypocrisy. Then lastly, Jesus warns us that:

3. we must be careful to fast for the right motive (16-18) We hardly fast at all anymore, but our brothers and sisters around the world do. The Pharisee in Lk. 18:12 claimed to fast twice a week; actually, the Pharisees fasted Mondays and Thursdays. The Didache, a manual of Christian instruction written about 100 AD says basically, “Don’t join yourselves to the hypocrites, fast Wednesday and Friday instead!” But I think that misses Jesus’ point. He says:

a. we fast hypocritically when we seek praise for our “sincerity” When we look haggard and mention how hungry we are because we haven't eaten anything, we're really looking for people to say, “Wow, that guy is something; he really takes his religion seriously! I wouldn't give up eating!” Jesus said, “Look, if you really want to fast, take a bath and put on your normal clothes and wipe your face with oil like you always do. Don't change anything outwardly to draw attention to yourself; that's hypocrisy!”

b. we fast genuinely when we privately deny our desires in order to seek Him When we are so desperate to meet with God and see Him work in our situation that communing with Him and praying takes precedence even over eating, that's genuine fasting! Jonathan Edwards fasted and prayed for three days and nights, neither eating nor sleeping, before he stepped into the pulpit to preach his now well-known sermon, Sinners In The Hands Of An Angry God; it shook not only his congregation but the whole region and sparked The Great Awakening. That's genuine fasting; simply giving up food to impress God or others is the stuff of hypocrisy. And hypocrisy can be boiled down to this one thought, being self-centered, having a selfish motive in the good you do.

Now before you go home thinking, “I'm glad somebody else was there to hear that!”, PLEASE remember this: every single one of us, without exception, is not only susceptible, but falls victim to this brand of hypocrisy! Dr. Larry Crabb has been a well-known Christian psychologist and author for longer than a quarter century. He wrote: “None of us is immune to putting self first. I don't think I've learned anything about myself that has more surprised and appalled me than how reflexively I put my own needs first. Within days of my brother's death, I spoke at his memorial service. As I prepared my few comments on behalf of our family, I prayed that God would use my stumbling tongue in this difficult situation to encourage others.... I [truly] wanted to give. [But] at one point during my talk, I noticed that a phrase I had just used was especially rich. As any experienced public speaker might do, I paused to let that phrase sink in. During that three-second pause, I heard these words run through my mind, 'I'm doing a pretty good job. That was a good pause.' Immediately, I felt slapped in the face by the realization that at that moment I cared more about how I was performing than about how meaningfully I was ministering. That night I wept bitterly. I grieved that even at my brother's funeral, I couldn't escape the wretched power of pride. I had come to an audience filled with friends wanting to share our grief, and I wanted them to applaud my speaking ability.” [Finding God by Larry Crabb. Zondervan, 1993. Pages 112-113.] Don't think yourself immune. Guard your heart carefully. Examine your motives. I leave you with the first lines of an anonymous poem I read on the internet: One day I found within my heart someone who'd been there from the start. A prudish person—self-appointed, self-sufficient—self-anointed. Though I, a true disciple be, I've met the Pharisee in me! Have you?

[\[www.justbetweenus.org/pages/page.asp?page_id=92739\]](http://www.justbetweenus.org/pages/page.asp?page_id=92739)

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 5: Material Things - 6:19-34

As we continue our study through the Sermon on the Mount, let me remind you that the whole of the sixth chapter is concerned with our motives, with why we do what we do. The Pharisees did what they did for two underlying reasons. The first was recognition, to be praised by other people; that was why they gave alms and prayed and fasted and Jesus warned us in 6:1-18 not to be like them, but to do all our righteous acts sincerely from the heart. Now in the rest of chapter 6, Jesus warns us against their second disguised motivation, reward; they used their position as recognized religious leaders for material gain. In Mk. 12:40 Jesus warned the crowd to beware of the scribes ...who devour widows' houses and for a pretense make long prayers. They took advantage of the generosity of the poor to benefit themselves materially. They preyed on widows and other vulnerable people, offering to manage their material affairs according to the Law, but in the process, defrauding them of their money for personal gain. Or else they played on their religious zeal and convinced them to make sacrificial donations which they kept for themselves, all the while making extensive prayers, sometimes hours long. Materialism, the love of money, has always had an uncanny way of creeping quietly into the lives of religious people, even of genuine believers, and staging a gradual takeover. Whether you look at Johann Tetzel traveling all over Europe in 1517, raising money to construct Saint Peter's basilica by selling indulgences guaranteed to spring people's dead relatives out of purgatory, or televangelist Jim Bakker in 1987, preaching a prosperity gospel and selling non-existent timeshares for his luxury hotel, pocketing $3.4 million before going to jail, the sad chronicle of church history is replete with examples of people who appeared to sincerely love God but allowed the love of money to take root in their lives until it wound up controlling them. Jesus saw that in the Pharisees in His day and so was careful to warn us as His followers that:

I. We Must Not Be Captivated By Material Things (19-20) The Pharisees believed that God blessed materially all those He loved. No doubt, this belief was motivated at first by the promises God attached to His covenant with Israel. Look with me at Deut. 28:1-8, 11. God did promise time and again that he would prosper Israel materially, no question about it. The Pharisees also noted the condition which would bring the blessing, obedience to God's commands. So, of all people, they expected to be blessed! But what happened is a very subtle thing; instead of obeying God because they loved Him and then rejoicing in His material blessings as a gracious gift, they wound up obeying God in order to get the material blessings. As Paul described it in 1 Tim. 6:5, they ...think that godliness is a means to financial gain. That is:

1. the nature of materialism Jesus put it like this:

a. it is storing up treasure In Greek, it is the word thesauros, a treasury, a place of deposit for safekeeping, used twice, first as a verb and then as a noun. Literally it says, "Do not treasure up your treasures" on earth. Do not make your goal in life to accumulate material treasures here in this world. Do not make gathering material things your ultimate value. Now, that is not say that having or gaining wealth is evil in itself. It is not wrong for a Christian to have a lot of money or houses or lands. It is not a sin to be rich nor to make a lot of money.

b. it is doing so for yourself Materialism is treasuring up treasures for me, for my benefit, for my enjoyment, for my use, for my security in life. Look at Acts 4:32. That's the attitude of believers who are full of the Holy Spirit. None of our possessions are our own! They are God's! Yes, He has given them to us to enjoy, but ultimately, they are for His use and He has given them to me to use to serve Him and to benefit others. When I begin to view them as being for solely for me, then materialism has crept in. I begin to value things above God. Paul calls it greed, which, he told Timothy, IS idolatry. John Wesley preached a well-known sermon on The Use Of Money; His three points were 1) Gain all you can [work hard, be industrious], 2) Save all you can [be frugal in your spending; don't waste it], and 3) GIVE all you can! That's the point; you make it and you save it, not so you can accumulate it for yourself, but so you can give it to God for His use! Now in His warning Jesus points out:

2. the drawbacks of materialism First of all:

a. material things deteriorate Moths eat holes in the beautiful clothes you store in the attic. Rust eats holes in your beautiful new car after you scratch it, which you inevitably will! Store up your grain in huge barns and rats will eat it. A house suffers wear and tear; you can never get it quite like you want it because there is always something else that is aging and needs fixed. Material things are a losing battle; it takes a great deal of energy just to maintain them as they are and many of them deteriorate and wear out, no matter how hard we try to prevent it. But worse:

b. material things can be lost Thieves can break in and steal them or vandalize them and there's not a thing we can do about it. My car may be gone tomorrow morning, my house burglarized. My money can be stolen, now even by electronic means, or lost in the stock market. And if those are the things I've set my heart on, if those are my treasures, then I must expect heartbreak! But on the other hand, if the things that really matter to me are heavenly things, if what I really care about is loving Jesus Christ, bringing people to believe in Jesus Christ, helping people to grow in Jesus Christ and doing acts of love and kindness in the Name of Jesus Christ which He has promised to reward, then I am rich indeed! There is no deterioration of heavenly treasures; there is no losing them. The true treasures I will enjoy in heaven last forever. Now here's:

3. the real danger of materialism

a. it affects our heart (21) The things that I ultimately value are the things my heart is set on, the things I desire. In effect loving material things changes the character of one's heart. You remember Dickens' classic tale of Ebenezer Scrooge and how the love of money hardened his heart so that he no longer cared about people. That's what it does. When I begin to love money, all other things begin to take second place, whether I intend that or not; the love of material things bends my heart toward the material; the love of heavenly things bends my heart toward the spiritual. Placing ultimate value on material things naturally leads to the drive to accumulate more of them and that:

b. it will affect our life (22-23) This is a short parable about your eyes. Your eyes are the lamp of your entire body; they are the light-gate. Without them, the body does not see and react to the things around it; it is in great darkness. But with them it sees clearly. The point is that the eyes affect the whole, either for good or bad, and the heart is like that. What my eyes look at all the time is what my heart desires and what my heart desires, affects the whole of my life. If my heart craves material things, it affects my whole life and floods it with darkness. It ruins my marriage, my relationship with my children, my business dealings. You know 1 Tim. 6:10, the love of money is a root of all kinds of evils. And the saddest thing is that ultimately:

c. it will destroy our service to God (24) All of a sudden, there are two masters in my life, God and money, God and gold! And these two masters each demand to own me and have my service, but I cannot serve both; it is impossible. If I truly serve God, I will have to deny the selfish desire to accumulate money; conversely, if I begin to serve money, I will soon end up denying God, just as the Pharisees did!

This warning of Jesus is especially relevant in our day, because over the last 60 years this same kind of money-loving thinking the Pharisees displayed has grown like a cancer in the church and spread everywhere all over the world; we have labeled it prosperity theology or the prosperity Gospel. Turn on the TV or the radio and you will soon hear it: "God wants you to have all your dreams, just believe it! Plant a seed of faith! Healing, financial blessing, these things are your right as a child of God!" Worldwide, thousands of poor people have flocked to the idea of a God who wants them to live in prosperity and complete health and then end up disillusioned because He doesn't produce or else blame themselves for not having enough faith. Please understand that the promises we read earlier were made to Israel as a nation; they were never given to us as followers of Christ! If you actually read the New Testament, you'll find that Jesus taught the exact opposite, that His followers should expect suffering, persecution, the loss of all things and even death! After seven years in prison Jim Bakker wrote another book titled, I Was Wrong, in 1996. He admitted that the first time he actually read the Bible all the way through was in prison, and that it made him realize he had taken certain passages out of context. He wrote: The more I studied the Bible, however, I had to admit that the prosperity message did not line up with the tenor of Scripture. My heart was crushed to think that I led so many people astray. I was appalled that I could have been so wrong, and I was deeply grateful that God had not struck me dead as a false prophet! Listen friends, our citizenship is in heaven, and from it we await a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will transform our lowly body to be like his glorious body, by the power that enables him even to subject all things to himself. - Phil. 3:20-21. That's where our treasure is; that's the hope we have fixed our lives on; that's what we're waiting for and what the whole of our lives is driven toward! So we fix our eyes not on what is seen, but on what is unseen. For what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal. - 2 Cor. 4:18. But even if we avoid the love of material things, there is a second way they can hinder our spiritual lives. Jesus went on to warn us that:

II. We Must Not Be Distracted By Material Things Five times in verses (25-34) you'll see the word worry or be anxious [ESV]. The Greek root means to be drawn in different directions, to be distracted. Isn't that what worry is really like? "What will I do if...maybe this will happen...what if this goes wrong or that occurs..." Your thinking goes back and forth and what happens is that it distracts you from the main direction you should have, the main thing that should be occupying your life. And, of course, the things we worry most about are often material. So, Jesus warns us that:

1. material things should not occupy our attention (25) Jesus says, think about:

a. the nature of life Life is not just the sum total of what we eat and drink and wear. That's existence. Life is far more than that; life is what we accomplish for God. Life is our investment in eternal things while we're here. Worrying about material things distracts us from what life is really all about. And the reason we don't need to be anxious about them is:

b. the nature of God (26) Just think about it. God takes the time to feed the birds; the Psalmist said, He ...gives food to every creature. His love endures forever - 136:25. Watch the nature channel sometime and you'll be amazed at God's provision for even the tiniest creatures and the ones who live in the most inhospitable places. Don't you realize that as His child you are of far greater value to Him than anything He created? What father would leave his children without food or clothing or shelter? When we worry about those things, we are being distracted from our true relationship with God our heavenly Father! When we focus on material things and wonder whether we're going to have what we need, we're forgetting whose child we are! My children never worried that there wouldn't be supper tonight or that they wouldn't have clothes to wear tomorrow. They never worried about those things because that was Dad's realm. They simply expected it because that's what children do. We should be that way with God; we have a Heavenly Father who, in His love, takes care of those things for us! Yes, we should ask Him for our daily bread (verse 11), but we should always do it in the confidence that He knows what we need before we ask Him (verse 8) and He intends to provide the material things we genuinely need! Then Jesus went on to explain:

2. why they should not occupy our attention, why we should not worry about them. First of all:

a. it is useless (27) There's a slight translation issue here; some versions say you can't add a single cubit to your height.. Either way the point is the same: you can worry about being short, but it won't grow you an inch, let alone a cubit, will it? You can worry about when you're going to die, but it won't add a single hour to your life. Worrying accomplishes nothing; fixing your attention on circumstances of life that you can't control anyway is useless. Worrying is a waste of time and energy that could be devoted to serving the King, plus it makes you feel bad. But worse than that:

b. it is unbelief (28-30) He goes to all the trouble of arraying the flowers of the field in gorgeous splendor, even though they are only plants that last a little while and dry up and get burned for fuel. We're His children; wouldn't He care that we are clothed? He is well capable of clothing us in any fashion He chooses. Worrying shows we have little faith; we really don't trust God. We think we've got to take care of it all ourselves; we really don't believe that God will take care of us. Worry is unbelief and besides that:

c. it is a poor testimony (31-32) People who don't know God have to worry about all these things; they don't know a Heavenly Father to trust who cares for them. That's why when things are tough, they run around going, "O my gosh, what am I going to do? How am I going to survive?" But we DO have a Father, so when we worry just like they do, what a poor testimony it is! We're not acting any differently from them. Why would they want to know our Father if He doesn't make any difference in our daily life? And the saddest thing of all is that worrying:

d. it is unnecessary (34) Now, shouldn't we plan ahead for things? Certainly! Shouldn't we save up for expenses we know are coming? Of course! Shouldn't we put money into an IRA for our care in old age? That's perfectly fine, if God provides it. But do we really need to retire with a million dollars in investments as the financial pundits tell us? Do we need to worry that we don't have a year's worth of income in savings in case we lose our job? Listen, most of the people in the world don't have that luxury anyway! God doesn't promise you any of that; He promises to take care of our needs TODAY. And when we arrive at tomorrow, it will be TODAY and God will take care of that too! Worrying about the future adds a needless burden upon our shoulders. Trying to carry tomorrow around on our shoulders today is a tremendously heavy load that we don't need to carry. Watch God take care of today's needs and leave tomorrow with Him. He's got that too.

But we skipped the punchline to this whole discourse in verse (33). There's:

III. What Should Captivate Our Hearts: God's Kingdom and His Righteousness We've quoted this verse and even sung it as a song for years, but have we ever thought about what it really says? It's a command, actually. Jesus is telling us what He wants us to do. He wants us to:

1. place ultimate value on advancing God's rule on earth, to care about that above all other things. We are not here for us; we are here for Him, to serve His purpose, that all the peoples of the earth may know and worship Him so that the earth may be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as it ought to be! We're here to see people come to Christ and grow in Christ in Glenside and Philadelphia and in India and in Kyrgyzstan and Mexico and Guatemala and Indonesia and China and wherever else He's led us to thrust ourselves into the harvest. That's what should occupy our praying and occupy our time and energy and occupy the use of our money, "How can we advance God's Kingdom?", not "How is God going to take care of me?". And along with that, Jesus told us to:

2. place ultimate value on carrying out God's will in our life His righteousness here means righteous living, living out the life He intends us to live in righteous acts of love and caring that reflect His character to all around us. My life should be about, "How does He want me to serve Him?" not "How can I take care of myself?".

And if I focus on those things, if I give myself with all my heart to being about My Father's business the way Jesus Himself did, He gave me this wonderful promise: all these other things that you need, the physical stuff that everybody else worries about, will be added to you, taken care of. During the reign of Queen Elizabeth I in the late 1500's, a certain wealthy merchant was chosen by her to go abroad to represent her on a delicate mission as her ambassador. When he was informed of his Queen's wishes, the merchant asked to be excused on the grounds that to go would cause him great monetary loss and it might even ruin his business. To this the Queen replied, "You look after my business abroad, and I will look after yours at home." The merchant accepted the appointment and was gone for several years, but when he returned, he found that the Queen, true to her word, had indeed taken care of his affairs, and that he was much wealthier than he would have been had he remained at home. God has made you the same offer, "I want you to give your life to doing MY business, and if you do, I will take care of yours". Will you take Him up on it?

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 6: Others - 7:1-12

We continue our study through Matthew's Gospel and through the Sermon on the Mount which he records for us in Chapters 5-7. By way of review, in chapter 5 Jesus exhorted us to look for God's true intent, rather than merely outwardly obeying the letter of His instructions. In chapter 6 He exhorted us to serve God out of sincere motives rather than self-centered ones and to simply trust our Father to meet our needs. Now in chapter 7 He exhorts us concerning our relationships with other people and in the first half He lays down three principles that we must be careful to follow. The first one is this:

I. We Must Not Judge Other People (1) Now this has become a very famous phrase; it is quoted by believers and non-believers alike, particularly when they want to defend something which they are doing that someone else is objecting to. People say, "You're judging me. Stop judging me! Who are you to judge me!" In one blog I read, someone was poking fun at the way we use this phrase by posting a picture of Saddam Hussein with the caption "Don't Judge Me!" underneath, followed by a picture of Hitler with the caption, "Who Do You Think You Are!" In this generation, "judging others" has been labeled as the ultimate sin. Evangelical Christians are regularly called accused of "judging others" because they oppose the practice of abortion or homosexuality. So right away it is important that we understand clearly:

1. what Jesus DID NOT mean when He said this He obviously did not mean:

a. that morality is relative People say, "What's right for me is different from what's right for you!" They believe that right and wrong are a matter of society's consensus or their own personal belief. So, to them, "Judge not" means that we must not declare the acts of others evil. Well, if that's the case, Jesus did it all the time! We just studied chapter 6 where Jesus condemned the Pharisees and directly called them hypocrites for the way that they practiced their giving and praying and fasting! Wait until we get to chapter 23! Morality is NOT relative; what God says is right IS right and what He says is wrong IS wrong. 1 Cor. 2:15 says, The spiritual person judges all things, but is himself to be judged by no one. We are supposed to judge all things, to evaluate them carefully and discern what is right and wrong, what is good and evil, what is of God and what is of the devil. Then sometimes when people say "Don't judge me", they simply mean:

b. that correction is wrong, that we must not tell others they are doing wrong. It's not our place; it is making ourselves better than them and making them feel bad. It means we should just let everybody do their own thing and mind our own business. Oh, really? Look ahead with me to 18:15. There Jesus commands us to go and tell our brother his fault when he's wrong, so that can't be what this means either. What Jesus actually means when He says Judge not is simple:

2. we must not adopt a haughty, critical, condemning attitude toward others Remember, I told you that most of this sermon is aimed against the Pharisees. The word hypocrite in verse 5 gives it away; that's what He has called them repeatedly; He's warning us against something the Pharisees did all the time. Look with me at Lk. 18:9. That's the "judging" he's talking about; they saw themselves as righteous and pure and had contempt for others. Literally, they despised them, looked down on them and regarded them as of no worth. And of course, the person displaying this attitude in the story that follows is a Pharisee. Paul applied this concept, not to moral right and wrong, but to secondary areas where Christians often differ in their opinions, like whether they should eat meat or whether they observe a Sabbath day of rest. Look at Rom. 14:3, 10, 13. He's warning us to not elevate ourselves above others and look down on and criticize them as though we sit in the seat of God Himself and they are nothing. You know people with that kind of an attitude, don't you? I read the illustration of a church where one member of its board had fallen into sin, so the pastor called together the other board members, and with love and compassion he told them the sad story. Then he asked them: "If you had been tempted as our brother was, what would you have done?" The first to respond said, "I'm sure I would never have given in to that" and several others made the same statement. Finally, the pastor asked the last member of the board, a man the others respected as being deeply spiritual. "Pastor," he answered, "I feel in my heart that if I had been tempted and tested as he was, I would probably have fallen even lower." After the awkward silence that followed, the pastor said, "You are the one to go with me to try to restore him." "Judging others" as Jesus meant it, was not about discerning right from wrong; He was warning us about developing a proud, critical attitude where we see ourselves as dwelling on the mountaintop while despising the poor peons in the valley beneath us. Now the reason He gives is that:

3. our attitude directly impacts the way others will treat us (2) You now, for years I assumed this meant God would judge us the way we judge others and so do many Bible commentators. But think about it for a moment, God can only judge us in one fashion, righteously, faultlessly, perfectly. He doesn't dish out to us what we dish out to others! But people do! They tend to treat us the way we treat them, don't they? When Luke recorded this teaching of Jesus in Lk. 6:37-38, he put it like this in the King James, Judge not, and ye shall not be judged: condemn not, and ye shall not be condemned: forgive, and ye shall be forgiven: Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall MEN [there's the key, in Greek "they"] give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again. He was talking about others responding to you. If you're critical of others, they'll be critical of you. If you're forgiving of others, they'll be forgiving of you. If you're generous with others, they'll be generous with you! Others will tend to treat you the way you treat them, not always, but as a general rule; we'll get back from them what we dish out, so that's one good reason to be careful what we dish out! But on a deeper level, Jesus went on to point out that:

4. a judgmental attitude reveals something about ourselves (3-5a) Isn't it amazing how we can always notice and complain about the smallest thing in other people's lives, yet we can completely fail to notice huge things about ourselves that everyone else can see clearly? I think that's more than an interesting observation; it's an insight into the nature of human flesh. On the one hand:

a. we are unwilling to examine our own faults A man was having difficulty communicating with his wife and concluded that she was becoming hard of hearing. So, he decided to conduct a test without her knowing about it. One evening he sat in a chair on the far side of the room. Her back was to him and she could not see him. Very quietly he whispered, "Can you hear me?" There was no response. Moving a little closer, he asked again, "Can you hear me now?" Still no reply. Quietly he edged closer and whispered the same words, but still no answer. Finally, he moved right in behind her chair and said, "Can you hear me now?" To his surprise and chagrin, she responded with irritation in her voice, "For the fourth time, yes!" How like us! We would never consider that the fault lies with us. We inherently believe that there's nothing wrong on our part. Like the Pharisees, we are often intentionally blind, refusing to see the obvious that everybody else can see about us, or if we do:

b. we are unwilling to admit our own faults Pride keeps us from it. "Log? What log? I don't have a log in my eye?" The need to appear before others as though there is nothing wrong with us is also built in. But when we want to criticize others without admitting our own glaring issues, Jesus called that hypocritical in verse (5):

5. we must be willing to correct our own faults before helping others Seeing them is not enough; admitting them is not enough. We must take the log OUT of our eye in order to see clearly enough to help others deal with their issues. It's not that we can't help each other by correcting; we should do that. When done right, it's not judgmental; it's a vital, necessary part of life in the body of Christ that matures us. But while we have a proud, haughty, critical attitude toward others, we can't see clearly enough to do it properly. In fact, that very attitude is the log we don't see in ourselves that keeps us from it! To correct others, they must know that you genuinely want the best for them and are working on your own issues at the same time. And now Jesus makes that famous statement in verse (6). What on earth does that have to do with He's talking about? Most interpreters say "Nothing! Matthew appears to have put it in there randomly." But I can't buy that; it is a parable, to be sure, but I believe that all passages of scripture are where they are for a reason and you have to keep looking until you discover the reason. In my view, Jesus hasn't left his subject at all; He's continuing His subject and telling us that once we take the plank out and are actually ready:

6. we must be cautious when we do help others with correction Both dogs and pigs were unclean animals to the Jews. Dogs, which in that day weren't house pets but rather street dogs living on garbage, have no discernment; they will eat almost anything. They love to roll in anything that stinks. If you take a sacred offering, a part of a sacrificial animal that has been presented to God and would normally be eaten by a priest, and throw it to a dog, he has no discernment; he'll eat it as readily as he will garbage. It means nothing to him. A pig would have no idea of the value of precious pearls. To him they would look just like the corn and fodder he normally sees and he would try to eat them. When that failed, he would just trample the precious pearls underfoot in the mud. And some people are like dogs and pigs; they have no discernment. They would not receive or understand correction for the precious gift of love it truly is, even if given lovingly and humbly. So, we have to understand that:

a. it may not be understood or received at all Some people are so stubborn, so blind, so bent, that they will never understand what we are talking about. And what's worse:

b. it may generate a great deal of animosity toward us Both animals are dangerous. That pig or that street dog may get angry that you didn't give them what they wanted and turn right around and attack you. And so may a person of that disposition. Instead of receiving our help, they may lash out and try to hurt us for it! Prov. 9:7 says, Whoever corrects a scoffer gets himself abuse, and he who reproves a wicked man incurs injury. So, we need to be really cautious with correction; it is a holy gift to be bestowed on those who will profit and grow from it, not to be wasted on those who are blindly ignorant, uncaring and hostile.

Now that makes this whole idea of helping others by correction seem impossible. Between our self-blindness and their unwillingness to receive it, why would we even attempt such a thing? Well, remember later in chapter 19 when Jesus told His disciples it was easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God and they despaired, saying, "Well who then can be saved?! How could such a thing ever be?" But Jesus looked at them and said, "With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible." - Mat 19:26. That's why Jesus now turns again to the subject of prayer. He wants to encourage us that:

II. We Can Trust Our Father To Accomplish Whatever He Wants Through Us (7-8) The way to face difficult challenges like this one or any other is not simply to do the best we can; it is to pray, to ask God to do it! He exhorts us here that:

1. we must ask with determination Those three verbs are all in the present tense and indicate continuing action. He does not mean to simply ask one time and count on receiving. He's telling us that:

a. we must keep on asking until He gives provision We can't simply ask once and figure, "Oh well, it looks like God isn't going to provide", and then go try to figure our own way through the situation. We must ask and ask and keep on asking until we receive. It is those who persist in asking out of genuine trust and a desire to obey God and do His will, who receive. Everyone who asks that way, God provides for. Likewise:

b. we must keep on seeking until He gives direction When we don't know what to do or lack wisdom to know which way to go, we can't simply seek once and then make our own decision. We must seek and seek and keep on seeking, knowing that everyone who seeks, finds, and that to everyone who lacks wisdom He gives it freely, if they keep on asking without doubting. And when it seems the door is closed:

c. we must keep on knocking until He gives opportunity When He is sending us forward and the way is barred, we can't merely knock once and say, "I guess that wasn't His will." We must knock and knock and keep on knocking, knowing that God always opens the door to those who keep on knocking because they really, really want to get in! To put it another way, Jesus is telling us that:

2. we must ask with confidence (9-11) Honestly, if your child was hungry and asked you for a loaf of bread, would you deceive him and give him a brown rock instead? If he asked for a fish, would you give him a snake instead that might hurt him? No human father would ever do that, and we are sinful creatures! But God is a perfect, holy, loving Father. We can pray and ask Him for anything in absolute confidence and He will always give us exactly what is best for us. He will never give us anything false or harmful. That's why we pray and pray and keep on praying, not because we have to pray a lot to make Him hear us, but because we absolutely trust Him as our loving Father and refuse to give up talking to Him about it, because we're confident He cares and is going to do something for us, no matter how impossible it seems! The well-known Civil War era preacher and professor John Broadus said it like this, One may be a truly industrious man, yet poor in temporal things, but one cannot be a truly praying man, and yet poor in spiritual things. Our Father loves to give them to us; that's why we persist in asking!

And now in verse 12 Jesus concludes, saying Therefore..., “In light of all I’ve taught you so far, here is:

III. The Rule For How To Treat Others (12) We call it the “Golden Rule”, the simple, one sentence, boiled down, practical way to understand how God would want us to act:

1. in every situation we must consider how we want others to treat us As we encounter a person with a problem or an issue or a need or whatever the situation may be, the simplest thing to do is to ask ourselves, “How do I want others to treat me?” This is not quite the same as, “How would I want to be treated if I were in their situation?” If I were, I might actually want the wrong thing, something that isn’t good for me. Rather, it’s a more general question: “How do I want other people to treat me?” The answer comes pretty easily, “...with compassion, respect, mercy, generosity” and so on.

2. then we must actually treat the other person that same way, whatever the situation. It’s built right into us to know what brings us joy, what gives us relief, what truly helps us and is good for us. We can simply turn around and treat the person in front of us the way we desire to be treated. It’s a simple rule, one that can be followed by everyone from the young child who believes, to the simplest, uneducated follower of Jesus who knows literally nothing of the Scriptures and yet, Jesus says:

3. this sums up the core of God’s intent to love others Remember later on when someone asked Him what the greatest commandment in the Law is and He said, ...You shall love your neighbor as yourself. On these two commandments depend all the Law and the Prophets. - 22:39-40. Caring for others the way you naturally care for yourself, treating them the way you naturally want to be treated, that fulfills the core of everything God is trying to convey through all the relational commandments of Scripture.

In one of his sermons, John Wesley tells a story on himself. There was a man he regarded with contempt because he considered him to be miserly and covetous. One day he actually had the audacity to tell him so to his face and when the man asked why he thought that, Wesley replied, “A year ago when I made a collection for the expense of repairing the Foundry, you subscribed 5 guineas. At the subscription this year, you subscribed only half a guinea!” Wesley then reported that the man, speaking humbly about himself indirectly, told him, “I know a man that goes to the market at the beginning of every week. There he buys a pennyworth of parsnips which he boils in a large quantity of water. The parsnips serve him for food and the water for drink the ensuing week. So his meat and drink together cost him only a penny a week.” Wesley adds, “This he constantly did, though he had then two hundred pounds a year [salary, in order] to pay the debts he had contracted before he knew God!” In other words, he was being so frugal and was able to give so little because he was obeying God and honestly paying off his creditors. Wesley concludes, “And this was he whom I had set down for a covetous man!” Beloved, don’t be critical and judgmental of others. Always treat them the way you want to be treated. And never stop praying for God to work seemingly impossible transformation, both in you first, and also in them.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Message Of The King - Mt. 5-7

Part 7: Warnings - 7:13-29

Today we complete our study through the Sermon on the Mount. After exhorting us not judge others and giving us the simple rule to treat them as we wanted to be treated in the first half, Jesus finished this sermon of His with a series of three serious warnings. When we look at them, we often think of them as warnings that apply primarily to people who don’t believe in Jesus and they certainly do. They are three very grave warnings about receiving eternal life. We want to be careful, however, to remember that in this sermon, Jesus was teaching His disciples and we must be diligent to see the message that these warnings have for us who believe. Jesus used three similes to express His warnings, three comparisons with things his audience routinely experienced in their lives: walking on roads, trees bearing fruit, and houses weathering storms. And each comparison lays out before us two options. Jesus begins by telling us:

I. There Are Two Routes To Take Through Life (13-14) Every walled city or town in the land had gates in its walls and people passed through them every day as they went out from their homes inside the city to work in their fields or travel elsewhere. The gates opened onto roads that led away from the city in various directions. Some would be very large, wide, heavy, double-doored entryways. The broad gates are the ones leading out onto the broad roads, the main roads, the ones everybody travels to get to the next city or some oft-visited destination. But each city would also have smaller, lesser-used side or rear exits. The narrow gate would be used only by relatively few who probably lived near it and opened onto a much smaller road or path, perhaps one that led through more difficult terrain. Of course, our towns no longer have gates but we can easily understand the analogy and we can certainly picture the difference between a main expressway and a little dirt road winding up into the hills. Jesus was saying that in life:

1. there is a wide gate onto a broad road leading to eternal destruction There is a route of life that the majority of people in the world choose to follow. It is a self-centered route; they follow their own desires and make their own decisions and live their own way and do what they think is best for them. The gate is wide since so many go through it and it's an easy road to travel on because it comes naturally. But if you follow this route, out there at the end of life when you get to the destination, you discover that the road leads to destruction, and Jesus wasn't simply talking about the fact that you die and find that your life was wasted and meaningless and has nothing of eternal value to show for it (though that is true); He was talking about eternal destruction in hell. It's easy to be lost forever; you don't have to do anything. Just let yourself be swept along by the mass of humanity all around you and live the way they do. Follow the broad easy road, until you drive right off the cliff at the end! But there is another route, Jesus said:

2. there is a narrow gate onto a difficult road leading to eternal life That route is actually Jesus Himself; He said I am the way... - Jn. 14:6, that is, the road that leads to the Father's House, the ONLY road that leads there. The gate is narrow; only one person at a time can squeeze through by coming to Jesus and placing their trust in Him. And the road of life that gate leads to is difficult. It goes up steep hills and through narrow passages between rocks. When we go hunting in the fall in the mountains of Cameron County PA, we drive the little dirt roads that wind up to the top of the mountain. It's so steep that the road switches back and forth and is only one vehicle wide. There's no winter maintenance and in snowy weather it's a tough road to stay on! If you were walking it, you'd be exhausted by the time you reached the top. The narrow road of following Jesus is like that. It involves suffering and toil and leads into all kinds of difficult circumstances if we live in obedience to Him and follow what He told us. But when we get to the end of the road and death claims us, we find that it has led us to the Father's House, to life that is truly life in the Kingdom of God and therefore, Jesus exhorted us that:

3. we must choose to enter the narrow gate! We must choose Him! We must choose to love Him and follow Him and obey Him and live our life according to His commands, according to all the things He has just taught us in this sermon!

Now of course this is a warning to be saved, to trust Christ as Savior, but it is more than that. It is a lesson to us who have already entered the narrow gate. First of all, we are going to be a minority. Comparatively few are going to enter this way with us and we should be prepared for that. We are always going to be swimming against the tide of the human race that surrounds us as they rush down the broad road. And that is going to make us not merely unpopular, but despised and opposed and rejected and even persecuted, just as Jesus was. He told His disciples in 16:24, If anyone would come after me, he must deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. The narrow road is a hard road, a difficult road, a road that involves suffering and sacrifice and maybe even death; it is the way of the cross, but take heart, the way of the cross leads home! Then Jesus went on in verses (15-23) to His second analogy. He said:

II. There Are Two Kinds Of Prophets To Follow (15) A prophet is someone who speaks for God, who receives a message from God to be delivered to His people. Jesus knew He was leaving and that His people were going to need leaders to show them the road, pastors and teachers and prophets who would continue to bring them His instructions. True prophets are absolutely necessary to His people in this world to keep them walking on that narrow route. But here:

1. Jesus warned us to beware of false prophets A false prophet is someone whose claim to speak for God is not true; he or she really doesn't speak God's message and so, if you believe what they say, you will be led astray off the path. Peter later said it like this, speaking of Israel, But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, bringing upon themselves swift destruction. And many will follow their sensuality, and because of them the way of truth will be blasphemed. - 2 Pet. 2:1-2. He is not talking about the enemies of Christianity, which we've always had. He's talking about people that arise from within our own ranks!

a. they come to us clothed in outward appearance as sheep They claim to be and seem to be one of us, Christ's sheep. They look just like us. They go about doing much good, telling people to love each other, concerned about world peace, wanting social justice, concerned for the helpless and the downtrodden. The words false prophet always bring to mind some evil charlatan who is putting on a fake front while stealing money out of the account or sleeping with the women who were serving at the tent of meeting, like Eli's priestly sons did. But most false prophets are not that way; most are really nice people, good people. Where do you find them? They pastor some of our churches; they teach in many of our colleges and seminaries; they are respected leaders in our community and they are very sincere. But:

b. their hidden inner nature is that of sheep-destroyers, wolves who actually destroy people by leading them away from the narrow gate, by keeping them on that broad road that leads to destruction. Their ravenous inner hunger is that they are eager in their own eyes to help people understand their so-called version of "truth". They go out of their way to do what in their eyes is serving and helping people, but in reality, is leading them astray to their doom! It may help you understand more of what I'm talking about if we skip ahead to verse 21 where:

2. Jesus explained that many of these are self-deluded (21-23) Notice the word prophesy that connects the thought. He's still talking about those who are leaders, who do the very things that He sent out His own trained disciples to do, and saying that they actually believe they ARE His disciples. In fact, He says:

a. they will do many powerful things in His Name They will preach in His Name. They will even cast out demons using His Name and do miracles acting in His Name. Somehow these folks will even display supernatural power at times, albeit they get their power from a different source. Satan is always quick to empower those who lead folks astray; witch doctors and shamans have known that for centuries and preyed on people with their powers. But here these people are, just like Simon the magician, right there among the Christians wanting the very power of God and thinking they are seeing it. Look at what they say in verse 22; they call Jesus Lord:

b. they believe that they are serving Him and expect to enter heaven They pray; they speak in His Name; they devote their lives to what they think is His cause and fully expect that when they come to the end of the road, that He will welcome them with open arms, but:

c. in reality He does not KNOW them They have no genuine personal relationship with Christ because they are not trusting in Him alone and what He did at the cross to save them. So, Jesus says that what they are doing is evil, because they are leading people astray and keeping them from eternal life. Therefore:

d. they will be eternally separated from Him Why? Verse 21 says, because they don't do His Father's will. Saying, Lord, Lord, is not enough. Prophesying and even doing miracles in His Name is not enough. Those who enter the Kingdom are those who do the will of the Father, who obey Him and enter the narrow gate and live their lives on the narrow road. The character and the nature of a person's life is dramatically changed by an encounter with Jesus and that change is the proof that they know Him!

Now, who on earth exactly am I talking about? Let me give you some examples. The Pharisees of Jesus' day were certainly the first target in the center of Jesus' sights. They claimed to speak for God as they taught and made followers of themselves, but were leading people straight to hell, as sincere and as godly as they appeared. They even had some among them who practiced the casting out of demons! The Jehovah's Witnesses and the Mormons who knock on your door are extremely sincere. They believe they have the real truth Jesus came to declare and genuinely want to help you. They look just like us and do all the same things we do, but by leading people away from trust in Jesus Christ alone for salvation, they are actually wolves! Every seminary professor that I had in the institution I went to was kind and caring and prayerful and sincerely thought that the heresy he or she was teaching was truth and that people were being ministered to, but I don't think that one of them was genuinely saved, and in reality, they were keeping people from being saved by leading them away from the faith once for all delivered to the saints. It was an enigma to me at first; I didn't know what to do with it. How could a person SEEM so good and religious and yet deny the inerrancy of the Bible and the miracles it tells us of, deny that Jesus was actually God and say He didn't literally rise from the dead and heaven and hell are just ancient myths? It was so confusing, until the Holy Spirit simply opened my eyes to see that not everyone who says Lord, Lord is real. If they don't do the will of the Father, they are not the real thing, no matter how like us they appear. The religion professors in the college I attended were the same; I saw student after student who came there with faith out of a local church like this one, go out believing that the faith of his childhood was a myth held by uneducated people who didn't know any better. There are thousands of liberal pastors in every town and city, chaplains in hospitals and prisons, who claim to love God but in actuality are driving people away from a personal relationship with Jesus Christ that would change their lives. These are nice, kind, even beloved, people but according to Jesus, they are FALSE PROPHETS and false prophets are extremely dangerous! That's why:

3. Jesus told us how to recognize false prophets Now go back to verses (16-20). By their fruit you will recognize them. Do people pick grapes from thornbushes, or figs from thistles? Likewise, every good tree bears good fruit, but a bad tree bears bad fruit. A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, and a bad tree cannot bear good fruit. Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. Thus, by their fruit you will recognize them. - Lk. 6:43-45

a. we recognize them by their fruits Everybody knows you tell a tree by its fruit. Personally, I have a hard time identifying trees by bark and leaves, but if I see a tree with apples or acorns on it, I have no problem; it is a visible giveaway. Thistle bushes don't have figs; they have stickers. Thornbushes don't have grapes, they have thorns. And prophets have fruit too. Our immediate thought is that good fruit means good deeds, but that is not so. Mormons and Jehovah's Witnesses do multitudes of good deeds, but they still don't trust in Jesus Christ and lead people to Him. So, what really is fruit? The key is in verse 21. It is not those who say "Lord, lord" but those whose lives reflect the will of God who truly know Him. Fortunately, in our Bible we have an objective standard by which to measure the will of God, and the message of the Bible is that faith in Jesus Christ is the only way of salvation and that God wants everyone to come to Him and walk that narrow way! So, the fruit of a prophet is, in essence, the effect that their message has on people's lives; does it bring people to trust in Christ for salvation or does it keep them from coming to Him? That's the test. You see:

b. fruit always matches the true identity of the tree If the tree has apples, it is not a thornbush; it's an apple tree. If the prophet is bringing people to true faith in Christ and they are growing and demonstrating real spiritual life as measured by the Scriptures, then he's true. But if the tree has thorns on it, no matter how much it looks like an apple tree, it is still a thorn tree. If the real result of the prophet's message is that people don't actually become Christ-followers but follow something that is non-scriptural instead, then he or she is false. That is as unalterable as the laws of nature. And the sad fact is that:

c. prophets who produce bad fruit are burned forever, just like thornbushes and thistle plants are cut down and dug out of the field, piled up and burned. How sad to imagine the shock of realizing that in all their years of sincerely calling “Lord, Lord” they were deluded and wrong and missed the narrow gate to life.

The warning here to us, folks, is to be careful not to be deceived and led astray from true Biblical faith by people like the Pharisees and so many who have followed in their footsteps through the centuries, ...having the appearance of godliness, but denying its power. As Paul told Timothy, Avoid such people. - 2 Tim. 3:5. Then finally, Jesus explained that:

III. There Are Two Types Of Foundations On Which To Build Life (24-27) This parable is so familiar that we often overlook its meaning. One man builds a house and he digs down and finds bedrock and builds on it. Another simply builds on the dirt (which in most of Israel is largely sand) without a sure foundation. And the analogy in life is that:

1. hearing Jesus’ words and DOING them is a sure foundation He’s talking about the words He’s just spoken over these three chapters. Hearing them is wonderful, but DOING them is what counts. Doing them is living out the Father’s will. Spending our life doing what Jesus has told us to do is to build everything we do in life on a foundation that cannot move. But:

2. hearing Jesus’ words and IGNORING them guarantees certain disaster You see, a day of testing is coming, a day when there is a storm and the creek rises and the wind blows, a day when the house on the rock survives while the house on the sand is washed away.

I grew up living alongside the Quittapahilla Creek in Annville Pennsylvania. Our house was old, and not much to look at; my dad built out over an old cottage by the stream. But it was built against the side of a hill and if you went down in the cellar, you could see sections where huge limestone slabs were still sticking through the cement. It was cemented right to the rock. Across from us was a beautiful flat acre of property on a plain on the inside of the curve of the creek. A wealthy doctor and his wife built a lovely new ranch home there and for years enjoyed it very much. But in 1972 Hurricane Agnes blew through southeast Pennsylvania and dropped 12 inches of rain in a day and a half. The creek rose out of its banks, 17 feet straight up. The angry water broke our back cellar wall and flowed right through our basement and out through the wooden garage doors which floated up like piers. Our whole bottom level and 3 feet of our living area on top were under water. But across the creek the plain became a flood plain and the ranch house found itself squarely in the middle of the raging flood up to its roof peak. When the waters finally receded, our rickety old house still stood, albeit covered with mud, but the new house on the plain had crumbled to ruins. How could that be? Our house was not nearly as well built as its neighbor, but its foundation was on the rock. One day when we reach the end of the road of life, there is a storm coming. Paul said, there is only one foundation on which to build your life and that is Jesus Christ. If you haven’t built on that foundation, if you haven’t given yourself to Jesus Christ, if you don’t KNOW Him, you’ll be swept away, not by water, but by fire. However, Paul also warned us who are believers in 1 Cor. 3:11-15, that how we build on that foundation is also subject to a test. If we really follow Christ and obey Him and live His way, what we have built will last. But if we invest our lives in things that are self-centered and not His will, all those things will burn up like so much wood, hay and stubble and we’ll be left with only the foundation. The warning here for us is that we can be just as deceived as these false prophets are into thinking that we are living a God-pleasing Christian life, when in reality we are living selfishly and doing nothing to build the kingdom. Let’s build our lives right. And notice at the end:

IV. The Authority Of Jesus That Amazes His Hearers (28-29) He didn’t mince words; He didn’t cite references and quote famous teachers. He said, “This is the way IT IS!” He taught with the authority of God Himself. This message may, indeed, seem strong; you may be amazed at the audacity of declaring that there is only one way and everyone else will be lost, but the content of what we’ve studied is from God. This IS the way it is! There is one route, one fruit, and one foundation. It IS all about Him. Choose Him.

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Authority Of The King - Mt. 8-10

To Heal Disease - 8:1-17

Chapters 8-10 of Matthew form a unit and there is one key word that keeps coming up throughout them, the word authority. In these chapters, Jesus is demonstrating His authority as the King or, to say it another way, he is proving that He IS King by demonstrating His authority over ALL things, authority to heal disease, to rule nature, to command demons, to forgive sins, and to control lives. So, let’s begin by trying to understand:

I. The Meaning of Authority The preface to this section is 7:28-29. The teaching that people were used to hearing in Jesus’ day was from the scribes, the teachers of the law. And their method was to explain things by quoting others, “Rabbi So and So said...”, “Our wise men say...”, always appealing to the authority of someone else. It had been over 400 years since there had been a prophet who said, Thus says the LORD!, who claimed to speak directly with the authority of God. But Jesus went a step further; repeatedly He said, Truly, truly I say to you.... He spoke as one who Himself had the very authority of God! No wonder the people were amazed! He claimed to speak as God. But their real amazement came, not just from the way that He spoke, but from the fact that when He spoke, whatever He commanded to happen happened. The sick were healed, demons were cast out and storms ceased. His words carried the authority of God. In chapter 8 we meet a Roman centurion and he apparently had a very clear understanding of authority. Look at 8:9. Authority is understood by people who are in the military.

1. authority is the right to command obedience A captain has the right to command the soldiers under him and they must obey. A general has the right to command ALL those under his rank and they must obey. Our president is Commander in Chief and our entire military must obey whatever he commands, because they are under his authority. Well, Jesus is commander in chief, King of the entire universe, and He has the right to command obedience from any and all of it. However, authority is more than just the right to give commands:

2. true authority implies having the power to enforce that right If the soldier doesn't obey the commanding officer, the MP's come and throw him in the brig. If it is a serious enough infraction, he is court-martialed and discharged or if a crime, he may be imprisoned or even sentenced to death for treason. The right to command comes with the power to enforce the command, to make it happen. That's a major reason why soldiers obey authority; they know that authority is not just words; it comes with power. Well, look at:

3. the extent of Jesus' authority - Mt. 28:18 ALL authority is given to Him, both in heaven and on earth! He has both the right to command and the power to enforce His will over everything in heaven and on earth. That means that:

a. all objects, animate and inanimate, obey His will When He commands the wind and the waves, Peace! Be still!, they stop immediately. When He commands a fig tree to wither and die, it dries up. He commanded the ravens to bring food to Elijah and a vine to grow up over Jonah outside Nineveh and a worm to eat that vine. He spoke and the world came into existence. He formed the mountains and He said to the seas, "Come this far and no further" and they obeyed. Hebrews says that Jesus sustains all things by His powerful word. Everything in the natural world from the stones to the stars, from the demons to the angels, obeys His every command. They have to. The power behind His authority compels them to. It also means that:

b. all events and circumstances obey His will The birth stories are full of it. Barren Elizabeth becomes pregnant at His Word and a virgin conceives a child. The Roman Emperor commands a census that brings Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem. A star sends wise men from Persia on a quest to see the newborn king and they arrive at just the right time. The star reappears and leads them to Bethlehem. Then Herod dies, so Joseph can bring his family back from Egypt to Nazareth. Everything happens under His authority, everything, even the evil things. The very slaughter of the infants of Bethlehem after Jesus' birth fulfills the prophecy of Jer. 31:15, given 600 years earlier. Even the evil things that happen fall somehow into His plan and under His authority. And, as King, He doesn't have to explain His reasons to us; He simply expects us to trust that He is good and is working all things together for His good purpose. But you see, He has made one exception in all the universe. To human beings alone, He has given the temporary privilege to choose whether to submit to His authority and obey it or not. I say temporary because:

c. all people will ultimately obey His will One day at the Name of Jesus every knee will bow and every tongue will confess His authority, whether they're in heaven, on the earth or under the earth in hell! But now while we're alive and before He returns, we alone of all things get the freedom to choose; it's the only way for Him to get what He wants most, people who love Him freely of their own accord. But, if the whole universe immediately responds to His every word, does it not follow that we should also? Who are we to think that we should do anything less than the very rocks who stand ready to cry out His praise at His command?

THAT is what Jesus' miracles were all about. In verses 1-8 of chapter 8 we see Jesus demonstrate His authority as King in an area which touches all of our lives. We have:

II. Three Demonstrations of Jesus' Authority To Heal Disease Sickness is something that touches all of our lives. It is an experience we all have personally in some way or another, but for many of us it comes to play a major role in our lives or the lives of those we love. Every week there is a long list of names of people connected to our little congregation who are engaged in serious physical struggles and we are praying for their healing, despite them having the best medical care that exists in the world. You can only imagine how much fear people have of illness in the huge portions of the world where there is only limited or no medical care at all, where people live in conditions much like those of Jesus' day and to get sick, even with a simple infection, could easily mean death. It is when you strip away that sense of "safety" that modern medicine has given us who live in the west, that you realize that Jesus is really the One with authority over disease. First, we see that in:

1. the healing of the leper (8:1-4) Just as He finished teaching and came down the hillside, this man with leprosy took a deep risk and violated societal law by running up and kneeling at His feet. He should have stayed at a far distance and covered his lip and cried, "I am unclean, help me!" And the first thing Jesus did was to reach out his hand and touch the man. You see:

a. healing displays Jesus' compassion Nobody had touched that man, probably for a very long time, not his wife, not his children, no one. He lived apart from them somewhere. He was isolated; people avoided him at all costs because he was unclean and unclean things can't be touched! Jesus could simply have said, Go and show yourself to the priests... as He did with the ten lepers who came to him later. But he didn't. He touched him before He healed him! Why? For one thing it shows His compassion for those who suffer from disease. Listen, the fact that you or a loved one have a disease is not some curse from God; it is not some sign of His judgment or disfavor. In the midst of that sickness, He loves you; He cares about you; He will touch you; He will commune with you and draw you into intimate closeness in the midst of your suffering, if you will let Him, if you will come and kneel at His feet and ask. Then notice that this leper believed something very important:

b. healing depends on Jesus' will He said, If you are willing... In saying that, He recognized Jesus' authority. To him, it was not a question of Jesus' ABILITY to heal, but of Jesus' WILL. He acknowledged His right as a Sovereign to heal or not to heal as HE wills. Of course, by approaching Him, he was risking everything, betting that Jesus was willing. And indeed:

(1) it is often Jesus' will to heal How many of you have ever been sick in your life? And how many of you are well today? Most of us have been sick dozens of times in our lives and were healed. That was God! The fact that your flesh knits itself back together after it's been cut, that's God! I would guess that a great many of us have had some life-threatening issue at some point, a burst appendix, a heart attack, something that would have killed you 200 years ago but you're sitting here. That's not just medicine; that's God. In fact, the majority of the times that we get sick, Jesus heals us, just as in this case He was willing. But that is not always the case:

(2) it is not always Jesus' will to heal If it were, there would be no sick people in the world. Then Paul would not have had to continue to live with his thorn in the flesh for years after praying about it three times; he wouldn't have had to leave Trophimus sick in Miletus, and Epaphroditus would not have nearly died of an illness delivering the Philippians' gift to him at Rome. As we come to pray about our sicknesses or those of others, we ought to come like this man, humbly kneeling before Jesus, recognizing that He is Lord over sickness and what matters the most is His will, and sometimes He would rather take us or our loved one home! But when He does heal, it's evident from this encounter that:

c. Jesus does not wish to glamorize healing He said, Say nothing to anyone... Why? Because as soon as desperate people hear that there is healing to be had, they flock to the place, not because they want to meet a loving, compassionate King and submit to Him, but because they want out of their misery. Jesus never organized a healing crusade or set up a miracle campaign. Even though Jesus healed thousands like this man, miraculously, and still does today, healing itself is never the point or the object of any of it. Rather:

d. Jesus uses miraculous healing to witness to His identity If this man went to the priests with an offering claiming to be a healed leper, they would have to investigate and would find out the truth. Never in all of the history of Israel do we read that a leper was healed, ever, except in the case of Naaman the Syrian who was healed by a direct miracle from God. Not even among all the sick people Jesus healed early in His ministry do we read that there was a leper. This was thought to be an impossible case. When Jesus said, I will; be clean!, He was exercising the authority and the power of God. Investigation would prove that He had done the impossible and that He was who He claimed to be, the King! What we call "normal" healing, He grants all the time, but miraculous healing He often does to prove to those trapped in darkness that He is the true God!

On our trip to India, we met an older man named Luke. Luke was a Hindu who used to play drums and dance at the festivals in the Hindu temples. He also practiced fortunetelling and acted as a witch doctor, but his wife had an issue of constant bleeding for 10 years. They visited many doctors and spent a lot of money but there was no help. Then one day Luke passed by an open-air meeting and heard a man preach on Mt. 11:28, Come unto ME all you who labor and are heavy laden... and at the end he asked him to pray for his wife's healing. On Christmas day 1991 he attended a church service for the first time and three days later his wife was miraculously healed. He gave up all his former practices and became a faithful member of the church. Today he is an evangelist reaching village after village with the good news that Jesus is the True God and our church helps support him! That's why Jesus does miracles of healing, not so we can get what we want, but so that HE can get what HE deserves, the worship of people who don't know who He really is! In the next portion we read about:

2. the healing of the centurion's servant (8:5-13) This man is not even a Jew; he's a centurion, an officer in the Roman army and commander of a hundred soldiers. In the parallel account in Luke 7, Luke reveals that the centurion did not even feel worthy come to Jesus personally, but rather he sent some of the Jewish elders to implore Jesus on his behalf, and they did it because he obviously cared about their people so much. At any rate, he has heard the reports about Jesus and sends the messengers back to tell Jesus that it is not even necessary for Him to come to his house. He has come to the conclusion that:

a. Jesus' healing power depends on His word alone The sick man doesn't have to hear Him give the command nor does Jesus have to physically touch him. In fact, the sick man doesn't have to believe in Jesus at all or even know that Jesus gave the command. Jesus' authority works like his own does, only it is obviously far greater. A command given to anyone under his authority is instantly followed because He speaks with the authority of the Emperor. But Jesus speaks with the authority of God Himself and all things, even sickness, must instantly obey His command! Thus, this soldier shows us that:

b. true faith is believing the authority of Jesus' word, that whatever Jesus says, WILL happen, no matter how impossible it may seem. So many well-meaning preachers and teachers today tell you, "Believe that you are healed and it will be done!" In other words, the more you believe that Jesus IS going to do this to you, that's what makes Him do it! Faith becomes, in that sense, a good work, a good deed, something you hold up to God and expect Him to credit to your account. Then, if you're not healed, they guilt you with, "You didn't have enough faith!" Don't ever buy that! The faith Jesus wants and commends is simply believing that He has complete authority and whatever He chooses will happen! If He wants you to be healed, you will be! Now Jesus was surprised at hearing this kind of faith coming, not from a Jew who might be expected to understand this, but from a non-Jew, and He took that opportunity to make a statement:

c. Jesus declared that some from all peoples will share in His Kingdom The Jews thought it would be just them, but Jesus repeatedly throughout His ministry declared that all nations are part of His plan. This centurion was among the first of many, of many millions, of billions, including us, from all over the world, who will share the joys of His Kingdom! Now finally in the third portion of this section we read about:

3. the healing of many people at Peter's house (8:14-16) Not only was Peter's mother-in-law healed but many came to be healed and helped. And He drove out the demons with a word in every case and He healed all the sick who came, regardless of what was wrong with them. You see:

a. Jesus' authority extends to all sickness, to every kind. Through the course of his ministry Jesus healed blindness, leprosy, paralysis, hemorrhaging, lameness and more. It extended even to demon oppression. The very demons obeyed His authority. His authority doesn't apply now and again, in this case but not that one, for this person but not that one. It is universal. In every case, He is in charge and His will will be done in the end! But there is one last very important thing that Luke points out:

b. Jesus' healing ministry was prophesied in the Word (17) Matthew says that Jesus' healing of the crowds fulfills Is. 53:4, Surely he has borne our griefs and carried our sorrows... And I want to be sure you understand what he means because:

(1) healing is not guaranteed in the atonement as some teach Many Pentecostals and healing evangelists quote this verse, attempting to prove that when Jesus died on the cross, He bought healing for us as well as salvation, so that we can claim healing, so that it is for everyone in every case, just the way salvation is for all. But that is not what Matthew is saying. He is saying that:

(2) Jesus' healing ministry identified Him as the Messiah He says that these verses were fulfilled during His life, not through His death. If you read the context in Isaiah 52, the prophet is saying, "We should have seen; we should have known. He healed our diseases and we should have recognized Him, but we didn't." In 11:2-5 Matthew records what happened when John the Baptist sent messengers to ask Jesus "Are you the One?" What was His answer? Go tell John the lame walk and the blind see and the deaf hear and the lepers are cleansed and the dead are raised! Every time Jesus healed another person, He proved that He was the Messiah, the Promised One, because He was doing what Messiah was to do! And He is still proving Himself to be the true and living God today by performing miracles of healing, here and all over the world.

So, Jesus has all authority to heal disease, unquestionably, and has demonstrated it time and again. But what's the bottom line? How do I pray when I myself or someone I love is suffering from disease? Well, the Norwegian theologian Ole Hallesby said we should pray something like this: "Lord, if it will be to Your glory, heal suddenly. If it will glorify You more, heal gradually; if it will glorify You even more, may your servant remain sick awhile; and if it will glorify Your name still more, take him to Yourself in heaven." That sounds a bit cold and unemotional, but it makes an important point. Our lives are not about us and about getting what we want. Ultimately, they are about His glory and, in everything, even in sickness, our response is to yield to His will and trust Him.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Authority Of The King - Mt. 8-10

Over The Natural And Supernatural - 8:18-34

In chapters 8-10 of Matthew, Jesus is demonstrating His authority over all things. Last week in the first half of chapter 8 we saw Him demonstrating His authority as God the Son to heal disease. Now, in the second half, He demonstrates that He is not only Lord over sickness, but also over people's lives, over the very forces of nature, and over the spirit world. What we see is that the same authority that the centurion said that Jesus had, the authority to command and to have His will be done, belongs to Jesus in each of these three areas. The first thing we see is:

I. His Authority Over People's Lives (18-22) We forget sometimes just how many people did follow Jesus about as disciples during His ministry. There were many more than the Twelve. Sometime later we're told that Jesus sent out 70 in teams of two to preach the Kingdom of God. There were 120 in the Upper Room on the day of Pentecost and they were all people who had followed Jesus. Paul tells us that more than 500 of His followers were gathered in one location at one point and the resurrected Christ appeared to them. Here in our text, Jesus is on His way down to the shore of the Sea of Galilee to get into a boat to cross it and get away from the crowds, but before He reaches it, two men come to Him, ostensibly to follow Him as disciples, however, each of them had an obstacle which stood in the way of their following Jesus. And we are not told whether these two ever did follow Him or not! I have always thought that they turned back, but it is possible that they didn't. They may indeed have overcome their obstacles and become true followers, however, the point of application for us is that these two incidents tell us something about the authority that Christ claims over the lives of people. In the first case, Christ claims that His authority:

1. it supersedes earthly comforts (18-20) This man was literally a scribe, a man who was used to a quiet room with a candle, pouring over scrolls and carefully copying them. He was used to standing up and reading the Scriptures and explaining them in the local synagogue. And here he is, making the offer to leave home and follow Jesus about, wherever he goes. One would think that's a good thing. So why did Jesus respond in what seems like a discouraging fashion? Evidently, because he knew what was in this man's mind. The scribe calls Him Teacher. He's been deeply touched by the explanation of the Scriptures Jesus has just given on the mount. John Gill comments, The preaching of Christ had riveted and charmed him; his heart had swelled; his enthusiasm had been kindled; and in this state of mind, he will go anywhere with Him, and feels impelled to tell Him so. "Wilt thou?" replies the Lord Jesus. "Knowest thou whom thou art pledging thyself to follow, and whither haply He may lead thee? No warm home, no downy pillow has He for thee: He has them not for Himself. The foxes are not without their holes, nor do the birds of the air lack their nests; but the Son of man has to depend on the hospitality of others, and borrow the pillow whereon He lays His head." Jesus knew this man hadn't counted the cost; he hadn't thought about the life change it would mean. Jesus was saying, "If you follow Me, you'll have to give up the nice quiet comfortable life you have; I don't have a house to come home to and you won't either; we stay in others' homes and sleep in the open when we're on the road. Are you willing to give up all this for Me?" His answer is not recorded, but that question is for us as well. On another occasion, Jesus declared openly, In the same way, any of you who does not give up everything he has cannot be my disciple. - Lk. 14:33. Like this man, we say we want to follow Jesus, but in reality, often our deeper expectation is that Jesus should give us a nice comfortable life like we're used to, that He should provide for us the things that we expect. And if we follow Him and lose our job or our house or struggle financially, we are prone to think He isn't keeping up His end of the bargain! Listen, Jesus claims authority to control our lives completely, to lead us into any circumstances that He chooses, even into suffering, for His glory! His authority supersedes our desire for earthly comforts and what's more:

2. it supersedes earthly relationships (19-22) Now if this man's father were lying dead and ready for burial, do you honestly think Jesus would have denied him that privilege? In that culture they buried people the same day, so if his father had died, this man wouldn't have been out in a crowd somewhere listening to Jesus teach, but home in the midst of the funeral already! And if his father was an invalid near death and with no one else to care for him, would Jesus tell him to forget that responsibility? He meant that he wanted to stay where he was and continue to be with his father until he died, (probably to ensure that he would receive his inheritance) and THEN go and follow Jesus. He didn't want to let go of Dad until he absolutely had to. Jesus said, "No, let that kind of earthly thinking for those who are spiritually dead; you come follow me! I am more important than your father!" In fact, it is more important to follow Christ than to cling to any earthly relationship. In 10:37-38, Jesus said, Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me, and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And whoever does not take his cross and follow me is not worthy of me. Loving Jesus and doing what He wants us to do supersedes our loyalty to any other person we hold dear; He is Lord! And yet, how many who claim to follow Him won't go into ministry or to the mission field because of father or mother or children, even when they know Christ is calling them. We don't know what this man did, but what we do know is that:

Jesus clearly claims complete authority over the lives of His own followers! Steve Richardson of Pioneers was challenging people to follow Jesus to the unengaged peoples of the world, the ones that nobody is even TRYING to reach and he wrote, Who will learn their complex and difficult languages? Who will labor in difficult, often primitive conditions, partnering with nearby groups to reach these unengaged before it is too late? Who is willing to spend years helping to reach remote ravines in Southwestern China, nomadic peoples of the Sahara or desert tribes of Chad, or swampy areas of Papua New Guinea? I have seen firsthand the challenges and rewards of such a life. It's an extraordinary privilege. I can imagine no greater joy than to see people brought out of darkness, conflict and fear into the peace and joy found in Christ and his cross. [Mission Frontiers, Jan/Feb 2012, P. 11]. Following Jesus means being willing to leave the earthly comforts you enjoy, being willing to leave behind the loved ones you cherish, if He calls you to do that, in order to serve His greater purpose! He has complete authority to control your life, but by grace He allows you the rare privilege to choose whether to obey that authority. Now Jesus and the disciples finally get to the shore, and in the second scene in our text, we see:

II. His Authority Over Nature (23-27) Jesus said He didn't have any place to lay His head, so this night He used a boat! And while He was sleeping soundly, a violent storm came up, so violent that it began to actually swamp the boat. They were taking on water and the disciples, several of whom were experienced fishermen who made their living on this lake, became so afraid that they woke Jesus and said, Lord, save us! We are about to die! It must have really been bad, but Mark says, He arose, and rebuked the wind, and said unto the sea, Peace, be still. And the wind ceased, and there was a great calm. He actually spoke directly to the wind and to the waves and commanded them to stop and they did. Nobody had ever seen anything like it! No wonder the disciples were astonished and said, What sort of man is this, that even winds and sea obey him? Simple; this man is God the Son! He is the King!

1. He has complete control over nature He can make the wind stop blowing and the waves stop their crashing on command! Just go down to the beach on a day when the surf is up and let the waves hit you and feel their power. Look outside when there's a violent storm and see the wind and how it breaks the trees. Jesus is in complete control over the incredibly powerful forces of nature that we can't begin to control. The most powerful forces of nature that completely terrify us, obey His every word! And:

2. He arranges it according to His will At this moment He wanted the storm to stop, so He stopped it! His will prevails in all of nature. The droughts and hurricanes and floods and earthquakes of the world are not accidents; they are not merely geologic forces at work. Listen to the Psalmist, He sends out his command to the earth; his word runs swiftly. He gives snow like wool; he scatters frost like ashes. He hurls down his crystals of ice like crumbs; who can stand before his cold? He sends out his word, and melts them; he makes his wind blow and the waters flow. - Ps. 147:15-18. Praise the LORD from the earth, you great sea creatures and all deeps, fire and hail, snow and mist, stormy wind fulfilling his word! - Ps. 148:7-8. All the forces of nature do His bidding and He uses them to bring Him glory. He uses them to cause men to be amazed and say, "How great is God that He controls such powerful forces!" But, by way of application, we need to remember what the disciples forgot in their fear:

3. we can trust His control We can rest in the fact that He is the Lord of nature, that He works all things under His authority, even nature, together for His good purpose! Yes, I need to take normal, natural precautions and not be foolhardy, but I don't need to cower in terror when there's a hurricane or a flood. We get afraid because we don't trust Him. Listen, if God wants me to be struck by lightning and die, then He will take me to heaven. If He wants my house to burn up in an out-of-control wildfire, He will provide for me.

As I shared with you previously, in 1972 Hurricane Agnes dumped 12 inches of rain in a day and a half, and the creek beside our home rose 17 feet. Our house was flooded and ruined; when the water went down, it was left with an inch of mud throughout the first floor. We took shelter in the local high school and thought, "How are we going to live?" But we did. We cleaned the house and before many months had passed, every room was remodeled and better than before, with new furniture. The flood that ruined us, blessed us in the end. At the time of the flood, it was raining so hard that I couldn't see as I was trying to get our vehicles out of the long driveway and up to higher ground. So I stuck my glasses in my shirt pocket. However, in all the running, they fell out and if you know me, you know that without glasses I can hardly do anything. But as I lay in the high school gym that night, rueing my loss, someone walked in and said, "Anybody lose a pair of glasses?" In the midst of the fury of the elements, God cared for those glasses, kept them from being swept away or trampled, had someone find them and deliver them directly back to me! It was a miracle, a sign, that said to me, "I am in complete control of this thing!" Jesus is in control of all things, even the most powerful forces of nature and I can trust that they will only do His bidding! Well, when Jesus and the disciples landed on the eastern shore of the lake, they were immediately confronted with another situation, one which gave Jesus the opportunity to display:

III. His Authority Over Demons (28-34) The boat landed in the region of Gadara or Gergesa and as they ascended to a plateau overlooking the sea, they passed through the area of a burial site, a cemetery where they were met by two men. The other Gospels only mention one man, so most probably the one was more prominent and violent than the other. These men were controlled by demons and everyone in the nearby town knew it, but Jesus freed them with a word. Now the first thing we need to talk about is:

1. the reality of demons Modern western culture tends to write off the kind of behavior these men displayed as some form of mental illness or insanity. Simply put, we don't believe in the existence of demons; we rationalize accounts like this, calling them ancient superstitious ways of looking at things. But, my friends, do not be fooled. Demons exist. They are real.

a. they are living personal beings Look again at verse 29 and verse 31. Jesus talked to them and they answered Him back in a rational, personal, individual way. Demons are spirit beings like angels; in fact, they are angels that fell away from God long ago before creation through following Satan. But they are every bit as real as God is, and every bit as individual and personal as He is. And notice in the text that:

b. they recognize the authority of Jesus Look at the middle of verse 29. They know who He is; they know that He is the Son of God. None of Jesus' own followers knew that about Him at this point; that had never been said publicly. But they knew it, because they know Him from before creation. And they know what that means. Look at verse 31. They know He's in charge and they must obey His command. They had to beg Him, to get His permission, before going into the swine. Just like their leader, they can do nothing without His permission. Christ is absolute Lord over the spirit world! And further:

c. they know their own destiny Look again at verse 29. They insolently said, “Why are you interfering with our work now? Do you plan to torment us, to punish us, before the time?” You see, they know there is coming a day when they and their leader will be cast into the lake of fire prepared for the devil and his angels and be tormented forever. And that is exactly what gives them tremendous motivation to wreak all the havoc they can now, while they are permitted to roam freely, because they know their days are numbered! Now let’s talk about:

2. the reality of demonization You might be interested to know that the term “demon possessed” does not actually occur in the Bible. In the original Greek, people like these men are simply called “demonized ones”. Demons always:

a. they seek to control human beings In this case they actually entered these men’s bodies and took total control over their minds, used their lips to speak their own thoughts, and controlled their actions. Mark tells us that (at least the one man) was able to break chains with supernatural strength and was always cutting himself with stones. They were fierce, that is dangerous, and would attack people; nobody would go down that road. Listen, this is NOT a fairy tale. It’s real. Demons can take complete control over a person under certain circumstances. It happens in Voodoo trances in Haiti as they invite spirits to possess them; it happens in tribal fetish worship in Africa; it happens in the pagan idolatry of India and it happens in Satan worship right here in the United States and even in this very community. I have seen a person rolling on the floor, frothing at the mouth, cursing with a voice not their own, being so strong that it required three or four men to restrain them. And let me tell you, once you’ve seen it, you don’t doubt that it’s real! Here we mostly lock up and sedate people like that, but almost universally outside the western world, people have seen demonization and know clearly what it is. Satan always wants to unseat God, to usurp His authority and obtain complete control over human beings. So, demons are constantly trying to obtain that control over people’s lives, however:

b. they do it in varying ways In these demoniacs, they physically entered and controlled every function and move. But look at verse 34. The townspeople were just as much under their control, just as much demonized even though none of them became violent and lived among tombs. Why do you think they begged Jesus to leave? Shouldn’t they have rejoiced and begged Him to stay and deliver them from demonic powers? By the way, I don’t think it’s really about their pigs, as many say. If it were, they would have been angry at Jesus and complained about their loss or perhaps have tried to take revenge on Him. But look at them; they’re afraid! They’re just like the natives in many lands who are afraid of what the spirits will do to them if they stop worshipping them and their idols. They want the missionary to go away and not anger the spirits. Their minds are almost as much under the control of the demons as the two who were freed! Demons use many methods to control people. 1 Cor. 10:20 says, ...what pagans sacrifice they offer to demons and not to God. I do not want you to be participants with demons. Demons create false systems of worship. The 330 million gods and goddesses worshipped by Hindus are all demons controlling a billion people, demanding their worship and reducing millions of them to squalid poverty through what they are told to believe. 1 Tim. 4:1 says, ...in later times some will depart from the faith by devoting themselves to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons. Demons start false teachings and cults and control people. Demonization does not have to involve seizures and fits of violence; it can parade in the guise of Nazism and cause educated people to commit planned genocide or it can strut the halls of academia under the guise of knowledge-falsely-so-called that says there is no God! Millions of people in our world are demon-controlled and haven’t the faintest clue! But, more personally, demons:

c. they engage us in constant conflict Look with me at Eph. 6:12. Demons wrestle against us; they engage us in hand-to-hand combat continually as we try to serve Christ. They attack our minds and plant wrong thoughts in our heads. They tempt us to fall into sin. They try to arrange our harm. They try to influence us to keep and excuse our bad habits, so that we blow up and get angry, so that we disobey God. We are under constant demonic assault, even though most of us don’t realize it and they will control even us to whatever extent we let them. But the good news from this whole incident is:

3. Christ’s authority over demons Despite all their deceptive power and superhuman strength, one thing is clear. They must obey Him! And therefore, we don’t have to live in fear of them or let them have any degree of influence over us as long as we realize two things. First:

a. we must trust Christ’s power - Eph. 6:10 Demons are more powerful than the strongest man by himself. So, we must literally empower ourselves with the strength and might of the Lord. Christ has all authority over demons and the power to enforce that authority. No demon, not a whole legion of them together, is stronger than Him. And we must trust in His power; we must rest secure in the knowledge that He who dwells in us is greater than he that is in the world! To fight in our own strength is to fail. We must trust in His power alone and realize that:

b. we have Christ’s very authority against demons. We too can command them in His Name to depart whenever we sense their presence. Later on, when the seventy that Jesus sent out came back, they said, Lord, even the demons are subject to us in Your Name! - Lk. 7:17. And they are!

Whenever an evil thought comes into my mind, one that I know isn't something I want to think and surely isn't something God put there, I recognize that it's a demonic suggestion and I command it to leave and it stops! I do that multiple times every day and so must you! Dozens of times in the counseling room I've had people say, "I hear this voice in my mind telling me God will never forgive me" or "I can never change" or "God doesn't love me" or something similar. And I encourage them, "Tell it to leave in Jesus' Name" and they do, and instantly that demonic voice is gone and they're free. I've seen it over and over. And when we were in India, we prayed over dozens and dozens of people with all kinds of problems. But there were at least two occasions when the interpreter told us, "She says she has an evil spirit" and when we stood firm and commanded it to leave in the name of Jesus or prayed for Jesus to cast it out, on each occasion you could see the person nearly fall over as it left and then recover with a big smile on their face, knowing they were free. You've got to see it to appreciate the joy of that freedom! No wonder Luke tells us that this man, freed at last from a legion of devils, wanted to get into the boat and go home with Jesus! But Jesus told him to go to his own home and tell everyone what great things the Lord had done for him and he did! He preached it everywhere. We should do the same. Jesus is Lord of ALL; He has authority over the very forces of nature, over all the power of the enemy and wants us to willingly yield our own lives to His authority!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Authority Of The King - Mt. 8-10

To Forgive Sins - 9:1-17

The last verse of John's gospel tells us that Jesus did many other things which were not recorded, so many that if all were written in books, he supposes the world would not have room for them. So, it is clear that, of the myriad of things which Matthew saw Jesus do and was told of Him doing, he only wrote down for us a few of them. In this three-chapter section, Matthew is recording those things which specifically pointed out the complete authority that Jesus has. We have seen in chapter 8 that Jesus has authority to heal disease, that He has authority over the very forces of nature and the demonic spirits who oppose us, as well as the authority to direct and control our lives. But the truth that we find demonstrated in 9:1-17 is the most precious of all to us. Jesus has not only complete authority to forgive sins, but also the strong desire to do it! Having sailed back home to Capernaum after being rejected at Gadara, Jesus now has three encounters in a row that all speak to this theme of forgiveness. The first is the familiar story of the paralyzed man, and there we are told clearly that:

I. Jesus Has Authority to Forgive Sins (1-8) Matthew shortens the story in order to make his point, while Mark and Luke emphasize how crowded the house was and how the man was lowered through a hole in the roof by his friends. So often we focus on those details and talk about how great their faith was, but Matthew hones in on the real point of this story, which has to do with what Jesus said to the man. He was lying there on his pallet unable to move; it was obvious to everyone what he wanted and needed. Yet instead of healing him immediately, Jesus chose this opportunity to continue His teaching and make a powerful point. In a caring tone, he said to the man, Take heart, son, your sins are forgiven! Why did He do that? Luke tells us that in his audience that day there were both Pharisees and scribes or teachers of the Law who had come from every town of Galilee and Judea and Jerusalem, and evidently some of them had managed to squeeze into the house, so his audience at the moment was not exactly a friendly crowd. Now there were:

1. two basic premises the Jewish leaders held The Jews commonly believed that:

a. sickness is a result of sin In Jn. 9:2 Jesus' own disciples saw this man who had been blind since birth and asked him, Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind? They believed that sickness or disease was a judgment sent from God and that it was a result of your sin, or at least of your parents' sins being visited on you. Think about Job; his three friends all tried to prove that he must have sinned horribly because he was suffering so badly. That's the Jewish mindset. The book of Job does teach, however, that that is not the case and so did Jesus. This paralyzed man was not sick because of some awful sin; he was merely a common sinner like all the rest of us are. But as this man is being lowered down through the roof, Jesus knew the Jewish leaders would be thinking, "What sin caused this? What must this man have done to deserve this?" And maybe the paralyzed man himself believed it; maybe he actually thought that his sins must have been great enough to deserve this. So, Jesus addressed the issue head on, by tenderly telling the man, Son, your sins are forgiven. Now that brings up the second belief that the Jews held:

b. only God can forgive sins - Mk. 2:7 tells us exactly what those Jewish leaders were thinking and murmuring. Who can forgive sins but God alone? And on this one, they were right. No man can forgive sins. No pastor, no priest, no rabbi, can absolve a man of guilt. Only God can pardon sins! So, Jesus knew that when He said your sins are forgiven, the Jews would understand immediately that He was claiming to be God and call it blasphemy. Yet He did it purposefully. There are:

2. two basic claims Jesus proved by this miracle His logic goes like this: "I know you think it's easy to say 'Your sins are forgiven,' because no one can verify whether it's true or not. The effect of the words is not outwardly visible. To you, it seems harder to say, 'Rise up and walk' because, if the person doesn't do it, it proves that you are a fraud.

However, in truth, the forgiveness of sins is a much harder thing; it requires the Cross to make it possible. And actually, BOTH things are things that only God can do! So, I will heal the man in order to prove to you that I can also forgive sins!" You see, Jesus is both claiming and demonstrating that:

a. He is God By offering forgiveness, He is claiming to be God. The Jews thought, "He's obviously a man, so that can't be true". Jesus said, "I can heal the sick with a word; therefore, I am God and therefore, I can forgive sins!" You see, all the miracles Jesus did were done with one purpose, to testify to who He was, to prove visibly that He was no mere man, but rather that He was God come in the flesh. But this miracle also proves that:

b. He has authority to forgive sins He can declare that our sins are forgiven and they ARE! Oh, aren't you glad about that! People all around us are taught by their religious leaders that it is a great presumption to assume that you know that your sins are forgiven. They are taught that you can never be sure. You must wait until you die to find out whether God will forgive your sins and then you'll probably have to suffer some to atone for them. But the Jesus I know forgives sins and He does it without any works or any deeds of penitence on our part. We all come to him just like this helpless paralytic. There's not a thing we can do to get our sins forgiven, except to lay ourselves at His feet. And He has the wonderful authority to forgive us flat out, based simply on His own merit at the cross. Hallelujah! And then, just in case there are those listening who think they can never be forgiven for what they have done, who have given up all hope of getting into heaven, this miracle is Good News! Jesus has the rightful authority to forgive sins, ALL of them, even the worst! Not long before she died in 1988, in a moment of surprising candor on television, Marghanita Laski, one of England's best-known secular humanists and journalists, said, "What I envy most about you Christians is your forgiveness; I have nobody to forgive me." [John Stott in The Contemporary Christian]. Hallelujah! We have Somebody to forgive us! We have Somebody who wanted to forgive us so much that He went to a cross and died a horrible death to forgive us! And we have Somebody with the very authority of God Himself to declare us forgiven! What a privilege! No wonder the crowd was awestruck and glorified God who had given such authority to a Man, to Jesus! We should be too! Now moving on to the second encounter, we learn that:

II. Jesus Has Authority to Seek Sinners in verses (9-13) What we read about here are really:

1. two acts which offended the Jewish leaders First of all:

a. Jesus called Matthew, a publican, to follow Him (9) Here Matthew for the first time mentions himself in his own record. Mark and Luke call him Levi on this occasion, though they call him Matthew in their lists of the 12 disciples. So, he probably had two names, Levi Matthew, and he was a publican, that is, a tax collector for the Roman government. The Jews counted all publicans as defiled, because of their constant contact with Gentiles and as sinners, because they cheated people more often than not and because they were traitors to their own country. No Pharisee could become a publican for a living; he would be immediately thrown out and disfellowshipped from the group and probably the synagogue. Plus, Matthew was no ordinary low-brow publican. He was a mokhes, a customs-house official, the most hated type. His booth was by the shore of Galilee and he no doubt collected taxes from the fishing boats on their catch. No Jewish Rabbi would ever call Matthew to become a disciple and, if he did, most people would not accept him even though he gave up his publican life entirely! Does anything about that sound vaguely familiar? I've known Christians who feel that pretty much the same way about people who are living a life of sin! But Jesus shocked everyone by publicly calling Matthew to follow Him, and then He went even further:

b. Jesus ate with Matthew's guests who were "sinners" (10-11) Matthew was so thrilled with Christ that he wanted all his friends (who obviously were publicans and other types of "sinners") to a dinner at his house so they could meet Him. He wanted them to experience the love and acceptance that Jesus had given Him! But again, no religious Jew would ever do that! To be forced to hand money to a sinner was bad enough, but to eat with them was too much! To show any care, any concern, any desire for relationship, was defiling. After all, it is more important that I be clean, is it not? Well, I have no idea how or why any Pharisees got in to this dinner, but some did. I imagine they just observed (they surely didn't eat!), but they gave Jesus' disciples a hard time, probably hoping to discredit Jesus in their eyes. But Jesus heard them and gave them a short lecture and in that lecture are:

2. two facts which comfort our own hearts, just as much as they must have Matthew's or his friends'. (12-13) First of all, isn't it wonderful that:

a. Jesus knows that sinners are the ones who need help In fact, He specifically seeks them out. He is not looking for people who are healthy or who put on the appearance of being healthy. He is a spiritual doctor at heart, one whose heart looks for people who need His mercy and help. That's where God's heart is. Jesus quotes Hos. 6:6 and challenges them, "Go and look it up, God says I desire mercy and not sacrifice! Mercy, caring for the plight of others, is more important to God than the offering of sacrifices, than the carrying out of religious actions!" Hallelujah! Jesus knows that all of us are lost without Him, that if He didn't seek us out, we'd never have come to Him! So, the good news is that:

b. Jesus came to call sinners to follow Him Paul said, Christ died for the ungodly. Praise the Lord, that's me! While we were yet sinners Christ died for us. Praise the Lord, that's me! How glorious it must have felt to Matthew, for the first time in his life, to hear from somebody that God actually wanted him! All his life he had been told that God hated him and all people like him. No wonder he left everything follow Jesus! Friends, Jesus has the authority to seek sinners; in fact, that's what He's about, offering mercy rather than demanding some sacrifice, calling sinners to become worshippers and followers. And there are people all over the world, sinners who need to hear the Good News that Jesus is calling them to be part of His kingdom! Religious people will probably give you a hard time if you join Jesus in seeking them, but that's alright, Jesus' authority is greater than theirs!

And still this day was not over. Some of John the Baptist's disciples are there at this same feast somehow and they are not upset about who He's partying with, but rather about the fact that He's partying in the first place! And in this third encounter, we learn that:

III. Jesus Has Authority to Change Traditions (14-17) John the Baptist is in prison at this point, but his followers are still maintaining loyalty to him and to one another, and they want to know why they and also the Pharisees follow the Jewish religious tradition that had been passed down from their elders for generations of fasting twice a week on Mondays and Thursdays, and yet, here are Jesus and his disciples feasting (probably on a Monday or Thursday!) In fact, Jesus never followed this tradition of fasting at all during His ministry, and these "religious" folks wanted to know why. And in reply we have:

1. three parables in Jesus' explanation First He uses the analogy of:

a. the wedding feast (14-15) He says that not only this dinner, but in fact His whole ministry, is like a wedding banquet and the people are His invited guests. As long as the bridegroom is there at the celebration with them, it's a glad occasion, so they won't mourn or be sad. They don't fast because it's not appropriate! Rather they feast and celebrate His presence! But later, when the bridegroom is taken away, then there will be sadness and fasting and in saying that, He was implying the sadness that His followers would endure later after His death and how they would fast and pray. In other words, something that is merely a tradition, a religious habit, should not be followed just to impress God with the fact that we do it or simply because it's a habit we're used to. Whatever we do as an expression of our love to God should have genuine meaning and purpose and be done on an occasion that is appropriate. We could apply that to lots of things like praying, Bible reading, churchgoing, giving, or any of the "religious habits" that we have. All of these are good and wonderful things in themselves, but when they become empty, insincere actions that we follow simply as a routine or merely to impress God with the fact that we're "religious", then they lose their value altogether. In Isaiah's day, the lost, but religious, people in Judah fasted regularly yet their lives revealed the sin that was really in their hearts, so through Isaiah God said, Is such the fast that I choose, a day for a person to humble himself? Is it to bow down his head like a reed, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? Will you call this a fast, and a day acceptable to the LORD? Is not this the fast that I choose: to loose the bonds of wickedness, to undo the straps of the yoke, to let the oppressed go free, and to break every yoke? Is it not to share your bread with the hungry and bring the homeless poor into your house; when you see the naked, to cover him, and not to hide yourself from your own flesh? - 58:5-7. ANY religious practice loses its value if it is not done out of a sincere heart and as an appropriate response to the situation God has you in. We must constantly guard our hearts against this tendency we all have of letting our good habits become insincere and empty actions. But then Jesus went on to share two more parables from everyday life that are really the heart of his answer. First, He talked about:

b. a torn garment (16) Everybody knows cloth shrinks when you wash it, but after it's been washed many times, it doesn't shrink any more. So, if you have an old garment with a hole in it and you take new unshrunk cloth and cut a patch that fits the hole exactly, when you wash it, the patch will shrink and the garment will tear again and be even worse than before! Everybody knows that old cloth has no place in new garments, right? So then, Jesus went on to talk about:

c. old wineskins (17) Wineskins are something you and I aren't familiar with, but Jesus' hearers used them every day. Wine ferments as it ages and creates pressure in its container until the process comes to a halt. So in that day, since they didn't have plastic or glass that could withstand the pressure, they used tanned animal skins tightly sewed because, as the pressure builds, the skin containers will stretch! However, as any child would know, to put new unfermented wine into old skins which have already been stretched and have become hard and brittle, will burst them. New wine must always be put in fresh skins, right? So, what does all this mean? Well, here's:

2. the point that Jesus was making a. He did not come to patch up the old system He wasn't some new Rabbi out to reform Jewish religious practices. Essentially, that's what John the Baptist was. He was a prophet calling his followers to repentance, to return to sincerity of heart in following the practices already so familiar to them. He was calling for a reformation under the old system and that was a good thing. But that's not what Jesus was about:

b. He came to create a brand new body Jesus was not starting a new sect within Judaism; as He called followers to Himself, He was starting a brand new organism, His own body, the church! And as the head of that body, He has the authority and the right to abrogate old religious traditions that are not appropriate to it. Because He fulfilled the Law, we are no longer under the Law. We don't have to keep the Passover and the Feasts or bring animals to sacrifice at the Temple. Jesus is claiming the right to set aside all those religious practices that were part of the Old Testament order and to make His own demands of His followers, to have them fast or feast as He wills. Now I'm sure that claim was a real shocker to the Jewish mind. Indeed, Acts shows us that it was unbelievably hard and took many years for believers from Jewish background to let go of the practices that were so much a part of them, such as requiring circumcision and not eating with non-Jews and all that went with Temple worship. Like John's disciples, they kept wanting to enforce those traditions that had been so important to them upon EVERYONE who believed everywhere. Eventually, the church realized fully that it was a new body and let go of the old, but not without much pain and controversy.

But before we point the finger, it's hard for us, too, isn't it? We deify our traditions and try to enforce them on the world. The church has had to wrestle with this over and over. Within my own lifetime, at points Christians have insisted on certain dress codes for women or short hair and clean-shaven faces for men, or on not touching alcohol, or not dancing or going to movies or on reading only one Bible translation. Other times, it is more subtle; we have insisted on our own style of music and worship or on our own ways of doing things within the church body, simply because these things are familiar and they're what we know. Listen, Jesus is Lord and He is always doing a NEW thing. He's always giving His people NEW methods of serving Him, NEW ways of reaching people, NEW music to praise His Name, and NEW opportunities to be seized. Yet, like John's disciples, we always want to linger in the old and familiar and insist on it. In fact, Brett Blair said, The second time you do anything it becomes a tradition. We have to constantly guard our own hearts against falling into this trap, every one of us, even you, even me. Way back about 350 AD, if you wanted to be serious about following Christ, this is part of the advice you would likely have been given in Syria where the Gentile church once started: ...it is not lawful for thee, a believer and a man of God, to permit the hair of thy head to grow long, and to brush it up together, nor to suffer it to spread abroad, nor to puff it up, nor by nice combing and platting to make it curl and shine; since that is contrary to the law, which says thus, in its additional precepts: "You shall not make to yourselves curls and round rasures." Nor may men destroy the hair of their beards, and unnaturally change the form of a man. For the law says: "Ye shall not mar your beards." For God the Creator has made this decent for women, but has determined that it is unsuitable for men. But if thou do these things to please men, in contradiction to the law, thou wilt be abominable with God, who created thee after His own image. [The Apostolic Constitutions - Book I, Section 2]. Elizabeth Elliot suggests the advice would have gone on to include, "Get rid of everything in your wardrobe that is not white. Stop sleeping on a soft pillow. Sell your musical instruments and don't eat any more white bread. You cannot, if you are sincere about obeying Christ, take warm baths or shave your beard." [The Liberty of Obedience, Nashville, Abingdon, 1968, pp. 45-46]. These were the marks of godliness these early folks treasured, traditions they revered and held sacred. And today we laugh, but I wonder who is going to be laughing at our list of traditions a generation or two from now? May God give us discernment to guard the core of our faith which never changes, while always being willing to change the secondary things that He is trying to change to get more glory to Himself.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Authority Of The King - Mt. 8-10

Over Life And Death - 9:18-34

As you remember, in chapters 8-10 of his Gospel, Matthew is recording specific events that deliberately display the authority of Jesus. In chapter 8 we saw Jesus demonstrate His authority over all varieties of disease, over the forces of nature, over demons and over the lives of His followers. In the first half of chapter 9 we saw Him prove His authority to forgive sins and to seek out sinners. He is Lord over everything! And now, beginning with verse 18, we see Him demonstrate the ultimate authority. He has complete authority over life and death! Whether a person is alive or dead is not merely a function of their heart pumping or stopping; in the beginning God breathed life into a dead lump of clay to make Adam a living soul, and in Hezekiah's day God withdrew the life from 185,000 healthy Assyrian soldiers in their sleep so that the next morning they were all dead. As the Scripture puts it, man does not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God! If Jesus says, "Live!" then you live, even though you're dead! And if Jesus says, "Die!" then you die, no matter how "alive" you are! That is because:

I. Jesus Has Authority Over Death and He demonstrated that in two incidents which happened together, with the second one occurring in the midst of and interrupting the first, in verses (18-26). But let's consider them separately. In the first story we see:

1. a dead daughter raised (18-19, 23-26) Jesus was apparently still talking with the disciples of John there at the banquet at Matthew's house, when he was interrupted by a man coming in and falling at his feet with an urgent request. This man was actually the ruler or leader of one of the synagogues in Capernaum, a very important person in the community, but now desperate because of a tragedy in his family. Mark and Luke tell us that this man's name was Jairus and that his little daughter was only twelve years old. By comparing their accounts, it appears that she was at the point of death when he frantically ran out to get Jesus, and actually died while Jesus and Jairus were on their way back to his house. One of Jairus' servants met them on the way to tell them that she had now actually died, but Matthew abbreviates the whole account, because he wants to emphasize the main point which is that:

a. at Jesus' command the dead live Imagine the despair that must have washed over Jairus when the messenger came, "I'm too late! She's gone!" But Jesus reassured him, Don't be afraid! Only believe! When they arrived, He told the crowd, The girl is not dead! She's sleeping! But they all "knew better"; they knew what death was! And they knew the earthly maxim that "Dead is dead!" It's final; there's no coming back. And they laughed at Him and mocked Him for His ignorance. But after He put them all out, Jesus took the girl by the hand and tenderly commanded her, Little girl, get up! And she did! Her life returned to her body and she got up and was perfectly, normally alive! Imagine the shock that must have been! What if someone did that at one of our funerals? We can't even conceive it. There is nothing more final to us than death. When death lays claim to us, we are convinced there is no reversal, but Jesus has complete authority over death itself! Yet in case you might skeptically think, "Well, she had just died. There could have been a spark of life left in her.", on another occasion at Nain, Jesus ruined a perfectly good funeral by commanding a widow's dead son to come back to life as they were already carrying him to the tomb! And in Lazarus' case, his body had been in the tomb for four whole days when Jesus commanded, Lazarus, come forth! When Jesus commands the dead to live, they live! Do you believe that? You should! Several years ago, when I spoke with a leader in the India Missions Association, he shared with me that there had been seven confirmed cases in India that very year where a dead person had been raised in answer to prayer and he had personally met all seven! Jesus has that power, and in fact, He has already given us proof of it. In reality, the very same thing:

b. it has already happened to us Look with me at Eph. 2:1, 4-5. Each of the physical miracles in our text today also has a counterpart in the spiritual realm. And even though you can't see it with the eyes, the miracle is no less difficult. God tells us that we were dead in trespasses and sins. We were spiritually exactly like dead people are physically; we were utterly incapable of responding to God, completely cut off from Him with absolute finality. The dead cannot live, yet God spoke the word; He resurrected us and made us alive spiritually and brought us into a relationship with Himself. That is even more of a miracle than bringing a physically dead girl back to life! It's impossible, yet Jesus has complete authority over death, no matter what form it takes, physical or spiritual. And that is exactly what:

c. it guarantees our resurrection Now look with me at Jn. 5:25-29a. There is coming a day when the same thing that happened to Jairus' daughter is going to happen to us. Unless He comes first, our dead bodies will all be lying in tombs somewhere or maybe in scattered ashes in the earth, but at His coming, Jesus is going to give the command and, at the sound of His voice, our dead bodies will be resurrected, raised to life and completely transformed. We can hardly imagine that! Maybe we can picture existing after death as a spirit in heaven, but having a body that's been dead and in the grave rise again and be given back to us seems absolutely impossible! It's too final, but listen, we have all the evidence that Jesus is Lord over death and He is calling us to do what He called Jairus to do:

d. we like Jairus must trust Jesus' authority Jairus confessed his faith back in verse 18, "If you lay your hand on her, she will live! No matter what!" He trusted that Jesus had the final authority, even over death, and we too must rest in that authority for our own selves.

Now as Jesus was on the way to Jairus' house, a second incident happened in which we see:

2. a dying woman rescued (20-22) This woman had been hemorrhaging for twelve years. Luke tells us that she had spent all her money on doctors, so she was broke. Mark tells us that she had suffered through all kinds of treatments (most of which I'm sure were painful) and that she was growing continually worse. To put it bluntly, she was desperate because she was gradually growing weaker, slowly dying; sooner or later this thing would kill her. On top of that, it meant that by Jewish law she was perpetually unclean. Anything she touched or anyone who touched her became unclean. For her to enter a crowd and even plan to touch Jesus was a bold infraction, except for the fact that her heart was convinced that in that touch, instead of making Him impure, His power would make her pure! Matthew shortens the whole story a bit to focus on the point which is that:

a. at Jesus' command the dying are saved Jesus can not only bring people back to life when they are already dead, He can stop them from dying if He chooses. In this case, there was not a formal command by Jesus; the woman merely touched His garment because she believed in her heart that is all that was necessary. She did not even need to have Him speak with her; His healing power and His obvious compassion were so great that the simple touch of his garment would be enough! But Mark and Luke tell us that instantly Jesus knew that power had gone forth from Him and He stopped and asked the crowd who touched Him and waited until the woman came forward and knelt down, trembling. What she had hoped would be an unnoticed touch, He turned into a big public scene, but He didn't ask the woman to identify herself so that He would know who it was. He did it so that she would publicly confess her faith before all the people and His authority would be declared! And when she did, He lovingly encouraged her, Take heart, daughter, [literally] your faith has saved you. That is, it has delivered you, it has rescued you, it has saved your life. Jesus willed that she would live and He can will whether we live or die. In fact, in the spiritual realm this:

b. it has already happened to us Now look with me at Eph. 2:11-13. In one sense we were already spiritually dead, cut off from God, when we were unsaved. But in another, more physical, sense, we were in the process of dying. We had no hope. We were Gentiles who had no connection with Israel or Jesus Christ, and were dying of the terminal disease of sin. There was no balm in Gilead that could stop the process and no physician who could cure us. Every day brought us closer and closer to an eternity in hell. And, by the way, that is the tragic condition of more than 2 billion people in our world right now! They have never even had the opportunity to believe in Jesus; they don't know who He is and what He did. They are dying by inches every day, old and young, men and women, lost, edging ever closer to the brink of a Christless eternity and totally without hope unless WE do something about it, so that what happened to us can happen to them too! Jesus Christ rescued us; He saved us spiritually. When we believed, He spoke the word and we were made totally and completely whole. And now, as Jesus put it, ...He who believes in me will live, even though he dies [physically]; and whoever lives and believes in me will never die [in eternity]. We can't die, not in the eternal sense! We've been rescued! Our faith has saved us! Hallelujah! And now that we're rescued from eternal death, there is a very practical example for us here concerning our lives:

c. we like the woman must trust Jesus' authority Listen to Rom. 14:8, For if we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord. So then, whether we live or whether we die, we are the Lord's. We belong to the Lord; our lives are completely under His authority. It is He who controls whether we live or die physically and either way we are His.

Let me be very clear that the lesson from this story is NOT that all we have to do when we get cancer or some other deadly disease is to believe that Jesus is going to make us well and He will heal us. That kind of presumptive belief always eventually leads to hurt and disappointment; it is arrogantly assuming that you know God's will, which you don't on matters like this. The faith that Jesus was commending in all of these instances was trust in Him, trust that He has the ultimate authority over whether we live or die. No matter what happens to us in life, we will not die physically one moment before HE wills it and when we do, we will be with Him because we belong to Him! Now in the rest of the chapter, Matthew records two more incidents which show us that:

II. Jesus Has Authority Over Life itself, that is, over the very way that our bodies function or don't function. In the first encounter Matthew tells us that:

1. two blind men are given sight (27-31) I'm guessing these men were born blind, that they were not simply men whose eyes had been injured or had grown gradually worse until they became blind. When the NIV says their sight was restored, it is inaccurate; the text literally says their eyes were opened. Their eyes had been "closed", non-functional, inoperative, probably all their lives. They lived in darkness and knew they would always be that way, apart from a miracle of God. That's why they so persistently followed Jesus crying out along the road and then followed Him into the house. The point Matthew is making to us is that:

a. at Jesus' command the blind see Blindness is a pretty final thing and most of us dread it for that reason. Even modern medicine can only restore some measure of clarity to existing sight through eye repairs; it cannot make blind eyes see. We can transplant a heart or a lung or a kidney, but not an eye. The eye has over a million nerve connections to the brain and if they're damaged or nonfunctional, they simply can't be repaired or reconnected. Nevertheless, when Jesus commands it, the blind see! Of course, that:

b. it has already happened to us in the spiritual realm. Look at 2 Cor. 4:4-6. We were all blind, not physically but spiritually! When we were unsaved, our minds were literally blinded; we could not understand; we had no capacity to comprehend spiritual truth. 1 Cor. 2 tells us that the natural man cannot understand the things of the Spirit of God. It's impossible! And yet, one day God did in our hearts what He did at creation. He said, "Let there be light!" And suddenly we could see! In a flash of light we comprehended who Jesus was and what He did for us. We saw the glory of God in Jesus Christ and we embraced Him! So, our lives were eternally changed. Now we really see! But we still live in the midst of a world of blind people who need us to pray, "O God, open their eyes!" Jesus Christ can make them see, and:

c. we like the blind men must trust Jesus' authority Notice again what Jesus said to them. "Do you believe I am ABLE, that I have the power, the authority to do this?" Again, we must be careful not to presume to know His will, what He will choose to do. We place our trust in His ability, in His authority. When we trust that Jesus is really the final authority over every factor in our lives, then we accept the choices that HE makes for us, whatever they are, and, more importantly, we obey Him.

He gave these two a stern warning to keep this miracle quiet, I suppose because He didn't want another crowd of people thronging Him right away. Mark tells us that after someone else who was healed disobeyed a command like this earlier in His ministry, ...Jesus could no longer openly enter a town, but was out in desolate places, and people were coming to him from every quarter. But these two didn't obey! They went out and told everybody; in their enthusiasm they spread His fame through the whole district! That's understandable, I guess, but it does point out that it's more important to actually DO what Jesus tells us, rather than what seems like the right thing to us. Our good intentions may create problems that we don't realize for Him. Now, after healing the two blind men, in the second encounter:

2. a mute man is given back speech (32-34) The Greek word that is used here about this man often refers to someone who is a deaf-mute, who can't hear and can't speak. In the natural, the two maladies usually occur together, because a person who can't hear usually can't learn to speak. However, this man was unable to talk and perhaps hear, not because there was something wrong with his vocal cords or ears, but because a demon had taken control of him and would not permit him to use them. And Matthew is showing us that:

a. at Jesus' command the mute speak There's a good chance this man had never said a word in his entire life, that all his days he had been denied that kind of communication which is such a normal part of our daily existence. Yet when Jesus says "speak", it doesn't matter whether you can speak or not. You speak! It doesn't matter whether a demon is standing in the way either; whatever Jesus orders happens! And, of course, in the spiritual realm, this same thing:

b. it has already happened to us - Rom. 10:9 says that you must not only believe in your heart, but you must confess with your mouth that Jesus is Lord to be saved. And that's what we did, isn't it? We confessed to God with our mouths that Jesus is our Lord! But 1 Cor. 12:3 clearly says ...no one can say "Jesus is Lord" except in the Holy Spirit. You can't say that and really mean it by yourself. It's not in you. You can say almost anything under the sun that you want, but that is the one thing you were mute to. Yet by the Holy Spirit you did what you could not do. Your tongue was loosed from Satan's control and you confessed Jesus as your Lord to God and to other people. Of course, you were probably not demonized to the extent this man was, but Satan and his demons certainly did all they could to keep you from speaking those words! Yet Christ's authority prevailed over them. And you know what? Satan is still opposing you and doing everything in His power to keep you mute when it comes to being a witness for Jesus Christ! He wants you silent. He uses every tactic in the book, every force at his disposal, to stop you from talking about Jesus to others. So, what must we do? Again:

c. we must trust Jesus' authority Jesus is Lord of our lips! His authority is greater. Satan cannot stand against Him. He wants you to speak and, as you yield to His Lordship, He will make you speak as He wants. If you remember, Moses didn't want to go to Egypt and speak for God; he claimed he couldn't. And Then the LORD said to him, "Who has made man's mouth? Who makes him mute, or deaf, or seeing, or blind? Is it not I, the LORD?" - Ex. 4:11.

That's the point of all these encounters. Jesus is the final authority. He is in complete control, life or death, blind or seeing, mute or speaking, He is in charge and I can trust Him no matter what. James Brown writes: Some years ago when I was learning to fly, my instructor told me to put the plane into a steep and extended dive. I was totally unprepared for what was about to happen. After a brief time, the engine stalled, and the plane began to plunge out of control. It soon became evident that the instructor was not going to help me at all. After a few seconds, which seemed like eternity, my mind began to function again. I quickly corrected the situation. Immediately I turned to the instructor and began to vent my fearful frustrations on him. He very calmly said to me, "There is no position you can get this airplane into that I cannot get you out of. If you want to learn to fly, go up there and do it again." At that moment God seemed to be saying to me, "Remember this. As you serve Me, there is no situation you can get yourself into that I cannot get you out of. If you trust me, you will be all right." [James Brown, Evangeline Baptist Church, Wildsville, LA, in Discoveries, Fall, 1991, Vol. 2, No. 4.] Listen, dear friends, there is no situation that you can find yourself in where Jesus is not in control. If you trust HIM, you will be all right!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Authority Of The King - Mt. 8-10

To Call And Send Out Disciples 9:35-10:15

Matthew has shown us incident after incident in chapters 8-9 to demonstrate that Jesus has the final authority over everything. But now we need to begin to make application of that. What does it mean to us who are His followers that Jesus has kingly authority? It means that Jesus as our King has the right to call us or to assign us to carry out his tasks. From our standpoint, we think of that as Him calling us to perform a task. From His standpoint, it is sending or assigning those under his authority. In our text today, we have the record of how Jesus exercised His authority over His disciples and we will be able to see in that how He exercises that authority over us. But Matthew begins this whole section by first revealing to us:

I. The Heart Of Jesus (9:35-38) Here Matthew gives us a glimpse into Jesus' heart by telling us about:

1. the deep compassion He feels for people (35-36) Picture Jesus now on a tour of Galilee, going to village after village, gathering crowds of people every day in a new place, teaching for hours upon hours, preaching powerfully that the Kingdom of God had come, healing dozens upon dozens of sick people as they are brought to him and on Friday, teaching in the local synagogue. When our team was in India in 2011, we went to seven villages in a week, just one per day and held services and prayed over lines of sick people. It was just a small taste of what it must have been like for Jesus. After 7 days of it we were exhausted, and we had a van with air conditioning most of the time to travel in!

But Jesus walked everywhere and camped someplace or stayed in a simple hut with some family each night. No doubt:

a. He was burdened with the size of the task Galilee had dozens of villages and everywhere He went, hundreds gathered, sometimes four thousand or five thousand. The stream of humanity coming before Him seemed never-ending and He was the only one doing what He was doing. Because He had chosen the limitation of having a human body, He was able to feel what we feel. He could not be in two places at once; He could not reach everybody all by Himself; the task of sharing the Good News of the Kingdom with every person in even one small region was immense, let alone the whole world. We tasted it there in India; like Jesus we got a glimpse of the endless sea of humanity stretched out before us needing to hear and feeling so inadequate, wondering who is ever going to reach them all. And at the same time:

b. He was overwhelmed with the depth of the need He saw that they were harassed, that is, they were bewildered, confused and exhausted. They were worn out from trying to keep all the religious rules they'd been taught by their culture and finding themselves no closer to God. And they were helpless, scattered in all directions trying to find their own way and get their own needs met, like a flock of sheep without a shepherd to lead them and guide them to the green pastures and the still waters they needed.

Dear friends, that is how the world looks to Jesus still today. Multitudes, masses of people with no one to guide them, no one to tell them He has come, living hopeless wearying lives, exhausting themselves running after all the things they think that will help them and not finding Him. And, as He sees them, Jesus is moved with love for them in the very depths of His being. He cares that they are lost without Him and desperately wants to rescue them and give them true life. I would dare say that that's the heart He wants to develop in us. Here's:

2. the great dilemma He faces He voiced it in verse (37). The world is like this huge immense field of standing ripened grain at the end of summer, at the time for harvest. And the harvest is plentiful:

a. there are a GREAT MANY waiting to be gathered into His Kingdom According to the 2010 statistics I read from the Pew Foundation, 1.6 billion of them are Muslims, 1 billion of them are Hindus, another half billion are Buddhists, a second half billion practice folk and traditional religion or belong to one of the smaller of the world's religious groups, and some 1.1 billion declare no religious affiliation at all! Two thirds of the world, 68% (and if we talk about who actually knows Christ, probably WAY more than that), is still standing in the field all around us waiting to be brought in. The harvest is plentiful; it's immense; it's huge! But the laborers are few:

b. there are PRECIOUS FEW actively working to gather them in Among the thousands of Galilee, Jesus saw only Himself hard at work gathering them. His own followers didn't seem to understand. And in the world, precious few of those who know Jesus are actively engaged with Him spending their lives trying to gather people in. And I'm not talking only about overseas missionaries going to remote peoples in faraway places. I'm talking about believers who actively pray for and pursue other people for Christ right where they live, college students, coworkers, neighbors, internationals. Precious few believers catch enough of the heart of God that they care and invest their efforts in seeing a portion of this great harvest brought in! That's Jesus' dilemma and it breaks His heart! But He has a plan to do something about it! Here is:

3. the Divine solution He proposes (38) His answer, not surprisingly, is prayer! Those who catch the depth of His compassion must pray! For what?

a. we must earnestly pray for workers, for God to touch more believers to care and get involved in the harvest. There are already enough believers to do the job; the church is already plenty big enough to reach the whole world, IF we only cared about it enough to do it! And the only One who can make people care enough is God Himself. So, we have to pray from our hearts, literally we must beg the Lord of the Harvest to send laborers out into the field. And as we beseech Him:

b. God will thrust them out into His harvest He will literally, drive them out, push them out, throw them out into the work. The sense is that they don't want to go, or they'd already be there! But we didn't either! God actually compels His reluctant children to go and get involved in His work. They have all these other things they'd rather do, but as He works in their lives, He overwhelms them with His love and gives them His heart and thrusts them out into His work! So, our first command is to pray! But then notice this, that:

c. those who pray are also sent! Jesus tells His followers to pray for God to send laborers and then He turns right around in chapter 10 and calls twelve of them and sends them out into the harvest! Later on, we read that Jesus did the exact same thing again in Lk. 10:1-2. He gathered 70 this time, gave them the same words, told them to pray for laborers and then sent them on ahead of him, two by two, into every town and place where he himself was about to go. It is not just that some pray for laborers and some go as laborers; those who pray are also to be involved in the harvest! They are also sent! God wants you to pray, but God also has a place for you to SERVE in His field!

Now let's move on to briefly look at:

II. The Calling Of The Twelve (10:1-4) Mark puts it like this, He appointed twelve (whom he also named apostles) so that they might be with him and he might send them out to preach - Mk. 3:14 What I want you to see is that:

1. He transformed "followers" into "sent ones" He had many disciples (the word in 1a), many learners who followed Him about. But He chose or appointed twelve of them to be apostles (the word in 2a). The word apostle is simply an English transliteration of the Greek word apostolos; the church's ecclesiology has made apostle into some high, holy office, but it simply means a "sent one", someone who is sent on behalf of another. When you put the same word into Latin, you get our word missionary, a person sent out by someone on a mission with a purpose. Jesus simply took twelve of His closest followers and sent them out as laborers to work in His field in (5a). And just take a quick peek at:

2. the persons whom He called (2-4) Who were these guys? Let me just mention that Bartholomew is also called Nathanael and Thaddaeus is also called the "other Judas" elsewhere. At any rate, the first four of them we know were ordinary fishermen. Only Matthew was a little more well off, because he had been a tax collector. Simon had been a Zealot, a rebel, one of those seeking to foment a rebellion against Rome. The rest were just normal everyday folks; later when they were arrested by the Sanhedrin in Acts, they described the apostles as uneducated, common men who had been with Jesus [4:13]. Listen, Jesus loves to use the weakest, most ordinary things He can find to serve His purpose. When someone asked St. Francis of Assisi why and how he could accomplish so much, he replied: "This may be why. The Lord looked down from heaven upon the earth and said, 'Where can I find the weakest, the littlest, the meanest man on the face of the earth?' Then He saw me and said, 'Now I've found him, and I will work through him. He won't be proud of it. He'll see that I'm only using him because of his littleness and insignificance.'" That's what Jesus did; He took twelve ordinary men and sent them out to change the world. And that's what He's still doing, using ordinary people like you and I to bring in His great harvest. But notice in verse 1:

3. the authority they were given (1b) They were not simply sent out; they were equipped for the job! He gave to them the same power and authority He had, so that they could go and do what He Himself did, preach the Good News of the Kingdom, cast out demons, heal the sick, and, in verse 6, even raise the dead! As they went and proclaimed that He is King, His power would go with them and confirm what they were saying with powerful deeds.

That was the plan; His own work in the villages of Galilee would be multiplied at least six times over because Mark says he sent them out in pairs. So, let's look at:

III. The Sending Out Of The Twelve on this specific mission. In (10:5-15) Jesus gave them detailed instructions for the task on which He was sending them. First of all:

1. He sent them to a specific people (5-6) They were only to go to the Jews, not the Samaritans or the other non-Jewish peoples around them. They had a specific target, the villages of Galilee. Now it's interesting that in the end of the Gospel, Mt. 28:19 records a new set of instructions for the final mission on which He sent the twelve and us and they were somewhat different, Go and make disciples of ALL nations... His ultimate goal for all of us together is the whole world, but He accomplishes that goal by sending each of us to specific places and specific persons. It may be to the Yenadi in India or to college students in Glenside or to the company where you work or the school where you're enrolled, but within His great field, He has a specific place where He has sent YOU to labor for Him. Secondly:

2. He sent them to declare His reign as King (7) The promised Messianic Kingdom was right there in their midst; they could be in it if they would accept the person of the King, Jesus! When Jesus later sent all of us, He said, Go into all the world and preach the good news to all creation - Mk. 16:15. What's the Good News? That Jesus came to earth, God in the flesh, that He died on a cross for our sins and rose again and that He is now King, ruling on high in heaven and calls us to bow at His feet and submit to Him as our Lord and worship Him as the true God. Make Jesus your King! Let Him rule your life! That's what we are sent to proclaim, wherever He sends us! Thirdly:

3. He invested them with His Divine power (8) They were to do the same miracles Jesus had been doing as signs that their message of the Kingdom was authentic. He would verify His message. After His resurrection, Mk. 16:20 says, the disciples went out and preached everywhere, and the Lord worked with them and confirmed His word by the signs that accompanied it. Now we don't have time for a full discussion of signs and gifts; simply note that we don't do this on our own. We still have His authority to cast out demons and we can still pray over people and when God chooses, He heals them. A ton of mighty and miraculous things still happen in people's lives when we pray for them and it assures them that what we're telling them is true, that Jesus is the true God. As we go, God is always at work before us and with us and after us! He brings in the harvest, but He uses us. Fourth:

4. He promised them Divine provision (9-11) They weren't to take anything with them for this specific trip. They were simply to trust Him to provide their needs through the people that received their message. Again, let's simply extract the principle which He so clearly articulated earlier in Mt. 6:33, if you seek first the Kingdom of God, if you devote your life to serving together with Him in bringing in His great harvest, all these things that you worry about, what you'll eat and what you'll wear and where you'll live, they'll all be given to you. God will see that you have what you need as you serve His purpose! How many times have we tested and proved that? And finally:

5. He warned them of a mixed reception (12-15) Some would receive them and their message gladly, and God would bless those. But others would reject them and their message and they were to shake off the very dust on their feet as a testimony against them. God would take care of their judgment for rejecting His sent ones. But either way, they were to keep on going, keep on working to bring in the harvest. We'll find the same thing. Some will listen and we'll have the joy of making new disciples; some will not and we'll have the pain of being rejected and mocked, maybe even persecuted. Expect it and leave that with Him.

But the point of everything we've seen is this. Most of you are disciples of Jesus; you believe in Him as Savior. But He wants more than that. He has sent you to have a purpose in life of working in His field, of bringing others to Him. He has a specific place in the field where He wants you to work. He wants to tell you where to go, what to say, and what to do. He wants you to trust Him to provide for your needs and to leave the reception of the message up to Him. The question is, have you submitted to His authority? Have you made His purpose for your life, your purpose, or are you living for something else? Lanny Wolfe wrote a song that says:

*There is peace and contentment in the Father's house today;
Lots of food on His table and no one is turned away.
There is singing and laughter as the hours pass by,
But a hush calms the singing as the Father sadly cries:*

*My house is full but my field is empty,
Who will go and work for Me today?
It seems My children all want to stay around my table,
But no one wants to work in my field.*

*Push away from the table, look out through the window pane,
Just beyond this house of plenty lies a field of golden grain;
And it's ripe unto harvest, but the reapers, where are they?
In the house, oh, can't the children hear their Father sadly say.*

*My house is full but my field is empty,
Who will go and work for Me today?
It seems My children all want to stay around my table,
But no one wants to work in my field.
Who will go and work in my field?*

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Authority Of The King - Mt. 8-10

To Send His Disciples Into Persecution - 10:16-42

In these three chapters, Matthew has been relaying incidents that demonstrate Jesus' authority over all things, the forces of nature, demons, even over life and death. In Chapter 10 Jesus demonstrated His authority as King and Lord to call His disciples and send them out on His mission of reaching, not only all of Israel, but all the world with the Good News of the Kingdom. But, as we finish the chapter today, it is clear that Jesus' authority goes beyond merely instructing His followers to carry out His will. He demands a loyalty of His disciples that is final, that is ultimate, that is above all other loyalties. That's hard for us to grasp so let me illustrate. In ancient Japan, a Samurai warrior owed ultimate loyalty to his lord. Not only did that mean that any command the lord gave, the samurai would obey, but it meant that the lord could send him into battle and even order him to give up his life and he would do it. In fact, if he dishonored his lord or if his lord died, he was obliged to take his own life. His lord commanded a loyalty dearer than life itself. Of course, that was an ungodly system set up by ungodly people who cared nothing about the value of human life. Yet maybe it can help us understand that we have a Lord too, a Lord who loves us and has given His life for us, and He expects from us essentially the same thing, a loyalty that is dearer than life itself. Jesus has the authority to send us into suffering and pain in the spiritual battle to establish His Kingdom on earth, to send us into persecution, and even to demand that we lay down our very lives for Him, if He requires it! That's what you signed up for when you confessed, "Jesus is Lord!" Now this is a bit of a difficult passage, so before we examine it closely, here are a few facts to help in:

I. Understanding Jesus' Teaching About Persecution In Matthew 10 First, and most obviously:

1. some of it applies to the disciples' immediate mission Remember from our look at verses (5-15) last week that Jesus was sending out the Twelve on a preaching trip through Galilee and giving them specific instructions. He told them in 14-15 that as they went, some places would not receive them, but it's obvious that almost everything that Jesus went on to predict in this passage did not happen to them on this brief trip. Mark and Luke tell us that they soon returned and told Jesus all that had happened. But as Jesus continued on:

2. some of it looks ahead to the experience of the early church Verses (16-20) say things like ...they will deliver you over to courts and flog you in their synagogues, and you will be dragged before governors and kings for my sake... That didn't happen on this trip, but it sure did in the book of Acts. You can see Peter's and Paul's lives written ahead of time here. Jesus was preparing His followers in advance for what to expect after His death and resurrection and what the reaction, particularly of the Jews, would be. He taught the same thing in the upper room the night before His death in Jn. 15-16. He was preparing them for what they and their disciples would have to face the rest of their lives after He was gone. But His exhortation goes even further than that:

3. some of it looks far ahead to believers who will live in the awful suffering of the end-time Tribulation. That's the only way to explain some of the things in (21-23) where He talks about enduring to the end and the coming of the Son of Man. Jesus repeated those words again in chapter 24 where He was clearly describing the time immediately before His return to the earth and the awfulness of that time. So, at least part of His words here look all the way to the end. It's like His vision grew and He looked further and further ahead as He continued to speak. But most importantly:

4. all of it can be applied in principle to believers during this current age We can draw out from His words three important truths that apply to all followers of Christ through all the ages. First of all, clearly:

II. Jesus Told Us To Expect Persecution (16-25) I have no idea how so many preachers can, in good conscience, proclaim that God always wants you to prosper and have the best and have this wonderful life where He takes away all your problems. Jesus said, ...In the world you will have tribulation. But take heart; I have overcome the world. - Jn. 16:33. Paul said clearly, Indeed, all who desire to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted, while evil people and impostors will go on from bad to worse, deceiving and being deceived. - 2 Tim. 3:12-13. History has borne out the truth of those words. True followers of Christ have been hated and persecuted in every century since, in varying degrees in different areas of the world. They are today all across North Africa, the Middle East, South Asia and Indonesia, in portions of China, in North Korea, in the "Stan" countries and many other places. Christians are killed, tortured, raped, put in prison, have their homes burned or property confiscated. Today! The American Church has been lulled into a sense of false security by our few hundred years of freedom; we really believe that serious persecution will never happen here. But that is to ignore both the facts of history and the words of Jesus! We must expect it. If we don't get it, that's a blessing, but Jesus clearly instructed us that:

1. we must be wary about it (16-17) There are ALWAYS wolves out there who want to destroy us and, like sheep, we have no weapons to defend ourselves, except this: we can be...wise as serpents. Now in what sense is a snake wise? Well, how many snakes have you ever actually seen? Few, I expect. That's because snakes are extremely alert; they feel the vibrations in the ground when you are coming and they get out of the way! They hide when they see danger coming. We're to be as harmless and innocent as doves and never try to hurt our persecutors in return, but we should still always be alert and watching for persecution to come and do whatever is practical to avoid it if we can, for example verse 23a. In the unregistered house churches in China, they always have a lookout watching for the police and they worry that their loud singing and praying will attract neighbors' attention, so they are very careful where they meet, because they can be arrested and fined or imprisoned. If one area is dangerous, they meet somewhere else. They don't arrive all at the same time so as not to draw attention. Yet they're not afraid or ashamed; they're just being wise and staying out of harm's way, if they can, so that they can continue their ministry.

2. we will be witnesses to our persecutors through it (18) Believe it or not, God wants to reach the very people who persecute us, our enemies! While Stephen was on trial before the Sanhedrin, he preached a whole sermon to them as a witness about Jesus in Acts 7. As he was being stoned, he was a witness to those stoning him and among them was a man named Saul, whose conscience was pricked by it somehow, I believe. Later, Paul was brought on trial before Festus and King Agrippa and he preached the Gospel to them in Acts 26. Later on, he was sent to Rome to be tried before the Emperor and he says that he was a witness to the whole palace guard and that some in Caesar's very household had believed! And not only are we a witness to the ones doing the actual persecuting, but we are a witness to the nations, the peoples. Iran ranks #5 in the world for nations that persecute Christians. In 1979 there were only 500 known believers who had converted from Islam. Today some say there are over a million! The growth of the church there is explosive; the harder the leaders persecute believers, the more of a testimony it is to the people and the more believe! The same happened in China. An almost wiped-out church mushroomed to over a million believers through years of intense persecution, because God uses our testimony to Him in the midst of suffering to draw many more to Himself! Chinese church leaders will tell you that persecution is a key tool He uses to grow His church. Thirdly:

3. the Holy Spirit will give us words to say during it (19-20) You don't have to worry, "What will I say if anyone ever arrests me for my faith? Will I be like Peter and Paul? Will I say the right thing?" God promises to provide the words, to have the Holy Spirit speak through you in that moment. Actually, that's true whenever you get put on the spot to be a witness. Just ask Him, "What shall I say?" and the Spirit will be quick to put His words in your mouth. Now the next verses seem to indicate that persecution:

4. it will grow deeper and more widespread as the end approaches (21-23) Eventually, by the time of His coming there will be a worldwide hatred of anyone who would dare to believe in Christ; simply read the Book of Revelation and see how His followers are hated and the innumerable multitude who are martyred during that final tribulation period. But in saying these things, Jesus was implying that persecution is not going to be merely a temporary local thing. It is something that is going to be everywhere, something that will be longstanding, something that will occur down through the ages and intensify in the end. Already today in some Muslim areas we see that a father will have his son or daughter killed for believing in Christ and will see it as his duty before God. This is not some myth; it happens commonly today and it will get worse as the end gets near. So:

5. we should see it as a normal part of following Christ (24-25) Jesus used this proverb, a disciple is not above his master, four times in the Gospels; it must have been something He said all the time. At its most basic level, it can mean something like, "If they treat ME like this, why would you expect them to treat YOU any differently as My followers? If they call Me Beelzebul, the chief prince of the demons or the devil himself, they'll do it to you!" In other words, "Expect it; it's normal!" But that's not all that the phrase means. It implies that:

a. we have no right to expect better treatment than our Master We're not above Him. We're not better than Him. Why should we think that He is somehow obligated to spare us from pain and suffering and give us lives of ease, when He Himself was hated and plotted against and betrayed and crucified for us? Why should we think ourselves entitled to protection from all evil when He did not exempt Himself from it? We have no such right. But the full meaning is even deeper still:

b. we should count it a privilege to be like our Master It is enough for the disciple to be like his teacher... The whole goal of being a disciple is to become exactly like your master. There should be a satisfaction in realizing that we have become so like Jesus that we are treated like Him. Paul came to understand that. Look with me at Phil. 1:29. It has been granted to us; it is a gift, a high and holy privilege, to suffer for His sake, who suffered so much for ours. It is to enter into what Paul calls elsewhere the fellowship of His sufferings. There is a deep intimacy with Christ that occurs in the midst of our experience of suffering for Him, if our hearts are open to Him while we endure it.

If we truly grasp what Jesus is saying, we find ourselves able to say things like Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who spent years in a Soviet prison camp and wrote: That is why I turn back to the years of my imprisonment and say, sometimes to the astonishment of those about me, "Bless you, prison!" I...have served enough time there. I nourished my soul there, and I say without hesitation, "Bless you, prison, for having been in my life!" (The Gulag Archipelago: 1918-1956, Vol. 2, 615-617) And that leads us to consider the second important truth in our text:

III. Jesus Is Sovereign When We Experience Persecution I realize that this is scary talk. We don't like to think about this, even if our brothers and sisters in other places are living through it right now, because we become afraid for ourselves and for our children. But listen, Jesus did not tell us all this to make us afraid. Quite the opposite:

1. He does not want us to be afraid (26-31) He tells us ...have no fear...do not fear...fear not! He tells us NOT to be afraid and He gives us three reasons why. First:

a. He will bring about justice for us in the end (26-27) Those who harm us will not get away with it! Their evil will not be hidden and covered up, but it will in the end be revealed to all and justice will be done by God Himself! It is a truly fearful thing to find yourself before Almighty God as one who persecuted His children! We should not fear to declare God's message because, in the end, the whole world will know that we were right! Second, we should not fear because:

b. He has taken away all reason for us to fear death (28) Who is the One who can cast soul and body into hell? God! If you want to be afraid of somebody, be afraid of God! Persecutors can only kill the body. That's the worst they can do; they cannot harm your soul which is eternally safe with Jesus. And if they kill your body, that merely sends you to glory earlier than you expected! Look with me at Heb. 2:14-15. We do not have to be afraid of death. It no longer holds any power over us. Jesus took all the sting out of it and we don't have to let Satan make us afraid of it any longer! We don't have to live in fear, even if we happen to live in a situation of danger. And the third reason we shouldn't fear is that Jesus:

c. He lovingly controls everything that happens to us (29-31) God keeps track of the very sparrows that live in your bushes and, amazingly, of the very hairs of your head that go down the drain every time you wash your hair! You are far more valuable to God than sparrows and His care for you extends to the most insignificant details of your life! He loves you! And you have to trust that if He allows persecution and suffering into your life, He knows what He's doing. He is sovereign! He is in control, not the nasty people who want to hurt us! Not one thing will ever happen to us that our loving Heavenly Father does not choose for us! And therefore, in verses (32-39) Jesus tells us that:

2. He does expect us to follow Him in spite of persecution Persecution is a sifting process. When we endure through it:

a. it demonstrates that we genuinely belong to Him (32-33) Persecution distinguishes the true from the false. It shows who genuinely knows Christ and has truly made Him Lord of their life. The one who caves in and gives up his faith and renounces Christ is not for real. He is one of the people who say, "Lord, Lord" back in Mt. 7 whom Jesus never really knew. When we endure, it proves to us ourselves and to all the world that we are the real deal! But sadly, we must realize that persecution:

b. it divides us, sometimes even from people we are closest to (34-36) Jesus repeated these words on another occasion in Lk. 12:51 and there substituted the word division for the word sword. He did not mean that His coming to earth was to bring war or armed clashes, but that it would create a division between us and other people who reject Him. And sometimes those people will even be our parents or our children or those in our own household. It cannot be otherwise. Whoever is not with Him is against Him in the end and our choice of Him can cause even people we love to stand on the other side and reject us completely or even persecute us. In many places in the world, it does exactly that. But in the end persecution:

c. it demonstrates what we truly love most (37-39) When persecution comes, it makes us choose what we really love; it causes us to realize that Christ means more to us than our mother or father, more than our children or our parents, indeed, more than life itself. Taking up the cross means dying, giving up your life, and our choice displays what we truly love above all things. If we love Him, we cannot really lose our lives. As Jim Elliot put it, He is no fool who gives what he cannot keep, to gain what he cannot lose. And Jim demonstrated his first love by choosing to die of an Auca spear on a sandbar in 1957, rather than returning fire against his attackers. He and his companions were no fools; they were among that precious company of those who conquered Satan by the word of their testimony and who loved not their lives even unto death - Rev. 12:11. If that time ever comes for us, may we choose as they did!

But finally, all this talk about persecution makes it sound like absolutely everyone will be against us and that's not the case either. There will also be those who choose to listen and to help us, even if they don't believe right away, and Jesus closes by saying that He:

IV. Jesus Will Reward Those Who Help Us During Persecution (40-42) There will be those who receive us, who welcome us and do good to us, maybe even something as small as giving us a cup of cold water when we're hot and thirsty. And God will certainly reward and bless them for it, just as surely as He will bless us when we help our own brothers and sisters who are persecuted and stand with them and pray for them. Even if we are not suffering, these words should cause us to remember those who are in prison, as though in prison with them, and those who are mistreated, since you also are in the body. - Heb. 13:3.

Well, if nothing else, this passage should make us think deeply about ourselves, about the love that we profess to have for Christ and what we would do if it was put to the test. In March 2001, Dayna Curry (now Masterson) and Heather Mercer followed God's call to Kabul, Afghanistan, working with the relief organization Shelter Now International. On August 3 they were arrested by the Taliban in Kandahar for spreading Christianity, after showing the "Jesus" film to an Afghan family. Under the Taliban regime, the penalty for sharing the Christian faith with Afghani Muslims was death. For 105 days, throughout the terrorist attacks of September 11 and the ensuing war between the U.S. and Taliban forces, the girls were held as prisoners. Their trial before the Taliban hung in the balance and so did their lives. In the early morning of November 15, God answered their prayers when U.S. Special Forces miraculously rescued the prisoners. Here is their testimony: "When Heather and I were in prison under the Taliban, God gave us this Scripture to encourage us. It's 2 Corinthians 1:8-11 (NLT), 'I think you ought to know, dear brothers and sisters, about the trouble we went through in the province of Asia. We were crushed and completely overwhelmed, and we thought we would never live through it. In fact, we expected to die. But as a result, we learned not to rely on ourselves, but on God who can raise the dead. And he did deliver us from mortal danger. And we are confident that he will continue to deliver us. He will rescue us because you are helping by praying for us. As a result, many will give thanks to God because so many people's prayers for our safety have been answered.' As our friends and I spent those days in that Taliban prison facing the pressures of death, we knew many days that our only hope was to put our confidence in the promise of God: that for those who believe, nothing is impossible and that God can and will do a miracle. And God raised up many, millions from all over the world, to pray for the impossible, to pray for a move of God. And as we've seen, God has not only set us and our Afghan friends free, but He's done a move of His Holy Spirit in the nation of Afghanistan and the nation has been changed." ["Somebody's Praying Me Through" - Created by Karla Worley and Gary Rhodes - Word Music - 2003 - p. 60]. Of course, not all such stories have such an earthly happy ending. But the common thread to all such stories is that suffering for Christ invariably strips us of all other things and causes us to put our complete confidence for life and eternity in God alone. I hope that's where yours is today.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King's Messenger Rejected - Ch. 11:1-19, 14:1-12

Chapters 8-10 of Matthew emphasized Jesus' AUTHORITY and, during that period of His ministry, He had done miracle after miracle, visibly proving to everyone who He was, the King! Now, in chapters 11-16, we have recorded for us Israel's reaction to that. And it was not what you would expect. You would think Israel would have welcomed Him with open arms after seeing the marvelous things He did, but they didn't. Instead, Jesus faced REJECTION time and time again. Israel and her leaders rejected her King, which, of course, ultimately led to the cross. Chapter 11 begins just as Jesus is sending out the 12, two by two, on their preaching mission to the villages of Galilee in verse (1). While they were gone on their mission, Jesus Himself went alone throughout Galilee preaching and teaching. News of His ministry spread everywhere. It was heard by Herod in his palace and it was heard by John the Baptist in his dungeon. Now John has been in prison since the very beginning of Jesus' ministry; his arrest is mentioned in 4:12, which is now more than a year earlier. At this point John sends some of his disciples, whom he is still leading from prison, to Jesus to ask a question, and we have the record of:

I. The Inquiry Of John The Baptist - 11:1-19 Here is:

1. the question John had (2-3) Over a year ago John had baptized Jesus and at that time he had positively identified Jesus as the promised Messiah, the Christ, the One who was to come. The reason he knew Jesus was the Son of God was that God had shown the heavenly sign of the Spirit descending in the form of a dove. There had been no doubt in his mind. But a year in prison can do a number on your thinking. All this time:

a. he heard reports of Jesus' miracles Now Josephus, the Jewish historian, says that John was imprisoned in the fortress of Machaerus. Machaerus is on the East side of the Dead Sea, not far from the region of the Jordan River where John carried out his ministry. Jesus was way up in Galilee, 80 miles to the north, but news of the wonderful things He was doing, the healings and the miracles, traveled far. John, I'm sure, understood those things to be Divine confirmation of Jesus' ministry. But his question was basically this, "If you're actually the Messiah, then why am I still in prison? Are you just a prophet and not actually the One who will deliver us?" You see:

b. he didn't understand God's plan In one sense, John was no different from the other Jews of his day. He expected the Messiah to set up His Kingdom right away when He came. He himself expected to be the forerunner of that Kingdom and to literally usher it in. Being in jail for the rest of his life didn't seem to fit with his understanding of what God was up to! He was not doubting Jesus' power or authority; he was simply trying to understand what was going on, what God was doing. I think we can identify with that. How many times do we think God is doing one thing, but circumstances don't turn out as we expected and hoped and we begin to wonder what He is really up to? Well, look at:

2. the answer Jesus gave him (4-5) Now, I know you and I would prefer that Jesus had simply said, "Yes I am" but Jesus usually didn't work that way. Instead, He told John's disciples, who had evidently followed Him around for a little while and done some talking to the crowds, to go back and repeat to John what he had already heard about, the miracles and signs. Why? Because those:

a. the signs verified Jesus' identity The words Jesus used in His reply were chosen very carefully. They directly referred to the Old Testament, to Isaiah the prophet. He said, In that day the deaf shall hear the words of a book, and out of their gloom and darkness the eyes of the blind shall see. The meek shall obtain fresh joy in the LORD, and the poor among mankind shall exult in the Holy One of Israel.... Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened, and the ears of the deaf unstopped; then shall the lame man leap like a deer, and the tongue of the mute sing for joy.... - Is. 29:18-19, 35:5-6. And especially they point to Is. 61:1, The Spirit of the Lord GOD is upon me, because the LORD has anointed me to bring good news to the poor; he has sent me to bind up the brokenhearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison to those who are bound.... John knew those words; he knew those predictions. The Word of God said that when the Kingdom came the lame would walk, the blind would see, the deaf would hear, and the poor would have the good news preached to them! Jesus was doing the very things that would be done in the Kingdom right now! And that made Him the King! He encouraged John to do what He expected all Israel to do, to recognize Him from their own Scriptures! But then he added one more statement in verse (6). In other words:

b. He made Himself the test of stumbling Jesus literally said, Blessed is the one who does not stumble over Me. This phrase is a reference to Is. 8:13-15, But the LORD of hosts, him you shall honor as holy. Let him be your fear, and let him be your dread. And he will become a sanctuary and a stone of offense and a rock of stumbling to both houses of Israel, a trap and a snare to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And many shall stumble on it. They shall fall and be broken; they shall be snared and taken. He is in essence saying, "I AM the Lord of Hosts and I am the One over whom Israel will stumble and be broken! Happy is the one who chooses to follow Me!" He's basically telling

John, "Yes, I am He! The works prove it; I am the Promised One! I'm still doing what I said I would do and things are on track! Keep trusting Me!" Listen, when we can't figure out what God is doing, He's doing exactly what He's always been doing, working out His eternal plan, whether it looks like it or not!

But Jesus did not stop with answering John. John had often borne witness to Jesus, so now Jesus bears witness to John. Here we have:

3. the explanation Jesus gave to the crowd about John in verses (7-19). Multitudes of the Jews had listened to John's preaching and most regarded him as a true prophet of God, yet now he had been in prison and Jesus was the new voice in the land. I'm sure the people of Israel were perplexed about the connection between the two. In fact, you may be also! So here:

a. He declared who John was (7-15) First he says that John was:

(1) a prophet (7-9) He was not somebody that was like the reeds along the Jordan that bent whichever way the wind blew. He preached a straight, stern, message, a call for repentance. He wasn't some rich impressive man dressed in fine clothes like King Herod sitting in his palace. He wore garments of camel's hair. There was nothing about his message or his person to attract an audience or a following, and yet people went out in droves to listen to him. Why? Because they knew he was God's messenger! They knew they were hearing from God through him. Their very going acknowledged it! God had not sent them a true prophet in 4 centuries! But he was more than that; he was:

(2) the forerunner of Messiah (10) Jesus quotes Mal. 3:1. God had said through Malachi that He would send a special messenger to prepare things before the long-awaited Messiah would come. He was to prepare the hearts of Israel to receive their King. John's own father, Zacharias, had prophesied at his birth, And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Most High; for you will go before the Lord to prepare his ways - Lk. 1:76. And if you read it in context, you see that Zacharias knew what John's birth meant. If the forerunner had come, then the Kingdom was about to come, the Messiah was about to come to rescue his people! That's what Jesus is saying to the crowd, "John fulfilled the prophecy. The Forerunner came, so now the King is here!" Then He goes on to say that John's ministry is:

(3) the conclusion of the Old Testament era (11-13) John's ministry was a turning point in God's program. The Old Testament law and prophets had fulfilled their ministry. They pointed to the future coming of the Christ. But from the time John began to preach a year earlier, he preached that the Kingdom was at hand. Messiah was here and the promised kingdom was being set up. The Kingdom was advancing powerfully; thousands were seeing Jesus and following Him. Yet powerful opposition was also growing in men like Herod and the Pharisees, who were trying to attack it by force. John was the greatest man born up until that time because he directly prepared the way for the King, yet Jesus seems to imply that he would not get to see the promised Kingdom come. He would not be privileged like those who became part of that kingdom with complete understanding after Jesus' death and resurrection. So really, John was the end of an era in God's administration. The Old Covenant was on its last legs, giving way to a New one. And finally, Jesus says that John was:

(4) the promised Elijah (14-15) All the Jews knew that in Mal. 4:5 God had promised to send Elijah back, just prior to the Day of the Lord when the Kingdom would be set up. Now, mark Jesus' words carefully; He was not saying that John was some kind of reincarnation of Elijah. He very carefully said that if they would accept it (that is, accept Him as King and the coming of the Kingdom), then John would be the fulfillment of the Elijah prophecy. He would be the Elijah who was to come. In fact, the angel Gabriel told John's father, and he will go before him in the spirit and power of Elijah... - Lk. 1:17. Before his birth, God declared that John would occupy the place of Elijah, the forerunner of Messiah, if the Jews would receive their King. John was a landmark in spiritual history. He was the sign to Israel that the Kingdom was about to come, if they would accept Jesus the Messiah as their King. But sadly, they didn't; Israel rejected both the Forerunner and the King, so Jesus went on:

b. He chastised Israel for rejecting God's messengers (16-19) Jesus said that Israel was like a bunch of children playing with their friends in the marketplace. And some of the kids are trying to play their little flutes and get the other kids to dance. So, they play a happy wedding tune and try to get them to dance. But the other kids say, "Na, I don't want to". So the musicians say, "Fine, let's play funeral" and they begin to wail out a funeral dirge, but they don't want to play that either. No matter what the musicians play, the crowd doesn't want to play! Jesus said, "That's how it is with you, Israel; you just will NOT cooperate with God! You rejected John for his asceticism because he lived in the desert ate locusts! You said, 'He must be demon possessed or something,' and wouldn't respond to his message. But then I came walking among you and eating with you at your invitation and you call me a glutton and a drunkard and accuse me of not being holy enough because I will eat with those you call sinners!" God can't win! No matter who He sends them or what they're like, Israel will not respond! Yet wisdom is justified by her deeds. God's wisdom will be seen in the end by the wonderful results it produces!

Hey, just a thought. Sometimes God has that same problem with us! He can't seem to please us either. When things are tough for us, we complain. Then when things are going well, we complain and don't like it that way either. But in the end, we'll see how wise He was to do things HIS way! We certainly wouldn't choose the ending for John that God did, but all the while God was doing exactly what He planned and John was fulfilling the role God had planned for him. Flip over to chapter 14 and look with me at:

II. The Death Of John The Baptist - 14:1-12 Not long afterward:

1. Herod Antipas executed John (1-2) This Herod is Herod Antipas, the son of Herod the Great who had tried to kill Jesus as a baby. He was the tetrarch of Galilee and Perea and he is also the Herod before whom Jesus later stood at His trial. We'll come back to these verses in a moment, but to explain them, Matthew tells:

2. the story of John's arrest and imprisonment (3-5) Herodias was his own niece, his brother Aristobulus' daughter. She was first married to his other brother Philip I who lived in Jerusalem, but when Antipas and his first wife came to visit, an intrigue developed between them and he plotted to divorce his wife and take Herodias as his own. Thus, he not only married his own niece but stole his brother's wife! Well:

a. John openly opposed his immoral behavior, probably publicly, but also straight to his face. Herod was furious and arrested John and though at first, he himself wanted to kill John, he seems to have thought better of it. Mk.

6:19 reveals that his wife Herodias had a grudge against him and wanted to put him to death. But she could not... The real hatred was in Herodias. She kept on urging Herod to kill him, but he wouldn't. Why? Matthew says:

b. Herod denied his wife's desire out of fear of the people He was afraid of creating a riot among his subjects if he did. Plus, Mk. 6:20 also adds that Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he kept him safe. He was afraid of what God might do to him, so he kept him locked up and, amazingly, it seems that:

c. John was actually impacting Herod - Mk. 6:20 concludes with, When he heard him, he was greatly perplexed, and yet he heard him gladly. That year in prison was not wasted! The more Herod talked with John, the more he became perplexed and confused. He knew John was right, even though he had no intention of changing. The point is that despite all of his evil behavior, he was still reachable. The Spirit of God was still dealing with him. And God was still using John, even in prison! Don't give up because you think someone is too hard for God to reach or because you think you can't be used by God in your circumstances! Here's:

3. the manner of his death (6-12) It was Herod's birthday celebration in his palace at Machaerus. John was held in one of the fortress towers and the party was held in an open area beneath. Imagine the hall filled with a hundred guests. The entertainment of the day for Herod's friends was a dancer. Of all people to use, he chose his wife Herodias' daughter by her first marriage, Salome, who was only perhaps 14 at the time. But don't think this was some artistic cultural display; from what we know of Herod, Herodias and Salome, you can picture it as a bunch of drunken men watching a beautiful young woman tantalize them with a very sensual dance. And she did her vulgar job well.

a. impacted by sensuality (and alcohol) Herod made a rash promise, anything she wanted up to half the kingdom! And he made it firm by swearing an oath in front of all his guests. Mr. Big Shot! But:

b. his wife used his pride to manipulate him (8-12) Herodias sees her golden opportunity and tells Salome to ask for John's head. Now Herod sees how rash he was, but pride takes over. He's afraid to break his oath, plus he doesn't want to look like a fool in front of his guests. So, he goes against what he knows is right and sends the executioner to the cell block to bring back John's gory head. But this whole story simply explains the setting for (1-2). Herod:

c. he was haunted by this incident. He hears of the fame of Jesus and in his twisted mind thinks it is John come back from the dead with miraculous power. He can't get rid of the guilt. For the rest of Jesus' ministry, he really wants to see Jesus in person, but when he finally does meet Him on Good Friday morning, Jesus won't say even one word to him, nor do one of the miracles which Herod is dying to see, so Herod's heart is hardened and he ends up mocking Jesus and sending him away, becoming party to the blame for Jesus' death. Herod died in exile in France along with his wife. Salome continued the family incest by marrying, first her own elderly uncle and later, her cousin. John went instantly from prison to Paradise.

No, God certainly didn't do things the way John expected! Nonetheless, God had reason and purpose in the way He chose to do things. Samuel Rutherford was a Scottish Presbyterian minister and theologian. In the 1630's he was banished from his parish and sent to Aberdeen for being a nonconformist, that is, one who did not agree that the Church of England was the only true church. He was not allowed to preach and other ministers shunned him. From there he wrote this letter to encourage a friend: "Brother, this is His own truth I now suffer for. He has sealed my sufferings with His own comforts... Go on, my dear brother, in the strength of the Lord, not fearing man who is a worm, nor the son of man that shall die. Providence has a thousand keys, to open a thousand sundry doors for the deliverance of His own, [even] when it [appears dead past all hope]. Let us be faithful, and care for our own part, which is to do and suffer for Him, and lay Christ's part on Himself, and leave it there. Duties are ours; events are the Lord's. When our faith goes to meddle with events, and to hold a court... upon God's providence, and begins to say, 'How will You do this and that?' we lose ground.

We have nothing to do there. It is our part to let the Almighty exercise His own office, and steer His own helm. There is nothing left to us, but to see how we may be approved of Him, and how we may roll the weight of our weak souls in well-doing upon Him who is God Omnipotent: and when what we thus essay miscarrieth, it will be neither our sin nor cross." If we are faithful and obey and things don't turn out well in our eyes, we bear neither the blame for, nor the burden of, the situation. All of that belongs to Him. Are you struggling today in some difficult circumstance like John was? Hold on! Stand firm. Cling to Jesus and follow Him with all your heart. Leave all the rest to Him.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King Condemns Rejecters But Calls Followers - 11:20-30

The greater majority of Jesus' 3 ½ year ministry was spent in the region of Galilee, away from the Jewish heartland of Judea and the holy city of Jerusalem. Beginning at chapter 10, Jesus sent out his disciples to preach the message of His Kingdom in all the towns of Galilee? Then 11:1 adds that He Himself did the same thing while they were gone, that He personally made a circuit again of the major towns. Many miracles were done, many demons cast out, many sick people healed. But what was the reaction to this huge effort to saturate one province with the Good News? Sure, great crowds of common people flocked to Him; there was always a warm reception among the poor and needy who wanted relief from their suffering. But by and large, these cities of Galilee, where Jesus spent most of His ministry and where most of His miracles were done, rejected Him. We saw last week in verses 11-19 how after the messengers from John the Baptist came, Jesus explained to the crowd who John was and chided them, because they not only didn't listen to John's preaching, but now they wouldn't listen to Him either. And then we read some really harsh words as:

I. Jesus Condemned The Cities Of Galilee in which He had invested so much ministry (20-24) Jesus names three of the chief cities of Galilee where He had done most of His miracles: Chorazin, a major town about 2 miles north of Capernaum, Bethsaida, the little fishing village where Peter, Andrew and Philip lived near Capernaum and Capernaum itself which was actually Jesus' own residence for a time. Three towns clustered together where He had invested the most and He condemns them saying, Woe to you, "Be warned of the judgment that is coming!". Why? Verse (20) tells us it is because:

1. they did not repent What did He mean? Well, look ahead to 12:41. You remember the story of Jonah, don't you? After God straightened out his obedience problem in the belly of a fish, he went to Nineveh and went through the whole city and preached that God was going to destroy it. And the people of Nineveh repented! ...the people of Nineveh believed God. They called for a fast and put on sackcloth, from the greatest of them to the least of them. The word reached the king of Nineveh, and he arose from his throne, removed his robe, covered himself with sackcloth, and sat in ashes. And he issued a proclamation and published through Nineveh, "By the decree of the king and his nobles: Let neither man nor beast, herd nor flock, taste anything. Let them not feed or drink water, but let man and beast be covered with sackcloth, and let them call out mightily to God. Let everyone turn from his evil way and from the violence that is in his hands. Who knows? God may turn and relent and turn from his fierce anger, so that we may not perish." - Jonah 3:5-9. That's what Jesus was wanting to see, whole towns touched by the guilt of their own sin, believing His message and turning to Him en masse. A greater than Jonah walked their streets and preached in their marketplaces! Jonah never did a single miracle; Jesus displayed His power and authority time after time. Yet was there any of that sort of repentance in the towns of Galilee? No! Jesus says that:

2. they were given an incredible opportunity It was in Capernaum that Jesus cast a demon out of a man in the synagogue, that He healed Peter's mother-in-law of a fever and many, many with various diseases that same evening. It was there He healed the Roman centurion's servant with a word and also the paralyzed man who was lowered through the roof. Think how great an opportunity this was for the people in these towns to hear and believe. Isaiah foretold this very thing: Nevertheless, that time of darkness and despair will not go on forever. The land of Zebulun and Naphtali will be humbled, but there will be a time in the future when Galilee of the Gentiles, which lies along the road that runs between the Jordan and the sea, will be filled with glory. The people who walk in darkness will see a great light. For those who live in a land of deep darkness, a light will shine. - Is. 9:1-2 NLT. Galilee was an area of great spiritual darkness, but into that very area Jesus shined this intense bright light of spiritual truth. It was an opportunity:

a. one so great that those without any knowledge of God would have seized it In His omniscience Jesus said that if He had left Israel altogether and done those miracles in pagan idol-worshipping cities like Tyre and Sidon up along the coast, they would all have put on sackcloth and ashes like Nineveh did. They would have recognized the presence and the power of God and turned from their evil ways, though they knew nothing about the true God. But the Jewish cities, for all their background in the Scriptures, didn't! In fact, Jesus said that it was an opportunity:

b. one so great that the most wicked would have been changed by it Sodom and Gomorrah were completely destroyed by God through fire from heaven for their wickedness. He couldn't find five righteous men in them to cause Him to spare them according to His promise to Abraham! Yet if He had gone there and done these same miracles, even these worst of all cities would still be standing because they would have repented!

The light Jesus shined upon these cities of Galilee was so bright, so intense, such an opportunity given them by God, that:

3. they were deserving of an awful judgment He says, "God's day of judgment is coming for you! You, who think you're so important and so wise, who lift yourselves up, as it were, to heaven, you will be cast down to hell! God will judge you and you stand condemned!" What is Jesus saying? Well, first of all:

a. this is a collective warning of physical destruction for these cities God can't send cities per se to hell. Sodom's judgment was a question of being destroyed or remaining. God judged Samaria and Jerusalem in the Old Testament by invading armies destroying the cities. Jesus said Capernaum would be cast down to Sheol, which is literally the grave. He's warning that those cities would be physically destroyed, and they were. All three today are ancient ruins. But more importantly:

b. this is an individual warning of eternal punishment for people Notice the future tense in verse 24, it will be more tolerable on the day of judgment... Sodom, even though it was judged physically and is gone, still hasn't faced the day of judgment. He must also be talking about the individual inhabitants of those cities. These people who had seen this great light and rejected it will face a greater degree of punishment when they stand before God at the Great White Throne, than those who had little light. Now that brings us to consider:

4. the truths Jesus is teaching us here First; it is clear that:

a. receiving the knowledge of Christ is an act of God's grace Jesus chose to give that great light to Galilee and not to Tyre and Sidon, or to Syria or Egypt. He can choose to do that; it is His right. He is not obligated to shine the light of the knowledge of Himself on everyone equally. He owes us nothing. So, the fact that we have received the light, that we know about Christ and can respond to Him, is an act of pure grace that we don't deserve. We could have been born in North Korea or Saudi Arabia and never heard His Name! Like these cities, we have received an incredibly tremendous privilege that some 2 billion people don't even realize they're missing! But, secondly:

b. having the knowledge of Christ increases our responsibility to respond God expects us to respond to that knowledge, to repent and follow Christ, just as Jesus expected those cities to respond. He holds us accountable for what we know, for the light He gives us! Jesus' principle is, Everyone to whom much was given, of him much will be required! - Lk. 12:47. Knowing what God wants makes us accountable to obey it! And that's why Jesus seems to be teaching us that:

c. knowingly rejecting Christ increases the severity of punishment Some time ago on the radio I heard a caller ask, "Are there degrees of punishment in hell?" The host answered "Yes" and used this passage as a proof. That didn't sit right with me, somehow. I guess I've always thought that hell is hell, everlasting fire, undying worms, weeping and gnashing of teeth; how can there be degrees of that? But I didn't have time to really think about it until I prepared this message and it truly does make sense. Else why would God open the books on that last day and judge the wicked dead according to their works in Rev. 20:12, if everyone's punishment is exactly the same anyway? Other texts imply the same.

Now please hear me carefully; I'm not saying that some who are without Christ will get off easy in eternity. Without Christ, ALL human beings who die go to hell and simply being there at all is an unimaginably awful, eternal punishment. Yet within that awfulness, evidently somehow there is even greater torment for the Hitlers and the Stalins of the world than for some others who were guilty of less heinous things. And Jesus' strong warning here is that there is greater suffering ahead for those to whom God has given grace to know the truth about His Son and reject Him outright, than for those who have not had that privilege! If you are an American with the news of Christ on the radio and TV and internet and a church on every corner and have chosen NOT to follow Christ, I'd think long and hard about what Jesus says right here! We have the brightest portion of the light in the world, probably, but that heightens our judgment if we refuse it! That's the bad news, but in the second half of the passage we have the Good News:

II. Jesus Calls All To Respond And Come To Him (25-30) This ominous condemnation is followed by one of the most gracious invitations in all of Scripture. Even as He finishes those harsh words, Jesus breaks out in a prayer of praise (25-26). You see:

1. God chooses to whom He will reveal spiritual truth Turn over to 1 Cor. 2:14 with me. We can't perceive spiritual truth in our natural state; none of us can. We can't look at a miracle and discern the presence of God on our own. It's not in us. God does not allow spiritual truth to be discovered by natural means, by the wisdom of earthly learning. He gives the knowledge of Himself only by revelation. He reveals it and Jesus notes that:

a. He chooses to hide it from the "wise" Paul said the same thing in 1 Cor. 1:26-31. Do you notice in the Gospels who it is that responded to Jesus? Never was it the Pharisees or the elders or the priests, the ones who should have been the first to see the light. In fact, God hid it from them because they were bent on getting spiritual truth their own way. Rather:

b. He chooses to reveal it unto the “simple”, to the child-like people who are willing to innocently and simply believe Him. That's who the crowds were, common people, fishermen, poor people and suffering people. Just look around you this morning. There aren't many rich people here today. There aren't many people with fancy high-sounding titles from the halls of academia. That was true in Corinth. That was true in Jesus' ministry. It wasn't the leaders of society; it was common ordinary people, people who were willing like little children to say, "Yes, Lord, I believe!" It's true here today. Who gives their hearts to Christ? The ordinary, the simple, the hurting and wounded, the weak and needy! God most often reveals the truth of the Gospel to those who come simply and from this prayer you can see that:

c. Jesus is pleased that He chooses to do it that way! He is delighted with it and praises the Father. He is not interested in having a bunch of self-centered human beings with Him forever who would only boast of themselves and how good and how learned they were. But He is thrilled at having a multitude of those who humbly recognize their own need and cast themselves completely on Him! Now look at the next verse carefully (27). This is one of the most powerful claims that Jesus makes for Himself:

2. God has entrusted the revealing of Himself to Jesus alone I don't know exactly how to say this, but:

a. there is a self-enclosed world of relationship between Father and Son The Father and the Son (and the Spirit) know each other in a depth of satisfying relationship that only they can know. I never really thought about this until I read The Shack (which I do recommend, by the way). In one scene the author symbolically portrays the main character walking into a remote cabin and finding the Father, Jesus and the Spirit making and having breakfast by themselves, joyously talking back and forth, perfectly satisfied with one another. It's intended to be a goofy picture, but it makes you think about the fact God is completely satisfied in Himself and has been from all eternity. The Father and the Son know and love one another in a depth of relationship we can't even imagine, yet:

b. it is opened to others only as the Son chooses to reveal it to them Jesus lets US into that relationship! Through Him we can KNOW the Father and love the Father and be satisfied in the Father as He is. But ONLY through Him! He said it clearly, I am the way...no one comes to the Father except through Me! Jesus has to choose to reveal the Father to us so that we can know Him. But look what He chooses to do (28-30):

3. Jesus graciously calls all people to become His disciples The invitation always stands open and it is extended to everyone. Come to Me! Now the language of this invitation requires some background understanding. We see that word yoke and get hung up on thinking about the analogy of oxen pulling wagons but that's not the kind of yoke He means.

a. take my yoke means to learn from, serve, and become like, a Rabbi In the rabbinical system of the day, there were different schools of thought, different systems of interpreting the Torah and they were referred to as “yokes”. To become a disciple of a particular rabbi was to take his “yoke” upon you. Even today in converting to Judaism a person is required to “accept the yoke of the Commandments”, which includes not just the Bible but the Talmud and all the codes of Jewish law. When Jesus said, Take my yoke upon you and learn FROM me, everyone knew that He was inviting all to become His personal disciples. A disciple did not learn ABOUT his rabbi; he learned FROM his rabbi, as Jesus put it, but a disciple was not a casual learner; rather, he was one who left everything else in order to follow his rabbi day and night. He absorbed his rabbi's Life. A disciple learned from his rabbi a way of thinking and living; he listened to his rabbi; he discussed and debated his rabbi; he ate as his rabbi ate; he slept as his rabbi slept. As much as was possible, the rabbi reproduced himself in his disciple. [Secrets Jesus Shared - Jennifer Dean]. Isn't that exactly what Jesus did with the Twelve during His ministry? And here He invites ALL of us to accept that yoke of discipleship from Him, to follow Him about and learn from Him all our lives and become exactly like Him! Now, as Jesus intimated:

(1) the yoke of Judaism was difficult and produced weariness In 23:4 Jesus warned the crowd about the scribes and Pharisees like this: They tie up heavy burdens, hard to bear, and lay them on people's shoulders, but they themselves are not willing to move them with their finger. The religious leadership that dominated the Jewish nation knew every one of the 614 commandments in the Law and had surrounded them with hundreds more commands in their own traditions over the centuries. Only the cream of the crop, the best of the best, could even begin know them all, let alone try to keep them! That attitude continues even today; MyJewishLearning.com says that, explicit rejection of even one of the commandments in a manner considered rebellious toward rabbinic authority invalidates the conversion process. What a heavy yoke to bear! What a difficult way to approach God, an endless round of trying to follow thousands of rules! No wonder people were weary! All who try to approach God through trying to be good enough on their own eventually know that weariness! But unlike other rabbis who made their yoke hard:

(2) the yoke of Jesus is easy to bear and light to carry It is to love Him with all our hearts and to love each other the way we love ourselves and it is made easy and light because He places His own Spirit inside us to give us the power to do all that He asks of us! You see, just as the other rabbis made their followers like themselves:

b. Jesus is a gentle and humble Master and will make us like Himself He will make us, not proud and demanding and harsh, but humble and gentle. He will reproduce His own character in us as we enter into relationship with the Father through Him! So rather than a life of hard, difficult service always striving in vain to somehow please God:

c. Jesus offers us rest and rejuvenation for our souls We experience a sabbath-rest. We cease from our own striving and trying and rest in the peace of a relationship with God through him and we find our very souls infused with new life and energy to serve and follow Him.

Oh, what a gracious invitation after such an awful condemnation! Evangelist D. L. Moody said that his "greatest mistake" occurred on October 8, 1871. On that night Moody preached about the Lord's trial and his message was based on Pilate's question, "What shall I do then with Jesus?" (Mat. 27:22). As Moody concluded, he said to his audience, "I wish you would seriously consider this subject, for next Sunday we will speak about the cross, and at that time I'll inquire, 'What will YOU do with Jesus?'" Ira Sankey then sang the closing hymn, and in it were the lines, "Today the Savior calls; for refuge fly. The storm of justice falls, and death is nigh." Little did anyone know that these words would be the last ever heard in that huge hall where the service was held. Even as they were being sung, the soloist's voice was nearly drowned out by the sound of clanging bells in the street. That was the night of the great Chicago fire which destroyed more than 2000 acres of the city, and left 100,000 people homeless. Among the several hundred people who died were some who earlier had been in Moody's audience. The evangelist was greatly distressed by this and lamented his tragic error in not asking those men and women to receive the Lord that very evening. He later said, "Now, whenever I preach, I press for a definite decision. I would rather lose my right hand than give people even a day to decide for Christ, for I don't know if I'll ever see them again." Listen, that night pictures so clearly what Jesus was saying in the two halves of our text. He offers an amazingly gracious invitation, Come to Me, all of you and find rest..., but if you reject it, there's an unbelievably awful fire waiting. I'd take it today, if you haven't. Tomorrow isn't guaranteed.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King Rejected Over Sabbath Keeping - 12:1-21

In chapters 11-16 Matthew is showing us how Jesus was rejected as King by His people, in spite of the myriad of mighty works that He did. Although there were many things that caused Jesus to be rejected by the religious establishment of His day, one of the biggest issues centered around His observance of the Sabbath Day as a day of rest. Of course, the Old Testament Law was very clear that no work should be done on the Sabbath day in Israel. The very word sabbath means rest and that's what they were to do. It was a sign of the covenant between God and Israel, given to them in the Ten Commandments. No other people rested one day a week; they all worked 7 days straight through! It was part of their national identity. But over the centuries, the Jews added to the commandment a huge set of rules in their tradition to explain what they thought that command meant. The Mishna presents 39 classes of prohibited activity on the Sabbath, some of which are: planting, plowing, reaping, gathering, sorting, sifting, cooking, tying, untying, sewing, tearing, writing, erasing, igniting a fire, carrying things from one place to another, and so on. Further, each one of these was minutely defined. For instance, here is a modern example applying the law against sorting: if there is a bowl of mixed peanuts and raisins and one desires the raisins and dislikes the peanuts, removing (effectively sorting) the peanuts from the bowl, leaving a 'purified' pile of raisins free from unwanted peanuts, would be [prohibited] as the peanuts are removed. However, removing the desirable raisins from the peanuts does not purify the mixture, as one is left with undesirable peanuts (hence unrefined) not a refined component as before, and is thus permissible. Or how about cooking: Baking, cooking, frying, or any method of applying heat to food to prepare for eating is included in this prohibition. This is different from "preparing". For example, one can make a salad because the form of the vegetables doesn't change, only the size. However, one cannot cook the vegetables to soften them for eating. The prohibition to ignite a fire ...was (and in many circles, still is) commonly understood to disallow operating electrical switches. One reason is that, when actuating electromechanical switches that carry a live current, there is always the possibility that a small electric spark will be generated. This spark may be thought of as a kind of fire... [Wikipedia] Can you imagine trying to live under mountains of tiny regulations like this? Pious Jews still do today! Jesus always rested on the Sabbath; it was His seeming willingness to violate some of these ridiculous man-invented traditions that infuriated the zealous Pharisees who kept every one of them. Matthew includes two instances in chapter 12 of direct conflict between Jesus and the Pharisees over this issue. The first record we have is:

I. The Conflict Over Working on the Sabbath (1-8) On this occasion, Jesus' disciples simply walked through a field of wheat, probably on their way to the synagogue, and picked some of the heads of grain and ate them because they were hungry. Out of that comes:

1. the accusation of the Pharisees (1-2) The action of plucking heads of grain to eat from someone's field was specifically allowed in Deut. 23:25. The problem is that this was the Sabbath. To the Pharisees, picking the grain was reaping, rubbing it between the hands was threshing and dropping or blowing away the chaff was winnowing, violating three of the 39 prohibited activities! Of course, the disciples were not breaking the Sabbath law at all, but they were violating the strictest interpretation of the traditions, which the Pharisees considered as sacred as the Law itself. So, they accused the disciples of violating the Law, but look at:

2. the answer of Jesus He took them right to the Scriptures (3-4). Now realize that David was the Jewish hero above all others; he was greatly respected. And Jesus points out that:

a. David's hunger superseded the Law This refers to 1 Sam. 21:1-6 where David was fleeing from Saul who was trying to kill him. He and his men were traveling hard and were hungry and came to Nob where the Tabernacle was at that time. The High Priest gave him the bread that had just been removed from the table in the Tabernacle before God, which was only supposed to be eaten by priests! But the text says he did that because there was no other bread there. If there had been other bread, he would have given David's men that, but there was a real need. David was in an urgent situation and in that circumstance, to give aid to one in great need superseded the Law. Moreover, David is never rebuked by God or anyone else for it in Scripture! Jesus says, "What about that?" Then He went on to point out that:

b. the priests' obligations regularly supersede the Law (5) The priests are commanded to offer the required sacrifices on the Sabbath day as well as other days. But that is work. It includes killing, skinning and cutting up animals, making fire, and a number of other things that are directly prohibited in their traditions. God in His own instructions showed that there were things that superseded the Sabbath Law. When two of His commands came into conflict, as in this case, the more important of them had to be followed. And this was something that went right on under their noses every week, yet they were not offended by it! Then Jesus made His point (7). How can you tell what God really wants? Well, with God:

c. the right heart supersedes the ritual Jesus quotes Hosea 6:6 to show God's priorities. He would rather have you show mercy to someone in need than bring Him a lamb for a burnt offering. Meticulous rule keeping is no good without a right heart. Offering sacrifices and keeping sabbath laws mean nothing unless the heart is right. The right heart, the heart that is devoted to do what God wants, is more important than ritually doing commanded actions. You can see this on several occasions in the Old Testament. One that comes to mind is King Hezekiah who celebrated the Passover with his people in the second month, the wrong month, because they couldn't do it in the first month and God blessed and approved it anyway. Why? Because their hearts were right; they were trying to genuinely please God! In the New Testament, Paul said, If I give away all I have, and if I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing. - 1 Cor. 13:3. God is not interested in you ritually doing all the right things to try to gain His favor; He wants your heart! He wants you to act because you love Him with all your heart and want to please Him and because you love others with His love! But there is an even more important point that Jesus is making here (6). Jesus chose His two illustrations carefully. There are no two things the Jews revered more than David and their Temple but here's what He's claiming:

d. Jesus is greater than both David and the Temple That must really have shocked the Pharisees! He says, "I am greater than the Temple! I am greater than the law." Why? In essence, He's saying, "because I made them both!" There is one piece of His reply that Matthew leaves out but Mark records, ...The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. - Mk. 2:27:

(1) He made the sabbath to benefit man, not enslave him He made it to give him a day of rest and rejuvenation, that his body might be healthy and strong and his mind relieved of stress. He never made it to bind man to the stress of remembering and keeping a thousand minute little rules. He says, "I made it; I gave the rule to bless man but you've made the institution superior to the people it was given to bless!" But then He added this in verse (8):

(2) He has the right to abrogate His own Law He made the Sabbath law; He was the determiner of what was compliant with that Law, not them! He declared that his disciples were innocent, guiltless, and they had no right to say otherwise!

Well, that must have set them to fuming. But Luke tells us that it was on another sabbath day later on that they deliberately provoked:

II. The Conflict Over Healing on the Sabbath (9-14) This time Jesus is in the synagogue for services. And there is a man present whose hand is withered and atrophied, probably deformed from birth. And they bring the subject up.

1. the question of the Pharisees (9-10) is, Is it lawful to heal on the Sabbath? Their answer to that comes again from the teachings of the Rabbis which basically say, "Not unless it is necessary to save life!" A person must be in danger of dying in order to receive help. For instance, it was prohibited to set a broken bone. One could not pierce an abscess to drain it. One could not apply oils or lotions to heal or drink something for medicinal purposes. Even praying for the sick on the Sabbath was prohibited by some. Only if a person is about to die may they be given any of those things on the Sabbath! Well, the Pharisees think they have Him. They are sure He's going to heal the man, so they are going to trap

Him into working on the Sabbath right in front of a whole congregation of people who are zealous for the Law! But Jesus is too wise for them. Luke tells us that He begins His answer to their question with a question of His own:

a. Jesus' question to them But he knew their thoughts, and he said to the man with the withered hand, "Come and stand here." And he rose and stood there. And Jesus said to them, "I ask you, is it lawful on the Sabbath to do good or to do harm, to save life or to destroy it?" - Lk. 6:8-9. He raises the issue to a higher plane. Of course, doing harm or destroying life were always prohibited. Saving life was mandated; it was an obligation, even on the Sabbath. But somehow, simply doing good, was not so clear to them, so Jesus proceeds to illustrate it for them. But, by the way, notice:

b. Jesus' veiled accusation against them When he says, is it lawful to destroy life?, look what's in their minds in verse 14! Who's really violating the Sabbath here? Hold that thought and let's look further at:

2. the answer of Jesus (11-12) He poses to them a situation where He knows they would break the Sabbath! He says if one of their sheep fell into a pit on the Sabbath, they would not leave it there to die but would pull it out, Sabbath or not, figuring that saving the life of the sheep was more important. They can't argue with that so Jesus draws some conclusions for them:

a. some obligations supersede others He proved to them what they already knew, that when two obligations to God conflict, there has to be a priority; some obligations are more important to God than others. And hence He proves that:

b. the obligation to do good supersedes the sabbath law It is lawful to do good on the Sabbath. It is within the Law to forego one of its provisions in order to do a higher good! A man is much more important to God than a sheep and to do good by rescuing him from a life of suffering is entirely within the Law. By the way, at that time there does not seem have been a specific prohibition about rescuing an animal, but later rabbis taught, if a beast fall into a ditch, or pool of water, it is forbidden a man to bring it out with his hand; but if he can give it food where it is, it may be fed till the going out of the sabbath. In other words, leave it in the ditch and let it suffer and take it out tomorrow! This appears to be a direct reaction against this teaching of Christ! At any rate, Jesus left no doubt. Here is:

3. Jesus' definitive answer: He healed the man (13) And notice, he didn't even violate one of their prohibitions. He didn't apply anything or even touch the man; He simply spoke the words and it was done! The miracle showed God's own approval of His words; God healed the man! God agreed with Him, not the Pharisees, and they couldn't accuse Him of doing anything besides talking! Yet rather than falling on their faces in awe, look at:

4. the Pharisees' definitive reaction: they plotted to destroy Him (14) They were so furious, so enraged, that they left in a huff and began planning how to kill Him! Can you imagine how hard their hearts were? The very law which says Thou shalt not kill, they were willing to violate in order to see that their Sabbath regulations were kept! They themselves prioritized the Law, only they did it in the reverse order of God's priorities!

But it is important for us to look at:

III. Jesus' Reaction To These Sabbath Conflicts (15-21) Jesus didn't go out angry, fuming at the blind Pharisees. Instead:

1. He strove to avoid further controversy, yet kept on doing good (15-16) Did you ever wonder why Jesus told people not to tell who He was or tell what He had done for them? I think the answer is implied here. You see the violent reaction it created in the leaders. He did not want the level of that reaction against Him to rise too soon; He did not want to go to the cross prematurely. He waited until He Himself chose to push their buttons on Palm Sunday by riding in, claiming to be Messiah, and by openly cleansing the temple and chastising the leaders during Passion Week. He waited until the time appointed by the Father, but for now, He left the area so as not to provoke them further, yet continued His ministry, healing huge multitudes by the Sea of Galilee, Mark tells us, yet still trying to keep them from openly rallying as His followers. The point is that:

2. He demonstrated His Kingship gently (17-21) Matthew says this is a fulfillment of Is. 42:1-4. Messiah, when He came, would not quarrel nor cry out. He would not raise His voice in the street like some rebel leader or politician trying to raise an army of followers. He would not bring about His Kingdom by public strife with the national leaders. And further, the bruised reed which was ready to break, He would be careful not to break off and the smoking lamp wick which still had a spark of life in it He would not snuff out. He would keep on showing tender mercy to the suffering and the broken and the hurting, to those who would receive it, until the time came to set up His Kingdom in all its fullness.

That could well be a good model for us to follow, to do what we can to avoid unnecessary controversy with those who disagree with us and just keep on gently, quietly, changing lives by sharing our Jesus with those who will listen. But before we leave this particular subject altogether, let's take a moment to address:

IV. The Continuing Sabbath Controversy The conflict over keeping the sabbath has been handed over to the church and continues even today. Is Sunday God's sabbath day of rest and is it right to play ball on Sunday or go to the store, or work on something? In fact, some Christian groups, like the Seventh Day Adventists, have gone so far as to actually worship on Saturday which is literally the sabbath day. Well, let me say clearly that there is not one line of Scripture that says the church is to observe the sabbath. That is the only one of the 10 commandments NOT repeated in the New Testament and nowhere does it say that Sunday is the sabbath day, as our American forefathers often called it. Sunday is the first day of the week, the day on which we celebrate our Lord's resurrection. It is a voluntary day which we consecrate to God for worship, not a commanded day of rest. The New Testament has only two things to say about the sabbath. First:

1. we are freed from Sabbath regulations - Col. 2:13-17 The Sabbath is part of God's ceremonial law given to Israel and is on the same plane with the dietary laws, the feasts of Israel, and the other ceremonies they held like the monthly new moon celebration. As far as obligation goes, it was cancelled at the cross. It is no longer an obligation on us in the church, in the exact same way that none of those other things are. If somebody wants to observe Sunday (or Saturday) as a day of rest or if they want to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles, for that matter, that's OK. We cannot judge them as long as they are not counting on it for salvation. But they also cannot judge us, which is usually what happens. When you judge somebody by saying that they don't keep the sabbath, you put yourself in the position of a modern-day Pharisee judging others by a rule that you have made up! So then, what good is the sabbath to us? Well:

2. the Sabbath is a type of our rest in Christ - Heb. 4:9-11 Like the sacrificial system and the feasts, the Sabbath was cancelled because it was only a picture, a shadow. It was fulfilled in Christ. Just as God rested on the sabbath day when His work of creation was finished, so, when Jesus died on the cross and rose again, His work of redemption was finished and when we believe on Christ and cease trying to work for our own salvation, we enter into a perennial Sabbath rest spiritually! And since that Sabbath rest was never permanent in the Old Testament, but had to be repeated every week, it shows the Old Covenant was incomplete, it could not save. But now we enter into that rest by faith in Christ once and for all, just as God ceased from creating once and for all; He didn't start up again on the eighth day! His rest was permanent and so it pictures for us our permanent sabbath-rest in Christ.

The trap that the Pharisees fell into is called legalism, the creating and keeping of rules that we assume gain favor with God, all the while missing His very heart. Sadly, the church in every generation has always tended toward this very same practice, demanding that its people follow certain rules that seem to make sense in their day. Just one generation ago many Bible believing churches, including this one, declared that it was wrong to attend movies, to dance, to touch a single drop of alcohol, for men to have beards or long hair or for women to wear pants or lots of makeup (at least in church). None of that is in the Bible; we made it up ourselves, thinking that by keeping our rules we were pleasing God. And many churches were so focused on those minor things and declared them so loudly, that we sometimes missed the heart of God to reach those who looked and acted the exact opposite of us but who desperately needed Jesus, not just a makeover. Chuck Swindoll tells of a friend who, when he was a youth worker many years ago in an ethnic community, attended a church that had Scandinavian roots. Being a rather forward-looking and creative young man, he decided he would show the youth group a missionary film. We're talking simple, safe, black-and-white religious-oriented movie. That film projector hadn't been off an hour before a group of the leaders in the church called him in and asked him about what he had done. They asked, "Did you show the young people a film?" In all honesty he responded, "Well, yeah, I did." "We don't like that," they replied. Without trying to be argumentative, the youth worker reasoned, "Well, I remember that at the last missionary conference, our church showed slides--" One of the church officers put his hand up signaling him to cease talking. Then, in these words, he emphatically explained the conflict: "If it's still, fine. If it moves, sin!" You can show slides, but when they start movin', you're gettin' into sin. [C. Swindoll, The Grace Awakening, Word, 1990, pp. 160-161]. May God guard us from stepping outside of Scripture and insisting that the way WE think things should be in order to please God is absolute and forcing those things on others in His Name.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King Rejected Over Exorcism - 12:22-50

This entire section of Matthew is showing how Jesus was rejected by the leaders of Israel. The first 21 verses of chapter 12 recount one major issue they had with Him; they rejected Him because He didn't keep the Sabbath according to their myriad of rules. However, the second half of the chapter deals with a much more serious issue; they rejected Him over exorcism, the casting out of a demon, and ended up committing what we have come to call the Unpardonable Sin. On this occasion they make this:

I. The Unbelievable Charge Against Jesus (22-30) It begins with a miracle much like many others Jesus had done. [Read 22] This man couldn't see and also couldn't speak, but not because he was born that way or because his physical eyes and tongue were defective. He was demonized; an evil spirit had at some point gained control over him and shut down those faculties and when Jesus commanded it to leave him, he could instantly both see and speak. I realize that our western scientific minds want to reject that or explain it away, but Jesus absolutely knew that demons are real and dealt with them and even spoke with them audibly many times in his ministry. And if you go Asia or Africa and many other places today, you'll find that the existence of demons is very real and openly recognized. Well, when Jesus so easily set this man free with a word, He immediately won:

1. the acclaim of the crowd (23) They were astonished! They knew what an impossible thing had just happened before their eyes! They knew the power that this requires. Like the man born blind whom Jesus healed in John 9, they realized that this could only be possible through the power of God Himself (Jn. 9:24, 30-33). They saw and recognized the very presence of God as Jesus acted and all began saying, "Could this be the Messiah, the One we've been waiting for God to send us? Could this be the long-awaited King of Israel?" But when the Jewish leaders, the Pharisees who were standing there, heard this, they could not bear to let it go unchallenged. They could not deny the miracle; it had happened right before their eyes, so in the heat of this moment they gave their own explanation to the crowd; they made an accusation to defame Him.

2. the accusation of His enemies (24) They said simply, This is the work of Satan! The name Beelzebub seems to be derived from a false Philistine god, Baalzebub, whom they worshipped back in Elijah's day, but by Jesus' time it had basically become a popular name for Satan himself, the king, the ruler of the whole organized realm of evil spirits. They could not deny the power Jesus had displayed, but instead of attributing that power to God as the crowd did, they attributed it directly to Satan! They essentially accused Jesus of being a sorcerer, an evil man who traffics with Satan Himself and uses evil spirits and black arts to gain power over the minds of people like Simon the Magician in Acts 8. To the Jewish mind, they could not have said anything more heinous or reprehensible if they had called Him a serial killer and a cannibal! To a people whose identity was rooted in belonging to God, this was the absolute worst thing they could have accused Him of! But it made no sense. Look at:

3. the answer of Jesus (25-26) First of all, Jesus calmly pointed out that:

a. Satan would not oppose himself Why would Satan cast himself (that is, his own representative) out of someone? That's defeating his very purpose, to control the human race, to rule. If Satan's kingdom operated that way, if there were segments of demons who competed with and tried to overrule and cast out each other, it would have fallen long ago. Satan's grip over the human race is so strong because he has a tremendous organization of demons that is a united effort. To think that he would oppose himself is crazy! The truth is that:

b. only the Spirit of God can drive out demons (27-28) Jesus was not the only one to ever cast out demons. Jewish exorcists also did it with at least some degree of success. We have a brief record of it in Acts 19:13-16 where we read that the seven sons of Sceva, a Jew, were exorcists. The Jews recognized that demons needed to be cast out and when their methods worked, they attributed it to the power of God's spirit. They already knew that only God's power and God's spirit could cast out demons, but they would not bring themselves to admit that concerning Jesus, because if they did, they would have to also acknowledge that His message was from God and that He was the promised King as He said He was. If they admitted that this was the hand of God, then the Kingdom of God was here and Jesus WAS King, so they attributed that power to Satan. But Jesus argued thus (29):

c. I must be greater than Satan Everybody knew Satan was a powerful being. You can't go into some professional fighter's house and walk out with his TV; he'll beat you to a pulp! You have to be stronger than the person you're robbing; only then can you take what belongs to him. To make Satan release his hold on a person, to cast out a demon, you have to be stronger than Satan; you have to have power greater than his. Jesus is saying "Look, I am obviously greater than Satan and my power is greater than his or I couldn't free this man! Therefore, I AM the King! I am God in the flesh standing here before you! So, choose! (30). Are you for Me or against Me; you can't be gathering God's harvest, you can't be truly drawing people to God, unless you're with Me! If you're not, then you are scattering, you're driving people away from God! You are opposing God!"

Now remember, Jesus said this to the most religious people in Israel, to the ones who prided themselves on obeying God the most carefully. And then Jesus explained the nature of what they had done; they, who thought themselves the most righteous of all, had committed an unpardonable sin. So, we move on to look at:

II. The Unpardonable Sin His Enemies Committed (31-37) We don't like the notion very much that there is a sin which can't be pardoned, do we? We passionately proclaim that God can save the worst of human beings, that even the likes of a Hitler or a Stalin or a Saddam Hussein or an Osama Bin Laden can fall on his knees and repent and be forgiven for even the most heinous things we can imagine! Yet Jesus tells these religious people have committed a sin which has no pardon. That's troubling, so we need to understand clearly:

1. what this sin was (31-32) It is not simply rejecting Christ; Paul wanted to wipe His Name off the face of the earth and still Christ took the initiative to knock him to his knees and save him. Nor is it simple blasphemy; the word blaspheme means to speak against, but this is more than merely the speaking of words. Many people blaspheme God by cursing using His name or Jesus' name. And although I've never heard the Holy Spirit used as part of cursing, even if somebody did invent a way to use the Spirit's name that way, that in itself would not constitute the unpardonable sin. The Pharisees were not simply saying awful words in some mindless fashion. For them:

a. it was a conscious repudiation of the work of the Spirit The Pharisees were the most informed people in the world as to what the Scriptures said, what God was like, and so on. Jesus came to these people and confronted them with miracle after miracle after miracle. He calmed storms and multiplied bread. He healed the sick, raised the dead, and cast out demons right before their very eyes. The Jewish leaders knew this had to be the power of God. When Nicodemus, a Pharisee, came to Jesus by night in Jn. 3:2, he said, Rabbi, we know that you are a teacher come from God, for no one can do these signs that you do unless God is with him. Nobody but God can do those things. They didn't have to understand Jesus completely; but they had to know that the miracles were the work of the Spirit of God. Nobody with their background (and we're not talking about a spirit-worshiping jungle tribe here) could look at those miracles and NOT know that it was God's spirit and power at work. And with eyes wide open they deliberately called THAT the work of the devil! And because of that, Jesus said that:

b. it was never forgiven, not in this life nor in His Kingdom that was to come. In fact, in Mk. 3:29 Jesus actually says that it is an eternal sin, a sin whose guilt lasts forever. It was not forgivable. Now from our human point of view we might be tempted to think, "that's not fair", but just think about it from God's perspective for a moment. Imagine having done all this to show yourself to a person, having sent all of the awful plagues of Egypt before Pharaoh's eyes so that even his advisers recognized that it came from the hand of the true God, and then being blasphemed, being spoken against and being called the devil himself by an insolent, arrogant creature that You made for Your glory! Wouldn't you draw a line and say, "Enough is enough; I will destroy THAT one from My universe and punish them forever"? God is not obligated to provide everyone the opportunity for salvation; the fact that He has provided it to ANY of us is only by grace! Now Jesus went on to explain:

2. why this sin was unpardonable (33-35) It is not simply the words they said that concerned Him. Words are an overflow of what's in the heart. Good trees produce good fruit; bad ones produce bad fruit. Rather:

a. their words proved the completely evil condition of their hearts Note the words, you are evil. Here are the most "godly" people in Israel, keepers of the Law to the nth degree but their hearts are totally and completely set in evil. Nothing God has been able to say or do can shake them from it, not the presence of His Son, not the mighty display of His power. They had put themselves beyond the limit and God gave them up. God quit on them. His mercy was removed. He gave them what they really wanted inside themselves. But you should also note that they had progressed to this condition. They had said the very same words, He casts out demons by the prince of demons, earlier in 9:34 but they weren't at the line of unpardonability yet. It was not a once and done thing but a condition they progressed to as evil became more entrenched in them. Somewhere a line was crossed and only God knew where that line was! Of course, the big question is, "Can someone commit the unpardonable sin today?" or more specifically, "Could I commit it?" Well, I suppose a person could. It certainly must be possible to become one of those of whom Hebrews 6 speaks when it says, For it is impossible to bring back to repentance those who were once enlightened--those who have experienced the good things of heaven and shared in the Holy Spirit, who have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the power of the age to come--and who then turn away from God. It is impossible to bring such people back to repentance; by rejecting the Son of God, they themselves are nailing him to the cross once again and holding him up to public shame. - 6:4-6 NLT. There are some people walking around in this world who are beyond pardon and some of them are very religious! Dr. J. Sidlow Baxter was a well-known British Bible teacher and theologian who died in 1999. In one of his books, he says, "Men can allow and foster in themselves a process of hard refusal toward God which eventually becomes their master and destroys the possibility of repentance. Men cannot repent merely at will." Then he went on to tell the true story of a man, a friend of his, who in turn had a friend to whom he was ministering. This man was dying, and on his death bed he was writhing and struggling, and fighting the air in a piteously futile effort to fight death off. He was in stark terror at the thought of leaving this life and passing into the life beyond the grave. Eventually, the friend said, he died demented, but both before and after his brain gave way, he would periodically groan and wail in loud tones, "I said I would repent before I died, but it won't come! It won't come! I can't repent." It is never safe to reject God's grace once you've seen and known it! However, to set the record straight simply, if you're worried about committing the unpardonable sin, then by definition you certainly haven't committed it! What touches us more directly is the next statement (36-37):

b. we are accountable for our words God takes us at our word. With our mouth we confess that "Jesus is Lord" and are justified; we are saved, pardoned! The Pharisee who says, "Jesus is Satan's agent" is condemned by his words. Why? Because words come from inside; they reveal what's in the heart. And while this is a pronouncement against their blasphemy, it certainly is an admonishment for us to guard our words, to control our tongues, to not let any unwholesome talk come out of our mouths, because it reveals what we're truly like inside and God takes it very seriously!

Now having answered the evil charge that some lodged against him, Luke says that others of them demanded a sign. So we read next about:

III. The Unmistakable Sign He Offered To Israel (38-45) Think:

1. how arrogant this demand for a sign was (38) They had just seen Him heal a man with a crippled hand and cast out a demon so that a man who was blind and mute could see and hear! Now, like proud Pharaoh of old who told Moses, Perform a miracle!, they wanted a miracle on demand! Well, at that Jesus draws the line (39-40). This generation means just that, the generation of Jews to whom He came. This generation was wicked and adulterous spiritually. They were unfaithful to God and were rejecting His Son, and yet He offered them a final definitive sign once and for all. He refers to the well-known story of Jonah and says that:

a. Jonah's "resurrection" was a sign to the Ninevites Did you ever stop to think about why the people of Nineveh listened to Jonah's preaching when he finally went there? These were really wicked people, so bad that God was going to destroy them outright. Nineveh was the capital city of the Assyrian Empire, the most powerful city on earth at that time. Why did they ever listen to a lone Hebrew prophet who told them that their city was going to be destroyed in 40 days? Lk. 11:30 says that Jonah was a sign to them. Somehow, they knew he was swallowed by the fish and spit out three days later alive, either because he told them and they believed it or because the story was somehow passed to them by the ship's crew or something. At any rate, they knew no man could live after that and yet he did. So, they took his "being sent back from sure death" as a sign from God and they listened to Him; they repented and God withheld judgment. And in like manner:

b. Christ's Resurrection was THE sign to Israel Early in His ministry He had cleansed the Temple the first time and in Jn. 2:18-22, the Pharisees had come to Him and demanded a sign to prove his authority to do that. His response was, Destroy this Temple and in three days I will raise it up. What He meant was, "Kill this body of mine and in three days I will rise!" That was THE definitive sign that He planned to give Israel to demonstrate once and for all that He was God the Son, their King. Yet in the end of the Gospel, after it happened, the Jewish leaders didn't even deny it; they merely paid the guards at the tomb to lie about it! Even Jesus could hardly believe:

2. the utter depravity of this generation in Israel He said, and this must really have angered them, that even:

a. the pagan men of Nineveh repented at Jonah's preaching (41) They were totally pagan wicked idolaters and Jonah didn't do a single miracle, yet even they had enough sense to recognize the presence of God through Jonah's preaching because his God had delivered him from death! Then He adds that even:

b. the pagan Queen of Sheba sought Solomon's wisdom (42) She lived all the way in the south of Arabia, Yemen today. She simply heard of the tremendous wisdom that God had given Solomon and it was enough to make her travel more than a thousand miles of desert and wilderness, from the very edge of civilization, just to hear him. And she, a heathen Gentile Queen! Oh, if these idolaters can see the hand of God at work, why can't these Jewish Pharisees? Something greater than Jonah and his fish is here. Something greater than Solomon's famous wisdom is here. The Messiah is here, God come in the flesh, the King, and still they refuse to believe the greatest sign God can possibly offer! That's why Jesus said that:

c. Israel was in a worse state now than in former years of idolatry (43-45) We often take this as a lesson about demons and demon possession but that's not Jesus' point at all. Verse 45 makes it clear that the house he's talking about is "this generation". Israel was like a demon possessed man whose demon had left. For centuries Israel was possessed by the spirit of idolatry. She had been unfaithful with every foreign god imaginable. But God had exorcised her. He had cast out that idolatrous spirit through the Babylonian exile. She never worshipped idols again after she returned; her house was swept clean, but it was empty. So then that wicked spirit found seven others and came back with them. In place of her idolatry, Pharasaism had risen with its outwardly clean appearance, but now she was doing more wickedness than when she was idolatrous! Her current state was worse than her former condition! At least before there was an open rejection of God but now there was the pretense of loving Him, all the while being full of evil and wickedness that rejected Christ and sent Him to the cross! And note how Jesus turned the tables on the Pharisees. They had called Him demonized but, in the end, He declared that THEY were the ones demonized!

And then in the midst of all of this, Jesus' family showed up and we close by looking at:

IV. The Unimaginable Privilege He Affords To Us (46-50) Jesus' mother Mary and his half-brothers came to see Him. For what purpose we don't know and for that matter we don't know whether He took the time to see them or not. That's not important, but Matthew recognized that it happened at a tremendously opportune moment for Jesus to use it to teach the Jews and us a spiritual lesson:

1. Jesus' true family are not those related to Him in the flesh Israel thought she had a relationship to God by natural means, by the fact that she was physically descended from Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and that made her His covenant people. But Paul put it this way, They are not all Israel who are called Israel - Rom. 2:28-29. It takes more than that.

2. Jesus' true family are those with hearts that do the will of His Father If there is a relationship to God, there will be the obeying of His will! There will be a life that matches the relationship. These Pharisees, this generation, had no heart for God's will and hence no relationship to God. And if we are truly born again, the same will be true of us. We will be doing His will.

But look what He's saying; WE are His family. We are His very brothers and sisters and mothers, the very children of God, just as He is! Watchman Nee tells about a new convert who once came in deep distress to see him. "No matter how much I pray, no matter how hard I try, I simply cannot seem to be faithful to my Lord. I think I'm losing my salvation." Nee said, "Do you see this dog here? He is my dog. He is house-trained; he never makes a mess; he is obedient; he is a pure delight to me. Out in the kitchen I have a son, a baby son. He makes a mess, he throws his food around, he fouls his clothes, he is a total mess. But who is going to inherit my kingdom? Not my dog; my son is my heir! Oh, sometimes we're a mess, aren't we? And yet, as John said, How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that [dear friends] is [exactly] what we are! - 1 Jn. 3:1.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King's Message Veiled In Parables: Part 1 - Ch. 13:1-23, 34-35

The events of chapter 12 were truly a turning point in the ministry of Jesus. The leaders of Israel rejected Him multiple times. They began plotting to kill Him and ended up blaspheming the Holy Spirit and committing the unpardonable sin. Even though they have not gone all the way to nailing Him on the cross yet, their course is sealed at this point. Despite His popularity because of His power to heal, the people will ultimately follow their leaders. At this point, Israel has rejected her Messiah. And because of that, from this point on, several key things begin to change in Jesus' ministry. For instance, we have recorded in chapter 13 a large block of Jesus' teaching, one that we usually call "The Parables Of The Kingdom". It is a series of seven stories that Jesus taught the crowds, but His teaching is now very different from the last large block of teaching that we have in the Sermon on the Mount in chapters 5-7. And before we look at the actual parables themselves, let's notice first that in the process Matthew carefully gives us:

I. An Explanation Of Jesus' New Tactics (1-2) This day in Jesus' life is often called "The Busy Day" because so many things are recorded as happening on that same day. Jesus went from the conflict in the synagogue in 12:9 and was followed by crowds, healed many sick people, and evidently, entered into a house where he had another conflict with the Pharisees and as that finished, His family arrived to see Him. As He left there, even greater crowds gathered as He went down to the shore of the Sea of Galilee near Capernaum. The press was so great that He stepped into a small boat and pushed out a little way from land so that He could be heard by all as He taught them. All of this was a common occurrence in His ministry. But notice:

1. what He did differently (3a) This time, instead of teaching the crowd and giving them moral instruction:

a. He began to use a different teaching method: He spoke to them in parables. Matthew does not record any parables before this point, yet here are seven in a row. Indeed, it must have been something brand new because in verse 10 after He just finishes the very first parable, the disciples run up to Him and ask Him why He's doing that. It's obviously something new. Parables are simple stories or illustrations taken from everyday life, intended to convey a spiritual meaning. Yet, contrary to what we usually think, they are not for the purpose of making something understood in simple terms. The disciples who had walked with Jesus and listened to Him for years had no idea what the parable meant and had to ask Him to explain it! They were stories given to the crowd without explanation. Suppose this morning, I had stood up to teach and said, This spring I went out to plant grass seed in my yard using my Scott's broadcast spreader. Some of the seed fell on my sidewalk and driveway and it never grew. I have a few brown spots in my yard now where the new grass died after a few weeks. In some places there were weeds whose seeds drifted over from the neighbor's yard and the weeds kept the grass from growing. But much of my lawn is bright green and in some places it's really tall. Think about that story. Have a nice day! See ya! You'd be utterly confused, but that's exactly what Jesus did! If you came to the parables of Mt. 13 without all your prior knowledge of Christianity and the New Testament, you might clearly understand the story of the parable, but you would be totally lost as to its meaning, wouldn't you? That's why this flabbergasted the disciples; it was something new for Jesus. But then as we look at the actual meaning of these stories, we notice a second thing:

b. He began to proclaim a different message about the Kingdom. Up to this point Jesus' preaching has had a particular message, The kingdom of heaven is at hand, it's near, it's about to be set up! You see it in passages like 4:17 and 10:7. There is an urgency for Israel to repent, to change their ways and receive their King. But the nation did not; they rejected Him. So now Jesus begins to feed His disciples a new message, one which you clearly see in these parables: the kingdom is not going to come for a while. It's a message of postponement and that will be particularly clear in the later parables in the chapter. There's going to be a period of sowing the seed. The wheat and the weeds will grow together until the time of harvest. The mustard seed will grow into a huge tree and the yeast will work through the whole batch of dough. The fish caught in the net will be sorted at the end of the age. He makes it clear now that there is going to be an interim period of time before the Kingdom comes, a period that we call the Church Age. The coming of the Kingdom will be postponed, put off until a later time when Jesus will return. This is a new message for Jesus. Now let's look at:

2. why He did these things differently The disciples asked Him that directly (10). And Jesus proceeded to give them three reasons, actually four. First, Jesus wanted:

a. to reveal important truths to His disciples (11a, 16-17) The word secrets, literally mysteries, is a special word. It refers to something that was previously hidden but is now being revealed. 1 Pet. 1:10-12 explains again what Jesus said, This salvation was something even the prophets wanted to know more about when they prophesied about this gracious salvation prepared for you. They wondered what time or situation the Spirit of Christ within them was talking about when he told them in advance about Christ's suffering and his great glory afterward. They were told that their messages were not for themselves, but for you. And now this Good News has been announced to you by those who preached in the power of the Holy Spirit sent from heaven... [NLT] The righteous men and prophets in the Old Testament longed to know God's program, how His Kingdom would come and what the words meant that they were given. But they weren't given that knowledge; it was kept a mystery to them. They had to be content to trust God. How privileged we are to know things that were hidden for centuries to godly people! The mystery Christ is revealing now to His disciples is the mystery of the Church Age, the fact that there will be an extended period of time between His first and second comings. He begins now to make that clear to them using these parables. But at the same time, He used parables:

b. to veil these truths from those who rejected Him (11b-13) Jesus did not want to reveal these precious truths to the wicked unbelievers who were rejecting Him. These people saw Him do the miracles but they did not see that the miracles meant that He was the Messiah. They refused to see! They heard with their ears but their hearts were too cold to listen. And because of their rejection of the great light that had been given to them, now judgment was beginning to fall. Their opportunity was being taken away. Jesus would speak to them often in parables that they could not understand, unless and until their hearts believed in Him. Those who had a trust in Him, they were given more understanding by the parables. But those who didn't, their little bit of understanding was taken away in judgment. Yet even in that there was mercy. The simple stories were easily remembered, even if not understood. They could easily lie dormant in the mind, waiting for faith to come, and if it should, they would suddenly spring to life; understanding would bloom and blossom with faith. So, on the one hand Jesus used parables:

c. to conceal, fulfilling the words of Isaiah (14-15) He quotes Is. 6:9-10. The people of Isaiah's day were the same way. Isaiah's ministry was to people who would not listen. And now Jesus says His generation has become the real fulfillment of that statement. And note the reason: not because God hid the evidence from them but because their hearts were calloused and they refused to open their eyes and look! So, Jesus gave them what they wanted. They didn't want to understand, so He adopted a method that would give them what they wanted. They would hear and not understand, unless they repented and turned to Him. But on the other hand, Jesus used parables:

d. to reveal, fulfilling the words of Asaph (34-35) Here He quotes Ps. 78:1-3. Asaph says that his teaching in this long Psalm would be a parable, a story that would explain the difficult things that had been hidden from days of old, things that God wanted His people to know about the stories of their own history. And Matthew says that's exactly what Jesus was doing here and even more, using parables to reveal to His followers precious truths that had been hidden ever since creation!

Now with all of that background, we're ready to pursue:

II. An Examination Of Jesus' First Parable, the Parable of the Sower, as we've come to call it. Actually, we should probably call it the Parable of the Soils, because it is not really about of the planting of seeds, but rather about the soils in which seeds grow. Let's read:

1. the content of the parable (3b-8) Sowing or planting seed, was something so common that everyone knew how it worked. The vast majority of the crowd listening to Jesus had actually participated in it. Around the Sea of Galilee there were many fertile fields and maybe even at this moment Jesus could point in the distance to a man sowing seed in his field as He talked. Seed was held in bag around the waste and strewn by hand over the ground. Jesus noted that in this or any field there were four types of soil and He was illustrating the kind of reception that the seed would get in the various kinds of soil. Now, fortunately for us, Jesus' disciples did not understand the meaning of His simple story at all, so privately He gave them:

2. the explanation of the parable (18) The sower or the farmer is one who sows the Word (Mark 4:14 adds); in particular he broadcasts the message about the coming of the Kingdom. The sower represented Jesus Himself at that moment, but it would apply to them as they became His witnesses and messengers sowing His Word in the world and, certainly, it applies to us. When the Word of God is spread to people, it falls on four types of soil, that is, four very different kinds of people. First, some falls on:

a. the hard soil (19) In those days seed was spread by hand in broadcast fashion, not planted in neat little rows the way we plant crops. Some of the seed would fall on the walking path or dirt road that went by the field where the soil was hard and packed down. That soil wouldn't open up and receive the seed, so it lay on the surface and the birds quickly came and devoured it. That hard soil represents the person who refuses to believe the Word when he hears it. He has no understanding and doesn't want any. Like the Pharisees, his mind is already made up, so when he hears the Word, it falls on a deaf ear and, of course, Satan doesn't want to take any chances so he does everything he can to make sure that person forgets what he heard! Next, some of the seed falls on:

b. the shallow soil (20-21) I had places like this in the lawn where I grew up where there was a thin layer of soil over rock and the grass stayed green until the summer got hot and the roots had to suck water from deeper down; then it browned and died. I have patches in my lawn like this now, that, for whatever reason, are hard underneath and they always turn into brown patches in summer. This shallow soil represents the person who falls away from believing. This person has an immediate joyous reception of the Word. He makes a profession of faith, reads his Bible and goes to church, but it doesn't last. When trouble comes along in his life or perhaps, he is persecuted for believing, maybe his family or his employer threatens him, when his faith is actually put to the test, he throws it away and quits. He walks away from the faith. We've all known people like this who used to believe but they don't any more. This person doesn't lose his salvation; he simply never really had it to begin with! His roots didn't really make contact with the Source of Life! Then, some seed falls on:

c. the thorny soil (22) You know, if you don't pick your weeds out this year, they leave seeds in the soil that sprout next year. So, there are places in a field where a weed patch has been and the soil, though it has been tilled, has weed seeds in it. So, when the wheat seed grows, the weeds grow up with it and literally choke it to death. It may continue to stand but it is dead to the farmer because it produces no fruit. The thorny soil represents the person who merely professes to believe. His heart is full of weed seeds like the desire to make money and to pursue selfish pleasure and it really isn't cleansed by a new birth experience. So, the person makes a profession and says, "I believe" but the weeds are still there and they control his life. He lives, not for the Lord but for himself; there is no real change in his life. He may profess salvation and perhaps even attend church, but he has never truly given his heart to Christ; he basically lives like the rest of the people around him. But hopefully, much of the field is made up of:

d. the good soil (23) The good soil is where the seed grows and produces a plant and the plant bears fruit or grain, whether a hundred seeds or sixty or thirty on its stalk. The good soil is the person who genuinely believes, one who hears the Word and whose heart is truly open so that he receives it genuinely and it produces spiritual fruit in his life. In this little verse there are two lessons for us. First:

(1) genuine believers consistently produce fruit in their lives Jesus said this repeatedly, by their fruits you will know them. A good tree always produces good fruit; a bad tree always produces bad fruit. Fruit is the evidence of the nature of the plant, and in specific terms, that means a person consistently begins to display a character that is like Christ's and behavior that is like Christ's because the Spirit of Christ is now living in him and producing that. There is love and caring, compassion, willingness to sacrifice for others. There is moral purity, integrity, honesty and good works toward others. There is a genuine desire to know more of Jesus and to be with Jesus and, most importantly to see others come to know Jesus. Jesus never told us to get people to make decisions. He sent us to make disciples, to reproduce ourselves in people who will genuinely follow Jesus and let Him rule their lives like we do! That's the goal; anything less than that is not real! However, the second lesson is that:

(2) genuine believers produce varying quantities of fruit All true believers have SOME fruit but not all have the SAME AMOUNT of it, just like some tomato plants may bear two and others will bear a bushel. We are not all made the same nor given the same gifts nor provided with the same opportunities to reach others in ministry. And if we are genuine, we all increase in fruitfulness over time, displaying more of the character of Christ, more and more behavior that is Christlike and often touching more people's lives. But that's a message for another time. Let's close by making personal:

3. the application of the parable It certainly shows us:

a. the importance of a right heart Jesus made the application right as He told it (9). You need the right ears to hear. You need a receptive heart in order to understand. The Jews had hard hearts and so never received the seed. The problem is not in the seed; the problem is not in the sower, nor in the sowing process. The problem is in the soil, in the heart that is listening. Personally, that ought to challenge us about the softness of our own hearts as we read God's Word or listen to it preached. Are we open? Do we come with a receptive attitude and a desire to hear from God? Those are things that even we must cultivate. But this story also helps us to understand:

b. the responses we can expect in ministry There will be plenty of people you try to minister to who don't listen, who really don't want to hear it and won't believe in Christ, no matter what you say. Why? Their hearts aren't receptive; they're hardened. There will be those who seem to make such a good start and then fall away after a while. Don't be discouraged by that; expect it. And there will be those who say they believe, but their lives don't show it at all. They're all wrapped up in life in this world and have no time for Jesus; they really have no real spiritual life no matter if they prayed a prayer way back when. These things aren't signs that you have failed. This is what happened when Jesus sowed His message and this is what will happen when you sow it too. But take heart, every field has some good soil in it! Some will listen and believe and bear fruit and grow! Don't get discouraged; keep on sowing. The Gospel will always save some but it will never save all! And finally, notice in the story:

c. the time required to reveal genuineness You can't tell if the soil is good right away; it requires time for the seed to grow. It is not the initial response, not the prayer prayed, not the momentary joy on the spot, that is the true indicator of life. You have to wait and watch over time to see whether a person is really genuine or not. Time is required to bring forth a harvest.

One final admonition: it is not for you and I to decide what kind of soil a person's heart is. Bruce McNicol tells how frustrated he was with his witness for Christ a number of years ago. He writes: "I registered for a seminar on lifestyle evangelism. The day was to begin with inspiring testimonies--new believers affirming the power of God in their lives. Before and after stories. As I looked up for the initial narrative a young man approached the podium. Vague familiarity turned to sudden recognition when he said, 'My name is Allan.' In my backrow seat I whispered to the Lord, 'You handpicked him, didn't You?' Five years earlier as a university student Allan had been an atheist who practiced his un-faith religiously. But God had plans for Allan. So He put us together in several finance classes, and we ended up becoming study buddies. Whenever accounting grew boring Allan would ask questions about my faith, more to ridicule than to search for answers. Routinely I tired of the aggressive interrogation, but I kept repeating to myself, 'What would Jesus do?' I knew the only option was to accept Allan where he was, encourage his questions, and let God take care of him. Over time in a major metropolitan city, we lost track of one another, but on this day, it became clear that God had kept track of both of us. He pursued Allan to save him. Then He brought us together that day to give me hope. Allan told the audience that he had had many questions during college days and that he hadn't liked Christians, but some fellow students who were believers had patiently listened and befriended him. God used this to reshape his thoughts about Christ. Until that morning I had no idea that Allan had trusted Christ, much less that God had chosen to use what I considered feeble efforts at representing Him. That conference session filled me with hope." [Interest, Oct 1992. Page 3.] So be encouraged, dear friends. Even though some of the soil will prove not to be receptive, let us not grow weary of sowing the precious seed, ...for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up. - Gal. 6:9.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King's Message Veiled In Parables: Part 2 - Ch. 13:24-33, 36-52

As we began our look at Chapter 13 last week, I spent a lot of time explaining that Christ at this point began teaching in parables, which was a new thing, because from this point on He had deep new truths that He wanted to reveal to His disciples, but He did not want to cast them openly before the fickle crowds and particularly the Jewish leaders who had rejected Him so clearly. So, He told them a series of four simple stories, stories easily understood by anyone from everyday life, with no public explanation, but then in private later explained the meaning of two of them to His disciples and added three more parables for them alone. We already looked at His first story, that of the Sower, and we noted that Jesus Himself was the sower who was sowing the Word and they, the ones who truly responded to the Word, were the good soil in which it grew and produced fruit. Now, through the rest of these stories, He proceeds to unveil for them a new concept. He starts each one saying, The Kingdom of Heaven is like... Well, they already thought they knew what the Kingdom was going to be like: Christ would be the King and Israel would be delivered from Rome and by His mighty power He would soon rule the world from Jerusalem. End of story! Through these parables, Jesus is saying, "No, it's not going to be like that at all. Here's what is going to happen. You, the good soil, are going to go and bear fruit and I am going to show you what I am going to do with you and those who will believe in Me through your word." So, the second parable He tells describes:

I. The Nature Of Christ's Kingdom: We call it The Wheat and The Weeds (24-30) Older translations use the word tares instead of weeds because the term actually refers to a specific species of weed that commonly grows in Israel called bearded darnel. Darnel is poisonous to humans and so if it is found in a wheat field, it must be carefully separated out. This man had an enemy who wanted to ruin his harvest and deliberately planted darnel in his field of newly planted wheat at night. He didn't discover it until much later but the point of the story is his decision:

1. wheat and weeds will grow together in the field until the time of harvest Instead of weeding the field the way one might pull weeds out of a garden, the two crops would be left to grow side by side all summer until harvest time. The field will contain both until then. Well, fortunately for us, later on Jesus privately explained the meaning of the story to His disciples in (36-39). The field is the world and YOU, who belong to My Kingdom, are the good seed, the wheat! But the world will also contain a great deal of bad seed, darnel, those who belong to Satan. In other words, the story teaches that:

2. Christ's followers will coexist with Satan's in the world until He returns Instead of setting up the Kingdom of God in all its fullness on earth right away, there's going to be a long growing season first, a season that has now lasted 2,000 years and the time of harvest has not yet arrived. Now the fact that this story hinges on is that:

a. the two are often difficult to distinguish Darnel looks so much like wheat that it is often called "false wheat"; one can barely tell the difference in the growing stalks until the heads appear and ripen; the wheat ripens brown while the darnel ripens black. That's what verse (26) is referring to. Of course, there will surely be other kinds of weeds in the field that are easily seen; there will be people that are obviously evil in the world. But the point of the story is that there will also be many, many that look almost like the real thing! Take Jesus' greatest enemies, the Pharisees, as an example, religious people with the law of God constantly on their lips and yet in their hearts servants of the Evil One plotting to murder God's Son. The world contains many, many of those, yet:

b. Christ cannot remove the evil ones from the world during this age When darnel grows in a field of wheat, the roots of the plants all wrap around and intertwine with one another, so when you pull up a stalk of darnel, you will most likely uproot wheat with it. That's what verse (29) means. So the farmer lets both grow until he's ready to harvest and that's what Christ is doing during the age in which we live. He is ruling as King over the hearts of those who follow Him, but letting the Enemy's children grow side by side with his own. However, when this season ends and it's time for the harvest:

c. Christ will remove all evil at His return and reign with His own (40-43) When it is time, when this age of Gospel sowing and reaping ends, we read in chapter 25 that Christ Himself will return and sit on His throne and all the living people of the earth will be gathered before Him. Those who are not His children, who don't belong to Him will be sent away to be burned in everlasting fire, while His children will go together with Him on into the wonderful Kingdom that the Father will set up on the earth.

This is the new message: God will bring His Kingdom about on earth, but much later. For now, God's Kingdom will consist of ruling over those who come to believe in Jesus Christ. Christ planted His followers in the world to grow and increase until harvest. And speaking of that, immediately after telling this parable, Jesus went on to tell two more smaller ones, the subject of which is:

II. The Growth Of Christ's Kingdom The first one is the Parable of:

1. The Mustard Seed (31-32) The mustard seed is an extremely tiny seed which the Jews commonly planted in their gardens. It is so small that it was used in proverbs; Jesus Himself talked about having faith as small as a mustard seed. And yet the mustard plant can reach a height of 10 or 12 feet and assume the characteristics of a small tree or sapling, even though it isn't one, large enough for birds to nest in. Jesus' point is obvious:

a. the tiniest seed produces an immense plant It's amazing if you think about it; the tiniest known seed produces the largest plant in the whole garden. But follow the thought from the parable before; Christ planted His followers as good seed in the field of the world, here He is planting a tiny seed in the field that will grow into a huge tree. It means that:

b. the number of Christ's followers will grow amazingly large and it has. From the handful of a dozen disciples and 120 gathered in the Upper Room, today there are over two billion people who claim in some fashion to be followers of Christ, fully one third of the population of the earth. And even though not all of those are probably genuine believers, still Christianity is actually the largest religion on earth and remember, earth's population has grown from perhaps 250 million total in Jesus' day to more than 7 billion today. The growth of the church has far exceeded population growth! Jesus said He planted something extremely small that would grow into something amazingly large, and it has, but right away Jesus added the Parable of:

2. The Yeast (33) Now to understand this one you have to know something about making bread. The thing that makes bread rise is yeast and yeast is a tiny fungus that causes a kind of fermentation process when you put it in bread dough that causes the dough to rise. Of course, in those days Acme didn't sell yeast in nice little packets. So, every housewife would keep a lump of yeasted dough or sourdough, in a bowl somewhere. And when bread was made, that small lump was taken and kneaded together into a fresh batch of dough and all mixed together and a piece of that was saved for next time. The point is that:

a. a small amount of yeast spreads itself through a huge batch of dough It just keeps on multiplying and spreading. And notice that Christ mentions 3 measures, or 3 sata of flour. That's approximately a 50-pound sack of flour. One small piece of yeasted dough mixed into this huge amount and left to rise will thoroughly permeate the whole thing. Just so:

b. Christ's followers will thoroughly permeate the entire world Christ sent His disciples into all the world to all the peoples and in Revelation we see people gathered around His throne from every people on earth. Jesus put a tiny pinch of followers into Judea 2000 years ago and today there is literally not a country on earth where there are no believers and His church is rapidly closing in on the goal of having followers of Christ from every people on earth. It has taken a long time to rise but it is permeating the whole!

Well, at that point Jesus left the crowd in verse (36) and went into a house to speak privately with His disciples. After he explained to them the story of the wheat and the weeds, He went on to give to them two more stories to help them understand:

III. The Cost Of Establishing Christ's Kingdom The first is The Hidden Treasure (44) You know there were no banks in those days, so a person with a large bag of gold or silver might resort to hiding or burying it on their own property. Of course, the secret might die with the owner and the land be sold. This man found a treasure, something of immense value, hidden and covered up in a field, but by law, whoever owns the field owns whatever is in it. So, he had to buy the field and it cost him everything he had, yet he joyfully sold everything else to get this treasure because it was of such great value to him. Then comes the story of The Pearl of Great Price (45-46). This man is a lover and a seeker of pearls and when he finds one that is of immensely great value, he willingly sells all that he has in order to buy it. The obvious point of both stories is that:

1. a man will joyfully give all he has to get what he treasures most We will gladly give up everything in order to get what we value most highly. Now many interpreters try to say these stories are about US getting Christ, but if you think about it, in all these parables, Christ is the one doing the acting, sowing the word, planting the wheat, planting the mustard seed, putting the yeast into the flour. So, Christ is the man finding the treasure and the merchant finding the pearl of great price. These are about CHRIST getting US! And they teach us that:

2. Christ joyfully sacrificed EVERYTHING to obtain US because He treasures US most Listen to Heb. 12:2, which mentions Jesus, the founder and perfecter of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame... There was a great joy that was set before Christ, that was on His heart, a joy so great that He was willing, not only to sacrifice His own life but to suffer the very wrath of God by taking our sins upon Himself. And what was that joy? What was so valuable, so precious to Him, that He would sacrifice everything, all that He had? It was US! In Eph. 1:18 Paul prayed that we, all believers, would comprehend, ...what are the riches of his glorious inheritance in the saints. We're the precious treasure He knew was hidden in the field of the world! We're the pearl of great price that He wanted for His own. And He paid an awful price to get us for Himself, ...you were ransomed from the futile ways inherited from your forefathers, not with perishable things such as silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without blemish or spot. - 1 Pet. 1:18-19. Never forget that; it cost Christ everything to begin to establish His Kingdom by purchasing us for Himself. Oh, but one day there will be:

IV. The Consummation Of Christ's Kingdom, as Jesus explains in the Parable of The Net (47-48) Fishermen on the Sea of Galilee commonly used dragnets or seine nets, where one end would be held on shore and a boat used to drag the other in a large semicircle out into the lake and back to shore further on, thus surrounding all the fish in that area. The two ends were then pulled in together and the enclosed fish dragged onto shore. People saw this happen every day, but His point was that:

1. fishermen sort out the bad fish when the net is full and drawn to shore, not while it's out in the water. The fishermen can't control what comes in the net; the edible fish and the worthless fish are all dragged in together and then have to be sorted from one another. Fortunately, Christ chose to explain His meaning to the disciples in (49-50).

2. Christ will sort out and destroy the wicked at the end of this age The wheat and the weeds grow together through the long growing season until the harvest, when they will be separated at last. So, the good and bad fish swim together in the sea surrounded by the net, until the net is full and it's time to drag it to shore. Just so, when this age is over and Jesus returns to set up His Kingdom, He WILL sort out and destroy forever all those who are evil and don't belong in His Kingdom. For those who are not His own, who have not received Him and followed Him, there will be a fiery furnace with weeping and gnashing of teeth that lasts forever!

Well, there you have His plan for this whole age laid out in simple parables. And as He finishes, He asks His disciples... (51). They reply, "Right! Sure! Absolutely!" But of course, they didn't really; they couldn't, not yet. But Jesus goes on to give them one more parable which is not really about the Kingdom itself, but is actually a parable about the parables! It's about:

V. The Understanding of the Kingdom It's the story of The House Owner (52). In that day, the owner of a house would often have a storeroom, a treasury, a protected place where he kept his valuable possessions. Some of the things that were part of that treasure had value because they were old, for example, a ring or piece of jewelry passed down from the parents, just like your precious antiques or old coins. But other things have value because they are new; they are fresh and unused, like the quilt or the knife you just finished making or maybe your new iPhone that you might keep in a safe place. So, when the owner had guests and wanted to honor them, he would bring forth out of that storeroom things that are both old and new to give as gifts. His point was that:

1. a house owner brings out of his treasury things new as well as old The new things have great value and are needed, not only the old. We don't discard the old things; they have value too, but we must also have the new things to bring out. But then notice that Jesus says the owner of that house is like a scribe, like a student of the Scriptures (which were what we call the Old Testament at that time), one who brings out things from this wonderful treasury valuable truths to give to his students. Now, Jesus says, if this scribe is instructed and understands and believes the news about the Kingdom of Heaven and becomes a disciple, a child of the Kingdom, then out of his study of the Old Testament, he, like the houseowner will bring forth valuable things, both old ones and new ones. Put simply:

2. believing students of the Old Testament who understand the Kingdom will bring forth from it new treasures as well as old His disciples thought they understood the Scriptures. They thought they knew what God was going to do, how He would set up His Kingdom. But this teaching about the Kingdom opened up a whole new range of understanding to them eventually. Look with me at Jesus Himself walking in veiled form with two of His own disciples on the Emmaus Road after His resurrection in Lk. 24. They couldn't understand how it could be that Jesus had died (verse 21). They had in their own minds how the Kingdom was supposed to work. But look what Jesus did in verses 26-27. He brought new things out of the old. He went back and showed them how Moses wrote about Him, how David wrote about Him, how Isaiah wrote about Him. And by the time He was done, they understood how Christ would come to suffer first and then enter into His glory later! Then as He appeared to all the disciples look at verses 45-47. He opened all their minds! He gave them new understanding of the Old! He showed them all how the Scriptures predicted both His death, His resurrection and how the news of Him should be preached to all the world. He brought out new treasures from the old. All through the Gospels and Acts you see again and again His followers writing, "This was to fulfill what was written..." and quoting the Old Testament; the rest of their lives they were busy bringing new treasures out of the old treasury.

And you can be too! Look for Jesus on every page. You'll find Him there...

In Genesis He's the Seed of the Woman who will crush the serpent's head.

In Exodus He's Passover Lamb.

In Leviticus He's our Sacrifice and High Priest.

In Numbers He's our Pillar of Cloud to guide us.

In Deuteronomy He's the Prophet like unto Moses.

In Joshua He's the Captain of our Salvation.

In Judges He's our Deliverer.

In Ruth He's our Redeemer.

In Samuel He's our Refuge and Strength.

In Kings and Chronicles He's our Righteous Ruler.

In Nehemiah He's the Rebuilder of our Broken Walls.

In Job He's our Ever-Living Redeemer.

In Psalms He's the Lord our Shepherd.

In Proverbs and Ecclesiastes He's our Wisdom.

In Song of Solomon He's our Lover and Bridegroom.

In Isaiah He's our Prince of Peace.

In Jeremiah He's our Righteous Branch.

In Daniel He's the Fourth Man in the furnace.

And in Malachi He's the Sun of Righteousness with healing in His wings.

He has all kinds of wonderful precious things He wants to give you, to reveal to you, out of the ancient treasury of His Word, if you will have ears to hear! And when you don't understand them, do what His disciples did. Don't just gloss over and forget them. Don't presume that you know all you need to know because you learned stuff in Sunday School. Seek Him out! Ask Him what He's saying, and if you persist, He will reveal it to you! The first study book I ever got was a Strong's Concordance. It's gone now, but on the flyleaf, my pastor had inscribed these words from 2 Tim. 2:15 and I leave them with you as words I've tried to live by: Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly handling the word of truth.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King Received By The Masses - 14:13-36, 15:21-39

As we enter Chapter 14, Jesus is finishing up His two year long ministry in Galilee. Even though He has been rejected time and again by the Pharisees and leaders of the people, that has not been the case with the common people; they have come to Him in ever-increasing numbers. What I have done for you this morning is to lump together five events that occurred in four different geographical areas of Galilee in Chapters 14-15 and omit until next week more stories of rejection by the Pharisees, so you can see just how well the masses of people received Him. Let me begin with a brief:

I. An Overview Of Jesus' Later Galilean Ministry The first thing you'll notice as we study this section is that:

1. He gained great popularity and drew huge crowds It seems He cannot go anywhere without drawing a crowd, and I mean not just a handful. On two of these occasions the crowd that came to Him contained 5000 men one time and 4000 men the next. If someone had counted women and children, there may have been 10,000-15,000 people flocking after Him at once. Of course, when that sort of thing happens repeatedly, it creates a huge disturbance in the land and may be viewed as a great disruption by authorities. So, during this same period, you also see that Jesus:

2. He repeatedly attempted to withdraw from them Christ now begins to try to get away from the crowds, to seek out solitary places, wilderness places, which is quite a contrast to sending out His disciples to preach in all the village synagogues. In our study today we'll see Him go by boat from Capernaum to a deserted wilderness area near Bethsaida-Julias on the northeast of the Sea of Galilee, but a crowd of 5,000 follows Him, so he sails back and lands on the plain of Gennesaret on the western shore of the sea, where another crowd gathers. Then He strikes out all the way north outside of Israelite territory, to the region of Tyre and Sidon, 50 miles out of the way, and when He returns, He skirts the Sea of Galilee, going down its eastern side into a sparsely populated area along its southeast shore which is part of the Decapolis, another Gentile area. But another crowd of 4,000 finds Him, so He sails across to Magadan (near Magdala). Then, in chapter 16 you'll see Him swing north again to Caesarea Philippi and then on to the Mount of Transfiguration, Mt. Hermon, before returning to Capernaum, and finally leaving Galilee permanently, never more to return. Can you see that He's trying to stay away, to stay out of the limelight, to avoid the crowds? Now, why is He doing that? Well, besides obviously not wanting to create unnecessary trouble, He had two other reasons. First:

a. He desired to focus on training His disciples Now that it is perfectly clear that the Jewish leaders have rejected Him, He needs to be alone with the disciples to teach and train them so that they will understand His death and resurrection and the concept of the church which He will begin through them. He has a whole brand-new set of things to teach them that they don't yet understand, but they desperately need to. And second, He wants to get away because:

b. the people sought Him out for the wrong reasons Some of them had political motives in mind and wanted to make Him King and start their own revolution. Others came simply for the benefit of being healed or fed, for their own gain, without any desire to really follow Christ. For instance, after feeding the 5000, John 6 tells how they followed Jesus and wanted Him to keep on giving them physical bread, but they refused the true Bread of Life. That's why Jesus withdrew to these solitary places. So now let's look at the:

II. Five Major Events Of Jesus' Later Galilean Ministry The first is:

1. the feeding of 5000 near Bethsaida (14:13-21) See how the crowds follow Him on the shore and He can't get away? But rather than try to pull out all kinds of specific lessons from the details of the story, let's try to look at the bigger picture. Please notice that this miracle was not done primarily for the benefit of the crowd. Yes, Matthew tells us that Jesus had compassion on them and healed their sick, but it was the disciples who thought of the fact that everybody was getting hungry and proposed a solution, "Let's dismiss the crowd now!" However, Jesus puts it squarely back on them in verse 16, YOU give them something to eat! What a crazy thing to say! He tells them to do something that is obviously impossible. Why? Because He wanted to show them something. As He took the two little fish and the five loaves and they multiplied in His hands to feed the entire crowd:

a. He demonstrated to His disciples His ability to supply immense needs He even showed them the process; He made them bring what they had to Him, the 5 loaves and 2 fishes. Then He blessed and multiplied what they had. He wanted to make clear to them that He was the source of what was about to happen. What they had could only be multiplied through Him as the inexhaustible source, but through Him, their little bit could touch thousands of people! And at the same time:

b. He taught His disciples their responsibility to minister In verse (16) He's showing them that they have a responsibility to do something about the need of the many; they couldn't just ignore it because it was too big. As He had them distribute the bread, the miracle of His multiplication passed directly through their hands and the many were satisfied. He showed them that through Him they could and they must minister to the many. Now when you read John 6 which tells what happened after this, and how Jesus later explained to the crowd when they found Him again the next day, I am the Bread of life, you begin to see the real point of this miracle. Jesus is saying to them, "As I have done with the bread, so you can do with Me! You can share Me with the multitude, with everyone and there is still plenty left over. You have responsibility to do this very thing, to share ME with the whole world, and through you, I will turn this little handful that you have now into millions of those that will receive Me!" Friends, He's still doing this ongoing miracle today with you and I, still multiplying the Bread of Life through our hands over and over to thousands and there's still plenty left for more! We have a responsibility to the multitudes of spiritually hungry people on earth who have no way to get anything to eat spiritually. Will we say, "The task is too big; there are too many!" and turn away from them? Or will we give Jesus whatever little loaves and fish we have and let Him multiply it to reach millions? Next, we have the story of Jesus:

2. the walking on the water afterwards (22-33) That evening, Jesus sent the crowd home and put the disciples in a boat to head back across the Sea, while He spent some time alone with the Father. And sometime after 3 AM He caught up with them by actually walking out to them on the sea. However, the amazing thing about this story is not Jesus walking on the water, but rather, Peter walking on water! Peter gave Him the opportunity to provide a tremendous lesson by his daring request to walk on the water like Jesus was doing. So, in that moment:

a. He demonstrated to His disciples His ability to empower them Verse (29) says, Peter got out of the boat and walked on the water and came to Jesus! Think about that. He, the fisherman who had jumped into the sea hundreds of times, now stood on its surface and walked, not just a step, but walked toward Jesus until he was within arm's reach. And though we focus on how he got overwhelmed by fear and began to sink, notice that Jesus' reply was, Why did you doubt? His point is, "If you trust Me, I can empower you to do anything I say, even if it seems impossible, even if you're afraid, even if it involves walking on water! But you have to trust Me! If you trust Me, you can do anything!" What a valuable lesson that was going to be when He gave the Disciples their impossible assignment, Go and make disciples of all nations! It's as impossible as walking on water! But He prefaced that by saying, I have all authority in heaven and on earth and He followed it by adding, And I will be with you always, even to the end of the age! "If I tell you to do it, you WILL do it; I will be with you and empower you to do it! Further, by walking on water and by stilling the storm instantly:

b. He confirmed His identity to His disciples yet again Look at verse (33). The last time He stilled a storm in a boat on the sea in 8:27 they ...marveled, saying, "What sort of man is this, that even winds and sea obey him?". This time they figured out the answer; they realize that He's the Son of God! And they fell down in the boat and worshipped Him as God and He did not refuse it. Listen, to serve Jesus you first have to know who Christ is. He is God the Son, Lord of the Universe. And when you are convinced of that, you can trust Him. You can do whatever He bids you to do! Fearsome circumstances blowing all around you don't matter; He's the Master of the winds and the waves, so you can do anything He commands! Only believe! Now we come to the third event:

3. the healing of many at Gennesaret (34-36) The storm blew them slightly off their intended course and they landed on the northwest side of the lake, the Jewish side, but a bit south of Capernaum on the tiny plain of Gennesaret. He was no sooner there than He was recognized and a crowd began to gather once again and Jesus healed quite a number of sick folks as He passed through, evidently slowly walking back toward home in Capernaum, with people simply begging Him to touch the hem of His garment as He went. From the little that is written about it, the only point I see is that:

- He demonstrated to all the sweeping extent of His love The key word appears three times in most translations: ALL. All the sick folks in the area came, they ALL touched Him and they ALL were healed. There was no preference or distinction; Christ did not love one more than the other or deliver one but refuse someone else. The whole subject of physical healing we'll have to save for another day, but what we see here is the heart of Jesus. He loves ALL, He wants to save ALL, and He will save and help ALL who come to Him, who simply reach out to touch Him! None are excluded! The Lord ...does not wish for any to perish but for all to come to repentance. - 2 Pet. 3:9. What an example this must have been for His disciples! Well, now comes some more conflict as we enter chapter 15 but we'll save that and move ahead to look at:

4. the deliverance of the Canaanite woman's daughter at Tyre (15:21-28) To get away from the crowds, this time Jesus withdraws all the way north completely out of Jewish territory, to the region of the Phoenician cities of Tyre and Sidon which were part of Syria. And there, this woman comes out to meet Him, by ethnicity a Canaanite, one of the ancient enemies of Israel. She is not part of Israel and she knows it, yet interestingly enough, she calls Jesus, Son of David, the Jewish title for the Messiah. She is showing Him that she is not an idol-worshipper, that despite her heritage she worships the God of Israel and she begs for mercy and help for her oppressed daughter. At first Jesus puts her off by silence, which is unusual for Him. It seems He was waiting for His disciples to respond and eventually they do, because she's annoying them by following after them and crying out. It seems they're actually wanting Him to heal her daughter so she'll go away. Notice it is to THEM He says in verse 24, I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. In saying that:

a. He affirmed to His disciples the primary nature of His mission Jesus was the Messiah of Israel. He sent His disciples out to the lost sheep of the House of Israel to preach that the Kingdom was at hand and told them not to go into any of the towns of the Gentiles. John says, He came to His own and His own did not receive Him. God's order of things was "to the Jew first and also to the Greek". Even the early church went first to the Jews, and it took tremendous movement on God's part to get them to go to the nations! But when the woman came and fell before Him, she did not argue about that; she knew He was Israel's Messiah; she simply begged for grace. And as Jesus interacted with her:

b. He previewed to His disciples His heart for all nations He wasn't really being derogatory like many Jews would have been. He's merely illustrating, "You wouldn't take your child's plate from the dinner table and feed it to the family pet, would you? That wouldn't be right!" But in faith she responds, "Even the little dogs live by the children's crumbs that fall from the table!" Jesus marveled at her faith. In contrast to Peter's little faith, she had great faith. She believed that there was more than enough for everybody, that the Messiah of Israel could be the King of the whole world, that His power was enough to help all, and that His mercy was great enough to want to help all! She understood. She had it right and so He did what she asked and He used her faith to help his disciples begin to catch a glimpse that the salvation He came to provide was big enough and planned to include all nations. In fact, next Jesus takes a bold step to reinforce that idea. As He returns from Tyre and Sidon, He passes around the Sea of Galilee to the east and south to another barren section in the area known as the Decapolis, where we have the miracle of:

5. the feeding of 4000 in Decapolis: (29-39) The people of this area were largely Gentiles, heathen idolaters, although they had lots of contact with Jews. They swarmed out of all their towns to Jesus and what does He do? For three days He teaches them and heals all of their sick just like He did the Jewish crowds at Bethsaida and at Gennesaret and then He feeds them exactly the same as He had fed the Jewish 5,000! In other words:

a. He now poured out before His disciples His love toward non-Jews He welcomed them, He touched them, He healed them, something that pious Jews would never have done. His own disciples must have been taken back by how openly He embraced these Gentile people, just as openly as His own people. And look at the result in verse (31):

b. He brought them to glorify the true God, the God of Israel! They recognized Jehovah, Israel's God as the True and only God. None of their gods ever had power to make the blind see and the lame walk. Christ healed so that He might draw them to Himself. He wanted the pagan world to recognize and believe in Him. And so:

c. He displayed and taught His disciples compassion for them Look at verse (32). The same compassion He had on the Jews who were like sheep without a shepherd, He had on the non-Jews who might faint on the way home! Jesus is beginning to prepare the way for something brand new, for the church, for that new body of believers in Him which no longer has a middle wall of partition that divides, where Jew and Gentile alike are brothers. It took a long while before those early Christians could stop thinking, "For God so loved the Jews, that He sent His only Son..." and start thinking "God so loved the world...", but Jesus was planting the seeds for it even here, showing His disciples His love for the whole world.

Oh, how the people came to Him. Everywhere they had their arms open wide, they wanted Him. And He wanted them too; He had great compassion on them. Yet He knew most of them did not truly understand; their hearts were still too blind. They wanted His benefits, His healing, His deliverance, His help, but most were not prepared to follow Him as their Lord and God. So even as He loved the masses, He deliberately invested His life in the few who were, and through them He changed the world. Those are the two poles of the ministry which He entrusted to us: compassion for the multitudes while investing deeply in the few. Erasmus was a devout scholar who remained loyal to the Catholic Church while sympathetic to the cause of the Reformers. He gave the church its first published Greek New Testament in 1521 which in turn became the basis for Luther's German translation, Tyndale's English translation and a century later, for the King James Bible. Erasmus is credited as being the source of a classic fictional story that has been retold many times over the years. In the story, Jesus returns to heaven after His time on earth. All the angels gather around Him to learn what happened during His days there and Jesus tells them of the ministry, of His miracles, His teachings, His death on the cross, and finally of His resurrection. And when He finishes his story, Gabriel the Archangel asks Jesus, "But what happens now?" Jesus answers, "I have left behind eleven faithful disciples and a handful of men and women who have faithfully followed me. They will declare My message and express My love. These faithful people will build My church." "But," responds Gabriel, "What if these people fail? What then is Your other plan?" And Jesus answers, "I have no other plan!" Jesus' plan was simple; love the whole world but invest in the few and instill in them your vision for the world, because through them you'll change the world. We're it, folks. We're Jesus' plan; He has no other. Let's let Him instill in us His vision for the whole earth and let's reach it by imparting that vision to others like us who are ready to step out on the water with Him and give Him their loaves and fishes and let Him reach the world through them.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Rejection Of The King - Mt. 11:1-16:13

The King Rejected By The Leaders - Ch. 13:53-58, 15:1-20, 16:1-12

At the same time that Jesus has been finishing up His ministry in Galilee and trying to withdraw and escape from the crowds in order to have time with His disciples, every time He crosses back into Jewish territory the Jewish religious leaders stand ready to attack Him and try to discredit Him. They had already rejected Him with finality back in chapter 12, where they committed the unpardonable sin by blaspheming the Holy Spirit. From that point on they continued to try to discredit Jesus before the people. I have lumped together for our study today three occasions where Jesus was further rejected in chapters 13-16. Immediately after that busy day in Capernaum where Jesus taught the parables of chapter 13, He tried to get away from there by going to visit his home town of Nazareth, about 20 miles away, but there we read that:

I. Jesus Was Rejected Because Of Familiarity (13:53-58) This was not the first time Jesus had attempted to teach here. Luke 4 tells us that, very early in His Galilean ministry, the very first place He went was his hometown of Nazareth. On that occasion in the synagogue, He openly claimed to be the Messiah and they dragged Him out of town and tried to throw Him over a cliff! But now months have gone by, maybe a year. Jesus has been all over Galilee and so have His disciples. He has become famous. His miracles are well-known; the people of Nazareth have heard the reports of the heal-ings and the casting out of demons. So now Jesus comes back home to give them one last opportunity to receive Him. So He waited until Saturday and took the opportunity once again to teach in the synagogue. Well, Matthew records that:

1. the people of Nazareth were amazed at His wisdom and miracles They were astonished. They had known Him for 30 years; He grew up there. He never went to any religious school; He was a carpenter like Joseph His father. Nothing like this happened in all that time. Yet, with their own ears they can hear His great wisdom and they have heard the reports of His miracles; Mark says he even healed a few sick people there. They were awed that these things were happening through Him and they didn't deny them:

2. yet they were offended at Him because of familiarity The word offend in verse 57 in the Greek is skandalizo from which we get our English word scandal and it means, literally, to put a stumbling block in the way. A skandalon or stumbling block was a very technical term; it meant the part of a trap which springs it, the trigger stick. So, the animal goes for the bait, pushes against the trigger stick and the trap springs shut and catches him. These people of Nazareth were caught in the trap of unbelief. They couldn't get out of it, and the trigger stick, the thing that sprung the trap was familiarity. They had known Jesus as a regular human being for 30 years. He had brothers and sisters that Mary and Joseph had after Him who also grew up there and became normal people like the rest. His brothers and his sisters all still lived in the village with their families. For his neighbors to acknowledge that He was different from them, that He was greater than they were, indeed to believe that He was the Messiah of Israel, seemed preposterous to them. They had known Him too well! So instead, they became angry at Him. And therein is:

3. the lesson for us (57b-58) Jesus seems to be quoting a proverb that was well known in his own culture; we have a proverb that is similar but shorter: familiarity breeds contempt. When you are familiar and comfortable with something or someone and they change, it's hard to change your view of them and when they ask you to, you get negative! Jesus was saying that you can expect that in sharing the Gospel or any time you're speaking for God, there will be two places where you may have difficulty getting a hearing: first, in your hometown among people who have known you all your life and second, in your own house, that is, among your relatives and family who have known you all your life. Now this is a proverb, which, in my thinking, means a probability. It is not true in every case. In some cases, on the mission field and even here, when one person comes to faith and changes, it eventually leads to their whole family or even their whole village coming to faith. Yet many times, even in cases like that, that person has to endure through a lot of rejection first before it happens. Why? Because people who know you well and whose hearts are not in tune with God can't bring themselves to honor or respect you in spiritual things, because they know you merely on an earthly level. To them you are still "little Johnny" or "old uncle George" or "my spouse". In their eyes you are just like them; for them to admit you have a relationship with God that they don't have, to have to give you that respect or honor, often causes contempt and even anger, at least at first. Sometimes over time God will use your life to overcome that initial rejection, but other times, people just can't get past the familiarity, even as the people of Nazareth couldn't. Now Jesus is NOT saying that you shouldn't witness to or share Him with your family or your neighbors or those who know you well. Of course, we should do that and He can often use it greatly. He is warning that when we do, we should be prepared for rejection and not surprised by it.

Dr. James Boyce writes, *"During WWI one of my predecessors at Tenth Presbyterian Church, Donald Grey Barnhouse, led the son of a prominent American family to the Lord. He was in the service, but he showed the reality of his conversion by immediately professing Christ before the soldiers of his military company. The war ended. The day came when he was to return to his pre-war life in the wealthy suburb of a large American city. He talked to Barnhouse about life with his family and expressed fear that he might soon slip back into his old habits. He was afraid that love for parents, brothers, sisters, and friends might turn him from following after Jesus Christ. Barnhouse told him that if he was careful to make public confession of his faith in Christ, he would not have to worry. He would not have to give improper friends up. They would give him up. As a result of this conversation the young man agreed to tell the first ten people of his old set whom he encountered that he had become a Christian. The soldier went home. Almost immediately--in fact, while he was still on the platform of the suburban station at the end of his return trip--he met a girl whom he had known socially. She was delighted to see him and asked how he was doing. He told her, 'The greatest thing that could possibly happen to me has happened.' 'You're engaged to be married,' she exclaimed. 'No,' he told her. 'It's even better than that. I've taken the Lord Jesus Christ as my Savior.' The girls' expression froze. She mumbled a few polite words and went on her way. A short time later the new Christian met a young man whom he had known before going into the service. 'It's good to see you back,' he declared. 'We'll have some great parties now that you've returned.' 'I've just become a Christian,' the soldier said. He was thinking, That's two! Again, it was a case of a frozen smile and a quick change of conversation. After this the same circumstances were repeated with a young couple and with two more old friends. By this time word had got around, and soon some of his friends stopped seeing him. He had become peculiar, religious, and -- who knows! -- they may even have called him crazy! What had he done? Nothing but confess Christ. The same confession that had aligned him with Christ had separated him from those who did not want Jesus Christ as Savior and who, in fact, did not even want to hear about Him. [J.M Boyce, Christ's Call To Discipleship, Moody, 1986, p. 122-23]* Now I'm not advocating that particular method of sharing; the point is that familiarity will often lead those closest to us to reject us in the spiritual realm; we can expect it. Next, we move on to chapter 15 where:

II. Jesus Was Rejected For Breaking Tradition (15:1-20) To us today, a tradition means a quaint little custom like standing when the Hallelujah Chorus is sung. But that's not what it means in this passage. To the Jews, tradition was a huge body of sayings and rules that had been taught by the Rabbis and although it was unwritten, it was passed down orally over the centuries. Later it was codified into what is called the Mishna and eventually the Talmud. It was the commentary of respected men on what the Scriptures really meant. Now with that in mind, let's look at Jesus':

1. the confrontation with the Pharisees (1-2) This party of Pharisees and scribes, professional students of the Scriptures, were not local people; they came all the way from Jerusalem to Galilee. They were probably a delegation sent to confront Him and here's their:

a. the complaint: You break the Rabbinic tradition of handwashing! Jesus' disciples were breaking the "tradition of the elders", the "unwritten law" because they did not wash their hands before eating. Therefore, their food would be considered defiled and unclean. Now please understand that this had nothing to do with personal hygiene, like they were eating with hands full of mud or something. The rabbis had developed a process that was to be followed before eating. One must always take a handful of water and wash the hands before the meal in case one had, for instance, been to the market and touched a Gentile or had touched anything that a Gentile had previously touched and made unclean. It was to protect against ceremonial defilement. One entire section of the Mishna is called Hands and specifies things like this: If a man poured water over the one hand with a single rinsing, his hand is clean; but if over both hands with a single rinsing [they] are unclean, unless he pours over them a quarter-log or more. And they took these rules so seriously that Rabbi Jose[ph] says, "whoever eats bread without washing of hands, is as if he lay with a whore" and Rabbi Eleazer says, "whoever despiseth washing of hands, shall be rooted out of the world." [John Gill - Mt. 15:2]. Mark's account adds that they had many rituals like these, including the special washing of pots and pans, and other things. So, it is not that Jesus and His disciples never washed their hands; the charge is that they did not follow Jewish ceremonial law, however, instead of answering that charge, Jesus made a:

b. the countercharge: You nullify God's law by your tradition! (3-6) Jesus turns the matter back on them by citing an illustration to prove they that they hold tradition higher than the Scripture itself. The Scripture declares that a man is to honor his father and mother under penalty of death. Jesus quotes Ex. 20:12 and 21:17 and interprets it to mean that that included caring for them if they were destitute or elderly. But the Jews had developed a tradition that a person could dedicate whatever he had to God. He could pronounce the word Corban, "it is a gift", over it and then it was set apart to God's use. Once he did that, it remained there in his house until he physically gave it at the Temple and he could not use it, even to help needy parents. It's similar to a case I read about in the news some years ago, about a family whose child starved while they had hundreds of dollars in the bank that "belonged to God", even though God says if you don't provide for your own family, you are worse than an infidel! His point was that they actually held their own traditions in higher regard than they did the Word of God itself. And that led to His:

c. the rebuke (7-9) For the first time He calls them hypocrites, actors. He quotes Is. 29:13 and says it was written about people like them. Their lips said they loved God, but their hearts were far from His. Their worship was empty and useless because they taught human traditions in place of God's Word. Sadly, there are millions like them today, people who profess to believe in and worship God, but their hearts are far from Him because they value and keep human traditions and disregard the authority of God's Word. Mainline church denominations in America and elsewhere are filled with them. Some practice the keeping of ornate rituals which they hold very dear, thinking that by this they please God and He accepts them. Others simply ignore the Scripture and teach the accepted "traditions" of our culture, affirming things like the theory of evolution, the practice of homosexuality or the taking of human life through abortion. See how greatly angered Jesus was by people like that; it moved Him to give an:

2. the exhortation to the crowd (10-11) He made it clear to all: Defilement is in the heart! Uncleanliness is a moral matter, not a physical one. What goes into your mouth does not make you unclean in God's eyes; what comes out of your mouth does! Well, this upset the disciples (12-14). They were worried about Jesus making enemies of the leaders, but He answered by plainly:

3. the denouncing of the Pharisees He said they are not plants that God planted; that is, they do not truly belong to or represent God despite their religiosity! Moreover, though they claim to be leaders of the blind, they themselves are blind leaders who don't understand the very Scripture they claim to venerate. They are leading people astray, away from God! Now that was hard for them to grasp and accept. I know. I studied in a college and a seminary full of professors who were just like them, regarded as providing exemplary religious leadership, yet totally dismissing the very core truths of the Word of God. It was very hard for me to grasp that such people did not truly belong to God and were blind guides leading people astray. But they were! Peter still couldn't get it and that led Jesus to give a:

4. the deeper explanation to the disciples (15-20) He desperately wanted them to see that:

a. what is in the heart is what matters to God, not what we eat The things we eat go into the stomach and are eliminated. They never touch the heart, the real person, and cannot make a person unclean to God. But evil actions of all types come out of the heart and they are the evidence of true moral uncleanness. It is sin that breaks fellowship with God; eating with unwashed hands defiles nobody in His sight. Now in Mk. 7:19, Mark comments that by saying this Jesus was declaring that:

b. all foods are clean in themselves The disciples were surely thinking about all the dietary laws in Leviticus 11, the various animals that were declared clean and unclean to eat. But if you look closely, 15 times in that chapter, God says this or that shall be unclean TO YOU! Jesus is revealing something nobody really noticed. These things were not unclean in themselves; they were to be regarded as unclean because of God's command not to eat them. Now I believe that the reason God gave dietary laws to Israel was very practical; they needed protection from germs and diseases and exposure to things that we now know to be harmful. Eating raw pork can give you trichinosis, for example. Meat eating animals carry infection and rodents carry diseases. Without telling them why, God simply gave Israel a set of rules that protected them physically but the uncleanness came not from the thing itself, but rather from the breaking of God's command! Here Jesus actually declared all foods clean and the New Testament reaffirms that repeatedly, with Paul saying things like all food is clean in Rom. 14:20 and everything God created is good, and nothing is to be rejected if it is received with thanksgiving, in 1 Tim. 4:4. We are no longer bound by Israel's dietary laws, nor are we cleansed by the keeping of human traditions; whether we are clean or unclean before God is determined by the state of our hearts!

Finally, we move on to chapter 16. Now Jesus returned from Tyre and Sidon to the Decapolis and then back to Magdala in Jewish territory on the west shore of the Sea of Galilee, and this time the Pharisees, along with their own rivals, the Sadducees, were waiting for Him, and this time:

III. Jesus Was Rejected For Refusing To Give A Sign (16:1-12)

1. the Jewish leaders once again demanded a miraculous sign (1) They were testing Him, trying to put Him on the spot and force Him do a miracle on demand for them, hoping to discredit Him in some way. The demand seems rather ridiculous in light of the myriads of healings and exorcisms Jesus had done, but they wanted a bigger sign, a sign from heaven, more than just a healing or casting out a demon. They wanted a sign that was unmistakably of God, that could not be denied as being from God, but Jesus would not produce such a sign on demand. Instead:

a. He rebuked them for not understanding the clear signs of the time (2-3) Here's the source of the old proverb, "Red in the morning, sailors take warning; red at night, sailors delight". The Jews, especially those in Galilee who lived by the sea where the weather was so changeable, were very well versed at reading the weather. They could look at the sky and see what it meant, but Jesus was implying that there were a multitude of signs already in front of their noses that pointed to what time it was on God's timetable, not the least of which were the miracles He did! The signs of the presence of God's Kingdom were all around them, yet they were unable to discern them, so Jesus refused to give them any further miraculous sign from heaven, except:

b. He repeated that He would only give the sign of Jonah (4) This was the same answer He had given them the last time they asked back in 12:39-40 and it referred to Jesus' own death and resurrection. Jesus Himself would be the last and final sign to them. He would die and then rise again after 3 days; that was to be the sign to end all signs, but even that one they didn't discern when it happened. Some people today would still like to have a sign; they want us to produce some proof that Christ is truly God. Well, the Scripture says God gave proof of that to all men by raising Him from the dead! That sign is all He is going to give to hardened hearts!

Well, with that Jesus got into a boat and sailed off across the lake again with His disciples toward Bethsaida, intending to head north to Caesarea Philippi and, as they arrived:

2. Jesus warned His disciples against the "yeast" of the Jewish leaders (5-7) Amazingly:

a. they misinterpreted this to refer to them forgetting to bring bread Somehow, they thought that He was talking about baking bread and warning them not to borrow any lumps of sourdough from the Pharisees. I can't imagine why, but while they are discussing this, Jesus speaks again (8-11):

b. Jesus chided them for not yet grasping that He could provide They should've learned the bread lesson long ago. They were near or perhaps AT the very place where He had fed the 5,000! Bread is no problem to Him; He can feed thousands! Rather:

c. Jesus was warning them against the teaching of the Jewish leaders (12) Ah, now they get it. He's talking about the teaching, about the doctrine, of the Pharisees and how insidious and penetrating and evil it was in their society! Their teaching spread so easily and so thoroughly, just like yeast does in a lump of bread dough. Even a little bit of it can contaminate the whole lump in no time.

There is a warning here for us today. Jesus wants us to be careful, careful not to take the traditions of men, elevate them above the Scriptures, and cling to them so tightly that we can't hear God as He tries to point it out. How quickly this can occur! There is a legend about a very poor monk who lived in a remote part of China. Every day before his time of meditation, in order to show his devotion, he put a dish of butter up on the window sill as an offering to God, since food was so scarce. One day his cat came in and ate the butter. To remedy this, he began tying the cat to the bedpost each day before the quiet time. This man was so revered for his piety that others joined him as disciples and worshipped as he did. Generations later, long after the holy man was dead, his followers placed an offering of butter on the window sill during their time of prayer and meditation. Furthermore, each one bought a cat and tied it to the bedpost. [sermonillustrations.com] Generations after Jesus, here we are. What things do we teach and practice that are merely human traditions we're still clinging to, perhaps so tightly that we'd rather ignore God's voice than let go?

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King Announces The Building Of His Church - 16:13-27

Chapter 16:13 marks a turning point in the book of Matthew and in the ministry of Jesus. His rejection by the nation is now sealed and from here on, He is going to give the last months of His life almost exclusively to ministering to His own disciples, preparing them for what lay ahead, specifically for the cross and the resurrection and ultimately, for their lives in the church after His return to heaven. They needed to be ready to face the huge things that were about to come upon them. So, Jesus continued His pattern of trying to escape the crowds and took the disciples out of the boundaries of Jewish territory altogether. They walked about 25 miles north of Galilee to the area of the Gentile town of Caesarea Philippi which lies at the foot of Mt. Hermon. Actually, it was a pretty strange thing for Jesus to do, but it was in this area, far from Jewish life and leaders and crowds, that He chose to give His disciples the two deepest revelations that they would need to sustain them. First of all, it was in this setting that:

I. Jesus Brought His Disciples To Fully Comprehend Who He Is (13) It was a leading question, the kind a Rabbi would ask his disciples to test them. In asking it, Jesus claims for Himself the title Son of Man. That's a name of the Messiah. I think the old King James puts it best, Who do men say that I, the Son of Man, am? He's saying, "I am the Messiah; what do THEY say about Me?" Of course:

1. there were many popular misconceptions (14) All Israel was speculating about Jesus' identity. Herod and his cronies thought He was John the Baptist risen from the dead. Of course, everyone knew from the prophet Malachi that Elijah would return one day before Messiah came, and some thought Jesus was he. The apocryphal book of 2 Maccabees said that the prophet Jeremiah had hidden the ark of God in a cave before the captivity, and some thought Jesus was Jeremiah come to bring it back. Others thought Him to be just another in the line of the prophets. But almost nobody comprehended that He was the long-expected Christ! That's not much different from our own day. People still think of Jesus as merely a man, perhaps a religious leader, a great teacher, a prophet of old, but nothing more. Yet that question was simply meant to draw out of the disciples:

2. the true understanding they had come to (15) "After all that you've seen, after these years of being with Me, what conclusion have YOU come to?" And Peter speaks for them all as he confesses his true belief (16). He says:

a. you ARE the Christ That is, You are the long-promised, long-awaited Messiah of Israel, the Promised One spoken of all through the Law and the Prophets. And further:

b. you are the Son of God Of course, they didn't yet have a full comprehension of the Trinity or even of the incarnation, but they had come to know one thing: that in this man was God or God was in this man. He was more than a man. He was more than a prophet. He was not an angel. He was God's Son, of like power and authority with God Himself. The Living God was somehow standing before them in the body of a man! And as Peter confessed that and the rest agreed, THAT fulfilled the purpose of Jesus' whole ministry up until then! He needed them to fully comprehend who He was! And that's what people must come to realize today! It will do no one any good to view Jesus merely as a man. If that's all He is and you look at His actual words, He was either a liar or a lunatic! He claimed to be God and in order to be saved, a person must come to understand that He is more than a man, that He is God. They must bow before Him as Thomas later did, saying My Lord and my God! I'm sure Jesus was thrilled with this and He immediately pointed out:

3. the source of their comprehension (17) You can't come to that understanding merely from somebody else telling you. It is not academic information; it is something you have to become convinced of on the inside, in your very heart, by the work of God, by the convicting work of the Holy Spirit. It is not enough to say "Oh yes, He's God" in an intellectual sense and go on with life. We must know that in our hearts, and when we do, it will transform our lives! Calvin Miller, in his book A Hunger for Meaning, has written: "At the person of Christ two roads diverge. Those on the barren road disappear over the horizon of time, muttering in hunger that He was only a carpenter. Those on the other road, the road of faith, admit that they cannot answer all questions. Still, they are on a pilgrimage to drive a stake in a promised destiny. And ever and anon they stop and cry for the overwhelming joy that fills them and spills over the brink of meaning. 'He is the Christ!'"

Well, now that the disciples had passed the test and were firmly convinced of Jesus' true identity, He was ready to reveal to them a second thing:

II. Jesus Now Fully Revealed To His Disciples What He Planned To Do (18-26) Now for the first time, Jesus:

1. He revealed that He would form His own assembly: the Church (18) Jesus says He is going to create something new, not a kingdom but a church. The Greek word is ecclesia which means a called-out assembly. It was commonly used to indicate the calling out of people to a public meeting. Jesus is not planning, for now, to reign directly over every person, rather He is planning to call out of all the people in the world a select group to follow and belong to Him, a church, of which He is the head. And further, He says that, not only is He going to form or create such a thing, but He is going to build it. That word build literally means to build a house; He's going to lay the foundation and construct it all the way through until it is a finished building, just the way a builder constructs a house. Now you remember from the Sermon on the Mount that a wise man builds his house on what? A rock! So, Jesus declares that He will build His church upon a rock! But here's where the difficulty in understanding comes in. The name Peter means rock so our Roman Catholic friends say this rock means Peter himself and out of that stems the belief in the authority of the popes as his successors. We, of course, don't believe that in the way they do, even though Peter WAS essentially the one to start the church by his sermon on the day of Pentecost. Protestants have typically said that Jesus either meant that He Himself was the Rock or that the confession of faith voiced by Peter was the Rock. Personally, I think that rather than get involved in that debate which has gone on for centuries, we should look at what the rest of the New Testament says about it. In Eph. 2:20 Paul wrote that we, the household of God, are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Christ Jesus Himself being the Chief Cornerstone. I think Jesus is saying that:

a. His disciples would form the foundation of it He Himself was the cornerstone from whose lines the whole building was designed and Peter and the rest were the critical foundation layer upon which the whole building would rest. Come over to our house sometime and look at the wooden deck around our pool. The top rail goes up and down and one post leans this way and another that. It's because I was young and cheap when I put it in and didn't use any cement; I didn't pour any footers to set them on. So, the deck has a poor foundation. The bottom of the posts rests on the ground or on a piece of loose cinder block and over the years they've moved and settled. I didn't really intend on it lasting 30 years! That's why Jesus invested 3 ½ years grooming 12 men, investing Himself in them day after day, pouring His life into them, so that they would be a sure foundation layer for the huge assembly He was planning to build who would come to faith, not through Jesus Himself, but through THEIR word! So, them being absolutely convinced of who He was and following Him no matter what, was the foundation of the whole thing and:

b. He would build it as they added new disciples - 1 Pet. 2:4-5 says As you come to him, a living stone rejected by men but in the sight of God chosen and precious, you yourselves like living stones are being built up as a spiritual house... He's building a spiritual house for Himself to dwell in, a house made of people and He has been building it bigger and bigger. He built it from the Twelve to 120 to 3,000 then 5,000, then sent the apostles out all over the Roman world and gathered in thousands. Today it's millions upon millions and He's still building it, still calling out people from all over the world to belong to HIS assembly, the CHURCH! And here comes the neat part. In verse 18 He boldly declares that:

c. He would send His church to assail Satan's Kingdom Where He took His disciples to tell them this was no accident. The town of Caesarea Philippi was only built around the time Jesus was born and it was named in honor of the Roman Emperor when He was about 18. For several centuries before the town was built, the location was a religious shrine called Paneas, because it was dedicated to the Greek god Pan. The side of the mountain at Paneas was an immense rock face with a huge gaping hole in the middle of it. Out of that huge "mouth" in that day poured a large stream of water which became one of the sources of the Jordan river. An earthquake has since shifted the plates and the water today comes out of the rock below the cave, but in that day inside that cave was a pool of water so deep that the ancient historians say that no one had ever been able to measure the depth. To the superstitious pagans it was like this cave was the opening to the underworld; they believed that spirits came and went from that world to this through that hole. Sacrifices were thrown into the pool as an offering to the god. That gaping maw was literally known as "the gate of Hades" or in 1611 English, the gates of hell! All over that rock face the pagan worshippers carved niches in the stone and put up statues of their god Pan, and eventually whole temples to enclose them. Now in Greek mythology the god Pan had the face and torso of a human but the legs, hooves and horns of a goat. Pan was a fertility god; the myths about him always involve seducing some nymph or goddess. You see statues of him committing sexual acts with women, with men and even with a goat, and that's exactly what his followers did. His shrine was a continual hotbed of ritual prostitution of all sorts and detestable sexual acts with goats. Let me assure you that Paneas or Caesarea was not a place that any good Jewish man went - EVER! Yet Jesus deliberately took His disciples to that detestable place. I'm sure wherever they're standing they can see the mountain face, even from a great distance, and I can just imagine Jesus pointing to the gaping hole in the mountain and saying I will build my church and the gates of hades will not be able to stop it! He's essentially saying, "That's the kind of people I'm going to send you to, to the goat people, the pagan idolaters!" The Roman world was filled with them, temple after temple in city after city dedicated to this god or that god, and in almost all of them, rampant sexual immorality combined with the worship of demonic spirits. Outside their smug home in Israel, that's what the world was like and Jesus was saying, "That's the world I'm sending you into, a world dominated by Satanic worship and vile practices. It is out of THOSE VERY people that I am going to build My church and the worst that Satan has to offer will not be able to stand against you! I WILL have worshippers from among all the peoples of the earth and the worst of heathen paganism will not stop My church from saving people!" THAT's the plan! Oh, it must have been a powerful lesson to them! And it should be to us today! We live in a world where teen girls are kidnapped or sold into sexual slavery in brothels or temples in South Asia, where children are forced to work in factories 12-15 hours a day in India or abandoned on the streets of Brazil and millions of babies are killed before they are ever born right here in America! We live in a world where people are forbidden to worship Jesus Christ under penalty of death in several countries and imprisonment in many more. We live in a world where sexual immorality is everywhere and is normal. It's an evil world, a world that Satan has dominated and organized to resist God from ruling over people's lives. But that's the world He is sending us into with the Gospel and listen, the very gates of hell, the worst evil that this world can put up to oppose Christ, will not stop Him from building His church! It IS not stopping Him and it WILL not stop us from bringing people into His assembly! Hallelujah! What a promise of victory! And in that moment:

d. He gave His followers a grave responsibility (19) He turns to Peter and gives him the keys to the kingdom of heaven. Trust me, this has nothing to do with the jokes about St. Peter sitting at the pearly gates and letting people in. When He says the Kingdom of Heaven He's still talking about His church, His assembly, and keys are a sign of authority. A steward was given the keys to his master's home and the authority to open the doors. And while Jesus may be hinting at the key role that Peter is soon going to play in the church, I think what He is saying applies in principle to all of the disciples and even to us: they would hold the "keys" to His Kingdom by their witness. As they go forth and share, those whom they brought into the Kingdom on earth get into heaven; those whom they keep out of the doors on earth are blocked from it. In other words, the entrance of people to Jesus' assembly on earth and thus His home in heaven would depend upon them! Oh, brothers and sisters, Jesus does not have any other way of building His church; we hold the keys! Whoever believes what we tell them will be saved; whoever does not will be condemned! That's the way it works! Whoever we reach and bring in, gets in; whoever refuses or whoever we neglect and don't tell, remains lost and gets blocked out! What a grave responsibility we have!

But it wasn't time to share that message yet, so in verse (20) Jesus warned them to wait and not tell anyone who He is just yet. He had another important thing to share with them. Now:

2. He plainly revealed that He would suffer and die and be raised (21) While Jesus had hinted at His death before, this is the first time that He clearly spelled it out for them in detail. What a shock it must have been to them! It was the last thing on earth they expected! So, Matthew tells us that:

a. the new focus of His ministry was to prepare His disciples for this From this time on, He began to emphasize this over and over and we'll see it repeated in 17:9, 22 and 20:17-19. He had to make them understand what was about to happen to Him and the necessity of it, but:

b. their minds and hearts were strongly resistant to it Look at Peter in verse (22). Here's the "Rock" telling the Son of the Living God how things are going to be! I'm sure the rest felt the same way, and Jesus rebukes him (23). Wow, what a contrast to what He had said five verses earlier! We often think Jesus is being harsh here, but what we miss seeing is that:

c. Satan tried to use their reaction to tempt Jesus but He refused Satan was using Peter's gutsy negative reaction to try to dissuade Jesus from going to the cross. And Jesus says, you are a hindrance to Me; that's that word skandalon or stumbling block again, the trigger of a trap. "Satan is trying to use you to snare Me!" and, of course, when Jesus tells Satan to leave, just as He did at His temptation, he does. But the lesson here is that:

d. whenever we value our earthly thoughts over God's, we obstruct Him in what He's trying to do. God's ways are not our ways and when we try to insist that He make His plans conform to our way of thinking, we stand in His way instead of serving Him; we block what He is doing. And now Jesus comes to the real punch line of this whole occasion:

3. He plainly revealed the true cost of discipleship (24) The cross is not some difficulty we bear in life; the cross was a Roman instrument of torture and death. To carry it was to be on the way to the place of execution. Jesus was bluntly telling His disciples that:

a. a Christ-follower must surrender his life and be willing to die for Him They would have to do what Jesus was going to do, to deny their own wills, to deny even their own lives and pick up their crosses and follow Jesus to Calvary! It means death, death to my will, death to my own dreams for life, death to life the way I want to live it. It means putting my life completely into God's hands, even if that means literally dying to accomplish His mission! Then He added verse (25). In other words:

b. choosing to save life destroys it If I choose to retain control over my own life and live it my way and do whatever it takes to stay physically alive, I end up destroying the very thing I'm seeking to keep. But giving it up retains it eternally. Even if I die, I shall live forever! And:

c. nothing (not the whole world!) compares to the value of your eternal soul (26) You can have it all; you can amass everything this world can offer and it doesn't hold a candle to the eternity of life Jesus offers. That's why He expects us to choose to die, to die to self, to surrender our very lives to Him and even lose them for His sake if He wills it. Jesus said we can do that because ultimately, He:

d. Christ will come to reign and eternally reward each according to what he has chosen (27) Those who choose to follow and die here and now will enjoy the glory of life in God's Kingdom with all its joys forever. Those who refuse the cross receive their eternal reward of being shut out of it forever.

Facing what Jesus shared with them that day was a scary thing for His disciples as they contemplated the scary task He gave them, then His own impending death and the call to join Him in it. As German theologian Dietrich Bonhoeffer, who was executed by the Nazis because of his testimony, put it: "When Christ calls a man, He bids him come and die." Jesus calls us to choose, to follow Him and carry out His plan in whatever way He tells us at the cost of everything we hold dear, even our own lives. When asked, "What does it mean as far as my life is concerned to be crucified with Christ?", one older believer replied, "It means three things: (1) a man on a cross is facing in only one direction, (2) he is not going back, and (3) he has no further plans of his own." T. S. Rendall comments, "Too many Christians are trying to face in two directions at the same time. They are divided in heart. They want Heaven, but they also love the world. They are like Lot's wife: running one way, but facing another. Remember, a crucified man is not coming back. The cross spells finis for him; he is not going to return to his old life. Also, a crucified man has no plans of his own. He is through with the vain-glory of this life. Its chains are broken and its charms are gone." Jesus bids us all come and die. What will you choose?

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King Demonstrates The Reality Of His Return - 16:27-17:13

As we pick up the story today, Jesus and His disciples are still about 25 miles north of Galilee in the Gentile region of Caesarea Philippi. He is now devoting Himself to the preparing of His disciples for the things that are about to happen. Last time we explored the powerful lesson He taught them about the building of a new body of people that He called His church and His plain declaration that He will have to die and be raised again to accomplish it. Of course, not only is this concept new to them, but it is also very repugnant and certainly something they're unsure about. But in that same exchange, Jesus began to introduce to them the concept that He's going to leave and then return to set up His Kingdom. In other words, He wanted them to understand that after His death and resurrection the church would be built and THEN He would return to reign as King. He needed to do something that would burn this concept of His return in glory deep into their hearts and He chose to do that through a tremendous visual object lesson that we have come to call the Transfiguration. Let's begin by looking at:

I. The Prelude To The Transfiguration (16:27-28) And after six days Jesus took... You see, the editor who created chapter divisions some 1200 years later, chose a very unfortunate place to put one here. This is all one story as you can see by the And. What Jesus promised that they would see in 16:28 is fulfilled six days later in 17:1 in the Transfiguration experience. So, these two verses are the prelude to it.

1. Jesus had introduced the concept of His return in verse (27). Jesus has mentioned it in parables but never clearly explained it. Here He connects it directly to His death and resurrection. He has just told them plainly that He is going to die and rise again; now He assures them that He IS going to return in glory to set up His kingdom. In between the two, His church must be built, but His return was a truth that He wanted them to believe and proclaim and to be absolutely sure of, so in verse 28:

2. He now confirmed the certainty of His return (28) The words Truly I say to you... are the "Stop, look, listen" sign in Jesus' teaching. He uses them when He's saying something particularly important. He wanted the disciples to take it to heart, to really know for sure that He's going to return in glory. He says, "Some of you standing here will not die before they SEE this!" Now how can that be, if He's just said that He's going to build His church first? Well, the fact is that in just a few days He was going to give to a select few of them an unforgettable visual confirmation of His return. He was going to visually show them the glory of His coming, which is exactly what He did in:

II. The Experience of the Transfiguration (17:1-4) It is easy to figure out where this happened. The town of Caesarea Philippi with the shrine of Pan and the "Gates of Hell" lies at the foot of the highest mountain in the entire region, Mt. Hermon. Its three peaks are over 9,000 feet high and are snowcapped for most of the year. Jesus essentially took His disciples on sort of a retreat in this remote region for a week and at the end of that time, He took His inner circle of three, Peter, James and John, way up onto the mountain itself in order to give them this experience. Now if we turn to Luke's account in chapter 9, we have:

1. the details of the experience recorded for us a little more clearly. Notice first of all that:

a. it was prefaced by prayer (Lk. 9:28-29a) Don't get thrown by the 8 days here while Matthew mentions 6. Luke evidently counts the day on which the promise was made and the day of the event as part of the whole, while Matthew is thinking of the days between the two. The purpose of this outing alone with them was to pray. In fact, this experience is almost exactly like that in the garden of Gethsemane would be later on. Jesus took the whole group of disciples only to the foot of the mountain as He later did to the entrance of the garden. Then He went on alone with these three closest to Him. Why? For the same purpose; He took them up there to pray, to pray with Him, probably to pray with Him about His coming death and resurrection. And just as it would later happen in the garden, you also have here:

b. the sleepy state of the disciples (Lk. 9:32) By the way, it appears that the Transfiguration experience occurred at night, not in the day as we usually picture it in our minds! Think about how much more dramatic this must have been! According to verse 37 they did not come down the mountain until the next day. So, after they had climbed the steep slope during the day, it seems that evening had arrived and as they prayed their eyes were heavy with sleep and they could hardly keep them open. It seems to be pattern with them! At any rate, Jesus seems to be praying by Himself a little distance away and their eyes begin to sense a brightness in the dark of the evening due to:

c. the glorious change in Jesus (Lk. 9:29) As He prayed, Jesus began to shine with Divine glory. His face shone like the sun, Matthew says! Picture it casting light like a bright lantern in the darkness. And His clothes became dazzling white and they also glowed. The glory of His Divine person was breaking through the earthly form that He had taken. For that brief moment, He was restored to the Divine glory He had with the Father before the world began! They were seeing Him as John did in his Revelation, as Daniel did in His vision, bright and shining with the glory of God, only it was NOT a vision; He was actually standing right before their eyes! And if that was not enough to terrify them, two men suddenly appeared with Jesus:

d. the appearance and conversation of Moses and Elijah (Lk. 9:30-31) Somehow the disciples instantly knew who they were. Moses and Elijah had been gone for hundreds of years but were the two greatest people in all of Israel's history. The giver of the Law and the greatest of the Prophets were suddenly standing there with Jesus talking! And the subject of their discussion was His death and resurrection. Luke uses the Greek word exodos, His going out of this world. His death and resurrection was a new exodus; He was crossing a new Red Sea of Death and going to stand victorious on the far shore of Resurrection and lead out with Him a new people, the Church! And Moses and Elijah have been sent back to speak with Him about it! Now the disciples more or less wake up to this scene in the dark and there is Jesus shining as bright as lightning in the night and Moses and Elijah standing there also shining with glory. They are dumbfounded. They stand there with their jaws hanging open as the conversation goes on. But then Moses and Elijah turn to leave and you have:

e. the reaction of Peter (Lk. 9:33) Peter can't bear to see it stop. He desperately wants it to continue, but doesn't really know what to say, so he basically butts in and offers to build booths for them to stay in, to celebrate the Kingdom feast, the feast of Tabernacles with them, right then and there. He now clearly sees that Jesus really IS God and He's going to be glorified and reign. He doesn't want to go back to normal, to the mundane normal life he'd known. He wanted the Kingdom to start then and there, as I'm sure they all did, but it can't be that way and suddenly they hear:

2. the voice of God from heaven Now let's go back to Matthew's account (17:5-8) God interrupted him with a glory cloud that wrapped them all about and a loud voice saying in essence, "Be quiet and get the point: THIS IS MY SON; I LOVE HIM; I AM WELL-PLEASED WITH HIM; LISTEN TO HIM!" Here is the sign from heaven that the Pharisees wanted, only now it is given to the disciples who never asked for it, the very voice of God speaking from heaven and notice what He said. First:

a. He confirmed that Jesus IS the Son of God That is what Peter confessed just a week earlier, You are the Christ, the Son of the Living God! And here is God Himself saying, He IS My Son, the Son I love! Never after this could they doubt who Jesus was! Never after this could they ever go back to thinking that He was only an extraordinary man or a great prophet. This moment drove a stake into their thinking forever: Jesus IS GOD come down in a body! And secondly:

b. He commanded that Jesus MUST be obeyed The command to listen doesn't mean simply to listen to His words. It means to DO whatever He says. God is saying, "Quit trying to get Him to do things your way and believe what He's trying to tell you and do what He commands! To use modern parlance, it is not optional!"

And therein lies our problem; we think it is! We don't fully get who Jesus is; if we did our reaction would be that of Saul. When Jesus appeared to him on the road to Damascus, His glory knocked him to his knees and blinded his eyes and His voice from heaven called Saul's name! And his first words in response were, Who are you, LORD? And when he tells the story himself in Acts 26, he says, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision! As soon as He knew who Jesus really was, he obeyed Him! That's what God expects of us! Prior to her coronation, Queen Elizabeth sent out to her friends and various Commonwealth dignitaries engraved invitations which read like this: "We greet you well. Whereas we have appointed the second day of June 1953 for the solemnity of our coronation, these are therefore to will and to command, all excuses set apart, that you make your personal attendance upon us, at the time above mentioned, there to do and to perform such services as shall be required of you." [Hearts of Iron, Feet of Clay, by Gary Inrig. Moody Press, 1979. Pages 68-69.] When someone is Queen or King, that is the rightful response! Whatever You say, I do, no excuses, no options! If we really see Jesus for who He is, that's how we respond! But before we leave this glorious mountaintop moment, I want you to see that this:

3. the experience was truly a vision of the Kingdom It was more than merely a sign for the disciples. Jesus had said they would see the Son of Man in His Kingdom with power and they did. They had a miniature glimpse of what it will be like when Jesus returns to set up His Kingdom on earth. First, they saw Jesus glorified as He will be in the Kingdom. He metamorphosized before their very eyes and His veiled glory shone through brighter than the snow on Mt. Hermon's peak! And each of the other characters will be there in the Kingdom too. Moreover, each one is a representative of a group who will be there. Moses went up to a mountaintop like this one and died and God buried him, yet here he is with Jesus in the glory. He represents all those who enter the Kingdom through death. In the Kingdom there will be those who have died in the Lord and they will be raised to share in His Kingdom. Elijah never died. He was taken up alive to heaven in a whirlwind; he was translated to heaven and transformed without dying and here He is. So too there will be those who are caught up to heaven without dying at the Rapture of the Church and be transformed on the way up. Some of us will enter the Kingdom that way! And then there were disciples still in their earthly bodies standing in the presence of it all. Just so, at Christ's return there will be living believers who stand before Him at the end of the tribulation and go into the Kingdom of His Father which was prepared for them. And in that day, they WILL ALL go ahead and celebrate the Kingdom feast! But symbolism apart, they SAW it, in all its glory! They saw it in REALITY. And that moves us to consider two:

4. the lessons from the transfiguration First, this experience:

a. it gives us the assurance of our future This may be a side-point, but it's a very important one. People ask, "Is there really a heaven and can we know one another there? Will we be reunited with those who have gone before and will we be able to communicate with them?" This is one of the clearest answers in the Bible to all those questions. There were Moses and Elijah. Moses had been dead a thousand years and he was still alive and he could still talk and he was with Elijah who lived 500 years after his time and they knew one another and were able to talk and converse! And to top it off, the disciples who obviously had never met either of them knew who they were and understood them! Of course, there is recognition and communion and personality in heaven! The disciples saw and heard it firsthand! Then secondly, this experience:

b. it gives us the assurance of His coming This experience really touched these three disciples They never forgot it. Turn with me to 2 Pet. 1:16-18. Peter wrote this at the very end of his life. At this point Christ has been gone from earth some 30 years and Peter and the rest have been preaching His return, His coming. When you think about it, 30 years is a very long time! It can get very discouraging to preach a second coming that never happens. People begin to scoff or to think they've misunderstood, yet Peter says, "This promise of His coming is no fable! We were eyewitnesses of His majesty; we saw Him in His glory, in His kingdom! We heard the voice of God who cannot lie! What we have seen MUST come to pass in reality!" The transfiguration is our guarantee that Jesus really will return to set up His kingdom. What they saw MUST be and one day it WILL be!

So, the vision passes, and when they look up, Moses and Elijah are gone and Jesus is touching them and reassuring them and things are back to normal. Soon, it is morning and they begin to descend the mountain. Their minds are still trying to grasp the meaning of what they saw and how it fits with what they know and that eventually leads to a question:

III. The Question About Elijah (17:9-13) Here's how it developed (9). Jesus warns them not to tell anyone what they had seen and they evidently didn't, not even the rest of the disciples. But notice how:

1. Jesus connected this experience to His own death and resurrection He told them to wait until AFTER He had risen from the dead. Both things MUST and WILL happen. He must die and be raised AND He will come in glory to establish His Kingdom. What they saw is a vision that displays the glory of the future, but the agony of the cross must come in the present first. He didn't want them to tell anyone until afterward because He didn't want anyone to mistakenly think the glory was going to come NOW! But the disciples were still somewhat confused. After all, they had just seen the prophet Elijah and all:

2. the Jews expected Elijah's return (10) They had been taught by the scribes that before Messiah's Kingdom can be set up that Elijah would have to return and prepare the way. This was based on Mal. 4:5 where God promised to send Elijah the prophet before the day of the Lord which would usher in the Kingdom. This was commonly known and acknowledged. The second cup of wine at Passover was known as "Elijah's cup" at Passover and they always set an empty chair called "Elijah's chair". Everybody knew Elijah had to come. So, the disciples are wondering, "Are they wrong?" or perhaps they're even wondering, "Was this Elijah's return? We just saw him up on the mountain!" But Jesus explains to them that:

3. John the Baptist fulfilled that expectation (11-13) In Lk. 1:17 we are told that John the Baptist would have the spirit and power of Elijah to go before the Lord's Christ. In Mt. 11:14 Jesus had said that if the Jewish nation would receive it, John would be the Elijah who was to come; he would be the fulfillment of the Elijah prophecy. That is, if the nation had received Christ as their Messiah, the prophecy would have been fulfilled in John. But they didn't receive Him, so Jesus says here, "That is still true; Elijah will still come (that is before My return), but the fulfillment of the prophecy has already come in John and look what they did to him!" And so:

4. Jesus reconfirmed His own pending death (12b) If they killed the "Elijah who was to come", they are certainly going to kill the "Christ who was to come". Again and again, Jesus lays it out for them, "I'm going to die but I'm going to rise again and I'm going to return."

The point is that BOTH things were absolutely certain. Jesus came to die. He came to go to the cross and rise again to save us. That's the purpose for which He came into the world and it could not be thwarted. But His return in glory to set up His Kingdom is equally as certain. He demonstrated it visibly that day on the mountain to assure us of it for all generations to come. No matter how long the process of building the church drags on in this age, HE WILL COME AGAIN! He has promised it and He will DO it! Michael Faraday was one of the most renowned British scientists of the early 1800's. To him we owe the discovery of electro-magnetism which gave us the electric motor. He discovered benzene and gave us the terms electrode and cathode. The unit measuring capacitance, the "farad" is named in his honor. Albert Einstein kept a picture of Faraday on his study wall. But Michael Faraday was also a serious Christian, a member of a small offshoot branch of Scottish Presbyterianism and a lay elder who preached in his church with an intimate knowledge of the Scriptures. When asked about his speculations on life beyond death, Faraday replied, "Speculations? I have none. I am resting on certainties. I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." [The Homiletic Review? (April 1896), p. 442]. Peter said, "Speculations? We did not follow speculations when we declared to you the power and the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ! We were eyewitnesses of His majesty! We saw it! We heard it! He WILL come again in glory!" Our faith does not rest upon speculations but upon certainties. Christ DID die and DID rise again and He WILL come again in glory! He proved it in every possible way! Rest on it! Hallelujah!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King's Instruction Concerning Authority - 17:14-27

Let me remind you that Jesus is still away with His disciples in the northern region of Caesarea Philippi, away from crowds of Galilee. He has taught them two very important lessons, the first about the building of His church as they looked down on that shrine of the pagan god Pan in the face of the mountain, and the second about the reality of His return as He was gloriously transfigured before three of them up on Mt. Hermon. Now, the next day, Mark informs us, He has just come down from the mount with Peter, James, and John, only to find a crowd gathered around the other nine disciples whom He left at the bottom and a party of scribes attacking and arguing with them. And this blossoms into an occasion for Him to demonstrate to His disciples a third extremely important lesson:

I. Jesus Possesses Complete Authority As God (14-21) The whole incident began with:

1. the failure of the nine disciples to cast out a demon (14-16) A man had come to them while Jesus was away with a son who was demonized. Don't let that word epileptic mislead you. It's not a modern medical term. The King James uses the word lunatic. It simply means, as the NIV says, that he had seizures, during which he couldn't speak but, the other gospels tell us, he would scream and he would be thrown to the ground and foam at the mouth. Everyone recognized that the problem was not a sickness but a demon, which often tried to throw the boy into water or into fire to kill him. So the disciples tried to cast it out; they commanded it to go in Jesus' Name, but it would not leave. Now, they found that strange, because they had often cast out demons before, when Jesus had sent them out to the villages of Galilee in chapter 10. Jesus had previously given them authority to do it and we're told that they came back rejoicing that even the demons were subject to them. They couldn't understand what was wrong, but Jesus openly declared:

a. the reason for the failure (17) It's hard to specify who Jesus is addressing as He vents the weariness of His own soul. It seems to embrace the whole crowd; certainly it includes the father of the boy, and in some measure, it is even a rebuke to the disciples. Yet the problem is clear: there is unbelief, literally, no faith. The people in general did not believe who He was; the father did not believe and even the nine did not quite fully grasp it. So, He simply commanded them to bring the boy to Him and:

b. Jesus displayed His complete authority to them all (18) That settled that! Jesus clearly demonstrated absolute authority; He commanded and the demon came out immediately. Why? Because He's the King, the One in charge and heaven and earth obey His every command! After His resurrection proved it once and for all, He declared to them and to us plainly in Mt. 28:18, ...All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me! That's what He wants us to understand! Now, we don't have the whole story before us here. Let's turn to Mark's account in Mk. 9:20-26. The first thing I want you to notice is that:

(1) unbelief was clearly illustrated in the father Hear the father's statement, if you can. Jesus picked that up right away and turned it around. "The problem is not IF I can; the problem is whether you believe in Me!" This man came to Jesus, merely looking for a cure in his desperation, as so many do. He probably came thinking, "Well, I know He helped many others; maybe He can help me too". But as soon as the disciples fail him, he doubts Jesus too and so, he says, if you can do anything.... For him the issue was believing in Jesus' ability, whether or not He has power to help. Many folks today want to make that the issue too: "Do I really believe He CAN do what I ask?" But that's not the issue. Faith is trusting that Jesus IS who He claims to be, God the Son. If He is that, then ability is never an issue; everything is possible. That's what Jesus said to the man. To God nothing is impossible! He is saying, "You really don't believe in Me!" and that touched a cord, a nerve. The man responded, "I do, but it's difficult; I confess my unbelief; please help me overcome it!" And that little bit, that mustard seed of faith, was all Jesus needed. You see, the first issue is faith; we must believe that Jesus is God and has all authority, and even if that seems difficult, we must cry out to Him for help and hold to it! That's the first thing that was wrong in this situation. But now let's go back to Matthew 17 and notice that that same:

(2) unbelief was imitated in the "little faith" of the disciples (19-20) They had the same problem that was so clearly evident in the man. They had little faith. In what? Certainly not in Jesus' own ability, because they had often seen Him cast out demons and heal the sick. But remember, only a week before Jesus had questioned them, Who do you say that I, the Son of Man, am? Peter had quickly confessed, You are the Christ, the Son of the living God! Well, maybe Peter had come to that realization in full, and James and John no doubt did up on the mountain when they saw His glory, but I'm not sure all the rest of them had grasped it fully yet. Perhaps that's why they didn't get to go up on the Mount and the other three did. Jesus said, "Faith is not an issue of quantity; it is not about how much faith you have." He made it clear that if you had even the smallest amount of faith, an amount as tiny as a mustard seed, you could do what seems to be the most impossible thing, like moving a mountain, because you realize that it is not you doing it, but God. You see:

(3) faith in Jesus' authority is what empowers us The issue is squarely, "Do you believe that Christ is the omnipotent, omniscient God?" You either do or you don't. If you do, then you have no doubt that He can do anything that He wills to do! The issue then becomes not "Can you," but "What is your will Lord!" If we know that something is absolutely His will, then we keep on expecting Him to do it. That's where the nine got off the mark. They had a sense that the doing of it depended on them and confessed, we could not do it.... Here's:

(4) what true faith would have looked like (21) Did you notice the verse is missing? Verse 21 is probably in the margin of your Bible because it is not found in a number of the manuscripts of Matthew that we have. However, Jesus did say it, because Mark records it in Mk. 9:28-29. He says that the problem here actually goes a bit deeper. The words this kind probably mean that the particular demon they were dealing with was of an especially strong and tenacious variety. The fact that there are various layers of demonic power and organization is implied in many places in Scripture. But in this case, it seems that when they tried once and it didn't work, they gave up in defeat and began to doubt and argue, rather than standing firm. So Jesus told them, "There are going to be some difficult situations where faith means continual prayer and fasting and waiting for Me to work, expecting that I will do it, and not giving up when there is not an instantaneous answer! If you really trust Me, if you really believe who I am and what I will to do, you don't give up!"

What good advice for us! If we are sure of who He is and certain that something is His will, then we must be willing to keep on trusting and praying and not give up! The story is told of an old woman who was known for the wonderful answers to prayer she received. People would ask her to pray for them when they had needs and she would do it gladly. Many marvelous answers came because she prayed. Then one day a person came to her to ask for her help and asked, "Are you the woman with the great faith?" She replied "No, I am the woman with a very little faith in a very great God!" That's the very lesson Jesus is trying to get across! And combined with the dramatic exorcism at His word, it must have had a powerful effect, because Luke concludes his version of the story by saying, And all were astonished at the majesty of God... - Lk. 9:43. Now as their path turns home toward Galilee:

2. Jesus called His disciples to faith in facing a coming greater event (22-23) As He had in each of the previous lessons, He again emphasizes to them that He is going to die and rise again. He reiterated to them over and again that the cross was coming. Luke mentions that He prefaced it by saying, Let these words sink into your ears! He wanted them to understand that He was God and that the cross was HIS plan, because He knew that:

a. believing Jesus would rise was even harder than casting out a demon He had just told them that if He is God, then nothing should be impossible. So, neither should this thing of His death and resurrection be impossible. It should not stop their faith. By His authority He had decreed that He would die and rise again and it would happen just as surely as that impossible demon was cast out. But

b. the disciples could not properly grasp it Luke says, But they did not understand this saying, and it was concealed from them, so that they might not perceive it. And they were afraid to ask him about this saying. - Lk. 9:45. It saddened them and they just couldn't understand how it could be. It was a lesson they could only learn at the feet of the Resurrected Christ later on.

Now, in the second portion of our text we have another component to this lesson that He's been trying to teach about authority.

II. Jesus Chose To Submit To Earthly Authority (24-27) Jesus has been away from His home town of Capernaum for some time, trying to stay away from the crowds, but now, as He returned, He was faced with:

1. the demand to pay the Temple Tax (24-25a) This was not a Roman government tax. The Mosaic Law had authorized the collection of a half shekel tax per person for the support of the Tabernacle. The Jews were still following that law and collecting it for the support of the Temple each year. Since Jesus had not been in town for some time, they evidently felt this could be another opportunity to accuse Him of breaking the Law. Peter must have seen it as a serious thing because he immediately replied, "Sure He does!" So, he went to remind Jesus about it. However, the text says that Jesus spoke before Peter could, and here is:

2. the lesson Jesus taught Peter (25b-26) He used a comparison, saying, "Now think a minute. If you were a king and were going to collect taxes to support yourself, who would you tax? Your own family? Or outsiders!" The answer is obviously "outsiders". And the conclusion is that the sons should be free of the tax even if it was a law for all the king's subjects! Now His point here is actually pretty ingenious. Once again, He used this situation to point out who He is:

a. He asserted His identity as God's Son The poll tax was for the Temple but He had called the Temple "MY Father's House" at the very beginning of His ministry when He cleansed it the first time. The second time later on He even implied it was His house, saying, "MY HOUSE SHALL...". He's saying to Peter, "Remember who I am, the Son of the Living God!" And notice that He uses the plural, sons. He included Peter with Himself as a son, and by so doing He included us with Him. We are sons of heaven, daughters of the Kingdom! And by this:

b. He inferred His freedom from being taxed by His own Father By rights He should not be subject to Temple tax. It is His Father's house; indeed, His house! No earthly religious system should have the right to collect that from Him. And by the same token, there are lots of things that earthly systems demand that we must do that are not fair and not right and if justice were done here and now, they would not be laid on us. But Jesus turned right around and paid the tax anyway in verse 27, However, not to give offense to them... Take that shekel and give it to them for me and for yourself.

c. He chose not to use His right in order not to give offense There's that Greek word skandalon again, a stumbling block, the trigger of a trap. Go pay it, lest we put something in the way that will keep people from faith, that will keep them from believing, because they will think that we are rebelling against God Himself and His law and will never be willing to listen to us. I am reminded of Paul's admonition to us in 1 Cor. 9:5-12. Paul chose to work to support Himself rather than being supported by the churches he planted, though he had the right to it, scripturally. He even chose not to marry and take along a wife, though he had the right. Why? He would not do anything that would put an obstacle, a stumbling block, in the way of the Gospel, anything that would keep people from believing, just so that he could exercise his own rights. That was the mindset of Jesus and it should be ours also! We should give no offense to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God - 1 Cor. 10:32; we should do nothing to benefit ourselves that will keep others from faith. Always be thinking of others. But then look at:

3. the miracle Jesus performed that displayed both Deity and submission Now let's read all of verse (27). He doesn't just get out His purse and pay the tax. He sends Peter down to the lake to fish and says that the fish will have the money in its mouth, not just in loose change but in the form of a coin called a stater, a Roman coin worth 4 drachmas, just exactly enough to pay the half-shekel tax for both of them. Now, Jesus never did a frivolous miracle just to show off, but what a royal way to show Peter that He really was God and did have all authority, yet even He submitted to earthly authority in order to bring people to faith! And what a great way to demonstrate one more time the principle: trust in Me and even the impossible is possible!

I'm sure you all recognize the name Chuck Norris, the well-known actor and martial arts expert. Chuck is also a very outspoken Christian. He tells about one time when he was filming his television series in Texas. After work one day he stopped to have something to drink. He was alone. As he was relaxing in a corner booth, a big man walked up and said in an irritated tone that Norris was sitting in HIS booth. Norris says, "I didn't like his tone or his implicit threat, but I said nothing and moved to another booth. A few minutes later, though, the big fellow headed back in my direction. 'Here it comes,' I thought, 'a local tough out to make a name for himself.' When he arrived at my new booth, he looked directly at me. 'You're Chuck Norris,' he said. I nodded. 'You could have whipped my butt back there a few minutes ago,' he said. 'Why didn't you?' 'What would it have proved?' I asked. He thought that over for a moment and then offered me his hand. 'No hard feelings?' he said. 'None,' I said and shook his hand. I had avoided a confrontation and made a friend. I won by losing." [Reader's Digest, Mar 1996. Page 37.] Know who you are, the son or daughter of your Heavenly Father, but give no offense. Release your "rights" so that others will see your example and believe the message of life that you desperately want to share with them.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King's Instruction Concerning Relationships - Part 1 -18:1-14

Jesus has now returned with His disciples from the region of Caesarea Philippi and the Mount of Transfiguration to Capernaum in Galilee. Mark tells us that on the long walk back the disciples had been having a dispute among themselves. They did not settle it, however, and now that they were home again, they brought it up to Jesus. It may sound generic, but the question really was which of them would be in the greatest position in Jesus' Kingdom. So, Jesus seized upon this as an opportunity to teach them about the new sort of relationships they were to have as part of His new assembly, the church. And at the top of His list is:

I. Our Need of Humility (1-4) Now picture:

1. the pride which the disciples displayed (1) The Jewish Rabbis always taught that there would be degrees of greatness in God's Kingdom. They were concerned, not only about getting honor here and now from people, but about keeping it going forever! So that sort of thinking had been ingrained in the disciples, without them even realizing it. They want to know what it takes to be the greatest in the Kingdom when it comes, so they can figure out who Jesus' right-hand man is going to be and so they can work toward the position! In response, Mark tells us that Jesus ...sat down and called the twelve. And he said to them, "If anyone would be first, he must be last of all and servant of all." - Mk. 9:33-35. Wow, that must have blown their minds; it was completely the opposite of the way they thought and the way most people today think! But even if becoming great means striving hard by doing good things, the motive is still self-centered! It's pride! So, Jesus sees a young child, maybe a little 4 or 5 year old, standing nearby and calls him over and holds him and gives them a very poignant object lesson. First, He says that:

2. child-like faith is necessary for salvation (2-3) For a person to get into the Kingdom, they have to turn, to change, to become like a little child. A little child accepts with complete trust whatever Daddy says. A little child does not worry about prestige and status; he simply puts up his arms and says, "Daddy, hold me". He doesn't ponder whether Daddy's going to give him a new toy or take him on a neat vacation; his mind doesn't think that far. He just loves Daddy! You see, salvation is not merely the repeating of a certain prayer or the believing of a set of doctrines; it is a response to a Person! It is becoming like a little kid and raising your arms and saying, "Father, I want You; I love You!" And therefore:

3. child-like humility is God's measure of greatness (4) A little child has no position. They have no authority. They don't care whether they're a pauper or a prince; they're not even aware of the difference. What makes a little child feel important? Being able to help Mom or Dad with whatever they are doing! And they have no sense that a task is beneath them. You can ask them to help you take out the trash or to help you wash the car and they'll do it with joy to help Dad. It's when they get older that they say, "Do I have to? I don't like doing that! I have more important things of my own to do!" The goal for the believer is to get back to a little-kid stage, to develop a genuine simple desire to serve God and others. That is real greatness in His eyes. T. W. Hunt writes: "At first I thought he was showing special deference just to me. He worked hard to help me find a retirement house. He watched our house and cared for it in the year of our absence before we moved into it. He saw that the lawn was mowed. When I mentioned painting the closets, he recruited fellow church members to do it, and then worked with them. It seemed that I could not mention a need without him hurrying to fulfill that need. Then I moved to his town and joined the same church. His name was Lucian Stohler, and I soon discovered that his name was synonymous with service. He continued to attend to me and my family, but now I became aware that he attended to everybody. He met needs quietly and without officiousness. He was constantly available and working behalf of others. I asked Lucian to tell me what brought this attitude into his life. He said that a crisis led him to dedicate his life and his whole personality to servanthood. He led a 'normal' Christian life until a retreat in Michigan brought a confrontation with his life purposes. The preacher spoke on the deeper life in such a way that Lucian realized the importance of the lordship of Christ. He struggled with that concept as he went back to his cabin and poured out his heart to the Lord and over the next three years, the Lord taught him the meaning of servanthood. He learned the walk of ministry, which is to say, the walk of a life given to the service of others. He learned that ministry and servanthood were synonymous. His own words were, 'My drive to serve has given me a love for people that makes me want to help them, to serve them, to witness the love of Christ to them.'" [The Mind of Christ by T. W. Hunt. Broadman & Holman, 1995. Pages 65-66.]

If Jesus commented in our modern slang, He'd say, "Now dat's what I'm talkin' 'bout!" And now He continues the lesson by going on to speak about:

II. Our Treatment Of Those Who Are Humble (5-14) The great fear is that in this world, both children and humble child-like people get stepped on! They get hurt and taken advantage of. And sometimes we're the very ones doing it! So, look at this:

1. Jesus personally identifies with "little ones" (5) Now:

a. this obviously can be applied directly to children and you must realize how much different our culture is from theirs. Though parents have always loved their children, children are seen much differently today. In that world, a child had no rights. He existed to serve adults and did the most menial jobs. Children were often seen as a nuisance or unimportant and not to be bothered with by men. Remember chapter 19 where, immediately after this, the disciples try to chase the little children who are coming to Jesus away! It was not the norm for a man to sit and pick up a child like Jesus did and love on them. Jesus is saying, "And if you want to know real humility, here, make yourself a servant of the lowliest of all, of the least, the little child! That's humility!" Jesus came into the human race as a child and His heart remained with children. The way that we treat children is the way we're treating Him! It's almost like the father who warns, "Now you treat my child right or you're going to have to answer to me!" When you love and care for and minister to children, whether your own or others, you are literally doing it unto the Lord. Maybe we parents ought to think about it that way more often when we get frazzled! However, as Jesus continues, it is apparent that He is not talking about literal children only; He begins to use the term little ones, so it appears that:

b. it further applies to all truly humble disciples, to all who humble themselves and become child-like in believing. And His teaching here seems to apply especially to new believers, people who are young and small and untaught in the faith, much like the dear Yenadi believers we serve in India. Whoever receives one of them, serves one of them, does it directly to Jesus! And just look at how:

2. Jesus warned strongly about misleading "little ones" into sin (6-9) It is a heinous thing to God to take a little trusting child and turn him or her away from simple faith in Christ, to put a stumbling block in the way of a child and to teach them to sin instead of following Jesus. Likewise, it is a monstrous thing to destroy the simple faith of a new believer by telling them how antiquated and foolish it is and pressuring them with all kinds of scientific this and that. I would not want to be in the shoes of some of our college and university professors today who actually seem to delight in doing this. Jesus said it would be better to have a heavy millstone (the kind a donkey would turn) tied around his neck and to be drowned in the open ocean beforehand, rather than have to face the judgment they'll receive for doing such a thing! Jesus said it would be better for that person to cut off an arm or gouge out an eye, if that would stop them from misleading little ones (which it wouldn't), because they stand in danger of the lake of fire! Listen, there are a whole host of drug pushers and child abusers and even parents out there who are standing under an awful weight of judgment for what they're doing to kids! And there are a whole host of teachers and professors and role models and even pastors out there who are standing under an awful weight of judgment for how they're leading simple trusting folks astray. But don't think this warning is just for folks like these:

3. Jesus cautioned us about looking down on "little ones" (10) We have to be careful never to look down on children, to think them unimportant or a nuisance or not worth bothering with. That includes the kids in our Pioneer clubs or in children's church and Sunday School who mess up the building and drive us crazy! They are important to Christ! And because we're educated and sophisticated and well off, we have to be careful never to look down on simple believers who don't know much and don't have much, but just trust in Jesus. They are precious to Him, so precious that He has charged angels with the responsibility of caring for them! Now, you can't infer from this the popular sentiment that every child or every person has their own personal "guardian angel", but there are angels that God has directly assigned to care for "little ones" of all ages and varieties, and they report straight to Him, so we'd better join them in their work; these "little ones" are important! In fact:

4. Jesus greatly desires the salvation of all "little ones" Verse (11) is in the margin of your Bible because it's not in some manuscripts, but Jesus did say this exact thing on other occasions and it certainly fits here:

a. it is the very purpose for which He came These lost "little ones" are the very ones He came to rescue! Then in (12-14) Jesus tells the story of the lost sheep. In our text here, this story is focused on "little ones", while Luke records that Jesus used the same story differently on another occasion. Here the lost sheep in the story are children and simple persons with a new blooming faith. Jesus wants every little one to be saved. In fact:

b. it is His greatest joy A child asks Jesus into their life and we may feel it's no big deal, but God rejoices because He knows that it can rescue an entire life from ruin and sin! Some may complain that reaching children is a poor way to reach whole families; that may be, but it doesn't make God any less happy! Think how happy He is when one of our little Nursery School kids or Sunday School kids asks Jesus into their heart. Think how happy He is when the simplest rural villager or the poorest slum dweller in some megacity turns from idols to worship Jesus. He loves them so much that:

c. He does not want even one of them to perish He doesn't want ANY of them to be lost. It breaks His heart and it should break ours!

Paul Eshleman, the founder and longtime director of Campus Crusade's Jesus Film Project writes this: I was in a small Karamoja village in northern Uganda. One hundred and eighty thousand people had died of starvation the year before. On the outskirts of the village was a pile of human skulls that stood as a stark testimony to the tragedy. I picked up two of the skulls in my hands and realized that just six months before, these had been living, breathing, human beings. I wondered if anyone had ever told them the message of Jesus. As we gathered some of the people together, I began to ask them, through my interpreter, to tell me what they knew about Jesus. One by one, the answers came: "I don't know who he is, sir." "Does he live in Nairobi?" "I've never heard of him." Or in some cases, they just shook their head "no" as they looked at the ground. Finally, there was just one little eight year old boy left. As I asked the question again, a tear ran down the little boy's cheek. "Sir," my interpreter said, "He would like to tell you about Jesus, but he has never, ever heard his name." The experience was a seminal moment in my life. Everything inside me shouted, "It's not fair! It's not fair that he doesn't have at least one chance to hear the message of Christ." That night I prayed, "Lord, I'm only one person, but whatever I can do, I don't want there to be any eight year old boys—or girls, or men, or women—who don't get one chance to know You." Passion for those beyond the reach of the Gospel became the driving force of my life. [Paul Eshleman in Mission Frontiers, Jan/Feb 2013, p. 6] The result is that under Paul's 26 year leadership, the Jesus film was viewed some 5.6 billion times and more than 195 million people made decisions to follow Jesus! No, we can't all do what Paul Eshleman did, but we can all have the heart and the passion that Paul had, because it is the heart of Jesus. We can all say, "Lord, I'm only one person, but whatever I can do, I don't want any of these "little ones" who doesn't have the opportunity to know You to be lost. Use me!"

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King's Instruction Concerning Relationships - Part 2 - 18:15-35

In the first half of chapter 18, Jesus was teaching His disciples about our need for humility. He held this little child before them and said, "You must become humble and child-like; that is greatness in God's eyes!" And He warned them how angry God is when someone mistreats or leads astray a child or even one of His humble child-like followers. But Jesus can just hear the disciples thinking, "OK, humility is great, but what about when somebody sins against me; what do I do then?" So, He goes on to teach them plainly in this second half of the chapter that among ourselves in the community of believers, we have two very important responsibilities toward one another that we must continually exercise. First of all:

I. We Must Hold One Another Accountable When We Sin (15-20) In the church, the body of believers, we are not simply to ignore each other's misbehavior; rather we are to confront each other, to admonish one another, to rebuke one another, so that we help each other grow more and more into the image of Christ. And Christ details for us here:

1. the process we are to use in verses (15-17). The process:

a. it must always begin with private confrontation (15) This is not what the Rabbis taught. They said, "The offending party must come to you and ask forgiveness in the presence of witnesses". Jesus said, "You go to the person who has sinned against you! You don't sit there and hold a grudge and let it fester and wait for them to feel convicted and come to you and admit their fault. And you don't go to the pastor or to some good friend to complain about it and incite them to join you in your feelings of being hurt unjustly. You go directly to your brother or sister, alone and in private so as not to embarrass them and do your best to explain what they have done and how it's wrong or how it has hurt you!" The goal is not to be vindicated, to be proved right, or to get an apology that is owed to you; rather it is to gain your brother, to restore a relationship that has been damaged with them. That's what is important! Now let me add this disclaimer; this does not mean that we have to constantly be confronting each other about every little thing we do. If I'm a little grouchy on the phone with you today when you call, on your part you might just assume that I'm having a bad day, overlook that in love and forget it. If you said, "Hi," but I didn't respond, you might assume that I didn't hear you or I was preoccupied and overlook that in love and forget it. 1 Pet. 4:8 says, Above all, keep loving one another earnestly, since love covers a multitude of sins. We do this within our families constantly. Most simple offenses like an unkind word are covered over and forgotten daily by the love we know that we have for one another and so should ours in the body be. Jesus' intent is not for us to play Holy Spirit by running around and pointing out each other's minor imperfections all the time. However, when there is an actual offense, one that is intentional and causes significant hurt, and one that perhaps the person is continuing to do, we are to take the initiative, confront our brother or sister privately and restore the relationship. 99 times out of 100 that process works. The person responds and asks forgiveness and we grant it and go forward. But in the rare case where they refuse to listen to you:

b. it may expand to include group confrontation (16) You go back to that brother or sister again and this time you take along one or two more people who are witnesses, who can see and understand what is going on and will vouch for the truth of what you are saying. You take with you people that the person would respect and listen to in order to lend weight to the truth, not to "gang up" on the person. You might take two of the person's friends who are concerned for them or two of the elders of the church and go over the matter again. If the person is at all sensitive to the Spirit, this will work. But if it doesn't, Jesus said that the matter should:

c. it proceeds to the level of church confrontation (17a) The entire assembly, the local church body, should be made aware of the issue and an appeal should be made to the offending brother or sister by the whole body. I'm guessing that would not normally be done by publicly chastising them in front of some large group meeting, but that the church would send its appointed leaders or elders to them to admonish them, so that the weight of the entire fellowship is thrown on the side of truth and right and the person is forced to make a choice: "What is most important, continuing to defend what I'm doing or my fellowship with this body of Christ?" If the person is a genuine believer and is sincere before God, it should really matter to them that their whole local body would stand in opposition to them on this issue. This should be enough to cause a person to listen but if they still don't, Jesus said:

d. it can ultimately result in excommunication (17b) They are to be counted as and treated like an unbeliever and not a part of the body. Now what does that mean? Jesus wasn't saying that now it is OK to treat them hatefully or spitefully; He Himself ate with tax collectors and reached out to pagan Gentiles! It means they are to be told they are no longer counted as part of our communion and fellowship, that we can't see how they can genuinely know the Lord and act this way, that they are simply no longer one of us, yet they must always be reminded of our love for them and our desire to see them repent. The door always remains open. They may worship with us. We will certainly pray for them. But they are no longer one of us! Now that is an awfully serious step to take; the times we have had to do it during my tenure as pastor, you could count on one hand. But sometimes, take it we must.

Bob Ahlberg, pastor of Roscoe Evangelical Free Church in Illinois shares the following: About two-and-a-half years ago we had the sad experience of disciplining a man by removing him from membership for repeated and unrepentant adultery. We followed the guidelines of Matthew 18 and his response was, "I know what I'm doing...I know what you have to do...so do what you must because I don't care! I plan to never darken the doors of this church again anyway! So why should I care!" He proceeded to divorce his wife in civil court. His wife continued to attend church, and there were many tearful times with her during prayer meetings. At cell group meetings, we prayed God would do whatever necessary to open this man's eyes and bring him back into a right relationship with himself. Last August, this man called me and asked if we could meet. At my office he threw himself on my shoulder and wept, and said he wanted to confess his sin. He said "the Hound of Heaven" had been on his trail for nearly two years, and he couldn't take much more. He set aside his divorce and sought to renew his marriage. Even his wife, who had said she probably could never trust him again, was amazed at the change in his life. This man was active in the Army Reserves, and his unit had been sent overseas to process the bodies of the military who died in Iraq and prepare them for their return to the States. God's hand was working in his life as he was confronted on a daily basis with the brevity of life and permanence of eternity. Following this tour of duty, and upon returning home, he met with the elders, confessed his sin, and asked to be forgiven for his arrogance and the impact his life had on the local body. What a joy to announce at the congregational meeting, after 2½ years, that discipline against this man was lifted and that he was restored to the fellowship! I am reminded that, when we do things God's way, he does not always respond in our timing nor with the short-term results we desire, but His way is always right, best, and true. With praise, the whole church got to see God at work restoring both the man and his marriage. [Bob Ahlberg, pastor of Roscoe Evangelical Free Church, Roscoe, Illinois (November 2005); submitted by Lee Eclov, Vernon Hills, Illinois - <http://www.preachingtoday.com/illustrations/2006/march/7031306.html>] This process Jesus has given us is powerful and effective. Of course, God cannot always guarantee such a positive outcome; He will not violate a person's will. Therefore, it is important that before we take that step with anyone, we must understand just how serious it is. Jesus went on to explain that:

2. the judgment of the church carries the authority of Jesus Himself (18) The word you here is plural, meaning all of you, the assembly, the local church. Whatever you [the church] bind [that is, prohibit or forbid] on earth shall be, having already been bound in heaven; whatever you loose [that is, permit] on earth shall be, having already been bound in heaven. In other words, the determination that you together make concerning the reality of someone's faith on earth shall be the way it is in truth in heaven! The way it is here is the way it already has been there. If the group discerns that this person really can't possibly be a true believer and behave like this, the reason they have that discernment is because it is already known to be that way in heaven and it has been communicated to them and they have Christ's authority to declare it, to speak it in His name! Whoa, that is a powerful statement! In fact, Jesus goes on to add that the:

a. agreement of the group, even if small, is validated by the Father (19) This is not a general promise about prayer that Jesus somehow suddenly thought of and threw in haphazardly at this moment. It doesn't mean that if two people agree to ask God for a million dollars or for a miracle of healing that He will guarantee to do it. He means that the agreement of even two or three sincere followers is a genuine indicator of the will of God and reflects what God will do. How can that be?

b. this is because the presence of Jesus infuses the group (20) Wherever two or three genuine followers of Christ gather together with the sincere desire to know and discern His will, to do what will honor Him, He is right there in the midst of them! His Spirit lives inside each and their agreement is the sign that together they have heard the One Spirit speaking. By their agreement, the group shall have the wisdom of the ever-present Christ to know what God's decision and view on the matter is and, therefore, His authority to declare it!

Wow, you mean if the church tells a person that their behavior is so far out of line that they are not a true believer, that they're not one of us, then they are actually NOT one of us and they are deceiving themselves? Yes, if the group is really genuine Bible-loving, Spirit-filled followers of Christ, that's pretty much exactly what Jesus is saying! That's why these are deep things; they're fearsome responsibilities and not to be taken lightly or ignored! But we must move on to look at the second responsibility Jesus declares that we have. We must not only hold one another accountable when we sin:

II. We Must Forgive One Another When We Sin (18:21-35) [Read 21] As Jesus is speaking, Peter's wheels are turning and he thinks, "Yeah, but how often do I have to put up with people hurting me? What if my brother sins against me and is sorry but then does it again? Do I have to keep on forgiving him over and over?" We all know people like that, people you have to forgive over and over and they keep on repeating the behavior. Well, the Jewish Rabbis had an answer. They taught that three times was enough; it was all that God required. But Jesus declared that:

1. our forgiveness is not to be limited (22) Peter thought he was being generous by suggesting 7 times. But no matter whether you translate the Greek to mean 70 times 7 or 70 times and 7 like the NIV does, the number is not the point; in fact, concentrating on a number shows that the heart is all wrong in the first place. What Jesus is really teaching is that FORGIVENESS HAS NO LIMITS! You can't say, "I forgive this often, but no more. I am done forgiving!" You can't say, "I forgive this transgression, but not that one!". Jesus declares that we must continually and always forgive one another and then He tells a story to show us why:

2. the parable the unmerciful servant (23-35) It is a story about the heart of a man, which ends up being a story about our own hearts. Now in this story:

a. the servant was forgiven an infinite debt by the King (23-27) Somehow this man owed the King an extremely significant sum of money, 10,000 talents. A talent is a unit of monetary value in silver or gold that is roughly equivalent to 6,000 Roman denarii, that is, 6,000 days wages for a common laborer. So, to find its equivalent, let's use an average wage today of $100 a day, which makes this the equivalent of some 6 billion dollars! To the hearers it was clear that Jesus chose a ridiculously high number, basically an infinite amount. And Jesus never said how he got in such debt; maybe he was a gambler and used the palace credit card! At any rate, he didn't have enough to cover this debt; he couldn't possibly have! Yet when he merely begged the king to be patient, the king went all the way and actually forgave him ALL that debt; he simply wrote it off! Now by that, of course, Jesus is painting a graphic picture of what God has done for us in Christ, how He has forgiven us an absolutely infinite debt owed Him because of our sins, a debt that there is no possible way we could have paid. It was a debt that would have merited an eternal punishment and yet we are completely forgiven! Hallelujah! Such was the joy and relief this man must have felt:

b. yet he selfishly refused to forgive a relatively small debt (28-30) There was another man who owed this same servant money, a hundred denarii, which was 100 days wages or the equivalent of maybe $10,000, a significant debt, yet conceivable of being paid. And this debtor did the same thing, asked him only for patience, but the unmerciful servant would neither be patient nor forgive. He had him imprisoned. Of course, this second man is meant to picture our brothers or sisters who sin against us. The hurts they have caused us are significant; they are serious. Jesus is not saying that whatever someone may have done to us is a trifling nothing. Often there is a serious hurt or wrong done to us, but the point is that we who have been forgiven so much, may conceivably take absolutely no thought of our own case when it comes to our willingness to forgive others! However, the punchline of the story is that:

c. the King was very angry at his ungratefulness (31-35) The way the servant acted toward his fellow man revealed the true nature of his heart. He was not at all the poor, pitiable person that he seemed when down on his knees begging; he was wicked and cared nothing about other people, only himself! However, the real point of the story is to show the attitude of God, how angry He is when He has forgiven us SO much and we refuse to forgive others. The principle that we derive from the story is clear:

3. we MUST forgive others because we have been infinitely forgiven It is a moral obligation. It is the only righteous thing to do. To refuse forgiveness when we have been so greatly forgiven is actually immoral and wicked! If we are followers of the King then we should have the same attitude that the King had. Look again at verse (27). When people sin against us, first of all:

a. we should have compassion on them as God had on us God saw that we could never pay our debt, that no amount of good could ever erase the evil we had done. We were hopelessly lost, with the sentence of eternal death already pronounced against us, but He cared about US. He was so moved with compassion that He gave up His own Son to pay our debt! When people hurt you, it is so easy to see them as objects or to see them as wicked awful people who deserve to suffer. Yet because we know what it is to feel the compassion of God, He can enable us to see them as poor, wretched people who owe a debt they cannot pay to us. There is no way they can make it up to us. They can't go back and change it; they can't fix it. They stand under the guilt of it with no way out, just as we stood helpless before God. And so just as God did for us:

b. we should release them completely and hold it against them no longer We need to make a conscious decision to let them go, to say, "They no longer owe me anything. I release that debt. Their forgiveness is now between them and God. As far as their debt to me, it is clear." Oh, that may be tough! Especially when the wound is deep! But that is the choice God expects us to make and from that point on, we refuse to hold it against them any longer. We don't bring it back up the next time we're upset; we don't keep harboring it in the back of our minds. We release the person freely and without any further requirement. But understand this:

c. God is very angry when we refuse to forgive You remember how Jesus taught us to pray, don't you? Look back at 6:12-15. Does that mean that you will be eternally lost if you don't forgive? No, our salvation is secure; the actual guilt of our sins is paid for and gone forever. But if you want to experience the relational closeness of the Father, you can't continue to sin by refusing forgiveness to others! You can't tell Him, "I'm sorry Lord for what I did yesterday" and expect Him to draw near to you again, while in your heart you're hating the person who hurt you the day before, not when He bore the agony of His Son dying on a cross out of His compassion to forgive you! Being infinitely forgiven compels us to forgive in an unlimited fashion. It compels us to forgive, as Jesus said, from the heart! The Apostle Paul put it like this, bearing with one another and, if one has a complaint against another, forgiving each other; as the Lord has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. - Col. 3:13.

H.A. Ironside tells the story that one Lord's Day many years ago a group of missionaries and tribal believers in New Guinea were gathered together to observe the Lord's Supper. After one young man sat down, a missionary recognized that a sudden tremor had passed through the young man's body that seemed to indicate that he was under a great nervous strain. Then in a moment all was quiet again. The missionary whispered, "What was it that troubled you?" "Ah," he said, "The man who just came in killed my father and ate his body. And now he has come in to remember the Lord with us. At first, I didn't know whether I could endure it. But it is all right now. I realized that he is washed in the same precious blood." And so together they had Communion. These two principles, accountability and forgiveness, are tremendously powerful things that should always characterize our relationships in the body of Christ. May God give us each the grace to exercise them regularly.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King's Instruction Concerning Marriage And Children - 19:1-15

As we enter the 19th chapter of Matthew, be sure not to overlook the first two verses because there Matthew records for us:

I. The Final Transition In Jesus' Ministry (1-2) In the fall of Jesus' final year, within six months of Passover and the Cross, a huge change occurred in Jesus' ministry. Matthew tells us that:

1. there is a geographical change Even though most of His ministry happened in the region of Galilee and great crowds responded to Him there, His opposition there has also grown and He now leaves Galilee behind permanently. At the time of the events in chapter 19, He is in Perea, the region across Jordan on the east side, across from Jericho, the territory ruled by Herod Antipas who had put John the Baptist to death. And there during these months, He is also seeing crowds of people come to Him and is ministering to them. But what we don't see in the text is that in Matthew's record:

2. there is a chronological gap If you compare the four Gospels, you discover that Matthew has omitted events which occurred over several of those intervening months. All the material from Lk. 9:51-18:15 occurs after His leaving of Galilee, and so do all the events that are detailed for us in John chapters 7-11, including visits to Jerusalem for the Feast of Tabernacles in late September or early October and the Feast of Dedication in late December, as well as the visit to Bethany to raise Lazarus from the dead. By the time of the events Matthew records in chapter 19, Jesus is already on His way up to Jerusalem for the last and final time in late March of 33 AD just before His Triumphal Entry. Now on this last trip, Jesus had occasion to speak strongly about three very important things that touch all of our lives. The first thing we read is:

II. Jesus' Strong Defense Of Marriage (3-12) The Pharisees are relentless and even here on the other side of the Jordan, they are still after Jesus. They ask Him:

1. the loaded question: what is the lawful cause of divorce? (3) Divorce evidently had become a very common thing in Jewish culture in Jesus' day, just as it is in our American culture today. I read online that the divorce rate has actually declined somewhat, trending downward toward maybe 40% in the last couple of years, but that is still tremendously high. And among religious people who actually say they care what God thinks about divorce, there is always a debate as to what are actually legitimate grounds for divorce. In Jesus' day there were two prevailing schools of religious teaching on this. Those who followed the teaching of Rabbi Hillel took a very liberal view on the subject. A man could divorce his wife for almost any and every reason, including burning his food or even if he saw a prettier woman. Of course, it never worked in reverse! Those who followed the teaching of Rabbi Shammai were much more conservative. They said a man could divorce his wife only if he discovered moral uncleanness in her, such as adultery. Pretty much the same opinions prevail today; there are those who say that marriage is just a contract and can be dissolved for almost any reason, including "falling out of love" or finding someone else and there are those who feel it is a much more serious bond and should only be dissolved when there are extremely serious issues. Now Matthew says this was a test, that the Pharisees hoped to gain something against Jesus through His answer. I'm guessing that they hoped He would speak out very strongly against divorce so that they might find a way to accuse Him to Herod. After all, Herod had already killed John the Baptist for preaching against his divorce and remarriage and Jesus was in his territory, very near his palace at Machaerus! But instead of jumping into a debate on causes of divorce, Jesus strongly declared:

2. God's timeless principle: He declared that marriage is a permanent union (4-6). Of course, Jesus took them right to the Scriptures and quoted Genesis 1:27 and 2:24. Marriage is much more than an agreement or a contract or even a promise; it is a bond, a union, a joining of two bodies and two minds and two lives into one. And God does it; when we marry God joins us. Malachi 2:15 in the ESV says of marriage, Did he not make them one, with a portion of the Spirit in their union? God's Spirit creates this powerful mystical union between husband and wife such that they are no longer two independent beings, but are one. And man should never try to take apart what God has joined together! If you'll pardon a food analogy, a married couple is like a well-made cheese omelet where the cheese is thoroughly melted and mixed in. Once it's made, you can't go back and separate the cheese from the egg anymore; you can only cut it in half to get half an omelet. Marriage, by design from creation, is meant to be permanent, and of course, that means that you should think really hard about it before you enter into it, because once you're joined, you're joined! That's God's perspective and it's why in Malachi God says, I hate divorce! It is not that He hates divorced people; He hates the act of the breaking of a marriage because it is the dividing of a bond that He himself created to be forever! Well, the Pharisees weren't satisfied with Jesus' answer at all and were quick to point out that even in the Scriptures we see:

3. the sad need for an exception (7-8) There are times when divorce occurs and, indeed, when it MUST occur. In Isaiah and Jeremiah God even speaks of Himself having given Israel, His bride, a writing of divorce, because of her prolonged and flagrant spiritual adultery in worshipping other gods. Divorce happens. Why? It occurs because of hard hearts. I know that I am speaking to quite a few people who have been through a divorce or are in the middle of a divorce and some who have been divorced and remarried. For many of you, this has happened through no fault of your own. It was not your idea or desire. You saw this bond being for life, but the other didn't. Their heart was hardened toward God and toward you. You couldn't reason with them or prevent their behavior. And maybe in your case, it was even your own heart that was hard many years ago, but is now softened toward God. You know what Jesus was talking about. God intended marriage to be a permanent union, but because of the control that sin gets over human hearts, He knows there will be times when it is broken and when it has to be broken. As the Pharisees duly noted:

a. Moses' law permitted, but controlled divorce If you really read Deut. 24:1-4 closely, you'll see that Moses never "commanded" divorce; he simply commanded that when there IS a divorce that there must be a written certificate and that after remarrying there can't be a second divorce and going back to remarry the first husband. In other words, you can't just divorce and remarry repeatedly as a way of "legalizing" adultery. Through Moses, God was simply attempting to control the divorce that was already happening among the people; it was never his intent to make it easy or legitimize it. At any rate in verse 9 we have:

b. Jesus' clear standard (9): Here you have God Himself declaring clearly that to divorce and marry another is adultery. That is the rule: marriage is permanent and to break it and remarry is the same thing as cheating on your spouse while you're married. It is immoral. And Mark's account [10:11-12] makes it clear that it doesn't matter whether it is the husband or the wife; it is wrong for either one to do this. However, in that same sentence:

(1) He stated the lone exception of sexual immorality That word in the Greek text is porneia, which you might recognize, and it includes all varieties of sexual sin. If a spouse violates the marriage bond that God created by sexual unfaithfulness with another, the innocent spouse has the legitimate freedom (not the command but the freedom) in that case to divorce without guilt before God. Joseph had the legitimate freedom to divorce Mary for assumed unfaithfulness, before the Lord explained the miracle to him and he was never blamed for considering that. Now to be fair, Jesus was answering a question, not delivering a whole treatise on the subject of marriage and divorce, so Scripture has more to say on the subject:

(2) Paul added the exception of abandonment in 1 Cor. 7:10-15. If the spouse is not a believer, for instance, and abandons you, if he or she just leaves and says, "I want out", then the bond is severed and you are free. Even if they ARE a believer and abandon you, they in essence end up acting like an unbeliever. So, desertion or abandonment can be another legitimate reason for divorce. Beyond that:

(3) the church has recognized the obvious exception of cruelty and abuse, something that Jesus and Paul didn't even see the need to speak of, something that everyone simply assumes as obvious. If a husband violates his marriage by battering and beating and terrorizing his wife, or vice versa, nobody expects her to stay there and subject herself to that. It is sad that we even have to mention it, but it occurs. Years ago, we had one lady in our church whose husband actually took a shot at her with a gun! So, because people have hard hearts, there are times when divorce is a legitimate and even a proper thing, but it should always be the exception, not the rule as it has become for so many today. And while we're talking about this doctrine, let me mention that:

c. a legitimate divorce always includes the freedom to remarry At times we have tried to say that divorce may have to occur, but remarriage is the real issue; I used to feel that way myself. But if you look more deeply, divorce is the actual breaking of the marriage. It no longer exists. And if it no longer exists, the person is now unmarried and free to unite in marriage with another. Paul was talking about non-legitimately departing from a spouse, simply deciding to leave for any and every reason, and in that case, the separated person should remain single or go back and be reconciled. But if there is a legitimate divorce on biblical grounds, the person is not still under bondage; they are free. Now Jesus' disciples had been listening to all this and it is apparent from their response that:

4. the disciples had absorbed a low view of marriage from their culture (10) What a sad opinion! "If marriage is that permanent and you can't get out of it, it would be better not to marry!" They had accepted the view that the right to divorce, to change partners, is important! How many all around us hold that same sad opinion today! So many simply live together without the commitment of marriage because marriage is too binding; they want to make sure they have a way out if things don't work out to their liking, instead of accepting God's standard of permanence. But instead of chiding the disciples for their sad way of thinking, Jesus took their statement at its face value and commented on it, "It is better not to marry..." (11-12)

a. Jesus recognized the spiritual value of celibacy, of remaining single and not marrying for the sake of advancing God's Kingdom. He says, "Some people remain single and don't marry because they are born with defects that prevent it; some people don't marry because they have been physically harmed or injured in a way that precludes normal marriage. But some people CHOOSE to remain single and not marry in order to increase their opportunity to serve God!" Paul said the same thing: I say this as a concession, not as a command. I wish that all men were as I am [single]. But each man has his own gift from God; one has this gift, another has that. Now to the unmarried and the widows I say: It is good for them to stay unmarried, as I am. But if they cannot control themselves, they should marry, for it is better to marry than to burn with passion. - 1 Cor. 7:6-9. Remaining single can be a good thing if it allows you to devote more of your time and energy to serving the Lord, but like Paul, Jesus:

b. He also understood it was a gift given only to a few It is not the norm. Some are given that gift of being able to remain single and being content with serving God, without fighting sexual desire all the time. But not everyone is given that gift and in fact, the vast majority are not. It is both normal and actually good to marry.

But the point is that the true purpose of not marrying should be serving God; it should NOT be a way of insisting on your freedom to change sexual partners at will as our society views it.

Here's an interesting tidbit: in verse 5 Jesus says that married people should "cleave" together or "hold fast". That word is based on a Greek noun that actually means GLUE. The word "joined" in verse 6 literally means "yoked together", the way two animals are put in the same wooden yoke to pull a wagon. T. S. Randall says: "Years ago a company wanted to illustrate the strength of the glue it manufactured. Their ad pictured two blocks of wood that had been glued together. Attached to each block was a chain, and to each chain, a large horse. The horses were shown pulling with all their strength in opposite directions. But the artist added one more feature - a giant hand that clasped the two pieces of wood in a vise-like grip. The hand represented the wonderful adhesive glue made only by that particular company." That's a good illustration of what Jesus was teaching here, that husband and wife are "glued" together inseparably; the mighty hand of God has joined them in a powerful union and so, like a good team of horses, they ought to pull in harness together in the same direction instead trying to pull apart from one other! Then as He continued on His way, another incident occurred in which we see:

III. Jesus' Great Love For Children (13-15) Here you see:

1. the desire of parents for Jesus to bless their young children (13a) Mark actually uses the word infants. We saw this repeatedly in India among the village people. Mothers or both parents would bring their young child up to us after the service for us to put our hands on them and pronounce a blessing from God, that is to pray for the child. Evidently, they did this in Jesus' day too, desiring religious teachers and holy men to bless their children. It is such a natural thing for any parent to want God's blessing and protection on the child which they love so dearly. But look at:

2. the ignorant rebuke of the disciples (13b) They saw these mothers with their little ones as nuisance, an annoyance, a hindrance that would hold them back on their journey, something that was in some way beneath Jesus to bother with, and they began to rebuke the parents and tell them to go away. But look at:

3. the strong response of Jesus (14-15) He rebukes the disciples! Literally He says, Let them alone! Stop hindering them from coming to Me! To me, that echoes the awful warning Jesus gave back in chapter 18 to anyone who would lead little ones astray. It seems very clear that:

a. Jesus has a strong desire for children to know Him - Mk. 10:16 says ...he took them in his arms and blessed them, laying his hands on them. Can't you just see Him smiling and ogling over each one the way we do with babies and taking time to personally gather each little child into his arms and putting His hand, the very hand of God, on them, asking the Father to put a love for Him in their hearts? Listen, if you don't have time for children, if you see them as a nuisance and a bother, if your heart doesn't well up with joy at the smile of a little one, then you'd better get your heart checked, because the heart of Jesus loves kids! He desperately wants each little child that comes in to the world to come to Him and to know Him personally, yet so many of them don't have the opportunity and how that must sadden Him! But He goes on to utter that powerful phrase, literally, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven. Now what does that mean? Well, I for one, am willing to simply take it at face value first:

b. His Kingdom is composed of little children; they belong to it It is older people who mess the world up with sin! Children are His and if they should die in childhood, they will be with Him in heaven forever. You can hardly picture Jesus picking up some cute little boy and saying, "Oh wait, I know that you're going to be a thief and a murderer when you grow up; I can't love you, so you're lost...off with you." He loves them all, every last one! And until that point in their lives where they deliberately choose and follow the way of sin and must be held accountable, they are all His! But that is not all that He meant. Mk. 10:15 says that Jesus continued, saying, Truly I say to you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God like a child shall not enter it.

c. children are our example of the way we must believe They love simply from the heart and they simply believe what you tell them. And that's what we must become like to belong to His Kingdom and enter it. We must love Him simply with a child-like love that comes from the heart and believe with our very hearts that He loves us and has died for our sins to save us. Of such, of people with simple faith like the faith of these children, the Kingdom is composed. So, children lead the way for us.

I know I've told you this story before but it is worth repeating here. A number of years ago, LuAnn's one aunt, who was a believer, died in the hospital. In the process of visiting her there regularly, some of LuAnn's relatives had gotten to know the woman in the next bed pretty well. So, after the funeral, they went back to visit this dear lady and when they came in, the woman said, "I'm so glad you came; I was hoping and hoping you'd come back. I was here beside your aunt when she died and I just have to tell you about it. You know that for some time she had not been responsive at all, just lying there. But that morning her eyes opened and a glow came on her face. She sat straight up in bed, staring upward and began to say, "Oh look! I see it! Don't you? It's so beautiful." Then she paused and added, "And just look at all the children!" And with that she fell back on the bed, gone!" Now I don't want to build my theology on someone's vision, but it sure does square with what Jesus said, and what others who've been given similar glimpses of heaven have reported. The little children belong to Him. Oh, Jesus loves marriage and he wants husbands and wives to stay together permanently and work at it rather than giving up and finding someone else. And He wants them to provide a loving home to nurture their beautiful children who belong to Him and whom He loves so much. It may not always be an easy thing to do. But I promise that He will give you the grace to do it if you ask Him.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King's Instruction Concerning Rewards - 19:16-20:16

Jesus is now in the last two weeks of His life on earth. He is still across the Jordan in Perea, headed across the Jordan to Jericho and up to Jerusalem for the Triumphal Entry. On his way He's been stopped by the Pharisees with their question about divorce and then by a crowd of parents wanting Him to hold and bless their children. It has given Him the opportunity to teach on the permanence of marriage and then on His love for children. As He continues on, He's now stopped a third time, this time by:

I. The Rich Young Ruler Who Came To Jesus, a story very familiar to us all in (19:16-26) and this gives Him the opportunity to address a third very practical issue for all of us, the issue of our attachment to material things (16). Verse 20 tells us that this man was young; verse 22 tells us that he was rich, and Luke adds that he was a ruler, possibly a member of the Sanhedrin, the ruling council. But that description tends to leave us with the wrong impression of him. Evidently:

1. he was very sincere about seeking eternal life In fact, Mk. 10:17 says that this rich, important young man actually came running after Jesus to catch Him because He had walked away, and when he caught up, he actually knelt down before Jesus to ask his question. He is not some self-righteous Pharisee trying to tout his own self-righteousness. He is a man who is a good Jew, a student of the law, a man who is convinced for the most part that he is doing all that he should be doing out of a genuine desire to please God, but there is still this nagging doubt. He knows somehow that, despite all of it, he has no peace, no assurance that he will be granted eternal life and he really desires that. He's asking, "How can I settle this? What should I do to demonstrate once and for all that I am worthy of entering the Kingdom?" He felt there must be something more, something beyond what he'd already done, to show that he was righteous and a fit subject for God's kingdom. And Mark 10:21 comments, And Jesus, looking at him, loved him... Jesus looked right past the outward appearance of this young rich guy on his knees begging for help and saw the sincerity of his heart and Jesus loved him. He wanted him to have the desire of his heart; He wanted Him to become a true disciple. But in that heart, he could also see something else, something deep, which the young man himself could not see. So first:

2. Jesus sought to help him see that only God is truly good (17a) Mark and Luke tell us that he actually addressed Jesus by saying GOOD Teacher, then then he expressed wanting to do a GOOD thing. Jesus picked up on his use of that word good. He challenged him to think about what he had just said, telling him that There is no one good except God alone. What's Jesus trying to teach him? Well, on the one hand, it means that:

a. if Jesus is truly good, then He must be God The man had used the term in a light way, in a customary way of address, but Jesus wouldn't settle for that. If God is the only one who is truly good, then nobody but Him should be called good. Jesus is not saying, "Don't call me good." He's saying, "Realize that if I truly am good, then I must be GOD!" He was quietly claiming His own Deity. But on the other hand, He was also implying that:

b. if only God is good, then no mere human is truly good "You can't do anything truly good, truly worthy of Him granting you eternal life. Being truly good is beyond your reach!" And then I think Jesus paused, waiting for the man to comprehend what He was saying and respond, but he didn't, so Jesus went on to give him more or less the standard answer that he expected to get:

3. Jesus challenged him to be good by keeping the commandments (17b-19) The young man was sharp and asked Jesus specifically which commandments He meant, because through the years the Rabbis had added literally hundreds of commandments that weren't actually in Moses' law. Could it be those that Jesus meant? So, Jesus simply quoted five of the Ten Commandments from the second table of the law and then tacked on Lev. 19:18 about loving your neighbor as yourself, which He had earlier taught as being the summary of the whole thing as far as it concerns other people. "Do all those things and you will inherit life!"

a. he had pursued this method of pleasing God from youth but still knew something was lacking (20) He replied, "I've been doing these things all my life! I know all that, but isn't there something else still missing?" Well, it might seem easy to think, "Of course, I haven't murdered or committed adultery or stolen or lied about someone or dishonored my parents," but you would think it would at least give a person pause before saying, "I have always loved my neighbor as myself." Yet somehow the young man didn't get it.

b. he was unable to see the depth of the commands and how short he fell Jesus had explained back in chapter 5 that these commands meant more than the average Jew understood them to mean. You could commit adultery in your mind by looking, even without touching, and you could murder someone in your heart and with your tongue, without ever using your hands. In point of fact, he really had NOT been doing all those things; nobody has ever kept them all perfectly except Jesus. This young man was blind to his own sinfulness, even while he was sincere in his desire to please God. But Jesus didn't even go after that; there was an even deeper issue that needed to be dealt with:

4. Jesus drew out his deep love for his material possessions (21-22) Jesus spoke directly in terms that he could understand: "You want to know what's missing? Do you want to be completely perfect? Go sell all your possessions and give them to the poor, then come be My disciple." Now why did Jesus command him to do that; He never commanded anyone else to do that! Well first, Jesus is really restating the very first commandment, which is to love God with all your heart and to let nothing take His place. So, when Jesus assumed the place of God and ordered him to go sell all his possessions, he was forced to consider on a real, instead of a theoretical, basis which he loved more, God or his possessions. And in the end, he turned and went away sorrowing:

a. he just could not become a disciple if it meant parting with his wealth John Gill comments, ...he went away sorrowful; ...he was ashamed and confounded, that he could not perform what he had just now so briskly promised, at least tacitly, that whatever else was proper he would do; as also grieved, that he had not arrived to perfection, which he had hoped he had, but now began to despair of, and of obtaining eternal life; and most of all troubled, that he must part with his worldly substance, his heart was so much set upon, or not enjoy it for he had great possessions; which were very dear to him; and he chose rather to turn his back on Christ, and drop his pursuits of the happiness of the other world, than part with the present enjoyments of this. [Matt 19:22 John Gill's Exposition of the Entire Bible].

b. he actually loved his money more than he loved God and I think in that moment he realized it. Yet in that same test, Jesus is also spelling out what Lev. 19:18 really means. "Here's a real test for whether you genuinely love people. Go sell your possessions and give the money to people who really need help! You won't need it; you'll have plenty of treasure in heaven!" He didn't really love God with all his heart and he didn't really love his neighbor as much as he loved himself. He failed miserably on the whole law, as do we ALL! None of us loves either God or others perfectly; none of us is good! There is NO good thing we can do to inherit eternal life. That's why we need Jesus to save us! But before we judge this fellow too harshly, let's ask ourselves the same question! What if Jesus told YOU to sell everything you have and give it away, all your bank accounts, your house, everything, and go off after Him in some mission opportunity. Would you do it? Would you really? Do you REALLY love Him with all your heart, more than ANYTHING in life?

Well, I'm sure that when this young man turned away, it saddened Jesus too. He loved this man and wanted to save him; it is so sad when people who seem so close choose to turn away. Even so, it became an opportunity for Him and:

5. Jesus taught his disciples a lesson concerning rich people that they really needed to learn in (23-26). First, He told them that:

a. it is extremely difficult for them to be saved (23-24) The camel was the largest animal commonly seen by the Jews; there were no elephants in Israel. The eye of a sewing needle was the smallest opening they could think of. To get the camel through the eye of the needle is an absurd impossibility. Jesus is warning us that rich people tend to love their riches and it is extremely difficult for them to love God and other people first. As Paul noted, not many wealthy people come to Christ and are among us. However, please don't think of this saying only in terms of what you view as the wealthy elite who make millions of dollars. Most of us here in the US are actually very rich compared to much of the rest of the world. Just look at how fast people are coming to Christ in Latin America and Africa or among the Yenadi in India, in the poorest areas of the world. Then think how tough it is to get your nice, satisfied, suburban neighbors to come to Christ. Who comes to Jesus? People that have a genuine sense of their own need! Reaching people that have possessions and are satisfied in life is tough; it happens only with great difficulty, Jesus said! Yet that is where God has placed us! And thankfully, He also said:

b. it is absolutely possible for them to be saved (25-26) You see, the disciples have absorbed that common Jewish thinking that the rich are those who are blessed of God. Being poor is a curse, a sign of His disfavor. So they think, "If the rich can't be saved, who can?" But God can save anybody, whether rich or poor. There's great hope in that verse for you and for me. Nobody is beyond God's reach; He can save even the most difficult people, from the violent terrorist to the wealthy tycoon!

Now connected to this, Jesus teaches another lesson about the reward for His own:

II. The Reward For Christ's Disciples (19:27-30) Here you see:

1. the sincere concern of the disciples (27) This incident set Peter to thinking, "We have done exactly that; we have left everything behind to follow You. We DO love you more than anything. But YOU mentioned treasure in heaven, so what will our reward actually be?" I don't think he's asking out of a greedy, impure motive; he simply wants to know, so Jesus spells out:

2. the specific reward of the twelve apostles in verse (28). He has a specific millennial assignment for them. In the Kingdom, after Jesus returns to earth and rules and Israel is reestablished, they will rule with Him as judges over the twelve tribes of Israel. He has a specific task and position for them, but He goes on to add that:

3. all true followers receive abundant reward, both now and eternally (29) Yes, there are lots of possible sacrifices we may be called on to make in serving the Lord, but God always makes them up to us a hundred times over, even in this present life (Mark and Luke add). We may have to leave family, but He always gives us a "spiritual family" to be close to us; we may leave home but God always gives us another. Plus, He continually gives us all of the spiritual riches and abiding joys that the world can never know. Plus, we have the assurance of eternal life, which we will enjoy with Him forever after our time here is done! As Paul put it, I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us. - Rom. 8:18.

4. however, Jesus warned, it is not be based on our criterion of performance (30) Don't be fooled by appearances. Many look like they are last of all now in useful service of the Lord, but one day, they'll be first! And many who appear to be worthy of tremendous reward right now will be last! God's valuation of things is not the same as ours. Yes, Peter, the reward is great, but don't ever fall into the trap of serving to gain a reward! Now I want you to notice how Jesus repeats this same statement again, but with the two halves reversed, in 20:16. Then in between the two, He tells us:

III. A Parable Illustrating God's Reward Of His Laborers (20:1-16), the parable of the Laborers in the Vineyard. Let's read it (1-7). Notice that:

1. the laborers were hired at various hours and worked varying amounts The owner of the vineyard went out early in the morning to the marketplace to hire day laborers to pick his grapes, and he made a deal to pay them one denarius, the normal day's wage for a common laborer. Then he went out again at 9 AM and again at noon and at 3 PM and finally, a last time, at 5 PM. Each time, he hired other laborers that he found and promised only to give them what is fair, which they would obviously assume to be something less than a normal day's wage. But that's not how it turned out. Let's continue (8-14). At 6 PM, the end of the normal 12 hour work day, (aren't you glad you live now?):

2. the laborers were paid equally He started with the last men hired and paid everyone a denarius, a full day's wage. For everyone hired from 9 AM on that means they were paid generously! Of course, the first men hired saw how generous this owner was and by the time their turn came they expected to be paid MORE than was promised, only they didn't get it. They only got what they had agreed on, which means they were paid justly or fairly. And by their complaining, envious attitude, it's clear that's all they really deserved. Now the real point of this story is NOT that God gives everyone the exact same reward. Jesus' point is in (15-16):

3. God has the right to reward as He wills and to be generous He is a generous God, a God who loves to give us what we do not deserve! Eph. 1 says, He lavished the riches of His grace upon us! He poured them out abundantly and that is exactly how He will reward us. He will do it as HE chooses, and not as we think He ought to; His reward system won't look the way we would set it up and He has the right to things the way He wants! After all, all things are HIS! Therefore, in thinking about rewards, we should always simply be thankful that we are rewarded AT ALL. Look again at (11-12). That's the warning; we must be careful not to become like them:

4. we should neither serve God simply to obtain a reward nor envy others for His treatment of them. We should serve Him because we love Him and marvel at His generosity toward us and toward everyone else!

Thomas A Kempis, a clergyman who lived about 1400 AD, wrote what has probably become the most often published and read devotional book in history, The Imitation Of Christ. It was this book that opened John Newton's spiritual eyes to Christ and ultimately gave us "Amazing Grace." In one chapter Thomas wrote these words speaking, as it were, with the Voice of Christ. I'd like you to simply close your eyes and just listen as though Jesus were talking straight to you:

MY CHILD, do not let the labors which you have taken up for My sake break you, and do not let troubles, from whatever source, cast you down; but in everything let My promise strengthen and console you. I am able to reward you beyond all means and measure.

You will not labor here long, nor will you always be oppressed by sorrows. Wait a little while and you will see a speedy end of evils. The hour will come when all labor and trouble shall be no more. All that passes away with time is trivial.

What you do, do well. Work faithfully in My vineyard. I will be your reward. Write, read, sing, mourn, keep silence, pray, and bear hardships like a man. Eternal life is worth all these and greater battles. Peace will come on a day which is known to the Lord, and then there shall be no day or night as at present but perpetual light, infinite brightness, lasting peace, and safe repose. Then you will not say: "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?" nor will you cry: "Woe is me, because my sojourn is prolonged." For then death will be banished, and there will be health unfailing. There will be no anxiety then, but blessed joy and sweet, noble companionship.

If you could see the everlasting crowns of the saints in heaven, and the great glory wherein they now rejoice—they who were once considered contemptible in this world and, as it were, unworthy of life itself—you would certainly humble yourself at once to the very earth, and seek to be subject to all rather than to command even one. Nor would you desire the pleasant days of this life, but rather be glad to suffer for God, considering it your greatest gain to be counted as nothing among men.

Oh, if these things appealed to you and penetrated deeply into your heart, how could you dare to complain even once? Ought not all trials be borne for the sake of everlasting life? In truth, the loss or gain of God's kingdom is no small matter.

Lift up your countenance to heaven, then. Behold Me, and with Me all My saints. They had great trials in this life, but now they rejoice. They are consoled. Now they are safe and at rest. And they shall abide with Me for all eternity in the kingdom of My Father. [The Imitation Of Christ - Book III, Ch. 47]

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Preparation Of The King - Mt. 16:13-20:34

The King's Instruction Concerning His Passion - 20:17-34

As we finish chapter 20 today, Jesus is still on his way up to the Holy City and is now down in the valley by the Jordan River, in the vicinity of the city of Jericho, a day's journey away. The main road there is already crowded with a steady flow of pilgrims coming from Galilee and points north to celebrate the Passover and Feast of Unleavened Bread and Jesus and His disciples now become part of that stream of humanity. But before things got too crowded, He took His disciples aside privately one last time, to try to prepare them for what lay ahead (17-19). This is now the third time in the last few months that Jesus has tried to impress on them that He is going to suffer and die and be raised. The first time was at Caesarea Philippi, just after His "I will build My church" speech in chapter 16. He reiterated it again after the Mount of Transfiguration on the way back home to Capernaum in chapter 17. But I want you to notice here how:

I. Jesus Specifically Predicted The Events Of His Passion It should strike us as an incredible thing that:

1. He explained every detail of His suffering to His disciples beforehand First, He predicts:

a. His betrayal to the chief priests, resulting in arrest It is no secret that it is not merely that He would be arrested, but that he would be betrayed, that one of His own followers would deliver Him over, to whom? To the chief priests, to Annas, to Caiaphas and to their followers, the teachers of the law, the scribes and Pharisees. And Judas did exactly that; he made an agreement with those priests to betray Him and carried it out by leading them to the Garden of Gethsemane. Next Jesus predicted:

b. His Jewish trial and its verdict He warns that he will have a trial before them and will be condemned to death by them. That implies that He would be tried before the official body, the Sanhedrin, and He was, because only they could pronounce such a sentence, yet they had no authority to carry it out. So, He predicts:

c. His deliverance to the Roman authorities Gentiles is an obvious reference which means that the Jewish leaders would bring Him to the Romans to ask for His death. Thus, He would have to face the Roman governor, Pontius Pilate, and be tried all over again, and He was. Then, He said, would come:

d. His abusive mistreatment Notice how specific Jesus is. He says they would do two things. First, they would mock Him. Remember how it was the Roman soldiers who put on Him the purple robe and the crown of thorns and bowed down to Him in mockery. And then, He said, they would flog or scourge Him. This is a specific term for the severe whipping of a prisoner condemned to death. They would beat Him repeatedly with a 9-thonged leather whip with bits of bone or metal on each thong, until His flesh was torn and He was almost dead. And Mk. 10:34 says Jesus also mentioned they would spit upon him, which Matthew later says the soldiers did as they were mocking Him. All three things were fulfilled; Jesus knew exactly what was coming. Then He predicts:

e. His crucifixion He makes it clear that He would not be stoned or hanged as the Jews would execute a man, or even jailed as John was. He would be nailed to a cross to die slowly, as the Romans did with the very worst of criminals. All these things they did to Him, but then He predicts what no one could expect or believe:

f. His resurrection on the third day Not the first day, nor the next day, but the THIRD day, Jesus says, He would come to life again. His body would be raised from the dead as literally as He had raised Lazarus only a short time before. And that's exactly how it happened.

Isn't it amazing that here are all these events laid out so precisely and in the exact order in which they occurred and with nothing left out! Nobody could possibly have known all this ahead of time from a human standpoint. Nobody could possibly have orchestrated this series of events on purpose from a human standpoint. Yet here they are, predicted by Jesus with complete accuracy a week before they occurred, which makes it absolutely clear that:

2. God exercised precise control over His Passion This was not something carried out by wicked men inflicting their will upon Jesus; this was something laid out by Jesus imposing His sovereign design and purpose upon men! Lk. 18:31 tells us that Jesus actually stated this fact even as He was making these predictions, See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and everything that is written about the Son of Man by the prophets will be accomplished... and THEN He spelled out the list we looked at as a summary of ALL the things God had already predicted hundreds of years beforehand through Isaiah and David and the other prophets! The price of His betrayal, that it would be by a close friend, that He would be pierced, that they would gamble for His clothing, that they would give him vinegar to drink, that not a bone would be broken, all these things God put down in writing ahead of time! One source says that 28 specific prophecies were fulfilled on Good Friday alone! The apostles afterward saw this so clearly; look with me at their prayer in Acts 4:25-28. God determined ahead of time exactly what these evil men would do and they did it! He was in absolute control! Oh listen, dear friend, when suffering and pain and difficulty come into your life, when it looks for all the world like Satan is having a heyday and evil is running the world and God is on vacation somewhere, think back on the Passion of Christ and realize that God is in control! Twila Paris sings it like this:

This is no time for fear, This is the time for faith and determination. Don't lose the vision here carried away by emotion. Hold on to all that you hide in your heart. There is one thing that has always been true. It holds the world together: Then comes the chorus: God is in control! We believe that His children will not be forsaken; God is in control! We will choose to remember and never be shaken! There is no power above or beside Him, we know, Oh, God is in control, oh God is in control!

What a powerful encouragement this is to us! God is on the throne of the universe and in control of everything, even when it seems that the very foundations are being shaken! Later on, this was a great comfort to the disciples looking back, but sadly, at that moment, Luke reports that:

3. the disciples did not comprehend any of what He shared But they understood none of these things. This saying was hidden from them, and they did not grasp what was said. - Lk. 18:34 In spite of three separate tries, it just never sank in. They did not understand it or did not believe it and finally the angel who met the women at the tomb had to say, "Don't you remember what He said to you back in Galilee?" and then repeat the whole speech again - Lk. 24:8. And Luke adds, THEN they remembered His words! They were oblivious to all the warnings He gave them until long afterward; but oh, how much peace they could have had, even during these things, if they had but grasped and believed Jesus here! Please don't wait until after the suffering is over to look back and see God's hand; see it now! See it in the midst of the pain and difficulty! He is on the Throne and in control of it all! What comfort that will bring you! So, they resume walking toward Jericho with the others and it is not long before something else happens in verses (20-28) where we see that:

II. Jesus Put Forth His Passion As An Example To His Disciples It is really hard to believe how the disciples responded to this serious talk Jesus tried to have with them (20-23). Can you believe:

1. the selfish ambition of James and John? Remember that a little while before this in 19:28, Jesus told them all that they were going to sit on thrones in the Kingdom. Of course, He had also warned them months earlier in chapter 18 against wanting to be the greatest, but this promise of future reward must have rekindled in James and John that ambition to be above the rest. Now, they were actually Jesus' cousins, if you remember, so they got their mother to help them. She was one of the many women whom Matthew later tells us followed Jesus to Jerusalem from Galilee. Her name was Salome and she was Jesus' aunt, Mary's sister, so they got her to come and implore her nephew that they might be #1 and #2 in the Kingdom, seated at Jesus' right and left hands. Can you believe these two? Jesus is sharing with them the horrible ordeal that he's about to go through and all they can think about is plotting to get the highest places of honor in His Kingdom! But the rest were no better (24-25). Look at:

2. the selfish indignance of the other ten They reacted with disdain and resentment toward James and John; they turned up their noses and thought, "What makes you think you're better than us, that you deserve that!" They were no better than the other two, because they were still only concerned about themselves, and Jesus explains to them where that comes from. In the secular world, and particularly in the world ruled by Rome that they knew, those who were in power and authority used it to their own ends. Everyone saw it as the opportunity to grease their own palms and to get others to serve them and do what they wanted. That is pretty true in our world today and certainly in many third world countries. So few of those at the top in our society, or in any other, really see themselves as being there for the good of those underneath them. And we absorb this self-serving attitude right into the church so easily, the same way that the disciples did then. But look at:

3. the principles of greatness as Jesus defines it First of all, in God's view of things greatness:

a. it is achieved through great suffering Look at the first question He asks James and John back in verse (22). Jesus knew the path to the throne of the universe for Him lay through the unbelievable suffering He had just laid out for them. And the path to the #2 and #3 slots lay in the same direction! In God's way of doing things, it always does! The sufferings of this present time produce an eternal weight of glory that far outweighs them all, Paul said! It is those who suffer the most and endure, who are the greatest. When we were in India, we met with all the evangelists from Hebron Believers Assembly. A number of them can't read; they are poor, barely have enough to eat, have no education, get almost no medical care, are despised by many for leaving the Hindu religion and yet they passionately go from village to village, day after day, preaching and sharing the Good News of Jesus, diligently praying hours on end for simple things I could go out and buy with what's in my pocket. And they look at people like our team and think that they themselves are nothing, that we have honored them by stepping into their world for a few days. But when we met with them privately, I told them plainly, "YOU are OUR heroes! You are the ones who are great in God's eyes; we want to learn from YOU!" The writer of Hebrews talked about people like these, Some were tortured, refusing to accept release, so that they might rise again to a better life. Others suffered mocking and flogging, and even chains and imprisonment. They were stoned, they were sawn in two, they were killed with the sword. They went about in skins of sheep and goats, destitute, afflicted, mistreated wandering about in deserts and mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth. But in the midst of describing their suffering he adds, — of whom the world was not worthy. - Heb. 11:35-38. Or, as the ERV puts it, The world was not good enough for these great people. The world didn't deserve them! With God, greatness is not attained by striving and pushing and climbing; greatness is achieved through enduring great suffering, which Jesus said James and John would come to experience later, and of course, they did. But moreover, He said greatness:

b. it contains no self-serving interest (25-26a) "That principle you see at work everywhere around you will not apply in the church! You will live in an entirely different way. Among you, those who are the greatest will not use their leadership or authority or position for selfish ends to benefit themselves. In fact, those who are the greatest will be those who think about themselves the least," because greatness:

c. it is evidenced by deep devotion to serving others (26b-27) "The greatest leader among you is a servant who always cares for the welfare of those under his charge, with no thought for himself. The most important person among you is a slave who carries out the most menial tasks for your benefit, without complaint or thought for herself. The one who loves most and sacrifices most is the greatest and the foremost in My eyes."

Then Jesus turned the discussion back to the subject that was really on His mind, that is, His Passion. You see:

4. Jesus epitomizes greatness through His own self-sacrifice (28) He said "You've got to be like Me. I didn't come to be served. I came to give my life for others. That's what I'm trying to tell you!" His passion is our example, but the concept is even deeper than that. He CAME to serve. I think Paul explained that best: Have this mind among yourselves, which is yours in Christ Jesus, who, though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men. And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross. - Phil. 2:5-8. THAT is the epitome of greatness, God, the ruler of all, becoming man for our sake and serving us by giving His very life as a ransom, as the price of payment for the guilt of our sins. He left heaven to become our Substitute and take our eternal punishment, with no thought for Himself. That is greatness! That is why God highly exalted Him and gave Him the Name above every name! And that which is truly valuable in God's eyes, is doing the very same, giving your life for others in sacrificial service.

But even Jesus spelling that out for them did not have the intended effect, so immediately after that:

III. Jesus Demonstrated His Greatness To His Disciples In Compassion (29-34) They went through Jericho where He met Zacchaeus up in a tree and stayed in his house overnight and, probably on Friday morning, they started up the mountain toward Bethany. However, as they were leaving the city with a great crowd, they passed by two blind beggars (29-30). Mark and Luke only mention one of them, probably the one who spoke for both, and Mark gives us his name, Bartimaeus. But think about:

1. the desperate condition of the two blind men They cried for mercy because they needed it. Blindness had destroyed their lives; they couldn't work in any normal way and evidently had no relatives to care for them. Their days were spent in begging for coins and scraps of food from strangers they couldn't see. But they have heard of Jesus and of how He has made the blind to see and now, when they hear He is actually passing by them, they realize this is their one chance, that they might never be this close to Him again, so they begin to scream for His attention at the top of their lungs. But look at:

2. the attitude of the crowd that was following Jesus (31) Now the crowd included Jesus' own disciples, as well as a retinue of people like Salome who believed in Him and were following after Him, plus a whole host of people who were excited to be with Him and would likely on Sunday become part of the crowd cheering, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" as they went down from the Mt. of Olives into Jerusalem. Yet all of them:

a. they were totally indifferent to the need of the men Two blind beggars by the side of the road were not even worthy of notice. They were a nuisance, an annoyance, not worthy of interrupting the Master for. But what's worse:

b. they actually tried to prevent them from coming to Jesus People yelled back at them, "Shut up and go away! Jesus shouldn't be bothered with you!" They had no mercy, no compassion. They were happy to leave these men in their darkness, yet it only made Bartimaeus and his friend scream Jesus' Name louder.

I can't help but wonder how many people we pass by with indifference, even with rudeness, how many people we keep from coming to Jesus with our lack of compassion. Of course, you think immediately of the homeless people you see on the streets of Philadelphia. I think of the beggars who would knock on our car windows in India and hold up their stump of an arm with the hand missing or show us their dirty baby, hungry and covered with sores, and motion to convey their need for milk to feed them. And most times we would drive on. What a contrast to:

3. the tremendous compassion of Jesus (32-34) Jesus stopped and took time to listen to them. His "gut" was literally moved with compassion toward them; it was not a detached pity. He saw and felt the despair of their lives. And He did something about it. He changed it with a touch of His hand and they became His grateful followers.

That's how Jesus saw us, wretched, pitiful, poor, blind and naked, and He was moved with compassion on us; He came from heaven to earth and sacrificed His life to save us. And that's the very compassion He wants to create in us. Joni Eareckson Tada tells about going to church one Sunday back in 1979 when her ministry "Joni and Friends" was just beginning. The preacher that morning used a verse from the gospel of John, "And the Lord cried out from the cross, 'I thirst.'" He made his point and moved on, but Joni kept thinking about that verse. She closed her eyes and pictured Jesus on the cross. She imagined herself standing in that crowd and wondered what she would have done if she had heard Jesus say He was thirsty. She thought to herself, "Well, I wouldn't have stood there like a nincompoop, as my mother would say. I think--I hope I would have run, not walked, to the nearest well. Forget the sponge and the vinegar. I would have brought Him the real thing--a cool cup of water." Then she thought about the verse in Matthew 25 where Jesus is having a conversation with His disciples and says, "I was thirsty and you gave Me something to drink.... I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for Me." Joni continues, "I am struck with the obvious. This is what Jesus wants me to do. To do for others with the same sense of urgency and concern what I would do for Him. Not just talk. Not just give advice. Jesus wants me to DO something. For others. For Him. I imagine something else. I picture Jesus being moved with compassion when He encountered the blind or the hungry or the widow who had lost her son. He was not overwhelmed by needy crowds. It was just part of His nature to roll up His sleeves and help one person at a time. I try to place myself in that picture, and squirm, knowing that so often what I feel edges close to pity. Pity, I decide, sees a need at arm's length. Compassion reaches out to touch. Pity never becomes more than a feeling. Compassion compels us to act." [Choices & Changes by Joni Eareckson Tada, Zondervan, 1986. Pages 140-141.] If you truly want to be great, let Jesus' Passion create in you His compassion toward people.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Declares Himself Publicly - 21:1-22

Today we look at the first half of chapter 21, where we find that at last, after 3 ½ years of ministry, there finally comes the day when Jesus publicly declares Himself King. We commonly call this the story of His Triumphal Entry and every Sunday School child can tell you how Jesus rode into town on a donkey that day, with crowds shouting and throwing palm branches before Him. But there was something far deeper than that going on:

I. Jesus Declared Himself King As He Entered Jerusalem (1-11) Every other time Jesus had come up to the city in His life, even during His ministry, He had come privately and quietly. In fact, the last time He had come in the fall for the Feast of Tabernacles in John 7, His own brothers had urged Him to go up to Jerusalem and display His miracles and show Himself openly to the world. Yet He refused, and waited and went up privately later. He didn't show Himself in public until the middle of the week-long feast so as not to create controversy because, as He said, His time was not yet come. But THIS time, Jesus did exactly what they had wanted Him to; He was showing Himself publicly to the world, deliberately making a public declaration that He was God's true King. Even in preparing for this glorious day:

1. He demonstrated His omniscience (1-3) Jesus has been coming up the Roman road from Jericho. He had not been to the little village that lay before them, and yet He knew that there was a donkey standing tied in the middle of it and sent the disciples to fetch it, and not just a donkey, but a donkey and her colt. And Lk. 19:32 tells us that ...those who were sent went away and found it just as he had told them. How did He know that? Jesus saw that donkey and its colt standing there. He saw the owners nearby who would question them when they untied it and they did. Only omniscience could have known this. Only one with the knowledge of God Himself could see what was not visible. Then, in 19:30, Luke mentions that it was an unriden or unbroken colt, and yet it is the colt that Jesus sat on and rode with no problem! I haven't been around donkeys, but we raised ponies when I was a kid and I can tell you from personal experience that you don't just hop on a yearling colt and ride it! It has to be broken and accustomed to bearing weight. But even this donkey colt obeyed calmly under Jesus' authority! Now always before, Jesus had walked into Jerusalem, but this time He says that He needed the donkey. What for? Was He tired from the long walk? No, He needed it because in entering Jerusalem this way:

2. He deliberately fulfilled the Scriptures (4-5) Years later as he's writing this Gospel, Matthew can see how Christ carefully fulfilled everything God had predicted hundreds of years earlier. He runs together two verses, the first a portion from Is. 62:11 which says, Behold, the LORD has proclaimed to the end of the earth: Say to the daughter of Zion, "Behold, your salvation comes; behold, his reward is with him, and his recompense before him." And he combines that with Zech. 9:9, Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion! Shout aloud, O daughter of Jerusalem! Behold, your king is coming to you; righteous and having salvation is he, humble and mounted on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey. Notice how carefully the prophecy was fulfilled, He rode, not merely on a donkey, but on a colt, the foal of a donkey. They led the mother and Jesus rode the colt. But the point is that God said Israel's King would come to them mounted on a donkey colt, so in doing this:

a. He publicly identified Himself as Israel's King He deliberately made claim to be the prophesied King. Zech. 7:10 goes on to say that the King who rides on the donkey is going to rule the world, the nations, all the ends of the earth. Jesus rode the donkey so that any devout Jew who saw Him enter Jerusalem amid the rejoicing crowd would know, "This is the KING, the promised Messiah who is to come, the One who will rule the nations with a rod of iron!". He is shouting out loudly in no uncertain terms, "I am the One you've been waiting for. I am the Messiah, the Promised One, the Son of David, the King, God Himself come down in the flesh to save you!" Jesus could not have made His identity plainer if He'd written it in the sky! Yet at the same time, by coming this way:

b. He displayed the humble nature of His Kingship Kings don't come riding in on donkeys; they come on prancing white horses or in war chariots. A donkey is an animal of peace. He was saying to them, "I am coming to be your King, but I'm not coming to fight the Romans as you'd like; I'm not coming to lead a rebellion and bring war; I'm coming in peace." Notice that the next time Jesus comes, He rides a white horse in Rev. 19. Then, He will come as a conqueror, but this time, He told Pilate, Now my kingdom is not of this world. For now, it wasn't, but one day it will be and on that day things will be different. This time He came to rule over the hearts of men and to call them to personal allegiance to Him.

Well, as He began to ride toward Jerusalem:

3. He was joyfully acclaimed by a huge double crowd (6-9a) One crowd of people heard He was coming and had come out to meet Him from the city and a second crowd had gathered and was following Him as He passed through the countryside, so people were everywhere, front and back, lining the road before and thronging after. And they were honoring Him by throwing down their garments in His path and palm branches cut from the trees for Him to ride over. And as He passed, they were shouting with joy. Zechariah had said that when their King came to them riding on a donkey they should shout and rejoice, and that's exactly what they did; they fulfilled the prophecy themselves without even realizing it. Now why did they honor Him so? Luke tells us:

a. they honored Him because of His miracles ...the whole multitude of his disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice for all the mighty works that they had seen - Lk. 19:37 And John adds, The crowd that had been with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead continued to bear witness. The reason why the crowd went to meet him was that they heard he had done this sign. - Jn. 12:17-18. They were acclaiming the Miracle-worker, the One who could drive out demons and heal the sick and even raise the dead! And:

b. their words declared Him Israel's Messiah (9b) They were all shouting Ps. 118:25-26. The word hosanna is the Hebrew for "save us!" It was originally a prayer, a request, but it became part of the liturgy used at Passover and eventually became an expression of praise. Note that in the Psalm, the petition is directed at Jehovah, but here the same petition is directed personally at Jesus. They are acknowledging Him as the One who comes in the Name of the Lord, the Messiah. They call Him Son of David, the promised King. In their words they get His message and are shouting the truth, but:

c. their understanding was woefully incomplete (10-11) Oh, how far short this falls! The prophet Jesus... They're shouting and calling Him Messiah and fulfilling the Scriptures with every step, and yet they see Him only as a prophet. Perhaps the first real prophet in a very long time, perhaps a very powerful prophet, but only a prophet, nevertheless, not God their King.

In 2011 Public Policy Polling took a survey of 800 Americans to find out who is the most popular person in America, past and present. They found that Jesus is number 2, right behind Abraham Lincoln. Still 91% of Americans viewed Jesus favorably; they'd probably join the crowd shouting "Woohoo! Yay Jesus!" if He rode into their town. But so few of us actually grasp that He really is God come to us in the flesh and bow down before Him and worship Him and acknowledge Him as King of our lives. That's why the same crowd could change their mind and shout "Crucify Him!" on Friday. That's why so many now can say, "I believe in Jesus," but live without any regard for His instructions. They don't really know Him. Well in the next section of our text:

II. Jesus Publicly Cleansed The Temple (12-17) Matthew seems to imply that Jesus did this immediately after entering the city but Mark clearly states that Jesus went into the Temple and looked around and, as it was evening, went back out to Bethany with the Twelve. He came back the following morning, Monday, and:

1. He drove out the merchants (12-13) The outer courtyard of the Temple had become a place for commercial venture. The Pharisees had long ago come up with the idea that common money could not be used in the Temple, but had to be changed for "clean money" or "Temple money", thus the tables of moneychangers. Also, many Israelites who came long distances could not bring animals with them for sacrifice, so what could be more convenient than selling them right there in the Temple. So, the outer court of the Temple had become a place of traffic and commerce and noisy animals. But on this day, Jesus entered and drove them all out. Why? Because:

a. they were preventing it from being a house of prayer for all peoples He quoted pieces of two verses of Scripture; the first was Is. 56:6-7 where God says, I will bring foreigners to my holy mountain and their sacrifices shall be accepted and My house shall be a house of prayer for ALL peoples. Mark's account emphasizes this - 11:17. The portion Jesus cleansed was the outer court which was called the court of the Gentiles. They could not go in further to the court of Israel, but God's design was for Gentiles, foreigners from all peoples, to come up to worship Him and offer sacrifice and this was to have been their place of prayer. His heart has always been for all peoples to know Him. But the Jews:

b. they made it instead a den of dishonest gain They didn't want Gentiles there anyway, so they conveniently turned it into a market. Jesus quotes Jer. 7:11, Has this house, which is called by my name, become a den of robbers in your eyes? Behold, I myself have seen it, declares the LORD. The moneychangers charged 10% for the convenience of their services. The animal vendors hawked their wares and charged top dollar instead of fair market price. But God HAD been watching. And God did something about it! He walked in bodily and threw them all out! When Jesus said "My house", in effect He's claiming God's Temple is His house! So just like His entry to the city:

c. this was a public display of authority; it was not an angry reaction Jesus did not lose His cool and fly into a rage. It was a calm, calculated act on His part, one He had mapped out in His mind and planned the day before as He looked around. It was Him saying again, "I am God's appointed King!" Then, as the last of the merchants was fleeing, immediately:

2. He displayed His power by healing the infirm (14) Blind and lame folks could not go further into the Temple either. They typically gathered near the entrance to beg for alms from those who entered to worship God. But Jesus invited them into the now-empty court and they gathered round Him and He did what no person on earth could do. He healed them and set them free to fully enter in and worship God. Once again, He displayed His Divine power and the Temple rang with shouts of praise and joy. In fact, there were a number of children present watching all these things and they took the lead:

3. He was praised by the children as Messiah (15b) The kids knew what to do! They remembered the chant from yesterday! They saw the connection and shouted, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" They reacted rightly and called Him Messiah! But not everybody was so happy:

4. He was challenged by the Jewish leaders (15-17) The Pharisees knew what the phrase meant, even if the kids didn't. They say, "Don't you hear? The kids are calling you Messiah! You should put a stop to this now!" But Jesus turned the tables and:

a. He defended their praise with Scripture He says, "Haven't YOU ever read Ps. 8:2" which clearly says that JEHOVAH would get praise from the lips of children and that their praise would silence His enemies. But in claiming this:

b. He asserted His personal right to their praise They were not praising Jehovah; they were praising HIM and He accepted their praise. He was declaring to His enemies, "I am Jehovah; I am Messiah; they are praising Me as I have ordained!" How could they argue with that in light of the mighty miracles He had just done? So, you know what? It did silence His enemies; they quit and left Him alone for the day!

Now Matthew goes back to relate something that Mark tells us had actually happened on the way into Jerusalem earlier that morning.

III. He Privately Cursed A Fig Tree (18-22) It was a simple incident. On the way into town, He saw a fig tree with leaves on it, so He went up to it expecting to pick a fig or two for breakfast, but found none, so He pronounced a curse on it. Why? Jesus didn't just go around getting mad at trees and cursing them randomly; He did this deliberately to make a point, to teach His disciples a lesson. He did not curse it because it had no fruit:

1. He cursed it because it gave a show of fruit when it had none (18-19) Now you have to understand something about fig trees. Unlike other trees which get their leaves first in the spring and produce fruit later, fig trees either produce fruit first, then leaves, or else produce both at the same time. So, a fig tree with leaves is essentially advertising, "I have fruit!". Mark adds that it was not yet the season for figs; it was too early in the spring; none of the fig trees along the way had any leaves on them but there stood this one aberrant tree full of leaves with the appearance of fruitfulness, yet it was barren. It had not borne any figs at all. So, Jesus put a curse on the tree and it immediately began to wither up, so much so that the next day when they passed by (Mark's account makes it clear that Matthew has condensed the incident onto the same day for easier telling) it was totally withered up from the root. The disciples were amazed and wondered out loud, "How did it wither up so quickly? Just yesterday it was alive and vital!" What a silly question coming from those who had seen the wind and the waves stop when Jesus said, "Peace be still!" No ordinary human could speak to a fig tree and have it wither by morning. He's reminding them again that He's God, Lord over all creation. But there's more going on here. Many Bible scholars believe this:

2. it was a symbolic condemnation of the religious hypocrisy of His enemies Many feel that the fig tree is a symbol for the nation of Israel. Indeed, Jesus had only a few days before told a parable about a barren fig tree (Lk. 13), the punch line of which was, Cut it down! Why should it use up the ground!, clearly predicting the coming destruction of Israel. The generation of Israel in Jesus' day was exactly like that fig tree, full of leaves, full of the appearance of spirituality and proclaiming love for God, but bearing no real fruit, no obedience to Him, no works befitting the love she professed. She was barren! And what Jesus was doing this very last week of His life as He offered Himself as her King was pronouncing God's curse on her as a nation, that she would wither and die quickly. Luke records how, as He was riding down the slope the day before, at one point Jesus stopped and looked at the city and wept and said, saying, Would that you, even you, had known on this day the things that make for peace! But now they are hidden from your eyes. For the days will come upon you, when your enemies will set up a barricade around you and surround you and hem you in on every side and tear you down to the ground, you and your children within you. And they will not leave one stone upon another in you, because you did not know the time of your visitation. And how soon that came to pass! Not 40 years later, the entire city of Jerusalem was put under siege and finally levelled by the Roman legions. Thousands were killed or enslaved and Israel was reduced to a dry root waiting thousands of years to be watered and spring up again in the last days. But Jesus was not trying to dishearten His disciples; rather through this fig tree:

3. He exhorted them and us to trust God's ability to do the impossible (20-22) Here is a marvelous thought. The same ability, the same power, the same "command and it will be done" authority, is available to us. We can do likewise, whether it is withering a fig tree or moving a mountain. Jesus is telling us to pray believing, trusting that He is able to do whatever it is that needs to happen! With God nothing shall be impossible! To us the lesson of the fig tree is a great encouragement!

But to people who bear leaves with no fruit, it is a solemn warning. To people who shout "Yay Jesus!" with their lips, while their hearts are far from Him, it is a graphic picture of the fact that judgment is coming and more swiftly than they can imagine. Around 1900, the French island of Martinique was a prosperous colony in the Caribbean and was known as the Paris of the West Indies. The capital, St. Pierre, lay at the foot of Mount Pelée, an old dormant volcano. During 1902, boil- ing water and steam were seen erupting from the crater and on April 25th, a scientific expedition was sent up to investigate. The island's newspaper, Les Colonies, published the findings and told the inhabitants that there was no reason to be afraid. Day by day, life became unbearable on the island. A hideous odor of sulphur filled the air and birds dropped out of the air asphyxiated by the ash and sulphur. By May 3rd, businessmen and prudent individuals moved to the southern part of the Island. However, the newspaper continued to mock, and on May 7th it published an interview with Professor M. Landes which read, "Mont Pelee presents no more danger to the inhabitants of St. Pierre than does Vesuvius to those of Naples." The Newspaper added, "We confess we cannot understand this panic. Where could one be better off than in St. Pierre?" On the morning of May 8th, at 7:52 AM exactly, the Volcano erupted and exploded. There was no warning as the side of the mountain ripped out. Super-heated steam at a temperature of 1000 degrees Centigrade blasted out at hurricane speed, obliterating the whole town and incinerating 30,000 people. Only two men survived the destruction, a prisoner, who was in the town dungeon and a cobbler who hid in his cellar. [<http://tim-shey.blogspot.com/2011/12/eruption-of-mount-pelee-st-pierre.html>] Israel ignored the warning signs and perished just like the residents of St. Pierre did. Judgment will come on all those who refuse to make Jesus King in their lives, no matter how much He loves them. It's only ever one breath away and will be here quicker than they think. Let's pray and believe God to do the seemingly impossible and reach many of them while there is still time.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Warns His Opponents - 21:23-22:14

It is now Tuesday of Passion Week. On Sunday, Jesus entered the city of Jerusalem in the midst of a huge crowd publicly declaring Himself to be the Messiah. On Monday He cleansed the Temple by driving all the merchants out of the outer court, then healing many blind and lame people and being praised by a group of children. Each night Jesus went back out to the village of Bethany on the Mt. of Olives to stay. But when He returned to the Temple on Tuesday morning and was teaching the people:

I. Jesus' Enemies Challenged His Authority (21:23-27) Now let's think for a moment about this:

1. the issue of authority (23) Authority was very important to the Jews and to them it had a very specific meaning. Nobody would presume to teach in the Temple or to order the Temple courts cleared without authority from the Sanhedrin. All Rabbis were ordained. They were personally trained by other Rabbis and no one would dare to oppose what had been said and taught by the Rabbis of the past. In other words, the question of the chief priests and elders is really an accusation, "You didn't get this authority from us; we didn't give it to you; you are doing these things without authority or under your own authority. After all, God's authority flows through us!" However, since they posed it as a question, Jesus answered them with a question which made them focus on:

2. the sources of authority (24-25a) Jesus knows that if He tells them the truth that His authority came directly from God, they wouldn't believe it and would call it blasphemy, so He poses a question to them. He's actually saying "Where do you think John the Baptist got his authority? Did he get it from you, from men, through formal education and ordination? No! So did it come directly from heaven, from God? That is, was he sent by God or was it simply his own human idea?" Obviously, John had no authority given by them, so if he had any authority at all to preach and baptize, it had to have come from a higher authority, from God Himself! Or else it was simply his own idea and he was a false prophet. Well, as you would expect:

3. they refused to recognize God's authority (25b-27) They were in a quandary. God's authority is obviously the highest authority, so if they admitted John was preaching by God's authority, Jesus could condemn them for rebelling against God by not listening to him. Yet if they said it was merely his own idea, they were afraid of being stoned, Luke says, because the hundreds of Passover pilgrims thronging the Temple all knew John was sent from God! They were stuck, so to get out of their dilemma, they evaded the question with a "We don't know," rather than tell the truth about what they thought. John did not preach by their authority, which is why they had disregarded him. So, Jesus said in essence, "Well, I do these things by the same authority John obeyed and since you don't regard it anyway, I won't answer your question! You know very well Whose authority I am claiming!"

Now as you shake your head at the blindness and obstinacy of the Jewish leaders, be careful not to miss the fact that there's a lesson here for us too. When we know something comes from the authority of God, we are obligated to listen, whether we like it or not. His authority should control our lives. When God says, "Do this", it is NOT optional; we must obey it! When He says, "Don't do this", it is not a suggestion; we must not do it! Authority demands obedience, so when we know what God says, but disregard it anyway, we are doing exactly what these Jewish leaders were doing, disdaining and refusing the very authority and Lordship of Christ! And that could not be a more serious thing! In fact, Jesus goes on to warn them just how serious a thing it was to reject His authority and here's how He did it:

II. Jesus Warned His Enemies With a series of Three Parables which are linked together. In the first one, a story about two sons, Jesus EXPOSED His enemies, the leaders of the Jewish nation, who weren't at all what they appeared to be.

Then He told a story about a landowner and some tenants, the point of which is the coming DESTRUCTION of His enemies. But He didn't stop there. He went on to tell a story about a King giving a wedding banquet, in order to declare the REPLACEMENT of His enemies. Taken all together, Jesus warned the Jewish leaders that because of their rejection of what God was doing in Him, that their nation would soon be destroyed and would be replaced in their position of favor before God with another people, the Church! That's the fly-by overview; now let's zoom in close and look at the first story:

1. the parable of the two sons (21:28-32) This man has two boys and owns a vineyard, the family business. There is work he needs to get done so he tells each of them individually to go and work in the vineyard that day. The first son seems outwardly rebellious and says, "NO," but he is soft-hearted and later feels bad about it and goes. The second son seems to be the model child outwardly. He says, "Yes sir, I'll go!", but as soon as Dad's out of sight he heads for the golf course instead. Jesus makes them draw the conclusion on their own by asking the vital question, "Which one did the will of his father?" You see, that's:

a. the point: Note that He did not ask, "Which one was polite or answered properly?" He asked, "Which one DID..." It is the DOING that is important. It is not the one who bows down to the King while shirking his responsibility who is truly his servant. It is the one who DOES what he commands! The true son is known not by words but actions! And Jesus':

b. application is obvious (31b-32). These Jewish leaders were refusing to do the will of the Father. This was the most shocking and offensive thing Jesus could ever have said to these most religious of all the people, that despised tax collectors and immoral prostitutes would enter God's Kingdom because they believed John the Baptist's preaching, repented of their former rebellion and began to live the life that God desired, yet they themselves, chief priests and elders, would not enter it, because they pretended to obey God, yet refused to believe John and would not repent! For centuries, God had been saying to them, "Go work in My vineyard; serve Me." And for centuries the leaders of the nation had been saying, "Yes Father", but had, in reality, been serving their own interests, not God's! Jesus was exposing them for what they truly were!

Oh, but let's look in the mirror. How many times have we ourselves been that second son? We hear God speaking to us, instructing us from His Word, telling us what to do. So we say, "Yes Lord", but we don't do what He said or we do it once or twice and quit, or maybe we try a few times and then forget about it. We would be put to shame by many new converts all over the world who are coming to Jesus straight out of a terrible life filled with idolatry or immorality or drunken debauchery, who are now willing to immediately do anything and everything God says because of who Jesus has become to them! One day God gave King Saul a direct order, "Go and slay the Amalekites; destroy every person and everything they have." Well, Saul won the battle, but didn't want to obey the command. He saved their king alive and brought back all the best of their livestock and, because of that, God rejected Saul as King of Israel. Samuel explained it like this: Has the LORD as great delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices, as in obeying the voice of the LORD? Behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to listen than the fat of rams. All the religious ritual in the world does not impress God, if it comes from an insincere heart that wants its own way. To obey is better than any act of worship, than any flowery prayer, than any sacrificial gift. May it be the desire of our hearts. Now before his enemies can react, Jesus immediately launches into a second story:

2. the parable of the landowner (21:33-46) I know that it's familiar, but let's look at:

a. the story in detail (33-34)

(1) the landowner leased his vineyard to some tenants, however, notice all the effort he put into it. First, he prepared his vineyard for the tenants. He planted all the grapevines and made a wall around the vineyard to keep out wild animals. He dug a winepress for the grapes and built a tower for the tenants to stay in and keep watch. He made everything ready and then the tenant farmers moved in. Of course, the landowner represents God and the vineyard is God's kingdom or rule, according to verse 43. The tenants are the people of Israel and specifically their leaders. Jesus' point is how well God provided for them so that they might have everything they needed to walk with Him and be His people and to become His Kingdom on earth. Israel was a privileged people beyond all others! But in the course of time, the owner sent his servants to the tenants. He, of course, had an agreement with them that at harvest time a share of the profits would belong to him. So, having withdrawn to a faraway region, he sent his servants one after the other to receive his share. Jesus is saying that God had an agreement with Israel. He would be their God but they would have to obey His Law, so that through them He could reach all the nations of the earth. That was the deal. The fruit He desired was heartfelt obedience. They would have to live by His rules. And you know, it seems that after He made that covenant with them in that very first generation, He withdrew. At first Israel saw His visible miracles one after the other until they settled in the land, but in the generations that followed, there was no longer a pillar of fire and a glory cloud. Instead, God sent them prophets, one after the other, to speak His word and command His due obedience. But look at the actions of:

(2) the tenants (35-39) They mistreated the owner's servants. Instead of receiving them and paying their due; they beat them and stoned them and even killed them. So, the owner sent more servants and they did the same. That's what Israel did to the prophets. Some, she simply ignored, but Queen Jezebel killed every prophet of the Lord she could find. Zechariah was slain in the reign of King Joash by stoning, Jeremiah was abused and thrown into a cistern to starve. Isaiah was sawn in half by King Manasseh. Even John the Baptist was beheaded by Herod. Yet, as if that was not bad enough, at length these tenants did something still worse: they murdered the owner's son. As a last resort he sent his son, but him they treated even worse. They killed him and threw his body out of the vineyard. Listen, in the fullness of time God sent forth His Son! He came unto His own people and what did they do? They hung Him on a cross outside the city and crucified Him! Jesus is predicting what these very leaders were about to do to him on Friday! But He cleverly lets His enemies write their own:

b. the punchline to the story: the owner will destroy the murderers (40-41) Even these blind leaders can see that those murderers have to be brought to justice. They must be destroyed! And the vineyard must be given to somebody else who will do what they're supposed to! Wow, they're so caught up in the story that they don't yet catch the meaning, and Jesus let them pronounce sentence on themselves! But in a moment, He masterfully makes His:

c. application (42-44) He quotes Ps. 118:22-23. He says, "YOU are the builders and I am the stone you are rejecting and refusing. Yet I am the chief Cornerstone of God's building; I am the One on whom all the rest of the Kingdom that God is going to build in the world hinges and God is going to put me in that place. But as for you wicked tenants, you unwise builders, God is going to judge you; He's going to crush you like a dropped stone would. God will take His Kingdom away from you; He's going to take all your privileges away and destroy your precious city and your Temple and you yourselves, just as you said ought to be done!" And as I mentioned last week, within 40 years the Romans did destroy both the city and the nation in AD 70! But don't think this story is only for them! Those who do what they did today, those reject God's Son, face the same fate. God may have sent His servants to them in various ways time and time again, but if they end up crucifying the Son of God afresh by rejecting Him all their lives, even though they get to enjoy the fruits of God's blessing and grace while they live, eventually they'll die and the Stone they rejected will be the very Stone that destroys them, by sending them off to an eternity in hell! It is an absolutely ungrateful and dangerous thing to reject Christ, then or now! Well, now they understood what He meant and look at:

d. their angry reaction (45-46) They knew He was talking about them, but instead of repenting, they became angry and looked for a way to arrest Him. They set about fulfilling the very prediction He'd just made. But still Jesus didn't stop. He told them a third parable:

3. the parable of the wedding banquet (22:1-14) This King was giving a wedding feast for His Son. It was a grand occasion, an important occasion, one which anyone in the whole kingdom would be privileged to be part of. But the odd thing in Jesus' story is:

a. the refusal of the original guests (1-4) The original guests, as you can easily guess, are Israel with her leaders. Notice they get a:

(1) their double invitation Naturally, the guests had been previously invited and been given notice of the day of the wedding. And then, on the actual day when the son was to be married, the King sent his servants to bring them. Not once but twice! He sent the first set of servants and they refused, so he sent a second set. Israel's prior invitation to prepare for the Son's special day had come through the Old Testament prophets who had told her beforehand to prepare for the coming of the Kingdom through God's Son. Then the day arrived and God sent John the Baptist to say, "The Kingdom is at hand", "Today is the wedding day!", "Behold the Lamb of God!" Jesus Himself echoed the same message. "Today is the day; the Kingdom is here!" But Israel refused to respond, and yet God was not done. He sent His servants back a second time. He sent the apostles back to the Jews and their leaders once again. When Peter stood up on Pentecost he said, "Ye men of Israel!" In the first 10 chapters of the Book of Acts, the ministry and the message of the apostles are given almost exclusively to the Jews! But notice in the story:

(2) their diabolical reaction and destruction (5-7) Some simply ignored them, but again as a whole the Jewish people and their leaders mistreated and even killed the King's messengers. James was slain by Herod with the sword. Others were imprisoned. Stephen was stoned to death. So, as in the story, the King sent an army to destroy those murderers and burn their city, in reality the Roman army which did exactly that in AD 70, as I mentioned earlier. The nation was finished for 2000 years, but God was not finished! The real point of this story is:

b. their replacement with other guests (8-10) You see:

(1) the King has a need for guests The King can't have a wedding banquet without guests. His Son will not be duly honored without guests to celebrate! God is absolutely determined that He WILL have some from every people on earth present to celebrate with His Son! So, the King changed His plan. He set about finding a whole new set of guests and here's how He is doing it:

(2) He commands us, His servants, to invite all and fill His hall He tells us, "Go out in the streets and invite anyone you can find!" That's the mission of the church, to go to all the nations and shout the invitation, "Whosoever will may come to the banquet!" Ever since Acts 8, we servants have been preaching to everyone, to every race in every language in every place on earth. We say, "The King wants you to come celebrate His Son! You don't have to be dressed and ready and prepared. You don't have to have a fine education and religious knowledge or a perfect life before you can come. Come just as you are. Just come! Anybody can come! Jesus wants you! But here's WHY you can come." Look at:

c. the clothing of the new guests (11-14) Now this sounds really weird to us. How could you expect some person you meet on a street corner to be dressed for a wedding? Well, there's an obvious answer:

(1) the garment was provided by the King Himself That's why anybody could come. The King provided the garments for them at the door so that they would be dressed in all His royal finest to celebrate the wedding of His Son! And that's why anybody can come into His Kingdom today. We don't have to bring our own nice pure garments; when we come to Christ, He clothes us in His perfect righteousness! So, you really can't come in without the right garment, but evidently in the story:

(2) the guest refused the garment the King provided for him He must have thought he was well-dressed enough on his own. It was the height of ingratitude. The King invites you to a free feast and hands you a beautiful wedding garment to put on, and you'd rather stay in your rags! How insolent!

But that's exactly what so many people are doing all around us today. They want to come to God's banquet. They want to celebrate Jesus and be in heaven, but they absolutely refuse to trust in Christ as the only way of salvation; they refuse to lay aside the filthy rags of their own righteousness and be given the righteousness of God in Him, but rather insist that they are already good enough, that their own good works will make them acceptable to the King! So their end will be fitting, thrown outside the kingdom, in hell where there is darkness and weeping and gnashing of teeth forever. And verse 14 contains the punchline for this age: "Many are invited but few are chosen." The invitation is for all. Everyone and anyone may come! God has a banquet hall in heaven big enough for all. But only those few who will come His way, who will put on His wedding garment by trusting in Christ as their Savior, may join the eternal feast. The story is told of a dirty, poorly clothed boy who walked into a London orphanage many years ago. The superintendent saw him and asked, "What are you doing here, young man?" "Why I'd like to live here," he answered. The man replied, "But I don't know you. What do you have as a recommendation?" The youngster held up his torn coat--nothing more than rags--and said, "If you please, sir, I thought this would be all the recommendation I would need." Immediately the superintendent swept him into his arms and into the orphanage, where he was fed and clothed and warmly accepted and in place of his old rags the boy received new garments. That's the Gospel! Our God and King says, "Give up the filthy rags of all your attempts to approach Me through your own good deeds. Just come celebrate My Son for what He did on the cross for you and I will clothe you in His perfect righteousness and receive you into My hall forever!" We are among multiplied millions who have accepted the King's gracious invitation and have come into His house to enjoy His feast forever. Hallelujah!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Silences His Opponents - 22:15-46

It is still Tuesday of Passion week. Last time we saw that as Jesus entered the Temple and was teaching on this morning, He was challenged by the Jewish leaders and proceeded to warn them of their coming destruction and replacement as a nation through a series of three parables. We need to realize that by this point the religious leaders of the nation of Israel are all boiling with anger. After Jesus raised Lazarus, the ruling council, the Sanhedrin, got together and some said, If we let him go on like this, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come and take away both our place [the Temple] and our nation. - Jn. 11:48. Then, after His triumphant ride into Jerusalem amid the crowds, the Pharisees expressed their frustration to one another, You see that you are gaining nothing. Look, the world has gone after him. - Jn. 12:19. Now they have been publicly humiliated and condemned by Him and they are desperate to find a way to stop Him. Look at verse (15). That word entangle doesn't mean simply to embarrass Him or make Him appear foolish. It means to "snare" or "trap" Him using His words. Luke explains it more fully, So they watched him and sent spies, who pretended to be sincere, that they might catch him in something he said, so as to deliver him up to the authority and jurisdiction of the governor - 20:20. We also need to understand that the Jewish leaders at this time were very divided. Some were Pharisees and others were Sadducees and they hated each other's beliefs and constantly fought. Still others belonged to the political party of the Herodians who supported the rule of Herod and Rome and they were avidly hated by the intensely nationalistic Pharisees. Yet adversity makes strange bedfellows! All of these are desperate to get rid of Jesus for their own reasons, so on this day they join ranks to try trap Him in whatever way they can, hopefully to discredit Him before the multitudes, but, more importantly, to find some viable charge for which He can be arrested. Three times they come at Him with their carefully loaded questions and, one by one, Jesus silences all His opponents. First, we see:

I. The Herodians Silenced On The Subject Of Government (16-22) [Read 16] The Pharisees went to the Herodians for help. Now the Herodians were not a religious sect, but rather they were a political party among the Jews, a party that had supported the rule of Herod as King. Herod was an Edomite by race, but he adopted and practiced the Jewish faith, even though his position as King was given him by Roman authority. I guess the Herodian party felt that Herod and his sons would be better and more sympathetic rulers than Roman proconsuls sent from abroad. At any rate, hearing crowds shout about a "King of the Jews" or teaching about the "Kingdom of God" would worry and anger them. They feared the mighty hand of Rome which tolerated no insurrection and rebellion, so, though they hated the Pharisees, they were willing to co-operate with them to trap Jesus, because they both hated Him. After trying to butter Him up with a bunch of things they didn't really believe about Him but which were really true anyway, they tried to set Him up and notice:

1. the shrewdness of their trap (17) Let me re-state their question:

a. the question: "Should we Jews pay Rome the annual poll tax?" Rome required every person in their conquered territories from ages 14 to 65, including women and slaves, to pay an annual tax. The amount was a didrachma, which is two denarii or approximately two days wages. Let's call it $200 today. How would you like it if Iran conquered American and you had to pay them $200 for every family member each year to make your life miserable? I'm guessing you'd hate it, and so did many Jews. The question is, "Should we as Jews living under our Law in good conscience pay this?" But do you see His:

b. the dilemma in answering the question?

(1) if Jesus says "Yes", the Pharisees can accuse Him to the public as a traitor. The Jewish public hates Rome, hates the tax. If He agrees with it, they can paint Him as not only betraying His nation like the despised publicans, but betraying His own teaching and all the prophets concerning the Kingdom of God which was going to come, when God the rightful ruler would rule the world and all other powers would be crushed. Yet:

(2) if Jesus says "No", the Herodians can accuse Him to the governor as a traitor. They would have a concrete charge heard by many witnesses that Jesus was inciting the people to rebel against Roman authority. So, they think they have Him over a barrel, but see:

2. the genius of His answer (18-21) He knows what they're up to and tells them straight up that they're hypocrites. Then He says, "Let me see the money you pay the tax with." So they hand Him a denarius, and he says, "Whose picture is this on the coin? Whose writing?" "Caesar's!", they replied. So He said, "It has his picture and writing on it; he obviously made it; it obviously belongs to him and you are using it by his permission; therefore, he has a right to demand that you give it to him! So give him what belongs to him but also be careful to give God what belongs to God!" Now, this reply is so important because in saying those words, Jesus:

a. He affirmed the right of governments to tax their citizens and the obligation of citizens to pay taxes Look with me at Rom. 13:1-2, 5-7 where Paul spells this out clearly. God put the governing authorities in place, whoever they are. When we obey them, we are really obeying Him by acknowledging His order. We should obey the government not simply because of the punishment we could get, but because our ultimate allegiance belongs to God. Taxes belong to earthly governors. They coin the money, secure the peace, pave the roads, and provide public services. They have a right to tax. The only time we should NOT obey is when the government demands that we deny our ultimate allegiance to God and His commands, and in that case, we must obey God rather than men! So, Jews could pay taxes to Rome and do it as an act of obedience to their God because in God's order, Caesar has the right to what belongs to him. Yet what we never recognize in this story is that even as He said that, Jesus:

b. He asserted His own claims through the device of the coin We have Roman coins from that time period. The front has an image of the Emperor, Tiberius Caesar, along with this abbreviated inscription: Tiberius CAESAR DIVINI AUGUSTI Filius AUGUSTUS which means, Tiberius, Caesar, Son of the Divine Augustus, Augustus [meaning "majestic", the title taken by all Roman Emperors]. On the back is a picture of his mother, Livia, with the inscription referring to himself as, PONTIFEX MAXIMUS, that is, High Priest. Octavian, the father of Tiberius, had officially been declared a god and divine by the Roman Senate and therefore to be worshipped, so Tiberius literally claimed by his physical birth to be both the Son of God and the High Priest! [<http://ejc-nexus.net/AMBS-Handouts/Jn1.1-18-SonofGodandAncientCoins.pdf>] When Jesus held up the coin and said, "Give to God what belongs to Him", He was in essence claiming that inscription for Himself! He was quietly saying, without actually saying it, "Tiberius is not the Son of God and High Priest who deserves your worship; I AM! Yes, give Caesar his coin, but give God the worship and obedience that belongs to Him by acknowledging ME as His Son and High Priest, not Tiberius!" No wonder:

3. His answer amazed his opponents and silenced them (22) Luke says, Thus they were unable in the presence of the people to trap him with his own words. And stunned by his answer, they fell silent. - 20:26 NET. He had told the truth, answered the question and evaded the trap. The Herodians went away with their mouths gaping open but next we see:

II. The Sadducees Silenced On The Subject Of Resurrection (23-33) [Read 23] The Sadducees were a religious sect of the Jews who would fit in quite well in much of our modern thinking today because:

1. the Sadducees did not believe in a spiritual realm They were rationalists who only believed in what our eyes can see and prove. They denied that human beings have any existence at all after death; when you're dead, you simply stop existing like any other animal. In Acts 23:8 Luke explains that clearly and adds that they denied the existence of angels and demons and they especially despised the thought that man will experience a resurrection from the dead. Strangely enough, many of the priests who served at the Temple were Sadducees! As an aside, they also despised the Scripture-loving Pharisees who firmly believed in all those things, but they despised Jesus even more so:

a. they posed a deliberately absurd situation (24-28) This involves the so-called Levirate law found in Deut. 25:5 which says that if a man dies with no children, his brother must marry his widow and have a son to carry on his name. So, they invent the case of a woman who was married 7 times to 7 brothers and ask who she'll be married to in the resurrection. Now if they had said she was married twice, it might have been a legitimate question, but by making the situation seem so ludicrous, it's obvious that:

b. their purpose was to humiliate Jesus for teaching life after death They're mocking, poking fun. They're saying, not just to Jesus but to everyone, "Look how ridiculous it is to believe in a resurrection! This is what you'd have to deal with, who is married to whom now??" It's just like liberals today who sneer and say, "How ridiculous to believe in a literal heaven! Can you honestly believe in streets paved with gold and gates of pearl and all that stuff?" They want Jesus to look stupid, but it didn't faze Him one bit:

2. He declared them ignorant of both the Scriptures and God's power (29) Their very question showed that they didn't really understand what the Scriptures taught. They assumed that resurrection simply meant just another life like this one, only under better circumstances. They set up a straw man, a caricature of a belief, that was easy for them to knock down, which is what our unbelieving opponents so often do. So, first Jesus:

a. He explained the resurrection state (30) Matthew only records a piece of His reply. Luke gives the full thing: ...The sons of this age marry and are given in marriage, but those who are considered worthy to attain to that age and to the resurrection from the dead neither marry nor are given in marriage, for they cannot die anymore, because they are equal to angels and are sons of God, being sons of the resurrection. - Lk. 20:34-36.

(1) He denied that our future state simply mirrors our earthly existence The resurrection life is not a repeat of what occurs here; the old things pass away and all things are new. There will not be marriage in heaven in the sense there was on earth. "Whoa! Wait a minute! Won't I know my beloved spouse in heaven? Won't we be together? Will all of the good things we shared be lost and forgotten?" Yes, certainly we'll know each other and love each other there, but it will be different; it will be new. Our primary focus will have changed. It will not be on each other but on God. We will be like the angels; like them we will serve Him together and support one other, and whether on earth we were married to one person or three or seven, we'll not be bound there to any one person in the same exclusive sense, but will know and love and serve together with them all and millions more. And notice that in His answer, in one fell swoop, Jesus:

(2) He affirmed the spiritual realm, angels and immortality He affirmed that people WILL live after they're dead, that they will be with and like the angels (who DO exist) and that they will not die again, that they will live on forever! The Sadducees were wrong on all counts! But oh, how blessed to know that we are right, to have Jesus affirm that all of these things are true for us!

Then Jesus took them back and showed them something else that Moses wrote that proved resurrection!

b. He proved life after death scripturally (31-32) This is ingenious. Look at how Jesus relies on the very words of Scripture that God spoke to Moses in Ex. 3:6, hundreds of years after Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were dead. God told Moses, I AM the God of Abraham..., present tense. If Abraham, Isaac and Jacob had ceased to exist at death, God would have had to say "I WAS the God of Abraham..., I USED TO BE..." But He didn't. He purposely said "I AM RIGHT NOW..." He is not the God of dead people but the God of living people. Lk. 20:38 records His punchline to the whole thing, ...for all live to Him. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob live! All those that have died, they live; they are alive right now while their bodies wait for resurrection, but they live with Him! All our believing loved ones, all those who have meant so much to us in our faith, all those who passed the faith on to us, they're alive! Hallelujah! He IS their God right now! How do you argue with that? Again:

3. His answer amazed the crowd but it silenced the Sadducees (33-34a) The whole crowd was literally struck with astonishment. With one phrase Jesus had proved eternal life and silenced their most learned leaders. In fact, Luke tells us in 20:39 that even some of His enemies, the scribes, blurted out "Well said!" in response! But lastly, we see:

III. The Pharisees Silenced On The Subject Of The Law (34-46) [Read 34] Now the Pharisees were desperate. The Herodians had failed and the Sadducees looked like pure fools but they were determined to do something to discredit Jesus so they put their heads together and one of them, an expert in the law, somebody they hoped knew the Scriptures better than He did:

1. they tested Him concerning the greatest commandment (35-36) There was a lot of debate on that issue in Jesus' day. Picture it like this: suppose two commands conflict, like not working on the Sabbath day and then your ox falls into a pit. Do you leave it lay? Or that since there are 614 commandments in the Law, no one can possibly remember and pay total attention to each one, so what is the priority. Certainly, remembering not to muzzle your ox while threshing grain is less important than not worshipping idols. In reality it is about grading sins, deciding which one is worse than the other, something people still delight in doing because it makes them feel good! So they ask Jesus which is the most important of all and:

a. He gave them a most profound answer (37-40) He lifts the question above their petty level of understanding and answers it in terms of truth. It is not a question of "which one should I do and which one should I neglect?" He said that two commandments were the greatest because all the others spring from the keeping of these two and explain how to apply them. Deut. 6:5, which the Israelites quoted every day in their prayers and calls to worship, commands us to love God completely. That summed up the first 4 of Moses 10 commandments, as well as all of man's responsibility toward God. Then, Lev. 19:18, which commands us to love our neighbor, sums up all the rest. Every command in the Scripture is merely an outgrowth or applying of those two in a specific situation. It's an amazing, brilliant summary of the Old Testament Law. If you love God and you love others with everything you've got, you will ALWAYS please God! Who could argue with that? (Though one guy tried to when Jesus used it on an earlier occasion by asking, "Who is my neighbor!") But this time:

b. it had a pronounced effect - Mk. 12:32-34 tells us that the man who asked the question openly agreed with Jesus completely, and Jesus told him he was not far from the Kingdom!

However, now, instead of waiting for some next question from the Pharisees, Jesus:

2. He tested them concerning the greatness of the Son (41-45) Jesus baited them with a quick answer question. Everybody knew that the Messiah would come from the line of David, and so would be David's descendant, his son. So Jesus poses this. In Ps. 110:1 David was speaking about the Messiah and says, "The LORD (referring to Jehovah God) said to MY lord (referring to the Christ), sit here until I put your enemies under your feet." David wrote under inspiration of the Spirit so there can be no mistake. David, as a father, would never call his own son, his own descendant, Lord! How can the Christ be both the son of David and the Master of David at the same time?" They had no answer nor could they have had one. But, of course, we know the unstated answer. Paul gives it in Rom. 1:3-4 where he says that Christ was descended from David according to the flesh, the physical body. He was of David's line. But He was really the Son of God who came into the world and took on that human body and nature, and He declared that once and for all by His Resurrection from the dead. So, He is David's (and our) Lord, even while He is David's son in the human sense! But no one really knew that except Jesus at that moment so:

3. His question stymied everyone and silenced all further questioning (46) All His enemies were silenced and gave up, but you know, that's not a bad place to be.

Only a fool tries to argue with God; only a moron presumes to know more than Jesus, who is Himself the very wisdom of God. Yet don't even we ourselves do that very thing sometimes? We try to tell Him what we want and what He should do and why it has to be that way. Like His enemies, we are sometimes so full of our own ideas that He has to silence us before we can learn. In the 1800s in Japan there lived a Zen master by the name Nan-In. One day he invited one of his students to his home for tea. After they had chatted for a while, the old man asked, "May I serve you some tea?" "Yes, thank you," replied the disciple, and they both sat down on the floor at a low table. Ceremoniously, Nan-In set a teacup in front of the student and began pouring tea. He talked while he poured the tea, all the while looking intently into the student's face. The young man was so involved in what the master was saying that at first, he didn't notice that the cup was overflowing. Nan-In just kept pouring. Finally, he interrupted Nan-In, practically shouting, "Stop! You have overfilled the cup!" Nan-In stopped and smiled. Then he said, "Yes, the cup is overfull, and you, my friend, are like this cup--so full of your own thoughts and ideas that I can't teach you any wisdom. You must first empty the cup." [A Whack on the Side of the Head by Roger Van Oech. Warren Books, 1983. Page 10.] Jesus has that same problem with us; we are so full of ourselves. So, when you come to Him, first empty the cup; then you, like Paul, will marvel and say, Oh, the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways! "For who has known the mind of the Lord, or who has been his counselor?" "Or who has given a gift to him that he might be repaid?" For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be glory forever. Amen. - Rom. 11:33-36.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Condemns His Opponents - Ch. 23

Matthew 23 is a sermon that Jesus preached to the crowd on that Tuesday of Passion Week. After all the attempts by the Pharisees, the Herodians and the Sadducees to trap Him in public had failed and their mouths were all silenced and no one would dare to try to oppose Him verbally again, He turned to the gathered crowd and preached a lengthy and scathing sermon directed specifically against the Pharisees. It was not an outburst of anger; it is obviously well-organized and thought out. Rather, it was a Divine pronouncement of doom upon these false religious leaders and, at the end, upon the nation which followed them. It stands through the ages as a stern condemnation of the false religious leaders that have sprung up everywhere down through history, even within the church itself. There have always been religious leaders who have a splendid appearance outwardly, but absolutely no relationship to God. The New Testament mentions them frequently. Some were teachers of false doctrine like the Judaizers in Galatians; others led people astray into immoral behavior like the Nicolaitans in Revelation. They captivated Israel, they plagued the early church, and, sad to say, they are found throughout the church worldwide today. So, we need to listen for ourselves as:

I. Jesus Warned His Followers About False Religious Leaders (1-12) [Read (1-3a)] The Scribes were professional students and teachers of the Scriptures and they belonged to the party of the Pharisees who had the highest respect for the Law and its commands. They sat in Moses' seat; literally, each synagogue had a stone seat in the front where the authoritative teacher would sit to teach the people the Law. At the same time, many of them also held positions of ruling authority as part of the Sanhedrin, and Jesus implied that as such:

1. we may have to respect their position of authority Whenever religious leaders teach accurately from the Scriptures, we have to listen and follow that teaching, no matter what their personal motives may be. While He was in prison in Rome, Paul wrote about some of his own opponents: Some indeed preach Christ from envy and rivalry, ...out of selfish ambition, not sincerely but thinking to afflict me in my imprisonment. What then? Only that in every way, whether in pretense or in truth, Christ is proclaimed, and in that I rejoice. - Phil. 1:15-18. Whenever religious leaders teach truth God will use that truth and, if they hold a position of authority, we may have to respect it, just as in Acts 23 Paul apologized for calling the High Priest a whitewashed wall because he didn't realize he was the High Priest. We may have to respect the office, even if the person who holds it is not worthy of that respect. However, Jesus warned that:

2. we dare not imitate the things that they do (3b-4) The Pharisees added a myriad of rules TO the Word of God. Mark comments that the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat unless they wash their hands properly, holding to the tradition of the elders, and when they come from the marketplace, they do not eat unless they wash. And there are many other traditions that they observe, such as the washing of cups and pots and copper vessels and dining couches. These are the heavy burdens they laid on the people, rules that said, "To please God you must do this and this and this, on and on," none of which was really scriptural. Some leaders do that today; they heap up regulations about dress or jewelry or makeup or hair, or forbid ever touching alcohol and so on. We must be careful to recognize when people are adding to the Word of God things that it doesn't teach. But Jesus warned that these Pharisees:

a. they do not practice the things they teach They do not obey in their lives the very Word of God they claim to honor. These Pharisees who clearly taught the command, You shall not murder, were plotting murder against Jesus all week long! We'll see several more examples of that sort of hypocrisy in the verses to come. When you want to evaluate any religious leader, first you test what they teach against God's Word. If that doesn't line up, they are false to start with. But then if they're teaching correct things, you test their life against what they teach! If they tell you one thing, but live another, they are false leaders. And what you'll find about false leaders is that, like the Pharisees:

b. they continually strive to exalt themselves (5-7) Everything they do is done, not to please God, but to be seen by people in order to exalt their own status and boost their own ego. The Pharisees tied pouches with Bible verses in them on their arms and foreheads, not so they could remember them, but so that people would think them extremely pious! And they enlarged fringes or tassels on the corners of their garments to show how well they kept the law. They loved to sit in places of honor wherever they were and they loved when people would call them Rabbi, which literally means "my Master", because their whole goal was to be somebody, to receive recognition and prestige from others. By the way, that is a trap that any of us can fall into. When praise comes our way, it is easy for that kind of pride to grow in us. That's why Jesus warned us clearly that we are never to be like that. Rather:

3. we are always to practice humble servanthood (8-12) Now Jesus didn't mean that you can't call your actual dad, "Father" or that a child can't call their teacher, "Teacher". Those are natural uses of those words. I don't even think there's anything wrong with addressing a Catholic priest as Father or a Protestant minister as Reverend, because those are respectful forms of address in our society, like "Dr." or "Your Honor" to a judge. His point is that we're not to try to get people to call us by exalted names and love to be held in higher regard than others, because we all are brothers and we have only one true Master or guide or instructor. We are to regard Christ as our true spiritual Guide and see ourselves as servants. We're to regard God as our true Heavenly Father and the real source of all that we are and have and see ourselves as dependent on Him. We're to regard Christ as the real true teacher and ourselves, no matter how educated we are, as learners! Our operating principle is to be servanthood, seeing ourselves here, not to be exalted over others, but to humbly serve them. When we lose that humility, we've become false; we've fallen into sin and hypocrisy, just as the Pharisees had done.

Now Christ turns from addressing the crowd and his own disciples and speaks directly to the false leaders themselves, so in this next section of the chapter we listen with the crowd as:

II. Jesus Condemned The False Religious Leaders In Israel (13-36) He pronounced a series of either 7 or 8 "Woe"s upon them, depending on how you count them. The word Woe is simply an expression of grief that has no literal meaning. Jesus used it to mean something of a cross between "Shame on you!" and "Look out!". In these woes Jesus lists the specific charges for which He is condemning these false leaders; He details their crimes before the Lord and why they can expect God's judgment to fall on them. First of all:

1. they prevented others from receiving salvation (13) By rejecting Jesus as Israel's King and Messiah, they slammed the door of salvation shut for themselves, but worse, they were intentionally keeping others who might have believed from following Him. They threatened to put people out of the synagogue if anyone should confess Jesus as the Christ. They openly dissuaded people from believing, others who had sincere hearts and were drawn to the truth, but were frightened away by them, all in the guise of being religious and sincere. That's the really diabolical thing about false religious leaders. They not only don't genuinely believe in Jesus themselves, but they dissuade others from it and essentially send people to hell without even realizing they're doing it! I've told you many times that both the college and the seminary I attended were filled with professors who taught religion, nice people, religious people, but they did not believe that Jesus was God and the only way of salvation. By refusing to believe, they shut the door of true faith for themselves, but worse, they dedicated their lives to "enlightening people," which is essentially dissuading them from the simple faith Jesus demands. Students came in with a background of faith from their local churches and they were taught that the Bible cannot be taken literally, that Moses did not part the Red Sea, that miracles did not literally happen and that Jesus did not bodily rise from the dead. By the time they graduated, these poor students had no desire to follow the "humanized" version of Jesus they "learned" about! And, sadly, there are pastors in pulpits of churches across our land who do the very same thing Sunday after Sunday. To use Paul's phrase, Their condemnation is just. Secondly, Jesus condemned these leaders because:

2. they concealed evil deeds with the appearance of religion (14) [Margin] This verse is in the margin of most modern translations because it is not found in some of the oldest Greek manuscripts, however both Mark and Luke record it verbatim, so we know Jesus did say it on this occasion. In order to make a profit, the Pharisees, being rich, would foreclose mortgages on poor widows whose husbands had died and who couldn't make enough on their own in that society to keep their homes. And then instead of helping them out of their own abundance, they would stand there and pray for them as a show, literally as a disguise, "God, now please shelter and feed this poor family." It was sheer hypocrisy. God absolutely hates it when someone feigns love for Him as a disguise and a cover up to hide their own greed! Years ago, when we had our local radio broadcast, our agent who was a friend used to tell me about one of the religious broadcasters who followed us, about the rolls of money he would flash around at the station and how he was bilking people continually while supposedly giving them spiritual solace. Sadly, he was not the first nor the only religious leader to be motivated by greed! Throughout history there have been many and Jesus says their condemnation will be the greater because of it. Then Jesus condemns the Pharisees because:

3. they led others to become just like themselves (15) It was not bad enough they were trying to prevent people from believing in Jesus; they were actively doing everything in their power to recruit people and train them to become just like they were. They were reproducing themselves, leading others to follow in their footsteps. So are false leaders today; my professors were reproducing students just like themselves and sending them out into pulpits and leadership positions throughout the land and they're still doing it. Next, He says:

4. they were dishonest and untrustworthy (16-22) In that day, oaths were a significant means of sealing transactions and amounted to a binding contract. Yet they had invented devious ways to get out of oaths they had taken, if it was to their own benefit. They would say, "Well, I didn't swear by the gold of the Temple, just by the Temple itself". Or "I didn't swear by the sacrifice; I only swore by the altar itself, so I don't have to keep my promise." They sound almost like little kids saying, "I didn't say, 'I promise', or 'I had my fingers crossed!'" The point is that they were intentionally dishonest and untrustworthy and they designed their hierarchy of oaths to get out of honest obligations! And what's worse is that three times in these verses Jesus calls them BLIND! They actually couldn't see anything wrong with what they were doing! They couldn't see that the Temple was God's house and an oath by it or by the altar in it was made before Him and He was the keeper and guardian of the oath. False religious leaders are blind; they can't see the true nature of what they're doing. Then Jesus says:

5. they emphasized unimportant matters but neglected important ones (23-24) These guys were extraordinary tithers, and that's good. They gave a tenth of everything to God, meticulously, right down to the herbs that grew in their gardens. But in the process, they neglected the really important matters like justice and mercy for that poor widow. The Pharisees were very careful to strain every gnat out of their wine before they drank it, lest they should violate the dietary law by eating an unclean "creeping thing". The image is that they were so focused on removing the gnat that they gulped down a whole camel, another unclean animal, in the process without noticing! It's an absurd comparison intended to show the reversed priorities they had. It didn't matter that the poor widow and her children had no food, but every leaf on every mint plant in their garden was carefully accounted for! False teachers often major on minors, often miss the big issues while making a mountain out of little ones. Next Jesus says:

6. they were concerned only with external appearance, not the heart (25-28) Now here I lumped two woes together into one because they are simply two word pictures that say the same thing. Jesus said the Pharisees:

a. they were like outwardly-wiped dishes (25-26) Do you like to eat out of dishes that have only been wiped clean on the outside? I doubt it! The inside is the important part, isn't it? The Pharisees looked clean on the outside, but their insides had never been touched. They were full of greed and self-indulgence. In fact, Jesus says:

b. they were like whitewashed tombs (27-28) Tombs were above-ground structures and the custom in that day was to keep them whitewashed on the outside so they would appear beautiful. But inside each one was rotten flesh and dead bones and every kind of uncleanness. That's how these leaders were. They had a nice external appearance that made them appeal to the people, but inside they were full of greed, self-indulgence, hypocrisy and lawlessness! And lastly:

7. they persecuted God's servants (29-36) Being a prophet in Israel was a dangerous calling. Too many times God's messengers were persecuted and slain by the false leaders of their day. And so has it ever been done down through the centuries over and over. False religious leaders within the church itself put to death, one after the other, the very people who passed our precious faith on to us, people like John Huss, John Wycliffe, William Tyndale, and literally thousands of others. False leaders will do anything to keep themselves in power. Now the Pharisees:

a. they feigned regret for the past (29-30) They venerated Zechariah's tomb and Isaiah's tomb and those of other prophets who had been slain by previous generations. They decorated their monuments and said, "Man, if we had lived back then, we'd never have done what they did! We'd never have slain any of God's messengers!" But that didn't fool Jesus. He knew that at that very moment they were already plotting His own death! And He knew it wouldn't stop with Him:

b. Jesus knew they would persecute His followers (31-34) He sent His followers FIRST to Israel, to the Jews. And what did they do? They arrested and threatened the apostles. James, they killed with the sword right away and they tried to do the same to Peter. Stephen, they stoned to death. Paul dragged men and women off to prison for their faith in Christ and later, when he was converted, the Jewish leaders sought his life! Zealous Jewish leaders became the enemies of the Gospel wherever it spread throughout the Roman Empire. Jesus knew all of this beforehand and so at the end of His sermon:

c. He pronounced final judgment upon that generation of Israel (35-36) Other generations had obviously been extremely guilty, but on this generation, the one which rejected God's own Son, the punishment would finally fall at long last. Israel as a nation would be destroyed in AD 70 by the Romans, the city of Jerusalem would be leveled and these leaders and their followers would perish, along with the nation itself.

What a sad pronouncement! But again, this pronouncement of condemnation was not an angry reaction. Jesus took no pleasure in saying it; in fact:

III. Jesus Grieved Over The Nation Of Israel (37-39) By the way, this is not the first time Jesus said this. He said these exact same words in Lk. 13:34 some time earlier across the Jordan in Perea, before He came up to Jerusalem. Yet it bore repeating. This is one of the saddest pronouncements of doom in all the Word of God. It is poignant, moving. First of all, notice how:

1. He spoke to them as their Eternal God How often would I have gathered your children together... "I was there! I saw you kill the prophets and stone those I sent you! It was ME who sent them. I am the Eternal God, the Rock who followed you about in the wilderness, the Lord of Hosts who fought for you over and again against your enemies, God Almighty who rescued you time and again when you called to Me. I and the Father are One!" That's how Jesus speaks to them and now He says:

2. His Presence will leave them until the time of His return He would soon withdraw His presence completely, from the city and from the Temple. It would be left empty; God would no longer dwell there. As a nation, once they crucified their King, they would not see Him again until that day at the end of the Tribulation period when they will see Him coming in the clouds of heaven and will look on Him whom they had pierced and mourn for Him and will shout at last with genuine meaning the words they had so emptily cried the Sunday before, "Blessed is He who comes in the Name of the Lord!" But what I really want you to see is that Jesus:

3. He perpetually longed for them to truly belong to Him For all they had done, He didn't hate them; He loved them. He had longed for them, not just for 33 years while He walked the earth, but for centuries upon centuries as the Son of God in heaven; He had yearned to really gather Israel as a nation to Himself like a mother hen lovingly gathering her chicks under her wings and folding them to her breast. He longed to have their hearts truly and fully love Him. But they would not! They didn't want Him! I can almost see the tears, the tears of a Loving God who now has to literally put to death his own beloved people, Israel, because they just will not stop their heinous crimes against Him. And, there is the attitude we should have toward false religious leaders and enemies of all sorts who seek our harm. We ought not to hate them; despite all their hypocrisy, Jesus never hated the leaders of Israel; He longed for them even while He was condemning them! He longs for sinners of all types, hypocrites and enemies, terrorists and murderers, to be saved, so, like Him, we ought to long for and pray for their salvation even though we have to condemn their actions and warn them of impending doom!

*During the American Revolution a Baptist pastor by the name of Peter Miller, lived and served in the town of Ephrata, Pennsylvania. He was also a personal friend of George Washington, General of the Continental Army. In Ephrata there also lived a man named Michael Wittman, an evil-minded fellow who did everything he could to oppose Peter's ministry and humiliate him. But as it turns out, Michael Wittman favored the British and helped them, so at length he was arrested for treason, taken to Philadelphia and sentenced to die. When Peter Miller learned of this, he traveled seventy miles on foot to Philadelphia, not to watch his enemy hang, but to appear before Washington to plead for the life of the traitor. General Washington responded, "No, Peter, I cannot grant you the life of your friend." "My friend!" exclaimed the preacher. "He's the bitterest enemy I have." "What?" cried Washington. "You've walked seventy miles to save the life of an enemy? That puts the matter in different light. I'll grant the pardon." And he did. So, Peter Miller took Michael Wittman back home to Ephrata--no longer an enemy but a friend. [from The Grace of Giving, Stephen Olford] That's the heart Jesus had toward His opponents; He longed for their salvation; in fact, He died to provide it and as He did, He prayed, Father forgive them, they don't know what they're doing. That's the heart He wants in us.*

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Declares His Return - 24:1-44

Chapters 24-25 of Matthew have become known as The Olivet Discourse because they are an extended block of teaching that Jesus gave to His disciples as He sat on the Mount of Olives looking across the Kidron Valley at Jerusalem and the Temple. It was still Tuesday of Passion Week and the end of a long day of conflict with the Jewish leaders when His disciples asked him a question:

I. The Disciples' Question About Christ's Return (1-3) Jesus was leaving the Temple to go out to the Mount of Olives and Bethany after His scathing sermon against the Pharisees. The last thing He had said was, your house is left to you desolate. Of course, the disciples had heard this and approached Him to point out the magnificence of the great Temple buildings beside them. King Herod had built a magnificent Temple complex that was some 300 by 500 yards in size. The outer wall was three layers of blocks of hand-quarried white marble, some being as much as 60 feet long and 9 feet high, weighing several hundred tons each. It was one of the most magnificent buildings anywhere in the ancient world and the disciples were implying, "How can all this be left desolate? What do you mean?" You can easily understand how shocked they were when Jesus made it clear that all these massive stones would be knocked down, not one left upon another! So later on, out on the mount, they approached Him to ask a two part question, first, when would these things be, meaning the destruction of the city and the temple? Matthew didn't record Jesus' answer to that part of the question, but Luke did in 21:20-24, basically saying that Jerusalem would be surrounded by armies, its inhabitants would fall by the sword and be led captive into all nations and Jerusalem would be trodden underfoot by Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles were fulfilled. But the second half of their question was, what would be the sign of His parousia, His coming, and of the end of this age, when He would visibly set up the Kingdom of God on earth. That's what Jesus is explaining in Mt. 24, the time and nature of what we call His Return to earth. Of course, this is a relevant question for us too. Peter warned us that we will always have to deal with scoffers who will mock and say, "Where is this coming He promised?" [2 Pet. 3:3-4]. People today mock us for believing in Christ's return. Then, on the other hand, various supposedly Christian groups through the centuries have set and announced times for His coming and been proved wrong. Well, contained here is what Jesus Himself taught about His coming and the very first thing we read is that:

II. Jesus Warned Us NOT To Look For "Signs" In World Circumstances (4-14) Ever since I was young, I've heard evangelists use these verses and talk about wars and earthquakes and famines and how they are increasing as Jesus said and declare that these things are signs that His coming must be very, very soon. If you take time to actually read them, Jesus said exactly the opposite of that! He was saying that NONE of these things are signs of His coming! He was warning us that all of these things are a normal part of this evil world and we should expect them to happen. For instance:

1. He warned us to expect false messiahs (4-5) And from that day to this, there have been such. Wikipedia has a list of some 32 religious leaders who have claimed to be, or whose followers have claimed them to be, the reincarnation of Jesus Christ since 1800, including names like Sun Myung Moon, Jim Jones, and David Koresh! How many more must there have been in the 18 centuries before that! And each has indeed led many astray, but Jesus said, "This doesn't mean I'm coming; expect this to happen! Just don't believe any of them! I'm not coming back that way. My return will NOT be in the writings of Emmanuel Swedenborg as The New Church over in Bryn Athyn teaches!" Then:

2. He warned us to expect many wars (6-7a) Every time a major war comes along and people's worlds fall apart, they want to see it as a sign of the end. But one source says there have been some 14,000 wars in recorded history. 66 million people died in World War II alone and since that war, there have been an average of 30 armed conflicts going every year. Jesus said, "Don't be alarmed; expect them; none of those are signs of the end!" Then:

3. He warned us to expect natural disasters (7b-8) When a volcano erupts and destroys a city or a tidal wave hits and wipes out thousands or an earthquake devastates a country, it seems natural for people to think, "This is it; this is the end of the world!" But the annual number of natural disasters recorded has averaged 384 per year over the last decade! Think how many thousands of them there have been since Jesus said this! Jesus said, "Expect them! They are not the 'sign'! They're just early labor pains compared to what will come upon the world later!" Then:

4. He warned us to expect much persecution (9-10) Persecution began with the Jews, but soon spread to the entire Roman Empire and lasted more than two hundred and fifty years! Surely some believers thought the end was coming! But it happened through the Middle Ages; it happened during Reformation times throughout Europe; it happened in China, Japan, the Soviet Union, India, the Ottoman Empire, and it is happening today. The number of believers who died for their faith in the last century is greater than the previous 19 combined! Of course, because of it many have fallen away into apostasy and betrayed and hated each other! But that is not the "sign" of His coming.

5. He warned us to expect wicked human behavior to increase (11-13) The cruelty of humankind is unbelievable. But the atrocities of Stalin and Hitler were nothing new. The genocides of Rwanda and Liberia are par for the course of history. Mankind is not growing infinitely worse; he's always been this bad! People look at the wickedness of their society and say, "How can it get any worse? Jesus HAS to come!" But this is not "the sign". In fact, Jesus was telling us NOT to look at any of the circumstances in the world that surrounds us as the sign of His coming! Rather, He was assuring us that, in spite of all these things, His purpose will be accomplished!

6. the Gospel WILL be proclaimed to ALL peoples before He returns (14) His instructions will be carried out and His purpose to make disciples of some from every people group on earth WILL happen before the end comes, so if you want to focus on something, focus on getting that job done; hasten His coming, as Peter put it, because Jesus said plainly that the end of this age will not come until every people in the whole world hears! But even that is not the "sign". He's just assuring us that He has a plan for human history and He will complete it before He intervenes and sets up His Kingdom, no matter WHAT happens in the world and actually, THROUGH what happens in the world! You see, many of us have been taught an imbalanced version of the doctrine of imminence, that is, the idea that Jesus could return at any moment and that this has always been true from the time He left. It sounds right, doesn't it? But think about it. Jesus told Peter in John 21 that Peter was going to grow old and die. So could Jesus have returned before Peter died? He told His disciples that Jerusalem was going to be destroyed by Gentile armies; that happened in AD 70. So, could Jesus have returned before AD 70? He told them of all the persecutions they would face in many nations, so could He have come before those persecutions happened? Or could he have come before all the wars, famines and earthquakes that He just said were going to happen? No. Then in Acts 1:8 He said You WILL be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth. So, could He have returned before His disciples got to the ends of the earth?? No! Now here we read that the Gospel will be preached in the entire world to every people, so could He return until that's done? No! The Bible tells us to expect and wait for and watch for and prepare for His coming because we don't know WHEN it will be, but it also tells us that Jesus has a plan and a purpose for us, His church, that He's going to carry out and get done before He comes! Both are true! Then Jesus went on:

III. Jesus Detailed The Events That Immediately Precede His Return (15-28) He tells the disciples that when the time of His coming draws near, indeed:

1. there will be an identifiable "sign", an unmistakable sign (15). An abomination will stand in the Holy of Holies in God's temple. As Jesus hinted, Dan. 9:27 gives us the key to understanding this sign; it says that at some time after Messiah has been cut off and the city of Jerusalem and the Temple have been destroyed, that a prince who shall come will desecrate the Temple (which will obviously have to be rebuilt in the future) by setting up an abomination in it. Paul explained this more clearly in 2 Thess. 2:3-4, where he says that a man of lawlessness, a great leader who opposes God will sit in that Temple and declare himself to be God and demand worship! Then we move on to Rev. 13:14-15 where John says that the Antichrist, the end-time world leader, will desecrate God's temple by setting up his own statue in it and giving the command to worship it, forcing that worship upon the people of Israel and the entire world. Jesus said, "Watch for that! It is clear and unmistakable! When you see a world leader in the Temple in Jerusalem proclaim himself God, don't hesitate for a moment; that's the first identifiable sign that My coming is actually close! And here's what to do when it happens":

2. the people of Israel will flee to the desert (16-20) The Israelites who, up until this time, had been experiencing freedom of worship by agreement with this man according to Daniel 9, will now realize who he is and they will run; they will flee from the city of Jerusalem to the hills, to the desert, where God will protect and hide many of them through the horrible time that is just beginning. We also read about this very event in Rev. 12:13-14, how God will help this remnant of Israel who will now believe and will protect them from the wrath of this world leader. Then, Jesus said:

3. there will be a time of "great" tribulation (21-22) It will be worldwide and horrible beyond anything that history has ever seen. And from Dan. 9:27 and Rev. 12:14 we know specifically that it will last 3 ½ years. Revelation tells us that more than 1/3 of earth's population will die (imagine that - 2+ billion today!) and Jesus said if that period hadn't been limited to a short time that the human race wouldn't survive! Jesus also said that during that period:

4. there will be great danger of deception (23-26) - Rev. 13:13-14 tells us about a religious leader called THE false prophet and the great miracle-working powers he has, and the power of the strong delusion he will practice on the world. And he will not be the only one. Yet in that day, Christ's people do not have to be fooled. If they listen to what He has said, they will know that all of these rumors about His coming here or there are unfounded lies because:

IV. Jesus Described The Glorious Nature Of His Return (27-31) It will not be private or localized; His coming:

1. it will be accompanied by great heavenly signs (27, 29) Suddenly great signs will appear in the sky; the sun, the moon and the stars will all be affected. The universe will appear to be falling apart. It will be like a flash of lightning that appears to go from horizon to horizon; the whole world will see it and then will appear the real sign that His people have been waiting for:

2. Christ Himself will appear gloriously in the heavens (30) HE's the sign! When He shows up in the sky, coming on the clouds of heaven with the hosts of heaven following Him, there will be no mistake! The whole world will know who it is, because they've been told ahead of time and when they see Him coming in all His glory, they will mourn and wail because they know their doom is at hand. And when He comes:

3. all His enemies will be slain That's what verse (28) is about. Rev. 19:17-18 describes how the vultures will gather to feast on the bodies of all the armies of earth that Christ will slay by the word of His mouth. And as all those who have rejected Him are being gathered to meet their doom:

4. all His remaining people will be gathered to Him (31) Those who have become believers during this awful time and have managed by the grace of God to somehow survive to this moment will be gathered together from all over the world into His presence to be commended and ushered into His Kingdom.

Now there is one thing I need to point out here. I'm sure some of you are asking, "But what about the Rapture of the Church? Isn't Jesus going to catch His church out of this world in an instant and take us all to heaven?" Yes, I believe He is! But Jesus Himself never taught about that particular truth. You won't find it in Matthew 24-25. God revealed that blessed truth later on through Paul in his letters. When His Church is complete, at the very beginning of the final seven years of human history, in my view, Jesus will Rapture His church out and spare her from the horrors of the Tribulation, but knowing that now, as we do, only serves to intensify what Jesus went on to say next.

V. Jesus Exhorted Us To Live Expecting His Return (32-44) That's the whole point. He didn't tell us all this just so we'd know the information. He told us so that we'd live in anticipation of His coming. Now notice that there is a distinction here:

1. the generation that sees the specific "sign" of verse 15 CAN anticipate His return (32-35) When the fig tree grows leaves in Palestine, it is an indicator that summer is near. We get that. When certain plants begin to grow or trees begin to bud, we know that spring is coming. The things that Jesus spelled out will be signs just like that. Those believers who are alive at the time when the world leader defiles and desecrates the Temple with his statue and demands that everyone worship him, will be able to anticipate the time of His return. That will be a concrete marker that will tell them His return is literally drawing near. In fact, if they are real students of the Scriptures, they would even be able to know that there are 3 ½ years left until His coming. And Jesus gave them further assurance in verse 34. That future generation of believers, the one that sees these events will not die out or be destroyed before He comes, no matter how awful their circumstances! They have His Word on it, which is the surest thing in all the universe, more permanent than heaven and earth! So, in that day they will be able to know with certainty that He's coming very soon and these words will be their greatest encouragement. Yet even as He said that, Jesus was adamant that:

2. we absolutely CANNOT know the time of His return (36) And yet, ever since Jesus' time, people have claimed to know it. One website lists some 250 individual years in which some group or other predicted Christ's return, the most popular being the years 1,000 AD and 2,000 AD. One group alone, Jehovah's Witnesses, predicted Christ's return nine times, in 1874, 1878, 1881, 1910, 1914, 1918, 1925, 1975, and 1984. Harold Camping of Family Radio predicted it three separate times, most recently May 21, 2011 and Oct. 21, 2011. When are we going to learn to simply believe what Jesus said: NOBODY KNOWS! No human being, not even the angels, not even Jesus Himself at that moment in His human self-limitation. The Father has reserved that for Himself alone. We cannot know the time of Christ's coming, but you see, that's the whole point! First of all:

a. His arrival will be unexpected by the world (37-41) People in Noah's day didn't believe him that a great flood was coming. So, they went on with life as normal, doing all the things they normally did until it began to rain and it was too late. The flood came as an unexpected surprise to them and that's how it will be at Jesus' coming. Despite the fact that the world has been warned, they won't believe it either and will go on with life, ignoring it, until they see Him coming and then it will be too late. By the way, verses 40 and 41 are not about believers being raptured out; they are about non-believers being swept away to judgment suddenly at His coming. The world will not expect Him to come! But Jesus said:

b. we must be perpetually ready because we do not know the time (42-44) I think most of us have faced either the reality or the possibility of someone breaking into our home. If you knew WHEN the thief was coming, you'd have the police there waiting. You'd wait till that specific time and prepare. But suppose you only knew THAT the thief was coming, but not WHEN. What would you do? You'd watch the whole night, every night, wouldn't you? That's our situation. Because we do not know when the time is, we can't say, "I'll wait and prepare later because I know when it's going to happen." God purposely withheld that information from us, so that we would not put off getting our lives in order until the last minute, but would instead live in a constant state of readiness. The only logical thing for us to do is to be ready every moment, watching, waiting for, expecting His coming! And this is especially true for us, because we know we'll be raptured out before the identifiable sign, the desecration of the Temple even happens!

May 19 of the year 1780 is known as New England's Dark Day. An abnormal darkening of the daytime sky was observed over the New England states and parts of Canada. Samuel Williams wrote, In some places, the darkness was so great, that persons could not see to read common print in the open air, for several hours together. An eyewitness, Samuel Tenney, wrote, The darkness of the following evening was probably as gross as ever has been observed since the Almighty gave birth to light. It wanted only palpability to render it as extraordinary, as that which overspread the land of Egypt in the days of Moses if every luminous body in the universe had been shrouded in impenetrable shades, or struck out of existence, the darkness could not have been more complete. A sheet of white paper held within a few inches of the eyes was equally invisible with the blackest velvet. Timothy Dwight wrote: Candles were lighted in many houses; the birds were silent and disappeared, and the fowls retired to roost. The legislature of Connecticut was then in session at Hartford. A very general opinion prevailed, that the day of judgment was at hand. The hearts of many were filled with fear and expected the coming of Christ in judgment at any moment. The house of Representatives, being unable to transact their business, adjourned. A proposal to adjourn the Governor's Council was under consideration. Among the members was Col. Abraham Davenport, who has become famous for his devout response, as he rose and said, I am against an adjournment. The day of judgment is either approaching, or it is not. If it is not, there is no cause of an adjournment: if it is, I choose to be found doing my duty. John Greenleaf Whittier later paraphrased Abraham Davenport's response in his famous poem, This well may be The Day of Judgment which the world awaits; But be it so or not, I only know my present duty, and my Lord's command to occupy till He come. So at the post where He hath set me in His providence, I choose, for one, to meet Him face to face, no faithless servant frightened from my task, but ready when the Lord of the harvest calls; and therefore, with all reverence, I would say, let God do His work, we will see to ours. Bring in the candles. And they did. Dear friends, let us not look for useless signs and live in fear of His coming; rather let us live every day, as Paul put it, ...self-controlled, upright, and godly lives in the present age, waiting for our blessed hope, the appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ - Titus 2:12-13.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Warns Of His Return - 24:45-25:30

Just a reminder as we begin that it is still Tuesday evening of Passion Week and as the sun goes down at the end of a long day for Jesus, He is sitting on the Mount of Olives, looking across the Kidron Valley at Jerusalem and the Temple, glowing in the setting sun, and giving his disciples a long block of teaching about His return that we call The Olivet Discourse. His disciples had asked Him what would be the sign of His coming and of the end of the age and Jesus had warned them not to look for signs in the circumstances of the world around them, described the nature of His coming on the clouds of heaven with power and great glory and then made the blunt declaration in verse 36 that NO ONE knows the day or the hour! No one! Then, He moved on to His real point in verse 44, Therefore you also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an hour you do not expect. We, His followers, must live in perpetual readiness for His return, and Jesus went on to emphasize that three more times by telling them three stories, the parables of the Faithful Manager, the Ten Virgins and the Talents. These three familiar parables warn us how we should live in light of the fact that Jesus will return and we don't know when that will be. In the first story, Jesus tells us that:

I. Faithful Managers Fulfill Their Responsibilities Until He Comes (45-51) It's a hypothetical story about a man who is evidently well-to-do and has a sizeable property which is operated by an extended household staff of servants who work the fields, care for the animals and attend the house. Because he is going away, he chooses one of them and puts him in charge of managing the whole operation until he returns, without specifying when that will be. Then Jesus paints two possible scenarios. One person might be a:

1. the faithful and wise servant (45-47) When his master left, he gave the servant certain responsibilities. He was to feed and care for the other servants and manage the household. And because he is faithful and also wise, he does what we are supposed to do as followers Jesus. He knows his master is coming back and that he will be required to give account so:

a. he carries out his responsibilities in his Master's absence The time drags on and the Master doesn't come back; the days turn into months and then into years, but that doesn't matter. He simply keeps on doing every day the things he was told to do, so it actually doesn't matter what day the master returns; he'll find the manager faithfully carrying out his assigned duties. But Jesus says that in the end:

b. he will be rewarded with great responsibility at the Master's return When the Master does come, he will be very pleased. Because He has found that the servant can be trusted, He will put him in charge of everything He has, just as Potiphar put Joseph in charge of everything in his house there in Egypt because he had been found faithful. And the servant will be truly happy together with his Master from then on. That's one scenario; but what if the person left in charge is actually a:

2. the wicked servant (48-51) Notice that Jesus says this servant is a wicked servant to start with. He pretends to serve his Master but is actually not a true servant in his heart; he doesn't love or care about his Master or his Master's affairs. Jesus calls him a hypocrite, an actor, one who is pretending to be something he is not; it's the exact charge He made against the Pharisees. So, while the Master is gone:

a. he lives a wicked life as though the Master will not return He may behave well for a little while out of fear, but he trusts his eyes more than the Master's word, and after while, he comes to actually believe the Master isn't coming back. He is a false servant who in reality is only serving himself. So he takes license and abuses the other servants and lives any way he feels like, drinking and carousing, living a life of sin, because he has forgotten the Master is coming. And yet one day it happens; unexpectedly the Master comes and Jesus says:

b. he will be destroyed and lost eternally when the Master returns He'll be cut in pieces, that is, killed, when the Lord returns, and then cast into hell with the other hypocrites where he belongs! What a strong warning!

But please understand what Jesus is saying here. Real believers are wise managers who faithfully keep on carrying out their responsibilities for Christ until He comes. Those who claim to be Christ's servants but live like the devil are, in reality, wicked hypocrites headed for judgment and had better wake up before He comes or they die! A woman once asked John Wesley, the itinerant Methodist preacher, "What if you knew you were to die at 12 o'clock tomorrow night? How would you spend the intervening time?" "How, Madam?" he replied. "Why, just as I intend to spend it now. I'd preach tonight at Gloucester, and again tomorrow morning. After that I would ride to Tewkesbury, preach in the afternoon, and meet the societies in the evening. I would then go to the home of my friend Martin who expects to entertain me, converse and pray with his family as usual, retire to my room at 10 o'clock, commend myself to my Heavenly Father, lie down to rest, and wake up in Glory!" John Wesley was a faithful and wise manager; he lived in a prepared fashion. It didn't matter whether or not he knew when he was going to die or when the Lord was going to return. He was about his Master's business day after day, continually carrying out the responsibilities the Lord had given him, even in His absence. That's what true servants, faithful servants do. Are you one of those? Now in the second story, Jesus teaches us that:

II. Wise Attendants Prepare Their Hearts Now Before He Comes (1-13) However, in order to understand the Parable of the Ten Virgins, it helps to know a bit about:

1. the background of the story (1) There is a wedding about to happen, but it is nothing like our weddings. The groom has traveled to the bride's home to get her and to bring her back with him to his house to celebrate the wedding feast. As he arrives, there is to be a festive procession and it is at night, so lamps are needed to light the street. They were probably simple small clay vessels with a rounded lip and a wick going down into a reservoir where the oil was. The whole thing was attached to a pole to be held up and carried to shed light on the way. The ten virgins are probably young acquaintances of the bride who have been specially invited to serve as attendants to carry the lamps. Now the bridegroom, of course, represents Christ and He is talking about His coming, His return. But beyond that, it's best to realize, when trying to understand parables, that they are constructed to make one particular point and not to try to assign meaning to every detail, such as why there were 10 or the fact that they are called virgins. These details are simply part of the setting of the story and probably represent something normal in that day. The detail we ARE to pay attention to is in (2-4). Some of them were wise attendants and some were not. Why? What's the difference? Look carefully at verse 3:

2. the foolish ones made NO personal preparation for the Groom's coming They took NO oil with them! It doesn't say that they didn't take extra oil with them or enough oil with them; they brought their lamps and went to the groom's house but took NO oil. Why not? Evidently, they either figured it would be supplied for them out of some common store at the house or they simply didn't care enough to even think about it! They took no personal responsibility to make sure they were prepared and ready to do their part when the groom showed up and needed them. But the wise attendants cared enough to make sure of it; they took their own oil. They made sure their lamps would work; they prepared for it personally. Now in the story:

3. the Groom's coming was delayed a long time (5) The distance that He had to travel must have been very far, so far that the time of His arrival can't be known and as the hours drag on and it is dark and the rest of the world goes off to bed, the girls naturally get sleepy and actually doze off. He doesn't show up until midnight! Notice that in all three of these stories, Jesus was pretty openly implying that His coming, His return, was going to be long delayed! It was not going to be immediate, right away; in fact, it was going to be so long delayed that people would naturally give up looking for it, that they would grow tired and fall asleep, as it were. However, at last:

4. the Groom arrived suddenly and unexpectedly (6-9) A messenger was sent ahead to the Groom's house at midnight to call the attendants. They were to rush out and down the street to meet the procession and light the way. So, they all woke up and hastily lit their lamps but the foolish attendants discovered that their lamps lit from the oil residue in the wicks but wouldn't stay lit. They had no oil and in that moment:

a. there was no time to prepare There was no time to go buy some, which they should have done in the first place. Their opportunity to get truly ready was past, so in desperation, they begged the wise attendants to share theirs, but found that:

b. they could not be supplied by those who HAD prepared Each had only enough for themselves to do what the Bridegroom required, not enough for two! So off they ran trying desperately to find someone who was still awake to sell them some oil. But in the meantime, the procession arrived and:

5. they were shut out from the wedding feast (10-12) We don't know whether they found oil or not, but it was too late. The whole point of their being attendants was over anyway; the procession was done. Yet they pound on the door and say, "Lord, Lord, open up for us too!" But He says, "Depart from me, I never knew you!" Does that phrase sound familiar? Jesus had used it before in another famous sermon. Look back with me to 7:21-23. There will be many people who look like attendants, who seem to have lamps. They go to church. They do this or that thing that looks like Christian service. But they have no oil! So many times in Scripture, oil is symbolic of the Holy Spirit and I think that must be the case here, because Jesus is saying, "I don't know you; I never had a relationship with you! You gave the appearance of religiosity, but My Holy Spirit doesn't live in you! You're an empty sputtering lamp, not a lamp set on a lampstand giving My light to the world. You haven't prepared your heart by inviting Me in and when I come it will be too late! There will be no time then to prepare and you can't get into My Kingdom on somebody else's coattails! It doesn't matter if your parents were real believers; it doesn't matter if your children or your siblings or your friends are real believers who know Me. You can't get into My House and be part of the great Kingdom feast I am planning unless I know YOU! You'll be shut outside in the darkness!" And then Jesus gave the punchline for us (13). Here's:

6. the point: What does watch mean? Well, in this story it can't simply mean, "Stay awake." It must mean, "Be prepared; be ready to go into the feast! Put oil in your lamp; genuinely know Him so that you're ready whenever He comes and don't put it off, because you don't know when your time will be up!" We must be personally and individually prepared for Christ's coming by having a real, genuine relationship with Him.

C.S. Lewis put it like this: When the author walks onto the stage, the play is over. God is going to invade, all right; but what is the good of saying you are on His side then, when you see the whole natural universe melting away like a dream and something else comes crashing in? This time it will be God without disguise; something so overwhelming that it will strike either irresistible love or irresistible horror into every creature. It will be too late then to choose your side. That will not be the time for choosing; it will be the time when we discover which side we really have chosen, whether we realized it before or not. Now, today, this moment, is our chance to choose the right side. Get the oil. Choose to know Him! Now on to the third story where Jesus teaches us that:

III. Faithful Stewards Advance His Cause Until He Comes (14-30) (read 14-15) Now we're back almost to the scenario of the first parable, a wealthy man going away for a while on business and leaving His servants. But what we don't recognize at first glance is that in this story:

1. the Master entrusted an immense amount to His servants Please understand that the English word talent, meaning a skill or ability, is not at all meant here. A talent is a unit of monetary value in silver or gold that is roughly equivalent to 6,000 Roman denarii, that is, 6,000 days wages for a common laborer. So, to find its equivalent, let's use an average wage today of $100 a day. At that rate the first servant was entrusted with 5 talents, or the equivalent of about 3 million dollars! The second, with 2 talents, was entrusted with 1.2 million and the third with a mere $600,000. Jesus deliberately painted this Master as being exorbitantly rich! But he was not simply giving each of them a quantity of his wealth to keep safe and watch over:

a. He expected them to use it to advance His purposes He expected them to act in His place with it, as He would act with it, in order to earn more for him, to invest in things that produced income, to buy property and sell it at a profit, to buy crops at harvest and sell them later in winter for an increase. In short, this was the business opportunity of a lifetime to serve their master; of course, all the profits would belong to him as the owner. Then notice that, as he entrusted his wealth to them:

b. He distributed it according to their capacity to serve He gave one five talents because in his estimation that fellow had the ability and the drive to use it all and multiply it and make him money. The second guy didn't have the same ability so he didn't give him more than he could handle and the third, even less. The point is that he really knew his servants and outfitted them accordingly with as much as they needed to serve his cause well. But:

2. the behavior of the servants displayed what was in their hearts What they did with what they were given showed their true nature:

a. the good and faithful ones eagerly pursued their Master's gain (16-17) The first two set right to work. They loved their Master and recognized what a huge amount of trust He had placed in them and set out to do their best to please him and increase his wealth. But the third guy:

b. the wicked and lazy servant pursued his own purposes completely (18) He didn't do anything for his master while he was gone. He dug a hole and buried the money to make sure he wouldn't get blamed for losing it, but then he went off and did whatever he felt like doing instead of what the Master expected him to do. He probably thought, "Why should I go to all that work and invest all that effort when in the end it won't belong to me anyway! He not only didn't love the Master and care about his well-being; he was too lazy to do even the least little bit. Well:

3. the Master delayed coming for a long time (just as in the two previous parables) but then settled accounts (19) His coming was a day of reckoning, a day of accounting for what each of his servants had done with what he had entrusted to them. And on that day:

a. the faithful servants were rewarded equally (20-23) He praised both of them the same. The one had gained more, but only because he had been given more. Both had been equally diligent and faithful in using what they'd been given, so they were rewarded:

(1) by being entrusted with even greater future responsibilities He said, "You've been faithful over A LITTLE; all of these millions, as great as they seem to you, are but a drop in the bucket of my resources. I will entrust to you much more than this now!" But that's not all! They were rewarded:

(2) by entering fully into the Master's joy In the end, all that labor was not only to benefit the Master; it would benefit and bless them both! Together they would enjoy and share all He has! They would be together, partners in the Master's enterprises forever!

Oh, do you see what the Lord is telling you here? You, His servant, have been entrusted with immeasurably much in life to serve Him for His glory. Yes, for some it may be money, but it includes everything, your time, your abilities, your situation, your personality, your possessions. And while He is away from you, He desires you to use it all to advance His glory, to bring souls to faith, to send the Gospel to the ends of the earth, to gather as many worshippers into His Kingdom as you possibly can, because that is HIS purpose. And if you love Him and are faithful to put what He has given you to His intended use, when He comes, He will reward you wonderfully! Who can comprehend the eternal enterprises over which He has determined to place you as you reign with Him?! You will share forever in the joy which the Lord Jesus Himself has as a full partner, as one with Him forever! Hallelujah! But for the last guy it is not so. Skip to the end and you'll see that:

b. the wicked servant was destroyed eternally (30) Just like in the first two parables, he is shut out from his Master's presence to suffer forever. Why? Not because he didn't make enough money, but because of his wicked heart! We read here that:

(1) he was without excuse before his Master (24-27) He had the nerve to blame the Master, to accuse the Master who had given him all those resources of being mean and hard hearted and greedy, of wanting it all for himself! But the Master says, "If you really believed that, you would have at least loaned it out at interest because you were scared of Me, but you didn't even do that much! You don't love Me! You're simply wicked and lazy and have to be destroyed!" And so:

(2) he forfeited the opportunity that grace had given him (28-29) What he could have shared in forever was taken away and given to someone else, to one who had proved faithful. He passed up and wasted the gracious opportunity that had been given to him in life.

And so, there are people that go through this life, having been immeasurably blessed by the Lord with all that He knows they could use for His glory, but they choose not to do anything for Him with it and either expect Him to be satisfied with that or simply don't care. They spend their life living for themselves. Yet, at His coming they will be without excuse and suffer eternally. Real believers, true sons and servants of the Lord, advance His cause with everything they've got. David Livingstone is probably one of the most well-known missionary figures of all time. He was a missionary doctor who gave 37 years of his life to service in the heart of Africa, which in 1840 was an unexplored and deadly place. His accomplishments are legend and so were his awful sufferings. He died in 1873 on his knees beside his rough bed with his head buried in his hands upon his pillow in the act of prayer. His faithful followers removed his heart and buried it in Africa as a symbolic gesture before sending his body back to England. David Livingstone was a tremendous example of one who used all he had been given for the glory of God. He wrote this: "I place no value on anything I have or may possess, except in relation to the kingdom of God. If anything will advance the interests of the kingdom, it shall be given away or kept, only as by giving or keeping it I shall most promote the glory of Him to whom I owe all my hopes in time or eternity." That is the heart that Christ wants in all His servants and if we have that kind of heart in life, He will one day say, Well done, good and faithful servant, enter into My joy!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Presentation Of The King - Mt. 21-25

The King Describes His Return - 25:31-46

There are three core articles of our faith that we should express over and over again. On Good Friday we remember with solemnity the truth that Christ died for our sins. On Easter Sunday we confess with joy the truth that Christ is risen from the dead! But because we have no holiday to remind us of the third truth, we often forget it. Yet for many years our Catholic friends have repeated this "memorial acclamation" in every service: Christ has died; Christ is risen; Christ will come again. Say it with me: Christ has died; Christ is risen; Christ will come again. That's what we celebrate today. Those three items summarize the fullness of God's plan of redemption for the world. The Resurrection was not the end of the story; it is immediately and directly tied to the third event. Our friends go on to confess: Dying you destroyed our death, rising you restored our life. Lord Jesus, come in glory! That is what the resurrection of Jesus Christ points to! Because He is alive, He will return! And that is what the 25th chapter of Matthew so clearly declares:

I. Jesus Will Return In Glory To Set Up His Kingdom On Earth (31) What kind of person sits on a throne? A King! Jesus is King! That is theme of Matthew's whole Gospel and one day He is going to return to this earth in great glory. He will come on the clouds of heaven for every eye to see; He will come with all the myriads of angels at heels. And He will set up His Kingdom on this very earth and reign as King of the world! A throne will be placed, a glorious throne. Zechariah said, On that day his feet shall stand on the Mount of Olives that lies before Jerusalem on the east... the LORD my God will come, and all the holy ones with him.... On that day there shall be no light, cold, or frost. And there shall be a unique day, which is known to the LORD, neither day nor night, but at evening time there shall be light. On that day living waters shall flow out from Jerusalem.... And the LORD will be king over all the earth. On that day the LORD will be one and his name one. - 14:5-9. And today we know His name will be JESUS! He will rule the world! Hallelujah! Now I'd like us to look together at:

II. The Promise Jesus Will Fulfill As He Sets Up His Kingdom Turn with me to Is. 25:6-9. God impressed these verses on me several months ago to share with you today; I never really focused on them before, but Isaiah says:

1. death is like a shroud which blankets all the peoples of the earth All human beings die, no matter their race, no matter the language they speak, no matter where they live on the planet. Death enfolds them all. But on that mountain where Jerusalem sits, Jesus did what God had promised:

a. at Calvary He destroyed death - 2 Tim. 1:10 says ...our Savior Christ Jesus, ...abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. By His death for our sins, Jesus de-activated death; He made it powerless, ineffective. He put death out of business. How? Because the sting of death is sin! And without that stinger to fill us with its awful poison and kill us eternally, death is just a de-fanged snake, a toothless lion. Because we believe in Jesus, we live even though we die! He said we will never die in eternity (Jn. 11:25-26). Our body may perish, but we live forever with Him. Yet that is not the full promise. Isaiah said that on that same mountain:

b. at His coming Jesus will swallow up death forever Paul told us that the last enemy that God plans to destroy is death itself in 1 Cor. 15:26. When does that happen? Well for today, let's not worry about the prophetic details like the timing of the Rapture and so on. Let's simply say it happens at the end of the age when Jesus comes and in the twinkling of an eye raises our dead bodies so that they are imperishable. When the perishable puts on the imperishable, and the mortal puts on immortality, then shall come to pass the saying that is written [here by Isaiah]: "Death is swallowed up in victory." - 1 Cor. 15:54. Death will be swallowed up forever! It will be gone! There will be no more death, John said; it will no longer rule over the human race. But Isaiah also said in verse 6 that on that very mountain:

2. Jesus is preparing a Kingdom feast He is preparing a royal celebration, the likes of which has never been seen, with only the best of food and drink. When He comes, all of His people will sit down with Him at the feast in the Kingdom of God to celebrate His Reign and their union with Him. It's a feast for those who worship Him from all peoples to enjoy. Jesus described it this way, I tell you, many will come from east and west and recline at table with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven...people will come from east and west, and from north and south, and recline at table in the kingdom of God. - Mt. 8:11, Luke 13:29. Because the Good News of the Kingdom, that Christ has died, Christ has risen, and Christ is coming again, has been preached in all the world as a witness to every people, believing worshippers from every people on earth will be there at the great feast to celebrate and what a grand day that will be! The great Old Testament figures will be there; the apostles and the heroes of the New Testament will be there; saints from every age, from every place on earth, from every people will gather round, and best of all, WE'LL be there in the midst of it with our beloved Jesus! Do you see, that is the point of God's whole plan? Dying He destroyed our death, rising He restored our life. So we eagerly shout: Lord Jesus, come in glory! Fulfill your promise! Give yourself the desire of your heart; gather all of us, your worshippers to you to celebrate in Your Kingdom! But now let's go back to our text in Matthew 25 and look at how this all begins. (31-32a). Of course, those of us who die before He comes will either be instantly with Him in heaven or apart from Him in hell. At death there is no delay, no waiting, but here Jesus is describing what will happen to that generation of people who are still alive when He comes to earth, those who have survived through that awful period of tribulation He described in 24:21-22, to see Him coming on the clouds of heaven and be enthroned. At that time:

III. Every Living Person Will Be Gathered Before Jesus Paul told the Athenians that God ...has fixed a day on which he will judge the world in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed; and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead. - Acts 17:31. This is that day! And the Man appointed to judge the world is sitting on the throne of the world and all the living people in the world will be immediately brought before Him for judgment. People can believe whatever they want, but JESUS is the One before whom they will stand! God declared it to all the world for all time by raising Him from the dead! Now remember that by the time of His coming:

1. all the peoples of the earth will have heard the Gospel, according to what Jesus said earlier in this Discourse in 24:14. As I mentioned, the Gospel WILL be preached to all peoples on earth. They will all hear that He died, that He rose and that He is coming again to set up His Kingdom and reign. There will be no question of ignorance; that generation will KNOW and will have the choice to either follow Him or reject the message. So therefore:

2. all the peoples of the earth will be judged by their response to Jesus When He addresses them in a moment, you'll hear Him say, "Here is what you did to ME!" Or "Here is what you didn't do to ME!" The popular misconception is that when a person stands before God, He will evaluate the nature of all the things they have done, whether they are good or bad, and on that basis the person will be judged. In reality, God judges all human beings on the basis of one issue alone: what they have done with JESUS! When you die or when Jesus comes, the question will not be that of Santa Claus, "Were you a good boy or girl?" Jesus' question is, "What did you do with ME?" And on that basis:

IV. Jesus Will Separate All The People Into Two Categories (32b-33) In the countryside sheep and goats graze all commingled together over the pasture during the day, but at night the shepherd often separates them one from the other. He stands at the opening of the fold with his staff as they come in and one by one pushes the sheep to one side and the goats to the other, into the flocks where they truly belong. Just so, when He comes, Jesus will separate all the people of the world gathered before Him into two groups and:

1. He will sentence them to their respective destinies

a. those who truly belong to Him will enter His Kingdom (34) He will say to the sheep, the ones who heard the message and became His true followers, "Come to the feast! Come to the banquet I've prepared! Come with Me and live in My Kingdom; live in My transformed world where the lion will lie down with the lamb and the little child will play near the serpent's den, where justice rolls down like waters and the earth is filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea! My Father has planned this before He even created the world and now, He will make it the way He really intended it to be. He has planned for you to be part of it. Come enter into My joy with Me!" But now skip ahead to (41). Sadly:

b. those who do not belong to Him will be banished to hell, to a place of everlasting fire. It was never even meant for human beings. It was prepared as a place of eternal punishment for Satan himself and for the demons who followed him at his fall. Yet those who have chosen to reject the King and not follow him, fall under the same curse and share the same awful destiny. They are separated from His presence forever in that place where He Himself warned that there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth, where the worm does not die and the fire is never quenched.

Now the surprising thing as Jesus explains all this to His disciples is how strongly He emphasizes the basis on which He does the separating, on how He tells a sheep from a goat. He declares that:

2. their response to His "brothers" proves the condition of their hearts To the sheep He says... (35-40) and to the goats He says the reverse (42-45). Both groups are surprised by His words and we too would have to admit that they're not exactly what we would expect Him to say on that day. So, let's take a moment to examine them carefully. The first question is, "Who's He talking about when He says the least of these, My brothers?" Well, it seems to me that:

a. His "brothers" are His followers, whom He said would suffer persecution back in 24:9, Then they will deliver you up to tribulation and put you to death, and you will be hated by all nations for my name's sake. We know from other Scriptures that the awful period just before Christ comes will be a time of terrible persecution for His followers. So here we find them described as hungry and thirsty, as forced from their homes to flee as strangers who need shelter, without clothing, some who are sick and even some who've been captured and held in prison. Many of His followers suffer greatly because of their faith even today. Just on Friday I read this plea for prayer from India: Last night, a family of new believers sat down to eat dinner when a religious fanatic group suddenly entered their home and attacked the father, mother and three children. One daughter's hand was broken; their son fell unconscious; and the mother lost her hand completely. The father and another daughter were also badly beaten. All five have been admitted to the hospital for treatment. The persecutors are ...now searching for the family's pastor, but having heard the group's plans, Pastor Chaarudatt has left the village. Oh, pray for this dear family, for their pastor and the other believers in that village! They are our brothers and sisters; they are "the least of these". But as badly as Jesus' followers suffer today, it will be far worse and spread worldwide during that end time. And how others respond to His followers who suffer, will display what's truly in their hearts. Now please understand that:

b. people are NOT saved or lost simply because of their treatment of sufferers Jesus is not generically saying, "You can enter My kingdom merely on the basis that you were nice to people who suffer." Lots of people help other people who suffer, but want nothing to do with Jesus. Millions, even billions, of dollars are given every year by people to charities which feed the poor or care for orphans or help victims of natural disaster, and a tremendous amount of it is given by people with no belief at all in Jesus. People with no knowledge of Christ at all even give their lives to rescue others as soldiers or police or firefighters. But the Scripture is adamant everywhere that salvation is not by our works; Jesus Himself said clearly that no one comes to the Father except through Him, so He can't be saying here, "Just be good to others and you'll get in!" What He's declaring is that:

c. people who truly know Jesus compassionately care for suffering believers, who are their own brothers The writer of Hebrews speaks about this. He writes: Think back on those early days when you first learned about Christ. Remember how you remained faithful even though it meant terrible suffering. Sometimes you were exposed to public ridicule and were beaten, and sometimes you helped others who were suffering the same things. You suffered along with those who were thrown into jail, and when all you owned was taken from you, you accepted it with joy. You knew there were better things waiting for you that will last forever. - Heb. 10:32-34 NLT. True believers have always stood staunchly alongside their brothers who were suffering, risking ridicule and jail and even their own lives because they loved their brethren so dearly. And those who were not genuine fall away, turn their backs and dissociate themselves to save their own hides. Those counted as sheep at Christ's return are those who have proved their faith real by being willing to identify themselves with and aid their despised, persecuted brothers regardless of the great personal risk it entailed. Those counted as goats stood by, watched the followers of Christ suffer greatly and either were themselves part of doing the persecuting, or cheered it on or simply did nothing because their hearts were far from Him. In both cases their actions proved unmistakably what was in their hearts. But notice that the response of both groups is exactly the same: Lord, when did we see YOU hungry or thirsty or sick or in prison? "We saw PEOPLE like that; we saw Your followers like that, but when did we see YOU?" And His punchline is the same to both: "That WAS ME! I was IN THEM. When you reacted to them, you reacted to ME!"

d. the surprise is over how personally He identifies Himself with His people in their suffering In the early days of the church, Saul was hotly persecuting followers of Christ, dragging them off to prison and death. But when Jesus appeared and brought him to his knees on the road to Damascus, He said, Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting ME? - Acts 9:4. "What you're doing to them, you're doing to ME!" And that's exactly what He will say on that last day, "What you did to them, you did to ME! They are My body; I am IN them. When you stood with them, you stood with ME; when you rejected them, you rejected ME!"

O dear brother or sister, are you suffering today as you follow Him? So is HE! He is with you; He is in you. You and He are ONE. So, in all your affliction, HE is afflicted too! He is truly touched with the feeling of your infirmities, not because He is sympathetic, but because He actually FEELS them too! What happens to you happens to Him and He who touches you, touches the pupil of HIS eye! Jesus could have left that whole part out about seeing Him. He could have skipped right from verse 34 to verse (46). But He didn't; He put those words in there for you! He put them there so that you would know that when you suffer for His sake, that you are sharing in the very sufferings of Christ. And your great hope is this: the King is coming again and when He does, He is going to hold the whole world accountable for it! Then, lastly, as we just read:

V. Jesus' Pronouncement Will Be Eternal As the righteous who know Him go into the great feast in His Kingdom, they'll be singing the words of Is. 25:9, It will be said on that day, "Behold, this is our God; we have waited for him, that he might save us. This is the LORD; we have waited for him; let us be glad and rejoice in his salvation." For 2000 years the followers of Jesus have been waiting patiently, suffering awful things, but all the while continuing to confess their faith: Christ has died, Christ is risen, Christ is coming again! On that day the long wait will be over at last and their joy in the life in His Kingdom will be eternal. Nothing will ever change it. But sadly, the lost will go away into everlasting punishment, which nothing can change. On that day it will be forever too late for them, which is why we have to plead with them to believe now!

I know it is not very popular any more to believe that there is a hell. And I know it's also not very popular to believe that Jesus is literally going to come again and rule the world, either. Our culture dismisses both of those things as ancient myths or tries to symbolize them away. But these are the words of Jesus Himself and He said in this very discourse, Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away. - 24:35. Every one of us has to choose, "Do I believe the words of Jesus or don't I?" Is He an outright liar? Or is He a self-deluded lunatic who predicted ridiculous things about Himself? Or is He really the King who is coming again? As for me, I believe the Scriptures: Christ HAS died, Christ IS risen and, absolutely, Christ IS coming again!

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Passion Of The King - Mt. 26-28

The King Is Betrayed - 26:1-35

Now we are going to focus on the last three chapters where Matthew shares with us his record of The Passion Of The King, the suffering, death and resurrection of Christ. In the first half of Chapter 26 the focus that Matthew obviously wants to highlight for us is how Jesus was betrayed by Judas. That has always been one of the great enigmas of Jesus' life. How is possible that one of His own chosen Twelve would deliberately sell him out and betray Him to His enemies after having walked with Him so closely for three years? We can hardly fathom such a thing and we quickly assign Judas the lowest place in hell in our minds, as Dante did in his Inferno. It never crosses our minds that we might have done the same. We pick up the story on Tuesday evening of that last week of Jesus' life where Matthew tells us of:

I. The Preparation For His Betrayal After a long day of intense opposition and interaction with the Jewish leaders, Jesus is just about to leave the city as He did each night when He makes a very specific:

1. His prediction to the disciples (1-2) This was not the first time Jesus had told them about being handed over or betrayed to His enemies. He had said it to them back in Galilee months earlier in 17:22 and then again as they were on the way up to Jerusalem for the Triumphal Entry the previous Sunday in 20:18. But now He sets the time; this betrayal will happen in just two days, during the celebration of the Passover. Jesus obviously knew that it would happen, when it would happen and who would do it. Having just left His enemies' presence, He is somberly saying to His disciples, "In two days I'm going to be betrayed into their hands. Get ready. Expect it." But at the same time, as Jesus was preparing His disciples for it, Matthew tells us of:

2. the plotting by His enemies (3-5) After His scathing sermon against them recorded in chapter 23 earlier that day, the Jewish leaders were really hot. As the day was ending, they met together and were literally plotting a way to arrest Jesus and have Him killed. But they would not do it openly; they were afraid of the people. So, they were planning to do it secretly, privately, but AFTER the 7-day feast of Passover was complete and Jerusalem would be emptied of all its pilgrims, so that the popular support for Jesus displayed at His Triumphal Entry would be gone. Little did they dream that God would move their time frame closer for them momentarily, when an inside accomplice from among Jesus' own disciples would show up to help them!

But to set the stage for that encounter, Matthew now flashes back to an event that John 12 tells us actually happened on the Saturday night previous. Verse (6). Jesus HAD BEEN a dinner guest at this man Simon's house. John tells us that His good friends Mary, Martha and Lazarus were there too. Martha, as always, was busy helping serve and Lazarus was enjoying the meal with him around the table when an unexpected incident occurred:

II. The Incident That Alienated Judas from Jesus. As they were eating, we read of:

1. Mary's lavish anointing of Jesus (6-7) John's detailed version tells us that the woman was Mary and she had an alabastron, an alabaster box, a stone flask, and in it was sealed a pound of very precious ointment made from pure nard. This fragrant perfume was probably imported by traders from India and was extremely expensive, worth a year's wages. What's that? Maybe $30,000 or $40,000 in our money? We don't know how she came by it or how long she'd had it, but it was evidently something Mary treasured and had saved for a very special occasion. And for her, this night was that occasion. She broke the flask open and poured its precious content, first on Jesus' head and then on His feet as He lay reclining at the table. Then she bowed her head and wiped His feet dry with her own hair. The fragrance welled up and filled the whole house. What a touching act born out of love and devotion! It was as though she is saying with the songwriter, All I once held dear, built my life upon, All this world reveres and wars to own, All I once thought gain, I have counted loss, spent and worthless now, compared to this.... Knowing YOU, Jesus, knowing You; there is no greater thing! What a way of saying, "I love you, Lord!" The room was filled with Jesus' disciples. You would think someone would have applauded. You would think someone would have said, "Oh how sweet, how lovely! How generous! See how she loves Him!" But not one did. Many of them began to murmur against her and the next voice we hear is:

2. Judas' indignant objection [with the other disciples] (8-9) Let's read the whole story in John 12:4-6. Judas is the one who spoke up to criticize her. He called it a waste. He said it could have been sold and just think how many poor people it would have fed, just think what better use we could have made of that! But he said it, not because he cared about poor people, but because he was a thief! He kept the money bag for Jesus and the disciples and throughout their journeys he repeatedly found ways to help himself to what was in it. This was big money being poured on the ground before his eyes; it was the opportunity of a lifetime for a man like him. So he cried out, he raised an objection, not for the poor, but for the satisfaction of his own greed. And the rest joined in, but not Jesus. Listen to:

3. Jesus' strong rebuke (10-13) Mark and John say that Jesus' first words were Leave her alone! Then He said literally, Why are you beating on her, why are you cutting on her... His words were sharp and strong. "Stop it! Stop hurting her! She is right to do this!" Mary was the only one who really listened. For months He had been telling His disciples that He was going up to Jerusalem to die. They still didn't get it. But she understood; she believed His Word. She couldn't save Him or spare Him from death, but she did what she could. She poured out this precious perfume to anoint His body ahead of time for His burial, just as though He were already lying there dead. Freely and out of love for Him, she poured out everything she had in this world for His purpose, because she believed His Word. And we're still talking about it 2000 years later on the other side of the world, just as Jesus promised! The other disciples came to appreciate that in time, but in Judas, anger began to burn and when Jesus so hotly angered the Pharisees that Tuesday and then told the disciples that in two days He would be handed over and crucified, Judas' unregenerate heart saw the handwriting on the wall and knew it was time for him to get out of the group and switch to the winning side (14-16). What an evil thing was:

4. Judas' resolve to betray Jesus. Lk. 22:3 rightly tells us its source, Then Satan entered into Judas called Iscariot, and he went... For days he had been fuming and pondering and debating, his mind flirting with the dastardly idea of selling Jesus out for a final profit. And when he finally yielded to the temptation and said, "Yes, I will!", Satan was right there to fill him and guide his every move. So, he went to the Jewish leaders and answered their prayers by offering to betray Jesus into their hands, that is, to inform them of an opportunity when Jesus would be alone and undefended so that He could be arrested in secret. But he wanted money and they offered him 30 pieces of silver in fulfillment of Zech. 11:12-13. In that text God calls it, mockingly, a handsome price at which they priced ME! These were probably 4-drachma coins, let's say $400 coins, and so were worth 120 days wages, or maybe $12,000 today. It seems Judas got nearly half of the money he'd wished for from Mary, anyway! Yet by comparison this was the legal price of a slave! How interesting that they took money from the Temple treasury which was to be for the purchase of sacrifices and paid for the life of the Son of God, valuing Him merely as a common slave! So, with the money already heavy in his bag, Judas returned to the group and waited for the right moment to carry out his treachery. Wednesday passed without opportunity, but true to the prediction, Thursday became:

III. The Occasion Of Jesus' Betrayal That morning Jesus made sure that:

1. His disciples prepared for their Passover celebration in the evening (17-19) Matthew doesn't mention the supernatural means by which Jesus directed them to the right house in Jerusalem. Both Mark and Luke tell that they were to look for a man carrying a pitcher of water on his head, which was unusual since that was women's work, and follow him home. Anyway, they did, and the owner of this house was evidently a follower of Jesus and had a large upper room furnished and available for their use. So, they bought the Lamb and the necessary items and prepared for the evening meal. Now lots happened this evening. Jesus washed the disciples' feet. There were hours of deep serious conversation that John records some of. But the thing Matthew chooses to give the most space to in his account is the fact that at this meal:

2. Jesus clearly identified and warned Judas (20-25) As they were eating, Jesus told His disciples very clearly that one of them is a traitor, that one of them would betray Him to His enemies. But though the other disciples evidently didn't quite understand or perhaps hear it, Jesus clearly identified Judas in a way he could not miss, not only by giving him a sop of bread dipped in the dish, but also by answering his question verbally with an expression that clearly indicates, "you are the one". In that moment Judas knew his jig was up. Now why did Jesus do this? I think it was a final warning, a final plea. Judas had not yet done the awful deed itself; he could have stopped and confessed and taken the money back. So, Jesus exhorted him that there were eternal consequences to pay and it would be better not to have been born than to do this! True to His own nature, Jesus loved even His own betrayer to the very end, but it was to no avail. Matthew does not record it but:

3. Judas left, determined to carry out his betrayal Read it with me in John 13:27-30. For the second time Judas hardened his heart and Satan took control. He got up and rushed out. The disciples did not grasp why; they simply thought Jesus sent him on some errand. In essence, He actually did! He sent Judas on the errand of getting the soldiers to make sure He would be crucified right on time! However, while Judas carried out his betrayal, Jesus now proceeded speak His very heart to the 11 for several hours and during the course of their meal:

4. Jesus instituted the Lord's Supper for His followers They were eating the normal Jewish Passover Meal but Jesus took two specific parts from it, invested them with new meaning and gave them to the disciples as an ordinance that they would continue to celebrate for:

a. its symbolic meaning (26-28) He took a piece of unleavened bread from the meal and said that it symbolized His body, which, like the bread without leaven, was without sin, and yet was broken on the cross. Later He took the last cup of wine of the meal and said that it symbolized His blood, which He was about to shed to provide the forgiveness of sins for many, that is, for all who will believe. It represented a new covenant between God and man. This blood of His poured out procured forgiveness. HE WAS God's lamb. There would be no more animal sacrifices. His sacrifice would be a once-for-all atonement. And in his account Luke adds that Jesus said to do this specific thing that He did in remembrance of Him. So, from the very first times of worshipping together after the Resurrection, believers began to break bread and take the cup together to remember the sacrifice of their Lord who had ascended to heaven. We've been doing it ever since. Of course, through the centuries this simple ritual has been by various factions invested with saving value and turned into an elaborate liturgy to be carried out only by priests or clergy and misinterpreted as though somehow Jesus meant that in eating and drinking, we are literally eating His flesh and drinking His blood. I think it is important to remember that Jesus chose two of the most common everyday substances to remember Him by, things His followers would eat and drink every day at every meal, so His death would be continually on their minds. The early believers remembered Him daily in this fashion as they broke bread together from house to house. I think Jesus wants us to remember His death for us, not only once a month when we specifically celebrate the Lord's table, but every day, as often as we eat food (which for some of us is quite often!). Just as food and drink sustain life, His death truly IS our life! And this new symbolic action comes with:

b. its special promise (29) It is given to us for the time while He is absent. From that night He would never drink it again until the time comes for His return and the setting up of the Kingdom and the celebrating of our Marriage Feast. So, Paul says in 1 Cor. 11 that as often as we do it, we do show or proclaim the Lord's death over and over again until He comes. Each time we do it, we remember that He's coming and when He does, it won't be a memory any more. We'll be able to see with our eyes and behold the Lamb slain from the foundation of the world face to face! One day He will come but until then we keep on celebrating His death; we keep on remembering and keep on waiting.

Verse 30 tells us that when the supper was ended, they sang a hymn together and went out, heading to the Mount of Olives. But, on the way out of the city, we read (31-35). What we see here is:

IV. The Blindness Of His Disciples Remember, they had just during supper heard Jesus say, ONE of you will betray me... And each questioned Him in turn, Is it I? But now He spoke to them all and:

1. He predicted that ALL of them would fall away from Him that very night, that they would all deny their faith in Him by fleeing for their lives. Zechariah had prophesied it long before [13:7] that they would all scatter from their Good Shepherd as He laid down His life for them. But, He says, Don't worry, later we will be together again and meet in Galilee. This statement really bothered them but:

2. they were unwilling to see or admit their own vulnerability Peter spoke for the group, but they all said the same thing, "We'll never fall away from you; we'll die with you rather than deny you!" Big words, easily spoken. But one hour later their test came, and the result is in verse 56, they left Him and fled at His arrest. Not one of them allowed themselves to be arrested with Him and said, "Take me too; I am His follower!"

It is so easy to think more of ourselves than we ought, especially when our lives have never been in danger for our faith. And it's even easier to look at others when they fall, to look at Judas who betrayed him or the rest who forsook Him in His darkest hour and say, "I'd never do that". The truth is that without the sustaining power of Christ for one minute, you and I most certainly would! Don't ever say, "I would never...", and fill in the blank with any vile thing you care to name. Yes, we would! The phrase that comes to mind is "There, but for the grace of God, go I." For centuries that saying has been attributed to Rev. John Bradford who was an English Protestant clergyman and bold reformer with a deep faith. He was immediately arrested and tried for heresy along with several other well-known reformers by Catholic Queen Mary, known as "Bloody Mary", when she took the throne. He was imprisoned in the Tower of London and it is from the window of his cell that he is said to have seen a group of criminals one day, being led away to execution and remarked, "There, but for the grace of God, goes John Bradford." The phrase has come to mean that if God had not worked in my life in ways that I do not deserve and cannot take any credit for, I would be just like that other person, having done the same thing they did and being the same sad state of affairs. It's a reminder not to look down on people who fall, because we fall. The betrayal of Judas is a stark reminder to us that we are all traitors. We all betray the Lord; every single time we deliberately choose to sin, we treat His precious blood which saved us as an unholy thing. We trample Him underfoot in the rush to satisfy our own desires for money or power or sex or something else. We all deny the Lord, sometimes loudly as Peter did and sometimes by quietly by saying nothing or being nowhere to be found, when we should be there for Him. John Bradford's personal walk with Christ was of a deep devotional nature. He was in the habit of writing down his faults, because he wanted to feel a "chest-beating" regret for sin, and to groan with true brokenness of heart when he came to private prayer. At the same time, he would seek a fresh assurance of salvation in Christ through faith. Bradford also made a note of the virtues he saw in others that he might lament the lack of them in himself. In short, his life was one of daily repentance and heartfelt prayer - something very different to the "saying of prayers" which was so common in those days, and seems, somehow, never to have gone out of fashion. May our hearts be thus humble like Mary's; may we wash His feet with our tears when we see what He has done for us on the cross and may we pour out our lives, everything that we have, in His service.

On the morning of July 12th, 1555 at 9 AM, John Bradford was led to his execution at London's Smithfield. When Bradford and his fellow martyr, John Leaf, arrived at the stake they prostrated themselves in prayer. Annoyed by the press of the large crowd the Sheriff ordered Bradford to conclude his prayer. Standing at the stake, Bradford looked towards heaven and said "O England, England, repent thee of thy sins, repent thee of thy sins. Beware of idolatry, beware of false antichrists." With these, and other words Bradford preached to the crowd. Turning to the young man who was to suffer with him he said, "Be of good comfort, brother, for we shall have a happy supper with the Lord tonight". Then, embracing the wood of his execution, he repeated our Saviour's words, "Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, that leads to life and few there be that find it". Foxe says in his Book of Martyrs, "They both ended this mortal life...like two lambs, without any alteration of their countenances, hoping to obtain that prize they had long run for; to which may Almighty God conduct us all, through the merits of Christ our Savior!". Amen. [\[www.graceandtruth.org.uk/Articles/john_bradford.htm\]](http://www.graceandtruth.org.uk/Articles/john_bradford.htm)

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Passion Of The King - Mt. 26-28

The King Is Arrested - 26:36-75

In our study of Jesus' passion as Matthew has recorded it, we now leave the Upper Room with Him and His disciples that Thursday night after the Passover, and head out of the city of Jerusalem, across the brook Kidron and into a small walled grove of olive trees. It was called Gethsemane, the "oil press", for there the plentiful fruit of the Mount of Olives was pressed out to yield its precious oil. For us, it is a holy place, because it was there the very soul of our dear Savior was pressed beyond all measure that night and out of it came the precious oil of true surrender which resulted in our salvation. Like Moses, we should take off our shoes and kneel in reverence in our hearts as we read Matthew's account of:

I. Jesus' Agony In The Garden (36-38) Eight of His disciples Jesus left by the gate to sit and wait for Him while He prayed. But three of them, the three who were closest to Him and who had shared some of the deepest experiences of the last three years with Him, Peter, James, and John, these He took with Him further into the garden and, before He went off to be alone, He made a request of them.

1. His request of the disciples to share in His agony Watch with Me. He explained to them that He was in extreme sorrow, sorrow so deep it was killing Him, and He needed them to understand that and to stay awake and pray with Him. Not only did He want them to be witnesses of His agony so they could later share it with us, but, at the risk of sounding irreverent, I would dare to suggest that He wanted them to pray FOR Him as He was going through it. What a humbling thought, the Son of God wanting human beings to stand together with Him as He prayed, to pray with Him and for Him, to not go through this awful agony alone, but with their support. They clearly knew how much they needed Him, but they could not grasp just how much HE needed THEM in this hour. Dear friends, if the Son of God was not too proud to ask His closest friends to pray with and for Him in His darkest hour, shouldn't that be an example to us not to stubbornly go through our trials alone, but to realize how much we need fellow believers to share in our agony and pray for us and open our hearts to them? Verse (39). Here we get a glimpse of:

2. the depth of His agony Three times Jesus goes off to pray and returns to check on His disciples (42, 44). To get a sense of just how deep the agony of His soul was, listen to Lk. 22:43-44, And there appeared to him an angel from heaven, strengthening him. And being in an agony he prayed more earnestly; and his sweat became like great drops of blood falling down to the ground. The agony of His soul was so strong, so deep, that it alone could have killed Him. It was so weakening that the Father sent an angel to minister strength to His human body so He could endure it. The pressure was so great that blood seeped from the capillaries in His skin and mingled with His profuse sweating, dripping red on the ground. Heb. 5:7 adds, In the days of his flesh, Jesus offered up prayers and supplications, with loud cries and tears, to him who was able to save him from death... Jesus was weeping and sobbing and crying out loudly to the Father. Please don't read what Jesus' prayed that night as quiet academic statements; they were made in the midst of an agonizing emotional melt-down. And the source of that agony was:

a. the intense conflict of His two wills We see it clearly in verse 39. There is in Jesus' mind both my will and Thy will. There is the Divine will of the Father, which is to go to the cross, to drink the cup of suffering to the very bottom, to take the sin of the world upon Himself and experience the full weight of the wrath of God, to endure the eternal agony of separation from the Father condensed into the hours of the crucifixion. But there is also the nature of Christ as a genuine human being, which cries out to let this cup pass from Him, to be saved from this awful death, not simply from the dying of the body, painful as that would be, but from the eternal death, the spiritual death, He does not want to have to endure. In His mind, in His very soul, the two are wrestling. He knows the Father's will but, like us, He must bring Himself to CHOOSE it, to DO it. It was a fierce battle that raged and subsided in three waves in Him that night, but through it all we can see:

b. His absolute submission to the Father's will ...nevertheless, not as I will but as You will.... if this cannot pass, Your will be done... In the end, that was His one true will and He never wavered from it. He ALWAYS wanted to do the Father's will, but that does not discount the fact that this night it was HARD beyond comprehension! Surrender to our Father's will is sometimes like that. Sometimes the price, the cost, of doing what we know God wants us to do, is absolutely gut-wrenching. Our flesh wars against it with all that is in us, yet as true sons and daughters, we struggle until we come to that place of absolute surrender, "Father, your will be done." Now what made it even harder for Jesus was:

3. the sleeping of the disciples After asking them to watch with Him and agonizing so intensely for an hour, they slept (40-41). They kept falling asleep instead of praying. Again, after the second round... (43). They just could not stay awake, but the cause was not merely natural fatigue. Luke 22:45 says ...He found them sleeping FOR SORROW. Their own sorrow at seeing Him like this as they never had before, so distressed, and hearing His cries and weeping, made their own hearts so heavy that they allowed themselves to succumb to their fatigue and drift off to sleep as a relief. It is a powerful reminder of our own insensitivity to Christ's heart. Are we really any better than they? Very often we are like the disciples, asleep, oblivious to the very things that God cares about, that He is trying to accomplish. His heart is agonizing over a lost world in need and we can't even bring ourselves to pray with Him about it, much less to work at reaching others. Instead of sleeping, we're too busy or too occupied with something else that concerns US. He invites us to watch with Him, to join Him through prayer, but there is no room in our lives somehow. Those words come back to us, "Couldn't you even give me an hour?" Sometimes it's, "Couldn't you even give me 15 minutes?" How insensitive we can be to the very Savior who agonized for us and surrendered Himself for us that night! But after His third season of prayer... (45-46). Now we move to consider:

II. Jesus' Arrest By The Soldiers (47-50) John tells us that when Judas came to them, the Jewish leaders had somehow gotten themselves a good-sized band of soldiers including some officers to join them as they set out that night to arrest Jesus. He might have led them right back to the Upper Room, but upon finding Jesus gone, he knew from habit where Jesus would go next. He led this mob out of the city toward the garden, all of them carrying torches and swords and clubs. Jesus couldn't help but see lights and hear the sound of their approach, but in the dark of the garden they needed a sign to recognize Jesus. Indeed, most of the soldiers would never have seen Him before. So we have:

1. the counterfeit greeting of Judas which he had prearranged with them. As he greeted Jesus, you can be sure He said "Hail Rabbi!" loud enough to draw their attention and then he greeted him, not just with A kiss, but the Greek text says he kissed him fervently. It is the same word used of the sinful woman in Luke 7 who wet Jesus' feet with her tears and kissed them, that is, kissed them repeatedly. She smothered them with kisses. Judas kissed Jesus, not just politely on either side, but over and again, no doubt not sincerely, but so the soldiers would not miss the signal in the dark! But Jesus cuts him short, not using the real word for friend, but a more impersonal term that would come across more to us like, "Dude, do what you came for; I know what this is about." Yet what is most striking about this scene is:

2. the complete submission of Jesus (51-53) The lead soldiers grabbed Jesus by the arms, but daring Peter quickly whipped out his sword and swung at the nearest man, a servant named Malchus, who ducked and merely got his ear lopped off. Yet in that split second before the soldiers respond and cut Peter to ribbons, Jesus stops them all in their tracks with a word, tells Peter to put away his sword and heals Malchus' ear! He's plainly in charge. In verse 53 He even refers to:

a. His overwhelming ability to protect Himself Had He wanted to, He could have called out to the Father who would immediately have put more than twelve legions of angels at His command. The typical Roman legion was 5,000 - 6,000 men so we're talking not about "ten thousand angels" like the old song says He could have called, but more than 70,000, twelve times more than the entire 12th Fulminata legion that occupied Judea at that time. Jesus was in charge! In fact, Matthew skips what Jn. 18:4-6 tells us, that at the very first, Jesus, knowing all that would happen to him, came forward and said to them, "Whom do you seek?" They answered him, "Jesus of Nazareth." Jesus said to them, "I am he." Judas, who betrayed him, was standing with them. When Jesus said to them, "I am he," they drew back and fell to the ground. They couldn't even stand in His presence until He allowed it! He was in absolute control! This shows clearly:

b. His voluntary surrender to the plan of God (54) His concern was not to protect Himself, but to fulfill God's plan, to carry out the predictions of Scripture. What God wants be done is more important than what I want. Jesus didn't just say that in prayer; when the moment came, He lived it in action. He literally turned Himself over to their custody, but not without:

c. His bold witness to the mob (55-56) He pointed even His enemies, the mob and the soldiers, to the Scriptures. He's saying to them, "Look at what you're doing; you're fulfilling the Scriptures! Search them and you'll see Me; I am the Messiah, the Christ!" He wants them to know Him too! His very submission to their hands was to be a witness to them.

Let me just point out that so many times we pray bravely, "Lord, I want your will; whatever you want, Lord!" But then when trouble or problems or danger enter our lives, rather than acting like Jesus, we act like Peter and try to hack and slash at them desperately in our own strength to rid ourselves of them because we don't want to accept this part of his plan for us. Amy Carmichael lived from 1867 -1951 and spent 56 years as a missionary in Dohnavur, India. She worked with young girls who were dedicated by their families as temple prostitutes and during her life gave over 1,000 young women a new and different start in life. Along the way she wrote this poem which has blessed many called "In Acceptance Lieth Peace":

He said, 'I will forget the dying faces; The empty places, They shall be filled again. O voices moaning deep within me, cease.' But vain the word; vain, vain: Not in forgetting lieth peace.

He said, 'I will crowd action upon action, The strife of action Shall stir me and sustain; O tears that drown the fire of manhood cease.' But vain the word; vain, vain: Not in endeavor lieth peace.

He said, 'I will withdraw me and be quiet, Why meddle in life's riot? Shut be my door to pain. Desire, thou dost befool me, thou shalt cease.' But vain the word; vain, vain: Not in aloofness lieth peace.

He said, 'I will submit; I am defeated. God hath depleted My life of its rich gain. O futile murmurings, why will ye not cease?' But vain the word; vain, vain: Not in submission lieth peace.

He said, 'I will accept the breaking sorrow Which God tomorrow Will to His son explain.' Then did the turmoil deep within me cease. Not vain the word, not vain; For in Acceptance lieth peace.

Whenever trial or struggle or suffering comes, we must say "OK Lord, this thing is from you; I have prayed for your will to be done, so I accept this as part of it. Please give me the grace to endure it and to serve you in the process so that I may be a witness to somebody else through it somehow." Well, verse (57). Now comes:

III. Jesus' Trial Before The Jewish Leaders (59-63a) They had no real crime of which to accuse Him, so they actually sought out people to lie, to break the ninth commandment and bear false witness against Him.

1. the false accusations brought against Jesus were absurd, outlandish. No two of them could agree, which was necessary for conviction. They twisted His own words, Destroy this Temple and in three days I will raise it up, spoken about His own body, to accuse Him of plotting to destroy the Temple itself. Jesus said nothing and let them make fools of themselves, but finally Caiaphas had enough, (63b-65). Blasphemy is:

2. the true "crime" of which Jesus was convicted, claiming to be the Christ, the Son of God. But this is only blasphemy if it is not true. Yet instead of testing the evidence as to whether His answer was true, they simply condemned Him for the statement! Ironically, He was crucified for telling the truth about who He was, God the Son, the Christ, the Messiah of Israel. And that led to:

3. the cruel condemnation of Jesus (66-68) The penalty for blasphemy, of course, was death, so instantly they declared Him guilty, pronounced the sentence and proceeded to illegally begin to punish the defendant. But Jesus again took all of this ill treatment in silence. However, while all the while this farce of a trial was going on, something else was happening in that same building. We have the story of:

IV. Jesus' Denial By Peter We intentionally skipped verse (58). Peter did not fall easily. Look at:

1. his brave intent to follow Jesus Yes, after the sword incident in Gethsemane, he did leave Jesus, but he did not run away. He followed the mob at a distance back into Jerusalem and was actually brazen enough to enter Caiaphas' very courtyard and sit with the guards there. Why? Matthew says, to see the outcome, the end, to see what would happen to His beloved Master. But it seems Jesus was not the only one being tried in that building. As you well know, Peter himself was tested three times and in the end, we read of:

2. his vehement denial of Jesus (69-74a) Three times he was accused and three times he denied ever knowing Jesus or having been associated with Him, each time more fervently than the last. Finally, when a group of people accused him, he became so desperate to remain undiscovered, that he called down curses on himself. For instance, he may have said something like, "If I am a follower of Jesus, may God Almighty strike me dead!" Heb. 6:16 says, Men swear by someone greater than themselves, and the oath confirms what is said and puts an end to all argument. In the ancient world such an oath and curse was a legal way of declaring innocence; people believed that God would do what the curse said and no one would ever think of endangering his life for a lie. That's why they let Peter go and didn't arrest him. But how could it have come to this? How, an hour before, could he have bravely faced a mob of soldiers with his sword to defend Jesus and now take an oath before God to deny knowing Him? It's like the growing fear inside him transformed him, changed him into somebody else. It's like he didn't even realize what he was doing but was simply running on the impulse to survive somehow. That is, until this moment... (74b-75). As he finished his last denial a rooster crowed somewhere. And at the same moment, Luke tells us that from where Jesus was standing, He turned and looked directly at Peter. And it all came crashing home; Jesus had told him just hours before that he would deny knowing Him three times this very night and he had spoken so proudly, "Not me; I'll die for you!" Feel:

3. his bitter remorse He fled out into the darkness and wept intensely, realizing what an utter hypocrite he had been. In a reference that I have been unable to locate personally, Clement of Alexandria who wrote a century later, makes the claim that for the rest of his life every time Peter heard a cock crow, he would weep. Of course, we can't know whether that's true, but knowing the tremendous power of past emotional events in our lives, I'd guess that the sound of a rooster often triggered his mind to remember that awful night. And that brings us to ask...

Can such a thing be forgiven? Can one who has fallen so far as to deny the very Lord who bought him be absolved and restored to God and used by Him? Steve Brown writes, "After the resurrection, Jesus is concerned about Peter. Jesus knew Peter. He knew how devastated Peter was. He loved Peter. And He wanted Peter to know it, so He singled Peter out. [The angel said, Go, tell His disciples AND PETER... - Mk. 16:7] The three women come to the tomb to find it empty. They meet an angel -- a messenger from Jesus. In my mind's eye, I can see the resurrected Christ, leaving the tomb and giving instructions to the angel: 'I've got to go, but tell the women to tell the disciples that I'll meet them in Galilee and then we'll have a party.' Jesus starts to leave but then turns back to the angel and says, 'Oh, and make sure that you tell Peter I'll meet him too. If you don't specifically mention beloved Peter, he won't show.'... And in Galilee on the shore, three times Jesus tells Peter, "YOU feed My sheep! I've chosen YOU. And you're going to be faithful all the way until death; in your death you won't deny Me; you'll glorify Me." And he did; in the end he was crucified in Rome, upside down. Steve continues, Jesus still does for us what He did for Peter. That is what Easter is all about. 'Go tell Peter -- and Jack, Donna, Beth, Darryl, Maria and Steve -- that I'll meet them and we'll have dinner together at Home.' [Key Life magazine, Spring 2009]. Peter is our proof positive that no matter how far we have fallen, Jesus loves us, Jesus will take us back, and Jesus will still use us for His glory!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Passion Of The King - Mt. 26-28

The King Is Sentenced - 27:1-26

As we continue in Matthew's recording of Christ's Passion today, in chapter 27 it is early Friday morning just before sunrise. After Jesus' arrest in the garden late at night, He was taken to the palace of the High Priest and interrogated by those of the Jewish leaders who had been in on His arrest. When they could not find a valid charge to convict him of, they asked him directly whether he was the Christ, the Son of God, and when He told them the truth, they shouted "blasphemy" and pronounced Him worthy of death. But such an action carried out under the cover of darkness could not be carried forward without the confirmation of the whole ruling council of 70, the Sanhedrin. So verse (1). Luke says, as soon as it was day, the elders of the people and the chief priests and the scribes came together, and led him into their council... You can see:

I. The Leaders' Determination To Kill Jesus They must have sent out messengers to gather as many members of the council as they could find for an immediate meeting and:

1. the entire Sanhedrin gathered at dawn to decide how to proceed They already knew they wanted to kill Jesus, but their problem was that they had no authority to do it. Under Roman rule, they could not put anyone to death. The problem was how to formulate a charge that wasn't purely religious, like blasphemy, one that the state would consider a noteworthy crime. So, after consulting together:

2. they sent Jesus to Pilate, the Roman governor, asking the death penalty (2) Pontius Pilate was appointed procurator of Judea about 26 AD by the Emperor. He was no friend of the Jews; in fact, he hated them and deliberately antagonized them by his actions, it seems, on multiple occasions. The Jewish leaders were faced with trying to get their enemy to cooperate with them and do their bidding. So Luke says, ...they began to accuse him, saying, "We found this man misleading our nation and forbidding us to give tribute to Caesar, and saying that he himself is Christ, a king." - 23:2. They figured those charges ought to constitute treason against the Empire and should convince Pilate to sentence Him to death. But Pilate was not so easily convinced, as we shall see in a few moments. Meanwhile, Matthew interrupts the story to tell us what happened to Judas. Of all things, he shows us:

II. Jesus' Innocence Declared By Judas (3-4) Judas must have hung around also, like Peter, to see the outcome. Maybe he even went along as they marched Jesus to Pilate to see what would happen, but somewhere in that process we see:

1. his awful realization of what he had done Perhaps he had not actually planned for Jesus to die, just to be arrested and imprisoned. Or perhaps as he listened to the words Jesus spoke declaring Himself God, he realized He was right. In any event, when the Jews demanded the death sentence and he saw the governor would likely do it, it all came crashing home to Judas, just like it did to Peter, and he was flooded with guilt and remorse. So he tried to undo it. He ran back to the Temple and tried to give back the money. He confessed his sin to the priests and look what he says, I have sinned by betraying innocent blood. He, of all people, knows Jesus has done nothing worthy of death; he says in essence, "He's innocent and they're going to kill him; it's not right and it's all my fault!" But the priests don't care! They callously say, "That's YOUR problem, not ours!" In:

2. his absolute desperation to find relief he begins to act irrationally (5). He threw the heavy pieces of silver down on the floor of the Temple court and ran out, out of the Temple, out of the city, out into the valley to get away and escape the horror of it all. He came somewhere to a field known as the "potter's field". But his mind could not escape its torment. Death seemed to be the only way out. Somewhere on the edge of that field was a tree with an overhanging branch and in his desperation, he probably took the sash from his waist, climbed up and tied one end to the limb and the other around his neck and cast himself off. Acts 1:18-19 describes the horribleness of his end for us, how his body burst open, perhaps after several days of hanging there, and his bowels came out. His blood stained the ground and the place became known as Akeldama, the field of blood. Oh, if Judas had only waited a few hours and run out to Calvary to hear the words "Father, forgive them," which the soldiers heard as they crucified Him! If he'd only sought forgiveness from the Savior, and not from the priests! But alas, he perished in his grief and in his guilt! There are still a lot of desperate folks out there today who make the same mistake Judas did. Perhaps crying under a load of guilt, knowing they have done horrible things, or simply desperate to find relief from the life situation which torments them, they resort to suicide as a way out. Those they come to fail to comfort them, so they become really desperate and take their own lives. The international evangelist Luis Palau wrote some years ago: "Even when you and I are aware that someone is going through tough times, it's still easy to do nothing. I've been guilty of this. My next-door neighbor several years ago was a young television personality. We would chat from time to time, but I didn't talk to him about the gospel. 'After all,' I thought, 'he seems completely immune to the problems of life.' My neighbor's situation, however, abruptly changed. Joy was no longer evident in his face. He and his wife started driving separate cars to work. I could tell that their marriage was souring and felt the need to talk with him, but hesitated because I didn't want to meddle in his life. I went about my business and left for an evangelistic crusade overseas. After all, that was the polite thing to do. When I returned home, I learned that my neighbor had killed himself. I was heartbroken. I knew I should have gone to him, asked how things were going, and tried to persuade him to repent and follow Christ, but because of false courtesy-- because I followed a social norm--I didn't do it." [What Makes a Man by Bill McCartney, 1992. Pages 194-195.] May God use us to pull people back from the brink! But Luis' polite ignoring pales in comparison to:

3. the callous hypocrisy of the priests (6-8) They could have cared less about the innocence of Jesus and even less about the guilt of Judas; they could only debate how to keep the blood money, which had now come into their possession, from defiling the sacred treasury of the Temple! So, they later went out and bought the potter's field where Judas hanged himself and made it a burial place to bury foreigners, so no Israelite could be defiled by being buried in it. We marvel at their hardened hearts, at how they could take money out of the holy treasury to pay for a murder, but then worry about putting it back, at how they could go through all the religious motions of serving God, but inwardly be so brutally uncaring! Martin Luther marveled in his day at how John Tetzel could extort money from the poor with sermons on the fire of purgatory with the approval of the church! Dietrich Bonhoeffer marveled in his day that the German Church could stand by and nod while Hitler exterminated the Jews and he paid for it with his life! But Paul warned Timothy, and us through him, to expect that times would come when people had a form of religion that was completely devoid of connection to God! Yet even in this awful scene we find:

4. the direct fulfillment of the Scriptures (9-10) Jeremiah had stood in this very field in chapter 19 to prophesy the destruction of Jerusalem for the shedding of innocent blood, but it was actually Zechariah (11:12-13) whose words Matthew quotes here. We won't take time for a deeper explanation this morning; just don't miss what Matthew is trying to tell us: all this happened as exactly as God said it would hundreds of years earlier. God's plan is still absolutely on track in every detail of this gruesome scene!

Now Matthew takes us back to the Praetorium where we hear:

III. Jesus' Innocence Declared By Pontius Pilate (11-14) Notice how Pilate:

1. he was amazed at Jesus' silent demeanor When Pilate asked Him if He was indeed King of the Jews, He quietly answered, "Yes". But to all these voices accusing him of sedition and treason He made no answer at all. Pilate did not simply take notice; he was greatly amazed! He had never seen a man like this, one who would bear so many accusations without being shaken at all or defending himself. Luke tells us that he even said to the Jews, I find no fault in this man. - 23:4. But when they kept clamoring for his death and Pilate heard them say that Jesus was from Galilee:

2. he tried to shift responsibility for His case to Herod Matthew doesn't record this, but Lk. 23:6-12 tells us that Herod Antipas was in town for the feast and Pilate sent him quickly off to Herod in his palace, however, Herod also found Him innocent and sent him right back to Pilate. That must have taken an hour or so and it is probably during this interval that Judas went to the Temple to return the money. But when shifting responsibility didn't work, Pilate thought of another plan:

3. he tried to free Jesus by setting Him against Barabbas (15-17) Surely, He knew how popular Jesus was; the crowds hailing Him on Palm Sunday couldn't have escaped Pilate's attention. So he thought he would appeal to the crowd and let them make the decision. For some reason it was customary for the governor to release a prisoner to them on this first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, so as the crowd was gathering at his judgment hall, he stacked the deck by picking the worst prisoner he had, a rebel, an insurrectionist and murderer named Barabbas. We'd call him a terrorist. It was like saying today, "Here are your choices: I can release Osama Bin Laden or Billy Graham; which do you want?" He thought surely, they'll choose Jesus and He'll go free, the crowd will be happy and the Jewish leaders will be overridden by their own people. The perfect triumph! What a shock it must have been when the crowd shouted, "Barabbas!" You see, Pilate:

a. he knew Jesus was innocent (18) He was no idiot. He knew how popular Jesus was and how crowds upon crowds were listening to Him and how that drove the Jewish leaders insane with jealousy. Ordinarily he would have cared less about killing one more Jew; he would have been glad to oblige! Yet it wasn't that he was so concerned about Jesus or about justice; he simply hated these leaders and wanted a way to deny their desires and spite them! But at the same time, a message came to him (19). You have to understand what that meant to him. In his view:

b. he was warned by his wife's dream as an omen. Tradition says her name was Procula and that she became a follower of Jesus; the Orthodox Church even canonized her as a saint! We have no way to verify that, but what we do know is that, among the Romans, poignant dreams were considered omens, signs of fate, harbingers of what would happen, and when she pressed the issue by saying that Jesus was a righteous man, that she had been deeply disturbed by what she had seen, and that he must have absolutely nothing to do with harming Him, Pilate was all the more strengthened in his determination to release Jesus.

Are you getting the theme in these verses? Jesus was innocent. Judas knew He was innocent. Pilate knew He was innocent. Even the Jewish leaders knew He was innocent and their charges were false. This was a cold-blooded murder, an officially sanctioned assassination! But Jesus was more than innocent; He was completely sinless. He knew no sin. Not one! He was God's pure, perfect, spotless Lamb being offered up. Why? Listen to Peter: For Christ died for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, to bring you to God... - 1 Pet 3:18. It is the great travesty of the ages. Sinful mankind puts the sinless God the Son on trial and sentences Him to die. One can hardly believe it as we watch:

IV. Jesus' Death Demanded By The Jewish People (20-23) Now this was no quick scene as these few words portray. John records the whole story; it appears that three separate times Pilate presented Jesus to the crowd, taking Him inside in between to question Him further. Yet each time they shout "Crucify Him!" You can't help but be shocked by:

1. the unbelievable fickleness of the people What on earth happened to them? On Sunday, they had flocked after Jesus by the hundreds shouting "Blessed is He who comes in the name of the Lord!", proclaiming Him their Messiah and King. All week long they had listened to His teaching in the Temple and lauded His words. But today they shout "Crucify Him!" How can that be? The only explanation we are given is that the chief priests and elders had infiltrated the crowd and somehow persuaded them to do it. Maybe they threatened people with being put out of the synagogue. Maybe they convinced people that Jesus was endangering their nation with the Rome. Perhaps many of them simply joined in the mass hysteria of the crowd, chanting "Crucify," without even realizing what was going on. Maybe it wasn't even the same people in the crowd that morning. We don't know. But for us it simply points out the changeability of people who don't have a genuine relationship with Christ! People like these are the shallow soil and the thorny soil in Jesus' parable, people who seem to cheerfully embrace Him right away with great enthusiasm, but when difficulties or danger or the pressures of life come against them, they turn against Him. You see, it's not enough to believe about Jesus; when the pressure's on, that will disappear. Only a true commitment of the heart to Him will last! So at length, we see:

2. the cowardly capitulation of Pilate (24) He gave in. The pressure was simply too great! Hundreds of people rioting and perhaps his soldiers needing to massacre some to settle it might put his position in danger with Rome; indeed it might endanger his own head! So, expedience won the day. He decided to appease the crowd and give them what they wanted. Yet he tried to absolve himself by symbolically washing his hands of the whole matter and saying to the crowd, "This is all YOUR doing, not mine!" But, of course, it wasn't. The power of death still lay in his hands; without his order, it could not proceed. In the end HE ordered Jesus' crucifixion. However, before we judge Pilate too harshly, let us realize that sometimes we do the same thing; sometimes instead of doing what we know is right, we are so scared of the consequences of that choice that we do what everyone is pushing us to do! But it is verse (25) that really grabs me. Hear we see:

3. the fearful responsibility of the people I can't emphasize enough the seriousness of this verse. These were not mere words; this was an oath before God, the pronouncing of a sentence upon themselves. They voluntarily said, "Let the responsibility for this man's death lie upon us and our children after us; let us be held accountable and any punishment from God fall on us!" And God took them at their word. After one final era to repent, as the Good News of the resurrected Christ came to the Jews first through the Apostles in Acts, and rejecting that opportunity also, God's judgment fell upon Israel as a nation. The Roman general Titus destroyed Jerusalem and decimated the Jewish people. Many were sold into slavery. John Gill says, great numbers of them were put to death by crucifixion; and very likely some of those very persons, that were so clamorous for the crucifying of Christ; and if not, at least their children; five hundred of the Jews and more, were sometimes crucified in a day, whilst Titus was besieging the city; till at length there wanted "room for crosses and crosses for bodies", as Josephus says, who was an eyewitness of it: The glorious Temple was destroyed and the remnant of the Jewish nation was left to be scattered and to wander over the face of the earth for 19 centuries with no homeland, hated practically everywhere they went. This verse has been used by everyone from the likes of Hitler to the very Church itself down through the centuries to brand the Jews as "Christ-killers" and persecute them. Throughout the Middle Ages, pogroms, massive violent attacks against Jews occurred one after the other, and they were repeated in the 1800's and 1900's in many parts of the world. It is only in our own lifetimes that the Jews have a homeland once again and the church has officially recanted from blaming them for Christ's death.

In truth there is plenty of guilt to go around. Verse (26). Pilate scourged Him (don't let that brief word diminish the awful thing that was; remember the film "The Passion of the Christ"); he gave the order. The Romans crucified Him. His blood was on Gentile and Jewish hands alike. The full truth is that His blood still lies on every member of the human race and on all their children. He came unto his own, and they that were his own received him not. - John 1:11. The entire race rejected Him and for our sins He was nailed there. We crucified the Lord of Glory and none of us can wash that away in some ceremony or blame someone else. The only way to escape the guilt of His innocent blood is to plunge directly into it as a cleansing fountain, to understand that that blood paid for all your sins and let yourself be washed in it by receiving the risen Christ. Bible teacher Donald Grey Barnhouse wrote this concerning Barabbas: "He was the only man in the world who could say that Jesus Christ took his physical place. But I can say that Jesus Christ took my spiritual place. For it was I who deserved to die. It was I who deserved that the wrath of God should be poured on me. I deserved the eternal punishment of the lake of fire. He was delivered up for my offenses. He was handed over to judgment because of my sins — Christ was my substitute. He was satisfying the debt of divine justice and holiness. That is why I say that Christianity can be expressed in the three phrases: I deserved hell; Jesus took my hell; there is nothing left for me but His heaven." Hallelujah!

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Passion Of The King - Mt. 26-28

The King Is Crucified - 27:26-44

In our study through the Passion of the King in Matthew's Gospel, this morning we come to reverently consider the suffering of our Savior in the process of crucifixion. It seems to me that when we human beings decided to kill the Son of God, we invented for Him the most cruel, horrible, awful death that could possibly be imagined and then we had the gall to stand around and mock Him while He died for us! The crucifixion was torture in the extreme. It reveals to us just how truly wicked man is, how awfully low He can stoop! As we gaze with tear-filled eyes at the torturing of Jesus, I am impressed over again with what a loving God we have, that instead of wiping us all out, He forgave us, and that forgiveness was purchased through the very suffering we inflicted! Hallelujah! It was between 7 and 8 o'clock on Friday morning when Pilate washed his hands and gave in to the demands of the mob gathered before him to crucify Jesus and release Barabbas. And as we re-enter the story, Matthew reminds us that:

I. Jesus Was Tortured BEFORE Being Crucified (26) As I mentioned briefly last time:

1. He had already been cruelly scourged or flogged. We literally have no idea what suffering that awful word means. Stripped of His clothes, Jesus was bent over and tied to a stake or a column in the judgment hall, then He was whipped repeatedly with a cat-of-nine-tails, a Roman instrument of torture composed of nine leather thongs tipped with bits of metal or bone, until His back was torn open into a mass of raw, bleeding flesh. Prisoners sometimes died from scourging alone; in fact, it was known as, "the intermediate death". By and large, Roman soldiers hated the Jews and any license to molest one was probably vigorously undertaken. By the time they were done, Jesus could barely stand, yet they were not finished. Cut and bleeding:

2. He was heartlessly tormented by the soldiers

a. it began with sarcastic exaltation (27-29) They took Jesus into the praetorium, the courtyard of the judgment hall, and dressed Him up like a king. They put on Him a sagum, the red-purple cloak or sash you often see on Roman soldiers in the movies; that color was worn by generals and commanders, even emperors. In fact, it may have been one of Pilate's own old cloaks that they draped around Him to look like a king. Then they wove a branch of sharp thorns from a bush or tree in the yard in a circle to form a crown and pressed it heavily upon his head to draw blood that ran down. They put reed, a stalk of cane, in His hand for a scepter. What a pathetic sight He must have made! Then they took turns bowing before Him, each in their own mocking way saying, "Hail, King!", attempting to make the rest laugh. You know how it works. Matthew says the whole company of soldiers, the whole portion of the Roman cohort stationed at Jerusalem, got in on it. That could mean hundreds of men, bowing and mocking and laughing, but immediately:

b. that was followed by merciless derision (30-31) As they rose, to their feet they spit on Him. Pause to think about that for a moment. Have you ever been spit on? It's the ultimate expression of human disgust and contempt. To spit upon a person is to say, "You are nothing; you are dirt to be spit upon!" Picture it, dozens of them over and over, spitting and cursing Him and then they would take the reed and beat Him on the head with it, which drove the thorns deeper each time. And they would mockingly demand of Him to prophesy, to declare the name of the man who had hit him. Somewhere in the process they yanked handfuls of His beard out by the roots according to Is. 50:6, which also declares that He didn't even turn His face when they spit upon Him. Is. 52:14 says that He was marred through all of this beyond recognition.

But here's what Matthew doesn't explain: look with me at Jn. 19:1-6. They actually did all this to Jesus before Pilate brought Him out to the people for the last time! In this pitiful condition he brought Him forth to the mob and shouted that famous Latin phrase, Ecce homo! Behold the man! It was Pilate's attempt to say, "Is not this enough? Look what I have done to Him; see how I have tortured Him? Look how weak and miserable He is; He is no threat. Is not this enough to satisfy you?" But they would not be satisfied. They screamed for His death. And so, in the end, the order was given and the soldiers dressed Him in His own clothes once again and led Him away. Then, after being tortured before being crucified:

II. Jesus Was Tortured BY Being Crucified A condemned prisoner had to carry his own cross. So, across Jesus' bleeding back and shoulders they laid the patibulum, the heavy wooden crossbeam weighing upwards of 75 pounds, and bound His wrists to its ends. A centurion and three soldiers surrounded him as they slowly marched him out through the streets, passing through the throngs of people who parted to make way for them, to the city gates. By this time, Jesus was so weak that He could not bear the weight and probably fell, perhaps repeatedly. So, we read of:

1. the forced conscription of Simon (32) Evidently impatient with the slow pace, the soldiers grabbed a passerby who was coming in through the gate and forced him to take the crossbeam and carry it behind Jesus. His name was Simon, a Jew from Cyrene, a city of Libya in North Africa, probably here for the Feast. His name would probably never have been remembered and written down, except for the fact that Mk. 15:21 adds that he was the father of Alexander and Rufus. His two sons were believers known to the church at the time that Mark wrote his Gospel! There is almost no doubt that as he followed Jesus to the crucifixion and watched Him die or soon thereafter, Simon became a disciple of Christ. In fact, he may be one of the men of Cyrene in Acts 11:20 who preached the Gospel in Antioch and planted the church there. He may even be the well-known teacher, Simeon called Niger, at Antioch in Acts 13:1 and his son Rufus, the disciple Paul greeted in Rom. 16:13. So you see, even as He was in His most vulnerable state, on His way to the cross to be lifted up from the earth, Jesus was already beginning to draw all men to Himself. His plan was right on track. As they left the city, the soldiers headed for:

2. the desolate place where Jesus was crucified (33) Not far outside the gate the road led by a place which had been given the Hebrew name Golgotha, the Skull, in Latin, Calvary. We don't know why. Early Christian tradition says that the skull of Adam, the first man, was found on this very spot, and there is today a Chapel of Adam beneath the Church of the Holy Sepulchre which is located over the traditional site. Others guess that it was the usual place of execution, which it may well have been. Since the uprights for the crosses, the stipes, were probably already fixed with their bottoms in the ground, it would only make sense that this was a regularly used location, a place of death by its very name. As they arrived, we read of Jesus':

3. the steadfast refusal of the wine (34) For some odd reason it was customary after nearly killing someone to turn around and offer them a sedative to help take the edge off of the final pain of crucifixion. So, the soldiers offered Jesus sour wine, a bitter mixture to dull the pain of what they were about to do, but Jesus, after tasting what it was, would not drink any of it. He knew its purpose and He did not want to numb Himself. That's our human way, isn't it? If we can't escape the pain of our situation, our first desire is to numb ourselves to it. How many people numb themselves regularly with drugs or alcohol or something else so as not to feel! But Jesus deliberately chose to feel the fullness of all the pain that day. What redemption would there be in enduring the punishment for our sins but not feeling it? He did not want to be, indeed He could not be, exempt from any of it that He might suffer in full what we deserved! And now began:

4. the awful process of crucifixion stated so simply in the words of (35a). The crossbeam was laid on the ground and Jesus' arms stretched out upon it and bound fast. Then one soldier took a heavy hammer and drove an iron spike, not through the palm, but through the wrist between the bones of each hand. While still reeling in pain, the crossbeam was hoisted up with Jesus attached and fixed to the upright. It was not high; His feet rested upon a small platform only a foot or two above the ground and soon they were crossed over one another and a single spike driven through both feet. Thus suspended a person could live for many hours, even days, as life drained out of them slowly until they could no longer pull themselves up to breathe and they suffocated. It was an ingenious method of torture designed to exact the last full measure of pain before death. But even cries of anguish did not move the soldiers; they had seen it all before. From them we see:

5. the callous gambling for His clothes (35b-36) - John 19:23-24 makes it more clear, When the soldiers had crucified Jesus, they took his garments and divided them into four parts, one part for each soldier [his headpiece, outer garment, sash and sandals - and they probably cast lots for who got which one!]; also his tunic [or inner garment]. But the tunic was seamless, woven in one piece from top to bottom, so they said to one another, "Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it to see whose it shall be." Jesus owned nothing but the clothes on his body and even these, now probably blood-soaked, were seen as a means of amusement for the bored soldiers watching Him die. Yet unknowingly, John adds, This was to fulfill the Scripture which says, "They divided my garments among them, and for my clothing they cast lots." - Ps. 22:18. Every detail of this scene down to the most trivial and gruesome fairly shouts, "This man is the Messiah, the Son of God!" Now we're told of:

6. the ironic charge above His cross (37) Technically, the centurion who walked before Jesus out of the city carried this white placard with the crime of the condemned criminal written on it so the public would know why he was to die. When they got to the cross, they nailed it above His head. It read, This is Jesus of Nazareth the King of the Jews. Sounds more like an introduction than a criminal charge, doesn't it? Ironically, the charge against Him was actually the truth, even though Pilate who had written it didn't believe it! This very placard caused a stir; look with me at John 19:20-22. The Jewish leaders were afraid people would actually believe what Pilate had written! They wanted it edited but Pilate would do them no favor. It stood and it still does! Jesus IS the King, the Messiah and one day, Zechariah says, [God] will pour out on the house of David and the inhabitants of Jerusalem a spirit of grace and pleas for mercy, so that, when they look on me, on him whom they have pierced, they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for an only child, and weep bitterly over him, as one weeps over a firstborn. - 12:10. Meanwhile what Matthew does NOT record for us is:

7. the unbelievable cry of forgiveness As the soldiers hoist Him up upon the cross in agony, Jesus cries, Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do! - Lk. 23:34. What a haunting cry! Forgiveness, not revenge, not justice, but forgiveness! That's what God wants; that's what Jesus is dying to provide and that cry opens the door, not only for the cruel soldiers, but for all of us!

Now lastly, not only was Jesus tortured before being crucified and by the act of being crucified itself:

III. Jesus Was Tortured WHILE Being Crucified His enemies would not even give Him the opportunity to suffer and die in peace. They continued to torment Him for hours as he hung there. Of course, it's not surprising that:

1. He was mocked by the soldiers - Lk. 23:36-37, The soldiers also mocked him, coming up and offering him sour wine and saying, "If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!" Right after He had prayed for their forgiveness! But really, the soldiers were just parroting the cries of the crowd that had gathered. You see, as He hung there:

2. He was mocked by the Jewish people and their leaders (39-43) Golgotha was by a main road and all day people passed by and stopped to watch and to jeer at the pitiful sight. And many of the Jewish leaders came out and stood round the cross also. This was their hour of triumph; at last Jesus was totally humiliated and powerless in the eyes of the people. And they heaped ridicule on Him in every way they could think of:

a. they ridiculed His "superiority" to the Jewish religious "system" "Destroy the Temple, will you? Try it now! Criticize us and call us hypocrites, will you? See who is dying and who is still standing here! We and our system have won! You and your new teachings have come to nothing!" Then:

b. they ridiculed His ability to provide salvation He saved others; He cannot save Himself! John Gill comments: This was not so much a concession of theirs, that he had done many saving works, as healing the sick, cleansing lepers, causing the blind to see, and the lame to walk, and raising the dead; but rather a suggestion, that these were only pretensions and illusions; that either they were not really done, or done by the help of the devil; since now he himself was in the utmost extremity, he could not save himself. They are actually mocking the very works which Christ had done for 3 ½ years. If He could not rescue himself, how could He rescue anyone else from anything! Then:

c. they ridiculed His office as Israel's King and Messiah "If you're the Messiah, if you're our King, then come down from the cross and we'll believe you! Haven't you read the script? Messiah doesn't die on a cross at Roman hands. Messiah leads Israel to glorious victory and throws the Romans out! You're an imposter! A fake! A fraud!" And finally:

d. they ridiculed His relationship with the Father as the Son of God "You say you're the Son of God, that God is your Father! Would God let His son die like this? Would He abandon His Son to the Romans to die on a cross? If God was pleased with you, if He really wanted you, He'd rescue you! He would swoop down here with a legion of angels and set you free! But where is He? You're no Son of God!"

Oh, how all of these things must have cut Jesus to the heart! Of course, He knew none of them was true, but to hear it said at the very moment that the Father is about to separate His presence from Him and pour out His full wrath that He never was the Son of God, we cannot imagine the agony! And, as if all of that was not enough:

3. He was even mocked by the two thieves crucified beside Him We deliberately skipped verse (38) Two robbers, not petty thieves, but armed bandits, hardened criminals, men who would kill for money, were crucified that day also, one on either side, putting Jesus right in the middle, showing Him as one of them in the lineup. Verse (44) seems to say that:

a. both of them initially ridiculed Him They took up the chants of the crowd! "Yeah, if you're who you say you are, save yourself AND us! Prove it!" Now He is not even good enough for the likes of them! But an hour or two of hanging on the cross and pondering their own death eventually did a number on one of them because in Luke 23:40-43 we read that:

b. one eventually repented and was granted paradise One eventually realized that Jesus had indeed done nothing wrong, but his own sins were about to send him straight to hell. All he could possibly do was believe and he did and Jesus made Him that beautiful promise, not "Someday you'll be in My Kingdom", but TODAY you will be with Me in paradise! Still seeking, still saving, that's the heart of Jesus.

I have tried to paint the scene of the cross in a realistic fashion, but words cannot do it justice. Picturing it cannot make you feel the awfulness of it. In 1785 the poet Robert Burns coined a phrase in one of his poems which strikes us still and describes what we see here: man's inhumanity to man. Or as the old-time radio show, The Shadow, put it: Who knows what evil lurks in the hearts of men? Jesus knows! The cruelty of which human beings are capable defies our comprehension. Two weeks ago, a friend in Bishkek wrote how sad she was because of the death of a friend. James was an invalid who went to her church there, but vandals broke into his apartment one day. They tore it apart and destroyed every piece of furniture he had and then proceeded to torture him. They poured boiling water over him to burn him and they hit him in the head twice, hard enough to cause aneurysms and left him for dead. Those aneurysms burst and killed him. And it was all apparently for no reason; it was not a robbery; they didn't even take his wallet. The cruel delight that one human being can display in torturing another defies rationality; yet that capability lies in the sinful nature every human being is born with, and that includes you and I. Despite all our protesting that we could never be like those soldiers or like those Jewish leaders or like those callous passersby, the cold truth is that, given the right circumstances, we could and we would. The awful evil that lurks in our hearts and rears its gruesome head in moments like this horrid Friday morning is itself the very reason why Jesus died. That evil had to be punished; justice demands it. And for God to have us with Him forever, that evil had to be removed from our hearts; salvation demands it. So, through the cross Jesus accomplished both for us. May we never forget the price that was attached to it. In one of his books, Dr. Tom Dooley, the great humanitarian to southeast Asia, wrote of building a cage for a small Himalayan moon bear someone had given him when an old Chinese man came by and saw the cage and began to cry. When Dooley asked the old man why he was weeping, he told him a dark story. He and his son had been harvesting rice on a commune in Red China. They were not allowed to keep any rice for personal use but the son had hidden a small bit of rice in his clothes to take to his mother who was suffering from beriberi. The rice was discovered, and the soldiers put the boy in a cage in the middle of the town. The cage was so small his son could not sit up or even move. The father and mother watched their son slowly die in that cage under the hot sun, starving, with insects crawling over his body. Even though many years had passed, the old man still cried every time he saw a cage. [Tabletalk, Feb 1996. Page 28.] May we be like that old man. May we never forget. May the sight of a cross or the very mention of the word take us back to Calvary and move our hearts with tears of adoration.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Passion Of The King - Mt. 26-28

The King Dies - 27:45-66

We have been slowly walking with Jesus through the story of His Passion as it is recorded for us by Matthew. In our last study we reverently walked with Christ through the torture of His crucifixion and we left Him hanging there on Friday morning with the mocking crowd gathered around Him. Now in verses 45-49 the record turns away from the physical and emotional suffering of this whole ordeal and causes us to focus on:

I. The Spiritual Death Jesus Endured Many of Jesus' own followers down through the centuries have endured the physical suffering of martyrdom; I would humbly submit that some of them have even died deaths that were equally as painful and horrific. It is not Jesus' physical suffering which makes His death unique or procures our salvation. Paul said that the item of first importance in our faith is this: Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures. It is what happened to Christ in the spiritual realm as He died that saved us and that is what we turn now to consider. The first thing Matthew mentions is:

1. the physical darkness which betokened it (45) After 3 hours of suffering, at noon it rapidly grew dark. Luke adds the phrase, the sun was darkened... - 23:45a. It stopped shining, not for minutes like an eclipse, but three full hours; its light was obscured by an act of God in some way, so much so that the darkness extended, not merely to all the land, but in fact, the Greek word Matthew uses can literally mean the whole inhabited earth. The Roman Christian apologist Tertullian described Christ's death like this: And yet, nailed upon the cross, He exhibited many notable signs, by which His death was distinguished from all others. At His own free-will, He with a word dismissed from Him His spirit, anticipating the executioner's work. In the same hour, too, the light of day was withdrawn, when the sun at the very time was in his meridian blaze. Those who were not aware that this had been predicted about Christ, no doubt thought it an eclipse. You yourselves have the account of the world-portent still in your archives. [Apology - Ch. 21] Rome itself recorded this great darkness! The Father caused nature itself to reflect the reality of what was happening in the spiritual realm. The hymnwriter Isaac Watts said it best when he penned this familiar line: Well might the sun in darkness hide and shut its glories in, When Christ, the mighty Maker, died for man the creature's sin. Three long hours passed in gloomy twilight; Christ said not a word to indicate what was happening as He hung there suffering, until the very end when He shouted:

2. the cry of abandonment which expressed it (46-47) That was what happened during those three hours. For the first time in eternity, the Father withdrew His Presence from the Son, and in His cry, we hear summed up:

a. the agony He experienced as the wrath of God was poured upon our sins Consider carefully with me three other passages which help us understand. Peter wrote: He himself bore our sins in his body on the tree... - 1 Pet. 2:24. In those hours a gigantic spiritual transfer was made. Our sins were placed upon Him there while He hung upon the cross. Paul put it like this: For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God. - 2 Cor. 5:21. He was made sin for us! A world's worth of guilt was laid upon Him and as it was, the very wrath of God was poured out upon Him to such an extent that in those three hours He experienced the full weight of an eternity of separation from God; the infinite anguish of an eternity of suffering in hell descended upon His spirit for each one of us. There are no human words to describe the awful misery He experienced in being utterly forsaken by God! But its effect is this: God presented him as a sacrifice of atonement, through faith in his blood. He did this to demonstrate his justice... he did it to demonstrate his justice at the present time, so as to be just and the one who justifies those who have faith in Jesus. - Rom. 3:25-26. His death, sealed by His blood, His precious life itself poured out completely, became a propitiation, an atonement, a satisfying of the just wrath of God against our sins, so that by separating our sins from us and placing them on Christ, He could be just and punish sin and yet save us! Hallelujah! No, we cannot begin to comprehend all that is involved in that simple saying, Christ died for our sins, yet if we look closer, we CAN understand something else at the same time. We can understand:

b. the claim He made by saying this The words Christ shouted were absolutely true in their meaning, yet they were carefully chosen. Christ shouted the first half of Ps. 22:1 to express and to explain His grief. Any Jew who attended synagogue regularly, who had heard the Psalms read from little on up, would recognize it. Surely the scribes and Pharisees would! Jesus wanted to call it to their minds; He hoped they would begin to recite it to themselves and would see that what it said was being played out live in front of their eyes. Look there with me. Verses 1, 6-8. That's exactly what the crowd was shouting! Verses 14-18. There He hung with hands and feet pierced with nails! There stood the soldiers who had cast lots for His clothing! He was shouting to them, "I am the man of Psalm 22. This was about Me! I am the Messiah! Look how it ends!" Vs. 24. Notice that, despite what the hymns say, the Father DID NOT turn His face away. He suffered Himself by watching the whole thing and in the end, He was listening and this cry from the Cross was answered! It was answered by the resurrection and it was answered by verse 27. In our zealous mission effort today, we are part of the Father's response to this cry of His Son! He has heard and because of what His Son did there He is saving some from all the nations of the earth! And the last line, verse 31, says He has done it and is very close to what Christ shouted in the next moment, It is finished! He is still trying to save those standing by, yet thank God that even if it is lost on them, it is not lost on us! We get it! He IS the Savior of the world! But things are moving much faster now than I am portraying it. We read that the immediate response to this was (48-49). It seems an odd response to Jesus' cry to run and give him a drink, except that John 19:28 tells us, After this, Jesus, knowing that all was now finished, said (to fulfill the Scripture), "I thirst." It must have been nearly as one cry, "Why have You forsaken me?... I thirst!" But the crowd doesn't understand the cry through His parched lips. They hear the Aramaic Eli followed by the 'yuh' sound as He pulls up to breathe and speak and sinks down again and they think He's calling Elijah, Elijah, whom he is expecting to come and save Him and to quench His thirst. That's why they run to give Him some wine vinegar from the soldiers' pot and wait to see whether Elijah will indeed come. But:

c. the cry of thirst confirmed again that He knew exactly what He was doing. Ps. 69:21 prophesied, They put gall in my food and gave me vinegar for my thirst. Yes, He was actually thirsty, but once again He's trying to jog their minds, saying, "I am the man of Psalm 69; look how you're fulfilling the Scriptures at every step. See who I am!" Sadly, they didn't. But with this cry, the spiritual death is over, and Matthew now turns our attention to:

II. The Physical Death Jesus Passed Through in verses (50-55). Notice carefully what verse (50) says. Literally, the Greek says:

1. He dismissed His spirit from His body He sent it away. He told it to go! It was just as He said, no man took His life from Him; He laid it down! He was in absolute control. And as He did, He wanted us to know something very important:

a. the work of our salvation was completed John tells us the whole pattern of how this happened, When he had received the drink, Jesus said, "It is finished." With that, he bowed his head and gave up his spirit. - Jn. 19:30. Immediately after that brief drink, Jesus uttered this one wonderful word, in the Greek, Tetelestai!, which has such a broad, full meaning. It is finished! It is completed! It is accomplished! Even, It is paid! He wanted us to know that everything the Father needed to accomplish through His life and death was now completed to the full; there was nothing left to add to it. The wrath of God was satisfied, the debt of sin was fully paid and the salvation of man was purchased. And with that, Luke tells us that:

b. Jesus entrusted His spirit into the Father's hands Jesus called out with a loud voice, "Father, into your hands I commit my spirit." When he had said this, he breathed his last. - Luke 23:46 He shouted it loudly so all would hear; the Father's presence was BACK and He made a deposit. He placed His spirit into the Father's hands for safekeeping and sent it off! What a wonderful picture of what you and I will do one day! Because of what Christ did here, when our time comes, we, likewise, will place our spirit in the Father's hands and depart from this body, just like He did! And look where He went! According to His own words:

c. He was immediately with the Father in paradise Remember what He told the thief hours before? I tell you the truth, today you will be with me in paradise. - Luke 23:43. Unless Jesus told a lie as He was dying, that very day

He was in paradise! I know that the later "Received Form" of the Apostles Creed, which some of you may be used to repeating, contains the phrase He descended into hell. But you should know that phrase was a later addition which does not appear in writing until nearly 400 AD and even then, the church explained it to mean that Christ simply went to the place of departed spirits of the just, not to the hell of suffering where the lost go; that is a much later false concept that developed. Listen, we have a direct definition of paradise in 2 Cor. 12:2-4. Paul shares an experience where he was caught up to the third heaven (that means not atmospheric heavens, nor the heavens of space, but the heaven where God dwells) and then he repeats himself, saying he was caught up into paradise! Paradise is heaven itself where God is and that's where Jesus' spirit went! His spirit was in the Father's hands in the Father's house immediately, and so will yours be because of what Jesus did for you! To be absent from this body is to be present with the Lord!

His death was exactly what ours will be, a departure, a shoving off from the moorings that hold us to this world and hold our soul to this body directly into heaven to enjoy the paradise of God as John calls it in Rev. 2:7! Hallelujah! Now in verses 51-53, Matthew tells us about:

2. the supernatural events that followed Jesus' death. First of all, we're told that:

a. the veil before the Holy of Holies in the Temple was torn (51a) The bystanders at the cross didn't see this, of course, but the priests who were in the Temple at this very time offering up the evening sacrifice must have had the fright of their lives. The huge thick veil which hung before the Most Holy Place where the ark was, began to tear in half, right down the middle. Now this veil, you understand, extended to the ceiling which in Herod's temple was 40 cubits or about 60 feet high, thirty feet wide, and it was a hand-breadth, about 4 or 5 inches, thick! It was untearable, but as they watched, it began to tear itself in two, not from the bottom up as any natural cause would do it, but from the top to the bottom! God Himself tore it open! Why? Heb. 10:20 says clearly that the veil in the temple is a picture or a type of Christ's flesh, His body. When Christ's body died, God tore the veil open to say, "Look the way into My Presence is now open. You can go in through Him! He was the true Evening Sacrifice, the last one ever to be made and through His death He has opened the way for you!" What a powerful visual lesson! How sad that instead of connecting the two events, the Jews just sewed up another veil and put it back in place! Then, at the same time this was occurring:

b. a strong earthquake rocked the whole area (51b) The ground beneath the feet of the bystanders trembled, buildings in the city shook, rocks on the hillside cracked and split open. Surely, they found themselves suddenly struggling for balance and some perhaps falling to the ground. Another effect of this earthquake was (52-53). Tombs on the hillsides were normally sealed by placing large rocks across the openings and because of this earthquake:

c. many tombs opened; the rocks fell away from their entrances. And this paved the way for something far more miraculous. On the third day after Christ's resurrection, some of the dead, the saints, the holy ones, who had been buried in those tombs were actually raised, with Jesus as He rose and in their glorified form they went into Jerusalem and appeared to people just like Jesus Himself did! Of course, this is a mere mention and to say anything more would be pure speculation.

The other sign nobody ever thinks about, but the bystanders surely must have noticed, was that the darkness began to vanish and the sky grew light! Picture it: Jesus leaves His body, His head slumps forward and the ground shakes and people are knocked to the ground and the sky grows light and the sun breaks out! With what powerful effects the Father gave witness to the reality of what had just happened to His Son! And that is clear from:

3. the reaction of those who observed it (54-55) The callous soldiers around the cross were terrified and particularly the centurion, who confessed, Truly this man WAS the Son of God! We can't know what that meant to him, but at the very least, he was now expressing a belief that was opposite to the mocking of the crowd before! It is certainly possible you'll see these very men in heaven! After all, Jesus prayed for them at the very beginning! And if so, then Jesus is still saving people even in His death! And Luke 23:48 concludes, And all the crowds that had assembled for this spectacle, when they saw what had taken place, returned home beating their breasts. I doubt that the Jewish leaders did so, but the rest of the common people who stood gazing were also impacted by the signs and trudged back into the city in sorrow, expressing it in Jewish fashion by beating their chests with their fists as a symbol of mourning. Meanwhile the women who loved Him and had followed Him from Galilee continued to faithfully stand at a distance and watch to see what would be done with His body and now Matthew tells us about:

III. The Burial Jesus Was Given in verses 57-66. With His spirit gone, all that was left was:

1. the interment of His body, which some bystanders had already been thinking about. We read first of:

a. the daring request of Joseph (57-58) He was an actual member of the Sanhedrin who was a believer; he had not consented to Jesus' conviction and now, while so many had fled, he had the guts to come forward publicly, straight to Pilate himself, to ask for custody of the body. And his request was granted. Jn. 19:39 adds that Nicodemus, another member of the council, joined him, bringing a huge amount of burial spices and together they took Jesus' body and gave it a:

b. the reverent burial in the tomb (59-61) It was the only thing they could do. They were not able to stop His execution, but at least they gave Him a proper, if hurried, Jewish burial with a shroud and spices and a proper resting place, Joseph's own new, and no doubt expensive, tomb, carved out of solid rock. Before going home, the two Marys watched the whole process and made sure, both that His body was safe from further desecration and that they knew where it was laid so they could come back after the Sabbath. But the Jewish leaders were still not done; they insisted on:

2. the securing of the tomb (62-66) The next morning, on the Sabbath, the Jewish leaders made a nervous request of Pilate. What the disciples forgot altogether, they remembered clearly, the fact that Jesus had said He would rise on the third day! Naturally they didn't believe He would actually DO it, but they were afraid His disciples might steal the body and create a hoax, so they petitioned for Pilate to make the tomb secure, just in case. Pilate disdainfully gave in to their request and a guard of several soldiers was posted before the tomb and a wax seal with the stamp of Rome impressed on it was placed on the edge of the stone that sealed the entrance. To break that seal was treason against Rome and meant certain death. They were quite sure His body would stay in there forever!

Well, Friday is over. The King is dead, buried and neatly sealed in a tomb. It's as though darkness has won the day and the world has said, "There, that takes care of that!" We have seen the reaction of the terrified soldiers, of the saddened crowd, of the determined Jewish leaders, but this morning, God is more interested in your reaction and mine. About the year 1720, when Nicolaus Ludwig von Zinzendorf had finished university, he took a trip throughout Europe to see some of its cultural high-spots. When he arrived in the art museum at Dusseldorf, he saw a painting by Domenico Feti entitled "Ecce Homo" ("Behold the Man"). It was a portrait of Christ with the crown of thorns pressed down on his head and blood running down his face. Beneath the portrait were the words, "I have done this for you; what have you done for me?" As he stood there, as it were, watching his Savior suffer and bleed, he said to himself, "I have loved him for a long time, but I have never actually done anything for him. From now on I will do whatever he leads me to do." In that moment it hit him, "These wounds were meant to purchase me. These drops of blood were shed to obtain me." He could never get over it. He was not his own; he was bought with a price. His life was changed forever and that vision of his became the fuel that propelled the early Moravian missionary movement to the ends of the earth. [From John Piper's sermon "At The Price Of God's Own Blood" <http://www.desiringgod.org/resource-library/sermons/at-the-price-of-gods-own-blood>]. I think Isaac Waats got it right in the unsung fourth verse of his hymn: Thus might I hide my blushing face while His dear cross appears; dissolve my heart in thankfulness, And melt mine eyes to tears. We could and should be overwhelmed with tears of gratitude and thankfulness and worship at what Jesus did there at the cross for us. Yet then comes the familiar fifth verse: But drops of grief can ne'er repay the debt of love I owe: Here, Lord, I give myself away - 'Tis all that I can do! You are not your own; you were bought by God at an immeasurably great price, the blood of His own Son. Give your life away to Him.

The Coming Of The King: The Gospel Of Matthew

The Passion Of The King - Mt. 26-28

The King Is Risen - Ch. 28

This morning we come to the crowning chapter of Matthew's narrative of Jesus' life, which proclaims to us the Resurrection of the King. It is obvious that Matthew does not attempt to recall for us all the events that occurred on that wonderful Sunday, nor does he attempt to tell us all the appearances of the Resurrected Lord. If you want a complete picture you have to compare all four Gospels. The New Scofield Reference Bible has a wonderful comprehensive note of explanation at Mt. 28:1 and Jn. 20:16; the NIV Study Bible has a chart at Lk. 24:21, and I'm sure other study Bibles can also help you. But that is not Matthew's purpose. He simply wanted to leave us with three important pieces of information: the fact that Jesus rose from the dead, how the Jews reacted to that fact, since he wrote primarily with a Jewish audience in mind and the Great Assignment Jesus gave us to take the news of Him to all nations. So, in the first ten verses Matthew declares to us:

I. The Incredible Fact Of Jesus' Resurrection (1-10) We pick up the story in (1-4). The first witnesses of the Resurrection were the women who had stood by Jesus at the cross and watched His hasty burial. John mentions only Mary Magdalene, Matthew adds Mary the mother of James the less, and Mark adds Salome, the mother of James and John. Some manuscripts of Luke say there were others. At any rate, they were concerned that Jesus' body had not been properly anointed for burial and so when the Sabbath was over, they returned early in the morning carrying spices and talking among themselves, hoping against hope they would find someone to open the tomb for them, apparently not realizing it was sealed and guarded. But when they arrived, they found that God had already taken care of their problem:

1. an angel had opened the tomb FOR them and was there sitting on the huge stone waiting for their arrival! Now let's take careful note of:

a. the circumstances that are mentioned. Jesus was crucified on Friday and hurriedly buried just after 3 PM, before the Sabbath started at sundown. So that's a piece of Friday which in Jewish time-counting counts as a whole day. Then from Friday evening through Saturday evening was the Sabbath, a second day. Saturday evening began a third day and on Sunday morning Jesus rose about dawn. So, Jesus did rise on the third day, or in three days by Jewish reckoning, and, since any portion of a day counts as a whole 24-hour day/night period, it could even be called 3 days and three nights as Jesus referred to in one of His predictions. But it is interesting that the word Sabbath in verse 1 is plural in the Greek. You see, this is not just the end of one particular Sabbath day; it is the end of all Sabbaths; it is the end of the Sabbath as an institution. From now on, it is the First Day of the week, not the seventh, that will be observed and celebrated by believers as the Lord's Day, the day on which Jesus rose from the dead! Anyway, before dawn that morning, an angel, maybe the archangel Gabriel, came down from heaven and caused a violent earthquake. It must have knocked the guards to the ground and the women must have felt it as they were on their way. The angel rolled away the stone from the entrance to the tomb. Why? Not so Jesus could get out, but so the women, and the rest of the world with them, could look in and see that He was not there because He had risen!

b. the soldiers' reaction to it is in verse 4. Note that they didn't see the Lord Jesus because He didn't walk out the door! He was already risen and gone when the angel moved the stone. But don't miss the meaning: Rome had sealed the tomb and pronounced death on any man who opened it; God unsealed the tomb and all the might of Rome was powerless to stop Him! The four battle-hardened soldiers guarding the tomb saw the angel, were knocked to the ground, and were so terrified that they fainted dead out! So, the women arrived just after all this had happened to find the angel sitting on the stone before the empty tomb and when they came near:

2. the angel announced Jesus' Resurrection (5-7) The angel explains to them what has occurred. This has not been a body-snatching incident. There has been a Resurrection. Jesus has risen to life again in a glorified body. And this is not some far-out last minute surprise happening; Jesus Himself had said, not once but many times, that He would rise on the third day. The angel is trying to help them begin to get a new picture of this whole event into their minds and, indeed, it took all the disciples quite a while to realize that all of this was God at work, that everything happened according to His plan, that Jesus deliberately chose to die and rise again in order to save us from our sins. And the angel offers them:

a. the proof of it: the empty tomb "Come, look inside, you know where His body was lying! He is no longer here!" The tomb was sealed and guarded by Roman soldiers. There was no other way in. Yet when opened it was empty! What else can that mean but that Jesus rose from the dead and, in His glorified body, left it! And we still have that same proof today; it is still empty. No critic, no enemy, has ever produced the body that was placed in it as an argument against His resurrection. He is not there because He is risen! And here's:

b. the promise we have through it The women were to go and tell the disciples He had risen and instruct them to go back to Galilee where they were from but the good part is, there you will see Him! "He's alive!" That promise is for us. The Resurrection of Jesus means that we too will see Him one day! He is a real, living person, our Lord and Savior, and on that day when the time is right in God's plan, we too shall see Him just as they did! However, as the story continues, it turns out, that seeing was not to wait until they reached Galilee. As they ran back to Jerusalem:

3. the women met the Risen Christ (8-10) Jesus Himself appeared and stopped them right on the road. They could do nothing else but to fall down on their faces and grab His feet and worship Him as the Living Lord! And Jesus repeated to them the message of the angel, making it His personal promise, they will see Me! We don't have that promise just from an angel's mouth, though that would be enough, but we have it from Jesus' own mouth, you will see Me! One more interesting note, He calls the disciples His brothers. These ones who forsook Him and deserted Him and even denied Him, they are now forgiven; in fact, they are given a new relationship as His brothers! And again, what joy that is for all of us, because we have that same privilege. Because of the death and resurrection of Christ, we are now forgiven and counted as His own brothers and sisters. He is now the firstborn among many brothers, as Paul put it! Now as this was going on, back at the tomb, the angel left and the soldiers woke out of their stupor, realizing the danger they were now in, so some of them ran back to the chief priests in Jerusalem to report (11-15). Here begins:

II. The Unbelievable Lie About Jesus' Resurrection The soldiers faced a deadly problem. They had been assigned to guard the tomb of a dead man with their lives and had failed. But what I want you to notice is that:

1. the soldiers understood the truth In verse 11 they told the chief priests everything that had happened. They didn't lie or try to cover it to protect themselves; they didn't even say, "we don't know what happened". They told the priests everything; they were too shocked and traumatized to do otherwise! And what's more, the priests didn't even try to deny it or tell them it was impossible or that they were crazy or even accuse them of sleeping on duty. They practically admitted to the miracle and had to pay the soldiers a large sum of money to keep them from telling the truth of what they'd seen! They knew what had happened but they couldn't allow the story of it to get out so:

2. the Jewish leaders chose to formulate a lie They decided to bribe the soldiers to propagate the most logical explanation for the missing body: His disciples stole Him away while we were asleep. Sure, that makes sense! First of all, if they were asleep, how would they know who came and did what? And second, who would believe that someone could come and roll away a huge rock and carry out a body, all without awakening the four soldiers lying right next to it!

But this is the lie they formulated and paid dearly to get the soldiers to use. However, their plan had one last glitch. The penalty for sleeping while on duty was death and so was the penalty for letting a prisoner escape. So I assume they probably had to not only buy off the soldiers, but to bribe Pilate himself with an even larger sum of money in order to spare the soldiers. They went to a lot of trouble to cover up the truth, but because of it verse 15 mentions:

3. the fiendish circulation of this lie Their lie was so effective that it was still being circulated among the Jewish people at the time when Matthew wrote 20 years later. And I suspect that even today there are still lots of people who believe the same lie and see it as the only logical explanation for what happened because, after all, miracles just can't be real.

Well now Matthew skips ahead more than a full week in time and passes by all of the other appearances of Jesus to the disciples, in order to go right to the one appearance that both the angel and Jesus Himself referred to that morning (16-17). The eleven returned to Galilee and this extraordinary meeting took place. Jesus had in the meantime directed them to meet Him on a specific mountain and evidently a large crowd of His followers were present. Most Bible scholars believe this is the occasion where Jesus was seen by more than 500 brothers at one time which Paul mentions in 1 Cor. 15:6. When He appeared, they all fell down at His feet and worshipped Him, though some of those present apparently still had doubts at first. But what's important about this special appearance is the specific command Jesus gave to them on that day, what we have come to call the Great Commission. He had already given basically this same command to them three times already during His appearances to them in Jerusalem and He would repeat it once more a few days later at His ascension, but this day, in this grand setting, before all these witnesses, Jesus commissions them to carry out:

III. The Ultimate Purpose Of His Resurrection (18-20) When He draws near and begins to speak, He first declares to them:

1. the authority behind His commission He has all authority in heaven and on earth; He proved that by His resurrection. Nothing can stand before Him, nothing can stop Him, and nothing can stop us when we are following His bidding! Moreover, it is because of that very authority that He expects us to do whatever He has commanded us to do! He is our Lord, our Master, and He has given us, His followers, marching orders that stand for all time. In verse 19 is:

2. His commission: make disciples of ALL NATIONS I know you've heard this verse many times and can probably quote it backwards, but you must understand its Greek structure. This sentence contains one verb, disciple with three participles that modify that verb, having gone, baptizing, and teaching. Literally He said, Having gone, therefore, disciple all the nations, baptizing them... [and] teaching them... The verb is the command: Disciple! Or, clearer in English, make disciples! That is what we are commanded to be about; it is our very purpose as followers of Jesus. Followers of Jesus are commissioned to make followers of Jesus! Disciple whom? In Greek, panta ta ethne, ALL THE PEOPLES of the earth! This is the big point Jesus was making and it's the one we miss seeing, even when we're looking straight at it! Jesus had put it to them like this back in the Upper Room, Then he opened their minds to understand the Scriptures, and said to them, "Thus it is written, that the Christ should suffer and on the third day rise from the dead, and that repentance and forgiveness of sins should be proclaimed in his name to all nations, beginning from Jerusalem." - Lk. 24:45-47. There's a plan that God has always had in mind from the very beginning: that His Son would come to suffer and die and that this would be proclaimed to all the nations. Christ commissioned His followers to begin in Jerusalem and proclaim the Good News of His sacrifice and the command to repent and be forgiven, one by one to all the rest of the peoples of the earth, so that at the end of the age when He comes, He will have worshippers from every people on earth. That's what the last 2,000 years have been about and that's what the rest of human history until He comes is about, making disciples of all the peoples. That is to be our life's purpose. Do you realize that today there are still some 2.8 billion people, a third of the earth, who are part of nearly 4,000 ethnic groups, who are still unreached, that is they have NO opportunity to hear of Jesus; there are too few believers where they live to tell them. We have been commissioned to disciple them! Now Jesus embellished that command with the three participles which describe:

3. the process of carrying out His commission First of all:

a. it involves going It is not a command to go, but an assumption that in order to disciple all peoples, they would be going, that is, going where those peoples are. They were not to start a commune on that mountain in Galilee, praying and waiting until Jesus returned, any more than we are to be a nice little commune here in Glenside living comfortable lives and waiting for Jesus to come. They were to go to all nations and later Jesus would outline the path they would follow: Jerusalem then Judea then Samaria and then on until they reached the peoples at the very ends of the earth, who would be US. Listen, going is a natural part of the life of a believer. We need to be going wherever we can go and where we can't, we need to be going constantly in prayer and sending others who can. But the goal of all peoples needs to be constantly on our minds and hearts. Secondly:

b. it involves baptizing As we proclaim the message of Christ, we call people to join us and become His followers. And the public sign of that commitment to follow Him is to be baptized in His Name. All around the world, wherever the Gospel goes, when people hear the Good News, believing and beginning to trust in Jesus is often a gradual process, but when they make that decision to be a follower of Christ with finality, they universally declare it by being baptized. Baptism is not simply a religious ritual and it certainly doesn't save anyone; rather, baptism is my declaration that I am truly a follower of Christ, no turning back! It is a declaration that I am no longer a Muslim or a Hindu or a Buddhist or a secular atheist or a self-centered materialist or whatever I was before; I am a follower, a disciple of Jesus Christ! And then, when a person has become a follower, thirdly:

c. it involves teaching, teaching them everything that Jesus commanded, everything that we ourselves have learned, training them up to maturity so that they ultimately become like us, disciples who are making more disciples by going and baptizing and teaching. Jesus Himself made the first set of disciples over His 3 years of ministry; they made thousands of others during their lifetimes to the ends of the Roman Empire and beyond, and those made others and so the Gospel has spread to us and now through us, it is spreading on to still others until all the peoples of the earth have heard and some from every people have become His disciples, just as we are. And when that has happened, Jesus said, then the end will come! He will return and this age will be completed.

Now that seems like an awfully huge assignment, but in verse 20 He gave us:

4. the promise of His commission (20) Behold I am with you always, to the end of the age. Well, the age hasn't ended, so He is still with us. We are not alone as we disciple the nations. He is with us always. That is the greatest benefit of the Resurrection. We follow a Living Master, not a dead teacher; we follow a Risen Christ who is with us personally every moment as we dedicate our lives to carrying out His commission to make for Him disciples of all the nations.

*I'm sure you don't realize it but the ancestors of some of you were Germanic Angles who invaded the isle of Britain in the late 400's AD and formed the pagan Kingdom of Northumbria in the north. The first Christian missionary to arrive in Northumbria was a young man named Paulinus. He arrived from Rome in 601 AD and with three companions successfully evangelized in Kent in the south of the island. But in 625, Edwin, King of Northumbria, wished to marry Ethelburga, the daughter of Ethelbert, King of Kent, a Christian who objected to a pagan son-in-law. But Edwin promised to allow the princess complete freedom in her religious worship, and even said that he himself would listen to Christian preaching and adopt her faith, if his wise men should consider it right and just. This was an opportunity for evangelizing Northumbria, so Ethelbert sent his daughter and Paulinus accompanied the princess as her religious adviser, and, to add dignity and importance to his mission, was consecrated bishop before he set out, on July 21, 625. While the King was respectful, he did not convert under Paulinus' preaching, nor did many of the people until at the feast of Easter in 626, an unsuccessful attempt was made upon Edwin's life. This eventually resulted in a national gathering near York to consider Christianity. Even Coifi, the high priest of their pagan religion, advised Edwin to adopt Christianity, saying that their pagan religion had not proved satisfactory. Another nobleman rose to say these words: "Your Majesty, when we compare the present life of man on earth with that time of which we have no knowledge, it seems to me like the swift flight of a single sparrow through the banquet-hall where you are sitting at dinner on a winter's day with your thegns and counsellors. In the midst there is a comforting fire to warm the hall; outside the storms of winter rain or snow are raging. This sparrow flies swiftly in through one door of the hall, and out through another. While he is inside, he is safe from the winter storms; but after a moment of comfort, he vanishes from sight into the wintry world from which he came. Even so, man appears on earth for a little while; but of what went before this life or of what follows, we know nothing. Therefore, if this new teaching has brought any more certain knowledge, it seems only right that we should follow it." That, brothers and sisters, is the very thing Jesus sent us to bring to a pagan world. He has emerged from death victorious with all authority in heaven and earth! He lives and has told us plainly, that because He lives, we too shall live, live with Him in heaven forever! We Christians are the only people in the world with certain knowledge of what happens after death and a guarantee of eternal life provided to us by the Lord and Savior we follow! Through the ministry of Paulinus in 627, King Edwin, his court, many of his chief men and a host of the common people of Northumbria became followers of Christ. For the next six years he disciplined Northumbria. So many of the peoples of earth still flounder in that same darkness! Solomon advised, Rescue those who are being taken away to death; hold back those who are stumbling to the slaughter. - Prov 24:11. At this feast of Easter, let us commit ourselves afresh to bring the peoples the light of our Risen Savior and finish carrying out His commission! Sources: [www.ccel.org/ccel/wace/biodict.html?term=Paulinus,%20missionary%20to%20Northumbria] and [<http://elvis.rowan.edu/~kilroy/JEK/10/10.html>]*

MARK

Outline Of Mark

I. The Preparation Of The Servant	1:1-13
II. The Ministry Of The Servant	1:14-5:43
1. the Servant's mission to the multitudes	1:14-45
2. the Servant's clashes with leaders	2:1-3:6
3. the Servant's appointing of apostles	3:7-19
4. the Servant's rejection	3:20-35
5. the Servant's wisdom displayed in parables	4:1-34
6. the Servant's authority displayed in miracles	4:35-5:43
III. The Training Of The Servant's Followers	6:1-10:52
1. a lesson about response	6:1-32
2. a lesson about responsibility	6:32-56
3. a lesson about legalism	7:1-23
4. a lesson about the world	7:24-37
5. a lesson about provision	8:1-26
6. a lesson about cost	8:27-38
7. a lesson about lordship	9:1-29
8. a lesson about humility	9:30-50
9. a lesson about love	10:1-27
10. a lesson about rewards	10:28-52
IV. The Rejection Of The Servant	Chs. 11-13
1. the Servant's final offer	11:1-11
2. the Servant's Divine authority	11:12-33
3. the Servant's unassailable wisdom	Ch. 12
4. the Servant's triumphant return	Ch. 13
V. The Sacrifice Of The Servant	Chs. 14-15
1. the Servant's anointing	14:1-11
2. the Servant's supper	14:12-25
3. the Servant's surrender	14:26-42
4. the Servant's arrest	14:43-65
5. the Servant's denial	14:66-72
6. the Servant's condemnation	15:1-15
7. the Servant's crucifixion	15:16-47
IV. The Resurrection Of The Servant	Ch. 16
1. the Servant's resurrection	16:1-14
2. the Servant's commission	16:15-20

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Preparation Of The Servant 1:1-13

Each of the four Gospel writers tells the story of Jesus. But each one has a purpose in writing and an audience in mind and so, out of all that he knows, he tells the things that make the point he is trying to get across. For instance, Matthew is concerned with showing to the Jews that Jesus was indeed the Messiah and so he has a proper Jewish genealogy and lots of references to Old Testament Scriptures. Luke wrote to Gentiles and concentrates on the things that paint Jesus as a true human being, a man just like us so he's got birth stories and other things that point out Jesus' humanity. John does the same with His deity. He was God, the Word, who became flesh and dwelt among us. But Mark painted a different picture in his book.

I. The Introduction To The Book We Are Studying (1) Verse 1 is actually the title of the book and the description of what he is about to write. This book:

1. it presents the origins of a mission

“the beginning”

Not the beginning of the book, but the beginning of the good news. You see, Mark is writing 30 years later, after the death of Peter from whom he got all his information. Churches have been planted all over the known world, even at Rome where he's writing. His view is like that of Luke, who wrote in Acts 1:1, In my former book, Theophilus, I wrote about all that Jesus began to do and to teach... so now I'm writing a second book about all that Jesus is continuing to do through His church! That story of what Jesus is doing is still continuing today through His people all over the world. Mark closes his book by saying in Mark 16:20, Then the disciples went out and preached everywhere, and the Lord worked with them... Mark is presenting the beginnings, the origin of a mission to reach the world, the same mission that you and I are carrying on as part of the church today. If we don't know our roots, our beginnings, we'll get side-tracked from our purpose. And here it is:

2. it publishes the saving act of God

“of the good news”

Good news is an announcement made by a herald. In this case, it is the good news about Jesus Christ and what He did for the human race on a cross, the saving act of God in sending His Son to redeem us. The mission is for the world to hear that news. That's why the last words of Jesus in Mark's record are Mark 16:15 ... “Go into all the world and preach the good news to all creation. 2000 years ago God started a mission to bring salvation to the human race. We're part of that story today, but what Mark is writing is the beginning of that story, the news that we are publishing. The third thing that Mark's book does is this:

3. it portrays the nature of Jesus

“about Jesus Christ”

He tells us more about what Jesus did than what He taught. His favorite word is the Greek euthus, in English, At once or immediately. It occurs only 80 times in the whole New Testament and 40 of them are in Mark. And 36 of those 40 are in the first 10 chapters which describe how Jesus lived during the 3 years of his ministry. Mark paints Jesus as busy! Doing, doing, doing! What? Carrying out the mission! Carrying out the Father's purpose, serving Him. Publishing the news of the saving act of God in His words and His deeds, a servant diligently going about His master's business. But at the same time:

4. it proclaims the authority of Jesus

“Son of God”

Don't hand this gospel to a Muslim friend. He won't read past this verse. Mark makes no bones about it; Jesus was the Son of God, God the Son. Mark says it up front and tells how Jesus showed it in miracle after miracle (19 of them he records!). He was all-powerful, Almighty God, yet a servant about His master's business. And that brings me to the real reason I chose to preach through Mark:

5. it pictures our servanthood as sons of God - 10:43-45 Jesus was God, but even He didn't come to be served. He came as a servant to serve the human race and to give His life to save them. My friend, we too are sons of God, children of the Heavenly Father, heirs to all the riches of glory, the treasure He values most in all the universe, but as His sons, He has us in this world as servants, servants who need to give their lives to the mission of Jesus, saving the human race! We live in a culture that shouts the message, “Serve me, serve me!” And we have picked it up so well in our attitudes. The church exists to serve me; other people exist to serve me; the government exists to serve me; the world exists to serve me; and ultimately God exists to serve me. That's why our prayers are full of “Gimme, gimme, gimme!” That's the worldview that has infiltrated an entire generation and it has infiltrated us and our families too, like it or not! Oh, beloved, if there's one thing Jesus wants in His followers, it's a servant heart, a heart like that of Himself, and nobody paints that servant heart for us better than Mark. That's why we're studying Mark, to learn to be servants like Jesus.

So let's get started, shall we? The first thing Mark tells us about is:

II. The Preparation Of The Servant (2-13) The first 13 verses are the first major division of his writing. They show how Jesus was prepared for His ministry as a servant through His baptism and His temptation. And from them we can learn two very important lessons. The first is this:

1. God prepares for the ministry of His servant (1-8) Jesus did not just show up on the scene one day to serve God cold turkey. Before ever putting Him on the scene, God prepared in advance for the work that He would do. Actually, He did it throughout the whole Old Testament, particularly through the prophets, but we can see it most obviously in the fact that God sent a forerunner to pave his way in John the Baptist and the ministry which he had. John preached and ministered throughout Judea and had great crowds of people coming to him for months before Jesus began his ministry. And all that time, he was telling them to watch and look for the One who was to come, pointing them to Jesus who would come after him. And, my friend, you are no different.

a. God has prepared for your service through others (2-3) Isaiah and Malachi both prophesied in advance that God would send a forerunner to prepare for Jesus. His function was to “prepare the way”, to “make a straight path” for Jesus. When we read that, we don't realize that it was sort of a technical phrase. Israel did not have a crew of PennDOT workers (IsraelDOT?) like we have to fix and maintain the roads! When a king would travel, a repair crew might be sent ahead to "prepare the way", that is, to level the road and fill ditches, and so on, to make it passable for him. John prepared the Lord's road into the hearts of the people of Israel so that when Jesus came preaching, they were ready to listen. That's how He works. However we serve God, God has already been at work preparing for what we do through what somebody else has done! Positively or negatively! God used the witness and caring of a friend to prepare my heart to be ready to receive the Gospel message two years later from a pastor. That happened for many of you. When I went to the second church I pastored, they had had several years of a very liberal pastor and were dwindling and falling apart. The first Sunday, I simply shared my testimony and gave an invitation and 14 people responded for salvation or rededication! Their hearts were hungry and thirsty for the things of God and they were starving. God had prepared for my simple service that day. You never go into any situation to serve God where He has not already been at work, where He has not already been preparing the way for your service and it's also true in the other direction:

b. God is preparing for the service of others through you (4-6) Now, focus on John as a servant for a moment. His whole ministry was preparing for the service of someone else, for Jesus who would come after him. Everything he did, all the people his ministry touched, all the crowds whose hearts were broken over their sins and wanting salvation, all of that was preparation for the service that Jesus would render! Everything you do in serving God ties in with one grand scheme; you are part of a master plan. The service of others prepares for yours and yours prepares for the service of others. You are not the be all and end all. You are a link in the chain of what God is doing and what you do is a contribution to all that will come later and build upon it. You see, the bottom line is that:

c. God is pointing others to Himself through your service (7-8) John's whole message was, "He must increase; I must decrease!" "Not I, but Christ!" John knew what it was to be a servant. "I am nothing; He is everything. Don't look at me; look at Him. I put you in water as a symbol. I can only work on the outside, I can only tell you the message and encourage you to change your behavior. He is the one who can make the real change, whose Spirit can enter your hearts and transform you from the inside out. I am a servant; He's what matters." Paul, great missionary that he was, knew this! Compare 1 Cor. 3:5-8. I am a servant. I serve Christ. It is He who does the real work, He to whom I point, He that really matters. In fact, it is not that I am pointing people to Him through my service; He is pointing others to Himself through me! It all depends on Him, not me! But what a privilege! To serve Almighty God, to have Him at work before me and in and through me to get glory to Himself!

Now we find here a second important fact about serving God. Not only does God prepare for the ministry of His servant, but:

2. God prepares His Servant for ministry (9-13) There were two special events that happened in the life of Jesus before He began His public ministry of serving God: His baptism and His temptation. They were preparatory events. God prepares us for the service He has called us to. He doesn't just thrust us into it when we are not ready or equipped in His eyes. Just as He prepares the work for us to do, He prepares us for doing the work! I'm sure Jesus was prepared in many ways throughout His first 30 years for these 3 years of service Mark tells us about. But here we only have two mentioned. So, what lessons can we learn from these two key events? Well, first, from the baptism of Jesus we learn that:

a. ministry is a work of God (9-11) Instead of looking at all the detail of why Jesus was baptized and all the symbolism of it, Mark summarizes and mentions three things, the time, the Spirit and the Voice. You see:

(1) God provides the opportunity for your service (9) at that time... What time? The very days when John was preaching that He was coming. In fact, John's Gospel tells us that Jesus showed up precisely just after John had told the authorities he was not the Christ but the Christ was here and the very next day, there came Jesus and he said, "Behold the Lamb of God..." The timing was perfect, the moment just right. The opportunity was provided for and orchestrated by God! And so is yours! God provides the opportunity for your service at His perfect time and place and a servant must know that! But not only that:

(2) God provides the power for your service (10) As He came out of the water Jesus immediately, the Greek says, looked up and he saw the heavens literally torn open and down came the Holy Spirit upon and into Him in the form of a dove. Now, did he not have the Holy Spirit until this moment? Of course, He did! This is an object lesson designed for us by the Father: "My Servant operates by the power of My Spirit, not His own! I provide the power for His service!" And God provides the power for your service by the indwelling presence of His Spirit in you, too! A servant must know that! But not only that:

(3) God provides the platform for your service (11) Was Jesus not the Son of God until this moment? Of course, He was! Did He not know it? Of course, He did! This is a public announcement made, perhaps for the benefit of His disciples and the crowd around, but primarily for us who would read it later. This One who serves Me is My Son; He does not become My Son by serving; He is My Son, therefore He serves. I provide the platform of sonship from which He serves. Oh, God may never have spoken audibly to a crowd about you but He has provided the same platform for you. You are His son, His daughter. He is well-pleased in you. You don't serve to become His son, nor to make Him become pleased. You are already His son and He is already pleased by that before you ever serve at all! And a servant needs to know that!

My friend, ministry or service is a work of God through you, not a work of you for Him. He provides the opportunity to serve, the power to serve and the platform of relationship with Him from which you serve! That's a lesson that God is continually reinforcing in your life to prepare you for service. And sometimes He has to repeat it over and over again, because we forget it and make our own opportunities and use our own power and expect Him to be pleased by our works! My, how He has to break us of that to make us effective servants! Corrie ten Boom used to teach it this way. She'd take out an old glove and say, I have a glove here in my hand. The glove cannot do anything by itself, but when my hand is in it, the glove can do many things. Thus, it is not the glove, but my hand in the glove that acts. The Christian is a glove. It is the Holy Spirit in us, the hand, who does the work. We have to make room for the hand so that every finger is filled. That's what Jesus is showing us here. Learn it well! Finally, there's a second important lesson here in Jesus' Temptation:

b. ministry is a warfare with the Adversary (12-13) While the other Gospels get tied up in giving us the ways in which Jesus was tempted and the method by which He successfully repelled Satan's attack, Mark records neither the specific attacks nor the outcomes. He reports three simple facts about the battle: the Spirit, the time and the angels. And in those there are three lessons that every servant of God must know:

(1) God has thrust you into a hostile environment to serve Him Look where Jesus went. The desert, the wilderness, an uninhabitable, unhospitable, even hostile, place. When it says the wild animals were with Him, it doesn't mean that He sat around petting His friends the cute squirrels. The word means wild beasts, the jackals, wolves, foxes, leopards, hyenas! It was a place where there was no help, where the claw ruled. What a picture of this world we live in, a hostile place, a place of danger to life and limb. And who was there? Satan! Why? He's the ruler of this hostile place, the ruler of this world. It's his domain and he makes it so hostile. And how did Jesus get there? The Spirit drove Him there, thrust Him into it right away! My friend, no servant of God calls this world home. It is enemy territory. It is dangerous and scary. And God has put us in it by design. Why? Satan is at work here to kill and destroy men, but God has sent us into battle against him to rescue and save them. Our service is spiritual warfare; battle against a vicious deadly enemy who hates us, in his own territory. So, an effective servant knows that:

(2) Satan will continually attack you as you serve God It was not that at the end of the 40 days alone Satan offered him three temptations. The text says he tempted him the whole 40 days. Those last three were the climax, the big ones, but He was tempted and attacked continually. And so will you be. Always! Throughout your life Satan is prowling, looking for ways to devour you! Be alert, Paul said. Be on your guard! Be aware. Watch out. Don't be ignorant of his devices. But on the other hand, don't be afraid, because:

(3) angels will serve you as you serve God Angels served Him there in the battle. He was not alone. Angels are ministering spirits sent to serve those who are the heirs of salvation. Those who are on our side are more than those who are with the enemy! God has Divine troops at work serving together with you in this battle. Jesus knew it. He said that He could have called more than twelve legions of angels to deliver him from the cross. They stood ready. And they stand ready for you too.

You see, the cosmic battle for the souls of men is on, and you're in it. It is the servants of God against the servants of Satan. It's not some myth; it's real. It's a warfare and any servant must know that to be effective. Ministry is a work of God but it's also a warfare with the enemy. God wants to prepare you to play an effective role in this battle. You're a servant of God on mission in this world, part of a continuing campaign that He is mounting through the centuries. He has prepared for your part and is preparing for others through you, but the battle is His and He gets the glory. He fights through you to publish the news of salvation to the human race against all the attacks of the enemy. And the good news is that I've read the end of the Book; He wins! Yet so many of His servants go through life, having no real idea of why they're here or the cause they're involved in. They trust Him for heaven but serve themselves in life! Their image of success is to get things, to stay healthy, to experience pleasure, to accomplish something. Writer Philip Yancey notes the fact that toward the end of his life, Albert Einstein removed the portraits of two scientists--Newton and Maxwell--from his wall. He replaced those with portraits of Gandhi and Schweitzer. Einstein explained that it was time to replace the image of success with the image of service. I think its high time that we do the same! Jesus came not to be served, but to serve and to give His life as a ransom for many. You've been sent, not to be served by God, but to serve Him and to give your life as a living sacrifice for His purpose, seeking and saving that which is lost. My friend, do you know who you are? Or more importantly are you living like who you are?

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Ministry Of The Servant 1:14-5:43

The Servant's Mission To The Multitudes 1:14-45

Most people's lives focus around a very small group of people, our immediate and extended family, our handful of good friends and neighbors, maybe the people we work with. Almost all of our time, effort, energy, and resources are invested in this small group. The rest of the world passes by and we hardly notice. We live among thousands of people but those we don't know don't really register to us. We often see them the same way we look at a forest as we drive by on the interstate. Thousands of trees flash by and, while we might be impressed with the beauty of the forest, not one individual tree really registers on our minds. They're just the scenic background of our lives, against which we live with those few we really know and care about. But Jesus did not live like that. Most of His life and service was devoted to crowds of people whom He never knew personally. At times, He singled out individuals who needed His touch; other times, He taught a whole congregation in a synagogue or a crowd in a house or a multitude gathered on a hillside. He traveled from town to town and place to place so that more people could hear the Good News. And ultimately, of course, His focus was the whole world, as we see in Mark's recording of His last command, Go into all the world and preach the good news to all creation [that is, not the rocks and trees but to every created human being]. Jesus' passion was to deliver the good news of salvation to every human being alive in His generation. And while he has not called most of us to adopt His itinerant lifestyle, His heart longs for us to catch His passion for the human race, to turn outward from the safety and security of our small circle to the great need of the multitudes of people around us! Now let's look at:

I. The Manner In Which The Servant Reached The Multitudes (14-20) There were two ways in which he did it. First of all:

1. He delivered the message Himself (14-15) personally. You see, it was:

a. his habit: proclaiming the good news to people Wherever He went, whatever situation He found Himself in, He found ways to proclaim the good news to people. It was His habit. It was to Him a way of life, delivering the Good News of God to people. That's so hard for me; isn't it for you? It's so difficult to talk about spiritual things with people, to even mention God's name in conversation. But it was Jesus' habit. As much as you or I talk about weather or sports, He talked about the Father. It's what He was about. And here we have the brief summary of:

b. his message: the Kingdom of God is drawing near It had three pieces. The time or era in which we live is completed, brought to its fulfillment. The time when God rules directly over men on earth is literally nearing, that is, drawing near. We live in a little window of opportunity between the two. It's time right now to repent, to change your mind about the way you live your life, and believe the Good News! Of course, this is just a simple three line summary. Jesus said a whole lot more. We would share a whole lot more, particularly concerning Jesus' death and resurrection, but the bottom line still is that today is a small window of opportunity to believe the Good News of God and our task is not merely to provide information, but to present people, by our interaction with them, the opportunity to change their minds and believe it! That's what our lives are about. God injects us into the lives of many people throughout our life because it is the right time, because their window of opportunity is open but will soon be closed, and uses us to offer them the opportunity to believe. So, our habit of life needs to be like Jesus', to see that Divine purpose that is going on and cooperate with it by delivering the message. But at the same time that He was delivering the message personally, Jesus concentrated on a second thing:

2. He developed others to do the same (16-20) He took four men and later added to them, until they became a dozen who were His disciples, His learners. He devoted three years to training them intensively and then sent them out as apostles (sent ones), people who would go out and deliver the message just like He did! Look at:

a. His call: to leave their own interests and devote themselves to His "Come follow me!" is a deep phrase. It means "Come, join My party; give your loyalty to Me," and the text says they left everything, their nets, their occupations, even their families and followed (literally, walked the same road together with) Him. What for? What was:

b. His goal: to cause them to become what He was, fishers of men To transform them from mere fishermen into people whose lives were devoted, like His, to fishing for men.

Now Jesus doesn't call all of us to physically leave our occupations and our families and become itinerant evangelists. But He does call all of us to forsake living for our own interests and devote ourselves to His, to be transformed in the midst of our circumstances into fishers of men, people who are reaching the human race for Him! And the point here is that, not only are we to be what He was, but we are to be developing others into what we are, as He did. Now let's watch how He did it.

Here begins Mark's record of Jesus' public ministry. First, we have the record of one very busy Sabbath day and then a summary of what must have been a few weeks or perhaps months' worth of ministry. But rather than concentrating on the recorded events for their own sake, let's look at them as illustrations for us of:

II. The Methods By Which The Servant Reached The Multitudes (21-45) Four things constantly characterized Jesus' life and ministry and they indicate four things that should also characterize ours. First of all:

1. a servant constantly seeks opportunities to share the message with people (21-22, 38-39) Jesus constantly sought opportunities to interact with people and share with them, whether it was a woman drawing water from the well, a group of guests gathered in a home for a meal, or the congregation gathered in the synagogue on the Sabbath day. Notice how often:

a. Jesus used the opportunity of teaching in the synagogues The synagogue was a natural place. The community gathered each Sabbath day for the purpose of praying, listening to the Scriptures read and being taught. But it was a very democratic kind of place. Anybody the leader allowed could read or teach. And Jesus often took advantage of that opportunity, which was readily afforded to Him, to read from the Old Testament and then explain the true meaning and fulfillment of those Scriptures in His own coming! Jesus used this opportunity everywhere He went. Paul was also a Jew in good standing and copied the same plan. Wherever he went throughout the Roman Empire, he first looked for a synagogue and began by exercising this most obvious opportunity to teach. Jesus intentionally traveled from town to town throughout Galilee, deliberately using this opportunity. And when He did, what impressed the people was that:

b. Jesus declared the message with personal authority When the rabbinic teachers of the day taught, they made long boring dissertations about trivial points in the law and it went something like this: "Well, Rabbi so and so taught this but Rabbi what's-his-face taught this and I agree with what's-his-face, because..." Jesus came in and said, "God says this. This is what it says and this is what it means! Believe it!" He taught as one who knew what He was talking about and that it was a message from God!

Now I doubt this particular method would work too well in the US today; not many synagogues would invite you to teach. But the point is that Jesus continually, deliberately sought out and exercised opportunities that were available to Him to share His message, and so should we as His servants today. Your opportunities will look entirely different. It may be inviting co-workers to go with you to the lunch-time Bible study at work. It may be inviting some ladies of your neighborhood over for coffee or taking someone to a musical at church as a springboard for discussion. There are 1001 opportunities that could inject you into the lives of people, if you'll seek them, ask God for them. A servant of God knows His purpose and looks for ways to share the Good News continually! Secondly:

2. a servant boldly involves himself in spiritual warfare for people (23-28) On this day in Capernaum a man was present there who was indwelt by a demon, and it took control of his voice right there in the meeting and cried out with a loud shriek and spoke against Jesus. Boy, I bet that got their attention! I bet they went home saying, "Man, you'll never guess what happened in church today!" But what I want you to see is:

a. Jesus recognized the enslaving power of demonic forces Demons are not some first century imaginary beings who are now relegated to Saturday morning cartoons. They are real. They are actual beings. They enter people's bodies. In many parts of the world where there is open idolatry and even worship of the spirits you find it commonly and openly today. And it's not just over there. In occult ceremonies right here in Philadelphia, every day young people and grown adults openly seek demon possession in dark ceremonies you would never believe and they get it And even where people aren't actually indwelt, there are demonic forces constantly at work in their lives to keep them blind and in spiritual darkness, to keep them from hearing and understanding and believing the Gospel, to enslave them in sin and false doctrine and suffering. We saw last week that ministry or serving God is a warfare against Satan and all his hosts. Paul put it this way in Eph. 6:12, For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms. You see, it is not just people who resist. To reach people we must fight demons! Jesus knew that and:

b. Jesus exercised His authority to free people from their grip He spoke as Lord and said, "Be quiet and get out!" and they did! People were amazed. Jewish exorcists used charms and incantations and never really got anywhere. Jesus spoke a word and they obeyed!

You may never be involved in a visible demonic confrontation like this one, but as you deliver the message to people daily, you can rest assured that you are in the thick of a spiritual battle. The forces of hell are pitted against you and what you're trying to do as a servant of God. You will be opposed and attacked. And you need to learn to recognize their presence and stand against them in prayer with the authority of Jesus Christ. In a slum area in one third world city there was a man who became a language helper for a foreign man of God (missionary). One day he refused to give money for the celebration of worship of the city's goddess. He said, "I have been reading this holy book and it says we are to have only one God." Then he fled the slum and gave his life to Christ. During those days a train smashed into the community. Two houses caught on fire. The people said it was because he had turned against their goddess; it probably was! To enslave them deeper in their fear! But the missionary prayed and God spoke to his heart to take flowers and fruit to the families of the victims of the tragedies, and this act opened the door and people responded and a church was planted. Today there are emerging churches in 10 slums. But to get to that initial point cost a lot. One worker lost her hearing; another lost her health. 15 workers gave from 3-7 years of their lives with severe sicknesses and frequent demonic activities surrounding them. And behind the scenes several hundred people were praying regularly. Folks, we're in a battle and Satan doesn't let go easily. The folks around us are just as bound in their materialism and their self-sufficiency and their religion of works. Satan wants them and he's going to keep them forever unless we servants of God recognize it and go up against these forces in prayer and tear down their hold in the mighty name of Jesus so that people can be set free! The heart of a servant of God longs to see people set free! Thirdly:

3. a servant compassionately strives to meet the needs of people (29-34, 40-45) Everywhere Jesus went, He saw sick hurting people, suffering people, people whose lives were filled with pain and agony. His heart was touched as he saw Peter's mother-in-law lying there ill and unable to get up. This man with leprosy was typical of the rest and perhaps the epitome of them. The leper was an outcast. Nobody touched him. Nobody talked to him. He had to hobble around covering his face and crying, "Unclean". His body was deteriorating and becoming disfigured as his fingers and toes gradually wore away. He came to Jesus, not demanding, not begging, but in simple faith saying, "You can help me; I know you can". But what I want you to see is:

a. Jesus' deep compassion for people who were suffering Verse 41 says He was, filled with compassion... Jesus looked at suffering people and He was moved in the very depths of His being. His heart went out to them. He never turned them away. In fact, what we see is:

b. Jesus' deep commitment to help them He reached out and touched the leper. Do you know what that meant? Nobody had cared enough to do that, to bandage his wounds, to hug him. He was unclean and they might catch his disease. But Jesus boldly touched him and in that touching he was cleansed.

Oh my friend, God has probably not given you the gift of bringing instant physical healing to sick people, but there's still a lesson here. A true servant of Jesus has a heart full of compassion that is touched with the suffering of people and reaches out to touch them and meet their needs any way it can. He sees the need of people and doesn't pass by on the other side. He stops and says, "I can't do much but I can represent the love of Jesus and help in this way." How many times are people brought to faith because somebody loved them enough to help in their suffering, in their hour of need, in their sickness, in their loss of a loved one, in their handicap, in their divorce, in their being out of work, in their blindness and lostness and empty religion? Is your heart touched by the needs of people like Jesus' was or is it callous toward the needs of people? Finally:

4. a servant steadfastly pursues communion with the Master (35) Early in the morning Jesus slipped out alone to pray. This was not an isolated incident. We read several times of Jesus going away to pray by Himself, sometimes continuing all night in prayer. Just look at:

a. the priority Jesus placed on prayer He rose early, literally in the last watch of the night, between 3 and 6 AM, but early enough that it was still dark. Here that would be equivalent to about 4 AM! He wanted to make sure He got time with the Father before another busy day started. It was important. A servant of God needs time with the Master. Then note:

b. the privacy Jesus sought for prayer He went to a solitary place alone and didn't tell anyone, so that they actually had to hunt for Him. Plenty of times they prayed together, I'm sure. But it was also important to be alone, to have personal deep communion with the Father. A servant needs that! But what I'd like you to think about is:

c. the purpose Jesus obtained through prayer Why did He pray? What did He pray for? I rather suspect His prayer didn't look much like mine often do. It didn't focus on personal needs. John gives us glimpses of some of Jesus' praying at other times. He prayed for the Father to be glorified through Him. He prayed for the Father's will to be done. He prayed for His disciples that they would be sanctified and steadfast. He prayed for all who would believe later. I think first there was personal communion with the Father and that is primary, but His prayer usually focused on the two things His life focused on, the development of His disciples and the reaching of people! He prayed the way He lived! His battle for the souls of men was waged in prayer and so must ours be. Serious, private, purposeful prayer focused on the needs of people and reaching them for Christ and growing them into mature disciples who reach others, that's the habit of an effective servant of God.

He interacts with people, He cares for people, He prays for people and rescues them from the evil one. That's the way a true servant of God lives. People are not just a nameless, faceless, scenic background for his life. They are eternal souls of infinite value, individuals just like us whom God loves and wants to rescue. And he will not rest until everyone has the opportunity to know and love Jesus like he does. An old Rabbi once asked his pupils how they could tell when the night had ended and the day had begun. "Could it be," asked one of the students, "when you see an animal in the distance and can tell whether it's a sheep or a dog?" "No," answered the Rabbi. Another asked, "Is it when you can look at a tree in the distance and tell whether it's a fig tree or a peach tree?" "No," answered the Rabbi. "Then, when is it?", the pupils demanded. "It is when you can look on the face of any man or woman and see that it is your sister or brother. Because if you cannot see this, it is still night!" (Tales Of The Hasidim) My friend, if you cannot see people as fellow human beings, individuals of infinite worth just like you, and care about their eternal well-being, it is still night in your heart. The light of the Son has not yet taken away all the darkness. Let Him, won't you?

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Servant's Conflict With Leaders 2:1-3:6

Mark these words. It is inevitable that a servant of God delivering the message of God to people will end up in conflict. Absolutely inevitable. And that conflict will always be with people who are strongly religious, religious leaders, whether they are Jews, adherents to some sort of Christian tradition who do not really know Christ, or zealous pagans. Everywhere Paul traveled throughout Asia Minor and Greece, he either early on or much later ended up in some sort of conflict! Often it was the Jewish leaders who would become incensed at his teaching in the synagogue and drive him out. At Ephesus, it was the worshippers of Diana who finally ran him out of town. It is no different today. In many lands it is Muslim or Hindu leaders who oppress Christians. However, Christian workers in Russia and other CIS nations often face opposition from the established Orthodox church leaders who would rather join the communists in standing against them. In China the older leaders of the official 3-Self Church in some cases aided in the persecution of believers in the unregistered house churches! Jesus Himself was in constant conflict during the 3 years of His ministry. Not with common or even notorious sinners. Not with tax collectors and immoral folks and thieves and drunkards and the like. But with the very religious, the leaders of the Jewish people to whom He went, the Pharisees, Sadducees, scribes, students of the Law, the zealously religious who Paul described as having a form of godliness but denying its power. It is always those who have merely a zealous form of godliness that most greatly oppose true godliness, whether they are Jewish, Protestant, Catholic, Orthodox, or even Muslim, Buddhist or Hindu. You will meet them and end up in conflict with them if you are sharing the message. Why is that? John explains it, saying, Light has come into the world, but men loved darkness instead of light because their deeds were evil. The light which our true message brings, lights up the darkness and displays the true nature of their own lives and therefore, they reject and hate it. In our text Mark records four different occasions when Jesus found Himself in direct conflict with zealous religious leaders and they illustrate for us the kinds of conflict we will experience with religious people. First, there will be:

I. The Conflict Over Religious Dogmas (2:1-12) What is a dogma? The dictionary says it is a religious belief or principle asserted in an authoritarian, often arrogant way. All zealously religious folks have them (even us), beliefs and principles they feel strongly about and resent other folks challenging them. If you share the truth of the Gospel, you will challenge other folks' dogmas! On this particular day, Jesus deliberately chose to challenge one:

1. the presenting problem: claiming assurance of forgiveness (1-7) What a scene it must have been, the crowded house, the paralyzed man lowered through the ceiling by ropes. Everyone expected Jesus to say, "Rise and be healed!" But He didn't. He chose to tackle a more important issue. He spoke tenderly, "Son, I declare that because of the faith that you and your friends have in Me, your sins are forgiven!" Boy, did that raise the hackles on those Jewish teachers. Their dogma was true, "No one except God can forgive sins!" And, since none of us is God, not even Jesus, none of us can assert that sins are forgiven. You can't give that kind of assurance to anyone or even have it for yourself. In short, one cannot give or have assurance of salvation! How interesting that that same religious dogma is still around! And it is openly declared and propagated by one of the largest church communions in our area and the world to which many, many of the people you and I know belong. You cannot claim assurance; it is actually a sin to claim assurance. The average run-of-the-mill common person may not be aware of it and may even welcome the news that forgiveness is free and complete through the blood of Jesus when you tell him, just as the common Jews welcomed Jesus and His teaching. But when you run up against a zealous participant or a leader, you will boil his blood very quickly, just like Jesus did concerning this and many other dogmatically asserted beliefs. But let's examine it more deeply.

2. the root issues: You see, the real issue here is actually two-fold. The first issue is:

a. who Jesus is and therefore His authority Do you see that Jesus is making a bold assertion here? He is taking to Himself a right that belongs only to God. He is actually saying, "I am God; I forgive sins!" But their assumption was, "Jesus cannot be God because He is a man! Therefore, He has no authority to forgive sins and doing so is blasphemy!" It all hinges on what you think of Jesus! Is what He says really the word of God or is my dogma the truth? But at the root of it all really lies something much more personal which is:

b. my own lack of assurance "I don't know that MY sins are forgiven! And I'm a student of the Law, a teacher of the Law! If I can't know it, nobody can!" And you see, all this was going on inside their own minds and hearts. They never said a word but Jesus heard it loud and clear and challenged them directly.

3. the servant's viewpoint: Jesus is God and chooses to forgive sins (8-12) From a human viewpoint it's easier to say, "your sins are forgiven" than "get up and walk," because nobody can verify it to see whether it's true. But if I say "get up and walk" and the person doesn't do it, then I am immediately shown to be a fraud. However, the truth is that either one of those things requires the proper authority, the authority of God. So Jesus said, "If I have the authority to heal disease on command, that ought to show you that I have authority to forgive sins. Watch!" And the man got up and walked, a forgiven and a healed man! His power which showed so clearly in His miracles proved His deity and His right to choose to forgive sins. And that's the message that His true servants have been proclaiming ever since. Eph. 1:7, In him we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, in accordance with the riches of God's grace. It's free. It's once for all, forever. My friend, I don't care whose religious dogma we challenge or who gets upset, His blood at Calvary takes away our sins and we HAVE forgiveness! And we need to keep on delivering that message, no matter who gets upset or who we get into conflict with! The people were amazed and praised God. They saw the obvious, but the leaders never bought it. They said nothing, but instead, it seems, began following Jesus wherever he went to keep an eye on Him. And sure enough, soon there was:

II. The Conflict Over Religious Separation (2:13-17) How shocked they must have been that day on two counts. First, Jesus called a man named Levi or Matthew who was a tax collector to become one of His disciples. That was bad enough, but Levi was so in love with his newfound Master that he threw a dinner and invited all of his tax collector friends to come and meet and hear Him too. He was doing evangelism, introducing the people He knew to the Savior. But these leaders who were Pharisees couldn't believe their eyes!

1. the presenting problem: fellowship with sinners (13-16) Tax collectors or publicans worked for the Roman government. They were hired to collect tribute from their fellow Jews for the hated Romans, so they were seen as traitors, Jewish Benedict Arnolds, who were selling their own people for profit. Beyond that, they associated with Gentiles and so were always ceremonially unclean, and they often misused their own office and collected extra for personal profit! The Pharisees called them "sinners" and had long taught that the only way to deal with those kinds of folks was to have as little to do with them as possible. To eat together in a home was a sign of intimacy. They wouldn't go in and sit at that meal, but complained in a haughty tone to the disciples who were nearest to them, "With tax collectors and sinners He eats!" Think of it! An evangelistic harvest is going on. Lost souls are partaking of the bread of life. All of heaven is rejoicing. But all the Pharisees can say is, "You're not separated unto God like we are; look at the sinners you associate with!" Know any folks like that today? In our day we often call Pharisees Fundamentalists and we call lawyers legalists, and it seems there is always a zealous crowd of them watching to criticize you because you would go to a party at the neighbor's house where people were drinking or because you became friends with and cared about a person who's a homosexual and have compassion on him because he has AIDS or because you are spending time to build a relationship with somebody who's got a drug addiction or low moral standards. Contamination by association is the name of the game and the cure is separation; stay away! On another occasion Jesus addressed:

2. the root issue: my own self-righteousness He told a story of a Pharisee and a tax collector who went into the Temple to pray. The Pharisee prayed "Thanks God, that I'm not like this man; I'm better than him. Aren't I a gift to you compared to this guy?" He couldn't see his own sin and how offensive it was to God. He was self-righteous. He'd set up his own standards of right and he kept them and tried to impose them on others. To admit that Jesus is right to care about sinners and devote His life to them is to be forced to admit his own selfish pride. But Jesus replied directly with:

3. the servant's viewpoint: sick people need doctors (17) Jesus came to save sinners; there were no righteous to call, not even one, according to Rom. 3:10, not even the Pharisees. We're part of a sick race and we're all sick and we all need the healing hand of the Great Physician and the only way those who are sick get healed is by those who've already been healed introducing them to the Doctor! And that means being part of their lives now, not just mailing them a tract and waiting until they've changed their behavior! My friend, a servant of God goes after sick people no matter who doesn't like it. Don't expect the religious Pharisees to like it, but I assure you that the publicans will rejoice! But even as that night continued there was:

III. The Conflict Over Religious Rituals (2:18-22) The Pharisees at this point had developed a ritual of fasting twice a week, on the second and fifth days, as a means of pleasing God and securing merit before Him. It was a commonly accepted religious ritual in that culture. John's disciples adopted it likewise, although probably giving it more meaning than the Pharisees. In fact, Matthew tells us that some of them were there watching Levi's feast and they were the ones who asked why Jesus and His disciples were feasting when they should have been fasting!

1. the presenting problem: not fasting as others do (18) Not valuing the religious traditions and practices that are generally accepted and following them. Some will say, "You didn't baptize your babies; how could you ignore such an important thing and endanger their souls that way." Or perhaps, "You never confess your sins; how can you be sincere about wanting to live a holy life?" Others may criticize you because you don't raise your hands in worship and you've never spoken in other tongues. You don't even lay hands on the sick! And all this is from within Christendom. From other religions you may hear, "But you never offer sacrifice, you never..." In the Roman Empire the first Christians were actually charged with atheism, not believing in the gods and were chastised because they didn't participate in any of the religious rituals of the day. Why is that so important to folks like this?

2. the root issue: my own practices become meaningless "If somebody else cannot do it and still be OK, then it must not have great meaning or value, and since I've been devoted to it and am basing my confidence toward God on keeping the proper rituals, I have to oppose it." But Jesus gives us:

3. the servant's viewpoint: tradition is not sacred (21-22) Religious tradition is like cloth. As you wash and wear it, over time it shrinks and hardens and loses its stretch and give. So, if you try to patch a hole in it with a new shrinkable piece of cloth, it will re-tear the hole and make it worse! Or it's like a goatskin that you keep wine in. It's nice and soft and stretches when you put the wine in and it bubbles and expands. But afterwhile it gets hard and brittle and loses its stretch. And if you try to put new wine in it, then when the pressure builds, it cracks and is ruined, plus the wine is lost. Jesus didn't come to patch up old Jewish tradition with a new piece or to pour new life into the old Jewish wineskin. He came to do a new thing! The Law of God was still important, but it had become coated with layer after layer of tradition and religious practices that made it hard and brittle and intolerant of anything new! The servant of God says, "Tradition is not the Word of God; it is not sacred. Only the Word endures forever. I am not bound to follow the religious practices that others have instituted. The important thing is delivering the message in the way God directs!" There may be a time to fast, to do that very thing, but only when it's real, only when it has meaning! So, the Servant of God just keeps on delivering the message, no matter who gets upset with him for not keeping their tradition! And very similar to that is:

IV. The Conflict Over Religious Rules (2:23-3:6) The Pharisees were continually angry with Jesus over:

1. the presenting problem: breaking the Sabbath rules (23-24) One Sabbath day they were walking through a field and the disciples plucked a few heads of grain and ate them as they walked. To the Pharisees that was "work", breaking the rules! Never mind whether they were hungry or not. Another day we find Him in the synagogue and there's a poor suffering man there whose one hand is all withered up and useless, probably from an accident. And the Pharisees are watching to see if He'll heal him, if He'll "break the rules". Never mind that the man is suffering and maybe in pain and probably can't earn a living! 3:5 tells us He looked around at them and He was angry inside at their indifference; He was grieved over their inability to see and care about human beings and their needs. How could anyone care more about simply "keeping the rules" than about people? But they do, don't they? They care about how you dress and what style of music you listen to and how long your hair is and whether you wear jewelry or makeup or a thousand other things that offend the rules they happen to have. Why?

2. the root issue: my own performance becomes useless "If I've spent all these years "keeping the rules", touch not, taste not, handle not and it doesn't really mean anything, it doesn't really impress God, then I've wasted it all. I've got to hold up the rules or all my efforts are a waste!" But the servant of God has a different viewpoint.

3. the servant's viewpoint: God's principles benefit man (25-27) God didn't mind that David broke the rules when he and his men were hungry and their lives were in danger. They ate the showbread which was only for priests. God saw their hearts and He didn't have a problem with them. The Sabbath is the same way. God gave it as a principle of rest and joy to bless His people, not to be a burdensome thing encrusted with rules to keep to impress God! The Sabbath was created to meet the need of man and serve him; man was not created to meet the need of the Sabbath to be observed! So, Jesus is the Lord of the Sabbath and all the other rules and principles He has put in place for our benefit! We're not talking about violating God's moral principles and standards here; we're talking about religious rules that people make and if you get around a little bit there are tons and tons of them! But the servant of God doesn't live to keep rules; His heart is full of the love of God; it is full of the love of people and is touched by their needs and he would rather help them than keep the rules and make other folks happy!

What's my point this morning? If you keep on delivering the Gospel as a true servant of God, you will rile up a bunch of very religious people of every stripe and variety. But it didn't stop Jesus and it shouldn't stop you. If you're like me, you hate conflict. I absolutely hate being at odds with people and my flesh would rather give up than face the 20th century Pharisees time and time again. It's discouraging. And it could get nasty. Just look at 3:6. It put Jesus on a cross eventually; it all started back here in these early conflicts. So, it could get rough for you. But don't quit. A servant is true to his mission and doesn't get sidetracked or discouraged by conflict with the few. He sees the paralyzed people who need to have their sins forgiven, the sinners who need his message, the people with shriveled up lives who need to be made whole by the power of Jesus and how gladly they receive it and that's what keeps him going. Paul preached to the Gentiles and critics in the Jerusalem church took him to task for it! But he kept on. In 1792 a young English pastor named William Carey was burdened to serve God by delivering the Gospel to the perishing millions of India. Religious leaders opposed him all the way. They said, "If God wants the heathen converted, it is His business to convert them; the Commission does not apply to us." But Carey went anyway despite the conflict and became the father of the modern missionary movement. A generation later J. Hudson Taylor saw the need to reach the millions perishing in China's inland provinces. Church and mission leaders opposed and criticized him, saying, "It will be too difficult, the workers will perish, they will be unable to face the rigors of the task". It nearly discouraged him and he hesitated, feeling guilty, fearing they might be right and he would be responsible. But, he writes, "On Sunday, June 25, 1865, unable to bear the sight of a congregation of a thousand or more Christian people rejoicing in their own security while millions were perishing for lack of knowledge, I wandered out on the sands alone in great spiritual agony and there the Lord conquered my unbelief and I surrendered myself to God for this service. I told Him that all the responsibility must rest with Him and as His servant it was mine to obey and follow Him." He went and thus began the China Inland Mission and the great movement which took the Gospel to the interior regions of Asia and Africa. A generation later in 1931, a young man by the name of William Cameron Townsend conceived of the idea of translating the Bible into the language of the Cakchiquel Indians whose hearts were not being touched by the Spanish trade language. He writes "Friends told me, 'Don't be a fool. Those Indians aren't worth what it would take to learn their outlandish language and translate the Bible for them. They can't read anyhow. Let the Indians learn Spanish.' Others said, 'They'll kill you. Those jungle tribes are dying out anyway. They kill each other as well as outsiders with their spears or bows and arrows. If they don't kill you, malaria will get you or your canoe will upset in the rapids and you'll be without supplies and a month away from the last jumping-off place...." But Cam decided to be Christ's fool anyway and so was born Wycliffe Bible Translators and with it the great missionary movement of today whose goal is not only to reach every place, but every people. Every true servant of Christ finds himself in conflict with religious leaders and zealots of every kind of stripe. But if his heart is one with the heart of God and burns to deliver the message he keeps on. Let me encourage you to do the same today!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Servant's Appointing Of Apostles 3:7-19

From the time of His baptism Jesus had followers known as disciples, those who traveled about with Him and believed the Good News He brought. The Scriptures hint that there were many of them. A number of women followed Him about and helped to provide for the needs of the group. After the resurrection we find there were a group of 500 disciples to whom the Lord appeared and in the Upper Room, there were 120 gathered praying. The personal ministry of Jesus on earth touched thousands and brought them to faith in Him. Certainly, hundreds openly called themselves disciples of Christ. But from among them all there was a group of 12 men in whom Jesus invested His life in a particular way. As the story of His ministry develops, it is easy to see:

I. The Need Jesus Had For The Twelve (7-12) There were two particular:

1. the problems Jesus experienced The first was:

a. the increase in the number of people coming to Him Miracles authenticate words, but they also draw a crowd. Sick people came from everywhere to be healed. Others came to see the sight. Many were local, but others were coming from a wider and wider area, a radius of up to 200 miles, from south in Judea, and further southeast in Edom, from across the Jordan in the Decapolis and Perea and from northwest on the coast of Tyre and Sidon of the Gentiles. All came on foot to Galilee to see Jesus. Always more. Crowds of 4 and 5 thousand or even twice that number were not uncommon at certain times. The work was exhausting, non-stop, too much for anyone to bear. But with the increase in number came:

b. the decrease in the depth of their response to Him They grew impatient. The sick would press forward to try to touch him. For a while he asked some of his disciples to get a rowboat and follow him along the shore as He walked and taught so that He would be able to hop in at a moment's notice and pull away because they were thronging Him and He might be crushed. The more that came, the less they were really listening. They came for the miracles. Jesus tried to play those down. He commanded the demons to be quiet and not tell who He was. He told people like the leper he cleansed in chapter 1 not to tell anyone, but they did. So more and more of His energy was consumed in crowd handling. So, I think you can readily see:

2. the prudence of choosing apostles, men who could do two things. First:

a. they could assist Him in His current ministry Instead of always drawing huge crowds to one place, they could go out and take the message to other areas and multiply the spread of the Good News. Plus, when there were crowds, they could row the boat behind Him. They could pass out the bread to the multitude. They could help those with special needs to get to Him. They could make the work He was doing more effective. But there is another, more important factor:

b. they would continue His ministry beyond the Cross Jesus knew that within 3 years His personal ministry would come to an end on the cross and He would return to heaven. The work of serving the Lord by taking the message of the Good News of His own resurrection and the life it provides to the world had to be carried on by someone. So, Jesus chose from among all His disciples twelve who were placed into a special grouping, a special office of apostle, which means sent one or in the Latin, missio which means missionary, one who is sent on a mission with a purpose. What was that purpose? Look at Acts 1:2-3, 8. The apostles were to be His witnesses to the ends of the earth, to bear the message of the Good News of Christ's death for our sins and His resurrection to all peoples. And the other way to talk about that is that it is the building of His church, a called-out assembly of disciples all over the world, which is, according to Eph. 2:20, built on the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the chief cornerstone. These Twelve, minus one, would become the foundation layer of the church of Jesus Christ which He is still building today. Needless to say, the choosing of these men was important. So let's look at:

II. The Way Jesus Chose The Twelve (13-15) Look first at:

1. the manner of their calling (13-14a) Luke tells us that Jesus spent the entire night in prayer before choosing these men. Mark emphasizes that out of all the disciples that followed Him, Jesus literally, called out from among them unto Himself twelve. And He named them a new name, apostles. And He literally, made twelve. He bound them into a group which was thereafter known as The Twelve, the symbolic number of the people of God. But notice who got in. He called those He wanted and they came. This was no, "all volunteers take one step forward" sort of deal. In the Upper Room, Jesus made it clear to them in John 15:16, You did not choose me, but I chose you and appointed you to go and bear fruit-- fruit that will last... He very deliberately chose specific people to take on this responsibility and then He trained them for three years, but look at the summary of:

2. the manner of their training (14-15) How were they to be prepared for this responsibility? In two ways:

a. they learned by observation ...that they might be with Him. The Twelve were always with Him, watching and helping in the ministry. The multiplied bread passed through their hands. They were in the boat when He spoke to the wind and sea. Others came and followed and went home to earn a living. These twelve spent every day for years with Him watching and learning. That's how we learn. Neither the Christian life nor Christian service works if it is merely taught; it has to be caught! Caught from somebody, learned from being part of somebody's life who models it, who shows you what it looks like in action. So, they watched their Model every day and then:

b. they learned by internship ...that He might send them out to preach. Twice Jesus sent them out two by two on their own to preach and to exercise His authority and they returned to Him. We'd call it an internship, a supervised ministry. We'll save the details for chapter 6, but the point is that they practiced what He modeled; they gradually did what they saw until they were ready to do it on their own and come back for debriefing and ultimately, He went back to the Father and left them on their own. We learn by doing, by practice, by trying some and then more and then more. That's how servants are trained for the work. Now hold onto these thoughts and let's move ahead to look at:

III. The Twelve People Jesus Chose (16-19) Here's the list. Just think about these men for a moment and look at them. First of all, think about this:

1. they were not chosen for ability The Sanhedrin noticed this when they arrested them later in Acts 4:13, When they saw the courage of Peter and John and realized that they were unschooled, ordinary men, they were astonished and they took note that these men had been with Jesus. Several of them were fishermen. None of them was famous or well-known. None of them held a position in the community. Perhaps the most educated among them was Matthew the tax collector. Jesus didn't pick His team because of their intellect and technological knowhow and experience at preaching or knowledge of the Scriptures. In fact:

2. they were not chosen for similarity Hardly anything about them was alike. Some like Andrew and Philip were shy and retiring. Peter was impetuous and loud-mouthed. James and John, Jesus called "Sons Of Thunder", probably meaning that they were much like Peter. They were the ones ready to call down fire from heaven on their enemies. Simon was a Zealot and had some strong feelings about the Romans. There is no one particular type of person Jesus wants in His service. He doesn't call all Type A personalities with X amount of schooling. That's not what's important. If you ask me what was important, I think:

3. their chief quality was steadfastness - John 6:66-71, 64 This was a turning point in Jesus' ministry. From this point many of His disciples turned away, it says. But not these Twelve and Jesus knew from the beginning they would be steadfast and stand firm with Him to the end. They might falter and doubt, but in the end, they would stand firm and continue the office He conferred upon them. That is, all save one who was chosen to fulfill the Scripture. At the last Supper, Jesus said, You are those who have stood by me in my trials. And I confer on you a kingdom, just as my Father conferred one on me - Luke 22:28-29. Their commitment was tested and they stuck; they stood firm for Him. Now let's get personal:

IV. What We Can Learn From The Choosing Of The Twelve There are two very important principles here for us. First:

1. the principle of developing others in Christ's service - 2 Tim. 2:2 Paul caught it from Jesus. The things we have learned and grasped we must pass on to faithful people, reliable folks, who will also pass them on to others. It is just as important to develop others to do the work of serving Christ as it is to do the work ourselves, and perhaps even more important! Who do you develop? Not everybody who puts a hand up and says, "Me, Me!" Jesus prayed and chose those He knew would be reliable, whether they were gifted or not. And He let them be with Him and incorporated them in the work. That's what we must do. Whatever you do for Christ, whether it is teaching a class, pastoring a church, singing, witnessing, or whatever, you should be investing time and effort in developing someone else to do it too. Jesus had the Twelve; Paul had his Timothy and Silas and Titus and others. We too ought to be passing on our vision for serving Christ, letting others catch it from us. And here's the second principle:

2. the principal quality Christ wants in us is faithfulness - 1 Cor. 4:1-2 The precious truth of the Gospel has been entrusted to us. We are stewards of what we've been given and the principal ability Christ wants is faithfulness, reliability, dependability. He wants those that will continue to the end. He's not interested in servants who get excited today and tomorrow lose their vision. He wants those that are committed to go with Him in all His trials, who will lean on His strength and continue no matter what.

Did Christ choose well? Did they continue? Did His plan to develop future leaders for the mission work? Just listen. Peter stayed in Jerusalem for some years leading the church and then began to travel, preaching the gospel. He ended up in Rome where he was crucified upside down by Nero. James was the first of the Twelve to give his life in the early days, but not until he had won his Roman accuser to Christ and the two of them were slain together. John eventually became the overseer of the churches in Asia Minor. For a while he was exiled on the Island of Patmos, but returned eventually to labor in Ephesus until his death of natural causes at 98. Andrew traveled extensively through the region of Scythia, north of the Black Sea in what is modern Russia and the Baltic States, then into Macedonia and down into Greece where he was arrested and crucified in Petrea. Philip labored in Phrygia in northern Asia Minor. In Hierapolis they worshipped a huge live snake and he set himself to pray that God would prove himself to be the true God. The snake either died or disappeared and many turned to Christ, but opposition arose and he was executed. Bartholomew or Nathaniel traveled as far as India preaching the gospel, but returned to Hierapolis where Philip was, and the two died there together. Matthew or Levi, the publican, traveled as far south as Ethiopia and died among barbarians in southern Egypt, slain with a spear or battle ax. Thomas ventured into Persia preaching the Gospel and eventually into India, where he made it all the way to Chennai on the southeast coast. There Brahmin priests ambushed and killed him as he was praying. James the Less we must leave to God because we know nothing, but Thaddaeus or Judas (not Iscariot) died at Edessa in Syria where he had gone to preach. Simon the Zealot traveled through Egypt and west into North Africa preaching the gospel and some say he made it all the way to Britain where he was crucified after great hardships. Only one, Judas Iscariot, instead of continuing, betrayed his Lord for 30 pieces of silver and hung himself in guilt.

There is an ancient legend that says when Christ returned to heaven after having completed His work of redemption, one of the angels said to Him, "Does the whole world know of your love?" "No," the Savior replied. "Then how will they be told?", the angel continued. Jesus answered, "I left it in the hands of 12 men." "But," the angel asked, "what if they fail?" And Jesus said solemnly, "I have no other plan." They didn't fail. They, with the help of Paul who was later included in their number, took the Gospel to the boundaries of the known world. They never gave up and all but one gave their lives for their faith. Jesus had no other plan and He still has no plan other than that faithful servants of His will develop other faithful servants who will develop others and so our mission and our trust is passed on and will continue until the last person at the ends of the earth hears and the church is complete. Are you giving yourself to developing others, even your own children? If you aren't, your part in the plan will fail!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Servant's Rejection 3:20-35

We live in a culture which tells us to expect success in doing right. If there is one thing Jesus taught His disciples repeatedly, it was to expect rejection because of serving Him. Listen to just a few of the things He said:

Mat. 5:11 - Blessed are you when people insult you, persecute you and falsely say all kinds of evil against you because of me.

Mat. 10:35-36 - For I have come to turn "a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law-- a man's enemies will be the members of his own household."

John 15:18-20 - If the world hates you, keep in mind that it hated me first. If you belonged to the world, it would love you as its own. As it is, you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world. That is why the world hates you. Remember the words I spoke to you: "No servant is greater than his master." If they persecuted me, they will persecute you also...

Doesn't sound much like anything you've heard on the radio lately, does it? And they did persecute Him; they did reject Him. So, it is clear that we too can expect to receive rejection as we serve Christ. Consequently, it would be wise on our part to prepare ourselves for it, so that we're not overwhelmed by it when it happens. And we have the opportunity to do that this morning by considering two events in the life of Jesus in our text. First of all, let's talk about:

I. Some Sources From Which A Servant Of Christ May Experience Rejection It should not come as a surprise, if you take Jesus' words seriously, that:

1. you may be rejected by family (20-21) The word family is not in the Greek; it just says those from the side of him, that is, those near to him. We figure that is an idiom for his family, because it is Jesus' mother and brothers who arrive in verse 31 and John 7:5 records another occasion during this period in Galilee where his brothers argued with him and comments, ...even his own brothers did not believe in him. How sad! At every Olympic Games, you see on TV the story of how a dedicated family stands behind their young athlete and encourages him or her and sacrifices for him and travels to the games and sits there and cheers him on. You would wish it were that way in serving God, but it isn't always, unless you happen to come from a solidly Christian family, and not even always then! If you were born into a Muslim family in many countries, you might find yourself driven from home, disowned, fired from your job, and in more fanatical locations, some of your relatives might even feel it their duty to kill you. In many, many cultures across the world, your family would feel that you had betrayed them and your ancestors or your people and even put them at risk from the gods by your actions! Here in the good old modern, pluralistic USA, rejection by family or others close to us more often takes the form of verbal disapproval or simply intentional neglect and obvious lack of support. They may tolerate you believing in Christ, but just get really active in your church, start openly devoting your time and money to serving God, tell them you're going to Bible College or into the ministry or to the mission field. Get yourself involved in a publicly open way where the world knows about it, like Jesus was doing, and they may soon start finding ways to try to exercise control over you like His family wanted to! That's one source from which you may experience rejection. Or it may come from just the opposite:

2. you may be rejected by enemies (22) The Jerusalem boys were there, the teachers of the law, those who were professional students of the Law and had their Ph. D. from Jerusalem U., who didn't like this religious fanatic stirring up trouble by his popularity and drawing followers from their ranks. If you lived in Somalia today, about a year and a half ago you could have read this ad in your local paper placed by a fanatical group: We declare a holy war against all Christian evangelism in Somalia. Anyone who tries to distribute anything concerning Christianity will be SHOT! This past Wednesday in Kuwait an Islamic Court declared a convert to Christianity named Robert Hussein an apostate, has stripped him of his civil rights and family and is moving to remove his citizenship. If you lived in the CIS, you might find the Orthodox Church to be behind the effort to close the evangelical group you belong to or in China you might find the Religious Police sent to break up your house group by the leaders of the local Registered Church. But even here, if you serve Christ openly and aggressively and make some noise about it, you will find rejection by enemies. If you try to take a liberal politician to task on his voting record on abortion, you'll be called "the religious right" and accused of "single issue politics". If you protest Planned Parenthood's willingness to distribute condoms in schools or give taxpayer funded abortions without notifying parents, you're a "religious fanatic" trying to violate the civil rights of others. And if you win enough folks to a genuine relationship with Jesus and they leave their old dead church for a true fellowship, you may even find that it is the mainline clergy who protest the loudest. Things haven't changed much in 2000 years! You should expect rejection, both from friends and enemies. Jesus warned that we would experience it. Now let's look closer at:

II. Some Charges Which May Be Brought Against A Servant Of Christ What will they accuse you of? Well, let's see what Jesus was charged with:

1. you may be charged with hysteria (21) He is out of his mind! You're nuts! You've turned into some kind of fanatic! Look at how you've given your life to this religion thing! Why would you want to go halfway around the world and give up all you have? Why are you at church so much? This is the complaint that usually comes from family and friends, from those who think they're on your side. And it is based on:

a. the assumption is that you don't know what you're doing You have somehow gotten off track and become abnormal and you don't realize it. You somehow got caught up in this Jesus thing and maybe if I say or do something I can bring you to your senses to see just how obsessed you've become!

b. the intent is to return you to "normal", to make you like everybody else, to keep you from rocking the boat, endangering yourself, getting hurt. That's why Jesus' family came to try to take charge of Him! And:

c. the motive is genuine concern They cared about Him. These folks, in their own way, love and care for you. They want to stop you for your own good! And you have to understand and recognize that! And it demands a carefully measured response. But on the other hand, if it's your enemies talking:

2. you may be charged with evil (22) Can you imagine anything more absurd than this: Jesus is an agent of Satan! There's a demon in him and He's serving Satan, that's why he's so successful. You see, our enemies have a different assumption than we do:

a. the assumption is that what you are doing is evil One morning many years ago one of our missionaries found a note at his door that said, "We know what you are doing, trying to take the Somalis from Mohammed to Jesus. If you don't get this out of your crazy brain, then one dark night we will come and attack your house and do what we want!" A later letter said, "I understand your aim in leading astray Muslims, especially Somalis. On the Day of Judgment, you will go eternally to Hell. If God doesn't cause the earth to open up for you, then..." What a difference in perspective! Jesus warned, ...in fact, a time is coming when anyone who kills you will think he is offering a service to God. - John 16:2. Here we are, laboring for Jesus, loving lost people, trying to rescue their eternal souls and they see us as agents of evil engaged in a diabolical task! And it's not just Muslims. All our enemies believe that to one degree or another. Their values are backward. Our good is spoken of as evil. And of course:

b. the intent is to stop you, not to save or rescue you, but to put an end to your service and in many cases:

c. the motive is actual hatred These guys didn't have a benevolent distaste for what Jesus was doing. They hated Him. Just look back to verse 6! They already had the thought of killing him! Just this April, Professor Haaji, a prominent Christian in Mogadishu was kidnapped and murdered for his faith. Listen to this shocking fact in case you think the human condition has improved over the years: More Christians have died for their faith in this century than in all the others that have gone before!

Expect rejection! Expect to be seen as "out of your mind" or as "a detriment to the progress of the human race" or as "an enemy of religion!" And if you're not experiencing that personally, get on your knees and thank God, because millions upon millions of your brothers and sisters in Christ around the globe live in it every day of their lives! Pray for them! But when rejection does come to you at whatever level, even if it's only disparaging comments, here are:

III. Some Consolations In Which A Servant Of Christ May Rest What Jesus said on these two occasions is very important. Your first consolation is:

1. the encouragement of your spiritual family (31-34) Jesus knew why His family had come. They were opposed to what He was doing and wanted to stop Him from serving God. And Jesus took that moment to explain this principle:

a. the identity of your true family is the body of Christ When you come to Jesus, you don't reject your family as the cults might do. They remain your family by birth and you love them. However, you are joined in your spirit to another family, the family of God, the body of Christ, His church. With them you don't just share the same genetics, the same house, or the same history; you share the very same Spirit. Look at Gal. 3:26-28. You and I are one in Jesus Christ, part of one body, sharing one Spirit and one nature! And so, Jesus could wave his arm and say, "Here are my mother and my brothers!" I can do that too. I am closer to many of you than I have ever been to my earthly family because most of them don't know Christ and haven't a clue what my life is really all about! So, my friend, when you find yourself rejected by your family, your friends, those close to you, remember that you always have:

b. the support of your true family being united in the will of God Because they have the same Spirit, they comprehend the true will of God, which is to believe on His Son and serve Him. They agree with you in serving Him and you can count on them to stand with you and to comfort you! And I can testify that for all my years of serving God, wherever I have served and whenever I have experienced rejection, whatever sort of attack Satan has sent, it has always been the love of the body that I was a part of, that has comforted and cared for me in the midst of it and helped me face it. I have always had a family that loved and cared for me and God has used that family greatly in my life to keep me serving.

But there is a second thing you have and that is:

2. the confidence of your spiritual victory (23-30) When it came to His enemies, we find in Jesus' answer to them three important truths:

a. the ludicrousness of being called Satan's agent (23-26) How stupid it is to think that Satan would work through Jesus against himself, that a demon would cast out another demon! That's like helping yourself by shooting yourself! The viewpoint your enemy that you are serving evil is absolutely, unbelievably ridiculous. Don't ever listen to it or be discouraged by it. Jesus identified what was really going on:

b. the truth of Christ's superior power being evidenced (27) The only way to take what belongs to a strong man is to tie up the strong man first and take away all his guns and then you can rob his house. And to tie him up, you'd have to be pretty strong yourself! The only reason Jesus cast out demons was that He had more power and Satan couldn't stop Him. The only reason His service was successful and crowds were coming to hear the truth was that Satan wasn't big enough to stop it! If other people are bothered by what God is doing through you, just remember that the reason you're able to do it is because greater is He that is in you than He that is in the world! Your Rock is greater than their Rock; your Father is greater than all and nobody can pluck you out of His hand. No foe can stop you unless God chooses to allow it. Since He's for you, who can be against you? You, my friend, have victory. It was already won at Calvary and the final outcome is in the Book! If God chooses to allow others to reject you, that's OK, because they can't really touch you, nor ultimately stop what God is doing, try as they may! And finally remember this:

c. whoever rejects the Spirit's work through you rejects Him (28-30) This is the reference to the unpardonable sin, calling the work of the Spirit of God evil, a work of the Devil. We don't have time to get into studying that this morning and it's beside the point. Just remember this: you never have to worry about having committed the unpardonable sin, because if you can worry about it, you haven't committed it! The point here is larger. Jesus' enemies were not just rejecting Him personally as a human servant; they were rejecting the person of Almighty God. God put it this way to Samuel in his day, ...it is not you they have rejected, but they have rejected me as their king. - 1 Sam. 8:7. It is not you they have rejected, it's Me; it's My love, My work, My cross, My person. It's not you they want to kill, that they want to stop; it's Me. The insults of all that insult you have fallen on Me! - Ps. 69:9. Oh, there's comfort in that! You can let it all fall on His shoulders. It is not you, but Him and He can carry it. Release it to Him. Take it all to His strong arms and place it there. Face it in His strength.

I can't put a time on it anymore or remember the specific circumstances, but I remember a night many years ago when I was discouraged in serving God, when I had been rejected somehow, when what I thought was serving God was evil-spoken of, and I remember how that rejection hurt. And I remember coming to God and telling Him. And quietly that very verse came into my mind, ...it is not you they have rejected, it is Me, and suddenly I was filled with the love and caring of the Savior and encouraged to go on, in spite of the painful rejection. Were it not for that, I might not be standing here today. Oh my friend, He was despised and rejected of men, a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. He knows the pain you feel when you are rejected, but He has given you a spiritual family to support you; He has given you a power to continue that is unstoppable. If you can see it as He sees it, you can continue on! Keep on, my friend, keep on!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Servant's Wisdom Displayed In Parables 4:1-34

One of the most unique things about Jesus' ministry that sets Him apart from Moses or David or Paul or Peter or any other writer of Scripture or teacher, Old Testament or New Testament, is that He, on a number of occasions, taught in parables. Outside of His teaching, there are maybe two or three parables recorded anywhere in the Bible. He was virtually unique in this. I believe they were a display of His great wisdom in the way that He related to His human audience and also in the actual truths which He taught us through them. Let's begin by considering:

I. Jesus' Adoption Of The Parabolic Method (1-2, 33) Jesus did not always teach in parables. On this day he began the practice when he taught the crowds for the second time. It was after He had been rejected by the Jewish teachers who were present. So, He deliberately chose to adopt the concept of teaching in parables on this day and on a number of other occasions for a specific purpose. He did not do it always, and maybe not even often. What were the parables like?

1. His parables taught spiritual truths by using common illustrations (1-2) They were stories, stories about things and experiences that were common and familiar to his listeners. Stories about planting seeds and growing crops, which everybody was involved in. Stories about harvesting crops, about putting yeast in bread, about catching fish, tending sheep, things that were part of the pattern of everyday life. Stories that could be easily remembered and understood, but which illustrated things that were true in the spiritual realm. So, the preaching of the word was like the sowing of seed; the running away of a son was like a sinner running away from God and coming home; the buying of a field with a hidden pearl was like Christ's purchase of the church for Himself through the cross. In many ways, parabolic teaching is like simple comparison for illustration. But there's a catch:

2. His parables could only be understood through ears of faith (9-12) One had to have ears that could hear in order to hear them, that is, grasp their meaning. You see:

a. for believers they aided understanding: clarified through explanation (34b) For those who were truly disciples of His, they helped to make the points He was trying to make. Their hearts were predisposed to understand because they believed Jesus was the Savior. And so, to them Jesus always clarified the meaning by concretely explaining the comparison. You see, He told the crowd the story of the sower, but even though the disciples believed, they couldn't understand and had to ask. Yet He was quick to explain, not only this one, but all the parables to them. And with that explanation, they served to aid understanding of the task that Jesus was about, the building of the Church, His Kingdom on earth for this age. But:

b. for rejecters they were confusing: given without explanation (34a) To that crowd, He did no plain teaching. He simply told stories, but without explanation. Why? That crowd was filled with His enemies, those who rejected Him and had called Him an agent of Satan. He did not cast His pearls of truth before swine. He simply told them stories but never explained what they meant, so they were left shaking their heads, wondering what He meant by the story about a farming planting his field. Why did He do that? Their hearts had already rejected Him. They did not wish to believe and they were fulfilling what Isaiah had predicted, that they would see but never perceive, that they would hear but never understand. And Jesus granted their wish! He left them in their sin. Those who genuinely sought truth came to Jesus and asked. Those who didn't were given none! He explained this whole concept further after He explained the first parable to His disciples. He gave them:

3. His parable about spiritual truth (including parables): The Lamp (21-25) You don't light a lamp to hide it, do you? You don't cover it up or stick it under something to block its light. You put it up on a stand so it gives light. Spiritual truth, Jesus said, is like that:

a. it is meant to be revealed at the right time (21-23) God does not intentionally hide spiritual truth, the knowledge of Himself and what He's like. He wants man to have it. He wants you to have it! But there are some things He keeps hidden until He knows it is just the right time to reveal them to you, the time when you're ready to respond. But in order for it to be revealed to your mind with understanding:

b. there must be a desire to understand it or it will be lost (24-25) You must be careful to listen and seek the meaning. If you do, the Spirit of God is in the business of illuminating the Word, bringing understanding. But it's sort of use it or lose it. If you don't diligently desire to know and experience God's truth, you'll gradually lose even what you do understand now!

So spiritual truth is available to all, but just as on that day Jesus' disciples had a genuine desire to understand and asked Him for the wisdom to make it clear, we have to do the very same thing today. He only gives His truth to those who diligently and truly want it. Put another way, growth occurs in those who truly desire it. Those who don't pursue it, shrink!

There is no standing still! Do you see how wise Jesus was? He could tell a story that would confuse His enemies and cultivate His disciples at the same time, all because of the condition of their hearts! Now the three parables that Mark records Jesus telling on this day are:

II. Jesus' Parables About The Church He Is Building (The Kingdom) In the stories He was telling, he was describing the process he was engaged in at that very moment with the people He was teaching. His job as the Servant of God was to build the Kingdom of God, which if you look carefully is a reference most of the time to the Church during this age, not the Millennial Kingdom the Jews were looking for. Our service to God doesn't bring about the setting up of a visible kingdom where God reigns from His throne on earth. Rather it builds this strange body, this strange organism made of people over whose lives God rules, which we call the Church. Serving God by delivering the message of the Gospel, the Good News about Jesus, builds the Kingdom of His followers. The first and key parable that a servant of God needs in order to understand God's purposes is:

1. a parable about sowing (individual response): The Soils (3-8) Have you ever scattered seed by hand on your lawn? Do you notice what happens? It doesn't all come up into a country-club style luxurious carpet, does it? Some of it blows onto the driveway or the sidewalk where it'll never grow. Some seems to come up and look great in May, but in July it turns brown in the heat and dies because the soil is shallow in that spot. In other spots the weeds come up in the new soil at the same time and grow faster than the grass and you get weeds instead of grass. However, over most of the area you get a real crop of grass, some places thicker than others. Have you experienced that? Good, you have just entered into the common experience of ancient Palestinians 2000 years ago! What does it mean? On the surface it means: Don't expect all the grass you planted to grow! That's all the Pharisees got out of it. It requires explanation and Jesus gave that to His disciples. You see:

a. Christ continually sows His word in individual lives (13-14) He was doing it right then to the crowd, broadcasting the message of the gospel, just the way you broadcast seed into the soil of a field. It fell upon individual lives and ears. He did that all through His ministry. And for two millennia He's been doing it through His church and now through us! I'm doing it right now! As His servants share His word with others in Glenside and all over the world, He is still sowing the seed of the Word of God into individual lives. But:

b. individuals respond differently to the word (15-20)

(1) some hear and pay no attention and forget it Some in that crowd, and in the crowd we speak to, hear it and it goes in one ear and out the other. They're not interested; they're hardened like the path or the sidewalk. Nothing is going to grow there because they've made up their minds ahead of time; they don't want it. So, Satan makes sure they soon forget what they heard. Expect that to occur with some. Then:

(2) some hear and claim it, but soon reject it amid suffering They're looking for fire insurance and when they see it offered to them, they quickly grab and claim it and go through all the motions, but they don't have any real roots that go down into the depths of their soul. They have an intellectual grasp, maybe, but no transformation in the heart, so as soon as they find out that Christians suffer, that, in fact, they will suffer because they have claimed Christ, they are quick to throw Him away and go back to their old life! They never really were genuinely related to Him! Expect that to occur with some. Then:

(3) some hear but choose other life-dominating desires instead They hear the offer of the Gospel and the call to give their lives to Christ but other things in their hearts are also vying for their allegiance, like the drive to make it, to succeed and take care of themselves in life, the desire to make lots of money and have wealth, desires for fame, marriage, pleasure. All those things the Bible calls "the desires of the flesh" are in there and even though the person is considering Christ those things are stronger and they end up living for those things instead of really giving their life to Christ. Some people just can't give those things up. Expect that. But finally:

(4) some receive it as their own and exhibit the fruit of change Some people actually hear and understand and obey the word and place their trust in Jesus and produce the fruit of His life in them. Some more than others, but nevertheless all exhibiting fruit.

When you serve God and share His word with others, those are the reactions you'll get from people. Jesus got them right there in the crowd that day as He taught. And you will still get them today. The response of an individual to the Word of God is determined by the preparation of the soil of his heart by the Holy Spirit. It doesn't depend on you, on how well you share or on how much you say. It's the soil into which the seed falls! So, the key to affecting people as you serve God is PRAYER! The Holy Spirit has to prepare the soil to receive the seed! Pray for those you love and those you share with. It's the seed that produces the crop, not you, so get on your knees regularly and ask God to do His thing! That's how Jesus is building His church. Then next we have:

2. a parable about growing (continual process): The Seed (26-29) Mark is the only one to write this parable down. You know, once you plant those seeds in your garden, a miracle happens. There is life in the seed and day after day, no matter what you do, the plants grow all by themselves. It's a wonderful process that God placed in motion called growth. They go from a seedling to a full-sized tomato plant and then the stalk develops fruit, tomatoes, and then the fruit ripens and finally you harvest it. You may add water and a little tender care, but God makes the crop grow. That's a picture of what God is doing with the church. You see:

a. Christ seeded His field (the world) He came Himself and made the first disciples, planted the first seeds in the soil, His apostles and the other disciples with them. Then, as the years have been going by:

b. the crop (the church) is growing in stages to maturity It sprouted in the Book of Acts and grew into a stalk, a church that stretched all over the Roman Empire. Through the centuries, the crop has been maturing, producing heads of grain all over the world. Today it has spread to every corner of the earth. How?

c. the crop is growing through the life in itself In this sense, it happens automatically. The church is like that tomato plant. Once you start it, it grows from the life that is inside it. The church has been growing and growing over the centuries through the life that is inside it. It has Spirit-given power of life and growth and even when it has been damaged, it still recovers and grows again. This growth is happening through us as we reach out to others in our neighborhood and around the world! And it is happening in all parts of the crop. The field of grain is all ripening together all over the world and:

d. when it reaches maturity, He will harvest it at His return When the harvest is fully ready, when the crop has reached its full maturity, He will harvest it. He will say to His church, "Come up here!" and we'll all rise to meet Him in the air in that great ingathering! And He'll present that complete mature Church to Himself. And to illustrate what it will be like, He told:

3. a parable about maturity (eventual result): The Mustard Seed (30-32) The mustard seed was the smallest seed planted by the Jews. It takes 21,000 of them to weigh one ounce! They're like a grain of sand but when they germinate into an annual shrub, within a few weeks they grow into the largest garden plant the Jews kept, reaching as much as 12-15 feet in a few weeks' time, so big that birds come and build nests in it. See the point? Amazingly small to amazingly big! The church is like that:

a. the church started extremely small 12 apostles, 120 in the upper room. A handful among the millions of people in the world. But here is the prediction and the promise that, like that mustard seed:

b. the church will grow to be relatively large Oh today, my friends, that seed has grown to be over 600 million people in this generation! Now admittedly, among 7 billion, that leaves quite a job to do, but that's not the point. More than a hundred thousand people a day hear the Gospel and receive Christ. And by faith I believe that tree will grow even bigger until harvest time comes!

That's what God is about in history, my friends, spelled out in three little stories. He is planting His word in the hearts of individuals and they are responding. And through that He is continually growing His church, so that by the time He's done, it's going to be a tremendous group of believers touching every nation on earth and He'll take it home! That's His program. And if you're serving Him, that's the program you're involved in. Unbelievers and rejecters don't and can't understand it, but if you really want to know, He'll make plain to you the role He has for you in building His Kingdom. I'd like to close with a parable of my own. There once was a farmer who went out to gather eggs. As he walked across the farmyard toward the hen house, he noticed the pump was leaking. So he stopped to fix the pump. It needed a new washer, so he set off to the barn to get one. But on the way to the barn, he saw that the hayloft needed straightening, so he went off to fetch the pitchfork. However, hanging next to the pitchfork was a broom with a broken handle. "I must make a note to myself to buy a new broom handle the next time I go to town," he thought. So he went into the house to get some paper and write the note. While he was in the house, his wife called him to eat supper and the day was over. What's the lesson? If you don't focus clearly on your purpose, you never will get it done; instead, you'll be distracted by everything else. Jesus has told you what He's about, building His kingdom by sowing the word. That's your purpose too; if you get distracted by all the things life puts in your way, you never will get it done. He who has ears to hear, let him hear.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Servant's Authority Declared In Miracles 4:35-5:43

...Who is this? Even the wind and the waves obey him! - 4:41

Have you ever experienced a miracle? Other than the miracle of the new birth, probably not. The Scripture says, John [the Baptist] did no miracle... Neither did most of the other prophets. Noah never did one; neither did Abraham. David and Solomon, for all their splendor, experienced no miracles. Until Jesus walked the earth, miracles had been in Moses' day and during the time of Elijah and Elisha. That's it! But Jesus came doing miracles. Why? Well, the dictionary says that a miracle is an extraordinary or unusual event that is considered to be a manifestation of divine or supernatural power. In other words, while the world may call extraordinary things "miraculous" like the birth process or someone's surviving a terrible tragedy, a true miracle is an event that shouts a message: Almighty God has been here; none but Him could do this! After Jesus talked to the wind and the waves and told them to be still and they listened, look at the reaction of His disciples in verse 41. The miracle brought those men to the unavoidable conclusion that God was in the boat with them and He was there in the person of the man Jesus. This man is God! Jesus did miracles to send a message. In the Upper Room Jesus told them, Believe me when I say that I am in the Father and the Father is in me; or at least believe on the evidence of the miracles themselves. - John 14:11. The miracles declared Jesus' Divine authority as God; they were the visible proof of the truth of what He taught. They confirmed His words and declared His authority in a way that could not be mistaken. In our text, Mark records four major miracles that Jesus did in a very brief period and each one of them shouts a message, both to the people who experienced it and to us. So, let's look at them one at a time. In the first miracle we see:

I. Jesus' Authority Over Nature (4:35-41) Have you ever stood in a thunderstorm and felt the power of the elements? The wind is whipping and the trees are bending and you can hardly stand. The rain is pelting you hard and you are almost blown over. You can feel what that's like as I describe it, can't you? Now, can you imagine telling it to stop? And it does! Have you stood on the sand at the beach and let the breakers hit you with all their force? We spent a week at the beach recently and all the kids liked to go out into the surf and sometimes you could watch a huge wave come up behind them which you knew was going to knock them flat. Can you imagine telling a wave to stop? And it does! Jesus did that! How could He? As God, He has authority over nature. He speaks and it listens. It hears His voice and obeys! Here's:

1. the lesson: He has control over the circumstances that surround me Here are the poor disciples rowing and struggling with all their might. The waves are breaking over the bow and the boat is filling with water. It's not a little rowboat, but a larger fishing vessel. I'm sure they saw it as an unfortunate tragedy that had overtaken them. But remember something:

a. He chose the path that took the boat into the storm Jesus said, "Let's cross the lake". He knew the storm was coming. He chose to take them into it. Yet:

b. He chose later to still the wind and waves He brought the storm, in one sense, and when He chose, He took it away. He put them into danger and took them out. And what baffled them was this:

c. He had unassailable peace in the midst of it all While the boat is rocking crazily and nearly swamped, He's in the back on a bench lying on a cushion, fast asleep and undisturbed! Who can sleep in the midst of all that? Only One who has the peace of knowing He's in absolute control over it all! And He proved it with a word when He woke up and said, Peace, be still! My friend, Jesus is in absolute control of all the circumstances that surround you, whether it looks like it or not. Whether it's wind and waves or cars and accidents or jobs and layoffs. He knows all the storms of life that will assail you and, indeed, sends you into them. He also stills them when it's time. He has complete authority over every circumstance that surrounds you. So, what does Jesus expect of me? Look at verse 40:

2. the application: by faith I rest in His authority over my circumstances (40) "You're afraid because you don't trust in my authority!" That picture of Him resting peacefully in the tossing ship is what He wants for us. To rest calmly in the fact that He is in control of everything that surrounds me, every circumstance, every problem, every difficulty. Fear comes from depending on me. My power is not sufficient to make it through the storm. On my own I will be swamped. But Jesus is in control and He loves me; I am His. I need to rest in Him! Now in the second miracle we see:

II. Jesus' Authority Over Demons (5:1-20) Have you ever been afraid of a human being? I mean really afraid. Here was a man so strong he could break ropes and even iron chains. No one, not even several men, could subdue him and nobody was brave enough to try any longer. Why? He was indwelt by a legion of demons, real beings, powerful spirit beings, far stronger than you or I, forces that seek to control, to harm or even indwell human beings. Yet they fell at Jesus' feet, begged His permission, and obeyed His command. What's:

1. the lesson: He has control over the forces that oppose me You see, demons do far more than indwell people. They oppose you and I as servants of God. Paul said, For our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms. - Eph. 6:12. We fight the same forces that were in this man every day. They oppose us and try to tear us down and stop us and tear our marriages and our families and our churches apart, to ruin and destroy our lives. It's a scary thought. But they listen to Jesus.

a. He chooses to allow them freedom to operate I don't know why, but He does. I don't know why He didn't just annihilate that legion of demons or confine them to the pit, but He didn't. He gave them freedom to operate and so He does today. Satan and all of His henchmen are busy and active against us and Jesus allows that, but:

b. He is in absolute control over what they can do He let them go into the pigs. They couldn't do it on their own. Satan had to ask God for permission to test Job. God's authority had kept him from it or he would have attacked long before on his own! Jesus is in absolute control of every force of wickedness that opposes us, even when that force is inside a person and inciting them against us! So, what am I to do when people and forces come against me and attack me?

2. the application: by faith I rest in His authority over my foes Look back to (1:27). He gives orders to evil spirits and they obey Him! Listen to 1 John 5:18-19, We know that anyone born of God does not continue to sin; the one who was born of God keeps him safe, and the evil one cannot harm him. We know that we are children of God, and that the whole world is under the control of the evil one. No foe can harm me; no spirit can hurt me. I am kept safe by Jesus and those forces are under His control and, even if He allows them to kill my body, I am still safe. By faith I need to rest in that and not be afraid. Now in the third miracle we see:

III. Jesus' Authority Over Disease (5:24-34) Jesus was on the way to Jairus' house when He was touched by this woman with an issue of blood. It consumed her life. It cost all her money and yet remained uncured. Every day was a nightmare for her, because this disease made her suffer. Yet, in that instant when she touched the hem of His garment, it left and she was made perfectly well. It was not merely a swift recovery, but instant healing, a miracle that came forth from the power that was in the person of Jesus. What's:

1. the lesson: He has control over the body He has given me My body is a part of this created world and He has control over it. Now that doesn't guarantee that I will have good health. As you see:

a. He chose to allow her years of suffering Twelve years of it. That's a long time. He could have found her sooner. He could have stopped it earlier. But He chose to allow this suffering in her body until this moment and then:

b. He chose at this time to set her free He doesn't do that for everybody, at least not in this life. But the authority is still his. When my body ages, when I get sick, when I suffer and have pain, when I need an operation, Jesus is in absolute control of my body. He can choose to make it well or sick or anything in between. What am I to do?

2. the application: by faith I rest in His authority over my body Look what He told the woman (34). He commended her for trusting His control, His authority. No, we don't all get healed like she did, but Jesus wants the same thing of me, to rest in His authority and control over what happens in and to my body, to present my body as a living sacrifice to Him and trust Him with it in every sense, accepting what He allows. Then finally, in the fourth miracle we see:

IV. Jesus' Authority Over Death (5:21-23, 35-43) The whole time that the poor woman had been suffering with her disease, Jairus and his wife had been enjoying their little girl. They had held her as a baby and bounced her on their knees. They had watched her grow up healthy and strong, the joy of their lives. And then the unthinkable happened. She became deathly ill; her life was ebbing away and they couldn't stop it. Jairus ran to Jesus and begged Him to come. But He was too late. She died. Nobody could bring her back. None of them. But Jesus walked into that room and said, "O little one, LIVE!" And at His command, life sprang back into her body and she sat up. What's:

1. the lesson: He has control over the life that is in me He is the Lord of life. He controls life and death, whether it's in me or in those I love. You see:

a. He chose to allow the girl to die He could have stopped it right where He was. He didn't need to be present. But He chose to allow death for His own glory. And then:

b. He chose to raise her to life again It was that simple. Her living or dying depended on His will and His word, not on anything else, and so does yours and that of those you love. Life and death is not under the control of fate or circumstance or disease. It is under the control of Jesus. So, what am I to do?

2. the application: by faith I rest in His authority over my life Listen to what He said to Jairus (36). Those words are for me too, and for you. Don't be afraid; rest in Him. He controls life and death. Paul knew it; he wrote in Rom. 14:8, If we live, we live to the Lord; and if we die, we die to the Lord. So, whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. He is the Lord of the dead and the living! I can trust Him with my life and the lives of those I love, to do what He wills! Do you see it? Jesus has authority over circumstances and demons and diseases and death. He declared it openly in His miracles! How far does it go?

V. The Ultimate Application - Mt. 28:18-20 After the final and most convincing miracle of all, His own resurrection, He reiterated for His servants what He'd been demonstrating for them all along:

1. the lesson: He has all authority in heaven and earth Not just a little bit, but ALL, every bit of it. He is God and has complete and absolute control over everything. All authority is His and He exercises it. So how do I live?

2. the application: I can go in confidence to serve Him and make disciples, for He who has all authority is always with me. Are we at the end of the age? I don't know and it doesn't matter, because the One who has all authority in heaven and earth is with me right now. He is IN me right now. So I can serve Him without fear. I can proclaim His Good News to the world. I can make disciples. I can be involved in His work. And I can have the same peace that He had lying there asleep in the sinking boat, the peace of God that passes understanding, the knowledge and certainty that He is in absolute control of it all and I trust Him.

My friend, I don't know what your circumstances are today. I don't know what difficult circumstances, what storms of life you're facing. I don't know what enemies you face and what attacks come upon you. I don't know what suffering you may be enduring in your body. And I don't know whether you are staring death squarely in the face, whether for someone you love dearly or yourself. But I do know this: He is in control. He has authority over it. You don't need to be afraid; you can rest in His love. Trust Him! I've told you before the story of Gladys Aylward who was a missionary to China more than fifty years ago. She was forced to flee when the Japanese invaded Yangcheng. But she could not leave her work behind. With only one assistant, she led more than a hundred orphans over the rugged mountains toward Free China. During that harrowing journey, she grappled with despair as never before. After passing one sleepless night, she faced the morning with absolutely no hope of reaching safety. A 13-year-old girl in the group reminded her of their much-loved story of Moses and the Israelites crossing the Red Sea. "But I am not Moses," Gladys cried in desperation., "Of course you aren't," the girl said, "but Jehovah is still God!" Gladys and the orphans made it through. They proved once again that no matter how inadequate we are, God is still God, and we can trust in him. Jesus is Lord; He is Lord of all. Rest in His authority and get busy serving Him!

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

The Training Of The Servant's Followers 6:1-10:52

A Lesson About Response 6:1-32

At Chapter 6 we move into a second major section of Mark's Gospel. After a brief introduction, the first 5 chapters focused on Jesus' ministry to the multitudes in Galilee. However, time for Him was growing shorter and He knew it. In chapters 6-10, Jesus begins to devote more and more attention to training His followers, His disciples, equipping them with both the truths and the experiences they would need to continue after He left them. These chapters are a series of experiences which provide lessons for the disciples and you can watch Jesus drive those lessons home. He's obviously training them in life-lessons that a servant of God needs to know. The first lesson is a lesson about response, the response of people to a servant of God. The disciples had seen nothing but crowd after crowd of people flocking to Jesus, crowding and pushing to get near him, never giving Him a minute's peace. Overall, there was such a tremendous positive response to Jesus by the public because of the miracles He did. But it was an unrealistic picture. How quickly it would change! There would be a cross to face. The church, while it started with a bang and spread throughout the world, was by and large going to face a lot of rejection and persecution. That has always been the case with servants of God, even those who accomplished great things and yes, even the Moses' and Elijahs who have done miracles! A servant of God should certainly expect some positive response, but he should always be prepared to expect negative response as well. To begin to drive that lesson home, Jesus deliberately took His disciples along on a return visit to His home town of Nazareth so they could see:

I. The Response Of Those Who Had Known Him Personally (1-6a) Luke tells us He had visited there once before at the very beginning of His ministry, before He had any disciples, and they rejected Him so thoroughly that they tried to throw him off a cliff! So now, after He had become greatly popular throughout all of Galilee, He took His disciples back to Nazareth to get a dose of reality. Here were people who had known Him for 30 years; He'd grown up there as a boy and lived out the first part of His adult life there. It was a small town; they all had known Him personally and now He returned with the message of the Kingdom and even miracles. How did they respond?

1. they were struck by His knowledge and abilities (1-2) The word amazed here means "struck by a blow"; it hit them! This teaching He was doing, where did He get it? He never seemed to have that when He lived here? He hadn't been to some rabbinic school; where did He get all this wisdom? And the miracles; for 30 years He never did one of those. Now He's traveling all over Galilee healing people and casting out demons. The great difference, the tremendous wisdom and authority He displayed, knocked them over! But at the same time:

2. they were hindered by familiarity with His past and family (3) Jesus was a carpenter. For 15-20 years his place was at Joseph's carpenter's shop, working wood, building things, not teaching like this. Then comes an unusual remark, Isn't this Mary's son? That is characteristically un-Jewish. He would be Joseph's son. They knew and remembered what was, in their eyes, His illegitimate birth. He had brothers and sisters who still lived there among them and were just like them; none of them was like Jesus. They couldn't figure out where Jesus got all this wisdom and authority. It was either a supernatural act of God or a Satanic counterfeit and a fraud. But this familiarity was a real hindrance, so much so, that:

3. they chose to reject Him because of it (3b) Literally, they were made to stumble; they tripped over their own familiarity with Him and the mighty works that should have been the occasion of their believing became instead, the occasion of their rejecting Him. They chose to say, "This can't be real; this can't be true; we know better!" It was bizarre. In fact, Mark notes that:

4. Jesus marveled at their not-believing (6) He was astonished. After all, here's a man who stills storms, casts out demons, heals the sick and raises the dead. Wouldn't you believe that, at the very least, He was a messenger of God and God was at work through Him? Sure, you would. After seeing some of those things, it would be harder to not believe than to believe! But amazingly, they managed and so, Jesus did two things:

a. He spoke a proverb (4-5) He didn't quote it, at least not from a source I know of, but invented it: a prophet is not without honor except in his own hometown and among his relatives and in his own family. Everywhere else, at least somebody listens, somebody believes. But the familiarity of relationship keeps unbelieving people from recognizing the work of God. And rather than do miracles on the spot to force them to believe, He left without doing any, only healing a few believing sick folks along the way. So, in this whole incident:

b. He taught a principle Expect that those who have known you the best may respond the least, when you come back to them as a servant of Christ to share the message of the Gospel. Lamine Kante, whom we support today as a national missionary, was a Muslim in the country of Guinea. After studying the Scriptures, he accepted Christ. When he went to tell his wife, she said, "If you do, I will go back to my parents!" She packed her things and left and he went with her back to their village. She told his parents and the townspeople about his conversion. Two days later he fell sick; actually, he was poisoned. His wife and his parents and his neighbors left him lie alone in a hut. But God intervened after a week and brought healing to his body. The next morning, he walked outside and heard the people with his parents saying, "It is taking him too long to die!" He left the village and did not see his wife for two years! At last, she showed up and also gave her heart to Christ! Then God gave him the vision to go back to his own village of Telimele as a missionary! As soon as a few converts were made, the leaders began persecution. For a whole year he was not allowed to preach outside the courtyard of his own house! Gradually, over time the situation has improved and acceptance and even respect in the village has come, though there is still no mass conversion there. Why? A servant of God is not without honor except in his hometown, among his relatives and in his own family! How about you? Where do you find it the hardest to share and the least response? Why? A servant of God is not without honor except.... They stumble over the familiarity they have with you! Now we're going to momentarily skip to verse 14 and look at another kind of response:

II. The Response Of Those Who Heard About Him (14-29) Word about Jesus was everywhere; His name was on everybody's lips. He was a public figure and a household word, because of the miracles He was doing. People talked about Him like they talk about political figures or celebrities today. In the marketplace, sitting on the doorstep with the neighbors, around the dinner table, everybody talked about Jesus. And Mark records for us:

1. the speculation of the general public (14-15) Some folks thought He was a reincarnation of John the Baptist come back to life. John preached repentance like Jesus, but never did miracles. If he was raised from the dead, he might have miraculous powers. Maybe that's who Jesus was. Other folks said, "No, he is Elijah the miracle-worker come back to us, just like Malachi said he would! That's why He can do miracles." Then others were more rational and said, "No, he's just another in the line of the great prophets like Elijah or Jeremiah or Isaiah. God has sent another prophet to teach us." Of course, the Pharisees thought He was an agent of Satan possessed by a demon. Everybody always speculates about people that are famous, but that they don't really know. And it's not just famous people. It'll happen to you too. You're a servant of God. People who don't know you very well will see that you're different from them (whether you work miracles or not!) and try to figure you out. They'll speculate about you and form their opinions of what makes you tick and what's really going on. Some will see you as a religious fanatic who's gone off the deep end; some will see you as just another person full of the milk of human kindness; others will think you're out to get something. They'll speculate about you privately and quietly. And it's not limited to the common people. You see here:

2. the fascination of Herod with Jesus (16) Herod was the ruler, the tetrarch of Galilee under the Roman government. News reached his ears too and he bought into theory #1, the Baptist theory. Why? Because it fitted his own need! How? Well, in verses 17-29 we have a flashback, an explanation of:

a. what Herod had done with John (17-29) and you know the story. John had spoken out publicly about Herod's immoral marriage. He married his own niece who was his uncle's wife and got her to divorce his uncle by divorcing his own wife so he could marry her. No wonder John publicly lambasted them both! And he put John in prison to placate his wife, so you see in the story:

(1) his fascination with John (20) He was tantalized by what John had to say. He liked it, but it was confusing to his blinded immoral mind. Yet at the same time, you see:

(2) his fear of John He knew he was a righteous and a holy man and he didn't want to hurt him, but he had to live with his wife who hated his guts. So, he left him in prison, but one night it was his birthday and he'd had a little too much to drink and got his step-daughter to come into the party and do a lewd dance for the "boys". And while they were whistling and cheering at her, he wanted to look magnanimous and offered to let her name her reward. So, she asked for John's head on a platter and he was stuck. "Do I do what's right and protect John by refusing or do I play the big oriental macho king and deliver a head on a platter and look like I'm somebody!?" Of course, in the end, he made:

(3) his ultimate choice to sacrifice John (26) To keep his rash oath and impress his guests, he killed a servant of God! Why did Mark spend all this space on that story; what did it matter? Well, look:

b. what Herod later did with Jesus - Lk. 23:8-12 He had killed John before Jesus was so popular. But he was also fascinated with Jesus. He thought maybe he was John come back and doing miracles. He always wanted to see him and see a true miracle for himself. So, when Pilate sent Jesus to him, he made the same choice. There was a fascination but no faith and, when Jesus didn't produce, instead of standing up for the innocent Servant of God, he chose one more time to sacrifice him to the crowd! John's death foreshadows Jesus' death and Mark is pointing that out.

Servant of God, don't expect the general public to stand with you, to be on your side. They will speculate about you and try to figure you out. They may get fascinated with you, enamored of the things you do, awed by the skills you have, and be grateful for the help you may provide, but they will just as quickly turn on you and sacrifice you when it is convenient to their own need, just like Herod did to John and the people of Nazareth and even the whole Jewish nation did to Jesus. Never put your trust in the public, in people at large and how they will respond to what you have to share. But now, backing up to verse 6, you can see how Jesus prepared His disciples to go out on their own for a test run and we can talk about:

III. The Response Of Those Who Heard Through His Followers (6b-13, 30-32) The disciples had followed Him from village to village and watched His pattern of teaching. They had learned enough that they were ready themselves to declare the message, so He sent them out in pairs on a brief mission of their own to let them stretch their wings a bit and see how this servant business would go. But notice the things He said to them as He sent them, because they are likewise for us! First of all:

1. His servants were sent as His personal representatives (6b-7) They were sent on a mission by Him and:

a. they were given His authority (7) He had the power and authority to cast out demons and to heal. And He gave that authority to them to operate in. They could cast out evil spirits in His name. Matthew adds that they could heal disease. He conferred His authority on them, so that when they did His work, it was Him doing the work. But at the same time:

b. they were sent in utter dependence on Him (8-9) For this trip they were not to take anything extra, just the clothes they had on and the shoes they were wearing. They were not to pack a bag and extra shoes nor to reserve lodging ahead of time. They weren't even to pack a lunch, but simply to trust Him completely that they would be provided for as they had need, through people who would invite them to stay. Now, you or I would never go traveling like that and Jesus didn't mean to make that a permanent standard. It was specifically to teach them a lesson. Jesus reviewed it for them in the Upper Room before He died. Compare Lk. 22:35-36. What's the lesson? "You're My servants; trust in Me. Live in utter dependence on Me as you make your plans and you will lack nothing. You are my representatives, my Servants; I will take care of you! You go in My Name, dependent on My power and My provision!" Then, in the next breath:

2. His servants were warned to expect the same rejection He got There would be a two-fold response to their ministry just as there was to His:

a. by some they would be received (10) Some folks would believe the message and respond to them and care for them and take them in. But:

b. by others they would be rejected (11) There would be places like Nazareth, where people would not listen to them and would run them out of town. And Jesus said even more, which Matthew records (Mt. 10:16-18) and He continued on for a long while explaining the rejection His servants would experience. Hold that thought for a moment. What happened?

3. His servants obeyed and went (12-13) They went out two by two, just as He said, depending on Him and exercising His authority. What was the response?

a. they were at that time received by many who heard (30-32) It was evidently a positive response in most places. People responded at that time in droves and crowds, and Jesus' popularity was multiplied. Jesus' warning was not fulfilled on this trip and that shows us that it really wasn't FOR this trip. It was for later. He was talking about the time when they would be once and for all sent out as His followers into the world to reach it, after His resurrection, and at that time:

b. they were later rejected by many as Jesus had warned Every one of those things came true. They were not only ridiculed and asked to leave town in many places, but were sometimes arrested and handed over to local councils; they were flogged in synagogues. They did stand before kings like Agrippa and governors like Felix and give testimony of their faith.

Jesus taught His servants to expect treatment like He got! And He taught them what to do, to shake the dust off their feet and find somebody who would listen. They were to trust their rejecters' judgment to God and go find somebody else who was open to receive the truth. Jesus never went back to Nazareth. They had two opportunities to believe Him and receive Him, but when they refused, He went on to other villages where people would listen. He never quit. He told His followers to do the same, to expect some to stumble over familiarity and refuse to listen; to expect the public to speculate about them and maybe get enamored of them for a while. But don't let that put you off guard. The message of the cross is still foolishness to those that are perishing and you will receive negative responses. Expect it. Shake the dust off your feet and keep going. Leave it with God and go on serving those who will listen! You're His personal representative. You're on His mission and you have His authority to declare His message to people. And you can trust Him to sustain you, no matter what people do! When David Livingstone appeared at the University of Glasgow to receive the honorary doctor of law degree, he was received with silent respect. He was gaunt and weary from 16 years of exposure to Africa's hardships. One arm hung useless at his side because of an attack by a lion. Livingstone asked, "Shall I tell you what supported me through all those years of exile among a people whose language I could not understand and whose attitude toward me was always uncertain and often hostile? It was this: 'Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world.'" Jesus has all authority; He has sent us into the world to serve Him and He will always be with us to sustain us!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Followers: A Lesson About Responsibility 6:32-56

Today in our study, we come to one of the most tremendous and most public miracles Jesus ever did. He multiplied five loaves and two fishes to feed more than 5,000 hungry people. But Jesus never did anything without meaning and purpose. Practically everything Jesus did during this latter portion of His ministry was done specifically for the purpose of training His followers, to teach them important lessons that they needed to learn and remember. And so, this great miracle is more than just a miracle; it's a lesson about the responsibility that a servant of God has. It is:

I. His Powerful Lesson About Meeting The Needs Of The Multitude (32-44) Jesus' disciples had returned to Him from the little mission He'd sent them out on and things were so busy with people coming and going that He wanted to take them aside for a little while into a more private place to get some rest. So, together, they got into a boat and started rowing the four miles across the northwest corner of the Sea of Galilee to a quiet stretch of shoreline near Bethsaida. But people saw them going and were able to track their progress, and many of them ran the eight mile distance around the shore, gathering others from the towns along the way, so that when Jesus and the disciples pulled the boat up on shore and stepped out, there was this huge crowd of people, the last thing that they expected and the very thing they had hoped to avoid for a while. I can just see the disciples putting their hands over their faces and going, "Oh man, not more of them!" Have you ever been there? Not that you've ever had thousands of people follow you around, but have you ever just been tired of people and you want them to go away? I've been there (of course not with any of you!) Your patience grows thin, your energy is gone, your tolerance is at its limits and your thoughts go something like, "Can't you handle life without me? How come I have to be involved? Can't you just go away?" Now I don't really know whether the disciples thought that or not; I'm projecting a little of myself and of human nature into them, but I do know that Jesus didn't see people that way! And somehow:

1. we must learn to see people the way Jesus did (34) To Him they were like shepherdless sheep. That doesn't mean a whole lot to you and I, because most of us have never seen a shepherd and the only sheep we know are in the petting zoo. But let me remind you of just three things about sheep. First of all:

a. they cannot feed themselves They will eat what's in front of their noses and keep eating until it's gone and the earth is bare. They will eat what they can see but when there's nothing in sight, they don't have any facilities to locate more. They will wander aimlessly and may never find a fresh pasture or water to drink. They need a shepherd to lead them, a shepherd who knows where the green pastures and the quiet waters are. People are like that spiritually! They are starving and dying for spiritual truth, but they can't get it by themselves; it's not in them to find it. They don't know how or where to get it. They need someone to feed it to them. Jesus looked at that crowd and saw people with perishing souls, starving for the knowledge of God which would give them life. What's more:

b. they cannot direct themselves Sheep don't really know where they are or where they're going or how to get there. They have no plan; they wander aimlessly and often get lost. Jesus looked at that crowd and saw lost people going down paths of life that went in all directions, but all leading to destruction. People don't know how to live, how to choose, how to be a family, how to love, how to make it in life. Oh, they think they do, but without a shepherd, without someone to show and tell them, they're lost and following the ruts that the world has worn under their feet. And thirdly:

c. they cannot protect themselves Sheep have no claws, they can't run fast and their teeth don't bite very well. They have no defense. They flee in terror at the sight or sound of anything strange. Any old dog or coyote can kill a sheep at will, if the shepherd is not around. Jesus looked at that crowd and saw defenseless people. They could be devoured by any false teacher or Pharisee who came along. They could be hurt and abused by any Roman soldier at any time. For all the defenses they try to put up, people are really defenseless.

In a word, Jesus didn't see people's actions; He saw their needs! He saw them not as noisy and bothersome and aggravating, but his eyes looked deeper; they were helpless and hopeless and had nobody to protect them from harm, nobody to feed them spiritual truth, and nobody to show them how to live, nobody who cared about them, no shepherd. And that's how we must learn to see the people all about us and then:

2. we must learn to react to people the way Jesus did (34) How did He react? He was moved with compassion:

a. He was deeply touched by their plight Let me read you these lines by Philip Keller: The tenant sheepman on the farm next to my first ranch was the most indifferent manager I had ever met. He was not concerned about the condition of his sheep. His land was neglected. He gave little or no time to his flock, letting them pretty well forage for themselves as best they could, both summer and winter. They fell prey to dogs, cougars and rustlers. Every year these poor creatures were forced to gnaw away at bare brown fields and impoverished pastures. Every winter there was a shortage of nourishing hay and wholesome grain to feed the hungry ewes. Shelter to safeguard and protect the suffering sheep from storms and blizzards was scanty and inadequate. They had only polluted muddy water to drink...In their thin, weak and diseased condition these poor sheep were a pathetic sight. In my mind's eye I can still see them standing at the fence, huddled sadly in little knots, staring wistfully through the wires at the rich pastures on the other side. To all their distress, the heartless, selfish owner seemed utterly callous and indifferent. He simply did not care. What if his sheep did want green grass, fresh water, shade, safety or shelter from the storms? What if they did want relief from wounds, bruises, disease and parasites? He ignored their needs - he couldn't care less. Why should he - they were just sheep - fit only for the slaughterhouse. I never looked at those poor sheep without an acute awareness that this was a precise picture of those wretched old taskmasters Sin and Satan on their derelict ranch, scoffing at the plight of those within their power. That's how Jesus saw people. He didn't see a wicked woman taken in adultery who needed to be stoned; He saw a lost sheep, eating the weeds in front of her, with nobody to lead her to the truth that would bring life to her soul. He didn't see a greedy traitor of a tax collector making himself rich at poor people's expense, but a helpless sheep caught in the bushes of greed and unable to free himself. All of them, helpless sheep, destined for the slaughter and dying on the poor pasturage this world has to offer. How do you see the people around you? Are you touched by their needs? His heart was moved and so:

b. He involved Himself in meeting their needs He started to teach them and He didn't give up after one hour. He taught them all day until late afternoon. Their most important need was to hear the truth and He shared it with them freely, though He himself was tired and needed rest. We need to learn to react that way, to see people as needy and lost and helpless and throw ourselves into meeting those needs. That's what Jesus was showing His disciples by example. But that will only happen for us when:

3. we must learn to see our responsibility the way Jesus did All day long the disciples watched him teach and the sun went further and further down. Their stomachs were growling, I'm sure, and the question on their mind was where such a crowd as this was going to get food to eat out here in such a deserted area. So, they approached Jesus and interrupted Him with their idea. It represents:

a. the common view: let them go feed themselves (35-36) Send them away and let them go find themselves something to fill their needs in the nearby villages and towns. Of course, their dull brains can only think on the level of their stomachs at this moment. But that's pretty much how they saw the crowd, period: Ok, we've done enough to meet their needs. It's really up to them. We can't take care of everybody all the time. They are responsible for themselves and they need to go find bread. People should know better than to come out here without a lunch anyway. People should know better than to get trapped in drugs and alcohol; they should know better than to be immoral and catch AIDS; they should know better than to worship idols or bow down toward Mecca or let communism tell them there is no God. Everybody's ultimately responsible for themselves. If they don't find truth, too bad! I can't help it. Am I my brother's keeper? Sound familiar? Feel familiar? Go away, I don't want to be bothered with you and your needs! That's the response of human flesh to the needs of the world! But listen carefully to:

b. Jesus' view: you give them something to eat! Feed them! It is your responsibility. Don't send them away to help themselves. They're helpless sheep. YOU help them! You minister to them. You meet their needs. You tell them the good news. You heal their wounds and tend them in their diseases. You're the missing shepherd they need and I've put them in your path. If you love Me, feed my sheep! Boy was that a rude awakening to them; "5,000+ people here around us and we're responsible for them? We have to feed them?" As responsibility dawned on them and they considered it, they were unsure how to react. They had a mix of feelings. Yes, they didn't want the people to go hungry, but on the other hand, they felt a couple of other conflicting things. My friends, this is a whole lot bigger than a crowd in Galilee, 2000 years ago. This is Jesus' mission for us: He sets the world before us and says, "GIVE THEM SOMETHING TO EAT! FEED THEM! This isn't about bread; it's about the Bread of Life! They are helpless sheep with no shepherd and I have charged you with the responsibility of feeding them! YOU are responsible to help those poor sheep in your neighborhood. You are responsible to feed those sheep in your class in school, those sheep you work with in business." And ultimately, together the bread of life has been given to us and we are responsible to feed the millions and billions of starving sheep throughout the world with the knowledge of Jesus Christ. Six non-Christians die every minute throughout the world and it is our responsibility to get the Gospel to them so they can find life in the True Shepherd! But when we seriously consider our responsibility:

4. we will experience the ambivalence the disciples felt (37b) Yes, we want to see people have life, to see the whole world reached, but we also know:

a. the frustration of our pitifully small resources They'd already pondered the idea and had an estimate in their minds. It would take eight months wages to feed this crowd supper. At current rates, if you bought them each a Big Mac and a Coke it would have taken $20,000 plus. Where would they get that or where would we, for that matter? The need is so great; we are so few and we have so little compared to the need. How can our effort make any difference? But the NIV also tries to translate the tone of their reply? "Are we to spend that much?" Do you hear:

b. the unwillingness to sacrifice for the sake of others Should we give up that much, be willing to lose that much to give them bread? There's an element of sacrifice here. Taking responsibility for those around you costs something. It costs time. It costs energy. It costs money. It requires changing the focus of our life away from self. And, like the disciples, you and I might be a little hesitant to do that. That's our flesh. "How on earth can I make a difference?" often is accompanied by "I'm not sure I want to make a difference, that I'm ready to let go of my self-dreams and self-pursuits.", if we're honest. We're not sure we really want to be shepherds! Well, only God can deal with you on the point of willingness, but once we get past that, there is an exciting lesson here for us:

5. we must follow Jesus' method of meeting needs Jesus has a way that our pitifully small resources can make a difference in meeting the immense need of the shepherdless sheep in the world. Here it is. First:

a. we must examine the resources we do have (38) They hadn't even looked. Philip found a boy who was willing to part with the five little barley loaves and two small fish that were his lunch. It was nothing among 5,000, but it was SOMETHING! So often we waste our time focusing on what we DON'T have and what we CAN'T do. Jesus commanded them to look at the opposite: Go see what you do have and what you can do! They would have said, "We can feed two kids half a lunch to hold them over." We might say, "I can invite my neighbor for coffee, I can give time for that hurting person at work, I can pray 15 minutes every day for lost sheep, I can write to one international penpal, I can adopt one unreached people group, I can give $10 a month..." I don't know what you can do, but you can do something. Once you get the vision, Jesus points you to the mirror to look. What can you do; what have I given you that can help lost sheep? And once we find the things He's given us:

b. we must present them to Jesus for His use Matthew records Jesus' response: Bring them here to me! That's the key, "Lord, I don't have much, but I give what I have to you; it's yours to use to meet the need. Lord, here's my car, here's my computer, here's my time, here's my voice, here's my money. I see the responsibility, but this is all I have. I give it to you to use. Feed your sheep!" You see, here's the neat part:

c. we must trust Him to multiply them to meet the need (39-42, 44) He took those five little loaves and two little fish and looked up to heaven to the Father and presented them with thanksgiving and then broke them apart to share. And as He did, they multiplied in His hands over and over and over, until every person in that huge crowd had not only a small piece, but as much as he could eat! What a miracle! And Jesus has been doing it through His people over and over again through the centuries; did you know that? Martin Luther could not reach all of Europe with the truth that salvation is by grace alone, but he could nail a protest on the church door, so he did and God multiplied that. Through the sacrifices of Luther and others like Him Europe was turned upside down as the Protestant Reformation swept through. William Carey could not feed all the lost sheep of India but he could stand and preach sermons about our responsibility to reach the lost sheep and could go himself to reach some. And God took what he had to give and multiplied it, along with the sacrifices of others, into a mighty missions movement that swept the world and today is bringing over 100,000 people a day to Christ as believers all over the world take their little loaves and give them to Jesus! He takes our feeble efforts and gifts, small and insufficient, and changes the world through them, feeds the shepherdless sheep through them. And He will do it through you, my friend. He will use you to touch one who will touch two or three who will touch others and so, what you invest in ministry to people will be multiplied over and over again. However, note His warning:

d. we must not waste what He has provided for us (43) - Jn. 6:12 They picked up all the leftovers but John tells us why, because Jesus told them to. Let nothing be lost [or wasted]! We've been the recipients of what Jesus has multiplied through somebody else to us. We can't let what has been provided go to waste! We can't let it be lost to the Kingdom. We must channel it back into our purpose, feeding more sheep.

So, Jesus moved on from there, and you can see:

II. His Personal Example Of Meeting The Needs Of The Multitude (53-56) It happened to Him again and again. Everywhere there were more sheep and He gave Himself to meeting their needs. Notice just two points:

1. it was continual - ...wherever He went It was a habit of life, a way of life, to feed the sheep with the bread of life, to heal their broken hearts and lives and:

2. it was comprehensive - ...all who touched him It wasn't for the select few. It was for all. All who would touch Him. All who would listen. He made it available to everyone.

What an example to us of a lifestyle of caring about and ministering to lost helpless people? That's our responsibility. Will you ask Jesus to give you His view of the people around you, to let you see with His eyes? Will you present what you have to Jesus and let Him use it however He wants to touch people with it? No, you can't do it all. But you can commit yourself to do what you can do, and Jesus will multiply that. A young man, walking along the beach at dawn, noticed an old man ahead of him picking up starfish and flinging them into the sea. Catching up with the man, the youth asked what he was doing. The answer was that the stranded starfish would die if left until the morning sun. "But the beach goes on for miles, and there are millions of starfish," countered the young man. "How can your effort make any difference?" The old man looked at the starfish in his hand, and then threw it to safety in the waves." It makes a big difference to this one," he said. Somebody once wrote this prayer; may it become ours:

*Oh, give me, Lord, Thy love for souls, For lost and wand'ring sheep,
That I may see the multitudes and weep as Thou didst weep.
Help me to see the tragic plight of souls far off in sin;
Help me to love, to pray, and go to bring the wand'ring in.
From off the altar of Thy heart take Thou some flaming coals,
Then touch my life and give me, Lord, A heart that's hot for souls.
O Fire of Life, O Flame divine, make thy abode in me:
Burn in my heart, burn evermore, till I burn out for Thee.*

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Followers: A Lesson About Legalism 7:1-23

After seeing Jesus feed 5,000 people with five loaves and two fish and then watching Him heal the sick time after time, you would think that everyone would be just hanging there with their jaws open in amazement. Who could possibly nitpick and complain and criticize after seeing that? Well, there were some and Jesus heard from them soon after. They were people who were caught up in a belief called legalism. Now legalism is a subtle, nebulous, underlying kind of thing, so I wrote out a definition for you to help you and I think clearly together. Legalism is the belief that performance makes me acceptable to God. What I do, how I act, how I look, is the basis on which God likes or doesn't like me. His rating scale is graded and my performance determines the degree to which I am accepted. Now, in an unsaved person who doesn't know and believe that Jesus paid it all, the issue is simply getting to heaven. Salvation is by works, period. That's raw legalism and true Christians of all stripes repudiate that! Salvation is purely a gift by grace; it is not earned or deserved. But you see, even after we wake up to that one area, legalism is still very much a part of the way we have learned to behave and to see God, a part of our flesh, if you will, and we can and do still very much operate by it in all the other areas of our Christian life. Only I am no longer performing for salvation, simply for acceptance and approval from my Heavenly Father. How good a child I am to Him depends on how well I perform! He's still rating me in that area. Now, how that belief affects me, depends on how well I think I'm doing. If I don't think I'm doing so well, it may rob me of the depth of my relationship with God. However, if I think I'm doing very well, it will usually lead to pride and eventually to comparing myself to others and, ultimately, to being critical and self-righteous toward them. And that, my friends, is what creates a Pharisee in Jesus' day or ours! Let's look at:

I. Jesus' Confrontation With Legalism (1-5)

1. the accusation of the legalists (1-4) As incredible as this may seem to us, the Pharisees and teachers of the law were able to ignore the mighty miracles. What they noticed was that Jesus' followers sat down to eat without washing their hands. Now before I alienate our Nursery School teachers who are also really big on washing your hands, let me hasten to explain, as Mark does for his readers, that this whole thing was not about eating with dirt on your hands. Years earlier, the practice had begun among very religious Jews of ceremonially washing your hands before eating, in case you had touched anything that was ceremonially unclean. It meant dipping them in water and holding them up so that it ran down all the way to the wrist. For instance, what if you had shaken hands or simply touched someone who, unknown to you, was ceremonially impure, for example, a Gentile or a woman who had her period or somebody with a bleeding sore or even someone who had normal marital relations with their spouse the night before. They were unclean and when you touch them their uncleanness is transmitted to you. So, you must purify yourself. When they came home from the marketplace, having touched many people in the crowd, they would bathe! The rabbis had developed 18 decrees intended to keep the good Jew from all defilement and impurity, and among these were intricate instructions for the washing of various types of cups and pitchers and kettles, and other items. It was known as the oral tradition, the teaching of the elders, and was later written down and recorded as part of the Mishnah and the Talmud. Jesus' disciples were breaking this important tradition and the Pharisees were quick to point it out. Now notice:

2. the beliefs underlying the accusation (5) Two issues bothered them. The first is the issue of:

a. authority: Why don't you obey the tradition of the elders? This is what we've been taught and we respect our teachers; why don't you? You see, under legalism obeying what I'm taught makes me acceptable to God.

That's why Jesus ruffled their feathers all the time. He was forever breaking, not the Word of God, but the traditions that everybody was following and if obeying those traditions is the measure of my acceptance and you're telling people they don't have to do that, then you're a threat to my whole performance-based system, aren't you? And the second issue here is:

b. defilement: You eat your food with "common" hands, hands that have lost their purity and holiness by contact with the outside world. Under legalism, contact with anything impure corrupts me before God. I must stay pure and clean to be acceptable and I can't touch anything or anyone that might stain that, because it makes me less acceptable.

And there you have the two major traits of legalism even today: rule-following and separating themselves from everybody who's not exactly like them! And believe me, it didn't die with the Pharisees; in its Christian form it's alive and well today! It's one of the chief tools that Satan is using to ruin the mission of the Church all over the world! One of our missionaries told us how the Baptist Churches in Russia that survived the communist era have such a problem with this and shared the story of how he had personally taken a whole group of 10 or 20 new believers to one church and none of them were allowed to come in, because several of the women were wearing pants! Why not? Because women wearing pants breaks the rule we've been taught and we must be faithful and keep the standard that has been passed down to us and further, if we let those unspiritual pants-wearers come in here, it would make us like them, make us party to their uncleanness and corrupt us! One elder was removed from office because his daughter wore an earring. Rule-following and separatism! And it's not only over there! There's plenty of it right here! The issues range from pants and jewelry and makeup to the use of Bible translations and down to much more subtle issues like particular interpretations of the scripture where we must believe the right "facts" (though they're not actually God's Word but systems of teaching begun by men) to be spiritual. It's everywhere and it's even here in our own hearts sometimes. Now Jesus had absolutely no time for that sort of thing, so He addressed both issues for the benefit of His disciples. First:

II. Jesus Exposes The Legalistic View Of Authority (6-8) He attacks their view of authority, using a quote from Isaiah that fit them to a T. These guys were already so far into legalism that there was no turning back, so by looking at His comments directed to them, you can see:

1. where it eventually leads (7b-8) Legalism always starts out good. It starts out with a sincere desire to obey and please God. But when you believe that performance is what counts, it eventually leads:

a. to teaching rules created by men rather than truths given by God The Jews had started with good intentions. They had read the law and the things God had given Moses for them about avoiding uncleanness. But, because of their performance mindset, they wanted to be sure that they didn't break any of God's rules, so they added additional rules that were clearer and more direct and more restrictive to make sure they were within the bounds of acceptability. For instance, God had told Israel not to work on the Sabbath day. Now what is work? Is that your job? Is it making supper? Is it gathering sticks for a fire? Is it lifting up something that the wind blew over? It would be so much easier to obey if it was only more specific. So, they invented rules about things like that. But eventually, the rules that men made took on a life of their own. They became the things that were important rather than the truth God had given for their good. They were widely accepted and became part of the culture. How sad that their teachings were reduced from Divine truth to man-invented ideas! But the worst part is that it eventually leads:

b. to rejecting Divine commands in favor of human teachings Ultimately the Divine truths are forgotten and when they resurface, things have gotten so out of whack that they conflict with the human rules of what you have to believe and do and performance-based human beings usually choose to reject truth for rules, to throw it away! That's where it always goes! The authority of the men who taught you what you know and the power of the pull of the system you're caught up in is so great that you simply deny what goes against it. If you're a performer, you're eventually left standing there holding tightly to humanly invented ideas of behavior and pushing away from you the very truth of God which you claim you hold. Jesus gave them an example:

3. Jesus' illustration: the Corban vow (9-13) Now everybody knew and quoted:

a. the command of God - honor your father and mother... (10) Parents are important and God commands that they are to be honored and respected and cared for. But the Jews had developed an interesting:

b. the tradition of men - Corban! It is given to God! (11) If you wanted to be pious, the Jews had developed a custom whereby you could dedicate something to God, a portion or all of your property or goods. You would pronounce the word corban, meaning it is a gift to God, over it in the presence of witnesses and so would make a vow. And that item belonged to the Temple thereafter. In many cases it was much like a will, "When I die, my land goes to the Temple, my money goes to the Temple, and so on. So, here's a guy who is pious and wants to please God and dedicates everything he has to the Temple. Then his parents get sick or get older and can't care for themselves and he has to take care of them. But all his reserves and all he has have been promised under oath to the temple. What should he do? The Pharisees had an answer:

c. the choice to disobey God in order to obey men (12) The keeping of the oath is more important than caring for the parents. The Temple is more important than the people. Consequently, it's not even that he wouldn't take it back on his own; they wouldn't let him! They forced him to disobey God and let his own parents suffer to keep their own human tradition! And it wasn't just this one thing:

d. the extension of the problem (13) They did many things like that. That reasoning was everywhere. The Word of God was being overlooked and disobeyed in the name of following religious pious performance and gaining the approval of the group! One rather large branch of Christendom is especially obvious for this. It is a sin to say or believe that Jesus had brothers and sisters, that Mary had any other children, though Mark 6:3 plainly says He had brothers and sisters. For centuries clergy have been forbidden to marry and for years no red meat was allowed to be eaten on Fridays, even though 1 Tim. 4:3 warns clearly about false teachers who would come in the future saying, They forbid people to marry and order them to abstain from certain foods, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and who know the truth. - 1Tim 4:3. And verse 19 of our text clearly says "Jesus declared all foods clean!" But some other branches have not been much better. They have declared at one time or another that dancing is sinful, though Psalm 150 commands us to praise God with the timbrel and dance! Or they have said that no believer may ever touch a drop of wine when Jesus commanded His disciples to use it as the very symbol and reminder of His precious blood! Oh, when we think that we must perform to please God, we make rules and rules become idols and we obey them rather than God. Every time! That's where it leads and look:

2. what it accomplishes (6-7a) It does two things:

a. it breeds hypocrisy - outward acting without inner reality Jesus calls them hypocrites, the Greek word for an actor, one who wears the mask and acts like somebody even though that's not who he really is! If you have to perform to please God, much of the time you're going to go through the motions, to follow the rules even though you hate it on the inside. And further:

b. it empties worship - makes it an act, not an attitude of the heart "Your worship is empty, without meaning; it's an act of the hands, not of the heart and the heart is what I want," Jesus says. Thousands upon thousands of worshippers go through motions of performance in America every Sunday (and some days you and I are among them!), simply for the reason that that's what you have to do to please God, or so they've been told, but their hearts are far from Him! So what's:

The Point: Focus on loving God because He's already accepted you! If you set your mind on performing for God and earning His acceptance, you're dead in the water. You're already accepted in the Beloved One, Jesus. Believe that. Bask in that. Enjoy that. Now focus on loving Him back as He loves you. Love Him for loving you. And if you love Him, your heart will worship Him and your actions will line up with His Word because your heart loves Him. Jesus said clearly that all the commandments in the law hang on the first one, You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart... If you love Him, you'll live in loving service and your life will line up with His Word. Focus on that, on staying in love with Him and it will keep you from the trap of legalism. Those man-made rules will be seen for the lies they are: Jesus won't love you unless you go to church, unless you pray, unless you read three chapters a day, unless you dress right and listen to slow music and so on and on! John McArthur wrote this in his book Our Sufficiency In Christ: Many years ago, a college acquaintance said to me, "I don't think you're a very spiritual person." I was puzzled because he didn't know me well enough to come to that kind of conclusion, so I asked him why he said that. "Because you don't go to mid-week prayer meetings," he answered. "What does that have to do with my spirituality?" I responded. "For all you know I might spend all day and all night in prayer." "No," he said, "spiritual people attend prayer meetings." How many of us have said things or at least thought things just like that? Do you see the trap? It is not the Divine communion with God but the man-made practice of going to a meeting which became the measure of spirituality. Col. 2:16-17, Therefore do not let anyone judge you by what you eat or drink, or with regard to a religious festival, a New Moon celebration or a Sabbath day. These are a shadow of the things that were to come; the reality, however, is found in Christ. And not only don't let others judge you; don't judge them that way. Focus on loving Him, not on performing for Him! Then your worship will be real and true, from the heart and what you are on the outside will match what you are on the inside. Now that brings us to the second part of Jesus' reply where:

IV. Jesus Corrects The Legalistic Concept Of Defilement (14-23) Jesus made sure the crowd and then His own disciples heard it loud and clear. He laid out a two-fold principle about this whole idea of what defiles you, what makes you common and unclean and unworthy before God. And here it is:

1. things outside a person do not defile him by contact You can eat mud; you can eat garbage. You can smear trash all over your body or fall in a cesspool. Those things may make you physically dirty and give you germs but nothing on the outside can defile you before God by being in contact with you. Why?

a. they have no effect on the heart (spirit) If you're a child of God with a brand new spirit and a clean heart, not one iota of that stuff can ever touch it. The things you eat nourish you and pass right on through. The things you touch merely soil the skin. Nothing touches the spirit and so:

b. they have no effect on his acceptability to God Paul said this about eating meat that had been offered to idols, But food does not bring us near to God; we are no worse if we do not eat, and no better if we do. - 1 Cor 8:8, None of that stuff has any effect on our status a child of God or on how pleased He is with us as His children. For years the debate among Christians was things like, "Do I go to movies? Do I eat in a restaurant that also serves liquor? Am I sinning if I have a glass of wine with my spaghetti dinner?" The whole idea was this, "If I touch anything that there is any chance God might not approve of, it will defile me before Him; it will ruin my performance before Him!" But that's not what God is concerned about. Man looks on the outward appearance, but God is busy looking where? At the heart! So, Jesus said:

2. things inside a person defile him by coming out It's not what goes in but what comes out. You see:

a. sin is what defiles a person before God In the unbeliever the presence of sin lives in and controls the very spirit of the person, the heart. That's why Jesus has to get rid of that one and give you a new one when He saves you! He can't dwell in a sinful spirit! But even as a believer, the presence of sin still lives, not in your spirit, but in your body and it is still trying to get you to let it control you, to serve it as your master. And when you choose to let it, the:

b. sin inside manifests itself externally in thought and behavior What a list in verses 21-22! When those immoral, awful, evil things show up in your thoughts and your behavior, they are evidence of the presence of sin reigning in you and evidence that you are defiled! If they show up continually, they are evidence that you have never been transformed by the power of Christ and made clean in your heart! If they show up in your life as a believer, they are evidence that you are yielding yourself to the wrong master, letting sin reign like a king in your mortal body. You are acting like what you aren't, behaving below your identity like any common human being, instead of the child of God you really are! So, what's the point:

The Point: Focus on allowing Him to manifest His character through you! Stop focusing on what touches you and separating yourself from everything and anybody so you don't "catch any dirt". You can't hide in this nice little Christian enclave of friends and keep yourself unsoiled and when it's all done, say, "Here I am God, I'm clean. Nothing unclean has ever passed these lips or touched these hands. Look at how shiny I've made myself for you!" That's what legalistic performance turns you into! But God looks inside and what He wants is to develop the fruit of His presence, His Spirit in your life. He wants to manifest His character, His love, His joy, His peace, His gentleness, His goodness, His kindness, all those things through your body! He can only do it if you submit to His control, if you say each day and, in each situation, "Lord, here I am, I'm yours, live through me!"

Oh, what a lesson. It took the disciples years to fully grasp it, until after Acts 15! But then it took me a lot of years to grasp too. I was in the ministry 15 years or so before God really began to show me how caught up in legalism some of my thinking had been and how much I stressed performance, and I began to let go of some of that and to get free of it! Don't let it take that long for you! Start today to focus on loving God rather than "doing" for Him and focus on yielding to His control rather than "trying harder" to be holy. God loves you; you're His child. All He really wants is for you to love Him and give yourself to Him fully just as He has given Himself fully to you. Will you do it?

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Followers: A Lesson About People 7:24-37

How many of you enjoy watching the Olympics? I think one of the neatest parts of the whole experience is watching things like the opening and closing ceremonies where you have people from every nation swaying back and forth to music with each other in what looks like such perfect harmony, listening to songs about bringing peace and love to all the world. It's almost like a little three week millennium where lions and lambs all rest in peace with each other and the world is the way we might wish it were. The problem is that the real world is not like that at all. One of Satan's oldest strategies is to divide. Almost as soon as God separated the peoples of the world at the tower of Babel, Satan went to work building walls between the groups, raising partitions of hostility to keep them at odds with and away from each other. Not only has it been a way to inflict suffering on human beings which delights him no end, primarily, it keeps the Good News of Jesus Christ from being shared easily from group to group. Thus it keeps people in spiritual darkness and bondage. In Joseph's day, it was detestable for Egyptians to eat with Hebrews. Today millions of Arabs would like nothing better than to wipe Israel off the map and it still takes tremendous pressure to get them to sit down at the same table. For generations in South Africa, it was official policy called apartheid that the white race was superior to the blacks and the only one fit to rule! In 1992 the Muslim government of Sudan declared holy war against the 20% of its population in the south who were not Muslim. 3 million people died over 3 decades in this tension; 10,000 women and children were kidnapped and sold as slaves. That's the real world, friends! And if we're honest, the same kinds of walls have existed here. Though we outlawed slavery at the cost of a great civil war, the wall between blacks and whites was still pretty high until my generation and it's still there today! For more than 50 years, Russia, Eastern Europe, and later China were to us the enemy, in a great cold war which kept us apart and kept the Gospel from millions of people. It was easy to listen to prophecy teachers talk about the great Russian/Arab confederacy of Ezekiel 38 and Daniel 11 and not think of them as people but as enemies who will eventually be destroyed (and good, they deserve it!) There is no group of people on this earth which does not have its prejudices, its walls of hostility which divide it from others. And the world into which Jesus came was no different.

I. The Dividing Walls Of Hostility Which Jesus Destroyed - Listen to Paul's description of his world in these passages: Therefore, remember that formerly you who are Gentiles by birth and called "uncircumcised" by those who call themselves "the circumcision" ...For he himself is our peace, who has made the two one and has destroyed the barrier, the dividing wall of hostility - Eph. 2:11, 14. The Jews saw the world as Jew and Gentile, circumcised and uncircumcised. The Greeks did too, Here there is no Greek or Jew, circumcised or uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave or free, but Christ is all, and is in all. - Col. 3:11. Those who did not know Greek language and culture were barbarians, non-Greeks, and the Scythians (the Russians!) were the worst and wildest of the bunch! Gal. 3:28, There is neither Jew nor Greek, slave nor free, male nor female, for you are all one in Christ Jesus. In Paul's culture, slaves were less than free people and women less than men. Just look at the words and you can see what separates people from one another. There is:

1. the racial barrier ...Greek, Gentile are racial terms. People look different from us. Their skin is a different color and their features inferior and unattractive to our eyes. Then there is:

2. the cultural barrier ...uncircumcised is a cultural term, a national practice of Israel that set her apart. People have strange customs and clothing. They eat with their hands out of a common bowl and eat things that are revolting! Then there's:

3. the language barrier ...barbarian means a non-Greek speaker, even if he's moral and educated. People don't talk like we do, even if they learn our language, and we certainly wouldn't want to learn theirs! And finally, there's:

4. the religious barrier The KJV and the hymns are full of words like ...heathen, pagan, infidel. People are idol-worshippers; they worship false gods and, in the process, do things that are abominable to us!

These same barriers are no less present in our own day and in our own lives. We are prejudiced people in our hearts in many ways, if we will dare to look into them, just as people anywhere and everywhere have always been. One Christian author from the Middle East wrote, Most Christians have as much compassion for Muslims today as first-century Jews did for the Samaritans. At best we show only apathy and carelessness.... The Western church has a tendency to look down on all non-western cultures. This lack of sensitivity or concern for their souls must be turned upside down by the Spirit of God if we are ever going to reach them! Jesus knew that and I believe that's why, in our text, He took His disciples on an extended:

II. Jesus' Mission Into Gentile Territory He deliberately left Galilee and went north and west along the sea coast into an area where only Gentiles lived. He went to Tyre and then to Sidon, port cities of Phoenicia (then ruled by Syria). He swung in a big arc around to the Sea of Galilee and down into the Gentile territory east of Jordan, known as the Decapolis, the "Ten Cities". This trip, no doubt, took weeks and I believe that it was a deliberate lesson to His disciples, showing them His compassion and desire to minister to non-Jewish people. To them, this trip carries all the connotations that a missions trip to Russia or to Indonesia would for us, even though it was nearby. And Mark records three major events that happened on that trip:

1. He freed the daughter of a Gentile woman (24-30) from demon possession and brought her to faith. Then:

2. He opened the ears of a Gentile man (31-37) who was deaf and partially mute and brought he and many others to faith. Finally:

3. He fed the mouths of a Gentile crowd (8:1-10) The 4,000 he fed were Gentile idolaters, not the 5,000 who were mostly Jews of Galilee He fed earlier, and look what He says in 8:2! He has the same compassion on this hungry crowd of Gentiles that He had for the other one!

This trip was designed to teach His disciples that: "People are people. I love them all. I want them all. Red and yellow, black and white, they are precious in My sight. I want to free them and heal them and feed them. I don't see them as Jew and Gentile, Greek or barbarian, capitalist or communist, white or black, high or low class, clean or dirty. They are people and they need a shepherd!" So, let's look briefly at the first two of these events and the lessons they contain about people.

III. His Parabolic Lesson In Helping The Woman (24-30) This woman was not only from a Gentile area but, according to Matthew, was of the Canaanite race, which to the Jews, of course, was cursed. The last verse of Zechariah says of the Kingdom, ...on that day there will no longer be a Canaanite in the house of the LORD Almighty. - Zech. 14:21. She was an idolater whose people had worshipped Baal and Ashtoreth and probably still did. Yet she approached Jesus in a most interesting way:

1. the woman's approach ...Son of David have mercy on me - Mt. 15:22 records the greeting. She calls him by his Jewish title, the title of the Jewish Messiah, Son of David! She isn't just looking for some miracle-working magician of any stripe. She was looking to the God of Israel through His Anointed One in faith to set her daughter free from demonic bondage. She saw it as an act of mercy, of stooping to care about a poor Canaanite woman who didn't deserve notice. But when Jesus did not answer her right away, she was persistent. She begged and pleaded with Him repeatedly to heal her daughter, but He did not respond at first. Now, Matthew also records:

2. the disciples' reaction ... Send her away; she's bothering us - Mt. 15:23 This is the reason I think Jesus waited. He wanted to see what they would say, what they would do. Would they say, "Master, please help her! Hear her cry! She has no hope but you!"? No. They said, "Master, she's annoying and bothersome. Tell her to go away!" What attitude is showing? "Canaanites are not really people, like we are. They are not worth helping, worth caring about. If her daughter is demonized, she deserves it, the old idolater!" If we can just categorize people by race, religion, language or culture, we can reduce them to being less than us somehow, not as fully human and as fully worthwhile as we are. Jesus' response is quite shocking and unexpected to us. He told a:

3. Jesus' parable ...Children must eat before pets (27) The setting here is a supper table and the family is gathered around. All the children are hungry and the food is set out. The family pets, the little dogs (Greek kunaron, not the curs that roam the streets) are also there by the table waiting to be fed. But what father will take the food that was set out for the children's plates and give it to the doggies instead. No, the children get to eat all they want and then the dogs are fed out of what is left. Children must eat before pets. Isn't that right? Or do your pets sit at the table like one of the family? Jesus was not being derogatory or offensive in His reply. He simply:

a. it taught the order of God's plan God had a plan. Jesus was sent to His own first, to the Jew first. That's how Paul saw it too, I am not ashamed of the gospel, because it is the power of God for the salvation of everyone who believes: first for the Jew, then for the Gentile. - Rom. 1:16. That's not a statement about who's worth more or who God loves more. God's plan was to give the knowledge of Himself through His Son first to the Jews because of the covenant relationship He had made with them, and then to the Gentiles. Matthew mentions one more phrase that Jesus spoke, I was sent only to the lost sheep of Israel. They are the children and they have to get first opportunity until they are full before I move on in the plan! You would think she might have gotten angry but instead:

b. it elicited a response of genuine humble faith (28) Even the pet doggies get to eat the crumbs that fall under the table before it's their feeding time! "I'm not going to argue about what I need or deserve. I'd be happy to be God's pet, much less his child! I wouldn't want to change God's plan and have Him do things any other way, but I trust Him and couldn't I please just have a leftover crumb of His goodness and mercy ahead of time!" Oh, Jesus had been holding back. All along He cared about this woman and her little suffering daughter. He wanted to help. When she put the lesson that He wanted to teach His disciples so clearly, He couldn't hold out any longer! He praised her faith and granted her request immediately. He didn't even make her wait until He could walk home with her; He cast that demon out from a distance so the girl wouldn't suffer one moment longer and when her mother got home, she was resting peacefully! Do you see the lesson? Being made a child of God is an undeserved privilege of infinite measure. It is not something I can get proud about and look down on others. There is nothing in me that made Him choose to work in my life. It is all by grace! But there are others who are not His children, yet he loves them and cares for them and He wants to take the food, the crumbs of the rich knowledge that He's given you and I, and feed others so they too can become children! You see this whole scene:

c. it demonstrated God's intention to reach Gentiles In God's timing, within a few years the Jew was basically set aside. Nationally, Israel's privileges were over until the Kingdom comes. It wasn't that God didn't plan to feed the pets too. He did, and very soon the time came! And for this whole church age God has been busy, as Paul put it, calling out from among those despised heathen Gentiles like us, a people for His name! He was showing them that there are crumbs of blessing enough for this woman and her daughter and for this man and for this crowd and for the world! God loves these people that you don't love, these people on the other side of the walls, these people of a different race and culture and language and religion, and He wants to take the walls down. More specifically, He wants YOU to take the walls down and share love and the message of Jesus with them so that He can make them His children and they will be one with you, because in His Church all those walls are down, all those distinctions are past and gone; we are all one in Christ Jesus! The Church that will be around His throne is not Jewish or Gentile, black or white, Chinese or American, but simply one body of redeemed human beings transformed by His grace!

And here's what He wants to do for them right now. Look at:

IV. His Symbolic Lesson In Healing The Man (31-37) There is more to this than just another healing among the many that Jesus did. Mark alone singled out this man and this incident to record it. Why? Because I think:

1. he symbolized the state of Gentiles: unable to hear or to speak properly You could talk to him all day long but he couldn't hear because his ears were unable to hear. And because of that, he was unable to speak right things about Jesus or anything else. That's the state that the whole Gentile world, including our own ancestors, was in at that time. Listen to Paul, Therefore, remember that formerly you who are Gentiles by birth and called "uncircumcised" by those who call themselves "the circumcision" (that done in the body by the hands of men)-- remember that at that time you were separate from Christ, excluded from citizenship in Israel and foreigners to the covenants of the promise, without hope and without God in the world. - Eph. 2:11-12. Like this man, all we who are Gentiles were without hope and without God in the world. Only the Jews had the knowledge of God. And even if they wanted to, nobody could tell us because we couldn't hear. We were dead in trespasses and sins and separated from the life of God. We had no hope! But look how:

2. Jesus symbolized the process of reaching Gentiles in dealing with this man. Note three things:

a. communication precedes understanding Why did Jesus go through all these motions? Sticking his fingers in his ears, spitting on the ground, touching his tongue, looking up to heaven. Was this some magic formula connected with the healing? No, I think Jesus was simply using sign language. He was communicating with the man: "I'm going to touch your ears and your tongue; I'm going to pray to God!" Communication is the first step. If we are ever going to reach those on the other side of our walls, we must start where they are and communicate with them, share with them at whatever level they can grasp. However, the bottom line is:

b. God must provide ability to hear God must open their ears; He must make them able to grasp and understand truth. He must reveal it to them. Or to use another metaphor, For God, who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," made his light shine in our hearts to give us the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ. - 2 Cor. 4:6. That's the way it was for us; God turned the light on in our hearts so that we could see and grasp His glory and know Him. And He must do it for them too, as we communicate. But:

c. the result is a change in hearing and corresponding speech When God opens their ears, they will hear and then they will speak rightly of God and the world. Just look what happened, not only to this man, but to many others of the crowd around. The miracle had:

3. His intended effect Matthew says...they praised the God of Israel - Mt. 15:31 Gentiles, once far away and without hope, praising the true and living God. That's what this trip and this lesson were all about. No more walls!

Oh, how Jesus wanted His disciples to get that lesson, to see that the day of favoritism and separatism was ending and that God loves people from all races and cultures and languages and religions and wants them to become His own children through faith in Christ. But sadly, it took them years to grasp it. A long time later, God had to give Peter a vision from heaven to convince him of that and send him to the house of a Gentile named Cornelius. And as he stood there and saw a Roman soldier begging to know the truth of God, the light went on for him and this is what he said in Acts 10:34-35, I now realize how true it is that God does not show favoritism but accepts men from every nation who fear him and do what is right. God loves and wants Jew and Gentile, barbarian, Scythian, slave and free, male and female! They can all come; He wants them all to come, to be leveled out as simple human beings loving a Savior at the foot of the cross. In "The Whisper Test," Mary Ann Bird writes: I grew up knowing I was different, and I hated it. I was born with a cleft palate, and when I started school, my classmates made it clear to me how I looked to others: a little girl with a misshapen lip, crooked nose, lopsided teeth, and garbled speech. When schoolmates asked, "What happened to your lip?" I'd tell them I'd fallen and cut it on a piece of glass. Somehow it seemed more acceptable to have suffered an accident than to have been born different. I was convinced that no one outside my family could love me. There was, however, a teacher in the second grade whom we all adored--Mrs. Leonard by name. She was short, round, happy--a sparkling lady. Annually we had a hearing test. ...Mrs. Leonard gave the test to everyone in the class, and finally it was my turn. I knew from past years that as we stood against the door and covered one ear, the teacher sitting at her desk would whisper something, and we would have to repeat it back--things like "The sky is blue" or "Do you have new shoes?" I waited there for those words that God must have put into her mouth, those seven words that changed my life. Mrs. Leonard said, in her whisper, "I wish you were my little girl." Oh, God is just like that teacher. He whispers to every human being deformed by sin, unable to hear and to speak right, "I wish you were my son" or "I wish you were my daughter." And God needs people that will be just like Him, who will take down their walls and love people who are different, who will see them as worthy and valuable in His sight, who will accept them the way God has made them and love them with His love and communicate with His truth so that God can open their ears and make them His children. My friend, search your heart. Ask God to show you the walls that are there in your life, where others are somehow beneath you or less than you. They're there! Ask Him to tear them down!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Followers: A Lesson About Provision 8:1-26

When you were in school, did you ever take a test and have a question that you got wrong and then that same question showed up again on the next test and you got it wrong all over again? Well, even if we've never done it in a school classroom, most of us have done it a number of times in the classroom of life. At one point, Jesus put a crowd of 5,000 hungry people in front of His disciples. Their response was, "Send them away!" but Jesus said, "Wrong! You feed them!" And He taught them that tremendous lesson about how He can multiply bread or anything else we have to offer, if we give it to Him to meet the needs of people. Then some months later, at a different time and place, Jesus put a crowd of 4,000 hungry people in front of His disciples and left them respond. Do you think they got it right this time? Of course not! But before we criticize them, let's look into the mirror of the Word for ourselves a little bit, concerning this area of provision. First, I want you to notice carefully:

I. The Compassion Of Jesus For The Needs Of His Followers (1-3) Jesus was still on His mission trip in Gentile territory in the Decapolis across Jordan; this was a crowd of Gentiles who had come to listen to Him and believed. The effect was tremendous. They had come from all over this wide area; some of them had traveled for miles to meet Him in this remote region. And they didn't go home. They just slept on the ground and stayed for more. At this point they had stayed for three whole days; whatever lunches and provisions they had brought with them were long since exhausted. Now observe that Jesus:

1. He was aware of their physical needs (not just spiritual) He knew they were hungry and in a state of fasting because of the desire to hear His words. He knew they had a long way to go and nowhere to buy food. None of this escaped His notice! I am reminded of what He taught his own disciples earlier, ...your Father knows what you need before you ask him. - Mat. 6:8. A good Father is always aware of the needs of His children; a good Shepherd is always aware of the needs of His flock. And Jesus is aware of every single thing that you need before you need it, and even before you know that you need it. And not just spiritual things, but physical and emotional things too! Further:

2. He was aware of the consequences of those needs He knew that if He sent them away hungry, some of them were weak and would faint and never get home. How many times do we think that we have such an accurate picture of things but God doesn't? We build up elaborate scenarios in our mind of just what's going to happen to us if God doesn't come through and wonder whether He really knows just how serious this need is in our lives! "But God, my rent is due and if I don't meet it, we'll have to move and I can't afford another place because I won't have down money. So where will I go; I have nobody to stay with and what about my kids and if we have to move, they'll have to change schools, and on and on." Let me assure you that He knows everything and far better than you do! He knows what happens if He does and doesn't. But what's most important is that:

3. He was moved by their needs He said, "I have compassion on these people because of their needs!" He said that about the 5,000, only there it was because of their spiritual need. They were like sheep without a shepherd and so He taught them. Here He'd already been doing that for 3 days. It was their physical need that touched His heart. He didn't want to see them hungry. His heart went out to them in love. Remember Heb. 4:15, For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who has been tempted in every way, just as we are-- yet was without sin. Our High Priest, Jesus, IS touched by our needs. He's felt them, every one of them! He suffered with us and His heart is moved when we hurt. But most wonderful of all:

4. He was committed to providing for those needs The obvious point of His statement to the disciples is, "I've got to feed them! I can't let them go away like this! I must provide for them!" Jesus urged us to pray and trust God to provide for our needs in faith because of that attitude. He challenged us, Which of you fathers, if your son asks for bread, will give him a stone; or if he asks for a fish, will give him a snake instead? Or if he asks for an egg, will give him a scorpion? If you then, though you are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give... - Luke 11:11-13. He's a compassionate God, a good Father, who is committed to provide for the needs of His children.

This is what Jesus was telling His disciples but they didn't get it. So, this event becomes:

II. The Repeated Lesson Jesus Provided His Disciples (4-10) Look at:

1. the incredulous question (4) which the disciples asked. Duh!! Isn't it unbelievable? They had been right there once before; you'd think they'd have to see it! Where could ANYBODY get enough food? Do you know who you're talking to? Obviously not fully yet! But Jesus is patient and gives the same:

2. the instructive response (5) "Go see what you have and give it to Me. Just like last time. Remember? It doesn't matter how little you seem to have, if you give it to me, watch what happens!" (6-10). He fed over 4,000 people with those seven loaves and a few small fish. And not only that, but they picked up seven basketsful of leftovers! And get this, the word for basket in this story is not the same one as in the 5,000 story. Those were little lunch or picnic size baskets. These were large carrying and storage baskets. A basket like this was used to put Paul in to let him down the city wall years later. They all ate as much as they wanted and a TON was leftover! What's:

3. the obvious lesson: I am Lord; I meet your needs and others' through you "I am Lord. I speak to the wind and waves and they listen. I touch the sick and they are healed. I multiply loaves and fish to feed thousands. I am the Great Provider. I meet all your needs and I meet the needs of others through you! I am your great Resource! You never have to ask that question, "How can ANYBODY meet this need?" I can! I am Lord." You see it, don't you? Surely the disciples will get it this time, won't they? Well, sadly enough, all that is needed is a fresh set of circumstances to bring out:

III. The Disciples' Lack Of Understanding (11-16) Jesus gets into a boat and crosses back to the western shore of the Sea of Galilee, back into Jewish territory, and he is no sooner there, than look who shows up:

1. the fresh encounter with the obstinate Pharisees (11-13) They wouldn't go over into Gentile territory but they waited patiently for Him to come back so they could harass Him some more. This time they openly demanded a miraculous sign to prove His authority. Like they hadn't already seen a hundred of them, right? Miracles increase the faith of those who believe or are genuinely seeking. But a heart that is obstinately set on not believing will not be convinced, even by an outright miracle. So, Jesus refused. He would not give them a sign. He got back into the boat and left again. But the incident moved Him to give:

2. the spiritual warning to the disciples (15) Everybody knew that leaven or yeast was a fermenting or corrupting agent. Once you put a little bit of it in your bread dough, it spread through the whole thing. Jesus was warning His disciples to beware of becoming in any degree like the obstinate unbelieving Pharisees they had just left, because it would become a corrupting influence that would ruin their faith. He didn't want them affected by these people who refused to believe the very work that God was doing before their eyes. But look at:

3. their pathetic misunderstanding (14, 16) The word leaven makes them remember that they forgot lunch. They only had one little cake of bread with them. So, they get busy thinking about that and translate His warning to mean that He was concerned about them procuring bread, and not to buy any from the Pharisees! Isn't it sad? It's sad for two reasons:

a. they still did not understand His ability to provide He had just fed 4,000 people with seven loaves; couldn't He feed thirteen people with one loaf! That huge lesson and they are as blind as the Pharisees; they still can't see that He is absolutely Lord and God and can provide for all their needs no matter what! And what's even sadder is that, because they couldn't lift their eyes any higher than their own stomachs:

b. they missed His warning about unbelief creeping into their lives They never did get what He was trying to warn them about and they were actually practicing it at that very moment. The unbelief was already creeping in; it was already their thought pattern to depend on themselves instead of looking to Him and trusting in Him to meet their needs. So, Jesus resolved to tackle it this time, right then and there, and so we have:

IV. The Opening Of The Disciples' Understanding (17-21) In Jesus' rebuke to them we can see:

1. the problem revealed and apply it to ourselves. Like those disciples:

a. we are prone to short-sighted observation We see only the most immediate aspect, without looking beyond to the meaning. We see only the outward, without looking beyond to the inward. We are short-sighted by nature! When we sit down to our meal, we see that there is enough and we enjoy it, but fail to look beyond to the fact that God loves us and has seen our need and has provided it and it is His gift. When our paycheck comes and we pay all our bills and buy the things we need or even want, we see that we have enough, but fail to look beyond and see that this is a gift from God, that He has loved us and seen our need and provided it all. When we get well, we are glad to feel better, but fail to look beyond and see that God has loved us and seen our need and wrought the healing process in our bodies. So often we are just like the Jews, seeing but not seeing, hearing but not hearing! We seldom look beyond the temporal to the spiritual. We look at the circumstance, but fail to see God at work in it, to see the hand of the Loving Father in all our life. And what compounds the problem is this:

b. we are prone to short-lived memory We have good forgetters! Jesus feeds 5,000 people with five loaves and a couple months later they have forgotten it totally! Then He feeds 4,000 and only a day or 2 later they have forgotten it all over again, when they think about lunch. He pleads, "Don't you remember?" But before we get too critical, let's point the finger back at ourselves too. I have a very well developed forgetter! And so do you, probably! God has gotten us through all kinds of tough circumstances in life, has so often provided strength that we knew was not our own to endure difficulty and tragedy and circumstances that would have absolutely slain us. He has spoken to the winds and waves in our life and said, "Peace Be Still!" Yet when the next storm comes up, our unbelieving flesh whispers, "How am I ever going to get through this one?" We forget so quickly and see so little of God's working in our lives. What can we do? Well, for the disciples you can see:

2. the problem resolved It was resolved:

a. immediately by heeding His rebuke - Mt. 16:12 records the effect that Jesus' sharp words had on them, Then they understood that he was not telling them to guard against the yeast used in bread, but against the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees. They were reminded of His ability verbally and remembered His compassion and provision for the multitudes and realized He could feed them too. And they saw that He was really warning them about the teaching and character of the Pharisees, not about buying bread. The immediate issue was fixed, but that did not ultimately solve the problem. It can only be solved:

b. ultimately by understanding His identity The whole of His ministry to them had been building toward this point. He had taught them lesson after lesson and displayed miracle after miracle for one simple purpose, to bring them to realize His identity, who He really was. It was very soon after this that He brought it all to a head in 8:29. Nobody had dared to voice that before. It was a revelation. He was the Christ, the Son of the Living God. I want to leave that text alone for next time, but that's the key; once you know that, once you understand that He is absolute LORD and GOD and that He has loved you and called you into relationship with Himself, it changes the way you live and the way you think about your circumstances.

You see, what they had missed is a bare bones basic lesson. They didn't have bread. They didn't have resources. They didn't have the wherewithal to meet the great needs in front of them and around them. But they already had what they needed most; they had Him. The chorus says, He's all I need, He's all I need, Jesus is all I need! It doesn't matter how low my circumstances may seem, how high the mountain of my needs may seem, I already have the one thing I need most. I have Jesus, a loving compassionate Savior who knows and feels my every need before I ever realize it and an omnipotent Lord who can supply all my needs according to His riches in glory! If you focus on the greatness of the need and the smallness of your resources, Satan and your own flesh will be quick to shout at you, "Jesus doesn't care! Nobody cares! There's no help for you; your needs will never be met!" Unbelief will creep in and begin to infiltrate your life. You'll quickly forget how often He's cared for you and comforted you and met your needs in the past. You'll be discouraged and maybe even give up! In 1772 in a dismal flat in London, a man stood gazing into the fireplace, overcome by discouragement. He walked out into the fog to a horse-drawn cab and ordered the driver, "To the Thames, Sir!" for he had decided to jump from the bridge. They became hopelessly lost in the fog and after 1 ½ hours of wandering, surprisingly ended up in front of his own home. So impressed was he that he climbed the stairs to his flat, lit the lamp, and knelt to ask God to forgive him for what he had thought to do. He never forgot how God had stepped into His life and met his need. His name was William Cowper and he wrote this hymn:

*"God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform;
He plants His footsteps in the sea, And rides upon the storm.
"Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take; The clouds ye so much dread Are big with mercy and shall break In blessings on your head.
"His purposes will ripen fast, Unfolding every hour;
The bud may have a bitter taste But sweet will be the flower.
"Blind unbelief is sure to err, And scan His work in vain;
God is His own interpreter, And He will make it plain."*

Oh Beloved, Jesus loves you. He cares about your physical and emotional and spiritual needs. He knows what you need before you do. Never doubt His caring. But remember that you have Him and in Him you have all you need! Trust Him, rest in Him, abide in Him!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Followers: A Lesson About Cost 8:27-38

Somewhere in the middle of the Rocky Mountains is an imaginary line called the Continental Divide. It's the peak, the top, the dividing line. Rainwater on one side flows ultimately downhill to the Atlantic and on the other to the Pacific. If one were traveling in a line from east to west, everything on this side would eventually lead up to it and everything on the other side down from it. This passage is the continental divide of Jesus' ministry. Everything before it leads up to it, the miracles, the healings, the ministry to the crowds. They are preliminary, preparatory. They all lead up to this moment for the disciples. And everything from here to the cross and beyond to the end of the age flows out of this moment. There is one issue that Jesus wanted them to settle, and when they did, it ultimately changed their lives forever. And Jesus wants every one of us to settle that same issue. However, it is an issue that is settled at a cost. There is a price which must be paid in the process and that is what I'd like to talk to you about today.

I. The Issue Jesus Wants Us To Settle: His Identity (27-29) Jesus took His disciples away again by themselves and this time He intentionally brought the issue of His identity to a head. As they were walking, He asked them a question about:

1. the insufficient opinions people have (27-28) "What do people say about my identity? Who am I?" People had to explain His presence and His miracles somehow. Some thought this and some thought that. And they parroted all the common theories to Him, but every one of them stopped short, not only of the truth, but of commitment. We could do the same today. Ask the man on the street who Jesus is and what will you get, "a great religious leader", "the founder of Christianity", "a tremendously gifted teacher", "a great prophet", "the greatest ethical, moral person the world has ever produced"? All true, but not enough. The world has to explain Him somehow. But then Jesus coaxed from His disciples:

2. the life-changing truth we must know (29) Here is the supreme question that divides the human race into two. "Who do you, personally, you who have seen and heard me, who do YOU say that I am?" All that Jesus had shown them and taught them was designed to bring about the answer that came from Peter's lips, You are the Christ, and Matthew's record of the moment gives the rest, the Son of the Living God. No one had dared to voice that directly up to this moment, even if they had thought it. But it MUST be voiced both personally and publicly by them and by us. First of all:

a. He is the Christ, the Anointed One, the long-awaited Messiah. Now for us, that term does not hold the same depth of meaning it did for them. Messiah was the one whose coming would change the entire world and establish the Kingdom of God. It is usually coupled with another word which fills out its meaning, the Lord - Luke 2:11, Today in the town of David a Savior has been born to you; he is Christ the Lord. Acts 2:36 ...God has made this Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Christ." Lord means Master, Sovereign, Absolute Monarch and Ruler, the One before whom you bow and to whom you owe ultimate allegiance. And all those concepts are inherent in His identity as the Christ. That's what He had been showing them. "I am Lord, I control the wind and the waves; I control sickness and health; I multiply bread for thousands and demons flee at my command; I am Lord, the Creator and Sovereign of the universe and of you, and therefore I demand your loyalty!" At last, they saw it! And then Peter uttered words that had never been spoken by any Jew:

b. He is the Son of the Living God (that is, He is God) - Mt. 16:16 To be a son of someone was to be of the same flesh and blood as them. To be a son of Abraham was to be of Abraham's bloodline, to be a Jew. To be a Son of David was to be of David's line, to be a king. To be the Son of the Living God was to be one with God in substance, to be Divine, to be God! Peter's confession is the same as that of Thomas after the resurrection, My Lord and my God! The one who is in charge and who holds my absolute allegiance and is the object of my worship as the true God! Nothing less than that will do. To the world, Jesus is a teacher, a prophet, a religious figure, but to the believer, He is my Lord and my God, the one to whom I swear ultimate allegiance and worship! Now why doesn't everybody get that? Shouldn't everybody realize that? No:

c. the method of comprehension: revelation - Mt. 16:17 God has to open our eyes to see it! Until then, we walk around and wonder and guess at who He is, but when God finally turns the light on, we fall at His feet and cry, "My Lord and My God!" Rom. 10:9-10 says that when our heart believes, our mouth confesses, "Jesus is Lord!" That is the mark of a Christian by definition. The word Christian simply means one who follows or belongs to Christ. A Herodian is one who swears allegiance to Herod. An American is one who swears his allegiance to the USA. A Christian is one who swears allegiance to the Lordship of Jesus the Christ!

Our missionary Dan Lunow grew up in Hitler's Germany. From childhood he was one of Hitler's youth. He signed up and swore his allegiance. He gave heart and mind and soul to the service of Hitler. But when Hitler died, he was disillusioned with life and promised himself he would never sign up with anybody else again, never! But several years later, now on a farm in America listening to a preacher on a radio broadcast, the Spirit of Jesus whispered to his heart, "Do you want to sign up with Me?" And, as he puts it, "I signed up! And when I signed up, I signed up the same way. I gave my heart and mind and strength, everything to Jesus!" And he is quick to chide, "You Americans have a hard time understanding that!" We don't give ourselves to anything, do we. We are the center of our universe and everything in it serves us somehow. To be a Christian is to swear total allegiance, to take everything I am and have, even my very life and give it to Jesus! "You are my Lord and my God!" That's who He is and that's the response His identity demands from us. But, having established that, Jesus then began to explain:

II. The Price He Had To Pay As Messiah (30-31) It was not only on this occasion but from that time on that He began to emphasize to them that He had a price to pay. Being the Messiah meant being what Daniel called, "The Son of Man", becoming one with the human race to redeem it. It meant doing all that the Father had laid out ahead of time that the Messiah would have to do. And that entailed suffering. He explained three things:

1. he had to suffer many things They would arrest him, hit him, flog him, press thorns into His brow, make him carry a heavy cross, put nails through His hands and feet and finally hang Him upon a cross. And that's just the physical things. There was all the agony of Gethsemane, the suffering on the cross and being made sin for us and separated from the Father. What a price to submit to the Father's will and redeem the world! Then it meant:

2. he had to endure the rejection of men They would humiliate Him, criticize Him, accuse Him falsely, spit on Him, mock Him and condemn Him, even as He hung there dying. Such was the price of allegiance, of loyalty to the Father. But it went even further than that:

3. he had to be killed and raised to life It meant His very life. It meant taking His very spirit and placing it in the Father's hands. It meant being obedient even unto death and trusting the Father to raise Him to life.

Those were the terms of allegiance to the Father, of being the Son of God. That was the cost! Jesus put it this way, For I have come down from heaven not to do my will but to do the will of him who sent me. - John 6:38. I always do what pleases him. - John 8:29. And that will mean suffering and a cross! Jesus knew it and willingly accepted it. But then He turned the issue around to talk about:

III. The Price We Must Pay As His Followers (32-38) Now let's first notice from the story something that is true of all of us:

1. we are repulsed by the concept of self-sacrifice (32-33) As soon as Jesus began to talk about suffering and dying, Peter took him aside and got in his face right away. But before we feel too self-righteous, let's admit that we'd be right there with him! Where did he get this strong urge to reject the self-sacrifice Jesus was talking about? The same two places we do and Jesus mentioned them both:

a. our flesh tells us it is horrible Self-sacrifice is one of the "things of God", not the "things of men;" it is against our very nature, or to put it another way, our human flesh rebels against the idea because it is self-centered. I have flesh that says, "I do what is good for me, what feels good, what protects me, what aids me. I am more important than anything." So, as soon as God lays the idea before us, powerful forces inside us raise up against it! And they have help:

b. Satan tells us it is horrible I don't think Jesus is calling Peter Satan here; I think He clearly sees Satan planting this idea in Peter's mind and using him to tempt Him to avoid the cross. And He simply addresses him directly, "Get behind me!" But Satan will do the same with us. When God calls for self-sacrifice, Satan knows what our flesh is like and whispers, "No, this can't be. If you do this, then..." and out come a hundred reasons why choosing to benefit yourself is better. Often, he plants his thoughts in the first person singular, "I don't want to do this..." and we think they are our own true thoughts.

So, I guess I'm telling you up front that, even as we look at these next words of Jesus, your flesh is going to scream "NO!" and Satan is going to help it all he can. You need to recognize it. But here goes anyway. Look at:

2. the sacrifice that Jesus' lordship requires of His followers (34) If I will be His follower, if Jesus is my Lord and God, then here's what it means:

a. I must stop choosing to live for my will: ...deny himself This is not talking about depriving yourself, fasting, or denying yourself things you want. It means that when Jesus is your Lord, you stop one way of thinking and start a brand new one. I used to live for my will. I was supreme. I was ruler in my life. I chose to do what I wanted to do. I must stop that and:

b. I must start choosing to submit to His will: ...take up his cross Usually when we read this, we emphasize the cross and try to figure out what it is. But after some reflection, I think the key word in this phrase is take up. In Roman justice a criminal was made to pick up his own cross and carry it to the place of execution. Why? It was a sign of resignation, of submission to Roman authority. "Before, I broke Rome's law; now I submit to it." The criminal could refuse, of course, and probably be killed on the spot, but he could die resisting if he chose. To take up the cross is to choose His will over my own, to submit myself to the fact that He is my Lord and what He wants takes precedence over what I want, what is best for Him takes precedence over what I think is best for me, what He needs is more important than what I need. I must start choosing to die to self-will and:

c. I must adopt this as a way of life: ...follow me Literally, together with me. That is, as I am doing. "Just as I have continually laid down my will for the Father's, so you must adopt a way of daily living that chooses my will over your own." Peter said the same thing very clearly in 1 Pet. 4:1-2, Therefore, since Christ suffered in his body, arm yourselves also with the same attitude, because he who has suffered in his body is done with sin. As a result, he does not live the rest of his earthly life for evil human desires, but rather for the will of God. We need to be done with choosing human desires; we need to die to them and live the rest of our earthly lives for the will of God. That is the price of being a follower of Jesus. Once you sign up, your life is no longer yours; it's His.

Now why on earth would anybody sign up for that? Why would I choose to die to me and my needs, interests, and desires and give them all up for His? Especially if it means suffering or even dying! I know a missionary family from a nearby church who were serving in Indonesia. One day, they were awakened by Muslim intruders who broke in. The husband was stabbed in the chest and the knife missed his heart by 1 cm.! He was medevacked to Singapore for surgery on a lung. But why would anybody go there in the first place? Why would anybody choose to put themselves in a hostile foreign culture and risk their lives for the sake of sharing the Gospel, even if it is His will? Why this price? Why must I surrender to Him? There are two reasons:

3. why I must surrender to His lordship (35-37) First of all:

a. it preserves the value of my earthly life (35) What a paradox! In the Living Bible it reads, If you insist on saving your life, you will lose it. Only those who throw away their lives for my sake and for the sake of the Good News will ever know what it means to really live. You see, it is only through surrender that my life on this earth gains any value. There are millions of people who will go through 60 or 70 years of life, choosing their own will, doing what they want, living their way, and when they die, it will be all over; it will have been wasted as far as the purposes of God for the world are concerned, and all they will have to show for it is an eternity in hell. They will never have accomplished what life is really all about accomplishing, the will of the Sovereign God. So what Jesus is saying here is this:

(1) if I hold on to control of it, I destroy it I ruin it! I waste it! I throw it away! I prevent myself from really living. But:

(2) if I surrender control of it, I preserve it If I deliberately choose to let go of my life, to take that control and place it in His hands, then no matter what happens in my life, it will have served His purpose and it will have infinite eternal value and I will have preserved the value of my earthly life. You see, Jesus explained that:

(3) it is more valuable than all other things (36) A person's soul, his spiritual life (not his bodily life, in Greek bios) is more important than anything else he may acquire. In fact, Jesus made it plain that, ...a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions. - Lk. 12:15. Life is a whole different thing; it's of a whole different order than possessions, fame, position, power. That surrendered life is the only thing which does Him any good in the eternal scheme of things. And:

(4) it cannot be replaced or reclaimed (37) There's nothing to exchange for it and once it has been wasted, you can't order another one. You can't get it back.

So that's why I've got to let it go. God has designed it in such a way that the only way my life has meaning and value and purpose that lasts into eternity is for me to let go of it, to surrender it to Him. If I live for pleasure, for what pleases me, I am already dead while I live! I am wasting the eternal value of my life on this earth. I must surrender it as Jesus did or I lose it! But there is a second reason I must choose to make Him Lord:

b. it determines my eternal destiny (38) Someday He's coming again, or else I'll die and meet Him that way, and if I have been ashamed to call Him my Lord, to declare my allegiance to Him, I am lost. I'm not talking about being embarrassed to witness; we all experience that. But if in this life I feel it is a shame for me as a human being to confess Jesus and follow Him and believe His words, then it will be a shame for Him as Lord and God to confess me as belonging to Him and He will be unable to do it. I will be banished from His presence forever. Not only do I lose the value of my life on earth, but I lose life in His presence forever. That's why I must step out from the low opinions of the people around me and choose to proclaim Him Lord! And then I must proceed to live in that fashion.

But oh, how my flesh grates against that. I have taken the step. I have made Him my Lord, but when those choices come up, His will or mine, it's so hard to die to self, isn't it? A little boy about eight or nine, who liked to have his own way, one day was told by his father, "Philip, you ought not to want your own way." He dropped his head as if he had been given a big problem to solve. After thinking a while, he said, "Father, if I choose the will of the Lord and go His way because I want to, don't I still have my own way?" Let me put it another way: His way must become my way. That's what Lordship means.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Disciples: A Lesson About Power 9:1-29

One of the unfortunate problems with our English translations is that sometimes chapter divisions separate things that really belong together. Mark 9:1 is really a continuation of what Jesus was saying to His disciples at the end of chapter 8. That all-important lesson of Jesus' identity was spelled out in Peter's famous two-fold confession: You are the Christ, the Son of the Living God. In our last study, we focused on Jesus' Lordship as the Christ and how we need to lay our lives at His feet. In chapter 9 we focus on Jesus' power as the Son of the Living God and how we need to trust in it! Jesus made a very bold statement in the last verse of chapter 8, I will return in My father's glory with the holy angels to judge the world! And then He became even bolder in 9:1, I will show some of you the kingdom and you will see it come with power! You see:

I. Jesus Declared Visibly His Power To Set Up A Kingdom (1-8) He said He would show them the kingdom with power or literally, IN power. He would show them the very power that would transform the world and set up His Messianic Kingdom. How would he do it? Well, about a week later, He did just that in an event which we call the Transfiguration. This event was unlike anything Jesus had done and, more than anything previous:

1. the transfiguration demonstrated the power of His Person The transfiguration is about power; it is was a visible display of His omnipotent power as God. First of all:

a. He displayed it in His own glorification (2-3) He was transfigured before their very eyes. The Greek word is literally metamorphosized, and it means to be changed into another form, to be transformed. He didn't just take on a new appearance; there is a different Greek word for that. His very being was changed and his clothing began to glow a brilliant white and Mark is quick to point out that it was a brightness that was supernatural, something that could not be duplicated, no matter how many brighteners are in the laundry detergent! The radiance of the very glory of God began to emanate from Him and, for those moments, He took on the appearance that He would have in His glorified state in the Kingdom. No chemical on earth could do that, only the power of Almighty God. And then:

b. He displayed it in the prophets' glorification (4) This is incredible. Two men appeared with him. Moses had been dead over 1400 years, but here he was, living, walking, talking with Jesus and transformed from the old, dead body that was laid in the grave! And Elijah too! 700 years earlier, Elijah had been taken to heaven in a whirlwind without dying. And here he was, alive and well and not a 700 year old shriveled up old man but transformed! And the amazing thing is that the disciples who had never seen even a picture of them, knew them and knew who they were! All of a sudden, they found themselves in the presence of, not only the glory of God, but of living saints who were long since gone, just like it will be in the Kingdom of God! Only the power of God can preserve a person through death and transform and glorify them! And then:

c. He displayed it through the Father's confirmation (7) There, on that mountaintop in the middle of nowhere, a clearly audible loud voice from heaven thundered out, This is my Son whom I love. Listen to Him! Lots of people have heard voices, but this was an audible one out loud from up above, the same voice that spoke back in Moses' day to the people while they trembled as the commandments were given, the voice of God speaking directly to men, just as it will be in the Kingdom. You see:

2. the transfiguration certified the promise of His Kingdom (1) Jesus displayed for those moments the same power that it will take to transform the world. It had an obvious effect and one of those who saw it was Peter. Look at what he says about it in 2 Pet. 1:16-18. Peter says, "When I told you Jesus is coming again, it isn't some fable I made up. I was there. I saw Him. I saw His power. I saw His glory up on the holy mount. I watched Him be transformed. I heard that glorious voice of the Father speak from Heaven! This ain't no joke; His power is real!" What's:

The Point: He has power over the world! Jesus can change it. He can change anything. He is not limited by what we know and can figure out. It is no fable that one day He will appear and destroy all the armies of earth and wipe it clean of every unbeliever and set up a kingdom. He is God; He can do things that are absolutely impossible to human beings. And God isn't like Duracell; His power never runs down! He still has that same power right now today and it is available to work in the circumstances of your life! Then on the way down the mountain:

II. Jesus Declared With Certainty His Power Of Resurrection (9-13) He didn't want to draw any crowds, so as He was telling them not to tell anyone about the transfiguration:

1. He predicted His own resurrection (9-10) They didn't understand it, but they had clearly understood Him to say that He would be resurrected. So they discussed it, trying to figure out what He meant or when He was talking about. Finally, they decided to raise one of their issues with Him and in His answer:

2. He predicted it would follow His rejection (death!) (11-13) He said, "Look what they did to John the Baptist. They rejected and killed him. He was my Elijah. And that same rejection is going to happen to the Messiah, the Son of Man. The Son of Man must be rejected and then He must be resurrected." Jesus was sure of it, certain of it, because He knew that as God, He had power to accomplish it. And sure enough:

3. the Resurrection later fulfilled His prediction - Rom. 1:4 says He was declared [to be] the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead. In other words, His identity was demonstrated in an act of power; He rose from the dead. None but Almighty God could have that kind of power. What's:

The Point: He has power over death! Life and death are in His hands. It is given unto all men once to die. Not one of us can stop it, prevent it, or change it. But Jesus has the power of life and death. He is the giver of life and the lord over death; He holds the keys to it! And unlike some of us, He never loses His keys! That power stronger than death is still His today and it is at work in your life. And then look at this:

III. Jesus Demonstrated Publicly His Power Over All Opposition (14-27) Jesus had only taken three of the disciples with Him up the mountain and when they returned to the nine, they found them embroiled in a problem about the casting out of a demon. And what we see first is:

1. the failure of the disciples to cast out the demon (14-18) They couldn't do it. It wasn't that they didn't have the authority to do it; Jesus had given them that earlier and they had cast out demons many times. It wasn't that they were trying to do something illicit or wrong. They just tried and couldn't; it wouldn't leave. And, of course, the Jews were trying to argue that Jesus was a fake and he had no power. Their failure reflected on Him. But what we have in the end is very clearly this:

2. the demonstration of Jesus' power over Satan (19-27) "Bring him to ME!" He gave a simple command and in a moment that tremendously powerful demon which had tried many times to kill its victim, which was so strong that it could resist all human efforts to drive it out, fled at His word. But before he left, he tried to do his worst, to hurt the boy enough to kill him and many thought he was dead. He may have been. But Jesus reached down and power flowed forth from Him and He literally raised him up alive! It is the same word used in the phrase to raise the dead, the word used for resurrection. But whichever way, the point is clear:

The Point: He has power over the Enemy! Satan and all the hosts of hell cannot stop Him, cannot defeat Him, cannot accomplish their purposes if He does not allow it. His mighty power is unstoppable and it's as unstoppable today as it ever was! Early in the 20th century Satan built a wall around millions of people in Eastern Europe and Asia to keep them in bondage to him and keep Jesus out. It was called Communism. For decades Christians assailed that wall with prayer and Jesus took it down. Today the Gospel is being freely proclaimed and thousands are pouring into the Kingdom. Centuries ago, Satan built a wall around what is now almost a billion people to keep them in bondage to him, to keep Jesus Christ out. That wall is called Islam. And today Jesus is starting to smash that wall and Muslims are beginning to come to Christ by the thousands. Nothing can stop Him; He has power over the enemy and all his schemes, even in your life!

Now if Jesus has all this power, that leaves us to ask the same question the disciples did.

IV. The Reason We Fail To Experience His Power: Unbelief (28-29) Mark recorded only part of the reply. Mat. 17:19-20, Then the disciples came to Jesus in private and asked, "Why couldn't we drive it out?" He replied, "Because you have so little faith. I tell you the truth, if you have faith as small as a mustard seed, you can say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there' and it will move. Nothing will be impossible for you." And then verse 21 continues, But this kind does not go out except by prayer and fasting. The problem is not with God's power or lack of it. The problem is our unbelief! We have so little faith. What does that mean?

1. we're not sure that Jesus can do anything about our problem We're like the man in (22b) who said, "Help me IF you can..." And Jesus caught it, "IF you can?" That wasn't good enough. That is unbelief. And I know you're thinking, "I don't do that; I believe God can do anything!" But when it comes right down to it, there are things in your mind you have just walled off, thinking God can't really do anything about that. There are things we pray about and people we pray for that we don't have any genuine expectation that God can change. I have relatives and so do you whom I've prayed for for years but I don't really expect God to do anything in their lives. I don't really believe they can be any different and that means that I'm not sure Jesus has the power to save them like He did me! It's unbelief. And even if we are sure when we start out:

2. we become discouraged and give up when there is resistance When the demon resisted their command, the disciples assumed they couldn't cast it out. They could have if they persisted and prayed and fasted but they became discouraged and gave up. The father started out with real certainty, but after the initial failure he was reduced to, "if you can". And this is how we most often fall into unbelief. We pray about something and it doesn't happen right away or circumstances don't change or the person doesn't get saved or our temptation doesn't go away or our habit doesn't break completely. So we get discouraged and begin in ourselves to believe it won't work and we quit. We give in to unbelief and so:

3. we fail to demonstrate continual dependence on Him in prayer When we are convinced He can do something, we pray like a house afire. We cast ourselves at His feet. We may give up food to pray. But when unbelief starts to creep in, we stop depending on Him and we start trying to find ways to cope on our own!

This happens to all of us. There are so many areas of our lives where we fail to recognize God's power which is directed toward us who believe. What can we do about it? Well, right here in our text is:

V. The Remedy For Our Unbelief First of all, we must accept:

1. Jesus' promise: His power is sufficient (23) - Mt. 17:20 ...I tell you the truth, if you have faith as small as a mustard seed, you can say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there' and it will move. Nothing will be impossible for you. That doesn't mean you can have anything you want or can do anything you want. It simply means that there is no limit to God's power. It is enough. It is sufficient. He can do anything. He can touch your situation. Accept that as truth. Reckon it to be so and then here's:

2. our posture: humble dependence on Him, even to believe (24) Lord, I believe, help my unbelief. "I confess my faith in You and Your power. I also confess how easily I fall and have fallen into unbelief. Lord, I'm not going to try to 'work up' more faith; I'm asking you to create it in me! Lord, deepen, strengthen, confirm my faith. I am absolutely dependent on You!" And it is there, in that posture of humility, depending only on His power, not only to live but even to believe, that we will find Him at work doing mighty things.

I could spend another hour telling you stories of the power of God at work in my life and around the world to encourage your faith. But I'll limit it to one particular story that I heard Stephen Olford tell on the radio the other day. He grew up on the mission field (Africa, I think). His father was a mighty man of faith and prayer and there was much opposition to his work. At one point in his teens there was a local man who made a public threat on his father's life and the lives of his family. He said, "When the sun is there (pointing), both you and your wife and your sons will be shot. At the appointed hour the next day the family was gathered in the house praying and his father prayed, "Father, if this is the hour of our martyrdom and you will be glorified to take us home in this way, we are satisfied. But if not and it is your will to demonstrate your mighty power and glorify the name of the Lord Jesus Christ by preserving us, then demonstrate it! Lord, demonstrate it!" The man appeared in the street and walked up to the house with his rifle cocked. The father went out on the veranda to meet him. As the man lifted the rifle to shoot, he cried, "In the mighty name of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Son of God and by His power, I rebuke you!" Immediately the gun fell from the man's hands and the man himself was dashed to the ground!" No shot was ever fired. That became the breakthrough that was needed and after that Stephen Olford's father had the largest and most successful Gospel meetings in all of his ministry in that area! What a story! It impacted Stephen's faith to this day. But look at his father's attitude, humble submission, not trying to tell God what He had to do, but believing with all his heart that God was able and willing to act on it to the point of risking his life. My friend, where has unbelief taken root in your life? Jesus has power to transform anything, power even to give life to the dead, power to cause His plan to succeed over any opposition you face. Accept the truth of His power, confess your unbelief and ask Him to build genuine true deep faith in you.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Disciples: A Lesson About Humility 9:30-50

There is another very important lesson that Jesus had to impress on His disciples before He left them. It was a subject that they repeatedly had trouble with. In fact, He had to refresh them about it with a very vivid lesson of washing their feet in the Upper Room the night before He died. I can picture how it all started as they continued on their journey after the transfiguration. Only three of them had been taken up the Mount to see Jesus transfigured. Meanwhile, the nine had failed to cast out a demon without them. So, they fell to arguing about the pecking order, to vying for position among themselves. Can't you hear it? "Well, Jesus took me up there, but he didn't take you; you really failed without me; if I'd been there, I would have cast that demon out..." But of course, they did all this sort of under their breath and hung behind so Jesus wouldn't hear it. But He knew what was in their hearts anyway and rather than addressing it right away, He first explained to them again His own:

I. Jesus' Example Of Humility (30-32) In these verses you have:

1. the repeated prediction (31) "I will be betrayed, I will die, I will rise." How many times did Jesus teach them that? They were saying, "I'm going to this" and "I'm that", but Jesus said, "Not Me! I'm going to suffer and die!" And then you have:

2. the puzzled reaction (32) Losing, suffering, dying. Those were not concepts that fit with their concept of a Messiah. Messiah wins, He conquers, He defies death. They were puzzled and confused and couldn't understand, but they'd already been rebuked once and didn't want to let on. However, what's really going on here is:

3. the missed lesson - Phil. 2:6-8, 3-5 Jesus knew their hearts were full of pride and self-seeking and He was saying, "Watch Me. I am Messiah. I am God. But I'm a Servant. I'm humble. I'm going to suffer and die on a cross to save the world! Get the pattern. This is the mind that needs to be in you. Each of you needs to do the opposite of what you're doing, to consider others above yourselves and commit yourselves to serving them, just like I'm doing." But they couldn't see it so when they got to Capernaum, Jesus sat them down and spoke to them directly on the subject and here we have:

II. Jesus' Teaching On Humility (33-37) They are not unique. What they were displaying was common to all of us. It is:

1. the desire of our flesh: to be more than others (first) (33-34) To be first in importance, the one who gives orders, the center of attention, self on the throne. We're born that way; it comes with the turf of being human. It's in that Adam-ic nature. It's called pride. It's what took down the first man, Adam, and it haunts every one of us. It is ingrained in our patterns of life and it sticks, even after we get saved. We want to be faster, stronger, richer, smarter, more handsome or more beautiful. There's a piece of every one of us that wants to be greater than others, even if it's at a good thing. We may want to be a better servant, a better person of prayer, a more self-less disciple THAN someone else is but it's still pride! But Jesus shared with them something absolutely revolutionary to their value system:

2. the desire of God for us: to be a servant of all (very last) (35) Greatness in God's eyes can't be obtained by seeking it! In fact, as long as you're seeking it; you can't have it. On God's scale the person who genuinely seeks it least has the most of it! Jesus said, the person who is the greatest among you is the one who, in his own eyes, is the very last of all and is committed to serving every other person in their lives. They see nobody they won't serve and nobody as having to serve them. Now, how many of us can think of at least one person that we think we're better than? If we were honest, we'd all have our hands up. God deals with me about this all the time. I see somebody that's in a leather jacket with a tattoo riding a Harley and there's a piece of me that puts a rank on that. "What a turkey; I'm above that." I see another believer whose life is all fouled up and just can't seem to get it together and there's a part of me that whispers, "What a bozo, I'm above that." Jesus looked at every single person in the human race, the nice and nasty, together and not together, capable and helpless and said, "I am a servant to that person. That person's eternal well-being is worth My life; I will die for them." That's the kind of humility Jesus wants to build in His disciples. And He brought it home to them by way of:

3. the illustration Jesus used (36-37) This is another one of those places where Mark doesn't record the whole story and you have to turn over to Matthew to get the first part of the lesson Jesus taught. He was in a home and there was a young child somewhere about. And he called that child and stood him there beside him and said here is:

a. lesson one: becoming like a child (36a) - Mt. 18:1-4 Jesus is not saying that little children are humble and we need to imitate them. They certainly aren't! In that room and in that culture, the littlest child is the one of least importance, the one with the least right to speak, the one who commanded the least respect, who always had to defer to others. If the Rabbi or Elder was the head, the littlest kid was the tail, the last in line. And Jesus was saying, you need to change your way of thinking. To Me, this is you! You need to choose to see yourself as a little child, that is, in the least position. Now I'm not talking about your identity; I'm not saying that you need to reverse that pride flesh pattern for the opposite one where see yourself as worse than everybody else and hate yourself and put yourself down. You're a child of God; that makes you of eternal value and absolute importance --TO HIM! I'm talking about seeing that God has placed that same eternal value on every person in your life. Our value is not determined by our looks or our possessions or our performance. And I'm talking about choosing to place yourself, as Jesus did, in the position of serving everyone else in your life, of choosing to love them enough to meet their needs and further their well-being rather than your own, to say that what I get out of it is not what matters; what I can do for them is what matters. My thought should not be, "How do I compare to them?" but "How can I serve them and meet their needs in the name of Jesus?" And then, going back to Mark, Jesus gave them part two of the lesson:

b. lesson two: hugging a child (36b-37) He took that little child up in His arms and hugged him and loved on him! It probably made the kid feel special and wonderful in the midst of that adult crowd. And Jesus said, "This is what service is like. When you do that for a little child, you do it to Me and to the Father! You need to change the way you look at serving God. You need to see your service to others as done to God, knowing the simplest act is important. Serving God is not doing a bunch of good deeds that He writes down and keeps track of and adds up for merit. God loves people and when you express the simplest act of love and caring to another human being, you are doing it directly to God! And that makes even the simplest act, hugging a child, changing a diaper in the church nursery, singing a hymn to God with the congregation, saying a kind word to encourage your neighbor, everything you do for others, important because you're doing it to God! Greatness in God's eyes is not about who does the most things FOR Him; it is the person who most clearly recognizes Him in the faces of the people around him every day and serves Him through them.

Now is that convicting to you? It is to me and it was to John. He immediately confessed a recent incident that he was troubled by and in it we can see:

III. Jesus' Application Of Humility (38-41) Isn't this a good example of:

1. the pride that often exists between Jesus' followers (38) "This man says he loves you and he was casting out demons in your name to help people, but he isn't one of us so we told him he couldn't do that unless he joins our group! After all, we're the true disciples!" Hasn't that characterized the Church all the way through? Isn't it still true in our own hearts? "We're better than those Presbyterians because they don't use enough water when they baptize and they aren't looking for the Rapture. We're better than those Southern Baptists, all narrow-minded and everything (never mind that they're in the forefront of the world missions movement) and we're better than those rowdy charismatics and Pentecostals (even though they've often reminded us how to really worship!). Man, everybody just ought to quit their churches and join ours!" But it's not just between churches; it's even among ourselves. We would never argue about who's the greatest, but in the secret closets of our mind, we have the order laid out anyway! At least John was honest and Jesus could then lay out:

2. the proper way for His followers to view one another He said:

a. we are all engaged in serving Him together (39-40) "Whoever is not against us is for us. It's obvious that this man is one of us, that he believes. We're all on the same team! Like it or not, he's part of what we're doing." We are all engaged in serving God together and:

b. each person's service is individually important to Him (41) It's not just those who preach long sermons or write great books that are noticed. God sees giving a cup of cold water to a thirsty brother as important. Some of you tell me, "I wish I could do more; all I can do is pray." All you can do? What greater is there to do? Humility is not seeing that my service is worth less than someone else's; it is seeing that the simplest act of service that I or anyone else performs is necessary and important to God and we are not in competition, but somehow, we are all little parts of one great body and supplying a necessary piece in God's design.

Now this is a serious subject and Jesus' next words form a:

IV. Jesus' Warning About Humility (42-50) I don't want to spend time on this section today, but just notice:

1. the eternal warning for those who harm His children (42-48) He says:

a. it would be better to be drowned (42) than to cause one of His children to fall away into sin and then he said:

b. it would be better to be maimed (43-48) than to hurt one of His children because hell is hot and the fire never burns out and the worms never die!

This is not a warning for believers about losing their salvation, but a warning for the "anyones" out there who would hurt them. It helps us to see how important God's children are to Him and that's what makes serving one another so important. But as Jesus closes His lesson, he finishes with:

2. the serious warning for us who are His children (49-50) This verse is very difficult to figure out and people have speculated about it all the centuries. Some manuscripts have an additional phrase, "Every sacrifice must be salted with salt," but here's my simple take on it. Every sacrificial animal offered had to be salted. We are God's living sacrifices according to Rom. 12:1 and every one of us is salted with the preserving presence of Christ within. But salt deteriorates and loses its saltiness, so it must be kept carefully or it will become useless. At any rate, the last line makes the application:

a. don't lose your flavor: be careful to display the character of Christ Let the taste of the salt that's in you show by displaying His character. How?

b. be at peace: display it by pursuing peace with other believers rather than trying to compete with them or be first over them. Display His humility; be a servant toward others.

Every time I think about our need to maintain a servant's heart, I think of this story which you've probably read or heard. An American poet, Edwin Markham, told about a cobbler, a godly man who made shoes. One night the cobbler dreamed that the next day Jesus was coming to visit. It seemed real and he got up early to decorate his shop for his Guest. He waited, but the shop remained quiet, except for an old man who limped up to the door asking to come in for a few minutes of warmth. While the man rested, the cobbler noticed his worn shoes and gave him a new pair. In the afternoon, an elderly woman came, and seeing her struggling earlier under a heavy load, he invited her in to rest and gave her a nourishing meal. At night, a child was heard crying outside his door, lost and afraid. He went out, soothed the child, and took the child home. When he returned, the cobbler was sad, convinced the Lord had come while he was away. Now he lived through the moments as he had imagined them: the knock, the latch lifted, the radiant face, the offered cup. He would have kissed the hands where the nails had been, washed the feet where the spikes had entered. Then the Lord would have sat and talked to him. In his anguish, the cobbler cried out,

"Why is it, Lord, that Your feet delay?

Have you forgotten that this was the day?"

Then, soft in the silence a voice he heard:

"Lift up your heart for I kept My word.

Three times I came to your friendly door;

Three times My shadow was on your floor.

I was the man with the bruised feet;

I was the woman you gave to eat

I was the child on the homeless street."

And the greatest ones in His kingdom are those who do it joyfully, unaware of self, not thinking, "I'm serving this person, so I'm serving Jesus and I'll be rewarded". They are those whose service flows out of the love of Christ within them and when they see Christ, the scene will be something like this: "Then the King will say..., 'Come, you who are blessed by my Father; take your inheritance, the kingdom prepared for you since the creation of the world. For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you invited me in, I needed clothes and you clothed me, I was sick and you looked after me, I was in prison and you came to visit me.' "Then the righteous will answer him, 'Lord, when did we see you hungry and feed you, or thirsty and give you something to drink? When did we see you a stranger and invite you in, or needing clothes and clothe you? When did we see you sick or in prison and go to visit you?' "The King will reply, 'I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for me.'" - Mat. 25:34-40.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Disciples: A Lesson About God's Love For His Children 9:42-48

Last April the World Evangelical Fellowship called for the establishment of this day in September as a time for believers worldwide to pray for their brethren who are part of the persecuted church. Dozens of church and mission organizations have joined them in this call. It is hoped that around the world 150,000 congregations in 110 countries will join together to pray as one body for believers who are persecuted because of their faith in and testimony for Jesus Christ. The first question the average American Christian will ask is, "What persecuted church?" There has been an incredible silence about this in the news media. They would like us to believe otherwise, that we are really becoming one world community linked together by the bonds of humanity. But the truth is the exact opposite. The 20th century has seen a dramatic increase in the persecution of the church. In fact: "There have been more people martyred for their faith in Jesus Christ in the twentieth century than in all the previous nineteen combined." - WEF. Numerically we're talking about 100 million martyrs More people have died in circumstances related to their faith in this century than in all the 20th century wars combined. To have a Bible study meet in your home can cause severe persecution in countries like China and Vietnam. To own a Bible is illegal in Saudi Arabia. Iran has special religious police who are given the task to keep Islam pure and Christianity down. In India and Pakistan to become a Christian can bring rejection from your family and beatings by local Islamic zealots. Even within our own country the courts have tried to legislate the elimination of the faith from our public schools. Let me give you just a few recent examples:

- On June 9 ten Protestant churches were attacked and destroyed by Muslim mobs of more than 5000 people as Christians gathered for Sunday worship in Surabaya, Indonesia. Many were injured or mistreated, even hospitalized and others were threatened with violence. Did you hear a word of this in the media?
- An estimated 500 Christians are killed every day in Sudan where the Muslim government in the north is systematically eliminating the non-Muslim population of the south. Since 1982 300,000 believers have died. Every year hundreds of them have been sold into slavery or the women raped and taken as concubines. Southern Sudan is facing a war-created famine and the government is forbidding relief organizations to help. Reader's Digest had a great article on this not long ago. Not a word in the regular media!
- The Chinese government has begun a fresh crackdown on unregistered churches whose members number in the millions. It is illegal to hold a house meeting of believers. In the last 3 months 3 house church leaders were beaten to death by authorities in China. This summer more than 300 unregistered house churches were closed down. Some who are arrested are tortured with boiling water or electric probes and sent to labor camps where they are denied food and water.
- The government of Vietnam has set out on a course of oppressive brutality aimed at the Church. Believers who profess their faith openly have been arrested and imprisoned.
- Muslim militants murdered two Christian men in Atledem, Egypt for refusing to pay "protection money".
- In Cuba churches often are forced to close and leaders are interrogated and threatened. Church properties are confiscated or destroyed. Members of one Havana congregation were forced to dismantle their own building.

And the list goes on and on and on. This century has seen more people come to Christ than all others combined. Millions have been gathered into the Kingdom in a short time. In 1960 70% of evangelicals lived in the western world. Just 3 decades later as of 1990, 70% of all believers in the world now live outside the western world, in the 2/3 world. A phenomenal number of people are coming to Christ in the rest of the world but Satan is fighting back. A tremendous number of them are paying the price of persecution, suffering and even martyrdom.

This should not surprise us. Jesus repeatedly taught us to expect oppression.

- "If the world hates you, keep in mind that it hated me first. If you belonged to the world, it would love you as its own. As it is, you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world. That is why the world hates you. Remember the words I spoke to you: 'No servant is greater than his master.' If they persecuted me, they will persecute you also. If they obeyed my teaching, they will obey yours also. 21 They will treat you this way because of my name, for they do not know the One who sent me. - John 15:18-20
- "All this I have told you so that you will not go astray. They will put you out of the synagogue; in fact, a time is coming when anyone who kills you will think he is offering a service to God. - John 16:1-2
- "Be on your guard against men; they will hand you over to the local councils and flog you in their synagogues. On my account you will be brought before governors and kings as witnesses to them and to the Gentiles. But when they arrest you, do not worry about what to say or how to say it. At that time, you will be given what to say, for it will not be you speaking, but the Spirit of your Father speaking through you. "Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child; children will rebel against their parents and have them put to death. All men will hate you because of me, but he who stands firm to the end will be saved. - Mat. 10:17-22

The whole story of the Book of Acts is one of the tremendous success of the Gospel followed by horrible persecution, imprisonment and martyrdom of believers. Paul, who suffered more than most, told us, In fact, everyone who wants to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted, - 2 Tim. 3:12. How many times have you and I read those verses and passed thoughtlessly over them for things more relevant? Friends, that was not just a message for the early times or for the end times. It is everyday life for believers just like you and I around the world right now.

When we wake up and realize that, one of our first responses might be, "How can that be? How can God allow that to happen to His children? And what if it happens to me?" Now I want to go back to the verses I skipped last week in Mark 9 and show you:

I. God's Tremendous Love For His Children Remember, last time Jesus was giving His disciples that important lesson on humility, on putting themselves in the place of a little child, seeing themselves as last and serving others. But even as we do that, we can rest in the fact that God has an unbelievable tenacious love for His children. Here we see:

1. Jesus' warning to those who would hurt His children (9:42 = Mt. 18:6) Let me point out three things to you that will make the meaning clear. First:

a. the action: It is regrettable that the NIV translates it as cause to sin. The Greek word is skandalizo. The skandalon was the name for the "stumbling block", the trigger stick on a trap or snare against which an animal would stumble and set it off, so it came to represent the whole device. So, the verb means to trap or snare, that is, for the purpose of harm. He's talking about those who would snare His children to hurt them either physically or spiritually. It could be false teachers and false religions who would lure them to stray from the faith. It could be enemies who would drive them away from it and try to force them to deny it. It could be those who simply get joy out of torturing His children because they hate them. Oppression comes in many forms. Second:

b. the object: little ones who believe (all believers) Back at verse 38 He had switched from talking about little children to talking about adults, specifically to you, meaning the disciples, who were to put themselves in the place of children, His children. He's talking about all believers but individually. "Whoever harms even ONE of my children" will suffer:

c. the punishment: worse than death (eternal) What's worse than being drowned with a millstone around your neck, without any hope of surfacing? Eternal punishment! The fire of hell in verse 48 where the fire never goes out and the worms never die, where the torment never ends. God loves His children and those who oppress and persecute and hurt them face the prospect of eternal death, unless they repent and find forgiveness for their sins through Jesus Christ!

But why does God let them be hurt in the first place? Well, there are several things that Matthew records in this conversation that Mark doesn't, and they are important. Verse 42 was the same as Mat. 18:6. Now turn there to verse 7 and you have what Jesus said next:

2. Jesus' explanation of the oppression of His children - Mt. 18:7, Woe to the world because of the things that cause people to sin ["people" is not in the Greek and the word is to snare, referring to "my children"]! Such things must come, but woe to the man through whom they come! There are three important pieces here:

a. it is the world system which hurts the children of God The kosmos is the system of this inhabited world, the way it has been set up, the way cultural patterns of thinking and acting have been established. Hurting God's children has been part of the system ever since Cain slew Abel. You can trace it through the whole of human history. The wicked always persecute the righteous because they seek for power and force and might and use it selfishly, rather than for justice and to do good. That's the way the race is set up and who set it up that way? The Scripture tells us that Satan is the ruler of this world system, the prince of the power of the air, the one who is at work in all unsaved people! Satan has engineered the world as an environment that is hostile to the Gospel. And in every religious system that he sets up to enslave men, from Islam to spirit worship to Communism, there is an inherent hatred for Christianity and those who promote it! He is desperately trying to stop the tremendous harvest of souls that God has planned to bring in! Now understand:

b. God has chosen to allow this suffering in His sovereign plan It is necessary. God in His wisdom has chosen to allow it to be this way. It is not that Satan has simply outsmarted or succeeded in overpowering God somehow. God has a grand global plan for the world and He has chosen to allow it for His glory. It has to be. Jesus said so! We have to trust Him with that. However:

c. individual oppressors will bear personal responsibility Woe to the man that does the oppressing! Oppressors don't get off the hook. They can't stand before God one day and say, "Satan made me do it" any more than a Nazi war criminal can say, "I was just following orders!" Or they can't say, "it's part of your plan and I'm just a necessary part of what You decreed!" God is a just God and they will be personally responsible. They will pay a grave, personal, eternal price for the harm they have done to His children. So, you have:

3. Jesus' warning to oppressors: (9:43-48 = Mt. 18:8-9) What's He saying? He's not saying to believers, "Be careful not to cause each other to sin." He's saying to offenders, oppressors, trappers, persecutors, to the wicked of this world: "Don't hurt My kids! And if you can keep from it by cutting off your hand, cut it off. And if you can keep from it by cutting off your foot, cut it off. And if you can keep from it by gouging out your eye, gouge it out. Do whatever you have to do to keep from it, but don't touch my kids; if you do, there'll be hell to pay!" Oh, your Father loves you. He says about you what He said about Israel in Zech. 2:8, ...whoever touches you touches the apple of his eye, touches the most tender part of Him, His own dear beloved children! But if we go back to Matthew, He then said one more thing. We have:

4. Jesus' warning to the church - Mt. 18:10-14 This is a switch back to the disciples, a warning for us. Every single believer is important to God, regardless of how far away and unimportant they may seem to us. We are so important that:

a. God has assigned angels to care for every one of His children (10b) I don't think this verse proves that every person is assigned a specific "guardian angel". Hebrews tells us that angels are ministering spirits who are sent to minister to those who are the heirs of salvation. I think here he's saying that God has assigned angels to care for every single one. He cares for His children so much that He has angels constantly going and coming from Him to intervene and serve in their lives, even those who are suffering persecution. God's angels are on duty for them. And:

b. it is not His will for a single one of His children to perish (12-14) Here is the familiar story of the lost sheep, but here Jesus tells it for a different point than on the other occasion in Luke. A good shepherd cares about each individual sheep. If any single one is in danger, he expends Himself for it and his heart is thrilled when it is rescued. The point is verse 14. It is not His moral will for a single one of His children literally to perish, to be destroyed! In earthly terms that means this: God's desire, what His heart wants, is not to see a single one of His children hurt, harmed, or destroyed. He has chosen to allow it of necessity in His overall plan, but when any one of His children hurts, He hurts with them. He suffers with us! And in eternal terms, not one of His children ever will perish. Not one is lost. The persecutor merely sets them free to be in His presence at death! Ultimately, He makes sure every one of His sheep is safe in the eternal fold. So, if God sets that level of importance on every one of His children, then:

c. we should not regard any one of them as of little importance (10a) We should not forget them. We should not toss persecution off when we hear of it with a smug, "Oh well, there's nothing I can do about it" or "It isn't happening to me so I don't have to worry about it." In the midst of all this persecution of some of our brethren, the rest of the church worldwide has by and large sat back and said and done very little. You might be saying, "What can I do? I don't want to forget them, to ignore their plight, but what can I do for them?" Let me suggest three things:

II. How We Can Love His Oppressed Children

1. Be informed about them Prov. 24:11-12, Rescue those being led away to death; hold back those staggering toward slaughter. If you say, "But we knew nothing about this," does not he who weighs the heart perceive it? Does not he who guards your life know it?... Go on the web and the websites listed below. In our day there is no excuse for not knowing what's going on. Become informed. And don't just get information:

2. Pray for them Heb. 13:3, Remember those in prison as if you were their fellow prisoners, and those who are mistreated as if you yourselves were suffering. Don't learn and forget. Make praying for them a regular part of your devotional life as you get information, even if it is remembering only one need per day. Let your heart be broken for them and pray. In most of these situations there is nothing man can do. Only God can help. Talk to Him about it. And finally:

3. Act on their behalf when you can Sometimes there are things you can do. Give to a relief effort. Supply Bibles and literature. Write letters. Write to authorities. Robert Hussein is a Kuwaiti citizen who converted from Islam to Christianity and allowed it to be known. When he did the police ceased to protect him from radical Muslims. His house was vandalized and his wife raped. On May 29 he was convicted of apostasy in a religious court which said he should be killed, even though their secular constitution guarantees freedom of religion. His children and wife were taken away and he went into hiding for months. An appeal was set for Sept. 15 but before that time with the help of one of these organizations he was able to get out of the country and seek asylum in the US. His future is undetermined. But he is not the point. This summer a massive effort was mounted by Christians all over the world who heard about this. Information flowed over the internet and a website was established. The personal fax machine of the Crown Prince of Kuwait was flooded for weeks on end with protests from all over the world urging him to honor the constitution. The government of Kuwait was forced to issue an appeal for this flood of mail to stop and to make public statements about freedom of religion for its citizens. The situation for all believers in Kuwait was bettered by the informed prayer and action of the world community of believers and it may be easier for them to live because of this. When there is something you can do, do it! If you don't, who will?

III. Some Sources Of Information And Action:

- Open Doors USA - www.opendoorsusa.org
- Voice Of The Martyrs - www.persecution.com
- International Christian Concern - www.persecution.org

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Disciples: A Lesson About Marriage And Children 10:1-15

There are no subjects more universally dear to the hearts of all human beings than the marriage relationship and children. These things transcend all cultures, all languages and all places. They are the basic building blocks of human life. On the other hand, these two basic human relationships have been horribly distorted and twisted in almost every culture on earth, including the Jewish culture Jesus lived in and including our own. It is hardly conceivable that Jesus could have left His followers and returned to heaven without giving them some lessons on these important subjects. The first lesson occurred in the context of Jesus' final journey up to Jerusalem as He passed through the Gentile territory of Perea across the Jordan. Some Pharisees approached Him with a question about the very popular subject of divorce and Jesus gave them all a lesson about:

I. The Permanence Of Marriage (1-12) Now I want to say up front that I am very conscious of the fact that as soon as I use the word divorce, it touches the hearts of people that I love. For many of you the pain of divorce is a reality that you've either lived through personally or gone through with someone else you love and my heart goes out to you. It is not my intent to dredge up painful memories nor to make you feel anything less than 100% accepted and loved here, just as you are before God. That's my heart and this sermon is not about you; it's about God and His view of marriage, a view that He intended for the human race to hold and preserve to all generations. But almost universally it hasn't been held. The Pharisees approached Jesus with:

1. the world's view: marriage is an agreement between two persons (1-4) It's a contract, an arrangement, a deal between two people where they agree to behave in a certain fashion. That is ultimately where human societies take the concept of marriage. On one end of the spectrum, some cultures take the view so low as to see it almost as a purchase; the man buys his wife from her father and she belongs to him. Here in the US, we are at the opposite end of the spectrum; marriage is a relational contract between two parties who have equal rights and privileges created by filing a document with the court system and therefore dissolvable by that system. In fact, we now see it so much as only a legal agreement that it does not even require a man and a woman; two men or two women can be married! But my point is that ultimately the world sees marriage as a relationship that does not change the individuality of the two parties and therefore as a relationship that can be broken or cancelled. A Jew had to draw up a document of divorce. A Muslim need simply say "I divorce you" and mean it. For us, we must file legal papers and settle property. What these Pharisees were actually trying to do was to drag Jesus into a theological debate that was going on in their time between two schools of thought among the leading Rabbis. But that debate is just as current today:

a. some feel it can be cancelled for any reason The school of Hillel taught that a man could divorce his wife for virtually any reason including (and I quote) "if she spoiled a dish for him" or "if he found another fairer than she". This is pretty much where our culture is: if you fall out of love, get a divorce, if things aren't as rosy as you thought they'd be, get a divorce, if you meet somebody else who's prettier or more handsome or who makes you feel that spark that your spouse doesn't anymore, get a divorce. It's only an agreement, a contract, and you can cancel it and make a new one (or even live together without it). This is the majority view in our day, as it seems to have been in Jesus' culture. But not everybody holds that view:

b. some feel it can be cancelled only for serious reason The school of Shammai was much stricter and more conservative and taught that divorce could only be pursued for adultery. Thank goodness that there is still a conservative element in our culture who believe that it's not enough to simply want a different spouse, that only serious issues like adultery, spousal abuse and desertion are viable grounds for divorce. It is this conservative element that keeps our society from totally falling apart.

But you see, there is a problem common to both of these groups. The Pharisees wanted to trap Jesus into a debating position on what's a big enough excuse to divorce. In other words, marriage is still just an agreement between two people; it's simply a matter of what level of importance you attach to the agreement. But Jesus didn't buy into it. He basically said, "You're asking the wrong question! God has a whole different view:"

2. God's view: marriage is a union of two lives (5-9) Jesus said, "What did Moses command?" They thought he was talking about Deut. 24 which says that if a man divorces his wife, he must give her a written bill of divorce. But Jesus says, "No, there Moses only permitted and regulated the practice of divorce for a bunch of hard-hearted people who were divorcing one another already. He didn't command divorce at all. I wasn't talking about that passage. Moses wrote Genesis as well as Deuteronomy and in Gen. 2:24 Moses wrote down God's command." God's view is this:

a. He created man and woman for union: ...made them male and female Physically, He made them in such a fashion as not to be complete in themselves. If the human race were all men, if He had created only Adam, there would be no race. Individuals can't clone themselves like amoebas! He created the male to require a female to supply to his life that which is missing from him and He created the female to require a male to supply to her life that which is missing from her. Now please don't take this wrong; I am not saying, nor is God, that a single person is only half a person or incomplete somehow without marriage. That's not true, nor is it the point. The point is that their very physical creation as male and female shows that they were made for union and then:

b. He created the process (which we call marriage) which unites them: ...be united to his wife A man is supposed to leave behind, forsake, chop, the lesser bond that ties him to his parents and, literally, glue himself (and the verb is in the intensive, that is, cement himself) to his wife. In what fashion, so that they are tied together with a rope that can be cut? So that they are taped together with a good brand of duct tape? No, so that they are united together into a single unit; they become a "one-flesh" unit. In the language of metallurgy, they are welded!

c. He joins them in an actual union: they are no longer two but one Literally, they shall be into one flesh and the one who has caused that is God. Malachi says the same thing. He rebuked that generation for the prevalence of divorce and said, Has not the Lord made them one? In flesh and spirit they are His. - 2:15. God joins them and the verb is literally, to yoke together, to put into the same yoke. Two oxen are put into one yoke together so they become one yoke of oxen, a singular with plurality. That's a picture of marriage, a one-flesh unit with duality, joined together permanently by God, so the point is:

d. the point: man should not separate what God has joined God puts husband and wife together in a permanent, forever, until death do us part, union and makes them one; why are you sitting around debating how big an excuse you need to break it apart and undo His work? Marriage is not some contract you can break but a God-created union that should only be broken apart in the most dire of circumstances when it is unavoidable. You should be affirming the permanence of marriage, not discussing excuses for divorce! Now this must have really been a novel concept, not only to the crowd, but to Jesus' own disciples. You can tell by:

3. the reaction of the disciples When they got Him alone, they asked:

a. a question: We are left to imagine the question but judging from the answer it must have been something like: Is it really that serious? (10) "Are you for real, man? Are you kidding? Nobody sees marriage like that anymore!" What else is there to question except to say, "Do you really mean what you said back there?" And look at:

b. Jesus' response: Yes, in fact, remarriage is an act of adultery! (11-12) The general rule is that marriage is so binding that if you find somebody you like better and divorce your present spouse and marry another one, it doesn't count! It doesn't dissolve your moral obligation. Your re-marriage constitutes an act of unfaithfulness against your first partner. Now please, please, please hear me. He is not saying that all remarried people are living in adultery and neither am I. Remarried people are married and they are living in marriage. There are times when divorce unavoidably happens and remarriage is legitimate. What those times and circumstances are is the subject of another message and a different discussion. Jesus is saying that marriage is so permanent that just saying "I divorce you" or getting a writing on a piece of paper, doesn't make it go away! Paul interpreted what Jesus had to say this way, To the married I give this command (not I, but the Lord [Jesus]): A wife must not separate from her husband. But if she does, she must remain unmarried or else be reconciled to her husband. And a husband must not divorce his wife. - 1 Cor 7:10-11. Why? Because the divorce paper doesn't make it go away; it's deeper than some contract! That's the general rule. There are some rare exceptions which he goes on to mention, but the point is that marriage is a God-created permanent union and we need to elevate it back up to where it belongs, instead of seeing how we can cheapen it! Jesus' own disciples had adopted a cheap view of marriage from the culture around them and the church today has largely done the same. The divorce rate inside the church and out is about the same, I'm told. Our young people are getting married with the view that if it doesn't work out, I can try again. It's high time we elevate the status of the marriage bond and see it for the permanent union God intended it to be and make it so before our children! How about you? Are you sometimes tempted to quit and give up, to find somebody else, to lower your view of marriage so you can find a way out of the contract and avoid the struggle and difficulty? Don't buy the lie! Marriage isn't what they say it is; it's what God says it is! Get help. Talk to someone competent about your problem today! Now while He was in the same house, Jesus got an opportunity to teach a second lesson that is much like this first one:

II. The Preciousness Of Children (13-16) Parents began coming to him with their little kids so He would hold them or touch them and pray over them. Maybe they had seen Him hold and hug that little child in chapter 9! But after all, what parent doesn't like to see somebody love on their child? What parent doesn't love to see some spiritual leader they respect hold their little one and pray over him or her and ask God to bless and keep them? We do it still today in our own infant dedications, only with a little more pomp and circumstance. Anyway, there must have been quite a group of them, coming one after the other. One or two might have been fine, but the disciples began to become annoyed and went to some of them further back in line and began to shoo them away and perhaps say, "Go home; stop troubling the Master like this, He's too busy to be bothered with this sort of thing!" Why did they do that? Because, as with marriage, they had adopted:

1. the world's view: children are of little value (13) They are not important, except for what they can do for you. They're not really people like us grown-ups. What matters is our needs and our feelings as adults. Boy, has Satan had a field day with that one in the pagan world. In their demon worship tribes have practiced child-sacrifice! In Thailand thousands of girls age 11, 12, 13 and up are sold by their families into prostitution to make money. The child pornography and sex business in the Philippines brings in millions and attracts travelers from Europe and Australia on the international circuit! In some big cities of Brazil abandoned street children roam by the hundreds and are sometimes shot by police to keep them under control. In parts of India and some Muslim countries they are forced into child marriages at 8 and 10 years old or undergo horrible atrocities of cultural ceremonies. We recoil at that, but is our culture really much better. We've debated the subject of partial birth abortion. Partial birth abortion simply means you can kill the baby when 95% of its body, all but the head, is out of the womb. Three more inches and it would be legal murder of an infant. Thank God it is still forbidden, but only with a penalty not to exceed 2 years in prison! We have nearly legalized infanticide, the killing of unwanted children, only you have to do it quick, before the last inches are born. It's only one step to killing deformed babies after birth and who knows what's next. Child abuse, molestation, and even kidnapping is on the rise all around us, the more we tell ourselves that kids are less than people. But even beyond those extreme acts, I see time after time after time that grownups choose themselves and their wants and their needs over their children and hurt them deeply. I watch kids whose parents live for themselves, for their careers, for their hobbies and kids are left to roam or get love and examples wherever they can find them. Grown up after grown up sits in my study for counseling who was damaged unthinkably by the selfish actions and choices of their parents from outright abuse of all sorts to pure neglect. Why? Because in the world's view, kids aren't important, we are! Even the disciples were unconsciously buying into that view but look at:

2. the reaction of Jesus: he was moved with indignation This is the only time this phrase is ever used of Jesus. The root of it means to feel pain, to hurt.

a. He was greatly upset at the disciples' attitude and action Jesus saw what the disciples did and it hurt Him deeply. Jesus hurts for little children and He sees what we do! And He had had enough. He said to them, "STOP IT!"

b. we must never hinder children from coming to Jesus Oh, we would never do it outright. We would never say, "Don't believe! Don't go to church! Don't pray!" But by our words, by our actions, by our attitudes, by the life example we set before them, or by simply ignoring them, we can hinder them from coming to Jesus. We are the living illustration of Jesus to them. They feel His love and compassion through us. They learn to love Him through us. If we live self-centered and treat them like the disciples did, that will be what they think of Jesus. But that's not how He feels at all. Look at:

3. the attitude of Jesus: he took them in his arms and blessed them He picked them up one at a time and hugged them and loved on them and prayed over them. You see:

a. He has a special love for children He has a high view of children. They are precious and important and individual. They hold a special place in His heart. Why? Because He is one with the Eternal Father, the perfect Father. Fatherhood is a part of His character. The love of God is the love of a Father for His children. In fact:

b. He demands childlikeness of every follower We must come to Him in simple helpless childlikeness to enter His kingdom. To put it another way, His Kingdom is actually a kingdom of children! We who believe are all His children. And look at the love and care He lavishes on us as His children, how He sweeps us up in His arms and loves on us, how He sacrifices Himself to provide for and protect us; shouldn't we earthly fathers and mothers and others be mirroring that same great love for the children in our lives and all around us?

Somewhere I read the following illustration: There it was--a tiny rosebud thrown in a heap with other uprooted and discarded rosebushes. Out of the tangled mass, one long stem pushed its way upward, thrusting forth its one tiny bud. The rosebushes had been thrown away by a disgruntled homeowner who could not seem to get them to grow well. As the man passed by the heap, he noticed the little rosebud, but he went on his way. The next day he noticed that the bud still seemed to have life and was trying to bloom. Donning gloves, he retrieved the bush on which that one bud clung tenaciously to life. He planted the bush and was rewarded several days later when a beautiful rose bloomed. Before long the whole bush came alive. In fact, that one bush outbloomed and outgrew other rosebushes the man planted later. Each year the bush seemed to have one especially long stem with an exquisite red rose on it. Many Christians are surrounded with families in their neighborhoods who never go to Sunday School or church. The children grow up without learning that Jesus died for their sins and wants to be their Savior. We may try to witness to these neighbors and find they are not interested. After several tries, we may be tempted to "leave them to their dying." We can think of each child as a rosebud that should have a chance at eternal life. We need to reach them while their hearts are tender toward God. How can we reach them? Invite them to Sunday School or [Pioneer Clubs]. Make friends with them; when you know them well, talk to them about the Lord. Because one tiny rosebud was unwilling to die, the whole bush was saved. Likewise, whole families have been won to Christ because one child came to know Him first. May we never lose hope for the children who need to know about Jesus and His love for them! And how about your own children? How important are they in your life? Culture impacts us silently and quietly all the time and we don't even feel its subtle influence. If we let our guard down it is so easy for our view of marriage, and ultimately of our own marriage, to deteriorate and lower. It is so easy for our view of children, and ultimately of our own children, to change until we find ourselves pushing them aside and don't even realize it. Let's put marriage back up on the pedestal where it belongs. Let's love children the way Jesus did.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant Of God

Training His Disciples: A Lesson About Rewards 10:17-45

Now Jesus is nearing Jerusalem for that last time and the opportunity for one final lesson for His disciples presents itself. It's a lesson about rewards. We all know that salvation is a free gift; eternal life cannot be earned or deserved. It comes simply by trusting in the shed blood of Jesus to take away our sins. But when it comes to the subject of being rewarded as a believer, if we could really see deeply into our own hearts, we might be surprised to find just how deep is:

I. Our Attachment To Materialistic Thinking (17-27) A young man whom we have come to call the rich, young ruler came to meet him and fell at his feet, and in him we have:

1. the rich young ruler: materialism revealed (17-22) Let's think about this young man. First of all:

a. he was a morally "good" person externally He called Jesus "Good Master" and Jesus could see his heart and called him on it right away, "Remember there is none good but God" (which meant that He qualified because He was God!), but he saw Jesus simply as someone who had achieved moral excellence and he saw himself the same way. He had worked hard to keep all the commandments of God from his youth. In the outward sense he had personally succeeded. He hadn't lied, stolen, cheated or murdered. He was not some rich, mean, selfish Herod or Pilate type who sought to get wealth by any means and use it for wrong purposes. He thought of himself as good and blessed of God materially because of it. Secondly:

b. he was sincerely willing to "do" what God would require He was not expecting Jesus to mention the same old things but to name some great feat that would guarantee him the possession of eternal life. What more could he do for God to insure His position? Rebuild the Temple? Go on a pilgrimage? Fast and pray? What? But you can see, can't you, that his whole mode of thinking was wrong? His spiritual life was another business transaction. You do in order to receive. You work in order to get. You serve God in order to inherit eternal life later. Oh, how many millions of people are stuck on that treadmill, believing that eternal life comes by good works! He thought he was good, almost good enough, certainly very sincere, just like all those other folks around us who are praying and giving and attending and helping and whatever, thinking they will get life. But the tragic thing is that he couldn't see into his own heart. Jesus could, and so He struck what He knew was the magic chord. If He had said, "Do you love God with all your heart and soul and mind and strength", he'd have replied, "Yes, and I repeat it from Deut. 6:4 every day to remind myself! I even have it on my wall!" But Jesus didn't put it that way. He said, "Go, sell all you have and give it away and follow me." In other words, "Show me whether you love Me more or your things more!" And the sad fact is:

c. in his heart he loved gold more than God Now Jesus wasn't trying to be mean. He looked at him and loved him! He was trying to show him his own heart in order to reach him. It was in great personal sadness that Jesus watched him walk away disheartened, saying, "No, the cost is too much!" But it's not surprising. If Jesus asked that same thing of a great many people today, He'd get the same response. What is surprising is the reaction of the disciples:

2. the surprise of the disciples: materialism absorbed (23-27) It shocked them when:

a. Jesus talked about prosperity as a death trap Most rich people fall in love with what they have and love it more than God. It's easier to squish a camel through the eye of a needle than to get a rich man saved, because 99.99% of the time he loves his gold more than God, which is idolatry and God can't stand for it. It takes a miracle of God to save anybody, to shake them out of their "I'll earn my salvation" thing, much less a rich person. They have no sense of need, no sense of inadequacy, no sense of needing a Savior to extend mercy to them in their helplessness. That's one of the reasons it's so hard to win Americans to Christ; we have too much. Prosperity is a death trap; it keeps you from life and it takes an act of God to open your eyes and let you see it. Well, they about fell over! Why?

b. they had come to see prosperity as a sign of God's blessing God gives good things to those He loves. He showers them with the good things of life. The happy man, the blessed man is the man who has things. That's what their society taught them. Happiness is every man sitting under his own vine and his own fig tree, contented in all he has. That's the blessing of God! Good grief, if good moral rich people can't be saved, then the rest of us poor peons have no chance at all! Our culture has taught us the same thing, materialism. Strive for more. Strive for better. Get a house. Get a car. Get money. Get power. He who dies with the most toys wins! And it seeps into our hearts as Christians. We Christianize materialism. Barbara Walters interviewed former PTL leader Jim Bakker on 20/20 now that he's out of prison and she asked him what he'd learned. His answer was, "I had lots of time and I studied the Bible and saw what it really had to say. I was teaching people how to be rich. I was telling people to seek after worldly riches and that God would bless them with it. I WAS WRONG! The New Testament teaches the opposite; you will have difficulty and trouble and persecution!" He is perhaps the most vivid example I know of a modern, worldly Christian who got caught up in the materialism of his culture, but we all tend to absorb that same thinking too! It may come out clearly in a life given to seeking after material things or it may come out in another, more "spiritual" way:

II. Our Desire For Earthly Rewards (28-31) Jesus' words jogged Peter's mind and he blurted out, "Hey, wait a minute! We did that. Every one of us left behind our homes and our families and our businesses to follow you and we've been following You around for three years. What do we get for that? Surely there's a spiritual reward for that in the Kingdom!" And Jesus said, "You're right. Let's talk about rewards". And then He distinguished them in two categories:

1. our present reward (28-30) Look at these tremendous words. They are for right now in this life. He promises to every follower:

a. an immeasurable spiritual replacement blessing A hundred-fold return. That's 100 times not 100% (twice as much). The ultimate replacement. "Have you left family for me? Have they cast you out for your faith? Right now, in this life I'll give you a family that's 100 times better! In my church you'll have fathers and mothers and brothers and sisters that are true and real and loving." I've found that! "Has your faith cost you possessions, money, houses, lands? The possessions I give you you'll find 100 times better! I'll take care of your needs but I'll give you peace in your soul and joy in your heart, and hope in your future. I'll give you all the things those things could never buy and things you can't lose. I'll fill your heart with love and satisfaction." I heard one Bible teacher put it this way, "Even if there was nothing to look forward to after death, even if there was no heaven to look forward to, I'd still rather be a Christian than anything else I know. The blessings He provides in this life are enough!" They're a hundred-fold! But there's a catch:

b. but in the context of suffering and persecution The greatest peace often comes through loss; the greatest joy often comes through persecution and suffering! The Christian life is the most blessed life there is on this earth; make no mistake about it. But it comes with large doses of suffering and pain and hurt like all of life does! That's why Corrie Ten Boom could find the fullness of life in a German prison camp, why Joni Eareckson Tada could experience the greatest joy of her life in a wheelchair with no use of her limbs and why Paul could testify like many of the Christians in China today, that through the suffering of all kinds of difficulties he had learned the secret of contentment: the strength provided by Jesus Christ! Folks, the Christian life is a life you wouldn't trade for anything the world can give; trust me, a lot of folks have tried it and found out! But it doesn't look the way our culture would have you picture it! And then there's the icing on the cake:

2. our future reward: a life with Him forever (30b) It's not a thing; it's a life. Never mind what heaven is like and all its glory and beauty. Never mind the kingdom where Jesus says we're going to reign as kings with Him forever. In the age to come, we simply get to live with Him in His presence, to share His eternal no-beginning, no-ending life with Him for the rest of eternity. What more bliss could there be! It's what we were created for. The rewards there are not material. Silver and gold and possessions and houses and lands are meaningless there. But yes, Jesus rewards His followers. Yes, He gives them wonderful things. But having said that, He turns right around and gives His disciples:

3. a warning about comparison and evaluation (31) He could see where their thinking was going. They weren't free of that old "get and acquire" thing yet. So He told them, "There are going to be some big upsets in heaven. It's not going to be like you think. It's not going to work on a system that you can figure out. A lot of people who look like they're first, #1, here are going to be last there. A lot of the people who look so good because they're so sacrificial and they do so much, may be in last place. And there are a lot of little old praying widows and shut-ins who don't look like much here, who are going to be honored there. My value system is backwards from the one the world has drummed into you, so don't try to sit and figure it out and get caught up in evaluating how well you're doing, especially by comparing yourself to others. Man, that won't work!" But the disciples didn't hear this part too well! OK, so we quit looking for earthly rewards. What comes out then is what came out in the disciples down the road further near Jericho:

III. Our Desire For Heavenly Rewards (35-45) There is one small piece of that last conversation that Mark didn't record and it's important. Mt. 19:28, Jesus said to them, "I tell you the truth, at the renewal of all things, when the Son of Man sits on his glorious throne, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. This was special, just for the 12 who would be the foundation of His church. Then He went on to talk about earthly rewards for all of us. This stuck with them and two of them now came with a request which shows that we can also have:

1. our improper concern with heavenly rewards (35-40) "OK, so we're not going to get rich here or even there. But position is still a thought. We could still be #1 and #2, your right and left hand men in the Kingdom!" Prominence, importance, power, those things are a reward to be sought too! But Jesus' reply is so instructive. Look what He says about those things:

a. they are not simply handed out by God to His favorites In all fairness, that was how any government they knew worked. A ruler invested his closest friends with important positions. Political jobs are not new. But God doesn't work like that. He doesn't pick and choose favorites. He loves all His children equally. He doesn't reward some highly simply because He likes them more. You can't go to Him and ask for some position in the Kingdom. He has a better system in place! So:

b. they are never to become the focus of our service on earth They are never to become the motive that drives us to serve. Why not? First:

(1) we do not know their true nature "You don't know what you're asking!" We have all these crazy jokes about heaven that are materialistic, like the little old lady who gets a Cadillac and the preacher on roller skates. You've heard them. We take that idea of laying up treasures for ourselves in heaven pretty literally and materialistically. But we don't know what our rewards are going to be like. One thing I do know, they're not going to be material. Heaven is not going to be more heavenly or luxurious for some than for others! We don't know what our rewards will be. Certainly, part of them will be meeting the people that are there in heaven because of our efforts. What a joy! Yet another part will be the place of service we have in God's eternal program, but as soon as I say that, it gets materialized in our minds and we think, "Oh, so some of us get to be heaven's street cleaners and others sit on thrones..." No, it's not like that at all! We're not working here to have high rank there, to get ahead. And what's more Jesus reminded them that:

(2) we do not know ourselves fully "Can you suffer what I'm headed for?" "Oh yeah, sure, we can take it!" Jesus said, "Well, you're actually right. James you will die by the sword and John you will suffer until the day you die." But the point is, you can't know yourself that well. You can't know what you will or won't be doing in your life and how you'll respond to certain things. And you can't know about the billions of others who belong to His kingdom. The focus is still wrong; it is self-oriented. When it comes to our thinking about rewards let's think this way:

c. God prepares rewards for people by His unerring judgment It's not like there's a finite set of material prizes up there, only so many to be won and when they're all claimed they're gone. God prepared that #1 and #2 spot for particular people He has in mind. God prepares rewards for each of His people, He prepares a personalized future for each one of His children that is just right, just fitting to the life they lived on earth. And it's based on His perfect knowledge of our lives and our hearts, not on our skimpy view! So basically put, rewards are His concern, His business! It's great that we know that they exist. But we're not to focus on them, to strive for them as if they are things to be amassed and acquired. We need to leave our heavenly rewards, whatever they are, to God the Just Judge of all the Earth who always does right and focus on:

2. our proper concern: an attitude of servanthood on earth (41-45) The 10 got hot at James and John. That probably means they all coveted those spots for themselves and thought they were cheating by asking them as a favor! But Jesus gave them all another lecture on this important subject of servanthood. They needed it over and over again and so do we. You see:

a. to men leadership usually means privilege To be in charge means power. It means you get perks. You get to do what you want, to choose what you want and enforce your will on others. But it doesn't work like that in God's kingdom:

b. to God leadership means servanthood To be in charge means to be responsible, to be charged with the care of others and meeting their needs. It means servanthood, ministering to the needs of others, not getting for yourself. So, the greatest leader in God's eyes is the most humble servant, selflessly giving of himself for the needs of the most people! So, our fleshly desire to be rewarded is wrongly focused:

c. we should desire to be great in service not in privilege Jesus is Lord of All, King of Kings. But not so that He can get His way and enforce His will, not so He can have privilege. His focus was to die and rescue men from their sins. His greatest command was for the church to go to the ends of the earth and rescue men and give them eternal life through the Gospel. He didn't sit around thinking, "I can endure this; after all when I get back to heaven, look at the privilege I'll have." He saw the need of a dying world and His heart loved every one of them and wanted to save them. His desire was to serve and save as many as possible, not to be personally great. So we should desire to be #1 in serving, not privilege, #1 in giving ourselves away for the sake of others. That's what God loves. It mirrors His heart. And that's what He rewards. But as soon as you consciously focus on the reward, even service becomes selfishness.

Let me close by telling you about a woman you've never heard of. Dr. Eleanor Chestnut arrived in China in 1893 under the American Presbyterian missions board. Dr. Chestnut built a hospital, using her own money to buy bricks and mortar. The need for her services was so great and so compelling upon her that she performed surgery in her bathroom until the building was completed. One operation involved the amputation of a common laborer's leg. Complications arose, and skin grafts were needed. A few days later, another doctor asked Dr. Chestnut why she was limping. "Oh, it's nothing," was her terse reply. Finally, a nurse revealed that the skin graft for the patient, a coolie, came from Dr. Chestnut's own leg, taken with only a local anesthetic. After 12 years of this kind of selfless servanthood, during the Boxer Rebellion of 1905, Dr. Chestnut and four other missionaries were killed by a mob that stormed the hospital. Material rewards? There were none. She died a martyr's death. Some would call it a waste. But she gave her life for the cause of serving other people and in God's economy I can assure you that is not a waste. Is she the greatest in the Kingdom? I don't have any way to know and quite frankly, I don't think she cared. But I do know that she lived the life of selfless servanthood that Jesus was talking about here. That's what He wants for us. And it isn't only for doctors but for fishermen and all the rest of us. And it isn't only for those who go to China or some far place; it can be lived right here. The reward is not in the joy of what we will get or be; it is in what we are able to give to others. It is to see a patient relieved of suffering, to see the fear go out of a frightened child's eyes, to see the joy of the person who finds forgiveness of his sins through Jesus. It may be costly but that's the life I want. How about you!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

IV. The Rejection Of The Servant Chs. 11-13

The Servant's Final Offer 11:1-11

The remaining chapters of Mark's Gospel all deal with the last week of Jesus' life on earth. Three chapters, 11-13, cover His entry into Jerusalem and the rejection He received there as he taught during that Passion Week. 14-15 cover His Last Supper, arrest and trial and His crucifixion, and in chapter 16 we find the glory of His resurrection. And it all begins with that familiar scene which we call the Triumphal Entry. Every Sunday school child is familiar with the story of how Jesus rode into Jerusalem on what we call Palm Sunday on a donkey. And on the surface, what an exciting day it must have been. Jesus rode down into the city with multitudes in front and behind shouting and cheering for Him, waving palm branches and throwing their garments down to make a "red carpet" path for his donkey's feet. For the disciples it must have been a "cloud nine experience", the kind of acclamation they'd been waiting to see their Master receive all the way along and right there in Jerusalem, the capital city and center of all Jewish life. But there is a far deeper significance in this scene than we realize. So, let's begin by looking carefully at:

I. The Factors Involved In His Triumphal Entry First, before it even began:

1. there was a demonstration of His power (1-6) Jesus has been coming up the road from Jericho. He has not been to the little village ahead of him. Yet He sends his disciples on an errand to retrieve a donkey for him to ride. And what is abundantly clear is that:

a. He saw every piece of the scene ahead of time In His mind He could see into that town. He could see a donkey and her colt standing there, tied at a doorway. He knew who owned the animals and saw that the owners were standing nearby. He knew how they would react when the disciples loosed the donkey and that, in the end, they would allow it. Plus, He knew they would be there right at the moment when He needed them! It kind of reminds you of when Philip first believed and he ran and found Nathaniel and brought him to Jesus and Jesus said, I saw you while you were still under the fig tree before Philip called you. - John 1:48. And Nathanael immediately saw the significance of that and said, Rabbi, you are the Son of God; you are the King of Israel. What Jesus was displaying was His omniscience, that He knows all things as only God can. And then did you ever notice this? The colt which they brought back for Him to ride had never been ridden, yet:

b. He rode an unbroken colt all the way down the mountain and into Jerusalem without a problem Now I've never raised donkeys, but growing up we raised ponies and if there's one thing I learned, it is that you don't just go up to a colt and hop on its back without some resistance! In fact, I remember one unriden, untrained two year old pony colt that it took two men to load onto a truck, one pulling with all his might on a rope from the front and the other pushing from the back end, and he got kicked! Donkeys are probably a bit more docile, but I'd be willing to bet that the first ride is still no easy thing, yet Jesus was demonstrating once again in a small way His omnipotence, His power over all things. He walked on water, He told the wind and waves to be still and He silently sat on an unbroken donkey and it obeyed Him!

What is Jesus saying to His disciples? I am omniscient and omnipotent; I know all things and can do all things; all authority in heaven and earth is given unto me! I am the Son of the Living God, the King of Israel! Now notice a second factor here:

2. there was a fulfillment of the Scriptures (7) Jesus could have chosen to simply walk into Jerusalem. He walked every other time and in every other place. Choosing to ride in on a donkey was unique; He had never done it before. In fact, He says he "needed" it. Matt 21:4 tells us why. This took place to fulfill what was spoken through the prophet: and then he quotes Zech. 9:9, Rejoice greatly, O Daughter of Zion! Shout, Daughter of Jerusalem! See, your king comes to you, righteous and having salvation, gentle and riding on a donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey. Four hundred years earlier God had said through Zechariah that Jerusalem would know her King when He came, because He would come to her riding on a donkey and she would rejoice and shout! And not just on any donkey, on a colt, the foal of a donkey! He was fulfilling the Scriptures. Why? Matthew links it with Is. 62:11, The LORD has made proclamation to the ends of the earth: "Say to the Daughter of Zion, 'See, your Savior comes!... It was Jesus' way of quietly shouting, "I am your King; I am your Savior!" And then notice a third factor:

3. there was an acclamation by the multitude (8-10) A crowd had come out to meet Him from the city and a crowd had gathered behind him as well, and they were honoring Him by throwing their garments and palm branches down for Him to ride over. But what's important is what they were shouting. It was a:

a. their prophetic confession quoted from Ps. 118:25-26. Hosanna is the Hebrew word for Save us! It was originally a prayer, but by this time it and these verses had become part of the liturgy of the Passover celebration, so that it was simply an expression of praise like Hallelujah! But if you check, back in Ps. 118 it is, O LORD, save us! It is directed to Jehovah God Himself! Yet here they point it at Jesus! This whole Psalm was chanted during Passover time and these verses often were used to welcome pilgrims to Jerusalem, but this time it goes way beyond that. It is not only, Blessed is He..., but they added their own interpretation which is not found in the Psalm, Blessed is the coming Kingdom... They are acclaiming Jesus as the Messiah and King promised by the prophets of old! What they said was true; He was the King and the King was coming to them and the Kingdom was coming to them in His person. But you wonder how the same basic crowd could turn around on Friday morning and shout, "Crucify Him!" Well, turn over to Matthew for a moment and notice:

b. their shallow understanding - Mt. 21:10-11 Oh, see how far short this falls! They're shouting and calling Him Messiah and King and fulfilling the Scriptures with every step, and yet they see Him as "the prophet Jesus from Nazareth". A powerful prophet, to be sure, but only a prophet. You see, they missed:

II. The Purpose Of His Triumphal Entry What was He doing in this entry from start to finish?

1. He was openly declaring His identity as Messiah and King Up to this point, He had always told His disciples "Don't tell anyone. Hush! Be quiet about it!" But this day, He in His Divine Sovereignty arranged things so it would be shouted to the world, "I am the Messiah; I am the King of the Jews!" It was an open, public declaration of His identity before all of Israel who were gathered at Jerusalem for Passover. And it had to be so. God had to make it clear to the Jewish people and their leaders who Jesus was. In fact, it was so necessary that we read this in Lk. 19:39-40. If the people hadn't declared His identity, He would have had the rocks do it! That's how important it was that His identity be declared publicly at this time. Why?

2. He was offering the promised Kingdom He was offering Israel and all its leaders for the last time the opportunity to receive Him as their King and Messiah in a way they couldn't miss or mistake. In theory, if they would have turned en masse to Him with their hearts they could have had the Messiah they always looked for and the Kingdom they were always waiting for. But He knew they wouldn't. Even as the ride neared its end, look what He said in Lk. 19:41-44. "If only you knew! If only you would receive Me as your King. If only you would recognize this time. God is coming to you right now and I am He!!!" But it was hidden from them; they were blinded by sin and their man-made religious ideas. They missed the message and rejected the King. However, there is one other thing Jesus was doing:

3. He was displaying the nature of His Kingdom He did not come on a war horse or in a chariot like a conqueror. Listen to Zech. 9:9-10 again, ...your king comes to you, righteous and having salvation, gentle and riding on a donkey...I will take away the chariots from Ephraim and the war-horses from Jerusalem, and the battle bow will be broken. He will proclaim peace to the nations. His rule will extend from sea to sea and from the River to the ends of the earth. By coming this way, on a donkey acclaimed by disciples instead of on a war horse followed by an army, He's saying "I am coming to be your King, but I'm not coming to fight the Romans as you'd like; I'm not coming to bring war; I'm coming to bring peace and to extend that peace to all the nations of the earth!" How prophetic that would be, as we'll see in a moment!

So, what does all this mean for me. I wasn't there. Was it just an act of history that had meaning for that moment and now is over? I think not. There is a threefold:

III. The Meaning Of His Triumphal Entry First of all:

1. it symbolizes His whole first advent His coming to Jerusalem is, in one sense, a miniature of His coming to earth. It represents all that the Father was doing in sending His Son that first time. Look how John puts it in John 1:9-14.

a. He, the Creator, came in flesh to offer Himself to His own creation Just as Jesus, the true King, the true light, was coming into the city, to the Jews, so in the incarnation Jesus was coming into the world as the light. But what happened?

b. the majority rejected Him or only shallowly received Him The crowd was glad to shout hosanna today but had no real understanding. The Pharisees and religious leaders were utterly outraged by His entry and demanded that He rebuke His followers. And so it was that first time, He came to His own but His own world and His own people didn't recognize who He was and didn't receive Him. Oh, what a travesty! The King comes to His subjects and they don't want Him. The Creator comes to His creation and they don't want Him. But nevertheless:

c. a minority truly received Him and became children of God It was not wasted. His disciples did believe truly, did receive Him fully, and became God's children. And John takes us a step further. He says, "Here's what I saw: The Word became flesh and dwelt among us and we saw His glory, the very glory of Eternal God coming to His own creation! And I received it and I received Him and I became His child. And that is for all who receive Him, for all who will believe in His name, as many as receive Him become children of God." You see, in a very real way, what Jesus did by riding into Jerusalem:

2. it symbolizes the whole of the present church age All through this age ever since, He has been doing the same thing:

a. He is coming in His body, the Church, to the peoples of the world Then, He became incarnate in a body of flesh. Now, we are told that the Church, WE, are His body. He is incarnate in us; He lives out His life through us. He is the Head and we are the arms and feet. And as the Head He has directed us to go into all the world and preach the Gospel and wherever we go. He comes riding into town peaceably, telling people who have never heard of Him that He is the King through our lips, through our Hosannas of praise to Him, offering Himself peaceably as Lord! But what happens? Now as then:

b. the majority reject Him or only shallowly receive Him Nearly three billion people have still not had a chance to hear. He has not come to town through us yet where they live. Then, another two billion have heard but like those Jewish leaders have said "No! You are not the King. We do not believe! We have our own ways, our own religions, our own gods!" Then, another billion and a half have said, "Yes" and shouted Hosanna, but only to the prophet Jesus from Nazareth. They are "Christian" in the sense that they are not Jewish or Muslim or Hindu. They acclaim Christ as a historical figure, a visionary leader, an important teacher. We might broadly call them Christendom, but they do not receive Him as King of kings and Lord of lords in their own hearts! Yet, praise God that today, as then:

c. a minority receive Him and become His children A growing number, now increased from that handful of disciples to more than 600 million do receive Him as Savior and become Children of God. And it is those who are really a part of His kingdom. And then let me point out one last thing. That Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem:

3. it is a contrasting reminder of His second coming Jesus is going to come riding again and riding into Jerusalem again. Only this time it will be a different way. Look at Rev. 19:11-16:

a. He is coming the second time on a conqueror's horse, not a peaceful donkey. He is coming to judge the nations and fight His enemies and not one of them will stand before Him. The first time, His own world did not receive Him. Through all this age, by and large, His world did not receive Him. But:

b. He is coming the second time to enforce His Lordship and set up a Kingdom that will never be overthrown. And in that day the Lord, Jesus, will be King over all the earth and every knee shall bow!

Greg Fisher tells this story: "What will he say when he shouts?" The question took me by surprise. I had already found that West African Bible College Students can ask some of the most penetrating questions about minute details of Scripture. "Reverend, 1 Thessalonians 4:16 says that Christ will descend from heaven with a loud command. I would like to know what that command will be." I wanted to leave the question unanswered, to tell him that we must not go past what Scripture has revealed, but my mind wandered to an encounter I had earlier in the day with a refugee from the Liberian civil war. The man, a high school principal, told me how he was apprehended by a two-man death squad. After several hours of terror, as the men described how they would torture and kill him, he narrowly escaped. After hiding in the bush for two days, he was able to find his family and escape to a neighboring country. The escape cost him dearly: two of his children lost their lives. The stark cruelty unleashed on an unsuspecting, undeserving population had touched me deeply. I also saw flashbacks of the beggars that I pass each morning on my way to the office. Every day I see how poverty destroys dignity, robs men of the best of what it means to be human, and sometimes substitutes the worst of what it means to be an animal. I am haunted by the vacant eyes of people who have lost all hope. "Reverend, you have not given me an answer. What will he say?" The question hadn't gone away. "Enough," I said, "He will shout, 'Enough!' when he returns." A look of surprise opened the face of the student. "What do you mean, enough?" "Enough suffering. Enough starvation. Enough terror. Enough death. Enough indignity. Enough lives trapped in hopelessness. Enough sickness and disease. Enough time. Enough!" When He comes next time, He will say "Enough of this" and opportunity will be over! But today He still comes gently and peacefully and patiently, not willing that any should perish but that all should come to repentance. Aren't you glad that you're part of the crowd shouting Hosanna, but you mean it! You know who He is! Well, if you are, let Him ride gently and peaceably into the lives of others through you; declare His glory like the multitude did; tell them who He is and how important it is to receive Him. One day He will come on that white horse and shout "Enough" and it will be too late!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Rejection: His Divine Authority 11:12-12:12

When Jesus rode into Jerusalem on that donkey on Palm Sunday, He was declaring Himself Messiah and King of the Jews. After His resurrection He inflated that claim even further in Mat. 28:18, Then Jesus came to [His disciples] and said, "All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me." Put simply, it means, "I run the universe; I am Lord." The dictionary says that authority is the right and the power to command, determine or judge. That's a pretty good summary of the meaning of the Greek word too. It means the right to be in charge, to tell others what to do, to determine what is going to happen or to judge the performance of others. But it also includes the power to enforce the right. Unless you have the power to see that your command and determination is carried out, your right is pretty well useless! Jesus has both the right and the power to be Lord. What that authority means to you depends on whether you've accepted it or you are in the process of rejecting it. And that is what the two incidents in our text today are about, His authority. They are addressed to two different groups of people with obviously different responses to His entry. First, we find:

I. His Authority Displayed To His Disciples (12-14, 20-26) Jesus and His disciples went back out of the city and spent Sunday night in the village of Bethany with friends. On the way back in on Monday morning Jesus:

1. He demonstrated the meaning of authority for them through a very peculiar event (12-14). I've read several explanations of this, but in Palestine fig trees bear multiple crops of figs and have fruit on them about 10 months out of the year. In April at Passover time, leaves are an advertisement that fruit is either hanging or ripening on the tree (even though the first fig crop doesn't ripen until later) and Jesus went to look. But this particular tree was all advertisement and no production. It was a barren fig tree, a fruitless tree taking up space but yielding nothing. And so:

a. He gave a command concerning the fig tree In verse 21 Peter called it a curse. He gave a decree. "No one will ever eat from this tree again. I am Lord. By my authority I say so. It will be so." That's the sense of it. I'm sure the disciples didn't think very much of it and went on their way into town without giving it too much thought, that is, until the next morning when they passed by it again (20-21). They were astonished; they were astounded. There stood the same fig tree they saw yesterday all green and leafy, now all brown and dead and dried up. And the lesson became obvious:

b. His power carried out His command Jesus' authority is such that when He talks, the universe listens, even trees! He is Lord and what He speaks with His mouth comes to pass by His power and it happens:

(1) in the intended timing If they'd come back a year later and seen the tree dead, the words would still have been fulfilled, but it would have been seen as a kind of natural act; a tree dies. But when Jesus said, "Go dry up!", He meant "Go dry up right now!" and the tree knew it. What He determines comes to pass exactly when He wants it! That's the kind of Lord He is. And it comes to pass:

(2) in thorough detail Notice that the tree was dried up from the roots. It wasn't just that the leaves turned brown or even fell off. The trunk was dead and the bark dry like an old dead tree. It was dead for good; no watering by the owner would bring it back. Jesus said "forever" and it happened forever! Down to the details.

Now why on earth did Jesus dry up that fig tree? Was He angry about not finding figs and took it out on the tree? Does He simply not care about our precious natural resources and kill trees like some whimsical kid in the woods with an ax in his hand? No, the tree gave its life for a purpose. It was a deliberately chosen act which Jesus designed to show His disciples the power behind His words, the authority He had. And why did He do it?

2. He demonstrated that authority to embolden our praying (22-26) Now Jesus teaches about praying. Sometimes we get caught up right away in what Jesus said next, and we skip what He said first, which is His major point:

a. we are to count on God's authority (22) - have faith in God Realize who you're dealing with here! God is not some half-powerful struggling being who may or may not be able to do what He'd like to do or says He'll do. If He says a fig tree is going to wither, it will wither. If He says that the Mt. of Olives will jump into the Mediterranean, it will jump! If Jesus says that the Gospel will be preached to all nations and then the end will come, the Gospel will be preached. He has the right to determine and decree what will happen and the absolute power to carry it out, the devil and all his angels notwithstanding! This is our God; this is our Savior. Trust Him and that will revolutionize your praying! Jesus said:

b. we are to believe that God will do what we ask (23-24) In every religion in the world, the worshippers come to their god half-hoping, half-wondering, half-pleading, trying somehow to persuade him through prayer and offerings or whatever to grant their requests. Jesus said, "Don't come like that! When you come to God, come knowing that God is for you, that He loves you, that you are His child and heir. Come knowing that He is able to do exceedingly abundantly far more than you can ask or think. When you come to God, come in faith. Come expecting Him to do what you ask; come fully confident of His ability to do it and expect it to be done! Trust Him! When you pray like that, trusting that you have received an answer, you receive it!" You need to come to God like Jesus did. At Lazarus' grave just a few days earlier He had said, Father, I thank you that you have heard me. I knew that you always hear me but I said this for the benefit of the people... Jesus knew that the Father always heard Him; He wouldn't even have mentioned it, except to encourage the bystanders! Then He cried, Lazarus, come forth! expecting that the Father would hear His cry and raise Lazarus. And a dead man got up and walked out! Jesus said, "That's not just for Me! That's for you! When you pray, do like I do; trust that the Father ALWAYS hears you! Trust His authority; trust His power. Believe that it is already done! That's how to come to the Father!" Boy, what a tremendous encouragement and promise! But the minute we hear that, the flesh wants to take over and try to make it mean something else. So let me issue some cautions:

(1) we need to trust His power, not our believing This often gets interpreted to mean that whether I get what I ask for depends on whether I have enough faith, on whether I believe hard enough. But that's not the point. In fact, one time when Jesus taught this, He even added that it only takes faith the size of a grain of mustard seed. It's not a matter of the quantity of faith; that makes faith some kind of good work you have to produce to get God to do something for you and that's not true. We are to approach God believing, trusting His authority because of who He is and how much He loves us. The second caution is:

(2) we need to seek His will in what we ask Can I just walk around getting what I want with this, withering up fig trees whenever I please? No, and Jesus didn't do it either. He said, I always do what pleases Him! - John 8:29. The apostle John put it this way: 1 Jn. 5:14-15. God is not about to let you become a spoiled kid who always gets what he wants on some whim! This promise works when we line ourselves up with His will. You see, He has the authority, the right to determine how things will be, not us! We are to line ourselves up under it, but once He makes clear what it is, we are to ask in faith and watch the mountains move! And finally, notice verse 25:

(3) we need to display His character in what we ask (25) His love and forgiveness and all the rest of it! We can't go around like the disciples wanted to, calling down lightning on our enemies! But when we line up our character with His, when the Spirit of God is bearing His fruit through us and our heart is as His heart, then we can pray in boldness and confidence expecting it to be done!

There is a primitive mountain tribe in Vietnam called the Churu people. Just a few years ago the Lord moved the hearts of some other national believers to reach them. Here's the story: The witchdoctors among the Churu have a lot of demonic power All the village people live in fear of them. If a witch doctor decides to curse someone who isn't a Christian then there is no way that person can survive... Because of the power and intimidation of the witchdoctors, the Churu have lived in fear and bondage for centuries. They are also trapped in poverty because of these evil men. Whenever something goes wrong such as a sickness or a poor harvest, the family are forced to consult the witchdoctor [and] the remedies are never cheap, whether they demand the sacrificing of valuable livestock as offerings to the evil spirits or simply the paying of a fee for weddings, funerals, etc. After we started sharing the Gospel, the witch doctor in the village stirred up the people against our message. We told them not to listen. The main symbol of the witch doctor's spiritual authority was a huge wild pig's tooth which he wore on a chain around his neck. The tooth is passed from one generation to another as a sign of authority. The witch doctor came to us and said, "If your God can make this tooth catch on fire, then we will believe in Him, but if it does not, we will kill you all right here!" As you can imagine, we prayed very fervently and cried out to the Lord! Hundreds of Churu gathered around us to see what would happen. After praying for some time, suddenly the pig's tooth burst into flames by itself!! The whole village saw it and were amazed. After that, many believed the message of Jesus Christ. Today we have a church of more than 300 people among the Churu. My friend, God hasn't changed and the promise still stands! Pray according to His will but trust God when you pray; trust that He has both the right and the power to do what He wants to do, no matter what the odds against it! Now, this would be a great place to end this sermon, but Jesus displayed His authority one more time that day and this time we see:

II. His Authority Displayed To His Enemies (15-19, 27-33) And the place He chose to do it was at the Temple. Herod's Temple had various courts. The largest and outermost court was the court of the Gentiles; no non-Jew could go any further than there to worship. But the High Priest had authorized a market to be set up there for the sale of ritually pure items for sacrifice, such as wine, oil, salt, and approved sacrificial animals and birds. Also, the temple tax had to be paid in Jewish money, so money changers set up booths to exchange Greek and Roman coins, for a small percentage, of course. Plus, the Temple was pretty big (500 yards x 300 yards) and if you were passing from one section of the city to the other or out to the Mt. of Olives, it was a long way to go out around it; it was a whole lot easier to cut through the outer court! So, there was traffic passing through, even merchandise being carried by, all the time. It was here that Jesus:

1. He demonstrated His possession of authority

a. by clearing the Temple courts (15-16) He did not lose His temper. He deliberately (see verse 11) entered and began to chase out the merchants and people passing through. He overturned their tables and shooed their animals out. He deliberately defied the Jewish authority that had given them permission to be there. This was a big area and the process took a while but even as He was doing it, He taught the people:

b. by declaring God's desire for the Gentiles (17) He quoted Is. 56:6-7, And foreigners who bind themselves to the LORD to serve him, to love the name of the LORD, and to worship him, all who keep the Sabbath without desecrating it and who hold fast to my covenant-- these I will bring to my holy mountain and give them joy in my house of prayer. Their burnt offerings and sacrifices will be accepted on my altar; for my house will be called a house of prayer for all nations. This great court was to be a place of worship, a place where the peoples of the earth could come and fall before the God of Israel in praise. But then He quotes Jer. 7:11, Has this house, which bears my Name, become a den of robbers to you? But I have been watching! declares the LORD. He took Jehovah's prerogative and cleansed His house so that the despised peoples of the earth could worship there. That's His heart but it really boiled the blood of the Jewish leaders.

2. they denied His possession of authority in two ways:

a. they plotted against Him privately (18-19) They hated Him for claiming authority over them. They plotted to kill Him, but yet were afraid of Him because of His popularity. So, the next day:

b. they challenged Him publicly (27-33) and brought:

(1) their accusation: you have no authority (27-28) The Sanhedrin didn't tell you that you could do this; the elders didn't tell you that you could do this; the High Priest didn't tell you that you could do this. By whose authority did you defy us and clear the courts and who gave you this authority? But here's:

(2) Jesus' reply: My authority is like that of John (29-33) We usually focus on how He silenced them by His counterquestion and that was masterful, but the point is "My authority, like John's, was the very authority of God Himself! I have Divine Authority; I don't need yours! I don't have to tell you Whose authority it is; you know very well!" So even though they badly wanted to, they could not in that moment find a way to defy the authority He had claimed for Himself.

Now there is a lesson here in both of these events that we need to take home with us:

III. The Lesson: You Cannot Ultimately Defy His Authority! You can protest it and disclaim it verbally, but the bottom line is that whether you're talking about a small fig tree or an entire nation, ultimately what He decrees, goes.

1. it was true in the life of Israel

a. He displayed it in the picture of the withering of the fig tree The fig tree was the national symbol of Israel. Israel had all these leaves on it, a Temple, pious and devout religion, sacrifices and so on. But Jesus came looking for fruit, looking for a heart response of love to God, and found none. It was Israel's last chance. He declared that she would now wither and dry up from God's purposes. In case you think I'm reading in, just look at what He said to the leaders after their challenge to Him:

b. He declared it in the parable of the wicked tenants (12:1-12) Jesus made it plain and they understood that God was done with them and was rejecting them. 40 years later the Roman armies burned Jerusalem to the ground and destroyed the Temple and scattered that whole generation abroad. Why? Jesus had said so and it came to pass. They could deny it, but they couldn't escape it. History is the witness. And the same lesson:

2. it is true in our lives today He is Lord! What He says will be, will be! You can try to defy it and reject it but you can't escape it. You can deny it, but it is not lessened. You can deceive yourself and think all your life that you're making your own way and shaping your own future, but He's still in charge and one day you'll stand before Him as Judge. How much better it is to be His child and seek His will and surrender to it and pray for it to be done and trust His Divine authority as His will unfolds before your very eyes!

Once when George Mueller, the renowned man of prayer was crossing the Atlantic, the ship ran into a fog. He said to the captain, "I must be in Quebec on Saturday afternoon." "Impossible!" said the Captain. "Very well," said Mueller, "If your ship can't take me, God will find another way." "I'd help if I could, but I can't, said the Captain. "Let's go to the chartroom and pray," said Mueller. "Do you know how dense the fog is?", asked the Captain. "No" was Mueller's answer, "My eye is not on the density of the fog but on the living God who controls every circumstance of my life." Mueller prayed, "O Lord, if it is consistent with Thy will, please remove the fog in five minutes." The Captain was about to pray after he finished, but Mueller tapped him and said, "First, you do not believe He will, and second, I believe He has, so there is no need for you to pray about it. Get up and open the door. You will find the fog gone." The Captain opened the door. The fog had disappeared! He is Lord, my friend! Trust Him!

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Rejection: His Unassailable Wisdom 12:13-44

It was Tuesday of Passion Week and Jesus already had the blood of the Jewish leaders boiling. On Sunday He had ridden into town with His disciples proclaiming Him King and Messiah. On Monday He had declared His authority by single-handedly clearing the Temple's outer court. First thing Tuesday morning, when they challenged Him, He told them a parable that said God was going to kill them and give His vineyard to somebody else (the Gentiles!). You can imagine how hot they were. So, they now set upon a course of trying to discredit Him and His teaching before the crowds in the Temple, and began to send to Him a string of experts from various groups to try to trap Him in His words and discredit Him, or to get Him to say something which would form the basis of a charge against Him. But 750 years earlier God had made a prediction through the Prophet Isaiah, The Lord says: "These people come near to me with their mouth and honor me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me. Their worship of me is made up only of rules taught by men. Therefore once more I will astound these people with wonder upon wonder; the wisdom of the wise will perish, the intelligence of the intelligent will vanish." - Is. 29:13-14. Jesus had astounded the nation with His power through miracles; now He would destroy the wisdom of its finest through His unassailable wisdom as God. Each case became an opportunity for Jesus to display His Divine wisdom, His omniscience. The world then, as now, is filled with people who believe that they know more than God, that they have developed a right way of doing life, that their understanding and their belief and the way they do things is superior. Yet in the end, the wisdom of God still shatters all human wisdom, no matter from which direction it comes. First of all:

I. It Silences The Opportunists: The Herodians (13-17) The Herodians were a political party among the Jews, not a religious group. They favored the rule of Rome over the Jews and supported the Rome-appointed leader, Herod! Any talk about the "Kingdom of God" or "King of the Jews" would inflame them; they did not favor an independent Israel. Why not? Because they believed that no one could defeat the mighty power of Rome and they were afraid that any disturbance would bring that power smashing down on Israel. Their wisdom might be summed up like this, Always side with the winner! The guy with the most power is always right! They needed to silence Jesus and so they joined ranks with the Pharisees and came to Him with:

1. their deceitful question: Should we pay taxes to Caesar? (13-15) While they buttered Him up, saying He always told the truth without regard for people or consequences (which, by the way, was the opposite of what THEY did), they were really trying to trap Him. Luke tells us they were spies sent to get him to say something for which He could be arrested. And so, they asked Him whether it was right to pay taxes to Rome or not. Can a Jew who only acknowledges Jehovah God as his true sovereign, acknowledge a heathen, pagan government and its emperor-god by paying tribute to it? Now, of course, if He says NO, they have a charge of treason to accuse him of. In fact, they accused Him to Pilate of saying it anyway, according to Lk. 23:2. But if He says YES, then it would seem that He is not much of a Messiah and that He is denying that the promised Kingdom will indeed come when the Lord will be king over all the earth and the nations will bow to Him! One way or the other, they think they have Him, but look at:

2. His wise answer: Give to God what belongs to Him! (16-17) He asked for a coin which, of course, had the Emperor's picture on it and said, in effect, "It has his picture and writing on it; he obviously made it; it obviously belongs to him and you are using it by his permission and he has a right to demand that you give it to him! But what's really important is that you be careful to give God what belongs to Him! Give Caesar the coin; pay your taxes. But give God your worship, obedience and ultimate loyalty which belongs to Him alone." What a masterful reply! You see, they had done the opposite; they had given Caesar their ultimate loyalty because of his earthly power instead of God! They voted for what looked like the sure winner! But 40 years later Rome turned on them and smashed their nation. I'm sure they didn't feel so wise then! Always rooting for the winner isn't really so wise a course. If it were me, I'd always root for God, even if it looks like He's the underdog! They went away shaking their heads and marveling at Him and how He saw their trap and His wisdom in evading it.

But, before we go off pointing the finger at them and feeling good about ourselves, are there not times in our own lives when we are at least tempted to seek first the kingdom of man in order to add all these things to ourselves, instead of seeking first the Kingdom of God and letting Him take care of it? Are there not times when we give the allegiance that belongs to God to something or someone else, times when we choose what our job and our boss commands over what we know God wants, because if we do it His way, we'll lose it? Times when we yield to what a person demands, even sometimes our spouse, instead of choosing what we know God wants because we fear the consequences? Give God what belongs to Him, that first place, that ultimate loyalty that chooses Him, no matter what. That's true wisdom, not the other. Oh, and by the way, pay your taxes. Jesus said so! Now Jesus went on and His Wisdom:

II. It Silences The Rationalists: The Sadducees (18-27) The Sadducees were a sect of religious liberals. They, in a kind of general way, believed God runs the universe and thought religion was a good thing to cultivate human behavior, but they denied any kind of life after death, the existence of angels and especially the resurrection of the dead, which was the cornerstone of Pharisaic belief! They were rationalists; their wisdom said, "I believe what I can see and understand. Reason is ultimate and faith must bow to it." There's a lot of folks around today just like them. But they came to Jesus with:

1. their mocking question: How could there be a resurrection? (18-23) Now, they didn't believe in a resurrection in the first place, so it seems to me that they were being ultimately ridiculous. Here's a woman who's been widowed seven times. Who will she be married to in the resurrection? Do you know any woman that's been widowed seven times? In my book, they're being ridiculous, mocking the resurrection, saying, "Look how ridiculous it is to believe in a resurrection of the dead! Anybody that had been remarried won't know who to be married to! There can't really be a resurrection! When you're dead, you're dead and that's it!" But look at:

2. His wise answer: (24-27) He said two things:

a. You don't know the Scriptures: they declare a resurrection, but not the way you're talking about it. They didn't really study the Scriptures to find out what they taught. They just assumed that the Scriptures teach that the next life is a material one like this one where we marry and so on. But that's not so. We will be primarily spiritual and our existence will be of a whole different sort. Marriage matters here on earth; in heaven it's a whole new ball game, a whole new order. But they just set up a straw man that was easy to knock down. Most rationalists do. They don't study the Bible, so they quote a few things they've heard that it teaches and proceed to knock them down in order to make themselves look wise. One of our youth was telling me how his college professor does this all the time, saying to the class, "The Bible teaches this...look how ridiculous!" and leads students to disbelieve and be prejudiced against what they haven't even studied! Jesus called their ignorance of the Scriptures and then said:

b. You don't realize the power of God: You start with the premise that there is no supernatural God who can do supernatural things. You deny His power. But only four days earlier, Jesus had shouted to a corpse that was dead for four days to get up and he did! Lazarus was still walking around Jerusalem as living proof of the power of resurrection and the whole city knew it! God talks about dead people like Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the present tense. He didn't say, "I used to be their God, but I AM their God!" He still is their God because they're still alive. And Luke adds a phrase, for all live to Him - Lk. 20:37-38. There is no such thing as dead and gone! Beyond the grave you live! God says so. It's just a question of where!

I was sitting in a seminary lobby one day when an older Korean man who was a pastor came in. He had just taken a man for a dialysis treatment and was so sad. He said, "I feel so bad. I have no words for him, no hope to give him." When I suggested, "What about helping Him to focus on the hope of heaven?", the man looked at me and said, "You mean you believe in a literal heaven with palm trees and all that?" I said, "Well I don't know about palm trees but yes, it's real and literal and those who know Christ are going there to enjoy it." And sadly, he said, "But I can't believe that..." Why couldn't he? Because reason had become a god to him; he couldn't believe what he couldn't see. So many around us are like that. Some of them are our relatives and loved ones! They don't know what the Scriptures teach and they've never experienced the power of God. How sad that they will choose their own wisdom over His. All we can do is be honest with them about how badly mistaken they are! Well, Jesus went on and His wisdom:

III. It Silences The Religionists: The Pharisees (28-40) Now, the Pharisees were the experts in religion and the law of Moses. They knew every jot and tittle and were careful to tithe, even the herbs in their gardens. They knew how far you could travel on the Sabbath and carefully washed their hands before eating, all so they would be seen as righteous before God and earn His favor. Their wisdom was, "Just do it right; do it better than everybody else and God will love you." Oh, how many people around us have become practitioners of religion, have bought that same piece of earthly wisdom and become devout in praying, in going to services, in carrying out religious duties. To these folks the commandments were everything and so one of them approached Jesus with:

1. their controversial question: Which is the greatest commandment? (28) Matthew tells us that this guy didn't just happen by; he was sent as an expert in the law with all of its 614 commandments. There was much debate on this subject. When you've got 614 to keep, it's hard to remember the list, and if you're going to fail, you'd like to overlook the least important things, so the issue of what are the most important duties to God is an important one and they wanted to engage Him in an argument. But note:

2. His wise answer: Love the Lord with all your heart... (29-34) Jesus summed up the whole point of the Law in two simple phrases, "Love God with all your heart and love your neighbor as yourself." That's what the law was really all about! How could you argue with that? And look what a profound effect it had. The expert had to concede. In fact, he very nearly became a follower of Jesus; Jesus said, "You're not far from the Kingdom"; all he had to do was acknowledge the King! But then, to put this whole attempt to contest His knowledge of the Scriptures to rest, Jesus turned around and posed:

3. His unanswerable question to them (35-37) You want to debate the Scriptures? Check out Ps. 110:1. How can the Messiah be David's Son and His Lord at the same time? Figure that one out! Well, we know the answer; it's in Rom. 1:3-4, ...regarding his Son, who as to his human nature was a descendant of David, and who through the Spirit of holiness was declared with power to be the Son of God by his resurrection from the dead: Jesus Christ our Lord. As to His humanity, He was of David's line; but He was in reality the eternal Son of God who came into the world and took that humanity and proved it by the resurrection from the dead! But they didn't know the answer and left Him in silence! Whereupon He turned to the crowd and issued:

4. His warning about them: It's religion without reality! (38-40) "These Pharisees have a religion they practice, but it has no reality. It doesn't change their hearts. They keep commands but their hearts are filled with pride and greed! They live for recognition and for acquisition, even though they stand publicly and pray lengthy prayers!"

Jesus knew that no amount of religion can change the heart! No amount of doing to impress God will change the inside. Unless you first learn to love God with all your heart and let your obedience and actions flow out of that love, your religion has no reality! And Jesus' Wisdom can tell the difference:

IV. It Recognizes The Real: The Poor Widow (41-44) All the rich people, all the leaders, all the religious folks with the Pharisaic dress, passed by the Temple offering box. Some threw in huge amounts. But that one poor widow, Jesus singled out and made her an example to His disciples. She threw in two of the smallest coins then circulated, two small brass or copper coins called lepta. Each was worth 1/64 of a denarius or a day's wage. So, in equivalence to today, she put in two dollar bills compared to the 50's and 100's that others were throwing in. It wasn't much by comparison, but Jesus in His Wisdom:

1. He knows the circumstances He knew that it was all that she had, everything she had to live on. She had nothing left to buy food with, nothing left to purchase the necessities of life. She gave it all to God. Jesus knew that and, not only does He know our circumstances, but:

2. He knows the heart He knew that she could have at least kept back one to buy supper, but she sacrificed it all. And to Him, that heart attitude, that willingness to give all to Him, was worth more than all the thousands of dollars that others gave out of their spare change.

You see, Jesus is not interested in religion, in performance for God to get something from God. He's interested in reality, in a heart that loves Him so much that it's willing to give everything to Him. And He knows the difference. Man looks on the outward appearance, but His omniscience sees the heart. He sees right through religion. And some of us may be caught in that same trap today. We're practicing religion; we're going to church and Sunday school, singing hymns, praying, giving money, carefully watching our speech and our habits of life, all because we think these things will cause us to be accepted by God. But we have never given our hearts to Christ and received Him in love and gratefulness for providing our salvation for us on the cross once and for all; we're too busy trying to get it ourselves. Know that He sees right through it. He wants to give you a new heart, not for you to give Him behavior! Come to Him and let Him! And then, even some of us who have done that, who've received Christ, can still fall back into that trap. We can let the Christian life become a regimen of obedience, a set of actions, instead of the response of a heart that is in love with Jesus. I was like that at a point or two and some days I still am. I do all the expected things; I practice my religion, but not out of the love in my heart for Christ. I live a self-life instead of a Christ-life. And Jesus is wise enough to see and know the difference. A.B. Simpson found that in his life too and wrote these words to a hymn:

*Once it was the blessing, Now it is the Lord
Once it was the feeling, Now it is His Word;
Once His gift I wanted, Now, the Giver own;
Once I sought for healing, Now Himself alone.*

*Once 'twas painful trying, Now 'tis perfect trust;
Once a half salvation, Now the uttermost;
Once 'twas ceaseless holding, Now He holds me fast;
Once 'twas constant drifting, Now my anchor's cast.*

*Once 'twas busy planning, Now 'tis trustful prayer;
Once 'twas anxious caring, Now He has the care;
Once 'twas what I wanted, Now what Jesus says;
Once 'twas constant asking, Now 'tis ceaseless praise.*

*Once it was my working, His it hence shall be;
Once I tried to use Him, Now He uses me;
Once the pow'r I wanted, Now the Mighty One;
Once for self, I labored, Now for him alone.*

*Once I hoped in Jesus, Now I know He's mine;
Once my lamps were dying, Now they brightly shine;
Once for death I wanted, Now His coming hail,
And my hopes are anchored safe within the veil.*

Chorus: All in all forever, Jesus will I sing; Ev'rything in Jesus, And Jesus ev'ry thing.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Rejection: His Triumphant Return Ch. 13

Jesus had already spoken to His disciples on a number of occasions about the concept of a "Coming" of Himself and His Kingdom, an entry and arrival. He taught them parable after parable that said this age would have an ending and it would end with His coming in glory with the angels and the destruction of the wicked. Many months earlier He had said, If anyone is ashamed of me and my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of Man will be ashamed of him when he comes in his Father's glory with the holy angels. - Mark 8:38. And then He had taken a few of them up on the Mount of Transfiguration and shown them His glory. He had taught them to expect a glorious arrival of His Kingdom. And I'm sure that the Triumphal Entry into Jerusalem had their minds wondering, "Is this the beginning of it? When will it happen?" As they were walking out of Jerusalem that Tuesday evening of Passion Week after a long day, one of them began to gloat and marvel over the beauty of the Temple with its magnificent and massive stones. It was huge, 300 X 500 yards of walls and structures, all of white stone, gleaming brilliantly in the setting sun. Some of these stones survive today and measure from twenty to forty feet long and weigh a hundred tons. Any of us would marvel that they could be quarried and carried and fitted without iron tools, and would feel that they would last forever. Let's see what Jesus said:

I. The Universal Question Of The Disciples: How Will We Know When? (1-4) "These huge stones will be all knocked down like so many dominoes!" It was a statement designed to blow their socks off and make them think. Immediately they related it to this concept of His coming and the end of the age. And they asked what has become the universal heart cry of followers of Jesus ever since, "When will it be? When will this great coming occur? When will all these future things you've predicted happen?" And more specifically, "How will we know when? What will be the sign that shows us that it is near? What is that thing that will tell us that your arrival is at the door and the age is almost over?" Isn't that what you'd like to know? How many sermons have you heard in your life on the idea of the "Signs of the Times"? How many prophetic teachers have you heard talking about things like the "sign" of the reestablishment of the nation of Israel in 1948 and detailing current events that sound just like some of the things that the Scripture describes in the end time? Well, it is interesting to note, that Jesus began to answer their question by talking about:

II. The Things Which Are NOT Signs Of Christ's Return (5-13) Throughout the centuries, well-meaning people of faith who lived through times of immense upheaval and catastrophe have wanted to take these things as signs of the end, and Jesus specifically warned His disciples against that. Instead, He taught that:

1. these things will characterize the entire age until He comes. For instance, He said that:

a. false teachers are not the sign (5-6) Jesus warned that there will be many who will claim to be the Christ, the Messiah, the Savior and deliverer. The Jews had many, each one trying to gather followers and lead a rebellion. Acts 5 mentions a guy named Theudas, who promised to divide the River Jordan, and Judas of Galilee, who led a large sect of people to revolt. Paul was mistaken in Acts 21 for a well-known Egyptian who led a band into the desert, promising signs and wonders and that the walls of Jerusalem would fall down. The best known came a hundred years later when a man called Bar Cochba, "son of a star", was proclaimed Messiah and led such a huge revolt that the full power of Rome was brought to bear against it and Jerusalem was made into a Roman colony where no Jew was allowed to enter! And it has continued through the centuries, whether it was Joseph Smith and his Mormons, or Emmanuel Swedenborg who claimed that Christ's second coming was in his own writings and established the Church of the New Jerusalem right here in Bryn Athyn, or Rev. Moon whose followers believe he is their messiah. Jesus said, "No matter how bad it gets, no matter how many of them there are, even if there is one who deceives the whole world, don't be fooled. This is not the sign. This is the nature of the age. Paul declared, ...evil men and impostors will go from bad to worse, deceiving and being deceived. - 2 Tim. 3:13. And then know this:

b. wars are not the sign (7-8a) Arthur Koestler said, The most persistent sound which reverberates through man's history is the beating of war drums. This century alone has seen two world wars, the first of which was supposed to "end all wars", plus Korea and Vietnam. This past year has seen war in Liberia, in Bosnia, in Afghanistan, in Zaire and, on a smaller scale, in a host of other places. Countries fighting other countries; peoples within a country fighting one another. This has been the course of history. Jesus said, "No matter how large the scale, no matter how many die, no matter how hopeless it looks for the world, that is not the sign! It is the nature of the age, the way history will be until I come!" And further:

c. natural disasters are not the sign (8b) Earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, hurricanes, tidal waves, mudslides, famines where thousands die of starvation, all these things seem like the end of the world and they are, for the people caught in them! But they are not the sign! You can't tell when His coming will be by monitoring them! They are the character of history. It is filled with disasters; it's just that we learn about them faster today! How many times have prophetic speakers cited the frequency of natural disasters as a sign that He must come soon? Jesus said, "That's not the sign!" and further:

d. persecution is not the sign (9-13) "Church, here's your future. Here's your history. Expect persecution. Expect it everywhere. Expect to be hated and to suffer." And that has been the history of Christianity. It began almost immediately in Jerusalem and went large scale worldwide within 30 years and got worse! Everybody from Nero through Hitler has tried to eradicate believers in Jesus Christ, including the governments of many major countries, even today. One might reason that, at the time when persecution seems the fiercest, that Jesus would intervene to save His children, but He said, "That's not the sign. That's the character of the entire age until I come! Don't read this as the sign of my coming but stay faithful! Trust Me for what to say. I want to use it!" And then let me cautiously point out that:

e. preaching to all nations is not the sign (10) Some mission speakers imply that when we get the job of preaching the gospel to every people done so that everyone can hear, then Jesus will immediately return. But in itself, that's not the sign. It's the character of the age UNTIL He comes. He told us to go to all peoples and preach the Gospel; He let us know He's going to accomplish that task in the midst of all the tragedy and persecution the world can dish out. It must be accomplished BEFORE the end of this age but it, in itself, is not a sign that can be read as a time indicator. None of these are. In fact:

2. all of these will characterize the 7 year Tribulation Period at its end There will come a moment when Jesus appears in the air to Rapture out His church and this age will enter its last phase, a period of seven years foretold by Daniel and called the Tribulation Period. And, for as bad as we think things have been at various times in history, that period will be worse. These verses can be read as Jesus' description of the tribulation period. They correspond exactly with the first five seals of Rev. 6, if you care to check it out! During that period:

a. there will be a global deceiver (5-6) - Rev. 6:1-2

b. there will be global war (7-8a) - Rev. 6:3-4

c. there will be global famine (8b) - Rev. 6:5-6

d. there will be global disaster and death (8b) - Rev. 6:7-8

e. there will be global persecution (9, 11-13) - Rev. 6:9-11

f. there will be global proclamation (10) done by angelic means as described in Rev. 14:6-7, even if the church hadn't gotten the job done first! The key is in verse 8. All these things are only the beginning of the world's labor pains. And you know about labor pains, don't you? They get worse! In the tribulation period the world's labor pains will escalate to hard labor!

There is only one thing Jesus said that men could look for, one event that can be used as a timetable event that will mark the nearness of His return.

III. The True Sign Of Christ's Return (14-27) and that is this:

1. there will be an unmistakable desecration of the Temple (14a) It was predicted by Daniel the prophet in Dan. 9:27. After the time of Messiah's death in verse 26 and the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple and an intervening period of war and desolation, when the age is finally coming to its end, a king, a world leader will set up something abominable in God's rebuilt temple in Jerusalem. Fortunately, we are not left to wonder about what that will be, but we have it described for us in detail in the New Testament in 2 Thes. 2:3-4. Now how will he do that? Rev. 13:14-15. This man, this antichrist, this world leader, will put up his own statue in God's Temple and declare Himself to be God Almighty and demand that the world worship Him. When you see God's temple standing rebuilt where the Dome of the Rock mosque sits today, and you see a world-renowned military leader erect his statue in it and proclaim Himself God, then you've seen the sign. It hasn't happened in the 2000 years since Jesus spoke this. But when it does:

2. it will trigger the flight of Israel (14b-18) The Jews will flee with all haste from the city into the wilderness. Rev. 12 tells us that God will protect them there, even though Satan and his Antichrist try to eradicate them. And:

3. it will begin the time (3 1/2 years) of Great Tribulation (19-20) That sign will be in the middle of the final 7 years and will begin the final 3 1/2 years of horrible suffering by the human race which we call the Great Tribulation, a time unparalleled by anything in the whole of history. If you think Hitler's Germany was bad, this leader and his tactics will be worse! If you think the disasters and famines and human suffering of history is bad, there will be more of it in 3 1/2 years than in all the 2000 behind us today! People will not die by the thousands but by the billions in this carnage. God's wrath will be poured out on a bankrupt human race. One fourth of the world, or if it were today, almost 2 billion people die from the natural catastrophes of the first part and another 1/3 or 2.5 billion die from the deliberate annihilation of this second half, the Great Tribulation. Jesus spoke truthfully that if God hadn't cut it short and put a limit on it, the human race would not survive! But on top of that:

4. it will be a time of diabolical deception (21-23) even worse than before, with the false Christ doing Satanic miracles and signs and wonders to prove his deity. But:

5. it will close with unmistakable celestial signs (24-25) We're not talking about comets passing by or shooting stars or about planets lining up. We're talking about the shaking of the entire heavens, the darkening of the sun on one side and the moon on the other and the whole world being lit up by one thing.

6. it will end with the glorious visible return of Christ (26-27) That's His coming. All the angels of heaven behind Him and all the saints in glory with Him. There will be no mistaking it; no one will need a telescope to see it. And there will certainly be no opposing it! Jesus Christ will come again to this earth and that's what it will look like and then this age will end. It will be over and done.

Now all this is very exciting and we could take months just to study all the details of Bible prophecy which relate to all these events. We are so blessed to have so much information about it. But Jesus was not concerned about that. He gave them only this brief outline, which took Him probably only a fraction as long to say as it did me to talk about it. What was important to Him and what should be to us is:

IV. The Application Of This Truth To Ourselves (28-37) You see:

1. that future generation will anticipate the time with certainty (28-31) When you see the Temple desecrated (which you won't because you'll be raptured out first, if you're saved), that is, when those who are alive in that day see it, they can simply count off 3 1/2 years and mark the calendar. That generation can know when Jesus will return, the same way that when you see the leaves come out on the fig tree, you can count the weeks until summer. The generation that sees this will not die out, like all the rest have. It will see Jesus come. They can know; they can write it down. They will see the sign. It will come; it will happen; it is sure; it is His Word. They will be able to know with certainty when it is near, but guess what. Looking from our perspective:

2. we absolutely cannot know when that time will come (32-33) The Father has given no one, not the angels, not even Jesus at that moment, the date of His return. In Acts 1:6-7 the disciples asked again after the resurrection, ..."Lord, are you at this time going to restore the kingdom to Israel?" He said to them: "It is not for you to know the times or dates the Father has set by his own authority. God has reserved that knowledge for Himself; you do not know. When anybody sets a date, I don't care who they are, unless they see a man setting up his statue in the Temple, they're wrong! Don't listen to them! We cannot know. Nobody can until that day. However, here's the point:

3. the certainty that it will come must impact our lives (34-37) Jesus is really teaching two things in this little parable:

a. we must live in a continual attitude of expectancy An elderly lady decided to take a short railroad trip through an especially beautiful section of the country. It was to be her first experience of this kind, so she looked forward to it with great anticipation. After boarding the train, however, it took her quite a while to get settled. First, she couldn't find the right seat, then she spent a long time arranging and rearranging her baskets and parcels on the rack overhead. After they were finally in place, she took great pains to adjust the shade on the window until it was just right. When at last she was ready to sit back and enjoy the scenery, the conductor called out the name of her station and she had to get off the train. "Oh, my!" she lamented, "if I'd only known we would be here so soon, I wouldn't have wasted all my time fussing about those little things that really weren't important." Just think how it would have been if she'd thrown her things on the rack quickly and jumped into her seat gazing out the window. Her attitude is what ruined it; she forgot she was on a train swiftly moving to a destination. Get it? So many of us spend so much of our lives fussing and fooling with things that don't really matter and aren't why we're on the train, and by the time we figure out why God has us on the planet, our life is half gone! History is moving toward a finish. It will suddenly end; we don't know when. Our life is moving toward a finish. It will suddenly end; we don't know when. If we adopt a nonchalant attitude and forget the train is moving and there's only so much time to get the job done, it'll never get done. But the point here is not that we're to stare out the window watching for the Lord to come; it is that:

b. we must carry out our assigned service with diligence because we know He's coming. We must live with purpose! Carry out the task He has given us of reaching the world, of touching lives with the Gospel, of making disciples, of seeing our friends and neighbors won. We don't want to live life spiritually asleep and get woke up later like Peter in the garden, who slept away his opportunity to labor with the Savior in prayer!

With a shining quarter, a tiny little boy went into a candy store. With the utmost seriousness, studying each assortment with deep thoughtfulness, he wandered from case to case. Tired of waiting, his mother called, "Hurry son, spend your quarter. We must be going." The child replied, "But Mama, I've got to spend it carefully; I only have one!" You too have only one life; how are you spending it? God has put you in a particular place in His house and given you a task. Get on with it! Don't look for signs; you know that He's coming and rather suddenly the time of opportunity will be all over.

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

V. The Sacrifice Of The Servant - Chs. 14-15

His Anointing 14:1-11

We come in the 14th chapter of Mark to a precious and wonderful scene, which appears to actually be a flashback that Mark and Matthew include here, to explain why on Tuesday night of Passion week, Judas went to the Jewish authorities and agreed to betray Jesus. John makes clear that this event actually took place in Bethany on the Friday evening before Jesus rode into Jerusalem. The scene is a dinner in the home of a man named Simon, who used to be a leper before Jesus healed him. The dinner was given in Jesus' honor. His good friends were there with the disciples; Martha was busy about serving dinner as usual, and his beloved friend Lazarus, whom He had already raised from the dead, was reclining at the table with him. Then suddenly, dear Mary appeared, the one who loved to sit at His feet and listen while everybody else was busy, and did something which instantly brought a hush over the entire group. It was an incredible, shocking action, even though it sounds so placid as we read it.

I. The Woman's Incredible Action (3) - John 12:1-3 Mary brought out a white stone flask made of alabaster, filled with an oily perfume and poured it on His head and then on His feet. Now what's so incredible about that? Well, our minds are 2000 years and half a world removed from the scene. To understand it you must see:

1. the preciousness of the nard Nard or spikenard was an oily perfume derived from the dried roots and stems of the nard plant. Let me share three things about it. First let me mention:

a. its beautiful fragrance Its fragrance filled the whole house, John reported. It had a beautiful smell. Solomon's bride was perfumed with spikenard. That was important to people who lived in a world that basically stank. They had no sewers except open ones. They had no showers and bathtubs and deodorants, nor washing machines and dryers or even a wardrobe full of clothes to change every day. Things that smelled good, that gave off a lasting good scent were rare and valuable and provided welcome and necessary relief in their world. Then, you should know of:

b. its extreme rarity The nard plant grew in India on the slopes of the Himalayas, not in the arid climate of Palestine. It was imported in stone jars or flasks made of alabaster and carried by traders across the hundreds of miles in between. It was not something the average person had nor perhaps had even seen, because of:

c. its tremendous cost This jar held 12 ounces in weight, or perhaps a pint in volume, of nard. Not very much. But we are told in verse 5 that it was worth more than a year's wages, literally more than 300 denarii. A denarius was a day's wage for a laborer. Today that little flask would be worth the equivalent of $40,000 or more. And everybody knew it and recognized it instantly. Where Mary had gotten it or why she had such a precious thing, is not told to us. It was far and away the most valuable thing she owned, undoubtedly worth far more than the house she kept it in. Perhaps she had saved all her life and purchased it to be used for her own burial. We don't know, but what's important is what she did with it: She poured it on her beloved Jesus to anoint Him. Now what does that mean?

2. the meaning of the act Well, first of all:

a. it was an act of highest honor The ancients tell us that, "An alabaster of nard was a present for a king" (Bruce). Herodotus says, "It was one of five presents sent [on one occasion] by Cambyses to the King of Ethiopia." To give such a precious thing to Jesus was an act of highest esteem and love and honor. It would be an acknowledgement of His exalted position in her eyes. But she did not give it to Him; she poured it out upon Him so that:

b. it was an act of complete sacrifice The stone flask had a very narrow neck shaped at the top like a closed rosebud, no doubt to prevent evaporation and spills. It was nearly sealed and could only be dispensed slowly. But Mary did not just pour on a few drops. She broke the neck of the flask off to open it larger. There was no turning back. She poured, not just a third or a half out, but all $40,000 worth of it. It was completely and totally given to Him. And that:

c. it was an act of utmost devotion She anointed His head and then she poured the rest on His feet and she bowed down almost prostrate, as though she were a slave girl, and wiped His feet with her own hair. What is she saying? "I love you. I am your servant; you are my Lord. I give myself to you, everything I am and have. I keep nothing back for me. It is all yours. I belong to you!"

From that day to this, devoted followers of Jesus Christ have been doing the same thing, taking their most prized possessions, their houses and lands, their careers, their precious children and even their very lives and laying them at the feet of Jesus, saying "All that I am, all that I have is yours; You are Lord; I love you!" During his reign, King Frederick William III of Prussia found himself in trouble. Wars had been costly, and in trying to build the nation, he was seriously short of finances. He couldn't disappoint his people, and to capitulate to the enemy was unthinkable. After careful reflection, he decided to ask the women of Prussia to bring their jewelry of gold and silver to be melted down for their country. For each ornament received, he determined to exchange a decoration of bronze or iron as a symbol of his gratitude. Each decoration would be inscribed, "I gave gold for iron, 1813." The response was overwhelming. And what's more, these women prized their gifts from the king more highly than their former jewelry. The reason, of course, is clear. The decorations were proof that they had sacrificed for their king. Indeed, it became unfashionable in Prussia to wear them as jewelry, and thus was established the Order of the Iron Cross. Members of the order wore no ornaments except a cross of iron for all to see, which said, "I've given everything I treasure to my king. Somehow, I think Mary was the founder of that order, the order of those who have given everything of value to their King, Jesus. But in that day, and I would dare say in this one, it was NOT fashionable to belong to that order! You can see that by:

II. The Disciples' Immediate Objection (4-5) The hush of those few seconds of shock and surprise soon gave way to:

1. the harsh criticisms they raised The disciples, men who had left their jobs and families behind to follow Jesus, were appalled and they said so out loud. They rebuked Mary for what she had done. How odd! When somebody gives a little, somebody makes a small sacrifice for the Lord or for others, people clap, they applaud. They say, "Isn't that wonderful?" But when somebody gives everything, surrenders it all, they become instant critics. Why?

a. they counted giving it to Jesus as of no real value (4) The word waste is translated almost everywhere else as destruction, perdition, perish. They literally said, "You've destroyed this ointment! It was worth a fortune but now you've poured it all out and rubbed it on dirty feet and in hair and it's gone; it's destroyed!" It was as if she had taken a $40,000 bale of money and lit it on fire and burnt it up, instead of spending it. Handing the flask to Jesus as a gift would have been alright, but not pouring it out upon Him, anointing him with it. Giving it to Him in the most direct sense, not to keep and hoard, but to smell its fragrance as it was intended, that's useless. It has no value. Why? Because:

b. they counted value only in tangible earthly terms (5) You can see their mental calculators going. "$30,000, maybe $40,000. What we could have done with that? We could have fed the homeless in Philadelphia for an entire month! We could have put a missionary on the field in Kyrgyzstan for maybe two years with that money! We could have supported 50 national evangelists in India for a whole year. Oh, the things we could have done and now all we have to show for it is a house full of good smell that will last only until Jesus takes his next good bath." They counted value in terms of things they could touch and count and measure. What matters is the effect a thing produces, not the act of giving it. She didn't honor Jesus; she destroyed a valuable resource!

If you think that followers of Jesus won't criticize you harshly for acts of whole-hearted surrender like this one, think again. Good Christian parents and many others encourage kids to read their Bible and go to church and love Jesus, until one of them says, "I'm letting go of everything in my life for Jesus and moving to Indonesia or China to share His love with people who've never heard." "Now, let's not get too hasty about that; that's a pretty crazy idea; look at how God could use all those gifts and talents you have right over here..." A man gives up a successful career as a doctor or lawyer or businessman to give his life to the ministry of the Gospel and even Christians quietly say, "What a waste! He could be making so much money that he could give and help so many more!" Why is it that whenever anybody sells out lock, stock, and barrel to Jesus and lays everything they are and have at His feet, half the Christian world criticizes them for it, sometimes out loud, sometimes under their breath? Well, check out:

2. the underlying source of those objections - John 12:4-5 reveals to us:

a. the identity of the objector: It was Judas who had shouted out, who complained to Jesus, who was appalled, Judas who would a few days later betray Him. And it was he who got the others, at least some of them, to murmuring. Why? We also have:

b. the motive of the objector: self He didn't care about the poor. He was a thief, a person driven by greed. He was the treasurer of Jesus' little band who carried all the funds and, as the Living Bible puts it, he often dipped into them for his own use! He wasn't really thinking about the poor or about Jesus, but about himself. What about the others? They weren't thieves. They didn't plan to steal it or keep it for themselves. But they were thinking about what they could do with what was given to Him! How their goals and objectives could be accomplished by His means. Self. They looked right past the sacrifice this woman had made and the incredible act of love she had done. But if I put myself in their place, I think I really know why. It's because each of them looked at her and looked at themselves and felt shame, because they knew that they would never have done that. The reason even good believers object and criticize when somebody sells out all and all for Jesus is so very often because they are forced to look in the mirror and to know that they have not yet given everything they have to Him. And it is always easier to criticize than to repent. This incident and Jesus' rebuke which followed had a tremendous impact on Judas.

c. the reaction of the objector: rejection of Jesus (10-11) He sulked over that for several days. But that following Tuesday, after Jesus had publicly stood up and had the leaders so angry that they were plotting to kill him, look at (1-2). He saw Jesus doing the same thing, giving His all, refusing to compromise, challenging the authorities, heading for death. And he said to himself, "I'm going to get something out of this..." and he went and sold out to the chief priests, rejected and turned his back on the Savior. Self can drive you pretty far, if it rules your life, if it's your bottom line. Anyway, back to our story. Jesus did not keep silent and after the disciples' objection we have:

III. The Savior's Incriminating Vindication (6-9) "Stop it! Let her alone! Quit thinking of yourselves!", Jesus said, and then He explained some principles we must never forget:

1. her act was done to Him and He saw the depth of her love (6) "I don't care about what you could have done. Look what SHE did. She gave me everything she had. It looks stupid to the world. It doesn't do you any good. But she did it directly to Me. This is a transaction of the heart, of love between her and I and I regard it as beautiful, wonderful, precious. The value of the act of her heart far exceeds the value of the ointment." You see:

2. love to Him is always more important than doing for Him (7) There will always be poor and sick and hurting people until the Kingdom comes and it is wonderful to want to help them. You can do it whenever you want; the opportunities are limitless. But at that moment, Jesus had only a week left to live on this earth. And He said, "I am more important than all of the good you can do! Loving me, adoring me, worshipping Me, surrendering all to Me, is what is most important. And even if you do feed 5000 hungry people, if you are not doing it UNTO ME, as an act of love for ME, as an act of laying everything you have at MY feet, it may be good, but it is not what I want. He said in Mt. 25:40 that He, being... The King will reply, "I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for me." That's how He always sees it. "What's the motive? Self or Me? Sure, you're doing good things, but are you loving Me or serving yourself. More important than all obedience is loving Me with all your heart! Her love is worth more to me than all the good that $40,000 worth of oil would do!" So is yours! Then He mentioned this:

3. she did what was within her grasp to do (8a) Literally, "Me you won't always have; what this one had she did!" She was the only one who listened to what He'd been saying all along, "I'm going to die; I'm going to the cross; I'm going to be crucified! And it's going to be very soon." She was the only one that listened and believed Him, who took His words to heart. But there was not much she could do about it. She couldn't stop it; she couldn't prevent it; she couldn't do it for Him. She couldn't even go with Him and be there to hold Him as He died. But she could take her precious nard and anoint His body ahead of time for burial. You see:

4. she was fulfilling a Divine plan they refused to recognize (8b) They could envision more miracles, more multitudes fed, more sick healed. But a cross was not in their thinking. And so, they judged her for it being in hers. Look at Jn. 12:7. John's account supplies a thought... "[It was intended] that she should save this perfume for the day of my burial". God had a plan and her heart was responding to it in love, whether anybody else could see it or not. And that's what counts. Oh, there will be many times when we can't understand the reason for the sacrifices made by others, but God has a plan and we must stand in awe of the devotion of their hearts and imitate it. Jesus was so touched by what she did that:

5. her act of love was memorialized permanently by Jesus (9) 2000 years later and on the other side of the earth, we sit here this morning fulfilling Jesus' promise, remembering and honoring dear Mary, who shocked the disciples by boldly loving Him enough to give everything she had to Him and pour it out, holding nothing back.

In A Book of Saints, Anne Gordon tells the story of Father Maximilian Kolbe, who was a prisoner at Auschwitz in August 1941. One prisoner escaped from the camp, and in reprisal, the Nazis ordered that ten prisoners had to die by starvation. Father Kolbe offered to take the place of one of the condemned men. The Nazis kept Kolbe in the starvation bunker for two weeks and then put him to death by lethal injection on August 14, 1941. Thirty years later, a survivor of Auschwitz described the effect of Kolbe's action: "It was an enormous shock to the whole camp. We became aware that someone among us in this spiritual dark night of the soul was raising the standard of love on high. Someone unknown, like everyone else, tortured and bereft of name and social standing, went to a horrible death for the sake of someone not even related to him. Therefore, it is not true, we cried, that humanity is cast down and trampled in the mud, overcome by oppressors, and overwhelmed by hopelessness. Thousands of prisoners were convinced the true world continued to exist and that our torturers would not be able to destroy it. To say that Father Kolbe died for us or for that person's family is too great a simplification. His death was the salvation of thousands. ...We were stunned by his act, which became for us a mighty explosion of light in the dark camp." 2000 years ago, our Father in heaven took His most precious and valuable treasure, His only Son whom He loved, and He sent Him to earth to be broken and spilled out for you. He went to the cross unknown, like everyone else, tortured and bereft of name and social standing; He went to a horrible death for the sake of us who were not even related to him, to save millions and create an explosion of light in this dark world. Broken and spilled out; nothing held back for us. How can we do less for Him? The young missionary, Jim Elliott, who died impaled by the spear of an Aucas Indian on a sandbar in an Ecuadorian jungle in 1957 had this motto: "He is no fool who gives what he cannot keep to gain what he cannot lose." Whatever you think you can hang onto for self in this world, you can't keep anyway, not people, not possessions, not even life itself. But if you give it to Him, it can never be destroyed. The ointment was not wasted; it was not destroyed. Its fragrance has filled all this very house this morning. She was no fool who gave what she could not keep, to gain what she could not lose. Neither will you be if you make the same choice.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Sacrifice: His Last supper 14:12-25

When Leonardo da Vinci painted his now famous painting, The Last Supper, on the wall in the dining room of the convent in Milan, Italy, the monks who lived there began to have many questions about his ability, and his integrity. They noticed that the picture was merely a copy of the dining area; the table, linen, even dishes used by the monks were identical to those he painted in the picture. Some monks thought da Vinci was taking advantage of his contract to paint this picture and were resentful of his long periods of inactivity, when he would stand for hours without touching his brush to the wall in front of him. When they asked da Vinci about this apparent inactivity, he replied, "When I pause the longest, I make my most telling strokes with my brush." No other event in the life of our Lord has been painted more often, but still, none can match the one painted by da Vinci nearly 500 years ago. Today we're coming to study that very event. We've heard the story of hundreds of times and our temptation is to pass lightly by it because it's old hat. But I don't want us to make the same mistake those monks did. I want us to see about Jesus what they should have seen about Da Vinci and his painting, that this whole event was painstakingly and carefully crafted with a purpose and that purpose was to include THEM in the event! The Last Supper was painstakingly and carefully crafted by our Lord for a purpose and that purpose was to include US in the event of His death. As they sat down to it, Luke tells us that literally, ...he said unto them, 'With desire [or passion] I did desire to eat this Passover with you before my suffering - Luke 22:15. He looked forward to it intensely; He planned it with purpose. You can see that almost immediately in our text.

I. The Lord's Orchestration Of The Supper (12-16) The first thing you can notice, if you think about it is that:

1. He controlled the timing of His own death (12) Connect this with verse 11 which precedes it. Judas watched from Tuesday night on for an opportunity to hand Jesus over to the Jews. But Jesus didn't give him one until Thursday night, until the night when the Passover lamb was sacrificed. Why? To assure that He would be arrested and would die on Friday, on Passover to fulfill His role as the once-for-all sacrificial Lamb of God. None of the events of His life, and particularly His own death, was an accident. It was all carefully orchestrated by His own sovereign power. And that is displayed in detail here in that:

2. He predicted unlikely circumstances for the Supper (13-15) That Thursday morning the disciples knew they would have to celebrate the Passover, so they asked Him where they should make the preparations. He did not give them a straight answer. Instead, He sent two of them, Peter (who had the most zeal) and John (who had the most love) into Jerusalem and told them they would find there three very unusual things. First, they would meet as they arrived:

a. a man carrying a pitcher Now that was unusual because men did not normally carry earthen jars or pitchers of water from the well. That was for the women. So, a man carrying a jar would stand out in a crowd. But note that Jesus didn't say, "Go to a well and look for a man waiting with a jar," but "you'll see a man passing by..." The timing would be exactly at the moment they arrived. Then, they were not to speak to him, but simply to follow him to the house where he was headed and there they would find:

b. an owner willing to lend his house The man with the jar was a servant fetching water. But they approached the owner of the house and asked him what Jesus told them to say, "The Teacher asks, Where is my guest room..." Would you walk up to a stranger and talk to them that way, ask for the use of space in their house? Would you find someone willing to lend it? Well, I will admit that it was more likely then than now. This man evidently knew who Jesus was and was immediately willing to lend them his house. In fact, Jesus asked for, literally, my kataluma, the same Greek word for the inn where there was no room at His birth, an open place where strangers could stay. But the man did far better. He himself personally took them up on the roof and showed them:

c. a room furnished and ready It was laid with carpets and the table was there and the pillows or dining couches were there for reclining at the table. And not just settings for two or three, but to accommodate at least thirteen! How many people do you know that keep a spare large dining room set up for large groups? But this man did. He was anticipating guests. Now, these very things have caused many to say that Jesus must have made some kind of secret arrangement with this man earlier in the week which He did not tell the disciples about and arranged the sign of the servant carrying water, in order to keep Judas from knowing the whereabouts of the spot and planning an arrest there. But how would He have timed Peter and John's arrival to exactly meet the man passing by with the pitcher? I say, this is just like the previous Sunday morning when He sent the disciples to get the donkey for him to ride. It is so unlikely that it must be Divinely orchestrated.

3. the point is this: the controlling power of His word (16) Jesus is Lord and what He says comes to pass. He carefully picked the place, prepared the man's heart and planted the servant by His Divine control, not by some ordinary pre-arrangement. How can He do that? Heb. 1:3, The Son is the radiance of God's glory and the exact representation of his being, sustaining [or literally carrying] all things by his powerful word... Jesus orchestrated, not only this Supper and their lives, but He orchestrates your life as well by His powerful Word. The Psalmist said, My times [the events of my life] are in Your hands... Your life is not a series of accidents or chance coincidences, or even a chain of causes and effects. It is a divinely orchestrated living drama carrying out His purpose and plan, whether you're aware of it or not. Oh, what a comfort that can be, to know that all this mess is in His hands, in His control. However, in those moments when it hurts and you're tempted to blame Him and criticize Him for allowing suffering in your life, just remember that He orchestrated His own life to include the cross for you!

Now there is much about the supper which Mark in his brief account does not include, so that makes it that much more important to note the things that he does include because they are important. The only thing he mentions about the actual meal time itself is:

II. The Lord's Identification Of The Traitor (17-21) Early on in the evening, as they were eating Jesus made a bold clear statement, One of you will betray Me, one who eats with me, one who is so close to Me, so intimately related to me that he shares in this supper with me and dips his hand in the same dish. John tells us that he himself was reclining next to Jesus at the table and whispered, "Lord, who is it?" and Jesus quietly said, "It is the one I give this piece of bread to" and He handed it to Judas. Matthew tells us that when Judas asked, like the rest, "Is it I?" Jesus said, "Yes, it is!" Judas knew that Jesus had singled him out and knew what he was up to. Now why did Jesus do this; why this announcement that there was a traitor at the table? For four reasons, I think:

1. it was an act which displayed mercy in warning Judas Jesus said, "This is not an accident; it is my plan to be betrayed and to die, but woe to the one who betrays me..." That's a warning. That's a, "Don't do it, Judas, even though I know you'll choose to!" It was an act of mercy, a final warning, a "stop now before it's too late". Jesus loved Judas, even though He knew his black heart and that he was not really a true follower like the rest. He warned him of the eternal punishment he would face and made his choice clear to him, yet still gave him the freedom to choose that path.

It was the plea of a loving Savior with His arms quietly outstretched to a sinner about to make a horrible choice. And I gather that it was nearly effective, because John tells us that at that moment Satan himself entered into Judas. He would not let go. He came and took away the good seed. He filled Judas' mind with lies, his emotions with anger and his will with determination. And immediately he jumped up from the table and left, as Jesus said, "What you do, do quickly!" Secondly:

2. it was an act which caused self-examination in the disciples They were all sad and sorrowful and asked one by one, "Is it I?" It caused every one of them to look into their own hearts. I think this was healthy. Paul told the Corinthians, Examine yourselves to see whether you are in the faith; test yourselves. Do you not realize that Christ Jesus is in you--unless, of course, you fail the test? - 2 Cor. 13:5. The ranks of the church through the ages have always contained those who, like Judas, had the right outward appearance, but whose hearts were not regenerated, who sprang up joyously upon hearing but had no root, and later fell away from Christ. Jesus did this for us too, so that we might heed His warning to make our salvation sure, so that we might make sure that we are not just playing church, not just saying "Lord, Lord..." with our mouths and going through motions of service to impress God, but that our hearts have been changed by the power of God and we belong to Him. How reassuring it is to be able to honestly look into your own heart and say with true confidence, "Yes, I do know Him, I do belong to Him; I am one of His." Thirdly:

3. it was an act which displayed foreknowledge Once again the disciples would shortly find everything just as He had said. Judas would come leading the mob and identify Jesus with a kiss. Jesus had made it plain at the Supper, ...But this is to fulfill the scripture: 'He who shares my bread has lifted up his heel against me.' [Psalm 41:9] I am telling you now before it happens, so that when it does happen you will believe that I am He. - John 13:18-19. He carefully, carefully orchestrated and controlled everything relating to His death, so that the scriptures would be fulfilled and so that His disciples would look back and be convinced of His Deity. And so are we. Then finally:

4. it was an act which orchestrated the events of the evening

a. it moved Judas to leave, giving privacy with the eleven Jesus wanted this special time with His disciples desperately. These were important hours to prepare them for His leaving and He didn't want the traitor present. He wanted time with His true sheep. And also:

b. it set in motion the events leading to Jesus' arrest that night By the time Judas would gather his mob, Jesus would be in the garden and have had time to pray. They would arrive at exactly the right moment for His arrest. So He chose to put Judas to the test at exactly the right moment. He knew exactly what He was doing.

So, Judas left and then Mark records his final important thing:

III. The Lord's Institution Of The Ordinance (22-25) The meal they were eating was the traditional Passover meal with its lamb, bitter herbs, unleavened bread and cups of wine and all the ceremony that had evolved in Jewish tradition. We don't have time to look at it all, and neither does Mark. But in the course of that meal there were two particular:

1. the symbols Jesus invested with new meaning

a. the Passover bread becomes a symbol of His body He took the matzoh, the unleavened bread made without yeast, which was broken and shared and eaten during the meal. He gave thanks for it and broke it as usual, but before He passed it out, He elevated that bread to a whole new meaning by saying, This is My body! He didn't mean it literally, because His body was the thing holding it out to them. He meant, "This bread will now symbolize Me, my body, unleavened, sinless, broken, but most importantly, shared by all of you. Then, Luke tells us, He added, Do this unto the remembrance of ME! Likewise, a little later:

b. the Passover cup becomes a symbol of His blood The third common cup of wine which was shared at the table, He lifted to the Father and then said, This is my blood..., not literally for His blood was still in His veins. "The red color of this wine is a reminder, like the bread, of Me, of My blood which you will see shed tomorrow on the cross. It will remind you that I gave My life for you!"

And so began a new practice, a new command for the disciples to carry out, that would be a continual reminder of His body and blood, a new ordinance that we call the Lord's Supper or the Lord's Table or Communion. Since then, it has been fancied up and institutionalized and ceremonialized until it has almost lost the very genius of its original simplicity. There were five:

2. the lessons Jesus taught in the new ordinance, but to get them all, let's read the parallel account in Mt. 26:26-29, and also Paul's account in 1 Cor. 11:23-26. Lesson #1:

a. the act of His death would incorporate all believers (for many) It's for you, you all eat it, you all drink of it. My broken body, my shed blood, my death, it is for you. It incorporates you! It incorporates many, all those who will believe. They are included in My death. Now what does that mean? Well, lesson #2 is:

b. the effect of His death is a new covenant (the remission of sins) between them and God. A covenant is a promise, a vow, an agreement offered by Almighty God. Every covenant was made with blood. The covenant of the Passover was, "Kill the lamb and put the blood on the doorposts and when I see the blood, I will pass over you and you will not die like the Egyptians!" And in this case, the blood of Jesus was the blood of the lamb poured out unto God for the remission, the forgiveness, the sending away of sins! Those who are the participants in this covenant have their sins forgiven. They are justified, cleared of all guilt, pardoned completely, accepted before God as righteous, so that because of the blood of the Spotless lamb which has covered them, their judgment is passed over forever. He's saying, "My death is for you! It is your once-and-for-all, eternal Passover! For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us - 1 Cor. 5:7. Hallelujah! Now that brings us to lesson #3:

c. the thought of His death should move us to thanksgiving (eucharist) Jesus gave thanks for the bread and gave thanks for the cup. The Greek word is eucharist which became the name by which the ordinance was known, the Eucharist, the giving of thanks! It is not simply a sad remembering; it is a remembering with joy and thanksgiving that our Passover is sacrificed and we are free! As we take the bread our heart should cry, "Thank you Jesus for giving your body for me!" And as we take the cup, our heart should cry, "Thank you Jesus for giving your blood, your life, for me!" One of the saddest things I can think of is that so often, the Lord's Supper becomes simply a ritual that we observe and go through the motions, when it should be the Eucharist, the great time of thanksgiving! Now lesson #4 is that:

d. this reminder of His death should be repeated (till He comes) It was not simply for that night. He said, "Do this to remember Me." And Paul comments that as often as we do it, we display or remember again the Lord's death until He comes. The simple act of eating bread and drinking wine to remember Him should be repeated over and over so that none of us will ever forget what He has done for us. He doesn't say how often; He doesn't create a new law or a new ritual. He simply commands a perpetual reminder so that we will never forget. And the last lesson is the best of all:

e. the fact of His death guarantees the promised Kingdom (25) "Tonight is the last. I will not drink wine any more. But do not think that my death is the end. I make you a promise which will stand as surely as everything else I have said. I will one day drink this cup with you again, freshly squeezed, in the Kingdom I have promised! I promise you that we will celebrate together there. My death is the guarantee that the Kingdom will come to this earth. This is the truth; write it down! But until then, keep practicing this reminder so that you will not forget."

In 1958, a U.S. soldier wandered the streets of Berlin to see the sights. Despite the bustling new life in parts of the city, reminders remained of the destruction of World War II. Walking through a residential area one evening, across the cobblestone street he saw an open space edged with flowers. In the center stood the stone front of what had been a church. The building was no longer there, but the rubble had been cleared away in an attempt to fill the empty space with a little park. The former church's main door was shaped in a Gothic arch, and over it was carved into the stone in German: HEAVEN AND EARTH WILL PASS AWAY BUT MY WORDS WILL NOT PASS AWAY. Jesus displayed that in preparing for the Supper, He displayed that in identifying the traitor, and He displayed that in a simple ordinance He commanded with bread and wine that we still keep 2000 years later, and every time we celebrate it, it cries out, "My Word will not pass away! I've included you in My death, in My covenant. You have received the remission of your sins and I will come and set up the Kingdom and we will drink it together for real. Count on it!"

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Sacrifice: His Surrender 14:26-42

It was already dark when Jesus and the disciples left the Upper Room and began their walk out of the City of Jerusalem that Thursday night. He had much to say to them. In fact, all of John 15-17 was spoken on that walk. He even stopped and prayed that great high priestly prayer of John 17 somewhere along the way. But Mark records nothing of all that. The only thing he points out for us from that discussion is:

I. The Self-Confidence Of The Disciples (26-31) As they began to walk, Jesus said something they didn't want to hear. He made a prediction:

1. Jesus' lasting prediction: you will ALL fail Now notice the difference from what He had spoken at supper. ONE of you shall BETRAY ME... "One will throw away his faith; one will become an apostate and forsake Me completely and forever. But ALL of YOU will fall away. The Greek word is Be scandalized and Matthew adds, in Me. The word means to stumble over the trigger of a trap or snare and be caught. What did He mean? He spells it out by quoting a prophecy from Zechariah which says:

a. they would all fail Him and scatter from Him that night They would not have the courage to stand by Him at His arrest. They would not have the guts to openly acclaim Him as their Master. They would leave Him and run away for a time. They would be caught in the snare, the trap of fear, and fail. And He would be the trigger of the trap over which they would stumble. In fact, Jesus predicted that:

b. Peter would personally deny Him three times before morning He would deny being His follower. He would say, "I don't know Him!" three times on that very night and swear to it, just after the wonderful intimate time of the Supper! Jesus would prove to be a stumbling block to him!

Now let me bring this a little closer to home. I think this was a lasting prediction that has stretched down through the ages. I think Jesus' word all is equally true for every disciple of Christ. You will ALL be scandalized in Me, if not tonight, then some night. We will all fail Him. If not today, then one day. We will all come to a place, a moment, a time, a situation when we act like what we're not. A moment when we choose sin and self, instead of the Savior, whether we're driven by fear or by greed or by pride. There will come a moment when you act like you don't know Him (whether the situation is big or little), when you hide the fact that you belong to Him, when you fail! And probably there will be many of them! Now, there are two ways to react to that news. The RIGHT way is to accept it as truth and fall at His feet continually, daily, to beg Him for grace and strength not to fail. It is to learn that you cannot live in your own strength; you need His. The WRONG way is the one the disciples took. Listen to their:

2. the disciples' loud protest: we will NOT fail Peter was the first to speak and very vehemently, "Not me! They might, but I never will! Why I'd die with you! I would never deny You!" But they all said the same thing and there's a whole lot of Christians just like them today who contemplate the sins of others and say, "I'd never do that; not I. Others might, but my love for the Savior is so great that I would never deny it that way!" Why did they respond like that? Well first of all:

a. they didn't know themselves They didn't think very deeply, and certainly never spent much time looking at themselves. Paul did. He had looked long and hard trying to figure out why he failed, no matter how hard he tried and here's his conclusion, I know that nothing good lives in me, that is, in my flesh. For I have the desire to do what is good, but I cannot carry it out. - Rom. 7:18. Sin lives in my flesh and I am capable of anything. Nothing good at all lives in my flesh. If I am left to me, it is a foregone conclusion that I will fail. I, in myself, CANNOT carry it out, even though I want to! But the disciples had not yet looked that deeply at themselves and so they still:

b. they put their confidence in the flesh They still trusted in their own ability to perform; they thought they were pretty good disciples, followers who would die for their Master. They didn't trust His word, but their flesh. Paul learned better, For it is we who are the circumcision, we who worship by the Spirit of God, who glory in Christ Jesus, and who put no confidence in the flesh - Phil. 3:3. That's where we need to stay; putting no confidence in the flesh. On my own, I will fail in every way imaginable, even the worst; I must cling to Him and His power daily to avoid it.

However, Jesus did not say this to chide them ahead of time for failing:

3. Jesus' loving purpose: to reassure them after they failed Look at His words. He didn't just say they would fall away, but that:

a. they would be regathered after His resurrection (28) He was saying, "Don't lose hope when you fail. I will die but I will rise and we will be together in Galilee. Don't give up! Don't let your failure overwhelm you. You belong to Me even though you fail!" Look at what Luke records that He said to Peter in that very moment:

b. Peter would fail in performance but not faith - Lk. 22:31-32 "I have prayed for you! Your performance is going to stink! You'll deny me three times. But I love you; you're Mine. Your faith will not fail. You will deny Me with your actions, even with your mouth, but your heart will still belong to Me; your trust will still be in Me! And when you learn this lesson, strengthen the others! Bring them to realize that I still love them and they belong to me even though they fail Me!"

Fyodor Dostoyevsky, the famous 19th century Russian novelist, was sentenced to 10 years in a Siberian labor camp. Upon his arrival, a woman slipped a New Testament into his hand when the guard wasn't looking. There in a bare board building with three inches of ice on the windows and an inch of filth on the floor, Dostoyevsky discovered the parable of the prodigal son. He saw in that camp the pigsty and himself the son and the truth of God's love and willingness to pardon gripped his soul. Years later, on his deathbed, his daughter describes it thus: "He made us come into the room and, taking our little hands in his, he begged my mother to read the parable of the prodigal son. He listened with his eyes closed, absorbed in his thoughts. 'My children', he said in his feeble voice, 'never forget what you have just heard. Have absolute faith in God and never despair of His pardon. I love you dearly, but my love is nothing compared with the love of God. Even if you should be so unhappy as to commit some dreadful crime, never despair of God. You are His children; humble yourselves before Him as before your father; implore His pardon, and He will rejoice over your repentance, as the father rejoiced over that of the prodigal son.'" That's what Jesus was doing. On the eve of His death, He drew His children, all of us, close and said, "Listen, you will fail! You will fail miserably sometimes. But when you do, you belong to God and His love for you never changes. Your acceptance is not based on your performance, but on My love and on the forgiveness I purchased at the cross!" Oh, come to Him with your failure! You will find His arms wide open and waiting. Don't let Satan convince you that your failure, no matter how bad, how deep, how awful, is a forfeiture! But also, never let Him convince you to live in self-confidence like the disciples! Instead let's imitate:

II. The Submission Of The Savior (32-42) By and by they crossed the brook Kidron and came to a garden called Gethsemane, "the oil press", a quiet grove of olive trees surrounded by a low wall, where Jesus often came with His disciples to get away. But tonight, He brought them with Him for a specific purpose:

1. their purpose in the garden (32-34) To the majority He simply said, "You sit here by the gate while I go over there and pray." They needed to be prayed for by Him! But He took the three who were closest to him along "over there", near to Him, and He gave them an:

a. His entreaty to share in His own need "Tonight is serious. I am overwhelmed with sorrow. I am not just depressed; I am under intense pressure. This is so serious that I could die right here. I need you. I need you to share in My hour. Now stay here and watch (and Matthew adds) WITH ME! Pray with Me. Pray for Me. Share My hour of deepest trouble and the pain of My heart! I need you!" But that was not His only purpose for them. Luke reports:

b. His encouragement to acknowledge their own need - Lk. 22:40 "Pray about your own need too! Take Me seriously; I told you that you're going to desert Me tonight. Pray about it. You will be enticed to do evil. Pray that you won't enter into that temptation, that you won't yield to it, that you won't be overcome by it! Recognize your pride and vulnerability and pray! You need it! Prepare for the hour I've warned you is coming."

They were to share in His agony and to agonize for themselves. So, He moved forward from them a little way, about a stone's throw Luke says, and there began in earnest His own:

2. His agony in the garden (35-36) In Hebrews chapter 5 we have a comment and an explanation of the depth of:

a. the struggle in which He was engaged - Heb. 5:7a The cries were loud ones, "Abba, Father!" He was weeping loudly. They could hear Him cry and weep. Luke tells us He was in agony, sweating profusely, under such intense physical pressure that would have killed you and I with a heart attack or stroke. The capillaries under his skin were bursting and His sweat mingled with it and became great drops of blood dripping on the ground. The cries were petitions, requests to be saved from death! But not merely from death, Philipians says, it was about becoming obedient unto the death of the Cross! Christian martyrs and atheists alike by the hundreds have faced death in absolute serenity, without hysteria. But this was not just death. It was not even just horrible, bloody death. He who knew no sin would be made sin for us on the cross. Our sins, the sins of the world, would be piled upon Him. That is, the punishment, the eternal wrath of Almighty God against sin would fall on Him. The Father would separate from Him and the infinite agony of eternal hell would torment His soul. And so, He screamed, "Father, I don't want to do it; can't there be another way?" It was a cry of intense anguish. But it was not the cry of a rebel who wanted to thwart what God had decreed for him. Just look at the brief outline of His prayer and you'll see:

b. the surrender which He affirmed - Heb. 5:7b says He was heard because of His reverent submission.

Throughout His praying there was:

(1) the confident expression of trust in the Father's ability "Father, Daddy, I know who you are. You can do all things. All things are possible for you. I trust you implicitly. I am not questioning your ability or your wisdom!" What was He doing then? This prayer was:

(2) the clear admission of pain at the Father's choice "If it is possible, take this cup from me! I don't want to do it. Everything in me recoils against it. I am in pain; I am in agony." But He was not wrestling with the Father to see who would win, to get his own way. He was wrestling with Himself. He was struggling against everything that was built into Him as a true human and against the very holiness of His nature as truly God, struggling to deny everything in His nature, except for one thing:

(3) the continual decision of surrender to the Father's will It had been His rule of life, I always do what pleases Him! In speaking of the cross only a few days earlier, He had said, Now my heart is troubled, and what shall I say? 'Father, save me from this hour'? No, it was for this very reason I came to this hour. - Jn. 12:27. He knew before He left heaven to come to earth what He would do. He knew during all of His life and all of His ministry what he would do. He would say, "Yes!" He knew that, ultimately, He would surrender His own will and choose the Father's will. It was a continual decision for Him. How could He pray to be saved from it? That night He openly acknowledged its price and admitted the pain of wrestling with it. It nearly killed Him. In essence He was crying out to the Father for strength to make the greatest surrender He would ever make, but His will was already decided, already surrendered. He would do the Father's will, not His own. He would go to the cross. And look what happened; look at:

c. the strength which He received - Heb. 5:7b says He was heard. The Father answered Him. But how? An angel from heaven appeared to him strengthening [literally putting strength in] him - Lk. 22:43. The Father, to whom all is possible, put the strength in His Son to surrender to His will! And here's something deep:

d. the submission which He learned There was a great purpose in Gethsemane, in this intense struggle and suffering. The Savior learned something, Heb. 5:8. He learned, He was disciplined in, He increased His experiential knowledge of, obedience, of what it means to place yourself under the authority of the Father. It means to take every last shred of self, of self-interest, of human desire, of natural urge and throw it down. In short it means to die! To die to self and live only for His will. Jesus did die in that garden; He reaffirmed His death to self once for all, completely, forever, in the hour when the meaning of the choice most clearly stared Him in the face. And because of it, look at:

e. the salvation which He wrought - Heb. 5:9-10 He went to the cross and bought salvation for every one of us who will place ourselves under Him, who will submit to Him.

That's the struggle He was engaged in in the garden. That's what He wanted Peter and James and John to understand and stand with Him in. But sadly, Mark records instead:

3. their stupor in the garden (37-42) They fell asleep, not once but three times! Mark says their eyes were heavy; they couldn't keep them open. Now, on a human plane we can understand that. It was late at night; they had eaten a full meal; Jesus' prayer drug on to an hour the first time and you know how it is to pray for a solid hour! We can sympathize with the fact that they were really sleepy, but what's sad about it is:

a. the incapability of the disciples to enter the Savior's struggle Put yourself in their place. If He told you that he was in such distress that He might die, that he would be betrayed that very night, that they would all be scattered away from Him that night, wouldn't you be sitting there, sword in hand and eyeballs peeled, knowing danger was at hand, whether you felt sleepy or not! How many times have you stayed up all night for lesser things, for family emergencies, sick children, and so on. Your adrenalin would be flowing and you would grasp the urgency of the situation, but they couldn't seem to do it; they couldn't seem to enter in. They were almost in a sort of blind stupor to what Jesus was trying to tell them from His heart. In their defense, Jesus said their spirit was willing; it wanted to enter in with Him, but their flesh was weak. They let their bodies overrule their hearts. And, as He wakes them, you can hear:

b. the disappointment of the Savior's heart "Simon, You sleep! You were not able to watch with me one hour! Couldn't you stand by Me? Couldn't you hear My heart and pray with me for a single hour on this My most important vigil!?"

Before you judge them in your mind and think what you would or wouldn't have done in their place, maybe you and I ought to ask ourselves what we are doing right now in our lives. Most of us (and I include myself) have great difficulty entering into the depths of the Savior's struggle with Him. We have trouble even entering into a struggle for ourselves, "Do I surrender to His will for my life or not?" We just do what the flesh says, what comes naturally, what self wants to do. If there is a cross somewhere up ahead, if there's pain and suffering up ahead, there's no question; just do what you have to in order to avoid it! How disappointed He must be when we don't even see the struggle, when we don't enter into it. Jesus told us, "Enter in with Me; take up your cross daily and follow Me." Well, this is where He took it up, in the garden, in surrendering His own will, in dying to self and choosing obedience to the Father's will. That choice faces us in the daily events of our lives and our attitude needs to be the same as His, one of continually reaffirming our submission, "Father, all things are possible for you. You know what my humanness wants, but what I really want is what you want. My true bread, what I live for, is to do your will! I die to me, to self, and I choose You."

And let me escalate our thinking one more level. Jesus knew that His choice was even bigger; it was not just personal. The cross meant the salvation of millions of human beings. God's will, God's purpose was the saving of millions of souls from eternal hell. Jesus entered into that with the Father by saying yes, by surrendering to the cross. The disciples hadn't even a clue what God was up to. Jesus wanted them to enter in with Him into the salvation of the world, but they slept through it. Well, understand, His purpose has never changed. It has always been the salvation of the world. And since the cross, His purpose has always been to take the Gospel to every people and tribe and tongue and nation on the face of the earth so that every human being can hear of that salvation and have the chance to receive that forgiveness He bought. For 2000 years He has been wrestling and agonizing through His church in order that the Father's plan be accomplished. And Jesus has called us to enter into that with Him, to pray with Him, to labor with Him, to expend our lives with Him to reach others, to give, to go, to pray, to send, to surrender all the things that merely please self, to learn obedience and pursue His goal. Yet what are we doing? Most of us are fast asleep to the tremendous struggle He's involved in all over the world. And there are moments like this one, where the Spirit comes and wakes us up and says "Watch with Me; enter in with Me!" And our spirit wants to, but our flesh is weak and we fall back to sleep, back to the humdrum routine of meeting our needs, instead of entering into the travail of His soul that the whole world would know. How sad His heart must be sometimes! Here's something I heard on the radio: Most of us have been goldfish owners at one time or another. You get them and bring them home in a bag and put them in a goldfish bowl and they live a week or two, maybe a couple months and die. They never seem to get any bigger; they just swim from side to side in their little closed in world. But if you take that fish and put it in a pond, it will grow to a foot or even two feet long and become a real monster in proportion. Know why? The goldfish emits an enzyme that inhibits growth. As long as it is in the bowl its little environment of water is saturated by the enzyme and it can't grow. But if you put the goldfish in the pond, the enzyme is disbursed in that huge environment and it grows freely and quickly. Now the sad thing is that the goldfish doesn't know it! He has no idea of what he could become if he could just get out of the bowl! The next time you look at a goldfish in a bowl, you could say this: "How sad! You have no idea of what you could become if you could just get out of that bowl!" And many of us are like that little goldfish. We are trapped in the little fishbowl of our little self world, family, job, friends, church. It is so sad to the Lord because we have no idea of the tremendous things God could do with us if we could just get our thinking out of this little fishbowl life and see what He's doing in this huge pond, the world. If we could only lift up our eyes and look on the fields, at the billions the Father is longing to bring to Himself, instead of staring at the grass at our feet and we could enter with Him into His great enterprise of reaching every people with all our hearts. The result of that surrender would be the salvation of the world. Yes, we have all failed Him in this regard, but His purpose is to reassure us that we can start again. We can wake up. We can begin now. We have a fresh opportunity to lay our all at His feet and enter into His cause.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Sacrifice: His Arrest 14:43-65

Five years ago, among the Hausa people of northeastern Nigeria, a Christian pastor was caught carrying a Bible. His sentence was carried out in the village square. In the middle of a circle of villagers stood a blue-robed warrior with a sword held high. The young man knelt calmly before him and gently placed his right arm across the dead tree stump in front of him. The warrior shouted, "This Pastor Selchun was carrying a Christian Bible! This is what happens to infidels!" and swung the sharp sword through the man's wrist and into the wood. As the villagers watched in silence Pastor Selchun mustered his strength, raised his left hand and began to sing, "He is Lord; He is Lord. He is risen from the dead and He is Lord. Every knee shall bow and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord." Everything in my flesh recoils against that. If there is one instinct I have a good dose of, it is self-protection. When you're in the right, defend yourself, protect yourself, get even with those who do you wrong. And if you have to lose, put up a good fight, inflict some damage while you're going down. Not this young man. He accepted the loss of his hand, an unjust, cruel punishment, as an opportunity to testify to his faith. Where did he get that idea? Where did he get that kind of strength and self-restraint? Well, as we re-enter the Garden of Gethsemane to find Jesus late that Thursday night of Passion Week, I think you'll find out. The two things which struck me most about the passage which is our text today are actually one and the same thing. The first is this:

I. Jesus Endured His Arrest Without A Struggle (43-52) He had been praying there for several hours while His disciples slept. But as He woke them for the third time, three things happened:

1. He was betrayed by a friend without reproach (43-45) Judas, His own disciple, led the mob to the place. The signal that he had arranged to betray Him with was a sign of peace and friendship, a kiss! Jesus knew what he came for and could obviously see the mob behind him as Judas leaned over to kiss him. Now, you know what I'd have been doing, waiting for that jaw with a right uppercut! The agony of being betrayed by a friend was described by David. His best friend and counselor had betrayed him and he shared what it felt like in Ps. 41:9, Even my close friend, whom I trusted, he who shared my bread, has lifted up his heel against me. But Jesus didn't shout, "How could you! I trusted you! I loved you! I fed you! You snake, you're lower than dirt!" He didn't push him away saying, "Don't you touch me!" Matthew reported that: Jesus replied, Friend, do what you came for. - Mt. 26:50. He said, "Friend, Companion, Comrade." There was no reproach, no condemnation. no self-protection. "Do what you have to do. I am!" This attitude continued as:

2. He was arrested by a mob without resistance (46-49) The first thing that strikes you is:

a. His obvious cooperation Most people being approached by a mob with swords and clubs would either run or fight. Peter had a more natural human reaction. He pulled out his sword and swung at someone, who turned out to be a servant of the high priest, but his aim wasn't very good and he only whacked off an ear. But at least he stuck up for himself and the Master! But what did Jesus do? He stopped Peter and told him to put away his sword! He picked up the man's ear and reattached it by His healing power. He said, "I am not leading a rebellion. I am a teacher, not a terrorist. You don't need swords and clubs. I'll come willingly; would you expect anything less after what I've taught?" No resistance. He willingly hands himself over without defense. Why? Is He a coward? No, Matthew says He told Peter that He could have called 12 legions of angels, 72,000 angels, to set Him free. But He chose not to. Why?

b. His true reason - the Scriptures must be fulfilled "God's Word must come to pass! I must be arrested. I must die tomorrow. I must fulfill what He has spoken. I must fulfill what He wants for Me." In fact, John records that He said to Peter in that moment, ...the cup which my Father has given me, shall I not drink it? - John 18:11. He did not resist because He knew that He would be resisting the Father, resisting the very thing the Father had chosen to bring into His life! Oh, how often we do that. God brings suffering our way and we do everything within our power to resist it, to avoid it. We're like Peter and pull out our swords and swing them, before we stop to look at what will glorify the Lord. But not Jesus:

3. He was deserted by His followers without even a rebuke (50-52) Everybody ran away:

a. the eleven fled (50) Those who had so bravely said, "Master, we're yours. We'll defend you to the death." ran like scared rabbits when it appeared that the death might be their own! And then Mark alone mentions:

b. the young man (Mark himself?) fled - (51-52) Most interpreters feel this was Mark talking about himself. Perhaps it was Mark's own house where the Last Supper was eaten and he had come out to the garden to warn Jesus that the mob was coming. But, at any rate, he too started to run and they grabbed him hastily put on night garment and he ran right out of it.

What would you have said? I'd have been yelling, "Hey, come back here. What kind of friends are you? You bunch of yellow-bellied so and so's!" Or perhaps I'd have been begging and pleading, "No, don't leave me. Stay with me.

PLEASE!" But Jesus suffered that feeling without a single word of rebuke.

So, they took Him back to Jerusalem, first to the house of the former high priest Annas briefly, and then to the house of his son-in-law, the current high priest, Caiaphas, where Mark describes in detail the second major thing that struck me about this passage. Just as Jesus endured His arrest without a struggle:

II. Jesus Endured His Trial Without A Protest (53-65) Now, that is surprising when you consider what was going on. Just look for instance at:

1. the prejudiced court before which He stood (53-54) Caiaphas had already stated his position back when Jesus raised Lazarus from the dead, ...it is better for you that one man die for the people than that the whole nation perish. "He did not say this on his own, but as high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus would die for the Jewish nation." - John 11:50-51. He already decided that Jesus must die, declared it officially and had been working to bring it to pass! It was three or four o'clock in the morning, but wicked Caiaphas had assembled a goodly portion of the Sanhedrin, the Jewish ruling body into this illegal pre-dawn assembly. All Jesus' enemies, the ones who had been plotting against Him all week, who had been trying to publicly discredit Him, who had paid money to one of His own disciples to betray His location for a secret arrest, they were all there. A pack of vultures converging upon a dying man. Not a friend. Not a follower. Not a bystander. No public. No cameras in the courtroom. No hope of justice. A secret gathering of His enemies to try him swiftly, in time for the usual dawn court session of the Roman governor. Yet He did not protest. Look at:

2. the false charges which were brought against Him (55-59) They were not looking for truth; they were looking for evidence of something serious enough to rate the death penalty. They were not looking for the thousands of true witnesses to what He really said, but for false ones who could contort His words into something that the Romans would call treason. But they couldn't find two liars who could agree. They best they could do was to try to twist His words about his own death and resurrection, "Destroy this Temple and I will raise it up," into some kind of charge about wanting to tear down the Temple, but even that didn't work. False accusations, one after another. I'd be shouting, "I never said that! I never did that! You're lying!" But what strikes you about this account is:

3. His refusal to defend Himself (60-61a) Not a word! Not a refutation. Not a retort. Not a comeback. The prophet put it this way, He was oppressed and afflicted, yet he did not open his mouth; he was led like a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is silent, so he did not open his mouth. - Is. 53:7. And understand that in this court system, there are no lawyers. The Sanhedrin are the jury; the witnesses are the prosecution; the only defense is to represent yourself! But like a sheep who stands and lets himself be "fleeced", if you will, Jesus refused to say anything in His own defense, anything to justify Himself, anything to make Himself superior to them, to fight on their terms. The only thing He would give is:

4. His clear testimony before the court (61b-62) Finally, Caiaphas could stand it no longer. His false witnesses were so inept that they were defeating their own case. So, he hopped in himself and decided to "put Jesus on the stand", so to speak. He forgot all the piddly stuff and got right to the core question, "Are you the Christ, the Messiah, the Son of God?" And to this, Jesus could not keep silent. He gave clear testimony:

a. concerning His true identity "I AM!" He could not deny Himself or who He was. He told them plainly and He coupled that with a word:

b. concerning His true destiny "One day I will sit at the right hand of God; The words of Psalm 110:1 are about Me. I will sit at the right hand of God until my enemies are made a footstool for my feet. I'll be the judge. You'll be there. You'll see me. Furthermore, one day you will see Me doing what Daniel said, coming with the clouds of heaven. The whole world will see me. That is who I truly am; I cannot deny it!"

When it came to telling the truth, declaring His identity, He did not hesitate. Paul did the same thing at his trial. He refused to wrangle about all the false charges, to try to mount a self-defense. He simply said, ...they cannot prove to you the charges they are now making against me. However, I admit that I worship the God of our fathers as a follower of the Way, which they call a sect. I believe everything that agrees with the Law and that is written in the Prophets - Acts 24:13-14. "My crime is this, I am a Christian, I love Jesus Christ. Of that I am not ashamed! I declare it freely and openly for all the world. If that is worthy of death, then kill me!" No protest, no self-defense, just a true testimony of faith. Just like Jesus. Of course, there followed:

5. His unfair conviction by the court (63-64) They got what they wanted; they called it blasphemy, a man claiming to be God. It was a Jewish crime worthy of death. But just remember, it's only blasphemy if you're NOT God, and He was! But they convicted Him anyway, without further evidence or even considering the possibility. Again, He said nothing, not even when there followed:

6. His abusive treatment as a prisoner (65) They didn't just smack Him; they hit him with their fists. They punched Him. They taunted Him and spit in His royal face. Then they slapped or beat His face repeatedly with their hands and maybe their rods. But not a whimper, not a complaint. He suffered in silence.

And that's where we'll leave Jesus this morning so that we can take the time necessary to learn from His example. You see, the whole point is that:

III. We Must Learn To Endure Unjust Suffering As He Did - 1 Pet. 2:19-23 The theme of Peter's whole letter is to encourage us to endure suffering for the name of Christ without retaliation, without fighting back, without focusing on rescuing ourselves from pain, but instead on the glory He will get through it. This may not mean much to you personally this minute. It would if you lived among those Hausa people in Nigeria! It would if you were in the house church in China whose pastor was arrested in December and all his money confiscated. It would if you lived in Indonesia and a crowd of 5000 Muslims burned down your church building with the pastor and several others trapped inside, as happened last summer. It would if you belonged to Word of Faith church in Uzbekistan where 62 members of the congregation were arrested Nov. 18 for being an unregistered church but the government won't allow them to register. Or it would if you lived in Vietnam where a 41 year old pastor was beaten with metal pipes for conducting theological training. And the list goes on and on and on. Around the world thousands and thousands of believers just like us suffer unjustly, simply for believing, and they must learn this lesson in the fiery trial, to endure unjust suffering as He did, giving clear witness but not retaliating in kind. The level of suffering that comes to our lives is obviously much less severe (at least for now), but it is not absent. There will be times when you will be mocked and discredited for being a Christian, in the classroom, in the university, in the workplace. There will be times when you're treated unfairly, unjustly, when you're denied things you should rightfully have. So, we need to have this lesson down pat too, because eventually somewhere, we will need to endure suffering as a believer and we want to do it in the way Jesus did.

1. why should we do this? Peter gives us two reasons:

a. it is pleasing to God (19-20) It is what He wants of us. It pleases Him. It represents Him well. It models His character. In fact:

b. it is following the example of Christ (21) These verses are Peter's comments on Jesus' trial and the way He suffered. He suffered unjustly and endured it as He did to provide us an example to follow, footsteps to walk in. We are called to follow His example. But it's extremely tough.

2. how can we do this? Like He did. First:

a. we must refuse to sin in word or deed (22) Two wrongs do not make a right. Someone being angry at us doesn't justify our anger at them. Someone mistreating us doesn't justify our mistreating them. Someone hating us doesn't justify our hating them. Someone cheating us doesn't justify our cheating them. We must take responsibility, not for their actions, but for our response and we must refuse to sin in our suffering, either with our mouth (what we say) or our deeds (what we do). We must trust God for the grace to be angry and yet not sin, for the grace to react like Jesus:

b. we must not retaliate (23a), not hurl insults back when insults are hurled at us, not threaten when someone hurts us and say, "I'll get you, you just wait!" But to trust Him for the grace to suffer as a Christian who lives a different standard, who doesn't do things the way the world does, an eye for an eye, but instead:

c. we must trust ourselves to the True Judge (23b) Jesus knew that justice would ultimately be done. He trusted the Judge of all the earth to right it in the end. Injustice is never gotten away with. Sin is always punished, unless it is paid for at the cross. Vengeance, payback, retaliation, justice, it all belongs to God, not to you. Trust it to Him and bear a clear testimony, so that through you He can be glorified. That is the lesson of Jesus' trials.

Just south of the old city of Jerusalem outside the wall overlooking the Valley of Hinnom is a field called Akeldama, the field of blood. It was the field where Judas hanged himself, the field which the high priests bought with his betrayal money. A few years ago, archaeologists were excavating a cave in that field which was used as a burial site. Inside they found two well-preserved and ornately engraved boxes called ossuaries containing the bones of a human family. The Jewish custom was that the dead were placed in tombs unembalmed and, after a long time of decay, the bones were cleaned and placed in ossuaries or bone boxes to make room for fresh corpses. When they looked at these ossuaries, the archaeologists recognized a familiar name. Guess who? Caiaphas. It appears that all that is left of this haughty man who abused his power and treated Jesus so terribly is a dusty pile of bones in a stone box. It is a graphic reminder of the final end of every wicked oppressor. At the opposite end of the old city, outside the north wall, there is a hill called Golgotha and at its base another stone tomb hewn in the rock. Inside that tomb there is no ossuary, no bones. It is empty. Jesus, who was laid in it, is not there; He is risen; He is seated at the right hand of God. The meaning of this contrast is set forth by Paul who said, For [God] has set a day when he will judge the world with justice by the man he has appointed. He has given proof of this to all men by raising him from the dead." - Acts 17:31. As Jesus that day stood before Caiaphas, Caiaphas and all the rest will one day stand before Jesus and the sentence of eternal punishment handed down will be just. As we have followed Jesus through the fire, so we will follow Him to the Throne. Justice is His responsibility then; ours is to suffer as He did now, following His example.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Sacrifice: His Denial 14:66-72

While Jesus was being silently tried before Caiaphas in the early hours of that Friday morning of Passion Week, another trial was going on in the same building. The hour of Jesus' trial in the chamber above was also the hour of the trial of Peter's faith in the courtyard below. And we all know that he failed miserably; we are quick to say that he denied the Lord three times. But then we easily overlook it because we know that in the end, he became the leader of the church and a great apostle. But it is really worth some prolonged consideration on our part, because there are some deep lessons here about sin and failing that we don't want to miss. First of all, I'd like you to turn with me over to Luke and notice carefully:

I. Jesus' Preparation For The Hour Of Peter's Trial - Lk. 22:31-32 On the way to Gethsemane earlier that night, Jesus had warned them all that they would be scattered from Him and fall away. They did not believe Him. But He particularly spoke to Peter at that moment to prepare him for the trial he would face in just a few hours. And He prepared him by giving him two truths that are essential for us to understand.

1. Satan's desire to shake us from our faith When the ancients harvested wheat, they would first thresh it by beating it or having oxen tread on it to separate the heads of wheat from the stalks. Then they would winnow it. They would take a basket of the threshed grain and throw it up in the air a little at a time so that the wind would blow away the lighter chaff and only the pure wheat would fall back into the basket. Jesus said, "Peter, Satan wants to winnow you like that; he wants to shake you and throw you and expose you to the force of the wind so that your faith will blow away and you will be shaken loose from it and let go of it." And here's something you can't see in English. Jesus deliberately used you plural here, not the singular. All of you! That is his desire for all believers, to pit all the forces of this world against us and shake us so that our faith in Christ is shaken loose by the testing and trial and blows away. Jesus wants us to know of that diabolical design, but at the same time He assures us of:

2. Jesus' provision to protect us You see:

a. Satan's shaking is limited by God He has to ask God for permission to sift us, to winnow us. His power and authority is limited. "Peter, Satan begged to have for himself this opportunity to sift you; it has been granted; but the very fact that he has to ask shows you who is in control; I have limited it!" Paul expressed the same thing with great confidence in 1 Cor. 10:13, No temptation has seized you except what is common to man. And God is faithful; he will not let you be tempted beyond what you can bear. But when you are tempted, he will also provide a way out so that you can stand up under it. God always limits our temptation, limits Satan's working in our lives to what He knows we can bear through His strength! And on top of that:

b. Jesus' intercession keeps our faith from failing "I have prayed for you that your faith will not fail! It will not fly away in the wind and leave you." Does what Jesus prays for ever go unanswered? No, if Jesus asks it of the Father, it is done! "Your faith will not fail because I have prayed for you." But is that promise for Peter alone? Heb. 7:25 says, Therefore he is able to save completely {Or forever} those who come to God through him, because he always lives to intercede for them. It is Jesus' eternal living presence, His eternal intercession on our behalf that guarantees that our faith will never fail! We will never lose it, never be separated from it, if it is genuine and real. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall trouble or hardship or persecution or famine or nakedness or danger or sword? No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us. - Rom. 8:35, 37.

Every time God sends us into an hour of trial where our faith is tested, we can know that He has sovereignly limited that test and guaranteed already that our faith will not fail! What a comfort! But what could fail is our performance so let's look at:

II. Peter's Performance In The Hour Of His Trial - Mark 14 We often fail to appreciate:

1. his initial depth of commitment that evening. He didn't just fold at the first sign of danger, as we might easily picture it. Remember that:

a. he did try to defend Jesus in the garden (47) He was the one who quickly pulled out his sword and started swinging when the mob walked up to Jesus. That is no light matter. He was outnumbered, yet ready to lose his life in battle to save the master. But Jesus stopped him in his tracks. He expected the others to join in and a battle to ensue. Jesus said "No" and gave Himself up. Peter was confused. He ran away into the dark to reach safety, as did the other disciples. Yet, he did not desert Jesus. Just think about the fact that:

b. he did follow Jesus into Caiaphas' house (54) Talk about jumping out of the frying pan into the fire! John and he followed the crowd quietly and went together to Caiaphas' palace. John tells us that he knew somebody there and he got himself and Peter in past the doorkeepers, not only into the outer chamber, but through the second door into the inner area of the palace, the inner courtyard from where he could see the Master being tried up above. He took his life into his hands once again. Why? Matthew says, But Peter followed him at a distance, right up to the courtyard of the high priest. He entered and sat down with the guards to see the outcome. - Matt 26:58. To see the end, what would happen to his Master. This was a brazen, bold step, sitting with the guards who had just taken Jesus there! What courage he had in the beginning! How did he end up denying? Well, it was because of:

2. Satan's intense personal attack (67) YOU are one of them! When there was a group, it was OK; even when he and John came together it was OK. But now he was alone and Satan pressed the attack on the most personal level by pointing his finger through the mouth of a servant girl and saying, YOU! What he's using is:

a. his stratagem of fear Paul tells us not to be ignorant of Satan's strategies. He gave this one away when he wanted to shake Job. He told God what he believes, "Skin for skin!" Satan replied. "A man will give all he has for his own life. - Job 2:4. That is Satan's theology of man. When a man is afraid he's going to die, he'll do anything to prevent it. He will give up his most valuable possession. He will give up his faith and curse God. And it works. Heb. 2:14-15 says, ...that by his death he might destroy him who holds the power of death--that is, the devil-- and free those who all their lives were held in slavery by their fear of death. Man is afraid to die. As long as Satan can make a man afraid to die, he can get him to do anything. And he's been enslaving people like that for centuries. He can get a mother to drown her baby in the Ganges River or a father to sacrifice his baby in fire or a billion people to fall down five times a day to Allah, just because they're ultimately afraid to die! That pointed finger and the word YOU struck fear, the fear of death, into the heart of Peter and it shook him to the roots. The first time it seriously crosses your mind that you are in imminent danger of dying is a sobering moment and a terrifying one and if you are not fortified to know how to deal with it, you might easily revert to the old flesh pattern known as "save your own neck!" Fortunately, we have:

b. Christ's antidote for fear - 2 Tim. 1:7-8 We have the Holy Spirit who is not a spirit of fear. He is a spirit of Power. And when we're afraid, we can stop and call upon His power and give a clear testimony, standing for our faith. Judy Anderson, whose husband is the West Africa Director of the World Relief Corporation, grew up as the daughter of missionaries in Zaire. As a little girl, she went to a day-long rally celebrating the one-hundredth anniversary of Christian missionaries coming to that part of Zaire. After a full day of long speeches and music, an old man came before the crowd and insisted that he be allowed to speak. He said he soon would die, and that he alone had some important information. If he did not speak, that information would go with him to his grave. He explained that when Christian missionaries came a hundred years before, his people thought the missionaries were strange and their message unusual. The tribal leaders decided to test the missionaries by slowly poisoning them to death. Over a period of months and years, missionary children died one by one. Then the old man said, "It was as we watched how they died that we decided we wanted to live as Christians." That story had gone untold for one hundred years. Those who died painful, strange deaths never knew why they were dying or what the impact of their lives and deaths would be. Yet they stayed and by the power of the Spirit testified of Jesus, even in the face of death. We do not need to be afraid of dying. Death can't touch the real us; it is gain; it is the doorway to glory. But Peter wasn't there yet and so, instead of an honest, "Yes, I am His disciple," we have:

3. his frantic attempt to hide his identity (66-71) as a follower of Christ. Now here's a piece of truth that struck me this week that I have never seen before and I want you to see:

a. the true nature of his denial: it was a denial of himself, not Jesus! He never denied that Jesus was the Messiah, the Savior. He never turned against Him and cursed Him and intended Him harm. He never sold information about Him for profit that would lead to His harm or death like Judas did. Rather, he denied himself! He said, "I don't know the man; I am not a follower of His!" He denied his own identity and tried to hide it. If they had marched him upstairs and made him face Jesus and said, "We're going to stone him; prove yourself; throw the first stone," he would never have done it. He still loved Jesus. He still believed in Jesus. His faith hadn't failed. He was just scared to death and so, he tried to deny himself. That is often what happens to us when we face a trial. We are scared, if not to die, then to lose our job, or to lose something we value, so we try to hide what we are, to keep others from knowing in order to keep out of trouble. But you can see from Peter's experience:

b. the impossibility of succeeding in his denial: Here's a truth to remember: you cannot ultimately deny what you are; it will come out! Maybe you can stifle it for a while, but ultimately you will act like what you are. Your nature will show itself and if that nature is the nature of Christ, you'll be discovered as His follower! How did they recognize Peter?

(1) his appearance was scrutinized (67) The girl first glanced and then stopped to stare and scrutinize him closely. People will do that to you and sooner or later they'll see things in you that show you belong to Jesus. Further:

(2) his actions were remembered - John 18:26-27 tells us that one of the guys by the fire was a relative of Malchus, the guy whose ear Peter cut off in the garden, and he said, "...Didn't I see you with him in the olive grove?" It might have been dark, but the picture of Peter swinging that sword and hitting his cousin wasn't forgotten, even if it was too fuzzy to be fully sure. Our actions will be remembered too. People will note how we have acted, how we have stood for Jesus, how we have gone to church or prayed. Our love for Jesus will be found out. And note this:

3) his speech was recognized (70) He talked with a Galilean accent, "How y'all doing?", unlike the rest. And since Jesus and his followers were the only Galileans around that night, he had to be one of them. Even our speech will give us away. We will talk like Jesus. We will act like Jesus. Our life will look like Jesus. We can't help it; it's who we are and sooner or later somebody will notice it! And the longer we're around, the more people will notice it. And so, Peter found that if you keep trying to hide it, you have to keep on trying harder to deny yourself:

c. the escalating intensity of his denial First:

(1) he denied knowing Jesus privately to the servant girl (66-68) He didn't intend to, but I'm sure he thought it would shut her up and serve his purpose, yet it didn't, so he:

(2) he denied it again openly before others (69-70) She talked to the people around and a few of them began to chime in and say, "You're a follower of his". Even shifting his location didn't help. So finally:

(3) he denied it vehemently before all (70-71) He ended up getting really loud about it and cursing and swearing. But let me explain that; it's not cursing and swearing like we think of it. It means he took oaths and curses, for example, "May the Almighty strike me dead if I am a follower of His", "I vow on my mother's grave that this is true". In the ancient world calling a curse on yourself or taking an oath as much as sealed that something was true, because they knew the reality of the spirit world and nobody would invoke death or disaster on themselves! Sometimes you can end up going to some great lengths to deny what you really are.

But in the end, even if you manage to fool others for a while, you end up not being able to hide it from yourself! You just can't deny what you are for too long. You can see that in:

III. Peter's Remorse And Repentance After His Failure (72) You see:

1. Jesus helps us to see our failure for what it is He built a little sign into His warning. "When the rooster crows the second time, Peter, it'll remind you." He never noticed the first rooster he heard crow that early morning. But when he denied knowing the Lord the third time and the rooster crowed immediately, and then, The Lord turned and looked straight at Peter. Then Peter remembered the word the Lord had spoken to him: "Before the rooster crows today, you will disown me three times." - Luke 22:61. He could see the Lord up there above him and when they both heard the rooster, Jesus turned and looked at him with those knowing eyes and he saw the depths of what he'd done. It all came crashing home. He saw what a failure he was, and he went out alone and broke down and wept bitterly over his sin. Jesus has a way of doing that for us. He holds up the mirror for us. He lets us see ourselves, our failure, our sin and grieve over it. It's painful but necessary. But then:

2. He lovingly restores us when we fail After His resurrection, back in Galilee Jesus took some special time to sit down with Peter by a warm fire over a meal and minister to his heart. In John 21:15-17 three times Jesus asked, "Do you love Me!" Three times Peter said "Yes" and Jesus didn't say, "Then why did you deny knowing Me?!" He said, "Feed my sheep. Take care of My lambs. Lead My followers. I trust you. I know your heart. I believe you. I forgive you. Go on and serve Me; I have big plans for you!" Oh, once Jesus opens our eyes to see our failure, He doesn't rub our noses in it; He loves on us and restores us and rebuilds us and uses us afresh. In fact:

3. He uses our failure to produce later growth Paul said in 2 Cor. 7:9-11, Yet now I am happy, not because you were made sorry, but because your sorrow led you to repentance. For you became sorrowful as God intended and so were not harmed in any way by us. Godly sorrow brings repentance that leads to salvation and leaves no regret, but worldly sorrow brings death. See what this godly sorrow has produced in you: what earnestness, what eagerness to clear yourselves, what indignation, what alarm, what longing, what concern, what readiness to see justice done. At every point you have proved yourselves to be innocent in this matter. Oh, once you've come through it, once you're on the other side of failure, God produces all kinds of wonderful things in you, earnestness, sincerity, a sensitivity to what's right and a fresh determination to serve. God redeems that failure later on to produce growth in us.

Just look at Peter. He preached that first sermon at Pentecost. He led the church at Jerusalem for many years. He was the first to be open to reaching the Gentiles and he died a martyr's death, crucified upside down because he felt unworthy to be crucified in the same manner as His Lord. Oh, there will be times in your life when you deny who you really are. You may be a failure today and know it. But don't lose hope; Jesus will heal that failure and redeem it. Let me tell you a story to illustrate a truth: Early in 1993 British police accused two ten-year-old boys of the brutal murder of two-year-old James Bulger. The two boys pleaded innocence. During the two-week trial the young defendants responded to police questioning with noticeable inconsistency. The climax of the trial came when the parents of one of the boys assured him that they would always love him. Confronted with irrefutable evidence linking him with the crime and knowing that he had the as- surance of his parents' love, the boy confessed in a soft voice, "I killed James." The miracle of God's love is that he knows all the evil things we have done. He knows how we've denied ourselves and acted like what we're not, how we've denied that we know Him by our words and our actions, yet he loves us still. We are free to face and confess our worst sins to Him, because we are confident that, no matter what we have done or how we have failed, his love will not diminish. Peter is living proof of it.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Sacrifice: His Condemnation 15:1-15

There are a few persons in history whose infamy has caused their names to live on. Jezebel's name, for instance, has been used as a description of lewd women through the centuries and Judas' name has certainly become a synonym for all traitors ever since. Even Herod the butcher is known by most. But there is one man whose villainy the Christian Church has deliberately chosen to preserve from its earliest times. For 2 millennia Christians have been reciting the Apostles' Creed and confessing his misdeeds, I believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth and in Jesus Christ His only Son, our Lord; who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, born of the Virgin Mary, suffered under PONTIUS PILATE, was crucified, dead and buried... It seems to be a theme. The Creed formulated by representatives from the whole church at the Council of Nicaea in 325 blames him more directly, I believe...in one Lord Jesus Christ...who for us men and for our salvation...was made man and crucified also for us under PONTIUS PILATE... Pilate has gained for himself the notorious reputation of the man who crucified Jesus. In our study today we move into Mark 15 and it is here that we meet:

I. The Unjust Judge Before Whom Jesus Stood (1) It was about dawn on Friday morning when the Jewish leaders assembled the full Sanhedrin, declared Jesus worthy of death and sent Him bound like a criminal from Caiaphas' palace to the Fortress of Antonia to put him into the hands of Roman justice, the hands of Pontius Pilate. Now you'll understand this whole story better if we take a moment to look at:

1. the record that Pontius Pilate had Pilate was appointed by Rome to be the fifth governor over the area of Judea in 26 AD, about the very time John the Baptist and Jesus began their public ministry. His title was that of prefect, later called procurator. You can remember that because his chief responsibility was to "procure" revenue for the Emperor, to collect tribute and taxes for him and pay the Roman troops. But Pilate had more than average authority. He was cum potestate, the final authority in military, civil and criminal matters in a third class province like Judea. The four governors before him had no problems with the Jews. They understood the sensitivity of the Jewish people to things that would defile them and their religion and wisely took care not to offend them, but Pilate was different. He hated the Jews whom he ruled, and in times of irritation, freely shed their blood. His residence was at Caesarea and he visited Jerusalem as seldom as possible. On coming to office, he wanted to show the depth of his authority and his contempt for the conquered Jews and their superstitions. The Roman army always carried standards bearing images of its emperor, but his predecessors understood how the Jews despised any type of graven image and felt they were commanded of God not to use or own them and, out of respect, instructed the soldiers not to use the standards, so as not to provoke an uprising. Pilate, however, immediately ordered his soldiers to enter Jerusalem with their standards and place them at night. At dawn when the Jews saw them, they were infuriated. 7,000 people marched to Caesarea and surrounded Pilate's home, demanding and praying for him to remove the image-bearing standards. On the sixth day he relented and told the protestors that he would set up a judgment seat in the city to hear their request. When they assembled in the marketplace Pilate surrounded them with soldiers and told them to desist or they would immediately be killed. Their response surprised even him. Josephus says, "They stretched out their throats to the swords and cried that they were ready to die rather than transgress the laws of their faith". He backed down and removed the standards! They went home. But not long after that, he confiscated some of the Temple treasury to build an aqueduct for Jerusalem. When a mob again began to gather in protest, he ordered his soldiers to dress as civilians and mingle with the crowd. The most vocal leaders were killed with clubs and many Jews died in the incident, as he firmly crushed this rebellion. It could be this or even another incident which was mentioned to Jesus in Luke 13:1, Now there were some present at that time who told Jesus about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mixed with their sacrifices. Pilate was no friend of the Jews and no ally of the Jewish leaders. So, then why did they take Jesus to him? For one reason only:

2. the reason they brought Jesus to him - John 18:31 records his initial response of contempt, Pilate said, "Take him yourselves and judge him by your own law." "But we have no right to execute anyone," the Jews objected. The only reason they brought Him was because the Roman governor alone held the authority to administer the death penalty. The Jews could scourge and whip and fine and even imprison. But they could not kill, and nothing less than death would satisfy them in regard to Jesus. So, they swallowed their hatred and approached their own worst enemy to make him an ally in their cause.

Now, of course, they knew Pilate could care less about someone claiming to be a Messiah or even God or desecrating the Sabbath or breaking the Jewish law. They needed Roman charges, crimes against the Empire, to rally him to their side and so we have:

II. The Unjust Charges Which Were Brought Against Him (2-5) Luke records for us:

1. the specific criminal charges - Lk. 23:2 says, And they began to accuse him, saying, "We have found this man subverting our nation. He opposes payment of taxes to Caesar and claims to be Christ, a king." Did you hear the three charges they fabricated? The first was:

a. sedition - creating civil unrest, probably because of the huge crowds that often gathered to Him wherever He went. "He stirs up the people; they follow Him." They knew the distaste that Pilate had for any thought of another uprising. Then they accused Him of:

b. infringement - hindering the payment of taxes A flat out lie. "He tells the people not to pay the imperial taxes; He's hurting the imperial revenues which it is your job to collect!" Even though their attempt to get him to say this earlier in the week hadn't worked, they accused Him of it anyway! And the last offense, the one on which Pilate jumped was:

c. treason - claiming to be a king "He says He's the Messiah and the Messiah is a King. He's rebelling against Rome; He claims to be King of the Jews!" They shouted their logic at him later on when he wanted to release Jesus, ..."If you let this man go, you are no friend of Caesar. Anyone who claims to be a king opposes Caesar." - Jn. 19:12. Unjust charges all. But, just as before the Sanhedrin, we have once again:

2. the Savior's consistent response

a. He would not deny His identity (2) Yes, I am. John records His full explanation, ..."My kingdom is not of this world. If it were, my servants would fight to prevent my arrest by the Jews. But now my kingdom is from another place." "You are a king, then!" said Pilate. Jesus answered, "You are right in saying I am a king. In fact, for this reason I was born, and for this I came into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone on the side of truth listens to me." "What is truth?" Pilate asked. With this he went out again to the Jews and said, "I find no basis for a charge against him." - John 18:36-38. He would not deny the truth of His identity, but again, as before, you'll notice that:

b. He refused to defend Himself (5) against the charges. He did not enter into justifying Himself and refuting the false charges. Pilate was flatly amazed. Out of contempt for the Jews he would have released Jesus right then and there had circumstances been different. But as it was, Jesus' trial became a one-of-a-kind thing. So, we need to look further at:

III. The Unjust Manner Of His Trial (6-10) Now consider:

1. the dilemma which Pilate faced It is obvious that:

a. he knew the truth that Jesus was innocent (10) He told them so in Lk. 23:13-16. But in reality, I doubt that mattered much. Pilate was no fool. Jesus' three years of ministry were not hidden from him. His intense popularity with the people was not unknown to him. Jesus' entry into Jerusalem that past Sunday with hundreds of followers could have hardly occurred without being reported to him. Executing a popular leader like Jesus could stir up quite a bit of trouble for him. Yet at the same time:

b. he knew the danger of violating the Jews' convictions He'd been that route. They told him outright; The Jews insisted, "We have a law, and according to that law he must die, because he claimed to be the Son of God." - John 19:7. He knew the power of the Jews to stand up and die for their convictions. Thousands of pilgrims were in Jerusalem that morning for the Passover. Every street, every house was crowded. The Temple would soon be packed. The troops were already on the alert because the potential for trouble was great. It wouldn't take much to have a riot if the Jewish leaders were offended.

Pilate was between a rock and a hard place. They wouldn't go away; He knew Jesus was innocent and loved by the people and yet He knew the power of the Jewish leaders. So, he did what we all do; he tried to avoid it:

2. the common methods by which he tried to avoid it He used some really common methods that we resort to, instead of sticking to the truth. First, he tried to:

a. pass the buck: he sent Jesus to Herod - Lk. 23:6-12 tells us he thought, "Hey, wait, Herod is in town. Jesus is from Galilee; that's Herod's turf. Let him have the problem!" We try to hand off the situation to someone else and run away from it. But Herod amused himself by questioning and mocking Jesus and sent him right back to Pilate. He was no fool either! So next Herod tried what you might call:

b. manipulate the adversary: he offered the crowd a biased choice His mind hit on the idea, "Hey wait! This is the day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. I always show my magnanimous nature and schmooze the Jews a bit by releasing a popular prisoner of their choice. I'll set it up. I'll manipulate them into doing what I want. I'll offer them the worst criminal I can think of or Jesus! Hey, I've got Barabbas. He's a murderer and a rebel, the scum of the earth. No self-respecting Jew would ever want him released. They'll have to choose Jesus and then I'm off the hook!" So, looking like Mr. Pompous Generosity, he walked out to the gathered crowd with his can't-refuse-it offer. He never dreamed it wouldn't work! So, when it didn't, Matthew tells us he tried one last thing:

c. shift the blame: he washed his hands in front of them all. Mt. 27:24-25 says, When Pilate saw that he was getting nowhere, but that instead an uproar was starting, he took water and washed his hands in front of the crowd. "I am innocent of this man's blood," he said. "It is your responsibility!" All the people answered, "Let his blood be on us and on our children!" Mr. Purity! But it didn't work! History has still written him down as the man who crucified Christ.

All his coping schemes went up in smoke as they always will when you try to dodge the truth and do what's right. So, Pilate finally sentenced Jesus to death. Why?

IV. The Unjust Basis On Which He Was Condemned (11-15) What were the real reasons? Three, I think:

1. the powerful manipulation of evil enemies (11) The chief priests were able to manipulate the crowd by their power to cry for Jesus' blood, to turn them against Him. By threat, by promise, by fear, we don't know but somehow, they did. The good guys don't always win. Sometimes evil people triumph. Criminals get acquitted and good people get killed. It happens in this world, a lot! The second was:

2. the swelling noise of public outcry (14) The louder they shouted, the more Pilate became afraid of a riot he couldn't control, so he gave them their way. Public pressure, public outcry, often defeats justice and truth! The will of the people is often a stronger force than morality; that's why we have abortion on demand in this country today. The unjust judge responds to the amount of noise people make, rather than what's right and wrong! But the bottom line thing that condemned Jesus was:

3. the cowardice of a judge who pleased men instead of seeking justice (15) Pilate was literally "willing to do enough" or as we put it "to do whatever it takes" for the people. He was a man-pleaser. He pleased himself as often and as far as he could, but when it came to saving his own neck, he would do "whatever it takes" to please his own enemies instead of upholding justice. He was a coward, so rather than setting Jesus free, he sent Him to the cross. Such was the man and such was the scene that Friday morning. But understanding it is not nearly as important as applying it. The writers of Scripture did that and Pilate's name keeps coming up. So, in closing let's look at four:

V. The Important Lessons Which We Can Learn From This Scene First, there is:

1. a lesson about the availability of forgiveness What about those who rejected Jesus and shouted "Crucify Him!"? Well, Peter got to preach to pretty much that same crowd which was gathered again about seven weeks later and this is what he said, Acts 3:13-15, 17, 19, 26. "Come on home, believe. Trust in His Name. It is never too late. Whatever you said against the Son of Man can be forgiven!" What about those today who have cursed His name and rejected Him, who have mocked and made fun of Him? Is there any hope for them? Here's a whole crowd who shouted for His blood, the Jewish nation and the first place the Lord sent His messengers to offer forgiveness was right back to them! I don't care what you've done, how you've ridiculed and mocked his Name, how you've tried to stamp out His church like Saul did. There is forgiveness for you! The first thing He said after they drove the nails and hung Him up was, "Father forgive them; they don't know what they're doing...if they did, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory!" There is forgiveness for anyone; even old Pilate could have had it if he'd wanted it. Then secondly, there is in this scene:

2. a lesson about God's sovereignty and injustice Listen to what Peter and John prayed in Acts 4:27-29. Paul preached the same thing in 13:27-30. It looked like evil was winning, like wrong was triumphing and having its own way, like Pilate and the Jews were throwing the plan of God into disarray, when in point of fact, they were all simply fulfilling what God had planned ahead of time to do! Oh, my friend, when you look around you and see injustice everywhere, when you see our brothers and sisters suffering and dying in Liberia or the Sudan, when you see missionaries forced to flee like they are this very week from Albania or a few months ago did from Zaire, when you see a little child kidnapped or a nation sink into sin and degradation, don't let it convince you that God has abdicated His throne and evil is winning. All things still work together for the good to those who love God, who are called according to His purpose! They only did what He planned for them to do, to put His Son on the cross and redeem the world. The hymnwriter put it like this, "Truth forever on the scaffold, wrong forever on the throne, yet that scaffold sways the future and behind the dim unknown standeth God within the shadow keeping watch above His own!" Count on it; He knows what He's doing! Then thirdly, in this scene there is:

3. a lesson about enduring condemnation - 1 Tim. 6:12-15 Stand up, man and be counted. When you're the one on the hot-seat, when the condemnation is coming at you, do like Jesus did before Pilate. Hold to the good confession, stand for the truth, no matter what and don't look for all kinds of unjust ways out of trouble. Persevere, stand firm, no matter what Satan might throw at you, no matter what you're unjustly accused of, no matter if it means your job, no matter if it means your home, no matter if it means your very life. Hold to that good confession you've made in Jesus which brought you eternal life. And finally, there is in this scene the most difficult thing of all:

4. a lesson about our own unjustness It is easy to see evil in Pontius Pilate. He was a man-pleaser who went with the path of least resistance. But it's not so easy for us to see Pontius Pilate in us, to see that sometimes in some situations, we are the unjust ones, that we act just like he did. Look at these warnings. 1 Tim. 5:21 warns us to be literally, without prejudice [in regard to the facts] and without swaying toward one party or the other. James 2:1 also warns us to be literally. without respect of persons. That is, don't be a man-pleaser who makes your decisions on public opinion or the noise of the crowd. And then he uses the compelling example of how we treat people differently according to how they look. If a guy comes to church in a nice suit, we find him a nice place up front. But if a homeless guy wanders in off the street in rags, we don't know what to do with him and wish he'd leave. We do what Pilate did. We judge people by unjust standards. Other things are often more important to us than truth or justice or even the value of a human life. And there are times when, to our shame, we condemn the innocent, rather than do what we know is right.

Pontius Pilate must have served Rome well. He lasted 10 years in his position governing Judea. But in 36 AD he became involved in another bloody encounter, this time with the Samaritans. They appealed however to his superior, Vitellius, the Roman legate stationed in Syria, who deposed him and ordered him brought to trial before the Emperor. He was sent into exile in the city of Vienne on the Rhone River in Gaul (France). Eusebius, the historian of the early church has this to say, "This same Pilate, who was governor at our Savior's crucifixion...fell into such calamities that he was forced to become his own murderer and the avenger of his own wickedness. Divine justice, it seems, did not long protract his punishment." Alone, in exile, Pilate died in despair by his own hand without hope. 2000 years later his name is still scorned. Yet today, 1 out of every 9 people in the world have become followers of the One whom he condemned and sent to a cross. Whose way would you choose to follow?

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Sacrifice: His Crucifixion 15:16-47

The cross. It has become such a common symbol which we proudly wear around our necks and sing joyfully about in our churches, that we have all but lost its significance. In Jesus' world, the cross held all the horror and the stigma of the hangman's noose or the guillotine in later eras, or the electric chair and the gas chamber in our own. Its very mention struck fear into the hearts of people. It was a method of execution by cruel torture which was never used by the Jews. Its roots go back to the Assyrians and Persians impaling people's live bodies on a single pointed stake. The Greeks added a crossbeam and nailed the victim to it. Alexander the Great hung 2000 of the citizens of Tyre on crosses when he finally conquered the city. But it was the Romans who perfected crucifixion to an art and reserved it as the supreme punishment for rebellious slaves, bandits, and military and political crimes like treason, desertion and sedition. No Roman citizen like Paul could be crucified except in the most extreme case, but the Romans applied it freely to their conquered subjects to strike terror into their hearts. To the Jews who stoned their criminals, it was particularly detestable because Deut. 21:23 said, Anyone who is hung on a tree is under God's curse. Perhaps now we are ready to appreciate the full impact of what Paul wrote in Phil 2:8, And being found in appearance as a man, he humbled himself and became obedient to death-- even death on a cross! Let's enter that experience with Him in Mark 15 today where the first thing we are shown is:

I. His Suffering Before The Cross (16-24) The Romans had developed an entire procedure of crucifixion which was just as painful as the crucifixion itself.

1. it began with a severe flogging (15b) or scourging. Jesus was stripped and his hands tied around a pillar or post. A soldier with a "cat o' nine tails" stood behind Him. It was a leather whip of nine strands. On the end of each one was fastened a sharp piece of bone or metal to tear the flesh. There was no limit to the number of lashes a man could receive and the whipping often continued until the bones and internal organs could be seen through the back. The blood loss was severe and victims sometimes died from the scourging before they even got to the cross. The pain Jesus suffered from this must have been intolerable. But:

2. it was intensified by cruel humiliation (16-19) Let me paint the picture more clearly. Judea was controlled by four Roman legions of 5500 men each, but they were all stationed in Syria. The garrison stationed in Jerusalem was composed of auxiliary troops conscripted from the conquered areas to the north. Only the less-skilled served in infantry units. They had one thing in common; they hated Jews. They took special delight in torturing their prisoners. Most of the 500 of them were gathered in the hall to enjoy the sight. They put Herod's purple robe on the bleeding Jesus. One of them said, "He's a king; he needs a crown" and so they plaited a crown of thorns and shoved it down into His brow. They put a cane in his hand for a scepter and all fell down in mockery shouting, "Hail, King of the Jews!" Then they rose up in anger and man after man spit in Jesus' face and they took the staff in his hands and took turns beating his head and face with it until he was swollen and marred beyond recognition. And then, as if this agony were not enough:

3. it continued in an agonizing procession (20-22) On that bleeding, torn back they tied the heavy wooden crossbeam and made Him carry it out to the execution site. He could hardly move and barely stumbled along. It was an execution parade. three criminals paraded through the streets for public humiliation before their execution. Outside the wall, He could carry it no longer and stumbled and fell. A terrified bystander was immediately commanded to grab the crossbeam and carry it. His name was Simon and that walk to Calvary changed his life. He became a believer along with his wife, and his two sons became well-known in the early church to whom Mark was writing. Paul later mentions his own closeness to Rufus and his family in Rom. 16:13. But at that moment Simon's forced labor provided a momentary relief to the Savior's agony. But as soon as they arrived at the place of execution, a skull-shaped hill called Golgotha:

4. it culminated in the torture of crucifixion (23-24) How often have you described some pain you've had as excruciating. That word literally means out of the cross. The words are so painless, and they crucified Him. Yet the act was anything but painless. They laid the wooden crossbeam on the ground and stretched Jesus out upon it. Iron spikes were driven with a heavy hammer through His wrists. Then he and it were hoisted up into place and fastened to the upright post. Another spike was then driven through His ankles into the post. It was truly excruciating torture. Dangling from outstretched arms reduced blood flow to the limbs and vital organs. The diaphragm could not function normally because of the stress upon it. Only by pushing up with the impaled legs could the person breathe. He could only talk in short bursts or phrases, thus the seven sayings from the cross. Eventually, blood loss weakened the person who could no longer push up and they died of asphyxiation, but it could sometimes take days. It was designed to stretch out death and make it as painful as possible. This is the torture which our Savior endured. So, now let's investigate more deeply:

II. His Suffering Upon The Cross itself. We are told by comparing two verses:

1. the length of the ordeal (25, 33) He was hung on the cross at the third hour, 9 AM. At noon darkness covered the land and at 3 in the afternoon He died. Six hours of horrible suffering, the worst that man could dish out. That in itself is bad enough, but think about:

2. the significance of the method (26-28) The cross was a method of killing criminals. They nailed a sign to the upright above His head with a charge on it, "King of the Jews". Two common thieves were crucified on either side, putting him right in the middle, making Him one of them. The world was calling the Son of God a criminal worthy of the most torturous death. And it was done beside a public road for all to see. And that's why you have:

3. the mockery of the crowd (29-32) It came from people walking by into the city. It came from the Jewish leaders who followed Him there to rub in their triumph over him as he died. It even came from the dying criminals on either side. "Come down. If you're the Christ, prove it. Liar! Fake! Fraud! Charlatan!" Oh, how he must have been tempted to call those twelve legions of angels! But He didn't; He stayed there! Three hours of suffering and humiliation, but at noon the sky grew dark and Jesus became totally silent. What He suffered for the next three hours no one knew and He could not even express, until afterward when we learn of:

4. the agony of the separation (33-36) No one could see it but it was during that period that the sins of the world were heaped upon Him. It was there where He was made sin, where the Father, from whom He had never known one moment of separation, had withdrawn His Presence that He might be made sin for us!

[My apologies that the rest of this message was lost somehow in disk transfer, but here is an outline of it.]

III. His Death Upon The Cross (37-38)

IV. Reactions To His Death Upon The Cross (39-41)

1. the amazed Centurion who came to believe Him (39)

2. the faithful women who stood by Him (40-41)

V. His Burial After The Cross (42-47)

1. the bold action of Joseph

2. the surprised reaction of Pilate

3. the determination of the women to return and honor Him

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

VI. The Resurrection Of The Servant - Ch. 16

His resurrection 16:1-14

The central issue of the Christian faith is an absolute belief in a humanly impossible event. Paul said, That if you confess with your mouth, "Jesus is Lord," and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. - Rom. 10:9. You are not a Christian, not even in the remotest, most general sense, unless you believe that the same Jesus who died a death of cruel torture on Calvary on Friday, rose to life again on Sunday morning in a transformed body and has remained that way ever since. It goes against everything that is natural. Most of us are so removed from the experience of death that it has, in effect, cheapened our appreciation of the resurrection. We seldom, if ever, see any animal, let alone any person, die and never touch them. But if you should, the one thing that will strike you is how impossible it would be for them to live again. The taxidermist's hand or, in the case of humans, the mortician's hand, does a tremendous job of trying to make that which is dead appear lifelike, but it is only a comforting deception. If you could see the body of Jesus as it came down from the cross like the women did, the back a sea of bloody flesh from the scourging, the head ringed with bleeding punctures from the thorns, the face beaten beyond recognition and swollen black and blue, the wrists and ankles with huge gaping holes, the side with a giant wound oozing blood and fluids, the muscles beginning to stiffen as rigor mortis set in, if you could see that corpse carried lifeless between two men and laid on a stone bench in a tomb of rock and feel the weight of the stone seal it in the darkness, it would be awfully tough to convince you that that body would rise from the dead and that person would live again in a tangible, real, touchable kind of life, not just some ethereal other world somewhere. To believe in the resurrection of Jesus is to believe in the impossible, to stake your eternity on something that defies every human experience before and after, in all of recorded history. Yet the disciples did it; they made it the core of their message and dedicated their lives to spreading the account of it to the uttermost parts of the earth and, in the end, they all died holding to it. Why? To them and to us as well, it is not simply a belief; it is a fact. As Mark takes us to that Sunday morning in chapter 16, we find first of all that:

I. It Is A Fact Attested By Circumstances (1-6) We meet there first of all:

1. the despondent women: they bought spices to anoint Jesus' body (1-2) After watching Jesus' burial, they had rested at home on the Sabbath, mourning and weeping. When it ended at sundown Saturday night, they went out and bought spices and ointments to anoint the Savior's body in proper fashion. They had no clue, no inkling, that He could rise from the dead. Early in the morning before dawn, they headed out to the tomb to do the only loving thing that remained to be done for their Lord. But when they got there, they found:

2. the moved stone: the stone had been rolled away (3-4) As they walked, they were discussing how they were going to move the stone away. It was very large and normally required at least two men to roll it. How would they ever manage? What they did not seem to know was even worse. On Saturday morning, Matthew tells us, the Chief Priests had persuaded Pilate to place a Roman guard on the tomb and to seal it with the wax seal of Rome to make sure that nobody could go in and take the body and claim He had risen. They were the only ones that seemed to hear His words; even His own disciples didn't remember the promise. So, four soldiers had been standing guard there all day and all night. The stone really didn't matter; they wouldn't be allowed in anyway! But, oh, when they got there! There had been an earthquake. An angel of the Lord had come down and done what they could not do and rolled away the stone and sat on it. The guards were terror-stricken and had already fled the scene. And there it stood, the huge stone rolled away and open. So, they went in, and that's when they saw:

3. the angelic messenger: a young man dressed in a white robe (5) Two of them, actually, Luke tells us, and their white robes were dazzling, shining with the glory of God. The women were terrified, but it was the angels that pointed out:

4. the empty tomb: He is not here; see the place where they laid Him (6) "Look, no body! There's the place. There's the stone bench where you saw His body laid. He's not here." The tomb was occupied but now it's empty. That is one of the most unique pieces of evidence that we have for the resurrection. Where did the body go? Grave robbers don't take the body; they take the clothes and the things in the tomb and leave the body. Even if they did steal the body, they wouldn't have bothered to unwrap and leave behind the clothes it was wrapped in neatly folded! Who wants to carry a bloody naked corpse! Well, the Jews said, His own disciples came and stole him away while the guards were sleeping. Fat chance. Two men roll away a thousand pound stone and not wake up trained Roman soldiers sleeping inches away, who knew that to fall asleep on duty and let the tomb be entered was punishable by death? I don't think so. But even if they did pull it off just to create a hoax of resurrection, why would they die for a hoax? Why would they go all over the world proclaiming it and then dying and being imprisoned for something they knew wasn't true? The fact that the tomb was empty could only mean one thing, which the angel shared with them:

5. the Good News: He is risen! (6-7) "Yes, He was crucified; yes, He was laid here, but He is risen from the dead; He is alive and you will SEE Him. He told you so! The stone was not rolled away to let Him out; it was rolled away to let you in so you could see it's empty and believe!"

That empty tomb still attests to His resurrection. Nobody could produce the body. It was gone and only one explanation makes any sense at all, the fact of His resurrection. But this is not what the early church relied on as proof. Listen to Paul, For what I received I passed on to you as of first importance: that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, that he was buried, that he was raised on the third day according to the Scriptures, and that he appeared to Peter, and then to the Twelve. After that, he appeared to more than five hundred of the brothers at the same time, most of whom are still living, though some have fallen asleep. Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles, and last of all he appeared to me also, as to one abnormally born. - 1Cor 15:3-8. The early church did not say, "It's a fact because the tomb is empty". They said:

II. It Is A Fact Attested By Credible Eyewitnesses (7-14) "He appeared to us and we saw Him." It's hard for us to put all the appearances into order and reconstruct that Resurrection Sunday, but let's just note several of them. First:

1. He appeared to the women (7-8) They were scared and confused and said nothing to anyone as they headed back to town. But that's not the whole story. Matthew picks up where Mark moves on and says, Suddenly Jesus met them. "Greetings," he said. They came to him, clasped his feet and worshiped him. Then Jesus said to them, "Do not be afraid. Go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see me." - Mat. 28:9-10. They saw Him. They touched Him. They worshipped Him. They were convinced He was alive. And they went back and told the disciples. And then we find that:

2. He appeared to Mary Magdalene (9-11) Perhaps she lagged behind as the others returned, but as she sat nearby weeping, Jesus appeared to her and she thought he was the gardener. She didn't recognize Him until He called her name. Then she too fell at His feet and worshipped Him, convinced He was alive! She ran back to the disciples and told them! Later that same day:

3. He appeared to the two on the Emmaus Road (12-13) Luke tells us the full story of how two of them were walking to Emmaus and Jesus joined them and taught them, but his identity was hidden from them. He continued with them until evening and sat down at the table and revealed Himself to them in the breaking of the bread and they knew Him and rushed back to Jerusalem to tell the disciples. And finally:

4. He appeared to the Eleven (14) At last, that evening He appeared directly in their midst, although only 10 of them were present. Thomas was out somewhere. So, He did it again eight days later when Thomas was there. It's hard to know which instance Mark is referring to, but in any event, they all saw Him, talked with Him and touched Him and were convinced that He indeed was alive.

Our contention that it is a fact that Jesus is alive is based on eye-witness testimony of more than 500 people over a period of 40 days in a variety of locations and every one of them came away convinced enough to die for it, that Jesus is alive! Now if you're really sharp, you noticed something in common about all those appearances we just read. All day long Jesus appeared to people elsewhere and sent them back to tell the disciples. Why didn't He just appear to them straight away and get it over with? There is a great lesson here, I think, that He was teaching them. The resurrection:

III. It Is A Fact We Are Called To Believe Without Seeing By sending witnesses to them all day long:

1. the Eleven were called to believe without seeing Jesus was asking them to believe His Word, His promise and the testimony of those who had already seen. He was calling them to faith in a fact that was certified by others but hadn't been seen with their own eyes. And what do we see was their reaction?

2. they stubbornly refused to believe without seeing Verse 11. They didn't believe Mary. Luke says they didn't believe the other women either and their words seemed to them like idle tales! Verse 13 tells us when the two came back from Emmaus they didn't believe them either. The next day, Thomas, after he was told by the Eleven, would in essence become the spokesman for the whole lesson for posterity, So the other disciples told him, "We have seen the Lord!" But he said to them, "Unless I see the nail marks in his hands and put my finger where the nails were, and put my hand into his side, I will not believe it." - John 20:25. That's how they all felt at first: seeing is believing; you don't believe the impossible unless you see it. But:

3. Jesus rebuked their stubborn refusal to believe Verse 14. He rebuked their stubborn refusal to believe the witnesses He had sent. He told them, "My principle is different. I want you to believe on the basis of My Word and the witnesses I have chosen." He put the capstone on the whole lesson when He addressed Thomas in John 20:29, Then Jesus told him, "Because you have seen me, you have believed; blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed." That's the principle Jesus was going to drive home. "My resurrection is a fact that people ever after are going to have to accept by faith on the testimony of the eyewitnesses I send. I'm not going to personally appear to each person all down through the years of history so they can see for themselves and then believe. They will have to believe without seeing on the testimony of others and when they do, they will be blessed with eternal life!" So those failing disciples:

4. they in turn became Jesus' eyewitnesses to us Listen to the Scriptures. Luke says, In my former book, Theophilus, I wrote about all that Jesus began to do and to teach until the day he was taken up to heaven, after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles he had chosen. After his suffering, he showed himself to these men and gave many convincing proofs that he was alive. He appeared to them over a period of forty days and spoke about the kingdom of God. - Acts 1:1-3. Once they became convinced, these very apostles became eyewitnesses of the resurrection to spread the Word. Peter said, We did not follow cleverly invented stories when we told you about the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty. - 2 Pet. 1:16. John wrote, That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked at and our hands have touched--this we proclaim concerning the Word of life. The life appeared; we have seen it and testify to it, and we proclaim to you the eternal life, which was with the Father and has appeared to us. We proclaim to you what we have seen and heard, so that you also may have fellowship with us. And our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son, Jesus Christ - 1 Jn. 1:1-3. Just like the women were to eyewitnesses to them to bring them to faith, Jesus ascended to heaven and they became for all time the eyewitnesses of His resurrection. They saw; they believed; they testified to the fact of what they had seen. And:

5. through them we are now called to believe without seeing Peter told us directly, Though you have not seen him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and are filled with an inexpressible and glorious joy, for you are receiving the goal of your faith, the salvation of your souls. - 1 Pet. 1:8-9.

This Easter morning, we are filled with a joy that words can't adequately express, a glorious joy. We have not stubbornly refused to believe until we see. We know that our souls are saved and we have eternal life because we have accepted by faith the testimony of those who saw firsthand and we believe in our hearts that God raised Jesus from the dead and He is alive! We have not seen Him but we love Him, because we know He's alive. It's not a theory we subscribe to; it's a fact we believe with all our hearts to be true. For almost three centuries, Christians died because of their stubborn refusal to deny their belief in and loyalty to a living Savior. But eventually, even the Roman Emperor Constantine also accepted the fact that Jesus rose from the dead and Christianity became legal throughout the Empire. His mother Helena also became a devout and pious believer. In the year 326 she made a pilgrimage to the Holy Land to see for herself the places associated with Jesus' life and death. She got a native guide who showed her what he felt was "the very spot which witnessed the Savior's sufferings." She was so moved that she ordered a church built on the spot. Eusebius writes, "The emperor now began to rear a monument to the Savior's victory over death with rich and lavish magnificence..." It is called the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. It has been destroyed by conquerors and rebuilt by the faithful several times in the intervening centuries but you can still go there and find it inside the city of Jerusalem today. The strange thing is that within a few paces in its grotto you can see the supposed site of the crucifixion and also that of the tomb. In 1883 a British general by the name of Charles Gordon was convicted that Helena had picked the wrong spot. He began to search outside the walls and found a rugged hill at a place where two roads converged which from a distance has what looks like eye sockets and gives it the appearance of a skull. But what's more significant is that two archaeologists shortly thereafter located an ancient unused tomb at the base of another hill right next to it. You can go there today too. Outside the tomb is a cistern dating back to the first century which provided water then as it does today for a lush garden in the otherwise dry soil. The huge stone is missing but the track it once rolled in is still there. As you duck to pass through the entrance you find yourself in a weeping chamber where the body was prepared and to your right are two benches hewn out of solid rock where bodies would be placed, one of them still unfinished. Though there is no way to know with certainty and a great many doubt it, it may well be the very spot where the Savior's body lay. At any rate it is a dramatic visual aid for those who go there to see a tomb just like, if not the very tomb Jesus was laid in and to sense firsthand the shock of the women at finding it open and to imagine the angel sitting on the stone bench and hearing, "He is not here, He is risen as He said." And to go away saying, "Look, it's still empty; He must be risen." But that's as close as you can get to seeing. Our acceptance of the fact of His resurrection does not depend on sight, either of the empty tomb or of a direct appearance of the resurrected Christ Himself. It is based on the solid testimony of a multitude of eyewitnesses who were there. Jesus asks us to believe the impossible on the basis of their testimony, without seeing anything for ourselves and, in that believing, promises us eternal life. I put the question to you this morning. Do you believe in your heart the impossible fact that God has raised Jesus from the dead, though you have not seen Him? If your heart answers "No", then do it now. Believe! If your heart answers "Yes", realize how blessed you are.

Mark: A Portrait Of The Servant

The Servant's Resurrection: His Commission 16:15-20

Focus. It can be an extremely important thing in life. One of the most popular movies of 1995 tells the story of the ill-fated mission of the spacecraft Apollo 13. On Day Six the astronauts needed to make a critical course correction. If they failed, they might never return to earth. To conserve power, the onboard computer that steered the craft had been shut down. Yet the astronauts needed to conduct a thirty-nine-second burn of the main engines in the right direction to correct the course. But how could they steer? Astronaut Jim Lovell determined that if they could keep a fixed point in space in view through their tiny window, they could steer the craft manually. That focal point turned out to be their destination, the earth. For thirty-nine agonizing seconds, Lovell focused on one thing: keeping the earth in view. By not losing sight of that reference point, the three astronauts redeemed their own lives and returned safely to earth.

With this message we complete our study of Mark's Gospel and of Jesus' life on earth. In our text are some of Jesus' last words. This last message to His disciples was repeated five times, in all four Gospels and the Book of Acts. He had shown Himself to them alive. But what were they to do now? Go back to their fishing and their families, to eating and drinking and earning a living as they had before while He went back to heaven? No, Jesus made it plain by repetition that they were now to have a new and singular focus in life. You see:

I. Jesus Left Us With A Mission (15-16) that is to be the passion and focal point of our lives, the very purpose for our time on earth. In comparison with eternity, the years of your life on this earth from the time you're saved until you die physically is very much like those 39 seconds. They are very brief, but extremely critical, and if you just sit back and enjoy the scenery of salvation instead of focusing on the mission He left us with, they will be essentially lost to the purpose of God. Now look at verse 15 and notice:

1. the enormous scope of that mission (15) Our task, in one sense, is very simple. It is:

a. our task: to announce the good news The word preach in Greek means to announce as a herald. In ancient times people didn't have much money and they didn't have newspapers or radios, so news was carried by a herald or a crier whose job was to find a gathering of people and announce it for all to hear. The resurrection means we have, not just Good news, but the greatest, most necessary news the world has ever had. Jesus died on the cross to pay for our sins. And on the third day He rose from the dead; He's alive. And any human being anywhere who believes it becomes an instant winner; he or she immediately and with no strings attached receives the free gift of eternal life! What news! But only a handful of human beings in one little spot knew it. So, they in that spot, and we in our little spot, become God's heralds, announcing the Good News to everybody who needs to hear it, which is everybody! The mission in that sense is very simple. We don't convince people of it; we don't argue people into it; we simply tell it by our lives and our words. But what's not so simple is that our target for this mission is enormous:

b. our target: the whole world, the whole race which God has created. Announce it to everyone, everywhere. The mission is so huge that in 2000 years we haven't got it done yet! There are still nearly 3 billion people who've never heard the announcement for the first time and you know how often you have to repeat announcements before anybody listens to them, right? The mission is enormous and it's not done until every last person in every last place in every last place on this earth has heard the Good News of what Jesus did! And let me emphasize something. That was not just their mission; that is your mission; that is my mission; that is our mission, the mission of the church of Jesus Christ, of which we're a part, to announce the good news to the whole world. Now, in the next verse, Jesus outlines:

2. the tremendous importance of that mission (16) It can change eternity for everyone who hears it, just like it did for us.

a. those who believe it will be eternally saved If they believe the News, they'll be transported out of the dominion of darkness and death and Satan and an eternal future in hell, straight into the Kingdom of God's dear Son. They'll be transformed from God's Enemies into His Children and Heirs and reign with Him forever. Now let me make a brief disclaimer about this verse: Warning: Baptism is normal but not necessary to salvation! It does not teach that you must be baptized to be saved. It just assumes baptism is a normal step that serious believers take. But notice it is not those who are not baptized who are condemned but He says:

b. those who disbelieve it will be eternally condemned If they don't believe what we announce, they'll be condemned forever. Those who heard are lost because they rejected it; they refused it. But those who never hear stand in the same shoes. John 3:18 says, Whoever believes in him is not condemned, but whoever does not believe stands condemned already because he has not believed in the name of God's one and only Son. The whole race stands condemned now, lost forever, bound for hell. The only way out is to believe the News and they can't hear if we don't tell them.

Do you see what I'm telling you? While we lollygag through our secure lives as believers, thousands upon thousands of Christless souls everywhere perish forever because we fail to focus on our mission and we includes me! Let's get serious; let's get focused; let's announce the Good News to the whole world and let's do it in our generation for the first time in history! What an enormous mission for our lives! It would overwhelm us, except for this next important fact:

II. Jesus Promised That His Power Would Accompany Us (17-18) as we go. In Acts 1:8 He made the idea clear, But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth. It is His power that will do the job of making us witnesses where we are and to the ends of the earth. But in Mark what He's telling us is that:

1. He would provide powerful evidence of the truth of the message Moses had a problem when God told him to go down to Egypt and tell the good news that God was going to save Israel. He said, "They won't believe me!" God said, "They will too; I will give them signs, powerful supernatural evidence that what you're saying is true." Now these verses have gotten a lot of people in trouble because they build a theology around them. Let me point out two cautions:

a. this promise is not individual but corporate It does not say that every individual believer everywhere will speak in tongues, pick up snakes, lay hands on the sick and heal them, and so on. The early church never had healing services and healing lines. They never did snake-handling in church; that was invented in the hills of Kentucky! This is a general statement that the church, believers as a group, those who believe, will find God's power at work with them in marvelous ways like these. And the record shows they did. Secondly:

b. this promise is not universal but discretionary It doesn't say Jesus will ALWAYS protect His followers, or heal the sick. If it did, James and Stephen wouldn't have died as martyrs, the apostles would never have been jailed and Paul would have gotten free of his thorn in the flesh! There were occasions when, at His choosing, He did things like this. God also testified to it [the salvation announced by the apostles] by signs, wonders and various miracles, and gifts of the Holy Spirit distributed according to his will. - Heb. 2:4. God picked the times and places for these things in His wisdom; He showed His power when and how it would do the most good. So, the warning is this: Warning: We are not to seek the signs but to announce the message! Too many Christians are running around looking for signs and trying to produce them to validate themselves; our job is to announce the message and let God validate it by His power however and whenever He chooses to. What we have here are:

2. some examples of the variety of ways He would display that power For example:

a. at times his followers would visibly defeat demonic forces Paul would turn and cast the demon out of that slave girl at Philippi in Acts 16, but he didn't do it right away, nor everywhere he went, and indeed, it seems he put it off until it was a necessity. A missionary in Africa tells of a knock on her door in the middle of the night. And there stood a man who said, "I've been a fetish worshipper all my life but recently I noticed that my prayers to the fetishes aren't being answered. Tonight, I decided to get rid of them. I took them to the river and threw them in. But they jumped right out again and fastened themselves onto my back. I was horrified! Then I remembered hearing one of you preach about the power of the name of Jesus. So, I pulled them off my back shouting, "In the name of Jesus get away from me!" I flung them again into the river and this time they sank like stones. Now I want to receive Jesus into my life!" God still shows His power over demonic forces and validates His message!

b. at times his followers would miraculously speak new languages It happened three times in Acts, at Pentecost, at Cornelius' house, and at Ephesus and it doesn't seem to have continued in anybody's life. Only at Corinth do we hear that it became a problem and there Paul said plainly, "Tongues are a sign for unbelievers..." They were given to validate the Gospel to them. I heard a missionary to China relate years ago how he was called to the bedside of a dying woman and had no one to translate and God enabled him to speak Chinese to her and she came to Christ. He never spoke it before or since. But when God needed to give that gift, He did it!

c. at times his followers would be miraculously protected from harm Paul would reach down and pick up firewood years later on Malta and the snake would bite him and he wouldn't even get sick. But most believers bit by snakes do! Eusebius tells us that Justus Barsabbas mentioned in Acts 1:23, years later drank a deadly poison but experienced nothing injurious through the grace of the Lord, though most believers who drink poison do. But when God needs to, He shows His power in protecting them in miraculous ways, even today. And:

d. at times his followers would miraculously heal sickness Paul laid his hands on Publius' father in Acts 28 and healed him and I'm sure they became believers. But he could never cure himself. Many, if not most, believers have always died through sickness of one sort or another. But God used that gift at that moment to advance the Gospel. I like what Alexander Jones said about signs and miracles, "The infant Church needed them, the adult Church is not without them". There was no written Word, no unchanging standard of truth, their numbers were so small and the task so enormous. The church in its infancy needed the display of God's power desperately to spread through the world, but though the need for that display has lessened, we are not without it today, and any place where the church has yet to make a beachhead, we often find the same thing. Yet Jesus still shows the power of His name everywhere we go, if not in external signs and miracles, always in the constantly repeated and predictable miracle of the new birth for all those who believe. And that too is just as powerful evidence of the truth of the Gospel. The lesson here, really is this:

III. Jesus Works With Us In A Partnership (19-20) We do have in one sense:

1. we have separate spheres of location Where is Jesus?

a. Jesus, now as then, remains bodily seated in heaven (19) After 40 days of repeating His instructions He ascended bodily to heaven and took His rightful place on the throne. Bodily speaking, He's still up there, though through His Holy Spirit He is in us too. He's reigning, ruling, controlling, working all things together for good. And what about us?

b. we, like the disciples, go out and preach everywhere (20a) We're still down here, millions of us and we're scattered now all over the face of the earth, even as far as Glenside! And everywhere we go, we're announcing the Good News that Jesus is alive and there is salvation through believing in His name. So, He's busy ruling up there and we're busy announcing down here, but the grand truth here is that:

2. we work together as one in our mission (20b) The Greek word is sunergeo, to labor together with. Jesus labors with us in our enormous task, or perhaps more appropriately, we labor together with Him. Maybe we ought to just turn to 2 Cor. 5:18-20 and let Paul say it. You see:

a. He carries His message to the world through us The ministry of carrying the Good News of salvation in Jesus and announcing it is committed to us. But it is Him through us. He through us is calling the world to believe, to receive Him and in turn:

b. He validates His message to the world in power, yes through signs and wonders sometimes and in some places, but always in the power of the drawing men and women and children to Himself and making them brand new creatures. It happens all over the world, everywhere the message is preached.

In Conspiracy of Kindness, Steve Sjogren (pronounced Show-gren) tells the true story of Joe Delaney and his 8-year-old son, Jared, who were playing catch in their backyard in the Cincinnati area. Jared asked, "Dad, is there a God?" Joe replied that he went to church only a few times when he was a kid; he really had no idea. Jared ran into the house. "I'll be right back!" he yelled. Moments later he returned with a helium balloon from the circus, a pen, and an index card. "I'm going to send God an airmail message," Jared explained. "Dear God," wrote Jared, "if you are real, and you are there, send people who know you to Dad and me." God, I hope you're watching, Joe thought, as they watched the balloon and message sail away. Two days later, Joe and Jared pulled into a car wash sponsored by Sjogren's church. When Joe asked, "How much?" he was told, "It's free. No strings attached." "But why are you doing this?" Joe asked. "We just want to show God's love in a practical way," Sjogren answered. "Are you guys Christians, the kind of Christians who believe in God?" Joe asked. Sjogren said, "Yes, we're that kind of Christians." From that encounter, Steve led Joe to faith in Christ. Oh, we have a mission! It's life or death. The world needs to hear or perish and the 39 crucial seconds of our short life are passing fast. He could do it without us, but He chooses not to. Instead He chooses to do it through us. He moves men and women to seek Him. He takes the message to them through us and confirms it by His power as He chooses. We're in a deep partnership in this enormous project. But if it's to be successful, we have to focus on what we're about, on what we're still on earth for, on what our mission is. If all of us, here at GBC and across the world, would just grasp the importance of this, we could get the job done in our generation. I guarantee you there is no more exciting or rewarding way to live. I leave you with the Master's words, "Go into all the world and preach the good news to all creation. What are you doing with them?"

Outline: Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

Introduction - 1:1-4

The Birth Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 1-2

- The Conception Of Jesus - 1:5-80
- The Birth Of Jesus - 2:1-20
- The Childhood Of Jesus - 2:21-52

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

- The Baptism Of Jesus - Ch. 3
- The Temptation And Rejection Of Jesus - Ch. 4
- The Disciples Of Jesus - Ch. 5
- The Teaching Of Jesus - Ch. 6
- The Miracles Of Jesus - 7:1-35
- The Parables Of Jesus - 7:36-8:21
- The Authority Of Jesus - 8:22-56
- The Identity Of Jesus - 9:1-50

The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - Lk. 9:51-19:27

- The Cost And Joy Of Following Jesus - 9:51-10:24
- The Priorities Of Jesus - 10:25-11:13
- The Enemies Of Jesus - 11:14-53
- The Sermon Of Jesus - Ch. 12
- The Warning Of Jesus - Ch. 13
- The Banquet Of Jesus - Ch. 14
- The Heart Of Jesus - Ch. 15
- The Values Of Jesus - 16:1-17:19
- The Kingdom Of Jesus - 17:20-18:30
- The Approach Of Jesus - 18:31-19:26

The Passion Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 19:28-24:53

- The Triumphal Entry Of Jesus - 19:28-20:47
- The Coming Of Jesus - Ch. 21
- The Last Supper Of Jesus - 22:1-46
- The Arrest And Trial Of Jesus - 22:47-23:25
- The Crucifixion Of Jesus - 23:26-55
- The Resurrection Of Jesus - Ch. 24

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

Introduction and The Conception Of Jesus - Ch. 1

It is my hope that we can study together through the Gospel of Luke in the next few months. Of course, that will mean skipping many passages and hitting only the major points, but I hope you'll find it worthwhile. Let's read the:

I. Introduction To The Gospel Of Luke - 1:1-4 Our New Testament contains four narratives of the life and ministry of Jesus, the four Gospels. Now why would God want us to have four accounts of the same event? Well, first because it's the most important event in all of human history, but secondly, whenever people go through the same experience, each of them is impressed to notice and remember different aspects of it, and what impacts them depends on who they are. I wrote in my Kyrgyzstan journal a couple weeks ago about my trip to Lake Issyk Kul and described how impressed I was with the beauty of God's creation, the majestic mountains, the autumn colors of the trees, the sky blue of the lake. My friend Gulmira who lives in Chicago read my narrative and wrote, ...when you described Issyk-Kul I almost had tears in my eyes...I am missing home so much. I saw a beautiful place and felt awe; she saw home and felt homesick. Who you are colors what you notice and what you experience. Matthew and John were disciples who walked with Jesus for 3 ½ years. They were Jews, fishermen who lived in Galilee. Luke was a Greek and he came to faith much later; he was a traveling companion of the Apostle Paul on his missionary journeys in Turkey and Greece. And while Matthew was a tax collector and John a fisherman, Paul says Luke was a doctor. Who Luke was makes a difference in what he recorded, so here are a few of the distinctives of this Gospel. Being a doctor:

1. Luke emphasizes the human nature of Jesus He records things like Jesus' emotions, His compassion and his weeping, the things that make Him truly human just like us. And, being a Greek:

2. Luke emphasizes the universal nature of the Good News He traces the genealogy of Jesus in chapter 3, not back to Abraham which is what interests the Jews, but all the way to Adam, indicating that His salvation is for all mankind. He is writing this to Theophilus, a Greek name, possibly that of an important official. He portrays non-Jews in a favorable light, even Samaritans coming to faith and he notices Jesus' interactions with women, children and social outcasts like lepers. In fact:

3. Luke includes much material not found in the other Gospels He is the one who includes all the stories of the birth of John and of Jesus; in fact, most of Luke 10-17 is unique material not recorded by the others. And, of course, as a doctor:

4. Luke is greatly concerned with details and accuracy As he says. He was careful to get his material from eyewitnesses, that is, from the apostles and from Mary, Jesus' mother. He sets out to write an account that is ordered, that proceeds carefully step by step. And the reason, found in verse 4, is that:

5. Luke is writing to give us assurance of what we have been taught He wanted Theophilus, and us, to know that the things we've been told about Jesus are true and accurate and factual so that we might have assurance of our salvation! His attitude is like that of Peter who wrote, ...we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty. - 2 Pet. 1:16. The things written in the Gospels aren't just ancient stories, fairy tales or myths people used to believe. They are events that really happened, exactly the way they are recorded, miracles and all. They were verified carefully and attested to by many and you can trust them!

II. The Conception Of Jesus - 1:5-80 Our big focus this morning is obviously the Children's Program, which they are waiting anxiously to present to us. So I'm just going to point out to you Five Lessons From Mary's Angel Visit. I've printed the familiar text of the story from the Easy-To-Read Version so you can follow along. It begins like this:

...God sent the angel Gabriel to a virgin girl who lived in Nazareth, a town in Galilee. She was engaged to marry a man named Joseph from the family of David. Her name was Mary. And right there's our first lesson:

1. God uses young people and children to accomplish great things! When God was ready to send His Son into the world, He didn't choose an older, more mature woman; He chose a young girl. Mary was only a teenager, probably 16 or 17. She was engaged but not yet married. She had no experience with pregnancy or having babies or caring for them, yet God chose to use her to give us our Savior! Daniel and his three friends were only teens when they were carried away as captives to Babylon, yet God used them to change the heart of King Nebuchadnezzar! Samuel was only a child when God began to speak to him, but he grew up to lead the nation of Israel. Don't think because you're a kid that God can't use you! He can do great things through you! I'm here today because an 11 year old boy decided to be my friend and invite me to his church! Let's continue:

The angel came to her and said, "Greetings! The Lord is with you; you are very special to him." But Mary was very confused about what the angel said. She wondered, "What does this mean?" The angel said to her, "Don't be afraid, Mary, because God is very pleased with you. There's lesson number two:

2. You are very special to God and He is with you! Mary was scared and confused. Wouldn't you be if an angel suddenly appeared to you with a message from God? But you don't ever have to be scared of God. He is not some distant holy Being who is waiting to judge you; He is your Father, your Heavenly Father, who loves you more than you can ever comprehend. Those words are not just for Mary; YOU are just as special to Him. He is always with you. In fact, when you asked Jesus to be your Savior, He came to actually live inside of you, so there is never a moment that He is not with you. You don't ever need to be afraid of Him! When my grandson Alex was 3 and his big brother James asked him if he ever has scary dreams when he goes to bed, in his 3 year old voice he said, "No, I just see Jesus and then I'm not scared to go to sleep." He IS with you! Then the angel said:

Listen! You will become pregnant and have a baby boy. You will name him Jesus. He will be great. People will call him the Son of the Most High God, and the Lord God will make him king like his ancestor David. He will rule over the people of Jacob forever; his kingdom will never end." Mary said to the angel, "How will this happen? I am still a virgin." The angel said to Mary, "The Holy Spirit will come to you, and the power of the Most High God will cover you. The baby will be holy and will be called the Son of God. Lesson number three is:

3. You don't have to understand how God is going to do things! Mary couldn't understand how it could be possible for her to have a baby without a man. It's humanly impossible and everybody knows it. Many times in our lives, we don't see how God could possibly help us or do what we need or get us out of the trouble we're in. But God has ways of working that are not only beyond anything we could think up, but He also sometimes does outright miracles to make His plans happen. You don't have to figure out or understand how He's going to do things; you just have to trust Him and believe what the angel said to Mary next:

... God can do anything!" That's lesson four:

4. Believe that God can do anything! Nothing is impossible for Him! He can make a young girl have a baby without a man; even greater, He can have His Son Jesus come to live inside her womb as a baby and be born as a human being! He can part the waters of the Red Sea or dry up the Jordan River for His people to cross. He has the power to do whatever He chooses to do! But the ending of this story is what's most important:

Mary said, "I am the Lord's servant. Let this thing you have said happen to me!" Then the angel went away. - Lk. 1:26-38 ERV. The last lesson is this:

5. Always see yourself as God's servant and obey Him even if it's hard! Be like Mary! Have the attitude she had! She knew it wouldn't be easy for her. She knew nobody would believe her story that an angel had appeared and that she was pregnant with God's son by a miracle! Not even Joseph or her own parents! She knew they would believe she was lying and had been a bad girl who cheated on her fiancé and they would heap shame on her. But none of that mattered. She didn't know what her future would hold now but she trusted God would take care of her somehow and said, "I am Your servant; I am willing to do what you want, to cooperate with whatever you want for my life, no matter how hard it is!" Oh, if only we were all like her! How much God could do with us! I leave you with this poem:

From Mary

By Kathy Lowe Hart

"Really, God? You chose me?

But why?

I'm ordinary, young, uneducated,

Not married.

Why me for such a task?"

Then comes understanding.

Not the answer to WHY, but just THE answer:

"I am not alone in this,

And nothing is impossible with God."

At worst, it's terrifying,

At best, sobering.....

And eventually joy-filled

To be selected for God's service.

We are all Mary.

Accept being chosen,

For nothing is impossible with God.

[\[https://www.centralchurch.us/from-mary-kathy-low-hart/\]](https://www.centralchurch.us/from-mary-kathy-low-hart/)

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Birth Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 1-2

The Birth Of Jesus - 2:1-20

There is no more familiar story to us than that of the birth of Jesus in Luke 2 which we read every Christmas without fail. But before we explore it together, let me summarize for you the drama of events that occurred in the little town of Nazareth in Galilee in Chapter 1. The angel Gabriel had appeared to a virgin girl named Mary to tell her she would become pregnant by the power of the Spirit of God and be the mother of the promised Messiah. She did become pregnant and immediately she left home and went to the hill country to visit her childless older cousin Elizabeth, whom she found now to be 6 months pregnant with a child she would name John [the Baptist]. She stayed there three months until Elizabeth's baby was born and then returned home to Nazareth three months pregnant. Of course, everybody was shocked and didn't believe her story. Matthew tells us that her fiancé Joseph was ready to divorce her for unfaithfulness, but Gabriel appeared to him also and told him her story was true and that he should take her to his home and care for her as his wife. So he did and for six months they continued living in Nazareth, probably enduring the scornful looks of their neighbors, as

Mary's baby grew to term. Everybody, including Mary and Joseph, fully expected the baby to be born there in a normal fashion, but He wasn't! In (1-4) we're told about:

I. The Circumstance Which Caused Jesus To Be Born In Bethlehem The Roman Emperor, Caesar Augustus, issued a decree that the whole world (by which he meant the whole Roman Empire) should be registered in a census. Of course, that's not because he was interested in population data; this was in preparation for levying taxes and raising money. But regardless of his intent:

1. Caesar's decree forced Joseph to go to Bethlehem People were registered according to their family line so every family was required to go to the home town where their ancestors came from, regardless of where they currently lived. Both Joseph and Mary were descendants of King David and his home town was Bethlehem, so Joseph rather unexpectedly found himself required to show up in Bethlehem to register his name at a rather inconvenient time when Mary had reached full term and was soon to deliver. However, there was another decree, one that every Jewish man or woman knew:

2. God decreed that the Messiah would come from Bethlehem Look with me at Micah 5:2. God says plainly that His ruler, His King, His Messiah, would come forth from Bethlehem. Everybody knew that. Now Gabriel had told Mary that her child was to be that promised Messiah, but if so, He absolutely could not be born in Nazareth where they lived; He had to be born in Bethlehem or the Scripture would be unfulfilled. So, what did God do about that? He simply moved a pagan emperor who lived 2500 miles away to issue a decree which arrived in Galilee at just the right time to force Joseph to be in Bethlehem at the exact moment that the baby would be born! Listen, God's timing is always perfect! And He always watches over His Word to fulfill it! You can count on that! After the wise men came and the family spent a brief time in Egypt as refugees, Joseph took his family back to Nazareth. So, Jesus was called a Nazarene. He was known as Jesus of Nazareth or Jesus, the prophet from Nazareth. But He wasn't born there. In fact:

3. there was doubt in later years because people didn't know this - Jn. 7:41-42 says, Others said, "This is the Christ." But some said, "Is the Christ to come from Galilee? Has not the Scripture said that the Christ comes from the offspring of David, and comes from Bethlehem, the village where David was?" Nobody wrote down this story that's now so familiar to us. Nobody took note of Jesus' birth and all the things that we read about now in Scripture. Mary kept all these things and shared them years later with His disciples, but the general public didn't know that God had done a miracle, that God had indeed kept His word and sent Joseph and Mary to Bethlehem just long enough so that Jesus was indeed born there in accord with the Scripture!

God always keeps His Word and He will move heaven and earth to do it! In a moment, we'll see that He had Jesus' birth announced at the very spot He predicted. He had Jesus taken to Egypt to fulfill the Word, Out of Egypt have I called My Son. He had him grow up in Nazareth so He would be called a Nazarene in accord with the Scripture. He set Jesus' main ministry in Galilee of the Gentiles to fulfill Isaiah's words about the people who walked in darkness. At the cross He had the soldiers gamble for His clothes and a soldier pierce His side because the Scripture said so. He was crucified with thieves, counted with transgressors, and buried in a rich man's tomb because Isaiah said so. And He rose from the dead the third day according to the Scriptures. CBN.com says that the Old Testament contains over 300 prophecies that Jesus fulfilled through His life, death and resurrection. Mathematically the odds of one person fulfilling 300 prophecies are roughly 1 chance in 10⁹⁵⁰ power! www1.cbn.com/biblestudy/biblical-prophecies-fulfilled-by-jesus Jesus IS the promised Messiah and Savior of the world and God DOES watch over His Word to fulfill every detail! Hallelujah! Well, let's move on to look at:

II. The Circumstances Of Jesus' Birth (5-7) At this point Mary was too far along for Joseph to risk leaving her, but think about:

1. the difficult journey which Mary endured It's a distance of 80 miles from Nazareth in Galilee to Bethlehem in Judea and good Jews never traveled through Samaria which lay in between. Instead, they crossed the Jordan River and traveled down the road on the east side until they crossed back at Jericho and then went steeply up 3000 feet in 18 miles to Jerusalem and another 5 miles beyond it to Bethlehem. I think it meant a minimum of 4 days and maybe as long as a week, camping out along the way. Imagine enduring that when you're ready to deliver a baby, even if you do get to ride on a donkey much of the way! Mary was one tough young chick! But notice:

2. the perfect timing of God He didn't let her have the baby along the way and He didn't hold off the birth until they arrived back home. He wanted Jesus to be born IN Bethlehem and He had Mary there at the exact right time for the delivery! God is never early in the sense that He does things too soon and He is never late. His timing is ALWAYS right on schedule, even in your life! When we moved here in 1979, we had been between churches and without a paycheck for two months and our money was gone; I was going to buy our first groceries on a credit card because I didn't know what else to do, but Jim Campbell, the church treasurer, showed up and said, "I thought you might need your first paycheck in advance!" Boy, did we! And the Lord was right on time; He always is! But back to Mary and Joseph, take note of:

3. the humble lodging which they found The little village was absolutely crowded with pilgrims coming to register. The noted scholar W.F. Albright estimates that it only had about 300 residents at that time so every home had taken in strangers. It had one little inn, but don't think of some hotel like the Marriott! It was a simple one room shelter where passing travelers could camp overnight on their own, with a stable for their animals, in this case probably a natural cave the "inn" was built against. There was no "innkeeper" of the sort we love to portray and the place was packed out with families crammed into every corner. The only room was in the stable with the animals. And there Mary's baby was born, certainly with Joseph's help and perhaps with the aid of some kind women from the inn. She wrapped him tightly in strips of cloth, swaddling clothes, she'd brought along just in case, and instead of a crib, she laid him in a feed rack, a manger, on the soft hay. What a contrast that the Creator and King of the universe should enter it in such humble circumstances, worse than anything any of us would ever want to have our baby in! That says something about the character of Jesus, doesn't it? He said, Come to me...for I am gentle and lowly in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. - Mt. 11:28-29. Charles Wesley wrote the old hymn, Gentle Jesus, meek and mild, Look upon a little child; Pity my simplicity, Suffer me to come to Thee. Our King is lowly! Our King is humble! Our King came to bring us salvation by dying on a cross! But when He returns, He will come with a rod of iron to judge the nations, so come to Him now! Moving on, thirdly, we have in these verses:

III. The Announcement Of Jesus' Birth (8-20) An event this big, this momentous, needs to be announced to the world! Today an event like this would be in the largest type possible in every newspaper and on every website, carried on every news channel. The announcement would be given to an audience of the most important rank, to presidents and governors, to celebrities and important people of every description. But Jesus' birth wasn't! (8)

1. His birth was announced to ordinary shepherds, not in the city before crowds but in lonely fields at night! Why shepherds? Based on false assumptions, many have said that shepherds were despised in Jewish society, when the exact opposite seems to be true. Abraham was a shepherd! Moses was a shepherd! King David was a shepherd and he wrote, The LORD is my SHEPHERD and the whole rest of the 23rd Psalm. God describes Himself many times in Scripture as the Shepherd of His people and Jesus later will say, I am the Good Shepherd! In fact, when Matthew quotes that birth prediction we read earlier in Micah 5:2, he says, ...from you shall come a ruler who will shepherd my people Israel. [Source: <https://factsand Trends.net/2015/12/17/christmas-urban-legends-shepherds-as-outcasts/>] God announced the birth of His Great Shepherd of the Sheep to people who understood better than anyone what it meant for a Messiah to be born who was a Shepherd, who would tenderly care for His people and lay down His life to save them! This One who was born was a Savior, One who would rescue His people the way a shepherd leaves the 99 and goes after the lost sheep until he finds it! God saw that Jesus' birth was announced to the right people, the people who were most like Him, but not only that:

2. it was announced at the predicted place Just as every Jew knew that the Messiah would be born in Bethlehem; they also knew that His coming would be announced at a specific place. Micah 4:8 says, And you, O tower of the flock, hill of the daughter of Zion, to you shall it come, the former dominion shall come, kingship for the daughter of Jerusalem. "Tower of the Flock" in Hebrew is Migdal Eder and it was a specific place, an ancient stone tower dating back to Jacob's time about half a mile down the road from Bethlehem toward Jerusalem, that was used by shepherds as a high point to watch over the flocks on the hillside. But these were not just any flocks; the Jewish Mishna tells us that the flocks kept here were the Temple flocks. The lambs born here were destined for the daily sacrifices in the Temple, two every day, morning and evening. Here, at just the right place, the announcement was made that God had sent the Savior at last and He would be, as John said, the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world! In that place where sacrificial lambs were born and grew up to die, God's Sacrificial Lamb was born, who grew up to die and save us all! Hallelujah! Now His birth:

3. it was announced by a glorious angel (9-11) Can you imagine the scene as a brilliantly shining angel suddenly appears in the dark night sky above you? No wonder the shepherds were terrified! But the angel reassured them and urged them not to be afraid because he was a messenger with Good News. And through him:

a. they were told the Good News of the birth of the Christ, the long-expected Messiah. The angel said, "He was born today right here in Bethlehem!" What Good News! It is a message that would bring great joy, not just to them, but to all the people of Israel and ultimately to all the people of the world! The Savior is born at last, right here, today! What an announcement! And then:

b. they were told how to find Him (12) The angel said, "Go look for yourselves and I'll tell you how to recognize Him; you'll find him wrapped in swaddling cloths, strips of cloth in which Jewish mothers wrap their newborn babies, but He'll be lying in a manger!" Whoa, wait a minute. A manger is a feed rack filled with hay that you find in stable. Who puts their newborn in the barn in a feed rack with animals? Nobody who has a house to stay in, that's for sure! There's only one place where such a thing might happen, at the inn which is crowded with all the strangers who've come to town. So now they knew where to look, but a simple announcement was not enough (13-14). Jesus' birth:

4. it was celebrated by a sky filled with angels Can you imagine it? Suddenly there are hundreds, maybe thousands, of bright shining angels from God's heavenly army all across the night sky. We think of them as singing because that's what we do, but the text says saying. I think they were actually shouting, "Glory to God!" And we also think of them doing it in unison like we do when we recite the line in our Christmas play, but what if every one of them was just shouting that line out with excitement randomly. Can you imagine the ear-splitting symphony, "Glory, glory, glory..." ringing out from all sides! "Glory to God and peace to you!!" What a celebration! Never has an announcement been made as glorious as that one! Then just as suddenly as the angels had appeared, they all went back to heaven, leaving the shepherds in the quiet of the night and:

5. the shepherds became the first witnesses of Jesus' birth (15-16)

a. they ran to Bethlehem as fast as they could and found Jesus right away, just as the angel had said. We're not told what happened when they arrived, but I'm sure at the very least they told Mary and Joseph the story of the angels and the announcement on the hillside. That's how we have the story of it to read today; verse 19 says Mary kept the memory of what they shared and she passed it on to the disciples years later! How it must have thrilled Mary and Joseph's hearts to hear them recite what the angel said about their baby being the Savior of the world and the glorious way in which the announcement was made and the prophecies fulfilled! But the real point the text is making is that:

b. they shared the news about Him with all who would listen (17-18) They ran into the inn and shared what had happened. They stopped everyone they met on the street and shared the Good News that the Messiah was born right there in Bethlehem! Maybe they knocked on the doors of some houses! The people they talked to were in shock and marveled at what they were told. Could it really be true? The Christ was born, right here tonight? The shepherds were the first evangelists to share the Good News that God had sent a Savior into the world and peace with God could be had through Him! They were the first to give the invitation to go and see the Christ! Then after they shared with all they saw:

c. they returned to their fields worshipping God (20) Wouldn't you? Wouldn't you spend the rest of the night worshipping and praising God after an experience like that? Or maybe the rest of your life?

But let's not miss the application to ourselves. The shepherds first HEARD the Good News, then they EXPERIENCED the Good News for themselves and their reaction was to SHARE that Good News with everyone who would listen. WE have heard the Good News! WE have experienced the Good News by meeting Christ and having our lives changed. And our reaction should be a passion to SHARE that Good News with anyone who is willing to listen! The shepherds challenge us to have the same passion for sharing Jesus that they did. Two weeks ago, LuAnn and I went to the memorial service for Bernice Givens, the mother of two of our missionaries, Bob and Dave Givens. Bernice was 100 years old, but almost 300 people showed up for the service. All her life Bernice had taught and promoted Good News Clubs and a number testified about the strong passion that she had to share the Good News with children. She had a Wordless Book and used that tool with every child that came near her, even into her last days. On the morning that she died her mind was still lucid and she said to one of her sons, "I'm excited to go to heaven soon, but I still wish I could take a few more with me!" Jesus had changed her life as a young girl and all her days she had a passion to tell others about Him. May her passion and the passion of the shepherds be ours!

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Birth Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 1-2

The Childhood Of Jesus - 2:21-52

The first half of Luke 2 which describes Jesus' birth is among the most often read portions of the Bible, while the second half which describes the rest of His first 30 years, His childhood, youth and young adulthood, is pretty much neglected. The events of Jesus' early life are largely unknown, despite the claims of various cult groups and fancifully invented false writings that are out there about it. The Scripture only records five scenarios from those 30 years and four of them are right here in our text. The first one is:

I. Jesus' First Month In Bethlehem Even though they could only find lodging in a stable that first night, evidently Joseph and Mary soon found real housing in Bethlehem and began to live there. I assume this was their plan from the beginning, as they knew they would need to visit the Temple 30 days after the child was born and it would be difficult to make the trip to and from Nazareth again so soon. So, while they were living in Bethlehem, verse (21). The baby:

1. He was circumcised on the 8th day, exactly as the Law specified, and at that time, as Jewish custom dictated, He was officially named Jesus, because that is what they were told by God to name Him. It means "Jehovah or Yahweh is salvation", in the Hebrew Yehoshua, like Joshua of old, or Yeshua for short. Then, following that:

2. He was presented to the Lord at the Temple at one month old (22-24) This visit to the Temple was required for two reasons. First, the Law said that any woman who gave birth to a male child had to go and offer a sacrifice for her purification from uncleanness and since Joseph and Mary were poor, the sacrifice required of them was two doves or young pigeons, one for a sin offering and one for a burnt offering. But the second reason was that the Law repeatedly said that every firstborn son belongs to the Lord and must be given to Him. So, they would put the child in the arms of a priest who would then offer two short benedictions or prayers and the couple would pay the redemption price of five silver shekels required by the Law. Notice how devout Mary and Joseph were, how careful they were to obey to the letter everything God told them to do, both in His Word and by His angel, even though it caused them to have to live in a strange town for a month to do it! What an example for us! They're the kind of parents we ought to be! Our genuinely devout example makes a powerful impact on our children. No wonder God was willing to entrust the care of His Son to them! But much more happened on this occasion. This godly old man named Simeon met them as they came into the Temple and:

3. the Holy Spirit confirmed through Simeon that Jesus was the Christ (25-35) The Spirit had told him that he wouldn't die without seeing the Lord's Christ and when He saw the infant Jesus, the Spirit must have spoken to his mind and said, "Here He is!" What joy it brought him personally! Now he could die in peace, having seen the Lord's promise fulfilled! But this "chance" encounter had an even greater purpose. Think of the affirmation it brought to Joseph and Mary to have this godly stranger out of the blue recognize what they already knew, that their baby was indeed the Christ and make prophecies about Him that He would not only be the glory of Israel but a light to all the nations of the earth! Verse 33 says they marveled at what he said! But that's not all that happened. At that very moment as Simeon is declaring all of this, another stranger walks in on it (36-38). Anna was a prophetess, a woman through whom God spoke, and when she heard that this was the Christ, the Spirit also confirmed it to her own heart. But she not only began to worship with thanksgiving, what Luke notes about her is that:

4. the prophetess Anna began to tell everyone that He was the Christ She went to announce the news to all the people who were in the Temple courts and maybe in the streets. She went to all the devout people she knew, people who loved the Lord and were waiting for the coming of the Christ and she told them, "He's here! He's born! I saw Him with my own eyes!" First, the shepherds stirred up Bethlehem with the news on the night of His birth and now Anna began to stir up Jerusalem with the same news from that day of His dedication! If you know that God has done something, that He has sent salvation to the world, you want to share it! You don't want to keep it to yourself; you want to tell others!

What a day this must have been for Mary and Joseph as they went back to their little house in Bethlehem! What joy they must have felt! But their joy did not last long. Luke chooses not to record what happened next:

II. The Arrival Of The Wise Men And The Sojourn In Egypt is recorded for us in Mt. 2:13-23. These three Persian Magi show up one night soon after, declare that their baby is indeed the newborn King of the Jews. They fall down and worship him and give him these expensive gifts fit for a King! What a shock that must have been, but that very night God warned Joseph to take the baby and flee in the darkness because Herod would try to kill Him. So, off they went on another pilgrimage of at least 50 miles or so to get outside of Judea and into Egyptian territory and Jesus with his family officially becomes a displaced refugee seeking asylum. How long they stayed we are not told exactly, but since Herod died in March of 4 BC, it was probably not much more than a month and when they returned, it was not to Bethlehem where Herod's son now ruled, but all the way home to Nazareth in Galilee, where Luke picks up the story and tells us about:

III. Jesus' Childhood In Nazareth (39-40) Luke simply doesn't mention those events, but focuses again on how devout Joseph and Mary were and moves on to a one verse description of Jesus' life in Nazareth. Now before we examine it more closely, I'd like to look at some theological background that's given to us in the book of Hebrews about what it meant for Jesus to become a true human being. We're told clearly that:

1. Jesus was made like us in every respect - Heb. 2:17 His body didn't just look like ours; it was exactly like ours, except without sin. His mind was like ours. His emotions were like ours. And that means that:

2. He experienced everything the way we experience it - Heb. 4:15 He experienced every temptation, to lie, to cheat, to lust, to become full of rage, everything exactly as we experience it. He experienced all the other things we experience, frustration, discouragement, pain, sorrow, joy, laughter, everything a normal human being experiences. He didn't exempt Himself from all those things. 5:8 says He learned obedience through what He suffered. He learned what obedience is like from the human side when it can be painful and costly. That's what makes Him so understanding that we can go to Him for help in any situation we find ourselves in. He gets it; He lived through it just like we do! Now let's go back to verse 40 of Luke 2 where we see this spelled out. As a child, Jesus:

3. He grew naturally just as we do He didn't come to earth in full blown adult form, but in the body of a baby so as the months and years passed:

a. He grew physically in body He had to learn to walk, to learn to talk, to learn to use the outhouse. He was too short to reach things and had to be carried. He had to learn to dress Himself and to play the games the other kids played. He got tired and when He fell or stubbed His toe, it hurt, just like ours does. His body underwent normal human development stage by stage just like ours does. So kids, let me assure you that when you're frustrated by being too little and too young and it's too tough to learn to do things, Jesus understands because He went through it too! His body grew up strong and healthy, but here's an amazing thing:

b. He grew mentally in wisdom How this can be, I don't know, but Jesus didn't start out as a baby knowing everything there is to know! He limited Himself from that in the incarnation so that He would have to learn like we learn! His parents were His first teachers. They read to Him and carefully taught Him the Scriptures, as well as many other life lessons. From the age of 5 or 6 through about 15 He went to school at the synagogue as all Jewish boys did in that day and was taught reading and writing and history and mathematics, as well as the Scriptures. He didn't simply know all these things already but had to learn and memorize like we do. He knows how hard all that can be! Then He also sat at his father Joseph's feet learning the trade of a carpenter. He learned how to use each of the tools, how to pick the wood, how to craft a chair or a table or a cabinet. He chose to put Himself through having to learn all these things just as we do and He grew rapidly in wisdom through the years. Then in the spiritual realm:

4. the Father was at work in His life That word favor is literally grace. He learned to pray and the Father answered His prayers. He learned to see God do things in His life and other people's lives and cooperate with what God was doing just as we must. I say this with all reverence, but it seems to me that in a very real sense, because of the way that He limited Himself in becoming man, that He actually had to learn to know His Heavenly Father in the same way that we do! And He went every Friday to the synagogue with His family and worshipped and prayed and learned just as we do here. Now the next scenario that comes on the scene is:

IV. Jesus' Visit To The Temple At Twelve (41-50) This is a pretty familiar story, but in studying I learned something about it that I never realized before. This:

1. it appears to have been His first visit to Jerusalem and the Temple (41-42) As I've said, Mary and Joseph were devout and loved the Lord deeply. They kept the Law and went up from Nazareth to Jerusalem every year for the Feast of Passover. But I never thought about the fact that children often didn't go along. At the age of 13 every Jewish boy was to be recognized as a "son of the Torah", a custom Jews continue today as a bar Mitzvah. It was a rite of passage to adulthood in a sense. Now the boy was no longer dependent upon his parents' spirituality, but was responsible to God for his own actions and for keeping the Law on his own incentive. He was to take ownership of his own spiritual life, keeping all the ordinances. So, in preparation for that, parents would begin to take their sons along to the Feasts in Jerusalem a year or two earlier and when Jesus was 12 Joseph and Mary took Him along to prepare Him. So, this could have been the very first time that Jesus had seen the Holy City of Jerusalem that He had heard about and read Psalms about and desired to set foot in all His life. And it could have been His first time to see the majestic Temple of God, the Holiest Place on the earth, the place where God had set His Name and said that He should be worshipped. How thrilled His heart must have been! Now most of the time when we read this story we think about things like, "How could his parents not have taken better care and lost him for several days?" or "How could Jesus not have made sure to go home when they left?" But neither of those is the point. Where do they find Jesus? In the Temple! And what is He doing? (46-47). The point is that at the age of 12:

2. He appears to already have a deep desire to learn the Scriptures and a deep understanding of them He's absorbed, so absorbed that He can't break away from it. He's not off playing in the streets with other kids; He's listening to the Rabbis' instruction hour after hour, drinking it in and asking adult level questions beyond His years, so much so that they're all amazed at Him. From His absorbing and memorizing of the Scriptures over His young years, He's asking them questions they don't have answers for. Maybe questions like those He raised later, "In the Psalm David calls the Christ his Lord; how can He then can He be his son?" Or "Why did Moses permit a man to give his wife a writing of divorce when God said in the beginning that the two become one flesh?" When His parents find Him at last, we often think He's being terse or disrespectful in his reply in verse (49). Or as some translations say, about My Father's business or the things of My Father. That's significant; He's revealing the depths of what He's come to understand. Again, I say this reverently, treading on holy ground, but here in the Temple at the age of 12:

3. He appears to have come to a full understanding of His life's mission He appears at last to have realized fully who He truly is, the Son of God, and that His whole life going forward is the carrying out of a mission that the Father has sent Him to earth to complete. By the way, so is ours! God birthed us on this earth to carry out a mission that He has designed for us, to accomplish a set of good works that God has prepared beforehand for us specifically to do, according to Eph. 2:10! We're not put in this world to do whatever we want, to seek whatever we fancy, to squander these few years we're given on meaningless frivolities. The Scripture says, ...David, after he had served the purpose of God in his own generation, fell asleep. - Acts 13:36. God has a purpose for each one of us in our own generation to accomplish before we die and that's what I want to do! How about you? That sense of mission is what came to Jesus in those days and we see it continuing in the last scenario:

V. Jesus' Youth And Young Adulthood In Nazareth (51-52) Now notice in verse 51 that:

1. He acknowledged the authority of His parents He chose to be submissive to them, to listen to them and to obey them. And he didn't do it like the little boy who was so angry that when his mother told him to sit down, he said, "I'm sitting down but I'm standing up on the inside!" He didn't obey them merely out of a sense of duty or with a resentful attitude. He chose to listen to them and do what they asked because He knew they loved Him and always wanted what was best for Him! I heard Pete Briscoe share the story of how when he was a boy, one day his father came outside and said, "Boys, I don't want you climbing over that wall at the end of the yard." Well, the first thing he and his friend did was to go and jump over the wall, only to find themselves in a pasture with a very large and angry bull. Just as quickly they jumped back only to find Dad standing there and he said, "Boys, when I tell you not to do something, I'm not trying to spoil your fun. It's because I don't want you to get hurt!" He never forgot that lesson. Children, obey your parents, the Scripture says, and that's why! They don't want you to get hurt so be like Jesus and listen to them! But verse 52 tells us another thing, that now Jesus:

2. He took responsibility for His own growth That word increased is different from the word grew in verse 40. It means to lengthen a piece of metal in a forge by hammering it out so it increases, or to cut a way forward through the brush, to advance. As a child Jesus grew naturally but now, He took responsibility for Himself and took His own steps to increase that growth. Somewhere along the way, His earthly father Joseph died and He, as the oldest son, became the man of the family, having to care for them until His siblings got older. The text says that as these years went by:

a. He furthered Himself mentally in wisdom He deliberately learned all He could, especially the Scriptures and acquired a knowledge of them that was beyond the most learned Rabbi of His day.

b. He furthered Himself physically in stature Of course some of this was natural growth but He took care of His body to increase its strength and health. And:

c. He furthered Himself spiritually in relationship with His Father Again that word favor is grace. It doesn't mean that God liked Him more and more. It means that He deliberately pursued the grace of the Father to know Him better and experience more and more of Him all the time. And finally:

d. He furthered Himself relationally with other people in the same way. He worked at deepening His human relationships, loving His neighbors more and more.

Jesus worked hard and furthered Himself in every way He could until at the age of 30, the family could survive without Him and His Heavenly Father told Him it was time to begin His years of public ministry to the nation. But what a pattern He set for us even in His young life. What if we would make it our goal to further ourselves, to learn all we can, to care for our bodies, to soak in the Word and bathe ourselves in prayer time to grow deeper with our Father and to love others more and more?! Sounds like a recipe for a vibrant Christian life, for accomplishing the purpose God has for our lives! Leonard Ravenhill tells a story about a group of tourists who were visiting a picturesque country village. At one point they walked by an old man who was sitting beside a fence. In a rather patronizing way, one tourist asked, "Were any great men born in this village?" And the old man replied, "Nope, only babies." What a profound answer! [from The Last Days Newsletter, posted on sermonillustrations.org by William C. Shereos.] Whether we become a truly great man or woman, and by that, I mean one who accomplishes the purpose for which God has created us, is largely a choice we make. We have a great example in our Savior Jesus who grew wonderfully under the care of His parents, yet very early decided not to rock idly on a porch watching the world go by, but to further Himself in every way that God intended. Will you do the same?

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

The Baptism Of Jesus - Ch. 3

As we enter chapter 3 in our study, Luke begins now to tell us about the ministry of Jesus and he starts by telling us about:

I. The Ministry Of John The Baptist Right away you can see Luke's attention to historical detail in verses (1-2). Of course, these facts are given to establish the historical time frame, probably AD 29, but what I want you to grasp is:

1. the corrupt society in which John began his ministry It was a really evil era in Jewish history. First of all:

a. the Imperial government was corrupt Tiberius, the Roman Emperor, was thoroughly immoral and hated Jews. He made life hard in Judea. And in the end, he was smothered by the men of his own city to rid themselves of him! Then in Judea:

b. the local government was corrupt Pontius Pilate ruled Judea. Among the things to his credit are violence, robbery, persecution, insults, and judicial murders without trial and with cruelty. His chief purpose was to extort money from the Jewish people to serve the purposes of Rome. And even:

c. the religious establishment was corrupt Annas had been High Priest and Rome deposed him, going through four others before they found one named Caiaphas who would cooperate with Roman schemes.

So, these were dark times. The Jews led miserable lives without hope and without spiritual help. People became self-serving and sinful, acting like the society around them. Paul wrote to Timothy, ...in the last days there will come times of difficulty. For people will be lovers of self, lovers of money, proud, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, heartless, [and so on] ...lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God. That pretty well describes the time into which Jesus came and it certainly is an apt picture of many eras in later history and of our own time as well. In The Christian Post, author Jerry Newcombe writes: Why is America seemingly sinking into the abyss? We have forgotten God. As a nation, just like as individuals, we reap what we sow. Alexandr Solzhenitsyn, the great Russian writer and critic of the atheist USSR (who spent years imprisoned in one of Stalin's gulags), once said: "...[W]hile I was still a child, I recall hearing a number of older people offer the following explanation for the great disasters that had befallen Russia: Men have forgotten God; that's why all this has happened." The Nobel-prize winning writer went on to say that he had read hundreds of books on the godless Soviet state and talked with many people about the murderous disaster it was, and he said no one provided a better explanation than those simple peasants: We have forgotten God. Not to the same degree, but something similar could be said about America. We have forgotten God, and are reaping the consequences. <https://www.christianpost.com/voice/as-a-nation-we-have-forgotten-god.html> The Jewish people had forgotten God and it was into this decadent society that God sent a prophet by the name of John, whom we know as John the Baptist. The purpose for which God sent him is in verses (4-6):

2. the purpose of John's ministry was to level the path for Jesus' coming Whenever a King would travel through the wilderness or the desert where there were no proper roads, he would send an advance party of servants before him to prepare his path. They would fill in the low places and level off the high places, straighten the crooked places and smooth out the rough places. That was John's mission, to prepare the very hearts of the people of Israel who had forgotten God and make them ready to receive the Lord, the King, who was about to come to them. And he did this by crying out in the desert, by preaching in the wilderness along the Jordan River in fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy. And back in verse 3 we have:

3. the message that John preached (3) First:

a. he called people to repent The Greek word is metanoia which means to change the mind. We commonly think it means to change our behavior, but real change begins in the mind and the heart, not just in outward actions. He called on people to change their minds about themselves and their own behavior and to seek forgiveness from God. His message was not, "God loves you and has a wonderful plan for your life!" It was, "You have sinned against God and you are paying the price for it! And unless you change your mind about yourself and the way you're living and turn to God for forgiveness, you will perish!" I guess positive thinking hadn't been invented yet! Seriously, Matthew and Mark tell us that when Jesus Himself began to preach in Galilee that His message was the same, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. In his first sermon on the day of Pentecost, Peter said, "You crucified Jesus, the Messiah that God sent to you, but God raised Him up!" and his punchline was, "REPENT!" At Athens Paul declared, The times of ignorance God overlooked, but now he commands all people everywhere to repent - Acts 17:26. The call for repentance has been the punchline of the Gospel from the very beginning, yet so often today we leave it out. We say, "Do you want to go to heaven? Do you want to have meaning and purpose in your life?" We emphasize what Jesus can do for you, but we leave out, "You have sinned and offended a Holy God; your only hope is to repent, to change your mind and ask for forgiveness!" In his book I Surrender, Patrick Morley writes that the church's integrity problem is in the misconception "that we can add Christ to our lives, but not subtract sin. It is a change in belief without a change in behavior." He goes on to say, "It is revival without reformation, without repentance." [Quoted by C. Swindoll, John The Baptizer, Bible Study Guide, p. 16]. John called people to repent and:

b. he called them to be baptized as an outward sign of repentance Now, this was not the same as Christian baptism, which is a declaration of faith in Jesus. This was modeled after the washing which Gentiles who converted to Judaism were required to perform. They were immersed in water in a ritual washing to indicate that all their uncleanness was washed away. So, John called people to make a public statement that they had changed their minds and were sorry for their sins by being immersed in the Jordan River. But it was not just a religious action:

c. he warned strongly that people must display fruits of repentance (7-8a) You bunch of snakes, now there's a great way to address an audience! A people-pleaser John was not! But his point was, if you truly change your mind about your life, it will change your life. Your new attitude will bear the fruit of new behavior. And he tailored that message differently for each of the kinds of folks that came to him. For instance:

(1) he said the religious will give up boasting (8-9) Matthew tells us there were a lot of Pharisees and Sadducees in the crowd and John said to them, "Don't think just because you're a Jew, because Abraham is your ancestor, that you are automatically right with God!" Don't think you're right with God because you come from a Christian home, because you go to church, because you say prayers and give money! When you are truly repentant, you realize that God is not impressed with your pedigree or your behavior and realize that all you have to offer Him is a broken and contrite heart! You give up relying on your own religiosity. And then John:

(2) he said the fortunate will give up being selfish (10-11) He told the crowd in general that if you're really repentant, you'll share what you have with others who have less. If you're fortunate enough to have two coats, you'll give one to someone who has none. If you've got more food than your family needs, you'll share it with those who are hungry. When you are truly repentant, you begin to care for others and their needs and to sacrifice in order to meet them. Then John:

(3) he said the greedy will give up stealing (12-13) Tax collectors worked for the Romans collecting money from their own people, but typically they collected more than they were supposed to and lined their own pockets with it. They were known as greedy people, but when you are truly repentant, you become honest! You don't steal anymore; you don't cheat anymore; you don't take advantage of others anymore and you seek to earn an honest living. And finally, John:

(4) he said the powerful will stop abusing (14) Roman soldiers were feared by everyone. They held the power of life and death in their hands, but could not be touched by the people. It was easy for them to demand money by threatening people outright or by making false accusations against them. But when you are truly repentant, you quit hurting others to get what you want; you stop seeing them as objects to be used but rather as persons to be cared about.

These are the fruits of repentance. A change of mind, turning from sin and turning toward God, produces genuine, recognizable change in a person's life. But then John did one more thing:

b. he called people to have faith in the soon-coming Messiah (15-18) Matthew's record makes it clear that this was all part of the same message, the Good News which John preached. "The long-awaited Messiah will soon be here; in fact, He is already among us. Prepare your hearts now! Believe in Him! Trust in Him! Follow Him! Give your life to Him! Why? Because He's like the guy who winnows the grain on the threshing floor at harvest time:"

(1) He will gather truly repentant people, like the good wheat, into His barn; that is, He'll fill them with His Spirit now and will take them to heaven to be with Him and belong to Him forever! BUT:

(2) He will burn those who are not repentant, like the wheat chaff, in unquenchable fire in a place called hell forever! We don't like to talk about that much anymore either! But Jesus Himself said, "When I, the Son of Man come in My glory, all the people will be gathered before me and I will say to those on my left, 'Depart from me, you cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels.'" - Mt. 25:41. That, dear friends, is the message! Repent of your sins and give your whole allegiance to King Jesus who died for you and He will keep you with Him forever, but refuse Him and you will suffer for eternity! That message has not changed, even though the second half of it has largely been dismissed as we proclaim it today.

So, for a period of about six months, hundreds of people were coming out of the cities to hear John. Many of them were falling under conviction and their lives were changing AND they were waiting for the Messiah John spoke of to appear. The hearts of the people of Israel were being prepared; the way was being smoothed out for Jesus to begin His own ministry. And then one day He came with the people and was baptized by John:

II. The Baptism Of Jesus (21-22) Now why did Jesus come to be baptized? Well, first of all:

1. it was a sign of His identification with us He needed no repentance; He had no sin to be convicted of, but still He stood with the people. He identified Himself as truly one of us, the Son of Man, and in doing this, He gave us an example of how we should come to God. But at the same time:

2. it was a confirmation of His identity as the Son of God When He had come out of the water and was praying, suddenly:

a. the voice of the Father declared it from the heavens You are My beloved Son; with You I am well pleased! That left John, and everyone else who heard it, with little doubt that here in front of them in a body was God's very Son, the long-awaited Messiah, the One they should believe in and follow and give themselves to! And at the same time:

b. the descent of the Spirit displayed it bodily He appeared in the form of a dove coming down from the heavens and lighting upon Jesus and merging into His very body. Not that Jesus did not have the Holy Spirit before this moment, but this was a visual way for God to show that His very Spirit was residing upon and in Jesus so that He truly is the Son of God.

And you know what? In this whole scene there is a beautiful picture of what happens to us! When we come to God, part of the line of sincerely repentant sinners and give ourselves to Jesus, trusting in Him to save us, God does the very same thing for us! He declares that we are His own children, His sons and daughters with whom He is well pleased, and He places His very Spirit inside our bodies as the seal and the guarantee that we truly are! Hallelujah! That is the Good News, but reject it and you suffer forever. Sadly, some refuse to hear it; Herod did and in verses 18-19 he even locked John up in prison for pointing out his particular sin. But hundreds, probably thousands, heard and obeyed John's message and so the way was prepared for Jesus to begin His own 3 ½ years of ministry. God's answer for a decadent society was not better government, a change of rulers or improving social conditions. It was a bold man preaching repentance and faith which touched and transformed people, one at a time. Fyodor Dostoyevsky, the famous 19th century Russian novelist, was sentenced to death by firing squad as a young man for his radical political views. As the rifles were being aimed, the order to halt came and the sentence was commuted to 10 years in a Siberian labor camp. Upon his arrival a woman slipped a New Testament into his hand when the guard wasn't looking. There in a bare board building with three inches of ice on the windows and an inch of filth on the floor, Dostoyevsky discovered the parable of the prodigal son. He saw in that camp the pigsty and himself the son. The truth of God's love and willingness to pardon gripped his soul and he repented of sin and turned in faith to Jesus. Years later, when he was on his deathbed, his daughter shares: "He made us come into the room and taking our little hands in his, he begged my mother to read the parable of the prodigal son. He listened with his eyes closed, absorbed in his thoughts. 'My children', he said in his feeble voice, 'never forget what you have just heard. Have absolute faith in God and never despair of His pardon. I love you dearly, but my love is nothing compared with the love of God. Even if you should be so unhappy as to commit some dreadful crime, never despair of God. You are His children; humble yourselves before Him as before your father; implore His pardon, and He will rejoice over your repentance, as the father rejoiced over that of the prodigal son.'"

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

The Temptation And Rejection Of Jesus - Ch. 4

In Luke 4 Jesus now begins His 3 ½ years of ministry and there are two events in this chapter I'd like us to focus on. As you know, immediately after His baptism by John in chapter 3:

I. Jesus Was Tempted By The Devil In The Wilderness in verses (1-13) Read (1-2a). Now Luke is careful to make it abundantly clear that:

1. this temptation was orchestrated by the Spirit of God God planned for this to happen and for Jesus to go through this. And the first question we may be tempted to ask is, "Why?" Well, the explanation is in Heb. 4:15-16, if you'll turn there with me. Notice three things; first:

a. He was tempted exactly like we are Of course, He wasn't tempted to look at pornography on the internet; He didn't face every specific tempting circumstance that we face. Rather He was tempted in every WAY that we are tempted, in every area in which we face temptation. And He experienced it exactly as we do; He felt the same exact human feelings that we feel. In other words, His temptation was real; it was genuine. The desires that Satan tried to stir in Him were actually there. He truly felt hunger and desired food. If what Satan tried to tempt Him with had no appeal to Him, it wouldn't be temptation, would it? In the scene we're about to look at, Jesus may APPEAR nonchalant as we read, but He is engaged in an intense struggle, and because of that:

b. He understands the struggle temptation is for us and is ready to help He knows how hard it is! He has been here; He has struggled through it, just like we do. So, He sympathizes with us in our personal struggles; He literally suffers through it with us, alongside us. And He stands ready, not to condemn us for struggling, but to supply us with His mighty power and strength to help us whenever we need it! And notice those little words, yet without sin. He went through a stronger, deeper struggle with temptation than we will ever know and won! So, in that process:

c. He demonstrates for us the way of victory over temptation He shows us how it's done, how to make it through! We can look at the temptation of Jesus and see in it our own selves in our own struggles and learn how to emerge victorious! Now, back in Luke, Satan first tempted Him to turn:

2. stones into bread (2b-4) He was not merely hungry; He was literally emaciated and starving to death after 40 days with no food. His drive to eat must have been intense! And He who created the world could so easily have miraculously created bread to satisfy it, except for one thing. The Father had led Him into this desert and was sustaining Him there all this time. Matthew specifically says Jesus fasted 40 days and that word means to choose not to eat as a means of devoting oneself to God. To break the fast at Satan's suggestion and simply to satisfy His own hunger was to disregard the Father in order to meet His physical need. His first temptation was to wrongly satisfy the physical desire of His own body; we might call it lust and we are tempted to do the same whether it is our drive for food or drink or for sex or simply to escape from pain or to experience pleasure. Satan appeals to us to satisfy these bodily drives in wrong ways. In the garden, Eve was hungry, but chose to satisfy her drive in a way that was disobedient to God, instead of eating from one of the many other trees God had provided! David did likewise with Bathsheba, but Jesus quoted from Deut. 8:1-3 and declared the truth: our very life depends completely on God and not simply on the food we eat! If He says we live, we live, food or not! Therefore, we must never act independently of God! We must never act to satisfy our desires as though our life depends on us and what we do and disregard what He has commanded! Secondly, Satan tempted Jesus by offering Him all the:

3. kingdoms of the world (5-8) They stand now upon a high mountain and in a moment of time, Luke says, Satan brings a vision before Jesus' eyes. I picture it much like the video clips we're used to watching on TV where an unending collage of images scrolls on and off the screen, hundreds of them, each appearing only long enough to appeal to our senses. All the good things of the world, all the glory of the nations of the earth, all their splendor, all their riches, all their beauty, the whole world on the silver platter of a newsreel vision, that's what Satan offered Jesus. He said, "It's mine; I rule it all. Adam gave it to me way back in the garden and I'll give it to You if you worship me!" The temptation is to wrongly possess what He saw, to see something you want and act to get it in a wrong way. Absalom wanted to be king so badly that he betrayed and tried to kill his own father to take his throne. We commonly call it greed. But Jesus quoted from Deut. 6:12-15 and declared the truth: we must worship only God! He is the only God, the true God; to place anything above Him, to value anything in this world more than Him, is to forsake Him and worship a false idol. Thirdly, Satan tempted Jesus to:

4. leap from the Temple (9-12) "You're the Son of God; PROVE IT! Jump! The angels will catch you anyway; the Scriptures say so! Claim the worship and loyalty of your people that is rightfully yours!" This was an appeal to wrongly prove His identity. Israel would fall at His angel-protected feet and crown Him King on the spot, but that would be to refuse what the Father had planned for Him. So often Satan uses our pride to entice us to disobey; he appeals to our drive to prove how powerful or strong or wise or great we are by some wrong act. But Jesus quoted Deut. 6:16 and declared the truth: we must never test God! We must never demand that He prove Himself to us, as though we are somehow more important than He.

Listen, when you are tempted to sin, quote the Scripture like Jesus; declare the truth and tell Satan to get lost! And in case you still don't get why God led Jesus to go through this: Dr. I. M. Haldeman tells of a scene in New York State among the mountains. A bridge had been constructed across a great chasm hundreds of feet deep. One day he heard the first train on the railroad approaching, and looking out, saw two huge locomotives drawn up on the bridge. There was a sharp challenging whistle, then the brakes crashed down, and the two great machines came to a standstill. There they stood and waited for fully half a day, right in the center of the bridge, with their great tons of iron quivering and beating and the bridge beneath like a great spider's web supporting them. What did it mean? They were there to demonstrate the strength of the bridge, to show there was no weakness in it, to prove that it was able to bear up under the greatest test put on it, and so was worthy of the fullest trust on the part of man. He writes, "All the weight of temptation was crowded on our Lord Jesus Christ in that hour when the Devil met him on the mount. He was 'tempted in all points as we are,' from animal appetites and desires, to the highest reaches of ambition for self-gratification and power. He was tempted and tried and tested at every point to prove and demonstrate to angels and to men that he could not say, "Yes" to the temptation... That we might see Him as the majestic, unbreakable bridge across the deep chasm of sin and death; and so seeing, fling ourselves without reserve, and in unhesitating confidence upon Him as the One and all supreme object of our unfaltering faith and profound adoration." [From a pamphlet by Haldeman, Could Our Lord Have Sinned?] Verse (13). Now what you don't see here is that between verses 13 and 14 there is an:

Interlude that lasted about a year; we call it Jesus' Year of Obscurity. Here is an overview of Jesus' ministry. This first year includes His early Judean ministry which is recorded by John in chapters 1-4, who tells of the meeting of His first disciples, His first miracle at the wedding in Cana, His first cleansing of the Temple, His meeting with Nicodemus, a time of ministering by the Jordan in parallel with John the Baptist, the woman at the well, and many other events which Luke leaves out, but at the end of that year:

II. Jesus Began His Great Ministry In Galilee which lasted about 15 months (14-15) Notice that:

1. His method was itinerant teaching in the village synagogues He would go to a village and on the Sabbath when the villagers were gathered at the synagogue, He would exercise the privilege of a visiting Rabbi and be invited to teach the people. This was his entry point for sharing, which He would continue privately through the week and move on to another village. This itinerant moving from village to village was His determined pattern, as you can see in verses (43-44). And as verse 15 indicates:

2. He was received joyously everywhere, as the New Living puts it, He was praised by everyone. In many places large crowds gathered; He healed many people and cast out demons and the Galilean public was thrilled with Him, with one major exception that Luke records. Early in this period:

III. Jesus Was Rejected In His Home Town Of Nazareth (16) This was the town where Jesus lived for 30 years, where He had served the people as a carpenter. Everybody knew him. So, following His pattern, it was natural for Him to go to the synagogue with the people and He was asked to read the Scripture and share, but look at:

1. the declaration Jesus made about Himself (17-21) He unrolled the Isaiah scroll and read Is. 61:1 and a little phrase from 58:6 and said, "This prophecy is fulfilled IN ME!" and then He went on to explain it. Everybody knew that passage and knew that it was written about the coming Messiah, but Jesus shocked them all by claiming it for Himself. Through it He made four claims. First:

a. I am the Messiah and this is God's Year of Jubilee That word anointed is the verb form of Messiah, the Anointed One. The year of the Lord's favor is the Year of Jubilee. You remember that every 50th year in Israel was to be the Year of Jubilee, the year when all debts were cancelled, when all who were servants were freed, when all who had sold their land returned to their ancestral homes, the year of joy and rejoicing in God's favor and blessing.

Jesus was claiming, "Because I am here, THIS is the year of God's Jubilee, the joyous season of mercy and freedom and release!" And so, secondly:

b. I proclaim good news for the poor, the ones who are suffering the most! As He taught in 6:20, Blessed are you who are poor, for yours is the Kingdom of God! "You may be suffering now, you may be hungry now, you may be weeping now, but through faith in Me you belong to the Kingdom of a Heavenly Father who loves you and after this short time of suffering, you will be satisfied forever in every way and filled with joy in His Presence! You may be poor, but you are rich!" As James put it, Listen, my beloved brothers, has not God chosen those who are poor in the world to be rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom, which he has promised to those who love him? - 2:5. And all over the world it is the poor who are responding to the Gospel, by the thousands, by the hundreds of thousands in our day! Come with us to India and see 1000 Yenadi believers, who are among the poorest of the poor in this world, joyously praising Jesus for hours on end, because even though their life in this world is difficult, He gave them an eternal future filled with joy that no one can take from them! If you are poor and struggling today, lift up your head, you have Jesus; He can take care of you here and you'll be with Him forever! Next Jesus said:

c. I proclaim recovery of sight for the blind Indeed, He performed this repeatedly in the physical sense. 7:21 says, In that hour he healed many people of diseases and plagues and evil spirits, and on many who were blind he bestowed sight. Blind eyes don't see again. The blind man of John 9 said, Never since the world began has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a man born blind - 9:32. Nobody can make blind eyes see, but Jesus can bestow the gift of sight; He can heal diseases and restore speech and walking and all the rest, and He often did those things and still does them today to display His glory. But beyond that, I think He was referring to spiritual blindness as well. He told that blind man, ...For judgment I came into this world, that those who do not see may see, and those who see may become blind. -9:39. He called the Pharisees blind repeatedly. Jesus came to open spiritual eyes because ...the god of this world has blinded the minds of unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ... - 2 Cor. 4:4. He can unblind them! He can make the scales fall from the eyes of even a terrorist like Saul and transform him into a Paul who gave us most of our New Testament! Listen, there is hope for the blindest among us, the most hopeless case we know! Jesus can give them sight! Keep praying! Then finally Jesus said:

d. I proclaim freedom for the oppressed, the captives, those crushed under their burdens in life. "Those who mourn I am here to comfort. Those who are persecuted and hated and falsely accused, I am here to help and to guarantee that one day, you will be free from all this and great will be your reward in heaven!" All around the world, our brothers and sisters suffer because of their faith and Jesus sustains them. Pastor Andrew Brunson was released from a Turkish prison after two years of unjust incarceration. He testified how Jesus sustained him through reading 2 Timothy, once he was allowed a Bible. In South Africa an addict named Pietie whose wife was praying for him testifies, One Monday morning, I heard a voice behind me saying: "Pietie, you must convert today." I could not understand what was going on and ignored the voice, I thought I was crazy because I heard the voice and saw no one. Later I heard clearly: "Pietie, you must convert today." I got up and went to the pastor's house and asked him to pray for me. At that moment I was free from my sins, drugs, alcohol, cigarettes, gangs, theft, everything. It was 12 years ago and I am still free. We now have a house...I will soon be a pastor....

[\[www.cad.org.za/testimonies/testimony-pietie/\]](http://www.cad.org.za/testimonies/testimony-pietie/) Listen, if you are crushed and oppressed today, if you are in any sort of prison or bondage, Jesus can deliver you!

Oh, these were big claims, HUGE claims, that Jesus made and they still stand today, but look at:

2. the reaction of the people (22)

a. there was an initial amazement at His words As Mark recorded on His second visit to Nazareth, they said things like, "Where did this man get these things? What is the wisdom given to him? How are such mighty works done by his hands?" - 6:2. It amazed them, but at the same time as they listened:

b. there was a growing resentment born of familiarity As Mark adds, Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary and brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon? And are not his sisters here with us?" And they took offense at him. - 6:3. "He's one of us, a man we've known all his life. He's no better than we are! Who does He think He is to claim all these things about himself?!" But instead of trying to calm their objections:

c. Jesus predicted their rejection (23-27) He refused to do a miracle to prove Himself to them and instead, quoted them a proverb, No prophet is acceptable in his hometown! Don't be surprised if your own family and neighbors don't want to hear about your faith! Familiarity is often a barrier to people's listening to you and those closest to you may be the very ones to persecute you when you turn to Jesus! But He went on to tell them how both the prophets Elijah and Elisha were not listened to by Israel and God sent them to people of other nations! What He's saying is that, "the way you're treating me is a small picture of the fact that I'm ultimately going to be rejected by the whole nation of Israel, but God will send my followers to the Gentiles, the other nations, and, as Paul put it later, ...this salva- tion of God has been sent to the Gentiles [and] they will listen!" - Acts 28:28. Well, that really set off their hostility (28-30). They were so enraged that:

d. they physically attacked Jesus, dragged him out of the synagogue and up the hill to the edge of a cliff to throw Him down and stone Him to death, but, miraculously, He parted the crowd. At first, He let them drag Him out, but then He walked right through their midst, like the parting of the Red Sea, by His miraculous power and left Nazareth, going on to the next village.

Listen, Jesus can sustain you through temptation! Jesus can sustain you in any situation you find yourself in! He's the Messiah and we're living in His age of Jubilee where there is good news and healing and freedom available to all! Power and Light Partners shared the amazing story of a young woman who was seven months pregnant with twins, a refugee who fled from Syria and made it at last to Europe a short time ago. With a group of others, she travelled on foot for many days and crossed the sea in a small boat. She was arrested at least three times and detained without food for many days. There were days she thought she would die or her unborn babies would die. She walked hundreds of kilometers, many days without water. She slept in prison cells, in bus stops and on the side of the road. And when asked what her thoughts were during those awful days, she said, "All I could think was, 'Jesus can help me! Jesus can help me!'" And He did. She is now safely reunited with her mother and sister; her babies are born and she is waiting for her husband to make the journey. I don't know what situation you may be facing today, but one thing I do know: Jesus can help you! Jesus can help you! And He will!

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

The Disciples Of Jesus - Ch. 5

From our earliest days in Sunday School, we remember the story of Jesus calling His first disciples and singing that cute little song, "I will make you fishers of men, if you follow Me..." In reality, the story recorded in Luke 5 is a deep and powerful one and one that impacts our own lives, because we would all describe ourselves as disciples, followers of Jesus, yet we seldom think about what that means.

I. The Call Of Peter, Andrew, James and John that is recorded here in verses (1-11) is also recorded in Mt. 4:18-22 and Mk. 1:16-20, but their record, which is the one more familiar to us, leaves out a number of very important things that Luke and John tell us. First of all, these four men:

1. they had much prior experience with Jesus In fact, John tells us that:

a. they had met and believed in Him a year earlier in Judea - John 1:39-42 when John the Baptist identified Jesus as the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. Andrew and John were both there and spent the day with Jesus. Andrew went and found his brother Peter and said, We have found the Messiah! and he brought him to Jesus. Then John tells us that:

b. they had already been with Him on several occasions They were with him at the wedding in Cana of Galilee where He turned the water into wine and 2:11 says, ...His disciples believed in Him. They were with Him at Passover time when He cleansed the Temple in Jerusalem the first time. They spent time with Him by the Jordan and helped Him baptize new followers and they were with Him as He passed through Samaria on the way back to Galilee and met the woman at the well.

So, it appears that these men had already believed in Jesus as the Messiah, had already spent considerable time with Jesus and had even participated with Jesus in ministry. However, during this year, they had come and gone; they had not followed Jesus 24/7; they had spent time periods of time with Him followed by periods of time at home with their families and pursuing their occupation as fishermen. But now He was about to call these four men to something deeper and Luke is the one who shows us how:

2. Jesus prepared them for the call which He was about to issue to them As He came upon them this day, it was one of those periods when they had been away from Him. They were by the shore of the Sea of Galilee near their homes in Capernaum, having spent all night fishing, now cleaning and mending nets and putting away their gear (1-3). Jesus was being followed by a great crowd right down to the shoreline and He needed a way to create a little space so He could teach them, so He got into Simon's boat, had him push out a few feet and taught the crowd for a long time. But that act also had another purpose. Through it:

a. He demonstrated to them His great purpose to reach multitudes They had been busy trying to catch a few fish to sustain themselves; He was in the business of reaching people by the hundreds and the thousands with the message of eternal life! This was a great object lesson for Peter, Andrew, James and John; He was about to call them to become involved in what He was doing and THIS was it, reaching people! And then He drove the lesson even deeper:

b. He illustrated for them His great power through catching fish (4-7) These guys were fishermen; they knew how to catch fish and they had caught nothing. There were no fish in this area of the lake at the moment, yet when they simply obeyed Jesus and let down their nets, the nets were so full that they began to tear when they tried to lift them into the boat and, even with help from James and John in the second boat, both boats began to tip and take on water as they hauled the catch aboard. It was a Divine miracle, something that only God Himself could cause to happen and that fact was not lost on them:

(1) Peter displayed great conviction (8) He felt himself in the very presence of God and it brought deep conviction of his own sinfulness. He felt completely unworthy to be in Jesus' presence and humbly asked Him to depart. His feeling was much like that of Isaiah when he saw the Lord in the Temple and cried out, ...Woe is me! For I am lost; for I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for my eyes have seen the King, the LORD of hosts! - 6:5. And as for the rest of the guys:

(2) all displayed complete amazement plus fear (9-10a) They were all amazed, shocked; their jaws hung open when they saw the great catch because they knew it was a miracle. It was God's doing. And, like Peter, fear rose up in all of them. That's why Jesus had to begin by saying, Do not be afraid!

Listen, the first thing any true disciple needs is a sense of the pure holiness and the tremendous power of Jesus and a deep conviction of our own unworthiness! You can't follow Him thinking that you're pretty good, that you're doing Him some kind of favor and He's lucky to have you! That's what creates a Pharisee! The story is told that a shepherd who had been given a position of great honor by one of Scotland's kings would often go alone to a certain room in the palace. The king became suspicious and thought he was plotting a conspiracy. So he asked to look inside this secret room. To his surprise, all that was there was a chair, a shepherd's crook, and an old plaid scarf. "What does this mean?" asked the king. The nobleman answered, "I was a humble shepherd when your Majesty promoted me. I come to this room to look at the crook and the plaid. They remind me of what I used to be--and that I am nothing but what the grace of the king has made me." Hallelujah, I stand in the presence of the King of the Universe and I am employed in the service of the King, yet I am NOTHING but what the grace of the King has made me to be! That's what makes a true disciple of Jesus! But having prepared these four men:

3. Jesus now called them to follow Him as full disciples and Luke chooses to leave out the two words that form the familiar invitation which Matthew recorded for us in Mt. 4:19, Follow Me! Those words seem so simple to us, yet to the Jewish ears of these men they had a far deeper meaning:

a. they understood this as a call to become disciples of Rabbi Jesus Every teacher, every Rabbi, was expected to and did gather around himself a group of pupils, adherents or disciples, men that believed and adhered to his teaching, who followed him about everywhere he went and did their best to imitate and become like him. Jesus was issuing them an invitation to enter His own personal school, to become those He was grooming to replicate His own character and His ministry. First of all, they realized that:

(1) it meant continually following Him about The followers of a Rabbi followed him about absolutely everywhere he went. They walked together, ate together, slept together and worked together. A passage in the Jewish Talmud relates ...how Rabbi Akiva followed his teacher Rabbi Yehoshua into the bathroom (B. Brachot 62a; Derech Eretz 7). After the experience, Rabbi Akiva declared that from observing his master he had learned three lessons about bathroom conduct. So, later Akiva's disciple followed him into the bathroom to absorb the same lessons! I doubt Jesus took it quite that far, but He was now calling these men to leave everything in their lives and follow Him about, to be with Him 24 hours a day, going wherever He went and doing whatever He did. Secondly, they realized that:

(2) it meant learning and adhering to all His teaching The Rabbis often had their own distinctive interpretations of the Law and the Talmud. As an example, there were two schools of Jewish thought on divorce. Rabbi Hillel taught that a man could divorce his wife for any and every reason, but Rabbi Shammai taught that divorce was only lawful in the case of adultery, thus the question the Pharisees put to Jesus about divorce. The followers of a Rabbi were expected to learn everything that their master taught on every subject, to adhere to it themselves and to be the ones to pass on his teaching when he was gone. Jesus was calling these men to absorb all of His teachings, to live by them and to be the ones to later pass them on to others (which is exactly what they did, by the way). And finally, they realized that:

(3) it essentially meant becoming completely like Him Jesus said, It is enough for the disciple to be like his teacher... - Mt. 10:25. That is his goal, to walk like him, talk like him, speak his words, and do his actions. In essence, the Rabbi was literally replicating himself in his followers. Jesus was calling Peter, Andrew, James and John to become what He was, to be molded into His very image. And it is in that spirit that He told them (10b):

b. they would now successfully fish for men instead of fish, just as He had been doing earlier. They would give their lives to fulfilling His purpose, reaching multitudes with the Good News of His Kingdom. And how did they respond?

4. they left everything and followed Him (11) They left the fish, the boats, the nets, even their father whom, Mark says, was also there with some hired servants. They dropped it all on the spot and set off with Him. Now I don't think that means they didn't see their families for three years; they probably did see them frequently as they passed through Capernaum, but now they were full time, genuine disciples of Jesus. But before we move on, let's not forget the fact that this call is not only for them:

5. we are called to BE disciples just like they were. We are called to go together with Him everywhere He takes us every day, to learn and obey everything He has commanded us in His Word, to accomplish His purpose in the world and to become like Him in our character and behavior. In short, our lives are to be consumed with Him in the same way theirs were. Look with me at Jn. 15:5. If we are continually connected to Christ like a branch is to a vine, if our life is consumed with Him, we will bear much fruit; that is, our lives will be filled with the character and the work of Christ, our parent vine. Now verse 8. That fruit is what proves, what shows, that we truly are His disciples. A profession of faith with the mouth without any fruit in the life is empty and false. Disciples are people who actually follow Jesus, who place Him and His purpose above everything else in their lives and make it part of everything they do every day of their lives. That's what we're called to be. Moreover:

6. we are called to MAKE disciples You remember Mt. 28:19, Go and make disciples of all nations... We're not merely to convince people to believe that Jesus is the Savior; we're to make disciples whose lives are consumed with Him and who follow Him every day of their lives by baptizing them and training them to obey everything He commanded us to do!

Chuck Swindoll writes: "For a number of years after I became a Christian, I messed around with spiritual things. Just messed around. I ran around with church folks, I learned the God-talk, I sang the hymns, I even memorized the verses. I prayed pretty good prayers, I carried my Bible to church Sunday after Sunday, I sang in the choir, and I added to my schedule a Bible class every now and then. But my life was MY life. I did not let all that religious stuff interfere with things like my career, my home, my strong will, my pursuit of things, my determination to go my own way, or my own personal plans. I wasn't a wife beater, or a criminal, or an alcoholic, or some awful notorious sinner. No, I was just a selfish man. I knew how to get what I wanted, and nothing was going to stand in my way...including God. I was a Christian, but certainly not a disciple. Then shortly after joining the Marines (another evidence of my determination to be tough and self-assured), I was transferred overseas. For once I was faced with a major decision I could not change. Alone and lonely, I was forced to entrust my wife to the Lord, since she couldn't go to the Orient with me, and to lean on Him for numerous things I had always been able to handle myself. While overseas I met a man who saw behind my tough mask and was determined to help me come to terms with the Christ I claimed as my Savior. He disciplined me. Month after month, we met together, talked together, played ball together, laughed together, wept and prayed together, studied the Scriptures and witnessed for Christ together. Like Jesus with His men, this man took the time to help me peel off my mask of religion and absorb the authentic message of Christ. I found myself slowly changing down deep inside. I got to the place where I hated the hypocrisy of my former religious lifestyle. I got into the Scriptures on my own, and they became my bread and meat. I even addressed the priorities, the goals, and the objectives of my life. I opened each door of my inner house to let Christ in, room after room. Not suddenly, but slowly. Quietly. 'Things' became less important to me. My stubborn will came under the scrutinizing eye of the Spirit of God. And I began to meet each day with my Lord, asking Him to deal with my ugly selfishness...and did He ever!" [Strengthening Your Grip by Charles Swindoll. Word, 1982. Pages 123-125.] Does the fruit of your life prove you to be a genuine disciple of Jesus? And is that what you're seeking to have happen in the lives of others? Well, let's go back to Luke and skip ahead to:

II. The Call Of Levi Matthew in verses (27-32). Luke calls him Levi here, but later in chapter 6 and also in Matthew and Mark's Gospels he is Matthew (Mt. 9:9-13, Mk. 2:13-17), and that's how we most often refer to him. Perhaps Matthew (which means "gift of God") was bestowed on him by Jesus afterward, as in Simon Peter's case. At any rate it was not uncommon for people to have two names. Verse (27):

1. Matthew was a tax collector, a publican, a man who collected taxes for the Roman oppressors. And he was not just an ordinary publican, a general tax-gatherer, but a customs house official, a mokhes, who levied high and unfair taxes on all goods passing through at his whim. This kind of publican was especially despised and regarded as a "sinner" by the Jews, hardly capable of repentance. Yet Matthew:

2. he received the same call and responded the same way as the others (28) With his booth so near the shore of the Sea of Galilee, he must have often heard Jesus before and when Jesus extended the invitation to join His band of disciples, Matthew left everything behind, the tax booth, his position, the money, all of it, and followed Him. But what is remarkable about him is that:

3. he immediately sought to introduce Jesus to his fellow "sinners" (29) Right away he brought all of his tax gatherer friends and others with whom he associated together to meet Jesus in his home! He wanted them to meet this Jesus who was willing to receive people like them, whom the entire public rejected! Well, true to form:

4. the religious leaders grumbled at Jesus' interaction with "sinners" (30) The Pharisees and scribes must have been following Jesus about, watching, looking for some scandalous thing they could blame Him for, and here it was. Eating with "sinners"; what righteous Jew would stoop to be made unclean in such a way? And even though they only complained to Jesus' disciples, He heard them (31-32):

5. He declared His passion to call "sinners" to repentance He is like a doctor with an intense drive to find and help sick people who need healing. Reaching sinners and calling them to repentance was the very purpose for which He came to earth and it was not merely His purpose; it was His passion, the driving force of His heart. Matthew includes some words that Luke left out, Go and learn what this means, 'I desire mercy, and not sacrifice.' For I came not to call the righteous, but sinners. - Mt. 9:13. He says to them, "Haven't you read Hosea? God says, 'What I want is love for people, compassion on people who need help, who are in trouble, not the keeping of religious rules and meticulous offering of sacrifices!' Jesus' passion is to rescue and redeem sinners and that includes ALL of us, the entire human race with no exceptions, not even publicans! But before we're too hard on the Pharisees, perhaps we'd better apply those words to ourselves:

6. we must be aware of our own prejudices We all have them. We all have people that we don't want to associate with, people that we despise or consider such wicked sinners that they don't deserve mercy. For the Jews it was Samaritans and Gentiles and publicans. For us it may be those of a different ethnic group or it may be the crowd of drug addicts and alcoholics on the streets of Kensington. Some think of Muslims that way because of 9/11. Every culture around the world has those that they despise, those they would never think to have mercy on and every person has those that they can't stand. And it is so easy for us, even as believers to retain those kinds of deep-seated prejudices, yet as disciples of Jesus, we must never let our prejudices prevent us from having mercy on anyone and wanting to see them come to Him! Indeed, we must have His passion to reach those who are most in need.

In her book Lincoln's Daughters of Mercy, Marjorie Greenbie tells about Mary Ann Bickerdyke, affectionately known as Mother Bickerdyke, who was Chief of Nursing under General Ulysses S. Grant during the Civil War. She was responsible for establishing some 300 field hospitals and bringing relief to thousands of wounded and dying Union soldiers. On one occasion when she was giving special attention to a man considered worthless by his comrades, she was asked, "Why do you waste your time on trash like that?" "Because," she replied, "when there's any creature around here so miserable that there's nobody to care for him, he still has two friends in this army. One is God, and the other is me." That, dear friends is the attitude of Jesus and it should be the attitude of every genuine disciple of His.

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

The Parables Of Jesus - 7:36-8:21

Human beings love stories. From the simplest, most remote oral society to the most sophisticated, high-tech society, and from the youngest children to the oldest among us, we all love to hear stories. It's part of our nature. And I think that's why Jesus so often taught using stories; we call them parables. The word parable simply means "a comparison". A parable is a realistic earthly story that could or does appear in real life (no dragons or frogs turning into princes), but it is told in order to illustrate spiritual truth. It helps the listener to understand the spiritual truth better by comparing it with something familiar. In the section of text we're focusing on this morning, there are two parables I'd like to examine with you. The first is a story we often call:

I. The Parable Of The Two Debtors - 7:36-50 Now when trying to understand any parable, it's important to notice:

1. the occasion of the parable, which often reveals the reason why Jesus told it. (36-39) In this scene we meet two very different people. The first is a man named Simon:

a. a self-righteous and critical Pharisee having Jesus to dinner Yes, Jesus ate with publicans and sinners, but He also ate with Pharisees if they asked Him! Jesus wanted to build relationships with anybody that was willing in order that they might be saved. Simon doesn't seem to have been a seeker or even to have been interested in the teaching of Jesus. It appears to me that his motive in having Jesus was more to scrutinize him and find some fault in Him. Then next we meet:

b. a sinful but grateful woman humbly anointing His feet Her name is never mentioned, but she was obviously known and regarded by Simon and others as a "sinful" woman. She heard that Jesus was dining in Simon's house and she came in the open door. Jesus was lying on his left side on a dining cushion, reclining at the low table, with His bare feet stretched outward away from it, and as she stood there she began to weep and she knelt down with her tears falling on Jesus' feet and began to dry them with her hair. Then she broke open this flask of perfume she had brought and poured it on His feet. Even though she didn't say a word, everyone could see that she was showing extreme and unusual gratitude to Jesus for something. But the Pharisee wasn't thinking that at all; he was thinking, "If Jesus is truly a prophet of God, he would know that this is a sinful woman and he would never let her touch him! She's defiling him and he's letting her!" He didn't say a word either, but Jesus read his mind and told him a parable (40-43). Now let's look at:

2. the story of the parable and its lessons This money lender had two men who owed him money. The first owed him 500 denarii, that is, 500 ordinary days wages in that day. So, to make a comparison, if a man earns $100 a day today, that is like $50,000. The second man owed him only 1/10 as much, 50 denarii, the equivalent of $5,000. Now in the story, the moneylender represents God Himself and, very pointedly, the first debtor represents the sinful woman and the second one, Simon himself. And one of the things Jesus was trying to convey to him was that:

a. all human beings owe a debt because of sin, though in varying degrees Several times Jesus compared sin to a debt that is owed, both in His parables and most notably in the Lord's prayer. In Matthew 6 Jesus told us to pray, Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors, but then two verses later He comments, for if you forgive others their trespasses, your Heavenly Father will forgive you. When somebody sins against us, it's like a debt is created. They owe us something! They failed to treat us in the way we deserve to be treated and even if they try to make amends later, they can't undo what they did. They can't make things as if they never happened. Their only way out is for us to release them, to forgive the debt by forgiving what they have done. However, when we sin, it is not merely against people; at the same time, we sin directly against God by doing evil instead of righteousness. So, we owe Him a debt we can never pay; we can't take back our evil behavior or undo it. He either has to punish us for it or forgive it. Now the good news in the parable is that:

b. none can pay it, but God is willing to forgive any debt, large or small This moneylender is not like any financier I ever heard of. Nobody forgives debts of $50,000 or even $5,000 outright! But God does! Some of us have done more evil things than others; some of us "owe" God more than others but even the best of us still owes Him a debt we cannot ever pay. All around us people think, "My good deeds are erasing and balancing out my bad ones!" That's simply not true. You can't erase and undo evil! But Jesus did! James MacDonald said, "Jesus paid a debt He did not owe, because we owed a debt we could not pay – that's the gospel." And in this simple story, Jesus is preaching the Gospel, "You owe God a debt you cannot pay, yet He is willing to forgive you for it, no matter how large or how small it is!" Now, when you know that you have owed such a great debt to someone and they have forgiven that debt, what is your natural reaction? You're filled with gratitude and with love for that person, right? And the point He makes to Simon is that:

c. the one with the deepest realization of debt and forgiveness loves Him most, and conversely (47b). Yet He can't simply mean that the amount that is forgiven determines the amount of love. In that case a person who was saved at a young age and grew up in a Christian home could never love God as much as a terrorist or mass murderer who turns to Jesus. But of course, they can! Our love depends upon the realization of the depth of our sin and our inability to pay and God's graciousness in forgiving us. It is the depth of that realization that determines the depth of our love for Him and that's what we find in:

3. the application of the parable (44-48) Simon didn't do even the most ordinary things for Jesus that he would normally have done for an invited guest. He gave Him no water to wash the street dust from His feet, no warm kiss of greeting, no anointing oil for his head and Jesus' point was pretty direct:

a. HE showed little love, revealing that his sins must be unforgiven He showed no consciousness of his sin debt (which was probably greater than hers in God's eyes), nor of any sense of gratitude at being forgiven. So, he must not have experienced the grace of forgiveness, but this woman, she wet his feet with her tears and dried them with her hair; she kissed them continually and anointed them with precious perfume. So:

b. SHE showed great love, revealing faith that her sins would be forgiven She had a deep realization of how much she had offended God's righteousness and how much she deserved punishment, and she was filled with gratefulness and love because she knew Jesus would forgive her - and He did!

Well, I'm not sure how the rest of that dinner went after that; it was probably pretty quiet, but we do have:

4. the reaction to the parable in verses (49-50). Some were amazed that Jesus claimed to forgive sins, as was Simon, no doubt. But Jesus simply sent the woman on her way with full assurance of forgiveness and eternal salvation. The question would be, "What's your reaction to the story?" How much you love Jesus and are willing to serve Him is the indication of how deep your realization of being forgiven is. Titus Hall shares his testimony online: As I think back to September 8, 2004, I feel an overwhelming sense of gratitude for what happened to me on that day. It was the day that the God of heaven forgave me of my sin, and changed my life. Though some people who knew me may have considered me to be a good person, I knew in my heart that I was a sinner, and an enemy of God. Being raised in a Christian home, and having been taught the Bible daily, I knew that I didn't need to commit a large crime in society in order to be a guilty sinner in God's eyes. I was born with a sin nature, and the root and motives of all my behaviors were selfishness and pride. In mid-elementary school I came down with a very unique sickness. For the next two years I fought chronic pain and exhaustion throughout my entire body. It got so bad that I could barely walk or even hold a pencil. That was a very difficult time for me, though in retrospect I wouldn't trade it for anything because God used that trial to get my attention. He started to reveal my sinful heart and show me my need for a Savior. Before this time, I had heard that Jesus died for my sins, but my sins were never a real burden to me. God used many things, including a challenging email from a long-distance friend of mine, to help me consider my spiritual condition. My friend wrote me, "Sometimes God sends trials and difficulties into one's life to awake them to their condition before God." These words gripped my heart and wouldn't let go. Had God brought this illness into my life to help me turn to Him? Toward the latter part of those difficult years our church held special services. It was God's mercy that allowed the Holy Spirit to prick my heart on Tuesday night of that week. I finally realized that I was living in willful rebellion against a Holy and Righteous God. I also realized the serious consequences of my sin. My attitude changed. My only hope for a purpose in this life and peace for eternity was established that September day when I saw myself for who I truly was, and completely committed my life to Christ. Since then, I have grown in my love for God. I want to please Him, obey His word, and live my life as a testimony of His grace to me.

[\[http://www.lvbaptist.org/thall/\]](http://www.lvbaptist.org/thall/) She who has been forgiven much and realizes it, loves Jesus fully, passionately, completely! She lives for Him! But he who has little sense of being forgiven doesn't really love Jesus very much, but rather lives for himself! That's the moral of the story! Well now, as we turn to chapter 8, Jesus moved on to other villages and told:

II. The Parable Of The Sower - 8:4-15 This is actually the first in a set of seven parables about the Kingdom that is also recorded for us in Matthew 13 and Mark 4. Notice:

1. the occasion of the parable (4) He was on the beach at Capernaum near the Sea of Galilee. A huge crowd had gathered to hear Him and the other gospels tell us that He actually got into a boat and pushed out a little way to teach them. Let's read:

2. the story of the parable (5-8) Sowing, or planting seed, was something so common that everyone knew how it worked. The vast majority of the crowd listening to Jesus had actually participated in it. Around the Sea of Galilee there were many fertile fields and, maybe even at this moment, Jesus could point in the distance to a man sowing seed in his field as He talked. Seed was held in bag around the waste and strewn by hand over the ground. Jesus noted that in this or any field there were four types of soil and He was illustrating the kind of reception that the seed gets in the various kinds of soil.

a. some seed falls on hard soil, like the path on the edge of the field; it never sprouts and is devoured by birds. When we spread grass seed in our yard, some always falls on the driveway or the sidewalk where it has no opportunity to grow and the birds eat it or rain washes it away.

b. some seed falls on rocky soil and sprouts but later withers Rocky ground has a thin layer of soil over top of the rock, so the seed can sprout and grow, but it can't really put down roots so in the heat of the sun, so it soon withers and you end up with a bare spot, just like in my front yard where there are tree roots just under the surface and it's easy to end up with bare brown spots. Then:

c. some seed falls on thorny soil and sprouts but is later choked We don't have thorns in our back yard but, despite all our efforts to kill it, we've got a ton of crab grass and clover, so when you plant grass seed it may come up in the spring, but eventually it just gets smothered by the unwanted weeds and disappears. Yet in every yard or field:

d. some seed falls on good soil, grows and yields a hundred-fold harvest The soil is soft and provides the right environment with all the moisture it needs and that one little grain of wheat grows a new plant that may have a hundred kernels or seeds on it. The University of Nebraska says that winter wheat plants, on the average, develop about five heads and that each head, on average, develops about 22 kernels. That is, one individual seed replicates itself 100 times; what an amazing thing if you think about it! And that's where Jesus left it with the crowd, but in private His disciples asked Him:

3. the reason for the parable (9-10) By this point in His ministry, the leaders of Israel had rejected Him multiple times. They had begun plotting to kill Him and, even though they have not gone all the way to nailing Him on the cross yet, their course is sealed by this point. Even though He is still widely popular because of His power to heal, every crowd that gathers also contains many of His enemies. So, He spoke in parables for a twofold purpose. First:

a. to reveal truth to those who followed Him It helped His disciples to understand the truths He was trying to teach through understandable illustrations. But at the same time, He did it:

b. to conceal truth from those who rejected Him He was not going to cast His pearls before swine, to give His truth to those who despised Him and whose hearts weren't open to it. And so, He explained to His disciples:

4. the meaning of the parable (11-15) Whenever Jesus Himself or any of us His followers declare His Word, it's just like sowing a field:

a. some people have hard hearts; they reject and forget the Word Their minds are made up; they don't want to hear it, so it never sinks in at all, just like the seed on the path, and soon Satan makes sure they forget it. Then, as we declare it:

b. some people have shallow hearts; they believe awhile but fall away They appear to believe the message and claim to believe in Christ, but there's never any real depth to them, no genuine transformation of their spirit, no real connection to Christ. So, when their friends or family or their society give them a hard time about having faith, they discard it and move on. Then:

c. some people have thorny hearts; they believe but produce no fruit They say, "Oh yes, I'll believe in Jesus!" but their lives are about making money and having pleasure and doing what they want to do and soon their lives bear no real evidence of being changed by Jesus. They just live like everybody else. There's no fruit. BUT, thank God, every time we declare His Word:

d. some people have receptive hearts They're like good soil. They believe and produce much fruit. They don't merely talk about believing. Their character changes; the fruit of the Spirit becomes evident in their lives and they act like Jesus. They grow up like a new plant and soon they have other people hearing the word and believing like they do. One good soil person may result in a hundred others coming to faith, or more!

So, what do we take away from this story? Well, first of all, WE need ears to hear! We need to have a right heart whenever we hear the Word of God or it will do us no good. But second, we can expect these same four responses from all those with whom we share God's truth. They're happening right now. There's at least one person here this morning who hasn't heard a word I've said. You've been playing on your phone or your mind has been elsewhere and you really don't care because your heart is hard. There's probably somebody here who says, "Oh yes, I really want to live for Jesus!" but when you get home or go back to school or work and they begin to give you a hard time about it, you'll soon drop back into your old way of life. And I'm sure there's somebody here who agrees, "Yes, I need to live for Jesus!" but tomorrow you won't be able to resist the greed of making money or the pleasure of sleeping with your girlfriend or boyfriend and you'll keep on living without fruit, just like always. Listen, the bad news in this story is that those three bad soil types of people have NO relationship with Jesus. They're lost. They're people who might call Jesus Lord, but to them He'll say, "Depart from Me; I never knew you!" But praise God, I am confident that most of you are good soil, people who will hear the Word of God and do it, who will go out and really live for Jesus, because you genuinely know Him! But don't get discouraged! There may be many people that you share the message of your Jesus with that won't listen or won't last or will go back to their self-oriented lifestyles, yet be confident that there's good soil out there too! Sooner or later, you'll tell one whose heart is good soil, ready to receive it, and then watch what God will do! Listen, my yard may have hard patches and brown patches and weedy patches in it, but I still plant grass seed because I know that if I keep planting, sooner or later I'll get grass! The farmer plants because, despite all the bad areas in the field, he knows he'll get a crop of wheat! Keep sowing! Dr. Norman Geisler is a well-known Christian theologian who is now 86. He's helped to found 2 evangelical seminaries and authored more than 90 books and hundreds of articles. His life has touched thousands, probably millions. When he was a child, he went to a Vacation Bible School because he was invited by some neighbor children. He went back to that same church for Sunday School classes for 400 Sundays. Each week he was faithfully picked up by a bus driver. Week after week he attended church, but never made a commitment to Christ. Finally, during his senior year in High School, after being picked up for church over 400 times, he did commit his life to Christ. [Max Lucado, God Came Near, Multnomah Press, 1987, p. 133] What if his bus driver had given up on him? What if his Sunday School teacher had said, "This kid is going nowhere spiritually, why waste any more time on him?" Beloved, Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up!

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

The Authority Of Jesus - 8:22-56

In this portion of Chapter 8, Luke records for us four events in a row that display for us the authority that Jesus has. Now in our part of the world, when we think of someone having authority, we think of a police officer or a judge, someone who has the right to tell us what to do, to control us. But we don't think of that authority as being necessarily legitimate; in other words, they may have it, but may use it unjustly and maybe shouldn't have it. We may even think that authority can be opposed or resisted. However, if you live in North Korea and someone mentioned authority, you would immediately think of your dictator Kim Jong Un and to you, his authority means the unopposable power to control everything about you, even whether you live or die, whether it's right or not! In the Bible, the concept of authority contains both those concepts, both the right to control and the power to control. Now look for a moment with me at what Mt. 28:18 says about Jesus:

I. Jesus Has ALL Authority In Heaven And On Earth That phrase is so familiar to us that we often don't stop to think about what it means. First of all, it means:

1. He has the RIGHT to be in control of everything and everyone The Psalmist says, Know that the LORD is God. It is he who made us, and we are his... - 100:3. He made us! He saved us! We are His creations and that makes us His possessions. The same is true of the whole universe! He has the right to control us in any and every way, to do what

He wills with us! And if we don't like it, Paul answers, But who are you, O man, to talk back to God? "Shall what is formed say to him who formed it, 'Why did you make me like this?' "Does not the potter have the right to make out of the same lump of clay some pottery for noble purposes and some for common use? - Rom. 9:20-21. God is God and He has the right to do whatever He wishes with what is His! We may not like it, but we have no right to protest it, any more than a lump of clay can protest to the potter about what he's making it into. And the Father gave all that authority to the Son as well! Jesus has the absolute sovereign right to control everyone and everything! But it is more than just the right to control:

2. He has the POWER that actually controls it The whole universe was formed at His command. When He said, "Let there be light!", light erupted into existence! When He commanded the sun to stand still in the sky for Joshua, the sun stood still! Don't ask me how, but it did! Heb. 1:3 says Jesus sustains all things by His powerful word. It is one thing to give a command but entirely another thing for that command to have the power within itself to make the action happen. When I was 16 or so, I had a dog, a yellow lab. He loved to run and he didn't like to be hooked back up to his dogbox. So, when it was time, I would command, "Flint, come here!" And he wouldn't come. I had every right to command him; he was my dog, but no matter how loud or how soft or how often I commanded him to come, he wouldn't come. Now if Jesus had said, "Flint, come here!", His very word would have irresistibly dragged the dog right to His hand. His word has the power within itself to make what He says happen! That's the difference between human authority and Divine authority. So, let's call the authority that Jesus has ABSOLUTE AUTHORITY for lack of a better term and that's what Luke is showing us about Him in our text. He begins by showing that:

II. Jesus Has Absolute Authority Over Nature (22-25) The Sea of Galilee is eight miles wide. That's a couple of hours of sailing or rowing, IF the wind is with you, so Jesus lay down on a cushion in the back of the boat and fell asleep. Somewhere in the middle, this sudden storm came up and the waves were pushing them backwards and breaking over the bow of the boat, dumping water into it. The Sea of Galilee is also 140 feet deep, so there's no swimming to shore. Capsizing could well mean death! And the disciples look and there lies Jesus, still peacefully sleeping. So, in terror these experienced sailors wake Him saying, "Master, we're gonna die!" At least one doubting soul even added, "Don't You care?!", according to Mark! Surely, when Jesus told them to get into the boat and cross to the other side, they didn't expect a storm that would put their lives in danger! So, let's pause for a moment and see an important truth:

1. obeying Jesus may lead us unexpectedly into dangerous and fearful places Like the disciples, we think if Jesus is in our boat nothing bad ought to happen to us! If Jesus is in our lives and we obey Him, He should keep all that bad stuff away from our boat! But He doesn't! We obey Him and He still takes us into all kinds of dangerous waters, and I'm not only talking about accidents or diseases or ordinary dangers. I just read in Brigada the story of a 27 year old young lady named Kitira who lived in one of the most restricted regions of East Africa. During a mission trip to a very-restricted region of her country in East Africa, she was kidnapped by a radical Muslim group. Even though a person within her team tried to lie on her behalf, saying Kitira was Muslim, she chose to tell the truth that she is a devout follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. In short, she would not sell out, even if it meant her death. She risked her very life to remain faithful. She also didn't question Jesus, "Lord, where are you in this? Why are You sleeping? Why do You seem to be oblivious to the awful thing that is happening to me?" In the end, Jesus rebuked His disciples for having such little faith, instead of having confidence of the type that she had! At any rate, Jesus awakens, stretches and shouts to the wind, "Stop!" and to the waves, "Be still!" And in the next instant, the howling wind stops and the water goes flat calm! Next time you're at the beach, just try to imagine what that would be like, yelling at the wind and the waves and them instantly going quiet! No rational human being would ever expect that to happen, but it did! No wonder the disciples were afraid! All they could think was, "What kind of man can do this? This is no man; this is God!" By displaying His authority over nature, Jesus not only confirmed to them who He was, but also gave to us a clear:

2. the lesson: No matter what circumstance you're in, no matter how violent the wind or how high the waves, trust that Jesus is in complete control of your circumstances. Don't question Him. Don't accuse Him. Trust that He's not asleep, that He's not disinterested, but rather that He is very much concerned for you and in complete control of what's happening and this thing will turn out exactly as He planned it! What about Kitira? On that day, something amazing happened. The leader of the radical Muslim group turned to the group member who was trying to lie on Kitira's behalf. He told the liar, "We're going to allow her to live, not as a result of your lie, but as a direct result of her courage to tell the truth." In what was nothing short of a miracle, he then released Kitira and her entire team! Sometimes you get thrown in the furnace but the fire doesn't burn you; another time you may get taken to heaven, but either way you win, because Jesus is right there and He's in absolute control! Well, when the boat lands on the far shore, we see that:

III. Jesus Has Absolute Authority Over Demons (26-39) [Read 26-33] Now I guess the first thing I need to say is that:

1. demons are real beings and they do seek to inhabit people even today Demons are fallen angels who are the active agents of Satan. They exist and they are at work opposing us all the time. If they are given opportunity they love to actually move in and take over control of a person. In Divipalem village, where our India team has been to encourage the believers, there is right now a woman named Bujjamma who claims that she herself is the goddess of the village and is causing much trouble. She's no goddess but has prayed to be filled with the spirit of whatever goddess this village worships and some demon was more than glad to oblige. She's demonized, just like this man. We take people like this, classify them as having some sort of mental disorder, medicate them and lock them away from society. Jesus commanded the demons to come out and in a moment this man was in his right mind once again! You see:

2. demons recognize Jesus' authority and obey His every command They all know who He is and the authority He has and they know that they have no choice but to obey His every command, that they can't resist Him. Jesus cast out demons like this quite frequently throughout His ministry and the disciples saw Him do it. It proved to them that He has absolute authority, not only in the natural realm, but in the spiritual realm, something of which they were very much afraid. But then look ahead to what Jesus did in (9:1). He gave them that very same authority and sent them out on a preaching tour of the villages and later on He sent out 72 others to do the same and The seventy-two returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the demons are subject to us in your name!" - 10:17. So here's:

3. the lesson: If and when you encounter the presence of demons, do not fear them! You're probably saying, "Yeah, when will that be?" The truth is that they're at work all around us all the time and while I've seen a few people who were obviously outwardly demonized like those Jesus freed, there have been many times now when I have been with people who actually heard demonic voices speaking to their own minds and knew it and we were able to command them to leave in Jesus' Name! And they left! All of us have evil thoughts that demonic forces just pop into our minds, things we would never choose to think, but there they are. They're not your thoughts! They're demonic and you can say, "Leave right now in Jesus' Name!" and trust that you have Jesus' authority and they will go! From those completely demonized to those simply annoyed by the presence of demons, Jesus has absolute authority over them and He's shared it with you! Hallelujah!

Well, it seems the townspeople were so afraid of Jesus and upset over His disruption of their pig business that they asked Him to leave, so He sailed back across to Capernaum and there Luke tells us that:

IV. Jesus Has Absolute Authority Over Disease (40-49) Now one thing is very obvious here:

1. Jesus can heal even the most hopeless cases of disease This woman had been hemorrhaging for 12 years. She was anemic, weak from continual loss of blood. She'd been to every doctor there was in that area and spent every nickel she had on medical bills, but nothing had worked. No one was able to help her or to heal her. Humanly and medically speaking she had no hope. But she had heard that Jesus can heal disease, that He had made the lame to walk and the blind to see and the deaf to hear. Paralyzed people got up and walked and she believed that He could heal her. Her issue of blood made her unclean; she was not allowed to touch anybody! But she thought, "If I just touch the edge of His garment, that will be enough!" And Jesus applauded her faith. Listen, Jesus can heal any disease, cancer, AIDS, you name it. He has absolute authority over disease! I think of a 10 year old boy named Luke, son of friends of mine who lived in Russia at the time. Luke contracted a serious case of leukemia. Treatments didn't help and at last doctors did a bone marrow transplant. Everybody was afraid Luke was going to die, but his mother felt Jesus' assure her that he would be well. She kept writing over and over, "All I know is that Jesus told me he's going to live and I believe Jesus!" He's grown now and cancer free! Now there is an important:

2. the lesson here for us who live in the western world: we must place our faith in Jesus, and not merely in medicine I'm thankful for doctors; one just replaced my hip! Jesus uses them, but we tend to think that our healing depends on doctors and medicine and human knowledge; it does not. It depends on Jesus! He uses all of those things to heal us many times, but your body doesn't heal apart from His decree. So, prayer is our FIRST resort when there is illness, even if we're on our way to the hospital. Our trust must be in Him completely and fully, but the other thing that's also very clear here is that:

3. Jesus does not choose to heal every person; He allows some to die While this woman was being healed, there was a little 12 year old girl over in Jairus' house. Jesus was on His way to see her, but in that brief interlude she died! That was not without His knowledge or permission either! Later on, His friend Lazarus died and He didn't stop that either. Sometimes Jesus chooses to take us home and heal us that way. Having absolute authority means Jesus has the right and the power to heal us or not to heal us if that is what He wants for us, and that's hard for us to accept, but it leads us to the last scene that Luke brings before us, the one in which he shows us that:

V. Jesus Has Absolute Authority Over Death (49-56) Oh listen:

1. Jesus controls whether we live or die If He wants me to live, then no disease, no accident, no natural disaster, no enemy can take my life. I'm invincible! But if He wants me to die and be with Him, no doctor, no hospital, no medicine can keep me alive! He has absolute authority over when I die, but more than that, in this scene we see that:

2. Jesus has power to raise the dead This little girl became living proof that:

a. He can restore people who have died back to earthly life He did it at Nain with the son of a widow. He did it at Bethany with Lazarus! He told His disciples to do it, to heal the sick and raise the dead! And He still does it today. Some years ago, a man who was a leader in the India Missions Association was visiting here and shared with us that in that year there had been 7 verified cases of people being raised from the dead in India and he had personally met and verified every one! The Christian Broadcasting Network posted this video testimony on YouTube in 2010: Jeff Markin was on his way to work, when he suddenly started feeling unwell. His boss told him to go to the hospital, where Jeff collapsed. He had a massive deadly heart attack. For 40 minutes the medical team tried to bring Jeff back to life. They shocked him a dozen times but there was no response. Cardiologist Dr. Crandall declared Jeff dead and a nurse began to prepare his dead body for the mortuary. Dr. Crandall updated the charts and as soon as his note was completed, he walked out through the door to the emergency room, when suddenly he heard a voice speak to him: 'Go back and pray for this man.' Dr. Crandall wanted to ignore that voice, thinking 'How can I pray for that man? He is dead, he is gone, there's no life in him!' But as he kept walking away, he heard the voice again: 'Turn around and pray for that man.' The doctor, who was a Christian, thought: 'I need to honor the Lord' so he went back to the dead body. The nurse looked at him, thinking 'What are you doing here?' Dr. Crandall stood next to the corpse and prayed out loud, "Father God, I cry out for this man's soul. If he does not know you as his Lord and Savior, Father, raise him from the dead now. In Jesus' Name." Another doctor walked in the room and Dr. Crandall said: 'Shock this man one more time.' The doctor refused: 'I can't shock him, he's dead, there's no life in him, he's gone'. Dr. Crandall insisted they shock him one more time. The doctor hesitated, but because Dr. Crandall was loved and respected in this hospital, his request was granted and Jeff was shocked one more time. Instantly his heartbeat came back, a perfect and regular heartbeat, which they'd never seen before. The nurse screamed 'What have you done?' Jeff began breathing and moved his fingers. He was immediately moved to the intensive care unit. Three days later Jeff woke up, with no evidence of brain or organ damage. Dr. Crandall asked Jeff: 'Where were you, that day I prayed for you?' Jeff replied: 'Dr. Crandall, I was in total darkness and I was so disappointed. I was alone for eternity.' So Dr. Crandall encouraged Jeff to open up his heart to God, and he did. To this day he has regular checkups and NO heart problem.

https://www.youtube.com/watch?time_continue=371&v=Xk22aP1N86U Listen, Jesus demonstrated His power to raise the dead by rising from the dead Himself the third day, proving who He was! Of course, Jesus does not often choose to raise people back to earthly life. Instances like Jeff Markin or this girl are gracious acts which demonstrate His absolute authority over death. But what's even more amazing is the fact that:

b. He will resurrect all people from the dead [The Father] has given him authority to execute judgment, because he is the Son of Man. Do not marvel at this, for an hour is coming when all who are in the tombs will hear his voice and come out, those who have done good to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil to the resurrection of judgment. - Jn. 5:27-29. One day at His coming Jesus will shout and all of the dead in Christ will rise. The earth and the sea will give up their dead bodies to be reunited with their souls and we shall all live in new, transformed, heavenly bodies like His glorious body forever! Don't ask me how He's going to do it; He says He's going to do it and His Word is enough. He has absolute authority over death!

Dear friends, Jesus has all authority in heaven and earth and it is absolute. And that leaves us with a choice. We can either call Him Lord and voluntarily recognize and cooperate with His authority, trusting Him in faith and obeying His every command. Or we can vainly struggle to resist His authority and live our own way, but even if we do, He's in control anyway. You can't escape it; you can only make your life miserable trying. I've chosen to yield to Jesus; I hope you have!

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Ministry Of The Son Of Man In Galilee - Lk. 3:1-9:50

The Identity Of Jesus - 9:1-50

To this point in our study through Luke, we've talked about Jesus' baptism and temptation, His disciples, His teaching, His miracles, His parables and His authority. But everything that Jesus did in His great Galilean ministry thus far was leading up to a point, the point that we find in Chapter 9. All His teaching, all His mighty works were done with one purpose in mind; they were all preparation for the day when He would clearly reveal to His followers who He was, His identity. Of course, in that day, just as in our own, there are:

I. The Various Opinions About Who Jesus Is and I want to look at some of them, beginning in verses (7-9). The Twelve were out on a preaching tour, healing and casting out demons everywhere. It raised quite a stir in Galilee and even caught the attention of the Roman governor, Herod Antipas. When the Twelve returned, Jesus fed the 5,000 with 5 loaves and 2 fish and then privately He brought the subject of His identity up to them in (18-19). They simply repeated the popular suppositions that they had heard. To some, especially to those like Herod who were not religious, He was:

1. a mystery: He was some kind of mystical being with extraordinary powers Herod theorized that He was John the Baptist risen from the dead and that's how He got His mighty power. Of course, the reason he theorized this was that he himself had beheaded John to please his wife and her daughter, knowing it was wrong, and he was half afraid John had come back! But even today there are many who believe similar superstitious things; they want to explain Jesus by fitting Him into their self-invented belief system. The founder of the Hare Krishna movement said, "'Christ' is another way of saying Krsta and Krsta is another way of pronouncing Krishna, the name of God...the general name of the Supreme Personality of Godhead, whose specific name is Krishna. Therefore, whether you call God 'Christ', 'Krsta', or 'Krishna', ultimately you are addressing the same Supreme Personality of Godhead. The Dalai Lama said,

Jesus Christ also lived previous lives, so, you see, he reached a high state, either as a Bodhisattva, or an enlightened person, through Buddhist practice or something like that. Then, at a certain period, a certain era, he appeared as a new master, and then because of circumstances, he taught certain views different from Buddhism, but he also taught the same religious values as I mentioned earlier. What foolishness to think that you can "explain" Jesus by your own ideas! Then the God-fearing Jewish public saw Jesus as:

2. a prophet: a holy man sent from and empowered by God like Elijah or Elisha or one of the mighty prophets of old. In fact, since Elijah was taken up to heaven without dying and Malachi said God would send him back again, some believed he actually was Elijah, with a new name. The 1.8 billion Muslims of the world believe Jesus was a prophet, mighty in word and deed, but that's as far as they will go. He was certainly not more than a man used by God and there are many who hold that same view today. Of course, the Pharisees and religious leaders of the Jews saw Jesus as:

3. a fraud: a Satanically empowered man with evil intent On several occasions ...the Pharisees said, "He casts out demons by the prince of demons." - Mt. 9:34. They felt He was an agent of Satan sent to undermine the religious system they dominated and they plotted to kill Him. But in later centuries, many people have come to regard Jesus pretty much as:

4. a legend: a religious leader and gifted teacher deified by his followers His followers invented all these incredible things about him like his miracles and his resurrection and made him into a god. Thomas Jefferson said, the day will come when the mystical generation of Jesus, by the supreme being as his father in the womb of a virgin will be classed with the fable of the generation of Minerva in the brain of Jupiter. But may we hope that the dawn of reason and freedom of thought in these United States will do away with this artificial scaffolding, and restore to us the primitive and genuine doctrines of this most venerated reformer of human errors. [Source: <http://www.leaderu.com/articles/opinions-about-Jesus.html>] So many people view Jesus as a great teacher and a tremendous example but they never seriously read what He said or take seriously what He did!

But saddest of all are those who have never heard of Jesus and have no idea who He is. I told you about the Kyrgyz leader who visited a remote mountain village in northwest China and asked someone, "Have you ever heard of Jesus?" And the man replied, "Jesus, what is that, some kind of new food?" How sad! But at any rate, popular opinion about Jesus is terribly mistaken and the most important question is the one that Jesus asked His disciples next in verse (20). Peter spoke on behalf of them all as those who had listened to Him and watched Him for many months and made:

II. The Bold Declaration Of Who Jesus Really Is Matthew (Mt. 16:16) gives us the full wording of his statement: You are the Christ, the Son of the living God. This is what Jesus has been wanting them to understand all along and He replied, ...Blessed are you, Simon Bar-Jonah! For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father who is in heaven. You'll never figure out who Jesus is from the popular opinions of men; God has to reveal the truth of His identity to your heart! First of all, Peter said that:

1. He is the Christ (the Messiah) whom God promised to send as King Beginning way back in Genesis God began making promises that one day a Messiah, a Savior would come. He would be the promised Seed of the woman who would bruise the serpent's head, the Star who would come out of Jacob and the Scepter who would rise out of Israel, the son of a virgin who would be the Wonderful Counselor, the Mighty God, the Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace and Emmanuel, God with us! As the years went by the promises mounted and all God's people were looking for the Messiah who would one day set up the Kingdom of God and rule the world! That's who Jesus is, the Messiah, the rightful King of the world who will reign forever and ever! Secondly, Peter said that:

2. He is the Son of God Now in human terms we would normally think of a son as being different from, but being generated by a father. However, in Jewish thinking, the phrase Son of God meant much more. John 5:18 says, This was why the Jews were seeking all the more to kill him, because not only was he breaking the Sabbath, but he was even calling God his own Father, making himself equal with God. And 10:33 says, The Jews answered him, "It is not for a good work that we are going to stone you but for blasphemy, because you, being a man, make yourself God." To say, "I am the Son of God" or to say "God is my Father" was a claim to be of equal status with and united with God, to actually be God! And that's what Jesus wanted His disciples to grasp from all of His miracles and all His teaching, that:

3. He is God come to earth in a human body Look with me at Phil. 2:6-7. Jesus was equal with God; He was God. To paraphrase John 1:1, In the beginning was the Word [Jesus], and [Jesus] was with God, and [Jesus] was God. But He didn't see His identity as something to be used selfishly for His own gratification. Rather He emptied Himself; He let go of all the outward trappings and privileges of being God to become incarnate, to take to Himself the body of a human being just like ours, so that He could die for us and save us! So, as He was standing there before His disciples that day, they realized at last what Paul says in Col. 2:9, ...in Christ lives all the fullness of God in a human body. There, standing before them, was God in a human body; that's who Jesus is! Any view that makes Him less than that is a lie, a myth and a deception of the evil one! He is not merely a great teacher to learn from, nor a miracle worker with special powers, nor a tremendous example for us to follow; He is very God of very God as the Nicene creed says and we should bow before Him in worship and adoration and obey His every command! The big question still is, Who do YOU say I am? If your Jesus is less than that, He's not the Jesus of the Bible; He's another Jesus, a false Jesus and one day when you die and stand before the REAL Jesus, He'll say, "Depart from Me, I never knew you!" Well, now that the disciples grasped Jesus' true identity at last, I want you to notice:

4. the new message that Jesus began to emphasize from that point on and repeat to them over and over again. First of all, He began to tell them:

a. that He must die and rise again in order to save us (21-22) What a strange new twist this was for them! Nobody ever conceived that the Messiah, once He came, would suffer and die! But that was the true purpose of His incarnation, of His coming in a body. It was to die as a true human being for our sins in order to save us and then rise the third day. His ruling the world would come later; He would come again, a second time, to rule and reign. But this time He came to die, to give His life a ransom for many, and to rise again. Sadly, no matter how often He repeated this to try to prepare them for it, the disciples never seemed to hear Him. It went in one ear and out the other. But there was also a second part to His new message, which was:

b. that we must die to ourselves and follow Him (23-24) David Guzik says: Everybody knew what Jesus meant when He said take up his cross. Everyone knew what the cross was: an unrelenting instrument of nothing but death. The cross wasn't about religious ceremonies; it wasn't about traditions and spiritual feelings. The cross was a way to execute people. We have sanitized and ritualized the cross in these twenty centuries after Jesus. How would we receive it if Jesus said, "walk down death row daily and follow Me"? Taking up your cross wasn't a journey; it was a one-way trip. There was no return ticketing; it was never a round trip. Jesus makes deny himself equal with take up his cross. The two phrases express the same idea. The cross wasn't about self-promotion or self-affirmation. The person carrying a cross knew they couldn't save themselves, and that self was destined to die. Denying yourself means to live as an others-centered person. Jesus was the only person to do this perfectly, but we are to follow in His steps. Jesus makes it clear that He is speaking spiritually when He adds the word daily. No one could be crucified literally every day. But they can have the same attitude as Jesus daily. Jesus was saying, "Following Me means dying to you! Dying to what you want, to your plans, your rights, utterly surrendering control over your life, losing your life to Me and My purposes and My orders and My way of living every single day, even as I chose to lose My life for you!" As C.T. Studd put it, If Jesus Christ be God and died for me, then no sacrifice can be too great for me to make for Him. That's what it means to follow Jesus and it's a heavy message! Do you still want in?

Now Luke goes on to record the ultimate proof of Jesus' identity:

III. The Visible Demonstration Of Who Jesus Is in verses (28-36) We call it The Transfiguration, but it really was:

1. the revealing of Jesus' glory (28-29, 32) Now I want you to notice a few things. Matthew and Mark make the point that it was a high mountain. The only high mountain near Caesarea, where they were at the time, is Mt. Hermon on the modern border between Syria and Lebanon. It is some 9,200 feet high and its three peaks remain snow covered most of the year, so climbing the path up to near the top was an exhausting all day process. Jesus took Peter, John and James up there with Him to pray, but in fact, when they get there, night is falling and the weary disciples can't stay awake and pray with Him, just like the situation in Gethsemane later on. But as He prays Jesus begins to shine, to radiate bright light like lightning from His face and from His clothing, like a brilliant LED sign in the darkness. Luke says it woke the disciples and what they saw was His glory. Guzik comments, This was not a new miracle, but the temporary pause of an ongoing miracle. The real miracle was that Jesus, most of the time, could keep from displaying His glory! When John saw Him in Revelation, he was ...clothed with a long robe and with a golden sash around his chest. The hairs of his head were white, like white wool, like snow. His eyes were like a flame of fire, his feet were like burnished bronze, refined in a furnace, and his voice was like the roar of many waters. - 1:13-15. That's His glory, His normal radiance as God that He laid aside while on this earth, except for this one moment. Then, added to the brilliance of the scene was:

2. the appearance of Moses and Elijah (30-31) Two men were there talking with Jesus and they were shining with glory too! And somehow the disciples innately recognized them as Moses and Elijah, the Deliverer of Israel and the greatest of the Prophets. There they were, alive and well and having a discussion with Jesus about His coming exodus, literally, His departure from this world for heaven which He was going to accomplish through His cross and resurrection in Jerusalem! Wouldn't you have like to overheard that conversation?! It is almost irreverent to try to imagine it, but perhaps they were there to remind Him of that joy that was set before Him, encouraging Him to endure the cross and despise the shame so that He would sit down at the right hand of the Father in glory and bring all of us with Him! (Heb. 12:2). Perhaps they appeared to strengthen Him in answer to prayer as He struggled, just as the angels came and ministered to Him in the garden of Gethsemane as He prayed in His great struggle there! At any rate, as Moses and Elijah were taking leave of Him, we see:

3. the reaction of the disciples (33) Mark says they were terrified, but Peter somehow didn't want the moment to end; He didn't want the glory to go away. He wanted things to stay this way, to have the glory visible and real and not go back down to the world of men with its suffering and death. We always want to stay on the mountaintop in the glory moment, though this life doesn't work that way. Peter didn't want to let it go, so he rashly offered to make three little shelters where they could stay, not being able to think of anything better to say. But God had something better to say! In (34-35) we have:

4. the affirmation of the Father Matthew says it was a bright cloud, a glory cloud, like the shekinah glory cloud that covered the children of Israel at night. And the Father's voice spoke out of that cloud, This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased; listen to him. Peter had declared it below; he had said "This is what I believe: You are the Son of God!" But now God Himself declares it definitively, This IS My Son! I love Him and I am completely pleased with Him. LISTEN to Him!! Obey Him! If there was any doubt still left about Jesus' identity, it was gone now! They had seen His glory and heard the Father's voice. Jesus was indeed the very Son of God! But, oh my, were they terrified now. They needed:

5. the reassurance of the Savior - Mat. 17:6-7 says, When the disciples heard this, they fell on their faces and were terrified. But Jesus came and touched them, saying, "Rise, and have no fear." Jesus is God but there's no need to be afraid of Him; He loves us! In verse (36) Luke tells us that Jesus was now alone and the experience was all over, but they were so shaken by it they didn't tell anyone what they had seen until much later.

However, the assurance they received there on the mountain was not lost and Peter took special care to pass it on to us before he died, if you'll turn with me to 2 Pet. 1:15-18. Peter says, "Listen folks, Jesus IS who He said He is! He IS God the Son! I saw His glory up on that mountain with my own eyes! I heard the voice of the Father from heaven with my own ears from the majestic glory cloud! We're not following some myth, some made up story. Jesus is real and He's reigning in glory right now and one day He's coming again as He promised! And that's what gives me confidence as I face my own departure, my own exodus to join Him in glory! And that same confidence is for you!" Charles Haddon Spurgeon is known as the "Prince of Preachers"; he preached to almost 10 million people over the course of his life. In 1854 at the age of 19 he was called to pastor New Park Street Chapel, the largest Baptist congregation in London, at the time numbering 200. It grew so much that a new building was built to seat 5,000 and in March, 1861 the congregation moved into the new Metropolitan Tabernacle. I want you to hear what Spurgeon preached in his first sermon that day, "I would propose that the subject of the ministry of this house, as long as this platform shall stand, and as long as this house shall be frequented by worshippers, shall be the person of Jesus Christ. I am never ashamed to avow myself a Calvinist, ...I do not hesitate to take the name of Baptist. ...but if I am asked to say what is my creed, I think I must reply: "It is Jesus Christ." My venerable predecessor, Dr. Gill, has left a body of divinity admirable and excellent in its way; but the body of divinity to which I would pin and bind myself for ever, God helping me, is not his system of divinity or any other human treatise, but Christ Jesus, who is the sum and substance of the gospel; who is in himself all theology, the incarnation of every precious truth, the all-glorious personal embodiment of the way, the truth, and the life. I don't know about you, but I'm with Peter and I'm with Spurgeon; I am staking my all on the very Person of Jesus Christ my Lord.

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - Lk. 9:51-19:27

The Enemies Of Jesus - Ch. 11

Luke 9:51 is a turning point in Luke's Gospel. Up to this point the majority of Jesus' ministry had been in Galilee where He was wildly received by huge crowds. But from this moment on His face is looking steadfastly toward Jerusalem and the cross that awaited Him there and He begins to work in other areas. In chapter 10 He began to point out to His disciples the cost, as well as the joy, of following Him. Now in chapter 11, Luke focuses on His conflict with His enemies. Most of us realize that:

I. Jesus Had Numerous Religious Enemies Who Opposed His Ministry It is noteworthy that it was not the pagan Romans who wanted to get rid of Jesus, even though He was constantly attracting large crowds. Nor was it the common ordinary people; they flocked to Him and regarded Him as a prophet of God. Strangely, it was the religious elite, the religious leaders of the country, who became His fierce enemies, who tried to discredit Him and plotted to murder Him. But why? Even Pontius Pilate knew that it was out of envy they wanted Him crucified. They were jealous that so many people were following after Him instead of them. He was a threat to the privileged status in which they were regarded and to their power and control over the people. So, they hated Him instead of listening to Him. It's a phenomenon that has been repeated down through history. Whenever the church becomes a powerful organizational establishment with control over people, its leaders end up persecuting those who truly want to follow Jesus. Luther, Calvin and the other reformers were hated and persecuted by the established Roman church of their day. John Huss was burned at the stake. The Pilgrims came to this country fleeing persecution by the English state church. The Anabaptists (who, incidentally, are the line from which we come as a church) were heavily persecuted in Europe by both the Catholic and other Protestant churches. When the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991, the greatest enemy the new growing churches had was the ancient established

Russian Orthodox Church. In Central Asia, the Orthodox would even align themselves with the Muslims to influence government against the new followers of Jesus! History should serve as a warning to us! Whenever the people of God become powerful and influential and entwined with political control over the masses, its very leaders inevitably become the enemies of those who truly seek to follow Jesus. Now, Jesus' enemies belonged three groups. The:

1. Pharisees (mentioned in verse 37) were a sect committed to Law keeping, tradition and ritual purity. Their name means separated ones and their goal was to separate themselves from everything and everyone unclean and unholy. They not only were careful to keep the instructions of the law, but also to follow the whole body of religious traditions that had grown up around it by the instructions of the rabbis over the centuries. Mark comments, (For the Pharisees and all the Jews do not eat unless they wash their hands properly, holding to the tradition of the elders, and when they come from the marketplace, they do not eat unless they wash. And there are many other traditions that they observe, such as the washing of cups and pots and copper vessels and dining couches.) - 7:3-4. Their lives were filled with the observance of hundreds of little rules, but they were the most popular party in the land at the time, holding great influence over the people with their ways. So, because Jesus refused to endorse their rules, they opposed Him. Another group was the:

2. lawyers (mentioned in verse 45) who were also known as and elsewhere called scribes. This was an occupation, not a religious party. They were professional students and teachers of the Law. They were also the ones who wrote by hand meticulous copies of the Scriptures with painstaking carefulness on scrolls. They knew its every line, every phrase, every word and so they were called upon to teach it, especially to the youth. They were THE authorities on what the Scriptures said and what they meant, so when Jesus challenged their traditional interpretations, and by that their authority, they opposed Him. And finally, there was a third group known as:

3. Sadducees (mentioned by Luke later in 20:27) They were a liberal sect of the Jews, mostly composed of important leaders, including many of the Temple priests and the Elders or Sanhedrin. They accepted only the Torah, the 5 books of Moses, as binding and refused to believe anything not mentioned specifically in them. They didn't believe in heaven or hell, a resurrection or an afterlife, but were more concerned with the survival and well-being of the Jewish people and the sacrificial system of the Temple which they controlled. They feared that the massive crowds drawn by Jesus would cause the Romans to destroy the Temple and crush the Jews even more brutally, so they also opposed Him.

And who opposes us today? On one hand are the ultra-separatists who have lots of little rules about how to dress, what you can drink or play or attend, what you can sing or even what Bible you can read. On the other are the educated students of religion, the theologians who have come to make learning and reason their god and have abandoned the idea of simple faith in Jesus for salvation. Still others are the liberal leaders who control many of today's mainline denominations, who have abandoned the authority of the Scriptures as the Word of God and believe only what they choose to believe, much of which is drawn from the culture around us. We who simply love Jesus and regard the Bible as our only authority are often accused of bigotry and hatred toward others, or at least of regarding ourselves as superior to them. We're portrayed as being archaic and ignorant, refusing to accept what everybody knows is true, holding to some ancient, outdated manmade book that nobody believes any more. Paul wrote: We appeal gently when evil things are said about us. Yet we are treated like the world's garbage, like everybody's trash—right up to the present moment. - 1 Cor. 4:13 NLT. And that's how true followers of Jesus are often seen and treated around the world today. I say, even so, sign me up! Count me in! Amen? Well, throughout His ministry, but particularly now toward its latter end:

II. Jesus Was Often Attacked By His Religious Enemies and in chapter 11 we have two of the attacks that were often brought against Him. One is in (14-15). He had just cast a demon out of a man who couldn't talk and suddenly the man could speak again freely, and right away:

1. they accused Him of being an agent of Satan In that day Beelzebul was regarded as the chief of the demons and the name was really a synonym for Satan himself. Matthew and Luke tell us it was the Pharisees and scribes, the religious types, that usually made this accusation, "Jesus, the power you use to do these things is from the devil! WE serve God; you serve Satan!" How many times have believers been called, and still are called today, agents of Satan! But look how Jesus responded (17-18). He said:

a. Satan would never work against his own troops It doesn't make any sense. What general would go into battle and shoot his own soldiers? He would soon lose the battle and the kingdom he was trying to establish would fall! No, Satan would never do that; in fact:

b. only the power of God can expel demons (19-20) "You yourselves have followers who try to cast out demons and sometimes it actually works? Why does it work? You give the credit and the power to God because you know only God can drive out Satan. So, what power do you think must be at work in Me?" Furthermore, think about this (21-22):

c. only one more powerful than Satan could take his property "If a strong well-armed man is guarding his property, the only way to take it away from him is to be stronger and better armed and defeat him and remove his power; THEN you can take his property! To take away Satan's property, to drive out his emissary who operates by his power, it's obvious to anyone with eyes to see that I am stronger than he is!" And:

d. therefore I demand your allegiance (23) "You've got a choice; you are either for Me or you are against Me! There is no middle ground; you can't back off and say, 'OK, well I don't know, I'm not sure.' I am the agent of the Spirit of God and I demand your allegiance!" I think Jesus shouted this to the whole crowd that was standing by marveling at the miracle, yet listening to the accusation of the Pharisees.

Listen, the whole world is divided by that statement into two parts, those who follow Jesus, who are FOR Him, and those who don't. And those who don't follow Him are not neutral; they are actually against Him, opposed to Him! They are part of the enemy camp, captives controlled by him and serving him, whether they realize it or not, and like this mute man, they need set free! Listen to what Paul said, As for you, you were dead in your transgressions and sins, in which you used to live when you followed the ways of this world and of the ruler of the kingdom of the air, the spirit who is now at work in those who are disobedient. All of us also lived among them at one time, gratifying the cravings of our sinful nature and following its desires and thoughts. Like the rest, we were by nature objects of wrath. - Eph. 2:1-3. That's who I was before I gave myself to Christ! That's who you are if you haven't given yourself to Christ! And that's who your neighbors, your friends, your coworkers, and even your loved ones are if they haven't given themselves to Christ! Pray for them! Ask for ways to share Jesus with them! Now the second attack against Jesus actually came on the heels of the first back in verse (16). Others in that same crowd:

2. they demanded that He give them a sign from God Wait a moment, hadn't He just done that? But the casting out of a demon or the healing of a sick person wasn't big enough for them. Satan could cause those things! They wanted a sign from heaven, a sign so big, so powerful, so undeniable, that it had to be from God; they sought a miracle like God did for Moses, the glory cloud in the sky, the voice from heaven, the parting of the Red Sea or the manna. Like many skeptics today, they wanted undeniable proof of the presence of God - on demand! But Jesus answered (29-30). He said:

a. I Myself will be the sign God has given you God doesn't produce signs on demand to suit your whim! I AM the sign. Just as Jonah spent three days in the belly of the fish and came out alive and that was God's sign to the people of Nineveh, so I'm going to die and be buried and rise again on the third day as God's once-for-all-forever sign to you that I am the Son of God!" Then He went on to say that:

b. even pagans recognize God's Presence at work (31-32) The Queen of Sheba saw God's presence in Solomon and went home believing. The pagan Ninevites saw God's presence in Jonah and believed. But now Someone greater than either one of them is here and you can't believe it! Why not?" (33-36):

c. God has shined His light on you but your eyes are blind "He's put his Lamp up on a stand and it's shining brightly; it isn't hidden. The problem is not with lack of a sign to see; it's with your seeing! Your eyes are blind! You don't really want to see! You've let all these blinders of your religious ways make you miss seeing the very Light God has sent you in Me!"

Listen, Jesus still does signs aplenty for His people, especially where the darkness is the deepest and people don't know who He is. He heals people and casts out demons and gives people visions and dreams and all kinds of marvelous things to give light to people who have none at all. He does it all the time in India among the poor! And even all around us He has done the miracle of transforming the lives of people when they trust in Him. I'm one of them and so are most of you! His problem is with those to whom no amount of small miracles will matter, because they don't really want to see. To them He says, "My Resurrection proves who I am once for all; you must choose whether to believe it or not, but I'm alive to prove it!" Now in the last portion of the chapter:

II. Jesus Strongly Condemned His Religious Enemies and He did it on the occasion of being invited, while He was saying all these things, to what we'd call brunch (37-38). Jesus didn't hesitate to eat, even with one who opposed Him, but please understand, this Pharisee didn't invite Jesus in order to learn from Him or because He was His friend. He probably did it to argue with Jesus in the company of the others of his type that he had also invited, away from the crowd, specifically to find some fault in Him and he didn't have to wait long, because Jesus ignored the traditional ceremonial washing of hands before reclining to eat, which shocked him. Jesus must have read the astonishment on his face and launched into a lengthy condemnation of the Pharisees and scribes, and by way of personal application, this is a list of things that we ourselves have to beware of, because it is easy to allow them to creep into our lives, just as the Pharisees had. First of all, Jesus condemned them:

1. for externalism: concern with outward appearance over character (39-41) Elsewhere Jesus accused them of foreclosing on widows' houses and for a pretense making long prayers to give the appearance of caring. Do we care that the inside of our cup is as clean as the outside or is appearance as far as it goes? Second, He condemned them:

2. for legalism: and by that, I mean majoring on minor things and neglecting major things (42) They were meticulous about the command to tithe, down to every little herb that grew in their gardens, but when it came to really important matters like justice, they were willing to turn an innocent man over to the Roman governor and demand that He be crucified on false charges! Do we let ourselves focus on picky little things that are pretty trivial or is what matters most to us doing what's right and loving people? Third, He condemned them:

3. for pride: that is, for seeking recognition from people (43) They did all kinds of things so people would praise them, like choosing to stand on a street corner to pray so the public would notice how religious they were. Do we look for the pat on the back, the applause of the crowd, being told how great we are or do we sincerely strive to please God and have His approval? Then Jesus condemned them:

4. for hypocrisy in all its many forms. He condemned them:

a. for hiding their inner corruption (44) Do we hide who we really are and put on an outer mask to deceive others? He condemned them:

b. for laying burdens on others that they wouldn't assume (45-46) Do we demand or expect things of others that we ourselves aren't willing to do? He condemned them:

c. for pretending to honor the very prophets they disobey (47-48) This is a little harder to understand, but Jesus is saying that their forefathers disobeyed, persecuted and even killed the prophets that God sent them. Now this generation was outwardly rebuilding and embellishing their tombs to honor them but, in their hearts, they were still disobeying them in the same manner their ancestors did! So, do we pretend to honor the Word of God and speak highly of it with our mouths, yet deliberately disobey it in our lives? And finally, He condemned them:

d. for misleading others while pretending to help them (52) In essence He accused them of being false teachers who lead people astray instead of leading them to the real truth. Is the example of our lives one that leads people TO Jesus and the life He intends for them to live or is it one that keeps them from it?

The Jewish sect of the Pharisees fizzled out in the second or third century AD. So, they're gone. If we read this chapter and only think about how bad they were, it will do us no good. It was almost 40 years ago that I first heard this phrase used as a title for a sermon series: The Pharisee In Me. It has stuck with me. What Jesus is really after is for His followers NOT to allow these same things to creep into our lives. Yet they do. They may look a little different, but they do. On his website Frank Powell suggests Twelve Signs You Are A Modern-Day Pharisee

<http://frankpowell.me/12-signs-you-are-modern-day-pharisee/>

1. You believe showing up for worship every Sunday makes you right with God.
2. You spend more time talking about what you are against, not what you are for.
3. You believe God actually needs you.
4. You don't repent of sin...you don't have any "serious" sin to repent of.
5. You make every issue black and white.
6. You would never condone homosexuality or fornication...but have no problem watching movies that do.
7. Your salvation is based on your works, not on Jesus.
8. You read the Bible to substantiate your convictions, not to be shaped into God's image.
9. You believe outsiders should conform to a certain lifestyle before they are accepted as "Christian."
10. You don't know the difference between a convert and a transfer.
11. All of your Christian friends look and act just like you do.
12. If someone tries to rebuke you, you get angry and offended.

Truth be told, there's a little bit of the Pharisee in all of us and God forbid that we would want to harbor anything that makes us like the enemies who opposed Jesus. Let's ask Jesus to root it out and make us pleasing to Him.

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - Lk. 9:51-19:27

The Sermon Of Jesus - Ch. 12

In Luke's Gospel, chapters 10 through the middle of 18 contain material that is only recorded by Luke from the latter part of Jesus' ministry, though in a few verses He does repeat things He had taught on earlier occasions. Any good teacher does that! Chapters 12 through 16 are lumped together as one extended block of teaching given on different occasions through that period. However, chapters 12 and 13 are one message that Jesus delivered all together, one sermon, if you will, given on one particular day. In this message Jesus addresses a number of different issues and we don't have time to examine the whole thing so today we're going to look at the middle section of chapter 12 which focuses on one specific subject. But before we do, notice:

I. The Occasion On Which Jesus Gave This Teaching (1) When Jesus left the Pharisee's house after denouncing His enemies during brunch, a crowd of them followed Him trying to press Him to speak about many things, so they could trap Him into saying something wrong. But in the process, more and more people began to gather until at last:

1. He spoke to a crowd of literally thousands that had gathered. We can hardly picture this. There were so many that there was pushing and shoving to get near Him and people were trampling on each other! He began by talking to His disciples first, warning them against listening to the scribes and Pharisees, but eventually at some point He began speaking loudly to the whole crowd and as He did, He was interrupted (13-14). So, in the block of teaching we're going to study, Jesus:

2. He was responding to the outburst of a greedy man This man was evidently one of a pair of brothers, whose father had recently died. Now the established law among the Jews was to obey God's command in Deut. 21:17 that the firstborn son was to receive a double portion of the inheritance, his father's land and his possessions. So, in this case his brother evidently was oldest and got 2/3 of the inheritance, while he only got 1/3 and he was not satisfied with that. So, he appealed to Jesus as a well-known Rabbi to settle this dispute in his favor and command his brother to share equally. This Jesus refused to do, saying, "I'm not a judge or a mediator whose job is to preside over such legal matters and decide cases! There are legitimate officials in place for that to whom you can bring your case. What concerns Me is the attitude of your heart which is so obvious. You're covetous!"

And with that Jesus launches into an entire discourse to the crowd, which is a blessing for us, because here we have in one unit much of:

II. The Teaching Of Jesus Concerning Material Things in verses (15-34). In (15a) He begins by warning us that:

1. we must carefully guard ourselves against covetousness That's not a word we use much anymore; we would call it greed. Covetousness is the intense selfish desire to have more of something, be it money or possessions or power, or to have something that is not legitimately ours. The tenth commandment forbids us to covet anything that belongs to our neighbor, whether it's his spouse or any of his possessions. If you remember, in the parable of the sower, Jesus warned us that the deceitfulness of riches can choke out the Word of God in a person's life and make them unfruitful, which means it can destroy their relationship with the Lord. Greed is insidious; it's deceitful. It creeps quietly into our lives through some situation that arises, like this inheritance issue which still creates plenty of family disputes today, and the next thing you know, there it is full blown and we're acting greedy, intensely desiring something that's not legally ours or intensely craving more of what we have, loving money more than we love God. Paul warned us that, ...the love of money is a root of all kinds of evils. It is through this craving that some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pangs. - 1 Tim. 1:10. That's why Jesus warned us that we must diligently watch for greed in whatever form it takes, in whatever area of our lives it begins to appear, and deliberately put a stop to it immediately before it can grow. And He went on to tell us several things to remember that will help us do that, like (15b):

a. life is not measured by the amount of our possessions Decades ago, billionaire publisher Malcolm Forbes is reputed to have originated the saying, He who dies with the most toys wins. And even if we laugh and think it's ludicrous, it pretty well embodies the materialism that has embedded itself in our western culture. We always have to have a bigger, better house, a newer, faster car, more and better clothes, or to have more money, as though these things are how our lives are somehow measured. That's not true. Scripture says, Keep your life free from love of money, and be content with what you have, for [God] has said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." - Heb. 13:5. The most important thing in our lives is not how much we have; it is that we have a Heavenly Father who will never leave us nor forsake us! Jesus went on to tell a story to make His point (16-20). What's the point of the story? There's no use in hoarding earthly goods because:

b. death will strip each of us of all our possessions He who dies with the most toys still dies and leaves it all behind to belong to somebody else. There are no U-Haul trailers behind hearses going to the cemetery because You can't take it with you! The Egyptian Pharaohs thought you could and were buried with all kinds of valuables but all their possessions are still here today in our museums! And we could die at any moment! Tomorrow is not guaranteed. We all know someone who died suddenly in an accident or found out they had cancer and died in a month. Tomorrow that could be you or me. So, if the focus of our lives becomes accumulating things, God calls us fools! One day our souls will stand before God and it won't matter how rich we were (21):

c. what matters is to be rich toward God, rich in the way God counts riches. Later on, Jesus told the rich, young ruler, ...Sell all that you have and distribute to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me. (18:22) Use whatever you have to help others in need and to reach others with the Gospel. Paul said we're ...to do good, to be rich in good works, to be generous and ready to share - 1 Tim. 6:18. The world says that you get rich by getting and by keeping. God says that you get rich by giving, by using all that you have, your time, talents and possessions to serve Him by helping others and reaching them with the Gospel.

You know who came to mind as I was thinking about a spiritually rich man? Dear Elwin Palmer whom many of you remember. He had hardly a penny to his name but was always giving of the few dollars he had. He spent much of his life caring for a handicapped wife day after day but prayed for hours for people he knew and for this church and for the work of God all over the world. He died a rich man toward God! Our partner David Dayasagar in India somehow lives on his wife's salary of $450 a month, but every day from 5 AM prayer time until most nights 11 PM when he gets home, he is going to this village and that village, in this meeting and that meeting, preaching, baptizing, encouraging and helping the evangelists that God has raised up and out of that more than 2,000 Yenadi people have come to Christ! He lives in a simple 5 room house but he is a rich man toward God! Being covetous makes you spiritually poor! Now the next principle Jesus gives us is in (22):

2. do not be anxious about material needs For most of us living where we do, we take the basic things of life for granted, but for many believers throughout history and around the world today, concern for food, clothing, shelter and other simple necessities are daily concerns. Many millions of people only eat tonight if they have work today and have nothing to sustain them if there is a medical event or accident or the loss of work. Yet even right here, the question of how we're going to pay our rent or buy food or get our kids clothes for school is a very real issue to many, even to some of our body! But Jesus says to us as His followers and God's children, "Don't be anxious, don't be troubled and live in fear of not having those basic things you need to sustain life!" Why not? Well, for one thing (23):

a. life is more than material things Martin Luther said, You turn it exactly round; food is meant to serve life, but life forsooth serves food; clothes are to serve the body, but the body forsooth must serve the clothing, and so blind is the world that it sees not this. If you spend your life and use your body to focus on seeking food and clothing, you miss the very purpose for which God has given you the precious gift of life and a body! That's not what you're here for! And for another thing, Jesus says:

b. consider God's provision in nature (24, 27-28) God feeds the ravens and all the little birds you see all winter long; they don't store up food ahead to make sure they have enough! God cares for them every day. And He clothes the flowers and the grasses of the field with incredible beauty every year, without them having to work hard to make their own garments. Elsewhere the Bible says God cares for every creature in nature and gives them their food in season. He's arranged for everything to be fed and appropriately clothed; why would He do less for you when you are of far more value to Him than any of them? And beyond that, Jesus says:

c. worrying cannot change even the smallest thing (25-26) Let's say you live 70 years; that's 613,200 hours. Wouldn't it be a small thing to add just one day or even one hour to your life span? But will worrying about it accomplish that? Being anxious accomplishes nothing; it changes nothing. Paul said, "Be anxious for nothing; rather pray about everything! Make your requests known to God!" He's the One who provides, who heals, who determines whether we have or have not, whether we live or die! It all hangs on Him, not on you, so, Jesus says thirdly:

3. focus instead on advancing God's Kingdom (29-31) Always:

a. remember that God is your Father! Fathers take care of their children! Fathers put their children and their needs first above their own. Fathers lay down their lives for their children. And your Father is a good, good Father! The best Father! You are not like the rest of the world! They don't have a father to care for them and provide for them. They're on their own! They have to get their living for themselves, even though God is often gracious to them and gives them sun and rain and all the means to live. But they have no promise of it, no one taking responsibility for their care. When you worry inordinately about all these things, you forget who you are; you forget who your Father is and act like a pagan! Further:

b. remember that He is omniscient and knows your needs There are days when you might be tempted to think that He has overlooked your need somehow or that He just doesn't know exactly what you think you need. But He knows everything, everything there is to know! He knows exactly what you need and when you need it and how dependent you are and how upset you are when you can't see a way for your need to be met! So, rather than worrying like the rest of the world, act like you have a Heavenly Father and:

c. trust Him to care for your needs as you serve His purpose Now, I'm not saying that you shouldn't work or that you shouldn't work hard. Paul commanded the Thessalonians, ...If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat. - 2 Thes. 3:10. God doesn't intend for us to lay idly around, expecting God to drop manna from heaven. In fact, He most often provides for us by giving us work! Yet even though we work, we don't trust in our own hands, in our own abilities, in our own capacity to find opportunities to work. We trust in Him to care for us, refuse to worry about how He will do it and proceed to focus our energy and our prayers on the things He's called and commanded us to do, the things that will bring other people to faith and maturity in Jesus Christ! That's called advancing His Kingdom, increasing His rule and reign over the lives of people He's given us to minister to. There is an anecdotal story which says that Queen Elizabeth once sent an ambassador far away on important and difficult business. He objected, saying to the queen, "But what will become of my business and my family?" The queen replied, "You take care of my business and I will take care of yours." And she did. That is exactly what our Heavenly Father has said to us, "You focus on My Kingdom, on My purposes, on following My calling and obeying what I ask you to do, and I will personally make sure that all these other things you need are added to you! You focus on taking care of My business and I will take care of yours!" Hallelujah, what a promise! And not merely that, Jesus went on to say:

d. remember that He has given you an eternal Kingdom (32) "Don't be afraid that you won't have what you need. Don't be afraid because you're little and small and there aren't many of you and life in this world seems tough. One day the Son of Man will come in all His glory and all the nations of the earth will be gathered before Him and He, the King, will say to the little flock of sheep on His right, 'Come, you who are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world'. Your Father loves you. Your Father saved you at great cost! And your Father has prepared for you an eternal Kingdom where you will walk with Him forever and enjoy all the things that eye has not seen and ear has not heard, things that have never even entered the heart of man to imagine! And He doesn't HAVE to do it; He WANTS to do it! He is pleased to do it! It gives Him great joy to have you with Him forever! Focus on THAT and all the worries of this life will fade into insignificance!" Amen? So rather than worrying about what you'll have:

e. share what He has given you instead of hoarding it (33a) The rich man in Jesus' story had enough goods to take care of him for many years, way more than he would ever need. But instead of sharing his bounty with the poor and needy who were struggling, he wanted to build bigger barns to hoard it for himself, so he would feel secure. That's the attitude that Jesus is confronting. He's not saying, "Sell everything you have and take a vow of poverty." He's saying, "Instead of keeping everything you have to make yourself feel secure, look at the need of the poor, look at the need of those unreached with the Gospel around the world, and sell off what you don't need to live to meet the crying needs around you and advance My Kingdom!" That's what we read about in the early church in Acts, Now the full number of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one said that any of the things that belonged to him was his own, but they had everything in common... There was not a needy person among them, for as many as were owners of lands or houses sold them and brought the proceeds of what was sold and laid it at the apostles' feet, and it was distributed to each as any had need. - 4:32, 34-35. They didn't sell the houses they lived in and become a commune, or the field that gave their livelihood, but those who were wealthier and had extra houses and fields sold them and gave to meet the needs of others who didn't have enough. This is so foreign to our culture. We're told that to be secure in our old age we ought to literally have a million dollars or probably even more in our retirement investments so the interest can sustain us. Listen, I'm not against saving for retirement, but if you die with a million dollars in the bank do you realize how many missionaries could have been sent out, how many thousands of people could hear the Gospel for the first time, how many villages could have had clean water to drink, how many families could have their ruined homes rebuilt after a typhoon or earthquake, if you would give even a portion of it away?!!! At least leave it to the church when you die so we can do all those things with it for you! Jesus' point was not that we should have nothing; He said our Father would see that we have all we need and that means having something! His point was the attitude we should have (33b-34). His point is that we should:

f. treasure heavenly things, not earthly things, that what we should value most and what should be most important to us are the things that eternal, the things that last forever, like people, people becoming part of God's Kingdom and Jesus having more and more to worship Him and spend eternity with Him. If we treasure these things and live for them first, our Father will see that we have all we need to live today! What we value, what we treasure, shows what our heart is truly like, what it really loves!

John Piper is one of my favorite authors and theologians and he calls living like this "living a wartime lifestyle". He says, The aim of wartime living is not that we go without, [rather, that] We are able to accomplish more things by a reallocation of resources from self-gratification to mission penetration... It began with Ralph Winter, one of my favorite missionary heroes who is now with the Lord. He was great statesman in his day... He pointed out that in the Second World War the luxury ocean liner, Queen Mary, was transformed into a troop transport. This was wartime use of a luxury liner, and he described in detail the dramatic changes. How so many people slept in a room — like twelve instead of three. The kind of utensils that were used in the now-called mess hall instead of the [elegant silver and china] of the beautiful dining room. On and on he goes, creating a sense for us that during World War II there were changes. Life didn't just go on as usual. He stressed that God's people, in a prosperous land like America, simply cannot live as though there were not thousands of unreached people groups who are under enemy control. We have from our commander in chief a commission to go. We have the most powerful liberating bomb in the world called the gospel. Therefore, to just carry on our lives in this country as though it were peacetime shows how out of touch we are with biblical reality.

[\[https://www.desiringgod.org/interviews/is-wartime-living-the-same-as-minimalism\]](https://www.desiringgod.org/interviews/is-wartime-living-the-same-as-minimalism) Jesus said, guard yourself against covetousness. It's insidious; it creeps into our lives and we don't realize it. Don't worry and be anxious about your material needs; your Heavenly Father loves you and He'll take care of you! Instead, use everything you've got to advance God's Kingdom; that's why you're on earth! Set your heart on treasures in heaven.

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - Lk. 9:51-19:27

The Warning Of Jesus - Ch. 13

The sermon that Jesus gave to the huge crowd in chapter 12 continues through the first nine verses of chapter 13. Then He teaches in a synagogue in verse 10 and then goes on teaching and traveling on His journey toward Jerusalem in verse 22. But even though the locations are different, the theme that unites this chapter is that all through it, Jesus is giving a very strong warning, both specifically to Israel and to all people on earth. We love to think and talk of the sweet side of Jesus, how He loves us and cares for us and carries us through all our sufferings. But there is another side to His character and to His message, one we don't like to think about. Acts 17:31 says, ...[God] has fixed a day on which he will judge the world in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed; and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead. Jesus is the Judge of all the earth. He himself said, The Father judges no one, but has given all judgment to the Son - John 5:22. Today, Jesus lovingly and mercifully makes Himself available to be the Savior of all who will believe, but on that day, He will be the Judge who passes the sentence of eternal death on those who will not. This theme runs through four sections of teaching in this chapter and each has a slightly different emphasis. In the first section Jesus emphasizes:

I. The Need Of Repentance (1-5) [Read 1] As Jesus winds up His sermon, some in the crowd had evidently been watching CNN that day and reported to Him the news of a fresh atrocity that Pontius Pilate had committed. A group of people from Galilee, perhaps followers of Judas the Galilean mentioned in Acts 5:37 who had tried to foment a rebellion against Rome, were in the Temple offering sacrifices to God, when Pilate sent a detachment of soldiers and ruthlessly slaughtered them, so that their own blood was mingled with that of the animals they sacrificed. However, it seems they mentioned this to Him, not to condemn Pilate for his heinous act, but to somehow imply that these Galileans deserved what they got. Note Jesus' reply (2-5). He said, those Galileans weren't killed because they were worse sinners than everybody else, nor were the 18 men who were killed in the recent collapse of a stone tower in Jerusalem worse sinners than others (You see, Jesus read the news too!). And before we point the finger at them, let's remember that sometimes we think like that.

1. we may think God is punishing others for their sins through catastrophes like these. If a guy gets drunk and gets into his car and takes off and smashes into a telephone pole and dies, instead of having pity for the poor man and his family, there's a part of us that justifies ourselves and thinks, "He got what he deserved! We're better than him so that won't happen to us!" If a prostitute in Kensington is kidnapped and murdered, instead of having pity for the suffering of the poor woman, there's a part of us that thinks, "Oh well, she lived a wicked lifestyle so something like that was inevitable. I'm glad I'm not like her; that won't happen to me!" But Jesus said, "No! That's not true. Those people are no worse sinners than you or anyone else. Human beings are ALL sinners before God and the size of our crimes is irrelevant! You're taking the wrong lesson out of this."

2. catastrophes serve to remind us that worse judgment will fall on us all if we do not repent of our sins Tragic deaths remind us that we're all going to die, and if we die without repenting of our sins and turning to Jesus for salvation, we will truly perish and that will be a great tragedy! Now in the immediate sense:

a. this was true of Israel nationally Jesus was saying, "Unless you Israelites ALL repent of your sins before God and follow Me as your Messiah and Savior, your whole nation is going to perish in a tragedy just like this! And it did. Less than 40 years later, a Roman general named Titus laid siege to the city of Jerusalem and destroyed it and the Temple. Thousands of Jews were slaughtered outright and thousands more were enslaved and sent to toil in the mines of Egypt or dispersed to arenas throughout the Empire to be butchered for the amusement of the public. On the one hand, Jesus was saying to the Jews, "This tragedy is just a little picture of the tremendous calamity that is going to happen to all of you if you don't change the attitude of your hearts and turn to Me! You will all perish!" On the other hand:

b. His words are true of all of US personally Does that word perish remind you of anything? Flip over with me to John 3:16-18. How many times have we said our favorite verse but lingering on the word love and quickly passing by the word perish? Jesus said that every human being stands condemned already, condemned by the sins they have committed. They will perish; they will die not just physically, but eternally, unless they believe in the Lord Jesus Christ as their only way of salvation! That is true of every one of us personally. That is true of everyone in our family. That is true of everyone in our neighborhood, in our community, of everyone we work with or go to school with or know in any way. They will all likewise perish if they do not repent of their sins and believe in Jesus. Now immediately Jesus goes on to teach about:

II. The Patience Of God (6-9) A tree that never bears fruit takes up space that could be used to grow productive plants and it uses up resources that could be better used by other fruitful trees, yet the caretaker says, "I know it's been three years and the fig tree should be bearing fruit, but please let's give it another year and I'll fertilize it really well. Let's give it one more chance to bear fruit!" That's the attitude of Jesus and that's the attitude of our Heavenly Father. Now, the fig tree has always been a symbol of the nation of Israel; every Jew knew that, so Jesus was teaching that:

1. despite His patience with and goodness to Israel, she did not bear fruit He had already been preaching all over the land in public ministry for three years and, even though some believed, as a nation she was still not turning her heart back to God. And even now He was willing to enter another year with her and give His utmost to reach her, even allowing Himself to be crucified and raised from the dead! He went to great lengths to save her, but if she refused, eventually she would have to be cut down, which she was, and even that was nearly 40 years later! God is patient! And likewise:

2. He is patient with us because He does not want any to perish The reason Jesus hasn't returned yet to judge the world is given us by Peter, The Lord is not slow to fulfill his promise as some count slowness, but is patient toward you, not wishing that any should perish, but that all should reach repentance. - 2 Pet. 3:9. Did you hear that? God does not wish anyone to perish! He takes no pleasure in the death of the wicked! He did not create human beings to see them destroyed; He wants to save them all and have them spend eternity with Him! So, He is patient, holding off His judgment, giving opportunity after opportunity after opportunity, yet never forcing them to believe against their will. Just this past week, we found out that an elderly man of 90+ for whom we've been praying in the hospital and rehab center, has finally come to place his trust in Jesus as his Savior! Hallelujah! Heaven is rejoicing and we should too! How many times over the years have we seen people, even at the very end of their lives, finally come to faith! Why? Because God is patient with us and not only that:

3. He is kind to us to lead us to repentance - Rom. 2:4 in the NLT says, Don't you see how wonderfully kind, tolerant, and patient God is with you? Does this mean nothing to you? Can't you see that his kindness is intended to turn you from your sin? God is kind to us; He is good to us. He showers us with blessings that we don't deserve, from His provision for our daily lives, to our family, to many kind and good things that He sends into our lives. Yet we so often fail to see that they are from His hand and turn to Him! We take them for granted or think they come by chance or that we deserve them somehow, but in these things, God is fertilizing the tree of our lives, giving us tender care so that it will bear fruit and we'll turn to Him and believe! And yet so many just can't see it or refuse to believe it. And that takes us to the third section in this chapter where Jesus teaches about:

III. The Narrow Door Of The Gospel (22-28) Now, why a person in the crowd would have asked this question randomly we don't really know, except that there seems to have been some debate among the Jews in Jesus' day as to whether all Jews would have a part in the Kingdom or whether only a select few of the best would enter it, as only Joshua and Caleb got to go into the Promised Land in their generation. So maybe this man was trying to get Jesus to settle the debate, but Jesus was really clear and forceful in His answer, not to settle a theological question, but to give a strong warning that applied then as it does now. He said the way to heaven is a narrow door. In other words:

1. comparatively few people will be saved and enter the Kingdom Earlier, in the Sermon on the Mount, Jesus used the same figure even more plainly. Turn with me to Mt. 7:13-14. The way to heaven is a narrow door, a narrow gate; the path that leads there is narrow and hard to find. When you consider the huge mass of mankind on the earth, only a few find it! The road to destruction is a 12 lane highway that is entered by massively wide gate; it's easy to find and easy to follow and the vast majority of people are traveling it! We don't like to think like that. We'd love to assume that everybody is OK, that most people are going to wind up in heaven somehow, unless they're murderers or criminals or something like that. But that's not how it works! Jesus said, I AM the Way... NO ONE comes to the Father except through Me! Only those who come to Jesus and give their lives to Him receive His eternal life and enter His Kingdom! Yes, our number has grown from a tiny mustard seed into a huge tree of hundreds of millions of believers and it has permeated the world pretty thoroughly, just like a pinch of yeast permeates a whole huge chunk of bread dough. But despite all that growth still literally 90% of the people in the world are on the broad road to destruction and a similar percentage of the people you see and interact with every day are also on that broad road. Now, unlike other places, where we live it's likely that most or all of those have at least heard about Christ and quite a few of them, if asked, might even say that they are Christian because they have some vague connection to a church or give mental assent to some Christian beliefs, however, Jesus went on to strongly emphasize that:

2. the majority of people will be barred from entering the Kingdom, even if they are acquainted with Christ He said, "When time's over and the door is shut, many 12-lane folks are going to bang on it and beg for it to be opened. They'll say, 'But we ate and drank in Your presence; You taught in our streets! We know about You!! We belonged to a church. We said the Creed!' But it will be too late." While you're in Matthew, look at Mt. 7:21-23. Only those who KNOW Christ, who have a living personal relationship and union with Him, get to go in. It doesn't matter how often they went to church, how many prayers they said or even if they served in ministry or did mighty things using His Name! They'll have to depart from Him because they don't belong to Him. They don't KNOW Him personally. And where will they go? Jesus said: In that place there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth...

3. they will suffer eternal punishment Flip over with me to Mt. 13:49-50. Yes, there IS a hell, a place of fire and suffering and Jesus warned about being thrown into it in 10 separate verses in the Gospels and He mentioned being cast into eternal fire in 11 verses! We so easily want to believe there's a heaven, but Jesus reiterated over and over again that there is a hell and the vast majority of people are on the road to it, to suffering that is eternal, that never ends! And then people around us cry, "But how could a loving God send anyone to hell!" It's obvious that they don't know:

IV. The Heart Of Jesus which is revealed to us in our last section in Luke 13 This is not some teaching, some lecture being given to a crowd; this is an expression that welled up out of Jesus' heart as He pressed on toward Jerusalem (34-35). Notice five things about Jesus in this cry, first hear:

1. the longing of His heart for people Hear Him sigh as He says, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! O religious but rebellious wicked people, I really, really wanted to gather you to Myself!" The NIV says, I have LONGED to gather you! Jesus' heart longs for people, it yearns for people to know Him, to belong to Him, even for those who are hypocrites and do the worst things imaginable to the very people He's sent to invite them. Next notice:

2. the tenderness of His heart toward people "I want to gather you the way a mother hen wants to tenderly sweep all of her chicks under the strong protection of her wings so they are safe." There is nothing mechanical about Jesus saving us. He is loving toward us, compassionate, tender, like a mother toward her children. He tenderly cares for people. Third, notice:

3. the patience of His heart with people "How often would I have gathered you to Myself! I've wanted to do this, I've tried to do this time and time again, over and over. I sent people to tell you. I warned you. I begged and pleaded with you to come to me." Jesus doesn't give up easily. He is patient with us. He gives us opportunity after opportunity, speaking to us in this way and that way and another way. But also notice:

4. the obstinance of people to refuse Him What sad words, and you were not willing! Rather than repent of sins and turn to Jesus, people would rather shoot the messenger or simply ignore the message. And God gives us all that freedom to say, "No!" He will not drag anyone into the Kingdom screaming and kicking against their will! He will pursue and woo and call and persuade, but He will not force people to come to Him. And so, in verse 35 notice:

5. the justice He must eventually give to people In Israel's case, their Temple would soon be vacated; God would no longer be present there and Jesus would soon be gone, not to return for many centuries. Their opportunity would be past and a just destruction lay ahead. When, despite all of Jesus' efforts to draw people to Himself, they will not come, there is nothing left when they die or He returns, but to be cast into hell because of their sins. That is Jesus' stern warning. Those who will not respond to love will suffer justice.

So how does that warning impact us who believe. Well, we could wipe our brows and say, "Phew, I'm glad that's not me!" Or we could have the same heart Jesus has and join Him in loving people! Amy Carmichael was a missionary to India for some 50 years, mostly rescuing young Hindu girls from being forced into temple prostitution. Though she died in 1951, her writings have inspired many to join God in reaching people. One night Amy had a vision; she writes: The tom-toms thumped straight on all night, and the darkness shuddered round me like a living, feeling thing. I could not go to sleep, so I lay awake and looked; and I saw, as it seemed, this: That I stood on a grassy sward, and at my feet a precipice broke sheer down into infinite space. I looked, but saw no bottom; only cloud shapes, black furiously coiled, and great shadow-shrouded hollows, and unfathomable depths. Back I drew, dizzy at the depth. Then I saw forms of people moving single file along the grass. They were making for the edge. There was a woman with a baby in her arms and another with a little child holding on to her dress. She was on the very verge. Then I saw that she was blind. She lifted her foot for the next step ...it trod air. She was over, and the children over with her. Oh, the cry as they went over! Then I saw more streams of people flowing from all quarters. All were blind, stone blind; all made straight for the precipice edge. There were shrieks as they suddenly knew themselves falling, and a tossing up of helpless arms, catching, clutching at empty air. But some went over quietly, and fell without a sound. Then I wondered, with a wonder that was simply agony, why no one stopped them at the edge. I could not. I was glued to the ground, and I could not call; though I strained and tried, only a whisper would come. Then I saw that along the edge there were sentries set at intervals. But the intervals were far too great; there were wide, unguarded gaps between. And over these gaps the people fell in their blindness, quite unwarned; and the green grass seemed blood-red to me, and the gulf yawned like the mouth of hell.

Then I saw, like a little picture of peace, a group of people under some trees, with their backs turned towards the gulf. They were making daisy chains. Sometimes when a piercing shriek cut the quiet air and reached them, it disturbed them, and they thought it a rather vulgar noise. And if one of their number started up and wanted to go and do something to help, then all the others would pull that one down. "Why should you get so excited about it? You must wait for a definite call to go! You have not finished your daisy chain yet. It would be really selfish," they said, "to leave us to finish the work alone."... Once a girl stood alone in her place, waving the people back; but her mother and other relations called and reminded her that her furlough was due; she must not break the rules. And being tired and needing a change, she had to go and rest for a while; but no one was sent to guard her gap, and over and over the people fell, like a waterfall of souls. Once...the girl who longed to be back in her gap thought she heard a little one cry, and she sprang up and wanted to go; at which they reproved her, reminding her that no one is necessary anywhere; the gap would be well taken care of, they knew. And then they sang a hymn.

*Then through the hymn came another sound like the pain of a million broken hearts wrung out in one full drop, one sob. And a horror of great darkness was upon me, for I knew what it was — the Cry of the Blood. Then thundered a Voice, the Voice of the Lord: And He said, "What have you done? The voice of your brothers' blood cries unto Me from the ground." Then the vision was over and Amy says, The tom-toms still beat heavily, the darkness still shuddered and shivered about me ...What does it matter, after all? It has gone on for years; it will go on for years. Why make such a fuss about it? God forgive us! God arouse us! Shame us out of our callousness! Shame us out of our sin! [Amy Carmichael, taken from Things as They Are: Mission Work in Southern India] That night Amy Carmichael heard the heart of Jesus; will we?*

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - Lk. 9:51-19:27

The Banquet Of Jesus - Ch. 14

It seems to be a universal fact that human beings love to eat together; they love to have a big meal and enjoy one another's company. I'm guessing a number of us had special Superbowl parties Sunday with all the appropriate foods, wings and pizza and hoagies, because it's no fun to watch and eat alone. So many of our special events in life are built around food; eating together builds a bond of relationship. Well, in Luke 14 we find Jesus once again going to a dinner (1). It seems like, in spite of His stinging remarks to them, the Pharisees kept on inviting Jesus to dinner, though their motive was never truly friendly. They only wanted to scrutinize Him to find some fault or weakness, but He kept on going to their houses just the same. He ate even with His enemies! But this time it becomes an occasion for Jesus to teach four great lessons which Luke has recorded for us. The first is:

I. A Lesson About Legalism in verses (2-6) Read (2). Now notice:

1. the occasion As Jesus is entering the Pharisee's house a man with dropsy steps in front of Him. Now, dropsy is the archaic term for what we call edema, a condition where the person retains water and it causes the tissues to swell, particularly in their legs, arms and even face, and this man must have had a noticeably bad case of it. Whether this guy was planted there by the Pharisees or just happened to come at that moment, we don't know, but either way, Jesus used his appearance to pose to the Pharisees and lawyers (scribes):

2. the question of whether healing is working on the Sabbath and breaking the fourth Commandment (3) Of course, we know what they thought from other occasions where Jesus healed people on the Sabbath and they objected strenuously to it. In fact, in the last chapter Jesus healed a woman who had been bent over for 18 years on the Sabbath in one of the synagogues. Look at 13:14. "Yes, it's working and no, it's not lawful!" was in their minds this day also but they didn't say it (4). He healed the man anyway and then politely sent him on so He could continue reproving His hosts (5-6). Do you get:

3. Jesus' lesson? If your child or even your animal falls into a well and it happens to be the Sabbath day, what do you naturally do? You pull them out; you don't even think about it or hesitate! Why? Because God never meant the Sabbath rest law to prevent you from saving someone's life or protecting them from danger; it was meant to provide mankind with a day of rest from his normal labor and teach him dependence on God to supply instead of his own hands. Yet the Jews had made keeping the letter of the law more important than its intent. In fact, centuries later, Rabbis gave their own rule to cover this exact situation, probably in response to this very example that Jesus proposed: If a beast fall into a ditch, or a pool of water, if food can be given it, where it is, they feed it till the going out of the sabbath; but if not, bolsters and pillows may be brought, and put under it, and if it can come out: it may come out. [Gill's commentary on Mt. 12:11]. So, if it's the Sabbath, you don't pull your cow out of the ditch, you drop some grain in and let it suffer there until tomorrow. I wonder how that works if it's your son, "It's OK son, just stay down there in that well and I'll drop you a sandwich and some pillows and pull you up tomorrow! We can't break the Sabbath rule!" What if ambulance drivers wouldn't work on the Sabbath? "Just lay there on the highway tonight and we'll get you some blankets; tomorrow we'll take you to the hospital!" How ridiculous! Everybody except the Pharisees knows that genuine love trumps superficial obedience and rule-keeping. In 1940 Corrie Ten Boom began to hide Jews in a safe room in her house. She lied to the Nazis, stole ration cards and forged documents, all to save them from capture and the concentration camps. It bothered her conscience because it went against everything she valued to lie and steal, but she knew loving them by saving their lives was more important than shallowly obeying the letter of God's law! And even when it's not so serious as that, we need to keep the same thing in mind. The story was told some years ago of a pastor who found the roads blocked one winter Sunday morning and was forced to skate on the river to get to church, which he did. When he arrived, the elders of the church were horrified that their preacher had skated on the Lord's Day. After the service they held a meeting where the pastor explained that it was either skate to church or not go at all. Finally, one elder asked, "Did you enjoy it?" When the preacher answered, "No," the board decided it was all right! [Today in the Word, December, 1989, p. 12]. We laugh at the absurdity, but how often do we insist that people, especially our children, blindly follow rules that we've invented or interpretations that we have imposed upon the scriptures, rather than seeking the heart of God about what He would have them to do.

So, Jesus goes on into the banquet in the Pharisee's house and finds a place to be seated and as He does, He gives to the invited guests:

II. A Lesson About Humility (7-11) Read (7) As He watched the guests finding their places:

1. He saw people seeking places of honor for themselves Now keep in mind that guests did not sit on chairs at a table to eat like we do. They reclined at table. The table was made by three low tables placed so as to form three sides of a square with a clear space in the middle. Around these tables were placed cushions called triclinia, each capable of containing three or more persons on which the guests lay and leaned on their left side, with their feet extended from the table. The most important place was the middle one on each couch and likewise, all the groups of three tables were arranged so that the middle group in the room was the most important, so the most honored guests were in the middle group in the middle of the room and so on down from there. So, Jesus noticed that all the guests were trying to get the middle seats for themselves and trying to be closest to the center of the room; obviously, they were doing it so that they would be honored above the others by their seating, and it bothered Jesus enough to address them all (8). He said, "If you take the best seat:

2. someone more worthy may deserve the honor and you're essentially taking it from them! Someone older, someone more to be respected than you may be coming and, in trying to honor yourself, you're occupying their rightful place. That's not right and what's more (9). You'll get asked to move and make room for them and it'll be embarrassing to you:

3. self-exultation often results in shame When we get puffed up and try to make much of ourselves, we very often get cut down to size, don't we? When we boast how great we are at something, somebody better often comes along and we feel ashamed of how we boasted. You see:

4. honor is meant to come to us from others, not ourselves (10) Honor is a gift to be recognized and bestowed by others; it exists in their eyes, not our own, so Jesus' advice is always, "Take the lowest seat! Assume the role and the position of a servant. Be humble and don't think more highly of yourself than of others. If there is honoring to be done, don't seek it, but let others take the initiative to honor you so it is genuine." And then Jesus turns to the Scripture reinforce His:

5: Jesus' lesson (11) There is God's Kingdom principle, not just in banquet seating, but in life itself: if you exalt yourself, you will eventually be humbled, but if you humble yourself, if you continually act in humility, you will eventually be exalted! Why is that? Look with me at 1 Pet. 5:5b, God humbles the proud but exalts the lowly! God is the One who does it! He makes it happen. Pride goes before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall - Prov. 16:18. Why? Because God makes it so! He opposes the proud! Those who seek glory for themselves are trying to steal it from Him and He will not have it! But He gives grace to the humble! He is near to the meek and the poor and the oppressed, to those who seek Him and need Him! Jesus is saying, "Decide whether you want God with you or against you!" I read a paraphrase of this verse that said, "God pickles the proud and preserves the foolish!" So, do you want to get pickled or preserved?! Even in the small things like where we choose to sit, Paul tells us, Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit, but in humility consider others better than yourselves. - Phil. 2:3. And then Jesus turned from the guests to the host and gave a third lesson:

III. A Lesson About Generosity (12-14) Now, obviously, Jesus is not saying that we should absolutely never have a gathering with our friends. He's speaking in the same manner that He did down in verse 26 where He says to be His disciple you must hate your parents and your wife and children. That's in direct contradiction, not only to the fifth commandment, but to every directive concerning family in Scripture. He doesn't mean it literally; He means that we must love Him MORE than any other human being and be willing to choose Him over them if it comes to that (and it does in many places in the world, like India!) Here He's not being literal either; He's saying:

1. do not ONLY be generous with those who will naturally return the favor All the guests that day were well to do Pharisees and Scribes and this was more than tonight's supper. It was a rather lavish banquet, something the host and his friends often did with each other. Jesus is addressing another form of selfishness, using your wealth and the blessings God has given you to benefit only yourself and those just like you, especially those who will turn around and do the same to you. He's saying that we should:

2. intentionally consider and include those who are in genuine need and invite them to enjoy our blessings with us. Sometimes that means literally inviting people to come and eat and share in your feast along with you, like we do down at Cast Your Cares each month serving breakfast to the homeless. Other times it may mean directly giving to those who are struggling. A number of you helped us to bless one of our Nursery School families from the community. They just had their sixth child and couldn't afford the tuition for their two children any longer. Altogether you shared $2100 to fully meet this family's need for the year and bless their children! That's inviting people you don't even know to share your banquet! You don't know it, but through your generosity to our Elders Fund you paid the majority of this month's rent for one of our number who's struggling right now. They're enjoying the banquet with the others of us! That's what Jesus is trying to cultivate in us; as Paul put it, Do not merely look out for your own personal interests, but also for the interests of others. - Phil. 2:4. Moreover, Jesus said that:

3. God will reward this kind of generosity to the needy On that day when those of us who believe in Jesus stand in our new bodies before the judgment seat of Christ to receive rewards for the things done in this life, He will not forget even such a small act of kindness as giving a cup of cold water in His Name to someone who is thirsty! Jesus said, you will certainly not lose your reward! - Mt. 10:42. However your motive can never be to GET something for yourself; it must always be true generosity born out of love and care for others.

Well, Jesus' mention of a banquet and of eternal reward moved one of the men reclining at His table (15). This became the opportunity to tell another parable in which He gives:

IV. A Lesson About Audacity in verses (16-24). The Jews expected that when Messiah would come and set up his Kingdom that God would prepare a great banquet, a great feast for His people to celebrate. Jesus Himself taught that:

1. God is preparing a great banquet in His Kingdom He said that many will come from the east and the west, and will take their places at the feast with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. In Revelation, John called it the Marriage Supper of the Lamb. Jesus told several parables depicting the Kingdom of God as a great feast prepared for His people and this is one of them (16). The certain man is God Himself and the banquet is life in the Kingdom with Himself; it's an eternal forever feast, a time of great joy. (17) Like any host:

2. He sent His Servant to call those who were invited to come and in this story, the Servant is Jesus Himself. For more than three years He had been traveling about Galilee and visiting Jerusalem, calling the people of God to come to the banquet by believing in Him. He, the Messiah, was here and it was time for God's banquet. Oh, by the way, you're invited too! Jesus says, "Come to Me that you might have life and life more abundant! We'll have a forever party with all of God's people! Do you want to come?" The invitation is still open, but in that day, there was a problem:

3. those who were invited (and by that Jesus was pointing directly to the Jewish leaders, the very people present in the room and lying around the table with Him) didn't want to come and made flimsy excuses (18a).

a. some used business as an excuse (18b-19) Now tell me, who buys a field without seeing it first? And who would go out to see a field or to begin plowing a field with oxen at supper time when the sun is going down? It's obvious that these are simply polite ways of saying, "I don't want to come! I refuse to come!" You know, people still use their business as an excuse not to follow Jesus in all kinds of ways. They're focused on making money; they give all their time and attention to their job because material things are what matter to them. They don't have time or interest in the things Jesus has to offer them; they don't even want to hear it, even though they might make polite excuses when you try to reach into their lives and invite them. Then others:

b. some used family as an excuse (20) That sounds familiar; how many times do guys say, "I'd love to go but my wife won't let me!" He probably meant something more like, "I just got married and according to Deut. 24:5 I am officially excused from all public duties so I won't come!" But then why would you have agreed to come in the first place?! It's a flimsy excuse. But people use family as an excuse not to follow Jesus all the time, "My wife wouldn't approve; my parents wouldn't approve; they'll disown me." Of course, some places in the world that's a really serious issue; their family will actually throw them out or beat them or literally try to kill them if they follow Jesus. But here it's a pretty low key excuse that basically says, "I don't want to".

Do you see the audacity that the Jewish leaders displayed? They who knew and professed to believe the Scriptures should have been the first to recognize and follow Jesus to the banquet. Yet they stubbornly, openly and even vehemently refused to come! What an insult to God! So, what did He do? (21). When the leaders wouldn't come:

4. God invited the nearby poor (by which Jesus meant the Jewish masses) and they gladly came. The poor and the sick and the needy in Israel flocked to Jesus by the hundreds and the thousands all over Galilee during His ministry. They were thrilled to hear that God cared about them and wanted them in His Kingdom and they believed. But that was still not enough for God. His banquet hall was still not full (22-23). Here the parable moves to the future and:

5. now God is in the process of sending His servant (who is now the Church) to those who are far away, out of the "city" of Israel, who live out in the country lanes and behind the hedges, out in the rest of the world. He means, of course, the Gentiles, the other nations of the world. And He says, "When you find people there, urge them strongly to come in! Make your invitation compelling, "Our Master loves you and has prepared a great banquet for you to enjoy. Please, oh PLEASE, come to it! Believe in Jesus, the Savior of the world and come to His banquet!" That's what the church has been doing the last 2000 years, though we haven't done a very thorough job of it. That's what the church is doing today, what we're doing today, taking the Good News of a great eternal Banquet that has been prepared for all who will believe in God's Son Jesus for the forgiveness of their sins and saying, "Come, oh, please come to Jesus! The Father has a full banquet prepared and a half full house. You are not only welcome; you are WANTED!" You see:

6. God WILL have His house filled It will happen! Read the end of the book and there at the feast in heaven in the Father's house you'll find some from every tribe, language, people and nation, from every country lane and behind every hedge to the very ends of the earth! Hallelujah! God will not rest until His great banquet hall is filled, until He has worshippers from every people to join Him in His forever celebration. But the stinging point is verse (24). Those who were initially invited are excluded! He's saying to all the Jewish leaders in the room, "Because of your audacity in rejecting Me and My invitation, YOU will never enter the Kingdom of God!" Oh, what a harsh sentence! I don't know whether Jesus got to stay for the rest of the meal or not! But it is still true today:

Those who have the audacity to refuse the invitation to God's feast will not enter His Kingdom. How rude it is when somebody has gone to great lengths to prepare a meal or provide something for you here on earth and you snub your nose and say, "I'm not coming!" or "I don't want it!" But oh, how much more rude it is, (and that's not a strong enough word) how much more insulting, disrespectful, impertinent, impudent, ungracious it is, when God Himself has given everything, when He has given His very Son to die on a cross and shed His precious blood and prepared His eternal Banquet for you, yet you say, "I will not come!" Come quickly! But most of us have already come and in this story we're the servant out among the nations inviting people to the banquet. The Master has sent us to do an extremely important job. The banquet is ready and His house must be filled. The very purpose of our life is to seek out and invite others everywhere. It takes just as much audacity for us to say, "I won't! I can't!", to make flimsy excuses and devote our lives to other things, ignoring His urgent directive to us. I leave you with two quotes from the great missionary C.T. Studd, He said, "If Jesus Christ be God and died for me, then no sacrifice can be too great for me to make for Him." "Let us not glide through this world and then slip quietly into heaven, without having blown the trumpet loud and long for our Redeemer, Jesus Christ." Amen!

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Journey Of The Son Of Man To Jerusalem - Lk. 9:51-19:27

The Heart Of Jesus - Ch. 15

As Jesus continues on His journey to Jerusalem from Luke 9 on, we see Him often in conflict with the Jewish leaders who opposed Him and He has many strong words to say to them. But in chapter 15, Jesus takes a different approach. In this chapter, in response to their complaining, He reveals to them His heart, His:

I. Jesus' Passion For Lost People (1-2) Notice:

1. the people Jesus was attracting It was not the religious, synagogue-going, Temple-visiting crowd that you might expect, but sinners! That term in Jewish society referred to people who practiced certain outward vices and crimes. Being a publican or tax collector was one of them. Rome granted locals the right to collect import and export taxes, that is, customs, on goods that traders brought in and out. They bought the office and then gouged people for all they could get. So, they were seen as being traitors and thieves at the same time. Another group of people classed as sinners were the harlots, prostitutes, or at least women known to have loose morals. The heathen were included also, those who were not Israelites and didn't worship the God of Israel. In cultural terms, people like these were the UN-righteous, people who made no attempt at pretending to obey or follow God. Yet they seemed to flock to Jesus. Isn't that unusual? I wonder why? Maybe it was because He would actually sit down and eat with them and talk to them when nobody else would! But then notice:

2. the people Jesus was offending Who were they? The Pharisees were an elite religious party that was dominant in Israel; they were the leaders of the people, the movers and shakers of their society who influenced what their culture thought. Their very name means the separated ones. They prided themselves on keeping the Law and along with it all the traditions of the elders that had been passed down to them. It wouldn't have been so bad if their hearts simply wanted to please God, but the truth is that they were very proud. They believed that their personal holiness made them better than everyone else. They were the SELF-righteous who believed that their merit earned them a privileged status before God, so no wonder they muttered against Jesus! How could any righteous person, any religious teacher, associate and eat with UNrighteous people like Jesus did. And notice:

3. the process that was offensive Jesus ATE with these UNrighteous people! In that culture to eat with someone was an act of acceptance, an act of companionship. It was an offer of friendship and support and caring. It established a bond between the parties. In effect, to be invited to eat with someone and to accept it created a bond of fellowship. No Pharisee would ever sit at a publican's table or let a sinful woman wash his feet like Jesus did. They loathed sinners; they detested them. In fact, one Pharisaic writing literally says, There is joy before God when those who provoke Him perish from the world! In other words, "God would rather see them all dead and gone and so would I!" They could not imagine that God would ever want people like that or that any religious teacher would build a following of disciples out of people like that! So, to these self-righteous Pharisees, Jesus tells three stories to speak out against that attitude of pride and show them what God's heart is really like. He tells them:

II. Three Parables Revealing God's Passion For Lost People They are stories about loss, about losing things. They relate three common experiences of human loss to which even the Pharisees could easily relate in their everyday experience. But they are not really stories about human loss. They are stories Jesus told to explain:

1. the great loss which God experiences In the first story Jesus says:

a. He is like a shepherd who has lost a sheep (3-4) There was nothing more common in Israel than shepherds with their flocks out on the hills. The whole nation started out in Egypt as a nation of shepherds; their greatest King was a shepherd and their scriptures had long declared that the LORD is Israel's Shepherd. The image of a shepherd could not fail to relate to them and Jesus poses to them a simple thought, "Well, some of you are shepherds; what do you do when one of your sheep is lost?" To understand the answer, you have to understand what it means for a sheep to be lost. First of all, the sheep are the shepherd's livelihood. They are his investment, his wealth, his money in the bank, his means of survival, not his beloved pets, and taking care of them is hard work! They must be constantly watched because they are continually getting lost, following their noses in whatever direction the grass looks greener, wandering off to fill their bellies with no thought at all to the danger they may be in. It's interesting that the word lost in Greek is the word destroyed, because that's what will happen to them if they are not found. They are incapable of finding their own food and water, of protecting themselves or of finding their way back. Tim Keller quotes a former shepherd who says, "A sheep is a stupid animal. It loses its directions continually in a way that a cat or dog never does and even when you find a lost sheep, the sheep rushes to and fro and will not follow you home. So, when you find it, you must seize it, throw it to the ground, tie its forelegs and hind legs together, put it over your shoulders and carry it home. That's the only way to save a lost sheep." A shepherd knows that a lost sheep will die, and soon, unless he finds it, so when he discovers one is lost it's an emergency to him. And God is like a shepherd who has lost one of His precious sheep! But then in the second story, Jesus says that:

b. He is like a woman who has lost a coin (8) The Greek word is for a specific coin, a drachma, a day's wage. In today's money, let's say a hundred dollar coin. Now she had 10 of them and some interpreters suggest that this was probably her dowry and that it was common for a woman to actually wear such coins as jewelry. So, these coins could have had the emotional value that we might attach to, say, an engagement ring, but they also represent security to the woman. Her husband had no control over these; they were not his, so if he were to die or to divorce her, she would have these to give her a start. So, if she loses one, if it falls out of her hair or off her necklace and she doesn't notice until later, when she discovers it's missing, that to her is a big deal. Now remember, the floors in most houses in Israel in that day were simply dirt floors. Frequently they were covered with rushes or reeds to make a softer and cleaner mat to walk on and, since these would only be changed at rare intervals, they would no doubt collect a vast amount of dust and debris down among them and a coin could easily slip into this padded mess. Finding it would be no easy task, especially since houses were constructed to keep OUT the light and heat of the sun, so they were always dark. To find something as small as a coin would mean lighting a lamp and carefully moving the rushes and sweeping up and sifting through dirt. Without all this effort, the woman knows the coin will stay lost for good; she becomes frantic to find it. And God is like a woman who has lost that precious coin. Then Jesus went on to add a third story to say that:

c. ultimately, He is like a Father who has lost a son (11-13) It is not really sheep or coins that God is truly interested in; it is children. He's like a man who's lost one of His sons who greedily demanded his father's money and ran off. How that son must have broken His father's heart! What anguish that father must have felt to see his son, not only act in such an ungrateful manner, but then to despair of ever seeing him again! And that son was lost by becoming an unrighteous "sinner", just like those who were flocking to Jesus. Now let's go back and look at:

2. the great search which God makes to recover a lost person

a. like the shepherd, He seeks the lost one and never gives up The shepherd has 99 other sheep who are safely in the fold. He could easily say, "Oh well, what's one sheep when I have 99!" But he doesn't! The instant he realizes that one sheep is missing, he springs into action. He pens up the 99 and leaves them with someone and he goes after the lost one. He follows it. He actually tracks it if he can and if he can't, he looks around every hill and in every ravine, ever-widening his search. Oh, God is like that! He is never content to simply sit and enjoy fellowship with His found children; His heart is with the lost ones, the ones who haven't been brought home yet, who are in grave danger! They are His priority; they are the cry of His heart! And that shepherd doesn't come back until he finds the sheep, alive or dead. He doesn't put in a couple of hours and say, "That's enough; a sheep isn't worth more than this!" No, he keeps on looking until dark and gets up the next day and starts again and never stops until he finds it. I'm so glad that God never gives up on us! He never says, "I wanted you, but not that bad. Enough is enough." All the days of our lives He keeps on seeking us, keeps on doing everything in His power to bring us home. Only, unlike the sheep, it is not a matter of God not knowing where we are; it is mostly a matter of us not wanting to be brought home! Unlike the sheep, He gives sinners a choice; but He is always wooing them, always working to send news of His love to them, so they will let Him bring them home, until the day they die and He can do no more. Then, switching images:

b. like the woman, He searches everywhere with utmost care To find her lost coin she lights a lamp so she can see clearly in the darkness of the house. She gets out her broom to sweep away the dust. She gets out everything she has that will help and brings it to bear on finding that coin. Oh, the lengths that God will go to, the resources that God will use, to recover one of us! She sweeps the whole house. She looks in every nook and cranny, picks up everything on the floor. And God comes after us no matter where we may run or hide. He will turn the world upside down to see that we are brought back. Just picture that woman down on her knees moving those reeds one or two at a time, carefully sifting through the dust and dirt with her fingers, not wanting to bury the coin further. Oh, the great care which God takes in recovering us for Himself! The great pains which He takes to see that we hear that He wants us in just the right way, so that our hearts will respond and we won't be driven further into the darkness. And, moving on to the third story:

c. like the father, He always loves and looks for His son (20) How would the father see him a long way off, except that all the time, every day, the father was staring down the lane watching for his son? Why? Because he loved that son and hoped against hope that one day he would look up and there in the distance would be the figure of his son coming back and he would run to him and throw his arms around him!

Oh, do you see the point Jesus is making? God is not anything like the Pharisees conceived Him to be. He is a God who values lost people as precious and goes to great lengths to seek after them. And if you truly want to know the length to which He will go to get us, just look at the cross! His seeking for us meant sending His own Son to die on a cross to bring us back home! That's what God is really like! But then go back and look at:

3. the great joy God has when a lost person is found Like the shepherd:

a. He experiences great personal joy (5) Now me, I'd be thinking, "Oh great! Now I have to lug this stupid 75 pound sheep 2 miles back home on my shoulders! DUMB sheep!" But I'm not the shepherd! The shepherd rejoices with it on his shoulders the whole way home! He is so glad to have it back that the sacrifice that was required to find it and the work required to carry it back is totally lost in the joy of the finding. I'm reminded of Heb. 12:2 which says, Let us fix our eyes on Jesus... who for the joy set before him endured the cross, scorning its shame... What was that joy set before Him? WE were that joy! For the joy of having us back, He endured everything that was necessary to carry us home. The pain and the shame of the cross paled in comparison to the joy of having us back! That's the heart that our God and Shepherd has! He rejoices over us with great joy, though we were lost dumb stupid sheep, sinners who rebelled against His leading and went our own way! But here's where this shepherd, being of eastern culture, probably differs a bit from the way we react to such things:

b. He expects His community of people to share His joy (6) He lives in a village, a little rural community where people's lives are all part of one another. The women go draw water together at the well every day. The men visit at the gate. They help each other bring in the harvest of their fields and shear each other's sheep in the spring. His entire life is wrapped up in a community, a closely knit community, whose lives are shared in so many aspects. It is the most natural thing when he comes home full of joy with the found sheep on his shoulders, that he calls together all his friends and his neighbors and he says, "I'm so full of joy! Rejoice with me! I have found my lost sheep!" and they all rejoice with him. Verse (9). The woman calls all her friends and neighbors to rejoice with her that she has found her lost coin and they do! And look at the father:

c. He holds a great celebration to express His joy (22-24) A fattened calf is a yearling cow that's been fed and fattened up for maybe a whole year so it's young and tender, but there's a lot of it. You don't kill one for supper for your family; you invite the whole village and they all eat it. This father is throwing a huge party, something like we would do with a wedding reception meal. He throws a great feast for the whole village because his son was found! They feast and they eat and they laugh and they dance with one another. And Jesus said:

d. this joy of God shapes the whole value system of heaven (7, 10) This is His response to the Pharisees' muttering about eating with "sinners". He says, "Well, let me tell you what it's like up in heaven. You see, I've been there; I came from there, and I know what it's like there. And it's not at all like what you think! It's not a community where all the people sit around in glory and happiness enjoying their own perfect righteousness and look down in disdain at earth and loathe these awful people! Not at all! In fact, every time God shares the joyous news that another one of His lost sinful sheep has been found, the place goes wild! It erupts in joy and throws a party every time one of these sinners repents!" All of heaven treasures the redemption of sinners! Hallelujah! But:

III. Self-Righteous People Get Angry At Grace Shown To "Sinners" (25-28) Here comes the older son who's been out in the field working all day and he says, "What's all this?" And when they tell him, he won't go in! He won't join the party. He humiliates his father on what he knows is the greatest day of his father's life; he knows how his father has been longing and longing for this lost brother to come home. But he doesn't care. His tail is in a knot; he's mad. Why? (29-30) Because the father is spending a small fortune, HIS fortune. What's wrong with him? Wouldn't cheeseburgers and fries do? You see, at the bottom line, he loves the father's things more than he loves the father, just like the other boy! He loves the father's money and property and status and all that he's going to get, more than he loves the father! Self-righteous people:

1. they obey the Father to be rewarded for doing what pleases him This boy had every virtue that we extol. He was extremely hard working. He was honest. He listened to what his father told him to do and managed everything the way he said. He never thought to say, "No, father, I won't!". But in the end, he did it all for himself! He did it so that he would get all the blessings the father had for him! And when he comes home and sees the party, it finally pushes his buttons and he blows up and the real truth comes out! He doesn't love the father any more than his brother. He just wants the father's things! Listen, we have people today who are exactly like him; they are lost by being good! That is, they are very fervent in doing all the right things that they are sure God approves of, but they do them out of the wrong motive; they do them because they want something from God. They pray. They go to church. They give money. Why? Because they want God to protect them when they're in trouble. They want Him to heal them when they're sick. They want him to prosper them in their business and they certainly want Him to take them to heaven when they die. So they work hard to please Him in order to get these blessings for themselves! Jesus was showing the Pharisees exactly what they were doing at that very moment by telling them this story! They were the “good boys” who had worked so hard to get stuff from God and now they were mad that He, God, was forgiving the “bad boys”. He was making an eye-opening radical point (31-32). You see:

2. the younger brother, [who represents the sinners] was found; but the older brother, [who represents the Pharisees] remained truly lost! He was alienated from the father all along and in the end, Jesus cut the story off like a cliff-hanger. It has no ending. We like stories that have endings, don't we? But Jesus chose not to end it: He left the older brother standing out there all mad listening to the father's appeal. Why? To show the Pharisees that they get to write their own ending! The story is really about them and they get to choose how it ends by how they react to Him! Now let's apply this to ourselves.

3. as genuine believers, we must guard ourselves against becoming self-righteous It is all too easy for us who are busy obeying God to develop a case of “older-brotheritis”, to avoid “sinners”, to feel disdain and despise younger brother types who are involved in immorality and drunkenness and drugs and all the things we would never do, even to get angry when they repent and come into the church and everybody gets all excited over them. We've been here all along and working hard and it hasn't always been easy and nobody ever gets excited over us, so it is all too easy to let that sense of superiority grow in us. We have to consciously guard ourselves against it. In fact, children who truly love their Father and have their heart entwined with His in a real relationship, do what Jesus did. They seek out and intentionally involve themselves in broken lives. Instead of feeling superior, they are moved with compassion when they see people who have suffered so much because they have messed up their lives so royally, and they want to give them a hand and pull them out of the mire and have a celebration!

Years ago, Penny Hood wrote this in WEC International's WEC.GO magazine: When we were on vacation a few years ago, someone broke into our car during the night. From the looks of the inside of the car, it appeared that the person either slept in it or used it for other liberties. I was livid, and I turned to my husband, Brian, and said, “People like that make me sick!” Without missing a beat, Brian, who was rescued by God from a life of crime and drugs, responded with a message that was loud and clear: “You are looking at people like that. That is how I used to live my life. People like that need Jesus.” I was stunned. How did I get to be so proud? How had I forgotten that, compared to the holiness of God, no matter how many good-little-girl rules I may have followed, I was one of the people like that who God should turn His back on. But no! He didn't turn His back or even spit out nasty words about me. He gave His only Son to come and struggle with every aspect of living life as a man and then die an agonizing death so that I could have a blessed life and an eternity in heaven. God really spoke to me that day, and has been speaking ever since, reminding me that I am no better than anyone else. I just happened to have been blessed with some better circumstances. Whoever broke into our car that night did a great service for me. That day God put deep within my heart the desire to reach out to the least of these, and to in some way be a part of His work in restoring more people like that. That, dear ones, is what Jesus is wanting to do through these simple stories, to put deep within our hearts the desire of God's heart, a passionate love for those who are lost.

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Passion Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 19:28-24:53

The Triumphal Entry Of Jesus - 19:28-20:47

Since Easter is fast approaching, we are unfortunately going to have to fly past 3 ½ chapters in our study through Luke's Gospel and land at the beginning of Passion Week. The word Passion in this context does not have its ordinary meaning of zeal or excitement. It comes from the Greek word pascho which means suffering. This is the week of Christ's suffering and it begins with the well-known scene of His Triumphal Entry into the city of Jerusalem. We've been taught about it from childhood; we've seen it portrayed in every Jesus movie ever made, the crowds yelling, Jesus riding the donkey, the palm branches being thrown on the road before Him. But what we often fail to understand is:

I. The Glorious Offer Of God To Israel On Palm Sunday (19:28-44) It was more than just a crowd of people spontaneously cheering for Jesus. It was an event that was carefully planned and orchestrated by Jesus to send a message to the whole nation of Israel. His first step in the process was:

1. the procuring of the donkey by the disciples (28-35) That Sunday Jesus arrived at the tiny village of Bethphage on the Mt. of Olives, about a mile and half from Jerusalem, and the first thing He did was to tell two of His disciples to go into the village and borrow a donkey. That in itself should catch our attention, as I'm sure it did theirs, since He had just walked the entire 18 miles steeply uphill from Jericho and the little bit of road left was all downhill! Three of the Gospel writers felt this little incident of finding the donkey was important enough to include and so do I, for three reasons. First:

a. Jesus' omniscience was displayed in finding it Notice in verse (32) they found the donkey standing there tied as soon as they entered the village, just as He had said. The owners questioned them, just as He said they would.

And when they replied what He told them to, they let them take it, just as He said they would! So, even though He can't see it, He knows the donkey is standing there, knows the owners are nearby and knows how they will react! How? Remember years earlier when Philip found his friend Nathanael and brought him to Jesus, Jesus said to him, Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you. And his immediate reaction was, Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel! - Jn. 1:47-48. Only God can see things nobody else can see and know things nobody else can know! The faith of the disciples in Him was surely strengthened once again by this little display of His omniscience before their eyes! And listen, you can be assured of this for yourself also; Jesus sees what nobody can see and He knows what nobody can know about your life! Aren't you glad?! Furthermore, wherever He sends you and whatever He tells you to do, it's all part of the greater plan of what He is doing to get glory to Himself, so don't say, "Hey, I'm tired! I just walked 17 miles uphill! Let somebody else do it!" You'll miss seeing the miracle of Him at work! So, they bring the donkey to Jesus and now notice a second thing:

b. Jesus' power was displayed in mounting it Matthew tells us that there were actually two donkeys there, a mother and her young colt, which verse (30b) tells us had never been ridden. And when they brought them to Jesus, verse (35) says they threw a couple of cloaks over the back of this unbroken colt and it carried Him all the way into Jerusalem. You may not think anything of that, but we had ponies when I was growing up and they had colts and let me assure you, you don't just throw something on the back of a young colt and plop your 180 pounds on its little back and have somebody lead you placidly around, especially not in the midst of hundreds of shouting people throwing things in front of its feet! It pulls this way and that trying to get away and sits down on its backside to resist being pulled forward and balks at every object thrown in its path. But not this colt! It behaves perfectly as if it had been ridden for years! Why? I'm sure the disciples caught this: because its Creator and Master is sitting on its back and His mighty power is completely in control of all things! And aren't you glad it is?! Hebrews says God left nothing outside of His control, even though we don't always see it at the moment (2:8)! But the most important point about the donkey is that:

c. Jesus' identity was revealed in riding it Turn with me to Zech. 9:9. Five hundred years earlier God made a promise through His prophet Zechariah, a promise everybody knew. "When I send you your true King, the Messiah, He will come to you riding [specifically] on a donkey's colt! Not a war horse at the head of an army, but humbly on a donkey and when I send Him you will rejoice greatly!" Matthew tells us that all of this was done to fulfill Zechariah's prophecy; Jesus did it on purpose to make a statement, a declaration. He was revealing who He was, Israel's promised King and Messiah, and so, His act of riding into Jerusalem in this fashion was, in fact:

2. the public offer of Jesus to Israel as their Messiah God was saying to His ancient people, "Here He is! At last! Your King and Your Messiah! Receive Him and follow Him!" And, for the moment, at least, it seemed as if they did (36-38). A crowd of people was following with Jesus as He was headed for the city and John tells us that in the city people heard that He was coming and went out to meet Him. So, hundreds of people were with Him as He began to descend the Mount of Olives and they sure seemed to understand the offer that was being made, didn't they?

a. the crowd honored Him by spreading their garments on the road They took off their outer cloaks and spread them in the path of the donkey for Jesus to ride over and smash in the dirt. It was their version of rolling out the red carpet; you don't do that for just anyone. You do that to honor a king! The other Gospels tell us that others broke leafy fronds from the many date palm trees growing on the mount and spread them before Him as a mat for His donkey's feet. And as they went down the mountain Luke says:

b. they praised God for the mighty works they had seen Him do Some of them had been with Him when He raised Lazarus from the dead not long before. Then as He passed through Jericho on His way up the day before He had given sight to two blind men. But many of the crowd were in Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover and surely there were many from Galilee who remembered miracle after miracle of healing sickness and casting out demons. These things they regarded as evidence of who He was; only the Messiah could do these things! And as part of their cheering and shouting:

c. they proclaimed Him God's King and Messiah in a very bold and direct fashion. They shouted portions of Ps. 118:26. "Hosanna!", that means "Save us!" They were saying "Our Savior is here!" They shouted, "Blessed be the KING!" John adds, "the KING of Israel!" The promised King from David's line, the Messiah! They were announcing His entry to the city, even using the very words the angels from heaven had used at His birth, His entry into the world, Peace in heaven and glory in the highest! Make no mistake, anybody listening to this and seeing this KNEW who Jesus is! And I say IS, present tense, because He still IS God's King and Messiah, His only means of salvation! ...there is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which we must be saved. - Acts 4:12. One day ...at the name of Jesus every knee shall bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father - Phil. 2:10-11. God makes that same offer to the whole world; He makes it to every one of us today: "Jesus is My King; He is My Savior; He has provided salvation for you. Bow the knee before Him. Fall before Him and give Him your life. Spread everything you have before His feet and crown Him Lord and King of your life now, because one day I'm going to send Him back and the whole world will be forced to bow before Him then, when it is too late!" Of course, the Pharisees and the Jewish leaders, refusing to believe in Him, were greatly upset by this obvious declaration (39-40). They wanted Him to stop His followers from what was to them such obvious blasphemy, but He said, "If they stop, the very rocks will cry out My praise!" He's revealing:

3. God's determination that this offer must be given to Israel "It MUST be done! I MUST be presented as King and Messiah! My people Israel MUST be offered their King and Messiah and it MUST be now!" Everything in Jesus' life and ministry was preparation for this moment! But even as it was happening, Jesus knew the reception He was receiving would be short-lived (41-44). As the city came into view, Jesus actually paused and wept in tears over it. Why? Because, as I said, Jesus knows the future!

4. Jesus' sadness came from knowing Israel would reject the offer and it would result in their destruction by the Romans forty years later. He knew that, as a people, they did not recognize this amazing day when God came riding into the city to offer Himself to them as their Messiah. As John put it, He came to his own, and his own people did not receive him. - 1:11. But the good news is in the next verse for us, But to all who did receive him, who believed in his name, he gave the right to become children of God, - 1:12. Regardless of what Israel did, when we, any one of us, believe that He truly is God the Son come to save us and we receive Him with open hearts, He gives us the privilege of becoming the very children of God Himself! Somebody say Hallelujah! What an offer! But despite the joyous reaction of the crowd on Sunday, as the next few days unfold, we see:

II. The Unyielding Rejection Of The Jewish Leaders Throughout Passion Week Luke goes on to record five events of conflict with them that occurred between Monday and Wednesday and with each one, instead of grasping who He is, they increased their rejection. We don't have time to look at them in depth; I just want you to see the escalating conflict. On Monday Jesus provoked them by:

1. the cleansing of the Temple in verses (45-48). He went into the Court of the Gentiles and drove out all the animals being sold for sacrifice and their vendors and all the moneychangers saying, "You've made God's house a den of thieves!" And notice:

- the determination of the leaders to destroy Him (47-48) They came to see that the only way to stop Him was to kill Him and were now actually plotting how to murder Him. But He was always around crowds of people who loved Him and they couldn't risk arresting Him for fear of starting a riot. So, in public they tried to challenge Him. Next Luke records:

2. the challenge of the leaders concerning His authority in (20:1-19) Read (1-8). When they challenged Him:
a. He turned the challenge back on them He put them on the spot. He knew they couldn't publicly deny that John the Baptist was sent by God; the people would turn against them. So, they refused to answer and so did He, but in not answering, everyone listening knew what that meant! He got His authority the same place John did, from God! But then He went further:

b. in a parable He told them God was going to destroy them in verses (9-18). He told them a story about a man who owned a vineyard and let it out to tenants and how those tenants repeatedly denied giving him his due share of the crop and how they beat his servants and killed them and at last they killed his son. And in the punch line to the story he asked, "What will the owner do to those wicked tenants? He'll destroy them and give his vineyard to others!" And basically, He implied, "If the shoe fits, wear it! This is what YOU'VE done and God will destroy YOU!" Well, they got it alright and:

c. they wanted to seize Him immediately but were afraid (19) They were so angry that they would have grabbed Him and hauled Him off right then and there, if there hadn't been crowds of people all around listening. See how their fervor against Him is growing and growing. So, now they came up with another idea (20). They decided to try to use the civil authority, the Roman governor, to arrest Him instead of doing it themselves. So, Luke records:

3. the trap of the leaders concerning paying of taxes (21-25) They hoped that He would either discredit Himself with the people who hated their Roman oppressors by saying, "Pay taxes!" or that He could be charged with a crime of rebellion by saying, "Don't pay!" What a marvelous answer Jesus gave! Nobody, not even His enemies, could have dreamed He could get out of answering their question without harming Himself somehow, but He did. "Give the government the money it demands but give God the primary allegiance He demands!" His enemies were dumbstruck!

- they were frustrated and silenced (26) Even THEY marveled at His answer and couldn't refute it. They were reduced to silence for fear He would embarrass them further in the eyes of the people! So next another group of leaders decides to take a turn and Luke records:

4. the challenge of the Sadducees concerning resurrection in verses (27-40) They don't believe in life after death or anything spiritual so they tell him that Moses said that a man's brother is to marry his widow and they cook up this ridiculous example about a woman who was married seven times to seven brothers and ask which one she'd be married to in the resurrection. Like many today they wanted to show how ludicrous it is to believe in a heavenly afterlife. But Jesus challenged their obvious lack of Bible knowledge saying, "Nobody is married in the next life! The Bible doesn't teach that! We all relate directly to God like the angels do! And besides, God says I AM the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob!, not 'I WAS their God!' They're still alive! He is the God of dead people, but of the living; they're all still alive even after they die!" What could the Sadducees say? (39-40) So now, like the Pharisees:

- they were humiliated and silenced They gave up trying for fear of embarrassing themselves further and losing even more respect in the eyes of the people. So once again Jesus turns the tables and Luke records:

5. Jesus' challenge to them concerning the Messiah in verses (41-47) It's directed primarily to the scribes, the ones who know the Scriptures best of all. "If David calls the Christ 'My Lord' in Ps. 110, as you well know, how can He be David's son, that is, descendant?" How could He be both things?" Well, we know the answer, that Jesus was literally the Son of David, born of David's line through Mary according the flesh, but at the same time He was the eternal Son of God come down from heaven in a human body, but they couldn't answer Him. And in Jesus' final words you see:

- His condemnation of the leaders (45-47) He calls them out as pure hypocrites in front of all the people and declares that God will actually judge them severely; they'll be lost and banished from Him forever when they die!

Kevin DeYoung writes: The Jewish leaders disliked, and eventually grew to hate, Jesus for many reasons... They were angry with him for upsetting their traditions and some of their scruples about the law. They looked down on him for eating with sinners and associating with those deemed unclean or unworthy. But most of all, they hated Jesus because he claimed to be from God, and as time went on, dared to make himself equal to God. That's why they hated him; that's why the crowds turn on him; that's why Jesus was put to death. The Jewish leaders could not recognize Christ's divine authority and identity. Jealousy was no doubt part of it... but deeper than that, they simply did not have the eyes to see or the faith to believe that Jesus was the Christ, the Son of the living God. That's why in all four gospels, when the opposition against him reaches its climax, Jesus is not charged with being too welcoming to outsiders, but with being a false king, a false prophet, and a false Messiah... www.thegospelcoalition.org/blogs/kevin-deyoung/why-did-they-hate-jesus-2/ And that's why people hate Jesus today, around the world or even in our own society here. You can talk in general terms about God and that is tolerated, but when you talk about Jesus Christ, many people become angry and some violently angry. Why? Because Jesus claims to be the rightful King of this world and He demands that we worship and follow Him and Him alone or be lost forever! He faces us with a choice! Like the crowds coming down the Mount of Olives, we proclaim Him King of our lives, give Him our allegiance and worship Him or, like the Jewish leaders in the city, we reject Him, declare that His claims are false, become angry and grow to hate Him the more we hear of Him. Jesus makes to us the same offer He made to Israel; will we bow before Him or reject Him?

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Passion Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 19:28-24:53

The Last Supper Of Jesus - 22:1-46

Now we come in our study of Luke's Gospel to Thursday of Passion Week, the day on which all Israel celebrated the Passover meal in the evening, a meal which became for Jesus and His disciples, His Last Supper. For three and a half years He's been preparing them to understand who He is and what He has come to do and these are His last hours with them, His last opportunity to prepare them for the awful events that are about to happen. Luke begins chapter 22 by telling us about something that happened a day or two earlier and that is:

I. Jesus' Betrayal By Judas (1-6) We talked last time about the intense hatred which the Jewish leaders had developed toward Jesus and how desperate they were to kill Him, yet how frustrated they were because He was always in the middle of large crowds. Imagine their joy when one of Jesus' own Twelve shows up and offers to betray Him to them in a private setting! But we often wonder how he could do such a thing. Well:

1. the motive of Judas appears to be greed from Mt. 26:15, where it is recorded that he asked them, What will you give me if I deliver Him to you? He went asking for money and, if you remember the story of Mary pouring a precious vial of perfume on Jesus at Bethany a few days before, Judas was the one who complained that it was wasted. But John comments, He said this, not because he cared about the poor, but because he was a thief, and having charge of the moneybag he used to help himself to what was put into it. - Jn. 12:6. So Judas was a greedy man and, perhaps seeing that it was inevitable that Jesus was going to end up getting arrested, he wants a way to both get out of danger and make money. Matthew says they agreed to pay him 30 pieces of silver. It's hard to know how much that was. If the silver coin was a denarius that would be equivalent to 30 days wages, so in buying power it might have been equivalent to as much as $3,000 today. At any rate we know it was enough that the Jews later bought a field for a burial place with it, so it must have at least have had value enough to significantly tempt Judas. But Luke tells us something deeper in verse 3:

2. his indwelling by Satan Then Satan entered into Judas... His greed opened the door for Satan to enter his life and, at this point, it was no longer just by suggesting evil thoughts. He had opened the door so far that Satan actually entered and took control of him. Jn. 13:27 says the same thing of him in the very middle of the Supper, when Jesus handed him the piece of bread to identify him as the betrayer, ...after he had taken the morsel, Satan entered into him... and he left the meal to go and get the soldiers. At this point Satan had so much control of him that he could come and go as he wished and control him at will.

Now I know that this is before the Holy Spirit came to indwell every believer at Pentecost, but there is still a dire warning here for all and even for us. When you begin to open the door to Satan by obeying him instead of God and practicing sin, he pushes the door open wider and wider. A greedy thought turns into greedy words which leads to stealing which leads to more and pretty soon you're not in control of yourself and Satan is using you to do his bidding. A lustful thought leads to flirting which leads to immorality or adultery and you're not in control anymore and disaster follows. Judas' example shouts to us, "Don't open the door! See what awful things it can lead to!" But back to Thursday and:

II. Jesus' Last Supper With His Disciples (7-38) That morning:

1. He again displayed His omniscience in preparing for the Passover meal (7-13) Again, Jesus knew they'd meet this man, knew what he'd be carrying, knew the house where he would lead them and knew that the owner would have a room all ready for them and it all happened just as He said! He knows what we can't know; our part is simply to obey and do what He tells us. If we don't, we'll miss the miracle of seeing His plan fulfilled! Now in those several evening hours Jesus had together with His disciples, a number of things happened, but Luke mentions perhaps the most important of them first:

2. He instituted the Lord's Supper as an ordinance for His disciples in verses (14-20). During the Passover meal a piece of matzoh, unleavened bread, was broken and shared among them. So, Jesus took that piece of bread and gave it a new meaning (19). He said that ever after:

a. they were to eat bread to remember His body given for them And let me just point out the obvious: when He held up a piece of bread to them and said, This is My body..., He could not possibly have meant it literally as some segments of Christianity believe. His body was standing there holding it! He was saying, when you break this bread, let it always be a symbol to remind you of how My body was given for you as a sacrifice. Of course, they didn't understand what He was talking about just yet, but they did soon after, and the breaking of bread to remember Jesus became a regular practice among believers wherever they went, first as part of a whole meal together, a love feast, and later as an act all by itself during worship as we do it now. Jesus commanded us to do it so that we would never forget the agony of the awful sacrifice that He made in His body on the cross, bearing our sins. Then (20). He took the last cup of wine shared at the Passover meal and gave it special meaning also:

b. they were to drink wine to remember the New Covenant procured by His blood The red of the wine was to remind them of His blood which was poured out at the cross, His very life poured out to death as the sacrifice which paid for our sins. And through that sacrifice God made a New Covenant with us, that all who will participate in this sacrifice by taking it as their own, by believing that Jesus' death was for their sins, have their sins forgiven completely and forever and are taken by God into His own family as His children. And so, we Christians have done it ever after. Jesus commanded us to do it as a perpetual reminder that it is His precious blood that saved us, that He was our perfect spotless lamb who died in our place, that HE is our salvation. Oh, it is so important that we never forget that! When he was a boy, Roger Rose and his family lived on a farm alongside a dirt road. Only on rare occasions would an automobile pass by. But one day as Roger's young brother was crossing the road on his bicycle, a car came roaring down a nearby hill, struck the boy, and killed him. Roger said, "Later, when my father picked up the mangled, twisted bike, I heard him sob out loud for the first time in my life. He carried it to the barn and placed it in a spot we seldom used. Father's terrible sorrow eased with the passing of time, but for many years whenever he saw that bike, tears began streaming down his face." Roger continued, "Since then I have often prayed, 'Lord, keep the memory of Your death as fresh as that to me! Every time I partake of Your memorial supper, let my heart be stirred as though You died only yesterday. Never let the communion service become a mere formality, but always a tender and touching experience.'" The Lord's Supper should never be a dull, routine, ceremonial act; it should be a heart touching reminder that the One whom we love the most died a horrible death to save us! But it also has a brighter aspect (15-18). He told them that as they did this:

c. they were to look forward with Him to God's future Kingdom And notice how He said it twice to strongly emphasize it! This supper was to be a reminder to them and to us that one day Jesus is coming back to set up God's Kingdom on this earth and when He does, there will be a great feast with all of us together, the Marriage Supper of the Lamb described in Rev. 19! Paul said, ...as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord's death until he comes! - 1 Cor. 11:26. It's a reminder that He's coming, a reminder that one day the Kingdoms of this world will become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ and in that day we shall all celebrate our union with Him as His bride! Hallelujah!

That's one reason He so fervently desired to have this Last Supper with them, to leave them and us with a lasting way to remember His suffering and continually look forward to the glory we will share with Him! Now Luke mentions another thing that happened at the Supper:

3. He quelled His disciples' argument about greatness (24) It's very hard to determine the exact order of what happened during these several hours. It's possible this verse is a flashback to the beginning of the meal and gives the reason that Jesus got up and washed the disciples' feet, but regardless of when this argument occurred, Jesus immediately put a stop to it (25-27).

a. He extolled the principle of servant leadership among His followers. In Jesus' value system, greatness is not measured by how many people are under you whom you can order around. That's how the world measures greatness, by power and authority over others. Rather Jesus measures greatness by humility and willingness to serve others. And He pointed to Himself as an example. "I, even though I am the Son of God, am among you as one who serves; see how I have washed your feet! I have done what only the youngest child or the household servant who is a nobody would do. You all as leaders must be the ones most willing to serve those you lead." In the church, those who lead are called to serve others. Dr. Vernon Grounds, former president of Denver Seminary, challenged the graduating class one year with Jesus' example of washing the disciples' feet. He told the graduates that he was going to give them each a tangible symbol that could help them in their future ministries. As they filed quietly to the front, they wondered what it could be. To their surprise, it was a small square of white terry cloth. One graduate, who later served as an overseas missionary, says, "We were commissioned to go into the world as servants. That small piece of towel, frayed and grubby from years in my wallet, is a constant reminder of that moving moment and of our basic call to serve." That's what Jesus was trying to impress upon the leaders He had prepared to begin His church, but even as He did so:

b. He promised them a glorious future reward for their faithfulness (28-30) This prophetic promise was specifically for the twelve disciples. When Jesus comes and sets up His millennial Kingdom on this earth they will always eat at His table and they will each rule one of the tribes of restored and rebuilt Israel. Those who were faithful as servants here will rule there! And we too are promised that we will rule and reign with Christ. I am reminded of the words of the King in Jesus' parable of the pounds back in chapter 19, ..."Well done, my good servant!" his master replied. 'Because you have been trustworthy in a very small matter, take charge of ten cities.' - Lk. 19:17. If we are faithful to fulfill our calling as servants, the King will have a whole world full of places for us to rule and reign over in His Kingdom but we'll always be at His table! Our reward is not to be found here; it is to be received there! Now one of the last things Jesus did near the end of the Supper is that:

4. He prepared Peter for what was about to happen (31-34) He singled out Peter in particular, the one who was to become the leader of the group after He was gone, and gave him a special promise. First:

a. He warned him that Satan would test his faith He would be the specific object of Satan's attack that very night as Jesus was arrested. He would be shaken the way a man violently shakes wheat in a sieve to separate out all the chaff. It would feel like he had fallen through the sieve to crash upon the floor below. And that's exactly how he must have felt after he denied Jesus mere hours later, yet at the same time Jesus:

b. He assured him that his faith would not fail He said, I have prayed for you! And if Jesus has prayed, you KNOW it will happen. Peter's faith wavered but it did not fail. He did not give up and turn away like Judas. And even though badly shaken, he was to be the one to strengthen the others! Of course, at that moment, Peter had no idea what would happen and how he would act. He was still positive that his faith was so strong that he'd be willing to go to prison or even die for Jesus on the spot. But Jesus:

c. He predicted that his self-reliance would be stripped away, that he would deny ever knowing Him three times before the rooster crowed early the next morning. And when it did, these very words came back to haunt him and all of his high estimation of himself and his misplaced confidence in his own spiritual strength were blown away like the chaff, so that he knew that his continuing faith was only due to Jesus and not to himself.

The other Gospels add that he told the whole group of disciples that they would all fall away from Him and be scattered that very night. All of them would go through this same crisis of faith brought on by His arrest and crucifixion, but He would see them again after He rose from the dead. Their faith would not fail either. And indeed, we all go through events in life when our faith is tested severely, when the enemy sifts us like wheat trying to shake us and tear us away from trusting in Jesus. There will be times when we like Peter feel that we have fallen and failed miserably, but Jesus has prayed for us! Just after the Supper, Jesus prayed to the Father in John 17 and He said, I do not ask for these only, but also for those who will believe in me through their word, ...Father, I desire that they also, whom you have given me, may be with me where I am, to see my glory that you have given me because you loved me before the foundation of the world. - Jn. 17:20, 24. Jesus has prayed for us that OUR faith will not fail and that we will be with Him in glory forever and so we will! Listen, when Satan throws circumstances and suffering at you that try you sorely, when you've questioned the Lord crying, "Where are you Jesus? Why won't you help me?", when you've said, "I've had it! I can't take any more!" and are ready to throw in the towel, or when you've sinned and fallen and ruined your testimony and you feel like you're worthless and Jesus could never use you any more, remember that Satan may be sifting you like wheat, but Jesus has prayed for you! Your faith will not fail! He will restore you and you will be with Him! And when your heart is turned back again and your faith is renewed, you'll see that through it all God has stripped away your self-reliance, your pride in who you are and what you can do and helped you to see that your very continuing to believe is only due to His grace! Oh, the Last Supper is a place of assurance for all of us who follow Jesus. No matter what we've done or how unfaithful we have been, we can come to His table, take a place beside the Savior, find forgiveness and assurance of our future, bask in His love and be set free. Listen to this song:

Come to the Table by Sidewalk Prophets

[Listen/view at <https://youtu.be/DXXxLwxfo0U>]

*We all start on the outside The outside looking in
This is where grace begins
We were hungry, we were thirsty
With nothing left to give Oh the shape that we were in Just when all hope seemed lost
Love opened the door for us*

*He said come to the table
Come join the sinners who have been redeemed
Take your place beside the Savior now
Sit down and be set free
Come to the table*

*Come meet this motley crew of misfits
These liars and these thieves
There's no one unwelcome here, no
So that sin and shame that you brought with you
You can leave it at the door
And let mercy draw you near*

*Just come to the table
Come join the sinners, you have been redeemed
Take your place beside the Savior now
Sit down and be set free
Come to the table
Just come to the table
To the thief, to the doubter
To the hero and the coward
To the prisoner and the soldier
To the young, to the older
All who hunger, all who thirst
All the last, all the first
All the paupers and the princes
All who fail you've been forgiven
All who dream, all who suffer
All who loved and lost another
All the chained, all the free
All who follow, all who lead
Anyone who's been let down
All the lost you have been found
All who've been labeled right or wrong
Everyone who hears this song*

*Just Come, come to the table
Oh eh, come join the sinners you have been redeemed
Take your place beside the Savior
Just sit down and be set free
Oh come on Just sit down and be set free
Come to the table
Come on now
Come to the table
You're welcome here.*

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Passion Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 19:28-24:53

The Arrest And Trial Of Jesus - 22:47-23:25

In our study of Luke, we've been following Jesus through Passion Week. We left Him on Thursday night. Having had the Last Supper with His disciples, He led them outside of Jerusalem across the brook Kidron onto the lower slope of the Mount of Olives into a garden to pray. It was very late and they were tired, but their sleep was suddenly interrupted (47-48):

I. Jesus Was Arrested In The Garden Of Gethsemane (22:47-53) The Jewish leaders had been looking for a moment exactly like this when Jesus was alone in private away from people and, having already paid Judas to find them such an opportunity, when he arrived, they gladly supplied him with a band of soldiers and some officers, John says. Indeed, they themselves went along and the other three Gospels note that it was not just a few people; it was a large crowd armed with swords and clubs. So:

1. Judas led the mob to the garden and identified Him in the dark by greeting Him with a kiss, as though he were a familiar friend. And Jesus drove home to him the irony of it, that he would use a greeting of friendship as an act of betrayal! At first the disciples seemed ready to defend him (49-50). Impetuous as always:

2. Peter tried to defend Him by swinging his sword at the head of nearest man, a servant of the high priest named Malchus, who turned his head and ended up with only his ear getting sliced off. But immediately, before the soldiers could react:

3. Jesus stopped the violence and healed the injured man (51-53) I'm sure that quick miracle prevented them all from being slaughtered on the spot. It gave the soldiers pause long enough for Jesus to address them in a calm manner indicating that He was not going to resist and questioning why they had come with all kinds of weapons, as though they were some outlaw gang when they could have arrested Him peacefully at any moment in the Temple all week long.

But notice the important lesson that Jesus was teaching them and us: the way to deal with persecution is not to mount an army and fight the persecutors! Jesus had warned them clearly just hours before, that they would be hated and persecuted by the world because they were His followers. He told them, They will put you out of the synagogues. Indeed, the hour is coming when whoever kills you will think he is offering service to God. - Jn. 16:2. And now He was showing them how to react, not to fight, but rather to pray for those who persecute you, even as He did from the cross. That was a tremendous lesson because for the next 250 years the early church was seriously persecuted by the Roman Empire in wave after wave of violence and never did they band together to fight their attackers. Down through history followers of Jesus have been persecuted and they still are in many countries of the world today. A few months ago, in Kyrgyzstan a young man named Eldos was so severely beaten by Muslim villagers that he had to have his jaw wired shut for weeks, because he was singing a Christian song. In recent months, China has cracked down on house church leaders and believers once again, especially in the northeast, imprisoning them or sending them to labor camps. So, what should believers in those places do, band together and fight? No, band together and pray! Well, the rest of the disciples fled into the night, however (54):

II. Peter Followed Jesus To The High Priest's House But Denied Him (54-62) John was known, somehow, to the High Priest's staff and he and Peter both got into the house, but Peter:

1. he denied knowing Jesus three times (55-60a) What a different man we see here! All Peter's boldness has drained away to the extent that when he was confronted the third time, Matthew tells us that he began to literally invoke a curse on himself and to swear with an oath that he did not know Jesus. That was a serious thing to do in the ancient world! What could change a man who was willing to fight a mob of soldiers to save Jesus into a coward who was willing to swear he'd never known Him? The answer is fear! And Satan knows how to use it; in Job's case he told God, ...All that a man has he will give for his life. - 2:4. The fear of dying will often make a person, even one as bold as Peter, do things he or she would NEVER do under normal circumstances. Sadly, for us it often doesn't even take the fear of dying. Sometimes the simple fear of what someone else will think of us is enough to make us deny Jesus by keeping quiet and hiding the fact that we know Him! At any rate, Peter spent a long, miserable night riddled with guilt and at dawn:

2. the crowing of the rooster brought him great remorse (60b-62) When Jesus looked across the courtyard at him, he remembered Jesus' prediction and it broke his heart. He ran out and it all came sweeping over him, as he realized that he was practically in the same category as Judas, that he had deserted the One he loved in His hour of need! I bet he wondered if he could ever be forgiven!

You know, the early church wrestled seriously with this question and there were whole segments of it which held that people who had "lapsed" under persecution and denied their faith by offering sacrifice to the Emperor could never be forgiven and readmitted to the fellowship of the church. I'm glad Jesus didn't think like that! He restored Peter and used him to lead the church and to win thousands of people to faith in Acts. Listen, if you've done something of which you're now totally ashamed, some serious thing in which you disobeyed or denied the Lord, something which has held you in the bondage of guilt, you can be free, no matter how bad it was! Just come back to Him as Peter did; just ask forgiveness and know it is yours! God will use you again! Well, in the High Priest's house early that Friday morning:

III. Jesus Was Tried Before The Jews (63-71) At first, as He was being held there:

1. they abused Him (63-65) Most of us have been fortunate enough never to have actually seen somebody be beaten and kicked and punched, except on TV, where we somehow know it's not real. THIS was real! And as they did it, the Jews mocked and laughed. How cruel religious men can sometimes be! But soon the Sanhedrin, the whole ruling council of 70 elders, had been awakened and called together to try Him officially and:

2. Jesus affirmed His identity before the Council (66-70) He answered "Yes, I am the Son of God, the Christ, and one day soon I'll be seated at the right hand of God reigning in glory!" Of course:

3. they were convinced He was blaspheming (71) They believed His claim was false, that He was a mere man claiming to be God and that is blasphemy of the worst sort, an offense worthy of death.

Yet it's only blasphemy if it's not true. If His claim is true then it is His very accusers who are blaspheming, calling God a mere man! But through the centuries, like His accusers, people have often seen the weakness and the suffering and the death of Jesus as evidence that He was merely a man and not God as He claimed to be. To all those skeptics, Jesus says, "Just wait and you will see! Just wait until you die and see whose feet you'll fall before! Just wait until I come again and see who really rules this world!" Paul told the skeptical Athenians, ...[God] has fixed a day on which he will judge the world in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed; and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead. - Acts 17:31. We don't base our belief in Jesus on blind faith; we base it on the over-and-over verified fact that God raised Him from the dead! That's our once-for-all proof that Jesus is who He said He is! And if people decide to ignore that proof, they do so to their own peril! Well, the Jews condemned Jesus but they did not have the power of capital punishment, so at the earliest possible hour on Friday:

IV. Jesus Was Brought Before Pilate (23:1-5) Of course, in order to make a worthy case against Him:

1. the Jews falsely accused Him of crimes against the state (1-2) These are charges of crimes against Rome, fomenting rebellion, hindering tax revenues, claiming to be a King. And none of them were true in the sense that they were stated. Now, Pontius Pilate was no just governor. Easton's Dictionary says he was ...pleasure-loving, imperious, and corrupt. He hated the Jews whom he ruled, and in times of irritation freely shed their blood. They returned his hatred with cordiality, and accused him of every crime, maladministration, cruelty, and robbery. He visited Jerusalem as seldom as possible... But even wicked:

2. Pilate examined Him and found Him not guilty of a crime (3-5) John fills in some of the missing dialogue that Luke doesn't record. Jesus said, "My kingdom is not of this world or my servants would fight. But I AM a king!" Pilate wasn't stupid. He knew Jesus was not leading some rebellion against Rome and trying to make Himself king. He knew the Jewish leaders wanted to kill Him because they were jealous of Him and he, no doubt, wanted to irk them even further by refusing to comply with their request and declaring, "I don't find Him guilty of anything!" And wow, did that set them off. But in their shouts of complaint, he caught the notion that Jesus was from Galilee and he saw a way out of the situation. So next:

V. Jesus Was Examined By Herod (8-12) You see:

1. Pilate vainly hoped to avoid responsibility (6-7) Galilee was Herod's jurisdiction, not his, and since Herod happened to be visiting in Jerusalem, he sent Jesus over to him. He hoped he would not have to deal with the situation and with these stubborn Jewish leaders any further. But it was a vain hope. On the other hand:

2. Herod shallowly hoped to see a sideshow (8-9) He had long desired to see Him, ever since he put John the Baptist to death years earlier according to 9:9. He wanted to see Jesus heal some paralytic or grow back a missing limb, the way that spectators want to see a magician do amazing tricks. He had no spiritual interest at all and years later died after an angel of God struck him down for his pride in letting people praise him as a god in Acts 12. Jesus wouldn't give him even the respect that He showed to Pilate; to such a base man He wouldn't say a word. So:

3. Herod mocked Him and sent Him back to Pilate (11-12) "Not my problem!" He wasn't about to try to resist the fury of the Jews. So back Jesus went and His accusers with Him and ultimately:

VI. Pilate Yielded To The Crowd And Condemned Jesus (13-23a) Notice that Pilate:

1. he tried three times to release Jesus, declaring Him innocent The last time, Matthew tells us he even took a basin and washed his hands of the matter, saying I am innocent of this man's blood - Mt. 27:24. He knew Jesus was not guilty of anything, but:

2. the crowd vehemently demanded His death each time They shouted, Crucify Him and give us Barabbas! Over and over, louder and louder they shouted until their tumult grew almost into a full-blown riot. And eventually:

3. the pressure of the crowd overpowered justice in Pilate's mind (23b) Listen to that phrase again, "The voices of the crowd prevailed!" What a lesson for us! To Pilate it ceased being a matter of right and wrong and it became a matter of, "How am I going to handle this crowd?" We are often faced with a decision whether to do what is right or to listen to the voices of the crowd, of our family, of our friends, of our colleagues, of our society. We know what the right thing is; we know what God demands that we do. But the people around us in our lives don't see that and they urge us more and more strongly to do what's convenient, to do what the culture says, what is in our own self-interest. We try to find ways to get out of having to make the decision, even passing it off on someone else, but that doesn't really work and, in the end, we have to choose. Will we do what we know is right or let the voices of the crowd prevail? There are many examples of this kind of pressure in our society. Colleen was 18 and entering college when she became pregnant by a boyfriend her parents disapproved of. The doctor said, "Such a shame, but it can be taken care of" and gave her a card to an abortion clinic. She felt it was wrong but she asked several teachers for advice. One said she'd had several abortions and it was nothing and she didn't need this trouble in her life. Another was a nun and even she said it was the best thing for her. When she broke down and told her parents it was wrong, they threatened to kick her out of the house if she didn't do it! So the voices of the crowd prevailed and she did abort the baby. But she says, "In the end, the abortion did not 'solve all my problems' as everyone had promised. My parents still kicked me out. I had to quit school. I married the boyfriend. It didn't work out. He became an alcoholic and a drug addict. He beat me up and brought other women into our bed." Today Colleen has 3 children, pickets abortion clinics and does all she can to fight abortion because it is wrong and it ruins lives! [\[www.afterabortion.org/case_co.html\]](http://www.afterabortion.org/case_co.html) Abortion is a common crowd-voice issue. So is the acceptance of homosexuality and gay marriage. God loves all people regardless of what they do but He clearly says in His Word that the practice of homosexuality is wrong and immoral just like sex without marriage or adultery is. We know this but the voices of our teachers and professors and the media and society and now even the government say, "Homosexuality has equal status with heterosexuality and MUST be recognized as legitimate!" The pressure is intense but will we let the voices of the crowd shape our thinking? Another issue that is epidemic in our day is divorce. How many of our teens in Youth Group or Pioneer Club kids have issues from broken homes? A person may be unhappy in their marriage. They know God says divorce is wrong but the voices all around them, their friends, the media, the culture says, "You need to be happy! Think about yourself! Your kids will adjust! Find someone else who is right for you." And the person has to decide whether they will do what's right or let the voices of the crowd prevail over God's voice. Whatever our situation, we always have that same choice to make, but Pilate let the voices of the crowd prevail and in the end:

4. he sentenced Jesus to die and released Barabbas (24-25) He released a murderer and condemned an innocent man in order to pacify a crowd and save his own hide.

That is pretty much how many of the rulers of this world work. Pilate and Herod are just two of a class of people who have managed to claw their way to power over masses of people for their own purposes and throw justice to the winds. Even today nations are ruled by men like them. I need only mention names we know like Hugo Chavez or Fidel Castro or Kim Jong Un or Vladimir Putin or Saddam Hussein or Muammar Gaddafi, similar figures from our own lifetimes. Godless rulers still oppress millions, make use of violent men and persecute innocent believers at their own whim as they always have. But here's what they didn't know. Not many months later in Acts 4, the apostles ...lifted their voices together to God and said, "Sovereign Lord, who made the heaven and the earth and the sea and everything in them, who through the mouth of our father David, your servant, said [in Psalm 2] by the Holy Spirit, "Why did the Gentiles rage, and the peoples plot in vain? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers were gathered together, against the Lord and against his Anointed"— for truly in this city there were gathered together against your holy servant Jesus, whom you anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, along with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel, to do whatever your hand and your plan had predestined to take place. - Acts 4:24-28. Pilate and Herod and the Jewish leaders all joined together to put Jesus to death, but they were unknowingly doing what God had planned and predestined so that Jesus would die for our sins and rise again! Even though this whole drama of arrest and trial looks like Satan is winning, God was in charge the whole time accomplishing His purpose! Hallelujah! Listen, whenever it is the hour of evil men and it seems like the power of darkness is winning and prevailing all around us, God is still on the throne working all things together for good, for His ultimate good purpose, Rom. 8:28! I'm told that the ancient Chinese sometimes used a unique mechanism for presenting their plays. They would present a play on a two-level stage. On the upper stage, the resolution of the drama would be acted out at the same time as the story unfolded below. So as tension and mystery were building on the first level, the audience watching the resolution of the plot would yell to the people on the first level, "Hang in there! Do not give up! If you only knew!" What inspired that hope? It was the knowledge of what was happening on the second level. Friends, we KNOW there is a second level, that God is in charge working ALL things together for good, so hang in there! Don't give up! Jesus knew what God was doing and that He was in control, so He trusted Him and yielded to His will. We must do the same!

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Passion Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 19:28-24:53

The Crucifixion Of Jesus - 23:26-56

We have followed Jesus through Passion Week. From His Triumphal Entry on Sunday through His Last Supper and His arrest on Thursday night to His trials before both the Jewish leaders and the Roman governor early on Friday morning. And now it is time to take our shoes off spiritually because we have come to holy ground. John Piper writes, Life is wasted if we do not grasp the glory of the cross, cherish it for the treasure that it is, and cleave to it as the highest price of every pleasure and the deepest comfort in every pain. What was once foolishness to us—a crucified God—must become our wisdom and our power and our only boast in this world.” [Don’t Waste Your Life]. Centuries ago, Thomas à Kempis wrote, In the Cross is salvation; in the Cross is life; in the Cross is protection against our enemies; in the Cross is infusion of heavenly sweetness; in the Cross is strength of mind; in the Cross is joy of spirit; in the Cross is excellence of virtue; in the Cross is perfection of holiness. There is no salvation of soul, nor hope of eternal life, save in the Cross.” [The Inner Life]. It is the central act, the pinnacle, of all human history. And yet, as we read the story of it, it seems like the lowest thing that human beings have ever stooped to do. First Luke tells us of:

I. The Way To The Cross in verses (26-32). It is known as the Via Dolorosa, the Way of Suffering, the winding path westward from the Fortress of Antonia on the wall of Jerusalem to the hill called Golgotha, the place of execution. The distance was less than half a mile but Jesus was so weak from the severe scourging He received and the loss of blood that the soldiers feared He would not make it and so at their demand:

1. Jesus was helped by Simon from Cyrene who carried His cross (26) Cyrene was a Roman city in North Africa, modern Libya, and Simon was a Jew who had probably come to Jerusalem for Passover. Him the soldiers randomly forced into service to lift the heavy wooden crossbeam on his shoulder and carry it for Jesus. And though he probably did not know Jesus, this brief walk left him standing before the cross and touched his heart to its very depths, for Mark tells us that he was the father of Alexander and Rufus who became leaders in the early church. Simon evidently came to faith somehow through that experience and remained faithful! His life was changed forever by his experience of the cross, just as yours and mine have been! A second thing Luke mentions on the way is that:

2. Jesus warned the crowd of the future suffering coming upon Israel (27-31) A large crowd was following this procession, I imagine to see the spectacle of a crucifixion, similar to the way that public hangings in the Old West always drew a crowd of townsfolk. Somehow people seem to like to watch other people die, yet among them were many women who were deeply moved by suffering of Jesus as He stumbled along, barely able to walk, bloody and wearing a crown of thorns. They were weeping and wailing and somewhere along the path, Jesus paused for a moment and said essentially, “Don’t weep for Me; weep for yourselves and your children! There’s a day coming when you’ll wish you never had them so they wouldn’t have to suffer, when you’ll be desperate to hide but will have no place to hide from the Romans! If they’re doing this awful thing to Me now, imagine what they will do to you! And all because you as a nation rejected Me!” Forty years later Israel was brutally destroyed by Rome and the Jewish nation ceased to exist. Crosses by the hundreds lined the roads everywhere. Rejecting Jesus has dire consequences, whether that was national punishment 2000 years ago, or the personal eternal punishment a person who rejects Him will experience today! Then, notice the tiny line in verse (32):

3. Jesus was led away with criminals as one of them The soldiers marched in front with the charge against the condemned written on a sign, clearly sending the message, “This is what happens to those who defy Rome!” And Jesus was not regarded as any different from the other two; to them He was just another criminal who deserved to die. 750 years earlier the Prophet Isaiah said of Him, ...he poured out his life unto death, and was numbered with the transgressors. For he bore the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors. - 53:12. He was counted a criminal, though the crime He was paying for was not His, but ours! Our sins were laid on Him and the penalty He endured was ours.

Well, as the procession arrived at Golgotha, Luke now gives his version of:

II. The Crucifixion Of Jesus in verses (33-43) It is such a simple statement (33). But it tells us that Jesus:

1. He underwent the awful suffering of being crucified It is one of the most diabolical methods of torture ever invented and the Romans perfected it to a tee. Let me read you a brief description: Once the victim arrived at the execution site, the patibulum [or crosspiece] was put on the ground and the victim was forced to lie upon it. Spikes about 7 inches long and 3/8 of an inch in diameter were driven into the wrists. The spikes would hit the area of the median nerve, causing shocks of pain up the arms to the shoulders and neck. Already standing at the crucifixion site would be the 7-foot-tall post, called a stipes.... The patibulum was then lifted on to the stipes, and the victim’s body was awkwardly turned on the seat so that the feet could be nailed to the stipes. At this point, there was tremendous strain put on the wrists, arms and shoulders, resulting in a dislocation of the shoulder and elbow joints. The position of the nailed body held the victim’s rib cage in a fixed position, which made it extremely difficult to exhale, and impossible to take a full breath. Ultimately, the mechanism of death in crucifixion was suffocation. To breathe, the victim was forced to push up on his feet to allow for inflation of the lungs. As the body weakened and pain in the feet and legs became unbearable, the victim was forced to trade breathing for pain and exhaustion. Eventually, the victim would succumb in this way, becoming utterly exhausted or lapsing into unconsciousness so that he could no longer lift his body off the stipes and inflate his lungs. [<https://www.allaboutjesuschrist.org/crucifixion.htm>] That's what Jesus endured for us! For 6 hours, from 9 AM to 3 PM, our Savior hung there in excruciating agony struggling to breathe. Yet even as they hoisted Him up:

2. He prayed for the forgiveness of His enemies (34a) In this first cry, He meant the Romans, the Jews, and ultimately the whole world, "Father forgive them!" In one sense they knew exactly what they were doing, yet Paul comments in 1 Cor. 2:8, None of the rulers of this age understood this, for if they had, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. They had no idea who He was, no idea that they were crucifying God the Son, the very Lord of glory, that they were committing the ultimate treason against the Creator of the Universe! Jesus pleads ignorance on their behalf and on ours. I didn't know either! The song says, How deep the Father's love for us, How vast beyond all measure, That He should give His only Son, To make a wretch His treasure. It was my sin that held Him there, Until it was accomplished, His dying breath has brought me life, I know that it is finished. It was not nails that held Jesus on that cross; He could have called ten thousand angels to set Him free! It was MY sins that kept Him on that tree, and yours! But, like the soldiers and the crowd, I had no idea what was happening. And, as if the physical agony of being crucified and the eternal agony of bearing our sins was not enough:

3. He was surrounded by a mocking crowd (34b-39) As they stood watching:

a. the Jewish people and their leaders shouted insults (35) "Save yourself, O Christ!" At his feet:

b. the soldiers gambled for His clothes (34b) It didn't matter at all to them! It was just another day, another pesty Jew, another crucifixion and their entertainment of the day was to throw dice for His blood-stained garments. They even mocked Him just like the Jews (36-38). "Come on, King! Save yourself!" And:

c. even the thief beside Him mocked Him (39) What a wicked man! Even as he hung in agony, hours from death, he still joined in cruelly mocking the man beside him!

No wonder David prophesied the very feelings of Jesus in Psalm 22 when he wrote, All who see me mock me; they make mouths at me; they wag their heads; "He trusts in the LORD; let him deliver him; let him rescue him, for he delights in him!" ...Many bulls encompass me; strong bulls of Bashan surround me; they open wide their mouths at me, like a ravening and roaring lion. I am poured out like water, and all my bones are out of joint; my heart is like wax; it is melted within my breast; my strength is dried up like a potsherd, and my tongue sticks to my jaws; you lay me in the dust of death. For dogs encompass me; a company of evildoers encircles me; they have pierced my hands and feet—I can count all my bones—they stare and gloat over me; they divide my garments among them, and for my clothing they cast lots. Even though He pled with the Father for their forgiveness, how painful it must have been for Him to hear and see the awful crowd around Him. Yet in the very midst of it all, something wonderful happened (40-43). The thief on the other side had an "Aha!" moment! Now, this man was no better than the rest. He was a criminal, a malefactor, a man sentenced to die for serious crimes, yet in that moment as he stared his own death in the face, God revealed to Him somehow that Jesus was without sin and that He was the Christ, the Son of God that everyone else was denying and he cried out, "Jesus, remember me! Even me, sinful though I am and deserving of this awful death as I am!" And in the midst of it all, Jesus:

4. He promised immediate salvation to the repentant thief TODAY you'll be with Me in paradise! What a marvelous thing! He woke up, came to his senses, realized he was a sinner deserving of eternal punishment, cried out to Jesus for mercy and got it, instantly! That's what happened to me! I knew about Jesus being crucified and all, but when I was 15, I had an "Aha!" moment! It all came crashing in on me that I was a sinner and I was lost and that Jesus had died that awful death for ME! So, I cried out to Him for forgiveness and suddenly I KNEW that I was His, that I belonged to Him and that I would be with Him in heaven when I died! Have YOU had that moment? You may have been raised in the church and known all about Jesus all your life, but have you had that moment where it dawned on you that it was YOUR sins that nailed Him there and you cried out to Him for forgiveness and asked Him to save you? If you have, then, just like this repentant thief, YOU will be with Him in paradise! That's what the cross is about; that's why Jesus was nailed there, to save you and to save me.

Well as we get to noon, Luke begins to record for us the actual:

III. The Death Of Jesus in verses (44-49). First of all, he notes that:

1. it was accompanied by miraculous signs (44-45) At noon the sky went dark. The Roman historian Phlegon was probably describing this very event when he wrote: "In the fourth year, however, of Olympiad 202 [which includes AD 33 in our dating system], an eclipse of the sun happened, greater and more excellent than any that had happened before it; at the sixth hour, day turned into dark night, so that the stars were seen in the sky, and an earthquake in Bithynia toppled many buildings of the city of Nicaea." [<http://creationanswers.net/biblical/crucifixiondate.htm>]. However, it could not have been a normal solar eclipse, because Passover occurs at full moon when the moon is in the exact opposite position from where it would need to be. It was an act of God the Father blotting out the sun for three solid hours, steeping the land in the darkness of night, showing in nature itself the seriousness of the dying of His Son. Meanwhile, in the city of Jerusalem in the Temple of God the great curtain that separated the Holy Place where the priests stood ministering, from the Holy of Holies which no man could enter, suddenly began to tear in two, from the top to the bottom, as Matthew notes, and there was a great earthquake at the same time. It was as though God Himself tore the veil apart from heaven with His two hands, showing that the way into the Holy Place was now opened through the death of His Son and today, we can go right into His Presence! Hallelujah! Well, then Luke describes the very act of Jesus' dying itself (46). Crucifixion did not kill Him! He dismissed His Spirit from His body, He sent it away to the Father and His body stopped breathing, which is exactly what happens to us when we die, but in His case, Luke is pointing out that:

2. it was His own choice He said it clearly; look with me at John 10:17-18. They didn't take His life from Him; you can't kill God! He chose to lay it down of His own accord and He laid it down for us because He loved us! Then He chose to take it up again on the third day! At the bottom line, this was not human beings killing Him; it was Him killing Himself for human beings so that we might have eternal life! Well, this whole scene, the darkness, the earthquake, the torn veil, the words, had an impact:

3. it had an impact upon the Centurion who nailed Him there (47) In fact, he said more than that. Mark 15:39, ...when the centurion, who stood facing him, saw that in this way he breathed his last, he said, "Truly this man was the Son of God!" Whether he understood what that meant or not, he had an "Aha!" moment, just as the thief had. In that moment He saw clearly that this was no ordinary man, this man was indeed innocent and that He was connected to God Himself. I like to think he believed and it's just possible that you'll meet this Roman soldier in heaven one day! But at the same time:

4. it had an impact upon the crowd (48-49) The gawking, mocking crowd was silenced by the darkness and the earthquake and went home beating their fists against their chests in mourning, in sadness, recognizing that an awful, terrible thing had just transpired, that God Himself was displeased with what had happened and they had been part of it.

Like that crowd, many, even today, are saddened by the death of Jesus as a cruel, awful thing that should never have happened to such an innocent man. But oh, for the few who, like the centurion, have their eyes opened and say, "Surely this man was the Son of God!" and fall on their faces and worship Him! Well, lastly Luke records:

IV. The Burial Of Jesus (50-56) A man named:

1. Joseph of Arimathea came and laid Him in his own tomb (50-53) How brave he was to go to Pilate and ask for the body and how generous for him to bury Jesus in his own tomb. Not all the Jewish leaders agreed with condemning Him; Matthew and John both say that Joseph was a disciple. He had believed and evidently was later part of the early church. Nicodemus, another Jewish elder, also came and helped him. Meanwhile:

2. believing women watched His burial and prepared to bring spices (54-56) This is important because they saw where and how quickly He was buried. They went home to prepare and come back early Sunday morning to make it proper and right. But, and I love verse 1 of chapter 24, when they returned early at dawn, the spices weren't needed anymore! Jesus had risen!

John Newton was a captain of slave ships, a man as cruel as any who were there that day. He himself says, "I sinned with a high hand!". Yet one day during a terrible storm at sea he gave his life to Jesus Christ and was forever changed. You know him for writing probably the most famous hymn of all time, "Amazing Grace." He meant what he wrote. But he also wrote a poem that describes his own "Aha" moment and I'd like to share it with you:

*In evil long I took delight, Unawed by shame or fear, Till a new object struck my sight, And stopp'd my wild career:
I saw One hanging on a Tree In agonies and blood,
Who fix'd His languid eyes on me. As near His Cross I stood.*

*Sure never till my latest breath, Can I forget that look:
It seem'd to charge me with His death, Though not a word He spoke:
My conscience felt and own'd the guilt, And plunged me in despair:
I saw my sins His Blood had spilt, And help'd to nail Him there.*

*Alas! I knew not what I did! But now my tears are vain:
Where shall my trembling soul be hid? For I the Lord have slain!
A second look He gave, which said, "I freely all forgive;
This blood is for thy ransom paid; I die that thou may'st live."*

*Thus, while His death my sin displays In all its blackest hue, Such is the mystery of grace, It seals my pardon too.
With pleasing grief, and mournful joy, My spirit now is fill'd,
That I should such a life destroy, Yet live by Him I kill'd!*

[John Newton, 1725-1807]

Jesus, The Son Of Man - The Gospel Of Luke

The Passion Of The Son Of Man - Lk. 19:28-24:53

The Resurrection Of Jesus - Ch. 24

Luke ends his Gospel and we end our study through it, of course, with his account of the Resurrection of Jesus. John MacArthur writes, The resurrection of Jesus Christ is the single greatest event in the history of the world. It is so foundational to Christianity that no one who denies it can be a true Christian. Without resurrection there is no Christian faith, no salvation, and no hope.... A person who believes in a Christ who was not raised believes in a powerless Christ, a dead Christ. If Christ did not rise from the dead, then no redemption was accomplished at the cross and 'your faith is worthless,' Paul goes on to say... [MacArthur New Testament Commentary]. Luke gives us the record of three events that form the very basis of our core conviction that Jesus rose from the dead and He is alive today. The first is the account of:

I. The Empty Tomb (1-12) On Friday, the women who believed in Jesus had faithfully stood by the cross and watched Him be buried in Joseph's tomb. They planned to return early Sunday morning after the Sabbath with spices to properly care for His body, but when they arrived:

1. the women found the tomb empty (1-3) Imagine their fear and apprehension when they saw the soldiers gone, the heavy stone rolled back and the tomb standing open! And then to go in and find His body missing! Their hearts must have sunk, as they could only assume His very body had been removed and desecrated. But (4-8). Two men in brilliant, shining clothes suddenly appeared right next to them and as they fell to the ground in fear, these:

2. angels told them He had risen! Nobody expected that! Especially not after seeing His horrible death on Friday! But the angels clearly declared, "He is alive! Risen from the dead!" And then they reminded them of His words. Many months earlier, Peter so clearly confessed, You are the Christ, the Son of the Living God! and Mt. 16:21 says, From that time Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and suffer many things from the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised. How many times must He have told them He would die and rise again, over and over! By the way, if He predicted that many times that He would rise again and then didn't do it, He'd be a liar or a crazy man and why would we ever follow Him? Yet somehow His words never sank in; they never really heard Him. But in that moment, suddenly it all came back to them; they remembered! And oh, what joy it must have brought them if they dared to believe it! At any rate, I'm sure they ran all the way back to the city to share the news, yet sadly:

3. the women told the Eleven disciples but they did not believe them (9-11) Idle tales means foolish talk, pure nonsense! Like a fairy tale where a frog turns into a prince! "How could such a thing possibly be? No sane person would believe this!" And that's what much of the world still thinks of the story of Jesus' resurrection today! It's an archaic religious legend, a sacred myth held by Christians to honor Jesus' life that couldn't possibly be real. That's exactly what my religion professor in college taught and I'm sure many of his students accepted! Jesus is with us in spirit, but His body didn't really rise! Well, let me ask, if that's so, where did His body go? It was in a sealed tomb guarded by four Roman soldiers who would find themselves under the penalty of death if it disappeared! The Romans wanted His body to stay in there. The Jews wanted it to stay in there; they asked for the guard! So, you mean to tell me that some brave believer frightened the guards away, opened the tomb, stole the body and created the myth that Jesus is alive? That, to me sounds more like an idle tale than the women's story! By the way, I just got an alumni letter saying they're closing down the religion department at that university. Small wonder and great idea! Listen, Jesus lives! And His empty tomb stands as the first evidence of it! Well, even though they didn't believe it, it was really disturbing to the Eleven and:

4. Peter ran to the tomb to see for himself (12) Jn. 20:2-10 tells us John ran with him and when he went in and saw it for himself, he believed! But even the empty tomb and the linen cloths lying in place as though the body had just evaporated right through them and the face cloth folded up neatly and laid aside didn't fully convince Peter; he left, marveling at it all, yet still not believing. But that's alright because evidently:

5. Jesus appeared to Peter later that day, maybe even on his way back to the city because look what the apostles say that same evening (34)! And Paul confirms in 1 Cor. 15:5 that He appeared to Peter that same day before the rest! And Peter wrote, ...we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty. - 2 Pet. 1:16. The second evidence that Jesus is alive is dozens, yea hundreds, of trustworthy eyewitnesses that saw Him alive over the next 40 days! Peter was one and we're about to meet two more of them who were traveling that day on:

II. The Road To Emmaus in verses (13-35). Read (13-24). Notice:

1. the confusion of the two disciples over all that had happened They're leaving town, disillusioned by the events of the weekend. After all the miracles they had seen Jesus do, they believed He was the promised Messiah who would save Israel, but then He was arrested and crucified. So, He couldn't be. And to top it off, this morning these women came saying the tomb was empty and told some tale about seeing angels who told them Jesus was alive - but they didn't actually see Him. They're confused. It doesn't make sense. They don't know what to think. And God has supernaturally kept them from seeing that it is actually JESUS they're telling all this to! What irony! They're telling Jesus He must still be dead! Now if it was me, I'd magically open their eyes and watch them fall on their faces crying, "We're sorry Lord, what fools we are!" But fortunately, Jesus is much more patient than I am and instead of "wowing" their socks off, notice:

2. the explanation of Jesus from the Scriptures (25-27) In verse 32 they describe it by saying ...He opened to us the Scriptures. It's the Greek verb diagnoio from which we get diagnose; it means to open something up fully or explain something thoroughly. He showed them what was written there all along in the Scriptures of the Old Testament that they had never seen before. And notice it says He showed them in all the Scriptures the things concerning Himself. No doubt, He started in Gen. 3:15 with the Seed of the Woman and said, "That's Me!" And later He showed them that when Isaiah said, ...it was the LORD's will to crush him and cause him to suffer, and though the LORD makes his life a guilt offering, he will see his offspring and prolong his days, and the will of the LORD will prosper in his hand. After the suffering of his soul, he will see the light of life and be satisfied (53:10-11), it was talking about His death and resurrection! Passage after passage after passage He opened to them, one after the other, until the afternoon was far spent. Oh, wouldn't you have loved to be there with them for that Sunday School lesson! You'd never forget it, nor should you, because that is a third evidence of Jesus' resurrection. God predicted it repeatedly centuries in advance and God can't lie! Well, by now it was getting late (28-31). Notice at last:

3. the recognition of Jesus in the breaking of the bread When He took the bread and blessed it and broke it and gave it to them, it was a deja vu moment, bringing to mind Thursday night at the Last Supper! They'd lived through this before and suddenly they saw Him for who He was! Let's not miss the point of that. Jesus gave us the command that we should frequently remember Him by the Lord's Supper, by taking the bread and the cup. But here we see that it is not only His death for our sins that we are remembering! By taking it, Paul says, we proclaim the Lord's death until He comes! So even as we remember His death, we are declaring that He's alive and He's coming again! The Lord's Supper is our continual reminder that Jesus is alive and we're waiting for Him! We too recognize that He is alive in the breaking of the bread! Hallelujah! And what an impact it had (32-35). They must have shouted with joy back and forth to each other as they ran the quarter marathon all the way back to Jerusalem to tell the Apostles, "We've seen Jesus!" But when they burst in with their news, the Apostles say, "Peter has seen Jesus too!" And then suddenly, there He stood, right in their midst in Luke's third scene:

III. The Upper Room (36-49) Read (36-37):

1. Jesus appeared to the Eleven, frightening them Wouldn't you be frightened? You're behind closed and locked doors. It's night and the room is lit only by candles and oil lamps and suddenly there HE stands, right in the middle of all of you! Surely you would jump back in fright! You'd say, "Am I seeing things? Can this be real? Is this the spirit of our dead Jesus saying one last goodbye, like Samuel coming up from the grave to visit Saul of old?" But Jesus remembered that we are only made of dust and He was patient with them (38-40). Now notice that Jesus proved His resurrection to them in two ways. First:

a. He showed them His body He urged them to look closely at it, to examine His wrists and see the awful holes where the nails had been driven through and the hole in His feet where the cruel spike had held them to the cross. The holes were still there! The spear wound in His side that pierced his lungs and His heart was still there! He said, Touch me! See that I am real flesh and bones as I always was! It's ME! John testifies to us in his first letter, We proclaim to you the one who existed from the beginning, whom we have heard and seen. We saw him with our own eyes and touched him with our own hands. He is the Word of life. This one who is life itself was revealed to us, and we have seen him. And now we testify and proclaim to you that he is the one who is eternal life. He was with the Father, and then he was revealed to us. - 1 Jn. 1:1-2 NLT. They saw Him, they touched Him and it changed their lives forever! And to reinforce the impact even further:

b. He ate food before them (41-43) And when He ate the fish, He held it with His hand, chewed it with His teeth and swallowed it into His body and it didn't fall through on the floor somewhere! Spirits don't eat! Jesus' BODY rose from the dead, not just His spirit! And so will ours! Paul wrote, For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive. But each in his own order: Christ the firstfruits, then at his coming those who belong to Christ. - 1 Cor. 15:22-23. He said, ...we await a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ, who will transform our lowly body to be like his glorious body... - Phil. 3:20-21. We're not going to be disembodied spirits floating around heaven for eternity; we're going to have bodies, bodies like His, bodies as real as this body we have now, only made perfect just like His glorious body, in which we will serve Him forever! Hallelujah!

And then look what He did:

2. He opened their minds to understand the Scriptures (44-45) Notice that to the two on the Emmaus road, verse 32 says, He opened the Scriptures. And verse 27 states that He thoroughly explained them. But here He opened their minds to understand the Scriptures! Thayer says that word understand in the Greek means to join together in the mind. They already knew the Scriptures; they'd been hearing and reading them since childhood; but now Jesus enabled them to perceive, to comprehend the meaning of what they'd known with what they'd just experienced! I don't think He gave them a repeat of the afternoon's lecture; I believe he entrusted those two disciples to repeat and transmit the lesson He'd given them in the days to come. Rather He did something supernatural; He enabled them to suddenly grasp what He'd been telling them about Himself for months, that the Scriptures concerning Him must be completely fulfilled, which included being killed and rising again! So that instead of saying, "This must never be!" like they had at first, they now were overwhelmed thinking, "Praise the Lord, Hallelujah! You died and rose exactly as God said! How amazing is that!" I think it was the kind of moment that Paul was describing in 2 Cor. 4:6 when he wrote, For God, who said, "Let light shine out of darkness," made his light shine in our hearts to give us the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Christ. You see, our minds were blinded. I had heard often about Jesus dying and rising, but I didn't get it. I didn't grasp the significance of it. I didn't comprehend that Jesus did it for ME, to pay for my sins and that in it lay my only hope of salvation. But, praise God, one day He opened my mind to SEE it! He enabled me to get it, to grasp it, to apply it and to know it! He does that for everyone who comes to faith; He opens our minds to comprehend and to believe the Gospel and that's the next evidence that Jesus is alive! He still shines His light into people's dark hearts so that suddenly they see and believe beyond a doubt! Jim Hall attended mass regularly with his mother as a child but when he went off to college, he lost all interest in religion and even doubted the existence of God. Years later he got engaged to a special girl named Gina. She was attending a Bible study and Jim asked to go with her because he was curious. He had never been encouraged to study the Bible and thought it was just a book of stories, but found it interesting. Then, sometime later his father had a heart attack and nearly died and he was so shaken up that he prayed to God earnestly and became involved in a 10 week Bible study which pointed out lots of things that were not right in his life. He and Gina changed a lot as they began to follow things the Bible said, but Jim was still not at peace and had inward struggles. Finally, he says, "I determined to diligently search the Scriptures to see if my salvation experience was real. The Lord showed me that my prayer 10 years before lacked the repentance and faith described in the Scriptures. On February 23, 1997, the Lord opened my heart as I wept over my sin, and I put myself at the foot of Calvary, realizing that it was for me that Jesus died. God was doing a work in my life, and I knew I needed to repent and surrender and, by faith, accept Jesus as Lord. Since that day, I have the assurance that the Holy Spirit is doing a work in my life." [www.lvbaptist.org/jhall/] Listen, Jesus still opens minds to understand the Scriptures and opens hearts to believe them! If all you've got is head knowledge, ask Him; He'll open your mind and heart! Well, then Jesus did two more important things. First:

3. He commissioned them to reach all peoples with the Message (46-48) He appointed them His ambassadors; He told them to go in His Name, on His behalf, and proclaim the need for repentance and the offer of forgiveness through Him, not just to Israel, but to ALL the peoples of the world! What a tall order! What an assignment! A mere handful of men and women are to go and reach the whole world! But then Jesus told them how this would be accomplished:

4. He promised them the Holy Spirit (49) To do such a thing they needed power beyond their own strength. Multiple times during the Last Supper on Thursday night, Jesus had told them, ...I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Counselor to be with you forever-- the Spirit of truth...he lives with you and will be in you.... the Counselor, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you all things and will remind you of everything I have said to you.... When the Counselor comes, whom I will send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who goes out from the Father, he will testify about me. And you also must testify, for you have been with me from the beginning. -

Jn. 14:16, 26; 15:26-27. Now He says, "Wait until the Spirit comes and He will give you power to do it! Jesus reiterated this again in Acts 1:8, ...you will receive power when the Holy Spirit comes on you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth.

And, dear friends, that assignment was not just for them; it was for all of us who follow Jesus. We are to complete God's plan of the ages by taking the Good News of forgiveness of sins through Jesus' death and resurrection to every people on earth. That's our purpose; that's why Jesus has saved us! And how can we do such a thing? Through the power of the Holy Spirit who now lives in us! In His power we can go to places like Greece and India and Kyrgyzstan and Kensington. In His power we can send workers to dark places all over the earth and next door to bring His light. In His power we can pray effectiveness into their work and give to supply their needs. How are YOU involved in fulfilling His commission? As He closes His Gospel, Luke now skips ahead 40 days to one last event:

IV. The Ascension (50-53) He gives it only a brief mention because he knows he's going to write in detail about it in Acts 1:1-10. Here he says only two things. First, Jesus:

1. He returned to heaven (50-51) He's now seated at the right hand of the Father, reigning on high over all things. But His disciples:

2. they returned to worship (52-53) Because Jesus is alive, because He is reigning as Lord, they were full of joy and worshipped Him continually.

And that should be our reaction today! One night during the 1991 Persian Gulf War, Ruth Dillow was at her home in Kansas when she received a telegram from the Pentagon that her son had stepped on a landmine in Kuwait and was dead. It was, of course, a terrible shock. Three days later, however, Mrs. Dillow got a telephone call. The voice on the other end said, "Hi, Mom! I'm alive." At first, Mrs. Dillow couldn't believe her ears--it was the voice of her 21-year-old son whom she had been mourning for three days. She said, "I jumped up and down. I was so overjoyed!" [Clergy Journal, Mar 1992. Page 17.] Brothers and sisters, our beloved Jesus was dead. He was crucified and laid in a tomb behind a stone to be sealed away forever. But on the third day, contrary to all expectations, He showed up ALIVE! And now He's seated on heaven's throne and will never die again! No wonder they were filled with joy and worshipped Him! And it's the same joy we feel in our hearts today. Our Jesus is alive! He lives! He's reigning! And we'll see Him and be with Him some day and stay with Him forever! Hallelujah!

[\[Table Of Contents\]](#)

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

Theme verses: Lk. 4:18-19, Mt. 12:18

1. The Helpless	5:17-26
2. The Bereaved	7:11-17
3. The Sinful	7:36-50
4. The controlled	8:26-37
5. The Chronically Ill	8:42-48
6. The Hungry	9:11-17
7. The Victimized	10:30-37
8. The Bound	13:10-17
9. The Rebellious	15:11-31
10. The Outcast	17:11-19
11. The Young	18:15-17
12. The Wealthy	18:18-27
13. The Blind	18:35-43
14. The Dying	23:39-43

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Helpless - 5:17-26

I want you to take an imaginary trip with me for a moment. The year is 1864. The place is Gettysburg. The largest and most costly battle of the Civil War was fought just yesterday, the one that turned the tide of the Confederacy and set the course of America toward freedom for all men. As you walk onto the battlefield today, what do you see? All around you, of course, are the bodies of dead soldiers both blue and grey, lying where they have fallen. But the thing that really catches your eye is the wounded. Everywhere you look there is movement. Some moan and cry out for help. Others, barely able to move, struggle to lift a hand in the air to attract attention. Some hobble about holding an injured leg or arm. Some are being taken prisoner; others are being treated cruelly out of hate. Many just lie there bleeding. What is your response? Do you find yourself able to walk coldly through the battlefield and move on to the next fray? No, there is one drive you cannot escape: care for the wounded. They're hurt. They're suffering. Without you they will die. Care for the wounded. Now hold that picture and that feeling and let me paint you another one. My friend, you live in just such a place every day of your life. This world is a battlefield. Satan and his forces attack the human race to kill and hurt and destroy as many as they can, generation after generation. And as you pass through life, all around you every day lie the wounded, those who have been hurt and maimed and crippled in the battle. Some are the down and out, can't-move wounded, unable to function at all by themselves in life. But thousands of others are "walking wounded" who are able to somehow hobble along, wound and all, and live a semblance of life, though every step is fraught with pain. Some of them are your own family.

Some of them are your brothers and sisters in Christ. Some of them are complete strangers to you. Some are even enemy soldiers who fought for the other side. Wounded are everywhere. Now with that picture, you're ready to think about:

I. The Mission Of Jesus Christ I want you to look at what He himself said about to the people of His own hometown about the focal point of His ministry.

1. His focus: ministry to the wounded - Luke 4:18-19 Look at those to whom God sent Him: to the wounded of the human race, to the poor, to the prisoners, to the blind, to the oppressed. If you stop and think about the Gospel accounts of Jesus' life, what was He always doing? He was stopping to heal a leper whom nobody else would touch or even come near, or a blind person whose only means of living was to sit at a gate and beg for a few coins. You find him caring for a widow whose only remaining joy had been snuffed out by the death of her son, feeding a crowd of people who were hungry and had nothing to eat, forgiving some fallen woman who was despised by the religious people of her town and would never find forgiveness, teaching somebody who didn't understand and opening their eyes. Jesus' whole ministry on earth was not taken up with "normal", have-it-all-together, people without a sense of need. It was taken up with people who had been wounded in life, people who hurt, people who needed to be cared for and nobody else seemed to want to care for. It was to the wounded that He was sent to be a Savior. And then look at:

2. His heart: the heart of a doctor - Luke 5:30-32 The religious people of His day couldn't understand why Jesus was so taken up with wounded people, with tax collectors and sinners. And Jesus said, "I'm a doctor! Sick people need a doctor and sinful people need a Savior! I didn't come to a world full of righteous people to pat them on the back; I came to a world full of wounded, sinful people to call them to repentance, to find forgiveness and healing and wholeness in Me!" That's Jesus' heart, the heart of a doctor that sees a world full of wounded people and wants to heal them. And here's:

3. His manner: gentle caring - Mt. 12:18 A crushed reed that's been broken down and trampled needs to be handled extremely gently or it will break off altogether instead of being straightened. A lamp wick that is smoldering with the flame gone and only a slight glow and some smoke needs to be gently nursed back to open flame or it will be snuffed out. It's almost an impossible task; it's so delicate. Wounded people have to be moved carefully and lovingly. They have to be treated with special and gentle care and isn't that how He treated them. He had time for the little children everyone else was chasing away. He stopped to touch the blind man everyone else was telling to shut up and go away. He spoke gently to the woman taken in adultery instead of casting a stone like the rest wanted to do. He exercised gentle caring for the world full of wounded people that surrounded Him.

And so must we. Whoever claims to live in him must walk as Jesus did. - 1 Jn. 2:6. Christ's mission is not done. Now that He is living in us, He is living it out through us. And if He's in control of us, then we will walk as He did, our hearts will be broken for the wounded all around us and driven to care for them as his was. And that's what this series of messages is all about. Now in Lk. 5:12-26 we read the account of how Jesus met a helpless man. This man was a paralytic. He was paralyzed. He couldn't move. We'd probably call him a quadriplegic. No matter how hard he tried, he couldn't sit up, he couldn't stand, he couldn't walk, nothing. He was helpless. It took four of his friends to carry him anywhere. We're not told why, whether he'd had an accident or a stroke or whatever. All we know is that life had wounded him and left him lying on the battlefield helpless. And he's not the only one. There are people all around us every day whom the circumstances of life have left helpless. Now the first part of:

II. Understanding The Wound Of The Helpless is taking a look at:

1. who they are Most obvious are:

a. the physically helpless: the ill, elderly, young All you need do is stop in five minutes from here at Abington hospital. It is full of helpless people. People reduced to helplessness by disease, by accident, by cancer, to where they cannot take care of themselves, where they are to one degree or another unable to do anything. Stop by the Edgehill Nursing Home the other direction and see some of the elderly who have become basically helpless. Old age has sapped them of their strength and some of them of their reasoning and cast them on the mercy of others to care for them and there isn't a thing they can do about it. Spend five minutes in front of the TV news and it won't take you long to realize how helpless children are and some of them are trapped in horrible situations with parents who abuse them or neglect them and there isn't a thing they can do about it. Then there are:

b. the situationally helpless: the poor, the trapped Suppose you were born in Ethiopia instead of Pennsylvania. You might live in a hut and cook over an open fire. You might go hungry many nights and watch loved ones around you die of malnutrition. And there would be no ladder to climb, no job to get. Helpless. Or what if you lived in Rwanda just now. You might have no choice but to flee for your life and leave everything you have behind. You might be trapped in a refugee camp with no food and no future. Around the world thousands of people live around garbage dumps and survive by going through the garbage. And for most of them it has not been their choice. Life has trapped them and made them helpless. And then there is the biggest group of all:

c. the spiritually helpless: the lost (which included us all!) Now please don't think that this man was paralyzed because of his sins, but you'll notice that Jesus is pretty obvious about forgiving the man's sins right off. Why? Well, besides the fact that He was proving His divinity to His skeptical onlookers, there's a very clear symbolic lesson here right off. In relationship to the forgiveness of sins, all of us, before we come to Jesus, are paralyzed people, utterly helpless, without anything we can do to get forgiveness. We could no more procure our own forgiveness than a paralyzed man can walk. We were lost, spiritually helpless, and so are many, many of the people around you every day.

Who do you know, my friend, that's helpless? Who do you know that's ill or elderly or trapped in their circumstances? Who do you know that's lost and struggling to procure forgiveness in vain by being religious, but they're helpless? Get someone, maybe more than one specific person in your mind right now. And let's take a moment to think about:

2. what they feel Imagine what it would be like to be that paralyzed man. I know a person or two like that and maybe you do too, unable to get out of bed or dress themselves or do the simplest things that you and I take for granted. First, that man knew:

a. the frustration born of powerlessness: What can I do? Think of young children trying to do something they just are too weak to do and how frustrated and mad they get. When our daughter Jennifer was young, she liked to hang up her swimsuit on the clothesline herself. Of course, she couldn't reach it so she tried to throw it up and hope it would hang. She would get so mad that she threw it down and would get all mad at me if I tried to help. But she was no different than all of us. Our flesh gets frustrated by being powerless. When you can do nothing, the question always on your mind is, "What can I do?" And the answer "Nothing" drives us crazy. Then there is the sense of:

b. the uselessness born of inability: What good am I? "What purpose do I serve? I'm not good for anything because I can't do anything. Here I am, a burden on society, a burden on my children. Others have to take care of me, I'm so helpless. I'm better off dead." You've heard people say those things, haven't you? They're real. And then they feel:

c. the fear born of vulnerability: What will happen to me? If I can't help myself, I can't control what happens to me. I can't protect myself. I'm vulnerable. What will happen to me?

Maybe some of you have been there and you know what it's like to be helpless. Maybe you have someone you know who's been wounded in life and left helpless and feels the pain of it. Maybe you're there yourself right now, even as a Christian, in some way, helpless. Well, you know:

III. The World's Reaction To The Helpless (19a) - Mk. 2:2 says, So many gathered that there was no room left, not even outside the door... There was a big crowd and they wouldn't let him through. The simplest common courtesy would be to at least allow the helpless person to pass through. But they kept their backs turned to him and never even noticed he was there. They wanted Jesus and what He offered for themselves. What a picture. Out in the world, people rob the helpless. They mug the elderly and shoot the defenseless for the sheer joy of watching them die. They steal helpless children and abuse and kill them. That's the world we live in. Even the line at McDonald's is sometimes a push-your-way-to-the-front operation where the helpless wait forever. But these are religious people hanging out the door with their backs to the helpless man. What an indictment on the Church. So many times that is us, all gathered happily and snugly listening to the Word be taught, forgetting all about the helpless people right beside us, the lost, the needy, and the trapped. But there were four men who did care and whose attitude displays what ought to be:

IV. Our Reaction To The Helpless (18-20a) This man had four friends. God bless them. We don't know who they were. But they put this man on a mat and carried him all the way from his home to where Jesus was. And that's what we must do for the helpless:

1. we must carry them - it is our responsibility to care Carrying your helpless friend may be as simple as going to visit or encouraging and demonstrating love. It may take a practical form like doing for them something they cannot do physically, like bringing a meal or mowing the lawn or driving them to the store or the doctor. But above all, like these men:

2. we must bring them to Jesus Notice that when they got there and couldn't get in, these men wouldn't be stopped. Most homes in those days were flat-roofed and usually had an outside stairway to go up on the roof where there might be a little open-air chamber. These men figured out where Jesus was standing, carried their friend up the steps onto the roof, dug through the layer of dirt and thatch that covered it and removed the tiles which held it up so they could lower their friend down between the rafters in front of Jesus. And Jesus looked up and saw the man being lowered down and verse 20 says something interesting, He saw their faith. The reason they were so doggedly determined to get him to Jesus was because they believed Jesus could help him! My friend, we must bring the helpless around us to Jesus. He's the One who can help them. Four men can only do so much for a person. But Jesus can not only help that person spiritually, He can provide for them what we can't, what our resources are too small for. He can provide not only for their physical needs, but for their emotional peace and well-being. The determination that we have to bring the helpless to Jesus is the measure of our confidence in His ability And look at:

V. Jesus' Caring For The Helpless (20-25) Notice two things:

1. He meets the spiritual need first The man, along with his friends, obviously had faith to want desperately to be in Jesus' presence and Jesus said, "Your sins are forgiven." You know, we always assume that the reason the man was so desperate to get to Jesus was that he wanted to be healed that badly. But we don't really know that, do we? Jesus might have been looking deep inside the man and have seen that what the man really was worried about was being forgiven of sins, rather than being made well. In any event, Jesus clearly indicated that this was his greatest need! And Jesus met it tenderly and willingly. He didn't say, "Perhaps I can find the grace in my heart to forgive you..." He said "I forgive you". Oh, wasn't it wonderful the day He did that for you? The day He looked into your helpless pleading eyes as you came to Him and said, "I forgive you!" Jesus does that for helpless people. It's why He came. He'll do it for every one you bring. But notice that:

2. He provides for the physical need as well He doesn't say, "Go now, you're forgiven, be warmed and filled". He healed the man of his paralysis with a word. Now, He doesn't always do that. Some wounds Jesus doesn't take away, but He heals them by giving His grace to get through life with them and accept them. When you bring the helpless to Jesus you can rest assured that He will take care of them tenderly and lovingly, even as you do!

My friend, you live in a world full of wounded helpless people. Is your heart moved to tenderly care for them and to carry them and to bring them to Jesus?

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Bereaved - 7:11-17

Let me take a few minutes for:

I. A Review Of Jesus' Ministry And Ours I shared with you last time that:

1. He focused on ministry to the wounded - The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... (Luke 4:18) If you read the Gospel accounts, Jesus did not spend the majority of His time railing against the wicked, denouncing the Pharisees or seeking to meet his personal needs. He was always with hurting wounded people: touching the sick, releasing the demon-possessed, feeding the hungry, teaching the poor and the simple who wanted to know. And God did not put you on His green earth to go through life getting your own needs met or to enjoy a good time with your friends. He put you here to care for the multitude of wounded hurting people that are strewn everywhere about you on the battlefield of life. They are wounded in all kinds of ways. Some are helpless; some are bereaved; some are trapped in sin; some are victimized; others are out-cast or dying themselves; all are wounded and hurting. Some of them are outside of Christ and through your compassion and caring will be brought to trust in Him. Others are already brothers and sisters in Christ, still wounded, who need you to care for them as you make your way through the battlefield together and go home. But remember how Jesus treated those hurting people:

2. He treated them with tremendous compassion - ...a bruised reed he will not break, and a smoldering wick he will not snuff out... (Mt. 12:20) His heart is the heart of a doctor and His bedside manner is one of gentleness and tenderness, of understanding the pain his wounded patient is in and feeling the hurt and working His healing ministry with as little hurt as possible. And that is how we're to treat the wounded around us, with the same gentle compassion Jesus did.

Now today we come to the familiar story in Luke 7 where Jesus and his disciples were walking on the road headed toward a town called Nain and they met a funeral procession coming toward them. Read 7:11-17. Bereavement is the one wound that none of us can escape. Sooner or later somebody you love will die. All around you, everywhere you go in the procession of life, you meet bereaved people: widows and widowers who have lost their life partners of many years, children both young and old whose mother or father has been taken from them, parents who have seen death claim their children, brothers and sisters separated once and for all and friends whose hearts are buried with their companions. Many of you have been in the place of this woman of Nain at one time or another in your life. Some of you may be there right now. But all of us, before too much time goes by, will meet some bereaved person on the road of life like Jesus did, to whom God expects us to minister. Now, if we're to do that, we must begin by:

II. Understanding The Wound Of The Bereaved (12-13) First, let's look at this widow and consider:

1. what has happened to them Three things:

a. they have been separated with finality from someone they love This woman was walking in front of a funeral procession. The dead body of her son was on a bier or carrying platform of wicker following behind. She was about to lay him in a tomb and shut the door. A woman whose little boy had terminal leukemia was sitting in the waiting room of a doctor's office when a believer tried to quietly share a word of comfort. She replied, "If I could only believe that...but I don't. When he dies, I'll just have to cover him up with dirt and forget I ever had him..." (View From A Hearse, p. 13). That's a pessimistic view, but it points out what everybody knows. Death is so final. In our culture we have gone to great lengths to hide dying. People die in hospitals, not at home anymore. Their loved ones are ushered out of the room. We don't even see dead animals like other generations have. Our meat comes prepacked from the store in clean wrapped packages. But once touch the body of someone who has died or pick up a dead animal and you'll sense just how final it is. There's no getting them back. This widow's son, the child born of her own body, was about to be placed in a cold stone tomb forever. Secondly:

b. the entire framework of their life has been suddenly disrupted Jesus called this boy in verse 14 a young man. The Greek word indicates a young boy or a youth. Let's guess that he might have been 11 or 12. And he was an only son. You can imagine what her life had been about up until now. He was the center of her universe. She worked hard to provide a home and food for him. She taught him. She sang to him. And now, whether with or without warning, from the moment of his death nothing will ever be the same. Not her daily routine, the activities of her life, nothing. It's all disrupted and broken. Death of a loved one changes our lives like nothing else. You can change houses and make it OK; you change locations and climates and jobs and schools and whatever and as long as you have your loved ones, it's OK. But lose one of them and life is not the same, forever. And finally:

c. it has created a tremendous unfilled vacuum in their life There's a hole where that person had been. There's no one to love or to receive it from. The person in whom you invested your life is gone. This lady was particularly affected by this because she had lost her husband already and only had one son and now, he was gone. He was her life's purpose and joy and dream. To see him raised and happily married and established in life was her goal. Now there was nothing, no purpose, nothing to devote herself to, nothing to really live for.

These are the things that have happened to the bereaved people you meet. Death is a major, major thing. And because it is, here are:

2. the array of feelings they may experience First, a bereaved person is in:

a. emotional pain (grief, loss, etc.) - I hurt... Jesus told the woman not to weep. There are many words for crying in the Greek New Testament, but this one means to cry as a child. You've heard the expression "bawling like a baby". I've seen it in action! She had such a sense of grief and sorrow and loss that she openly and loudly cried like a child cries when he is hurt. Death causes emotional pain. And emotional pain is every bit as real as physical pain. Call it grief, sorrow, a sense of loss, or whatever you like. The bereaved person is hurting on the inside and hurting deeply. And coupled with that is the feeling of:

b. loneliness - I miss him... Do you think this widow was lonely? I should say. She missed him more than we can know. When someone has been part of your life for years and is now gone, you miss them. When you meet a bereaved person, almost certainly there is a loneliness inside. And then there may be some feelings of:

c. guilt - If only I... We're not told why this boy died. Perhaps he got sick. Can't you see this poor mother wondering whether she could have done something to prevent it? Blaming herself for it or at least wishing she'd have taken better care of him or been kinder to him? Death often fills us with regrets and remorse. We get a case of the "if only's". Or there may be:

d. anger - I don't want this to be happening... Pain often evokes anger. Bereaved people may be angry at God, angry at the doctors or at relatives, but in reality, they're just plain angry at death. They're feeling, "I don't want this to be happening to me!!"

Now, not all bereaved people have all of these feelings and hurts and it is likely that some of these will come and go at various times. But when you're dealing with a bereaved person, you're dealing with a bruised reed, with someone who is hurting and lonely and maybe guilty and/or angry, somebody that needs handled with special treatment. Before we move on let's consider:

3. some reactions they may exhibit The best one is a:

a. healthy expression of grief and gradually moving on with life For all their problems, the Jews had one thing right. They encouraged weeping and mourning even in public. Emotional pain needs to be expressed, needs to be told and shared for it to go away. It's proper, indeed necessary, to cry and be sad and over time the hurt grows less and the person is able gradually to make changes and go on with life. That's how God meant for it to be. But some people react by:

b. repression of grief that results in denial of feelings They pretend they're alright, that they can handle it. They won't cry, won't even admit that they're all broken up. Or they won't let you talk about it. They hide from dealing with it by refusing to think about the death. They try to make the hurt go away by ignoring it. But when you bury hurt, it always works to the surface later and resurrects. Others react by:

c. obsession with grief that results in withdrawal or depression They just can't get over the loss, can't return to normal. They withdraw from people and things they used to be involved in. They think about the person and how much they hurt all the time. They are depressed and can't function. They never quite move on with life. And then some practice an:

d. elusion of grief that results in unhealthy means of escape Some try to elude the pain they feel through alcohol or drugs. Some throw themselves into a romantic relationship with another person. Others try suicide. So, the bereaved person you meet not only has a mixed bag of intense feelings, but may or may not be reacting in a healthy fashion to the trauma of bereavement. Now how do you minister to somebody like that? Maybe you know somebody right now that needs you and can put a name on this sermon. Maybe you're just gathering info that you'll use soon enough. Either way, what should be:

III. Our Reaction To The Bereaved (12b-13) Well first:

1. we must be deeply touched by their pain When Jesus saw her his heart went out to her. The Greek expression refers to the bowels. We would say that it was gut-wrenching. In other words, he did not merely have a surface pity for her sorrow. He understood what it meant that she was a widow and this her only son. He was deeply touched by her pain. In other words, He hurt for her because she hurt. Is. 63:9 says of Israel, In all their afflictions He was afflicted... God feels all our feelings; Jesus is a High Priest who is touched with the feeling of our infirmities. When we hurt, He hurts. That needs to happen to us. We need to ask the Holy Spirit to control us in such a way as to allow us to be deeply touched by the pain they feel and to feel it as He does our own. Now being deeply touched means that:

a. we must let them react as they need to, not as we need them to Often times, we'll tell a hurting person to stop crying. Why? Because we can't bear it! Jesus did it here, but not for that reason; he was about to actually give her son back. We can't do that. We have to let the person express their hurt. Maybe they're angry and shouting "Why did God let this happen?!" And our need is to defend God and make them stop being blasphemous. But their need is just to express their anger, to let somebody know. The biggest part of reacting genuinely is:

b. we must listen to what they tell us, not hasten to tell them The last thing a person who has just buried their infant son needs is for you to rush over with an explanation of how God picks the choicest flowers to be in his own garden! They don't want an explanation; they want their little boy! Very often I'm lucky enough to be the first one on the scene after somebody dies. I've learned the best thing you can do for grieving people is to sit and listen, to put an arm around, to cry, and to pray when it's appropriate. You see, the real way we can help to heal this wound is:

2. we must go with them through their grieving process The Jews had a great sense of community. They mourned their dead together. The whole community was with this widow enroute to the grave. They went with her through her difficult hours. We must go with our bereaved friends and loved ones through their grieving process. That means:

a. we must share in their feelings and let them experience it Rom.12:15 says, Rejoice with those who rejoice; mourn with those who mourn. Mourn yourself. And mourn with them. Hug them. Cry with them. Talk about it with them as they want to talk about it. Mourning with them helps to carry their burden, to lighten their pain. Wounded feelings only heal through expression and as you enter into it together you can help in that healing process. Then:

b. we must provide practical help they need The framework of their life has fallen apart. They need help weaving a new one together. They may need help with funeral arrangements, insurances, doing the finances, getting a job, and a myriad of other things. They need somebody to lean on for a while to help them get their life arranged again. Be there for them in those practical ways. And then:

c. we must provide long-term companionship Typically we remember bereaved people for about a week after the funeral and then life goes back to normal for us, but for them there is a hole in their lives that won't go away. They're lonely. They need companionship to help fill that vacuum. Being deeply touched means being willing to be there as a long-term friend, someone who won't forget, but who will re-orient his own life to make time to include the hurting one.

These are the things that bring about healing. These and one thing more. I'd be remiss if we didn't examine in this passage the:

IV. A Message Of Hope For The Bereaved (14-15) Jesus did what you can't do. He took her hurt away once and for all by raising her son. But there's a spiritual message here for all of us when we face the wound of death:

1. there is victory ...Jesus touched the coffin Why? None of the other Jews would do that except those that carried it. Death was defiling. They were afraid of it. But not Jesus. He touched that bier as Lord. He was not afraid of death because He knew He had victory over it. So do we, "Where, O death, is your victory? Where, O death, is your sting? The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. But thanks be to God! He gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." - 1 Cor. 15:55-57. Jesus paid for our sins at the cross. Death can't hold us. Whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord. To die is to be with Him and for our loved ones to die is for them to be with Him. Death cannot separate us from them forever because:

2. there is resurrection ...the dead man sat up Jesus said to the dead boy, "Arise!" Jesus also said, a time is coming when all who are in their graves will hear his voice and come out-- those who have done good will rise to live, and those who have done evil will rise to be condemned. - John 5:28-29. The one you bury under the dirt will have that body raised from the sleep of death. They will not just be a scary shadow or ghost. The cherished body you lay to rest will rise again at the last trumpet and be transformed like His glorious body. And listen to this:

3. there is reunion ...Jesus gave him back to his mother - 1 Thes. 4:13-14 tells us, Brothers, we do not want you to be ignorant about those who fall asleep, or to grieve like the rest of men, who have no hope. We believe that Jesus died and rose again and so we believe that God will bring with Jesus those who have fallen asleep in him. And then it says we'll rise together with them to meet the Lord in the air and so shall we (all of us) ever be with the Lord. There's a reunion coming. Death is not final. We shall be with our loved ones who know Christ again.

And as time passes, the reality of that message, the reality of our faith, begins to gradually overshadow the emotional pain of grieving and our hurt gives way to joyous anticipation. We grieve, but not as those who have no hope. We have a firm hope and it turns our sorrow into joy. I'll never forget the words of one young widow standing by the casket of her husband in his 40s at a viewing. I walked up and made the usual idiotic comment that people make because they don't know what else to say, "He looks good, doesn't he?" And with the tears in her eyes, she said to me, "That's not Ray. I realized that the first thing when I walked in tonight and touched his body and it was cold. He's not there anymore. He's in heaven with the Lord." Oh, she had it right. She was grieving and sad and missed him like anything, but in her heart, she knew the hope on which their life was grounded, the Lord Jesus Christ, and it gave her comfort in the midst of her suffering. What a difference from, "When he dies, I'll just cover him up with dirt and forget I ever had him!" You can make that difference in the lives of the bereaved. You can help them get through the pain and bitterness and anger and gradually see the hope and find comfort. You can make that difference if, instead of avoiding the bereaved because it's awkward and emotional and you don't know what to say, you decide to put aside your own problems and allow yourself to feel their pain and go with them through their grieving process. I challenge you to do it as God puts wounded bereaved people into your path.

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke Those Coming Out Of A Sinful Life - 7:36-50

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

Of all the types of wounded, hurting people that Jesus cared for during His ministry, the most controversial is the type of person the general public calls a "sinner". He himself repeated what He was being called by others in verse 34 ...a friend of tax collectors and sinners. What a thing to be known as, a friend of sinners. Not a title we'd seek, is it? But one which I think He was proud to bear. This was brought home in a very clear way one day quite unexpectedly as He was eating supper. Let's read the story in Luke 7:36-50. It must have been quite a scene. A woman came in quietly through the door. We don't know who she was and there is no reason to say she was Mary Magdalene as people commonly do, nor to confuse this woman early in his ministry with Mary who came and anointed His head shortly before His death. But everybody in the room knew who she was. She had a reputation in that town. She was known by all to be a "sinner". The term in this context can scarcely mean anything other than that she had a reputation for immorality. Perhaps she was a prostitute or at the least a woman who was known to be loose and easy or who switched partners with regularity. Perhaps she was someone who hung out in the taverns of that day or ran visibly with the wrong crowd. Whatever the case, her lifestyle had been one that was openly sinful. Even Jesus admitted that her sins were many! At any rate she came quietly and humbly through the door. When she saw Jesus reclining on a dining couch next to the table, she went and stood at his feet and instantly began to weep aloud, to cry like a child. The tears fell on His feet and she knelt down and wiped them dry, dust, dirt, and all, with her hair and began spontaneously to kiss them. At last, she took a small vial of perfume which she carried and broke its seal and poured it out on his feet. What a scene it must have been, surely one the guests had never seen the like of. But Jesus knew what they were thinking, "I wouldn't let that woman touch me. I know who she is. She's rotten and no good. What's she doing here? And why does Jesus let this travesty go on?" You know the type of person she was, or at least someone like her! They're all around you. You live near them. You work with them. I did. I worked for some years in a machine shop and almost every one of the guys there spent time in the bars after work and tried to pick up a woman for a fast and pleasurable sexual encounter. They come in varying degrees of polish; some are finely dressed and work in corporate offices; others look as seedy as their lives are. But whether you understand it or not, these are wounded, hurting people, people whose lives are full of pain. Now let's focus for a few moments on:

I. Understanding The Wound Of Those From A Sinful Lifestyle (36-38) Something had obviously happened in this woman's life. There is none of the arrogance and pride that often accompany such a lifestyle. She is broken and weeping, humble, obviously repentant in her heart. Now one of the things it will be really helpful to understand is:

1. the stages of people who have been ensnared by a sinful lifestyle You see, there are:

a. those who willfully continue in it They sin and don't care, or at least don't seem to. That's how this woman was at one time and probably had been for years. It's what got her her reputation. This kind of person who is involved in a lifestyle of practicing obvious sin might well be termed a sinner as the Pharisees did. It's easy to walk away and dissociate yourself from them, isn't it? But let me just jog your thinking on this one point. How did this woman get to be the kind of woman she was? Let's assume she was a prostitute for a minute. Do you think it was her goal and life-dream from little on up? How did she get there? Well, maybe she was orphaned and left without parents and found no way to support herself. Or maybe her father died and her mother remarried and she was mistreated and ran away from home. Or maybe she was abused and treated shamefully by her parents and sought escape. Or maybe she was forced into it by someone to whom she owed money or who threatened or terrified her. What just happened in your mind? You began to pity her, didn't you? You see, sin ensnares people and takes them captive. A sinful lifestyle begins somewhere, either by being introduced to it or forced into it, but sin is a master. It controls you. People living a sinful lifestyle are bound; the Bible calls them slaves. And before you look too far down your nose, let me point out that the Bible says that that includes you too, even if you're the most goody-two-shoes that ever was! We all at one time in our lives were slaves to sin before we came to Christ! So, there should still be plenty of pity and compassion left in our hearts for sinners! Except for the grace of God there is no difference between us. Then there are:

b. those who want out and are struggling to let go of it Someone comes along and witnesses to this person. They read or hear or see the Gospel somewhere. The Spirit of God begins to work in their lives and they begin to wake up spiritually. They begin to realize the wrongness of the lifestyle they're involved in. And they begin to want to get out. But it's not easy. Sin is a snare and it doesn't unravel easily. Sometimes it holds onto you; there are relationships and associations that pressure and force you to continue. At the same time, you hold onto it! Because sin has become your known way of life and it's a real struggle to turn loose the things that have been so much a part of your life and the habits you've developed and give your life to Christ, no matter how much you want to. It's a struggle. Can you empathize with that at all? Was it hard for you to come to Christ? When a person gets to this stage, they could rightly be called a seeker. And then finally they come to Christ and give themselves to Him and they find themselves in a third category:

c. those who are out, but striving not to return to it They find the battle is not done. They have found Christ and found forgiveness, but they find they are still tempted to return to and practice the lifestyle they want so badly to leave. They want in their hearts to do the good and put away the evil, but they find themselves doing just the opposite because sin is still in their body and it is still trying to be their master. This is what I think this woman was, a struggling saint. She had determined before she ever came into the room that she loved Jesus and she wanted to show it, that she would no longer be "a woman who was a sinner", but I honestly don't believe she walked out of the room to never be tempted to that sinful life again. You see, nobody just gets up one day and walks out of sin and that's the end of it. You didn't either. But:

Today, I'm concerned primarily about how we care for seekers and struggling saints. They are wounded, hurting people, bruised reeds that we must be careful not to break. Just think about:

2. what has happened to them First:

a. they have undergone a serious change of heart We call it very lightly, conviction. But what is conviction? It means a turning upside down of life. Think of this woman. Everything she thought of positively, finding another man, making some money, taking care of herself, enjoying escaping through drunkenness, suddenly she sees it's all wrong and bad! Everything she has devoted her time and energy to in life is all wrong. Her life is suddenly a waste, indeed a travesty! She, who might have with pride lured in a man, now sees herself for what she really is before God. And she is devastated. She can only wail and cry with sorrow over her life. Now, on top of that, this person:

b. they have lost their usual means of coping with life In their sinful lifestyle they had a whole set of rules and props which they used. If they wanted to escape pain, they got drunk. If they had a problem and needed money, they'd steal it. If they were in trouble, they'd lie their way out of it. But those things are all off limits. Their coping mechanisms are all pulled out from under them. This woman had to find honest work and start to live in brand new ways she had never lived in before. And what makes it worse:

c. they have no one to support them You see how popular she was, how many were just waiting with open arms to say, "Welcome sister, come on in!" Before, their support came from people who were like them. Now, those people would only jeer at them for trying to leave that life. But there are so very few on the other side of the fence extending a hand. Good people, even Christian people have a hard time with "a woman who was a sinner!" So, they are left alone with no one turn to. And here's:

3. the array of feelings they may experience First, they have a load of:

a. guilt and regret before God The Holy Spirit has done his work. They see their sins which are many and they feel guilty. Oh, how they wish they hadn't spent their lives the way they did. How they wish they'd said no. They're filled with sorrow. This woman's tears were the sign of her remorse. She wept aloud at the sin she'd committed and how wrong she'd been. People like her need not only to academically know about forgiveness, they need to experience forgiveness from God. They need to know the slate is wiped clean. But they also feel:

b. shame before people Imagine her walking into this Pharisee's home. She knew every eye was on her, that every one of these people knew all that she had done and despised her for it. She was full of shame. Everybody else in the room was "better than she was". Oh, people coming out of sin, they need to experience acceptance from people. They need to know that people are willing to wipe the slate clean too and let them start over. Then they feel:

c. unworthiness John the Baptist, holy man that he was, felt this in Jesus' presence. "I am not worthy to untie His shoes..." This woman would not even speak to him, would not presume to move closer to anoint his head as was the custom. She had already come to love Him; He said so. But she felt so unworthy even to touch the hem of his garment, fit only to kiss his feet. People like her, they need to comprehend their identity. They have become something brand new! They have been made worthy in Christ. And finally, they feel:

d. fear I bet she was afraid to come in. Those Pharisees might have picked up stones. Coming out of sin always has its consequences. She was probably afraid to let go of the life she knew. She may have been afraid to come to Jesus for fear that He might turn her away, though she didn't think so. People coming out are afraid and the antidote for it is this, they need to experience love. Perfect love casts out fear and the more complete and full the love, the more completely the fear goes. Most people coming from a sinful life have never been loved with an unconditional sacrificial love. And they need to experience it from you. So, let's consider:

II. Our Reaction To Those From A Sinful Lifestyle Oh, the Pharisees had one instantly:

1. the Pharisaic reaction ...don't touch me! (39) We've all reacted that way to somebody, haven't we? "This person, whether they've already come to Christ or are only seeking, is a sinner and I don't want anything to do with them!" We may not have said it, but we've felt it in our hearts! It's the way our sanctified Christianized form of flesh reacts to people who wear black leather and have tattoos and long hair when they want to come to church! First, this mindset:

a. denies that a person can change - it categorizes people Once a sinner, always a sinner. She's lived a sinful life; she always will. And it lumps people in all the stages we mentioned earlier into the same category. Whether they want out or not, or whether they are already out like this woman, but have been struggling not to fall back in, they are all the same, sinners, not righteous like me. And that's not fair. The very heart of Christianity says that Christ can and does change people! But it also:

b. places change before acceptance - it demands performance "I'll accept you when you're completely like me for a long time! I'll accept you after you perform awhile, after you prove yourself. Change first and then I'll care for you!" But without caring, people don't change! You see, it:

c. offers no help to change - it withdraws self-centeredly The Pharisee in me would rather protect myself so I don't get hurt or defiled than lend a hand to the other who needs help to get out of the sin that has enslaved them. It would rather pass by on the other side than pick the wounded man up out of the ditch. In essence, it says, "Go pull yourself up by your own bootstraps. You should be able to do it." And how many times I've seen it or even felt it myself. But oh, how different Jesus was:

2. the Christlike reaction (47-50) First:

a. He accepted her actions as genuine After the whole scene, wailing and all, He didn't even speak to the woman at first. He read Simon's mind and said to him, ...she loved [Me] much. He let her touch him, let her kiss his feet, let her anoint him. He saw in her a genuine love for Him and a sorrow for her sins. When someone is repentant, when they say they want to turn to Christ and away from their sins, our first job is to believe them and accept it as true and be ready to let them come into our lives. When they say they have trusted in Him and they love Him, we are not to doubt them and reject them every time they fail or fall into sin. This person needs desperately to know that you will not turn them away, that you will care, that you will not reject them the way everybody else has. It may be that nobody in all their life has ever genuinely loved them. But Christ does and you must. Then:

b. He assured her of forgiveness He declared, ...your sins are forgiven. Now she pretty well already knew she would be forgiven or she wouldn't have risked coming there. In fact, from the little story Jesus told, the point is that her great love grew out of being greatly forgiven. She knew or at least knew about forgiveness before she came; that produced her great love for Him. But He reassured her of it. And that's what people who come out of a sinful lifestyle need. Satan is the accuser and even after you come to Christ and find forgiveness, he is constantly trying to re-accuse you to yourself, to bring your sins up all over again and rub your nose in them. And people don't help either. It is so hard for us to forget people's past and let it go. Our minds work like that Pharisee's did; we tend to categorize people and see them as sinners still after they have found forgiveness. Instead, we need to be reassuring them over and over and over that their sins are gone, removed as far as the east is from the west. They are remembered no more. And beyond that:

c. He helped her gain a new identity He said, ...your faith has saved you. You are not who you were. By trusting in me, you have been delivered once and for all. It is finished and completed. You are saved. You may still be tempted to sin, but you are now a saint who is tempted to sin, no longer a sinner trying not to. And there is a big difference! Identity. Who you are and knowing it, affects every area of how you live. A person coming out of a sinful lifestyle needs to know that. And you can share it with them and reinforce it for them, instead of still seeing them as they used to be. And then:

d. He removed all her fears He said simply, ...go in peace. There was no ultimatum, no stern warning, no list of rules to create that fear that she might fall again. He simply bid her to go on her journey of life in peace, knowing that all was well between them. And we can help people coming out of this background to have peace. We can encourage them that in Jesus there is victory and they need not fear. The struggle they know now will get better and ultimately Jesus will give them victory. We can be living examples of it by sharing openly and honestly with them our own journey. After all, we were all sinners and Christ did it for us.

It's time to close but just in case there's anyone here who finds themselves in the place of this woman either a seeker or a struggling saint, let me just point out that in this story there is a wonderful:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those From A Sinful Lifestyle It is three-fold:

- 1. Christ accepts you when you come to Him - *you are welcome
- 2. Christ changes you when you come to Him - *you are not who you were
- 3. Christ will free you as you learn to live in Him - *you can have victory

Fyodor Dostoyevsky, the famous 19th century Russian novelist, was sentenced to death by firing squad as a young man for his radical political views. As the rifles were being aimed, the order to halt came and the sentence was commuted to 10 years in a Siberian labor camp. Upon his arrival a woman slipped a New Testament into his hand when the guard wasn't looking. There in a bare board building with 3 inches of ice on the windows and an inch of filth on the floor, Dostoyevsky discovered the parable of the prodigal son. He saw in that camp the pigsty and himself the son and the truth of God's love and willingness to pardon gripped his soul. Years later, on his deathbed, his daughter describes it thus: "He made us come into the room and taking our little hands in his, he begged my mother to read the parable of the prodigal son. He listened with his eyes closed, absorbed in his thoughts. 'My children', he said in his feeble voice, 'never forget what you have just heard. Have absolute faith in God and never despair of His pardon. I love you dearly, but my love is nothing compared with the love of God. Even if you should be so unhappy as to commit some dreadful crime, never despair of God. You are His children; humble yourselves before Him as before your father; implore His pardon, and He will rejoice over your repentance, as the father rejoiced over that of the prodigal son.'" My friend, Jesus has His arms open wide for you. He wants you, no matter what has been in your life in the past. Come to Him. Bask in His love. And go on your way in peace. Your faith has saved you.

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke The Controlled - 8:26-37

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

Jesus said about His own ministry that His commission was to proclaim freedom or release for the prisoners, the captives, literally those taken captive by the spear. In those days when there was a war, the losers were often carried off as slaves and had to live under the oppressive control of their new masters. Certainly, there are those who are physical captives but 2 Tim. 2:26 mentions those that Satan has ensnared and taken captive at his will. Around us in life are people who are wounded and hurting. Some are helpless; some are bereaved; some are caught up in a sinful lifestyle. But some are captives who are under the control of forces which have grabbed hold of their lives and they live a life of slavery to those forces. But Jesus came to set them free. One of the most dynamic illustrations of this is found in the familiar story of Jesus' brief stop at Gerasa where he freed a man enslaved by a legion of demons, Luke 8:26-39. Usually when we study this story, we make much over the demons and the pigs and perhaps the ungrateful townspeople who sent Jesus away. I want to make much over the man, because I believe Jesus did. Here is a man whose life was absolutely controlled. Now what does that mean?

I. Understanding The Plight Of Those Who Are Controlled Let me give you:

- 1. the definition of control: the loss of ability to choose one's thoughts and actions and the assuming of that ability by an outside power When the natural God-given ability to choose your own thoughts or actions is taken away from you and some other thing or person makes your choices for you and forces you to carry them out, you are controlled. You are possessed, if you will, a puppet, and living a life of slavery. Now a person can be taken captive and controlled by many things:

2. the sources of control He can be subject, as this man was, to:

a. demonization I call it that because that is what the New Testament Greek calls it. We argue in English about demon possession versus oppression, but the Bible says a person was demonized, that demons had gained entrance to him and control over him. Now let me just say that this is not some myth; demons are real spiritual beings, as real as the angels or as God Himself. And they did not go away after Bible times. They are still real and still controlling people even today. Cases of demon control abound on the mission field where people have given themselves to worship idols and spirits. It has been reported all over the world from Africa to China to Islamic culture in the Middle East. For example, I saw a National Geographic special a few years ago where at a particular shrine in Haiti people came to seek to be entered by a loa or spirit and they would lose all consciousness and writhe out of control, sometimes for days. It occurs here in the USA where people are involved in Satanic worship and the occult. It is real and it is ugly. The demon takes over control of the person's consciousness for periods of time, sometimes short, sometimes, like this man, continually. It uses his body to move and speak and act and tortures him in the process. I would dare to say it is more common than you think. But in this case, control is assumed by an actual spiritual being which enters the person. Yet control can also come through:

b. mental manipulation Did you ever hear of brainwashing, where another person can assume control of your mind? It happens. Remember Jim Jones and the hundreds who followed him to Guyana only to die a suicidal death at his command in the jungle? Remember Waco Texas where again people came under the absolute control of a false prophet who manipulated every aspect of their lives and their deaths. All the cults use it to some degree or another, programming minds so that the person's ability to think and choose for themselves is taken away. And it doesn't only happen there. It happens in families where sick parents bind the minds of their children into believing terrible things or a wicked husband will control his wife until she becomes a robot to do his will. There are controlling people and controlled people around us! And some are controlled by:

c. chemical addictions Instead of a demon invading their body, it is alcohol or an addictive drug, a narcotic, or even a prescription drug like valium. They begin by enjoying what the chemical does for them, but something happens in their bodies and the chemical takes control and causes their bodies to crave more of it. It modifies their behavior and removes their ability to think until they only live for the chemical, until their very lives are controlled by the drive for and the effects of the chemical. Some, of course, are more controlled than others but you don't have to look far to find people controlled this way. And then some are controlled by:

d. compulsive behaviors Chemicals are not the only things that can be addictive. Some people become addicted, for instance, to gambling to where they cannot control their drive to gamble. For others it may be eating or the opposite, controlling their body weight, people we would say have anorexia or bulimia, sometimes so severely they will kill themselves by it. Then there are sexual addictions of various sorts. All of these are behaviors which the person engages in at first which then turn around and take over control of the person, remove their freedom of thought and their choice of behavior.

There are controlled people around you in your life! You may not see very many demonized people, but this passage has something to say to far more than demonized people. It says something to all who are controlled! And, by the way, not all controlled people are unsaved people. Many are. But even genuine children of God can get into a place where they are trapped in the controlling influence of other people or in compulsive behaviors or even in addictions. Many of God's own children who are part of His Church, even this church, need to be set free from some of these things, as well as the unsaved people all around you daily who are controlled. Now let's mention:

3. some symptoms of control Not all controlled persons will have all these symptoms nor will all have them to the same degree. But this guy had them all and bad! First, the person may have:

a. inability to function normally (27b) This guy hadn't worn clothes or even lived in a house. He had abandoned all normal routines. Controlled people can't hold it together. Often their marriages fall apart. They may lose their jobs because of inability to function. Many times, they end up in financial trouble. Sometimes the inability to function is total and complete, sometimes only partial. Then, controlled people often have:

b. anti-social tendencies - Mk. 5:5 says Night and day among the tombs and in the hills he would cry out and cut himself with stones. He lived out in the wilderness, in the hills in caves where often the poor buried their dead. He withdrew from people. Often, controlled people do that. They may become loners, draw into a shell of their own. They may drop out of friendships and relationships they've had, or begin to be only around other controlled people like themselves. Then they may display:

c. self-destructive behavior - Mk. 5:5 says he would cry out and the Greek means to cry out harshly, to scream or holler in anguish and he would cut himself. He would try to hurt himself, whether because the demons made him for their own pleasure, or because in moments of coherence, he couldn't stand living this way anymore. Controlled people are often self-destructive; they don't like themselves and the way they live and so try to hurt themselves or even to end their lives. And sometimes controlled people display:

d. violent behavior (29) - Mt. 8:28 says he was so violent that no one could pass that way. On a news show the other night I saw little kids living on the street in Brazil and their chief pastime was sniffing nail polish and how violent they became toward each other and passers-by. People controlled by the wrong thing can lose all regard for others and become dangerous and violent!

These are just a few of the things which controlled people may display. And they come in different degrees. Some people are totally controlled, while others are only marginally controlled. But remember, at this point, they can't help it. Though it may or may not have been choices they made which got them into this bondage, at this stage some other force has taken them over and they no longer have freedom to reason it out or to choose whether they want to act that way. But what's more important is:

II. Our Reaction To Those Who Are Controlled More than likely, when we know someone who is controlled, we usually display one of several:

1. normal unproductive reactions

a. we may try to control the controlled person (29) The townspeople there did. They chained him up and guarded him. They tried to exercise greater control to defeat the control already there. And sometimes that has to be done for the person's own good and the protection of other people. But in this man's case it didn't work physically. And it never works spiritually. It is not enough to tell the person to stop acting that way. They can't. They're controlled. It is not enough to try to force them to change, to physically keep them from the alcohol or drugs or kidnap them from the cult or make them eat when they refuse. That's just an additional bondage. They need freedom on the inside. Or:

b. we may be afraid of the controlled person (35) These people were afraid to go near him when he lived in the tombs; now they were still afraid of him and of the One who had such power as to change him, even after he was clothed and sitting in his right mind! Oftentimes our reaction to people like this is fear, fear for ourselves and how we might be affected and so:

c. we may try to avoid the controlled person - Mt. 8:28 They just didn't go near him. We do the same. We recognize the forces at work in them and we just stay away, avoid them, work them out of our lives. Even those who are our brothers and sisters in Christ and desperately need our help to be free! But I want you to notice:

2. Jesus' caring for the controlled person Controlled people are people too. They are people in deep trouble, people who need rescued, people who need someone to set them free. Let me just point out two things:

a. the deliberateness of His choice to go help him (22) If you check the context, you'll find that this was one of the busiest days in Jesus' life. He taught all day. He was opposed by his enemies. As evening approached, He was tired, so tired that as they sailed across the lake of Galilee, He fell into such a dead sleep that even a severe storm didn't wake Him! Yet it was He in verse 22 who chose to say, "Let's go over to the other side!" What for? It was still night when He set foot on shore and was met by the demoniac. By morning He was sent away and left and never went back. There was no ministry, no teaching at Gergesa. There were no crowds and no converts. Just an overnight stop with a 5 1/2 mile trip by rowboat in each direction. Why did He say, "Let's go over!"? It seems obvious to me: He cared about one demonized man living a life of torture among the tombs and came to set him free! He knew all things! And I believe He deliberately chose to go, just to set him free. And then notice:

b. the urgency of His command to free him (29) Evidently the first thing Jesus had said upon meeting the man was, "Come out of him". The whole dialog with the demons begging not to be sent to the Abyss but to be allowed to go into the pigs, came afterwards. Jesus in no uncertain terms told them He wanted the man free! And when they begged to go into the swine, Matthew says Jesus' response was simply the imperative, "GO!"

Jesus cared about that man and wanted him free. it was what He came for. He was touched by a human being created in God's image reduced to such a sorry state of misery and wanted him out of it as soon as possible. So how should we react to a person like this?

3. our caring for the controlled person

a. we must understand the pain and damage being done to the person This person, whether it's through a demon, a controlling person, a chemical, or a compulsive behavior, is being hurt, damaged, perhaps tortured, forced to do things they have no control over. They are reduced to a state of slavery and like Jesus we must make a deliberate choice to care about them and their pain and to want to see them free. We must get an urgency which says, "This must stop and it must stop now!" Being afraid, avoiding them or trying to force them into right behavior is simply looking out for ourselves. God grant us the depth of the love of Jesus Christ who died for a race enslaved to sin to set us free! First, we must care enough to be involved. Then:

b. we must believe Jesus can set them free - Mt. 17:19-20 tells of another demonized person where the disciples had tried unsuccessfully to drive the demon out. Then the disciples came to Jesus in private and asked, "Why couldn't we drive it out?" He replied, "Because you have so little faith. I tell you the truth, if you have faith as small as a mustard seed, you can say to this mountain, 'Move from here to there' and it will move. Nothing will be impossible for you." They didn't really believe Jesus could set him free down deep and with all their hearts. They tried it to see if it would work and when it didn't work immediately, they abandoned the case as a failure and complained! So many times, we make some feeble effort at helping someone like this and it doesn't work and we give up and write them off. But let me remind you, with God nothing is impossible. If a demoniac who comes to Jesus can be found clothed and sitting in his right mind, then so can anyone you care about who will come to Him, first for salvation, and then as a believer to draw upon the resources of His power. You must believe that; the controlled person can't believe it for themselves. It must start with you. Consequently:

c. we must commit ourselves to pray for deliverance On that same occasion, Mk. 9:28-29 says, After Jesus had gone indoors, his disciples asked him privately, "Why couldn't we drive it out?" He replied, "This kind can come out only by prayer (some manuscripts add "and fasting")." The implication was they could have, but it would have taken tenacious believing and commitment to a long siege of praying for the demonized boy. There are seldom any quick and easy deliverances for controlled people. Often it requires weeks, months, and even years of believing prayer. It's a long haul. There no easy answers, no quick fixes. And you're not going to stick with it and keep believing and praying if you don't genuinely love and care about the person.

Controlled people are wounded, hurting people. They need Jesus' power in their lives and they need you to believe for them and pray for their deliverance and to do everything you can to help them come to Him. Will you care enough to do it? And listen, just in case there is someone here this morning who is struggling under the control of something in your life, whether it be an addiction or a way of thinking forced on you by your past or a compulsive behavior you're trapped in, this text leaves you:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who Are Controlled

1. Jesus wants to set you free He came to set the captives free, to proclaim deliverance, liberty for you. He wants you to be free from all that controls you so that you can choose freely to give your life to Him and, with your own will, allow Him to live through you and make your life one of love and joy and peace. He didn't make you to be this way; He didn't save you to be this way. He wants you free. And:

2. Jesus can set you free If Jesus had power to free a Galilean demoniac from a legion of demons, then He has power to set you free from whatever is controlling your life. Even if you can't imagine being free, the truth still is that nothing is impossible with Jesus. His power can break the deepest bondage. Come to Him. Get help to come to Him. Find someone who can lead you deeply into the knowledge of Him. Gal. 5:1 says, It is for freedom that Christ has set us free. Believe it and seek help. And then know this:

3. Jesus wants to use you after you're free (38-39) Jesus told the man to go home and tell others how he'd been set free, so they could be set free. Jesus has a ministry for you. He has other captives who must be set free and you just might be His means to do it!

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke The Chronically Ill - 8:42-48

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

The battlefield of life that we're passing through contains casualties of many kinds, wounded people with all types of wounds. One of the most common wounds that people bear in life is sickness. There's not a person in this room who hasn't experienced it from time to time. For many of us, there has been at least a time or two when we felt so sick we wanted to die or thought we would, but we got better eventually. That's how sickness works many times. But what about those who never get better and who are never going to get better, the chronically ill. Some of them may be terminally ill, dying, but we'll save the concept of facing death for a special message all its own later. Today I'd like to think about those who face life, life with an illness or a handicap that will never get better, those who face months and months and years and years of dealing with something that won't go away. Jesus met a woman like that. It was unintentional. He was on His way to Jairus' house. Jairus' little daughter lay dying and He was hurrying there to raise her from the dead. She was a bystander in the crowd around him and this is what happened, Luke 8:42b-48. The scene lasted only moments; the record is brief; the woman is nameless. But she stands for a whole class of people who suffer the pain of chronic illness and her interaction with Jesus is both a challenge to us and a message of hope for those who suffer. First, let's give ourselves to:

I. Understanding The Wound Of Those Who Are Chronically Ill Let's try to imagine from the brief record we have and what we know of life then and now, what this woman's life was like and indeed some of the things that all chronic sufferers may have experienced:

1. what they may have experienced (43) - Mk. 5:25-26, Lk. 8:43 This woman had what we assume was some kind of gynecological problem where she experienced perpetual bleeding. So, the first thing she definitely experienced was:

a. the shame of uncleanness Listen to Lev.15:25-27, When a woman has a discharge of blood for many days at a time other than her monthly period or has a discharge that continues beyond her period, she will be unclean as long as she has the discharge, just as in the days of her period. Any bed she lies on while her discharge continues will be unclean, as is her bed during her monthly period, and anything she sits on will be unclean, as during her period. Whoever touches them will be unclean; he must wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will be unclean till evening. To her culture, this woman was unclean. Nobody could touch her without becoming ceremonially unclean. She couldn't go to anybody's house and sit down or invite people to her own or they'd be unclean. By rights, she couldn't even rub shoulders in a crowd. Even though it appears she was still functional and earning a living; in her culture she bore the shame and stigma of uncleanness almost like a leper. While our culture does not treat sick people the same way, they may still experience a great deal of shame. Depending on what they have, people may still be afraid to touch them or get close to them. Their illness may have rendered them awkward in movements or slurred in speech or treatments may have caused hair loss. No matter how you educate, there is still shame to be felt in not being normal, not being like everybody else, at a body that is not whole like others'. And then on top of that, comes the special shame that the more seriously sick people get to endure, where others have to examine their bodies and bathe them and help them go to the bathroom. It's humiliating and a person often feels ashamed of themselves. Then this woman surely knew:

b. the frustration of weakness She sustained blood loss over an extended time. And more than just a little or she wouldn't have gone to such great lengths to cure it. Blood loss means weakness, tiredness, fatigue. It means not being able to do as much and having to rest. And that's frustrating when it drags on awhile. Chronically sick people often can't do what they used to, can't work, can't do the housework, can't stand up long or walk far, can't get out to things. You know what I mean, don't you? Then, we're told this woman knew:

c. the misery of treatment Mark 5:26 says, She had suffered a great deal under the care of many doctors... My apologies to any doctors and nurses present, but somehow, I sense that some of you can relate to that. In many cases the treatment for illness causes as much pain or damage as the illness itself! Especially in those days. One leaf of the Jewish Talmud lists 11 remedies for this malady. 6 of them we would call ointments to put on or elixirs to drink and the rest pure superstition, for example, the ashes of an ostrich egg carried in summer in a linen, in winter in a cotton rag, or a barleycorn found in the dung of a white female donkey! [Edersheim] How'd you like a prescription like that! Oh, we're much more scientific now, but sick people now endure tests upon tests, needles upon needles, enemas, X rays, not to mention radiation and chemotherapy. And for chronically ill people the round never ends. And what's worse this woman knew:

d. the dashing of expectations For all her attempts and all her doctors, no one could heal her. Mark says, instead of getting better, she grew worse. You know what that is. She went to the first and he told her, "This will do it" and her hopes were high but it didn't. Then the second told her that, but it failed again, then the third and so on every year. And little by little hope died. Chronically ill people have suffered the loss of hope. They have to resign themselves to the fact of their continued illness, but usually it only comes through having hopes dashed time after time. And if all that were not bad enough, this woman suffered through her illness:

e. the drain of finances Mark says, She had spent all she had; in the margin Luke says, all her living in the Greek. She had spent any and all savings she had long already and she had even spent the money she needed to live on. She couldn't eat because of her medical bills! Sound familiar. The whole medical industry, as you know, has gone sky-high with charges. But it seems as though it was so then too. What a shame that the people who can earn the least have to spend the most!

Now please understand, I'm not knocking medicine, nor the many fine doctors and nurses that we entrust our care and our lives to. I'm just pointing out that people who are constantly sick may have had to face a whole round of continuing terrible experiences that the rest of us have managed to avoid for the most part. And because of that, we need to think about:

2. how they may feel They may react in different ways. Like this woman, some of them:

a. they may have a poor view of themselves They may feel ashamed, useless, good-for-nothing. They may feel unclean and shameful. They may come to hate themselves or their own bodies for being the way they are. They may blame themselves or even become suicidal. Or they may go another route:

b. they may be deeply angry They may be angry at the doctors for not curing them or for hurting them further. They may be angry at their circumstances and at life in general. They may be angry at God and blame Him for not healing them. Some sick people become angry people, and they have a lot of good reason for it. And then some may simply:

c. they may feel despair, give up all hope and fall into depression or become morbid and cynical. They may give up on life and just go on in a miserable drone-like existence.

The sick people around us have had all kinds of experiences that have wounded them and they may have reacted in all kinds of different ways to those experiences. But what's more important is:

II. Our Reaction To Those Who Are Chronically Ill There are:

1. some common wrong reactions which we should avoid First:

a. we may easily ignore and forget them I'm sure that's what society did to this woman 12 years ago. When she became sick and therefore unclean and therefore much more homebound, one by one her friends probably went on with their own lives and gradually forgot to visit, forgot to help, and finally forgot to care. Out of sight IS often out of mind. And what's worse, it's out of heart! A person has an emergency and lands in the hospital and everybody is right there to visit. If the stay lasts a month visitors dwindle off considerably and if it turns into a nursing home care situation, it becomes usually your spouse and maybe one or two of your children! Often times chronically ill people suffer their burdens pretty much alone! We ignore and forget unintentionally; we get too busy. But then:

b. we may give up on them deliberately. We may say, "I can't take any more of this; it's too much for me to handle." and walk out of their lives on purpose, either because we can't stand to see them suffer or because we just can't bring ourselves to continue to invest the effort that is needed to visit and to help and to care for them. So, we walk out. Or instead of walking out, we may stay and:

c. we may become bitter under the burden of caring for them We may be the care-giver for a chronically ill person. Some of you know what that's like. And we're committed to it. We start out being loving and compassionate, but gradually it becomes an awful lot of work and it keeps us from a lot of things. We find ourselves trapped and imprisoned under a burden which is only getting heavier and that makes us angry and we turn it toward the person and blame them and become bitter in our hearts and sour in our dispositions. It happens!

None of these reactions is good, none is helpful, and none considers the hurt of the sick person. We must be careful to avoid them. Rather, let's look at:

2. Jesus' reaction which we should imitate (45-48) Notice carefully a few things Jesus did. First:

a. He knew her and her need and her faith - Mk. 5:30-32 says, At once Jesus realized that power had gone out from him. He turned around in the crowd and asked, "Who touched my clothes?" "You see the people crowding against you," his disciples answered, "and yet you can ask, "Who touched me?" But Jesus kept looking around to see who had done it. This is one of those places the NIV doesn't do justice to the Greek which says to see her who had done it; the NAS says to see the woman who had done it! He wasn't looking for who; He was looking for her! He already knew who had touched Him and why she had touched Him and what had happened when she touched Him. She had shrunk back into the crowd immediately to hide. He couldn't see her so He looked for her. He sought her out. Why? He was in a hurry. A child was dying; actually, she had just died, as we find out in a verse or two. Yet He stopped to look for this woman. Why? Because He didn't want her to slink away in the crowd, always wondering if she had stolen a blessing that He didn't want her to have. He didn't want her to leave without knowing that He knew about her and He cared about her and the agony she'd been through. And that's where we start imitating Him. We need to stop in the middle of the busyness of our lives and take time to reach out and touch those of our friends and loved ones who are chronically ill. We need to give them some time and let them know that we know they are hurting and that we care. They need to become in our own minds real people, wounded, hurting people who need us, instead of burdens to bear or objects to forget. Then:

b. He encouraged her to declare her faith in Him That's why He asked, "Who touched Me?" He already knew and He knew the great faith she had in Him, that if she would but touch the hem of His garment, she would be healed. But He wanted her to come forward openly and share that faith with the unbelieving crowd. He wanted her illness and her faith and His power to become an opportunity to touch the lives of others. We who are physically whole can encourage our ill friends who are not getting any better to let their illness be a means of declaring the glory of God. I think of so many of our dear saints here who have radiated God's glory in hospital rooms to nurses and doctors. I think of dear Charles Modricker and how he used to ask God for opportunities to share in the midst of suffering himself for years with kidney problems and dialysis. We can help them to see what their circumstances might otherwise blind them to, that they are valuable and that God can use their illness to serve Him.

c. He comforted her with His manner He called her not "Lady..." or "Ma'am" but "Daughter". I'm sure she didn't know whether He was angry or upset. But His first word brought her comfort... Daughter, "My child", "My Dear," would carry similar impact in English. It conveyed love and affection. Matthew mentions that His next words were Be of good cheer or Take heart. That is, don't worry; don't be afraid. She was on her knees and trembling before Him. But His manner toward her was kind and gentle and reassuring. Chronically ill people often are people who live with fear, the fear of what's going to happen to them, the fear of people deserting them, the fear of what they may yet have to endure. We can be God's means of comfort for those who are in affliction by the words we speak and the hug we give, the reassuring touch. Then:

d. He commended her faith He made note of it and the wonderful work it had done in bringing her healing. Sick people don't get a lot of pats on the back, a lot of commendation. Many of them are brave souls who fight a battle every day and who trust God moment by moment for strength and endurance. They are valiant warriors fighting a losing battle with their bodies, but hopefully are triumphing over their illness and growing spiritually. They need reinforcement. They need us to commend them. They need us to marvel at them and envy their close walk with the Lord. And finally:

e. He reinforced her hope You are whole; go in peace. And Mark adds, be freed from your suffering. From the moment she touched His hem, she believed she was healed. She felt it inside herself. But she had bled for 12 years without hope. At the moment, her whole hope hung on what she had told herself what would happen and on what she felt inwardly in that moment. Now she had Jesus' word, you are whole; you are free; it's real! Every sick person who knows Christ has a future hope that is real. They will be healed; they will be free. God has guaranteed them a brand new body which will not know any suffering or limitations. They will be made every whit whole. We all will. We should not give them false hope, that if they just have enough faith they will be healed right here and now. That's just not true. Not everyone who is able to convince themselves, "if I can just touch the hem of His garment, I'll be healed" is going to get healed. But every one of us will get healed! We will be made whole when we see Jesus one day and, as it were, touch the hem of His garment in person. That gets hard to remember and hard to believe after months and years of pain and difficulty. We need to reinforce their hope, help them to fix their eyes on what will be one day, believe together with them that one day Jesus will give them what they've longed after for years, a new body without pain.

Oh, chronically ill people need us. They need our compassion and our kindness and our encouragement and our reinforcement. They've suffered so much already. Let's care for them as Jesus did. And in case you may be like this woman, a person who has a sickness or a handicap that just doesn't get better, there is in this story:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who Are Chronically Ill

1. Jesus knows your situation just like He did hers! He hasn't forgotten you. Does He care? Oh, yes He cares, I know He cares, His heart is touched with your grief! and:

2. Jesus wants you to trust Him in your situation He wants you to have faith, not that He's going to make you well, but faith in Him, trust that He's going to be with you and be your strength in the midst of weakness, that His grace is sufficient, that it is enough for you, that it is all you need to make it through even cancer or heart disease or paralysis or stroke. Trust Him and know this:

3. your faith in Him will ultimately make you whole Joni Eareckson Tada became a quadriplegic as a teenager in a diving accident. She writes, God became incredibly close to me. I felt myself being transformed by the persistent love of my friends and family. And eventually I began to understand that, yes, God too loved me. Few of us have the luxury — it took me forever to think of it as that — to come to ground zero with God. Before the accident, my questions had always been, "How will God fit into this situation? How will he affect my dating life? My career plans? The things I enjoy?" Many of those options were now gone. I had only a helpless body, and God. Maybe that's the kind of state the mystics strive for; I got mine unwillingly. I had no other identity but God, and gradually he became enough. I became overwhelmed with the phenomenal possibility of a personal God, the same God who created the universe, living in my life. Perhaps he could make me attractive and worthwhile. I knew I could not do it without him. The first months, even years, I was obsessed with the question of what God was trying to teach me. Secretly, I probably hoped that by figuring out God's ideas, I could learn my lesson and then he'd heal me. I suppose every Christian with a similar experience goes back to the book of Job for answers. Here was a righteous man who suffered more than even I could imagine. But strangely, I could not find answers to the "Why?" of tragedies anywhere in the book of Job. What I found was that Job clung to God regardless, and God rewarded him. "Is that what God wants?" I wondered. My focus changed from demanding an explanation from God to humbly depending on him. Okay, I am paralyzed. It's terrible. I don't like it. But can God still use me, paralyzed? Can I, paralyzed, still worship God and love him? He began to teach me that I could. Maybe God's gift to me is dependence. I will never reach a place of self-sufficiency that crowds God out. I am aware of his grace every moment. My need for help is obvious every day when I wake up, flat on my back, waiting for someone to come dress me. I can't even comb my hair or blow my nose alone! But I do have friends who care. I have the beauty of the scenery I paint. I can even support myself financially — the dream of every disabled person. Peace is internal, and God has lavished me with that peace. There's one more thing. I have hope for the future now. The Bible speaks of our bodies being "glorified" in heaven. In high school that always seemed a hazy, foreign concept to me. But I now realize that I will be healed. I haven't been cheated out of being a complete person — I'm just going through a forty- or fifty-year delay, and God stays with me even through that. I now know the meaning of being "glorified." It's the time, after my death here, when I'll be on my feet dancing. ["Where is God When It Hurts" p. 129-30]. My friend, you'll be on your feet dancing too! Your trust in Christ guarantees it. Be encouraged and wait patiently. He will not forget!

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Hungry - 9:10-17

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

Jesus said openly that He had come as Messiah to preach good news to a whole class of wounded hurting people, the poor. There are two words in the Greek New Testament translated poor. The first means to live from hand to mouth, to have so little as to survive today on what you earn today. The second and more common word is derived from the root which means to beg. It means to not have enough to live on and so be reduced to having to ask others for help. In the culture in which Jesus lived, both types of poor people were everywhere. There were plenty of people who had only barely enough and also a good many who didn't have anything. And they are still everywhere today in our world too. And Jesus came to bring good news to them. Now, poor people are hungry people, people with a great and growing desire for what they don't have and can't get, for food, for shelter, for the basic necessities of life. There was a particular incident in Jesus' ministry where Jesus dealt with hungry people which is so helpful to us in this regard, Luke 9:10-17. This happening was so important in the minds of the disciples that it is the first event recorded by all four Gospels. About 5,000 men plus many of their wives and children, maybe 10 or 15,000 people had followed Jesus on foot about five miles from Capernaum to Bethsaida on the northeast shore of Galilee where he had gone by boat. They had to go out of the way a mile or two north to ford the Jordan River. They were tired, but they sat all day and listened to Jesus until late afternoon as evening approached. They had brought nothing with them. Most were poor to one degree or another and probably had little to bring with them. One little boy had brought a lunch, five loaves of bread Jewish bread was a flat, round loaf about as thick as your thumb. And it was barley bread according to John, not wheat, the poorest, coarsest variety. And with it, he had two little fishes, like our sardines or anchovies, to be eaten whole to give flavor to the bread! It was a poor child's lunch and the rest didn't even have that. They were hungry people. Now in:

I. Understanding The Wound Of Those Who Are Hungry, let's think carefully about:

1. the types of hungry people These people were hungry in more than one way and for more than one reason. And the hungry people around you in life probably fall into one of three categories:

a. those who are spiritually hungry: the lost - Mk. 6:34 says about this mass of people, When Jesus landed and saw a large crowd, he had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd. So he began teaching them many things. They were spiritually hungry. They were like lost sheep who didn't know where to find pasture and water and were bleating for a shepherd to lead them. They were spiritually lost. They had no peace, no joy, no security, no personal knowledge of God and were seeking Jesus to drink in His words. Around you, my friend, every day there are people who may have a Rolls Royce in the driveway but are spiritually hungry, impoverished in their souls, sheep with no one to lead them to the truth which will satisfy their longings. Then there are:

b. those who are momentarily hungry: the lacking That's what most of these people were. They were caught in an emergency situation that they didn't expect to be in and so were not prepared. Many of them were not hungry every day, but today they were, because they were lacking what was needed at the moment. There are lots of people, and indeed many of us, who are like that. We get laid off, we have a sudden bill, we get injured and suddenly we don't have enough to pay the rent, the bills, to put food on the table. We meet people like this, people in trouble, stranded, stuck without what they need. But the saddest of the lot are:

c. those who are chronically hungry: the impoverished, those who live constantly without what they need. They never have enough to eat, never have their most basic needs met. They live in poverty, begging, sorting through trash for leftover scraps, some of them stealing out of desperation, others simply starving. There were a few of these in that crowd. And there are a few of them not far from you. Glenside may have a couple, Philadelphia has many, but the world is filled with them. Thousands, even millions, in third world countries go to sleep hungry every night. Many starve to death or die of disease. This is the world we live in, a hungry world! Try to imagine it! We have to, because few of us actually know:

2. the pain of hunger Obviously there is:

a. the physical pain of an empty stomach. I start to experience that between breakfast and lunch; what's it like when you eat one meal a day, and that, a handful of rice? It hurts to not have food, to not have clothes, to not have a place to live. It's cold or maybe hot, depending on where you live. It's dark a lot. There's often sickness, but no medicine. A toothache or an infection goes on and on without treatment. Sores come but don't heal. But with the physical pain goes:

b. the emotional anguish and this applies to all types of hungry people, even those who are spiritually lost or temporarily lacking, not just to those who live in abject poverty. These are feelings that some of us know from experience.

(1) they may have feelings of insecurity and helplessness The poor are powerless. They can't provide for themselves and have no idea how they're going to survive or what's going to happen to them. They have no means to protect themselves. And those who are temporarily lacking fall into the same boat. Helpless, insecure, worried. Lost people may feel this too, even if they have no material need. Often their world will crumble around them and they have nothing to hang onto, no security for eternity, and feel the sense of drifting helplessly through life with no way to control or change it. Or:

(2) they may have feelings of inadequacy, failure, and self-blame, particularly those who have come to a time in their lives where they're lacking. They may blame themselves, feel like they have failed in life, like they have failed to take care of their family, like they are totally inadequate as people. Or:

(3) they may have feelings of anger, injustice, and jealousy They may be angry at the forces that keep them in poverty, that have put them in this position. They may see the injustice of it all, that somebody else's kids have their own room and TV and an allowance that is more money than they see in a month while their own kids cry to sleep from hunger every night. They may be jealous or angry at them or even at God for allowing it to be this way. Or:

(4) they may have feelings of despair and hopelessness They may feel there is no help and no hope for them and just give up on life.

Well, with feelings like these, it's not unusual to see:

3. some effects of hunger in the lives of people

a. they are often easily led astray in their thinking or values People who are spiritually lost and hungry to have real food for their souls, are often easily led to try to find what they need in cults, in false religions or ideologies that promise them what they want. People who lack or live in poverty are often led into flight or to an uprising or to war, simply to get their needs met. They may be willing to change all their values and do things they would never do, like stealing or selling drugs. And the reason is:

b. they are often desperate to find relief They will do anything to get out of their situation, risk everything to fill their belly. The impoverished will cast themselves adrift on the ocean in a tiny unsafe boat and risk their own lives trying to make it to another country because they are so desperate. They may sell their own bodies for daily bread. Those who lack will sometimes cheat, steal, gamble, leave their families and run away or abandon all their values, just to find relief and escape the crisis. The lost may try anything from religion to sex and drugs to escape the hunger in their souls.

Hungry people are desperately hurting people, people who have sustained a deep wound in life that refuses to heal, but just hurts and bleeds more every day until that hunger is satisfied. And we should know what it's like. Paul said there were times when he was hungry, when he felt the pain of lacking daily needs. Many of us remember times when we've been needy in our lives, spiritually and physically; maybe some of us are there right now. It ought to be a wound we can identify with and have compassion for, yet we often don't:

II. Our Reaction To Those Who Are Hungry

1. the two wrong reactions our flesh may have are voiced for us in the reaction of Jesus' own disciples. First, they said:

a. the problem is not mine - the issue of personal responsibility (12) The disciples didn't see any need to try to care for the crowd. They may have felt a little bad that it was supper time and nobody had brought lunch, but after all, these people had come all this way and stayed this long; they should have come prepared or at least, surely, they all brought lunch money. At any rate, it's not our problem; I'm not responsible for them so:

(1) let them take care of themselves ...send them away Let them go find something on their own. Let them find a job. Or:

(2) let somebody else take care of them ...the surrounding villages There are shops out there to buy in. There are homes out there to lodge in. There's a system out there to take care of them. Let Bethsaida handle 10,000 extra people tonight. Isn't that how we react? Isn't there a welfare system? Aren't there shelters for people like that? I'm not responsible; it's not my problem. Somebody will take care of them; let them do it. But look at:

Jesus' answer: YOU give them to eat (13) Turn to James, while I read you 1 Jn. 3:16, This is how we know what love is: Jesus Christ laid down his life for us. And we ought to lay down our lives for our brothers. Now read Jas. 2:15-16, Suppose a brother or sister is without clothes and daily food. If one of you says to him, "Go, I wish you well; keep warm and well fed," but does nothing about his physical needs, what good is it? You're not going to get by with that "it's not my problem" stuff, are you? Cain tried that on God about Abel, "Am I my brother's keeper?" God's answer is obviously, YES! It is my problem. And whether it's a brother in Christ who's lacking or a neighbor who's poor or lost, it is MY problem. Next to loving God, Jesus said the second most important thing the law taught was that I must love my neighbor as myself. I must care about his needs and his hunger! Now the next line of reasoning the flesh retreats to is:

b. the problem is too big - the issue of personal inadequacy (13) This is a big problem and:

(1) I don't have enough to help ...we have only 5 loaves They looked around at the size of the crowd and the size of the lunch and it was obvious that it wouldn't even make a dent. Their resources were obviously inadequate to solve the whole problem. Now, I find that, on one hand, for many of us that problem may be relative. The early church was so committed to the principle of loving and caring for one another and for the poor that many of them sold possessions and houses and lands to meet the needs of others. Many times, on a personal level, it isn't that we can't help someone but that we refuse to sacrifice enough to do so. Yet on the other hand, for most of us, no matter how much we sacrifice, it's still not enough and so they said:

(2) it won't make a difference ...what are they among so many "What's the use. We might as well eat it ourselves, at least that way we might get a bite. If we share it only a few will get even a morsel. It won't matter in the least." One international relief organization, recognizing the immensity of the need in the world, has a motto something like this, "They die one at a time; we feed them one at a time!" A young man, walking along the beach at dawn, noticed an old man ahead of him picking up starfish and flinging them into the sea. Catching up with the man, the youth asked what he was doing. The answer was that the stranded starfish would die if left until the morning sun. "But the beach goes on for miles, and there are millions of starfish," countered the young man. "How can your effort make any difference?" The old man looked at the starfish in his hand, and then threw it to safety in the waves. "It makes a big difference to this one," he said.

No, the church can't feed the world any more than it can save the world. But Jesus still gave us a commission to go to the ends of the earth. We will save some! And we can't meet everybody's need, but we can still help the ones Jesus puts in our path with what we have. Look at:

Jesus' answer: Bring them here to Me!, He said in Mt. 14:18. Give the little you have, not to them, but to Me. It is not your job to meet the need; I don't expect you to give what you don't have; it's your job to give what you have to Me and let Me meet the need with it the way I choose. And you know the miracle that happened. Jesus took the 5 loaves and 2 fishes and broke them and they multiplied in His hands and then in the hands of his disciples as they distributed them. Oh, Jesus has a way of doing that when we give what we have to Him. He multiplies it and merges it with that of others and uses it in just the right time and amount to meet needs. Turn to Phil. 4:14-19 and listen to Paul's story. The Philippians had sent him a gift in prison to meet his needs and he says, Yet it was good of you to share in my troubles. Moreover, as you Philippians know, in the early days of your acquaintance with the gospel, when I set out from Macedonia, not one church shared with me in the matter of giving and receiving, except you only; for even when I was in Thessalonica, you sent me aid again and again when I was in need. Not that I am looking for a gift, but I am looking for what may be credited to your account. I have received full payment and even more; I am amply supplied, now that I have received from Epaphroditus the gifts you sent. They are a fragrant offering, an acceptable sacrifice, pleasing to God. And my God will meet all your needs according to his glorious riches in Christ Jesus. Again and again, they had sent Paul gifts and God timed them and used them at specific times when Paul was in need. They gave what they had to God and God used it to meet Paul's need and he made them a promise: when you give and are willing to care and to sacrifice for others, God will see that all your needs are met and He is well able! The disciples, who would have only each gotten a bite if they'd kept it for themselves, each ate until they were full and picked up 12 baskets of leftovers for later. Each came with nothing and left with a basket of food! Their needs were met in meeting the needs of others and so will yours be. You see, what God wants to develop in us is:

2. Jesus' attitude toward those who are hungry When the disciples saw the crowd, they thought about themselves; when Jesus saw the crowd:

a. He was deeply moved by them - Mk. 6:34, When Jesus landed and saw a large crowd, he had compassion on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd. So he began teaching them many things. His gut was touched; his heart was moved. He saw there was no one to care for these lost sheep. How do you see the people around you? They're lost sheep; they don't know where to find eternal life and peace like you have and for most of them there is nobody in their lives to tell them but you. Some of them are lacking and maybe even poor and they have nobody else to turn to but you. If the Spirit of God is in control of your life as it was His, you will care. You will be moved and you'll do what He did:

b. He welcomed them (11) The Greek word means to take with the hand. He put His arms out to them figuratively. It was not grudging, not "Oh no, not again, what an intrusion on my time; I'm trying to get away and rest with my disciples." He welcomed them openly because He saw them spiritually. They were sheep with no shepherd to take care of them, nobody to help them. Sheep who would die without Him. And so:

c. He met their need (17) He taught them all day. He met their spiritual hunger. He taught them what the Kingdom of God was like and how they could be part of it. And He met their physical need too. They all ate and were satisfied.

My friend, will you be like Him? We have salvation. We have a God who meets our needs. We have brothers and sisters who care for us. Will you be touched by the hungry people around you, by the lost who so desperately need Christ and by the lacking who are in the emergency and may not make it through without you and by the impoverished who never have enough and whose hope is gone apart from you? Will you welcome these people as part of your life instead of sending them away? And will you give what you have to Jesus, your words, your time, your money, your possessions, so He can multiply them and meet their needs one at a time in His own way?

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Victimized - 10:30-37

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

One might actually subtitle this series, "Dealing with Bruised Reeds", and one by one we've been looking at different kinds of people who are bruised reeds, people who have been seriously wounded and scarred in life and who need our compassion and caring. There is a whole class of hurting people for whom I chose the label, "The Victimized". You'll meet quite a number of them every night on the evening news. They have been victims of ill treatment by other people. Some of them are the victims of cruelty in war, like the refugees in Greece. Some of them are victims of crime; they've been shot, mugged, robbed, cheated, beaten, or raped. Some are victims of abuse; they've been physically abused or sexually abused, often by their own parents or other members of their family. Victims come in many varieties, but two things are for sure. 1) There are a lot of them; they are all around us; in fact, more than a few of us have been victims at some point in our lives. Somewhere I read that 38% of the people in America have experienced sexual abuse; add to that those who have been victimized in other ways and you probably have a majority, not a minority. And 2) they are really hurting people. Jesus told a story about one such man, a man who was victimized, Luke 10:30-37. Jesus never said this was a parable, a story that He made up to make a point. I'd prefer to think it was an actual case of a man He knew of. At any rate, the details of it are very real. A certain man, a Jew, was traveling down the road from Jerusalem to Jericho by the Jordan about five miles away. This stretch of road was lonely and steep and dangerous. Robbers had lots of rocks and hills to hide in and lots of money-laden victims passing by to the Temple in Jerusalem. A band of them caught this man unaware, nearly killed him and left him for dead by the roadside. Let this man stand as a representative of all those who have been victimized and it will help you in:

I. Understanding The Wound Of Those Who Have Been Victimized (30) Let's try to project ourselves, to put ourselves in this man's shoes on the road that day. If we can imagine that, we'll better understand:

1. what has happened to them First of all:

a. they may have been terrified How do you think that man felt from the moment the first robber appeared and through the whole process. I can remember as an elementary kid walking home one winter day being picked on and shoved into a snow bank by some high school boys laughing and having some "fun". I remember being afraid. That was kind of low-level fear, but a person who is seriously victimized is usually afraid and is very often terrified. And it's not a fear you just get over. It's a fear that deeply roots itself down inside and affects your whole way of living, your whole personality thereafter. I can't imagine the terror that comes when you wake up and an intruder is standing over your bed with a gun; I can't imagine the terror a woman must feel when she is suddenly grabbed and drug into a dark alley. I can't imagine the terror a child must feel when a drunken father picks up a board and comes after them in a rage. But I imagine it's enough to make a person never feel safe again, apart from God's healing! On top of that:

b. they may have been personally degraded Notice it says they stripped him of his clothes and then beat him. They had a little fun. They took his clothes off and called him names and humiliated him while they beat him. And he, all the while, was too weak or too outnumbered to fight back. Maybe he didn't even try. How degrading that must have been. It says to the victim, "You're not a person; you're an object and I'm going to use you for my pleasure". That's what abuse or victimization does. It removes or reduces the victim's sense of personhood, of worth, of value and can have serious consequences. On top of that:

c. they may have suffered a tragic loss I don't know how much money this man was carrying or whether he lost anything more than just his clothes and maybe a donkey, if he was riding one. But lots of people have. Some people have had tremendously valuable things taken from them, have lost all they had. How many black people in the 60's in Mississippi and Alabama had their homes burned at night by men in white hoods trying to terrorize them and keep them subjugated in fear. How many have had a loved one ripped away from them by a drunken driver who never even stopped or had their little child disappear on the way home from school, never to be seen again. Victims often have had things of great value or people they love taken away. On top of that:

d. they may have experienced physical/emotional pain They beat the man. Have you ever been beaten? How about screamed at, cursed at, called all kinds of horrible things? How about being made to watch while someone else you love was being hurt? It hurts; it all hurts terribly. And finally:

e. their life may have been in danger They left him half-dead the text says. If he'd lain there a long while without help, he would have died. You can imagine that he realized "they're going to kill me," as they beat his body. Have you ever been in a situation where your life was in immediate danger, where the gun was at your head? We don't have any idea what that does to people.

You see, victimized people have been traumatized and if it was serious or repeated, often that trauma is deep and affects their whole lives and many times they don't even recognize it. For instance, let's think about:

2. how they may feel because of what has happened

a. they may feel vulnerable and afraid I wonder if that man ever traveled anywhere alone again. Fear has nine lives. You can bury it through activity but it keeps rearing its ugly head again. Part of the trauma of being a victim is feeling vulnerable, unable to protect yourself, powerless. It's a horrible feeling no one ever wants to feel. And the fear of feeling like that again can really take over a person. Or:

b. they may feel shame and guilt I wonder how many times that man asked himself "Why didn't I travel with somebody; why didn't I take another road; why didn't I take a weapon?" People blame themselves for things and particularly if they didn't fight hard enough or resist hard enough because they were too scared at the moment. There's a whole group of victimized people who blame themselves and feel total shame and guilt; it has transformed their whole view of themselves. And some:

c. they may feel depressed and hopeless Their emotions may turn inward and they become depressed and find no way of getting better. Or it may go the other way and:

d. they may feel anger and hatred They may lash out at the one who victimized them. Victimized people may become obsessed with the thought of revenge on their abuser or on someone who represents him, like Absalom who waited two years to avenge his sister by killing the brother, Amnon, who raped her. An abused woman may come to hate men in general and try to compete with them or control them or victimize them in retaliation for what was done to her.

The point is that any person who has been seriously abused, especially if it was repeated or continued over a period of time, has been affected far more seriously and deeply than the physical wounds they show. Their personality has been wounded and they may not even know it. They may be able to function normally and live a fairly normal life but underneath all the time are these feelings. How can we help people like this?

II. Our Reaction Toward Those Who Are Victimized Well, one thing Jesus made perfectly clear was:

1. the selfish reaction we must avoid - ...he passed by (31-32) Here's this man lying in the ditch with no clothes, half dead and two people come along. Both are religious, one a priest, the other a Levite. And both stop, look over the scene for a second, and take off running down the other side of the road. Sounds like something that might happen in Philadelphia! A whole crowd can stand around and watch somebody get beaten or shot and nobody does anything about it. The sad part is that it doesn't only happen at that time; for victimized people, it happens all the rest of their lives. People come upon them with all the horrible feelings buried inside and they get a glimpse that the person is hurting but they don't stop to get involved; they pass by on the other side. And it's not just "they"; it's "we"! How many times have you and I chosen deliberately to pass on by somebody that we know is hurting seriously and needs our attention? Why do we do it? Why did they? Well, maybe:

a. we worry about the personal relationship involved Maybe the priest thought, "I don't know the man; it's not my problem. After all, I can't be taking care of everyone I meet, can I?" The third man to come along was a Samaritan. Now, you know about the Jews and the Samaritans. They hated each other, wouldn't have anything to do with each other. Maybe he thought at first, "He's a Jew; I'm not going to help him; I don't like Jews." or maybe he thought, "I'm a Samaritan; he's not going to want my help; he won't want me to touch him; I'll just pass by!" You see, we worry about whether a person will like us and want our help or how they'll react. We worry about how we feel about the person rather than about how they feel. Or:

b. we worry about the personal risk involved The Levite thought, "Those robbers are around here somewhere. Every second I stay puts me in danger. If I help him, they might come back and get me. I've got to get out of here!" And off he went down the road. If I help that person, what's it going to do to me? That's why the crowd stands around and watches you bleed to death! If there's any thought that helping a victim may put us at risk somehow, we're torn. And at the same time:

c. we worry about the personal cost involved The Priest thought, "If I help this guy, it's going to mean a lot of work. He can't walk. I'll have to carry him or drag him or load him on my donkey. I'll have to go and take care of him or find somebody else to. And I'll have to buy medicine or pay for a doctor; after all he has nothing. Besides, I'll be late for the 11 o'clock sacrifice. Better let somebody else do it!" And off he ran down the road. Isn't that like us? We find a hurting person and we worry about how much it's going to cost, how much time it's going to take, how much it'll hinder our lifestyle and we're tempted to pass by.

You see, who were the priest and the Levite thinking about? Themselves! That's how human flesh is. We see a dying man and worry about our own safety instead of his. We see a hurting person and worry about our own feelings instead of theirs. But not Jesus. He always stooped down to minister to hurting people. He told about the Good Samaritan who came along in order to emphasize:

2. the loving reaction we must imitate The Samaritan, of all people, stopped and ministered to the man and the punchline of the story is ...go and do likewise (33-37). This is the reaction Jesus wants us to have. He wants us to have:

a. a caring heart - ...he took pity on him There's that bowel-word again. His guts were wrenched; he was deeply touched by him lying there naked and bleeding. My friend, if you sit there when somebody tells you how they were hurt and don't cry, at least on the inside, there's something wrong with you and you'd better figure out what it is pretty quick! If you can brush off people's hurt and pain and pass by without caring, you'd better ask yourself whether the love of God really does dwell in you! Ask God to give you a caring heart! Then notice the Samaritan had:

b. a gentle initiative - ...he went to him He didn't stand at a distance and yell, "Are you all right?". The man couldn't talk; he was probably unconscious. The Samaritan approached him as he lay there. To help victimized people you're going to have to approach them. Gently, kindly, softly, so as not to startle them, you're going to have to take the steps that bring you close to them so you can help. You may have to take the initiative to get to know them, to invite them over, to offer to help rather than saying, "If you need it, call". And along with that goes:

c. a tender manner - ...he bandaged his wounds He carefully wiped away the blood. He gingerly used some of the wine in his flask as an antiseptic to cleanse the dirt from the wounds. And then he poured on some olive oil as a healing agent and wrapped the wounds, probably in strips torn from his own clothing! Can you see the tenderness? And then he gently lifted him onto his donkey so he could be carried. People that have been wounded by other people, have been treated harshly. They need tenderness, gentleness. They need touched a little at a time. They need to talk a little at a time and tell their story. Sometimes the people who set out to help them are as harsh as the people who victimized them, only in a more "legitimate" way. By not understanding, by blaming them, by expecting them to do what they can't, the hurt can be made worse. Then notice he had:

d. a personal involvement - ...he took care of him He got him to the inn which was probably little more than a shelter for people and animals out of the elements, certainly not the Holiday! And that first night he himself took care of him. He sat up with him and wiped his brow and gave him water and fed him a little soup or whatever. If you're going to help someone who's been a victim, you can't do it from a distance. You have to get involved in their lives. You have to spend time with them. You have to talk to them. You have to listen to them. You have to hug them and hold them. You have to get close to them and that's going to take a lot of time and effort and it also means:

e. a long-term commitment - The Samaritan's business was urgent and he had to continue on but he told the innkeeper ...look after him...[until] I return and left money for two days care. That probably meant he had been on his way UP to Jerusalem so now he would go up and tomorrow he would pass back by and stop again. He wanted to see him through all the way to health, until he could travel home. Helping victimized, abused people is a long-term process. They don't heal quickly and the mental wounds continue to ooze long after the physical ones heal up. You've got to be in there for the long haul, to come back to them again and again, listen again and again, love them again and again, until they are every whit whole.

Victims are special people. They have special needs. The Samaritan was an ordinary person with an extraordinary heart that put others first. He probably didn't even like the Jew he found lying on the road. The whole reason Jesus told this story was that some self-righteous Pharisaical person wanted to justify himself in selectively loving only those he chose. Jesus' punchline was, Go and do likewise. That is, love those who have needs whether you like them or not, whether it's convenient or not, whether it's costly or not. Love and care for any poor hurting victim God puts in your path. He is your neighbor. And then, because I know many of you have been victimized in your lives, let me just share:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who've Been Victimized from this story. First, please realize that:

1. Jesus was victimized; He understands your pain Listen to this, He was despised and rejected by men, a man of sorrows, and familiar with suffering. Like one from whom men hide their faces he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he took up our infirmities and carried our sorrows, yet we considered him stricken by God, smitten by him, and afflicted. But he was pierced for our transgressions, he was crushed for our iniquities; the punishment that brought us peace was upon him, and by his wounds we are healed. We all, like sheep, have gone astray, each of us has turned to his own way; and the LORD has laid on him the iniquity of us all. He was oppressed and afflicted, yet he did not open his mouth; he was led like a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is silent, so he did not open his mouth. - Is. 53:3-7. They mocked Him, they stripped Him, they beat Him, and at last they killed Him. He knows what it feels like to be a victim! He knows your pain! And so:

2. Jesus will tenderly care for you and help you heal You see, Jesus is the real Good Samaritan. You may be lying there in the agony and pain because of all that has happened to you, even if it happened long ago. But Jesus has come along the path of your life. He has come to you where you are and He is tenderly approaching you. He wants to gently bandage your wounds and carry you to a safe place and tend to you Himself as you heal. For some of us He's already done it. But He will do it for you. You may have been a Christian for years but still suffer from the agony in your soul because you were victimized somehow, somewhere. Jesus wants to heal the pain, take away the fear, drain away the anger and replace it with His love and peace. He wants to carry you home like an injured child and hold you in His bosom and make you better and He will, if you will let Him. And then, understand this:

3. Jesus will love you through His people He's not going to come to you in some ethereal vision. He's going to come in flesh and blood through the hands and the hearts of the people in whom He lives, who are obeying His command to go and do likewise, through close Christian friends who will stand by you and love you and prop you up each day as you learn to walk all over again, perhaps a Christian counselor who can guide you through the process, pastors and elders and a church who will be there for you as much and as often as you need them. They're right here. You don't have to lie there helpless and alone, unless you push them away.

My friend, what will you do the next time you're walking down the road of your life and come across somebody who's been badly hurt, victimized by some bully in life? I don't know who it will be. But you'll know when you see them. Will you let them lie there? Or will you pick them up in your arms and carry them safely home?

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

Those Who Have Been Rebellious - 15:11-31

The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20

There is another type of wounded, hurting person whom we don't often think about but whom we meet all around us. In chapter 7 we looked at those coming out of a sinful life, those who come to Christ whose lives have been full of sin, and the special tender care which they need. But what about the Christian who has "backslidden", the person who has already come to Christ, but who has rebelled against His love and His will and chosen instead to go into a life of sin for a period. Most of us can relate to that. For some, there was a time when we did it, when we put Christ out of sight and out of mind and did what we pleased, but He brought us back to Himself. For others, somewhere along the line we've been involved with someone close to us who's done it. It may have been our spouse who's drifted away from their walk with the Lord; it may have been a good friend or a church leader who went astray. And how many of us can relate to the heartache of having one of our own children grow up in the faith and then decide to put it all aside, perhaps for years before finally deciding to come home to Jesus. Those who have been rebellious are all around us. But what about when they come back? What about when the Holy Spirit finally gets hold of the strings of their heart and it turns toward home again? One would think that coming back would be the easiest thing in the world, but it isn't. The reception isn't always very good. The church often has a hard time with it. Someone has said that Christians are the only army that often kill their wounded. Those who have succumbed to Satan in the heat of the battle often have a hard time coming back to their own camp and suffer as great damage at the hands of their own kind as they did in enemy territory. They are bruised reeds and need loving tender care. Jesus told a story about one such young man in Luke 15. The story of the prodigal son is an evangelistic story about the love of God for lost sinners and, of course, its most frequent use is to encourage lost people to get out of the pigpen and come to Christ. But if you'll indulge my interpretation this morning, it is also the story of a loving father whose son rebelled against him and stormed away, but then came back. It is aimed at the Jews, God's people, some of whom ran away from Him and became publicans and sinners and some of whom pretended to be close to Him and became Pharisees. And if you check the context, its design is to teach Pharisaical children how to react when their publican brothers come home to God. So why not let it teach us how to care for our brothers and sisters who rebel and then want to come home. Luke 15:14-20. We must begin by:

I. Understanding The Wound Of Those Who Have Been Rebellious (14-20) When one of God's children chooses to rebel and to go out into sin, we have to remember:

1. what has happened to them First:

a. they have suffered a great deal through their sin (16) Put yourself in this boy's place. Young Mr. High and Mighty grew up in a good home with a loving dad, a wealthy home where his needs were always met. But his picture of life under dad was slavery and he wanted freedom. So, he stood up to his father and demanded it, and he got it. And he went far off where nobody could hinder him and did what he wanted. At first, it seemed like heaven. He had all he wanted, food, friends, women, whatever. He didn't have to work. But as his money ran out, things changed. It was soon all gone. And there were no jobs. By begging, he got the only job he could find, feeding pigs, but it didn't give him enough to survive on. He became hungry, so hungry that he was tempted to eat the carob pods he fed the pigs. For a long while he suffered greatly. The fun was gone; the good times, the pleasure, now even the ability to survive by his own resources. All gone. It was a painful process to lose everything he had and had counted on. The ancient Jews had a saying, "When Israel is reduced to the carob tree, they become repentant!" It worked for this Jewish son. When God's children rebel and go their own way, it is a painful way. Solomon said, "The way of the transgressor is hard". Very often there is a great deal of suffering out there on their own before they come home. The world is not kind, it is not nice, and as enticing as it may be, if you give yourself to loving it, it will take all you have, beat you, and leave you for dead most times. So, rebellious children coming home have often had a great deal of pain and suffering. In fact, that has often been the very thing that produced their repentance. Now secondly:

b. they have had a change of heart and mind (17) The son literally came to himself. He came back to who he really was, the son of his father. He'd been acting like somebody else. He'd been thinking like somebody else other than who he really was. But God worked in him and he remembered; he woke up; he had a tremendous change of heart and mind about himself and when he did, he realized what he'd done. But he was no longer the same person who enjoyed life in the far country. Now he found himself a son stuck in a pigpen in a far country wanting nothing more than to go home. This is what happens to a rebellious child of God out there in sin. At some point many of them wake up; they return to who they are and want to come home. But:

c. they find themselves alone (16) He was alone. Nobody cared about him where he was and he didn't know whether anybody cared about him at home either. But certainly, nobody was there in the far country to help him. He found himself all alone, not fitting in, with nobody to care. Oftentimes that's where rebellious children end up, all alone, realizing the mess they've made of their lives and not knowing what to do and so, think about:

2. how they feel because of what has happened First of all:

a. they feel ashamed of what they have done (17) It all seemed so stupid now. "The hired hands back home are better off than I am now. I had it so good. Why didn't I listen when dad pleaded with me not to go? Why didn't I stay? Why did I ever do this? And now look at me, I took all that money from dad and I blew it all. It's gone. And I hurt him deeply. Oh, what a fool I was!" Rebellious children who wake up know shame. I saw on a news show an interview with a father who had become frantic over his bills and inability to provide and had deserted his wife and kids when they were young and ran off. With tears running down his eyes, he said, "I made horrible choices and I don't know why. I have no excuse. I'm so ashamed of what I did. I would do anything to change it if I could!" And with that, his two grown children came into the room and all of them stood there and cried. It was a really happy ending for a change. But oh, the shame. And when a rebellious child wakes up, there is a great deal of shame about what they've done and how they've lived and the life they've wasted. And on top of the shame:

b. they feel guilty before God (18) I have sinned against heaven... that is, against God. How can I ever be forgiven for what I've done? How can He take me back? I have dishonored and hurt Him so. And then:

c. they feel unworthy of their place in the family (19) I'm not worthy to be called a son... "I'll just be a servant." Because of their sin they often feel unworthy, not only to resume their place in their earthly family but also in God's family, in the church. They feel like they are less than everyone else who hasn't done what they've done, who remained faithful while they threw it all away. And:

d. they may feel reluctant to return (20) He'd done a despicable thing. He didn't know whether there was a welcome for him there or not. He could envision himself crawling home and begging forgiveness. Rebellious children often have this feeling they've burned their bridges to go back and have no other place to go. This boy got up and went anyway. Some don't. Some are too afraid, afraid of what their earthly family or their church family is going to think or do when they come back. And they have good reason to feel that reluctance, as we'll see in a second.

But the point is that a child of God who has been in rebellion and now has come to himself and wants to come home is a really hurting person, a bruised reed. He's loaded down with shame and guilt and worthlessness and fear. How are we going to react to this kind of person? How are we going to receive them? That's the whole point of the story:

II. Our Reaction Toward Those Who Have Been Rebellious When the boy came home, he actually got two reactions and we're going to look at them in reverse order. You already know how the father received him with open arms and threw a great celebration. So, let's consider:

1. the self-centered reaction of the older brother (25-31) First of all:

a. he was angry at his father for receiving him (28) His brother had hurt him deeply too. He had taken a third of the family's belongings. He had broken the family's heart. He had left the older one to care for all the work. The older boy became bitter and angry. He didn't want the younger to come home or if he did, only so he could pay him back for all he'd done and reject him in turn. None of that may ever have been said. It may have all been kept inside. But then when he showed up and Dad took him back so easily and threw a party, all of that anger turned toward Dad, "How could you...?" The Pharisees had a hard time seeing publicans and sinners who were repentant be forgiven and accepted by Christ. And sometimes we have a hard time with our brothers and sisters who have fallen away. We're angry down underneath somewhere. Instead of being happy they're alive and have been found, we find we'd rather have them dead and lost. At least we want to make it hard on them to come back! We look at them and think, "What are they doing in church? How could they dare show their faces after what they did? But notice something about this older boy:

(1) he had an underlying disrespectful attitude He says, "Now look here, dad!" He thought the father was dumb all along for having given the kid the inheritance in the first place, but now the attitude comes out. He did not really respect his father's principles or his heart and:

(2) he had been serving with wrong motives "I've been slaving for you for years and haven't ever gotten anything out of it!" Now it comes out. All these years he had been performing for reward, pulling the faithful routine, so that in the end he would be rewarded. And so:

b. he was jealous of his brother for being received (30) He should have been made to come back like a dog with his tail between his legs, if at all. Instead, look at all the attention he's been getting and all the hoopla over him. "He doesn't deserve it. I do. I'm the faithful one, remember!"

It's sad to say but that's not just the attitude of the Pharisees in Jesus' day. There's a lot of Pharisee in all of us, in our flesh. And we see some brother in Christ who's gone astray want to come back and we're angry, we're even jealous sometimes. And do you know why? Because we're thinking about ourselves. We've been serving God to get something and feel like we've accomplished something and we should be rewarded, not that person! His return takes something away from us! You'll note that when the prodigal was out in the pigpen, the other son did not say, "I will arise and go to my brother!" He knew what would happen if he did! Maybe that's what kept him in the pigpen so long. This isn't what God's children returning from rebellion need; they need:

2. the loving reaction of the father (20-24)

a. he loved the son even while he was in rebellion (20) You can tell by his reaction when he saw him. He was moved with compassion. It's that bowel word again. His guts were moved. Deep inside he cared. And that says to me that he had cared all the way along. He loved the boy when he left and all the while he was gone. The older brother despised him the whole time. But God loves rebellious children and so must we, even in the midst of their sin. Now, that doesn't mean we send them care packages and enable them to stay in their sin. The father didn't send any checks to the hog pen address to say, "Here, this will help you stay longer". You don't enable the sin. But you love the rebellious one all the same. God does. Then:

b. he looked for the rebellious son to return Notice it doesn't say that when he was a long way off, the son saw the father working in the field. That would have been natural. But the father saw HIM coming a long way off. He was looking! How many times he had lifted his gaze eastward toward Jordan the way he had left, hoping that one time he would see him come back. That was his goal. He wanted to see him come home. The brother wanted to see him get what he deserved. The father wanted him back. Which attitude do we have? Then:

c. he welcomed the rebellious son He grabbed him and threw his arms around him and kissed him. He didn't even wait for the full apology the son planned. He cut him off in mid-stream. He made him feel wanted and welcome and more than that:

d. he restored the rebellious son (22) The son thought he would come back as second-class, as a hired servant, no longer a son. But the father put the best robe on him and put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet and said, Rejoice... this my SON... These were all marks of sonship not servanthood. He was fully restored. Oh sure, he didn't get another share of the family's inheritance. There were some unerasable consequences that couldn't be undone. But he was restored as a full first-class son, because that's who he was to the father all along! And that's how we should be towards those who come back. We should welcome them with open arms and restore them! They don't come back as less than us somehow. We shouldn't rub their nose in their sin, but should restore them equally. We are all sinners who've been elevated to saints by God's grace. And our grace needs to extend toward others. But notice also the Father's grace:

e. he reached out equally to the "non-rebellious" son (31) He came out and pleaded with him to change his attitude and come in too. He loved the son who stayed as much as the son who came back. There was nothing to be jealous of. And here you may be, serving faithfully, a little self-righteous and proud of the way you've been faithful.

Well, God loves you too and wants you to change your attitude and to love rebellious bruised reeds!

Oh my friend, who is the rebellious one in your life? Who is it that has turned his back on you and on Christ and broken your heart? Who is it that is out there somewhere feeding swine and maybe wants to come home? How will you treat them when they come? It all depends on your attitude right now. When they come, they will be hurt, crushed, bruised reeds, smoldering wicks. Will you straighten them tenderly, carefully, lovingly or break them altogether? Will you gently blow the embers into flame or snuff them out forever? The choice is yours. And just in case there may be some among us this morning who know what this is all about by experience and may be still out there somewhere, but you've turned from God and you know it, there is in this story:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who Are Being Rebellious Listen:

1. your Father loves you and is waiting for you to return The Father in this story is really a picture of your Heavenly Father. You may have turned your back on Him, but He's never turned His back on you. He's watching for you every day, waiting, hoping, longing for you to come home to Him so He can just walk with you and be an active part of your life again. He doesn't care about what He can get from you or what you can do for Him. He just wants YOU because He loves you and it pains Him to watch you suffer and hurt yourself in rebellion. Come home, won't you? And when you do:

2. your Father will restore you to all He has for you You won't be a second-class Christian, the kind who messed up. He will fully restore you to every thing and every plan He has for you. Oh, there are some things He may not be able to fix. It may be too late for the marriage that was ruined or the opportunity that was missed or some other things. But God still has so much more for you. He has plans for you, to love you and walk with you through life together and live out His life through you and know this:

3. your Father will rejoice over you and defend you to others There are going to be some older brothers around with self-centered attitudes who won't understand or receive you. You can't prevent that. But do know that your Father will defend you and take care of you. Don't fear. Don't worry. Don't let the fear of others keep you in the pigpen. God will go out and plead with His other children for you; that's His business. Just come home to Him. Come today! I used this illustration earlier in this series, but I have to repeat it again because it is so appropriate:

Fyodor Dostoyevsky, the famous 19th century Russian novelist, was sentenced to death by firing squad as a young man for his radical political views. As the rifles were being aimed, the order to halt came and the sentence was commuted to 10 years in a Siberian labor camp. Upon his arrival a woman slipped a New Testament into his hand when the guard wasn't looking. There in a bare board building with 3 inches of ice on the windows and an inch of filth on the floor, Dostoyevsky discovered the parable of the prodigal son. He saw in that camp the pigsty and himself the son and the truth of God's love and willingness to pardon gripped his soul. Years later, on his deathbed, his daughter describes it thus: "He made us come into the room and taking our little hands in his, he begged my mother to read the parable of the prodigal son. He listened with his eyes closed, absorbed in his thoughts. 'My children', he said in his feeble voice, 'never forget what you have just heard. Have absolute faith in God and never despair of His pardon. I love you dearly, but my love is nothing compared with the love of God. Even if you should be so unhappy as to commit some dreadful crime, never despair of God. You are His children; humble yourselves before Him as before your father; implore His pardon, and He will rejoice over your repentance, as the father rejoiced over that of the prodigal son.'"

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Outcast - 17:11-19

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

There are no people you will meet in life who are quite so deeply wounded as those who are outcast. My dictionary said an outcast is one who is cast out by society. Most every society has its outcasts of one type or another. The Jews of Jesus' day would have put Samaritans and Gentiles who lived among them in that category. But the most outcast of all were the lepers. The disease of leprosy mentioned in the Old Testament probably is a general term covering a variety of infectious skin-diseases which we have come to identify in modern terms as psoriasis, infections, dermatitis, herpes, and a host of other maladies, even including mildew and fungi on inanimate objects, but certainly also including the actual disease we have come to identify as true leprosy or Hansen's disease. Leprosy as such has been around since 600 BC in India and 400 BC in Europe. It is a particular bacterial infection which enters the body through the skin and destroys the nerves in the body a little at a time, starting in the extremities and working up to the main nerves. Thus, the gradual loss of feeling leads to damage to the fingers and toes and gradually the person loses parts of the limbs, wastes away and becomes deformed. Until 1940 there was no cure and the world knew it. With so little knowledge of how disease spread and fear of catching it, leprosy victims were for millennia the worst of outcasts and the most ill-treated of people. They have been often persecuted or even murdered; some were even buried alive (as late as 1937). Those who weren't were often banished to a horrible existence outside of society. Many banded together to live as nomads, as beggars, or even as thieves and to care for one another. It was a group of 10 such outcasts, lepers, who came to Jesus one day as He was somewhere on the border between Samaria and Galilee, Luke 17:11-19. Here were 10 bruised reeds, 10 smoldering wicks, 10 outcasts, and Jesus made them whole. Now in:

I. Understanding The Wound Of Those Who Are Outcast we need to bring this home to our day. Though there are still 15 million lepers in the world, you've probably never met one. Most leprosy is confined to the third world where conditions for them haven't changed much since Jesus' day. The need to minister to them is obvious and some organizations are doing that. But lepers are not the only kind of outcasts. Let's talk about:

1. the variety of those who are often outcast that maybe you DO meet. People who have been virtually cast out by society because of either diseases they have or other characteristics they have, and often not of their own choosing. First, let's mention:

a. those who may have AIDS or similar diseases AIDS is the leprosy of the modern world. There is no true cure. When you get it, without treatment you die, a long slow agonizing death. There is a tremendous fear of it. And it is transmitted sexually so there is a tremendous stigma associated with it, even if you got it through a blood transfusion! In much of the world, those who have it are often outcasts; nobody wants to help them, to be around them, to touch them, to care for them. But they are not alone. What about:

b. those who may be physically handicapped or disfigured How people stare at a person in a wheelchair or a person missing a limb or a person who's been burned and their face is disfigured. I remember seeing a young man on TV a time or two who had cerebral palsy. He was disfigured and couldn't talk. His mother was the only one who loved him and she died. He ended up living under a bridge. But he met Jesus and Jesus loved him and today the boy who was outcast is an itinerant evangelist and is married and has children. But oh, how many more are like him. They're ugly, they're disfigured, they're missing an arm or leg or they're all curled up. And what do we do? Shy away and stare. And many times, treat them as though they're mentally retarded on top of it! Or what about:

c. those who may be mentally handicapped One of the sweetest people I ever knew was a young lady in our first church who was born with Down's Syndrome. Fortunately, she was born into a loving family who protected her and cared for her, but how many aren't. And how they get made fun of and taken advantage of, as though they're sort of inhuman. But outcasts don't have to have a disease or a handicap of some sort; they may simply be:

d. those who may be "different" from the culture around them They may be a Samaritan living in Jewish Jerusalem or today a black person living in a white neighborhood or a white person living in a black neighborhood. They may be a Jew living in Germany in 1937 or a Serb living in Croatian territory in 1994. Anybody who is different, who looks different, talks different, dresses different from the majority around him, finds himself in some measure an outcast and the butt of jokes, and even attacks and persecution. It's even true of:

e. those who may have a "colored" past. What does the word ex-convict bring to your thoughts if I tell you that one moved in next door to you? In certain areas a person who has had a baby out of wedlock or who has gotten a divorce may feel the same kind of rejection. There are persons who find themselves cast out by the people around them because of things in their past that they can't go back and change no matter how hard they try.

Oh, outcasts are around. Some of them you'll find lying on a steam grate by the Mission at 5th and Girard. Some are lying alone in a room over at Abington hospital struggling to breathe. Some may be right next door to you. Now think about:

2. what they have experienced - Just imagine what it would be like if you had been one of these 10 lepers. Turn with me to the law of leprosy in Lev. 13:45-46. Now, realizing that this law was God's gracious provision to prevent epidemics of infectious disease from spreading, still think about what it meant. The person could not dress normally. He had to wear torn clothes and keep his head uncovered. He had to veil the lower part of his face. He could not act normally. Everywhere he went he had to say "unclean" and stay away from people. He could not live in town. He had to live outside the camp or the city, alone and all by himself. Now, that might have been alright, had there been a general attitude of love and pity and caring for lepers as sick brethren, but in fact the reverse was true. The Jewish rabbis developed an entire code of tradition concerning it. They declared it openly to have a moral cause. It was seen as a punishment from God. Any room a leper entered, even if he stuck his head in the door, became unclean. No one was to salute him and a minimum distance must be kept from him, unless the wind was blowing from that direction in which case a hundred cubits were not enough. One rabbi would not eat an egg purchased in a street where there was a leper. Another boasted that he always threw stones at them to keep them away. So instead of the special love and care they needed, lepers got, and still often get, the opposite and so do outcast people of all stripes. In many, many cases:

a. they have experienced social rejection Society has placed a stigma on them. They are not seen as real people or as equally human in a complete sense. Can you imagine how many times a person with a mental or physical handicap has been made fun of and teased? Simply going to school may be a nightmare many times. People avoid you or deliberately walk past and ignore you. Or they talk to the "normal" person who's with you instead of to you, as though you can't think or talk for yourself. Imagine what years of that would do to you!

b. they have often been denied human contact People feel awkward in talking to you and so they avoid it. They avoid touching you if they can. They don't invite you to dinner or to a movie and they don't want to be your friends. If you're fortunate, you may find a few people who really understand and care, but they are likely to be people in your same situation only. But some never find anybody at all.

c. they have often been denied normal affection Nobody hugs you. Nobody kisses you. Nobody tells you how much they care for you. Nobody would even think of going out with you or marrying you. Nobody prays for you and nobody holds you close and says, "I'm here". Outcast people are often unloved, many times even by their own parents. Now think about:

3. how they may feel because of that experience

a. they may feel ashamed or worthless If they come to believe any of the stigma that society has put on them, they may hate themselves and the way they are. They may be ashamed of themselves, the way they look, the way they talk. They may try to hide or isolate themselves. They may feel utterly worthless, less than other people, of no value. Or:

b. they may feel angry at their plight or at people They may get mad and ask, "Why am I like this?"; they may be mad at God. They may be angry at the way they're treated and the people who hurt them and the barriers that stand in their way to a normal life. Certainly:

c. they may feel intensely lonely They may just be longing for human friendship and compassion and kindness and feeling like nobody will ever love them! And:

d. they may feel utterly hopeless, like nothing will ever change. They will always be different from everybody else; they will always be treated badly; they will never amount to anything or do anything. There is no hope and so they may be depressed or resort to escape tactics like alcohol or drugs to drown the pain or even become suicidal. Outcast people are bruised reeds, almost broken. They are smoldering wicks almost snuffed out. The 10 lepers stood at a distance. They wouldn't approach Him. They begged Him to have pity on them, to have mercy on them, to understand their plight and their pain and to help however He could. Most outcast people are not so vocal about it, but they are still quietly standing at a distance pleading in their hearts with us to have pity on them. How will you react:

II. Our Reaction Toward Those Who Are Outcast Well, let's consider Jesus' reaction to these outcast lepers. And at the same time let's turn and compare a similar incident with another leper earlier in His ministry in 5:12-14. In both of these instances, you can see Jesus interacting with lepers. First, consider his attitude and what ought to be:

1. your attitude toward them It would be easy to just adopt the attitude of everybody else around you, but as a Christian:

a. you need an attitude of mercy and compassion The 10 begged for mercy, for somebody to notice their pain and care. Mk. 1:41 says about that leper that knelt at His feet that, He was moved with compassion. It's that bow-wow word again. His guts were wrenched. His heart was moved. He not only pitied the outcast, but he cared that he was hurting. What does your heart say when you see a handicapped person, when you find out someone has AIDS, when you hear that someone has been in jail or is an unwed mother? One time our Nursery School Director and her family were hit broadside by a lady who was driving drunk and fled the scene. The lady was picked up later and had to be taken to the hospital, had no insurance and the whole bit. My first thought toward that lady wasn't very good. My wife's first thought was, "Oh, that poor lady must really have a messed-up life; she really needs help". The flesh thinks of self, the flesh withdraws, the flesh puts itself a notch above the other. The Spirit sees with eyes of mercy and has compassion on those who hurt. At the bottom line there is a choice:

b. you need an attitude of willingness to "make them clean" The leper hit it right on the head. He said, If you are willing, you can make me clean. Jesus said, I am willing! Of course, you can't heal lepers' physical problems like Jesus could. You can't cure a person's AIDS or take away their deformity or heal their brain. You can't erase their past. But you can make them "clean" to you. Instead of choosing to see them as an outcast and withdrawing yourself, you can willingly choose to treat them as a clean, touchable, lovable person and jump into their lives. You can give them the acceptance and the contact and relationship and the affection and the love they so desperately need. How can you do that?

2. your actions toward them Well:

a. you can speak to them instead of passing by Jesus stopped. He spoke to the man. He spoke to the 10. That was already 100% more than anybody else did. Deny that urge to withdraw and avoid. Make a point to greet them, to sit beside them, to talk to them, to treat them as you would any other person. And when it's appropriate:

b. you can initiate normal physical contact - Lk. 5:13 Jesus did something for this leper no one had ever willingly done. He reached out his hand and touched the man! Just a touch, a holding of the hand, a hug, simply showing them that you don't feel like they're "contaminated" or "ugly" or "awful" often means so much. It can be the most healing thing in the world. And don't underestimate the power of words, of saying "I care; you matter to me". Then:

c. you can participate in their spiritual "healing" What they need most of all is Jesus and a genuine relationship with him. Where else will they find full acceptance and love and a father who loves them unconditionally and declares them to be full children of his and qualifies them for a worthy vocation? Where else will they find the power to live the life they're stuck with? You can model Jesus before them. You can love them into knowing Him. They need a spiritual family where they will be accepted and loved. You can introduce them to the church. And believe me, this kind of healing which you can bring will do them far more good in the long run than healing their bodies or changing their pasts. And:

d. you can help them to be accepted as "clean" by others Jesus told the lepers to go and show themselves to the priests so that they would be declared publicly clean and could put away the marks of uncleanness. He wanted them to be accepted by others. You could go a long way in that department. By your example and your encouragement, you could help others to love and care for that outcast person the way you have learned to. You could be their advocate and just maybe, change their world.

Now, quickly let me say that, in case you find yourself in this category this morning, for whatever reason, there is here:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who Are Outcast First, know that:

1. Jesus understands what it is to be outcast Listen to Is. 53:2-3, He grew up before him like a tender shoot, and like a root out of dry ground. He had no beauty or majesty to attract us to him, nothing in his appearance that we should desire him. He was despised and rejected by men, a man of sorrows, and familiar with suffering. Like one from whom men hide their faces he was despised, and we esteemed him not... Jesus was an outcast. His own did not receive Him. He was hated and mocked and teased. He was hurt and at last crucified. He understands rejection. He knows what you feel in your heart and, my friend:

2. Jesus will never turn you away Jesus said in Jn. 6:37, Whoever comes to me I will never drive away. The KJV says, never cast out. Everybody in the world may turn you away and cast you out and reject you, but He never will. He wants you; He loves you; He made you just for the pleasure of knowing you for all eternity. It is no false hope. If you come to Him, He will not drive you away. And then know this:

3. you who were a "no people" will be one of "His people" - 1 Pet. 2:10 says, Once you were not a people, but now you are the people of God; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy. You were not part of anybody or anything. You had nobody to belong to. To many you were a nobody, not even a person. But if you come to Jesus, you are one of the people of God, the people He has chosen out of all the world for Himself. You become His child and His heir. You become SOMEbody in Him.

Well folks, there are way more than 10 outcasts standing out there at a distance silently pleading for you to notice them, to take pity on them, to consider them people and minister to them. The outcasts cry out to us to have mercy and most of the time we just sit in church and sing louder so we can't hear them. God forgive us and make us willing to do whatever we can to bring-in those who are out-cast. What will you do?

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke The Young - 18:15-17

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

We seldom stop to think about it, but a large percentage of the wounded, hurting people in the world are children. And because they grow up to become adults, it is safe to say that a great many of the wounded, hurting adults in the world were wounded as children. The Bible has a lot to say about children but there is no incident more touching than the familiar story of Jesus and the children, Luke 18:15-17. At this place, parents were bringing their babies and infants, small children, to Jesus so He could touch them, so he could hold them and pray for them, Matthew adds that His disciples rebuked them and tried to chase them away. Why? Because they were mean nasty men who hated kids? No, probably because they were zealous disciples who wanted to protect their Master from being overwhelmed and because frankly, coming from their culture and perspective, they didn't think it nearly as important to get the children blessed as to speak to the multitudes. But their zealous "stay away" could have done some real damage if Jesus had not overheard it and corrected them. The whole incident, while relatively minor in one sense, became to Jesus a platform on which to stand for the children of the world. And I'd like to make it ours as well. Let's begin by:

I. Understanding The Plight Of Those Who Are Young You see, every child coming into the world needs:

1. what they need Two primary things beyond food and shelter. They need:

a. an environment where they are loved and feel worth Human beings are born with the need for love. In the animal kingdom, some creatures hatch and are on their own from birth or shortly after. God could have done the same for human beings with a few minor changes. But God chose to have babies born into the family unit of a mother and father, so that from moment one they would be in a relationship where they would feel and experience love and as they grow up, where they would have a sense of value and worth because they were loved and it would prepare them to know the infinite love of God for them one day. A baby who grows up without love grows up very often to be a human being with serious emotional and behavioral problems! Love in those early years is so much needed. What's more, they need:

b. an environment where they feel safe and protected Security. We need it so and especially when we are young. The world we are born into is a cruel and fearful world fraught with danger. In the animal kingdom the young are always the first to die. Were it not for God's provision of the family to provide safety and security, it would be so with us too. A child who grows up without that safety and security lives in fear or else becomes tough and develops the drive to step on everybody else to protect themselves. Security is so important to every little child. They need it, just as they need love. But:

2. what they have all too often experienced is exactly the opposite. Human society, including our own, has tragically denied children the very things they should have. In the world we live in, millions of children grow up in poverty without proper nourishment, children are forced to work in sweatshops and factories, sold into human trafficking or abandoned and forced to live on the streets if they are unwanted. And though we are more civilized here in the good old USA, the way we treat young people is often only a shade better or only better hidden. For instance, we don't shoot unwanted children on the street; we just kill them with a needle or a loop knife or a suction tube in the womb before they're born. Nice, neat, tidy and you can't hear them cry, but just as barbaric. Historically, children:

a. they have been neglected In later Greek and Roman society unwanted children were simply abandoned at birth to die of exposure. But how many children in Philadelphia and even in Glenside have parents who don't care about them because they're on drugs or just didn't want them in the first place. They're left to roam and to wander and to survive the best they can with only minimal supervision. The degrees vary, but I see it right in this neighborhood, kids whose parents could really care less about them as long as they're out of sight and mind. Instead of the love and protection they need, they're being thrown into a hostile world on their own. On top of that, many children:

b. they have been abused Children are forced into prostitution overseas, but it happens here too. An unimaginable number of children are being abused either physically or even sexually right in their own homes. You don't know it right away, but they turn up later in adulthood talking to pastors like me or counselors and sharing the horror. The parents and relatives that God has given to nurture and care for them are beating them (and I don't mean legitimate spanking in a controlled and reasonable fashion; I mean beating), burning them, locking them up for days, depriving them of food or even raping them and using their own bodies for their own pleasure. It happens right here. I just heard about a man I once knew who raped his teenage daughter and had a child by her. Can you imagine what these things do to the innocent mind of a small child? And then, often children:

c. they have been exploited, used and taken advantage of. Though there are child labor laws here, it is not so in the rest of the world. Yet even here many times children are seen as property, objects to be fought over and used in custody battles and divorce settlements, used as a means to hurt the spouse or ex-spouse. Parents often use their children to live out their own dreams and push them to achieve in various areas of life by controlling and manipulating them. Our ways are more subtle, but we still neglect, abuse, and exploit children. Why? It is because:

d. they have no power to protect themselves They are small; they can't fight back. They can't stop what's going on. They have no defense and so perpetration of the mistreatment is easy. It is also easy because:

e. they have no means to be heard Abortion works because you can't hear the scream of the dying baby inside the mother. But it's there! Children have no voice, mostly no one to tell and not enough experience to know even when they're being mistreated many times. It becomes normal to them. They can be mistreated in the privacy of the home or the backyard and there is no one to save them. Countless thousands of children are mistreated every day in varying degrees all around us and here's:

3. what happens to them because of their experience

a. they are wounded for life It shapes and colors and sometimes twists their personalities for life. It formulates the way they think and the way they behave later on. It may turn some into criminals, others into addicts, still others to a life of promiscuity, but the majority of them it turns into adult moms and dads who live a miserable life and in turn repeat the cycle for another generation. Unless they meet Jesus and are able to find healing through His power and love, often every area of their life will be affected and they may not even know it, the way they relate to people, their marriage, their self-image, everything. And what's worse is that often:

b. they are affected for eternity Their background and problem and the people in their life keep them from hearing of Jesus and His love and His healing and finding the love and security they were meant to find in Him. Sadly, many of them live a miserable life and then die and spend eternity without Him.

Mistreated children are wounded people, bruised reeds, smoldering wicks. Now, of course, the situation Jesus was in that particular day was nothing quite that serious. They were not seriously mistreating those children, not affecting their entire lives and crushing their spirits. Neither are most of you, probably. But Jesus was very upset with His disciples for their simple and perhaps well-meant reaction. The question, of course, is what is:

II. Our Reaction Toward Those Who Are Young First, let's consider:

1. the disciples' reaction which we must avoid (15) When they chased those children and their parents away and told them to stop bothering Him, they made two major mistakes:

a. they failed to see children as important How important are your children or the children around you? I see parents whose children are simply crying out for their attention, for them just to spend time with them or play ball or a game with them. But the parents ignore them constantly and just talk or go off to more work or go off to play and enjoy themselves. I see parents who choose their jobs, who choose their hobbies, who choose everything in life over their children. I know of kids who are crushed because their parents won't bother to go to their school concert or watch them play ball. The simple fact is that they honestly don't see them as being important enough to rate time. The disciples didn't! Do you? And what's worse:

b. they failed to see children as people, people with feelings and needs as real and as great as their own. That's the real root of it, isn't it? To many, children are objects, not people, just like to others, women are objects, not people and black people are not people, just objects... It's funny how the older we get, the more prone we are to forget that children are people. It amazes me that as people grow old, some of them start seeing children as nothing but a nuisance and a pain to be chased away and forget that they themselves once were children. But children, no matter how little, ARE people and they feel just like you do and they hurt just like you do, and they have hearts and souls just like you do. Yet so many times we break their little hearts like the disciples did with a "go away" or an "I don't care" or a "that's your problem" and we put our own needs and feelings and desires above theirs. But just look at:

2. Jesus' reaction which we must imitate (16) He rebuked the disciples and taught them an important lesson. What can you do? Well, for your own children, you can provide the kind of loving and protective home they deserve. You can give them time and attention and put yourself in their place and think about them as people. But what about the other children around you, the children of your neighborhood, your city, your world? What about when you see them being mistreated, what can you do? Well, first of all:

a. you can care when children are mistreated If you read Mk. 10:14 it says, When Jesus saw this, he was indignant. Literally the word means to become very agitated, either through sadness and grief or irritation. To see children treated wrongly, to see people hold a wrong view of and attitude toward children really bothered Him. In fact, turn to Mt. 18:5-6. Jesus identifies Himself with little children. He loves little children so much that He indicates that His personal presence and attention is given somehow specially to little children and when one of them is mistreated or led astray, the penalty is grave! Hear that, you child abusers of the world! You'd better go look for a millstone and jump in the ocean because what's coming to you is far worse and you can't escape it. Verse 10 says angels are assigned to them directly by God. Brother, Jesus CARES when children are mistreated! In His infinite wisdom, for some reason, He does not always choose to stop it, but you can rest assured He knows it and feels it and never forgets it. He cares and so can you. When you see kids around you in your neighborhood, your children's friends, in your Sunday School class or Pioneer Club, or wherever, you can see them as real people with feelings and hurts, rather than just as a problem to be dealt with. If they are neglected or mistreated, you can't usually stop it, but you can allow your heart to be broken for them and to care and to do whatever you can to gently straighten the bruised reed or rekindle the smoldering wick. What can you do? Well, for instance:

b. you can work to remove hindrances and help them come to Jesus There are things, like the disciples, which are hindering them, preventing them from coming to Jesus who is the only one who can really meet their needs and soothe their wounded hearts. Sometimes the hindrance is as simple as needing a ride to Sunday School or Pioneers and a Bible of their own. Sometimes it may mean talking to their parents about letting them do something with you. It may mean letting them come over and asking God for opportunities to share with them. It may mean becoming their friend, answering their questions, letting them have a piece of your attention and life. Look what Jesus did:

c. you can treat them lovingly - Mk. 10:16 says He took the children in his arms. He loved on them and held them. So many kids never get that. Just to give them a hug or let them sit on your lap if they're little. They love it and they need it. A child who's been neglected or mistreated is simply starved for love. Spend time with them; play with them; be interested in their things; let them sit on your porch and tell you about their day. It may be only a little but you can help to heal their hurts. And you can also do what Jesus did:

d. you can pray for them He took them up in His arms and prayed for them. He begged the Father to be with them and meet their needs and to bring them to Him someday. Kids are people too. They need prayed for. They need you to pray for them.

Mistreated children are wounded, hurting people and they don't even know it. Many times, it's years later that they truly understand just what was really done to them or what was denied to them in their childhood. Some of you here may be people who were wounded young, but now you're grown up and you realize what happened to you and it makes you angry and you hurt and you don't know what to do about it. Let me just share three brief thoughts of hope for you:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Wounded Young

1. Jesus is angered by your mistreatment Before you get angry at God and think, "How could a good God let me go through that? Where was He?" You can see it right here. He hated every minute of it. He was angered by it. Those who hurt you, unless they come to Christ for forgiveness, have a tremendous eternal penalty to pay. It was not meaningless and it was not forgotten! But:

2. Jesus wants mistreated little children to come to Him and belong to Him You may be big now, but Jesus is still looking for kids to adopt. He's looking specially for wounded, hurting big kids like you to come to Him, so He can hold you in His arms and tell you He loves you and soothe all your hurt. You see:

3. if you will come to Him child-like, you can belong to His Kingdom (17) If you will just trust Him like those little kids did and let Him have you, let Him pick you up in His arms, if you will in child-like faith say, "Jesus, I give myself to you", you will be made part of His Kingdom, part of His forever family, His own son or daughter. And He will heal your broken, wounded heart. It may take a long time. It may take the help of a counselor or Pastor. It may take some tears, but Jesus will hold you and sooner or later make the hurt go away.

Let me share with you a story that gives hope to those of you who may have been mistreated as children and also a challenge to the rest of us to care about you. In 1958 at age 21 Marilyn Van Derbur was crowned Miss America. She made straight A's, graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Colorado, sang, acted, was a competitive swimmer and golfer. She broke and trained horses and raced for ski teams. She was a model of achievement and her life was filled with extraordinary success. Three years ago at age 54 she finally found the courage to announce publicly that she was a survivor of childhood incest. From the time she was 5 until she left for college at 18 her father repeatedly appeared in her bedroom at night and abused her. In order to survive, her mind separated the two worlds in which she lived. She worked hard to repress the awful memories of the night and succeeded so well that as an adult she could no longer remember them because her life was so full of achievements. In her 20's it was her youth minister at church who first began to put two and two together from things she said and did and carefully, in the course of a conversation that changed her life, his words brought up the repressed past and it flooded back into her conscious mind. But dealing with it constructively came later. She married and had a child at age 34, but by age 47 she became so dysfunctional through anxiety and pain that she sought real help and began the healing process. Today at age 57 she is a well-known speaker and travels the country encouraging victims of childhood abuse to seek help. Her advice just last Monday to a group here in Philadelphia was: "It is necessary to speak out. Turn to a trusted friend or family member. Find the courage to attend a group meeting. We stay shamed by acting ashamed. We have nothing to be ashamed of." My friend, if you've been hurt, there is help and there is healing for you. Tell someone. Tell Jesus. And may God grant that every one of us may have the love of that pastor to notice and care about those who hurt. Ours may be the loving words that change a life.

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke The Wealthy - 18:18-27

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

This is going to be, without a doubt, the most unusual message in this series because the type of wounded, hurting person Jesus ministered to in our text today is just the opposite of the type of person we usually think of as needing our care and attention. He was not sick or old. He was young and healthy. He was not poor or outcast. He had great wealth and was the ruler of the local synagogue, a man well-respected in his community. He was not living in all kinds of sinful behavior and rebellious toward God. He was carefully obedient to God's commands and had been all his life. He was not resistant to Jesus but respected Him and fell on his knees before Him. He was a man with whom nothing seemed to be wrong and yet he was of all men most to be pitied because he went away sad and sorrowing knowing that there was one thing between him and eternal life: his wealth. Let's read the story, Luke 18:18-27. Now our first task is to try:

I. Understanding The Plight Of Those Who Are Wealthy and even when I say that, it seems a bit strange. Plight? You may be thinking, "Boy, that's a plight I'd love to be in!" but look what Jesus said in (24-25). It is hard, very hard, for a rich person to be saved! Jesus never said that about any other class of people. When we think of people that it's hard to see come to Jesus, we think of drug dealers and thugs, really wicked people. He didn't say it's hard for the wicked to be saved, but the rich! In fact, He used what must have been a common proverb of the time. It would be easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle. Various attempts have been made to find another meaning of the saying to make it less impossible sounding, but it means simply what it says: humanly speaking, apart from the grace of God, it is a virtual impossibility for a wealthy person to be saved. Man, I'm glad I was born poor! Now why is it so hard?

1. they may develop a self-image based on riches While not all rich people are snobs, the term "rich snob" had its origin somewhere! It is very possible for people that have a lot to build a materially based view of themselves, to feel that they are somebody, that they are better than others who don't have what they do, that they are somehow worthy or deserving of what they have and of a superior level of treatment. You've all met people like that. That kind of person has real trouble seeing themselves as a poor, lost person in need of a Savior! Or:

2. they may develop a self-sufficiency based on riches - Mk. 10:24 is the parallel account to Luke. You may as well turn there and leave a finger because we'll be back. Anyway, Mark tells us that Jesus actually repeated this statement twice for emphasis and if you look in the NIV margin, you'll see the phrase for those who trust in riches, which is in a lot of manuscripts. People place their trust, their faith, in riches because money is power. Money solves almost anything. It buys security, at least in a basic sense. The rich farmer said in his heart, "You have plenty of good things laid up for many years. Take life easy; eat, drink and be merry." That's not unrealistic. It's hard for people who have a lot to have a sense of need, to look to anything or anyone else to meet their needs. They tend to become self-sufficient and that makes it hard to grasp needing Christ as a Savior. Or:

3. they may develop a self-righteousness based on riches (19-21) This man had not become proud or particularly self-sufficient. He went another route. He used his situation and possessions for good, to do good deeds, to help others. He had plenty of time and freedom to keep the Law with all its rituals and sacrifices. He had advanced so well in Judaism that he had become the ruler of the local synagogue, the man in charge. But the very question he came to Jesus with betrayed the way he thought, What shall I do to inherit eternal life? He was thinking in terms of keeping commandments and in reply, Jesus listed five of the 10 commandments. His reply was, "I've done all these, since I was a kid!" That's how he saw himself, righteous, but a righteousness that is self-made! A person who has much may devote themselves to good and worthy causes, may give thousands, may become very religious and be a very good person outwardly, so it's hard to see oneself as a poor wretched sinner needing forgiveness! In addition:

4. they may develop an idolatrous attachment to riches (22-23) Jesus saved the last of the commandments and changed its form. Instead of saying, You shall not covet..., to which the man would have replied, "I don't", He said, "I want you to go sell everything you have and give it away." All this man had was God's and Jesus simply asked him to give it away. What He was doing really, was making a test of the first commandment to love the Lord with all your heart.... But the young man couldn't do it. His heart had become attached to his riches. The real question was not, "What must I do?" but "What do I love?" and at the bottom line, he loved his riches more than God. They had become His idol. God does not command that every rich person give away his riches. But this is a test question for all of us, especially those who have lots. If God told you to sell all you have and give it away would you do it? Ask it seriously, your home, your car, everything. Everything I have belongs to God and He can do what He wants with it. The Bible says that greed or the love of money is idolatry; it takes the place of God, sometimes even in people who claim to love Him. And what makes it so difficult is that:

5. they are often blindly unaware of their condition Until this eye-opening moment, he had been blind to it all along. He had no idea of the role which wealth had played in his life and the extent to which he had become attached to it, until somebody threatened to take it all away. Jesus spoke these words to the church at Laodicea, You say, 'I am rich; I have acquired wealth and do not need a thing.' But you do not realize that you are wretched, pitiful, poor, blind and naked. I counsel you to buy from me gold refined in the fire, so you can become rich; and white clothes to wear, so you can cover your shameful nakedness; and salve to put on your eyes, so you can see. That is often the condition of rich unbelievers, but it can also be the condition of rich believers as well. A person can be truly saved and trusting in Jesus Christ and still be blind to the role wealth plays in their life.

Up to this point we've all been thinking about somebody else we know who has more than we do! I don't know of any millionaires among us and I doubt that any of us see ourselves as wealthy. Yet we are and I'm not just talking about our double income professional families. Compared to the vast majority of the world's 7 billion people, every one of us is rich. For example, one fifth of the world's people live in India where they average $1,920 per person per year. In Pakistan $1270 and in Afghanistan only $500 - per YEAR! Most of us have our own house and 1 or 2 cars; we live in unspeakable luxury by comparison. When nationals visit here, they are amazed. The world thinks Americans are rich and they're not all wrong! The very things that may have been true of this young ruler may easily be true of us and we ourselves may be too blind to see it! That's why it's much harder for Americans to be saved and why it's sometimes harder for American Christians to make Jesus Lord of everything in their lives. The more prosperous we get, the easier it is for us to take our eyes off of Jesus Christ and the things that really matter in life. But the real point of this message is:

II. Our Reaction Toward Those Who Are Wealthy Wealthy people, Americans or not, are hurting people who don't know it. It is ever so difficult for them to be saved, and if they are, to turn everything over to Christ's Lordship. How should we react to this kind of hurting people? Well, there are some:

1. common reactions toward them

a. we may have an unrealistic picture of them (26) Why did the disciples say this? Mk. 10:26. They were amazed. They always thought rich was the way to go! Rich people are happy; rich people have no problems; rich people don't have to struggle with sin and temptation, they can have whatever they want. If rich people can hardly be saved, what hope is there for the rest of us? What an unrealistic picture, but we often share it. Wealth is great, wealthy is how we all want to be, it would solve our problems. But that picture is simply not true. Jesus' picture of the camel and the eye of the needle is the real picture. Then:

b. we may seek them because of what they have - James 2:1-4 warns us about that. We may cater to them, may court their friendship, but for the wrong reasons. We may seek them out and treat them specially because we want something from them or because we see that they could do so much for God if they got saved or for the church if they came here. That's a wrong motive and it'll backfire sooner or later. Or:

b. we may be jealous of them because of what they have You know how a child gets angry when their brother or sister has a candy bar and they don't? Some of us never outgrow that. We see people who have a lot more than we have and we covet their things; we're jealous of them. We're mad because we have to work so hard for what little we have and they don't for their much. It seems unfair and we may be angry. Or:

c. we may judge them because of what they have We may just categorically assume things about them that are not true. We may adopt the old "your money perish with you" approach and have a condemning attitude and look down our nose at them for being rich and for being blind. It is hard enough for them to be saved and then we turn our backs on them and say, "They'll never be saved, what's the use!" None of these is a proper reaction but just look at:

2. Jesus' reaction toward the rich young ruler Start by turning back to Mark:

a. He loved him - Mk. 10:21 When Jesus looked on that young man, He didn't feel envy, he didn't feel judgmental. He said, "Here's a man who's lost and doesn't know it; I love him and I'll die for him. I want him to have eternal life" Friend, we need to love wealthy people and to care about their salvation. Years ago, this church sent out a missionary to reach upper class wealthy people in the New England area. It was tough and expensive work and it eventually folded. But it was really tough to get support for, because nobody cares about the spiritual needs of the rich! At one point we had a set of missionaries who were striving to reach upper class urban professionals in Asuncion, Paraguay. God gave them a love for these up and outsiders of that society, whom no one was reaching. Everybody wants to reach the jungle Indian tribes who've never heard, so that the poor heathen might hear the Gospel, but nobody cares much about Society Hill! Jesus did and we must too! The next time you read about that millionaire becoming depressed and committing suicide, that movie star ending an unhappy marriage, that professional baseball player using drugs or even that politician who attends his church every Sunday while voting for anti-Christian causes, don't despise or condemn that person; love them! Pray for them! And let that love extend closer to home to your well-to-do neighbor, to your boss or the owner of your company, to your doctor or lawyer or the guy who blows the horn of his Mercedes at you at the red light. Somebody needs to care about them. They are people too and just like the rest of us, they need Jesus as their Savior and as their life! Secondly:

b. He attempted to help him see his condition (19) Jesus knew what this guy was all about before he even walked up. He called Jesus, "Good Master" and Jesus' immediate response was, "Remember friend, there is no one good but God!" He wasn't saying, "I'm not God"; He was saying, "The reason you can call me good is that I AM God and there is no one good but God; no mere mortal human being like yourself is good!" He came already thinking that he was good like Jesus was good. Jesus tried to open his eyes so that he could see himself as he really was. 1 Tim. 6:17 says, Command those who are rich in this present world not to be arrogant nor to put their hope in wealth, which is so uncertain, but to put their hope in God, who richly provides us with everything for our enjoyment. That's what Jesus was doing, warning him not to trust in himself or in his riches but to trust in God. When we know a wealthy person, like any other, we need to ask God to take the blinders off and for opportunities to share. This would apply not only to unbelievers but for believers who have their eyes taken off of Jesus by their material things. And lastly:

c. He encouraged him to become a true disciple (22) He said, "Come follow me. Put away your love for your wealth and love Me; make Me your Lord; become a disciple of Mine." We can encourage and invite people who place too much value on money to become true disciples. We can invite them, encourage them, to a vital living relationship with Jesus Christ as their Savior, their Lord, and their life.

With a few rare exceptions, wealthy people are usually wounded, hurting people. They are bruised reeds which, if nobody carefully straightens, will break and die. They are smoldering wicks which, if nobody carefully fans to life, will go completely out in darkness. Ask God to give you a heart of love for the up and out as well as the down and out. And before I close, in case any of this applies to you personally, let me say that in this text, there is not only a cry of sadness, but:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who Are Wealthy (27) What is impossible with men is possible with God! God can save anybody, rich or poor, wicked or self-righteous so:

1. it is possible for you to be both saved and Spirit-controlled If you are outside of Christ today, it is possible for Him to open your eyes. He loves you; He wants you. Come to Him. And if you've already come to Him but you're one of those believers whose spiritual life has been choked by the pursuit of material things, God is not done with you. He is willing to take over your life and take control of it by His Spirit and live out a wonderful exciting Christian life through you, money or no money. The door of God's possibility is open to you. You have to walk through it or go away sad like this man did. But know this:

2. God wants the unconditional surrender of all that you have Non-Christian friend, God may not choose to take away all your money, but you can't serve two masters; no man can. You can't serve God and money. He has to know which one you love. He wants you to lay down everything that you trust in, to stop trusting in yourself, in people, in your position, in your good deeds, in your money and the security it provides, and trust only in Him to save you. There is room for nothing and no one else but Him as the object of your trust. That is the only way to be saved. And Christian, God wants you to lay everything at His feet. Every nickel you have, every pencil in your pocket is His, and He wants the absolute unconditional surrender of its use to Him. We're all wealthy to some degree and you need to settle that question for yourself. If God asked you to give away everything you have, would you do it? I hope the answer is yes, but listen:

3. God can use what you have for eternal good - Listen to 1 Tim. 6:18-19, Command them to do good, to be rich in good deeds, and to be generous and willing to share. In this way they will lay up treasure for themselves as a firm foundation for the coming age, so that they may take hold of the life that is truly life. If you're willing to surrender its use to God and be generous and share and let go of what you have for the Kingdom, God can use it to lay up eternal treasure. God can use it to bring others to Himself and to meet the needs of His children and build them up. The rewards will be eternal. Plus, when it's surrendered to Him, instead of living life as the world has defined it and striving to get and to have and to accumulate, you can live the life that is truly life, the life of the Spirit of God molding you and shaping you into the image of Jesus and using you for His Kingdom and glory.

A little church was having a homecoming service, to which ex-members who had moved away were invited. One of the former members had become a millionaire. When asked to speak, he recounted his childhood experience, earning his first silver dollar, which he had decided to keep always. But when a visiting missionary preached about the need for funds in his mission work and the offering was passed, a great inward struggle occurred. "As a result," the rich man said, "I put my treasured silver dollar in the basket. I am convinced that God has blessed me richly because when I was a boy, I gave God all I had." The congregation was spellbound by the multi-millionaire's tremendous statement, until an elderly little man seated in the front row rose and said, "Brother, I dare you to do it again!" Brother or sister, I dare YOU to do it again, to make Him Lord of everything you have, not yesterday but right now. And I dare you to let Him mold your heart to love and minister to wealthy people.

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Handicapped - 18:35-43

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

To this point in our series, we've mentioned only for a few moments in one study, one of the major groups of hurting people that Jesus said he had come to minister to. In the synagogue at Nazareth in Lk. 4:18, Jesus said, "The Spirit of the Lord is on me, because he has anointed me to preach good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim freedom for the prisoners and recovery of sight for the blind, ..." There were many occasions in his ministry where Jesus made blind people see. They came with the crowds, along with the lame and the deaf and Jesus made the lame to walk, the deaf to hear, and yes, the blind to see. As Jesus passed through Jericho on his way up to Jerusalem for the last time, there was a particular blind man by the name of Bartimaeus who was sitting with a blind friend (Matthew tells us) by the side of the road near the town and heard the commotion of the crowd passing by. Let's pick up the story in Luke 18:18-35. Today we would call Bartimaeus a handicapped person. He was not a sick person like the woman who was healed of the issue of blood; nor was he a totally helpless person like the paralyzed man. He could think. He could walk. He could work. He could do just about anything you can do except for one thing: he couldn't see. And because of that he couldn't do many other things without assistance. The dictionary defines a handicap as: An anatomical, physiological, or mental deficiency that prevents or restricts normal achievement. Lame people can do everything you can do except walk, which means they need assistance getting around. Deaf people can do everything you can do except hear, and because of that, speak. So they need assistance in communicating. Jesus cared a great deal about handicapped people like these. Indeed, He said He was sent to them in a special way. And if we are to be like Him, so are we. Let's begin by trying to:

I. Understanding The Plight Of Those Who Are Handicapped (35-39) Ours is really the first generation in history to pay real attention to the needs of handicapped people. We provide them with special parking spaces, special access ramps and elevators in buildings, special tools that help them function, and special services. It has never been so in history, nor is it so most other places in the world today. That is what made Jesus' ministry so unique. He paid attention to the people nobody else would. But even with all our improvements:

1. what they have often experienced is not good. Consider our friend Bartimaeus. Blind, deaf, and handicapped people today often experience things very similar to what he did. First:

a. they are denied many things normal to others Imagine his life as he sat by the roadside that day. That's where he sat every day. He did not expect to get a job. He did not expect to fall in love and get married and have a family. He did not expect to have his own home and support himself. All he ever really expected to do was sit by the road and ask people passing by for alms. In many countries of the world today, that's still all handicapped people have to look forward to. Here in the US, they may be able to do some or even all of those things. But in reality, they are still denied many things that are normal to others. In many cases, handicapped people are doomed to single-ness. In fact, they may be doomed to have very few friends because of their appearance or their inability to be normal in certain areas. Finding a job is still a large hurdle, especially one that is more than a low-level or token position. I know that we have had at least one US President in a wheelchair but you still don't see many men in a wheelchair with a job like Elmer Shick, the Project Manager for Reeves who built our church building. Blind people still never get to drive a car and run to the store whenever they feel like it or read their mail like you and I and hearing-impaired people can't pick up a phone and call home whenever they'd like. A thousand and one things that are normal to you in your everyday life are denied to them by their handicap and so:

b. they must often depend on others to assist them Bartimaeus had to ask the crowd what was going on around him. He was always dependent on the eyes of others to see for him. Just close your eyes for a few minutes while I talk and imagine what being like that would do to your life. The level of assistance varies according to the degree and nature of the handicap, but it's always needed somewhere and it's not always there when you need it or if it is, it may cost you a great deal to get it! And it's not only assistance:

c. they must often depend on others to provide for them Bartimaeus lived as a beggar. He lived by asking other people for help. Just look in the third world and you'll still find blind beggars. Many handicapped people are forced to be dependent on their family, their parents, their spouse, or even the government to provide the means that they might live. It's not what they want or prefer, but they have no choice in their circumstances. And to top it all off:

d. they have often been mistreated by others When he wanted to speak to Jesus, the crowd told Bartimaeus to sit down and shut up! This was probably not the first time. I'm sure he'd heard that from many an irritated passer-by. I'm sure he knew what it was like to get pushed aside or knocked down in the crowd as he felt his way along and what it was like to get teased by the children of Jericho who might take his cloak or his cane and tease him to come get it. Especially if they were born with their disability, unless they were carefully sheltered, handicapped people have often experienced at various times in their lives everything from being teased, stared at, ignored, or deliberately avoided, to being rejected, turned down, harshly treated or even actually hurt in some instances. And so, the frustration of their disability is compounded by the way they are treated.

While there are happy, well-adjusted, handicapped people, many of them are still wounded, hurting people who may have a whole mess of differing feelings inside them:

2. how they may feel because of what they've experienced

a. they may feel afraid or vulnerable because they can't help or protect themselves. They may feel afraid, afraid of crossing the street, afraid of leaving what is familiar to them, afraid that they'll have an accident and not be able to get help, afraid somebody might break in their home and rob them or attack them and they'd be helpless or simply that they'll fall out of their wheelchair and be hurt. Fear may be a very big part of their lives or:

b. they may feel guilty or useless because of their disability. Some people just hate to be a burden and are driven by a desire to achieve and contribute. So, they may feel guilty for what isn't even their fault, for being a burden on the people they love, for being unable to earn money, for being unable to do things they can't possibly do, but wish they could. Or:

c. they may feel self-pity or anger Some adopt a "Why me?" or a "Poor me!" attitude and either be angry about their handicap and all the suffering they endure or feel sorry for themselves and look for pity all the time. Some of them may not be very pleasant to be around or to deal with; they may be demanding or critical or unwilling to try to do what they really could learn to do. And if it's bad enough:

d. they may feel hopeless or desperate Jesus healed another blind man once in the Temple and got into a big controversy over it. In Jn. 9:32 the blind man himself confesses, Nobody has ever heard of opening the eyes of a man born blind. Sometimes people go blind from an illness or get blinded by accident and there is hope of healing. But until Jesus, nobody ever opened the eyes of a man born blind! There are some handicaps which are temporary or which at least improve, but many of them are forever apart from a miracle which God doesn't often choose to grant. As a result, a handicapped person may see only misery in the life they are forced to live and no hope of getting better and they may become desperate. They may run after miracle cures or they may become depressed and even suicidal.

So, a handicapped person, unless they've already experienced a great deal of healing in their lives, is usually a wounded, hurting person. They're a reed that's already been bruised and, if not treated with compassion and care, will break, like a smoldering wick that will be totally blown out if not fanned gently back into flame. That's how Jesus treated the blind and the deaf and the lame and that should also be:

II. Our Reaction Toward Those Who Are Handicapped Now the crowd there at Jericho which was following along with Jesus displayed some:

1. common reactions toward them (36-39) When we encounter a handicapped person in the course of our life:

a. we may ignore them That's the easiest thing. Everybody rushed up to see Jesus and listen to Him for themselves. Poor Bartimaeus was just left sitting there by the roadside going, "What's happening?" We do that, don't we? And sometimes on purpose. Sometimes if that blind person is coming down the sidewalk, we just stand quietly and let them pass or if we see the person in the wheelchair, we'll politely avoid them somehow. We may feel embarrassed and not know what to say, or be unsure whether to shake their hand or not and so, we often pull back and ignore or worse:

b. we may repress them When Bartimaeus did try to make his presence known and get Jesus' attention by calling out, the people around him told him to shut up and be quiet and quit being a nuisance. Now you or I probably wouldn't be quite that rude, but we could accomplish the same thing by discouraging them. Handicapped people need encouragement. Life is discouraging enough. But so many people stand in the way and say, "You can't do that, you'll never make that, you won't find a way to do that..." I heard a gifted handicapped speaker on a radio program the other day and he called them Dream-Killers! People that are always telling you to accept mediocrity, and give up trying and striving and pushing yourself so hard. And sometimes we're well-meaning when we do it. We don't want to see them get hurt or frustrated, so we just tell them not to try anything above bare minimum or we assume they can't. But you would be amazed what even the most handicapped person can do! That man on the radio had only one good arm, and that with limited movement, and couldn't walk the length of a room, but his dream was to be a Physical Education teacher. He not only became a PE teacher, but a teacher of PE teachers. He taught himself to shoot basketball in his own convoluted method so well that after 3 years he could make 96 out of 100 throws from the foul line. He plays golf and scores in the 80's with one arm. He learned to fly an airplane and got his pilot's license! Some time ago, the Lord gave me a friend who was a quadriplegic. He couldn't move to get himself out of bed in the morning. But once he was ready in his motorized chair, he drove himself to work every day in his own van. He taught computers in a Philadelphia high school for a dozen years since he became disabled. Another handicapped friend of mine was confined to a wheelchair by spina bifida, but became a professional Christian counselor and touched dozens of lives every year. But none of these folks would have made it without encouragement, because of people discouraging them and trying to keep them in their place. Then:

c. we may be ambivalent toward them - Mk. 10:49 tells us that after Jesus noticed the man, the crowd changed their tune and said, "Cheer up! On your feet! He's calling you." One minute they ignored him and told him to shut up and the next minute they're going, "Oh look, Jesus is stopping for you; let me help you up!" Cold one minute and hot the next; that's called ambivalence. Handicapped people get a lot of that. Ignored one day and gushy concern the next day. Or people fall all over you and make all kinds of promises today so they feel good about themselves, but then you don't see them for a month! Handicapped people don't need that kind of false concern. Look at:

2. Jesus' reaction toward the blind man (40-42) And what Jesus did for Bartimaeus, we can do for the handicapped people God places in our lives, whether may be a relative, one of our own parents or children, or a friend or a school-mate or a fellow-church member or simply somebody we meet in a store or an office. First:

a. we can stop and gave time and attention to them Jesus stopped and, out of all the dozens of people crowding around him, he gave personal time and attention to Bartimaeus! And that's step one, get to know the person as you would any other person. Take the time it requires. If it's a casual encounter in the Acme, it won't take much to chat while you're in line. If it's a person you're going to see more often, it will take much more. But you'll often find that they are enjoyable, interesting people and the time you spend can make a real difference. Then:

b. we can find out their actual needs and encourage their desires Jesus didn't just quickly zap his eyes and walk on. He asked him, "What do you want me to do for you?" The answer seems obvious from our perspective, but the man had just addressed Jesus as the Promised Messiah, the Son of David. He might have simply said, "It is enough just to hear your voice and touch you. Now I can die in peace," like old Simeon did at Jesus' birth. He might have said, "Take me with you; I want to be one of your disciples". But Jesus took time to find out the real desire of his heart, which was the desire of faith. He believed Jesus could give him sight. And we need to do the same. We need to communicate with handicapped people and not assume what they want or need but find out. What would really be helpful to them? What would they really like to do or try? How could we encourage them to try and to succeed at things in life, simple or complex? Then, like Jesus:

c. we can have compassion on them - Mt. 20:34 says, Jesus had compassion on them and touched their eyes He cared deeply about Bartimaeus and his friend. Ask God to give you a real love and caring for that handicapped person so that you can feel how life really is for them and help them from the heart, instead of having simply a token appearance of concern. Then like Jesus:

d. we can touch them - Mt. 20:34 says He touched their eyes. He didn't have to. He could have simply said the word or even thought it. But He chose to touch the man. I don't know why, but I do know that the simple act of touch often means a lot to a handicapped person. Often people hold back from normal touching. But just a hug or an arm around, even a simple pat on the back or touch on the arm can help them to feel loved and accepted and finally:

e. we can help them find spiritual healing in Jesus No, we can't heal their blinded eyes and Jesus probably won't either. He probably won't heal their useless legs or make their deaf ears hear right now. But He can and will bring healing to their wounded hearts. They can find that they are somebody in Him, that He has a plan and a purpose for their lives and that their handicap is God's opportunity to use them in a unique and special way. It can radically transform their life from one of anger or self-pity or misery, to one of purpose and meaning. And Jesus will do one more thing for them. He'll give them hope. He'll give them the assurance that the future will not be like this, that one day when they are with Him, there won't be any more handicaps. Their eyes will work and their legs will work and their ears will work, and they'll be on their feet leaping and shouting and praising God like this man was. And that hope can carry them through a whole lifetime of frustration and difficulty as they experience the grace and power of God in their life. And you can be the instrument to point them to Jesus. You can be the one to quietly and lovingly introduce them to the best friend they'll ever have, the one who can meet all their deepest needs. Verse 40 says Jesus commanded the others to bring Bartimaeus to Him. He says the same to us: Bring them to Me! And even believers who become handicapped may sometimes drift away into doubt and despair and may need you in a loving, caring way, to love them back to Him.

How will you react to the handicapped people God puts alongside your Jericho Road of life? Will you let Him touch your heart for them? Will you bring them compassion and caring and encouragement and most of all, will you love them to Him? And finally, let me say that in this story there is a tremendous:

III. A Message Of Hope For Those Who Are Handicapped (42-43)

1. you need to trust in Jesus as the Savior like this man - Mk. 10:50 says, Throwing his cloak aside, he jumped to his feet and came to Jesus. You need to do the same, even if you can't jump to your feet! Rush to Him. Do it now. Trust in Him in simple faith to come into your life, to save you from your sins, and to become the very source of your life.

2. Jesus does have mercy on you He stopped and touched Bartimaeus and He'll do the same for you. You've longed for somebody to experience this thing with you, to feel what you feel, to know the frustration and the agony you know. He will do it. Every moment, every hour, He'll know and He'll care, because His heart already cares about you. He proved it at the cross!

3. your faith will make you whole right now and ultimately heal you The way to a useful and vital life is not simply through the trying and striving of human effort. You may achieve much, but still be empty inside. But when you come to Jesus, He will give meaning and purpose to your confusing life. He'll make you whole in spirit and in mind by His great power and ultimately, one day He'll give you a brand-new body as well, one which is perfect, which is made just like His own glorious body. And lastly:

4. God will use your walk with Him to touch others Others came to praise and trust God because of Bartimaeus. And they will because of you too. God can use you as a tremendous testimony of His power and grace to touch the lives of others, both handicapped and "normal"!

Mary Verghese was a young doctor at Dr. Paul Brand's leprosy hospital in India... One day she went on a picnic outing in a station wagon with other young doctors. The station wagon was driven by a new driver out to demonstrate his bravery. After aggravating moments of driving behind a slow school bus, the young driver jerked the car into the passing lane and floored it. Suddenly he saw another car coming. On his left was a narrow bridge over a culvert. Instinctively he scrambled to stomp on the brake pedal - but hit the gas instead. The station wagon plummeted over the bridge and tumbled down a steep embankment. Mary...lay motionless at the bottom of the bank, her face slit open in a deep gash from cheekbone to chin. Her lower limbs dangled uselessly like two dead tree trunks. Mary's next few months were almost unbearable. Outside, the temperature was 110°. In her hospital room, Mary was wrapped in a perspex jacket and a thick plastic brace. She faced agonizing hours of therapy. Each week she would fail the sensation tests, never feeling the pinpricks on her legs. After observing her persistent despair and sourness, Dr. Brand decided to talk to her. "Mary," he began, "I think it's time to begin thinking of your professional future as a doctor." At first, she thought he was joking, but he went on to predict that she could serve God as a doctor, perhaps bringing to other patients fresh qualities of sympathy and understanding. She pondered his suggestion a long time... Gradually, Mary began to work with the leprosy patients. The staff noticed that patients' self-pity, hopelessness and sullenness seemed to fade when Mary Verghese was around. Leprosy patients whispered among themselves about the doctor in a wheelchair who was more disabled than they. One day, Dr. Brand saw Mary rolling her wheelchair between buildings of the hospital and asked how she was doing. "At first the threads seemed so tangled and broken," she replied, "but I'm beginning to think life may have a pattern after all." Soon Mary Verghese was assisting at surgery - tedious exhausting work because she had to maintain her balance and operate while sitting down. Mary's recovery was to involve many excruciating hours of therapy as well as major spinal surgery. But she had caught a glimmer of hope. She began to see that the disability was not a punishment sent by God to entrap her in a life of misery. Rather, it could be turned into her greatest asset as a doctor. She had instant rapport and acceptance with disabled patients. Eventually Mary learned to walk with braces... and ultimately headed up a new department at Vellore, India Physiotherapy School. By turning toward God and accepting the fact that He could weave a new design into her life, Mary Verghese had probably achieved far more than she ever would have if the accident had not occurred. [Where Is God When It Hurts, Philip Yancey, pp. 90-92] I don't know what God wants to do with you, my handicapped friend, but I know that He wants to do something like He did with Mary. He wants to give meaning and purpose to your life and turn your handicap into a special means of blessing for others. And, my normal friend, you may be the means God uses to help this kind of healing and redemption happen to some handicapped person whom God places in your path, if you're willing to let him!

Caring For The Wounded - Studies From Luke

The Dying 23:39-43

*The Spirit of the Lord...has anointed me to preach good news to the poor.... the prisoners...the blind ...the oppressed... - Luke 4:18
...a bruised reed He will not break, and a smoldering wick He will not snuff out - Mt. 12:20*

There is one final group of hurting people to whom Jesus ministered, those who are dying. Often throughout his 3 year ministry Jesus encountered them. His response usually was to heal their bodies and keep them from it. On several occasions when He arrived after they died, He even restored them to life. But those measures were only temporary. He preserved people from facing the reality of death for a time, but eventually they had to face it anyway. Jesus does not always do that. He does not always restore us and spare us. A minority of us, He will take home suddenly and without warning through accident or heart attack. But most of us, He allows sooner or later to face the prospect of our own imminent death, to experience the process of dying. Jesus Himself went through that and, in the very middle of it, He ministered to another who was dying alongside Him, a thief. Let's pick up the story in Luke 23:39-43. This is usually a Good Friday text and we probably all have the same four points memorized about it. But if we could try to forget the picture we already have of this scene and just think about the thief as a person, a person who was in the process of being killed, who knew his own death was only hours away and there was no escape, maybe it will help us in:

I. Understanding The Plight Of Those Who Are Dying (35-39) Who are they? They are the terminally ill. The ones who have heard the words, "The cancer has spread and there's nothing more we can do". The ones who have heard the words, "This disease has no cure; it will progress and we can't stop it." The ones who have heard the words "It's a tumor and it's inoperable". They are sometimes the elderly who have reached that stage of life and health where they know death is imminent; they must face it soon. They are sometimes the young, who find that now in the very midst of all that is important to them, they will be taken away. They are sometimes even children, who have something wrong with them they don't understand and who have to face the idea of leaving home and going to a place called heaven where Jesus is. There is hardly a one of us who doesn't know someone who is dying. So, let's think about:

1. what is happening to them First of all:

