What's the point? There are a lot of scary and terrifying things in this world. There are threatening rulers and pursuing armies and dangerous plagues. There are people and diseases and circumstances and situations that would fill us with fear. And Satan would use that fear to control us, to get us to choose wrong, to throw away that baby to save our own life, to let others be abused and mistreated and stand idly by without getting involved, to flee away and run in terror from the things that are after us, to huddle in fear in our tents in mortal terror that the death angel is coming. What kind of fearful experience has come into your life? What terror grips your soul? Is it the fear that you'll lose a loved one, fear for your children, fear that your marriage won't make it? Satan would love to use it to cause you to panic in terror, to make crazy decisions, to do things that will hurt you and dishonor the Lord. But faith chooses to believe God and do His will even in the face of fear. Jack Kuhatschek writes: "I am afraid of heights. I have been known to crawl on my hands and knees to the edge of a high balcony in order to look down. Imagine, then, how I felt when a camp director told me I had to rappel down the side of a steep cliff. 'Everybody does it,' he said matter-of-factly. 'It's part of our program.' With sweaty palms and pounding heart, I eased backward off the edge of the cliff, supported by a rope and a safety line. In order to walk down the face of the cliff, I was told to keep my body perpendicular to the cliff. Every nerve and fiber screamed at me to straighten up, to get in a vertical, not a horizontal, position. Yet those who did so lost their footing and were left dangling high above the ground. Only by fighting my natural urges, and by trusting the ropes and those who held them, did I manage to make it safely to the bottom. What a relief! That fearful experience of rappelling has become a parable of faith to me. There have been many times in my life when God has asked me to ease over the edge of a cliff, to trust Him for something that seemed unsafe and frightening. The primary difference, of course, is that both the safety rope and the person at the top of the cliff are invisible--while the cliff and its dangers are in plain sight!" [The Superman Syndrome by Jack Kuhatschek. Zondervan, 1995. Pages 57-58.] Oh, how many times in life are we frozen by that fear, are we almost compelled by fear of one kind or another to do the things we know are not the right things to do. The danger is all we can see with our eyes. But the lesson from Moses is that by faith we can see Him who is invisible. By faith, His presence, His power and His plan can become more real to us than the cliff or the Red Sea in front of us and by faith we can endure and choose to do His will instead!

Hebrews: Our Privileges And Promises

The Life Of Faith (IV) - Heb. 11:29-40

Before we move out of chapter 11 and our study of the life of faith, we need to consider a very confusing topic. Faith is often associated with miracles. Faith has to do with moving mountains, with causing things that are utterly impossible to happen. The confusion comes because, even when you read the great things in this chapter, faith is often seen as the actual cause of the miracle. So naturally, if you have enough faith, you can do anything, you can have anything happen, if you only believe strongly enough that it will. And if you don't get your miracle, it is because you didn't have enough faith. But remember the definition! Faith is a trust that the unseen things God has told us about are real and that the still future things God has promised us will happen because we know Him. Faith is trust in the nature and character of God; God is the doer of miracles according to His plan and purpose. So, the real truth is that:

I. Faith Sets The Stage For God To Do Miraculous Things as we see in the three incidents listed for us in (29-31) First we read that:

1. faith brought the Israelites through the Red Sea on dry ground (29) Now just try to imagine for a moment how scary that experience was. There is an army full of horses and chariots surrounding them to the west, certain death, and they have no weapons. It's night time and a pillar of fire is blazing above them and comes down behind them to stand between them and the Egyptians. Then as they look at the sea in front of them, a tremendously strong wind begins to blow into their faces and a path opens up, right through the middle of the Sea. The water stands up like a straight wall, tall and menacing on either side, yet the sea floor is dry. If they march into the waters, who knows how long they will stay parted; who can tell that the wind won't stop and the waters come crashing down and drown them? So, in that moment they had a decision to make. Do we trust God or not? Notice, they'd been complaining and despairing about dying. Their faith did not open the sea. Rather, it was displayed as they marched forward through the Red Sea. They trusted the nature and the character and the promise of God and walked into the middle and right on through to the other side. But the Egyptians did the same thing. They ran their horses and chariots right into the sea after them. Yet the walls of water fell on them and drowned them all. What was the difference? The Israelites trusted God; they trusted what God had told them through Moses, that He would deliver them and slay the Egyptians and despite their fear, they went forward trusting in Him. The Egyptians didn't believe God, because if they did, they'd never have gone in there! The Israelites' faith allowed God to save them and the Egyptians' lack of faith drowned them. Faith made the difference and set the stage for one of the greatest miracles of all time. Likewise:

2. faith felled the walls of Jericho (30) Picture the Israelite army standing there looking at a fortified city that God has told them to take. It is surrounded by walls, and excavation has shown that at one stage there were two of them, the outer one 12 feet thick. And no doubt very high. When those gates were shut, it was sealed up tight and impregnable. Anyone approaching the wall could be shot at from the top. It would take a professional army with catapults and battering rams and siegeworks and moving towers, and all Israel had was a few bows and arrows and swords and spears. But God said, "I'll knock the wall down. All you have to do is march around the city for six days and on the seventh day do it seven times. That's all." They had a choice to make, "Do we believe God or not?" And they made the choice to have faith, to trust, and it was displayed by marching around the walls for seven days. And each day it got tougher, I'm sure. You can just see the men of Jericho gathering up on top of the wall to laugh and mock and call them chicken! You can imagine that by the seventh day the crowd up there swelled and was laughing and jeering as they went around and around seven times. And then you can see their faces go white with terror and hear the screams as the walls underneath their feet begin to tremble and to sway and they fall down flat and the Israelites rush in and take the city! The point is this, the walls wouldn't have fallen if they hadn't marched around, and they wouldn't have marched unless they believed. Faith, believing what God said was true, set the stage for Him to do a mighty miracle. And then in that same city:

3. faith saved the life of Rahab who was doomed (31) God had already told the Israelites they were not to spare a single soul, not a single person or piece of plunder. The lives of the inhabitants of Jericho were forfeited, because even after knowing what God had done in Egypt and even that they had wiped out the kings across the Jordan, they still didn't believe. They resisted and fought. All but one. One woman, Rahab, of all things a prostitute, believed in her heart that the God of Israel was the true God and that Jericho was doomed. She had no hope. That is, until at the last minute God sent two men, Israelite spies, to her door. She didn't see them as customers, but as an opportunity from God. She was faced with a choice, "Do I believe God or don't I. If I don't, I blow the whistle on them; if I do, I beg them to save my life and protect them." She chose faith and it was displayed by risking her life in receiving the spies. Do you realize what could have happened? If she didn't turn them in and they were found in her house, she would be a traitor. She would be killed. Her family would be killed. Yet she believed that if she didn't, she would be killed by God's army when the city fell. So, in faith she chose to risk her life and hide the spies, believing God more than she feared her own people. And AFTER she hid them, they promised they would save and protect her life. She was to put the cord in the window and that was the only piece of the wall that stood and she and her family were saved; she married one of the spies and became an ancestress of David and ultimately, of Jesus. But again, faith set the stage. God miraculously saved her life, but she chose to believe Him days before.

Do you see the lesson? You trust God and God can do miraculous things with it. If you obey and step forward into that dark and foreboding circumstance that looks like it's going to fall down and crush you, if you obediently march on in what looks like that fruitless endeavor He's assigned you to, if you trust Him and do what's right no matter what suffering you know it may bring you, then the stage is set by faith. God can choose to do a miracle! Now understand, He may also choose NOT to. Faith doesn't cause the miracle; it doesn't guarantee the miracle. But unless you choose to trust and are willing to obey, He CAN'T do the miraculous thing with your life that would bring glory to His name. Do you understand what I'm saying? Now we come to the grand conclusion of this glorious chapter, the part I really love and it teaches us one wonderful lesson:

II. Faith Ultimately Results In Triumph (32-40) Everything the author has shown us so far in this whole chapter, all of these wonderful Old Testament people the Holy Spirit has pointed out for us demonstrate that:

1. some people of faith experience immediate triumph in this life (32-35a) First he tells us:

a. there is no limit to the number of people who lived by faith (32) The list is endless. There are dozens more that are actually named in Scripture and thousands more who lived by faith who are never named. There is a whole record of the thousands and thousands of folks who lived by trusting God and only heaven will reveal their number. God's ability to give triumph and victory in this life is not limited to a chosen few elite people somewhere. If you trust God, He can and often still does choose to do miraculous things. And:

b. there is no limit to the triumphs they experienced by faith (33-35a) Look at the miracles God did because they trusted. Daniel trusted God and was thrown into a pit full of hungry lions and God shut their mouths. His three friends trusted God and got thrown into a flaming furnace, but didn't burn. They walked out alive. Hezekiah trusted God and 180,000 Assyrian soldiers died in their sleep that night and the rest fled. Elisha's friend, the Shunammite woman, trusted God and He actually raised her son from the dead! There is no limit to what God can do when we trust Him! Just this week I read an account of a Guarayo man in Bolivia who was fishing in a swamp when a crocodile crept up on him and took a bite out of his leg. Alone in a very isolated place and bleeding profusely, he realized he would die if he did not get help soon. He remembered the testimony of a neighbor who recently accepted Christ and he asked God to send someone to help him. To his surprise, a woman appeared, picked him up and carried him to the road, where a family member happened to be passing by. This angel later appeared to him in several dreams and the man soon accepted Jesus Christ. God can do anything when we place our trust in Him and He can do it in your life if He chooses. However, even though some people of faith experience immediate and miraculous triumph over their problems and circumstances, the full truth is that:

2. yet other people of faith experience awful tragedy in this life (35b-38) For every Daniel who was saved from the mouths of the lions, there are probably a thousand early church believers who were slain by lions in the arena because they refused to deny Jesus Christ. For every Shadrach who didn't burn, there were a hundred believers lit up like torches in Nero's gardens who didn't get a miraculous deliverance. And the same thing is still true today. Just look at:

a. the range of their experiences

(1) some experience persecution (35b-36) In China today we have brothers and sisters whose faith is as real and probably stronger than ours, but they are imprisoned; they are tortured; they are starved and taken away from their families and forced to do hard labor. But they keep on trusting Him.

(2) some experience death (37a) Stephen was stoned. Isaiah was sawn in half. James was killed with the sword. And it still goes on. Roy Pontoh was a 15 yr. old boy in Ambon city, Indonesia, who loved Jesus. A mob of militant Muslims attacked his church youth retreat. They drug him out and demanded, "Who are you?" When he answered "a soldier of Christ," they hacked off his left arm and asked again. He gave the same answer and they hacked at his right arm but did not sever it completely. They demanded that he recant, but he said, "Jesus Christ is the only Lord," so they disemboweled him and threw him in a gutter. He was only 15, but was living by faith and God took him to glory to receive a martyr's crown, just like He did with some of those kids out at Col-umbine who confessed their faith at gunpoint, instead of miraculously delivering them. And:

(3) some experience deprivation (37b-38) Some of our brothers and sisters who love the Lord are doing that very thing today in parts of Sudan and elsewhere, wandering about in animal skins in deserts and caves, fleeing from persecution and starving with not enough to eat, while we eat nonstop and throw away more than would sustain them each day.

How do we reconcile this? Some trust God and He miraculously delivers them and provides for them and rescues them. Others trust God and they suffer and they hurt and they live in hardship and they die. The miracle never comes. Is something wrong with their faith or with our faith when we don't get the miracle? Is God not pleased with them; does He not love them as much as he does the others? Well, there are:

b. two things we must understand The Spirit slips in two phrases here that are just beautiful and they are key to understanding it. First:

(1) their faith in refusing release is greatly used of God (35b) In many cases they could have made their own miracle. They could have recanted their faith and denied Christ and been set free. But their faith in Jesus and the resurrection was so strong that it gave them the willingness to suffer and, if need be, to die! Their faith and their testimony in the face of death is precious to God; it's tremendously powerful and their unwavering faith in itself is often the miracle that God uses to get glory and win others to faith. Last month's Kyrgyz Chronicle told the story of the little fellowship of believers out in Naryn and how many of them used to persecute believers and it was the courageous testimony of those who suffered that led them to Christ. Throughout the history of the church, it is the faith of those who didn't get a miracle, who suffered and bled and died trusting God, that He has used to build His church. And in case you think that God doesn't care, that He just uses his followers to get His purpose accomplished in a mechanical way, look what it says:

(2) they are worth more to God than the whole world (38a) It's not just that the world doesn't deserve to have such people; it is that they are of more worth, of more value, are more precious to God than the whole world!

You know, one day God is going to throw the whole world away; in the end it all gets destroyed by fire and all the billions of people in it, and out of it all what does He keep? What is His trophy? Those who have faith! Those who trust Him. They are the precious jewels, the bright gems in His crown forever and ever who will walk with Him in white. They're all He really wants, all He really cares about! You see, the full truth is:

3. we will ALL experience ultimate triumph together in the end (39-40) We need to realize that:

a. even those that experienced earthly triumph did not receive God's ultimate promise All the people in this chapter, even the ones who did get a miracle, who did experience mighty triumphs in this life, even they did not receive the fullness of God's promise. They got only a small piece of it. Even the ones who died and went to heaven still haven't got it all! Why? Because:

b. God has reserved that for all His people to experience together at the end of the age God has a plan for this whole age. It included them and it includes us. It includes the Old Testament saints and us believers in the church age who love Jesus Christ. It includes some triumphing in this life and some displaying faith by suffering. And God has designed it that His plan culminates all at one time so that all together we will experience the ultimate triumph. What's that? Compare verses 14-16. God has prepared for us a city, a heavenly city. And at the end of this age, when the full number of the peoples has come in, when every tribe and tongue has heard and the last person has come to faith and the last of those who are to be martyred has died, Jesus Christ is going to return. And He's going to keep the fullness of His promise. He will set up His kingdom on this earth and at that time we all together will get what we've been looking forward to. Rev. 21:2-3 says, I saw the Holy City, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride beautifully dressed for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, "Now the dwelling of God is with men, and he will live with them. They will be his people, and God himself will be with them and be their God.

Oh my precious friend, we just read the end of the book and we know how it all ends. We win! And God has saved the victory party for the very end so that we will all together in that one moment experience the fullness of everything He's planned for us in that eternal city with Him forever and ever. Now unless I miss my guess, you are more likely to be one of those "others" whom God uses through suffering, rather than delivering them right now. The question is, will you trust Him anyway? Will you remain faithful? Will you trust Him so that He's free to step in and do a miracle and glorify His name if He chooses, but keep on trusting Him even if He doesn't and wants to glorify His name through your suffering? Kay Arthur tells of standing with her friends Billie and Gene at the bedside of their 41-year-old son. Mike was brain dead from encephalitis, and the time had come to remove the life-support systems. As they stood there choking back the tears, they sang and read Scripture. Billie and Gene had been confident that God was going to heal their son physically. Many others had been praying with them, but the answer God gave was not the one they wanted. It was especially hard for this couple to see their son slipping away because they had no assurance that he had ever accepted Christ as his Savior. They had a promise, but no evidence. But they kept holding on to their faith. They had trusted God for many years, and they didn't stop now...even in their pain. Kay Arthur says that this was a greater miracle than if Mike had been healed. It would have been such a joyful thing had God chosen to restore his physical health, but the steadfast hope and faith of his parents in spite of the circumstances is a greater testimony to the all-sufficiency of God's grace. She goes on to say that what we need in our nation is not more miracles and manifestations of God's power, but more people like Gene and Billie-- Christians whose faith does not waver, who don't serve God only when things are going well, who are lights in the darkness. [Letter to Precept Ministries supporters, Aug 1996. Pages 1-2.] Will you be one of those?

Hebrews: Our Privileges And Promises

The Privilege Of Suffering - Heb. 12:1-11

That very title is an enigma. Who would count suffering as a privilege? Yet Paul, while himself in prison, wrote to encourage the Philippians who were being opposed by enemies of the Gospel to stand firm in their faith and said, For it has been granted to you on behalf of Christ not only to believe on him, but also to suffer for him... - Phil. 1:29. The suffering you're doing right now is a privilege that Christ has granted to you. How can that be? Who can believe that? To the Corinthians Paul wrote, ...our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. - 2 Cor. 4:17. Suffering leads to glory; it produces the glory of God's eternal purpose being achieved in and through us and celebrated in heaven forever. It achieves eternal things that can be achieved no other way. How do we know that? Well, just look at verse 1. We're surrounded by a great cloud of witnesses whose lives testify to it. Who are they? Therefore takes us back to chapter 11! All these people of faith, almost all of them suffered, but their suffering achieved glory. Abel died for serving God, Noah endured 120 years of ridicule, obediently building the ark, Abraham struggled through uncertainty and childlessness for years and lived in tents his whole life because of God's call on him, Joseph spent 10 years as a slave and in a prison, though he loved God and had done nothing wrong, Moses was driven from his homeland for 40 years and then carried the burden of a complaining people 40 years through the wilderness doing what God had assigned him. Then there are the faithful ones in 11:35 who were tortured for their faith, who were stoned and sawn in two and killed with swords and chained and put in prison. In case after case, the people of God have suffered, yet in case after case, their suffering has produced the glory of God's eternal purpose being accomplished. Isaac was born, Joseph saved his people from famine, God's nation was built, Israel was redeemed from the suffering of Egypt, set in the land as a light to the world and eventually brought forth Christ the Redeemer of the world! The early Christians were persecuted and arrested. Some were killed. They were driven out of Jerusalem and scattered abroad. The apostles were martyred, all but one who was exiled. Paul and his fellow missionaries were driven out of cities, beaten with rods, jailed and imprisoned. The catalog of their sufferings is unbelievable, but the result is that in one generation the church of Jesus Christ was birthed, grown and solidly planted in every part of the Roman world. Suffering produces glory and, in that sense, while it may be utterly painful and difficult to endure, it is also a privilege granted by God to advance His kingdom and glory. But how do we endure it? How do we get through it? The writer of Hebrews gives us two analogies to help us. First of all, he says that:

I. Suffering Is Part Of Running Our Race (1-4) Life is like a long-distance race. Birth is the starting line and at our death we cross the finish line and in between there is a course of events and circumstances that God has laid out for us. That course may go up steep hills and around sharp curves and over rough terrain. It may be run in the rain or in the heat or at high altitude. The runner suffers a great deal in the process of the race; at times it feels like his lungs will burst and his legs can't take another step and he may collapse across the line. Or he may fall and stumble or get pushed or tripped by another runner. All kinds of things happen in the course of the race but when he crosses that finish line he goes up to the winner's platform and there he finds his reward. Suffering is a definite and necessary part of the race of life. And the author says that we get through it the same way the athlete does. Like a runner:

1. we must throw off every hindrance (1) Runners don't run in long pants with a heavy jacket. In that day athletes would "gird up their loins", take the ends of their loose robes and tuck them up in their waistband to keep their legs untangled. Anything that would weigh them down or hinder and hold them back, they would lay aside, as any athlete does today. Look at the swimmers; they even shave their heads to reduce resistance. And in our lives, there can be weights that hold us back, things that we give our lives to, maybe not bad things, but things that take the place of or get in the way of serving God. Maybe we get wrapped up in pursuing a career for ourselves; maybe a hobby or a sport dominate our lives to the point where God's purpose is on the shelf unnoticed. In many cases it is sin that easily wraps its tentacles around our legs and pulls us back. We get involved in pride, in immorality, or gossip, or conflict, or jealousy, or any one of a hundred other traps and all of a sudden we're spiritually standing still, instead of moving forward in God's purpose. And suffering is often the occasion where these very things get into our lives, where the enemy grabs us and tangles us up and drags us to a spiritual standstill. So, to get through and run properly, we have to make a choice. We have to lay those things of the flesh aside for the sake of the glory of God. Then secondly:

2. we must persevere in the prescribed course no matter what it brings The runner doesn't get to lay out the course; the judges do. He can't take a short-cut or go the other way around. He has to stay on the path that was laid out for him or be disqualified. So, he either keeps on running with patient endurance, struggling up the hills, wiping off the sweat, putting up with the pain, or he chooses to quit and not run at all. You don't get to lay out your course either; God does. You have essentially no control; you don't know what tomorrow will bring. You have only one choice, be faithful and trust God and keep on serving Him no matter what comes, no matter how much it hurts, no matter how much easier it may seem to do things a wrong way, or you can quit and deny and forget Him and His purpose for your life. Eric Lidell, whose life was the basis of the film Chariots of Fire, illustrates this principle. Just before the first turn in a 400-meter race, Eric was shoved off balance, and he stumbled onto the infield grass. When he looked up, he saw the others pulling away. With a look of intense determination, Eric jumped to his feet, and with his back cocked and his arms flailing he rushed ahead. He was determined not only to catch up with the pack but to win. And he did! That's how Paul saw himself, as an Olympic athlete competing for a gold medal, straining every muscle, nerve, and sinew to get to the finish line. After every setback or obstacle getting up and running on. But here's the key. How is it that the runner can throw everything aside and endure all that pain all the way to the finish line? It's simple; he focuses on the goal. And so:

3. we must focus on the goal The athlete sees that finish line in his mind; he sees the victor's stand, the wreath, the crown, the medal, the cheers of the crowd, the reward and glory of enduring that makes it worth all the effort. Look at verse 2. Our goal is not a thing. It is not some heavenly money or rank. The goal on which we fix our eyes is the person of Jesus Himself. When we cross that line, we're going up to heaven to the Victor's stand; we're going to sit down with Him and enjoy His presence and be with Him forever in great joy. And what our hearts want most is to hear His words of encouragement, to hear, "Well done, good and faithful servant, you've run the race well, you've accomplished My purpose, My glory has been advanced; I have a crown laid up for you that will never fade away and you'll share it with me forever!" And if we can look away from the pain of the circumstances we're in and keep the eyes of our mind focused on that vision of Jesus in all His glory and us sharing it with Him, then we can endure anything. Now, how do we keep that focus? The writer suggests:

a. it means focusing on the example of Jesus (2) Look at Him:

(1) He focused on the joy set before Him Jesus left heaven to be born on earth as a man. He entered that race with one goal, our redemption. He wanted a great multitude of once sinful human beings to be redeemed and cleansed from their sins and to be in heaven with Him and enjoy His glory forever. The joy of having you and I with Him forever was His goal, His finish line, His driving purpose. And so:

(2) He endured the cross and scorned its shame for that joy The course laid out for Him was rejection and mockery and false accusations and condemnation and beating and flogging and carrying a cross up a hill and being nailed to it and dying there. That's what it took to pay for our sins and set us free! That suffering was the price of His eternal dream. But He endured it all, He counted all of that as of no consequence because He was focused on the joy set before Him, the purpose it would accomplish, and when it was all over:

(3) He sat down at the right hand of God and we sat down there in Him, our salvation secure and little by little we're physically joining Him there. His suffering achieved its eternal purpose and so will ours if we focus on the goal and keep on enduring. But focusing on Jesus also:

b. it means considering fully what Jesus endured for us (3-4)

(1) He endured the abuse of sinful men Verbally, they said bad things about Him and to Him. They called him an agent of Satan. They accused Him of false charges. He was condemned to death for telling the truth that He was the Son of God. Physically, they plotted his murder; they abused and tortured Him in every way they could think of and ultimately nailed Him to a cross and there:

(2) He went all the way to giving His life He shed His precious blood. It was spilled and poured out for us. He gave His life; what more could He give, the song says. Consider it, God says; look at it, contemplate the depth of it and then verse 4 says:

(3) it encourages us to see our struggle in light of His We haven't yet stood faithful at the cost of our own life, of shedding our own blood. Some of our brethren around the world have, but you and I haven't, not yet. For all of our suffering and our pain in running this race that gets God glory, we still haven't begun to touch the depths of the suffering our Lord Jesus endured to get us for Himself. The cross is our constant reminder that, Jesus paid it all; all to Him I owe! And when we focus on it, the things of earth will grow strangely dim in the light of His glory and grace!

So, suffering is part of running the race, but the second image here is this:

II. Suffering Is Part Of Our Discipline As God's Children (5-11) Now I know that as soon as we hear the word discipline, our mind equates that with punishment. But the Greek word is paidia, which comes from the word child and means the training and education of children. It includes teaching and instruction in things the child needs to know, in life lessons and principles, as well as negative consequences that fall when the child does things wrong. So, the author's point is not that when we suffer God is punishing us, but that:

1. we must remember that suffering is part of God's child-training process Suffering is painful, but it is productive, it is instructive. A child learns to walk by stumbling and falling. He learns the value of telling the truth by getting caught lying. He learns things he needs to know by years of hard effort and work in school. Likewise, we learn things through suffering and God builds things into us through suffering that can come no other way. For instance, James says, Consider it pure joy, my brothers, whenever you face trials of many kinds, because you know that the testing of your faith develops perseverance. Perseverance must finish its work so that you may be mature and complete, not lacking anything. - 1:2-4. God wants to develop character and hope and so many of His own other qualities in you that can only come through the enduring of trials and hardships. So:

2. we must understand the reason for His discipline (5-8) It is not a sign of His anger; it is not a sign that He doesn't really care about what we go through. Rather:

a. it comes to us out of the Father's love If you love a child, you discipline them. You instruct them and you correct them. You see that they go through all the experiences they need to grow and mature. If you don't love them, you just ignore them and let them alone! You let them do whatever they want and they grow up spoiled and selfish and sometimes criminal! A loving father cares enough to discipline and so, when hardship and suffering come into our lives:

b. it is a sign that we are truly His children He's treating us as His children. The fact that He allows the suffering and then walks with us through it and teaches us and builds us through it is the sign that we truly do belong to Him. We're true sons and daughters! He is exercising His love toward us, even if we can't understand and see it at the time. So:

3. we must react properly to discipline There are lots of reactions that people have. They become bitter and angry. They grow discouraged and depressed. But the writer tells us that:

a. we should realize its value and not give up (5b) We should not treat it lightly, but recognize it as a valuable thing that God can use in our lives. No matter what it is, we should not quit and give up and decide that our faith is not worth it. Rather:

b. we should respect His wisdom by willingly enduring (9) If we really thought about it, if we had a half-decent set of parents, we could see that they actually loved us and were instructing and correcting us out of love. And we respected them for that and took it, even if it hurt sometimes. And we should do the same with our Heavenly Father. We should tell Him, "Lord, I accept this thing as from your hand; you've allowed it; it hurts but I am willing to trust You for strength and go through it!" And we can do that because:

c. we should recognize that it is always for our good (10) Our parents made mistakes sometimes with us and fouled up. We do with our children too. But God never makes a mistake. He never fouls up. Whatever He sends our way, whatever He builds into the course of our life, is ALWAYS for our good; it is always that we may learn new ways to display the holiness and righteousness of His character. And finally:

4. we must realize the effect of discipline (11) You see:

a. it always feels unpleasant at the moment Nobody likes to brush their teeth, but if you don't, they rot. Nobody likes to get up early to make the bus or to spend hours on homework, but if you don't, you don't learn. Nobody likes to get grounded when they do something wrong, but if it doesn't happen, you keep on doing wrong. It never feels good at the moment. Child-training, even for adults, is painful in many ways. But keep in mind that:

b. it produces a future harvest of righteousness and peace In the end it produces a fruitful goal. In the end it makes us like Jesus. In the end it develops in us the very character of God. Suffering is part of that process. The bad things, the difficult struggles, the painful heart-wrenching things, the persecutions and losses and low points, they all work together for our good. They make us the people God intended us to be. The athlete endures the course, but in the end, it is also true that the course shapes the athlete. And that has value.

John Yates tells this story: "The only survivor of a shipwreck washed up on a small uninhabited island. He cried out to God to save him, and every day he scanned the horizon for help, but none seemed forthcoming. Exhausted, he eventually managed to build a rough hut and put his few possessions in it. Then one day, after hunting for food, he arrived home to find his little hut in flames, the smoke rolling up to the sky. The worst had happened; he was stung with grief. Early the next day, though, a ship drew near the island and rescued him. 'How did you know I was here?' he asked the crew. 'We saw your smoke signal yesterday,' they replied. Though it may not seem so now, your present difficulty may be instrumental to your future happiness." [Leadership, Fall 1993. Page 57.] Indeed, in God's economy that's always true. My friend, I don't know what suffering the Lord has allowed into your life this morning. I don't know what pain and disappointment and hurt is in your life. But I do know that it is part of our loving Father's education process for you and I know that there is a way to endure it, if you'll look away from it and fix your eyes on Jesus, the author and the finisher of your faith who, for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is now seated at the right hand of God where you'll join Him one day!

Hebrews: Our Privileges And Promises

Our Privileges Should Not Be Presumed Upon - Heb. 12:12-29

It is really easy to begin at verse 12 and treat it as though it is a separate subject and the writer is just generally telling us to help people and be nice and be good. However, the verse begins with a special word, therefore. What does that mean? It means that what I'm about to say is connected with what I've just finished saying. What has he just finished saying? He said that when suffering and hardship come into our lives, we must recognize them as part of the child-training process from the hand of our loving Heavenly Father. So what's he going to tell us now? That this is how we should act since we understand what suffering is about! In other words, God is saying:

I. It Is Important That We Remain Faithful When Suffering Comes (12-17) One thing I've noticed over the years is that when suffering comes into our lives, it is a very critical time. When you're hurting, the pain can cloud your vision; it can blind your eyes to the truth; it can cause you to become intensely self-centered. In fact, in these verses you can see:

1. three wrong reactions to suffering and they're pictured with visual images that really help. In fact, I'm going to preach this portion of this message at Wyncote Home this afternoon and I titled it "Weak Knees, Crooked Paths and Bitter Roots". Those are three of the potential wrong reactions you can have when you suffer. First you can develop:

a. "weak knees" - you can let yourself become paralyzed (12) This verse is not about strengthening one another. The Living Bible does a good job of conveying the thought, So take a new grip with your tired hands, stand firm on your shaky legs. Actually the word for "weak" knees can mean "paralyzed". Sometimes when suffering comes, especially if it's sudden or severe, it puts us into sort of a state of shock. Our hands hang limp; our knees feel weak and refuse to walk. We're numb. We just sit there. We don't want to eat; we don't want to go anywhere; we don't want to pray. And that might be understandable for a brief time, but we can't allow it to continue. For example, I remember one man who belonged to this church years ago who lost his wife and just never got over it. That loss consumed his thinking; every time we talked he would mention it and cry. And it kept him focused on himself; it kept him from growing and from being used in the lives of others. We need to set our limp hands back into a useful position and brace our weak knees and keep on taking steps of faithfulness. How do we get like this? I think verse 15

hints at it when it says, by failing to appropriate the grace of God (15a) Lacks the grace of God would be better. This is not something you can do on your own. You can't just "pull yourself up by your bootstraps and be strong and face it"; that doesn't work. You don't have the strength in yourself, but you do have it in Him, and He is in you, so that you can cry out to Him and say, "Lord, fill me with your strength to move this leg, to take this step, to pray, to be with people, to serve, to continue on." Elizabeth Elliot lost her husband to Auca Indian spears in 1957 and it was a terrible price to pay and a great loss, but by God's grace she went back and faithfully endured a long struggle there and in the end, that tribe was reached with the Gospel and the church planted among them. Corrie Ten Boom survived the horror of the concentration camps and desperately needed healing and recovery, but after a time of that, she called out to God for the grace to be faithful and tell the world that, "there is no pit so deep that His love is deeper still" and to her dying day she traveled the world faithfully speaking to all who would listen. Suffering might paralyze us for the moment, but we can't stay there. By His grace we must continue to faithfully serve Him, even if suffering continues. The second image is:

b. "crooked paths" (13) Making straight or level paths is a common image in scripture; it's a metaphor for righteous living, for walking the straight and narrow path. We need to consciously choose straight paths, because when you suffer, you can let yourself react sinfully. When tragedy strikes or someone comes after you and hurts you, that's the very time when the temptation is greatest to choose a sinful path. The author mentions two examples down in verse 16. The pain might cause you to react:

(1) by becoming immoral (16a) Your spouse mistreats you, cheats on you, maybe divorces you. You're hurting. What's the greatest temptation? To seek solace in someone else. Anytime someone comes to me with a marital problem or in the throes of a divorce, one of the first things I encourage them to watch out for is that Satan will often send along another man or another woman who, at the moment, seems to be everything their spouse never was and their need to feel loved is so great that they will be tempted to jump right into their arms, and even to become physically involved with them when they know it's wrong. Other people might be drawn to dull their sorrows with alcohol or drugs or by throwing themselves into their work. Another similar reaction might be to handle pain:

(2) by becoming godless (16b) like Esau. Remember the story? Esau came in from hunting and was so starving hungry that Jacob set him up. He fed him in exchange for giving up his birthright as the oldest son. Esau would have gotten a double portion of his father's inheritance one day and the position as leader and priest of the family, but he didn't care about that. He only knew he wanted his need met now. How many times in suffering are we willing to forget God, to stop caring about the inheritance He has laid up for us and to just do whatever it takes to feel better at the moment. Time after time I've watched people who are suffering withdraw from the body of Christ, run away from people, stop exercising the means of grace, stop reading the Word of God and praying, quit serving, and in general just stop caring about God and what He wants in their lives and absorb their lives in other things, things that are here and now, things that are material or temporary. In effect they take God and put Him on the shelf and say, "What He wants doesn't matter to me anymore."

And there are other crooked paths that suffering can drive you to: anger and retaliation, getting even, lying, stealing, cursing, hurting others, lashing out, and the list goes on. When we suffer, we need to call out to God for His grace to keep our feet walking in straight paths. And the third image is:

c. "bitter roots" (15) Bitter is a word often used to describe suffering or sorrow. It tastes awful and unpleasant. And that suffering can have the same effect on you. It can become a root that springs up and bears fruit in the way you act and think. That is, you can let yourself become bitter. Suffering sometimes sours people and changes their personality. They become sad and angry and complaining and grumpy and hateful. They may become bitter toward God himself. Remember Naomi in the book of Ruth? Her very name means "pleasantness," but after she had lived in Moab and lost her husband and two sons came back and complained to her friends, "Don't call me Naomi." she told them. "Call me Mara, {bitter} because the Almighty has made my life very bitter. I went away full, but the LORD has brought me back empty. Why call me Naomi? The LORD has afflicted me; the Almighty has brought misfortune upon me." - Ruth 1:20-21. "God doesn't love me; God doesn't care about me; He's still God and all, but I don't like very much how He's handled things; they're not the way I want them..." Do you know folks like that? And some become bitter at other people; nothing and nobody suits them; they complain and lash out at those around them. They're just unpleasant people. But the Lord says, "Don't go there! Don't react that way. Cry out for grace not to let suffering do that to you." Why? Why does it matter? Well, here's:

2. why a right reaction is so important You see:

a. each of these paths impacts, not only us, but others (12b) If you choose crooked paths, it's not just you who'll stumble, but other people who are already lame, who are already having a hard time, will stumble there with you and fall off the path. (15b) When you become bitter and hateful, it doesn't only affect you, but it causes trouble and it impacts lots of other people The Living Bible says, ...Watch out that no bitterness takes root among you, for as it springs up it causes deep trouble, hurting many in their spiritual lives. Bitterness is contagious. It is epidemic. You drag other people with you and mess up their spiritual lives, just to have the company! And if you choose to stay paralyzed, think how many people in your life are affected by the lack of your love and care for them. There's no question that when we choose weak knees, crooked paths and bitter roots it touches everybody around us. And you know what else?

b. once damage is done we may not be able to undo it (17) Esau lost, not only his birthright but his father's blessing. And when he went afterwards to get it back, even though he was sorry and sought it with tears, he couldn't. When you lose the Father's blessing in your life by choosing to react wrong, you do damage. You hurt yourself. You create consequences in your life that you can't escape. You hurt others. You do damage to them. You do damage in the church. And later, when God brings you around and you see the damage in you and others and the church, it's too late. You can't go back and undo it. It stands and you have to go on from there. That's why it's better to guard our hearts on the front end and remain faithful to the Lord in suffering. That's why we need the accountability of belonging to each other so we can guard each other against it. And that's why in verse 14 we find:

3. two deep concerns that demand our every effort (14) Our key concerns need to be:

a. pursuing peace with everyone Paul says in Rom. 12:18, If it is possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with everyone. It's not always possible. There are people who will be mad at you, who will be down on you, who will not want peace with you, but from your end this verse says literally, "Pursue it. Hunt it down. Chase it until you can't run and it can't hide. Do whatever it takes and whatever you can to build a relationship of peace and harmony with the people around you, believer or nonbeliever, instead of walling yourself off from them." And the second concern is:

b. pursuing holiness before God Doing things that are pure and holy and right and being that way in your heart. Pursue that, hunt it down, chase it and don't let it go. If those two things are our goal, meaningful relationship with people and hearts pure before God, then we can't go wrong. It's a litmus test, a way to measure whether we've succumbed to weak knees, crooked paths and bitter roots. If relationships and God matter most of all, we're on the right track. Now here is:

II. Our Motive To Remain Faithful When Suffering Comes (18-24) Let me try to make some sense out of this. He says two things:

1. you have NOT come to Mt. Sinai... (18-21) Remember how it was for Israel when God gave them the law? It was terrifying and they were afraid, even Moses. The motive to obey and do the right thing at that moment in their lives was fear of punishment. If they touched the mount they would die. If they broke the law they would die. But you haven't come to that. That is, your faithfulness is not born out of fear of punishment! You don't obey God and react right when you suffer because you're afraid that if you don't, that God is going to be angry with you and hurt you.

2. instead you HAVE come to Mt. Zion... (22-24) If you know Christ, you have a guaranteed citizenship in heaven, a mansion waiting for you in the city of gold. You'll stand there with thousands of angels in joyful assembly worshipping God. Your name is written in heaven and you enjoy all of the things Esau missed, the rights and privileges of God's firstborn. All that is His is yours. You've come to God the Judge and lived, because your sins were taken away and you've been made righteous and perfect in Jesus Christ. He made a new covenant that seals you for eternity with His blood which has cried out from the cross for your forgiveness, instead of for justice and punishment, like Abel's blood cried out for from the ground. That's why you should stand faithful, even in the face of suffering, because your faithfulness is born out of a relationship of privilege! It's not because you have to, but because you want to! God has done all this for you and it's permanent. No suffering on earth can take these things away! They're yours! When you suffer, just look at all you've come to! Look at all that's yours and know that nothing in heaven or earth can take it away from you; nothing can separate you from the love of Christ. And in gratitude, stay firm and remain faithful! But finally, as we close the chapter, we have, not just encouragement, but:

III. Our Warning To Remain Faithful When Suffering Comes (25-29) First, there is a grave:

1. warning against becoming apostate, against turning away from Jesus (25-27) We saw it back in chapter 6 and in other places in Hebrews. Some people, when they suffer, turn completely away from Jesus, throw away their faith and never go back. Suffering refines them and proves that they never really genuinely knew Him in the beginning. They were shallow soil, not good ground. Listen, the blood of Jesus is speaking to you, calling out, "I died for you" and if you, in your suffering, can just turn and walk away from Him and stay there and give up your faith, you just might be one of those folks and don't forget there's another day of shaking coming. For folks who don't really know Christ, there's a day of reckoning when He returns and you don't want to be standing there. But for us who know for sure that we are saved and that we belong to that heavenly kingdom and nothing can shake that, there is still a:

2. warning against presuming upon our privilege as believers (28-29) Even in the midst of our suffering we are still to be thankful and to serve Him and worship Him with reverence and awe and not to presume that we have a right to our weak knees and our crooked paths and our bitter roots and to wallow in them because we're suffering. If you're in suffering and you're reacting wrong and you know it, it is a very foolish thing to stay there. Our God is not only a loving Father who disciplines His children, but a consuming fire who refines us and burns up all the impurities in our lives. If you're going to stay there, He's going to find a way to move you out of it and back where you belong and it's liable to be even more painful. You have all these wonderful privileges; you've come to all these wonderful things in the heavens; they're yours. For you to presume upon them, to go on sinning because you know about grace, is a very dangerous thing!

Billy Graham's daughter Anne tells the life story of a man she met in a country that is hostile to the gospel. She calls him "Professor Hill" but that's not his real name: "[Many years ago] he was serving on the staff of a church when he was turned in to the authorities by another staff member for preaching the gospel. He was imprisoned for 25 years, much of it in solitary confinement. During his imprisonment, the manuscript of the New Testament commentary that had been his life's work was seized and destroyed. When he was finally released from prison, the authorities declared him a 'nonperson,' which meant it was impossible for him to find a job. He was effectively stripped of everything and lived in poverty. His testimony, as well as his life, seemed insignificant. Then the same church where Professor Hill had previously served and been betrayed reluctantly invited him to come back on staff because he was the only one the church could find who knew Greek, Hebrew, Latin, and English, as well as his native language. The professor agreed, and when I had the privilege of meeting him 15 years later, he was still serving in that church alongside the same staff member who had turned him in to the authorities 40 years earlier! I looked at Professor Hill and knew I was seeing someone who had been afflicted, who was poor, who had been slandered by the religious community--yet he was rich! The smile on his face went from ear to ear! His eyes sparkled with the joy of the Lord! He told me of the peace in his heart, of his renewed sense of purpose in ministry, of the fresh vision he had for reaching his people for Christ! He was committed to being faithful to Christ, even unto death!" [Vision of His Glory by Anne Graham Lotz. Word, 1996. Page 80.] What an example! How easily he could have lost all passion for anything, fallen into sin in order to survive, or become bitter and vengeful. But he understood the grace God had given him and it sustained him and he pursued peace with others and holiness before God. Your suffering may not be the size of His, but the grace available to us is no less.

Hebrews: Our Privileges And Promises

The Privilege Of Loving - Heb. 13

As the writer comes to the end of his letter to the Hebrews, he comes down out of the heights of the theological grandeur he's been dwelling on and closes in chapter 13 with a series of very practical exhortations to his readers before signing off. He never does give his name, but he does mention in verse 22 and on his dear brother Timothy and his location in Italy, which is enough to tell you who I think the author is. Anyway, the exhortations may seem to be unrelated, but actually they're not. To me, everything that follows is simply a fleshing out of the principle in verse 1 which says literally, "Let love remain," that is, always. The whole epistle has reiterated to us how God has loved us with His great love and showered on us all the awesome privileges of a child and an heir of God; now he explains how that love should fill us and overflow so that we exercise the awesome privilege of loving others and God. John says, We love because He first loved us! and when we comprehend the length and the breadth and the depth of His love, then God is able to build in us a life that is characterized by two things:

I. A Life That Is Continually Filled With Love For Others (1-7) and that manifests itself in six specific areas. First we'll have:

1. a genuine love for the people of God (1) Literally, the verse says "Let philadelphia remain". Let the love of the brothers be continually present. It's like Paul said in Gal. 6:10, ...let us do good to all people, especially to those who belong to the family of believers. We love everybody, unsaved people, even our enemies, but there is to be in our hearts a special love, a special bond for those who are our spiritual family in Christ. And what does that kind of love look like? Well, check verse 16; it is ...one that shares heart and possessions (16). It's the kind of love that not only rejoices and weeps with the other person, but also the kind the early church had where they shared all their possessions as anyone had need. It's the kind that doesn't simply say, "I wish you well, I hope you'll be warm and well-fed," but says, "What do you need? What I have is at your disposal!" I read a story about a group years ago that had gathered to pray for a family who were in great financial straits. While one of the deacons was offering a fervent prayer for blessing upon the family, there was a loud knock at the door. The door opened, and there stood a farmer's sturdy boy. "What do you want, boy?" asked one of the elders. "Pa couldn't come, so I brought his prayers in the wagon." said the boy. "What do you mean?" asked the astonished elder. "Yes, I've brought his prayers, just come out and help me, please, and we'll bring them in." On reaching the wagon, they discovered that "Pa's prayers" consisted of potatoes, flour, beef, oatmeal, turnips, apples, jellies, and clothing. The prayer meeting adjourned on short notice. The point is not that we shouldn't pray, but that as we pray, we should also love through sharing what God has given us with one another, money, a ride, our home or whatever it is. Secondly, God's love will manifest itself in:

2. a hospitality that cares for strangers (2) We'll have philadelphia and philoxenia, the love of strangers, a heart that goes out to people we don't even know and is willing to help them. In that day there were not a Holiday Inn or a Marriott in every town. What few inns there were, were the kind Jesus was almost born in. When you would travel, you would walk or ride as far as you could get by dark to whatever village there was and you often had to depend on someone to open their home to a stranger or spend the night in the street. When Paul traveled in his missionary enterprise or when Christian teachers went from place to place to encourage the church, they were dependent on people they didn't know to open their homes. The same principle still works in many parts of the world today and caring for strangers is a cherished value in society. Our self-sufficient suburban world may be different, but it doesn't eliminate God's desire for us to love people we don't know and come to their aid. And the writer comments ...some have even entertained angels without knowing it. I'm sure he's thinking of Abraham, who in Gen. 18 saw three strangers coming to his tent and he invited them to rest and fed them and it turned out that though they looked like men, that one was the Lord and the other two were angels who went down to Sodom and rescued his nephew Lot who also took them in as strangers and protected them. The point is not that you should care for strangers in case one turns out to be an angel; it is that your love should care for strangers and you never know what God is up to in those you're helping and how you will be used by Him in the process! Thirdly, His love will manifest itself in:

3. an empathy with those who suffer (3) I chose the word empathy rather than sympathy because in English, sympathy is more like a feeling of pity for someone in trouble, while empathy means to really identify with the person in their suffering, to go through it and endure it with them. Even to say "as though you were suffering" sounds like you're pretending. It really means, as suffering together with them, allowing your heart to feel their pain and walking through it together. Those in prison in that day were not the bad guys, but the good guys, believers who had been arrested and jailed for their faith. And in the ancient world, prisoners often didn't get food, clothing or medical care unless friends and family brought it to them. It's still that way in much of the world, not just in jails, but also in hospitals. In Kyrgyzstan, my host Andre went to see his friend in the hospital and took him ham and other food because patients don't get enough to eat to grow stronger. Family will often do nursing duty, change bedpans, bathe the person and whatever, because there is no care. Our institutions may be different, but we still have lots of people who are in a place of suffering in their lives, whether they struggle with a disease, whether they struggle with the inability of old age, whether they have been in an accident or experienced a deep loss. And our love compels us to enter into it with them and walk through it with them, to hurt with them and suffer with them and pray and talk and comfort and hug and whatever else will help them. Fourthly, God's love will manifest itself in:

4. a commitment to honor the sanctity and the purity of marriage (4) The inherent danger in caring for people at a deep level is that if it involves a male and a female, it is possible to be drawn into an emotional romantic involvement with them or even to be tempted to sexual sin. But those who are genuinely filled with the love and the Spirit of God believe with the very core of their being that God has instituted marriage between a husband and wife as a sacred inviolable bond and they honor it, whether it's their own or the other's, always and in all circumstances. Sex belongs only in marriage and there it is an honorable God-given gift, pure and holy. But when a husband or wife seeks romance or sex outside the marriage bond with someone else or when two people, young or old, seek sex without the bond of marriage, it's wrong and evil, not to mention immensely destructive in their lives. And, contrary to the message our culture sends us, the author reminds us strongly of a general principle, that ...God will judge those who violate either the marriage bond through adultery or His boundary that sex belongs ONLY in marriage. Fifth, God's love in us will manifest itself in:

5. a contentment with the material because of the eternal (5-6) We had philadelphia and philoxenia; now we have a warning against philarguria, the love of money, which, Paul writes to Timothy, is the root of every kind of evil and causes people to stray from the faith and to pierce themselves with many griefs and sorrows. It's so easy for covetousness, the desire to have more, to creep into our lives and become an idol. But the antidote is a spiritual contentment. By that I mean, not simply kind of an iron-willed, self-disciplined "I will be content with whatever I have and suffer for God!" attitude, but an attitude that says, "I have a God who has promised never to leave me nor forsake me, who has called Himself in the Psalms my helper, the one who hears and answers my cry!" I have a never-ending Resource, a source of supply that will never dry up, who can feed a widow and her son and a prophet for a year on a handful of flour and a little oil or feed 5000 with five loaves and two fishes! I can be content with what He's given me because He always knows what I really need and gives it to me. The point is God will never abandon you, so why be anxious? Why worry about material things and seek after them and live for them? Why sell my soul to work night and day, to climb the corporate ladder, to make a better lifestyle, when I have Him and He's all I need and people are what's really important! Then sixth, God's love will manifest itself in:

6. an attitude that respects the integrity of our leaders (7) It's sad to say, but we live in a culture that plays right into the pride of our flesh because we've lost the sense of valuing and respecting authority. We have an attitude that says, "I know more than my parents. I know more than my teachers. I know more than older people. I know more than my boss. I am the center of my life and I know what's best for me and what's right. I am my own ultimate authority." We sit in judgment over the authorities in our lives all the time, pointing out their failures instead of valuing their wisdom and appreciating them and learning and growing. And that carries over into the spiritual realm as well. God's desire for us is that we understand and respect the integrity of those who led us to Christ, those who teach us the Word of God, those who are more mature in the faith than we are and have walked with the Lord through years of the refining process, those who in the church are our teachers and our elders and our pastors. His desire is that we trust them and value them and honor them in two ways. First, in verse 7 by:

a. seeing God at work in their lives and imitating their faith I look at the gentle persevering patience without complaining that God has built into one brother, at the deep wisdom that God has built into another through years of facing difficult problem situations in leadership, at the tears of compassion and the teachability that God has built into another, or the giving heart of still another. There are so many who've been a tremendous example, both men and women who are here in this body, that I can't name them all, including many that are now in heaven. Yes, they're human beings who have flaws, but when I look at what walking with Jesus Christ does in them, I want to be like them. I want to imitate their faith. I want to live like they live and trust like they do. I want Jesus to produce that fruit in my life. That's the first way we value and honor them, by imitation. The second is by:

b. willingly submitting to their leadership (17-18) Regard them as a gift from God and listen to them and follow them; take their advice. Make their work a joy, not a burden. Gary Corwin wrote this, You can only exercise and sustain personal leadership to the extent that you can bear pain. He adds that the pain of leadership often comes from fatigue and being overwhelmed with an avalanche of conflicting duties, from being the bad guy who has to convey bad news or settle a difficult problem, from the self-centeredness of people who want their own way, from the burden of making decisions in times of crisis and from entering into the pain of the multitude of those under their care and being deeply involved in their crises. And on top of that they have to account to God for how well they handled it; they have the burden of not failing Him as an example and a leader. Think about it. People are not standing in line to be leaders. The pattern is that people break down under the burden of leadership. They quit the ministry; they step down from their positions in the church because it's too much; they give up teaching. It's a whole lot easier to be a follower! But you can love them and make their task a whole lot easier by willingly listening to them and submitting to them and following them as they follow Jesus. When you resist and complain and criticize and generally act like Israel did toward Moses in the wilderness, you not only make leadership an intolerable burden but you shoot yourself in the foot! You keep them from being used in your life the way God intends them to be!

Well, that's loving others. Now, in the second part of chapter 13, the writer tells us that when we comprehend the length and the breadth and the depth of God's love, then He is able to build in us:

II. A Life That Is Continually Filled With Love For Jesus (8-16), and that manifests itself in four specific ways. First, in:

1. rejecting the strange teachings that abound (8-9a) They abounded then and they do now. This group says Jesus was just a great religious teacher of the past, just a man. That group says that we should emphasize the angels and try to get "our personal angel" to reveal himself to us instead of worshipping Jesus Christ as God. The next group says He died so that you could have anything you want, that new car, that healing for your body; it's yours. Another group knocks on your door to tell you that he is coming back again and only those that belong to their group can survive to be in the new world order. None of this is new. These things are winds of doctrine that have been blowing this way and that way for 2000 years but Jesus Christ is the same then as He is now and always will be. Stand by the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints, that was passed on to you through your leaders and bore such fruit in their lives. If you genuinely love Him, nothing will move you from your faith. And secondly, you'll be:

2. clinging to grace instead of legalism (9b-10) In that day and out of their Jewish background it was the dietary laws; some foods are clean and others are unclean, so as long as you don't eat them, you're OK. In this century it has been at various times and places things like movies and dancing and smoking or women wearing pants and makeup and jewelry or men with beards and long hair or using a certain Bible translation or music styles. There is always some cultural thing, some tradition that somebody wants to elevate into a law. "To please God, you MUST...." But a heart that really loves God clings to grace, clings to the freedom which was bought for us on the altar of the cross and refuses to think that keeping a bunch of man-made rules makes us acceptable to Him. Thirdly, if you love Him you'll have a:

3. willingness to bear rejection for leaving the old system (11-14) Now keep in mind that this letter is written to Jewish believers, people who were Jews before believing and still have strong ties to the Temple and the sacrifices. The author has a special message for them. "Our Lord Jesus was the great once-for-all sin offering. And He died on a cross outside the camp, outside the city on that hill called Calvary. The Temple kept on offering its sacrifices as usual. Don't be afraid to go out there to Him; don't be afraid to leave behind the Temple and the sacrifices and all the trappings of the Jewish religious system for Jesus. Let it go; give it up. Yes, it will be seen as a disgrace and bring rejection to you by religious people who don't understand, just like they rejected Jesus, but go anyway!" If you love Him, you'll cling to Jesus alone and let go of any false religious system, whether it's Judaism, or Islam or Buddhism or whether it's some dead form of Christianity that is just a bunch of rituals and rules without Christ. Yes, your family will get upset; yes, your friends and neighbors may get upset. But go anyway! If you love Him, being true to Jesus means more than anything. And finally, if you love Him, you'll be:

4. offering to God the sacrifices He desires (15-16) You won't be offering animals on an altar of stone, but sacrifices in the temple of your daily life and the author names three. We'll worship Him by:

a. the speaking of praise with our lips continually. Every day, in every circumstance, we repeatedly come to Him and in our hearts and with our mouths tell Him how wonderful He is, how great He is, how much we love Him, how worthy He is and how much He deserves all the glory. If you really love Him, you can't stop marveling at Him and telling Him so with your lips. Secondly, we'll worship Him by:

b. the practice of good in our deeds Jesus went about doing good and so will we. Our life will overflow with deeds that are right and good and kind and loving. Each one is an act of worship. And thirdly, if we love Him, we'll worship Him by:

c. the depth of fellowship in our relationships That word share is literally, koinonia, or fellowship. It's that depth of love for our brothers and sisters that shares not only our heart, but everything we have with them as we spoke of at the beginning.

Those are the sacrifices God really wants. And if we love Him, those are the sacrifices that will flow from our lives.

Well, we can't leave the book of Hebrews without a benediction and in verses 20-21 the author gives us one. It sums up what we've seen throughout Hebrews, but it's a prayer. And I'd like to pray it for you and with you right now.

"May the God of peace, who through the blood of the eternal covenant brought back from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, equip you with everything good for doing his will, and may he work in us what is pleasing to him, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen."

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Love (Vs. 1)

If you know anything about Hebrews, what you likely remember is that it's deep stuff. The first 12 chapters present a cogent, well-thought-out doctrinal argument that Christ is superior to angels, superior to Moses, that He is a superior High Priest, that He made a superior sacrifice and served in a better sanctuary, all to prove that Jesus is sufficient; He is ALL we need! And then, tacked on the end of it all, comes chapter 13, which seems at first glance to simply be a list of 11 different and randomly arranged exhortations about various points of living the Christian life. It's so different from the rest that some commentators have gone so far as to suggest that it was added by a different author or that the author needed to make the whole thing into a letter and so appended this onto the end. But let me tell you what I think; Hebrews 13 explains Heb. 12:28. That phrase worship God acceptably is literally serve God in a well-pleasing fashion. It is not a phrase about bowing down with proper reverence; it is about living a life of service that is well-pleasing to God! What does a life lived in true reverence and awe look like? What is A LIFE WELL LIVED? The first answer the author gives is in verse 1. It is A LIFE OF LOVE! The main Greek word is philadelphia and the verse says literally, the philadelphia continue, that is, the-loving-of-brothers continue. You sure can't miss the main point:

I. Our Lives Should Be Filled With Love For Our Fellow Believers Now as soon as I say that, it sounds like another "to-do" thing that I have to accomplish. I have to make sure that I love everybody. But actually, it's not that at all. It's an easy thing and let me show you why:

1. there is a special bond of love between believers in Christ - Gal. 6:10 says ...as we have opportunity, let us do good to all people, especially to those who belong to the family of believers. The bond that we have with fellow believers is different from the relationships that we have with others all around us. Through our salvation we were born again into a new family, the family whose Father is God, the family of believers, the household of faith. And just as being born into our earthly family implanted within us a special kind of family love for our siblings and parents, even so when we were born into God's family, a special love for that family was implanted:

a. it was placed in us during our regeneration Look with me at 1 John 5:1. John says it's automatic. It's not something you have to work up or generate on your own. When you believe, you're born again and because you're born again, you love God and EVERYONE who loves God loves his brothers and sisters in the family. It's automatic! It's a consequence of spiritual birth. In fact, look at 3:14. It's one way you can tell that you're saved. Saved people love their brothers and sisters in Christ. If you don't love them, you're still spiritually dead; you haven't really been made alive in Christ! Love for our brothers and sisters:

b. it is the natural fruit of being born into God's family Paul put it like this in 1 Thes. 4:9, Now about brotherly love we do not need to write to you, for you yourselves have been taught by God to love each other. Literally, the Greek says you've been GOD-taught to do it. How? Not in word, not by hearing a command. The Spirit of God who lives in you built it right in! You instinctively know it and do it, the same way that you instinctively love your natural parents and your brothers and sisters. Nobody has to teach you to do that. It's built right in and so is the love of your spiritual family. It's inside you, a part of your Christ-like new nature, whether you happen to feel it at this moment or not. Now, what's it like?

2. it is a tender love like that of parent and child - Rom. 12:10 says in Greek In philadelphia, philostorgoi The Literal Version translates it, In brotherly love to one another, loving fervently. Storgos is the tender, deep affection that a parent has for a child. Paul says, in loving your brothers and sisters in Christ, love them like that! This love we have for one another is not merely a mechanical commitment that says, "I'll help you" or "I'll take care of you", the fulfilling of a responsibility. It is an emotional thing, a fervently passionate thing, a bond of the heart, not simply of the mind. And because it is of the heart:

a. it is multi-faceted and all-encompassing Look with me at 1 Pet. 3:8. All of those things spell out the results of philadelphia, brotherly love. That tender love of our brothers:

(1) it results in harmony with one another. What's that? Does that mean we always agree on everything? No, it means having a like mindset. We're not adversaries with different goals, each trying to get our own way. We're brothers and sisters who care deeply about each other, who value each other more than self and always want what's best for one another and for our Father! We're a unit, a family that operates in togetherness out of love. Then notice that:

(2) it results in empathy. The NIV uses the word sympathy, but we so often take that to mean feeling sorry for someone. Empathy means what the original means here, sharing in the other's experience, rejoicing with those who rejoice and weeping with those who weep, because their joy makes you happy and their sadness makes you sad. You suffer together with them and you rejoice together with them. Love makes you enter into what they are experiencing and go through it with them. And similarly:

(3) it results in compassion, which in the Greek language is literally about feeling it in your gut. True compassion is actually feeling what the other feels. Scott Bessenecker wrote this about his daughter: "Across the street from us there lives a girl who is a year and a half older than our daughter Hannah. Hannah really looks up to this neighbor and loves to play with her. The problem is this girl's friends are all eight or nine, and when they're around, she really doesn't want anything to do with little Hannah. Now Hannah is fairly shy, and normally she wouldn't be caught dead knocking on someone's door for fear that someone might actually answer it. But, for love of this neighbor, she will walk excitedly up to her door and knock, albeit gingerly. Once, looking across the street, I could see that this neighbor was inside with some friends and obviously in no mood to play with Hannah. I think Hannah must have stood at the door for fifteen minutes, knocking politely every so often. I suffered with Hannah. As I watched, I entered into Hannah's rejection more than she will ever know. In fact, I experienced the sting of her rejection more profoundly than she did because I could see her friend's face through the window of the other house, but Hannah couldn't. [Student Leadership Journal, Winter 1996. Page 11.] If we love one another, we feel the depth of each other's pain. We can't help it! In fact, 1 Jn. 3:17 says, If anyone has material possessions and sees his brother in need but has no pity on him, how can the love of God be in him? If the love of God is really in us, we can't watch our brother sitting there hungry with nothing to eat or our sister unable to pay her electric bill in a dark house. We can't see these things and pass by like the Levite and the priest on the other side! No, love:

(4) it results in kindness. I'm not sure how the NIV got humble; the Greek is another philo word, philophron, a loving mind, a loving attitude, or what we would call kindness to the other. In Acts 28 Paul was shipwrecked on the island of Malta and verse 7 says, Now in the neighborhood of that place were lands belonging to the leading man of the island, named Publius, who welcomed us and entertained us courteously [same word] three days. Publius saw them cold and wet and hungry and treated them with kindness. His welcoming attitude fed them and clothed them and sheltered them. Love results in doing something, in meeting the other's needs. And then we read that this love for our brothers and sisters:

b. it is filled with patience and forgiveness Listen to Eph. 4:1-2, As a prisoner for the Lord, then, I urge you to live a life worthy of the calling you have received. Be completely humble and gentle; be patient, bearing with one another in love. Patience is literally, longsuffering, being willing to put up with things, to suffer for a long time without retaliating. Bearing with each other is putting up with each other's faults and flaws and failings because we love each other. Peter wanted to know how far this goes and asked Jesus how often he should forgive his brother who sinned against him. He generously suggested 7 times. But Jesus said, "No, 70 times 7!" You do it over and over and over again! If we love each other, we put up with each other and forgive each other over and over again because that's what love does!

It might really help us to look at this kind of love in a real life setting, so if you think about where we really see this in the Bible:

3. one example of that love would be Jonathan and his love for David. Turn with me back to 1 Sam. 18:1-3. Now why did that happen? Jonathan is the firstborn son of the king; he is next in line for the throne. He grew up in the palace as royalty and he is well-to-do. David is the last-born son of a common shepherd. He's been a harpist and a servant in the castle at times and on this day, he killed Goliath with a sling and a stone; he doesn't own a sword. Of course, he's been anointed by God to be the next king, but Jonathan doesn't know that at this point. What on earth produced this sudden deep love for David in Jonathan? Nothing I can think of; this was a God thing! God put it there and Jonathan was overwhelmed with it. He loved David as himself, as his own soul! He looked at him, listened to him talking to his father, and his heart said, "This is my brother; I love him!" Just like God plants this special fervent love for our brothers and sisters in us! Now look how that love played out in Jonathan's life. Immediately:

a. he gave David what he needed - 18:4 David had nothing. He had come to the battle with only the clothes on his back and didn't get to go home. He didn't have a robe or a cloak or a weapon or even a belt. And Jonathan immediately said, "Here, take mine!" Of course, as the king's son he probably had double of everything anyway, nevertheless that's what love does. It sees a brother or sister in need, looks at what I have and gives it without hesitation. Whether it is items like this or money or a place to stay or a ride, when your heart is knit to a brother you say, "Here, let me help!" in any way you can. Then we read that:

b. he protected David - 19:1-2 By this time Saul is jealous of David and wants to kill him to make sure the kingdom stays with him and his son. But Jonathan defied his own father and warned David right away. He protected him, even though it meant betraying his own blood father. His bond to David was deeper. If you remember, one day Jesus was teaching inside and somebody told him that his mother and his brothers were outside and wanted to see Him and He pointed to His followers and said, "Behold my mother and my brothers!" The bond that we have through the Spirit of God living in each of us is deeper than flesh and blood. It is not merely a bond of flesh and blood; it is a bond of the spirit. I have often confessed that I am so much closer to many of you than I am to a number of my own relatives. You really are my true family. We protect our brothers and sisters however we can, no matter what other obligations we may feel. And Jonathan went further:

c. he interceded on David's behalf - 19:4-6 He went right to his father and challenged him with the injustice of it. His father was an angry man and had a temper problem. He knew there was a risk involved, but he jumped right in with both feet and went to bat for David. Loving our brothers means getting involved, doing whatever we can to intercede on their behalf, stepping in front of them to protect them if there's a way to do that. I always remember that love that our elders have shown to me over the years when we've had some incredibly difficult things to face; they would say, "No, we don't want you to be the one to go; we want to protect you. We will go and face this!" And they did. Of course, Saul's promise didn't last and he ended up hunting David with an army for 10 years while David hid in the wilderness. But even there, Jonathan:

d. he encouraged David - 23:15-18 Oh listen to that! No jealousy! "You will be king and I will be under you!" This was the hardest time of David's life. He was a hunted outlaw hiding for his life. And Jonathan's love so encouraged him to keep on and wait patiently for the Lord! Oh, we are there for each other in the hardest of times, in moments of great loss, of tragedy, of suffering and pain. Our brothers and sisters are there and walk through it with us because they love us. It is no wonder that after Jonathan died in battle:

e. David mourned deeply for Jonathan - 2 Sam. 1:25-26 That's the love, the love of brothers and sisters, that God puts in us; it truly is a wonderful thing. It's an unnatural thing. It's something you don't find out there in the world. There everyone chooses themselves above others. So, naturally:

4. it is this bond of love that identifies us to the world Jesus told his disciples in the upper room, A new command I give you: Love one another. As I have loved you, so you must love one another. By this all men will know that you are my disciples, if you love one another. - John 13:34-35. For years before he came to Christ, the husband of one of our dear ladies used to say, "I never saw anything like that church of yours. They bring us meals, they give us rides, they visit us. They do so much for us!" He saw that love in operation, saw us loving our own as we loved his wife, and by extension himself. And I think that's a big part of what prepared him to receive Christ. This depth of love we have for each other is simply unnatural and it makes the world sit up and say, "I want in on that!"

However, what the writer of Hebrews is pointing out to us is that even though that love is divinely placed within us:

II. Staying Filled With That Love Requires Continual Effort The Amplified version reads, LET LOVE for your fellow believers continue and be a fixed practice with you [never let it fail]. It is a passive command. You can't generate that love; God has put it there. However, you have to make every effort to sustain it. Look with me at 1 Pet. 1:22. You have a choice to make. You see:

1. our flesh constantly pushes us to limit our love Everything about how we were raised and the culture that we live in and the power of sin that still lives in us pressures us to go against our new nature. It pressures us:

a. to choose who we will love, to love the ones who are more lovable or perhaps the ones who love us back. As we look around the body of Christ there are brothers and sisters who we don't really like, who bothers, who talk too much, who dress funny, who keep to themselves, who...you name it. It's so easy and natural to love the ones we like and ignore the rest. That's called partiality, choosing one above another. James wrote, My brothers, as believers in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ, don't show favoritism. - James 2:1. Love them all alike! And our flesh pressures us:

b. to choose how much we will love, to set limits and say we'll help this much, but no more; we'll get involved this far, but no farther, especially if there's risk involved. At the bottom line we'll take care of ourselves first. That's called hypocrisy, saying that we love but not really meaning it. Again, James wrote, Suppose a brother or sister is without clothes and daily food. If one of you says to him, "Go, I wish you well; keep warm and well fed," but does nothing about his physical needs, what good is it? - James 2:16. The words are empty; the love is hollow.

Our flesh is continually whispering, "Don't love! Don't love! Look out for yourself!" What can we do to keep our love from fading out, from being pushed aside by the tyranny of our self-centered thinking? Try harder? Work at it more? NO! This love was put in us by the Spirit; it is the fruit of the Spirit at work in us, so the only way for it to rule in our lives is, Gal. 5:16, But I say, walk by the Spirit, and you will not carry out the desire of the flesh.

2. we must continually live by the Spirit to exhibit His love! It's simple! We just realize our own reluctance and call on the Holy Spirit to love the brother or sister in front of us and HE will do it! He will give us the love we need!

As you know, Corrie ten Boom suffered terribly in a concentration camp in Nazi Germany, but after the war traveled the world preaching the depths of the love of God. Yet even she had trouble loving. She writes: It was at a church service in Munich that I saw him, the former S.S. man who had stood guard at the shower room door in the processing center at Ravensbruck. He was the first of our actual jailers that I had seen since that time. And suddenly it was all there--the roomful of mocking men, the heaps of clothing, Betsie's pain-blanching face. He came up to me as the church was emptying, beaming and bowing. "How grateful I am for your message, Fraulein," he said. "To think that, as you say, He has washed my sins away!" His hand was thrust out to shake mine. And I, who had preached so often to the people in Bloemendaal the need to forgive, kept my hand at my side. Even as the angry, vengeful thoughts boiled through me, I saw the sin of them. Jesus Christ had died for this man; was I going to ask for more? "Lord Jesus," I prayed, "forgive me and help me to forgive him." I tried to smile. I struggled to raise my hand. I could not. I felt nothing, not the slightest spark of warmth or charity. And so again I breathed a silent prayer. "Jesus, I cannot forgive him. Give me Your forgiveness." As I took his hand the most incredible thing happened. From my shoulder along my arm and through my hand a current seemed to pass from me to him, while into my heart sprang a love for this stranger that almost overwhelmed me. And so, I discovered that it is not on our forgiveness any more than on our goodness that the world's healing hinges, but on His. When He tells us to love our enemies, He gives, along with the command, the love itself. [The Hiding Place - Corrie Ten Boom - p. 238] When He tells us to love our brothers and sisters, He gives, along with the command, the love itself! To never let love fail, you must call on Him!

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Hospitality (Vs. 2)

In verse 1 of Hebrews 13 we learned that a life well lived, a life that is well-pleasing to God, is filled with philadelphia, a deep, passionate love for our brothers and sisters in Christ. Now look at verse 2. Not only should we love our brothers, but:

I. Our Lives Should Be Filled With The Love Of Strangers The words to entertain strangers are really one word in Greek, philoxenia. It is usually translated hospitality, but it literally means the love of strangers. That same passionate love and caring that we have for each other as family in Christ, we are also to have for strangers, for people we don't even know. The word stranger refers primarily to a foreigner, an alien, someone whose home is somewhere else, but finds himself here among us for some reason and so has no family, no support system here. We're to include them in ours, to become their caring support system, instead of leaving them to flounder helplessly. We have numerous:

1. some examples of it in Scripture, but I'll just mention two. First is:

a. Publius, whom we mentioned last week, the guy that took care of Paul and his companions after their shipwreck. Acts 28:7, There was an estate nearby that belonged to Publius, the chief official of the island. He welcomed us to his home and for three days entertained us hospitably. Here are some 200 people who have crawled out of the ocean after a shipwreck, wet, cold and hungry, and this guy opens his estate and cares for them all somehow for a couple of days until other arrangements can be made! Now that's hospitality! Hospitality is hundreds of churches like ours sending teams to Gulfport Mississippi and other Gulf cities after Hurricane Katrina destroyed thousands of homes and doing our best to rebuild because we saw people in trouble. The other example I'll mention is:

b. Job, who characterizes his own life this way, ...no stranger had to spend the night in the street, for my door was always open to the traveler - Job 31:32. Hospitality is what some of our missionary friends did in New York City some years ago, when a Russian family from Kyrgyzstan arrived there assuming they would find fellow Russians to take them in. Our friends found them in the park and took five adults into their two bedroom apartment for two days until we could find a house here in Glenside to put them in. And many of you helped them in those days in so many ways. That love of strangers, of people who are out of their element, who desperately need help, that's hospitality. Now this:

2. it was an absolute necessity in the ancient world In that day there was no Marriott or even a Motel 6 in every town. What inns there were, were the kind that Jesus was almost born in, there in Bethlehem, just a building to take shelter in with a stable for animals attached. No food services or bathrooms! So:

a. almost any extended travel depended on hospitality You would walk or ride as far as you could get by dark to whatever village there was and you usually had to depend on someone to approach you and open their home to a stranger or else you spent the night in the street. There are numerous examples of this practice throughout the Old Testament. And it is still a common value and practice in many eastern cultures today. When Jesus sent out his disciples to preach, He depended on this principle, that they would be taken in by someone and should stay with that person and if no one would take them in, they should wipe the dust off their feet as they left town. The missionary work of Paul depended on it. He traveled from town to town and in each place counted on finding someone who would take him in. In fact:

b. Christian mission and growth depended on it Turn with me to 3 John 5-8. In these early years missionaries and evangelists would often travel in an itinerant fashion doing the work of church planting and building up the churches. And faithful folks like those John was writing to would take them into their homes and feed them and stock them up with what they needed for their journey and send them on their way. John says that when we do this, we are sharing with them in their ministry, partnering with them. We are co-laboring with them. This is what we do with our own missionaries when they come to town. When we send them on their way in a manner worthy of God, we please Him greatly. The Amplified version of Heb. 13:2 says, Do not forget or neglect or refuse to extend hospitality to strangers [in the brotherhood--being friendly, cordial, and gracious, sharing the comforts of your home and doing your part generously]. That's what these brethren were doing and this gift of loving strangers is what grew the church all across the Roman Empire! Now the Scriptures go a step further. It is not just necessary or even commendable:

3. it is a mark of spiritual maturity that can be applied to us and used to evaluate us across the board. It is a mark of maturity:

a. for men The men you pick to be elders of the church MUST be people who have this kind of heart. Now the overseer must be above reproach, the husband of but one wife, temperate, self-controlled, respectable, hospitable [that is, a lover of strangers]! - 1 Tim. 3:2. Titus 1:8 repeats it, rather he must be hospitable... You don't put a man into leadership, you don't elect him to the elder board, you don't call him as a pastor, unless he is a man who has a love for strangers and is willing to open his heart and open his home to them! Why? Because it's a mark of what it means to be mature, a mark of being Christlike and ready to lead! I don't think I've ever heard an ordination council ask that question! But you women are not off the hook, because the same thing is commanded:

b. for women - 1 Tim. 5:10 says the church shouldn't support and take care of a widow unless she... is well known for her good deeds, such as bringing up children, showing hospitality, washing the feet of the saints, helping those in trouble and devoting herself to all kinds of good deeds. Loving strangers with a heart of compassion is a mark of spirituality for women as well as for men. Why? Because:

4. it is a reflection of the heart of God Turn with me back to Deut. 10:17-19. Did you see that? God loves aliens! Not little green Martians! God loves strangers, foreigners, refugees, travelers, people who are out of their element, who are stuck away from home and have needs, just like He loves widows and orphans who can't provide for themselves. He is the Champion of the needy. His heart is touched with their needs and He gives them food and clothing. And because of that, we are to love strangers also! Israel had a very personal reason for this that was still fresh in their minds when Moses wrote this. They were to remember what it felt like to be strangers because not long before, they were strangers themselves in the land of Egypt! They were to remember what it was like to be an oppressed, powerless minority that was taken advantage of and not repeat that kind of treatment to others in that situation! So, if we are maturing and our heart is becoming like God's heart, we are filled with mercy. We simply love people whether we know them or not and are touched with their needs and want to meet them.

Now wouldn't you know it, as I'm sitting at my computer on Friday working on this paragraph, the phone rings and on the other end is a single father with two sons who's construction business has gone under from the recession and he's desperately trying not to be evicted from his rented house on Monday. He has another job lined up but needs about 2 months before he can make a go of it. The churches of the Willow Grove Ministerium are trying to help him. I don't know him from Adam and it would be so easy to make excuses. Our Elders Fund only has $67 in it today. We helped keep a single mom from being evicted last month with a couple hundred. We helped save another man from eviction in January. We have some of our own people who are out of work and are going to need help. But what good is any of that to a guy who doesn't know where his kids are going to sleep next week. My heart just couldn't walk away from it. God just kept pricking my heart to look at his need compared to mine, so I wrote him a check. I tell you that, not to blow my own horn, but to try to illustrate for you what hospitality really is. It's not having your friends over for a nice meal or graciously inviting them to stay with you while they're in town. It is to see the need of anybody, even a complete stranger to you, and to have compassion on them and meet their need. Jesus said that the second greatest commandment in the law is to love your neighbor as yourself. But immediately the religious people asked him, "Ah, but who is my neighbor??" And in response to that question Jesus told the story of the Good Samaritan, the point of which is that your “neighbor” is any old guy that you find lying in a ditch in need of help! The question is not WHO you should help, but whether you will be a HELPER or not! And that’s the second thing that our text is trying to point out:

II. Staying Filled With That Love Requires Effort Because We Forget Inside us is our flesh, our life-programming that is centered around “the big I”. It screams, “But what about MY needs, MY wants! If I help somebody else it will keep me from this or that!” The culture around us is constantly urging us to look out for ourselves, telling us that we deserve things for ourselves. These voices will combine to drown out that love of strangers, to make it fade out and wax cold. That’s why the writer says, Do not forget...to entertain strangers, to show hospitality....

1. we’re forgetful If we don’t do something, make some conscious effort, this attitude will fade away and be forgotten. That’s why Paul wrote in Rom. 12:13 that we ought to, Share with God’s people who are in need. Practice hospitality. Literally, PURSUE hospitality. We must consciously pursue it, chase it down. Sharing with God’s people is a more natural thing for us; that love for them comes built in and it flows more naturally because of the joy that we get from the relationships we have with our fellow believers. But loving strangers brings no such personal reward. In many cases we may never see them again. It is always easier to walk by on the other side, to not get involved. Helping people is messy; it’s dirty; it’s time-consuming and costly. Sometimes it’s unappreciated or you get taken advantage of. It’s easy to learn to walk by the guy lying in the ditch. And every time you walk by, it gets easier to walk by it the next time. Love and compassion for people you don’t know must be deliberately pursued; it must be intentionally cultivated and carefully grown. We must make the effort to develop a mindset to practice it. Look with me at what Jesus said in Luke 6:30-38, “Give to everyone who asks you, even if they’re your enemies. Give because you’re merciful like God is and you have pity on them in their situation. Give because you’re a child of God and you trust Him to meet your needs even as you do it!” When’s the last time you heard a message on that text? It’s not a very popular sermon text, is it? We don’t like to hear it, but that’s the attitude that JESUS commands us to have. It is totally opposite everything that we would naturally be and we won’t develop it unless we pay attention to it, unless we wake up and deliberately stay in touch with the Lord and listen to Him and choose that path! Then the other thing that tends to keep us from loving strangers is that:

2. we grow tired of it The requests never seem to end. The needs are endless. We help and we help and afterwhile we find ourselves helping, but not really wanting to. We find ourselves helping as a duty rather than a desire and we do it with an attitude that begrudges the very help we’re giving. That’s why Peter says, Offer hospitality to one another without grumbling. - 1 Pet. 4:9. Literally, without murmuring, without muttering under your breath, without secretly begrudging what you’re doing. He’s saying that we must choose to have a right attitude as we do it, the first time and every time! I’m sure you know some of those people who somehow always need help, who never seem to have it together like you do. Oh, how easy it is to judge them, to think we’re better than they are and to begrudge them the very help we give them. All I can say is that it’s a good thing God is not like that, because we’re back to Him every day with our list of needs! Yet He LOVES to meet them. We’re talking about the LOVE of strangers here, not the duty to help them. Ask Him to grow that LOVE in you! Now lastly, here’s an exciting thought in our Heb. 13:2 text, ...for by so doing some people have entertained angels without knowing it.:

III. Exercising That Love Leads To Incredible But Unrecognized Opportunities You see:

1. the strangers you help could turn out to be angels That was the case for Abraham way back in Gen. 18, wasn’t it? Three strangers came walking up to his tent in the heat of the day and he showed tremendous hospitality. He invited them in and had Sarah kill a calf and make a meal for them. He refreshed them and it turned out that two of them were angels who were on their way down to Sodom to rescue Lot and destroy the city in chapter 19! And the third stranger was the Lord Himself in human form! And ultimately this act of hospitality led to the opportunity for Abraham to intercede with the Lord for the city of Sodom in that famous interchange, “But what if only 5 righteous are found there?” Remember? Sure, the strangers you help, that you entertain, that you give to, could turn out to be angels, but the point is not that you have to make sure you always help strangers because one of them could turn out to be a literal angel and if you didn’t help him, you’d be in trouble. The point is that God is at work doing something in and through those strangers and through your act of giving. God is up to something, He’s doing something. The strangers could be His messengers in some fashion, people He’s planning to use in some way for some purpose unknown to you and if you don’t help them, you miss out on being a part of something incredible that God is doing and wants to do through you! I remember a little boy one day who was the only one in a whole crowd who was smart enough to bring his lunch. He could have kept it and eaten it himself, but he gave it to Jesus to give to a bunch of strangers and Jesus multiplied it to feed all 5,000. That act of love gave Jesus the opportunity to show His glory to a whole nation that day and has kept on doing that for 2,000 years as the story has been read over and over again. You see, Jesus is always up to something. Jesus is out to get glory for Himself, to make Himself known. And this person He’s set in front of you to help is His invitation to you to get involved, to participate in whatever He is up to in that person’s life and far beyond! You may never get the privilege of being made aware of exactly how He used it, yet you can always rest assured that He did. But even if the strangers you help don’t turn out to actually be angels, don’t be disappointed; I want to let you in on a little secret:

2. the strangers always turn out to be “Jesus” Turn with me to Mat. 25:35-40. Jesus says, “I was the stranger! When you loved that stranger, you loved ME!”

An American poet, Edwin Markham, told about a cobbler, a godly man who made shoes. One night the cobbler dreamed that the next day Jesus was coming to visit. It seemed real and he got up early to decorate his shop for his Guest. He waited, but the shop remained quiet, except for an old man who limped up to the door asking to come in for a few minutes of warmth. While the man rested, the cobbler noticed his worn shoes and gave him a new pair. In the afternoon, an elderly woman came, and seeing her struggling earlier under a heavy load, he invited her in to rest and gave her a nourishing meal. At night, a child was heard crying outside his door, lost and afraid. He went out, soothed the child, and took the child home. When he returned, the cobbler was sad, convinced the Lord had come while he was away. Now he lived through the moments as he had imagined them: the knock, the latch lifted, the radiant face, the offered cup. He would have kissed the hands where the nails had been, washed the feet where the spikes had entered. Then the Lord would have sat and talked to him. In his anguish, the cobbler cried out, “Why is it, Lord, that Your feet delay? Have you forgotten that this was the day?” Then, soft in the silence a voice he heard: “Lift up your heart for I kept My word. Three times I came to your friendly door; Three times My shadow was on your floor. I was the man with the bruised feet; I was the woman you gave to eat; I was the child on the homeless street.” Hospitality, the love of strangers, boils down simply to this: I tell you the truth, whatever you did for one of the least of these brothers of mine, you did for Me.

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Empathy (Vs. 3)

The life that God wants His children to live is, first of all, a life filled with love for our Christian brothers and sisters, as we saw in verse 1. Then in verse 2 we saw that it is a life filled with love for strangers too, for anybody whose life intersects ours. Verse 3 continues that same theme and applies it to another specific group of people and at the same time explores something of what the depths of that love is like. I’ve tried to express the concept by using the English word empathy. The life our Father wants us to live is a life filled with empathy. I deliberately avoided the word sympathy because to us that word too often means simply pity for others. We send sympathy cards to people who have lost a loved one, but too often that’s all we do. Doctors and all kinds of other professionals are taught to say, “I’m sorry for your loss.” We say it too, and then walk away and go on with our lives. We feel sad for somebody; we pity THEM, but it doesn’t change US. Empathy is different than that. Empathy is deeper than that. Empathy enters into their suffering. One online definition says, “Empathy is the capability to share and understand another’s emotion and feelings. It is often characterized as the ability to “put oneself into another’s shoes,” or in some way experience what the other person is feeling.” [Wikipedia] A little girl was so late coming home from school that her mother began to worry. Finally, when she got home, her mother asked her what happened. “I stopped to help a little girl. She was crying because her doll had broken,” said the child. “That was kind of you,” the mother said. “Did you help her fix the doll?” “No,” replied the girl. “I stopped to help her cry.” [Love in a Lunchbox by Elaine M. Ward. Abingdon, 1996. Page 96.] That’s empathy! She entered into her friend’s world of suffering and joined her. Now, the root of the process of empathizing with others for us is this wonderful truth:

I. God Empathizes With Us Turn with me to 2 Cor. 1:3-4. Now notice in verse 3 who God is:

1. He is the Father of compassion, the Father of mercy. He is touched by the feeling of our infirmities. In other words, He is deeply moved by our suffering. A father or mother enters deeply into their child’s suffering. Imagine Mary by the cross, watching Jesus suffer. Zacharias predicted exactly what would happen in that moment, ...a sword will pierce your own soul too. - Lk. 2:35. As her Child was dying, she was dying with Him on the inside. She entered into His suffering with her whole heart and that’s how God Himself enters into ours! He is with us every moment, not out there somewhere distantly watching us go through it, but right here IN us, experiencing it with us. He feels what we feel and He is deeply moved by it! But that is not all. Verse 3 says further:

2. He is the God of all comfort That root in the Greek is the word paraklete. It means that He does more than just feel our pain with us; He comes alongside us to help, to DO something about it, to comfort us, to meet the most immediate and pressing needs we have as we go through it. If the need is emotional comfort and peace, He will often speak to us through His Word. If it is financial trouble or a lost job, He provides for us in ways we couldn’t begin to expect. If we face disease or physical pain, He makes a way through and brings either healing or homegoing or the strength to endure for the long haul. He comforts us in every way that He knows we need it! But now look at verse 4:

3. He does this for us, intending that we do the same for others He is the Comforter and He intends that we will be like Him, that we will become comforters. He wants us to learn through Him empathizing with us in our suffering, entering in and walking through it with us and meeting our needs, to do the same for others. Paul put it like this in Gal. 6:2, Carry each other’s burdens, and in this way you will fulfill the law of Christ. You know how much easier it is when you’re carrying something heavy and somebody says, “Here let me help you!” and they grab hold of one end and bear the weight with you. You also know what it’s like for someone to watch you struggle past and say, “Man, that must be heavy!” Empathy is getting involved, entering in with all your heart, sharing the load, just the way God does with us! Now, back in our text in verse 3, the author begins by telling us:

II. Who We Should Empathize With and he mentions two particular groups of people, those who are in prison and those who are mistreated. Neither of those designations seem to be part of our American suburban experience, so let's try to paint the picture of what he's talking about by turning back to Heb. 10:32-35. We don't know exactly who the author is writing to; it's a general letter. But it IS written to believers from Jewish background and you know what happened to them when they believed, almost from the very beginning. Paul himself was the chief culprit who would hunt these defectors down and get them thrown in prison, even killed. After he came to Christ, he became the victim of the very same things everywhere he went. He was thrown in jail first in Philippi, then later for two whole years in Caesarea and still later for two years and more in Rome. As he traveled about, he was spoken against, threatened, beaten with rods, stoned and left for dead. And he was not the only one to whom all these things happened. Many believers in that early day had been thrown in prison for their faith and a great many had their homes and property confiscated and had to flee for their lives. And other believers had stood side by side with them as they were ill-treated or had ministered to them while they were in prison. That's why the writer says to remember:

1. those in prison The Expositor's Bible Commentary says, In the world of the first century the lot of prisoners was difficult. Prisoners were to be punished, not pampered. Little provision was made for them and they were dependent on friends for their supplies... But there was some risk, for the visitors became identified with the visited. You can see that in Acts 24:23 where Felix, ...ordered the centurion to keep Paul under guard but to give him some freedom and permit his friends to take care of his needs. They didn't give you an orange jumpsuit to wear; you wore what you had on until it went to rags and then you were naked. They didn't give you a blanket to keep you warm and a mattress to lie on; you laid on the cold stone floor in whatever clothes you had. They fed you barely enough food and water to keep you alive. If your friends didn't bring you something to wear and something to eat and a blanket to wrap in, you might well die in that prison and nobody would care! So, when believers were arrested and thrown in prison, you can see that it wasn't simply a nice thing for their brothers and sisters to remember them; it was a necessity! To visit those in prison was literally to give them life! But it was risky, because visiting them exposed you; it identified you as one of them and if somebody was taking note, you might be the next to join them. So, it was a brave act. And that is still true in many places in the world today. There are believers in prison as we sit here enjoying our freedom and the prisons haven't changed much since Paul's day. Here are some headlines from the persecution.com website: Converted Christian blogger released from prison in Saudi Arabia, Iran – Christian released after 27 Days in Prison, Pakistan – Young Christian Woman and her Father remain in Prison, China – Christian Released after Two Years, Three Christians Dead in Eritrean Prisons, and the list goes on and on. In country after country our brothers still are arrested and imprisoned for their faith. And other brothers and sisters are faithfully empathizing with and remembering them, visiting them, bringing them food and medicine and comfort. Then the writer says to remember:

2. those who are ill-treated, who receive bad or unjust treatment. Some of the believers were publicly denounced; some had their homes or lands confiscated. The word is used back in Heb. 11:25. Mistreatment is what the Egyptians did to the Israelites; they forced them to work as slave labor; they made their lives miserable with brick and mortar. And Moses is our example. He was a prince of Egypt and free from all of that, but he chose to enter into their suffering, to join them, to be mistreated along with them. Brothers and sisters around the world are still mistreated today. When a new religion law was passed some time ago in Kyrgyzstan, two registered congregations that had nice completed buildings like ours had them confiscated by the government. Can you imagine if next Sunday you would show up to a chain through the door handles and a sign that says, "Government property"? It's not right, but it happened. Another church was renting a public facility and they were suddenly told they could not meet there. God had the last laugh on that one; they began renting in the evening from another church and now even more people are coming! Still another church had a bunch of Bibles and Christian literature in their building and the authorities came and put it all in a room and padlocked the door until it could all be "approved" by the Religious Affairs committee. Injustice against believers occurs around the world and people are left, not merely churchless, but often homeless, jobless and desperately in need of help. If other brothers and sisters did not empathize with and remember them, they would be in dire straits and many would die. Now, of course, here we don't see much persecution and ill treatment, YET, but the principle of empathy and comforting and coming alongside to help extends to:

3. those in ANY trouble, as we read a moment ago in 2 Cor. 1:4. Those who are literally, pressed, squeezed, pressured. Some of our brothers and sisters face the hardship of disease. They may be in the hospital or end up having to live through a year's regimen of chemotherapy, or be in a nursing home to be cared for where nobody who was part of their lives comes to see them. I visited one brother in the rehab hospital some weeks ago who fell off a 2 ½ story roof and lost all movement below the neck. He's got a wife and 8 kids; imagine the need in that family! Glory to God, a good bit of it is now coming back, but he'll probably never be normal. Others are grieving the loss of loved ones and the painful adjustment to life without them. Still others face economic woes. At one point the number of people who were laid off was up to 6 or 7 in our little congregation this winter; praise the Lord a number are working again, but just last week two more lost their jobs. People are finding themselves unable to pay their mortgages or keep their cars. Older people living off their investments have seen what they labored for their whole lives dwindle in half and along with it their income. Our brothers and sisters everywhere - and right here - endure all kinds of suffering. And the Spirit's command to us through the Word is, Remember them! So let's talk about:

III. What It Means To Remember Or Empathize With Them

First of all, and most simply:

1. it means thinking about them frequently, that is, not forgetting about them God forbid that any of us would adopt the attitude, "Oh well, that's their problem; I've got enough troubles of my own." Or that we would pray for them once and then forget them. But even if our intentions are good, it is so easy to forget people, to get wrapped up in our own life and our own affairs and forget those who are suffering, to not even have them enter our minds. Out of sight is out of mind for many of us, including me. It requires making a conscious effort of some kind to remember. I don't know about you, but I need a prayer list, a written reminder, or I'll even forget to pray. And that leads right into saying that empathizing:

2. it means praying for them continually When Paul wrote the Colossians, he closed his letter in Col. 4:18 by saying, Remember my chains. What do you think he meant? "Think about me now and then; don't forget that I'm chained to a guard 24 hrs. a day here in Rome." No, he meant, "PRAY for me!" To the Ephesians he wrote, Pray also for me, that whenever I open my mouth, words may be given me so that I will fearlessly make known the mystery of the gospel, for which I am an ambassador in chains. Pray that I may declare it fearlessly, as I should. - Eph. 6:19-20. Many of the New Testament churches spent regular time praying for Paul during his imprisonment in Rome a thousand miles away! That brings up the concept that even though we can't do much to help our brothers and sisters around the world who are imprisoned or mistreated, we CAN pray for them! We do it regularly in our Wednesday night prayer group. You can enter into the sufferings of faraway brothers and sisters by prayer. You can go to persecution.com and pray and even write letters to imprisoned believers. But we must also pray continually for those who suffer near at hand. That's why we put a list of congregational concerns in your bulletin every Sunday and in the newsletter, so you'll take them home and pray for suffering brothers and sisters. That's why we put out prayer needs each week over our email chain, because we're commanded to remember those who are suffering. But empathizing is more than not forgetting and it's more than praying:

3. it means entering into their feelings I'm sure you've heard Rom. 12:15 quoted a hundred times, Rejoice with those who rejoice, and weep with those who weep. That doesn't mean, "Say, 'I'm so glad you're happy, that this good thing happened.' or 'I'm so sorry you're so sad, so sorry this bad thing happened!'" It means get in there and sit with them and feel their feelings; let what affected them affect you and when they laugh and rejoice, do it with them and when they cry, do it with them. Enter in. Feel their joy and their pain. Share in it. But on the other hand, empathizing isn't truly genuine unless it moves you to action:

4. it means helping them practically If you read Phil. 4:14, 18 you'll see how the Philippians shared in Paul's troubles, that is, his imprisonment; they sent one of their number all the way to Rome to deliver him a gift of money they collected. For those two years in Rome, Paul was chained to a guard in a rented house for which he had to pay and for his own food and so on. Their gift really helped! Listen to Jesus' list in Mt. 25:35-36, For I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you invited me in, I needed clothes and you clothed me, I was sick and you looked after me, I was in prison and you came to visit me. Those are the things that real empathy does! When someone is suffering, it meets their need. Here's a neat story I read: "One afternoon Betty picked up the phone and heard her mother say, 'Betty, you need to fly out here tomorrow. Your sister, her husband, and both children were killed in a car wreck and hour ago.' Betty hung up the phone and turned to walk to her bedroom. She couldn't find it. She bumped into furniture and injured herself. With blood trickling from her head, she sat on the hallway floor in a daze. After a while she managed to call a friend. 'Hello, Rachel? My sister and her family just got killed and I have to fly to New Jersey,' she said. 'Can you help me?' Betty sat in a living room chair and waited. A few minutes later the doorbell rang. 'I've come to pack your clothes,' Rachel said as Betty opened the door to her. Rachel found some suitcases in the garage and selected appropriate assortments of clothing for Betty, her husband, and their daughter. She spent two hours packing everything neatly. During this time, Betty slowly regained her ability to think clearly. Her husband and daughter would be home soon. Rachel finished packing, hauled the luggage to the front door, and said, 'I'll be back in the morning.' 'How did you know to pack my bags?' Betty asked. 'When my father died last month,' Rachel responded, 'I was so overwhelmed that I didn't know what to do. A friend came over and packed all our suitcases so we could fly home for the funeral. I figured that would be a help to you, too.' Rachel's personal loss strengthened her empathy for people like Betty. She learned that the loss of a loved one is addressed more meaningfully through an act as simple as packing clothes." [Power for Living, Dec 1995. Pages 6-7.] True empathy helps people who suffer in simple, practical ways. But before we leave this verse, don't miss the real point of it which is:

IV. The Manner In Which We Should Empathize With Them

The Spirit says literally, remember the bound as bound-with-them. We are to remember them:

1. as if we were right there with them and it was happening to us The NLT puts it, Remember those in prison, as if you were there yourself. Remember also those being mistreated, as if you felt their pain in your own bodies. We say, "Put yourself in their shoes." We're not to have sympathy from afar or remain detached from suffering people, but to enter right in and feel what they're feeling with them, let their experience deeply, deeply impact our lives. Then the next part in the NIV says, as if you yourselves were suffering, however, the NAS says more literally, since you yourselves are also in the body. It means that we are to empathize with those who suffer:

2. realizing that we are also in the body and it may be our turn next We might be the next to be imprisoned. We might be the next to be ill-treated or to suffer in some other way. But for the grace of God, I would be in those same shoes right now and I still might be tomorrow. And when I am, I desperately want somebody to remember me, to empathize with me, and to come alongside me in my suffering. So that's what I should do for others now.

In his book God Is Closer Than You Think, John Ortberg tells of a Catholic priest named Father Damien who became famous for his willingness to serve lepers. In 1873 he moved to Kalawao, a village on the island of Molokai, in Hawaii, where nearly 900 lepers had been quarantined in a colony. For 16 years, this Christian man lived in their midst. He learned to speak their language. He bandaged their wounds, embraced the bodies no one else would touch, preached to hearts that would otherwise have been left alone. He organized schools, bands, and choirs. He built homes so that the lepers could have shelter. He built 2,000 coffins by hand so that, when they died, they could be buried with dignity. Slowly, it was said, Kalawao became a place to live, rather than a place to die, because Father Damien offered hope. But, Father Damien was not careful about keeping his distance. He did nothing to separate himself from his people. He dipped his fingers in the poi bowl along with his patients. He shared his pipe with them. He did not always wash his hands after bandaging open sores. He got close. For this, the people loved him. But one Sunday he stood up and began his sermon with two words, "We lepers..." Now he wasn't just helping them. Now he was one of them. From this day forward, Father Damien wasn't just on their island; he was in their skin. He had chosen to live as they lived; now he would die as they died. Now they were in it together. Of course, you don't have to get leprosy to minister deeply to lepers, any more than you have to be divorced to minister to divorcees or to have cancer to minister to cancer patients. What you DO have to have is that oneness of the heart, that Divine empathy that enters into the other's situation, just as God does into ours. Only He can give you that. Only He can build that in you and fill you with it. Why not ask Him?

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Purity (Vs. 4)

The life God wants His children to live is a life filled with love for our brothers and sisters, a life filled with love for strangers and deep empathy for all who suffer. That's what we learned in the first three verses. Today we come to verse 4 where the author moves on to talk about another kind of love, the kind of love that is expressed in marriage and in regard to this kind of love, God wants His children to live a life filled with purity! God begins by telling us that:

I. We Should Hold Marriage In The Highest Regard It should be regarded as an honorable thing, a precious thing, a thing of great value. But the society we live in doesn't do that. This quote from the web says it well, Marriage was devised in the past to keep a check on immoral conduct in society. Traditional people cherished their marriage all their life and attached several religious values to it. They nurtured their relationship to strengthen the marital bond between them and passed on the same values to their children. They strongly believed in the sanctity of their marriage. However, the concept of marriage has undergone a sea change over the years and people today marry for practical purposes. Marriage statistics reveal that marriages no longer last for life. The "until death do us part" syndrome is no longer valid. Some marriages may survive for a few years, while some die off within a few months of marriage... Although most people relish the idea of a steady marriage, very few are willing to work towards it. Differences of opinion, financial independence, and reduced tolerance levels lead to marital disputes. People get bored of their spouses easily resulting in lack of communication between the couple. Surveys reveal that owing to the growing number of divorces, there is a considerable drop in the number of marriages. Many men are scared of the financial damage that may result from divorce and alimony. This has led to the new trend among couples, which is "living-in." This form of relationship fulfills the physical needs of partners and offers companionship as long as they are in the relationship. The modern society is very accepting and offers freedom to individuals to lead the kind of life that they like.... [<http://ezinearticles.com/?Marriage-Statistics&id=429302>]. Our society no longer honors marriage and because we are raised in this society and live in it every day and are bombarded with its values daily through the media, it's rubbing off on us! Our children are deeply impacted by it! But even for many adult believers, marriage is no longer the high and holy thing that God says it is. Back in 1999 a George Barna study found that, Divorce rates among conservative Christians were significantly higher than for other faith groups, and much higher than Atheists and Agnostics experience. [www.religioustolerance.org/chr_dira.htm] It appears that there is a glaring need today for us in the church to hear all over again the clarion call of this verse! Marriage is a precious, sacred thing because:

1. God created and instituted marriage directly We could go back and read about it in Genesis, but I'd rather have us turn together to Mat. 19:3-9. Evidently times were changing in Jesus' day also. Marriage was losing its sacredness then also and when asked about it, Jesus took His reasoning all the way back to Genesis. God created humans male and female. He said, that it was not good for Adam to be alone and created Eve to be His complement, His partner and completer. And HE brought her to Adam and said, "This is how it's supposed to work for all time; a man shall leave his parents and be united to his wife. God joins them together and they become one flesh. So, what God has joined, human beings should never take apart! All this other stuff that's happened since is NOT the way God meant it to be from the beginning."

a. He declares it to be a life-long union The attitude today is, "If it doesn't work, I can get out of it. I can break this one and go find someone else." That's what people do, but that's not what GOD created it to be and it's not what He wants.

b. He declares that it should not be broken by divorce Paul explained what Jesus taught on this subject in 1 Cor. 7:10-11. This is a command and believers are subject to it. If we are married, as believers Jesus says that we are not to break our marriage! Now Paul goes on to recognize that there can be extenuating circumstances. Your spouse may be an unbeliever and desert you or they may commit adultery and break their vow to you or violate their vow by abuse and so you end up divorced, when it was never your intent. Does God love divorced people? Yes! If you're divorced, can you remarry? Yes, under Biblical circumstances. If you've been divorced and remarried, are you a second-class Christian? NO, you're a married Christian and see that you hold it in high regard! Divorce happens because of the hardness of human hearts, but it was NEVER His design. And:

2. He intends for its sacredness to be universally recognized Marriage should be honored by ALL! Now, of course that applies to:

a. the sacredness of marriage generally The whole society should honor marriage. Our country should honor marriage. Our laws should honor marriage. Our TV programs and movies should honor marriage, because that's what God intended from day one! But they don't and probably never will again. We can work for change, but at the bottom line we can't control what our society does, HOWEVER we can control how we view marriage in the church! ALL here means all of us, all believers, the church. WE, in contrast to the whole world around us, are to be different; WE are honor marriage as the sacred thing it truly is, and not just our pastors, not just our leaders, not just our teachers, but ALL of us! And the way we honor it is not just in our doctrine, not just in our sermons and Bible lessons, but primarily in honoring:

b. the sacredness of our own marriage I've read you previously the letter that James Dobson's father wrote to his mother before they were married, but it bears repeating: It reads in part: "I want you to understand and be fully aware of my feelings concerning the marriage covenant which we are about to enter. I have been taught at my mother's knee and in harmony with the Word of God that the marriage vows are inviolable, and by entering them I am binding myself absolutely and for life. The idea of estrangement from you through divorce for any reason at all (although God allows one-- infidelity) will never at any time be permitted to enter my thinking. I'm not naive in this. On the contrary, I'm fully aware of the possibility, unlikely as it now appears, that mutual incompatibility or other unforeseen circumstances could result in extreme mental suffering. If such becomes the case, I am resolved for my part to accept it as a consequence of the commitment I am now making, and to bear it, if necessary, to the end of our lives together." [Straight Talk to Men and Their Wives, James C. Dobson] Young people, that's how you go IN-TO marriage and no other way! Married people, that's how you live with your spouse every day, absolutely committed with no thought of anything else. It's the only basis on which a marriage can succeed. Your marriage is a sacred union created by God; honor it and honor the spouse God has given you!

Now, we could talk all day about the "how-to's" of marriage. The Bible has a lot to say to husbands and wives, but that's not where the Holy Spirit is going in our text. The greatest and most obvious way we can honor our own marriage and our spouse is in the next phrase, and the marriage bed kept pure:

II. We Must Maintain Sexual Purity Would you turn with me to 1 Thes. 4:1-8, which I think spells out in clear detail everything Heb. 13:4 is briefly summarizing? Wow, that's strong, isn't it! If you want to live a life pleasing to God, God's command and God's clear will is that you should stay sexually pure, and he spells out exactly what that means! When you reject this, you reject GOD Himself and His Spirit who lives in you who is Holy! Now the first thing we have to notice is that if the marriage bed is undefiled, then:

1. sexual activity within marriage is pure In some generations sex has been regarded as a bad thing, a necessary evil to perpetuate the race, a shameful thing to mention or desire, but the Bible never says that at all. Just read Song of Solomon! God made us to be male and female and invented the marriage union. We were "Intended For Pleasure", to steal the title of Ed Wheat's book. It is a pure and high and holy and wonderful thing, the deepest sort of human communion, knowing another person. So, in marriage sex is a gift to be enjoyed by husband and wife; in fact, it is actually commanded! 1 Cor. 7:3-5 says, The husband should fulfill his marital duty to his wife, and likewise the wife to her husband. The wife's body does not belong to her alone but also to her husband. In the same way, the husband's body does not belong to him alone but also to his wife. Do not deprive each other except by mutual consent and for a time, so that you may devote yourselves to prayer. Then come together again so that Satan will not tempt you because of your lack of self-control. God created sexual desire and He actually commands us to see that we fulfill that desire for our spouse! And we can do that all we want, in all the ways we want, and it is absolutely pure! You see, marriage is like a box. God created sex to occur inside that box. Inside that box sex is pure and wonderful and holy. But that box forms for us an absolute boundary:

2. there is to be NO sexual activity outside of marriage The writer mentions two types of sexual sin in the next part of our text. The one we translate as sexual immorality. The Greek word you'll recognize; it's porneia and it refers to sex of any kind that occurs other than with a person you are married to. I apologize that I have to take the time to explain this so explicitly, but you would not believe how many people 30 and under simply do NOT understand what I'm saying. I know it because I've talked to them and nobody has ever spelled it out for them! The word immorality doesn't even sound that bad; it sort of sounds like simply less than perfect behavior. Maybe being a pornos or committing porn-eia gets the concept across better. Immorality means:

- casual sex It is portrayed to us time and time again that it is normal when two people have passionate feelings for each other, they sleep together. Wherever you work or go to school, there are peers all around you who practice this. Everybody is hoping to meet somebody and "fall in love", by which they mean to meet somebody that is as turned on by them as they are by the other. Young guys, in particular, seem to be always looking for the opportunity to find a good-looking girl and have sex. Listen, to God that is wickedness; that is an abomination! Now somebody will say, "Yes, but we are committed to each other, we are planning to get married..." We call it:
- premarital sex "We're an engaged couple; soon it will be legal; we just can't help ourselves!" Yes, you can! And UNTIL you are married it is no different and just as wrong as casual sex! And since I've gone this far out on a limb, I might as well add that over the years I've heard all the varieties of questions such as, "Well, what if we don't go all the way? What if we just have oral sex or if we just touch each other or..." and the list goes on. Listen, I don't know what textbook you've read, but sex is a process and all those things you're tempted to do are very much a part of that process. When you get into passionate kissing and heavy making out, your sexual drive is aroused and you're well into the process of sex. Hear me: SAVE IT FOR MARRIAGE! You may think I'm old or at least old-fashioned, but if you don't end up marrying that person, you will absolutely regret that you gave yourself away to that degree TO THE WRONG PERSON! And if you're young, I guarantee that you don't know all that you THINK you know, so listen to God! Then, of course, sexual immorality covers:
- living together So many couples today forego the commitment of marriage and simply move into the same place and ACT like they're married, but they are not! They are openly living in immorality. Now I'm not saying that you need to be rude to them and be stand-offish. They probably don't know the Lord, so befriend them and win them to Christ, but don't ever let it enter your mind that YOU as a believer can do this. In God's eyes it is no different than the thing we usually think about with the word immorality which is:
- prostitution, which is paying someone to have sex with you or being paid by them for it. Every pagan temple had this available in the Roman world; it was part of many pagan religions. It should never be part of ours. And of course, porneia includes its namesake:
- pornography Looking at pictures in magazines or on the internet and fantasizing about sexual acts. Listen to this: every second (second, mind you!) $3,075.64 is being spent on pornography. It was a 97 billion dollar industry worldwide in 2006. Plus, every second 28,258 Internet users are viewing pornography! And believers are among them! People say, "But it's harmless, it's victimless; there's no real person!" Yes, but the person in the picture is somebody's daughter and she's not your wife! You have taken sex out of God's box; it will affect you deeply and you will pay dearly. Turn it off! And I hardly need to mention that:
- homosexuality is not a biological difference, as we are constantly being taught. It is a choice of lifestyle that a person makes for a whole bunch of reasons and the word of God says the practice of it is immoral and an abomination to God, even though He dearly loves the people who practice it!

Do you see? Marriage is such an important, precious thing that ALL sexual activity should be kept within it! That's how we honor it! Now, the second word in verse 4 is moicheia, adultery, and that means that if you ARE married:

3. there is to be no sexual activity that violates marriage Of course, it means that:

a. we are not to commit adultery with our bodies We've known that from way back in the 10 commandments in Ex. 20:14. But we've given it a nice name to make it sound better; we call it "having an affair". God calls it "adultery" and you can easily gather from what I said earlier that it doesn't only include having intercourse with someone, but any and all romantic activity with someone other than your spouse! If you call it what it is, it will help you to stay pure, but so far, a good many of us may feel like we're "off the hook"; "I don't do any of that stuff!" Oh, but God takes it one step deeper and says:

b. we are not to lust with our minds The tenth commandment, Ex. 20:17, was, You shall not covet [desire] your neighbor's wife! Jesus explained what it meant in Mt. 5:27-28, You have heard that it was said, 'Do not commit adultery.' But I tell you that anyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart. Married men say things like, "I can't touch, but I can look!" NO, you can't! That's not honoring marriage and it's not honoring your wife - or your husband! Simply thinking about and desiring to touch or to have sex with someone else IS adultery in God's book! And if we would be blatantly honest, there's hardly one of us that has been completely pure in our thought life! We are constantly guarding and shielding our eyes and our minds.

You see, God wants our life to be filled with purity at every level, not just in actions, but in words and even in thoughts. And verse 4 leaves us with a final sobering thought:

III. God Will Judge Those Who Practice Sexual Impurity Sodom and Gomorrah are a testament to that as they lie entombed in ash at the south end of the Dead Sea!

1. this is a serious warning for nonbelievers Immorality and adultery are not just failings, not just weaknesses; they violate a primary law of God and they will send people to hell. Listen to Rev. 21:8, But the cowardly, the unbelieving, the vile, the murderers, the sexually immoral, those who practice magic arts, the idolaters and all liars--their place will be in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. This is the second death. They will keep people out of God's heavenly city; 22:15 says, Outside are the dogs, those who practice magic arts, the sexually immoral, the murderers, the idolaters and everyone who loves and practices falsehood. This is serious. If you don't know Jesus and are involved in immorality, don't think you're just going to appear before God and He'll say, "Oh, you're a pretty nice guy; you're responsible and you help people and all, so come on in!" It doesn't work that way! These sins, ANY sins, will separate you from God forever! But here's the good news:

2. God can completely cleanse us from impurity! Turn with me to 1 Cor. 6:9-11. I love this passage! Such were some of you! But you came to Jesus and He washed it all away and made you white as snow! He pardoned you completely and He sanctified you. He made you holy, pure, fit to be in the very presence of Holy God! Hallelujah! Now He says, "Live like what you are! Let me fill your life with purity by the power of My Holy Spirit! Be holy because I am holy! Be like Me!"

Samuel Logan Brengle wrote: "A spark from the fire is like the fire. The tiniest twig on the great oak, or the smallest branch of the vine, has the nature of the oak or the vine, and is in that respect like the oak or the vine. A drop of seawater on the end of your finger is like the ocean, not in its size, of course, for the big ships cannot float upon it nor the big fishes swim in it, but it is like the ocean in its essence, in its character, in its nature. Just so, a holy person is like God. Not that he is infinite as God is; he does not know everything; he has not all power and wisdom as God has, but he is like God in his nature. He is good and pure and loving and just, in the same way God is. Holiness, then is conformity to the nature of God. It is likeness to God as He is revealed in Jesus." [Fulness, Jan/Feb 1980. Pages 4-5] If you want to live your life well and be pleasing to God, fill it with purity.

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Contentment (Vs. 5-6)

God knows that there are two things which, if we would fill our lives with them, would really make us stand out in the world as being totally different from those around us. The two items which so clearly drive the value system of our society are sex and money. Last week in verse 4, we saw that God wants us to fill our lives with purity. That makes us stand out like a shining island of integrity amid the filthy ocean of sexual immorality around us. The other malignant disease infecting the world, and specifically our American culture, is materialism. Laura Wilkinson wrote to Louisiana State University Students, America is no longer the land of the free; it's land of the bling. You name it, we want it: new plasma televisions, Christian Dior sunglasses, Xboxes, Citizen Jeans, MAC makeup or the latest iPod. We love stuff. It's amazing how much stuff we can accumulate in the cramped residence halls. Let alone in our houses! People live lives of always wanting something different, something more, never satisfied, never enough. That's why in verses 5-6 God tells us that the life that pleases Him is a life that is filled with contentment. If we live that way, we'll stand out like a match in a totally dark room! Our life will be a true advertisement for His Name and what He can do. Now, the Holy Spirit begins his approach to this subject in verse 5 with:

I. A Warning About The Love Of Money (5a) The KJV translates that phrase, the love of money, as covetousness, but it is literally in the Greek, the love of silver. It reminds you of Ebenezer Scrooge in A Christmas Carol who loved his money; you picture him sitting at his desk counting his coins, don't you? But that is a caricature, an exaggeration done on purpose. The love of money in most people is much more insidious and difficult to spot than that, however, the symptoms of it can be easily recognized. Paul's statement on it is probably the best known one where he said:

1. the love of money is the root of all kinds of evil But let's turn to 1 Tim. 6:10 and read the whole verse. The desire to accumulate money, to get more things for ourselves, has been the root of every kind of evil from murder to theft to betrayal and it's end result has been terrible in lives. The prophet Balaam ended up standing with Moab against Israel, despite God's miraculous warning through a donkey, because he wanted the money Balak offered and later died in their invasion of the land. Achan coveted a bar of gold and some fancy clothes and took them for himself against God's orders, even though he had seen the walls of Jericho fall and, in the end, it cost both him and his family their lives. Elijah's servant Gehazi couldn't resist the temptation to take the money his master had refused from Naaman and ended up living out his life as a leper. In the church Ananias and Sapphira lied about the price of some land they sold when they gave the money to God, because they wanted to both keep some of their money AND look spiritual and they dropped dead! God's people are not immune to the love of money. James warns us that:

a. we are tempted to get it through dishonest means - James 5:4 says, Look! The wages you failed to pay the workmen who mowed your fields are crying out against you. The cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord Almighty. Business is rife with the temptation to love money. All you need do is read in the news the stories about CEO's taking home salaries in the millions of dollars while their companies are going bankrupt, plants are closing and workers are being laid off by the hundreds! It's easy to blame those high visibility few, but any time you don't pay your employees a fair wage for what they do, or you lay them off as they approach retirement so that you can hire younger ones for less, or you withhold payments or benefits that are due to them because it's to your advantage, the love of money is at work in you. Whenever you charge an exorbitant price just because you can get it without regard for the suffering of the people who need what you're selling, but can't afford it, the love of money is at work in you. On the other hand, any time you charge your employer for invalid or unnecessary expenses or try to get by with doing as little as possible while getting paid for it, or take things home from work simply because they won't be missed, or cheat on your taxes by hiding income that should be reported, the love of money is at work. The temptation to get money by dishonest means is proof that the love of money is trying to creep into your life! But it also comes at us through a second angle:

b. we are tempted to hoard it when God wants us to give You know what Jesus said in Mt. 6:19-21, Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy, and where thieves break in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust do not destroy, and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also. Your heart follows your treasure. If you give yourself to accumulating stuff here on earth, your heart will become entwined with that. It will love that! But if you value heavenly things like God's Kingdom and His glory and seeing human beings blessed and saved in His Name, your heart will love that. Now, saving up for foreseeable needs and wise planning ahead for known expenses are wise biblical concepts, but the key thought in that verse is, for yourselves. When the thought becomes, "I have to accumulate money for myself; I have to take care of me; I have to make sure that I'm secure!", the love of money is at work. God is continually putting before us an endless string of needs that others have and often, He is blessing us with what we have simply so we can meet them! I heard the director of Gospel for Asia, Brother K.P. Yohanan, on the radio last week tell this story: A man called on the phone weeping in tears. He said, "I've worked hard all my life and I've been really successful, but I'm growing old and a few days ago the Lord showed me a vision. He let me see heaven and all the multitudes from every people and language group there and I realized how little I have done for Him. My life is wasted! What can I do about it?" I advised him, "The first thing you must do is make a choice: do you want to obey God all the way or not! When you have settled that, then resolve to live a simple lifestyle and give all you can to God's work as He leads you!" Several months later our office received a check from this man for $235,000. He had researched and prayed about it and designated this money specifically for the purchase of a projector and equipment and the support of native workers we were requesting to travel and show evangelistic films in city after city in India. Some months after that, I wanted to give him a report on what his gift was accomplishing and I was shocked at what my staff reported to me! More than 100,000 people were believing in Jesus Christ every month through this ministry! This man brought more people into the Kingdom in his last years simply by giving than well-known evangelists do in a whole lifetime! Do you have open hands before God with what He gives you; can you say that you are willing to do whatever He tells you with your money? If you can't, the love of money is at work. But here's a third angle from which it comes at us:

c. we are tempted to spend it without paying back Paul wrote this in Rom. 13:7-8, Give everyone what you owe him: If you owe taxes, pay taxes; if revenue, then revenue; if respect, then respect; if honor, then honor. Let no debt remain outstanding, except the continuing debt to love one another.... Debt is almost endemic in our society. The advent of easy credit has nearly ruined us. Young couples run up debts in the tens of thousands of dollars buying things they have no realistic hope of being able to pay for. We buy houses, we buy cars, we get ourselves all these things that we think are so necessary like HD TV and high-speed internet and iPhones and spend all kinds of money eating out, but we spend what is not really ours and then default on paying it back. Now I'm not saying that those things in themselves are wrong (I have or do 3 out of the 4 of them!); I'm saying that when you borrow and spend money and don't pay it back, unless there is some sort of unforeseen catastrophe, the love of money is at work. Now the Bible says that:

2. the desire to accumulate money is idolatry - Col. 3:5 says, Therefore consider the members of your earthly body as dead to immorality, impurity, passion, evil desire, and greed, which amounts to idolatry. The love of money, the strong desire to get and have it, is what we call greed and greed is a form of idolatry. The desire for money is more important than the desire to please God, so money is an idol, a false god, something that takes His place in our lives. And Jesus Himself drew the line in the sand by declaring that:

3. we can't serve God and money - Lk. 16:13-14, "No servant can serve two masters. Either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve both God and Money." The Pharisees, who loved money, heard all this and were sneering at Jesus. They wanted both. They wanted to serve God, but they loved money. They let the desire for their own prosperity, position and power be more important than their love for God and ended up crucifying His own Son! Now hear me: you can HAVE money and love God, but you can't LOVE money and love God! That's why God warns us in Heb. 13:5 that:

4. we must guard ourselves against this creeping into our way of living We have to work at keeping our lives free of it, because creeps in almost unnoticed. It starts in little things, little decisions we make here and there, and almost before we know it, it has become a way of life. That's why, in the second clause, God gives us the "antidote", the "vacine" to keep that from happening which is this:

II. God's Design Is For Us To Live With An Attitude Of Contentment (5b) So what does that mean? Well, first notice that this principle is not talking only about money:

1. this attitude is toward our present state of life, whatever it is Contentment is an attitude that we display in our job, in our class, in our home. We display it about our house, our car, our lifestyle and all our material possessions. We display it about our health, our opportunities and whatever circumstances life may send our way. Contentment is an overall general attitude toward the way life is for us.

2. it is an attitude of peacefulness and acceptance Paul talked about this attitude very specifically. Turn with me to Phil. 4:6-7. You know these verses. Paul says that whatever comes, whatever circumstances you find yourself in, God has a goal for you. It's simple. Instead of being anxious and worrying as though everything depends on you, simply come to Him in prayer and lay all your needs before Him, trusting in Him for everything and you will know this incredible peace, a peace like nothing else in the world, a peace that only God can give. In fact, it is the very peace that God Himself has! You can accept your financial situation; you can accept your health; you can accept the loss of your job; you can accept that your retirement fund has lost half its value. You can accept whatever comes, whatever is, and have total peace as you walk through the midst of it. But how? Well:

3. Paul learned the secret of this contented attitude - Phil. 4:11b-12 Remember Paul's life. There were days when Paul was hungry, when he had to skip a meal or two. He was shipwrecked three times and on one occasion floated loose in the open ocean for a night and a day before being rescued! There were days when he was arrested and threatened and beaten. Once he was stoned and left for dead, you can only imagine how that hurts! He even wrote this letter during a two year imprisonment in Rome! But then there were days of plenty, days when there were good meals with good friends and days when people were listening and coming into the Kingdom by the dozens. Our usual pattern is that we praise God when things seem good and complain when things are bad. But Paul said, "I've learned how to fill my life with what God wants; I've learned how to be content no matter what is going on on the outside. There's a secret that you have to know; there's a truth that has to get all the way from your head deep inside your heart!" And what is it? Verse 13! Literally, For all things I have strength, in Christ's strengthening me. He's the Secret! I'm content, I have peace, I accept whatever God allows to come my way, because I KNOW that Jesus Christ has put the power in me to endure it! I don't have to scrape and scratch and store up and climb up and work out and get around and accomplish it all myself. He has promised me the power and strength to face anything, so I am content. I don't need to have anything more, anything different, anything better. I don't need more money, more stuff, to be content. Why? Look at the third clause of our text where the writer gives:

III. The Reason For Our Contentment (5c) Almighty God Himself has given us a promise, an unchangeable thing in which it is impossible for God to lie. He has spoken to us and:

1. we know what God has said, I will never leave you nor forsake you! These are the words that God spoke to Joshua in Josh. 1:5b when he was ordered to go into the promised land and start a war with its inhabitants! But they are not just for Joshua. God was saying to Joshua, As I was with Moses, so I will be with you! The writer of Hebrews is saying that those same words were given for all of us! "As I was with Joshua, so I will be with YOU, with ALL of God's people! I will never leave you nor forsake you!" Oh, we have quoted that so often, but I wonder if we've ever considered deeply what it means. It is not that God is simply "always around somewhere" or "always at work in this thing somehow". It is a very personal, one-to-one promise given directly to you. The first phrase means:

a. "I will never detach Myself from you!" "I'll never be away from you, not for a moment!" A few weeks ago, a doting mother was holding her little toddler and showing me a bruise on his face. When I asked what happened, she pointed an accusing finger at her husband and said, "HE wasn't watching!" Now don't worry; they were visitors and aren't here today! But we've all been there, haven't we? You turn your head for ten seconds and the child is out of sight or you answer the phone and when you turn around they're standing up on the kitchen table or running toward the street. You can't be at a child's side 24 hours a day, 7 days a week and, even if you could, you probably aren't fast enough to grab him if he trips on a lip in the sidewalk! But GOD can and GOD is! The God of Israel neither slumbers nor sleeps! He doesn't take vacations. He doesn't take days off or turn His back while attending to something else or wander out of earshot! In fact, the Bible says that He Himself has come to literally dwell INSIDE of us and He has joined Himself to our very being so that we are one with Him in Spirit. So, there is never a single second when He is detached from us, when we're out of His sight, out of His mind! And the second part of His promise means:

b. “I will never abandon you!” “I’ll never break that bond and go away and leave you on your own, no matter what you do, no matter how you fail Me or how badly you sin! I’ll never say, ‘I’ve had it with you; I’m done with you; I’m outta here!’” And I wish you could read Greek, because you could see how:

c. He declares this emphatically: There are at least four negatives in this clause,, something like, No, I will not leave you, No, nor forsake you! God Himself said that; “No, no, no, no! No I won’t! YOU HAVE ME!”

Thus, the secret of contentment is this; we know what GOD said so:

2. here is what we must keep on boldly saying (6) These are the words of Ps. 118:6-7. The Lord is WITH me and:
a. the Lord is my helper Literally, the word means, “he runs when I cry out!” He’s with me and He responds to me. He has committed Himself to help me at all times, in all circumstances, under all conditions! Therefore, I have a choice to make. Either I look at the winds and the waves and my feet sinking into the water and doubt Him, or:

b. I choose not to be afraid and trust Him completely to make me walk on the top with Him. I choose not to look to money to meet my needs, not to look to people to fix my problems, but to rest in the knowledge that I HAVE HIM and HE IS ENOUGH! The last phrase is actually a bit sarcastic, “I’ve got GOD; what’s man going to do to me?!”

c. nothing can touch me without going through Him Nothing takes Him by surprise. Nothing end-runs His plan. Nothing gets to me without His Divine permission and purpose, which is always for my good! I rest in that! I am content in that!

I’d like to close with a letter from Peng Ming who, after he had been granted asylum by the United States, was lured back to Burma where he was kidnapped by Chinese agents and has been held in prison in Hubei province since 2004. Officials have ignored his medical needs which have included a heart attack and a severe case of kidney stones. On January 22 of this year, he wrote this letter: Dear Dad, Mom and friends, How are you doing? I am so glad to say “Happy Chinese New Year” with Spring Festival on the way. I hope you have good health, happiness and great faith. God has always been blessing you and me. My dear parents requested that I should possess a positive attitude to deal with my current situation. I have completely eliminated anxiety and loneliness from my heart, and I am now enriched to spend every day peacefully. As my father said, this is a learning opportunity, a special school, to study hard in order to learn lessons and to ultimately choose the right path for my future. As for my suffering, in fact, God put me to the test.... I firmly believe that He will use me. Regarding the current economic crisis in the United States, I read an article a few days ago entitled “The more intense the economic recession, the more Americans believe in Jesus.” This confirmed my point of view: God is giving a wake-up call to the world through the economic crisis, especially to Americans. An extravagant lifestyle is not pleasing to God and it is not sustainable. God’s authority is in charge of the entire world. People may be enriched to a small degree by material possessions, but we must never forget God’s will and His work on the earth.... God be with us, Peng Ming [Asia Harvest, May 2009 Newsletter, p. 2-3]. Beloved, we have HIM and HE needs to be enough for us. He wants our lives to be filled with contentment IN HIM.

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Respect (Vs. 7, 17)

We’ve already looked at five things that characterize the life that pleases God, the life that God wants His children to live. He wants our lives to be filled with love for each other, with love for strangers and with compassion for those who suffer. He wants them to be lives of purity in the sexual realm and lives of contentment in the material realm. Today we come to verse 7, to a subject that must be important, because the author returns to it again in verse 17. God wants us to live a life of respect and by that, I mean specifically that:

I. We Are To Have An Attitude Of Respect Toward Our Spiritual Leaders Before I preach this message, I’d like to make a bit of a disclaimer just in case you might be thinking, “Gee this works out nicely for you, since you’re one of those leaders! You get to tell us to submit to you and obey you; isn’t that a bit self-serving?” I want to assure you that’s not the point of this message at all and even if it was, it wouldn’t work. Ask any wife whose husband tells her, “The Bible says you have to submit to me!”, how much respect she has for him. True respect can’t be commanded; it must be earned! And it is only earned by a track record of genuinely and sacrificially serving those you’re trying to lead. Furthermore, this applies to all of us, to me as well as you. We ALL have spiritual leaders and our text seems to recognize that they fall into two categories, those who played a key role in our lives in the past, who perhaps brought us to faith or shaped our lives when we were teens but may be gone now or at least may no longer be geographically near, and those who are part of our daily lives now. Verse 7 seems to be exhorting us that:

1. the ones who have impacted us in the past must be remembered (7) A young pastor in my home church by the name of Bob Zweitzig led me to Christ when I was 15 years old. He was instrumental in God calling me to the ministry when I was 19. He baptized me. He and his wife Ruth also led LuAnn to Christ, introduced us and he eventually married us. For the first years of our marriage and ministry we looked to them for help and advice all the time and they were again instrumental in bringing us to Glenside in 1979. They served Berean Bible Church over on Byberry Road, but life has taken us on different paths and made each of us busy with our 4 and 5 children respectively and now we're doing well if we connect once a year through our Christmas letters. But where would we be today without them? For the first years of our ministry here, Dr. Clarence Mason and his wife Lois were true mentors to us, introducing us to the world of the independent church and to independent faith missions; our kids called them Grandma and Grandpa. But now they're in heaven. We've all got folks like these, pastors, Sunday School teachers, youth group leaders, professors or even family members, people who were an important part of our lives, who led us to Christ, who played a deep role in changing us or molding and shaping us into the followers of Jesus that we are today and God wants us to remember them! He wants us to think about them purposefully, so that their influence continues in our lives and he gives us three exhortations about them. First:

a. we should value what they taught us They spoke the very Word of God to us! In the case of the readers of this letter, there was a missionary like Paul or Silas or Barnabas who was the first to come to their town and tell them the story of Jesus for the first time. For the Sougb people of West Papua, Indonesia, it was Dan and Barbara Lunow who showed up and taught them the Word of God and it transformed their lives and their entire tribe. And somebody did that for you too! Somebody delivered to you the very Word of Life that changed your eternity, that lifted your future out of the flames of hell and fixed your seat with Christ in heaven. Somebody invested themselves in you and taught you the principles of God's Word that have become part of your life now. And we should always value what our leaders taught us; we should treasure it and live by it! Second, the writer says:

b. we should appreciate the example of their lives and some commentators believe that since that NIV word outcome literally means to exit, it may refer to how they actually died, or perhaps it refers to the overall "manner in which a well-spent life ended" [Strong's]. Nero's persecution of Christians had begun several years before this letter was written and it is very possible that some of these early leaders that brought them the Gospel were martyred like Paul and Peter and stood firm and faithful to the end and the writer is saying, "Value that example and take it to heart!" The only reason we are sitting here today is because so many faithful brothers and sisters like John Hus and William Tyndale and John Wycliffe "loved not their lives even to the death" in order to preserve the Word of God and give it to us. Lately I've been reading some of the accounts their lives in Foxe's Book of Martyrs, and every time I finish one, I feel compelled to stop and say "Thank You" to God for the example and dedication of that life. But there are many others who went to glory before us in a quiet manner, yet leaving the legacy of a life with tremendous spiritual impact. And I'm confident he means more than just the famous people that stand out; he's talking about ones that you've known personally! Remember them and think about what an example they were for us, about how they lived, and then the writer says:

c. we should imitate their faith Not their flaws, not their mistakes, not their human failings, but their faith. Believe what they believed and live it out! That's how the faith works. It is passed on from one faithful life to another. Paul wrote to the Thessalonians, ...You know how we lived among you for your sake. You became imitators of us and of the Lord; in spite of severe suffering, you welcomed the message with the joy given by the Holy Spirit. And so you became a model to all the believers in Macedonia and Achaia. - 1 Thes. 1:5b-7. Imitate those people who laid such a great example of life to you; respect their investment in you by modeling your life after theirs! And others will do the same with yours!

But there's a slight invisible hitch in verse 7. All the verbs seem to be past tense; they seem to be talking about leaders who have impacted our life in the past. Except for the fact that the Greek literally says, Remember those LEADING you..., present tense and a participle, meaning those who are doing it right now. So, the point is that:

2. the ones who are in charge at present deserve the same respect as those who impacted you in the past! Some believers have an awful lot of respect for the "Percy Crawfords" and the "Bill Brights" and those who are now long gone, but when they look at the people that are their spiritual leaders now, they are full of criticism and contempt instead! Did you ever notice how people always seem to become perfect after they die? They were great! It's the living ones we have trouble with! That's why the writer went back to the subject in verse 17 to make it clear. However, before we study that, look with me at what Paul wrote over in 1 Thes. 5:12-13. There's what God really wants; He wants you to respect your spiritual leaders who are among you in the church, not only your pastors, but those who are your mentors and your Sunday School teachers and small group leaders and elders. He wants you to hold all of them in the highest regard and love them for the work they do in your own lives, even if they have to admonish or chide you sometimes and you don't like it! Go back with me to Heb. 13:17b and look at why they deserve that respect:

a. they have been given a serious responsibility You know what James 3:1 says, Not many of you should presume to be teachers, my brothers, because you know that we who teach will be judged more strictly. It is one thing to misunderstand or to disobey something for yourself, but when you step into the role of leading somebody else, whether that is being a parent or a teacher or an elder in a church, the stakes go way up! God says the standards are higher, the consequences are more serious and the responsibility is greater. Listen, we who are leaders are not just playing around here; this is serious! If we mis-step, we can take all of you with us and who would want to stand before God with that on his conscience! Then notice the writer says that spiritual leaders:

b. they keep a constant tireless vigil over you They are “sleepless” like a shepherd watching over his flock. In fact, that’s the very image Paul used to admonish the leaders of the church in Ephesus in Acts 20:28. He said, Keep watch over yourselves and all the flock of which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers. Be shepherds of the church of God, which he bought with his own blood. They have been entrusted with an invaluable treasure. Imagine that the Smithsonian designated you to take care of the Hope Diamond for them while they remodeled. It’s worth $350 million dollars. What would you do? You would put it in the safest place you could find and you’d never take your eyes off it day and night! Well, what’s the most precious thing in the entire universe? YOU are! YOU are the Pearl of Great Price which the Son of God sold everything He had to purchase. Believers are bought with the precious blood of Christ and any leader, any elder who takes their responsibility seriously, recognizes the value of a human life in God’s eyes and keeps a constant watch over it! Yes, that’s horribly convicting to us as leaders; we fail so often at it. Nevertheless, as a whole, your leaders are keeping watch over you, praying for you, caring about you, seeking what’s best for you. And here’s another thing you can’t see in the NIV. The KJV translates it more literally, they keep watch for your souls!

c. they nourish and protect your very soul, your spiritual life It’s not just your bodies they’re concerned about, not just to see that you have food and clothing and a place to live. They are God’s means of preparing you for the life to come, of leading you to store up heavenly treasures instead of wasting your life storing up things on earth. They guard you from falling into error and encourage you when you are weak and pull you back to the Lord when you fall away. Your soul’s well-being is literally impacted on a regular basis by those who lead you! That’s why the writer explains clearly:

II. How Respect For Spiritual Leaders Is Displayed (17a) 1 Tim. 5:17 says, The elders who direct the affairs of the church well are worthy of double honor, especially those whose work is preaching and teaching. In that text the double honor has to do with meeting their physical needs as well. But there is a double honor here as well. We show respect for our spiritual leaders first of all:

1. by obedience and the Greek word here is not the word that simply means “to take orders”; it means “to be persuaded” and it is closely related to the word for belief or trust. Obeying your spiritual leaders is not blindly doing what they tell you; it means trusting them and acting on their direction. You know their way of life. You know their hard work and how they watch continually over your soul, so you trust them and when they lead, when they give direction, even when they correct you, you trust them and you listen, you follow, you act out of that trust and obey. The second way that we honor our spiritual leaders is the reverse side of the coin; we honor them:

2. by submission The words to their authority were added in the NIV; they’re not in the Greek. It has nothing to do with authority. The word simply means to surrender, to give up and stop resisting. So, we honor them by yielding to them without selfish resisting. If you put the two thoughts together, the writer is saying, “Trust them and follow their direction without balking at it!” You remember how Israel balked all the time. Moses faithfully put himself on the line time after time for them and led them out of Egypt at Pharaoh’s command, but when they got to the wilderness they repeatedly grumbled and complained about Moses. When they got to Kadesh Barnea and he went to lead them into the Promised Land at God’s direction, they balked and said, “We won’t go!” Repeatedly they challenged his authority as though he was being selfish in leading them. At one point in Num. 11 he was so troubled that, He asked the LORD, “Why have you brought this trouble on your servant? What have I done to displease you that you put the burden of all these people on me? Did I conceive all these people? Did I give them birth? Why do you tell me to carry them in my arms, as a nurse carries an infant, to the land you promised on oath to their forefathers?....I cannot carry all these people by myself; the burden is too heavy for me.” - Num. 11:11-14. The Lord called Israel in Hos. 4:16, “a backsliding heifer”. That’s a very graphic picture. When I was young, we had three ponies and one of them was a colt that was never really broken or trained. When the time came to sell them, we had to load them onto a truck, so the truck backed up to a raised area and tilted its bed up. The man put a lead on the mare and walked her up into the truck and tied her lead off, no problem. But that colt was afraid. He didn’t trust those men and he didn’t want to get on that truck in the worst way, so you know what he did? As we pulled forward on the rope, he folded his back legs, sat down on his back-side and planted his front legs in the dirt at an angle against us and three guys couldn’t budge him forward. That’s literally what backsliding is, stubbornly resisting the will of God, refusing to follow and obey His will as He has given it through the leaders He’s chosen. The Spirit is saying, “Don’t do that! Trust your leaders. You know their lives; you know their love and care for you. So trust them and follow them as they discern My leading. Don’t dig in your heels and stubbornly resist them!” THAT’S truly how you honor your spiritual leaders! It’s not with a respectful tone or a nice compliment or a gift that makes them feel appreciated, as wonderful as all those things are; you honor them by letting them fulfill their calling and lead you! You honor them by following!

Now, as we finish verse 17, we are given:

III. The Reason For Respecting Our Spiritual Leaders (17b-c) We already saw that:

1. they must give an account to the Lord for how they led you And please be clear, they don’t have to give an account for how you responded, for how you followed, for how you turned out. That’s your choice! The old saying, “You can lead a horse to water, but you can’t make him drink!” is true in the spiritual realm. Spiritual leaders can show you and tell you and plead with you and beg you to do what God wants you to do, but the choice to do it still lies with you. You can refuse it outright and many do. That's not their fault. We can only be faithful to our individual assignment and if I have led, if I have shepherded, if I have fulfilled all my responsibility to tell and explain and plead and warn, then that's all I can do, but still, I must give an account of doing that! Our spiritual leaders are trying to fulfill a grave and serious responsibility and we should respect them for that! The second reason is:

2. when you follow them, you make their work a great joy There is nothing more wonderful than seeing someone come to Christ and seeing them choose to grow and obey God and come to maturity where they are reaching out to others and knowing that you played a role in helping them get there each step of the way! It's a true joy that thrills our souls! But conversely:

3. when you resist them, you make their work a grievous burden You saw how Moses felt at that one point, how the continual resistance of his people drove him to utter frustration, to say "I can't bear this anymore!" Listen, pastors get to that place too! And so do elders and teachers and youth leaders and even parents. I can testify that we've been very blessed here. You have been a wonderful people to lead and leading has been a great joy most of the time for me and our elders. Not everyone and not always, but most of you and most of the time, you make our work a great joy! But I know one pastor right now who is looking for opportunities to leave his flock because they've dug in their heels and don't want to change anything, even though their church body is dwindling to nothing. They don't want to follow and it is a sad and grievous and hurtful thing. To be obeying God and not have those under you recognize it really breaks your heart. But the Spirit's last point is actually the most practical reason to respect your leaders:

4. when you resist them you actually damage yourself You think it's to your advantage, that it's better for you to not follow, but you're really hurting yourself. God gave us spiritual leaders because we need them! He did not intend for us to walk alone with Him through this life. He gave us other believers because He knows that we need the ministry of their gifts just as they need ours. And He gave us spiritual leaders to be our shepherds because He knows that we are sheep and we need help and direction to be safe and to find nourishment so that we can grow a healthy crop of wool for Him. The sheep who runs away from the shepherd may break the shepherd's heart, but unknowingly it imperils itself. It places itself in tremendous danger.

Any good doctor would probably testify to the truth of this statement: "The doctor's most annoying patient (except for the one who doesn't pay his bills) is the one who doesn't follow his orders." Such a person comes into the doctor's office with a complaint, submits to an examination, hears the diagnosis, and is told what to do. But that's as far as it goes. The patient either cheats on the recommended diet, doesn't take the prescribed medicine, continues to smoke, or doesn't return for a checkup. In so doing, he not only frustrates the doctor but also may hasten his exit from this world. We know we need doctors. We trust their knowledge. We are so glad for them when we are sick. We run to them and put our lives into their hands. But when they offer us their guidance and direction, sometimes we simply balk because we, selfishly, don't want to do what we know we should and that stubbornness, that resistance, can be deadly to us. During World War II a German officer was treated for his wounds in a British field hospital. He desperately needed a blood transfusion but stubbornly refused to accept it, saying he would rather die than have enemy blood flow in his veins. We'd call him a fool, wouldn't we? The mere fact that the blood came from a citizen of England wouldn't change the man's personality nor adulterate his German ancestry. He had everything to gain and nothing to lose, but his stubborn refusal cost him his life. Likewise, wouldn't you say it was foolish to have God go to all the trouble of putting godly spiritual leaders in your life and then go to all the effort of trying to care for you, only to resist their care and damage your own life in the process?

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Truth (Vs. 8-9a)

So far, we have learned that a life well lived, a life that truly pleases God, is a life filled with love of the brethren, with love for strangers and with compassion for those who suffer. It is a life filled with moral purity and contentment about material things. Last week we saw that it is a life filled with respect for the spiritual leaders that God has given us, but there is one issue we failed to raise as we studied that verse which is, "What if those spiritual leaders are off or misguided somehow? Does this mean we are to have a blind loyalty?" Well, as we consider verses 8-9 today, we have the answer to that question. God wants His children to live a life of truth. Jesus told Pilate, ...I came into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone on the side of truth listens to me. And Pilate replied by sarcastically asking that age-old question that secular people are always asking: "What is truth?" [Jn. 18:37-38] And the reason they're always asking it is because they're looking for the answer in the wrong place. Truth is not found in a proposition, in a particular collection of information:

I. Truth Is Found In A Person and that person is Jesus Christ. Turn with me over to 1 Jn. 5:20. The information that God used someone to give to us ABOUT Jesus led us to KNOW Jesus in a personal relationship. It led us to an experience where we came to Jesus to ask forgiveness for our sins and He, in turn, came into our lives. We met Him! For us, it is not a question of whether what Jesus said is really accurate or whether the stories of what He did actually happened. We experienced Him and that settled it. Think of Paul, at that time called Saul, the enemy of Christ and Christians. He was traveling along the road to Damascus when something happened. Jesus appeared to Him. A great light blinded him and he fell to his knees as he heard a voice from heaven that said, "I am Jesus whom you are persecuting!" From that moment on he knew the truth! In that instant He knew that Jesus is the true God and I must serve Him! And that's what he did with every day of the rest of his life. Our missionary Dan Lunow grew up as a Hitler youth in Germany. After WWII he came to the US bitter and disappointed and worked on a farm in Wisconsin. When the farmer invited him to church, he clearly told him, "There is no God. Jesus isn't real and I don't want any of it!" So, he stayed home to relax that Sunday morning and turned on the radio and what came on, but a church service! But he was too lazy to get up and turn it off and as the pastor was preaching, he heard a voice in his heart that clearly said, "I am Jesus, do you want to sign up with Me?" Dan signed up and in that moment all his intellectual propositions went right out the window. He KNEW the truth and spent the rest of His life telling the Sougb people of West Papua how they could know it too. And what happened to us was exactly the same thing these two experienced, even if it was not nearly as dramatic. We came to Jesus and He came into us and ever since that moment, we KNOW the Truth. We know the two things that John specified at the end of the verse. We know that Jesus:

1. He is the true God No matter who else or what else claims to be god, they aren't. You see, when you actually meet God you realize something: there's only ONE of Him by definition. There aren't 20 or 100 more out there like Him to compete with Him. It's like Elijah challenged the worshippers of Baal, "Either the Lord is God or Baal is God. You can't have both. So, if Baal is god, then follow him, but if the Lord is God, then follow Him! The test is who answers by fire!" The test is who changes your life in an unmistakable way. When Jesus does that, you know there's nobody and nothing else like Him. He is the true God and:

2. He is eternal life Eternal life is not a state or condition. It is not simply equivalent to an existence in heaven forever. Life is the attribute of self-existent being that Jesus Himself has as God and He gives it to us by personally entering us. John wrote ...God has given us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He who has the Son has life; he who does not have the Son of God does not have life. I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God so that you may know that you have eternal life. - 1 Jn. 5:11-13. You know it because you have Him! He is God; He is life, and:

3. He is the only way to the Father You know what Jesus said in Jn. 14:6: ...I am the way and the truth and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me. Christianity is exclusive. If He is God and He is life, then there is no other way to God but Him. That is the essential core of our faith. That's where it all stems from and starts from and that means that:

4. He is the only true foundation for what you do with your life. 1 Cor. 3:11 says, For no one can lay any foundation other than the one already laid, which is Jesus Christ. He's the only foundation, not only in the whole development, but in the whole planet! He is THE TRUTH, the only solid Rock to build on. So you either build your life on that foundation or you build on sand, you build it on a lie, and watch your life collapse and wash away the instant it is all over. Now the point the writer is making in verse 8 is that:

II. Jesus Does Not Change Oh what a reassuring statement that is!

1. He is the same today as He was "yesterday" Now when is that exactly? It could be the day before this one or last week or last year or last century. It could refer to the days of the early church that we read about in Acts or specifically to that time 2000 years ago now when He came to live and walk upon this earth for 33 years and died for us and rose again. And if we push it, it could mean the time when He created the universe by His powerful word or even eternity past. Essentially, I think it means that He has always been the same! He has NEVER CHANGED! And if we turn around and face the future, the text reassures us that:

2. He will be the same forever as He is today, not just tomorrow or next year or next century, but literally, to the ages. Forever! He HAS never changed and He WILL NEVER CHANGE! A million years from now when this old world is gone, He will be the same. Now let's think:

3. what this means Most obviously it means that:

a. who He is doesn't change He has always been the true God and eternal life. He is the true God and eternal life and He will always be. The essence of His nature and His character will never be altered. He will always be loving, merciful, kind, righteous, good and everything else that He always has been. He will never wake up tomorrow and decide He doesn't want you anymore. That is our sure hope. Mal. 3:6 says, I the LORD do not change. So you, O descendants of Jacob, are not destroyed. If we had a God who changed, who was fickle, who could be one way yesterday and another way today, we would be doomed! Secondly, it means that:

b. what He says doesn't change Jesus didn't have one message back then and a different message today and another tomorrow. For instance, He didn't say that divorce was a bad thing back then, but today He says it's OK. Jesus said that from the very beginning of creation God has always made husband and wife one flesh and they should not tear it apart, not in AD 31 nor in AD 2009. He didn't say that immorality was a bad thing then but today it's all right to live together as long as you go to church. Num. 23:19 says, God is not a man, that he should lie, nor a son of man, that he should change his mind.... What Jesus says IS the way things are. Truth is not relative; it does not depend on the values of the society around us. Truth is what HE says it is and it doesn't change. Thirdly:

c. what He does doesn't change Any time you hear the phrase "Jesus doesn't do that anymore," it's some degree or other of a lie. Jesus transformed people back then and He still transforms people today when they meet Him. Jesus healed people back then and He still heals people today. Jesus appeared to people back then and He still appears to people today! In Jordan where our children served there is an older widowed lady we'll call Sarah who was truly seeking after God. A younger friend was slowly telling her more about Jesus but she just could not believe that He was the Son of God. Then one night God gave her a dream, and in it, Mary was holding a baby who was God's Son. Then Mary asked her to take care of the baby for her. She took the baby and was filled with joy. This was a really sweet thing for God to show her, because she and her husband were unable to ever have children. When Sarah woke up, she had no doubts. She said, "Jesus is the Son of God!" Listen, Jesus provided for His people back then and He still provides for them today. He waited for them with open arms at death back then and He still does today. James 1:17 says, Every good and perfect gift is from above, coming down from the Father of the heavenly lights, who does not change like shifting shadows. He is still giving His children good gifts like He always has but He also chose to let His followers suffer and be persecuted and endure terrible things back then! And likewise, He chooses to allow the same today.

Jesus IS the Truth and He does not change! But to see why the writer tells us that, look at the first part of Heb. 13:9, which is really part of verse 8, Do not be carried away by all kinds of strange teachings! You see:

III. People Teach Many False Things About Jesus When He walked on earth, they said all kinds of false things about Him and they have been doing it ever since. And our text actually uses two adjectives to describe these false teachings: varied and strange.

1. some are "variations" of biblical concepts For instance, I was at a retreat one time and the speaker was emphasizing the point that Jesus was like us, a true human in every respect, even to the point of saying that He was born with a sinful nature like ours, yet CHOSE not to sin. It had to be or His temptation wouldn't have been real! It sounds so good! And it comes from someone who genuinely believed. But that was a heresy, a false teaching, spawned out of a truth. Christ knew no sin, period! But many false teachings are like that, human departures that vary the original truth to end up with a "different Jesus". But He doesn't change! On the other hand, the word strange teachings means "foreign" or "new". So:

2. some are "new" teachings replacing biblical concepts To give an absurd example, Jesus promised that He would come again in the same manner in which He left, visibly, descending from heaven. In the early 1700's a man by the name of Emmanuel Swedenborg decided that HE knew what that meant. He wrote 18 theological books and he ended up declaring to his followers that the second coming of Christ had occurred in his own writings, that his new message WAS Christ returning! His followers became what we know today as The Church of the New Jerusalem whose headquarters is right here in Huntingdon Valley and virtually every one of us has been by to admire their Bryn Athyn Cathedral. The record of history is strewn with stories of religious teachers who came up with some "new revelation that replaces the old". But Jesus never changes! Let me just mention a few:

3. some examples of false teachings we encounter today The most common is that:

a. Jesus was NOT God "He was only a man. A good man, yes. A godly man, a great teacher, a wonderful example, a prophet of God, the founder of a world religion, but still only a man. Or maybe more than a man. Maybe He was God's Son or somehow more than we are, but not fully and completely God!" You hear this in the secular world, in the university classroom, and sometimes even in churches. But friends, you can't have it both ways. Jesus claimed to be God. They nearly stoned Him for it and in the end, they crucified Him for it. If He is not God, then He was the biggest liar and fraud in history or He was insanely delusional! If anyone today said what He said, what would we think? But He proved His claim by rising from the dead! Any "Jesus" who is not God is NOT the Jesus of the Bible. And here's a similar popular teaching:

b. Jesus is one god or one way among many "There are many ways to God; all paths lead to Him. Jesus is ONE way but not THE way!" This is the politically correct way to think. It's how the news media treat the subject. It's all around us in both the secular and religious worlds. But again, if that's true, then Jesus was a liar and a fraud, because He claimed to be the ONLY way! If He really is God, then there can be no other. Now here's a teaching that many people subscribe to:

c. I must believe in Jesus but also work for my salvation This is the popular American version of Christianity. "Everybody knows you have to believe in God and Jesus, but the bottom line is that when you die God weighs the good you've done against the bad and if the scale tips in the good direction, you're in!" Everybody from sweet old ladies who've never allowed a bad word to escape their lips to members of the mafia are hoping to get into heaven on that one! It is the watered-down version of Christian faith that you find proclaimed and believed even in many of our churches, God help us! But if that's true, then why did Jesus have to die for our sins! We wouldn't need HIS life; we could do it on our own! But then, some churches on the other end of the spectrum who really believe that Jesus is the true God and the only way to eternal life turn right around and teach their own variation of faith, saying that:

d. Jesus died to give us physical healing and material prosperity They tell us, "Claim your healing; it's all yours; Jesus died to give it to you. If you're not healed then you don't have enough faith!" In that case, I guess Paul's faith was weak because he never could get rid of his thorn in the flesh! Or they say, "God wants you to prosper. He wants you to have a nice car and a nice house. Just believe Him for it. Whatever you can believe Him for He will give you!" Tell that to our dear brothers and sisters in Kyrgyzstan, most of whom are out of work and only a few of whom are fortunate enough to own an old car and if they do, they support their family by charging people for rides! These things are false teachings by good people who sincerely love Jesus! But they do so much damage to His Kingdom and hurt and disappoint so many people! And finally, there are some out there who claim that:

e. Jesus gave us new information that only my group has Charles Taze Russell studied the Bible and the Great Pyramid of Giza which he believed was built by the Hebrews and he taught that Christ had returned invisibly in 1874 and that He would return to set up His Kingdom in 1914. His followers became known as Jehovah's Witnesses and to this day they believe that only they have the true knowledge and represent true Christianity, even though they don't believe that Jesus is Jehovah! In 1827 Joseph Smith claimed he found a set of golden plates describing a visit of Jesus to the native American peoples. This ended up being published as the Book of Mormon and his followers organized as the Church of Jesus Christ - Of the Latter Day Saints! All of these are good, moral, religious, and probably wonderful people but they follow strange new teachings about Jesus which say He is different from what His followers have always believed and that's what the writer of Hebrews is warning us about!

IV. We Must Guard Ourselves Against False Teachings When he says Do not be carried away by these things, it literally means, "Don't let yourself be tossed around and carried about". Paul said the same thing in Eph. 4:14, Then we will no longer be infants, tossed back and forth by the waves, and blown here and there by every wind of teaching and by the cunning and craftiness of men in their deceitful scheming. We have to grow up and become mature in Christ so that every teaching, every TV program, every radio broadcast, that comes our way doesn't toss us in some other direction than after Christ. And it's our responsibility to do something to prevent that! But what? Two things:

1. we must carefully scrutinize what we hear Turn with me to Col. 2:8-10. Those words See to it literally mean, "See! Perceive! Discern! Scrutinize carefully what people teach you." These are the verses the Lord used to get me safely through a very liberal college that taught all kinds of false things and led many students away from Christ. I saw verse 8 written on the cover of somebody's philosophy notebook one day and God struck me with it! Circle it; underline it; highlight it; memorize it! Don't believe everything you hear! Test it against the Word of God. Jesus is God and you have experienced Him in all His fullness; anything contrary to that is somebody trying to take you captive and lead you away from Jesus! And guess who that would be! Which brings me to the second thing:

2. we must test the spirits operating through those we hear Turn back with me to 1 John 4:1-3. Prophets teach because they are moved by spirits. True teachers are moved by the Holy Spirit of God who lives in them and they teach truth. False teachers are moved by demonic spirits who have gained control over their minds and led them astray and through them they want to do the same to you. Test what you hear. Test what you're taught, even by me! Job said, The ear tastes words as the tongue tastes food. Taste it before you swallow it! Is it really the truth of God? Anyone who doesn't teach you that Jesus Christ really did come and that He was fully God and fully man is being moved by the wrong kind of spirit, they're being used by Satan and you don't want to follow them!

At the New York Butchers' Dressed Meat Company many years ago, they kept an animal they called a "Judas goat." He started work at 7 o'clock every morning, escorting sheep from the unloading pens on the river front to the slaughterhouse. There the unsuspecting creatures were killed and dressed. He made eight or ten trips a day, leading two to three hundred ewes and lambs each time. It is estimated that he became an accessory to the death of about four and a half million of them. Sheep are not easily driven but they will follow a leader, especially if he is a white animal. Because this "Judas goat" was so handsome, bright, and commanding in appearance, the sheep eagerly trailed after him, only to meet their doom. Jesus said that we're His sheep and His sheep know His voice and they follow Him. They don't follow a stranger because they don't know his voice; they run away from him! So BE His sheep. Listen carefully! Hear HIS voice and only follow it! Run away from everything else.

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Grace (Vs. 9b-14)

So far in this series, we've seen that God wants our lives to be filled with seven things: love, hospitality, empathy, purity, contentment, respect and truth. Today we'll add an eighth; a life well lived, a life that truly pleases God, is a life that is focused on and filled with GRACE. And we're going to see that in the section of verses from 9 to 14, however, unlike the previous verses in this chapter, these are not so easy to understand, even though they make a very simple and straight forward point, once you understand them. That's why I'd like to begin by giving you a bit of:

I. Important Information For Understanding This Passage First of all, think about who this entire book, or letter actually, was written to. It's called Hebrews for a reason:

1. the recipients were Jewish persons who had come to believe in Jesus Even though all of us can benefit tremendously from it, it was written originally to a very specific portion of the church, to ethnic Jews who had come to believe in Jesus as their Jewish Messiah and Savior. These are people who were taught from little on up and practiced throughout their adult lives the worship of God as it was taught in the Old Testament. They offered animal sacrifices to God; they kept a cycle of 7 feasts like Passover and Tabernacles every year. They never worked on Saturday like everyone else did and they kept strict dietary laws which prevented them from eating things that everyone else ate. The Temple was the center of their world and they went there to give offerings and went to the synagogue every week to listen to Rabbis teach. The whole family participated together in all of this; the whole community participated together in all of this. It was a culture that bound them all together. To be "put out of the synagogue" was their greatest fear; it meant to be shunned as an outcast by their entire community and family. So, it is not surprising that after the day of Pentecost when Jews by the thousands began to come to faith in Jesus:

2. it was very hard for ethnic Jews to leave Jewish practices They saw Jesus as the fulfillment of everything they already believed, but they still went up to the Temple at the hours of prayer and even offered sacrifices in thanksgiving. They still circumcised their children and didn't eat unclean foods. In short, they lived much the same, but now with a passion for Jesus and telling others about Him. However, this presented a problem as soon as they began to go to people of other nations. In fact, at first it was hard for them to believe that people of other races could even BE saved, that God would ever want them! That's what the story of Cornelius in Acts 10 is all about. God had to virtually smack Peter over the head with a vision and a miracle to show him that He wanted Romans and Greeks and all people to believe in Jesus and He would accept them as part of His Kingdom! But then what? These folks didn't do ANYTHING that the Jewish brethren did. In fact, they did LOTS of things their Jewish brethren would never do! They didn't circumcise their children. They ate unclean foods. They worked on the Sabbath, and so on. So now what? The big battle in the church became: "Do these folks have to do all these other things that God told us to do in the Old Testament or not?" Well, many felt they did and this:

a. it resulted in a false teaching that was promoted all over the Roman world by people we've come to call "Judaizers". They taught that a person must believe in Jesus AND keep the Law in order to be saved. They were for educating the nations to essentially become Jews in order to follow Jesus. The young church wrestled with this for almost 10 years until finally there was a big conference held in Jerusalem in Acts 15 about AD 49 where the apostles, the leaders of the church, settled the issue once and for all. They said, "NO! We are saved by grace and so are they! They do NOT have to keep the Law; it was given to Israel alone!" However, in spite of this, Judaizers continued to spread their false teaching for many years and you can listen to Paul combat their heresy in Galatians and some of his other letters. So, this is definitely one of the "strange teachings" the writer is warning about in verse 9. But even if they understood the principle of salvation by grace alone, this Jewish heritage:

b. it also resulted in believers living in Israel keeping the law voluntarily to be accepted by the community Even if they didn't believe that they HAD to do these things, they still chose to do them anyway, first, because they had always done them and felt they were a right way of living, and second, because if they didn't, it would set their families and community in an uproar and they would face rejection and persecution. When Paul arrived back in Jerusalem after his third mission trip, the apostles told him, in essence, "Listen, there are thousands of Jews here who believe and they're all zealous about the Law. They think you teach Jews who believe out where you were NOT to keep the law and they'll be furious. So, to keep the peace, why don't you go through a vow of purification at the Temple and show them you as a Jew still do these things! Yes, we know what we told you about the Gentiles that they don't have to..." [Acts 21:20-25] Do you see that even though they embraced GRACE with their hearts, their law-oriented background STILL had a profound grip on their lives! Now, why am I telling you all of this? Because:

3. many of us come from similar religious backgrounds, even if we're not Jewish.

a. some of us were taught to believe in Jesus AND work to be accepted by God For instance, a number of us were raised in Roman Catholicism and there, of course, you were taught to believe in Jesus, but in practical terms, you were probably also taught that to be accepted by God and go to heaven that you had to be baptized, attend mass, take the eucharist and perhaps go to confession. It is very much like a Jewish background. Did you ever notice how the church is set up pretty much like the Temple? It has an altar and a sacrifice is offered by a priest and incense is burned and it has a holy area where you can't go, and so on. The whole process is trying to take faith in Christ and incorporate the Old Testament sacrificial system. Now please understand that I'm generalizing; I know there are true believers and leaders in the Roman Catholic Church; I even pray with some of them monthly. But generically, that's what most Catholics I meet on the street believe. And when one has a genuine experience with Christ, it's hard to leave that thinking behind. It's drummed in that you have to do all these things, plus if you, for instance, get baptized now as a believer and join another church, your whole family could ostracize you! Do you know what I'm talking about? It's hard for us to stop thinking that we have to DO certain religious things and we often hold back from going all the way with Jesus out of fear. Then way on the other end of the spectrum:

b. some of us were taught to keep a set of rules to be accepted by the church We grew up in a religious culture of our own, a church culture where men wore suits and women wore dresses always. Where men's hair was always short and women's was long. Where you never drank alcohol of any sort, you never went to movies and you probably didn't grow a beard! You were at church morning, evening and Wednesday or you just plain weren't a good Christian. It was a culture that the American evangelical church cultivated during the first 3/4 of the last century and many of us were raised in it! It actually was in some ways like what we read about the Pharisees in Jesus' day. Oh yes, you were saved by faith, but if you dared to break the rules, even these secondary type ones, they frowned on you and sometimes threw you out! To teach some of the things I teach you would have cost me the pulpit 50 years ago in some places! But even when you understand GRACE, it's hard to get that thinking out of you and so often we put up with things we know aren't really true on these issues, just to be accepted. Does anybody know what I'm talking about?

Now listen to the message of our text (9b):

II. Grace Is The Only Thing That Can Truly Establish Our Hearts In salvation, God does it ALL! We do nothing to add to it!

1. all practices done to impress God or the community have no true value God is not impressed because you eat a ceremonial Passover meal. He is not impressed because you take Communion or get baptized. He is not impressed with your impeccable dress and religious habits. As long as the thought of your heart is that God will somehow be moved by this thing and I will be more acceptable, it's useless and worthless! No work that we can do, no action we can take, has even one iota of value in saving us. Isaiah said, All our righteousnesses are like filthy rags... even though to us we think they look so good and make us holy or at least make us more holy than the rest of the world! Look what the author reminds us in verse 10. We have an altar! What altar?

2. our true sacrifice for sins was offered once-for-all at the cross There on a hill outside of Jerusalem 2000 years ago, the Lamb of God was offered up as the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not for ours only, but for the sins of the whole world! The Cross is our altar; it is where His blood was shed and our salvation was bought and sealed forever. And we are so blessed because:

a. God has graciously given us the right to partake of this sacrifice He offered it to us, though we didn't deserve it at all. Guilty, vile and helpless we! And He offered it to us demanding nothing in return. Our sacrificial meal is Jesus; we partake of His sacrifice, not at the communion table, but in our hearts by faith that rests on what He did there and we are accepted, we are included, we are saved. What a privilege! But note the reverse:

b. all who depend on their own works are totally excluded from it The Jewish priests who offered sacrifice in the Temple have no right to what we have, until they accept it by grace! The most religious Catholic or Baptist or Jehovah's Witness or Mormon, for that matter, has no right to what we have, until they accept it by grace! Grace is what saves us and grace is what establishes our hearts firmly in the assurance of eternal salvation. Therefore, if our hearts are to be captivated by grace and established firmly by grace so that we live a life that is filled with the recognition of His grace in everything that we do:

III. We Need To Leave All Forms Of Works-Oriented Legalism (11-14) That's the point of this paragraph. In fact, that's the point of this entire letter: "Leave it!" The writer begins with:

1. an illustration from the Old Testament law (11) He's talking about Yom Kippur, a very special ceremony that happened every year in Israel and is still celebrated today:

a. on the Day of Atonement the body of the sacrificial animal that was offered to make Israel holy was burned "outside the camp" To cover over Israel's sins, the priest would kill a bull and sprinkle its blood in the Tabernacle to God, but the carcass was taken outside the camp of Israel to an unclean place and burned up completely. Now why did He want them to do that? Well, because it was a picture, a way of showing something that was to happen later:

b. this is fulfilled in Jesus suffering "outside the gate" of Jerusalem to make us holy (12) It was by design that Jesus was crucified, not at the Temple, but outside of the city gates on a hill called Golgotha. Now why on earth does that matter? Well, (13b) gives us a clue when it says Jesus suffered outside the camp, bearing the disgrace... What is:

2. the meaning of Jesus suffering "outside the camp" You see:

a. to the Jews this was a reproach, a mark of utter disgrace and disdain Normally, if the Jews killed you, they would stone you to death right there. But they didn't ask Pilate permission to do that. They wanted Jesus crucified. They wanted him handed over to unclean Gentiles. They wanted Him to die outside the city like the worst criminal, to die lifted up on a tree so it would be plain to every Jew that He was under God's curse, so that no one would be tempted ever to believe His words again! So, looking at it from Jesus' side:

b. Jesus endured this complete rejection by His own people to save us It was not just the pain of the scourging, not just the nails, not just the agony of the cross. It was the rejection, He came unto His own and His own people received Him not! He redeemed us from the curse of the Law by becoming a curse for us! And for the joy that was set before Him, He endured the cross, scorning its shame and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God! He was willing to be rejected by men in the most absolute way, to suffer any disgrace, any shame, to be regarded as the refuse of the world to save us! And the point is in (13):

3. the point: we must leave any "camp" that insists on works instead of grace and be willing to bear the rejection this will bring for Him To the Jews who believe, He says, "Leave it! Let go of all the trappings. Give up all the rituals. Stop trusting in any of it and stop trying to hang on to it. Come on out here with Me! I'm outside that camp! So what if you get thrown out and persecuted or even jailed and killed! I was, for you!" To the one whose life was full of religious rituals He says, "Leave it! Let go of all that stuff that is of no value. Don't put any trust in any of it and stop clinging to it as if it's doing you some good! Come on out here with Me! So what if your family gets mad! So what if they criticize you and chastise you or even disinherit you! Look what they did to Me for you!" To the evangelical Pharisee, Jesus says, "Leave it! You believe in GRACE, not works, now ACT like it. Throw away all those man-made rules and traditions that can never make your heart godly and come out here with Me! So what if they talk bad about you or throw you out of membership; look what I endured for you! Any 'camp', any 'community', any 'subculture', any 'cult' that insists that works contribute to your salvation and your acceptance, stand for GRACE ALONE and leave it and rejoice that you are counted worthy of suffering shame for Me!" Look at verse (14). You see:

4. on earth we have no lasting "city" anyway. There's no hope in anything we trust in on this earth. Two years after these words were written, the Roman general Pompey invaded Jerusalem, destroyed the Temple, killed or sold much of the population as slaves and destroyed the Jewish nation. From that day to this there is no priest, no sacrifice, no Temple; all those objects of false trust are gone and God was warning believers ahead of time in this letter. Nothing you trust in on this earth lasts. That's why our hearts are set on our eternal home to come with Jesus. And if they are, then what does it matter what some religious community thinks of us, what names we're called, what persecution we might endure. We live forever with Jesus, by His GRACE and nothing else. So in light of that:

How then are you going to live? Here are the lyrics to a song, I Then Shall Live by Gloria Gaither:

*I then shall live as one who's been forgiven.
I'll walk with joy to know my debts are paid.
I know my name is clear before my Father;
I am His child and I am not afraid.
So, greatly pardoned, I'll forgive my brother;
The law of love I gladly will obey.*

*I then shall live as one who's learned compassion.
I've been so loved, that I'll risk loving too.
I know how fear builds walls instead of bridges;
I'll dare to see another's point of view.
And when relationships demand commitment,
Then I'll be there to care and follow through.*

*Your Kingdom come around and through and in me;
Your power and glory, let them shine through me.
Your Hallowed Name, O may I bear with honor,
And may Your living Kingdom come in me.
The Bread of Life, O may I share with honor,
And may You feed a hungry world through me.*

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Praise (Vs. 15)

We have already looked at eight things that God wants to characterize our lives in this chapter. I won't repeat them but if you do look back at the first 14 verses, you might notice that each of them has to do largely with our relationships to other people or external things. This ninth one focuses directly on our relationship to God Himself. A life well lived, a life that truly pleases God, is a life that is filled with praise. Right off, I want you to notice two things. The first is the term sacrifice and the second is the word therefore. These two words connect this verse with the whole previous section that we studied last time and if you recall, the point of verses 9-14 was to tell believers from Jewish background to leave all of the sacrifices and rituals and the Temple which were so much a part of their lives culturally and go "outside the camp" to Jesus. There's no longer a need for the sacrifices offered in the Old Testament; they were only shadows anyway, pictures that pointed ahead to Jesus and the tremendous offering He would make of Himself. We don't offer them anymore; that's why none of you brought a lamb to church today! However, we DO still offer God sacrifices, only they are spiritual sacrifices. Turn over to 1 Pet. 2:4-5 and let's talk in general about:

I. The Concept Of Spiritual Sacrifices Now here's a different image to describe what God is doing this church age in which we live. We usually talk about the growth of the church and its spread to all the nations and the great multitude in heaven. But Peter describes it by saying God is busy building a building, an oikos, a dwelling place, a Temple. But it's a living Temple built out of living stones and one by one He's adding to it. You see:

1. we (that is, the church, all believers) ARE the temple of God Paul said, Don't you know that you yourselves [plural, which means "all of you together"] are God's temple and that God's Spirit lives in you? - 1 Cor. 3:16. Oh, God is building Himself a great, grand, glorious temple in these days in which we live, a temple made of millions of living people in whom He dwells and new sections of that temple are being added and rising up all over the earth. Just this week I heard of an expedition that takes off the end of this month by a young couple and their kids who are going to the remote Wakhan corridor of northern Afghanistan for 5 weeks. This area is so remote that on their initial trip in 2007 they drove 3 days past the end of the paved road, then hiked 3 1/2 days to the nearest settlement and another 2 1/2 days to the main settlement, all to reach a group of 3500 Kyrgyz people and for the first time in all of recorded history they told them about Jesus! Now they're going back and taking local believers with them, opening the door for some to come back and stay! Listen, the Temple is going up in new places all over the world! Hallelujah! And, of course, every temple has a priesthood, right? Well, Peter says:

2. we are a priesthood that has been made holy by Christ's sacrifice In the Old Testament He singled out and chose Aaron and his descendants to be the priests, but in this age, He has chosen US! In that day the priests were set apart and made holy by the sprinkling of blood so that they could approach and serve God. But we have been sanctified and made pure and holy by the precious blood of Christ so that we can serve Him. And that's what priests do; they serve God. How? By presenting Him offerings. So:

3. as priests our responsibility is to present offerings to God The Jewish priests presented animals and grain offerings and drink offerings to Him every day. These were pleasing to Him when sincerely offered because they were reminders of His Son to come, but:

4. the offerings that we present are spiritual in nature They are not animals, not things, not material in nature. And that's what God really wants! Even David recognized that after his great sin. He said in Ps. 51:16-17, You do not delight in sacrifice, or I would bring it; you do not take pleasure in burnt offerings. The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit; a broken and contrite heart, O God, you will not despise. God looks on the inside, not the outside. He doesn't want the outward things we bring; He can get all of those He wants. He doesn't lack anything! Rather He wants our hearts to be in the right place. He wants our spirit to respond to His Spirit by offering ourselves to Him in ways that please Him. That, my friends, is a description of what the Christian life really is! It is us, continually handing over, continually offering ourselves, to Him from the heart. Now look at the end of verse 5:

5. it is with these spiritual sacrifices that God is truly pleased That word acceptable is in a strongly intense form in Greek; they are well-pleasing, extremely favorably received. They are what He really, really wants and He is really, really pleased when we are offering them to Him!

So now that we're thinking in the right framework, let's go back to our text in Heb. 13 and read verse 15 again. Here we are told about:

II. The Spiritual Sacrifice Of Praise You see, now we're looking at this from a new direction. Praise is not simply a bunch of people singing songs or raising their hands. Praise is a spiritual act where we offer something up to God, something that floats upward like the holy incense offered on the altar, a pleasing aroma that He enjoys, a fragrance that blesses His heart and brings satisfaction to His very being. Now, what is praise? We have a definition of it right here:

1. praise is simply our lips giving glory to His Name My Bible dictionary says praise is an act of worship or acknowledgement by which the virtues or deeds of another are recognized and extolled. When we praise God, we recognize and we extoll or brag on or shout about all the good things about Him. Like what? Like His glory and splendor, His strength and power, His holiness. The New Topical Textbook lists 27 different things that Scripture says we should praise God for in specific verses: His majesty, glory, excellency, greatness, holiness, wisdom, power, goodness, mercy, lovingkindness and truth, faithfulness and truth, salvation, wonderful works, consolation, judgment, counsel, fulfilling promises, pardon of sin, spiritual health, preservation, deliverance, protection, answered prayer, the hope of glory, all spiritual blessings, all temporal blessings and the continuance of blessings! The list is endless! The things that are excellent about God are without number; and every interaction of His with our life becomes another reason to praise Him. However, simply telling God a list of His good points is not in itself praise. Our text says that praise:

a. it is a fruit of our lips, not merely an act. When I hear that phrase, I think naturally of the fruit of the Spirit in Galatians 5. Love, joy, peace and so on are not things we do; they are things that naturally grow out of us from the Spirit being inside us and in control of our lives. Praise is like that. It is something that flows from our spirit out through our lips. Praise is the deep inner joy of our heart overflowing, bursting forth in expression to God. Remember Mary, when it was confirmed to her that she would be the mother of the promised Messiah? Luke 1:46-47, And Mary said: "My soul glorifies the Lord and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior. It involves all of me. It involves my spirit which is joined to God. It involves my soul, my mind, my understanding, what I know about God. It involves my emotions, the feelings of gratitude, awe and affection that well up inside me toward God. It involves my will; I choose to praise God. And it even involves my body; I speak with my lips, I sing with my vocal cords, I lift my hands, I close my eyes or whatever I do. It is all of me responding from the depths of my being to who God is and what He has done. Now praise can be pointed in one of two directions:

b. it can be offered directly to God Listen to Ps. 96:1-2a, Sing to the LORD a new song; sing to the LORD, all the earth. Sing to the LORD, praise his name... Sometimes we tell Him to His face, as it were. We go straight to Him in an attitude of worship and express our joy directly to Him in praise. Or at other times:

c. it can be directed to others about Him - Ps. 96:2b-3 ...proclaim his salvation day after day. Declare his glory among the nations, his marvelous deeds among all peoples. Proclaim it to others, say it to the nations, the peoples of the earth. If I want to praise you for the way you are or something you've done, I can tell you directly or I can talk about you to others and praise you to them. I can express my joy directly to God in praise or I can express it in vibrant testimony about Him to others! When someone gets up and sings to us about God from their hearts or testifies to us about what He has done or tells us how much they love Him and we respond and join them, that is praise. Praise is the fruit of our spirit through our lips confessing His Name, giving credit and glory and thanks to Him, whether directly to Him or to others. Now look again at our text. How often should we priests make such an offering? Continually!

2. our praise should come forth in a constant stream You know Phil. 4:4, Rejoice in the Lord always. I will say it again: Rejoice! At all times, ever, never stopping, never ceasing. Just as the Jewish priests presented their offerings and burned their incense over and over again, day after day, morning and evening, so our offering of praise should flow out of our lips perpetually, over and over day after day. Now, of course:

a. it will be expressed in a variety of forms If you read the Scriptures, you'll see it in all kinds of ways. Sometimes it is exuberant and loud, just like a football game, like the crowd of people who shouted "Hosanna!" to Jesus at His Triumphal Entry. Sometimes we might lift up our hands to Him or even dance before Him like Miriam after the Red Sea! Sometimes we clap our hands like the Hebrews were told in Ps. 47. Applause is not a 21st century invention. We can clap and say, "Yay, God!" Just look how excited people act when they win money on a game show! They scream and jump up and down for joy! Shouldn't we be like that sometimes? Sometimes it is singing. Oh sure, we do it together here, but don't you sing to Him in the shower, in the car? Don't some of these choruses stick in your head and you just have to sing them to Him? Eph. 5:19-20 says, Speak to one another with psalms, hymns and spiritual songs. Sing and make music in your heart to the Lord, always giving thanks to God the Father for everything, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. Sometimes we speak to each other or sing to each other about Him; sometimes we tell others how wonderful Jesus is and what He did for us; sometimes we quietly tell Him in our hearts. Sometimes we simply sit and let thoughts of Him fill our mind and tell Him in our thought life how much we love Him. Sometimes we reverently kneel or bow down to Him. Praise may come out of us in a thousand forms, but the point is that it should never stop:

b. it should be a continual way of life, even in trials Look with me at what Paul wrote in 1 Thes. 5:16-18. That phrase in all circumstances is the tough part. Praise and thanksgiving should be flowing to God, even in the midst of difficulties and trials. The most extreme example that I can think of is, of course, Job. In one day, he lost all 10 of his children in a tragic "accident" and lost almost all of his servants who would have been his closest associates, not to mention all of his earthly wealth. Imagine how traumatic that must have been; it's not just a story but an event that happened to a real man and his family. And yet this man walked so closely with God day by day that here is his reaction, At this, Job got up and tore his robe and shaved his head. Then he fell to the ground in worship and said: "Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked I will depart. The LORD gave and the LORD has taken away; may the name of the LORD be praised." - Job 1:20-21. His praise didn't stop! He praised God even in the midst of his suffering, like Paul and Silas did in the Philippian jail at midnight after being beaten! Yes, I know that after a few days and prodding by his friends he voiced a lot of complaints and blame toward God, but in the end of the book he came back to his true heart, which is what was showing in the very beginning. Praise is to be a way of life for us, in good times, in bad times, in wonderful blessings and even in tragedy. It does not require a good circumstance to be generated; it comes out of our love for God Himself and all He has done for us. I always think of the words of the prophet Habakkuk, Though the fig tree does not bud and there are no grapes on the vines, though the olive crop fails and the fields produce no food, though there are no sheep in the pen and no cattle in the stalls, yet I will rejoice in the LORD, I will be joyful in God my Savior. - Hab. 3:17-18. Let me paraphrase that, "Though I lost my job and the unemployment isn't enough to cover my bills and there doesn't seem to be one anywhere, though I've had to live on my savings and drained them and I lost half the value of my investments, YET I will rejoice IN THE LORD!" Jesus is still my Savior; my salvation is still intact and all His promises are still mine. I have a glorious future and even if they shoot me here, all they can do is send me there faster! Hallelujah! We give Him this offering of praise in ALL circumstances, at ALL times, in an ever-flowing stream. Why? Have we lost our minds? No, look back at our text. It's because:

3. our praise is really pleasing to Him - Heb. 13:15-16 With such sacrifices, with this continual incense of praise being offered up, God is not only pleased, but literally well-pleased, greatly pleased, infinitely pleased. God delights in our praise, not in some self-centered, self-loving kind of way. He does not need our praise. He can get praise out of stones, if He wants it. He doesn't need it, but nevertheless He delights in it. Ps. 22:3 says, But thou [art] holy, [O thou] that inhabitest the praises of Israel. God lives in, He dwells in, He abides in the praises of His people. Not in a selfish, self-centered way that thrives on being flattered, but in a way that responds to us with joy and delight as well. It is natural for us to delight in God so much that we praise Him and it is natural for Him to respond to our praise with His own joy and delight. Don't you enjoy being loved and adored sincerely? Why is that? Because you're made in His image. He delights in your expression of love and joy toward Him as much as you delight and joy in His toward you! Then notice lastly that:

4. our praise involves a choice The words let us tell me that it is not automatic. It involves a choice on our part. We can live as priests offering up a continual sacrifice of praise to God or we can choose not to do it. If you want to be bitter and complaining, you're free to choose that, and many believers do. But that's being a priest who fails to do the very thing he was chosen to do! It's missing our calling! So what will it be? In closing, I'd just like to share:

III. A Simple Exercise That Will Increase Our Praise that I ran into recently. I'm going to call it The Daily Review. I didn't invent it. In fact, way back about 1500 AD a priest we refer to as St. Ignatius Loyola developed and wrote about it. In the literature it's called "The Prayer Of Examen", but I like "The Daily Review". And it's really simple. At the end of your day, before you go to sleep at night (or for some of you before your head hits the pillow because once it does, you're gone!), you simply quiet your mind and go back and remember each of the events of your day that come to mind and talk to God about them. For example, "Lord, that was a really good breakfast this morning, thanks for that; I enjoyed it. And, oh yes, it was really good that I ran into George down at the store; that was so encouraging. I'm sure you arranged that. Thanks Lord! Jesus, you know it was kind of tough when the boss chewed me out today and it wasn't really fair and it made me angry. I pray for him to be saved, because he's lost, Lord, and I thank you for helping me control my temper. Use that as a witness to him. Oh Lord, I remember that guy that pulled out in front of me as I was driving. One more second and I'd have been smashed up. I praise You for protecting me. Oh, and then my boy gave me the best hug after school today; that really felt good. I praise you for my family and you know we sure had a lot of fun playing ball tonight. Jesus, you fill my life with good things. Praise you. Good night." It's just a simple exercise that takes a couple minutes before you fall asleep, but if you try it, you'll find that it really gives perspective to the day's events and helps you really give God a lot more praise.

Stanford Cobb, who was a missionary to the Middle East, once asked a friend, "Do you feel good when God blesses you?" "Always!" "When you're pleased with what He has sent you, do you take time to praise Him in prayer or song?" "Come to think of it, I don't often do that." "Try it, my friend, the Lord wants us not only to feel happy in our hearts, but to take a cue from the psalmist who exclaimed, 'His praise shall continually be in my mouth' (Ps. 34:1). If you do that, you will receive a fresh blessing!" Later his young friend confessed, "I took that dear brother's advice, and I've been telling the Lord ever since how much I appreciate His love and goodness. My soul has found much help and comfort in this practice." So will yours! IF you choose to take that advice and live a life of praise.

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Goodness (Vs. 16)

If you recall, last week I introduced to you the concept of spiritual sacrifices as we studied verse 15. We saw that as believers, we are priests who minister to God by offering up things to him, not animal sacrifices like the Old Testament priests, but spiritual sacrifices like the spiritual sacrifice of praise mentioned in the text. The life God wants for His children is a life out of which continual praise flows upward to Him in a never-ceasing stream. Now as we move into verse 16, we find that there is another spiritual sacrifice that God wants us to offer perpetually. Today we're going to study:

I. The Spiritual Sacrifice Of Doing Good Notice the two key actions in that verse, to do good and to share. Let me suggest to you that these are not meant to be thought of as two different individual actions. Rather, in the original meaning, they appear to be the same action directed toward two different groups of recipients. Turn with me to Paul's command in Gal. 6:10 and you'll see what I mean more clearly. Paul says almost exactly the same thing that the writer of Hebrews says. Doing good is something that:

1. we are to exercise it continually toward all people We are to do good to people at every opportunity, every chance we get, to everyone we encounter. Now what does that look like? Well, if you remember, the Bible says that:

a. our Example, Jesus, went about doing good Peter was telling Cornelius, the Roman Centurion, about Jesus and he said, [You know] how God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Spirit and power, and how he went around doing good and healing all who were under the power of the devil, because God was with him. - Acts 10:38. Think about Jesus' life on earth. Everywhere He went, He simply did good things to and for people. He went to a wedding as a guest and when they ran out of wine, He made them some more! When he was teaching the crowds, He saw that they were hungry and had brought no food with them, so He fed them. When he met sick people, He cured them and when He met demonized people, He set them free. When He ran into a grieving widow, He even stopped the funeral procession and gave her her son back! You might say, "Yes, but He was God and had Divine power! All those were miracles! How am I supposed to imitate that?" That's missing the point! He did good to everyone He encountered because the power of God was with Him and in Him; that was the focus of His life. And what did God say about you? You shall receive power when the Holy Spirit comes upon you.... The very same power of God is with you and in you too! Why? The point is NOT the miracles; the point is that you can do what He did, you can go around throughout your entire life doing good to the people you encounter by meeting their needs through His strength and provision, thus pointing them to Him! You can feed hungry people and care for sick people and free people from spiritual bondage through the Gospel and deliver them from eternal death! Think about it this way; reading the Gospel accounts is like watching the life of Jesus compressed into a two hour movie. Do you know what I mean? All you get is the high points! There is so much that is missing by necessity. A lot of Jesus' days were just like your days and my days! He got up and got dressed and ate breakfast and shopped in the market and washed His robe and walked on the roads and sat down for lunch. And along the way He stopped and talked to people and whenever He did, He always did something good for them. He gave gifts to some who were poor and encouraged some who were sad and smiled at and played with little children. Paul is not saying that you should sell your house and become a wandering itinerant doer of good deeds; He is saying that in the process of living your life, you should continually be doing good things for the people you encounter every day by God's power so that they are drawn to believe in Him through you! Jesus put it like this, ...let your light shine before men, that they may see your good deeds and praise your Father in heaven. - Matt 5:16. Your doing good by His power points people to Him. Now what does this "doing good" look like? On a day to day basis, it may be as simple as holding a door for someone at the bank or letting someone who's in a hurry get ahead of you in line at the grocery store. It may be speaking to a confused looking person in the hospital and asking if they need help finding something or asking a handicapped person if they need a hand putting their things into their car. It may be spending an hour in the yard listening to your neighbor talk about the pain their rebellious teen is causing them or putting an arm around a co-worker who lost a parent or cooking a pot of chicken soup and taking it over when you hear that a friend is sick. Doing good certainly refers to a life that is filled daily with random acts of kindness toward others, but it goes much deeper than that. Turn with me to another key passage, 1 Tim. 6:17-19. Paul says:

b. we are to be rich in good deeds, particularly in sharing generously to meet the needs of others Please don't dismiss that first phrase by thinking that those who are rich in this world are the Trumps and the DuPonts and the Rockefellers, the CEO's of huge corporations and the like. The world has very few of those and the church has almost none of them. YOU and I ARE "those who are rich in this world"! The average per capita income in the US is $46,850 per year. That's $128 a day. Half of the world or 3 billion people live on less than $2.50 a day and 80% live on less than $10 a day. In the US we may be middle class, but in this world, we are the rich! Now the point is not to make you feel guilty because you have an iPad and a laptop or because you're going out for supper tonight; the text says that God richly provides us the things we have so that we can enjoy them! The point is that God expects rich people like us to do good by sharing generously what He's given us with others who are in need instead of heaping it up for ourselves! Doing good for people like us who have things is very often an act of the pocketbook! It is being ready and willing to open our wallets and share liberally with someone when they need it, when they're in trouble or out of work or sick and can't work. So often in our culture we expect that social systems like unemployment and welfare and disability insurance take care of people's needs and thank God those things do make life easier for many (much of the world has NONE of those helps!). But needs still persist, even with all those helps, and God has commanded us to be people who do good and meet them as we have opportunity! In fact, Jesus was even more radical about this. He said that:

c. we are even to do good and give to our enemies Listen to Luke 6:33-35. Now that's radical! We're not just to love our enemies, but we're to do good to them, to help them when they need it regardless of how they've treated us. And that means we're to give to them when they're in trouble and have a financial need without expecting them to pay it back! In fact, Jesus said, that is when you are the most like your Heavenly Father! He is always giving nice things to people who are ungrateful and don't thank Him and even to people who are wicked! When you do good and give to people you don't even like, to people who don't like you or even hate you, that is when you most resemble Him and when He is most pleased! You'll like this story: During the 19th century, the tribespeople of New Zealand were often engaged in conflict with the occupying British troops. One day, while resting from an exhausting skirmish, a general named Cameron and his men camped on the banks of the Waikato River. His soldiers were short of provisions, and they expected the Maori warriors to attack. Suddenly, a man who was stationed as a look-out signaled that several large canoes were coming up the river. Cameron and his forces expected the vessels to be full of warriors, but were surprised to see the boats loaded with milk goats and potatoes. The Maoris said, "We heard you were hungry, and the Book missionaries brought us says, 'If enemy hunger, feed him!' You enemy; you hunger; we feed you; that is all!" The Maoris quickly came ashore, unloaded the goods, and returned quietly to their village. They had taken Romans 12:20 to mean exactly what it says. And that IS exactly what it means!

Paul says, as we have opportunity we are literally to do good to ALL men, but then he adds this:

2. we are to especially exercise it within the family of believers Back in Heb. 13:16 you see in the NIV the words to share. In the Greek that is the word koinonia which is usually translated fellowship. So the phrase literally says, do not forget to do good and to fellowship (the words with others are not in the text). Fellowship is more than coffee and donuts in the hall talking with each other. It is more than sitting with your friends and chatting during a church dinner. Fellowship is a term that refers to the bond that we have with one another as believers. I would suggest that it is a oneness of heart and mind that leads to sacrificially sharing all that we have to help one another. In this:

a. our example is the early church Turn with me to Acts 2:42, a verse you know so well. We know what it means to listen to teaching, to eat together and to pray. But the text says they devoted themselves to the practice of fellowship. What is that? Well, it's explained in 44-45. You can see it again, perhaps even more clearly in 4:32, 34-35. That doesn't mean that everyone surrendered all their possessions to the group and they lived together as a commune or a monastery. That wasn't even remotely possible for thousands of people to do. It means they got together a lot, as often as they could, and that they were so bound together as one in their hearts and minds that they stopped thinking about their possessions as being solely for their own use! They saw them as gifts that God had given them to bless their brothers and sisters. So when they saw or heard that others in the body had needs, they liquidated some of their assets. People back then didn't invest money in banks or stocks and bonds like we do today; they bought material things that had value like houses or fields and kept them. So when they saw brothers in need, they had this open-handed attitude that these things I have are gifts from God for the good of the body and they sold things and gave the money to meet those needs! So much so that there were no needy persons among them because they took care of each other! That's what fellowship at it's deepest meaning is! In fact:

b. the term can literally mean an actual offering given to other believers In Rom. 15:26 Paul says that believers in Macedonia and Achaia were pleased to make a contribution for the poor among the saints in Jerusalem. That word contribution is literally a fellowship. Again in 2 Cor. 8:4 Paul says [The Macedonian churches] urgently pleaded with us for the privilege of sharing in this service to the saints. That word sharing is literally fellowship. Fellowship is being so bound in our hearts to our fellow believers that we give all we have to meet their needs. It is doing good to them in an even deeper way than we do to everyone in general.

So, going back to our text, this goodness that God wants our lives to be filled with is a generous and kind spirit that is touched by the needs of others and gives sacrificially whatever we have that can meet those needs. And notice that it says that:

II. God Is Well-Pleased When We Do Good You see, doing good is a spiritual sacrifice which means that:

1. our gifts to others are really offerings made to God Listen to how Paul described the gift that the Philippians had sent to him. He said, I have received full payment and even more; I am amply supplied, now that I have received from Epaphroditus the gifts you sent. They are a fragrant offering, an acceptable sacrifice, pleasing to God. And my God will meet all your needs according to his glorious riches in Christ Jesus. - Phil. 4:18-19. When we give to one another or give to a stranger or even an enemy, these gifts:

2. they are a sweet-smelling fragrance that brings Him joy, just like the incense floating up before His presence in the Tabernacle. It means that:

3. they are more than acceptable; they please Him greatly They delight His heart. He sees them and His very soul is satisfied in us! With such sacrifices as continual praise and continually doing good and giving generously to all men and especially to our fellow believers, God is well-pleased! A life well lived, a life that is truly pleasing to God, is a life filled with the goodness of giving to others in every way possible.

But in verse 16 the writer also warns us about:

III. The Danger In Doing Good: We May Easily Neglect It! He warns, Do not forget this! Now honestly, I don't think it means forget as in "Oops, I forgot to do good!"

1. the danger is not that we unintentionally "forget to do it" the way we might unintentionally forget to put our gift in the offering when we go on summer vacation. How do you "forget" to give your brother some help when you learn he doesn't have money for groceries this week? If you don't give, it is not an oversight, is it?

2. the danger is that we may selfishly "neglect" doing it because we want to hang onto our own treasures! We may walk by the need and say, "I just can't afford to help everybody with everything!" We may see the man lying in the ditch beside the road and walk by on the other side because we “don’t have time to get involved” or “have other things to do that are more important” or “don’t have money to spare”. I remember a friend sharing how she was going into a bank one day in the city and was approached by a man at the door asking for some change for food and she brushed by him and on up to the teller window because she just didn’t want to be bothered and as she stood there at the window, the Spirit of God spoke words into her mind as clear as a bell and said, “HE’S HUNGRY!” So, on her way out she took him across the street to McDonalds and bought him some food. That day she listened to Jesus and “went about doing good” like He did! But oh how easy it is for us to brush on by people with deep needs and even by our own brothers and sisters in the church, to grow selfish and see what we have as our own instead of being for God’s use! James said, Pure and genuine religion in the sight of God the Father means caring for orphans and widows in their distress and refusing to let the world corrupt you. - Jas. 1:27. Pure religious worship that hasn’t been tainted by the world, the kind that is acceptable and pleasing to God, is being touched by the needs of others and caring for them with what you have. And remember this:

3. God will never “neglect” rewarding and blessing our sharing Look back to Heb. 6:10, God is not unjust; he will not forget your work and the love you have shown him as you have helped his people and continue to help them. Paul said that because we give to the needs of others that God will supply all of our needs according to His riches in glory. God will not neglect our needs; He will not “forget” us! That would be unjust! And that is why it SO pleases Him when we intentionally refuse to neglect doing good to others and meeting their needs.

Novelist Saul Bellow tells this traditional Jewish folk tale: There was once a rabbi in a small Jewish village in Russia who vanished every Friday for several hours. The villagers boasted that during those hours their rabbi ascended to heaven to talk with God. A skeptical newcomer arrived in town, determined to discover where the rabbi really was. One Friday morning the newcomer hid near the rabbi’s house, watched him rise, say his prayers, and put on the clothes of a peasant. Then he saw him take an ax and go into the forest, chop down a tree, and gather a large bundle of wood. The rabbi proceeded to a shack in the poorest section of the village where an old woman lived. He left her the wood, which was enough for the week. The rabbi quietly returned to his own house. The newcomer stayed on in the village and became a disciple of the rabbi. And now whenever he hears one of his fellow villagers say, “On Friday morning our rabbi ascends all the way to heaven,” the newcomer quietly adds, “If not higher.” [Christianity Today, Dec 13, 1993. Page 37.] The sacrifice that really pleases God is not religious words and pious prayers, but a life filled with deeds of goodness and giving to others in need.

A Life Well Lived - Hebrews 13

A Life Of Prayer (Vs. 18-21)

With this brief message, we'll conclude our study of Hebrews 13. In it we've seen that a life well lived, a life that is truly pleasing to God, is filled with ten things. He wants our lives to be filled with love, hospitality, empathy, purity, contentment, respect, truth, grace, praise and goodness. Today in verse 18, we find that the writer has one last thing to add, the eleventh. A life that truly pleases God is a life of prayer! He simply says, Pray for us! And by us, he means Pray for ME, because in the very next phrase he switches to the pronoun I. We have a name for that. When you pray for yourself and your situation, we call it petition; it is you making your requests known to God. But when you pray for somebody else, we call it intercession. It means literally to go between. You take hold of that person and their needs with one hand and God with the other and bring them together through prayer. Paul exhorted us clearly that our lives should be filled with it. Look with me at Eph. 6:18. He commands us to be praying all the time, on every occasion with all kinds of prayers and requests. To the Thessalonians he put it like this, Pray continually! Or Pray without ceasing! - 1 Thes. 5:17. Our life should be a continual communication with the Father, but a huge part, if not the largest part of that, should be intercession...always keep on praying for all the saints! "Intercede for others all the time!" And then he adds verses 19-20. Paul says, "Pray for ME! I need your prayers!" Paul was in a difficult situation; he was in prison at Rome when he wrote this and he honestly believed, just like the author of Hebrews did, in:

I. The Importance Of Intercessory Prayer (18) It's a cry of the heart, "Pray for me!" Now we honestly don't know who wrote Hebrews. In the early centuries many believed it was Paul himself; others have suggested Barnabas and people like Apollos, Luke and even Peter, but we don't know. However, we CAN say with certainty that this writer was a Christian leader known personally and respected by the church, a Christian worker. In fact, all of those guys mentioned were missionary church planters! And if you check out the little postlude that follows our text in 22-25, whoever it was was probably in Italy and the Jewish believers to whom he's writing are probably back home in Palestine. There is something that has kept him from being "restored" to them, that is, from being able to come back and visit them. His coworker Timothy has just been released from prison, so I'm guessing that maybe he was there too until recently! And maybe that's why he was so urgent with his plea, Pray for ME! If nothing else, his cry is a reminder that:

1. Christian workers need intercessory prayer It is not a luxury that would be nice to have, but they can live without. It is not something they can do by themselves alone; God has designed the church so that we need one another's intercession. We literally need one another's prayers. Of course, God could do whatever He intends to do without us praying, but He has chosen to include us and make us a part of everything that He does in the world by calling us to come to Him in prayer and intercede and as we intercede, He works! Jerry Falwell was quite fond of saying, Nothing of eternal importance is ever accomplished apart from prayer! Hans von Staden who inspired Patrick Johnstone to do the book Operation World used to say simply, When man works, man works; when man prays, God works! So Christian workers, whether planting and growing the church overseas or planting and growing it right here in this community, NEED you to pray! We have a dear family of 22 long term missionary partners all over the world to whom we are deeply committed. They NEED you to pray! And we have 5 national partners in difficult places around the world. They NEED you to pray. Why? Because your life is intertwined with theirs and when you pray God works in and through them where they are! Secondly:

2. Christian workers need prayer personally, that is, specifically. "God bless our missionaries!" won't cut it. That's not intercession. Paul told the Ephesians: "Pray that God will give me the words to say and that I'll be bold in testifying to the faith here in Rome in my chains!" He was specific in what he needed prayer for and when we intercede, we need to pray specifically. Every week we list the current needs of our missionary partners in your bulletin. You need to be familiar enough with what's going on in their lives so you can intercede specifically for their needs. Thirdly:

3. Christian workers need prayer continually This Pray for Me! is a present imperative command and it has the force of continuing action. When Jesus said, Ask and it shall be given unto you; seek and you shall find..., it doesn't mean once. It means "Ask and keep on asking and it shall be given..." So Pray for me! means Pray and keep on praying for me! From early in my ministry I've had a team of people that I call my Prayer Team. They are older people and shut-ins who love to intercede. I send them a letter every two weeks with specific needs in my life and ministry here and they pray EVERY SINGLE DAY! Christian workers need that kind of continual intercession and that's what should characterize our lives. Fourthly:

4. Christian workers need prayer desperately In verse 19 the writer implores, "I particularly urge you to pray, I beseech you, I BEG you to pray for me!" The need is urgent. Why? Because, like this writer, Christian workers are in some of the most difficult and desperate places and situations there are. Some time ago a group of 9 hospital workers in Yemen were kidnapped. Three women were summarily executed and their bodies left by the road. Absolutely nothing was heard about the remaining six, a German family with three children and one Brit. Oh, how they needed our prayer and how others in similar difficult places need prayer for protection against such things! Of course, these are some of the more dramatic things that go on, but workers both here and around the world face insurmountable challenges and have huge glaring needs, medical, financial, physical, legal, and logistics needs that can only be solved by the hand of God through intercessory prayer! Finally, verse 18 tells us that:

5. Christian workers deserve prayer Pray for us. Why? For...We are sure that we have a clear conscience and desire to live honorably in every way. In other words, "I am not a fake! I am not some guy out here having a good time and living for himself! I've sold out to Jesus and I'm for real. I DESERVE to be prayed for!" Listen, the workers who are out there in ministry around the world and even right here are the cream of the crop. Sure, you can find a few knuckleheads among them, but by and large they're the best we've got! They're sincere; they're dedicated; they're sold out for Jesus; they've sacrificed a lot to serve and the least we can do is stand with them regularly in intercessory prayer! They deserve it!

But does it work? Does it really make a difference? Let's look in verse 19 at:

II. The Power Of Intercessory Prayer (19) Put simply he says, "I beg you to pray because if you pray, I'll be restored to you! I believe your prayers will move God and He will move the obstacle out of the way!" You see:

1. God's work is impacted when we pray Why? E.M. Bounds put it like this, Prayer moves the hand that moves the world! But don't think it's a manipulation; it doesn't mean that when we pray, we get God to do what we want. It means that God waits for us to get on board and ask Him for what HE wants before He will do it, so that WE can be included in the process of moving and changing the world together with Him! Does that make sense? God has set it up so that when we pray, He does the most incredible and wonderful things all over the earth to glorify His Name! I'll share just one. For months leading up to last Christmas, Bible Mission asked people around the world to pray for their 1:10 Campaign. They were asking God to mobilize 50,000 believers from the Baptist Churches all through the former Soviet Union to each share a personal Gospel testimony with 10 people and give them a Gospel of John and other materials. God answered with both the people and the funds for materials. More than 500,000 people received a Gospel witness in about a month's time. A few months later they surveyed 18,000 of the people who were witnessed to at Christmas and found that more than 6% made first time decisions for Christ. Twice as many began attending church or small group. Extrapolating the results to all 500,000 people means that probably some 30,000 people received Christ and more than 60,000 have begun to seek out Christian fellowship. Hallelujah! What a party heaven is having and what an example! Thousands of people in churches all over the CIS prayed for those who would share; people all over the world prayed for them and God moved in an incredible, unprecedented way! When we pray, God works! But then, you should know that the NIV doesn't exactly reflect what the writer really said. He actually wrote, "If you pray, I'll be restored to you the sooner! It'll happen quicker if you pray for me than if you don't!" Here's a neat truth:

2. God's work can be hastened when we pray It can be advanced faster, get done sooner. Often, He waits for us to get around to praying before He sends the breakthrough, so if we get on our knees quicker, the answer comes more speedily! In fact, consider this; Peter says, ...You ought to live holy and godly lives as you look forward to the day of God and speed its coming. - 2 Pet. 3:11-12. How on earth do we "speed its coming"? How do we hasten Christ's return by our lives? Well, to my knowledge, the only verse that specifies when Christ will come is Mat. 24:14, And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in the whole world as a testimony to all nations, and then the end will come. He's not coming until His work is done, until all the peoples of the earth hear the Gospel, but when that's done, He will come. So, as we intercede for Christian workers and God answers and His work gets done all the sooner, Christ's coming grows all the closer!

So pray, my dear brothers and sisters! Intercede for the work of God and the workers of God both here and out among the nations. Fill your life with intercession so that His work on earth may get done and His Kingdom will come in all its glory! Intercede every day, intercede passionately and fervently! Pray specifically for the workers who are doing His work! Oh, that will please God! Now the author closes his epistle with:

III. A Fitting Benediction To This Chapter And Our Study (20-21) This beautiful benediction has been repeated countless thousands of times at the close of worship services. You've surely heard it, but look closely at what the writer deeply and sincerely hopes for all of his readers, including us. He says two things:

1. may God equip you with everything you need to do His will That's what our lives are to be about, doing His will. May He equip and prepare you to do it! And then He adds:

2. may God do in and through you all that is well-pleasing to Him

May your life be filled with all these 11 things that please and satisfy Him so well. May they be the things that completely characterize your life so that your life be truly a life well lived. God grant it, I pray.

James: Living Out Our Faith Genuine Faith Perseveres Through Trials - 1:1-8

Let me begin by giving you a brief:

I. An Introduction To The Book Of James (1) There are at least four men named James in the New Testament, but this letter:

1. it was written BY James, the Lord's brother Paul met him in Jerusalem on a visit three years after his conversion; he says, ...I saw none of the other apostles except James the Lord's brother. - Gal. 1:19. Yes, according to Mark 6:3, Jesus had a brother named James, the first son of Joseph and Mary. His brothers did not believe in Him during His years at home or His 3 years in ministry, but Paul says that Jesus appeared to James after His resurrection and Jesus' brothers are listed among His followers in Acts. It appears that within a few years he was considered one of the apostles and became the acknowledged leader of the mother church in Jerusalem. As to his character, Eusebius calls him James the Just and early tradition says that James was such a man of prayer that his knees had large, thick calluses on them and he became known as the man with camel's knees. It also says that James was martyred in Jerusalem in 62 or 63 AD by being pushed from a high point of the temple. Yet the fall did not kill him and on the ground, he was beaten to death as he prayed for his attackers. But in spite of his respected position, he calls himself a servant, literally, a slave of, not his brother Jesus, but, of the Lord Jesus Christ. Secondly, this letter:

2. it was written TO Jewish believers scattered by persecution There were thousands of believers in Jerusalem in those early days after Jesus ascended, but after Stephen was stoned, Acts 8:1 says, there arose on that day a great persecution against the church in Jerusalem, and they were all scattered throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles. They were eventually dispersed even further throughout the Roman Empire. Later on, Peter wrote his first letter to the same group, To those who are elect exiles of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia [the Roman provinces that made up Asia Minor or modern Turkey] - 1 Pet. 1:1. So this is written to believers who are Jewish by background and have suffered a lot, probably at the hands of zealous Jews, and perhaps became what we'd call refugees in their early years because of their faith in Jesus, even though they now have settled lives in communities across the region. Thirdly, this letter:

3. it is the earliest written New Testament letter Most scholars think it was written between 45-50 AD, only some 15-20 years after Jesus' ascension. That would make this the very first piece of what became regarded as Holy Scripture in the New Testament era. It was a general epistle, a general letter written, not to a specific person or church group, but to the whole church scattered throughout the nearby provinces in those early days. And what does he naturally write to them about? Trials! Verse (2). He declares what:

II. Our Attitude should be When We Experience Trials Now what exactly does he mean by trials? The Greek word used here has two shades of meaning depending on the context. It can mean to prove or test, to demonstrate the reality and trustworthiness of something. You often see car commercials where car manufacturers put their automobile through rigorous tests to prove that it is built well and able to stand the rigors of driving for tens of thousands of miles or keeping passengers safe it crashes into a cement wall. The trial proves the quality of the car. That is its primary meaning in verses 1-12. In verse 13 you have the same word with its second shade of meaning, to tempt or solicit someone to do evil, which is another way of testing us. That's what James talks about in the next section. In life, James says:

1. we fall into and are surrounded by a variety of multi-faceted trials Again, the Greek word here translated meet or face means literally, to fall into something that surrounds you. Picture Daniel being tossed into the den of lions with the lions all around him. We don't seek out difficulties and suffering; we simply fall into them! They happen to us because we live in a fallen, broken world and they often surround us on every side because they're variegated, like Joseph's coat of many colors. They come in all kinds of shapes and forms like physical injuries, diseases, job loss, unexpected bills, loss of loved ones, even persecution. And they swirl all around us. Think of the refugees in Athens. Many of them faced war, personal danger, were forced to flee their homes, lost everything they had in life, lost people they loved and are now living in a camp or a crowded building with no job and no prospect for the future. Here a person may be injured and out of work and have bills pile up and face foreclosure and have a child on drugs or a spouse with cancer. Many times, we feel like Job with trouble surrounding us on every hand. And just as they were for him, all these things are trials; they test our faith. Will we continue to believe in God and trust God or will we give it up and throw our faith away? But James wants to tell us the attitude we should have in the midst of all these things. He says:

2. we are to count this as full and complete joy Of course, that is the exact opposite of what is normal for us. I've felt surrounded by difficulties a number of times in these last few years and I can assure you that's not my first reaction! When we face difficult situations that cause suffering, it makes us sad. We feel depressed. We see all these things as bad, and most of the time they actually are. We complain about going through them. But James says we are to count going through these as joy! And note that the Greek word is not a little bit of joy, but it means a full and complete joy! Of course, that's not what we feel as we're in the midst of it; we have to COUNT it all joy as we go through them, even though we don't feel it! Nobody is telling you that you have to jump up and down and applaud when you're in an auto accident or a steel bar falls on your toe (like happened to me when I was 17). You won't feel joy, but you are to consider it, to reckon it, to regard it as a joyous thing when you go through difficult trials. Well how on earth can you do that? James goes on in verses (3-4) to explain:

III. The Knowledge That Enables Us To Count Trials As Joy Here's what we know. We know that:

1. going through trials demonstrates that our faith is genuine When Job lost all his wealth and all his children in one day, he bowed down and worshipped. Then he lost his health and finally his wife told him to curse God and die, and his response was basically, "I STILL believe!" His trials proved that his faith was genuine, that it was real. Dave Roevers was an army sergeant stationed in Vietnam during the war. He was on the bank of a small river when his "combat sense" warned him that the enemy was nearby. So, he reached down and picked up a white phosphorus grenade to throw into the vegetation and burn it away so he could see clearly, but as he pulled the pin and lifted his arm to throw it, a sniper's bullet went through his hand and the grenade a few inches from his face. It exploded white hot phosphorus all over his face and body and he fell into the water. Through sheer adrenaline he made it somehow to the far bank, dragged himself out of the water on his knees. In gasping a deep breath, he inhaled some of the still blazing phosphorus into his mouth and throat and quickly spit it out and the first words out of his mouth were a shout, "God, I still believe!" He says, "I wanted the men to know that my faith was real, that it was still intact!" Dozens of surgeries and decades of years later, Dave has an amazing, huge ministry countrywide to the children of Vietnam! His faith has been proved genuine because it survived an awful trial. That's what our trials do for us! Secondly, we know that:

2. going through trials produces steadfastness (NIV perseverance) in us The King James translates it patience, but it is much more than the ability to wait through unpleasant things until they pass. Thayer says it is ...the characteristic of a man who is not swerved from his deliberate purpose and his loyalty to faith and piety by even the greatest trials and sufferings. Picture it like this. If you watch the weather channel, sometimes when there's a hurricane, in order to show the force of the high winds the reporter will make his way out a door and lean forward almost at a 45 degree angle, the wind holding him up, trying with all its force to push him backward and tear the very clothes off his body. Yet there he stands leaning into the wind with all his might, not giving an inch! That's steadfastness; it is the absolute determination to stand firm no matter what. That's a characteristic that God wants to cultivate and grow in us. But He can't do it if there's no wind! He can't train us to stand firm in the storm if there's no storm. He can't make a Job as he appears at the end of the book, without allowing him to fall into the pit of multiple adversities. The adversities shape his character! Now James reminds us in verse 4 that, unfortunately:

3. steadfastness requires time to have its intended effect in us It doesn't arrive in our lives all at once in a nice package. It's like a muscle; it grows by exercise, by being used. It is developed by standing firm in the first thing, then in the next thing, and the next, from the little thing to the bigger thing, until it becomes just part of you. It becomes an aspect of your character, of who you are. You stand steadfast no matter what comes! You spit the fire out of your mouth and shout, "God, I still believe!" But you can only get there through the long process of enduring a bunch of trials. What can you do to make it happen faster? James says, Cooperate! "LET steadfastness do its work fully, let it have its full effect!" Cooperate with the process! How do you do that? You stop complaining when trials come and questioning God and blaming Him and saying, "Where are you, God? Why don't you help me? If you love me, why are you letting this happen to me?" You stop complaining to others, "I don't understand why I pray and nothing happens!" You say, "God, You know how much I hate this; You know how much this hurts! But I recognize that YOU let this thing come into my life. You let me fall into this situation and I know that through it You are building steadfastness and trust into me. Therefore, I will choose to regard this thing as a JOY, because I know You are at work in me through it!" You see, James says that:

4. steadfastness makes us mature and complete God is in the process of growing us spiritually to maturity, and steadfastness or perseverance is one of the most important qualities of a mature believer; they don't fold under pressure no matter how severe it gets. It's like as we learn to stand firm in our difficulties, God is putting the finish coat on us, building into us the most important quality so that we won't be lacking in any way. Endurance is what allows the entire process of maturing to work; without it the whole thing stops dead in its tracks when trouble comes. Paul wrote the same thing to the Roman believers, ...we rejoice in our sufferings, knowing that suffering produces endurance, and endurance produces character, and character produces hope - Rom. 5:3-4. Endurance, the same Greek word, is what produces a proven character, a trustworthy dependable character, a mature character! And what does maturity look like? It looks like Jesus! God is shaping us stage by stage into the image of His Son. In fact, Romans says God has predestined us to be conformed to the image of His Son. Endurance of difficulties and counting them joy is a necessary part of that process and:

5. our example is Jesus Himself Look with me back a page or two at Heb. 12:2. Jesus ENDURED the cross. He did it in the right attitude, not regarding the shame of it or the pain of it or the awfulness of it, because He looked ahead at what it would accomplish, the salvation of a great multitude that no man could number of souls from every tribe, tongue, people and nation gathered into His eternal Kingdom, and He said, "I know what this suffering will accomplish and THAT gives me JOY!" He counted it all joy, even though He fell into troubles that surrounded and overwhelmed and killed Him, because He knew what it would accomplish in the end! He endured and we must be like Him! Now back to our text. Perseverance means even more than still believing; it means continuing to do the right thing. But often when we're in the midst of trials, it's hard to know what the right thing is. Trials are often times of confusion. So, in verses 5-8 James reminds us that:

IV. God Offers Us His Wisdom To Help Us Endure Trials (5) There is a wonderful, wonderful promise, one that we need to remember and use every day and especially when we are in the midst of difficulties:

1. God promises to give us wisdom if we ask Him If we don't know what to do, if we don't know what to say, if we don't know what our next step should be, we simply need to ask God, our Heavenly Father, and that wisdom WILL be given to us. How do we know that? Easy, because it's God's nature:

a. He delights in giving us or anyone wisdom He is a generous God. He loves to bless His children and He loves to bless even nonbelievers when they genuinely ask Him for guidance. What father, when his son or daughter comes to him seeking the wisdom of his years of experience asking, "Dad, I don't know what to do; this situation is so confusing to me. What's your advice?", would NOT answer them? God ALWAYS wants us to be dependent on Him for guidance and to seek it and He's always more willing to give us wisdom than we are to ask for it! Sometimes we may think that we're bothering God or that our troubles may seem small to Him, but don't hesitate to ask because:

b. He will never reprimand us for asking! An earthly father may respond wrong and say, "How stupid! Can't you see... Quit asking dumb questions." But our Heavenly Father won't! When you come seeking His wisdom, He will NEVER turn you away, never reproach you for asking. He WANTS you to ask. However, when we ask, James says:

2. we must absolutely believe that God will give us wisdom (6-8) You can't come thinking, "Well, maybe God will show me. I'll try Him." You can't come thinking, "I'll see what God says and then decide whether I'll do it or not."

a. the person who doubts God will not receive anything from Him God doesn't cast pearls of wisdom before swine, to use Jesus' metaphor. He doesn't give His precious guidance to people who doubt Him or who aren't committed to follow Him. You can't come to Him with a back and forth mind that debates whether He can help you one moment and then despairs that He can the next, like some wave that is driven by the wind in whichever direction it blows. In fact, James says that:

b. the person who doubts will prove double-minded in all areas of life He'll be faithful one day and doubt the next. He'll obey one day and disobey the next.

If you want God's wisdom and guidance, you've got to come to Him with steadfastness, with perseverance, standing firm in faith, saying, "God, I believe; please show me what to do and I'll do it!" And every time you come to Him in that attitude, the Word of God promises through James that it WILL be given you!

So, brothers and sisters, count it all joy when you fall into a maze of trials that surround you, painful though they may be. Trust God to guide you through and ask Him for wisdom. And always remember what Paul said in 2 Cor. 4:16-17, Therefore we do not lose heart. Though outwardly we are wasting away, yet inwardly we are being renewed day by day. For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. In looking back over his life, the late British journalist and Christian scholar, Malcolm Muggeridge, wrote this: Contrary to what might be expected, I look back on experiences that at the time seemed especially desolating and painful with particular satisfaction. Indeed, I can say with complete truthfulness that everything I have learned in my 75 years in this world, everything that has truly enhanced and enlightened my experience, has been through affliction and not through happiness. [Malcolm Muggeridge, in Homemade, July, 1990]. Look at the things that are eternal. Look at what God is doing through all that surrounds you. Fix your eyes on that and you'll be able to count your trials as joy.

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Obeys The Word - 1:19-27

The overall theme of the Epistle of James is "Living Out Our Faith". In the whole of it, James is urging believers, especially those who are enduring suffering, to live out in practice what they believe and that is what proves their faith is real and genuine. In the first part of chapter one he says that genuine faith perseveres through trials; in the second part he says that genuine faith conquers temptation to sin. Now in the last part he lays out the overarching principle that genuine faith obeys the Word of God. And he spells this principle out for us in two stages. First:

I. We Must Be Committed To Hear And Receive The Word Of God (19-21) Know this... is like the old railroad crossing signs you used to see in the country that say Stop, Look and Listen! It means, "Pay attention to what I'm about to say! Make a special note of it; it's important!" Moreover, he says:

1. this is a universal instruction for all believers It's for every person, every one of us without exception. You don't get to say, "This is for everybody else but it doesn't apply to me!" And then he gives that wonderful principle that we so often repeat, be quick to hear, slow to speak and slow to anger. That's a great general principle that advances real communication in any circumstance, in a marriage, in your family, with your brothers and sisters in the church or in any situation. However, as you can tell from verse 21, James is really talking specifically about the way that we need to be committed to hearing and receiving the Word of God. First:

2. we must develop an attitude of eagerness to hear what God says We must be quick to hear it, anxious and eager to listen to it as it is read or preached. We must desperately want to know what God says. During Passion Week, the last week of Jesus' life on earth, He was teaching daily in the Temple and Luke 19:48 says that the Jewish leaders couldn't find a way to do anything to Him because ...all the people were hanging on His words. They couldn't get enough. They listened for hours and drank in everything He said and kept coming back for more. That's the attitude we must develop, a deep thirst to hear what God is saying. Second, James says:

3. we must learn to wait before we speak You can't hear very well while you're talking, can you? Often when I've gone to Kyrgyzstan and sit in a worship service, some kind person will sit next to me and translate what's being said into English and it always amazes me that he or she can be talking in English to me while at the same time listening to what's being said by the speaker. But they can't do it perfectly and almost none of us can do it at all. To really listen you have to learn to be quiet and really hear what someone is saying before you talk and give your opinions. Solomon said as much, If one gives an answer before he hears, it is his folly and shame. - Prov. 18:13. And he added, When words are many, transgression is not lacking, but whoever restrains his lips is prudent. - 10:19. In any conversation it's wise to learn to wait to speak. It gives you time to really think about what you heard and respond wisely. And this is even more true when we hear the word of God. We so often want to interrupt our hearing of it by talking about what we've heard and telling what we think. If we really want to receive the Word, we need to learn to be quiet and sit with it, to let it sink in deep, to let it soak into our understanding before we respond and say anything. Third, James says:

4. we must learn to be slow to become angry And notice this does not merely mean to restrain anger, to hold back from lashing out. It means that it should take a lot for us to get angry in the first place! This is one of the characteristics that God declares about Himself repeatedly through the Scriptures, The LORD passed before [Moses] and proclaimed, "The LORD, the LORD, a God merciful and gracious, slow to anger, and abounding in steadfast love and faithfulness - Ex. 34:6. Because of His great love and mercy, it takes a lot to rouse His anger, to stir up His wrath. He is patient a long time before becoming angry and we should be like Him! And the reason, James says, is because when we are angry, we do not act righteously as God desires. When we're angry we say things that are evil and we do things that are evil. We lose control of ourselves and let our flesh control what we do and say and that always leads to sinful words and behavior. As the NLT puts it, Human anger does not produce the righteousness God desires. If we really want to receive the Word of God, it will never happen while we're angry and it will never happen if what God tells us makes us angry! We must learn to be slow to become angry. Then in verse 21 James tells us that if we want to receive the Word:

5. we must put off immorality and every sort of evil behavior Filthiness primarily refers sexual sin, inferring it makes us unclean before God, and the following phrase is a catch-all for every other kind of sinful behavior. Many years ago, I had a friend who I am convinced was a believer at the time, but he had a continual habit of being sexually involved with women. On one occasion I felt convicted to honestly challenge his behavior and his reply was angry, "Sure, I know it's wrong, but I'm not giving it up!" And when I asked where God was while this was going on, he said, "He's nowhere to be found and I know it!" You can't hear God when you're willfully and stubbornly persisting in ANY kind of sin. We have to choose to put it off like a dirty, filthy garment, to cast it away from us if we want to hear Him. Fortunately, my friend did just that a bit later on. But I don't want to mislead you into thinking that you can just do ANY of these things, whether it's waiting to speak or becoming slow to anger or casting away evil habits, in your own strength, by just trying harder to make them happen! Most times you can't "just stop". You need to rely on the power of the Holy Spirit and call on Him to do this work in you. And often habitual sins are rooted in emotional damage that occurred earlier in your life and you may need special help from someone else, like a wise counselor, to understand and break the hold that they have on you before you can let go. Yet all of these things block our hearing and they have to go, no matter what it takes. And then James concludes verse 21 by saying:

6. we must accept the Word in an attitude of humble submission As God speaks to us through His Word, we must humbly accept it and say, "Yes, Lord." A member of the British Parliament whose name was Neil Marten, was once giving a group of his constituents a guided tour of the Houses of Parliament. During the tour, the group happened to meet Lord Hailsham, then Lord Chancellor, wearing his full uniform and regalia. He recognized Marten among the group and shouted in greeting, "Neil!" Instantly the entire band of visitors fell to their knees, thinking it was a command! [Today in the Word, July 30, 1993]. That should be our attitude when God speaks to us. Heb. 4:12 says, ...the word of God is alive and powerful. It is sharper than the sharpest two-edged sword, cutting between soul and spirit, between joint and marrow. It exposes our innermost thoughts and desires. God's Word is not all wonderful promises of hope for the future and peace for the present. Much of what He has to say is convicting; it cuts and pierces us like a sharp sword to the very core of our being, all the way down to our innermost thoughts and desires. It exposes us and that hurts, yet we have to meekly agree with God that He is right instead of resisting and protesting and making excuses for ourselves. James says the Word of God has been "implanted" in us and has power that saves our souls. When we trusted in Jesus and were born again, God's perfect law, His Word, was written on our very hearts. It became part of our very nature to know the righteous life that God desires. So now, as His Word speaks to us and we humbly receive it, we allow that implanted Word to mushroom and take over our lives and mold and shape them into the image of Jesus. It's a powerful thing, mighty enough to save us and mighty enough to transform us, IF we hear and receive it with meekness. And if we do, we move into the second phase that James wants to impress on us:

II. We Must Be Committed To Obey And Do The Word Of God (22-27) Hearing is good; it is vital, but James says:

1. if we hear without obeying, we deceive ourselves that we believe it (22-24) In other words, we don't really believe something unless we act on it. If we say we believe something but we don't act on it, we don't truly believe it. We're fooling ourselves. James says we are like a person who scrutinizes his face in a mirror but then walks away, immediately forgets what he saw and does nothing about it. This is a great picture. Suppose you get up in the morning and go into the bathroom and as you pass it, you look in the mirror and you panic. You don't like what you see, so you stop and stare at it. Your hair is all messed up from sleeping on it. Your eyes have sacks under them. There's a big zit on your chin and maybe nose hairs are protruding from your nostrils. Your shirt's on backwards and there's a huge spot on it. But instead of doing anything about it, you leave the bathroom and eat breakfast and go out the door and forget all about what the mirror showed you. However, your fellow workers or your fellow students won't forget! You'd never do that, would you? When you look in the mirror and see that you're a mess, you do everything you can to fix it! Yet so often when we hear or read the Word of God and it shows our hearts that our lives are a mess, we go on out the door to a watching world and forget all about it! We don't really believe what we saw in the mirror; if we did, we'd do something about it. Instead, we fool ourselves; we tell ourselves we look fine, at least as good as everyone else, and after all, nobody's perfect! If we hear the Word, but don't DO what it says, we don't really believe it. Verse 22 is the theme verse of the whole letter so let me read it one more time. Now on the contrary, James says:

2. God blesses us as we obey His Word (25) Notice that there's a four-fold process outlined in this verse. First:
a. we peer intently into God's perfect Word By Law he doesn't mean the Old Testament law of Moses; he means the entirety of the Word of God, including the Good News of Jesus and the teaching of the apostles, the perfect law that brings freedom. Like the man at the mirror, we peer into it with focused attention, looking at every detail, scrutinizing ourselves in light of it carefully. Second:

b. we continue to do this perpetually We persevere in it; we keep on doing it as a continual habit. Like the man in Ps. 1:2, of whom it says, ...his delight is in the law of the LORD, and on his law he meditates day and night. He's always looking into the Word, thinking about it, constantly pondering it. Third:

c. we do not forget what we see and hear like that messed up guy who walked away. We apply what we hear from God to ourselves. We see what God shows us about ourselves and take it to heart and determine that things cannot stay the way they are. Then fourth:

d. we act on what we hear and put it into practice We obey what it says; we actually DO what God tells us; we practice what we say we believe and our behavior changes; our lives change.

THIS is what God is pleased with. This is what God wants and this is what He blesses. He blesses us in the very doing of it. He gives us grace and strength to carry it out and fills us with joy and peace and a real sense of His Presence as we DO what He tells us! Now James closes this first chapter by highlighting:

3. three practices which demonstrate genuine devotion to God's Word First of all, if we are actual doers of the Word:

a. we control our speech (26) He'll have a lot more to say about this in chapter 3, but here he summarizes it briefly. He's using the word religious much the same way we might use it when we say someone is "religious"; they go to church, they read the Bible, they pray, they give. They do all the outward religious acts that seem to indicate that they believe in the Lord. But the hypothetical person in this verse doesn't bridle his tongue; one scholar says, "He lets his tongue go like an unbridled horse!" An unbridled, unrestrained horse goes wherever he wants and does whatever he wants. Perhaps this man's tongue lies when it suits his purpose; he doesn't tell the truth. Or maybe this man's tongue speaks filthy words, telling dirty jokes, making sexual comments about women or racial slurs about black people or Latinos. Or it makes cutting, critical remarks that tear down family members or coworkers. Or it shouts angry, hurtful words that wound others. If we genuinely receive and obey God's Word, we control our speech! And James says:

(1) if we do not, our external religious acts are worthless They're empty, vain; they prove nothing about who we are. And what's worse, they're not acceptable to God. You can't offer God the sacrifice of praise with your tongue and then turn around and use it to abuse someone and call them names. Would He be pleased with that? You can't pray asking Him for things one moment and then turn around and use the same tongue to curse others or take His Name in vain and expect Him to overlook it. You can't read His Word with all it says about controlling your speech and then lie or speak filthy words and expect Him to bless you for it. We must control our speech and James says further:

(2) if we do not, we have deceived ourselves into thinking we are religious We have fooled ourselves into believing that externally religious acts make us the person that God wants us to be. And that's true whether we don't control our speech or whether we fail to do the next two things he mentions.

The best example of this I can think of is the Pharisees of Jesus' day. They were outwardly religious; they prayed, fasted, went to Temple, wore phylacteries and prayer shawls and actually believed they were devout and even righteous. Yet they continually plotted to murder Jesus and had no concern for the poor and needy. Small wonder that Jesus repeatedly called them hypocrites! But James is saying that when we fail to control our speech, we're being just like them. Then he goes on to say that if we are genuinely devoted to the Lord and His Word:

b. we care for the needy (27a) Widows were some of the most needy people in society in that day and still are in many places in the world. Without a husband to protect them and to provide for them, a woman can barely survive unless there are relatives who will care for her. And if she has children, it is especially hard and their life is really hard too. James says that if our religion is genuine that our heart will be touched and we will sacrificially care for needy people like this. I'm reminded of the words of Jesus, ...I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, I was naked and you clothed me, I was sick and you visited me, I was in prison and you came to me. - Mt. 25:35-36. Those are the things that mark a genuine follower of Jesus! In fact, John says, ...if anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him? - 1 John 3:17. You can't be real; you can't be genuine if you close your heart against the poor and needy! And lastly, James says if we are truly devoted to the Lord and His Word:

c. we keep ourselves unstained by the sins of the world around us (27b) We don't get involved in immorality like the people around us do. We don't lie and cheat like they do. We don't hurt others for our own benefit like they do. We don't let any of the world's sinful behavior rub off on us; we keep our garments unspotted out of love for the Lord Jesus and respect for what He has done for us.

If our faith is genuine, we are doers of the Word and not hearers only. We obey the Word. Chuck Swindoll writes, Imagine, if you will, that you work for a company whose president found it necessary to travel out of the country and spend an extended period of time abroad. So he says to you and the other trusted employees, "Look, I'm going to leave. And while I'm gone, I want you to pay close attention to the business. You manage things while I'm away. I will write you regularly. When I do, I will instruct you in what you should do from now until I return from this trip." Everyone agrees. He leaves and stays gone for a couple of years. During that time, he writes often, communicating his desires and concerns. Finally, he returns. He walks up to the front door of the company and immediately discovers everything is in a mess--weeds flourishing in the flower beds, windows broken across the front of the building, the gal at the front desk dozing, loud music roaring from several offices, two or three people engaged in horseplay in the back room. Instead of making a profit, the business has suffered a great loss. Without hesitation he calls everyone together and with a frown asks, "What happened? Didn't you get my letters?" You say, "Oh, yeah, sure. We got all your letters. We've even bound them in a book. And some of us have memorized them. In fact, we have 'letter study' every Sunday. You know, those were really great letters." I think the president would then ask, "But what did you do about my instructions?" And, no doubt the employees would respond, "Do? Well, nothing. But we read every one!" [Charles Swindoll, Living Above the Level of Mediocrity, p. 242.] One author in Our Daily Bread put it like this, A single revealed fact cherished in the heart and acted upon is more vital to our growth than a head filled with lofty ideas about God. [March 4, 1993] and then he quoted Oswald Chambers who said, One step forward in obedience is worth years of study about it.

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Treats All Equally - 2:1-13

One of the most prevalent evils throughout the history of mankind is prejudice. Prejudice is a pre-formed opinion that leads to Merriam Webster's third definition: an irrational attitude of hostility directed against an individual, a group, a race, or their supposed characteristics. It comes in many forms: racial prejudice, religious prejudice and even social prejudice. The Jews of Jesus' day regarded all Gentiles (non-Jews) as unclean and even referred to them as dogs. Of course, the Romans despised the Jews and had little regard for their lives. There have been similar prejudices in every country of the world, in every era of history. It has led to everything from ethnic cleansing in Sudan to the policy of apartheid in South Africa to the persecution of Christians in China, but it is also found in much more subtle forms, forms that creep even into the church and into all of our lives, no matter how much we deny it. In his letter, James is telling us straight up how to live out our faith in very practical terms and, as we enter chapter 2, he tackles this very issue head on with a bold statement:

I. Genuine Believers Do Not Discriminate Between People (1) The sense of the Greek as well as the whole passage is that this was something that James saw already going on and he was saying, "STOP displaying favoritism! Stop discriminating between people by your preconceived opinions! That is something that has NO place in you because you profess faith in our glorious Lord, Jesus Christ, who loved the whole world and sacrificed His own life so that people of every tribe, language group, ethnic group and nation could be saved from their sins and spend eternity with Him." The founders of our country wrote, We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights... They certainly didn't get those truths from looking at the history of the world; they got them from the Bible! Our God creates and values every single human being alike; He loves them all and if our faith in Him is real and genuine, we will do the same, even though we have failed miserably in this area many times. Even in church:

1. we often discriminate based on outward appearance (2-3) James says, "Suppose some visitor walks into your meeting all dressed nice, with hair done up right and wearing nice jewelry, your natural reaction will be to say, 'Hey friend, we're so glad to see you! Come on and take my seat right up here in the front.' But if another guy walks in and his hair is all messed up and his clothes look like he slept in them and he doesn't smell too good, you're liable to say, 'Hey buddy, you stand in the back of the room or sit on the floor someplace.'" Of course we'd never act like that... Oh come on, yes, we would! We do it all the time! It's just that we hide it here in our minds so nobody else can hear what we're really thinking! We do it naturally, even subconsciously without thinking about it. Even out in public:

a. we act graciously toward people with a "fine" appearance according to our preconceived standards. If they look like us and talk like us, we think good thoughts about them and greet them and act warmly towards them. But:

b. we act rudely toward people with a "shabby" appearance When you see a guy with long hair and a beard in a black leather jacket and boots, what do you do? Your brain says, "He looks like he's part of a motorcycle gang" and you avoid him if possible or walk right by him without acknowledging him. If we see a woman whose dress is somewhat immodest, we make assumptions. If we see someone who looks Chinese or Korean or if we hear some guy with a beard speaking some middle eastern language, we hesitate to speak to them. Even if we see someone who is in a wheelchair or has an artificial limb, or is extremely overweight, we tend to avoid them out of embarrassment unless they seem to need our help.

We tend to not treat all people the same, simply based on their outward appearance. It is part of our flesh, the habits of life that we have picked up from the world around us. And, James says, we do it even in the church, among ourselves (4a):

2. we make distinctions among ourselves when there are none I'd like you to turn with me to Gal. 3:26-28. As believers we all have the exact same status; we are all sons and daughters of God, genuine brothers and sisters in one family, the family of God. All of us who were united with Christ (he's not talking about water baptism) have put on

Christ; that is, we all have Christ living in us in the person of the Holy Spirit. We all have one and the same nature and are joined at the core of our being by the same Spirit and therefore:

a. there are no ethnic distinctions in our status in Christ Once we come to Jesus, we aren't Jews or Greeks or Romans or Europeans or Kyrgyz or Russians or Indians anymore; we're CHRIST-ians! Physically we're all of one race anyway, the human race; the difference in our color is simply due to the amount of melanin we have in our skin cells. The difference in our languages we've absorbed from whatever culture we were raised in. But spiritually, we're all one and the same in Jesus! Refugees in Greece from Syria or Afghanistan living on the street or in a cramped tenement, if they have come to Jesus are one and the same with us in Him. Persecuted Chinese believers who right now are having their churches destroyed and their leaders imprisoned by the hundreds are one with us! We're all God's children and equally loved. There are no ethnic distinctions before Him in the body of Christ. And, Paul says:

b. there are no social distinctions in our status in Christ The slave who believes is one in Jesus with those who are free, even with his owner if he believes. The poor Yenadi tribal believer who lives in a mud hut in 4th Mile village outside Nellore and catches rats in the fields for a living is one with the richest of us American believers who comes to visit him! Yet we tend to think of ourselves as superior because we have education or because we have a better standard of living. Even here we tend to look down on brothers or sisters because they're emotionally needy or because they struggle and need help all the time or because they struggle with temptations that we don't. But we're all God's children and equally loved; there are no social distinctions in the body of Christ. Then Paul says:

c. there are no gender distinctions in our status in Christ It is almost universal throughout the world that women are regarded as having less value than men. It is tragic that in Central Asia or in India when men come to Christ, they often have to be taught NOT to beat their wives! Sadly, when I preached about honoring your wives in India some years ago, one of the pastors actually got up and walked out of the meeting. In Jesus men and women are all the same spiritually before Him. And even though the Bible establishes male leadership in the church and in the home, Peter urges husbands, ...live with your wives in an understanding way, showing honor to the woman as the weaker vessel [that is, physically], since they are heirs with you of the grace of life... - 1 Pet. 3:7. In Jesus there is no difference between us! Men and women, we are all heirs of Christ, children of God, valuable to Him and equally used by Him to advance His Kingdom!

So, when we look down on or feel superior to another believer because they're a different color or speak a different language or are richer or poorer or are more or less educated than we are or because they're of the opposite gender, we're creating distinctions in the body of Christ that don't exist and what's worse, James says, (4b):

3. we make ourselves judges who are not just, but have evil thoughts A judge is supposed to be absolutely fair and impartial. If you're on trial for something, you don't want a judge who already doesn't like you or who already believes you're guilty, do you? You want a judge with no preconceived notions about you. But when we treat others with partiality and favoritism, first of all we make ourselves judges of them (which we are not), and what's worse, we are judges who are not acting or thinking justly, who have evil thoughts toward the person they're evaluating without any valid reason! Here's the principle we all need to remember:

4. God looks at people's hearts, not appearances You remember the story of how God sent Samuel to Bethlehem to anoint one of Jesse's seven sons to be the next King of Israel. So, when he saw Eliab, Jesse's oldest son who was tall and strong and handsome, Samuel thought, "Surely, THIS is the one the Lord has chosen!" But God immediately chastised him saying, ...“Do not look on his appearance or on the height of his stature, because I have rejected him. For the LORD sees not as man sees: man looks on the outward appearance, but the LORD looks on the heart.” - 1 Sam. 16:7. We see the outside of a person and we judge people by their outward appearance, but the Lord looks at their hearts! He chose David, the youngest and least prepared by outward appearance, because of his heart! James points out that:

a. He has chosen to call many poor to be His heirs (5-6a) Around the world, who is it that responds to the Gospel? Is it the rich, the educated, the powerful? No, it is the poor, the simple, the ordinary, the powerless, who respond, by the millions! Paul exhorted the Corinthians, Remember, dear brothers and sisters, that few of you were wise in the world's eyes or powerful or wealthy when God called you. Instead, God chose things the world considers foolish in order to shame those who think they are wise. And he chose things that are powerless to shame those who are powerful. God chose things despised by the world, things counted as nothing at all, and used them to bring to nothing what the world considers important. - 1 Cor. 1:26-28. God delights in calling the poor and the simple to faith and using them to advance His Kingdom, because He gets all the glory for it! Besides, James points out, (6b-7):

b. it is often the rich, educated and powerful who blaspheme Christ and persecute believers Around the world and even here, that's been true. The ones who stand against us, against our faith, are usually people with money and education and political power.

So why would we want to be predisposed against people with a “shabby” outward appearance and toward people with a “fine” appearance? God is much more likely to be at work in the heart of the “shabby” appearing person! And think of the damage that our prejudiced treatment of others can do. In his autobiography, Mahatma Gandhi wrote that during his student days he read the Gospels seriously and considered converting to Christianity. He believed that in the teachings of Jesus he could find the solution to the caste system that was dividing the people of India. So one Sunday he decided to attend services at a nearby church and talk to the minister about becoming a Christian. When he entered the sanctuary, however, the usher refused to give him a seat and suggested that he go worship with his own people. Gandhi left the church and never returned. “If Christians have caste differences also,” he said, “I might as well remain a Hindu.” [Our Daily Bread, March 6, 1994]. That usher’s prejudice not only betrayed Jesus, it kept a precious eternal soul out of heaven, but what’s even worse, Gandhi went on to lead his nation to independence and become known as “The Father of India”; think how many millions would have been influenced toward Jesus if he had become a Christian! The damage we do to other people by our prejudices! That’s why James not only says that genuine believers do not discriminate between people, but conversely:

II. Genuine Believers Fulfill the King’s Law By Loving All Their Neighbors (8) The “royal law”, the law of our King, is Lev. 19:18, You shall love your neighbor as yourself. In Mat. 22:36-40 Jesus told a religious leader that this command to love your neighbor was not only the second most important commandment, but that all of the rest of the commands in the Scriptures concerning the treatment of others were based on it or derived from it. But when He spoke about this with another leader, that guy asked, “Who is my neighbor?” and in answer to that, Jesus told the story of the Good Samaritan in Lk. 10:29-37. His punchline was, Go and do likewise! That is, go and love anybody you find, even the people you are prejudiced against! Everybody is our neighbor, anyone we meet, and Jesus’ “law” for us His followers is, “Love them ALL!” James goes on to point out that:

1. the command to love is equally as binding as the 10 commandments (9-11) You see, everybody knows that famous Ten, the “Do Not’s”. Well, maybe that’s not really true anymore, but it’s easy to say that we don’t murder or commit adultery or steal or lie. But the same God who commanded us NOT to do those things also commanded us TO love our neighbor; it’s not any less binding or less important; in fact, it’s the very basis for not doing all those things! Therefore, James says:

a. when we discriminate, we commit a sin against God, not just against the person. In doing it, we cast God and His rule aside and do what we want, just as Adam and Eve did in the garden. We say, “Jesus, I don’t care that You died for my sins; I’m going to go ahead and do what I want instead of what You say and sin against you anyway!” So:

b. when we discriminate, we become law breakers before God We like to look at people who do what we consider serious things like murder and theft and say, “They’re law-breakers!” But when we break God’s law of love, WE’RE lawbreakers just as much! That’s why James tells us that:

2. we must speak and act as people subject to the law of love (12) The phrase law of liberty is another way to refer to the law of love he’s been talking about. If you live by the principle of Love your neighbor, it’s freeing. You just love your neighbor and know that God is pleased with it; you don’t have to worry about keeping all the 613 commandments of the law like the Pharisees did. We’re those who are going to be judged by whether we loved people or not. But wait, how can we as believers be judged? Well:

a. while the eternal penalty for all our sins has been paid, we are still accountable to God for our behavior as His children The eternal penalty for every sin we ever have committed or will commit was paid for by Jesus at the cross and is forgiven once, for all, and forever. There is NO condemnation for us in that regard. We have become God’s children and that is that; it can’t be undone. But our Heavenly Father still wants us to please Him and obey Him and, like any father, He’s upset when we don’t and what we’ve done becomes a barrier in our walking and talking together and, if we persist in it, He’ll have to do something to correct us because He loves us! So, if we fail to love our neighbor, at the very least our fellowship with our Father will be hindered and at worst, He may have to take some drastic actions to break us of that. Now James reminds us of the principle that we find a number of places in Scripture (13a):

b. judgment without mercy is shown to those who show no mercy That’s true in human interaction. If you don’t show any pity and compassion for people in their situations, don’t expect anybody else to have pity and compassion for you in yours. Ebenezer Scrooge showed no mercy all his life; no wonder when he saw a vision of his future grave there were no mourners! Nobody cared because he didn’t care! But it’s also true in the spiritual realm. Jesus said, if you don’t forgive those who sin against you, how is God going to forgive you? He told a story about the man who had been forgiven a huge unpayable debt and then wouldn’t have mercy on someone who owed him a small amount and His point was how displeased God is when we who have been forgiven so much won’t turn around and show mercy on others. Don’t expect God to do all kinds of merciful and kind things for you if you’re not loving others in the same way. On the other hand look at (13b). In other words:

c. mercy joyfully removes all fear of judgment If you're loving your neighbor, you're keeping the royal law and you're pleasing God; you don't have to be afraid that He may not be pleased with you. Instead of being afraid all the time that you've displeased God, you can live in joy, knowing you've kept the most important thing He wants you to do.

Loving your neighbor is a powerful lesson God needs to teach each one of us and sometimes He does it in incredible ways. Back in 1984, Focus on the Family broadcast a powerful true story (that became both a book and movie) by Mike Adkins titled "A Man Called Norman". Norman was the town weirdo. No one in his small town would have anything to do with him. He was elderly and unkempt, hadn't taken a bath in years, wore smelly overalls and talked to himself. But God moved Mike and his family into a house across the street from Norman. At first Mike thought he was weird and avoided him just like everyone else in town, but one day the Holy Spirit spoke powerfully to Mike and told him to cross the street and help Norman with his broken-down lawnmower. Before he knew it, the Spirit of God had moved Mike to invite Norman into his home for a movie, to take Norman to a ballgame, to take him on their family vacation and ultimately even to fix Norman's dirty toilet which was the hardest thing for him. And Mike shares how, as he was lying on his back under that dirty toilet trying to get a stubborn seat bolt loose, a glob of rust and grime fell right on his face. That was the last straw for him and as he lay there complaining to God, the Spirit spoke to his heart right there on the floor and said, "When you do it unto the least of these, you do it unto me." He was undone. He saw his pride and repented and was changed. He'd been in ministry for 35 years and he says it was only after that night that it began to take off. Radio stations began to play his songs and speaking engagements came in all over the country and then record sales. But he says, "God didn't give me any of that until I learned what it means when He said 'Love your neighbor as yourself', through my friend Norman." Somewhere in the midst of this process, Norman asked Jesus into his heart and the two men became best friends until Norman went home to be with Jesus some 15 years later. You can still get the book on Amazon and the DVD from Mike Adkins' website or you can listen to the whole thing free on YouTube at <http://youtu.be/rigeTsJNd8o> [in 4 parts]. Just search for "A Man Called Norman" in quotes. I challenge you to take the time to find it and listen to it; I promise you won't be able to stop. But most of all, don't miss the lesson from it: God doesn't want us to discriminate against ANYbody; He wants us to love EVERYbody the way we love ourselves.

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Is Confirmed Through Deeds - 2:14-26

Did you know that Christianity is the largest religion in the world? No other even comes close. Some 2.3 billion people claim to hold the Christian faith, about one third of the earth's population. Yet the strange thing is that within that number who would say they are Christians, are people whose lives seem to contradict that fact. For example, a good many members of the mafia world and mob bosses are strongly Catholic in their beliefs and it's not just a pretense. They are actually very sincere in believing the truths they have been taught and receiving the rites of the church. They believe there is a God, that Jesus is the Son of God and that He died for our sins. Yet their lives are filled with extortion, drug deals and other crimes of various sorts, up to and including murder. To us there's a pretty obvious contradiction there somewhere. But is that so strange? All around us everywhere are people who would just as sincerely state that they believe those same things, yet they never mention Jesus, seldom go to church, never pray unless they're in a crisis, never read the Bible, have no hesitation about living with a partner or having babies without getting married, and generally do whatever they want to in life without giving any thought to God or what He might want them to do. But if you confronted them, they would say, "Sure, I am a Christian; I believe in Jesus!" and they would mean it. Now how do you view faith like that? That's the question James is addressing in the second half of chapter 2 of his letter. And he begins with this statement in (14a). He asks a question that expects a negative answer; he's really declaring that:

I. Faith That Does Not Result In Deeds Is Of No Value And by works, he means deeds that line up with and are the result of what the person believes. If a person says he believes something, but doesn't act according to what he believes, then his belief doesn't benefit or help him. It's a useless concept that has no bearing on his life. If a person says, "I believe in God," but acts like God doesn't exist, his so-called faith is purely an academic concept that is useless in his life. If He says, "I believe in Jesus," but does none of the things Jesus told His followers to do, his "faith" is of a different sort from the kind of faith that the Bible talks about. It is useless in his life, James says at the end of the verse (14b). The answer to his question is "No!"

1. such faith cannot save a person's soul Simply believing that Jesus existed, that He was a real person in history, that He was crucified and even that He rose again is not enough to save a person. Giving mental assent to the teachings of Christianity is not enough to take a person to heaven. It is not the kind of faith the Bible talks about, the kind we often call "saving faith". And not only that:

2. such faith does not help other people either. James gives this example in (15-16). Now that's not so far from home, is it? An author in a devotional I read wrote, The other day I was at a gas station when a man approached me asking for money. At first, I simply blew him off, as I cast judgment that he was probably not going to use the money for what he said he was going to use it for. As soon as he walked away, my stomach became knotted. God was working on me. Finally, I realized that regardless of what he used it for, it was not my place to judge and after all, it is just mon- ey. Once I gave him the money, he asked for my info so he could pay me back. I simply replied, "Pay it forward or put it in an offering plate...." Now, Jesus said that we are to love those who are poor or in need and care for them, especially those who are our brothers and sisters. We believe Him, don't we? Yet if we never reach into our pocket and do anything to actually help when we see them, our "faith" does them no good. It doesn't help them any more than it helps us. John wrote, ...if anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him? - 1 Jn. 3:17. If a person has genuine faith, God's love is actually IN him in the person of the Holy Spirit and he CAN'T close his heart and refuse to help. James says in verse (17):

3. such faith is dead It's a mere sham that gives the appearance of faith, but it is not a living reality. Real faith, genuine faith, is life-giving; life flows out of it to nourish the life of that person and of others through the good, kind and righteous deeds it produces. Remember what Jesus wrote to the church at Sardis in Rev. 3:1? He said, I know your works. You have the reputation of being alive, but you are dead. "You talk like you believe in Me. Other people hear what you say, so you have a reputation that you have a living faith in Me. But I know what you DO! And you don't ACT like you have faith in Me! You are dead! That is, your faith is dead, because it doesn't produce the works that a real, genuine faith would. It's a false appearance, not a spiritual reality." And the second major point James goes on to make is that:

II. Faith Cannot Be Proven Genuine Apart From Deeds (18) Faith and works are not two disconnected things. Faith is an inner thing, an attitude of the mind and heart. It can't be seen with human eyes. How can you know a person has it? They can tell you they have it, but how can you really be sure they have it? How can you verify what they say? The only way is by observing what they DO, their works! Jesus said, Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep's clothing but inwardly are ravenous wolves. You will recognize them by their fruits. Are grapes gathered from thornbushes, or figs from thistles? So, every healthy tree bears good fruit, but the diseased tree bears bad fruit. A healthy tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a diseased tree bear good fruit. - Mt. 7:15-18. The same is true, not only of false prophets, but of ordinary people who profess to have faith and say the right things. The only way you can tell if what they say is genuine is to see the fruits they bear in life, the things they DO. There is no other way to tell if their faith is real. James says:

1. faith requires more than believing that the LORD is God (19) There is something going on in this verse that you may not recognize; I didn't at first reading! Remember that James is writing to believers who are from Jewish background, so every day of their lives for years they said the Shema, the defining statement of Jewish faith from Deut. 6:4, Hear, O Israel: The LORD our God, the LORD is one. LORD in all capital letters is the indicator for the proper name of God, Yahweh or Jehovah. It is to say, "Our God, Yahweh, is the true God, the only God; there is no other." James says believing that is not enough.

a. religious Jews confess faith in the One True God daily The Pharisees, the scribes, the Sadducees, the Elders, the most deeply devoted and religious among the Jewish people believed this very thing strongly and repeated it every day as a creed. Yet they are the very ones who persecuted believers! They drove these folks to whom James is writing out of Jerusalem and in all the places where they went, religious Jews are the ones who continued to make life hard for them! Just look at Paul's later journeys; everywhere he went it was people who believed that The Lord is One who beat him and stoned him and rioted against him! Their faith was real; it was deep! But, James comments:

b. even demons know and believe who God is Did you ever think about that? Demons have faith. They believe; they KNOW that Yahweh is the one and only true God. And it is a real faith, so real that James says they tremble in fear of Him! But that kind of believing is not enough! The true kind of faith that James is speaking of obviously requires more than that. In fact, the very next verse, Deut. 6:5 goes on to say that:

c. faith requires loving Him completely, You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your might. Believing WHO He is is necessary, but loving Him is what makes it real! And loving Him with our whole being always results in obeying Him. If you truly love Him, you obey Him and DO what He says. Look with me at what Jesus said in Jn. 14:15, 23, 24. In other words, true, genuine, saving faith in Jesus is the same as loving Him with all your heart. And if you love Him with all your heart, you will obey Him and DO what He says. Your deeds will prove the reality of your heart faith. If you don't do what He says, you don't love Him and you don't genuinely trust in Him, any more than the demons do.

What a strong statement! But now James goes on to give two examples of how:

2. biblical characters demonstrated their faith by their deeds (20) He says, "Let me show you from the Scriptures that faith that does not result in deeds is worthless. First let's look at our own ancestor, the very one from whom all of us with Jewish blood come, Abraham" (21-24). You remember that amazing story in Gen. 22 of how God told Abraham to go to the land of Moriah and offer up his son as a sacrifice, and amazingly:

a. Abraham obediently offered his son Isaac on the altar He had the knife in his hand and was about to take Isaac's life when God stopped him and substituted a ram instead. Now James points out that:

(1) he believed God's promise and was declared righteous way back in Gen. 15:6, some 25 or more years earlier. God took him outside and said, "Look toward heaven, and number the stars, if you are able to number them.” Then he said to him, “So shall your offspring be.” And he believed the LORD, and he counted it to him as righteousness. Abraham believed God would do what He said; he believed God would give him offspring as numerous as the stars, even though he and Sarah had no child for many years. God validated his faith as being real and genuine by counting him as being righteous right then. Well, 20 years or so later God gave them a child, Isaac and a few years after that:

(2) he demonstrated that faith by offering Isaac He didn’t argue with God and say, “But God, you said my descendants would come through Isaac. How can You keep your promise if I kill him!” The thought that God would not keep His word never entered his mind. Look with me at Heb. 11:17-19. He just figured that God would have to raise Isaac from the dead because He would never break His Word! So, James is saying that:

(3) his faith was ultimately fulfilled in his deeds, showing it was real He was “justified by works”, not in the sense that his works saved him, but in the sense that his trusting deed proved that his faith was real. The faith he had inside of him produced the fruit of obedience and trust in the most extreme situation. And to all future generations Abraham:

(4) he became known as “the friend of God” The Jews came to call him that. He is called that in 2 Chron. 20:7 by King Jehoshaphat, and in Is. 41:8 God Himself refers to the offspring of ...Abraham, my friend, just as Jesus calls us His followers His friends. They were bonded in a real relationship. So, James’ point in verse 24 is that:

(5) like him, we are justified by the kind of faith that results in deeds, not by faith alone, that is, not by the kind of faith that is professed, but does not work itself out in a person’s life in the appropriate deeds that should accompany it.

Then James moves on to a second example, this time a woman (25). You remember the story of how:

b. Rahab boldly protected the Israelite spies who came to Jericho to find its weaknesses. She took them up on her roof and hid them and lied to the soldiers who came looking for them and sent them off in the wrong direction. Then she let them down the wall out her own window on a rope. In doing so, she risked her own life. If she had been caught, she would have certainly been executed for treason immediately. Why would she take such a risk and do such a thing? Because:

(1) she, who had been not only a pagan idol worshipper, but also an immoral woman, a prostitute, professed faith in Israel’s God. She had heard how Israel’s God had dried up the Red Sea for them to cross and how they had defeated the two kings across the Jordan and she said to the spies, And as soon as we heard it, our hearts melted, and there was no spirit left in any man because of you, for the LORD your God, he is God in the heavens above and on the earth beneath. - Josh. 2:11. She put her faith in the God of Israel instead of in her own gods of Jericho. But simply saying that was not all:

(2) she demonstrated that her faith was real by risking her own life to protect the spies She sided with Israel against her own people and did this bold thing because her faith was more than words, more than mental assent; it was genuine faith in God rooted in her heart and she is such an example that the writer of Hebrews lists her right along with Abraham and Moses and other biblical heroes, saying, By faith Rahab the prostitute did not perish with those who were disobedient, because she had given a friendly welcome to the spies. - Heb. 11:31. Her deed was just as valiant and just as much an act of faith as any of theirs and by it:

(3) she saved herself, her family, and became part of God’s people She and her family were the only survivors of the fall of Jericho because of her faith. But not only that, one of the spies named Salmon married her and she became the mother of Boaz, Ruth’s husband, and the great, great grandmother of King David!

She too was “justified by works”, again, not in the sense that her works saved her, but in the sense that her trusting deed proved that her faith was real. If she had not done what she did and protected the spies, her faith would only have been meaningless lip service.

Now James concludes with this final word:

III. Faith Apart From Works Is Dead Like A Corpse (26) To be more tasteful, I’ll use the same illustration with animals. You’ve all seen a road-killed squirrel. The body is lying there; it’s lifeless. It can’t move or eat or make noise because there’s no life force, no spirit in it. It’s just the empty shell with the appearance of what was a squirrel. That’s what faith is like when it has no resulting deeds. It’s lifeless, just an empty shell that looks like faith, but really isn’t faith at all. The two things, faith and the works it produces, must be united as one in order to be living and genuine, the same way that our body and our spirit are joined to make us a real, living human being.

So, what does all this mean? Look with me at Mt. 7:21-23. Not everyone who professes to have faith in Jesus will be saved; only those whose faith is genuine and results in them actually DOING the will of God, not their own will. If it doesn’t result in that, Jesus will say, “I never knew you”. That is what James has been telling us. Let me make two applications. First of all:

1. there are a lot of people who think they are saved but they are really not There maybe someone here today thinking, “I prayed a prayer to receive Jesus when I was a kid. I believe Jesus died for my sins.” But you’re living for yourself, doing what you want to do. Your profession of faith is disconnected from the rest of your life and you’re living just like all the people around you. If that’s you, only God can judge your heart, but I can simply say you’re on shaky ground. Empty words and head knowledge beliefs won’t get anyone into heaven. When Jesus comes in, he transforms your life and you live for Him and His things! Then second:

2) there are a lot of people YOU may think are saved but they are really not Family members, loved ones, neighbors, close friends, even our own children. Because they say, “I believe in Jesus” or because you know of a time when they did say that or perhaps prayed a prayer years ago, does not mean we can assume their faith is genuine. If their lives do not bear the fruit of faith in the way they live every day, something’s wrong; their “faith” might not be real faith, life-altering heart faith that saves and we need to pray for them.

Saritha shares her testimony online: I was born in Hyderabad, India. I grew up going to church all my life. I learned all the Bible stories at Sunday school and VBS. As a teenager, I participated in youth camps and youth retreats. I always believed the Gospel as a general thing that Jesus died for my sins. I made a profession of salvation and was baptized. No matter how I appeared outwardly, there was neither change nor fruit in my life. I could never read my Bible, learn from it nor apply it to my life. Realistically, I was not growing at all, but was backsliding. I was living a dual life – one at church and one at home. I was a temperamental person, spent much time on fashion and make up, and enjoyed watching and listening to worldly movies and music. I had no burden for lost souls and was living a meaningless life. In May 2009, I moved from India to the USA and got married to David. I had everything in life I ever wanted, and I should have been happy and thankful, yet I was frustrated and was angry at all the problems. Meanwhile, I was attending [a new church], which was a huge blessing to me. God was opening my eyes to the truth, and everything started to make sense. Through the Bible studies, I was able to understand the difference between Christianity as a religion and salvation of the Bible. God’s objective was not merely to bring people to a mental belief of the Gospel, but prior to our belief there should be REPENTANCE. A genuine repentance in a person results in a change of life and brings about the right motives in how he/she lives for Christ. [At last] I figured out that I never turned away from my old, sinful ways. I realized that my own life had never really changed after my earlier profession of salvation. I had always lived selfishly for myself and not for God. Instead of being saved, I was actually a condemned, unrepentant sinner. Finally in December 2012, I gave up my hypocrisy and cried out to the Lord, truly repented of my sins, and surrendered my life to the Lord. I chose to turn away from my sins and my own way and trusted in Jesus to save me and forgive me – and He did! Since that time, my life has not been the same. 2 Corinthians 5:17 says, “Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.” I am totally different from what I used to be. Today, I can say that Jesus is the Lord of my life, and I have a personal relationship with Him every day. He speaks to me through His Word – the Bible. He is changing me and has given me a new purpose in life and victory over my old sins. I avoid carnal and worldly living, and my sincere desire is to serve and obey Him. www.lvbaptist.org/smanohar Her life spells out what James is saying to us. Faith that does not result in a changed life is not true faith.

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Controls The Tongue - 3:1-12

James’ letter is about living out our faith and the one area where I guarantee that ALL of us have the most trouble doing that is with our mouths, in the way that we talk and the things that we say. I read somewhere that the average person spends one-fifth of his or her life talking! If all of our words were put into print, a single day’s words would fill a 50-page book, while in a year’s time the average person’s words would fill 132 books of 200 pages each! [Today in the Word, June 15, 1992.] We talk ALOT! And wise old Solomon reminds us, When there are many words, sin is unavoidable, but the one who controls his lips is wise. - Prov. 10:31. It’s tough to do and that’s why James begins the first two verses of chapter 3 by talking about:

I. The Solemn Responsibility Of Teachers (1) We don’t often think about it, but:

1. teachers wield powerful influence through the use of their tongue They not only talk more than the average person does because, well, that’s their job, but their very words shape, mold and change people’s minds and therefore their lives. We have all observed how easily the words of a well-spoken school teacher or college professor can lead young minds away from faith in Christ and the Bible or can lead them toward it. James, of course, has the church in mind and is pointing out the influence that those who teach the body have. It was the teaching of a pastor that brought me to Jesus. But I’ve also heard pastors say things that I cringe at from their pulpit, things that should never have been said. Being in front of people to teach provides a great opportunity to influence them, but, on the other hand, it provides a huge opportunity to mislead them or offend them by letting your flesh take over your mouth. So, James warns us that teachers:

a. they have a greater accountability to God because of this God holds us accountable for what we say! And those who say the most and have the biggest opportunity to influence people by what they say, are held to the highest standard. Their Heavenly Father expects more of them because of the trust they've been giving in teaching others! God sees what you say when you preach or teach a class as extremely important. I've told you before that my goal is that on my tombstone, they can legitimately put John 10:41, John did no miracle but everything John said about this man was true! I spend a lot of time researching carefully what Scriptures really mean before teaching them and I even do as much as I can to check and verify illustrations I use, because God expects what I say to be absolutely truthful. But He also expects it to be kind and loving and to represent the character of Jesus well. That's why James warns that:

b. no one should seek to become a teacher for the prestige of the position Evidently this was a problem in the churches. Everybody wanted to be a teacher, whether he or she had the gifts and maturity for it or not. Some people want to be noticed; they want to be up front. They want to be the one to instruct others because of the respect they get or the power they feel, because THEY get something out of it that makes them feel good about themselves somehow. James says, "No, no; that's the wrong motive! Think about how responsible a teacher must be and how accountable you are to God. Don't do it unless HE convinces you that you should!" Why? Because:

2. no one (not even teachers!) can control their tongue completely (2) We get it. We all know that:

a. we all sin in many different ways but James says that to keep from sinning with our tongue is the most difficult of all. He says:

b. if we could control our tongue, we could keep from every other sin It's a lot easier to keep from lust and greed and envy and jealousy and hatred and anger than it is to keep from saying wrong words! If we could do that, we could potentially be perfect, but of course, we can't.

Then in verses (3-6) James goes on to impress upon us:

II. The Incredible Power Of The Tongue Even though it is such a small part of our body:

1. small things often have great power and he goes on to give three illustrations from everyday life. You may have noticed that in verse 2 he intentionally used the phrase bridle the whole body; that's because his first illustration is that:

a. a small bit controls the body of a huge horse (3) Do we have any horse lovers or horseback riders in here? You know some horses are really big; their back can be as tall as my shoulder and draft horses get even bigger. But you take a bridle that has a metal bit on the front and you slip that little bit into the horse's mouth and you can put a little kid up there on the horse's back and that kid can make that huge horse go anywhere he wants by using the reins to pull on that little bit in the horse's mouth. Or if you're into the ocean, think about this:

b. a small rudder controls the path of a giant ship (4) Think about a huge sailing ship of that day or even a giant ocean liner today. A vessel bigger than this building can be turned left or right or in a circle by a small vertical piece of wood or metal underneath its rear called a rudder. Use the wheel to turn it just a little and the whole giant craft turns where you want, even if the wind or waves are trying to push in the opposite direction! Or if you love the mountains, think about this:

c. a small fire (actually a tiny spark!) can set a whole forest ablaze (5b) Look at the humongous wildfires this year already. As of July, more than two million acres have burned in 108 large fires across the western states and Alaska! And each one begins with one lightning strike, one little campfire, even one spark sometimes, and soon thousands upon thousands of acres are uncontrollably on fire. Something very little can have great power and a huge impact in the world and likewise, James says in (5a) that:

2. the tongue is a small member of the body but...

a. it makes great claims that influence many people Just think about how Adolph Hitler was able to use his tongue to transform his nation through Naziism and drag the whole world into war. It was largely his ability as a powerful orator, his speeches, that caused all that. Jim Jones was a religious leader, a cult leader, who convinced almost 1,000 of his followers to move with him to Guyana and ultimately to commit suicide in 1978. How? By his tongue, his convincing speeches. Yet consider Billy Graham, who used His tongue to lead literally millions of people to trust in Jesus Christ for salvation all over the world! Prov. 18:21 is true when it says, Death and life are in the power of the tongue, and those who love it will eat its fruits. What people say with their mouths can have tremendously powerful impact and when it is negative:

b. its damage spreads widely like a fire (6) Just like those spreading wildfires, when we use our mouth to speak evil things:

(1) it creates all kinds of damage everywhere around us, literally a kosmos of injustice, a whole world of bad things of every sort. Rehoboam, when he became the new King of Israel after Solomon's death, gave his people a tough, proud speech, My little finger is thicker than my father's loins!, meaning "I'm going to be tougher than my father was and you'd better do what I say!" His words lost him most of his kingdom; 10 of the tribes left and formed their own separate nation and it remained that way for 400 years! Oh, how we can drive people away by the way we talk! In 1 Kings 13 one prophet lied to another and got him to disobey God and those lying words cost the second man his life! Ananias and Sapphira lied to God about the price of their land and were struck dead! Oh, the damage we can create in other people's lives and in our own when we lie! And when we use our mouth to speak evil things, James says:

(2) it damages the entire course of our life The entire course of our life can be powerfully damaged by simple words. I counseled with a lady some years ago who, when she was five or so, dawdled in the house and didn't get into the car fast enough when her daddy told her to. So, as she was finally climbing in, he yelled "Get in the blankety blank car!", using God's name as a curse word toward her. She told me that all of her life she had felt condemned by God, unworthy to come into his presence, unable to be close to Him. She was about 45 years old! Her husband was in the ministry! She had done everything she knew to try to fix this feeling until that day God led her back to that childhood memory and during a time of prayer showed her how much He loves her and she was released! Do you have any idea how much damage evil words do to children? How many women today are struggling with their weight, are even anorexic or bulimic, because when they were young their peers or someone significant told them they were fat? Others have struggled because they were called stupid by insensitive parents or peers. If we use our tongue wrongly, we can impact the entire course of a person's whole life! You see, the tongue:

(3) it is a powerful tool energized by Satan Just as heaven is sometimes used in the Bible as a synonym for God, here hell is a synonym for Satan himself. Satan starts that fire! His demons plant wrong thoughts in our mind which, before we know it, pop out of our mouths as wrong words and sometimes create irreparable damage! How many things have you blurted out in anger or frustration that you didn't really mean and hurt people deeply! Words are a powerful tool that Satan uses to drag us into sin all the time.

And that leads James to talk about:

III. The Awful Problem We Have With Our Tongue in verses 7-12. He says, "You can tame and control almost any kind of wild creature..." You know that; you've seen tame grizzly bears attacking people on TV and know that they're not really hurting them, but just acting out what their trainer tells them. You've seen tame lions and tigers and leopards who would normally kill a person immediately. We can tame almost anything, James says, but:

1. we are unable to control our speech apart from Divine help (7-8) Nobody can do it, no matter how hard they try! It's an unrestrainable source of evil that just keeps cropping up over and over again. Our tongue is like a cobra; it's got all this deadly poison in it and is always swaying back and forth ready to strike! And yet James tells us that:

2. we must stop being inconsistent in our speech (9-12) He says:

a. it is hypocritical to bless God and then speak evil to people We thank the Lord and praise Him in flowery language and then turn around and say to our neighbor "Why don't you shut up!" a minute later. We tell somebody they need to believe in Jesus one minute and then turn around and gossip about a mutual friend the next. These things shouldn't be if our faith is genuine, if we really love Jesus! Look back with me at what James already said in 1:26. If you can't bridle your tongue, if you can't control your speech, all your religious acts are worthless before God! You're fooling yourself! You're being a hypocrite.

b. godly speech should flow consistently from our godly nature Like a spring, our mouth should only bring forth drinkable water, not good water one day and undrinkable salt water the next. Like a fruit tree, it ought to bear the kind of fruit that its nature is made to bear. A fig tree can only produce figs, not olives, because it's a fig tree; that's its nature. An olive tree can only produce olives, because it's an olive tree; that's its nature. And we ought to produce only the fruit of the nature that's inside of us. Jesus said in Lk. 6:45, The good person out of the good treasure of his heart produces good, and the evil person out of his evil treasure produces evil, for out of the abundance of the heart his mouth speaks. That's how it should work! If we've been made new on the inside and our heart has been made clean and pure by the Holy Spirit, then our mouth should speak out of the abundance of that in pure and true words!

Yet, so often it doesn't. So often it speaks out of our flesh, the sinful set of habitual ways that we have learned to think and speak, instead of out of our heart, our nature. If no man can control his speech perfectly, how on earth are we ever going to do it! The answer is clear:

3. we must ask the Holy Spirit to control our speech Turn with me to Gal. 5:16. Say it with me, ...walk by the Spirit, and you will not gratify the desires of the flesh. Walking implies a continuing action, a new habit to build into your life. Let the power of the Spirit control you and you won't do what your flesh wants you to do! And the not in that verse is a double negative. You won't ever, never, no way, say what your flesh wants you to say! If the Spirit has your tongue, you'll speak right. Now what does that look like? It's pretty simple really. When I get out of bed in the morning, I put my hand in His and say, "Holy Spirit, take control of me today." When I get to the breakfast table and the baby dumps the bowl of cereal all over the floor, I say, "Spirit, control my mouth". When I'm driving down the freeway and some guy cuts in front of me and nearly runs me off the road, I say, "Spirit, control my tongue". Then at work when I have a difficult decision to make or I have to talk to somebody about a difficult matter or I'm having trouble getting along with somebody, I say, "Spirit, control my tongue; give me the words." And I do the same thing moment by moment through the day until I close my eyes at night. And I get up tomorrow and do it all over again, and the next day and the next. That is walking in the Spirit and if you do that, the Holy Spirit will be in control of your mouth and your flesh won't get its way with your mouth! You'll be like Job, of whom it was said after ALL his great losses, ...In all this Job did not sin with his lips. But the minute you fail to ask for His control, your flesh will take over, wrong words will fly out and you'll have to confess your wrong speaking later.

Corrie ten Boom is well known for surviving the notorious Ravensbruck Concentration Camp; her story is told through the book and the movie, "The Hiding Place". After the war Corrie traveled the world speaking and one of her favorite illustrations was to use a glove that would lie limply on the podium until she was ready. In her book "Messages Of God's Abundance" she shares it. She would pick the glove up and say, 'I have a glove here. It can't do anything but if I put my hand in it, it can do a lot, writing, sewing and much more. Now I know, of course, that it isn't the glove; it's my hand in the glove. You and I are like gloves and the Holy Spirit is like the hand - it can do a great deal. If I ball my fist in the middle, the glove flops limply. Each finger has to be filled. Thus, the Bible says with practicality, 'Be filled with the Spirit'. Then Corrie goes on to pray, 'Thank You, Lord, that the fullness of the Spirit is for every child of God. Please show me if there is a small part of my life, or perhaps even a big part, that is not open to Your Spirit. Thank You that Your Holy Spirit is willing to fill my life to the fullest, just like sunlight fills a room that is open to its light. Listen, Lord, to anyone who says: 'I am throwing the curtains wide open! Fill every corner and make me like a glove that is able to do anything through Your strong hand that fills every finger. Thank You so much. In Jesus' name, Amen.' [Messages of God's Abundance - Corrie Ten Boom - p.59-60] One of those fingers that desperately needs to be filled is our tongue, our mouth. Let's resolve to ask Him to fill it, every day.

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Does Not Slander Or Boast - 4:11-17

As James continues to challenge us to live out our faith, in chapter 4 he is addressing secular ways of thinking and acting that creep into our lives as believers. In particular he's pointing out that pride seems to somehow infest our minds and control our actions and our words. I'm sure you heard the one about the frog who was envious of the ducks in his pond who flew south for the winter and wanted to go with them. So he convinced two of the ducks to fly side by side, each holding on to one end of a stick and he would hold onto the stick in the middle between them with his mouth. The plan was working splendidly until they flew over a group of people and one of them said, "Wow, look at that! Two ducks carrying a frog south with them! I wonder who thought of that!" And immediately the frog shouted, "I did!" We're like that frog. That pride of life thing is in our flesh. We think that WE are always right, that WE are better, that WE are in charge of our lives, and James warns us strongly to stop thinking like that. In verses 11-17 he returns to the subject he addressed briefly in chapter 1 and at length in chapter 3, the way that we use our mouths. First of all, he says that:

I. We Must Stop Arrogantly Speaking Against Our Brothers (11-12) The NIV translates the Greek verb as slander but it literally means to speak against which is an even deeper concept. Let's think about:

1. what it means to speak against someone Of course:

a. it can mean making false accusations that damage a person's reputation That's the definition of slander, falsely accusing someone to defame them. "Joe is so rude. He drove right by me and refused to wave or even look at me." Now the truth is that Joe never saw you, but you want other people to think badly about him because you do. That's a silly illustration, but we can get much more serious than that. When we get upset, we want people to think well of us and be on our side, so we can accuse a brother or sister of lying, of not caring, of being greedy or a host of other things, just to damage what other people think of them and get them to pity us or agree with us. Or speaking against someone:

b. it can simply mean speaking about them in a harsh, critical fashion to others "That Susan, she is so dumb. She flunked that quiz we took, but it was so simple! What a moron!" We criticize people to others for all kinds of things in all kinds of ways. We criticize their intelligence, their behavior, their clothing, their hair style, the way they talk, the way they take care of their kids; you name it, we criticize it. It comes so natural to us. And the reason again is that it makes us better than them; it elevates us above them in the eyes of the person we're talking to. But speaking against someone:

c. it often means condemning them for not following our own standards We're notorious for this in the church! "Those Presbyterians, they drink like fish!" "Look that pastor who wears a collar and a black suit; he even wears a robe when he preaches. He must be liberal!" We condemn each other over a thousand things that are really just things we don't like, not things that are biblically wrong, things like doctrinal positions on the end times or the music we like or worship with, or working or not working on Sunday, or whether we wear pants or a dress or a suit and tie or shorts, or over what we eat or don't eat. The list is endless. We feel like we're right and we think everybody should be like us, so we criticize them if they're not. In essence, we appoint ourselves the judge and judge them. Now I want to be extremely clear about one thing. This:

d. it does NOT mean we can never rebuke someone for sin People who are involved in things the Bible specifically calls sin often want to say, "You're judging me; you think you're better than me!" Maybe the person has revealed that they're homosexual or they're involved in an adulterous affair or sleeping with their boyfriend or girlfriend. And when you try to tell them the Bible says what they're doing is wrong, they instantly say, "You can't judge me!" You're not judging them; you're telling them the truth and trying to warn them that they are sinning against God. Paul told Timothy, As for those who persist in sin, rebuke them in the presence of all, so that the rest may stand in fear. - 1 Tim. 5:20. We are supposed to rebuke and correct one another in love. But that is not what James is forbidding here. He is forbidding unjust, unloving, harsh, critical speaking about people for our own benefit. But he goes on to tell us:

2. why we must not speak against our brothers and his logic goes like this. First of all, earlier in his letter James told us that:

a. God has given us a law of love that is a law of liberty Look back with me to 1:25. Now what is that perfect law, the law that gives liberty? Look at 2:8. It's the law that we are to love our neighbor and it was specially given to us by Jesus as a new commandment, Love one another! Our law is not dozens of prohibitions that bind us, but one command that frees us. If we simply and genuinely love one another, we will have kept the law and done everything God intended for us to do toward each other. Therefore, says verse 12, we're to speak and to act according to this royal law. But where we get into trouble is when we insist on trying to enforce standards on others that are based on our opinions and preferences. Look with me at Rom. 14:1-3. How many vegetarians do we have in here? It's OK, you can safely admit it. How many omnivores; you eat ANYthing? That's me! Now my flesh would dearly like to make fun of people who don't eat like me for whatever reason, but the Bible says I can't! And you who stoke up on broccoli can't judge me for eating a juicy cheeseburger! These things are opinions and preferences and if we genuinely love one another, we won't pass judgment on each other for what we eat. We have liberty to choose! Then look at 5-6. Our Seventh Day Adventist brethren say that we worship on the wrong day, that we should keep the Sabbath by worshipping on Saturday. We say that changed after Jesus' resurrection and the church has always worshipped on the first day of the week, on Sunday, and they're wrong. Jesus says, "Worship on whatever day you sincerely feel in your own mind is right, but don't judge each other for it!" Either group is sincerely worshipping and choosing their day to please the Lord! Whether we're talking about foods or days, we have been given liberty in all these kinds of things; the only thing we're obligated to do is to love each other by not speaking critically of each other. So, when we do speak against brothers or sisters:

b. our speaking against them is speaking against and judging God's law When we accuse them falsely or speak about them critically and harshly or condemn them for doing things that are against our personal preferences, we are saying that God's law is not good, that we don't HAVE to love them. We're like judges that we hear about in our American legal system today who believe that their job is to interpret law to determine what is really best instead of enforcing the law as it exists. And we weren't even elected or appointed to that position! James says:

c. God is the only One with the right to establish law and judge people Only HE gets to make the rules. He is the one with the power and the right to save people or to destroy people. People belong to Him and He's the only one who can truly judge them. Therefore:

d. we have NO right to judge our fellow believers, no matter how justified we may feel we are. Literally, the Greek expression is more like the NIV, But you--who are YOU to judge... I love Rom. 14:4 (if you're still there), Who are you to judge someone else's servant? To his own master he stands or falls. And he will stand, for the Lord is able to make him stand. We have no right to judge one of God's servants; that's His job, not ours. It's our pride that makes us think we have that right.

Well now in verses (13-16) James moves ahead to a second exhortation:

II. We Must Stop Arrogantly Planning Our Own Future (13) Now James seems to have in mind believers who are businessmen. Many of Jewish background were merchants and tradesmen who were involved in extensive commerce, like Priscilla and Aquila in their tentmaking trade with Paul. And some of us today travel all over the place representing our company or making deals, building the business we're part of. But the principle found here applies to all of us:

1. it is arrogant to boldly declare what we will do or what will happen You've heard people talk like this. "Yeah, when I finish school, I'm going to move to Redmond WA and get a job with Microsoft at headquarters. I figure I'll be in management within five years and then I ought to be able to afford a nice house, settle down, get married and have two kids." You laugh, but we do talk like that all the time. We declare what we're going to do tomorrow or next month or next year, without giving any thought to the Lord in all of that. We plan on what we think is going to happen, when the truth of the matter is that:

a. we have no certainty about our future, even one day in advance (14) Our neighbor was in his 50's and in very good health. He was a teacher here in town and loved to work in his yard. One summer day a few years ago he was trimming the lawn with a weedwhacker, had a heart attack and fell over dead in the bushes. We all have stories like that to tell or stories of people who said goodbye, went out the door like normal, and were involved in an accident and killed instantly. The truth is literally that you do not know what will happen tomorrow. And if you know what you think will happen or what you want to happen, you have absolutely no control over it to make it happen! James says:

b. our lives are temporary like a morning mist that vanishes quickly I love being in a little fishing boat on a calm pond early on a summer morning when the water is warmer than the air and seeing the mist that rises off the water in the glow of the first sunlight of the day. But sadly, in an hour it's gone. The vapor literally disappears into thin air and James says that's how life on this earth is, vaporous and inconstant, here and then suddenly gone. Solomon said in Ecc. 6:12 that, Our lives are like a shadow. Shadows grow and shrink and change shapes and vanish. And David said in Ps. 90:10 in the NLT, Seventy years are given to us! Some even live to eighty. But even the best years are filled with pain and trouble; soon they disappear, and we fly away. Ernestine Ulmer said, Life is uncertain. Eat dessert first! Seriously, our earthly lives are filled with uncertainty that we can't control. That's why James says:

2. we must always factor the Lord's will into our plans (15-16) Now please understand:

a. this means more than adding the phrase "Lord willing" to what you say That's what we tend to do, to make our plans and then tack a "Lord willing, of course" onto the end, as though we recognize that God might possibly have other ideas, though we hope not. Do you know that's what Muslims all over the world do? The Quran says, And do not say of anything: Surely I will do it tomorrow, unless Allah pleases... [Surah 18:23-24]. Gee, I wonder where Mohammed got that? At any rate, because of that verse, Muslims all over the world (and even Arabic Christians) say Inshallah, God willing, whenever they speak of future events. But they do it mechanically, as a command to speak a set of words. James is not interested in your phraseology. To him:

b. it means genuinely trusting the Lord to guide and direct us What he's got in mind is more like Prov. 3:5-6, if you'll turn there with me. Don't trust in you to plan your future! Trust in God. Pray about it. Ask Him what He wants you to do instead of expecting Him to bless whatever you want to do. Acknowledge Him and His right to control your life constantly and trust Him to guide you in the right paths for the life that He intends for you. The better attitude toward the future would be to say, "I think the Lord is showing me that I should do this or that. I've been praying about it; will you join me?" James says in verse 16:

3. boasting about the future is both arrogant and evil It is arrogant, prideful, thinking more highly of yourself than you ought to think. And it is evil; it is thinking less of God and His importance than you ought to think. It is, in essence, taking glory to yourself that belongs to Him and worshipping yourself in this arena of life rather than Him. Now James concludes with this warning in verse (17). Let me rephrase that this way:

III. Knowing What God Wants Us To Do Obligates Us To Do It If your child doesn't know they're supposed to do something, do you hold them responsible? Do you punish them for not doing it? Of course not! If they were prevented from doing it by some circumstance, do you blame them? No. But if they KNEW they were to take out the trash on Sunday night and chose not to do it or if they KNEW their curfew was 10:00, but they didn't come home until midnight, then what? Knowing brings the obligation to act on what you know. Knowing what God wants you to do obligates you to do it! Of course, the immediate thing James has in mind is that:

1. this applies to speaking against our brothers and planning our future James says, "Now that you KNOW you shouldn't talk in these ways, you're responsible to God. You KNOW better than to do these things. You've been warned. So if you do DO them, if you do speak against a brother or sister or boast about the future in a way that is irreverent toward God, you are accountable!" And obviously:

2. this principle applies to every area of our lives, not just the way we talk about others or about the future. It applies in every situation, in every temptation that we face. If we KNOW what God wants us to do, we are obligated to do it and are held accountable to do it. Whether the issue is sexual morality or helping others or praying or giving or anything, if you know what God wants you to do, you're obligated to do it! And if you don't, you're accountable to Him! And what James is pointing out is this:

3. to refuse to do what God tells us is deliberate sin against Him Joseph realized this when Potiphar's wife was begging him to sleep with her. He said, ...How could I do such a wicked thing? It would be a great sin against God. - Gen. 39:9. David realized this after his great sin in taking Bathsheba and having Uriah murdered. He said, Against you, and you alone, have I sinned; I have done what is evil in your sight. You will be proved right in what you say, and your judgment against me is just. - Ps. 51:4. And I would hope that most of US would realize it when we're talking about such huge issues as adultery and murder. But do we realize it in what we regard as smaller issues such as the way we use our mouth? Do you realize that when you say things that are evil and prideful that you are sinning against God, that you are doing something that very moment that Jesus had to die on the cross to pay for, that you're acting as if it doesn't matter to you that Jesus died for your sins?! You are gravely disappointing your Heavenly Father who loves you so much!

Years ago, when speaking at an Urbana conference, Elisabeth Elliot told a story about her brother, Thomas Howard, when they were children. Their mother let Thomas play with paper bags that she'd saved, as long as he would put them away afterwards. But one day their mother walked into the kitchen to find the bags lying everywhere all over the floor. And Tom was in the other room at the piano with his father singing hymns. When she confronted him about not putting the bags away, he protested, "But Mom, I want to sing!" Immediately his father replied, "Son, it's no good singing God's praise if you're disobedient." [Elisabeth Elliot]. You see, we don't realize how offensive our behavior or our speech is to God. We think it's a little thing and we want to do what we want to do. But to God it is an important thing because it demonstrates how we regard the relationship we have with Him. Our praises mean nothing without our obedience. May the Spirit of God help us to comprehend this and to recognize when we're displeasing and disappointing our Heavenly Father, especially when we're doing it with our mouth.

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Looks For The Lord's Coming - 5:1-12

Of all the things we believe, there is one truth that is becoming more and more neglected in our day and it is this: Jesus is coming again! When He said, ...if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and will take you to myself... He wasn't referring primarily to us dying and going to heaven, but to Him coming again for His church. He talked about His coming repeatedly throughout His teaching and at His ascension the two angels said, "Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into heaven? This Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven." The New Testament is filled with references to His coming and the Book of Revelation describes it for us visually. Yet to our modern scientific western world two millennia later, this seems merely like some ancient myth. Even we believers in the church confess it as a doctrine, but seldom have the thought of it in our minds. So, before we get to James, read with me 2 Pet. 3:3-11 NLT, Most importantly, I want to remind you that in the last days scoffers will come, mocking the truth and following their own desires. They will say, "What happened to the promise that Jesus is coming again? From before the times of our ancestors, everything has remained the same since the world was first created." They deliberately forget that God made the heavens by the word of his command, and he brought the earth out from the water and surrounded it with water. Then he used the water to destroy the ancient world with a mighty flood. And by the same word, the present heavens and earth have been stored up for fire. They are being kept for the day of judgment, when ungodly people will be destroyed. But you must not forget this one thing, dear friends: A day is like a thousand years to the Lord, and a thousand years is like a day. The Lord isn't really being slow about his promise, as some people think. No, he is being patient for your sake. He does not want anyone to be destroyed, but wants everyone to repent. But the day of the Lord will come as unexpectedly as a thief. Then the heavens will pass away with a terrible noise, and the very elements themselves will disappear in fire, and the earth and everything on it will be found to deserve judgment. Since everything around us is going to be destroyed like this, what holy and godly lives you should live! Friends, this is important! This is true! Jesus is coming again! His Word, His Promise, stands unbreakable, no matter what scoffers may say or how much time has passed! And the truth of it ought to affect our lives! That's what James is saying in chapter 5 to his readers and to us. First, He gives:

I. A Strong Warning To Evil Rich People About The Lord's Coming in verses (1-6). Now who is he talking to? Suddenly he doesn't seem to be addressing believers anymore, but rather, he's calling us to realize the awful fate that will befall nonbelievers, and particularly the rich and powerful ones, when Jesus comes. Of course, not all rich people are evil; some are wonderfully kind and benevolent, but Jesus said it is still pretty hard for a rich person to enter the Kingdom of God because of the strong pull of the love of money. However, much of the world, both then and now, is controlled by people who gain a lot of power and make a lot of money in very evil ways. And for them James declares that:

1. His coming will bring horrendous miseries! Miseries so horrible that, if they really knew and believed the fate that awaits them, would make them weep and wail uncontrollably! Look at:

2. the types of sins for which they will be punished (2-3) James says:

a. they are hoarding wealth in the last days They are storing up so many possessions that the closets of fine clothes they have socked away are becoming moth eaten and the barns full of grain they have stored are rotting. Even their vaults full of unused silver and gold are tarnishing and corroding, while all around them are poor, struggling needy people whom they could be helping! Since I'm just back from India and it's so obvious there, let me share some examples from that culture. I can't verify it, but I was recently told that the majority of the wealth in that vast country is in the hands of the members of one extended family! In our nice hotel we saw the upper crust of society coming and going in nice cars, having expensive banquets for birthdays, ordering room service, and yet you can look across the street and see poor dirty little shops and streams of people going by for whom a dollar is a large expenditure. In the villages some people are still living in thatch-roofed mud huts with dirt floors or little concrete one room box houses with one bare light bulb, cooking over an open fire outside. The contrast is extreme and James declares that the rich will lose everything they have, including themselves, in eternal fire when Jesus comes!

To those who did not have mercy on the poor, at his coming in Mt. 25:41 Jesus says, ... 'Depart from me, you cursed, into the eternal fire prepared for the devil and his angels. Then James says (4):

b. they are withholding wages from poor laborers who don't eat that day if they don't get paid! In India wealthy landowners will loan the illiterate day laborers who work their fields a few rupees they need for a wedding or a funeral - at 100% interest. They put a thumb mark on a paper accepting the debt, which, of course, they don't make enough to pay, and that debt forces them to keep working for that owner and is passed on to the next generation, when a few dollars would free them! Taking advantage of powerless poor people is endemic in this world, but James says that those who do so will face the Lord of Hosts, that is, the Lord of Heaven's armies! You can see Jesus at His coming in Rev. 19:11-15 as He comes riding a white horse with all the armies of heaven following Him to make war against and destroy all the powerful of the earth! That's what's coming! Next, James says (5):

c. they are living in luxury and self-indulgence but in reality, they are fattening themselves to be slaughtered! Like the thanksgiving turkey or the fatted calf, they're being fed only to be killed in the end. Rev. 19:21 says Jesus will destroy them with the word of His mouth when He comes. There will be a great reaping, a great sacrifice, a great slaughter, at His coming of all those who have refused His rule! And finally, James says (6):

d. they condemn and murder the righteous who do not resist That is, they are the very ones who persecute believers and do unthinkable things to those who don't even put up a fight! CBN reports: According to the Evangelical Fellowship of India, a total of 77 incidents were documented against Christians between January and February 2019. Referring to two murder cases in two different Indian states in February, EFI General Secretary Rev. Vijayesh Lal said, "We have reasons to believe that both men, who were in their 40s, were killed because of their faith. We have recorded cases where Christians have been facing social boycott and have been excommunicated from their villages, and in a few instances have had to flee to save their lives," Lal said. [<https://www1.cbn.com/cbnnews/cwn/2019/march/pastors-knocked-out-christians-killed-as-persecution-spikes-dramatically-in-india>] Around the globe it's the rich and powerful who persecute the church, but James says when Jesus comes they will face the vengeance of God! In Rev. 6:10 those who were martyred ask, ... "O Sovereign Lord, holy and true, how long before you will judge and avenge our blood on those who dwell on the earth?" It will be done when Jesus comes!

Oh, what a strong warning for those who don't believe; it is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the Living God! (Heb. 10:31) But now James turns around and gives:

II. A Strong Encouragement To Believers About The Lord's Coming in verses (7-11) He means that:

1. we must patiently endure suffering until He comes That word patient means more than simple patience to wait for something; in Greek it is makrothumeo which means longsuffering, to put up with suffering and mistreatment for a long time! And around the world it is us believers who have to endure the mistreatment of the rich and powerful, who end up being poor, who end up being cheated, who end up being persecuted. Many times, we want to ask David's question, O LORD, how long shall the wicked, how long shall the wicked exult? - Ps. 94:3. "How long before you come and set this world straight?" And His answer to us is, "Be patient a little while longer! Keep on enduring until I come!" Now, how can we endure the sufferings of this world until Jesus comes? James mentions three things. First:

a. our hearts must be firmly devoted to Him (8a) That word establish means to firmly set something in place, to fix it solidly so that it cannot be moved. The neighbors behind my house put in a wooden fence for their dog some years ago. The installer dug the holes, put the posts in and packed them with dirt. Today you can see the fence leaning here and there as something presses against it. When we put the chain link fence around my yard 30 plus years ago, we dug the holes, put the posts in and dumped a bag of wet cement in the hole. Let me tell you, they don't move! They're firmly fixed and that's how our hearts must be, firmly fixed on Him, firmly devoted to Him. You'll never endure the suffering of this world without collapsing under the pressure unless your mind is made up and your heart is so steadfast that you're in love with Jesus and going to follow Him, no matter what. Second, James says:

b. we must be constantly aware that His coming is drawing near (8b) At hand literally means drawing near, approaching. But, you say, it's already been 2000 years; how can every generation that reads this still say it's true that His coming is drawing near? Look with me at Rom. 13:11-12. His coming is nearer now than it was when we believed; it is nearer now than it was yesterday! We don't know the day or the hour, all we know is that it's coming and we have less time than we did, so it's time to wake up and get busy. The long night of this age is far gone and the farther it goes, the nearer we must be to the coming of the light! Jesus wants us to live with an awareness that He's coming, that time is short, that there is an urgency to our lives, that there is so little time to do so much in our Master's service. The suffering of this world is a light and momentary trouble that will soon be over because Jesus is coming. Third, James says:

c. we must not grumble against each other and become divided (9) Satan's most effective strategy is to get us fighting and arguing with each other so that we become divided. We're like a roomful of school children when the teacher is out of the room. If she stays gone long enough, the kids stop doing their assigned work and end up talking or picking at one another and soon the room is chaos. But, friends, the Teacher is about to come in the door! If the kids know that, if they hear her footsteps in the hall, everybody flops into their seat and gets quiet and does what they're supposed to do. Nobody wants to get disciplined. Jesus is approaching the door! When He steps into the room, we don't want Him to find us in a chaos of division occupied with our own differences; we want Him to find us doing what He assigned us to do! So, we must work hard to maintain unity, to stand and serve together if we're to endure until the end. And, fortunately:

2. we have examples to encourage us to be longsuffering. James gives three of them. The first one is pretty ordinary (7b):

a. a farmer waits patiently for the rains to produce the precious crop In Israel farmers plant about this time of year and the early rains come in October and November to nourish the young seedlings. Then the latter rains come in April and May as the crop is maturing and THEN comes the long hoped for harvest. So, the farmer has to patiently endure through 9 or 10 months of weeding and insects and all kinds of sun and wind and weather; he has to wait for the latter rains to finish their work so the precious crop will grow and the great harvest can be brought in. Likewise, God is growing a precious crop, a tremendous harvest of people from every nation, tribe and language of the earth and we're in the time of the latter rain, a time when God is bringing more people to Himself in more places than in all of history before! But we have to be patient and wait until the rain of the Holy Spirit has completed its work and then the Lord will return for the final harvest! So, we endure the difficulties and the trials and the heat of the day; like the farmer we wait patiently for the harvest. Then James gives a second example (10):

b. the prophets of old kept speaking God's word patiently through suffering Just take Jeremiah as an example. Jeremiah was beaten and put in the stocks by the chief priest for preaching in 20:2. Then he was shut up in the prison that was made of the palace courtyard in 32:2. And in 38:6 he was thrown down into a deep cistern and sank in the mud. Yet He kept declaring the word of the Lord. It happened to many of the Old Testament prophets. Look what the writer of Hebrews says, ...But others were tortured, refusing to turn from God in order to be set free. They placed their hope in a better life after the resurrection. Some were jeered at, and their backs were cut open with whips. Others were chained in prisons. Some died by stoning, some were sawed in half, and others were killed with the sword. Some went about wearing skins of sheep and goats, destitute and oppressed and mistreated. They were too good for this world, wandering over deserts and mountains, hiding in caves and holes in the ground. All these people earned a good reputation because of their faith, yet none of them received all that God had promised. - Heb. 11:35b-39 NLT. Many of the Old Testament men and women of faith had to wait and endure through great suffering and be faithful and they did! Jesus said, [When you're persecuted] Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven, for so they persecuted the prophets who were before you. - Mt. 5:12. When you're suffering for your faith and enduring, you're in good company! You're just like them, imitating their worthy example! And finally, James gives the example of Job (11). Even though he complained to God in the process, still:

c. Job remained steadfast through great suffering He lost everything he had, including his 10 children and then his health and he still bowed down, worshipped God and blessed His Name. He still believed even though he was greatly upset, but James says:

(1) we see God's purpose in it and how it ended We see how God made Job even more of a righteous man through suffering, how He molded and shaped Job's character and brought him to a place of humble submission. We see how God used him as an example to his friends and how God has used him as an example to millions down through the ages through the record of his story in the Bible. And we see the end of the story, ...the LORD restored the fortunes of Job, when he had prayed for his friends. And the LORD gave Job twice as much as he had before. - Job 42:10. Twice as much wealth and a whole second set of 10 sons and daughters! And in that:

(2) we see how compassionate and merciful God is Our Father has great compassion on His children when they suffer and in the midst of it, He showers them with many actions of tender mercy, like He did with Job the rest of his life. He does not watch us suffer and remain unmoved. He is touched with the feeling of our infirmities; He feels our suffering right along with us and He blesses us with many good things in spite of our difficulties. But Job is an example to us:

(3) we consider him blessed because he remained steadfast and did not curse God and die as his wife suggested. He said, Though He slay me, I will hope in Him... (13:15). He said, ...I know that my Redeemer lives, and at the last he will stand upon the earth. And after my skin has been thus destroyed, yet in my flesh I shall see God, whom I shall see for myself, and my eyes shall behold, and not another. (19:15-17). He is blessed because, in the midst of all his suffering and even in his complaining, his heart continued to trust in God. But even Job was looking forward to the future coming of His Redeemer!

And so must we! We look for the coming of our Lord Jesus to put an end to the awful sufferings of this world and set things right! Greg Fisher was teaching a class of West African Bible College some years ago when one student asked, "Reverend, 1 Thessalonians 4:16 says that Christ will descend from heaven with a loud command. I would like to know what that command will be. What will he say when he shouts?" Greg says: "I wanted to leave the question unanswered, to tell him that we must not go past what Scripture has revealed, but my mind wandered to an encounter I had earlier in the day with a refugee from the Liberian civil war. The man, a high school principal, told me how he was apprehended by a two-man death squad. After several hours of terror, as the men described how they would torture and kill him, he narrowly escaped. After hiding in the bush for two days, he was able to find his family and escape to a neighboring country. The escape cost him dearly: two of his children lost their lives. The stark cruelty unleashed on an unsuspecting, undeserving population had touched me deeply. I also saw flashbacks of the beggars that I pass each morning on my way to the office. Every day I see how poverty destroys dignity, robs men of the best of what it means to be human, and sometimes substitutes the worst of what it means to be an animal. I am haunted by the vacant eyes of people who have lost all hope. 'Reverend, you have not given me an answer. What will he say?' The question hadn't gone away. 'Enough,' I said. 'He will shout, 'Enough!' when he returns.' A look of surprise opened the face of the student. 'What do you mean, enough?' 'Enough suffering. Enough starvation. Enough terror. Enough death. Enough indignity. Enough lives trapped in hopelessness. Enough sickness and disease. Enough time. Enough!'" [Gregory L. Fisher in Leadership - Vol. 12, #4]. Oh friends, one day Jesus will say, "Enough of this world's sinful mess; it is time for Me to reign!" and He will come again! Believe it! Look for it! And let it make you steadfast to endure whatever you must until He comes!

James: Living Out Our Faith

Genuine Faith Relies Upon Prayer - 5:12-20

This morning we conclude our series of studies through the book of James. And I want to start by mentioning verse 12 which doesn't really fit with the previous focus on the Lord's coming or with what follows; it is a stand-alone exhortation. James says:

I. We Must Be Truthful In Speech (12) In biblical times it was common practice to declare the truth of a statement by sealing it with an oath. We use the same custom in courtrooms today, requiring people to be "sworn in", but this whole notion implies that unless there is an oath before God, what you say MIGHT not be guaranteed truthful. James says, "Don't do that! Let your 'yes' always mean 'yes' and your 'no' always mean 'no'. Always speak truthfully! Don't make promises you don't mean. Don't lie by promising something you don't fulfill. Lying is a sin!" He's actually repeating the exhortation of Jesus in Mt. 5:34-37, where Jesus said exactly the same thing. Don't swear to verify you're truthful; simply ALWAYS speak the truth, so people know they can believe what you say! That is so necessary for all human relationships to function! Now James gets to his main exhortation at the end of his letter, urging us that:

II. We Must Be Fervent In Prayer in verses (13-18) The Christian life is a life of prayer, because it is a life of dependence upon God. It is not a life of believing doctrines; it is a life of trusting in a living God to be at work in and through you and in everything around you every day. That's why James tells us that:

1. we must pray in all circumstances in verses (13-16) For instance (13a):

a. when we're suffering, we should pray When hardships and struggles and troubles enter our lives, we should pray. We should not depend on our own strength to endure them; rather we should lean upon God and His power to carry us through them. Suffering should drive us to Him like a child runs to his Father when he's in trouble or hurting. Most of the time, we do this pretty much automatically; when we begin to sink like Peter, we naturally cry out, "Lord help me!" Yet it always amazes me that when trouble comes, some people seem to STOP praying, stop reading their Bibles, stop going to church, stop doing all the very things that God has provided to sustain them through the trouble! The best way to make sure that doesn't happen to you is to have a vibrant prayer life BEFORE trouble comes; then when it arrives, your praying will only become MORE vibrant! We should pray when we're suffering:

b. when we're happy, we should praise (13b) Instead of simply being happy and cheerful and enjoying what's happening in our life, we should thank God and praise Him for the blessings that we're enjoying! It is when things are going well that we so often forget to pray! We forget to be grateful and acknowledge that every good and perfect gift we enjoy comes down to us from our Heavenly Father. It is not by chance; it is not by our own doing; it is all His gracious blessing showered upon us and we should praise and thank Him for it. And now, James says:

c. when we're sick, we should call our leaders to pray (14-15) These verses have been the subject of a lot of controversy over the years. On one hand, some have tried to use this as a formula to guarantee healing, while on the other, some have tried to explain it away by saying James is not talking about actual sickness or disease. So, let's take a balanced look. It is true that the word sick James uses in the Greek is asthenes, which literally means weak or feeble. So, this exhortation does not only apply to those who have a sickness but also to those who are weary and depressed or weak in faith, and it is used that way in some of Paul's letters. Yet it's translated as sick or diseased time after time through the Gospels and Acts where Jesus or the apostles heal people who obviously have physical sickness and that is probably its meaning here. Certainly, we should resort to prayer when we're weak and tired and depressed, but James is telling us plainly that when we're sick, we should pray and we should call the leaders of the church to come and pray with us. Of course, I don't think he means every time we have a cold or a sprained ankle, but any time we have a serious illness or disease of some sort, prayer should be our first recourse, not our last! Now in the second clause, anointing him with oil, James does not use the Greek word for formal ceremonial anointing, say of a king or a priest, but rather the common ordinary term for rubbing oil on someone. Applying olive oil was a common practice among the Jews in cases of sickness or wounds; it was believed to have a healing effect. The Good Samaritan poured oil and wine on the wounds of the man that he found alongside the road and bandaged them up in Lk. 10:34. Mk. 6:13 says Jesus' disciples ...cast out many demons and anointed [or rubbed] with oil many who were sick and healed them. So, it was not a ceremony where they applied a little dab and prayed; it seems they actually applied an oil rub to the sick person as they prayed over them and many got well. So, my conclusion is that:

(1) rubbing with oil is secondary and is probably medicinal in nature Prayer is the thing of primary importance in James' sentence and he's probably thinking of the applying of oil as a medical practice to help the sick. By way of application, I would take it to mean that we should both pray AND go to the doctor or seek medical treatment for our illness. Now, that said, oil is not a common medicinal treatment for us today and I don't think we're doing something wrong if we apply a little oil to someone's forehead to honor the literal wording of this passage. When we do it, we do it clearly as a symbolic act, like communion; we see it as something to remind us that it is the power of the Holy Spirit that does the healing that we pray for and nothing in ourselves. But I don't think we HAVE to physically use oil to satisfy the intent of this passage. And the oil was not his point anyway; he was saying that we should call people, particularly our leaders, to pray with us when we're seriously ill and that:

(2) we should do both things in the name of the Lord Jesus Jesus is the One with the power, the One who brings healing. When Peter and John healed the lame man in Acts 3, they said to the crowd, ...Men of Israel, why do you wonder at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by our own power or piety we have made him walk? The God of Abraham... glorified his servant Jesus... and his name—by faith in his name—has made this man strong whom you see and know, and the faith that is through Jesus has given the man this perfect health in the presence of you all. When we pray and when we use medicine, we do it in absolute dependence upon Jesus! There is no power in us to heal and no piety about us that merits it; we depend with all our hearts on Jesus and Him alone and, James says in 15:

d. prayer offered in faith brings healing Sometimes it happens instantaneously. Twice in my life and only recently have I seen God heal someone immediately as I prayed for them. Sometimes it happens more gradually over a period of time. A few years ago, we prayed over a man whose legs were paralyzed in India. Friends carried him into the meeting in a plastic chair and we laid hands on him and prayed. He didn't jump up and walk, but when we came back two years later, he walked to the front and testified to everyone how God had healed him beginning with that time of prayer. It was gradual and most healing is, whether it's through medical treatment or directly in answer to prayer alone. However:

(1) this verse is not an unconditional guarantee God does not always choose to heal. Paul prayed for God to take away his thorn in the flesh three times and in 2 Cor. 12:8-9, God basically said, "NO! My grace is enough for you! My strength will be more perfectly displayed through your weakness!" Sagyn was the manager of a project being done by believers in Kyrgyzstan, though he himself had not yet believed. He contracted cancer of the spine and it grew worse and worse. They prayed over him repeatedly, but in the end, he died. However, prayer was answered in that, when he was still able to communicate, he said that Jesus came to him in a dream, so we hope he believed and is with Jesus. We cannot demand healing from God as though He owes it to us because of this verse; it is a statement of what God very often does as we cry out to Him. Praying in the Name of Jesus is not a formula to use; it means asking according to His will and for His glory and acknowledging that:

(2) the Lord is the source of all our healing In his old age Asa, who had been a godly king of Judah, became diseased in his feet, but 2 Chron. 16:12-13 says, Yet even with the severity of his disease, he did not seek the LORD's help but turned only to his physicians. And he died from it. Doctors are great; they're a wonderful gift from God. I'm walking today without pain through the giftedness of one of them, but doctors can't heal. Only the Lord makes the healing process happen. Don't turn only to the physicians; turn first to the Lord and acknowledge that any healing you get is from Him. Then James adds that:

e. if the sickness was disciplinary as the result of sin, God will forgive Sometimes, not always and not even often, sickness is something God sends because we're involved in sin. Some of the people in the church at Corinth were disrespecting the Lord's supper, treating it with contempt, and Paul warned them that because of this many were sick among them and some had even died. Never think that if you're sick, you must have sinned; that's a lie. However, in some cases God does allow sickness to discipline His children and James says, IF that's the case, praying together will bring that sin to light and will result in confession and repentance and ultimately in forgiveness. That barrier will be removed so God can heal. In fact, James goes on to say (16a):

f. confession and prayer for one another promote healing in the body Both things ought to be regular practices among us; both of them bring about healing in people's lives, physical and spiritual healing!

Now we get all wrapped up in this subject of praying for the sick, but the point James is really trying to make is in (16b):

2. the prayer of a righteous person is very powerful A person who walks closely with God and prays can see amazingly powerful, miraculous answers to prayer. And as an example, he chooses Elijah (17-18). We might think of Elijah as some spiritual giant, but:

a. Elijah was an ordinary human being just like us Even after calling down fire from heaven, when Jezebel threatened his life, he ran away in fear and tried to give up ministry to Israel. He got weary, tired, depressed and afraid at times, just like we do. He was not different from us, yet when he prayed it would not rain:

b. his fervent prayer caused a 3 ½ year drought in Israel It didn't rain in the whole land, not just temporarily, but for years! It reduced a whole nation to a state of near-starvation famine so they would be ready to seek God! And after that period:

c. his fervent prayer brought rain to end the drought When he prayed fervently a little cloud appeared on the horizon and soon a great storm arrived and there was a downpour. Prayer can change the very course of nature if it is according to God's will! I know it's a small thing, but when we were in India, we had 1300 people basically living under a tent for two solid days and we prayed repeatedly that it would not rain. Well, the first night it rained a good deal over an area that covered five villages all around us, but right in the middle of it, there was NO rain on the land where we were! Glory to Him!

The point is PRAY! When someone's sick, when they're in trouble, when you want to see God move in people, PRAY! It doesn't matter how little, how insignificant, how ordinary you are, PRAY! God does mighty things when we pray! Genuine faith relies on prayer! Now in closing, James has one last thing to say:

III. We Must Strive To Bring Back Those Who Go Astray (19-20) Let me be quick to say plainly that:

1. a genuine believer cannot lose his salvation If Christ truly lives in us by His Spirit, John 10:27-30 says Jesus gives us ETERNAL life and we will never perish and NO ONE can snatch us out of God's hand. We're secure; we belong to Him forever. However:

2. some who have been among us may actually denounce faith in Christ You've seen this, I'm sure. You've known somebody who seemed to be a believer and was part of the church just walk away and denounce it all. It actually happens pretty frequently. Recently Josh Harris, the guy who wrote the popular book "I Kissed Dating Goodbye" basically renounced everything he once taught and now says he is "deconstructing his faith", that he has "fallen away in biblical terms" and that "by all the measurements I have for defining a Christian, I am not a Christian." Wow! We ponder, "How can this be?" and the only answer the Bible gives is that people who leave the faith:

3. they were not genuine believers in the first place. They were the shallow soil or the weed-infested soil of Jesus' parable in Mt. 13:20-22, where the plant grew up for a while but then withered and died. He's saying people like this are spiritually lost. 1 Jn. 2:19 says, They went out from us, but they did not really belong to us. For if they had belonged to us, they would have remained with us; but their going showed that none of them belonged to us. They weren't real; they weren't genuine, yet that does not absolve us of responsibility. We need to go after them; we need to seek to win them back and James says:

4. we may save them from eternal death and all their sins may be forgiven We ought not throw up our hands and say, "Oh well, they know the truth; that's on them!" God doesn't want anyone to perish and there is yet a chance that we may rescue them. We all probably have people that we care about who fall into this category. Keep on reaching out to them! Pray fervently for them! Prayer is effective and powerful!

Gladys Aylward had served as a missionary to China for nearly six years when the Japanese army invaded Yangcheng in 1938. In her care at the time were more than a hundred orphan children and she was eventually left with no choice but to flee with them and one assistant. Unable to use roads or transportation, she was forced to lead the children, on foot, over the mountains to safety in the province of Xian some 100 miles distant. The trek took twenty seven days. Through little-used trails and over high mountains she led her children; their cloth shoes wore out, the small children began to cry, and all were hungry. She herself became ill en route and when they finally arrived safely, she collapsed. Doctors were amazed by her feat as they found she was suffering from typhus, pneumonia, a relapsing fever, malnutrition, and supreme exhaustion. On the twelfth day of that grueling trek, Gladys and the children arrived at their greatest obstacle, the crossing of the Yellow River, which is a mile or more wide, with no way to cross it. All boat traffic had stopped, and all civilian boats had been seized to keep them out of the hands of the Japanese. The book "The Hidden Price of Greatness" tells what happened: "[Gladys] grappled with despair as never before. After passing a sleepless night, she faced the morning with no hope of reaching safety. A 13-year-old girl in her group reminded her of their much-loved story of Moses and the Israelites crossing the Red Sea. 'But I am not Moses,' Gladys cried in desperation. 'Of course, you aren't,' the girl said, 'but Jehovah is still God!'" They all knelt and prayed and then they sang. A Chinese officer with a patrol heard the singing and found them. After hearing their story, he said, "I think I can get you a boat." He did and, though it took three trips, they all crossed safely. [Compiled from several internet biographies].

Listen, you don't have to be Moses! You don't have to be Elijah! You don't have to be a Gladys Aylward! They were just people with feet of clay like ours! But they prayed and God answered in miraculous ways and God is still God! He still answers when His people pray! He can still do amazing, powerful, miraculous, life-changing things when we pray! So, when you're suffering, pray! When you're happy, pray and praise! When you're sick, pray and call others to pray! And when you want to see lives changed and brought back to Christ, pray! As Paul put it, ...pray in the Spirit on all occasions with all kinds of prayers and requests. With this in mind, be alert and always keep on praying for all the saints. - Eph. 6:18. Why? Because God is still God and He still answers prayer!

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING 1:1-2 Our Situation As Sufferers

Let me tell you why I chose the book of I Peter to study. I look around and see a number of you that are suffering. Some of you are suffering every day in your home situation with an unsaved spouse who makes things difficult. Others of you struggle in caring for a loved one who is ill or you face illness and pain of your own. There are younger people suffering through the stress of waiting for God to work out details in your life and there are those suffering the loss of loved ones. Suffering is something that touches all of our lives and 1 Peter is God's answer to suffering. I almost called this study "Enduring Suffering," but then I thought about it. For some of us that's how it is, we simply endure suffering, plod our way through it somehow. But that's not what God wants at all. He wants to see us triumph over our suffering, to have a victorious Christian life in the midst of suffering. We all suffer, but God is concerned with HOW we suffer, whether the suffering wins over us and defeats our faith or whether we win over suffering and live for Jesus Christ through it. I've given you a simple outline of the book:

I. Our Identity In Suffering	1:1-2:10
II. Our Actions In Suffering	2:11-3:22
III. Our Attitude In Suffering	4
IV. Our Responsibilities In Suffering	5

The apostle Peter wrote this book probably in 65 AD. Nero, the madman, was the Emperor of the entire Roman world. Through his own craziness, Rome's problems were multiplied and he was taking the heat for it. He needed somebody to blame, a scapegoat, and he found it in the Christians. The year before, he began a great wave of horrible persecution against Christians, throwing them to the lions, using them for human torches to light his gardens, and so on. This wave of persecution was sweeping eastward through the Empire and was now reaching the churches of Asia Minor. Peter was concerned and wrote this letter to be circulated among those churches to encourage and strengthen these believers in their new ordeal of suffering. And you might be surprised to notice that he spent the first chapter and a half of it reminding them that in the midst of suffering, they had to remember their IDENTITY, who they were. That's far more important than knowing what to do. If you know who you are, then what to do comes naturally. When you face suffering, you are not just Joe Anybody suffering, you are a Christian, a person who belongs to Jesus Christ. And that makes a difference. Now, right in the greeting of his letter, in verses 1-2, Peter sums up everything He's going to say by reminding us of our situation, of who we are while we are suffering. In verse 1 you'll find:

I. Our Relationship To The World We Live In (1) There are two key words that you'll notice that tell us about it; both are "S" words.

1. we are strangers Some are stranger than others! The Greek word is parepidemois. Demos means the population of a city. Para means parallel or alongside. It refers to someone who comes and settles down alongside of the rest of the population, but is different. Two English words come to mind, resident alien. We've had international students in our church at times. They can stay here only so long, because the US is not their home; they are not citizens. They will have to go home sometime. Yet for months or years, their home will be here. They are resident aliens, citizens of some other place who live alongside the people of this place. And you know, that's what we are too, strangers, resident aliens.

a. our stay is temporary The real pain of suffering occurs when a person has no hope of anything better. The average person suffers and if it's bad or continues, he might think, "Is this all there is for me? Is this all my life is going to be? Isn't there something any better?" But when you're suffering, remember this, it is not forever. There IS something better for you. You are not home yet, but you are a citizen of heaven if you know Christ. Here you have no continuing city, as Hebrews says, but you look for one to come! You may suffer here for years and years, but you'll enjoy eternity forever.

b. our status is alien We're here, but we don't belong. Just think about how the world treats those who don't belong. Think how tough immigrants have it many times. They are looked down on and made fun of and mistreated by many. It shouldn't be that way, but it is. And we have the same problem. We are different from the people we live among. We don't look different (at least from many of them), but we act different; we live by different principles, have different priorities. You can just expect that's going to bring on some suffering, some mistreatment, some persecution! Jesus warned His disciples, "If you were of the world, the world would love you, but you are not of the world and the world will hate you as it hated Me." We're "E.T.'s", extra-terrestrials. We're from heaven. We must expect that some trouble will come our way and if it doesn't, then count it a blessing!

2. we are scattered At the time when Israel was taken captive to Babylon, Jews were dispersed from Palestine all over the place. Some were officially deported; some simply fled for their lives. By Peter's time 600 years later, there were little colonies of Jews in every major city of the Roman world. They were known as the Diaspora, the dispersed ones, the scattered ones. Yet you know God was in that, because they were the first people Paul went to in every city where he preached, to people who had the background and were prepared for his message. The believers Peter was writing to were scattered through the five provinces of Asia Minor, in modern Turkey. But they were also "scattered ones" in another sense and so are we:

a. we are a minority in the world Christians always have been and always will be a minority group. In many cities and towns there are little groups of Christians like us, but we are always the minority, the little guy, the lesser force. That brings on suffering. In the human race, the stronger always picks on the weaker. It is not strange that they took our Bible out of the schools and we couldn't stop it! Just be thankful you live in the USA; it could be a lot worse! And it's a world full of crazy, mixed up, and wicked people and a lot of them hurt other people, either for fun or as a byproduct of the selfish way they live. So, one way or the other, we're bound to suffer but:

b. we have been planted by God The root of the word scatter means to plant seeds. God has planted us where we are, even if it is in suffering, because He has a plan and purpose for us. We did not get into our circumstances by accident. They did not just show up by chance and we happened into them. God put you here and me there, and so on because He, like a good farmer, knows what He's doing! That's our relationship to the world we live in. When you suffer, remember it's only temporary, it is to be expected, and God put you here for a purpose. Now, expanding on that in verse 2, you'll find:

II. Our Relationship To God (2) This is what will really help you to triumph over your suffering. First remember:

1. what God did for us: He chose us We are the elect. Out of all the people in the human race, 7 billion at present, we are the ones God has chosen for Himself! Now we get into some theology. That choice involved three things. First there was a:

a. decision: according to the Father's foreknowledge Way back in eternity past, before the world was created, and long before you or any other human being existed, God made a decision, a choice. He chose you. Why? Well, don't get all puffed up; it wasn't because you were any great shakes! Those who are more strongly Calvinistic than I, say it was just His pure choice; He simply planned me. I would say that He knew me even then and knew that I would respond to Jesus Christ and He chose me in Christ according to His foreknowledge. But that isn't the point. Either way, He chose me. How do I know? Because in time there came about the:

b. process: through the Spirit's sanctification The Holy Spirit worked in my life and drew me to receive the Savior and regenerated my vile heart and set me apart unto God, that is, He sanctified me. That's the evidence that I am chosen. And why did He do it? There was a:

c. goal: for the Son's service I was chosen and set apart, not only to be sprinkled with the blood of Christ and forgiven of all my sins, but for obedience to Jesus Christ, for His service. Did you get that? He chose me, yes me, not just to belong to Him, not just to spend a glorious eternity, not just to have an inheritance incorruptible, but to be planted in this world, His little seed, right where I am, right in the midst of my difficulties and my problems and my suffering. Listen, wherever you are, child of God, you are not an accident blowing in the wind. He chose you and He chose to put you right where you are so that in this set of circumstances you might be obedient to His Son and serve His purpose. That's what suffering is all about! But God does not decide and choose and then leave us. Look:

2. what God provides to us: He supplies us with two things and Peter wishes that they might be multiplied to each suffering one. They are:

a. grace, which is Divine strength to endure suffering in this context. Compare 2 Cor. 12:9. If I might paraphrase it, "When you are weak in enduring suffering, then I will infuse into You my mighty power; the weaker you are, the more My power will be made manifest". And Paul learned, "I can do (endure) all things (even suffering) through Him who strengthens Me". Whatever God puts into your life, He provides you with strength to endure, if you look to Him for it. And then He also gives:

b. peace, which is Divine confidence to face suffering God knows that the problem is not just the physical strength to make it through, but the ability to take it mentally, to stand the strain, to bear the grief, to not flip out under the stress. And so, when you take it to Him in prayer regularly, He floods your heart and mind with His peace that passes all understanding. Whatever God puts into your life, you can handle. He will see to it that you have a portion of His confidence to handle it. So, hang in there my suffering friend. Keep trusting God. He who has chosen you and placed you will strengthen you and one day He will reward you.

The story is told of a little girl whose prize possession was a cheap necklace of worthless beads. The tarnished chain discolored her neck and the piece of cheap jewelry was unattractive. But the child loved it and wore it always, in spite of the remonstrances of her parents. The day before her birthday, her dad insisted she give him the necklace. Tearfully, she did and her mother held her close, knowing how much it hurt to give up her treasure. Next day, after cake and ice cream, she opened her gift--a string of beautiful pearls from her father! She had not known it, but he had been to the jewelry store the day before to purchase it. Before he took away her treasure, he had already planned to give her something far better. And sometimes our loving Father plans for us to suffer today. It may be loss; it may be pain; it may be illness or persecution. And today, down here, we don't know why. But there's tomorrow up there! And I can assure you that God's already been to the jewelry store. He has a wonderful eternity in store for us. Won't you trust your Loving Father for today?

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

1:3-5 - Our Promise In Suffering

Here is a little outline of the first major section of the book of 1 Peter. The theme of the section is knowing who we are, our identity. Last time in the first 2 verses of the book we saw our situation: we suffer as people who are chosen by God and planted in this world as scattered strangers.

I. Our Identity In Suffering 1:1-2:10

1. our situation as sufferers 1:1-2
2. our salvation as sufferers 1:3-12
3. our sanctification as sufferers 1:13-2:10

The next subsection talks about our salvation and how that enables and prepares and equips us for suffering and later we'll look at how who we are affects how we react to suffering, at our sanctification as sufferers. But for today let's look at verses 3-5 and talk about our promise in suffering. What is it about our faith that helps us to stand up in the midst of suffering, to not throw it all away and give up? What is there for us that keeps us from doing what Job's wife told him to do, from cursing God and dying? Well, I told you last time, if we are believers in Jesus Christ then we are saved people and saved people have an advantage over other people when they suffer. That difference can be summed up for us in a four letter word found in verse 3, HOPE. Compare Eph. 2:12. An unsaved person is a person without hope, who has no hope. And therefore, when he suffers, he suffers without hope. However, the Christian has hope and especially when he suffers, he suffers as a person with hope. Now, just what is hope. Hope in the Bible is not merely a wish. Lots of people that are unsaved are hopeful people; they always look on the bright side and are confident that things will get better. But that is an unfounded hope, a mere wish with no basis. It won't get you very far and it wears thin when the suffering drags on. What is:

I. The Nature of Our Hope (3) Compare Rom. 8:23-24. Our hope is simply this, one day we are going to be placed as God's adult sons in His presence in brand new resurrection bodies free from all sin and suffering. That is not a wish, not a fond desire, not some pie in the sky. That is a fact. It is an absolute truth. Every follower of Jesus Christ will be with Him and be like Him one day. It is an absolute certainty. But it hasn't happened yet and we don't even see it starting to happen. So, we are eagerly, but patiently, waiting for what we absolutely know is going to happen. That is the kind of hope we have while we are suffering. No matter how bad it gets, no matter how bad the pain, how heavy the drain on our poor resources, one day we will be with Jesus and all suffering will be gone. An unsaved person doesn't know that, but we do. Now let's talk more about that hope. First, in verse 3 we have:

1. its quality: living It is a living hope. It is not a static thing, a so-so thing that has no effect on us. It is a living thing, a principle that energizes and transforms and affects our lives. Let me illustrate. You can send a workman out to dig a hole and tell him how deep to dig and he'll dig a hole, probably at a rate based on the temperature and humidity! But if you tell him that at the bottom of that hole is a chest of treasure and it's his, then he'll DIG a hole! The knowledge of that treasure is a living thing, it vitalizes and energizes and affects his life. So does our hope. We know what lies at the end. This world may be a real pit for us, but we know what comes next and that it's ours. And that makes us live and suffer far differently from the person without any hope. Now how do we get this hope:

2. its source: the new birth It came with our new birth, our regeneration, when we received Christ. It was born in us right along with our new nature. We didn't just decide to have it; we didn't just make up our minds that there is a heaven and we're going there. The Holy Spirit came into our hearts and planted in us a new nature and part of that new nature that we have is an absolute assurance and unshakeable certainty in our hearts that we belong to Jesus Christ and that we'll be with Him one day. But it's not just a feeling:

3. its basis: the resurrection of Christ It is based on an indisputable, historical fact. Jesus Christ lives! He died, but He rose the third day and He's alive right now! That's why it's a living hope. Jesus lives and so shall I! Jesus lives and He came into my heart and saved me and gave me the assurance that one day when this is all over, I will be with Him in glory. Now if you think about it, just knowing that much is enough to change anybody's life. But we're fortunate. We know a lot about:

II. The Content of Our Hope We know a lot of the specifics about what it's going to be like for us in that day. Peter mentions two things in particular that we know are part of that sure hope:

1. we have a guarded inheritance (4) Now, if I told you that you were going to inherit a thousand dollars, how would you react? 10,000 dollars? 1 million? Compare Rom. 8:17. If you are a child of God then you are an heir to God, to everything God has, an-equal heir to Jesus Christ Himself. Everything that is His is yours! Everything that He enjoys you will enjoy. Every bliss He knows, you will know, even though right now you may have to endure suffering, even as He had to for a time. We have an inheritance that is laid up in heaven for us that is far beyond anything we can presently imagine. But there are three things we know about it:

a. it cannot perish It can't be destroyed. No enemy can come along and steal it or burn it or vandalize it. It is an eternal inheritance. Why not? The end of the verse says that it is kept (guarded or watched). By whom? By God! You take your valuables down to the bank and put them in the safe deposit box and are confident they are secure. But they aren't. Yet the things God has prepared for you are secure because He watches over them. Nobody and nothing can touch your inheritance. And:

b. it cannot spoil It can't be contaminated. You can buy 1,000 acres of pristine wilderness and somebody will throw some trash on it and spoil it. And if they don't, the factories will pollute the air so bad that acid rain will fall on it. Nothing in this world is free from being spoiled. But your inheritance is. Jesus said to lay up treasure in heaven where the moths can't eat it and the rust can't corrode it. Nothing can spoil it; it will be absolutely perfect. And:

c. it cannot fade The Greek word relates to the dying out of a fire. It may be wonderful and warm and nobody comes to put it out and nobody throws any green wood on it to make it smoke and ruin it, but it eventually just wears out, loses its energy and dies. Everything we know is like that, temporary, it only lasts so long. Life. People. Even the sun is burning out. The prettiest flowers all fade. The loveliest ladies all get wrinkled and old. But not our inheritance. It is eternal. It will never diminish, never wear out, never fade away. That's what's laid up and waiting for us, a wonderful eternal reward of immense magnitude with our name already on it, kept and guarded under the watchful eye of God. So, it is sure. Or is it? If I told you that you'll get 1 million dollars twenty years from now, what will your first thought be? "Will I live that long?" It may be guaranteed, but I'm not, or am I? You see, verse 5 tells us:

2. we have a guarded existence (5) It is not only that our inheritance is guarded by God until we get it, but that:

a. we are kept by the power of God We are shielded. The Greek word means "to garrison about", "to guard by surrounding with soldiers". God's power is around us like an army and I'm reminded of Elisha with his servant and the horses and chariots of fire surrounding them. But what are we guarded against? Against suffering? No. Against having any trouble? No. Look what it says:

b. we are kept unto final salvation He's talking about the day when Christ returns, the end and completion of our salvation when we'll be glorified and get our inheritance. He's saying that our souls are guarded by God's power so that they cannot be lost and our inheritance cannot be lost. Paul put it this way, I know whom I have believed and am persuaded that He is able to keep that which I have committed unto Him against that day. That's my soul, my very being. Jesus said Jn. 10:27-30 that nobody can take us out of God's hand, not the devil, not suffering, not any enemy in this world. We belong to God and we are shielded by His power all the way through to that moment when the glorious inheritance is ours and our salvation is complete at last! That's why Paul could say, I have fought a good fight, I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the righteous Judge shall give me at that day. And not to me only, but to all those who love His appearing! Listen, you can fight a good fight. You can make it through suffering. You can triumph. You're a saved person. You have a guaranteed future that is certain. You have a sure hope. This vale of tears will only last so long and then it will be glory!

A preacher went overseas many years ago to work for the Lord. Now he was coming home on a ship, too old to continue. On the same boat was a celebrity. When the ship docked, there were hundreds of people waiting to meet the celebrity and they carried him off on their shoulders while the old preacher stood there alone. Looking up, he said, "Lord, did you forget?" Slowly but clearly came the Lord's reply, "No, son I didn't forget. But you must remember that you're not home yet! Over here there are myriads of angels waiting to carry you on their shoulders, but son, you're just not home yet!"

Listen, no matter what you're suffering from, frustration, fear, pain, or loss, remember this, you're not home yet! But think about it; one day you will be! And that thought can turn your sorrow into joy.

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

1:6-7 - Our Purpose In Suffering

The hardest question I know of to answer is a simple three letter word, "WHY?" When suffering, this is the big one that everybody wants to know, "Why did God let this happen to me?" When our neighbor across the street died after prolonged illness and suffering, her daughter said it outright several times, "I'm mad at God. I want to know why mother had to suffer like this." A human being can stand most anything that happens to them as long as they know why it's happening. The most painful thing to any of us who are suffering is to think, "There is no reason for this; it is pure chance." And that is again what gives the suffering Christian a great advantage over an unsaved person who is suffering. We know there is a reason, a purpose for this. Somehow God is in it. We may not know what the purpose is or how He's involved, but we know it's not just chance; it has meaning and purpose in our lives. Look at verses 6-7. Now in verse 6 you have:

I. The Parameters of Suffering (6) These are the facts we know about it. First, we know that:

1. suffering is temporary It is for a little while. To us eternity is real; heaven is real. We are going to live forever. No matter how long we suffer on earth, even if it is our whole life, it is only a little while compared to the eternal life we possess. When you are hurting, you can rest in the fact that God will not let you hurt forever. There will come a day when all the hurt will be over and He will wipe all the tears from your eyes and when He does, they will stay dry. It will be over for good, forever. Then we know that:

2. suffering is regulated (7a) Verse 7 says, These have come so that... The language makes it clear that suffering is regulated; it is controlled. God superintends it. God sends it and God regulates the flow of it and God limits it. You are not suffering under the rule of a mean tyrant who likes to make you squirm, but under the gentle hand of a loving Heavenly Father who loves you and redeemed you. Compare 4:16. I like the KJV, Wherefore, let them that suffer according to the will of God commit the keeping of their souls to Him in well doing, as unto a FAITHFUL CREATOR. Suffering is a part of the work of the CREATOR in your life, making you His perfect creation. In fact, the text indicates that:

3. suffering is necessary Verse 6 says, you may have had to suffer... or literally, it may have been necessary for you to suffer.... There are some things God can do in your life in no other way than through suffering. You'll find that true as a parent. There are things your children can never learn without suffering. They will never grow up as well-adjusted adults if you shield them from all pain and hurt. You can tell them a million times not to ride their bike barefooted, but it is only through the pain of skinning a toe that they really learn why it is not good for them and change their behavior. Suffering is a vital part, a necessary part, of God's work in our lives and that brings us to verse 7 and:

II. The Purposes for Suffering (7) I would never pretend to know specifically why the particular suffering that you are experiencing has come into your life. Many times we never know until long afterward or not at all. However, I CAN tell you that apart from pure discipline which you bring on yourself by sin, suffering is designed to do something to the most precious thing you have, your faith. You'll find that God uses it in three ways. First, for:

1. the refining of your faith Gold is a precious metal, but in order to have its most valuable form, it must be refined. It must be heated and melted down. And when it is, the dross, the impurities that have crept into the ore, separates itself and you skim it off and remove it. Then, when the ingot cools, you have pure gold. Our faith is like that gold ore. Our trust in God and walk with Him has impurities and imperfections and things that are mixed in and won't come out by washing or admonishing. They only come out under the pressure of suffering. Let's just look at two examples:

a. Moses - Acts 7:22-29 You see, Moses had a faith in God from his youth. Maybe it was planted there by his mother who cared for him as a young child. But by the time he was 40 it had matured to a point, to the point where he knew he had to do something to help God's people. Verse 25 explains his thinking. He had it in his mind just how God was going to use him, the mighty prince of Egypt, with all his wisdom and royal power. But God couldn't use his faith in that condition. So God threw a monkey wrench into his plans and brought suffering. He had to flee and leave all the comforts of Egypt and every position of rank, going through the desert to Midian, where he was reduced to humble dependence on God and the job of a shepherd (the most loathsome occupation to Egyptians, remember?). And for 40 years God let him learn how to take care of sheep on the backside of the desert, until his faith was refined and he saw how little he was and how much he needed God if he was to do everything. Then God sent him back to Egypt with a refined and purified faith, a complete trust in Him and he led the people out. God did the same thing with David; He left him suffer for 10 years in the wilderness learning to depend on God before making him king. But the greatest example of all is:

b. Jesus - Heb. 2:10, 5:7-9 These are awesome verses and I confess I don't fully comprehend what they mean. But the word perfect means complete. There was something He gained from suffering. He learned obedience, something totally out of His realm of experience as God. He learned what it is to obey the Father's will in going to the cross and so was made complete. And if it was necessary for Jesus, who had no impurities, to suffer to be made complete, how much more is it necessary for us who not only are incomplete, but are sinful! Sometimes God has no other way to refine and perfect and to teach you what you need to learn than to bring suffering into your life. But there's a second reason:

2. the proof-testing of your faith The second thing that melting the ore does is to prove the nature of the metal, whether it's really genuine gold or just fool's gold. I can have a rifle cartridge in my hand that looks like it will fire and all the pieces are there and you can hear the powder in it and you can have all confidence that when you put it in the gun and stand in front of an enemy soldier, it will go off. But you don't KNOW that until you pull the trigger. Sometimes they don't go off (that's why ammunition companies proof-test some rounds all the time as they're manufactured). Your faith is like that. You trust in God and depend on Him. But that is not really proved or put to the test without suffering. That's why Peter uses the word TRIALS in verse 6. Our suffering is a trial or a proof-test of our faith. For example:

a. Abraham - Gen. 22:1-2, 12 Abraham already had a strong faith. He had trusted God for a son. But God put him through a very severe test to prove the quality of his faith and look how great it was. Compare Heb. 11:17-19. His faith was the real thing. It was unshaken. He trusted God so much that he was convinced that God would just have to raise Isaac from the dead to keep His promise! That test proved both to God and to Abraham and to all who knew about it just how real and deep Abraham's faith was. Then there was:

b. Job - Job 1:8-11 Job was the most righteous man on earth, but Satan accused him of having a shallow faith, one that was motivated, not out of true love for God, but out of getting things from God. Lots of people have that kind of shallow faith that Jesus spoke of in the parable which withers when the first trial or difficulty comes. So God proof-tested Job with suffering, to display to Satan, to Job Himself, and to Job's friends, that his faith was real and genuine (as well as to refine a few things in Job himself). You see, if all Christians were rich and trouble free, people would flock to Christianity in droves. But they would not have real faith, real trust in God and love for Him. Suffering separates the true from the false, the wheat from the tares. Those who hold up, come through strengthened and assured that their faith is worth devoting a lifetime to. But there is another purpose:

3. the glorifying of God Sometimes the purpose of our suffering really has nothing to do with us. It is a way of God using us to bring glory to Himself, to accomplish His will. It may be:

a. in the present - John 9:1-3 That man was born blind and suffered years of blind life so that Jesus could heal Him and people would believe in Him and glorify Him. How many people have been helped and comforted and even saved through the ministry of a young lady who broke her neck as a teen and became a quadriplegic, Joni Eareckson Tada? They see that her faith is real and sustains her in great difficulty and they want it. That can be true of you. Sometimes you have to suffer so that God can use you to minister to others, so they can look at you and see Him. That's now, but verse 7 says it will be also true:

b. in the future On that great day when we stand before Christ at His coming, all creation is going to rise and shout His praises for what He has done in you and how He has sustained and finally glorified you in that day when He is revealed. So, we know suffering has a purpose, more than likely a number of purposes all at once, in our lives. The question is what will be:

III. Our Reaction to Suffering (6) You see, we can be:

1. grieving in the present trial Nowhere does the Bible say that you have to stand up and say, "Hallelujah, I'm suffering!" That's not what Jesus did in the garden. He grieved and cried and sweat blood. You don't have to like suffering. It's OK to cry, to hurt, to seek comfort. But the key is, while you are grieving, to be:

2. exulting in the future hope You can still greatly rejoice in the guaranteed glorious eternity that lies ahead. Listen to Paul. Compare 2 Cor. 4:16-18.

The question is whether you will say "yes" to suffering by saying, "OK, Lord, I'm willing to learn and grow and be refined through this, to be used of you through this. Lord, I trust this will work together for good in your plan." Or will you say "no" and spend all your effort and energy to simply escape from suffering, saying, "Lord I reject this; it is not from You; You must get me out of it NOW!" I'll let you decide which answer reflects the deeper kind of faith.

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

1:8-12 - Our Privileges In Suffering

I've been telling you ever since we started this series that we as Christians have distinct advantages over other people who suffer. Everybody suffers. Some more and some less, Christian and non-Christian alike, but everybody suffers; it is the common lot of humanity. However, because of our identity as believers in Jesus Christ we have privileges and advantages that other people cannot enjoy. And these are the Lord's means of making our suffering bearable. The first one Peter mentions is:

I. The Privilege Of An Invisible Savior (8) Now, at first glance that doesn't appear to be much of a privilege but rather a difficulty:

1. the apparent difficulty of it We love with total selfless love a Savior that we've never had one glimpse of (in the Greek). And we've been serving Him for years and we still have never seen Him. We've committed our lives to a man we've never seen! We live by faith, not by sight. This has been the prime objection of those who are resistant to the Gospel when we try to share. "When I can see Him, then I'll believe..." After all, it's hard to convince people to give their lives to a man who died and rose again 2,000 years ago and whom we claim now lives in heaven, but whom they can never see for themselves. And sometimes it is a difficulty for us as well. When we go through the waters of suffering and we get discouraged and our faith wears thin, there are times when we wish we could just see Him once and be reassured, that somehow, we could be like Stephen and have the windows of heaven opened for a moment so we could see the Savior or be like Thomas and touch our hand to His side. There are times when we really envy those early disciples who walked with Him and talked with Him on earth and think, "My, how great it would have been to be one of them and how hard it is to believe like I do without seeing!" But this is only an apparent difficulty. Think for a moment about:

2. the actual privilege of it Compare John 20:29. Jesus said we are blessed or happy because we have believed, though we have not seen. How is that so? Well, think about the experience of those first disciples. They saw Him, yes, but their faith so often hinged on seeing Him. If He was not with them, they had trouble casting out demons; they were full of fear while they were tossed about in the boat on the stormy sea until He arrived and even when He was asleep in the boat, they thought they would perish until He woke up. They depended on sight. As soon as they couldn't see, their faith faltered and wavered. But look at Jn. 16:7. Jesus said it is good that He went away and we don't have sight. Why? Because now He can come to individually indwell us in the person of the Holy Spirit! There is never a time, never a moment, when we're apart from Him, never a second when we're where He is not, never a spot on earth where we can be that He isn't, never a pilgrimage that we have to make to reach Him! And that's why Peter talks about:

3. the amazing joy of it Seeing Him filled those disciples with fear that He might go away and sadness when He did. But believing on Him without seeing brought the Holy Spirit to live in our hearts and with Him a great joy that is two things. First, it is inexpressible. It can't be told or explained logically to others. It goes beyond words. But it is also literally, glorified. We don't see the man on earth, limited and easily pictured. With the eyes of faith, we see the Man in the glory, seated on heaven's throne, ruling the universe, controlling our lives, putting all His enemies under His feet, yet living in us, empowering and strengthening us, going right with us through our troubles and one day coming back to claim us! Hallelujah! We have a privilege, an understanding and a view of Christ that those who saw with eyes never had until He was taken away from them and they like us had to see with eyes of faith! And along with that privilege comes:

II. The Privilege Of A Present Salvation (9) Now, you can't appreciate this until you stop and think about the rest of the world. Here's what they're doing:

1. others are struggling to attain an unsure salvation If they have any care or regard for what happens after death at all or any kind of belief in God or a heaven, it is like a goal that stands way out there, and in between, there is this long span called life and its full of unknown things. And you don't know whether you're going to get there. You're never sure. You never know until you die. You can only hope and wish. And in every situation, you struggle and try to do the right thing because you want to somehow make it to heaven. Let me tell you, that's a miserable way to live! But the people who live all up and down your block are doing it! And they never know if it's going to be worth it; they live with the fear that after a lifetime of trying, they might get out there and find out that they didn't make it! But here's what we're doing:

2. we are suffering while possessing a sure salvation We've already obtained the goal; the salvation of our souls is settled. We know we have eternal life in Jesus Christ. We know that heaven is our home and one second after death we'll be there with Jesus! Oh, what a privilege that is! We may be suffering, but there is no fear that we may fail and be cut off from heaven! This struggle that we are in is for our good and will mature and refine us, but it can never separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus. Remember Rom 8:35-39. We are conquerors because we already have our salvation. No amount of suffering or struggle can take it away from us. Salvation is ours, right now. Hallelujah! But there's a third privilege we have:

III. The Privilege Of A Clear Understanding (10-12) Did you notice that to understand our privileges we compared our case first in verse 8 to the case of the early disciples who saw Jesus, then in verse 9 to the case of the unbelieving world around us? In verse 10 we compare our case to:

1. the case of the Old Testament prophets These are tremendous verses to give us insight into the Old Testament and God's servants whom we all admire. Don't you get jealous when you think about Abraham and Moses and David who heard God and the great prophets like Isaiah and Jeremiah who heard God's voice and recorded it for us? Wouldn't it have been great to be them? Well, Peter points out something we forget:

a. their confusion Their own writings were confusing to them. Did you know that? And here's why. The normal process of writing is that you collect and organize your thoughts until you understand something well and then you write it down. These men spoke and wrote under inspiration. The Holy Spirit impressed on them what to say and what to write down. And we believe in verbal inspiration, that the very words on the page are, in the end, God's words. But then, once God had inspired them to write, they had to turn around and try to figure out what God meant. It was a real problem and one key issue was:

b. their concern to understand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that would follow Imagine how difficult it must have been for Isaiah, who lived 750 years before Christ was ever born, before there was any thought of the Gospel as we know it. Here's what God made Isaiah write, Is. 53:4-8. But now compare 11:1-4! Look at those two very different pictures, yet there is only one Messiah. There is suffering and glory. Isaiah couldn't have known how those two things fit together. How could Christ suffer and die and yet rule the earth with a rod of iron? Peter says the prophets searched their own writings intently and with the greatest care to figure out the time when these things were going to happen or if not that, then literally, what kind of time it would be. They sorely wanted to know how God's plan was going to work. It would have made the difficulties they were going through so much easier. But they couldn't know. It was not revealed to them. Yet this was:

c. their consolation The things they were given might not benefit them directly, but they would benefit those who would come later, that is, us! And they had to be content with that, with suffering while not understanding, knowing only that their message was going to help somebody later! And you thought they had it good! Then look at this thought. At the end of the verse, he mentions:

2. the case of the angels We might think, "Wouldn't it be great to be an angel, because then we'd get to be in heaven with God and know all that's going on!" No, you wouldn't. Even the angels don't have full understanding. They are just servants that God sends to go and do things. They know only whatever He tells them. They long to know and to understand the things that have been revealed to us. They're like little kids standing outside a window and rubbing it clean, peering in to see what's going on inside! But consider our case:

3. the case of the New Testament believer We have two things that are unique privileges:

a. we have the comfort of revealed mystery Compare Eph. 3:2-6. We know what the Old Testament saints never knew, what was hidden from them. We know that the suffering occurred first and the glory will occur later. We know that there was a first coming, and in between Christ is building His church and then He's coming again! What glorious blessing we get from Isaiah 53, because we know it paints for us what was happening in the crucifixion of our Lord, yet also from Is. 11, because we know that's in the millennium at the return of Christ which is still to come. And when it comes to thinking about suffering, the comfort is that we know the plan. We know how it all turns out and who wins in the end! And further:

b. we have the assurance of fulfilled prophecy Isaiah never got to see either of those beautiful prophecies come true, but we have. We know Is. 53 came true. He died on the cross for our sins and rose again. We've seen it fulfilled according to plan and we know the whole plan. We know the glory to follow. And the fact that all the prophecies of Christ's first coming and His suffering were fulfilled gives us full assurance that Is. 11 and all the rest that are yet future will be too! They had to take it by faith and never saw it. We have the full assurance of it because the Gospel has been preached to us!

Listen, we always think we have it bad. But we are the most privileged group of people that ever has lived, the church of Jesus Christ! We have an Invisible Savior who indwells every one of us, a Present Salvation that we know is ours right now, and a Clear Understanding of what God is doing in this world. Who could be better equipped for suffering than we are?

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

1:13-16 - Our Command To Be Holy

Verse 13 begins with a key word, therefore, and it indicates a turning point in the chapter. Paul's been talking about our salvation as sufferers, explaining the difference that our salvation makes to us when we suffer. Now he's going to move on to talk about our sanctification as sufferers in 1:13-2:10. The word sanctification is a big word from a very simple root, the word holy. God wants us to be holy when we suffer. Now, if you watch what happens to people when they suffer, you find that suffering can easily lead people to sin! I've seen people stop praying, stop reading their Bible, stop attending church, stop loving, become angry at God, and even drop their moral standards because of the pain of suffering they were going through. It's a natural temptation. Satan even used it against Jesus. He was hungry and Satan tried to get Him to do what He knew He shouldn't do because of the suffering of hunger. Yet Jesus refused. He remained holy in His suffering all the way to the cross! And that's what God wants of us. Because of who we are, His children and heirs of eternal life, He wants us to be holy in spite of suffering. Now, I've broken this section down into four parts:

- a. our command to be holy 13-16
- b. our reason to be holy 17-21
- c. our desire to be holy 1:22-2:3
- d. our design to be holy 4-10

This morning we'll concentrate on verses 13-16 and talk about our command to be holy. As we do that, the first thing we have to deal with is:

I. The Meaning of Being Holy (15-16) How many of you think the word holy describes you? When I talk about a holy person, many of us think of somebody like the Pope wearing a habit and living in a monastery or something, a unique person, different from the rest of us. I want to erase that notion today. Holiness in the Scripture is a moral term, not a religious one. It is not about how you dress, but how you act. It is not about where you live, but how you live. It is not about being unlike other men, but being like God. In fact, verse 15 spells out for us:

1. the standard of holiness, which is God Himself ...just as He who called you is holy. If you want to know what holy is, look at God, for God is holy. In fact, He is the only One who is truly holy. Now here's:

a. what it means for God: to be set apart from sin The root word means to be set apart. God is totally and completely set apart. From what? From sin. He is of purer eyes than to look on sin with approval. Everything touched and stained by sin is barred from His presence. That's what our salvation is all about. Sinful men cannot ever be with a holy God unless they are made holy! And that's exactly what happened to us. 2 Cor. 5:21. Christ the Holy One was joined to us so that He became what we were as sinners to die in our place and we became what He was, Holy Ones or Saints, who now in His righteousness can come to God. So, here's:

b. what it means for us: to be set apart unto God We are set apart from sin, which has claimed a hold on the whole creation, unto God! Simply put, to be holy means to be like God is and thereby to belong to Him and be separated from belonging to the sinful world system all about us. Now let's think about:

2. the expectation of holiness God says that I am to be holy like He is, literally, to be a Holy One like He is a Holy One. And it's obvious that He's not simply talking about my position in Christ. There's nothing I have to do further about that. As far as my salvation goes, I am already holy in Jesus Christ. I am a saint; I can't BE any holier than I already am, as far as salvation goes. But he's not talking about salvation, rather, he's talking about my behavior! He's saying, "Alright, you belong to Me, so be like Me in your life right now!" That's a tall order! How can God expect me to be perfect, when it is abundantly clear that I can never be sinless as long as I'm on this earth? Well, note this:

a. it is an expectation of becoming The verb be in both of these verses is not the plain verb to be but the verb to become. "As He who called you is holy, so you become holy in all you do". God does not expect us to be what we're not. He expects us to be in the process of becoming what we are! We are holy and set apart to Him in Jesus Christ, so He expects that in our lives right now on earth we are moving toward that standard, living more and more up to our calling, until the day it is completed in His presence. Now notice:

b. it is a universal expectation ...in all you do. That's a plural you. God expects this of every Christian, preacher and new convert alike, Sunday School teacher and student alike. It is not for some and not others. And further it is not a now and then thing. It is literally, in all conduct. It is not at church but not at home; it is not when you are well but not when you're suffering. It has no limits. That process of becoming like God has to be going on, no matter where we are in life and no matter how tempted we may be or how strongly our suffering is pressuring us to sin. You say, "Fine. So God expects it. But how am I supposed to DO it?" Well, God never commands you to do something that He does not give you the means to fulfill. And back in the last two verses He already gave us:

II. The Method of Being Holy (13-14) It has four steps. If you really want to be holy, really want to obey this command of God, here's what you have to do:

1. eradicate all mental HINDRANCES The NIV loses a beautiful image that God put in the text when it translates, prepare your minds for action. The KJV translates more literally, gird up the loins of your mind. In the Middle East and much of the ancient world, the usual dress for men and women alike was long, flowing robes. How many of you women have ever tried to run in a long dress? It trips you! So, if they were going to work hard or run for some reason, they would take the lower part of their robes and tuck it into the sash around their waist and that would give them unhindered leg movement. And that's what God says you have to do in your mind; get rid of those things in your mind and thought life which would hinder and hold you back from the process of becoming holy. Like what? How about worry? Fear? Jealousy? Hatred? Unwillingness to forgive? Unwillingness to confess a particular sin? Every one of those things holds you back from growing in holiness. They have to go. You say, "But how?" You make up your mind you're going to get rid of them and God will show you the how! Just ask Him! You can't be like God and hang onto those things. Then:

2. eliminate all wrong INFLUENCES Self-controlled is literally, sober and the Greek word means free of intoxicants. Compare 1 Thes. 5:6-8. Notice here two pairs of opposites. Unsaved people are asleep; we are to be alert or awake, aware of what is going on. Unsaved people may be drunk, under the influence of wine, but we are to be sober or self-controlled, free from the control or influence of any outside element. The problem with alcohol and drugs is that they take over control of your faculties and behavior. They influence how you act. And there are a lot of other things that control and influence you wrongly. The thing that controls you may be peer pressure, the drive to be like those around you. It may be the drive to succeed in business. It may be your golf game. Anything in your life that you can sense influencing and taking over control in your life has to go. That position belongs to God alone. You can't be growing to be like Him if somebody or something is taking His place in your life. Then:

3. cultivate a focused VISION Hope has to do with the future. Lots of folks cultivate a focus on what their future holds. They think of some position they'll have or of having some amount of money or some particular lifestyle they'll be able to afford. But here's:

a. the object of our focus: Christ's return Jesus Christ is coming back. That's not a wish, a fond ambition, a dream. It's a fact, a sure hope, a certain event. And when you hold any other object up beside it, it pales in comparison. The most important fact we know is that we're going to spend eternity with Jesus Christ and that fact, if we can manage to focus our minds on it regularly, ought to color our lives with holiness. Now what is:

b. the degree of our focus: completely I don't think this means that the return of Christ is all you ever think about. Otherwise, you'd go sit on a hill somewhere and wait for it and that is not at all the kind of life the Scriptures describe. Rather it means that being with Christ ought to be the single most important factor in our thinking and our living all the time. If I have a decision to make, the bottom line is not which alternative will make me the most money, but rather which will please Jesus Christ, because He's coming and I'm going to spend eternity with Him. The bottom line is not what feels best or what is the easiest or least painful thing to do, but what will please Jesus Christ, my coming King! That, my friend, will lead to holiness in your life. And finally:

4. obliterate all evil DESIRES Part of the problem with becoming holy is that you have a sin problem built right into you, a set of desires, wrong desires, a bent toward sin that drives and entices you to wrong. And here's how it works in a person without Christ:

a. ignorance leads to fulfilling your desires which leads to a life of sin The person not having the Holy Spirit is ignorant of his situation and of the dangers of sin. He just knows he has a desire for this or that and his goal is to fulfill his needs, to meet his desires, to get what he needs. And it leads to a life dominated by sin. That doesn't mean all unsaved people are as bad as they can possibly be. Some of them end up in an outwardly immoral life. Others try to meet those needs through more legitimate needs, but still end up with a life lived independently of God, seeking its own good, and that's sin. But here's how it works in us:

b. knowledge leads to denying our desires which leads to a life of holiness We have the Holy Spirit and wisdom. We know that in our flesh dwells no good thing, that we have desires that want to lead us away from Christ. And when they surface in our minds, we deny them; we say no to them by God's power and instead do what God wants us to do. So, in essence we end up fashioning our lives, not according to our own evil desires, but after the holy will of our holy Heavenly Father. And we end up with a life that is growing in holiness. You can't stop the thoughts, the desires, from popping up. But you can say no; you can deny them and thus obliterate their effect in your life.

God doesn't want you to give up and quit and throw away your faith when you suffer! He doesn't want you fall into sin and deny all you've stood for. He wants you to keep on moving toward holiness. There is another beautiful passage that sums up just about everything we've looked at, Heb. 12:1-2. We must throw off everything that hinders, everything that would tangle us up and keep us from going God's way. We must let no influence lure us or push us off the course that God has marked out for us. We must keep our eyes fixed on Jesus who is sitting on the Throne waiting to receive us, scorning the shame, that is, denying the desire to be vindicated and every other desire that would keep us from following God's will. That's what will lead to a holy life, a life fashioned after God. And the great part is that when the path marked out for us leads through suffering, the joy that we know is set before us will help us to endure whatever cross we may have to bear for now.

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

1:17-21 - Our Reason To Be Holy

We saw back in verses 15-16 last time that God has commanded us to be holy, even in the midst of suffering, that suffering is no excuse to halt the process of growing in holiness and becoming like Jesus Christ. But do you remember how you feel sometimes when things have been tough and you're worn out by your circumstances and you're struggling to do your best to maintain a positive Christian testimony, yet you really feel like giving in and becoming angry and hateful and vindictive and all the rest? Job suffered the loss of all his wealth and all his children and finally his health, and yet he did not sin with his lips. He said, The Lord gives and the Lord takes away... But his wife told him to curse God and die. Don't you think that's what he probably really felt like doing down inside? Like giving up, like going ahead and sinning and cursing and accusing God and throwing in the towel on his faith? Sure, God has commanded us to keep on living in a holy fashion when we suffer, but sometimes a command is not enough. Sometimes we need a reason! We need more than an external "Thou shalt"; we need an internal, "I must", a driving motivation from within that gives us a reason to do what we're told to do. And Peter says there are two huge reasons why we should continue to strive to live holy lives when we suffer. The first is:

I. A Healthy Fear Of Displeasing The Father (17) The Bible speaks in many places about this concept of "fearing God". That's something we in this generation of Christians have almost lost along the way somewhere. There has been a lot of emphasis in recent years on the love of God and, as a result, a lot of younger people see God, not as the Heavenly Father, but as the "Heavenly Big Buddy" who is there to bless and help us, but when we do wrong, He just kind of says "Tisk, tisk, that's too bad". Peter says that the truth lies somewhere between those two extremes. We are supposed to have a reverent fear of God all the days of our lives. Now perhaps we can understand it if we analyze:

1. the source of this fear Here's what we often forget:

a. we must give account to our Heavenly Father A good father loves his kids and because of that he makes them be responsible for obeying when he tells them to do something. And if they don't, he lovingly disciplines them. For example, when I was 14, I backed our truck into my sister's shiny Thunderbird and I knew I had to tell Dad and explain my negligence. I knew I had to account for my actions. And if he told me to have the truck unloaded or to have a pile of wood split, I knew that if I didn't do it, I would have to give account. 2 Cor. 5:10 says that we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ to receive what is due us for the things that have been done in this body while on earth. Notice that it is not to be judged concerning our salvation and whether we get into heaven or not. We're already in heaven. It is to be rewarded or not rewarded for how we have served, how we have obeyed, how we have represented Him! And further we know that:

b. our Heavenly Father must be impartial with us Our Father is a just Father. He can't treat his children with partiality and say, "Oh, I like you, so I'll just forget you disobeyed me and blew your testimony and give you everything I was going to reward you with anyway". I know earthly fathers like that. No matter what their kid does, he still gets everything he wants. Not our heavenly Father. We'll have to stand before Him and give account and He'll have to judge and reward us absolutely impartially and fairly. And that ought to instill a fear in us! Now let's look at:

2. the nature of this fear Am I supposed to be afraid of God? Am I supposed to live in terror of Him? No:

a. it is a healthy reverence Let me put it this way. Are you supposed to be afraid of your Dad, to live in terror of him? Certainly not. That's abuse! I was not actually afraid of my Dad, but I tell you what, I had a healthy reverence for him! I had a fear of displeasing him and disobeying him. I don't want my kids to be afraid of me, but I certainly want them to have a healthy reverence for me and understand that when they disregard and disobey me that they'll bring discipline on themselves. That's a healthy thing! I cringe when I see a child outwardly defy a parent. But we might easily do the same to our Heavenly Father without a healthy fear of Him. You see:

b. it affects our whole life The kid who knows that Dad is going to find out and there'll be consequences to pay lives much more carefully. He is less tempted to follow his friends into wrong or let his responsibilities slide. Isn't that how it was with some of you? You thought twice about misbehaving because of the trouble you knew you'd be in? Now just imagine if your dad was omniscient and knew everything! All things are open before the eyes of Him with whom we have to do! Our Father sees and knows everything we do and, whether we like it or not, we're going to have to give account to Him as His children! So, let's live our lives here in reverent fear. That's one reason that should move us to be holy, even when we don't feel like it. The second is:

II. A Heartfelt Debt of Gratitude To The Son (18-21) Let's suppose that you were swimming with a friend and you were drowning and your friend saw it and swam out and dragged you out of the water, pumped your chest and revived you. One day later on, the weather's hot and you don't feel very well and just want to hibernate, but your friend comes by and asks you to help him move some furniture. What do you do? You do what he asks, whether you feel like it or not, because in your heart you know how much he did for you. There is a heartfelt gratitude in you that takes precedence over circumstances and feelings. Now magnify that about a million times and that's how it is between us and the Lord. First of all, there ought to be:

1. gratitude for the great price He paid for us Paul wrote, you were bought with a price. It is not just that Christ happened along and rescued us and went His merry way unscathed. He paid a great price, His own blood. Now notice that:

a. it was precious (18a, 19) Not precious the way we so often use it to mean cute or dear, but precious as in precious metals or precious gems. The word means of great, and in this case infinite, value or cost. Jesus once asked, What can a man give in exchange for his soul? That's a thought-provoking question. Would a million dollars buy salvation? Would the whole world? Micah wrote, Should I offer my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of my soul? - 6:7. Could another human being pay the price to redeem me? No, the price tag for my redemption was too great. It was too big; it was infinite, but Jesus paid it all. Now notice:

(1) it was the giving of life, not possessions It was not silver or gold or some other perishable thing that Jesus gave to save me. It was not something that was here today and gone tomorrow. It was His own blood, His very life. Very rarely will anyone die for a righteous man, though for a good man someone might possibly dare to die. But God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners Christ died for us! - Rom. 5:7-8. Would you die for me? For Him, it was not simply a contribution to help poor lost sinners, but the giving up of all, of everything, of life itself, that we might be saved! And:

(2) it was given totally for us, not Himself This Lamb, like the Passover lamb of old, was without blemish and spot. He knew no sin. He had no reason to die in Himself. He was innocent. There was no fault found in Him. The reason He went to the cross and gave His life is totally for us. He paid the great price because He loved us and wanted to rescue us! And yet, perhaps the most awesome thing about it is that:

b. it was planned (20) The cross didn't take Christ by surprise! It was not some great cosmic accident; it was planned. It was known and determined before the creation of the world. Before there was ever any world to live in, any race to redeem, Christ planned and chose to come into this world as a human being and go to the cross and suffer and give His very life for us! That ought to be enough to make you sing, "I'll live for Him who died for me!" But there's more. Not only are our hearts overflowing with gratitude for the great price He paid, but with:

2. gratitude for the great change it made in us Look what Christ did for me!

a. I am redeemed from an empty life (18) If it wouldn't be for Jesus Christ, I would be just like the millions of other people around me who are living an empty life. Some of them are eating and drinking and being merry for tomorrow they die. That's because they're fortunate. Lots of them are suffering and struggling and being miserable and tomorrow they still die. And after all they've done and sought and accomplished, they come up to death's door and the grand sum total of their life is left behind and they die empty with nothing to take on into eternity. But I don't live like that. Because of what Jesus did for me, I'm here for a purpose, to serve Him. And it counts for eternity. I take the fruit of it, the reward of it, with me forever and ever! And further:

b. I have a guaranteed future (21) I have an absolute faith and a sure hope. I know there's a heaven and I'm going there because Jesus died for me. My eternity is guaranteed by His blood! Listen, if a healthy fear of displeasing God doesn't move you to live a holy life, then this sure ought to! You owe God, not just some money, not just a nod or the time of day. You owe Him your very life, your soul, your eternity.

The songwriter put it like this, How can I say thanks for the things you have done for me, things so undeserved yet you give to prove your love for me. The voices of a million angels could not express my gratitude. All that I am and ever hope to be, I owe it all to Thee. I'll tell you how you can say thanks. Live a holy life! When you're suffering and you feel like quitting and throwing in the towel and sinning, let that weight of gratitude move you to keep on being holy, to keep on obeying!

2:4-10 - Our Design To Be Holy

We've been talking through this whole section about being holy while we are suffering. We saw that we are commanded to be holy. We looked at a couple of powerful reasons to be holy. Last time, we discovered that we have an inner desire or drive to be holy. Now, our text today tells us that we are DESIGNED to be holy. So often we've been trained to think of ourselves as individuals. It's a cultural thing, I suppose. And it has even carried over into our spiritual lives. We pray for our needs. We strive to discover God's will for our own life. We work in our own particular ministry. And that's OK. But so often we forget that we are not in this thing alone. We are only a minute part of a much greater design and plan that God is working out in this world. We're down here among the trees. We know and see the handful of people that are part of our daily lives. But God above has a different view. He sees the whole forest and how each tree fits into it. And He wants us to understand things from His point of view. So, in order to help us understand, He gives to us here three spiritual analogies, three verbal pictures of who we are:

I. We Are Stones In A Holy Temple (4-5a) Here's what God is doing in the world. He's building something. He's building a building, but it's obviously not a physical building. Jesus told plainly what He was going to build. He said, I will build My CHURCH. The word church is ecclesia and means a called-out assembly of people. Christ is building Himself a group of people called out from among all the rest of mankind through their faith in Him as Savior. We call it the Church Universal, which includes every single believer from Pentecost to the Rapture, an assembly of which every one of us is a part. And Peter says that the Church is like a building, a building made up of stones, but living stones, us. A more complete picture of that is given to us by Paul, Compare Eph. 2:19-22. God is constructing a building for Himself out of people. He started with Peter and John and the apostles and all through the centuries that building has been going up, person by person, stone by stone, until one day the last stone will be placed and the building finished and then the Rapture will occur and the building will be moved to heaven! Now let's think about:

1. the parts of the building Three are mentioned. First:

a. the Cornerstone: Jesus Christ (6-8) Peter quotes three Old Testament texts which refer to Christ as a cornerstone. Most of us have never built anything out of stone or brick, so we have almost no idea what this means. That Ephesians passage gives us a hint, the chief cornerstone in whom the whole building fitly joined together... The cornerstone is the first stone laid. And it must be strait and it must be level and it must be set at the exactly right angle. Why? Because all the lines of the walls rest upon it, vertical, front face, and sidewall. If any of these dimensions is off, the whole building will be crooked. Being off 1 degree in that stone may translate into feet at the other end of the building. So it's important that the builders pick the right stone and set it in place properly. Now maybe that'll help you understand who Jesus is:

(1) to unbelievers He is a stumbling stone You see, God's original building contractors, the Jews, looked at Jesus and examined His life and said, "He's not fit to be the Cornerstone, to be the Christ." So they rejected Him and threw Him out. Now He lies there in their path as a stone sunk into the ground over which you trip and cut your leg and fall. As a nation they tripped over Him and fell. And that's what unbelievers do still. They reject Him as Savior, will not acknowledge Him as God's cornerstone, and so they trip over Him and fall. And that fall is a long one; it goes straight into hell. But:

(2) to us He is a precious living stone God took that rejected Stone and made Him the head of the corner, the chief Cornerstone of His building, the Church. And so, to us He is precious, literally, held in honor. We recognize His perfection and His position as the head, designer, and builder of the Church. Now first He laid:

b. the foundation, which Ephesians says is the apostles and prophets, Peter and James and John and Paul and the rest. They were the foundation layer. They passed the message of Christ's death and resurrection on to the rest of us. Our faith is built on them and in turn, as each layer of stones rises, the next layer rests on it! The next generation of believers rests on our faith, our performance, our witness, and the one after that on theirs. Our place in this building is critical; it affects all who come above us. Now think about:

c. the stones: us Imagine building a brick wall and one brick in the middle is made of improper material and is crumbly or off-colored. The whole wall is affected. And you'll see the importance of that when you realize:

2. the purpose of the building: a dwelling for God This building is a Holy Temple. God doesn't dwell in a house made with hands. He dwells in the hearts of His Church. If there's anywhere on earth that you can pin God down to and say, "Where is He?", the answer is, "There, in the hearts of His people." And God's temple must be holy! God is building a perfect, pure building. And when suffering comes and you quit and give in and stop growing in holiness and begin to backslide and sin, you're marring the Temple; you're defacing the whole building. You're smearing the image and reputation of the church of Jesus Christ and ultimately the image of God Himself! God's plan is to present the Church to Himself a glorious church without spot or wrinkle, without impurity, so when you fall into sin, you're going against God's design, fighting God's plan, opposing what He's doing in the world!

II. We Are Priests In A Holy Priesthood (5b, 9b) This is a unique Temple, because the stones are also the priests! In the Old Testament only a few select persons, the family of Aaron, were priests and could approach God to minister in His Temple. But the New Testament declares that every single person who receives Christ is a priest of God and has personal access to His presence without having to have anyone go between for us. However, we are more than simply priests:

1. who we are: priests of the King Royal priests, priests that minister to the King. King David had his royal advisors, counsellors, his royal secretary to record things, and then the Bible says that Zadok and Ahimelech were priests. There were hundreds of priests. But when the King wanted to offer a sacrifice to God, he didn't go to them; he went to Zadok and Ahimelech, who were privileged above all the rest to serve in his behalf. And we are not just priests, we are priests of the King. The God whom we serve is also our King. We are in the service of the most important Being in all the universe, offering Him sacrifices and here's:

2. what we offer We are not earthly priests. We do not offer animal sacrifices. We are spiritual priests and offer spiritual sacrifices. The Bible mentions three of them which we offer continually:

a. our persons for His service - Rom. 12:1 You offer Him day by day your body as a living sacrifice, a body dedicated to Him to do His will, to serve His purpose! A body that goes where He wants and says what He wants and does what He wants. That's a spiritual sacrifice.

b. our possessions for His use - Phil. 4:18 The Philippian church took money and sent it to meet Paul's need. Paul says that was a sacrifice because they really gave it to God to be used for His purpose, which in this case was to help Paul. Every time you take out your wallet or write a check and give, if you are doing it in the right spirit, presenting it to God, you are offering a spiritual sacrifice. You tell Him He can do what He wants, when He wants, with whatever you have and when He shows you, you use it according to His direction. That is a spiritual sacrifice.

c. our praise for His glory - Heb. 13:15-16 Here you have all three sacrifices named, doing good (that's offering your body), sharing (that's offering your possessions) and the third is offering praise and worship to God with our lips. We confess His Name before others in witnessing. That kind of praise and testimony is a spiritual sacrifice. But any priest, especially a royal priest, must be holy! When you backslide and sin, you don't just personally fail God, you mar the holy priesthood! God wants the world to look at us as those who approach God, those who get into His Presence, those who serve Him. And when suffering comes and you quit and give up on being holy, you blemish the whole thing, both before God and in the eyes of people.

III. We Are Members Of A Holy People (9-10) Every Jew had a strong understanding that he belonged to a particular people and all the rest of the world were Gentiles, non-Jews. There was only one small race of people on earth that God had chosen and he belonged to that people. But now God has temporarily set aside Israel as His people and is doing a new thing, calling out from among the Gentiles, those who were not a people to be a people for His Name. We are a people not identified by the color of our skin or the ancestry of our father, but by our common faith in Jesus Christ. God took all of us who believe, black and white and brown, Jew and Gentile alike, and made us who were not a people, the people of God. Now that indicates:

1. our position: we belong to God We are a people belonging to God, a people whom God has set apart, has marked off, from all other people on earth, a spiritual race of people whom He set apart to be His own and belong to Him. Now here's:

2. our privilege: we are chosen by God This phrase a chosen people is not looking at our individual chosenness and how special it is individually to belong to God. Just as Israel was a people that God selected and set apart from all the other nations on earth for a purpose, so now the Church of Jesus Christ is a chosen people, a people that God has selected, not only to belong to Him, but to serve His purpose. And what is it:

3. our purpose: to declare the praise of God The Church of Jesus Christ is to declare the praise of God to all the world, both by the testimony of what it says and by the way it acts! It is a holy nation, a holy people, a people that is to display the image and glory of a holy God to a sinful world. But when members of that holy people backslide and sin and throw in the towel on holiness, the whole people is affected and can't fully do its job of declaring the praise of God. A holy people with unholy members is no longer a holy people but a half-holy people!

What am I saying? There's more at stake here than your own Christian life and personal reward. You are part of God's grand design, His great universal plan to build a holy temple to dwell in, a holy priesthood to serve Him, and a holy people to declare His praises to the world. And when you quit and give up living holy, whether because you're suffering or not, it affects the whole. Perhaps I can sum it up with an illustration. In a certain mountain village in Europe several centuries ago, a nobleman wondered what legacy he should leave to his townspeople. Finally, he decided to build a church for a legacy. The complete plans for the church were kept secret. When the people gathered, they marveled at the church's beauty and completeness. Following many comments of praise, an astute observer inquired, "But where are the lamps?" Without answer, the nobleman pointed to some brackets in the wall; he then gave to each family a lamp to be carried to the worship service and hung on the wall. "Each time you are here, the area where you are seated will be lighted," the nobleman explained. "Each time you are not here, that area will be dark. Whenever you fail to come to church, some part of God's house will be dark." Listen, whenever you fail, some part of God's spiritual house, His Holy Temple, is dark, some part of His holy priesthood is blemished, some part of His holy people is silent in declaring His praises! You do make a difference. So make it!

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

2:11-17 - Our Submission As Citizens

At 2:11 we come to the second major division of 1 Peter. The first section had to do with our IDENTITY in suffering. We aren't just anybody who's suffering. We're believers in Jesus Christ. We have real advantages when we suffer, but we also have a real responsibility to continue growing in holiness while we suffer. That's what we've learned so far, but now Peter's going to talk about our ACTIONS in suffering. And those actions really boil down to one common action, SUBMISSION. That's what distinguishes us from the rest of the world. They say, "When the government gives you a hard time, fight!" "When your boss picks on you, fight!" "When your spouse treats you wrong, fight!" God says, "SUBMIT!" And the areas of our submission show in the outline of this section:

II. Our Actions In Suffering	2:11-3:22
1. our submission as citizens	11-17
2. our submission as servants	18-25
3. our submission as spouses	3:1-7
4. our submission to brothers	8-12
5. our submission to others	13-22

In every relationship that we have, we are to show submission. And Peter begins at the level of our relationship as citizens to the government which is over us. Now rest assured this was not nearly the academic type discussion for them that it may seem to be to us. We live in a country characterized by freedom. They lived under a very oppressive government. In fact, if you recall, these Christians lived in the path of a wave of persecution that had begun at the hand of the mad Roman Emperor, Nero, who blamed the Christians for the burning of Rome. For them, their relationship to the government was no light matter! They had already begun to suffer, to be accused, to be blamed, to be persecuted. How should they act? Well, before we can understand God's answer to that question, we have to understand:

I. God's Plan To Use Us In This World (11-12) Here's what God wants to do with us in this world. This is why we're here. There is a clear four step process, but it leads to a goal. You are here so that God can use you to save people! Here's how it works:

1. distinction: we are different from unbelievers God through our salvation has given us a new position or status. We don't belong to this world anymore. We're aliens and strangers, people that live in the same locality alongside of unsaved people, non-believers, but are distinct and separate from them! We are the people of God! So logically the next step is:

2. demonstration: we live differently They indulge the desires of their sinful nature. We abstain, literally, hold ourselves constantly back from those things. These Christians lived next door to people who regularly went to pagan temples and participated in religious prostitution, who sacrificed to pagan gods or abandoned children if unwanted, who cheated and lied and stole, who threw their sick into the streets to avoid catching the plague. So do you. But these folks abstained from those things; they demonstrated a difference. They were faithful to their wives and loved their children and were honest and cared for the sick. They demonstrated holy and pure lives. And that's what God wants us to do. In fact, He pleads with us to do it. The word urge literally means to beseech, to beg. This is what God really wants of His children. He says, "PLEASE live differently; demonstrate Me before the world!" And obviously there is:

3. observation: they see us They may be angry with us and accuse us, like Nero did the Christians or like the silver-smiths did over in Ephesus, because we're different. But they see our good deeds and our good lives, nevertheless. You can't argue with a life. Someone can be angry at you and call you every name in the book, but when he sees you nurse a sick neighbor or return the wallet you found with all the money still in it, he has to see it and it has to affect him. How can he argue with it? People are always watching us. And if we live right, we come to step four:

4. salvation: they are saved They come to glorify God and to trust in Christ, just like we do. Now, that's the plan. That's what God wants to do with us in this world. He wants to use us as demonstrator models for the salvation He's trying to give away. But SUBMISSION is:

II. Our Practice That Enables Us To Be Used (13-17) The average pagan being persecuted by his government would fight and resist and rebel, at least to the extent that he could get away with it, and certainly on the inside. But the Christian has the responsibility of submitting and here's:

1. the meaning of submission (13-14) The Greek word is a military term. It means to arrange yourself under the command of a leader. The sergeant comes out and says, "FALL IN!" and you recognize his authority over you, his right to command you, and you act accordingly and run to take your place in line. It is an attitude of the heart that says "Yes sir!" and so you see in the life:

a. its effect: willing obedience A Christian is to have a "Yes, Sir" attitude toward the government and therefore willingly obey the laws that are placed upon him. Every authority is, in the KJV, every ordinance of man. It's talking about the laws which the government dictates to us. We should not have to be forced into obeying by the fear of getting caught disobeying. We should willingly comply and obey. If the government says you should fill out a tax form and pay taxes, then you willingly do it in an honest fashion, not like those around who try to cheat and hide and cover up. You might be almost ready to say an "Amen" to that, but what if the government said, "Any Christian must pay an extra 10%!" Worse things have been done by governments to Christians. What if you have to suffer because of some law the government passes? Do you still submit? The answer is yes. Did you notice what Peter says in verse 13 about:

b. its extent: every human regulation Now that's a pretty sweeping statement and one we tend not to like! We'd like to ignore the ones we can get by with and save money on or the ones that seem stupid to us. But the Word says we are to submit:

(1) regardless of its maker Whether it's a law that comes down from the king himself as the supreme authority or one passed by the local governor. It doesn't matter whether it's a federal law made by congress and signed into law by the President or a local ordinance about the height of the grass in your yard. We are to submit to it regardless of which authority made it and:

(2) regardless of its wisdom Authorities have a purpose. They are supposed to encourage good and punish and prohibit evil. Sometimes it doesn't seem to work that way! Sometimes you wonder about the wisdom of a certain law. This gets to me, "Why do I have to go 25 mph. on this street. when all the other streets like it are 35? And why do I have to wear a seatbelt?" You say, "You mean it applies even to those kinds of laws?" Yes! Every means every. That's why we spend money and buy copyrighted licenses for our music instead of just using it. Every means every. And it gets pretty sticky sometimes and maybe we don't understand exactly what's required of us. But the point is that we willingly submit to the laws of our land, big or small! Why?

2. the reason for submission (15) Here it is point blank. It is not because we are afraid of the penalty. That's coercion. There's no merit in doing what you are forced to do. We do it because:

a. it is God's will Did you catch that? Almighty God, the Supreme Sergeant of the Universe says, "Fall in and obey the civil authorities." When I obey them, I am obeying God! That's exactly what Paul said in Rom. 13:2; when you resist the earthly authority, you resist God! And when you submit to it, you submit to Him! But why does God want me running around obeying a bunch of perhaps unfair or senseless rules, even laws that may cause me grief or difficulty? Because:

b. it serves God's purpose Remember what His purpose is? To demonstrate by our lives that He is real and bring people to salvation! Remember all those people who think Christians are a bunch of fakes and phonies and that God is a crutch. Where do you think they got that? Mostly from watching Christians somewhere! Imagine the cop who pulls me over doing 45 in that 25 zone and sees the business card in my wallet that says Reverend. I remember how embarrassed I was years ago when I got stopped on my motorcycle. But on the other hand, imagine what it does when the IRS audits a Christian and finds my books in order! Or when the township inspector comes by and finds everything done according to code. Remember they sought something to accuse Jesus of to the governor and couldn't find anything, except that He claimed to be the Christ! They sought something to accuse Daniel of to the king and couldn't find anything, except that he prayed! That has to make a difference. God has to be able to use that! So, let's sum it up. How do we practice submission?

3. the practice of submission Verse 16 tells us:

a. what it means (16) It means that we:

(1) live as people who have a choice We live, not as slaves do, forced to do what they don't want to do. We live as people who have spiritual light and understand right and wrong from God's perspective because Christ is in us. We live as people who have been set free from the need of the Old Testament law of ordinances. But we don't use that as an excuse to do wrong. We are to live as people who make a willing, conscious choice and that is to:

(2) live as people who choose to serve God We have chosen to become God's bondslaves and that willing service means living a life of submission for the Lord's sake. Verse 17 tells us:

b. how it applies (17) A submissive heart means I am submissive in every relationship that I have. It means that I give:

(1) to others: respect I value them and treat them that way.

(2) to brethren: love I see them as my spiritual family and give them that special family love Jesus commanded.

(3) to God: reverent fear I give Him my first and most complete obedience. I let nothing stop me from doing the things He tells me I must do, like Daniel did. And:

(4) to government: honor by obeying its laws willingly, so that God can use me to win others.

There is only one limit as you well know. Acts 5:29 tells me that when the government tells me to disobey God, then I must disobey the government and obey God. Someday I may have that problem. Right now, God tells me to obey the government. And how will I have the courage to obey God and disobey the government someday when the cost is very great, if I haven't submitted myself to God now by submitting myself to it? Genesius lived during the reign of the cruel Roman Emperor Diocletian who persecuted Christians severely. He was raised in a Christian family but had rejected Christ. He was an actor and one day was in the arena pantomiming a Christian baptism to entertain the Emperor. Suddenly he stopped and shouted, "I want to receive the grace of Christ that I may be born again. I want to be set free from the sins which have been my ruin." Then he turned to Diocletian, "Illustrious Emperor, believe me, Christ is the true King!" Diocletian became furious and ordered him ripped with claws, burned with torches, and beheaded. Just before his death he cried out, "There is no king except Christ whom I have seen and whom I worship. For Him I would die a thousand times. I am sorry for my sin and becoming so late a soldier of the true King." Genesius still honored the king and showed him no disrespect, but he put his true King in first place. If he and thousands like him could do it at the cost of their lives, can't we do it at the cost of our willing submission?

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

2:18-25 - Our Submission As Servants

We're talking in this portion of the book about our ACTIONS in suffering and we saw last time that the key word that sums up how God wants us to act in suffering is SUBMISSION. And that submission extends to every relationship we have and every area of our lives. Verses 13-17 we recognize as applying to us because we know we have to submit to the government over us. But when you come to verse 18 and see the word slaves or servants, your natural inclination is to say, "That's irrelevant; it's not talking about me; slavery doesn't exist anymore". So, we mentally skip over to 3:1 and say, "Wives, submit to your husbands...now there's something worth reading!" Well, hold it a moment and let's look closer. Many, many of the early Christians were slaves or servants. The whole ancient world was saturated with the practice of slavery, but our image of slavery is that of American black slavery and the civil war. There was that kind of chattel slavery or bondslavery. Slaves were taken in war and bought and sold at auction and killed at will in the Roman Empire. But there were also other varieties of servitude. A person could be a servant voluntarily as Elisha was Elijah's servant for many years. A person could become a servant because he owed money and couldn't pay and so became the lender's servant for a period of time to work off the debt. Among the Jews, servants were to be released every seven years and treated like hired hands. I assume a person could actually be a servant as a job and be compensated for it by having his room and board provided. Some servitude is not even actual, but only in point of fact, as in Prov. 22:7, The borrower is servant to the lender. A debt of allegiance and submission is owed because of the monetary debt. So you see, there are all kinds of ways to be a slave or a servant. And I believe that most of us fit into one of them! So verse 18 is really:

I. Our Command of Submission to Masters (18) The language here is very interesting. First, let's look at:

1. the persons involved The one person is a:

a. slave: the servant in the house The Greek has half a dozen words for servants. The common one is doulos, which means a bondslave, one who is owned by the master, who is bound to him. The word here is oiketes, which comes from oikos (house) and means a domestic or household servant. Compare Lk. 16:13. Now you can understand this verse better. Can you imagine a household servant who is responsible for cooking and cleaning trying to please two different lady masters in the same house? Now of course, a household servant could be a bondservant, but he could also fit one of the other categories I mentioned. The key thought is that he cares for somebody else's house. Then there is the:

b. master: the owner of the house The Greek also has several words for master, but the one here is despotes (from which we get despot) and it means the one with absolute control and ownership. So the contrast here is not so much between a bound person and a free person, as it is between one who is the owner and controller of something and the one who owes him a debt of service for whatever reason. Now can you see that in that sense, though you are not a slave, there are people to whom you are a servant! At work you are a servant, you owe a debt of service by reason of your employment and pay to the owner of the business or those who represent him who are over you. They own; you serve them. At school, young people, you are a servant. The law says you are bound to be in school and the teachers are the representatives placed in charge over you. And though it is for your benefit, you owe them the service of being obedient and doing what they expect of you. You see, the principles in this verse apply to your relationship with anyone who is put in charge of you. For the prisoner, it's the prison guard. For the child, it's the teacher or the parent. For the employee, it's the boss. For the citizen, it's the judge and the policeman. We've all got masters and we're all servants. So, how are we to act in these relationships? Here's:

2. the process involved

a. the action: you obey your master The word submit, I told you last time, means to arrange yourself under the command of a superior, that is, to obey. Compare Eph. 6:5-8. Notice what Paul commands servants and even children in verse 1, "OBEY." When somebody in charge over us tells us to do something, we are to obey. Kids, when the teacher says, "Do this assignment", God wants you to do it! When your parents say, "Do this task", God wants you to do it. When your boss says, "Do this", God wants you to do it. It's not a matter of whether you feel like it or want to do it or whether you'll enjoy doing it or not. In this sense you are a servant and the action God wants you to take is obedience! But that's not all. Notice:

b. the attitude: you do it with genuine respect You do it with all respect or fear. That doesn't mean you do it because you're afraid of your teacher or your boss and you're going to get disciplined if you don't. That's not to be our motive. It means we obey with reverential respect for their authority and position. You don't walk away to do what you're told muttering under your breath, "Why that ignorant so and so!" You do it with sincerity of heart, Ephesians says. You do it thinking, "They're the boss and I may not like it, but it's my job to do it." You don't do it only when they're watching, but even when you're out of their sight! Just think how wonderful it would be if your teens had this attitude about cleaning up their rooms when they're told! Now, that's fine if the master is kind and considerate and reasonable. But what about when the demands are unreasonable or foolish. Look at:

c. the extent: regardless of your treatment Harsh is literally bent or curved. Some masters are bent! They're crooked. Some bosses treat you unfairly. They demand things you can't produce. Some of the masters in those early days beat their slaves when they got drunk or were mean to them and treated them like dirt. Some employers are like that too. Some teachers and parents are that way too. But God says we are to submit regardless, to obey in the same attitude, regardless of the character of the master! Now, of course, as an employee here, you have the perfect right to quit the job and get another one. That's not true for our brethren in Russia or China where jobs are assigned! But as long as you're in the job, you are to submit with a sincere heart no matter what you are treated like. How in the world can you do that? Eph. 2:6-7 has:

d. the key: you are serving the Lord! You're not doing this for the person; you're doing it for the Lord. Your allegiance goes one level higher up. You're obeying this harsh master who's making you suffer because this is what God says to do. This is the will of God! And in obeying them, you're obeying Him. If you get hold of that, it will transform your everyday life. "I work for God; I go to school for God; I serve for God; I'm doing this for God!" Now obviously, this kind of submission runs contrary to our human instincts and our flesh. We don't like the idea of having to submit, especially when the person we submit to is harsh to us and treats us wrongly. So, Peter goes on to give:

II. Our Reasons for Submission to Masters There are two very powerful reasons that we do it. First:

1. the commendation of God (19-20) We'll be rewarded for it someday. Now let me be clear that there are two factors involved in that reward:

a. God commends us for suffering unjustly If you lie to a teacher and get suspended for it or get disciplined and have to suffer, there's no reward for that. If you're a sloppy employee and you mess something up and it's your fault, and you catch difficult consequences for it, there's no reward for that. The slave who steals from his master and gets beaten deserves no reward or pity. I'm afraid that all too often, some of us think we're doing a great job for our company or in school and we don't see ourselves clearly and we're really not and we think we're suffering unfairly when the consequences catch up, however, we're really only getting what we deserve. There must be injustice. The master must be returning evil for good. You must be suffering genuine injustice in order to be commended.

b. God commends us for endurance You must bear up under the injustice and not throw away your testimony and your sincere heart and start to hate that person and to lose that respect we spoke of earlier. But when you are suffering unjustly at the hand of a despot and you maintain your sincere genuine obedience, then there are two results:

c. suffering unjustly displays the power of God Verse 19 literally says, For it is a grace! when you suffer this way. It's not natural. It is an act of the grace of God. It displays the power of God. Actually, God uses your behavior to display Himself to that master and to others! Remember, that's what God is doing with you in this world. He uses the submission of a citizen to impact the ungodly, He uses the submission of a wife to win her ungodly husband, and He uses the submission of a servant to win, not only his ungodly master, but to win those who are watching, who say, "Man, that guy has something I need!" And so:

d. suffering unjustly deserves the praise of God He'll say "Well done!" We'll be commended for obeying Him and being used of Him in His plan. And if we want to hear that, we'll submit. However, there's a second big reason to submit, which is:

2. the example of Christ (21-25) You know, you might be tempted to think, "It isn't fair that God should expect me to endure this unjust suffering; how can He require that of me?" Well, remember:

a. He endured suffering with submission (21-23) Is. 53:9 says that Christ was perfectly innocent, absolutely without sin and guilt. He never deserved one iota of the mocking and the scourging and the crucifixion He endured yet:

(1) He did not retaliate against His judges Not only did He not call those ten legions of angels to slay them, but He didn't retaliate by throwing insults back. He didn't threaten them with judgment to come. He suffered submissively, in silence. Why?

(2) He entrusted Himself to the true Judge He knew that it was the Father who had put those men in authority and this was His will. So, He simply submitted and trusted the Father to work it all out in the end and He did! And we're to follow His example. But there's one more thing to remember:

b. He endured that suffering to save us (24-25) He submitted to the unjust treatment and bore our sins in His own body on the tree so that God could use Him to save us from our sins. We were like sheep going astray. We were lost, headed in the other direction from God. But because He humbled Himself and became obedient unto the death of the cross, we are now turned to God and made righteous. We were sick with the deadly disease of sin, but because He gave His back to the smiters for us, by His stripes we are healed and made every whit whole!

My friend, if the Lord Jesus was willing to submit and endure unjust suffering at the hands of those over Him for you, aren't you willing to do the same for Him?

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

3:1-7 - Our Submission As Spouses

We once had a little plaque in our kitchen which somebody gave us when we got married that said, "Marriage has a ring to it: an engagement ring, a wedding ring, and suffer-ring". Now that's meant to be a tongue-in-cheek saying. Where a husband and wife are both walking with the Lord there should be what we call "marital bliss". Yet in so many marriages that statement is much truer than it was intended to be. There is suffering. Sometimes one of the partners is not saved or is not walking with the Lord and the other one suffers. Sometimes even though both are believers there are flaws in their lives which they cannot see which cause the other suffering or great pressures come into the marriage through ill health or finances and they cause real tensions between husband and wife and there is suffering. Now, how will we react to suffering in this part of our lives? The world has some answers. It says, "Insist on your rights, insist on getting your needs met; after all, you are important and your #1 responsibility is to care for yourself, so if the situation becomes intolerable or if the spouse refuses to change, then get a divorce! There are better fish in the sea!" But that's not God's way. God says there is one key thing that we must practice when suffering comes into any relationship we have, whether it's with the government over us or with our boss at work or with our spouse at home, SUBMISSION. It's against human nature; it doesn't seem logical and it's painful, but God says it works. When you submit, you triumph over suffering. Let's begin with:

I. Our Submission As Wives (1-6) Men, your turn is coming so I'd hold back on yelling "Amen" at what we're going to study here. But the first thing we need to understand is:

1. the meaning of submission (1a) There's a little phrase that we often overlook here, in the same way. In what same way? The phrase looks back to chapter 2. In the same way that a we submit to the government over us, in the same way that we submit to the master or boss who is over us, that's how a wife is to submit to the authority and leadership of her husband. And how is that?

a. the action of submission: obedience The word submit is the same word as in those cases and means to arrange yourself under the command or authority of a person in authority. And that is a long way of saying, to obey! Verse 6 leaves little doubt of the meaning. Wives are to be like Sarah who OBEYED her husband. The Greek word means "to hear under", to hear what is being said and regard yourself as being under it and do it. It is the same word used in Eph. 6:1, Children obey your parents. That used to be in the marriage vow; we'd promise to "love, honor, and obey," but it didn't sound so good so we took it out. Yet that is the bottom line. Submission for the wife means, in the final analysis, to do what her husband says, as long as he is not directly commanding her to disobey God. Now before you start throwing hymnbooks, let me explain that if the husband is submitting the way he's supposed to down in verse 7, that won't be any burden at all. There will be communication and understanding and caring and sensitivity. But that will not always be the case. Yet even when it is not, I should say, especially when it is not and life is difficult, God's design, plan, and desire is still for you to willingly submit to your husband! Now notice:

b. the direction of submission: your own husband There is no chauvinism here, no implication that women are somehow inferior, no command that all women are supposed to submit to all men. He's talking about family structure and within that family structure, God has designated the husband as the leader and given him the position of authority in the home. The wife is to recognize that authority as coming from God and to submit herself to it in the same way that we all do unto the Lord, Ephesians 5 says! Now why? What is:

2. the purpose of submission (1b) The words do not believe are literally, are not persuaded. In many of these early church families, just as today, when the Gospel first came to town, the wife was the first to respond and receive Christ. And there were many husbands then, as now, who just refused to be persuaded by words. They needed more. And what will persuade them is not arguing or trying to chide them into believing. It is watching the profound change and difference in the person they live with every day, who doesn't resist and rebel against them, but who submits to their leadership even when they know she doesn't agree! If you're willing to pay the price of submitting, God stands ready to use your life as a tool to win your husband to Christ. Of course, this is not a moneyback guarantee nor is there a time limit on when it will happen, but unless you are willing to submit, God can't even use you and you become a hindrance to what He is trying to do in your husband's life. Now Peter goes on to further explain:

3. the process of submission (2-4) In verse 2 you'll find:

a. what God wants you to display Two things:

(1) purity for your husband The Greek word here means free from contamination. Sometimes it is used as a general word for a pure life or one that is free from sin. But in several places, it seems to have a more specific meaning. For example, 1 Tim. 5:2 says, Treat younger women as sisters with absolute purity, but compare 2 Cor. 11:2, ...that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ. Here the KJV word chaste spells out the meaning, pure from the contamination of another man, given only to one husband. Sure, God wants you to live a holy life before your husband, but more particularly He wants you to be chaste, to display a particular loyalty to your husband alone, with no desire for anyone else. Now let me tell you, in the world they lived in, that would stick out! Sexual promiscuity was rampant. Pagan idolatrous worship at the idol's temple involved sex for both men and women! For a woman to be chaste and devoted to one husband was to stick out of the crowd. That sounds like today! God wants you to display to your husband that your faith has made you different! That it has made you committed to him. And secondly, He wants you to display:

(2) reverence toward your husband, respect for his position as the leader in your home, not trying to run and control him and manipulate his life, but being ready to follow him and support him and be the complement that God created you to be. Women's liberation is no new thing either. It was around in Peter and Paul's day. But God wants you to display to your husband that your faith has made you different, that it has given you respect and reverence for him, whether he deserves it or not! Consequently, here's:

b. what God wants you to be characterized by

(1) NOT by mere external beauty (3) You know, some have read this verse to mean Christian women are supposed to look ugly. But it doesn't say that. These things should not be your adornment, literally your kosmos, your world. You know women as well as I do who live for their physical beauty. They spend hours in doing their hair and putting on their face and have an outfit for every hour of the day. Why? Because they want their husbands to think they're beautiful? Probably to some degree, but more likely because they want everybody to think that; they want any man (or woman) who looks at them to say, "Now there's a beautiful woman". But that's not what God wants you to be known for. He wants you to be characterized:

(2) by an internal submissive attitude (4) That other beauty will fade, believe me. But true beauty is a woman who is loyal and submits to her husband with:

- gentleness, that is, without resistance, without belligerence and:

- quietness, that is, without disturbance, without complaint. That beauty will never fade away and it will tend to draw your husband to the Lord. We don't have time to look at it, but next you have:

4. the example of submission (5-6) If Sarah and a host of others had adopted modern US principles instead of God's, they wouldn't be in the Bible and probably neither would their husbands. Sarah followed her husband away from home and family across the desert to an unknown land to live in a tent all her life wandering about and never having children. Maybe that's why God made her the mother of the nation of Israel. Anyway, on to the men:

II. Our Submission As Husbands (7) Some lady must be thinking, "How come the women get six verses and all that time and the men only get one?" Well, I know a whole lot more women who are suffering at the hands of their unsaved or ungodly or hard to live with husbands and need encouragement, than I do men who are suffering because of their wives. So did Peter. That explains it! Well, first notice, men, that you too get the words in the same way. In the same way that your wife has to submit and order her life in her proper role toward you, you too have to submit by doing the same. If you want to see it in black and white, look at:

1. the command of submission - Eph. 5:21 Submission is mutual. Men you are to submit just as much as your wife is. For her, verse 22 says her submission means to submit herself to obey your leadership as she does the Lord. For you, verse 24 says submission is to love her and sacrifice for her as the Lord did for you! Peter explains for us what that means:

2. the qualities of submission If you are submitting to your wife in the way God intends, then three qualities will be evident:

a. personal understanding of your wife Literally, this verse says, live with your wives according to knowledge. Not book knowledge about marriage but personal knowledge about your individual wife. Do you know the pressures and stresses your wife lives under? Are you aware of how she feels about you and your life together or do you just plod blindly on expecting her to tag along? Have you tried to understand what it's like to be in her shoes, to maybe work all day and then have to come home and do the housework at night or to be caring for small children all day long every day with no time away from them? Listen, I know there are men (and more than 1 or 2) sitting here right now listening to me that have no idea of the struggles you are putting your wife through, yet it's painfully obvious to other people. It's your responsibility to learn to understand her. And even if she's being rebellious and causing you grief and pain and suffering in your life, it's still your responsibility. You'll never win her to the Lord or to godly behavior as a Christian, until you start to live with her in understanding. Then you must have:

b. sacrificial caring for your wife They are the weaker partner. Now please be assured that he's not talking about inferiority or inability to achieve great things. He's saying that women have been created with a different physical ability and emotional makeup than men. And while in some particular case the wife may actually be physically stronger than her particular husband or emotionally stronger, by and large, husbands, we have to be conscious of our wife's physical and emotional limitations. They are not the same as ours. We cannot expect her to endure what we may be able to endure in the same stoic way. And so, we have to respect that and care enough to sacrifice, to limit ourselves, to lay down things that we enjoy or feel we have a right to sometimes, to go the extra mile for them. And that affects the whole of our life, whether it be in helping with the dishes or the housework or caring for children and giving them free time. Christ gave Himself up for the Church because He loved us and that's the way we are to submit to our wives, by loving them enough to make personal sacrifices for them.

c. spiritual recognition of your wife You are heirs together of the grace of life. Men, even though you have been given positional authority in the home, in every sense your wife is your equal, your partner, your colleague in the adventure of life. You may make more money, know more technical information, or whatever, but you are still both equally necessary to that one joint life that God has welded you into. And that is especially true in the spiritual realm. You're not going anywhere spiritually without your wife. You may be the one who holds an office in the church or carries a big responsibility or preaches or plays the lead and maybe all she does in your mind is take a turn in the nursery, but before God, you are spiritual equals. And if your hearts (not your heads) are not in a spiritually equal place in your Christian growth, then you need to nourish and cherish her spiritually and bring her along with you. Because without it, look what happens in the end of the verse:

3. the effect of submission Your prayers are hindered without it. If you're not submitting to your wife by understanding her and sacrificing to meet her needs and treating her as a vital part of your spiritual life, then some of your prayers aren't making it through. They're cut off, hindered. Your spiritual growth is stunted. You can't move forward until you deal with that. But when you do, when you truly submit to your wife by loving her as Christ loved the church, then you're free to move ahead, to grow together and it's a wonderful thing.

God's command for you, whether husband or wife is to submit. Sure that may mean some suffering on your part, some giving up, some difficulty, but I'll tell you what, if you go the other way, if you try to force her into submission and thrust your authority upon her and make her life miserable in her eyes, or if you try to rebel against him and show him what a jerk he is, not only are you disobeying God, but in the long run you yourself will be far more miserable and will be missing out on the joy of the greatest human relationship God ever invented.

3:8-12 - Our Submission To Brothers

We've been seeing in 1 Peter that God wants every relationship in our lives to be characterized by SUBMISSION, even when it brings suffering. As citizens, we are to submit to the government and the laws over us, fair or not. As servants, we are to submit to those in authority over us, our "bosses", whether treated justly or unjustly. As husbands and wives, we are to submit to each other, whether our partner is godly or not. But Eph. 5:21 is not limited only to husbands and wives. It says, Submit to one another out of reverence for Christ. That includes husbands and wives, to be sure, but it's talking about the whole church! It is one of the many "one-another commands" Jesus gave to His church. As believers, brothers and sisters in Christ, we are all to submit ourselves to each other, to arrange our lives to undertake the proper responsibilities we have toward our brothers and sisters in Christ. And sometimes that's not easy. There's a lot of suffering that goes on within the church, suffering that comes to us at the hands of other believers, harsh words, hurt feelings, uncaring attitudes and actions, anger, bitterness, resentment, even shouting and accusations and division. Some of you know what I'm talking about because you've lived through it! All of that kind of suffering could be avoided if we would learn to submit to one another. But even if another believer is causing us suffering, we are still to submit ourselves, regardless. Now Peter spells out for us what submission to one another means. Here is:

I. The Behavior You Should Display (8-9a) There are six things that should characterize all your relationships with other believers and I've tried to give each one a clear definition:

1. unity: sharing each other's purpose He says literally, be same-minded or like-minded. Now some Christians have an idea of like-mindedness that goes like this, "A good Christian believes everything that I believe down to the minutest details or he is in some stage of apostasy". The object of this thinking is uniformity. We dress the same, hold the same number of worship services each week, organize the same way, use the same version of the Bible, condemn the exact same things, and do everything the same way. So, we are all clones of each other and have unity and anybody who claims to be a Christian and deviates a bit is out to lunch! Believe me, that is not the kind of unity that Jesus prayed for in John 17! Neither is the kind of unity that the liberals talk about where we just forget everything that's important and join up in one big organization. There are Christian fundamentals that are key to our faith which we can never put aside and we can never have unity with anyone who does not hold them. But the unity we're to have is something else again. It is a unity of purpose, a unity of spirit and heart. If two believers both love the Lord Jesus and have as their purpose to truly serve Him in the best way they know how, then here's:

- the point: set aside minor differences Living in harmony or unity means being willing to put aside the small things that you differ on for the sake of getting on with serving the Lord together and not criticizing or looking down on the other person for differing with you! For example, my Presbyterian brothers and I have a differing view of predestination and election. But we both love the Lord and love each other and want to see people come to Christ. So I don't beat on 5 point Calvinists from the pulpit and they shouldn't agitate other people trying to win them away from my position. That's our submission to each other. And it doesn't have to be over doctrine. It could be over money or property or policy. We must adopt an attitude that will not allow small things, minor things to come between and divide us. For example, George Whitefield and John Wesley were two giants of the faith from the 1700's. Both were great preachers and won thousands to Christ. They began their ministries together, but later Wesley developed and grew into "Methodistic doctrine," while Whitefield was a staunch Calvinist. At length they could not work together any more. But when Wesley attended George Whitefield's memorial service, a woman asked him, "Do you expect to see dear Dr. Whitefield in heaven?" He replied, "No". She said "I was afraid you would say that," but Wesley quickly responded, "Do not misunderstand me. George Whitefield will be so near the throne of God, that men like me will never even get a glimpse of him!" There was unity!

2. sympathy: feeling each other's feelings The word sympathy means "to suffer with". If you want to know what it means look at Heb. 4:15. Jesus stood where we stand. He was tempted like we are. He felt our feelings. And that hasn't changed now that He is in glory. When He sees us going through something, He knows how we feel and feels it with us! And that's how it is to be for us. When the little toe suffers, the hand is supposed to suffer with it, to feel what it feels!

- the point: don't become callous It's so easy to do. We're so bombarded by bad news that 200 people can die in an airplane crash and we turn off the set and ask, "What's for supper?" And we can get like that toward each other. Imagine the person who's just had a great thing happen, an answer to prayer, or leading someone to Christ, and they come to you and all they get is a fleeting, "That's nice". Or they have some serious problem and are upset and hurting and you give them a quick, "That's too bad, I'll pray for you." Paul said, Rejoice with those who rejoice and weep with those who weep! One of the greatest dangers in my life is that I so easily get callous, stop feeling, wrap myself up in my own little world and forget how the other person is feeling and therefore don't give them the support they need. So, submitting, in this sense, is putting the feelings of the other ahead of my own.

3. love: affection and fondness for each other The word here is not agape but philadelphia. Literally, it says, Be brethren who are loving, who display the same kind of affection and fondness toward each other that physical brothers would. Don't you need that from other Christians once in a while? There are some days I just need a word of encouragement, a kind word, a hug, or someone to listen to me a bit. I need to know that a brother or sister loves me and cares about me. But those are the very things I don't feel like giving to others when I'm hurting! My feeling is often, "Let me alone; don't bother me." When we're hurting, we're often not very loving, hence:

- the point: don't withdraw from the brethren Don't pull back and stay home and hide out. People need your love. Somebody needs your caring for them as much as you need somebody to care for you. Submission means putting the need of the other to experience your caring ahead of whatever needs you may have.

4. compassion: caring about each other's problems The word is literally tenderhearted and it goes one step beyond sympathy. Sympathy means you understand and feel what that person is going through. Compassion takes it a step further and means you care that they are going through it and want to do whatever you can to help. There is a great danger that when someone is suffering you can feel bad and do nothing. But there's an even greater danger that when YOU are suffering, you can feel bad for someone else and do nothing, because you're wrapped up in your problem, thus:

- the point: minister to others as they or you suffer Suffering does not excuse you from ministering to others. Having your own problems does not somehow remove the responsibility of helping others with theirs. Submitting means putting the problems of the other ahead of my own.

5. humility: valuing each other above self Here's the real key to submitting to one another, you regard the other as of greater value, of more importance:

- the point: prioritize your life, putting others first Suffering is a self-centering thing. It pressures you to think constantly and only about yourself. But submitting means you meet the other's needs before your own. You help them before you worry about getting your own needs met. Submission means putting the well-being of the other ahead of my own. Now all these five things are fine under normal conditions. Submitting is easy then, as long as they are in turn submitting and doing the same to you, but what about when a brother or sister wrongs you? Verse 9 adds a sixth characteristic of submission:

6. non-retaliation: forgiving each other's wrongs Everything that has been built into you has taught you to retaliate. When somebody insults or criticizes or castigates you, you want to respond in kind, even if that person is a brother in Christ! When they take advantage of you or slight you or break their promise to you, you want to retaliate. But God's plan is just the opposite:

- the point: return good for evil Their wrongdoing does not constitute license for you to do wrong toward them. Whether or not they have done you wrong, you are to be a blessing to them, to speak well to them, to love them, sympathize with them, help them, and value them! That means forgiving them! It means putting the anger and hurt aside and forgiving them as God for Christ's sake has forgiven you! Now when you do these things, when you submit your life to your brothers and sisters in Christ like this, God makes you a promise:

II. The Blessing You Shall Inherit (9b-12) The first thing we must do is to identify:

1. what the blessing is Peter is quoting here from Psalm 34. First look at the inscription. Remember that time in David's life when he was first fleeing from Saul and he got the brilliant idea to go Abimelech, one of the Philistine kings, to seek refuge, but he forgot that the Philistines still remembered that David had slain his ten thousands? And as he was standing there, all of a sudden realizing that his life was in danger, he must have silently cried out to God and God's answer came back, "Pretend you're insane!" and Abimelech believed the act and drove him away safely! Now read Ps. 34:6-7, 11-19 The blessing David is talking about is not general; it is very specific. When we are in trouble or suffering, we have:

a. God's attention to our cry God's ears stand wide open, ready to hear us. He is close to those with a broken heart who sorrow and those with a crushed spirit. We know we have His attention and His heart. HE feels our feelings; HE cares about us; HE has compassion on us in our problem and so we have:

b. God's assistance in our condition A righteous man MAY have many troubles. God never guarantees to spare us from that. But out of them all, the Lord will deliver him! One way or the other! God will assist you and help you and somehow get you through the trouble and the suffering. But there are some prerequisites:

2. the qualifications summarized (10-11) They are simple:

a. a controlled tongue That means you must be submitting to others in what you say to them and about them, no matter what they say to or about you.

b. a consecrated life That means you must be submitting to others in how you live, doing them always good and never evil, no matter what they do to you.

c. a commitment to peace with others That means you must be submitting to others by putting them first, by setting aside differences, doing whatever is necessary to bring about a peaceful and harmonious relationship.

If we submit to one another, God will hear us. If we don't, if we turn a deaf ear toward them and toward how God says we should act toward them, then He will turn a deaf ear toward us! The thing that keeps us from submitting to others is that gnawing fear we have that if we put others first and take care of them, then who will take care of us? Queen Elizabeth once sent an ambassador far away on important and difficult business. He objected, saying to the queen, "But what will become of my business and my family?" The queen replied, "You take care of my business and I will take care of yours." If you take care of God's business and put Him first, He has promised to take care of yours!

3:13-22 - Our Submission To Others

Most of the suffering that comes to us in a deliberate fashion comes at the hands of others, of those outside the Christian faith. Sure, family members can put us through torture by their behavior, but most times they are not doing it deliberately to cause us suffering. Sure, other believers can really hurt us, but if you're involved in a spiritually growing church fellowship that should be pretty well minimized. So, the question Peter is considering here is how we relate to those others, those outsiders, especially when they are causing us suffering by their actions and attitudes toward us. Peter's answer is the same one that he has given us concerning all the other relationships in our lives. Submit to the government, submit to your boss, submit to your spouse, submit to your brothers and sisters in Christ, and now he says SUBMIT to others. Now in verses 13-17 you have:

I. Our Instruction to Submit to Others (13-17) While the word submit is not used directly, it is clear that we are to order our lives in a particular way toward those outside the faith. First, let's consider:

1. the meaning of our submission Submitting to others means that there are two specific things that God wants you to give to other people. The first is:

a. a ready testimony of Christ on your lips (15) God doesn't say that every Christian has to become a public evangelist, to stand up on a street corner and gather an audience, though He does call some to do that. He doesn't say that everyone has to go out knocking on doors and witnessing to strangers, though He does call some to do that. But He does say that every believer, no matter who you are, needs to be always ready, constantly prepared, to give an answer when somebody asks you! You see, God expects that if you're living for Him, your lifestyle will be significantly different from the non-Christians about you. There will be things they do all the time that you never do. There will be ways they talk all the time that you never do. There will be ways they react to people and problems that you never do. 4:4 says they will think it strange that you're not willing to hurry after them into sin. And some of them will ask you about it. Some of them will gather that you're a Christian and they will ask you how you can live like that, how you can act like you do, why you won't join them. And God says you need to be perched like a hawk watching for a mouse, ready and prepared to jump on that opportunity and give an answer. Now that word answer is significant. It is the Greek word from which we get our word apology and literally means a verbal defense. That doesn't mean an argument! It means that you tell them the reason why you believe in Jesus Christ, why you've given your life to Him as Lord and Master and why you're willing to do anything He says. You're ready to tell them what Jesus did for you, what a difference He's made in your life and how He sacrificed Himself for you. And did you notice how Peter said you're to do it? With gentleness and respect. Not with condemnation and criticism and telling them they'll die and rot in hell, not with a sense of arrogance and being better than they are, but humbly and with genuine respect for them as a person that Jesus loves and died for as well as you! There is no place for obnoxiousness in witnessing! But that's not usually our problem. Ours is exactly the opposite. So many times, we let that opportunity go by with our lips zipped. We let that person go without hearing. We're not willing to submit ourselves to that person enough to bare our soul and share the most important thing in our lives for some reason! Some people say, "But I'm a silent witness; I do things that show my faith". That's good and should be so, but they won't know why you do them unless you have a ready testimony to share. God says you must be ready, so if you're not, then do what it takes to get that way! But that does bring us to the second thing God wants you to give to others:

b. a real display of Christ in your life (16) Your words must be consistently matched by your deeds in the way you live. If they aren't, people will notice it. If they don't see any difference in you in the first place, they'll never ask. If you tell them and they see any hypocrisy in you, you can be sure they'll let you know. You must live so that you have a clear conscience before God. Then, if outsiders want to accuse you of something or pin something on you or paint you in an unfair light because your lifestyle makes them uncomfortable, so be it. Just don't give them an opportunity to have a real accusation! You see, these two things are a powerful combination, a ready testimony and a godly life. God can use those things to bring others to Himself. You can be a tool of God by submitting to others in these two things. But what about when it does the opposite. Well, consider:

2. the manner of our submission (13-14, 17) There are two things that God expects. Our submission must be:

a. continuing in spite of suffering A godly life should lead to praise and being liked, but it may not. Some people may mock you for it, may try to embarrass you for it, may consider it a challenge to tempt you to fall, or even hate you for it. Jesus told us to expect that. However, we are not to return evil for evil and retaliate. We are to continue to display a godly life toward that person. We are not to fear the things they fear and would try to use on us, even if it is the threat of death! We are to fear displeasing our Heavenly Father and continue on, even if it brings us suffering. But further, we must do it:

b. conscious of our blessing Did you see that in there? If you suffer for what is right, you are blessed! Why? The answer is in verse 15. You have a future hope that they know nothing of and cannot share in. You'll be in heaven with the Lord. They can't do one thing that can hurt your soul or take you away from the Lord. And the fact that you are suffering for doing good simply confirms again to you that you really are saved! That hope really IS in you. It is so strong and real that suffering cannot shake it. You are truly blessed, no matter if life is the pits! Now to encourage us along the way, Peter moves on to give us:

II. Our Examples of Submission to Others (18-22) And the first one, as you might expect, is:

1. the example of Christ (18, 22) Verse 18 is one of the shortest but fullest explanations in the New Testament of the meaning of what Christ did on the cross. I could preach a whole sermon on it. Every word is packed with meaning. It has the purpose, the permanence, the substitution, and the effect of the cross in one sentence. But we don't want to lose sight of why it's here. His point about Jesus is that:

a. He suffered persecution to save sinners He was perfectly righteous; He lived the most godly life ever lived. He lived out what He expects of us. And when they opposed and persecuted Him, He did not retaliate, but submitted. In fact, in the body, they did the worst thing they could to Him; they did what every man fears. They put Him to death. Why did He do it? So God could save us by Him! And that's what He wants of us. He wants us to give out a ready testimony and a godly life, even under persecution, so He can use us to save people. But look:

b. He was rewarded with glorification The Holy Spirit raised Him from the dead and verse 22 continues the story. He is now gone into glory and seated at the Father's right hand forever and ever with the whole universe in submission to Him. And guess who's going to sit beside Him and reign with Him!! So what if they kill the body! After that, they have no more they can do, but we'll live in glory. So what if they mock and make trouble. We'll be glorified!

2. the example of Noah (19-20) Before we dive in, let me say that this is one of the more difficult passages in the word of God to understand and that good men have spent ages of time and volumes of paper arguing over these next three verses. So, if you don't like my explanation of them, somebody else will give you a better one, but this is the only one I know of that gives any reason for it being in the midst of a passage on witnessing. If you think you've got it bad sometimes, think about Noah:

a. he preached while the ark was being built In 2 Pet. 2:5 Peter specifically says Noah was a preacher of righteousness. God gave him 120 years advance notice of the flood and the judgment to come on the ungodly. That gave him time to build the ark and to tell all his neighbors about God and His holiness and the judgment to come. Imagine the guff he must have taken for building a boat on dry land! Imagine how people mocked and scoffed at the thought of a flood that would cover the mountains; how they must have picked on him! You see the:

b. people were not persuaded, perished, and are now in prison The word disobedient literally means "refused to be persuaded". They wouldn't listen during those years the ark was in building, not until it had rained 5 or 10 days! Then it was too late. What they feared most, death, came upon them and they perished, every one, and are now in the prison of hades or hell awaiting the final torment of the Lake of Fire. But what about Noah?

c. he and his family were delivered The same water that destroyed them buoyed Noah and his family up in the ark and saved their lives. You see, Noah had a sure future hope that the ungodly didn't have and so he was willing to be used of God in ministry to others even if it meant suffering at their hands! And now comes:

3. the application of baptism (21) Of course, you should be asking, "What in the world does baptism have to do with all this?" That flood water saved Noah and that water is a symbol of the water of baptism that "saves" you. Before you shout "heresy," let me think with you a moment. The water didn't actually save Noah's life, did it? No, God did. And the water of baptism doesn't save your soul. Peter says that plainly. Dirt from the body is literally, the filth of the flesh. I think he's talking about our sins here. Baptism doesn't wash away those filthy sins that result from our flesh, our old nature. It's only a symbol, something God uses for a purpose in our lives.

a. we have a good conscience toward God through the resurrection of Christ Baptism is an appeal made by an already good conscience. How do we get that? The words it saves you in the NIV are NOT in the Greek, so cross them out. The word by here means "on the basis of" or "on the ground of". Of what? Of the Resurrection of Christ. Rom. 4:24-25 tells us that Christ died for our sins and rose for our justification. His resurrection is the PROOF that we are forgiven and justified. When we believe in our hearts that Christ died for us and that He rose the third day, we are saved; we have a clear conscience and can approach God and so:

b. we confessed that openly by baptism Things have changed a bit for us. In those days baptism was done openly and in public down at the riverbank or the lake. And most of those coming to Christ were adults. So, to be baptized meant that you were consciously declaring before the whole town that you were no longer a worshipper of idols who practiced the lifestyle that went with them; you were a Christian and you would practice the lifestyle laid down by Jesus Christ your Lord and Master. Now we do it inside and nobody else seems to care too much, but it should still mean the same thing to us. "I've given my life to Jesus Christ from here on. I'm renouncing the sinful lifestyle of the world. I belong to Jesus Christ because He saved me and I want everyone to know it!" And that's what got them in trouble, what got them persecuted and hated. But to us, baptism means:

c. we are assured of our deliverance Your baptism is a sign that you are delivered. The fact that you were baptized says that you are confident that you belong to Jesus Christ. No matter what they may do to you, you can submit to others; you can bear a testimony to them and live an uncompromised godly life before them because you have eternal salvation. And your baptism is your sign and reminder of that.

The question is, will you do it? Will you submit to others? Will you tell them about your Lord Jesus Christ as He gives you opportunity? Will you live a godly, uncompromised lifestyle and not hide it from your friends so they can see the difference? Will you be used as an instrument of God to save others? And will you do it even if they turn against you? A story is told of Peter Miller, a plain Baptist preacher of Ephrata, PA, in the days of the Revolutionary War. Near his church lived a man who abused the pastor to the last degree. The man became involved in treason and was arrested and sentenced to be hanged. This old preacher started out on foot and walked the whole seventy miles to Philadelphia that he might plead for the man's life. Washington heard his plea. But he said, "No, your plea for your friend cannot be granted." "My friend!" said the preacher. "He is the worst enemy I have." "What!" said Washington, "you have walked nearly seventy miles to save the life of an enemy? That puts the matter in a different light. I will grant the pardon." Could you dare to think that you might be God's means of granting eternal pardon to your worst enemy? If so, why not to your best friend? The question is, will you?

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

4:1-6 - Our Attitude About Sin

At chapter 4 we reach the third major division of the book of 1 Peter. First, we saw our IDENTITY in Suffering, who we are! Then we examined our ACTIONS in Suffering, which all boil down to the command of SUBMISSION in every relationship of life. Now Peter proceeds to talk about:

III. Our Attitude In Suffering	Ch. 4
1. our attitude about sin	1-6
2. our attitude about service	7-11
3. our attitude about suffering	12-19

Everyone knows that attitude is important in facing almost any difficult thing in life, whether it's an operation or a job or a marriage! And when we as Christians face suffering, we need to face it with the proper attitude. Verse 1 says are to arm ourselves, literally, to put on the heavy armor like a soldier does, with the same attitude or way of thinking that Jesus Christ had when He suffered in His body! Paul said almost the same thing in Phil. 2, Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus... Jesus Christ endured suffering, insult, pain and death in full submission. How did He do it? He had an attitude, a mindset, a way of thinking. He had an attitude about sin, an attitude about serving the Lord, and an attitude about suffering itself. And if we adopt the same attitude, it will prepare and protect us when we have to face suffering and allow us to triumph over it spiritually. This morning we want to concern ourselves with our attitude toward sin. I have often noted already in this series that suffering can very easily lead to sin. In fact, that's one of Satan's chief uses for it. God uses it for positive good in our lives, but Satan tries to take advantage of it while it's there and try to use it to get us to sin. There are four principles, four basic axioms of thinking, which, if I adopt them and live by them, will deliver me from this trap of the devil. The first one is this:

I. I am done with sin (1) Now that does not mean that I am perfect and without sin. Sin still dwells in me; it still affects me and tempts me. It is not done with me until I get to glory. But I am done with it! I am consciously choosing to have nothing to do with it! That's the attitude the Savior had. He was tempted in all points like we are, yet without sin; He chose to have nothing to do with it. The KJV and NAS say that the one who has suffered in the flesh has "ceased from sin". If you look at the next three verses, you'll see what Peter's talking about. It doesn't mean the Christian is sinless; it means that he has stopped his former lifestyle and habits of sin. Debauchery and drunkenness and immorality and idolatry, those things are no longer part of his life. He has gotten release from the power of sin over his life through his new birth and now, through the power of Christ in him, he's choosing to be done with those things! That should be my attitude. But why? Because:

1. my Savior died to free me from it Because Christ suffered in His body for me; because He died on the cross, not only to procure forgiveness for all my sins, but to break the power of sin in my life! When I as a Christian choose to sin, I am deliberately going against the dearest thing in all the world to me! Sin is not some light thing, some mistake, some lark or tangent I get sidetracked on. Sin is trampling underfoot the blood of Jesus Christ. Sin is saying, "I don't care that Jesus died on the cross for me; it doesn't matter that He gave His life to take this thing out of my life forever!" That's why I have to be done with it. That's why in my mind I have to be committed to this principle. Now, the positive news is that:

2. my suffering shows me I am done with it The kind of suffering he's talking about is persecution by unbelievers. That's why he wrote the letter, because these folks in Asia Minor were suffering persecution. And he confirms that's what he means in verse 4. And what he's saying in verse 1 is that if I am suffering persecution here in the body, it is proof that my life has changed, that I have quit my habits of sin, that I am living as though I am done with sin. Otherwise, nobody would persecute me for it! There's a note of rejoicing when you're getting guff at work because you won't do something or when you're getting laughed at and mocked at school because you won't party with your coworkers or do drugs or drink like they do. Your commitment to Christ must be solid and firm, otherwise you'd throw in the towel and follow the crowd and sin! But you don't! So, keep that principle in your mind at all times, I am done with sin. Now here's the second one:

II. I live for the will of God (2-3) That was always Jesus' mindset. It was prophesied about Him in the Psalms, I have come to do your will, O God! In John 6:38 He said, I have come down from heaven not to do my will but the will of Him who sent me! He lived that way and when he faced the prospect of the cross in the garden, He prayed, Not my will, but thine be done! Most people live to get what they want and to do what they want. That is their goal. They work hard at it. But the Christian is not on this earth for that reason; he is here to do, to live for, the will of God. Now, Peter reminds me that:

1. I spent enough time in sin before conversion I spent enough time living like other pagans live. Maybe you were saved as an adult. You might have been involved in serious sin like the ones mentioned here. Or you might not have been, but just think of all those wasted years where you lived for yourself and not for God. That was enough of that, wasn't it? I was saved at 15. You might say, "What kind of sin can a 15 year old be delivered from?" How about lust and stealing and lying and swearing, to name a few. I was only 15, but by then I had spent enough time living for me and not for God. You might have been saved at a tender young age. But listen, ANY time spent living in sin and for self is ENOUGH! Time is too precious. I don't need that in my life now. That's why:

2. I no longer live to please myself I am a Christian. I called Christ my Lord. After what He did for me, what I want doesn't matter anymore. Life is not about getting what I want. Life is not about having everything I would enjoy having or doing everything that would feel good. Life is about doing what He wants, in fact, it is about making sure that everything I do is what He wants me to do! And if that is difficult or if it brings suffering or persecution, so be it! I live for God's will! But that brings us to the third principle.

III. I will suffer persecution for it (4-6) Jesus had this in mind; He warned us of it. Compare Jn. 15:18-21. He told us to keep it in mind, to remember it. Paul said the same thing, All who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution! And that's me. I WILL suffer for being done with sin and living for the will of God. Verse 4 says:

1. other people will think me strange I'll be the oddball who doesn't drink, who doesn't do drugs, who doesn't have sex before marriage or outside of my marriage, who doesn't lie or cheat on my taxes. I'll be viewed as different by others and:

2. they will persecute me for it Some folks will like it. But some of them will have their consciences pricked by my behavior. They will feel guilty and they won't like it. So they'll heap abuse on me. Literally, they'll blaspheme me. They'll say bad things about me and insult me and accuse me. Verse 6 indicates that some of these Christians had already died for their faith in the Roman persecution. The suffering of persecution will come in some way or other, at some level or other. But here's something to remember:

3. they will have to give an account to God Nobody gets away with anything! Unbelievers will have to stand before God for punishment and they can't escape it, even by death. What they do to you does not go unnoticed and it does not go unpunished. God sees and, unless they come to Christ, they will be judged for it! But if I have it in my mind ahead of time that I will be persecuted, it helps me to be armed and mentally ready when it comes, and here's the principle that will really sustain me:

IV. I have eternal life (6) Jesus, for the joy that was set before Him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is now sitting at the right hand of God. He had that forward look in His mind. His mind was not on the present suffering, but on the glory to come. So should mine be. You see, in the long run:

1. the persecution of this body does not matter Some of these Christians had become martyrs for their faith. Men judged them and did to them their worst. Somebody might have been tempted to think, "What good did the Gospel do them; they died!" Peter is reminding us that the Gospel wasn't preached to us to spare us from suffering in the body, but so that our spirits might live with God! You see:

2. my spirit will live with God forever They can kill me, but after that there is no more that they can do. I am a Christian; I have eternal life. Nobody can take that from me. If I die, I am still alive! Now, that thought will prepare your mind to face anything. That thought makes it worthwhile to be done with sin and to live for the will of God and to suffer for it, if need be. After my cross, I too will sit down at the right hand of God forever! Why should I allow suffering to wear me down so that I throw in the towel and sin? That's the easy way out. Be like everybody else, do what they do, conform! But I'm not like everybody else. I have a higher destiny. That's why my attitude is to be, "I'm done with sin!"

Once a tug boat was towing a heavy barge on the Great Lakes and was caught in a terrible storm. It was swept again and again from stern to bow by heavy breakers. It began taking water and for hours it seemed there was little hope for its crew. All through the night they were beaten by fierce waves but managed to keep afloat and in the morning the captain and crew were rescued by a passing ship. Afterward the captain, in telling of the night of fear, said there was one thing that strengthened them to carry on and keep hope alive in their hearts. Shining through the gloom they could occasionally see the lights of home. Without that they might have given up and been lost. The pressure to give in and quit and fall into sin may be great, but if you'll just keep the eyes of your mind looking upward instead of downward at the watery circumstances, you'll see the lights of home. The writer of Hebrews put it like this, Let us throw off everything that hinders and the sin which so easily entangles and let us run with perseverance the race marked out for us. Let us fix our eyes on Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith who for the joy set before Him endured the cross, scorning its shame, and sat down at the right hand of the throne of God!" - 12:1-2.

4:7-11 - Our Attitude About Service

In chapter 4, Peter gives us instructions about our ATTITUDE in suffering. In verse 1 he plainly says that since Christ suffered in His body, we are to arm ourselves with the same attitude that He had. In our study of verses 1-6 we talked about our attitude toward sin and how when we suffer, we are to have the attitude, "I am done with sin, no matter what; I'm not going to sin; I refuse". Now if Satan can't use his number one tactic and get you to sin because of the suffering that comes into your life, then he'll try to use his very powerful number two tactic, which is to get you to stop serving God. Pain demands attention. Have you noticed that? It's amazing how quickly you forget where you were going when you get your hand smashed in the car door! And when life becomes painful through suffering, there is a natural tendency to focus all your time and attention on alleviating or at least enduring the suffering. And Satan likes to capitalize on that to get you to focus on yourself and your problem so completely that you forget all about why you're really here, to serve God. And thus you become totally ineffective! But Jesus remembered that He was here to serve. It was on His way up to Jerusalem, having just explained the details of his coming suffering and death clearly to His disciples, that He said in Mt. 20:28, The Son of Man did not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a ransom for many. In all of His suffering, Jesus always had a clear attitude about serving, so He triumphed over suffering and accomplished God's purpose in saving us. And you can do the same. Here are the things Peter says to build into your attitude about serving:

I. Serve With Urgency (7a) The verb to draw near or approach in this phrase in the Greek is in what is called the perfect tense, which has the idea of something that has happened in the past and bears a continuing relationship to the present. English has no real equivalent of it, but you could see it, for example, in the phrase, "It is written". That is not really present tense; it is not being written right now. It was written in the past and it still stands written today. So literally, the end of all things which will occur at the return of Christ has drawn near. It is a fixed thing. The time of it was settled and appointed in eternity past. And now it has drawn near. People look at phrases like that in the New Testament and say, "Peter must have been wrong; 2000 years have gone by so it was not near." That's not what he's saying. He's not saying that it is near as we would measure nearness, like in 5 or 10 years or even 50 years. It's as though he's been looking down at his feet while walking toward a mountain and then suddenly looked up to find that the mountain has drawn much nearer than before. And when we stop looking at our problems and look up and think about it, we realize the return of Christ has drawn even nearer, 2000 years nearer. For me it is 68 years nearer than when I was born. The sense is that it is rapidly approaching; time is slipping by and life is evaporating at an enormously fast pace. It seems but yesterday I was a child and yet so much of my expected life is already gone. There is so much to do and so little time yet to do it in! I don't have time to get sidetracked and focus on myself and my problems. If I do, time will slip away and the Lord will come or I'll die and I'll not have accomplished my purpose for being on this earth. My mind has to have a sense of urgency that cuts right through problems and keeps me serving even in the midst of them, even if the way I serve has to change. And right along with that goes this principle:

II. Serve With Clarity (7b) Now, by clarity, I mean this. You serve, first of all:

1. knowing what your purpose here is We identified it back in verse 2. You live for the will of God. You are here to serve God, to accomplish the tasks that He has laid out for you, to finish the course that He has set for you. To be clear-minded or of sound mind means that through everything that happens to you, you keep your mind focused on what you're here for, to serve God. If you end up in the hospital, your mind should be thinking, "How can I serve God here?" When tragedy strikes, your mind should be so programmed to serve that it asks, "How can God use this in my life to minister to others?" And Peter uses a second word to describe this, self-controlled which means:

2. unaffected by outside influences It means you remain true to your purpose regardless of the pull of your feelings and emotions and desires which may be aroused by suffering in your life. You see, if you have it fixed in your mind, "I am here to serve God no matter what!" then when suffering or trouble comes, you'll triumph over it and turn it into an opportunity to serve God. Then be sure that you:

III. Serve With Prayer (7c) There is nothing more important, whether you are suffering or not suffering, than prayer. You'll never have victory over suffering without constant communication with the Master. If you let your prayer and devotional life go, when trouble comes, you're sunk. Satan has won. Your purpose in life ends up defeated and you end up useless.

So the best thing to do is to ingrain it as such a habit now that when trouble comes, you keep it up regardless! Here are three quick suggestions:

- have a set time to pray Otherwise you won't do it seriously.
- have a regular place to pray Pick a quiet, private spot and make it your regular place to pray, so that when you come to it you mind says, "Now I'm going to pray".
- have a plan of praying Use a prayer guide or write a planned out prayer list, but make sure you have some time to thank God for answers, to pray for others, and to pray for your own needs and put that last!

And you'll find a habit of prayer like that will carry you right on through trouble, serving God. Then:

IV. Serve With Love (8-9) Now, you may not see it at first glance, but there are two groups in view here. Verse 8 has in view:

1. those you know (8) It's hard to "each other" people you never see. It's talking about the Christian brothers and sisters that are part of your life, that you fellowship with regularly. Love them not just generally, but DEEPLY; REALLY love them and chiefly that means overlooking their faults. Sure, they've got faults and fallacies and sometimes hurt you a bit or are insensitive and even sometimes sin, but let your love be deep enough to cover those things over, to forgive them and keep on loving! Don't let a little suffering and difficulty break off your love for one another! Then, verse 9 has in view:

2. those you don't know (9) The word hospitality is philoxenia, the love of strangers. It's not talking about inviting each other over for cozy dinners (which is OK too); this is talking about other brothers and sisters who are strangers to you and you're to love them by meeting their needs. These folks lived in an era of outright persecution. Christians would be forced to flee sometimes to other towns and find shelter with brethren there. Those brethren were to love them and meet their needs without grumbling! Don't let your own problems cause you to grumble about having to help or minister to the needs of others. If you fill your mind ahead of time with the attitude of true love toward others, you'll triumph over suffering and keep on serving God. Next:

V. Serve With Faithfulness (10) Here Peter points out that:

1. each one is entrusted with a gift to serve others And you thought you were just naturally talented! Everybody, every believer, has at least one gift and usually more, an ability that has been entrusted to you by God to use for His service. It may be an ability like singing or teaching or it may be organization or helping others or any one of a thousand other things. But whatever it is, you didn't earn it. God has entrusted it to you to equip you to serve Him while you are on this earth. So on our part:

2. we must faithfully exercise that gift And faithfully means that we don't quit because we're suffering or trouble has come into our lives. Faithful is what God is. Did you ever get up one morning and there was no sunrise or did it ever fail to get dark one night? Did you ever miss summer once and have winter two years running? God doesn't quit loving and caring for you for a single moment and you can't let trouble and suffering make you quit using your gifts for Him, even if the use of them has to be redirected or changed. And along with that comes our last principle:

VI. Serve With Dependence (11) Here's something you must never forget about serving:

1. you serve conscious of your need for Him If you speak, then you do it realizing that you need His help. I can stand up and speak words to you on my own. But without God, it will never cause you to grow or change your life. Every morning before I get up to preach, we always pray in the study that God will do the speaking, that He will do the work. If you serve in another way, you must realize that you are dependent on His strength. Sure, you can go do something on your own, but unless He's working through you, it won't end up having any eternal value or effect. You're dependent on God and you'd better know it! That's got to be in your mind all the time, constantly. And when you're suffering, you'll find that need is even more real, but when you draw on that strength and let Him live through you, then:

2. He receives all the credit And that's the goal of our serving anyway, not to get His praise for ourselves, but to get Him praise because of ourselves!

Jesus had an attitude of serving, no matter what. Jesus served us despite His personal suffering by going to the cross. The night before His death, he took a towel and got down on His knees and washed the disciples' feet. He, the Lord and Master, served them as a common servant would. Then He said, "I have done this as an example to you; you should do as I have done unto you." Serve God by serving one another in spite of your personal difficulties and problems. Then He got up and went to the cross and did just what He commanded; He served to the very end. Will you?

4:12-19 - Our Attitude About Suffering

There is a third area in our attitude in suffering that Peter gives consideration to in this fourth chapter. The first area was our attitude toward sin; I am done with sin, no matter what. The second area was our attitude about service; I will serve

God, no matter what. This third area is our attitude about suffering itself. We are to arm ourselves with the same attitude that our Lord Jesus Himself had toward suffering when He was here on earth. And so, we have to begin by talking about:

I. The Nature of Suffering (12) People have all kinds of varying views about what suffering really is. There are those who shout loud and clear that all suffering is of the devil and if you're suffering, it's Satan out to get you! Now there's no question that Satan will try to use the suffering in your life to affect your spiritual life. He'll try to get you to sin because of it or to stop serving God or to doubt God or whatever He can. But I'm just enough of a Calvinist to believe that our Sovereign Almighty God is in full control of everything that happens to me and that everything that happens to me is filtered through His hand, whether Satan initiates it or not. You see, the bottom line with these folks, and maybe with some of us, is that we feel that suffering is an alien thing, that somehow it doesn't belong in my life because I'm a Christian. Jesus saved me and everything ought to be just hunky-dory, but Peter says:

1. suffering is not an alien thing It is not some strange, foreign thing. It is a normal part of human existence in this world the way it is. Everybody suffers. And Jesus warned His disciples repeatedly to expect suffering, especially as a normal part of the path of following Him. He said, In this world, you SHALL have tribulation! That's why there's a heaven! We are in one sense no different from other people. Suffering is a normal and natural part of existence in this world. But the difference is that for us:

2. suffering is a purposeful, refining thing See the words painful trial? The KJV translates more literally, fiery trial. For these folks that was pretty literal. In Rome Christians were being covered with pitch and lit as torches to light the Emperor's gardens at night! But it literally means a refining by fire as in 1:7. Gold is melted in fire and in the process the fire refines it, removing the impurities. Suffering is a normal part of existence, certainly, but it is not meaningless! It is God at work in our lives with a purpose, teaching, purifying, refining, changing us, always working it together somehow for His good purpose. We've got to stop seeing suffering as the enemy when it comes into our lives and start looking for the hand of God in it! For example, when I was 15, my father died and that was difficult emotionally, financially, and even in terms of transportation, because my mother didn't drive. But it meant that I had to be the man of the house, to fix things, care for the property, and so on. Yet now when I look back on it, without that, I doubt I'd be in the ministry today. Four years later I became the pastor of a church! That could never have been without the maturity I was forced into by that difficult time. You see, suffering is God at work, molding, shaping, preparing me for His glory and for GLORY! And hang onto your hat because I'm going to plunge in one step deeper and talk about:

II. The Blessing of Suffering Suffering is actually a blessing in your life, not only because God uses it to refine and mold you, but for two other reasons. First:

1. it includes you in the sufferings of Christ (13) That's deep! When you suffer in the will of God and particularly when you suffer for being a Christian, you are participating in the sufferings of Christ. He's not talking about the suffering which Christ did on the cross to pay the penalty for our sins. Our suffering does not help Him atone for our sins in any way. That is complete and finished. Compare Col. 1:24 where Paul says the same thing and uses the Greek word translated afflictions, literally distress, pressure, or trouble. It's not talking about His death, but about His life. In leaving heaven and coming to earth, Christ took on Himself suffering. He suffered as a human being all the same things that you suffer. Now, after returning to heaven, He is STILL SUFFERING. But He is doing in the person of His body which He left on earth, the Church! You see, I am identified with Him. I am part of His body in this world and when I suffer, He is still suffering in His body, still feeling the pain. I am participating in the continuing suffering of Christ. So many times we think how we would gladly have suffered with Him through the rejection of the crowds and the agony of the garden and the sadness at Lazarus' tomb. We would have shared that suffering. Well, that's what you're doing right now! You are sharing in the fellowship of His sufferings, suffering His sufferings for Him and with Him. Peter says we should rejoice. We are privileged to be a co-sufferer with Him. But hallelujah, one day His suffering will finally be over; His glory will be revealed! And then His body will suffer no more. All suffering will be ended and we'll overflow with joy! And when you realize that you are participating together in His sufferings, do you know what that does? It binds you together in a brand new way; it gives you a deeper, fuller closeness than ever. When two people suffer through some terrible ordeal together they are often bound together for life because of the mutual support they received from each other, like two war veterans who fought in the same unit or a couple who live through some accident or illness; they are bound deeply. Let me tell you, there is nothing that will bind you closer to the Lord than suffering, if you will let it drive you to Him! The times that I have felt myself closest to the Lord in my life have been the times of greatest difficulty! But there's a second blessing in suffering:

2. it assures you of the Spirit's presence (14) When the suffering takes the specific form of persecution, when you get insulted because you let it be known that you're a Christian or you get picked on or discriminated against or fired because of your Christian principles, there is something special you can rejoice in. Evidently the Holy Spirit really does live in you and work through you, or you wouldn't be suffering that way. If you were like all the rest of people, they wouldn't persecute you for being different. But since Jesus Christ has changed you, you suffer for it and that ought to assure your heart that your faith is really genuine; otherwise, you'd quit and give in and be like the rest. So, suffering is a normal part of the Christian life and it is actually a great blessing in several ways. Well then, if that is your attitude, if those things are in your mind, how should you react when suffering comes your way? Here is:

III. The Reaction to Suffering

There are five steps. First:

1. cut out things that bring deserved suffering (15) The words it should not be are literally, do not let it be. In other words, make sure if you're suffering, that it's not because you deserve it. These were the things they were suffering in this wave of persecution. Some were murdered; others had property confiscated or were mistreated some other way. Peter is saying, "Don't you do it back! Don't you retaliate and kill somebody or steal from those who have hurt you or do anything else that would deserve being branded as a criminal, and then suffer for that and think you're suffering for God! Don't even meddle in other people's business where you don't belong and then suffer for it and think you're suffering for God!" In other words, cut out the wrong things that you may be doing or you'll suffer for them. That's first, then:

2. count yourself a Christian joyfully (16) Don't be ashamed of it. You see, the term Christian was not such a nice term in the beginning. It seems to have been a term of derision. There was everybody else and then there were those "Christians". Everybody else was a kaisarianos, a worshipper of Caesar. You were a christianos, a worshipper of Christ. That made you an enemy of the state, a traitor. It carried a similar connotation to the word communist in our time. But Peter said, "So what! Don't be ashamed of that. It means 'little Christ'. Praise God that you have the privilege to bear that seemingly cursed name." No matter what your love for Jesus brings you, be proud of it; be glad that you carry His Name, for there is no other name under heaven given among men by which you can be saved! And while you're doing it remember to:

3. consider the end of others (17-18) Let me paraphrase what Peter is saying, "If we're Christians and we love God and belong to Him and He has to deal with us as His own people so severely by bringing suffering and persecution into our lives to mold and shape and discipline us and make us what He wants, if God has to deal with us in so severe a fashion, what do you think will happen to unsaved people who don't love Him?" Sure, unbelievers may persecute you and give you a hard time, but they're going to fall into the hands of Almighty God whose wrath is a consuming fire. There's hell to pay, literally! Do you want to change places with them? Would you rather be in their shoes? NO! So, here's what you do:

4. commit yourself to your Faithful Creator (19a) That word commit in the Greek is a very familiar word to you. You do it every week at the bank. You take your money and deposit it there for safekeeping. So Peter's talking about:

a. the deposit of your soul Yourself is literally your soul. You commit your soul into the hand of the One who is big enough to keep it and so faithful that He will never lose it. This is what Jesus did on the cross when He prayed, Father, into thy hand I commend my Spirit. Listen, do you worry about your money that's in the bank? Do you lie awake worrying that the bank will lose it? No? Then have that kind of committed confidence in God. Know that your soul is in His hand and you're secure, so then commit to Him:

b. the disposition of your life The implication goes further than just salvation. If God is faithful enough to keep your soul, then He's also faithful enough to keep your life, to control every moment of it according to His will. Trust Him! Leave your life in His hands and say, "Thy will be done". And then:

5. continue doing good (19b) Continue living right. Continue serving God. Continue in spite of suffering, in spite of persecution, in spite of obstacles, in spite of handicaps, in spite of tragedies, in spite of losses, in spite of anything that may come your way!

Blaise Pascal was one of the greatest scientific minds of the western world, but on Nov. 23, 1654 He found Jesus Christ as His Savior. For about two hours he had an intense experience of something he'd never known in all his philosophy and science, the presence of God. And that conversion was real and lasted to his dying day. But here is a prayer that He wrote down on an occasion in his life when he was sick and suffering: "Lord, whose spirit is so good and so gentle in all things, and who art so compassionate that not only all prosperity but even all afflictions that come to Thine elect are the results of Thy compassion: grant me grace that I may not do as the pagans do in the condition to which thy justice has reduced me; grant that as a true Christian I may recognize Thee as my father and as my God, in whatever estate I find myself, since the change in my condition brings no change in thy own. For Thou art the same, though I be subject to change, and Thou art God no less when Thou dost afflict and when Thou dost punish, than when Thou dost console and when Thou dost manifest indulgence." If you have a right attitude toward suffering, then you'll say "Amen!" to that!

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

5:1-4 - The Responsibilities Of Leaders

At chapter 5 we come to the fourth and final division of the book. Peter closes his letter by reminding us that in suffering we still have responsibilities that we must fulfill. They don't quit just because we have a problem or a difficulty. The fifth chapter can be simply divided like this:

IV. Our Responsibilities In Suffering	Ch. 5
1. the responsibilities of leaders	1-4
2. the responsibilities of all	5-14

Today we'll focus on the first four verses and talk about the responsibilities of leaders. Now the first person that ought to listen to this sermon is your pastor. He really needs this, whoever he is. Then notice it is addressed to the elders, those leaders of the local church who serve as overseers, watching over all the people and the whole ministry. So, there are a number of us who have to really listen up this morning. But that doesn't mean the rest of you can go to sleep! The responsibilities Peter reminds us of apply to anybody in leadership in any capacity, Sunday School teachers, youth group leaders, Nursery School staff, VBS workers, even nursery helpers, even PARENTS and bosses. Then, just in case you don't fit any of those categories, there are still some principles here about serving God that apply to any Christian, so maybe you'd better stay awake. First, in verse 1 we meet:

I. The Mentor of Our Ministry: Peter (1) Here is the first leader, the first shepherd of the church, the only one to whom Jesus said three times, Feed my sheep... He is sort of the pioneer leader of the church, but look how this man whom we call a great leader looks at himself and in what capacity he speaks to us. He sees himself first as:

1. a fellow elder He doesn't say, "I'm the leader of all you leaders and I'm here to tell you how you should lead." No, he says, "I'm one of you! I find myself in the same position. I lead people just like you do, have the same kind of responsibility. I understand what you're going through and what this responsibility entails." So, you can't look at Peter and say, "Well, that's fine but did you ever do it?" Sure he did, and he also sees himself as:

2. a fellow believer He is a witness of Christ's sufferings, literally, one who is called to give testimony to what he has experienced. He was given the position of telling the world of Christ's suffering and death and resurrection. Isn't that what we all are? He's one of us, a fellow believer, one who's clinging to the fact that Jesus died for him, and one whose task is to be a witness of that fact to others. And then he sees himself as:

3. a fellow sufferer, one who will share in the glory to be revealed. But who is it that will share in the glory to be revealed? Look back to 4:13. Those who participate in the sufferings of Christ. Those who suffer now for His sake. Peter is a fellow-sufferer, just like us. In Acts we read how he was jailed, his life threatened. And Jesus even warned him that suffering would come into his life and that when he was old, he would stretch out his hands and someone would carry him where he did not want to go. History tells us that at last Peter was crucified at Rome, but in the upside down position at his own request, not feeling worthy of dying in the exact same manner as the Savior.

You see, Peter never saw himself as above and beyond. Always as simply one of the group, a leader in a team of leaders, a believer among a group of believers, a sufferer among a flock of sufferers. When a leader starts to see himself as different, as above and beyond, as better than or smarter than or holier than the people he leads, he's left the biblical model of leadership. Peter once said "Though everyone else forsakes you, I will never forsake you!" But he did and a great change has come over him now. What has left? Pride! We may have different levels of maturity and we may have different callings and responsibilities but before God we are all equal. Somebody has defined witnessing as one beggar telling another beggar where to find bread. Well leadership is one student helping another student with his lessons! Leader, don't you ever forget who you are: nobody! You are a sheep among the sheep with the job of helping the other sheep. And that brings us to:

II. The Mandate of Our Ministry: The Shepherd (2-3) Ministry is described here with the key verb to shepherd. If we can understand what a shepherd is and does, then we can understand ministry. Incidentally, the word pastor means shepherd and in that sense, every leader is a pastor. Now let's look at:

1. the meaning of ministry There are two key concepts here:

a. you are entrusted with a part of God's flock Did you hear that? Whose flock? God's! The people you minister to as a leader are not your sheep; they are God's. They belong to Jesus Christ. He is the Chief Shepherd in verse 4. But He has singled out a particular portion of His flock and allotted them or entrusted them to you to take care of as an under-shepherd to Him. Every person of that congregation, every member of that class, every member of that family, is God's and he has entrusted their care to you. And He knew just who to give you! Sure, sometimes you wonder why he didn't give that sheep that keeps breaking through the fence to your neighbor instead, but He didn't. What a responsibility! Suppose I had to go somewhere and I gave you my child to take care of, just imagine the responsibility you'd feel. Well, God has given to you some of His children and:

b. you are to meet their needs as a shepherd What does a shepherd do for the sheep? He finds it food and water. He protects it from harm and the elements. He cares for it in illness and retrieves it when it wanders off. In short, he does his best to meet every need that the sheep has. If you don't relate well to taking care of sheep, just think of taking care of children. You have to meet their every need, feed them, dress them, bathe them, discipline them, comfort them, protect them, educate them. That's what ministry is! It is not a job. It is not a profession. It is loving a bunch of sheep and doing everything you can to meet their needs! Now what in the world would you want to do that for? Look at:

2. the motive of ministry Peter lists two pairs of negatives and positives in verse 2, reasons why people minister to others. Unfortunately, there are a lot of people in ministry with:

a. the wrong motives He mentions two:

(1) compulsion: because you have to "I'm doing this because God called me to do it. I don't like doing it, I don't want to do it. But if I don't do it, I'll be in trouble with God, so I just do it because I have to." Do you want that person taking care of your pet? Or teaching your child? Or for your pastor? For example, we had a retired neighbor, a widower, and when he went away, he would ask me to go over and care for his cat. I do it because I genuinely want to help my neighbor, but as far as the cat goes, I do it because I have to! And you know what? That cat has all its needs met, but we have no relationship at all! And that's what happens when you lead people out of compulsion. There is no love and Paul said if you sacrificed all your goods for them but didn't have love, it gains you nothing. There is no reward for that, because it isn't ministry! Love your sheep! And that brings up a second wrong motive:

(2) selfishness: to get something in return Plenty of people minister for what they can get out of it, whether that is money or recognition or status or praise or a boosted ego or even to lay up a huge reward in heaven. "I'm going to minister now, even though I don't like it, because I know that God will really reward me for it in heaven and I want the biggest reward I can get!" They're the folks that are always praying like the Pharisee, "See Lord, look what I've done, don't forget!" Jesus said if that's why you minister, to get something, then you've already got your reward right here and now; don't expect one in heaven! Again, love your sheep! Now here are:

b. the right motives See them?

(1) willingness: because you want to Shepherd your flock, not because you have to, but because you really want to, because your heart genuinely wants to please God and really cares about the sheep. And take that one step further to:

(2) eagerness: to meet the needs of others It is not to be just, "OK, I'm willing," but "I'm ready and eager, I really want to care for these folks because I love them and care about them and I count it a great privilege to be able to help them." That's the person I want caring for me! And my friend, if you're a leader in whatever way, even as a parent, ask God to fill your heart with that willingness, that eagerness, so that your ministry is not just an assignment, but an act of love and a joy to carry out! And one more thing:

3. the manner of ministry With leadership always comes authority of one degree or another. And though you may genuinely love and care for that flock, it matters how you go about it. Peter says in verse 3 that we are to be:

a. not lordly masters of the flock Sure, sometimes a leader has to tell people what to do and how to do it. The Bible recognizes that. But a leader is not to be autocratic and high-handed, emphasizing his right to demand and to exert his own will. There are a lot of people who operate in that mode. They are chiefly known as people who command, who demand, and you know what? The flock usually doesn't like them! The flock is usually miserable and rebels whenever possible. We are not to be lording it over our sheep:

b. but living models to the flock Whatever we teach, we live. Whatever we expect, we perform. Whatever we want to see built in them, we demonstrate before them, so that we can humbly say with Paul, Be followers of me as I follow Christ! That's the kind of leadership God wants, in the church and in the home.

Now what's all this leadership stuff doing in the middle of a book about suffering? It is because suffering is when this kind of leadership is needed most of all! Folks, when your flock is suffering and hurting, that's when they need you to be there in love, willingly caring for them in their need, living the love of Christ out before them. And the time of suffering is also when you'd most like to quit, to start worrying about yourself and forget about your sheep and let them wander off on their own way while you see that your own needs are met. What did Jesus say about the good shepherd? He lays down his life for his sheep if necessary! But it's worth it:

III. The Reward of Our Ministry: The Crown (4) One of these days the Chief Shepherd will appear and our shepherding days will be over, but we'll receive an eternal crown of glory, a bright and shining reward that will last forever and never fade away like the flowers do! Or even like "thank-yous" do. But just remember, it is future. There may be very little reward in caring for the flock now. Just wait, you're not home yet!

1 PETER: TRIUMPHING OVER SUFFERING

5:5-14 - Your Responsibilities In Suffering

Leaders are not the only ones who have responsibilities in times of suffering. We all do. And Peter uses his closing words to remind us of them. In fact, these closing verses of the book form a sort of summary of many of the things that Peter has enjoined on us elsewhere. When suffering comes into your life, there are some things you absolutely must do in order for you to triumph over it and God expects you to triumph over it, so these are not "take it or leave it" kinds of things; these are things God expects you to do. These are:

I. Your Responsibilities (5-9) Peter has boiled it down to three of them. The first one is:

1. humbling yourself (5-6) Peter says that all of us, particularly those who are younger, are to clothe ourselves with humility; we're to wrap it around us like a garment and cover ourselves with it. It ought to pervade our lives in every aspect. It is precisely when we hurt that we can so easily become proud, angry, and resistant. Let me give you an example. Suppose somebody has done something to you that hurts you. Maybe they lied to you or fired you from a job unfairly, and you come to me and I encourage you that you have to forgive them and pray for them. Now that's a godly course of action and I know it and you know it, but what's your likely reaction? Anger! You may get upset at me; in fact, if you hurt bad enough, you may get upset at God for allowing this thing into your life or for how He expects you to act in the midst of it because you don't feel like doing it. It's natural; it happens all the time. But Peter says you must be careful to humble yourself, first of all:

a. toward others, toward those who are older, toward those who are spiritual leaders, toward one another in general. Don't allow suffering to cause you to become proud and resistant toward others and self-seeking. But more importantly, you must be careful to humble yourself:

b. toward God, to realize that everything that happens to you, even the suffering and difficulty and pain, is coming to you from God's mighty hand, controlling and working all things together. Now you can fight that and be angry and accuse Him of unfairness, or you can accept that and say, "OK Lord, this is from you, I accept it as part of your will; give me strength to make it through." They say that people with terminal illness go through stages, denial, anger, and eventually, if they adjust well, acceptance. It's the same in other kinds of suffering. That's just the natural, the reaction of the unsaved person who comes to accept his "fate." The Christian needs to humble himself to see that this is God's hand at work in his life, the same mighty hand that will one day lift him up to glory! And here's why; God resists the proud but He gives grace to the humble! If you want to fight with God and try to tell Him what He ought to do, fine! Go ahead, but you're on your own. And God will resist you at every point along the way. Jonah thought he could run to Tarshish, too, but you can't fight God. He'll break down the pride, one way or another, sooner or later. But just look at the promise, if you humble yourself, God will give you the grace you need to bear it and make it through. If you submit to Him, you won't have to go through it alone; He'll be with you! So, your first responsibility is humbling yourself. The second is:

2. trusting God (7) The second natural reaction to suffering in your life is anxiety or worry! If you lose your job, you worry about how you're going to pay the bills! If an emergency happens, you wonder how you're going to make it through or handle the problems it creates. Well, here's what God says to do:

a. the action: deposit all your anxiety with Him Here's what it means. You take your anxiety. How much of it? ALL of it, the whole of it. And you go to God and say, "Here, I want to deposit this with You and leave it there." The word literally means to make a once-for-all deposit! "Lord, these are my problems, my difficulties, my worries, the things I know I can't handle. Now they're yours and I don't want them back!" You simply trust God with your future, all of it, and here's:

b. the reason: you are His concern It's not just that He cares about what's happening to you. It's that your life, your future, your circumstances, are not your concern. You can't arrange them. You can't change the color of one hair on your head without using chemicals! They're His concern, His realm. He's responsible to perfect that which concerns you; all you're responsible to do is to trust Him! Does your child worry about whether he's going to have food to eat tomorrow? No, that's not his concern. He has totally left that in your hands because he knows that somehow, you'll make sure it'll be there. Tomorrow is your Heavenly Father's concern, not yours. When you worry, you're actually taking on yourself what you were never meant to carry; it belongs to Him! Take it all to Him, deposit it, and leave it there! And instead, concentrate on your third responsibility:

3. resisting Satan (8-9) Now here's the scenario. You're in Africa and you're camped out in the bush in some remote area. And there is a lion who lives in this area and there's been a drought. Game is scarce. The lion is hungry and he prowls the length and breadth of his range trying to find an antelope or a warthog or a zebra or SOMETHING to eat. You can hear him at night roaring with anger at the gnawing in his stomach. And suppose you can't leave? How are you going to act? That's the situation we're in, stuck on this planet with an adversary, Satan, who, like that hungry lion, is constantly looking for how he can kill us, destroy our faith, or ruin our testimony and usefulness! How are you going to resist him, to stand him off? Peter says four things:

a. keep control of your mind Be self-controlled, literally, don't be drunk. Keep clear possession of your mind. Don't let anything cloud it and keep you from thinking clearly about what's going on. The lion is out there. If you let fear grip your mind or panic seize it, you'll do something crazy and the lion will have you! That's what you must do when suffering comes. Force yourself to think clearly. Ask God to help you do it, to see the situation clearly and to analyze all the available resources and solutions. Then:

b. watch carefully for his tactics You're going to be alert for that lion. You'll post a watch and try to figure out which direction he'd most likely sneak up from and the time of day he'll try it. And that's what you have to do when suffering comes. You think, "Now how can Satan use this in my life; what is he going to try to accomplish through this? To get me to doubt God? To get me to be self-centered and stop serving? To get me to disobey God and sin? What?" Be alert, then:

c. stand firm in your faith You're not camped out there in a tent. You've been placed there in a tank, yes, a military, iron-plated tank that is more than capable of handling that hungry lion. So finally, you spy him. Here he comes. What do you do? If you let panic seize you and leave the tank and run, you're breakfast! You get in the tank and lock the door and let the tank handle him! God didn't plant you here with Satan defenseless! Greater is He that is in you than he that is in the world. Jesus Christ is more than a match for anything Satan can throw at you. All you have to do is stand firmly in faith; hold to it, trust what God says, keep on believing what you believe to the very end. If you run from that, Satan wins and you lose. Stand firm but:

d. understand that you are not alone You are not the only one stationed in lion country. We all are. You are not the only one that undergoes the kind of suffering you have. Your brothers and sisters all over the world are doing the same. And Satan is trying to attack and overtake them too. But they're standing firm and you can too. You can find God's grace and strength to defeat Satan and to triumph over the suffering that comes into your life. Those are your responsibilities. Humble yourself; accept what God sends your way. Trust God and stop worrying. And resist Satan, staying clear-minded and alert, always watching for his sneak attack and standing firm against him. It sounds difficult, but Peter closes by reminding you of:

II. Your Rewards (10-14) First there is:

1. the lasting glory to come (10a) Listen, I am called to eternal glory. I'm not staying like this, in this world of pain and suffering and misery, forever. One day for me there's going to be no more tears, death, crying, mourning, or pain. All those things belong to the old order and one day they'll all pass away in the glorious presence of Jesus Christ forever and ever, to the ages of the ages! I'll gladly endure suffering for Him and triumph over it; look what He's provided for me forever and ever by His suffering! Then there is:

2. the long-term growth through suffering (10-11) Here's what God does through suffering. The Greek word translated restore is perfect in the KJV and NAS and means to order and arrange something to accomplish its intended purpose. God, who is full of grace to help you, allows suffering to come into your life for a little while to perfect you, to order and arrange your character and personality, to make you strong and firm and steadfast and unshakeable. Suffering makes you the person God wants you to be; you are a better person in the long run for having suffered! Then Peter mentions:

3. the loving encouragement of brethren (12-14a) Just as Peter encouraged these brethren in Asia Minor who were suffering persecution and assured them of the love of those who were with him (probably in Rome; Babylon is probably a veiled reference to Rome as it is in Revelation), the same thing happens when we suffer. God uses brethren to love and encourage us. Oh, the beautiful thing it is to experience the love of brethren who bear you up and help you and stick by you and love you when you suffer. There's nothing like it. Some of the most wonderful relationships in the world are forged in the fires of suffering! And, in closing, Peter mentions:

4. the living peace of God (14b) When you have cast all your cares on Him and stood firm, there is a mysterious thing, a wonderful peace, the peace of God, the very sense of confidence and calm and security that God has which passes human understanding, that floods our hearts and minds and it is precious. It is wonderful. It is there always, but always makes its presence felt most closely against the backdrop of suffering.

One time, I was visiting one of our people who was just in the hospital after suffering a stroke. At 88 and with a partially clogged main artery to the brain, that's nothing to sneeze at. But he said to me, "I had such peace, John, more peace than I ever had. It was wonderful. I was so close to the Lord. I was not afraid to die, not in the least. The Lord is so good!" Without suffering, you would never know just how good God really is nor how deep His peace really can be. I'd like to close this study about suffering with Peter's own words in verses 10-11 and make them my prayer for you, May the God of all grace, who called you to his eternal glory in Christ, after you have suffered a little while, himself restore you and make you strong, firm and steadfast. To him be the power forever and ever. Amen!

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life The Word Of Life - 1:1-4

In the back of your Bible, just before Revelation, are three short books, letters actually, called First, Second and Third John. The first of these is the longest and the most commonly known and read; it is often one of the first sections of the Bible that is used with people who are new to the faith. My plan is to dig into it verse by verse together with you. By way of preparation, let me share with you a little bit of background about 1 John:

1. it was written by John the Apostle some 35-50 years after Christ's ascension to heaven. That's actually a very long time. John was around in Jesus' time, of course, but most of the believers in the churches in the day when he wrote were not. He was rapidly becoming among the last living persons who had actually lived through the events of Christ's life. The believers he's writing to had the same problem that we do. They were "second generation" believers who had to accept by faith a message about things that happened before their time that they did not experience. And they needed to be reassured about their basis for doing that. So do we. Second:

2. it is a general letter written to the churches of Asia (Minor) John doesn't mention his own name nor any other. It is not a letter written to a specific person, but a letter meant to be circulated and read in all the churches. John, at this point in his life, was the bishop, that is, the overseer, of the churches in the province of Asia, which is the southwestern region of the peninsula of Asia Minor, today the nation of Turkey. And it was, no doubt, to those believers under his faithful care that he wrote, believers who were Greeks by background, not Jews like himself, who had grown up under the influence of Greek and Roman culture and idolatrous worship rather than Jewish law. Of course, what He wrote was also meant for the church at large and was read everywhere and we may regard it as being equally as much for ourselves as it was for them. Third:

3. it is written to combat false teachings that believers confronted in the culture of their day. By this time Christianity had been around long enough that counterfeit versions of it had come to exist. Just as we have sects like Jehovah's Witnesses and Mormons in our culture today who deny that Jesus was actually God, in that day there were groups that denied Jesus was actually a real man, a true human being. Just as we have liberal teachers in churches today who want to laud Jesus as an example and a great teacher and leader, but not as God to be worshipped and the only means of salvation, so they had false teachers who taught Jesus was less than what He really is. And these teachings had appeal to those in the church from Greek background, just as they might to those from a secular enlightenment background today. John wrote this letter to protect his sheep from being led astray from the true faith that was once for all given to the saints and it can do the same for us.

I've decided to give each small section that we will study a title, as the ESV and other Bibles do, using a key phrase from that section. Verses 1-4 are the prologue, the introduction to the letter. The key phrase is found at the end of verse 1, ...concerning "the Word of life. You'll notice the W is capitalized in many translations, indicating the translators may think it is a title referring to Jesus like it is at the beginning of John's Gospel where it says, in the beginning was the Word... and the word was God. But if you look closely at (1b-2), John's not saying that Jesus is the WORD; he's saying that Jesus is the LIFE! He's saying that:

I. We Have A Message (a word) Concerning Eternal Life In the only other place in the Bible where this phrase is used, Paul said almost the same thing that John wrote in this prologue, Do all things without grumbling or disputing, that you may be blameless and innocent, children of God without blemish in the midst of a crooked and twisted generation, among whom you shine as lights in the world, holding fast to the word of life, so that in the day of Christ I may be proud that I did not run in vain or labor in vain. - Phil 2:14-16. He said, "Hold on to that word, to that message that you have embraced, that is LIFE. You live in a crooked generation that tries to take you away from it, but hold on to it! Hold fast to it! It is your life!" We have embraced that same message, the message of Rom. 6:23 which says, the wages of sin is death but the free gift of God is eternal life... The message we hold fast to:

1. it is about life that is eternal. The root of that word in Greek means "an endless age, a perpetual thing". We like to say in English that eternal means without beginning or end, thinking of it in terms of length. But I think the sense of it is more like the synonymous phrase in Heb. 7:16 where it says that Jesus has become our High Priest on the basis of an indestructible life. It's a life that has no end because it cannot be destroyed, it cannot be dissolved. The message we have has brought us life that will always BE, life that cannot be destroyed or dissolved or decayed or even taken from us by physical death, because it is the very life of God, a truly perpetual life that no force in the universe can snuff out! What a precious gift for God to give us! But notice that:

2. this life is not a thing It is not a state of being. John describes it in personal terms. He saw this life; he heard this life; he touched this life. This life is not a thing, but a Person, that is, Jesus Christ Look with me at 5:11. God gave us life all right, but it is in a Person! It is in the Person of His Son, Jesus! The age-enduring, indestructible life of God Himself came down to us in the person of Jesus Christ. Jn. 1:4 says, In him was life, and the life was the light of men. He himself declared in Jn. 14, I am...the Life! In verse 2 John says:

a. He was with the Father from all eternity past Jesus did not begin to exist when He was conceived in Mary's womb. He was always with the Father. Long before creation, in fact eternally before the creation of the world, Father God and His Son Jesus enjoyed the sweet fellowship that exists within the Trinity. Jesus was there at the fall of the angels; He said, I saw Satan fall like lightning from heaven. He was there at creation, for without Him was not anything made that was made. He was there all through the Old Testament and often visited earth and showed Himself. He met Abraham at the door of his tent; He wrestled with Jacob and gave Joshua instructions for attacking Jericho. Centuries later He was in the fire with the 3 Hebrew youths in Babylon and appeared to Daniel in a vision. But when the fullness of the time had come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman...

b. He was revealed to us through incarnation as a man As John put it in his Gospel, ...the Word became flesh and dwelt among us, and we have seen his glory, glory as of the only Son from the Father, full of grace and truth. - Jn. 1:14. Now the Son, who Himself was the indestructible life of God added to His very being the body of a human and literally became one of us, God in flesh. He did not just appear to be a man nor become some kind of half-human/half-god hybrid like the Greek myths without ceasing to be fully God, He became fully man in every respect ...like we are, yet without sin! The life of God which was in the Person of God the Son walked about among us for 33 years, endured the phenomenon of the most awful physical death and demonstrated the power of His endless life by raising His body from the dead before returning to heaven to await our arrival! In Him was LIFE and:

3. this eternal life becomes ours when we receive Him Look at 5:12. It's that simple! When we recognize our sins and repent of them and ask for that gift of life, the Son of God Himself in the Person of His Holy Spirit comes to literally dwell in our bodies and joins His Spirit permanently with our Spirit so that His eternal, indestructible life literally becomes our life. We are grafted into the very life of God!

That's the message we have believed! That's the message we preach. And when we preach it, it has power to give people LIFE! Our message is literally the word of life! Dr. W. B. Hinson, respected pastor of East Side Baptist Church in Portland, spoke from his own experience just before he died in 1926. He said, "I remember a year ago when a doctor told me, 'You have an illness from which you won't recover.' I walked out to where I live, five miles from Portland, Oregon, and I looked across at that mountain that I love. I looked at the river in which I rejoice, and I looked at the stately trees that are always God's own poetry to my soul. Then in the evening I looked up into the great sky where God was lighting His lamps, and I said, 'I may not see you many more times, but Mountain, I shall be alive when you are gone; and River, I shall be alive when you cease running toward the sea; and Stars, I shall be alive when you have fallen from your sockets in the great downpulling of the material universe!'" Hallelujah! Glory to the Lamb of God! We have been given the word of LIFE! But how do we know that's true, that this eternal, indestructible life is really ours? Well, in verse 1, John tells us that:

II. Our Faith And Message Are Based On Absolute Certainty In that very first clause John is assuring us that:

1. he had followed Jesus from the very beginning of His ministry John had been there at the beginning of it all. He was a follower of John the Baptist. He had been there that day by the Jordan River with Andrew when John pointed to Jesus and cried out, Behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. If he did not see it personally, he had at least heard John tell how the Holy Spirit descended from heaven upon Jesus in the form of a dove and the Father's voice spoke from heaven saying, This is My Beloved Son... That very day he and Andrew went home with Jesus and spent the day with Him and became convinced that He was the Christ. From that day on he was with Jesus as much as any other man and eventually became a full-time disciple who traveled about with Jesus for three years. He mentions here that:

2. he personally heard the words that Jesus spoke They were not passed down to him by someone else as they were to Mark or Luke. He was standing there and heard the message of life proclaimed by Jesus Himself. He could vouch for its authenticity. And he reminds us that:

3. he personally saw Jesus both during His ministry and after His resurrection He saw all those miracles we only read about. He saw Jesus calm the storm and multiply the loaves and open blind eyes and cast out demons and heal the sick and raise the dead! He was a witness to Christ's resurrection. He saw Him in all His risen glory. And it was not a glimpse but prolonged gazing that led to true perception. He says, we've seen and we've looked upon Him. It was a long 3 ½ year look in every sort of circumstance. Further:

4. he personally touched Jesus and knew He was a real human being He touched Him many times. He leaned against Him as he reclined at the table at the Last Supper! He touched Him and ate with Him in Galilee after His resurrection. Jesus was not some figment of his imagination, not some surreal figure. He was a real man of flesh and bones and John could testify to it, no matter what all the heretics said a generation later! At the end of his Gospel, John wrote, This is the disciple who is bearing witness about these things, and who has written these things, and we know that his testimony is true. - John 21:24. That's exactly what John is saying to us, "I was there from the beginning; I heard Him, I saw Him, I touched Him, I lived with Him. He is the Christ, the Son of God and you have LIFE through His Name!" That's why:

5. he proclaimed this message to us with the authority of God He said it in verse 2 and a second time in verse 3. "I experienced Jesus and I am proclaiming to you what I experienced as a Divinely appointed witness. You can rest with absolute assurance and certainty in the message that I have proclaimed to you. It is true!"

Peter said the very same thing, For we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty. - 2 Pet 1:16. Our faith and our confidence of having life in Christ and all that we believe is not based on some theory or some ancient story. The word of life was proclaimed to us and written down for us by eyewitnesses like John and Peter whose lives were transformed by power of the living Christ! That's how we know for sure that we have life! Hallelujah again! Now, the third thing John tells us here is that:

III. Our Common Faith Binds Us Into A Fellowship (3) Fellowship, as we usually define it, is the half hour we spend talking together after church or the hour we spend eating snacks and chatting after small group or maybe at a church dinner. But in the Bible its meaning is far deeper. In the Greek, the word fellowship is koinonia, from the root which means in common and:

1. fellowship means sharing together in a common life and purpose. In Tolkien's Lord of the Rings story, seven characters bound themselves together with an oath to form the Fellowship Of The Ring. They pledged their lives to the common purpose of returning the ring of power to be destroyed in Mordor. Our forefathers gathered in Philadelphia in 1776 and signed a Declaration of Independence from Great Britain and in the last line of it they wrote, for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor. They formed a fellowship of United States committed to the cause of standing together against the British with everything they had. And in our case as followers of Christ, true fellowship means sharing together a common life devoted to the common cause of advancing Christ's Kingdom in this world! From the moment we believe the message and receive that common life of Christ:

2. we are immediately united in a fellowship with one another as verse (7) says. We become more than a group, an organization, a society, more even than a family. We become part of a fellowship with each other. We share common lives with one another as we pursue Jesus and together, we pledge everything we have and are to His service. We are the fellowship of believers, the fellowship of the faithful and that fellowship into which we are bound goes far beyond those believers that we see and know.

3. we are also united in fellowship with believers in all other times and places We are part of the fellowship that began with John and Peter and Paul and the Apostles. We share in the common life and purpose of all those who have followed them and believed their Word down through the ages. We are part of a fellowship that binds together believers in every country on earth who speak every language on earth and will one day soon extend to every distinct people group on earth. And:

4. we are ultimately united in fellowship with God the Father and Christ The life of our Heavenly Father and Jesus His Son is shared by every one of us down through the ages and everywhere. His Spirit lives in our bodies; His life has joined itself to our life so that we share a common life together with Him. And we share a common purpose, that the whole world may join this grand fellowship that elsewhere the Scripture calls the Church Jesus Christ! The union, the bond, that we have is so tight that He describes it as His body of which He Himself is the Head. This message we believe was proclaimed to us to bind us all into this one living organism together with Him, sharing His common life and accomplishing His purpose together for eternity! Now finally, John says that:

IV. This Letter Was Written To Fulfill Joy (4) This is one of those places in the text where we're not exactly sure what the original said. Some manuscripts say MY joy, while others say, YOUR joy. Does that erode our confidence in the Bible? Not at all! Actually, both things are true:

1. John's joy was made complete by believers walking in the truth Look over at 3 Jn. 4. John wrote this first letter to help believers hold fast to the truth of the word of life. So, he wrote it to increase his own joy as he saw this letter help all his spiritual children remain faithful to the message he had taught them. Then, looking from the other direction:

2. our joy is made complete by walking in the truth he wrote to us If we cling to the word that he proclaimed to us, OUR joy will be increased. WE will experience the fullness of joy that Jesus promised us.

So, this letter was written to bring joy all around, to both the writer and the readers as it moves us to stand firm in the united fellowship of the word of life and not be moved from it by the falsehoods that rage about us. You know, the "tongue in cheek" saying among pastors is that in the world of independent churches like this one, every man is his own "bishop". John was overseer of at least the 7 churches in Asia he mentions in Revelation. I've only been the overseer of one for many years now, probably longer than John had cared for these churches when he wrote this letter. He had come to see the believers of Asia as his spiritual children and he affectionately called them that. I understand that feeling; in that sense you are my spiritual children. And I can testify that what John says is true. The thing that gives me the greatest joy is when I see YOU standing firm in your faith in Jesus in a world that's trying to deceive you, serving Him with a deep passion that involves your whole heart and living lives dedicated to His purpose of seeing the whole world and every people group in it reached with the word of life that He's entrusted to us. That makes my joy complete; it thrills my heart; YOU are the fruit of my labors, my joy and my crown. So, my challenge is that of Paul to the Philippians he loved, Make my joy complete and make your own joy complete by living this common life that we share to the full for Jesus' glory.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

Walking In The Light - 1:5-10

There are only two options for knowing what God is like and we have a choice between them. We either choose to believe what God tells us about Himself through His Word or we choose to believe that God is actually the way we think He ought to be. In other words, WE decide what God is like and then believe it. We live in a day when people have largely rejected being told what to believe and would rather believe in a god who is made in their own image. They believe in a god who would never send anyone to hell, a god who would never condemn the practice of homosexuality or view abortion as the taking of a human life or call sex between two consenting adults morally wrong and actually evil because they are not married. They choose to believe in a god they have invented who is here to serve them and help them and make them feel good when they need him. Well, our culture today is not so very different from the Greek culture that surrounded John's beloved churches with its proliferation of gods, rampant immorality of all forms and universal practice of infanticide, including child sacrifice. John is writing to reaffirm to his sheep exactly what God is actually like and he has three themes in this short letter that he wrote. In chapters 1-2 he teaches us that God is LIGHT. In chapters 3-5:5 he teaches us that God is LOVE and in the rest of chapter 5, he teaches us that God is LIFE. It is that first theme we'll focus on today. In 1:5 John declares to us:

I. The Message We Have Received Concerning The Nature Of God (5) John says, "I'm writing to tell you, to proclaim to you, to pronounce with authority for you, what God is truly like!" And don't gloss over his first words; he says:

1. Jesus Himself sent this message to us Remember our last study? He says, "I saw Jesus, I touched Jesus, I HEARD Jesus! What I'm telling you now is not my own opinion, not some theological construct; I heard this from Jesus Himself and I'm declaring it to you!" Listen to what He said, ...Whoever believes in me, believes not in me but in him who sent me. And whoever sees me sees him who sent me. I have come into the world as light, so that whoever believes in me may not remain in darkness. - Jn. 12:44-46 "I am what My Father is; I am what GOD is! And I am LIGHT so."

2. God is LIGHT Now what does that mean? Paul put it like this: ...he who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords, who alone has immortality, who dwells in unapproachable light, whom no one has ever seen or can see. - 1 Tim. 6:15-16. Light means absolute good, perfect purity and complete holiness. God is the sum of all moral perfection, so pure that no human could approach Him ever, were it not for what His Son did at the cross. Light, moral purity, is not simply one of His characteristics; it is the core of His very nature. In fact, it is His nature that defines for us what good, pure and holy is! Now the converse of that is to say that:

3. God has absolutely NO darkness in Him Light has this amazing quality. Walk into a completely dark room and turn on the light and instantly there is no darkness. Turn on a flashlight and wherever you point it, the darkness disappears. Light and darkness cannot coexist; as soon as one is present the other is not, not only by definition, but in reality. Describing God's nature as light means there is absolutely no evil or impurity in Him. None! God never thinks an evil thought, never has a bad day, never slips up and does the wrong thing, never tells a little white lie, never delights in anything evil or impure, even for a split second! Habakkuk said God is ...of purer eyes than to see evil and cannot look at wrong.... - 1:13. He can't stand it, can't tolerate it, not the tiniest smidgeon of it; it utterly repulses Him and cannot be allowed to exist in His presence. You see, God ISN'T like us! He cannot be tempted by evil! He has no evil desires in Him that yearn for even a little bit of it. His eyes wouldn't linger on that risqué commercial even for a second nor would His mind even entertain the thought of returning evil for evil. That's why no human can approach Him except through Jesus!

But John's real point is that:

II. God's Nature Transforms Our Lives (6-7) We saw back in verse 3 that since Christ is in us:

1. we share His very life and nature We share a common life with Him. 2 Pet. 1:4 puts it like this, we become partakers of the Divine Nature. His nature is planted inside of us and joined to us. The very core of our being is literally made holy. Paul tells us to put on the new self, created after the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness. - Eph. 4:24. When we share His life, we share His nature. And:

2. sharing His nature transforms our walk, that is, the way we habitually live. When we are made new on the inside, we begin to live a new way. When we are made holy in our very nature, we begin to live a life that displays that holiness, whereas before, when our very nature was to sin, we could not help but live a life that displayed that nature, no matter how hard we tried. To put it another way, you expect a sinner to sin; it's his nature. You expect a saint to live a life of holy deeds; it's his nature. Look down to 2:6. If your life is bound to the life of Jesus Christ, you will live like He lived. Therefore, verse 6 says:

a. if we walk in darkness, our deeds prove that we are lying about knowing Him If the habitual pattern of our behavior is evil and the desire of our hearts is after evil things, we can say we know Jesus all we want; we can say we love Jesus and believe in Him and follow Him and even believe that, but we're lying and our deeds are the evidence that proves it! Look ahead to 3:9. God's seed, God's very nature as light, remains in us if we are truly born of Him and we cannot continue to practice sin, to live a life of it. It is absolutely impossible for us. If we do, He's not in us. You can't have it both ways. But conversely, verse 7 says that:

b. if we walk in light as He does, if we live a life characterized by holiness and righteous deeds like His life, two things happen. First:

(1) we express the common life we have with one another and Him We display the very life of Christ that is in us, which all of us share in together. And:

(2) Christ's blood continually cleanses us from all sin The blood of Christ washed us from the guilt of all our sins the moment we trusted in Him. But it also changed the very nature of who we are so that now, to use Adam Clarke's phrase, it keeps clean what it has made clean. Our new nature is repulsed by sin and continually weeds it out of our lives over and over again. By changing us, it cleanses our present lives.

OK, so if all of that is true, you don't have to be a rocket scientist to ask the obvious question, "Then why aren't we perfect?"

III. What About The Fact That We Still Sin? That's what John goes on to deal with in verses (8-10). Now:

1. we could claim that the force of sin is not in us (8) There were some people who wanted the label of Christian, mainly the Gnostics of John's day, who claimed to have superior knowledge, who did not believe that sin was a reality in their lives. Somehow, it's strange that the most educated and even religiously educated people in our own day believe nearly the same thing. Man is basically good, not sinful by nature. What we call sin is just bad judgment and mistakes, unhelpful choices that will go away if we get more enlightened! There is nothing wrong inside of me! Well, John says:

a. that would be to deceive ourselves When he looked deep within himself, even the godly Apostle Paul found sin still there. Look with me Rom. 7:18-20, 23. Yes, I have a new nature; that's what makes me WANT to do good. But this force, this power called sin, still dwells in me, not in my spirit which is joined to the Holy Spirit and made holy, but in my flesh, in my physical body and in my mind, my thought patterns. It didn't go away when I got saved. And there's a war on. This evil force or power called sin that lives in my flesh is always attacking my mind which wants to obey my true nature and do good, and I must choose which force I'm going to yield to in order to walk in the Spirit which is to walk in the light. If we were to claim that we were already perfect and that sin was totally removed:

b. it would prove that the truth is not in us, that God's truth is not the inner principle that animates our lives. Listen, Muslims do not believe in the indwelling presence of sin. Jews do not believe in it. Mormons do not believe in it. Unitarians and millions of liberal protestants who don't cling to the truth of the Bible don't believe in it either. The average man on the street certainly doesn't. But if we genuinely belong to Christ, our very nature causes us to recognize the presence and power of sin dwelling in us, even though our spirit is transformed and made holy. We recognize the battle and stand ready to fight it! Or as some others do:

2. we could claim that we no longer commit sins, that is individual acts of sin (10) The claim that I can reach perfection in this life, that I can literally live totally without sinning has been put forth more than once in the history of the church. But John says:

a. that would be to make God a liar Solomon said to God, ...there is no one who does not sin... in 1 Kin. 8:46 and in the New Testament, James wrote to believers, ...we all stumble in many ways. - Jas. 3:2. God says that we sin! And if we say we don't:

b. it would prove that His Word is not in us, that His Word is not the abiding principle that animates our lives. The idea that I can attain a place where in thought, word and deed I am pure and without sin is a proud notion. I love what one blogger on the internet wrote about this, "What saint can be named in God's Word, of whose life many details are recorded, who was literally and absolutely perfect? Which of them all, when writing about himself, ever talks of feeling free from imperfection? On the contrary, men like David, and St. Paul, and St. John, declare in the strongest language that they feel in their own hearts weakness and sin. The holiest men of modern times have always been remarkable for deep humility. Have we ever seen holier men than the martyred John Bradford, or Hooker, or Usher, or Baxter, or Rutherford, or McCheyne? Yet no one can read the writings and letters of these men without seeing that they felt themselves 'debtors to mercy and grace' every day, and the very last thing they would ever claim was perfect- tion!" A young minister told the Scottish church leader Alexander Whyte about an acquaintance who claimed he could go several days without consciously sinning. The youthful pastor then asked the older preacher if that man's evaluation of himself was correct. Whyte, his eyes shining with an intensity that revealed deep conviction, replied, "No, sir! No man who has seen the exquisite holiness of God would say a thing like that!" Yes, the truth is that the force called sin still lives in us and we still commit sins, but:

3. if we truly know God, we continually confess our sins to Him (9) The hallmark of the genuine believer is not perfection but confession! We abhor sin and when we find it in ourselves, we admit it to God; we cry out to Him and tell Him about it. Why?

a. not to obtain forgiveness for the guilt of those sins - Heb. 10:10 says that ...we have been sanctified [made holy] through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. Christ's sacrifice removed the guilt of all my sins, past, present and future, once and for all the moment I believed. We do not have to "keep up with" clearing away the guilt of the things we do one at a time. We don't confess them to make sure we are forgiven and that we'll go to heaven...

b. but to rid our lives of them that we might walk in light with Him We want them out of our lives. We want to be honest with God; we want nothing to hinder or stand in the way of the daily communion we have and we want His power in enabling us to remove them and stand against them so that we keep on walking in purity and holiness with Him!

And on the other hand, the second half of verse 9 tells us that:

4. God is perpetually faithful to us He never changes. He doesn't love us one day and stand against us the next. He knows we are children who still sin and He is ALWAYS willing to hear us as we confess and to move powerfully in our lives. And, John reminds us, He is also just; it is RIGHT for Him to love and draw near to us even though we sin because of the sacrifice of Christ. His justice was satisfied at the cross so that He can faithfully show us mercy now and forever. And in that mercy:

a. He forgives ALL of our sins Even the worst ones. Even the ones we commit today and the ones we'll likely commit tomorrow. The Psalmist said, If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities, O Lord, who could stand? - Ps. 130:3. If God held on to them and kept record of them against us, none of us could stand before His holy presence. But now in His mercy He has removed them from us as far as the east is from the west! He will not let them come between us. Every last one! He is faithful to do that! But He does something even more:

b. He purifies us by removing unrighteousness from our lives As we confess to Him and admit what we've done to Him and ask His help, He empowers us and enables us to defeat the power of that force of sin in our flesh and to choose to walk with Him in the light.

That's what He wants, for us to walk with Him in the light, to admit it when we fail and allow His grace to change us so that we keep on walking in the light, in that common life we share with Him. In 1818, Ignaz Phillip Semmelweis was born into a world where young women routinely died. The finest hospitals lost one out of six young mothers to the scourge of what they called "childbed fever." The reason was that a doctor's daily routine normally began in the dissecting room where he performed autopsies. From there he made his way to the hospital to examine expectant mothers without ever pausing to wash his hands. Dr. Semmelweis was the first man in history to associate such examinations with the resultant infection and death. His own practice was to wash with a chlorine solution, and after eleven years and the delivery of 8,537 babies, he lost only 184 mothers--about one in fifty. He spent the vigor of his life lecturing and debating with his colleagues. Once he argued, "Puerperal fever is caused by decomposed material, conveyed to a wound... I have shown how it can be prevented. I have proved all that I have said. But while we talk, talk, talk, Gentlemen, women are dying! I am not asking anything world shaking. I am asking you only to wash... For God's sake, wash your hands." But virtually no one believed him. Doctors and midwives had been delivering babies for thousands of years without washing, and no outspoken Hungarian was going to change them now! Semmelweis died insane at the age of 47, his wash basins discarded, his colleagues laughing in his face, and the death rattle of a thousand women ringing in his ears. [Boyce Mouton]. "Wash me!" was the anguished prayer of King David after his great sin, multiple times. James admonished us: Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded. Be wretched and mourn and weep. Let your laughter be turned to mourning and your joy to gloom. Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will exalt you. - Jas. 4:6-8. As Dr. Semmelweis put it, "For God's sake, wash!" Walk in the light as He is in the light and His blood will cleanse you from all sin.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

Christ Our Advocate - 2:1-6

As followers of Jesus, we continually live on two horns of a dilemma, as John pointed out to us in chapter 1. On the one hand, God is light, perfect purity and holiness, and if we truly belong to Him, we have His nature, so we walk in the light. That is, the normal pattern of our actions is righteous, pure and holy. But on the other hand, we all have the power of sin living in our flesh and every one of us still sins, without exception. And when we sin, the natural thing for us to do is to question ourselves. "How can I really know God and DO that? How can I really know Jesus and TALK like that? How can I be saved and FEEL like that?" And Satan the accuser is always quick to have one of his demonic henchmen right there to plant those thoughts in our mind. The issue is how can we be SURE of our salvation. How can we KNOW that we truly belong to God when there are lots of times in our lives when we don't act like it? Well, assurance is one of John's themes throughout this letter; he wants his dear children whom he loves to live in complete assurance and not wander around questioning their salvation every time they do something wrong. I have known people who struggle with that issue, especially people who have been taught that you can lose your salvation, that you can sin in such a way as to separate yourself from God. The result of this thinking is that you have people inviting Christ into their lives over and over again, never quite knowing whether it "worked", but what is really sad is that they spend their lives focused on themselves and their own salvation, rather than having a deep concern for the salvation of others, let alone the world. They don't take an active part in carrying out the commission that Jesus gave us; Satan effectively disables them from serving God's purpose. Maybe the kind of person I'm talking about this morning is YOU; maybe you struggle with this kind of doubt about your salvation. Or maybe it's someone you know today or someone you'll meet tomorrow. So, listen carefully as John explains to us:

I. Our Assurance As Believers Who Do Sometimes Sin (1-2) In the previous couple of verses John strongly declared to us that sin still dwells in us and that we still sin. He even told us that our normal pattern of life is to confess our sins. But he didn't write all of that to excuse our sinning. Both His writing and:

1. our purposeful intention is always NOT to sin Our aim, our goal, is always perfect purity, perfect sinlessness, to be holy as God is holy. Just because the standard is unattainable in this life doesn't mean that we abandon trying. A perfect score may be unattainable in many endeavors in life, in athletics or dance or academics. Yet rather than discouraging us and causing us to quit trying, it is the existence of the perfect score that moves us and drives us to strive for it; it becomes the goal toward which we push ourselves! For example, the name Stradivarius is synonymous with fine violins. This is because Antonius Stradivarius insisted that no instrument constructed in his shop be sold until it was as near perfection as human care and skill could make it. Stradivarius observed, "God needs violins to send His music into the world, and if any violins are defective, God's music will be spoiled." His work philosophy was summed up in one sentence, "Other men will make other violins, but no man shall make a better one." Dear friends, God needs PEOPLE to send His MESSAGE into the world and if those people are defective, the delivery of His message to all peoples will be spoiled! So our goal, our intent, our aim, is to strive with all our being to reflect the nature of our Master, to NOT sin:

2. yet, John says, if we DO sin, we have perpetual assurance of acceptance by the Father in spite of it! We can be flawed and imperfect and fail and still know that we are fully and completely accepted by our Heavenly Father. How? What gives us that kind of assurance? John says, in most translations:

a. we have an advocate, we have One who is before the Father on our behalf in the NIV. We have Somebody there in heaven in the presence of the Father who is literally in the Greek, our paraclete, one who is called to help us, our helper, our aid, one whose presence brings us comfort. You'll recognize that term. Jesus said, "I'm leaving and going to the Father, but I'll send you another Comforter, another paraclete, another Person like Me to stand alongside you and act on your behalf, the Holy Spirit." So just as the Holy Spirit is our advocate on earth:

b. our advocate in heaven is Jesus who is perfectly righteous. WE may not be perfectly righteous; we may still sin. But we have One whose life is joined to ours who is seated there in Heaven perpetually at the Father's right hand and He is perfectly righteous, absolutely without sin. He meets the standard of holiness which is the very nature of God. He IS holy as the Father is Holy! He IS perfect as the Father is perfect. But not only that:

c. He Himself is the sacrifice which completely atoned for our sins He is the propitiation, to use the theological word; He Himself is that which fully satisfied the wrath of God upon our sins and freed us from their eternal penalty. The One who stands in the Father's presence is Himself the One whose perfect sacrifice released us from the penalty of all our sins, once for all, forever. So, the point really is that:

d. His living Presence with the Father is our guarantee - Heb. 7:25 says, Therefore he is able to save completely those who come to God through him, because he always lives to intercede for them. One commentary says The Father, by raising Him from the dead, and setting Him at His own right, has once for all accepted Christ's claim for us. Therefore, the accuser's charges against God's children are vain. As Martin Luther said: "The righteousness of Christ stands on our side; for God's righteousness is, in Jesus Christ, ours." Hallelujah! Our righteous, perfect Advocate is always there interceding for us. Now, how does He do that. Often, we picture His interceding as a conversation as the NIV does; we think of Him as speaking to the Father every time we sin, as though He has to remind the Father, "I died for that sin..." To me that's faulty theology. It says that the Father is mad at us for sinning and wants to punish us, but Jesus has to continually keep Him from it. That would make us fear God the Father, but love Jesus and it's just not true! In the Upper Room Jesus told us, No, the Father himself loves you because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God. - John 16:27. Jesus doesn't have to talk to the Father to remind Him of anything; it is Jesus' very PRESENCE there which perpetually assures our salvation because we are already there and seated with Him! Or visualize it like this. In the Old Testament, the High Priest went into the Holy of Holies, into the very presence of God once a year to sprinkle the blood of the lamb that made atonement for the people on the mercy seat. And then he would leave and come back next year to cover that year's sins. The fact that he had to go again and again was a perpetual reminder of sins. But our High Priest went into the Holy of Holies, into the very presence of the Father in heaven, with His own blood as the perfect offering and He sat down there! He stayed there! He had no need to come back later to do more! His very presence with the Father is the interceding, it is our guarantee that our salvation is permanent. It is not conditional upon anything we do or don't do. It is as secure as Christ Himself seated on the Throne! That's why we freely confess when we sin. We know we're already forgiven but we don't want anything to mar the communion of the beautiful relationship that we have with Him.

Steve Lawson writes, "A wealthy English merchant lived on the European continent. He was very eccentric and satisfied with only the best of everything. So naturally, he had to drive a Rolls-Royce. It was his pride and joy, but one day after years of perfect service, he hit a deep pothole and his rear axle broke. The Englishman shipped the car back to the Rolls-Royce plant and was surprised when the car was repaired overnight and returned to him without a bill. Although his warranty had run out, there was no charge. The car was fixed perfectly, all for free. The owner called the company and inquired about the repair. The reply was, 'We have absolutely no record of your Rolls-Royce axle ever breaking. There can be no charge.' The company's commitment to excellence would not permit a flaw to be made known. Therefore, they had repaired the damage immediately and without charge...as if nothing had ever gone wrong." [When All Hell Breaks Loose by Steven J. Lawson.1993. Page 251.] I realize that illustrations are always flawed, but that's how it is with God's grace when we sin. To Him the damage was so thoroughly repaired through the sacrifice of Christ that we can approach him still after we sin in the absolute assurance that our relationship is as complete and intact as though nothing had ever gone wrong! Hallelujah! But notice in verse 2 that John adds another phrase to remind us that this blessed assurance is not intended to be something that we sit and celebrate in a self-centered fashion. He says that:

3. His sacrifice is sufficient for the sins of the whole world; it isn't just for us to sit in our meetings and revel in with one another. It is for us to declare to the world. Jesus died for the sins of the whole world. And I realize that I'm probably stepping on someone's theology in saying this, but I truly believe that when John wrote that:

a. this means the entire human race, not just believers who live all over the world geographically. Look ahead to 4:14. Then notice how John uses the same phrase in 5:19. The whole world there definitely includes nonbelievers; it means the whole race. Jesus died to provide forgiveness for the sins of ALL men. In fact, look at what Peter said in 2 Pet. 2:1. He said that even false prophets and:

b. rejecters deny the very Lord who bought them The price for their salvation was paid at the cross, even though they have refused to receive it! To say it in standard terms, Christ's death is sufficient for all men but efficient only for believers. They are the only ones it actually saves.

However, I think John mentions it so that we never forget that this message of absolute forgiveness we have through Jesus needs to be delivered to the whole world so that they have the opportunity to receive it! That is our purpose, our goal, our assignment, not to simply celebrate our own forgiveness continually.

OK, so we know that forgiveness is absolutely intact forever once a person comes to actually know Jesus and be joined to His perfect life. But how do we know that WE are such a person, that we are not merely fooling ourselves, that the sins we commit are not evidence that we are still lost and merely saying the right things? Well John goes on to explain:

II. Our Assurance That We Truly Know Christ (3-5) John says:

1. the proof that we know Him (and he means the internal proof that we have for ourselves, our own inner assurance) is that we keep His commands. We look at our own life and examine it and what we find as the general pattern of our life is that we obey Him, we do what He commanded us to do. John adds:

a. to say "I know Him" without keeping His commands is a lie John has in mind here a group of people in his day who were known as "Gnostics". The term comes from the Greek word gnosis which means knowledge. They claimed to know God. They claimed to know Jesus as an emanation of God, but their beliefs made no change in their moral behavior. They lived however they pleased. To them sin was a non-existent thing; what you did didn't matter. It was only what you thought that was important. We have some "Gnostics" around today, don't we? They say, "I know God; I believe in Jesus." but they live like the devil. John says they're lying; there's no truth in them. You can't KNOW Jesus and not keep His commands. Paul says about such people, They profess to know God, but they deny him by their works. They are detestable, disobedient, unfit for any good work. - Titus 1:16. To really know Jesus results in regularly keeping the commands He gave us. Or to put it another way:

b. keeping His Word is the full manifestation of loving Him Jesus told His disciples, If you love me, you will keep my commandments. - John 14:15. That love will not just be emotional; it will not just be a warm fuzzy feeling. Genuine love results in actions that prove it. If we genuinely love Jesus, that love drives us to keep His Word, to do what He told us to do, to live like He told us to live. Jesus said you can tell what a tree really is by its fruit. You may not be able to tell an apple tree from a peach tree by their leaves or their shape. But when the tree begins to produce apples, you know that it's an apple tree, because apple trees produce apples. And "Jesus trees" produce the fruit of "Jesus", the fruit of His Spirit in holy character, purity, love and all the rest. The fruit is the full manifestation of the nature of the tree that proves what the tree really is. So, as we look at our own lives:

c. seeing ourselves continually keep His Word assures us It is by this, by the fact that we continually want to and are working to and are succeeding in obeying Jesus, even though we sometimes fail and fall, that we know that we are truly IN HIM, that our lives have been joined with His, that as He is seated there before the Throne in complete communion with the Father, so are we! Our behavior assures our own hearts that we know Him. On the other hand, if our life is a continual pattern of doing what WE want, and breaking His commands to suit ourselves, that's a huge red flag and maybe we need to examine ourselves to see whether we are truly in the faith! Verse (6) states the point quite clearly:

2. whoever claims continuing relationship with Him MUST continually live as He lived, walk as He walked. Of course, that doesn't mean that we must all be itinerant preachers and be celibate and not have a home; it refers to the nature, the character, of the way He lived. To live as He lived is another synonym for the others we've seen. It means to keep His Word, to obey His commands, to walk in the light as He is in the light, to live morally the kind of life that He lived. We owe it to Him. It is our nature and it is our duty. He died for our sins; how can we possibly go on sinning nonchalantly after that and not strive with everything we have to live His way? We can't! If we truly know Him, we'll live like Him.

What is the character of your life like? Do you sin regularly and not care about it? Do you lie to get your own way? Do you say awful things about others and gossip about them? Do you steal things from work and cheat on your taxes? Do you sleep with people you're not married to or look at pornography on the internet? I'm not asking, "Did you ever..."; I'm asking what characterizes your life. How do you LIVE? If the pattern of your life is, "I always try to tell the truth; I try to only say things which are wholesome and useful; I am trustworthy with money and material things and I am careful to be faithful to my spouse and to keep my mind pure of lust", that is the evidence that you really DO know Christ. Remember, John is writing to give us assurance, but genuine assurance, not false assurance. And that assurance is so basic to our Christian lives. In an interview for Discipleship Journal, J. I. Packer, the eminent British theologian who wrote the well-known book Knowing God, was asked what gives him joy. "The first and basic thing," he responded, "[is] knowing that I am a child of God--knowing that I am secure in His hands, that He is my Heavenly Father, that this is His world and everything that happens to me is programmed by Him for my good, so that in the deepest sense I have nothing to worry about. I would testify in any company," Packer went on, "to the fact that this is the complete opposite of where I was and what I was before I became a Christian...Because then I was running, if not scared, at least nervous. I was insecure. I didn't know where I was. I was frightened of many things. And God has changed all that. There is joy in the knowledge of that relationship." That joy of security is what John is trying to give us all. I trust that joy is yours.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

The New Commandment - 2:7-11

Today in our study we arrive at something of a transition. The most important theme in John's letter so far has been that of 1:5, God is LIGHT and John has focused on how our lives must mirror God's purity and holiness. But now we transition to his second and most important theme which is summarized in 4:8, which says that God is LOVE and John begins to show us how our lives must mirror God's immense love. Not only does the word love itself occur 24 times in these five short chapters, but John begins talking about it in verse 7 without actually using the word (7). Everybody he was writing to understood:

I. The Commandment John Was Referring To It was the command to Love One Another that Jesus gave. How do we know that? Well:

1. it is mentioned directly in what follows As he breaks down his subject in detail, he immediately spells it out in verse (10a). And by the time we get to 3:11 he says it straight out. John wants now to talk about this most important and central of all the commandments. Why? You'll notice that:

2. it flows naturally from what precedes Look at verse (3). What commandments of Christ is he talking about that we will keep if we have truly come to know Him? The chief is, of course, the command to love. And then look at verse (6). How did Jesus walk? How did He live? What characterized His life more than anything else? Love! That's what should pervade our lives! But before we can look further at what John has to tell us about it, the command:

3. it must be understood clearly First of all, in Greek the word:

a. love is agape You realize that John was careful not to use eros, the word for romantic love or the word phileo, which means family or friendship love, deep affection. Agape means selfless commitment of the kind that God displays. In fact, the best way to define it is as John does in 3:16. Agape is a complete combination of emotion and action. It is not merely a warm compassionate feeling toward someone without actions; neither is it acting to help someone without emotional caring. Agape is caring so deeply for another that we are willing to act, to sacrifice ourselves, to give up what is precious to us and even lay down our very lives for the benefit of others. By definition, love is to care about others in the same way that God cared about us in sending His only Son to die for us, in the same way that Jesus cared about us by dying for us while we were yet sinners. It is to put the well-being of the other above our own, regardless of the cost. Now notice the second part of the command. Who does:

b. one another refer to? When you come to verses 9-11 you have another term to describe who we're to love, brother. In its most literal sense, the command specifically means to love other believers in Jesus. It was given first and foremost to us who are part of the family of God to define the way that we must relate to one another in everything. However, our love cannot be limited to only to fellow believers, just as God's love is not limited to us. Love does not have boundaries. When love is present, it cannot be contained; it spills out, it overflows onto the whole world, even to enemies. Love ultimately expands to include all, but it starts with each other.

Now, what does John want to tell us about love? Well, it may be stating the obvious, but first of all:

II. Love Is A Commandment We Must Obey (7-8) A commandment is something to be done, something we choose to carry out and obey. It does not happen automatically, rather it involves our will, our choice. If you're 5' 2" tall, to command you to grow is useless, isn't it? You either will or won't, depending on how old you are and there's nothing you can do about it. To issue a command implies that love is something we must cultivate, that we must work at, that we must struggle to accomplish! It involves our will; we must choose to love! And the first thing John tells us is that:

1. it is an old commandment, one that we've had from the beginning. Beginning of what? Well, in one sense, it is so old that:

a. it was given in the Old Testament to God's People Way back in Lev. 19:17-18 God gave this command through Moses, Do not hate your brother in your heart. Rebuke your neighbor frankly so you will not share in his guilt. Do not seek revenge or bear a grudge against one of your people, but love your neighbor as yourself. I am the LORD. From the very beginning there at Mt. Sinai, God commanded His people to love one another! Of course, through the years that command kind of got slipped down to the bottom of the pile. God's people knew it was there but with hundreds of commands to remember and follow, it did not seem to stand out. Remember one day an expert in the Law came to Jesus to test Him and asked what he had to do to inherit eternal life. And Jesus turned it around and put the question to him, What is written? How do you read it? And this lawyer summed up the whole law in just two commandments, Love the Lord your God with all your heart and love your neighbor as yourself. And Jesus commended him for seeing that love was God's whole point concerning relationships with other people. But, realizing that he couldn't possibly keep it, the lawyer turned around and asked, And who is my neighbor? Jesus answered by telling the story of the Good Samaritan, as if to say, "Love any person you find lying in a ditch, whoever they may be!" [Luke 10:27-37] It's a command God's people have always known, but they really don't want to keep! In another sense it's old because:

b. it was given by Jesus from the very beginning, from the time He began to build His church. In the Sermon on the Mount, He challenged His followers, You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you - Mat. 5:43-44. Throughout His ministry Jesus challenged His followers to love, but what John is most likely referring to is that special night in the Upper Room. Look with me at John 13:34-35. And He repeated Himself in 15:12. He engraved it upon their minds. He set it up as the hallmark that would identify His followers, the one thing that would set them apart from all the other people on earth. They wouldn't just show niceness and kindness; they would sacrificially love one another in a way the world was not used to seeing. And that's exactly what happened. Love became their trademark. About 200 AD, a believer named Tertullian who lived in Carthage in North Africa wrote a defense of Christian faith called The Apology. Contrasting the practices of Christians with that of the Roman public he wrote: Though we have our treasure-chest, it is not made up of purchase-money, as of a religion that has its price. On the monthly day, if he likes, each puts in a small donation; but only if it be his pleasure, and only if he be able: for there is no compulsion; all is voluntary. These gifts are, as it were, piety's deposit fund. For they are not taken thence and spent on feasts, and drinking-bouts, and eating-houses, but to support and bury poor people, to supply the wants of boys and girls destitute of means and parents, and of old persons confined now to the house; such, too, as have suffered shipwreck; and if there happen to be any in the mines, or banished to the islands, or shut up in the prisons, for nothing but their fidelity to the cause of God's Church, they become the nurslings of their confession. But it is mainly the deeds of a love so noble that lead many to put a brand upon us. See, they say, how they love one another, for themselves are animated by mutual hatred; how they are ready even to die for one another, for they themselves will sooner put to death. [Tertullian's Apology Ch. 39]. Some 170 years after Jesus commanded it, His followers were still obeying it, even as they are today 2,000 years later. It's an old command we've had from the very beginning. And certainly:

c. it is taught to Christians from the time they believe From little on up or from the time we believe, we are taught, Love one another! It's something we have always known, something we've heard over and over again, something we sing about. But:

2. yet, John says, it is a new commandment, not new in the sense of age. John is careful to use the Greek word kainos which means new in the sense of fresh. We always buy used cars, but when we buy one, I still say, "We got a NEW car". It has been around a few years but it is "new to us"; it is fresh. That's how it was both for Jesus and for us. Do you see:

a. Jesus took the old command to love your neighbor that was in the Law and made it fresh for His disciples when He said Love one another! It wasn't that they didn't know it; but it needed to have a brand new focus in their lives, to be shuffled from the bottom of the deck to the top and lived out. It had to be made new all over again. And that's what John is saying to us:

b. we need to take the old and make it fresh in our own lives We've known it forever, but we need to restore it to its rightful place and priority in our lives. We need to actually LOVE one another, to fill our lives afresh with it, just the way those early believers did with sacrificial acts of caring that make no sense to the rest of the self-centered world! How do we do that? We CHOOSE to do it! It's a command! I found this illustration fitting: When snow skiers want to make a turn, they do it by shifting most of their weight to the left or the right foot. As that ski begins to bank in the intended direction, the other follows naturally. One foot can never get too far from the other. Now apply this to love, which must combine emotional caring with action. Think of a self-giving act as the weight we put on the turning leg. At first it may be a feelingless deed; but before long, emotion comes into line with it. The key to loving is the will. We can obey a command, but we cannot command a feeling into existence. So, when we don't feel like loving, we can still act in a loving way. In Leviticus 19 God was specific in His command to love. He told His people to leave gleanings in the field for the poor; not to be partial; not to put a stumbling block before the blind and a host of other things which culminated in the summary, Love your neighbor as yourself! Loving their neighbor started with choosing to act! In his book Mere Christianity, C. S. Lewis wrote, "Do not waste your time bothering whether you 'love' your neighbor; act as if you did. As soon as we do this, we find one of the great secrets. When you are behaving as if you loved someone, you will presently come to love him. If you injure someone you dislike, you will find yourself disliking him more. If you do him a good turn, you will find yourself disliking him less." Choose to make that old commandment fresh in each situation you find yourself in. Act lovingly and genuine love will be the result. Now why should that work for us?

c. we do this, John says, because His light is already shining in us and as it shines brighter, it causes the darkness to pass more and more out of our lives. 2 Cor. 4:6 says, "...God, who said, 'Let light shine out of darkness,' has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. His light is already inside us; it's shining there and as we choose to obey and cooperate, it shines brighter and brighter and we live lives characterized by love.

Now we're beginning to consider the second thing John tells us in the next three verses. Love is more than a commandment:

III. Love Is The Manifestation Of Our New Nature You see, love is a character quality that has been planted inside of us in the new Christ-like nature that we were given when we received Him. It is the fruit of the presence of the Holy Spirit in us. That's why John now says that:

1. hatred of a brother reveals the presence of an old, darkened nature (9, 11) Now he talks about the opposite emotion, about hate. What's hate? The dictionary says to hate is to dislike intensely or passionately; to feel extreme aversion for or extreme hostility toward; to detest - usually deriving from fear, anger, or a sense of injury. The world of John's day was filled with it. Jews hated the Gentiles. Jews hated Romans. Romans hated Jews. Romans hated barbarians. Slaves often hated masters and important public figures often hated one another. Hate was enmeshed in every stratum of the Roman world. And everybody hated Christians; by law they were criminals, enemies of the state and rebels against the Empire. We don't like to admit it but we've all seen and experienced hatred in our world too; we've all felt it at one point or another. When he was in the eighth grade, Spencer Perkins had the "privilege" of being the first black student in his town's public schools. Even before the first bell rang, he had already been called "nigger" several times. Spencer observed that there were two issues that generated a lot of anger in his classmates that year. One was, as one white student put it, "Why do we have to go to school with a nigger?" The white teacher struggled to come up with a satisfactory answer, but what hit Spencer the hardest was that it was obviously OK for the other boy to refer to him as a "nigger." The irony of the situation was that the other major issue that year was school prayer. The other students in the class were outraged that the Supreme Court had outlawed prayer in public schools. In fact, it made them almost as angry as Spencer's presence in the classroom. These young "Christians" applauded enthusiastically when the teacher announced that he would continue to open every class with prayer in spite of the ruling. Says Perkins, "Neither my young classmates nor my teachers saw any contradiction between their professed love for God and their disgust for me..." [Reconciliation Wednesday for Leaders, Apr 9, 1997. Page 1.] That's the contradiction that John is pointing out. Whether it is ethnic hatred, religious hatred like that we've seen toward Muslims since 9/11, or hatred of someone who's hurt you, or, God forbid, hatred of a brother or sister in the body of Christ, hatred cannot exist in the same heart with the genuine love placed there by God! That's why he says in these verses:

a. the one hating IS STILL in darkness That is, he has an unregenerate heart. If he can hate his brother, he's never been truly reborn of the Spirit of God. He's manifesting the evil of his true nature within him. Not only that, John says in verse 11:

b. the one hating WALKS in darkness That is, he lives an ungodly way of life. His actions continually reflect the darkness that fills his heart. He makes choices in life that are self-centered, rather than God-centered, because he doesn't really love God. As he acts and speaks in hate, he is living out of the darkness that's inside. And what's worse, John says, is that:

c. the one hating is BLINDED by darkness That is, he is unaware of his condition. He can't see it; the evil one has blinded his mind to it. He practices hate and thinks he's doing good! That's what frustrates us. We think, "How can you NOT see the nature of what you're doing? How can you not see how awful it is, how wrong it is?" Blind people can't see, no matter how much you want them to or tell them to, because the blindness is inside. Only God can change it!

Hate is a big red flag! To say, "I love God" and still hate is a contradiction. If you see traces of it in yourself, cry out to God to see what's really true about you! But on the other hand:

2. loving a brother reveals the presence of a new nature (10) Displaying the very love of God toward brothers and sisters, even toward those who curse or persecute us:

a. it demonstrates a continuing connection to the light It shows the light of God's presence is truly in us and we're staying connected to it. And:

b. it shows there is no stumbling block in the one doing the loving There's no snare, no trap, no false, deceptive thing inside, only the genuine thing, the very nature of God Himself, the love of God that has been placed there by His Spirit. The new nature inside is showing itself outwardly in actions.

So, choose to cultivate the new nature. Choose to act out of the love that's inside you and allow it to blossom into all that God intends it to be. In the first little country church I pastored there was an older widow who had one daughter. The daughter had been raised in the church and was an active believer. But her mother sent her off to college and college did a real number on her faith, as it has for so many young people. She was no longer sure about the reality of what she believed. Sadly, one of her male professors got involved with her sexually and she got pregnant and came home to have her baby as a single mom. Of course, in those days, there was much more of a tremendous stigma and shame attached to that than there is today. And I remember visiting the elderly mother and her telling me this story and it coming down to this sentence, "I hate that man. He ruined my daughter." I was shocked! I was certainly sympathetic and sorry for the tremendous pain she suffered as she endured all of this, but no amount of words seemed to change her heart. Raised in church all her life, she hated that man and wished him dead. As I recall the daughter was ill with some protracted disease they couldn't really diagnose and died at some point, maybe after I was gone. I was only there two years, so I don't know whether that hatred persisted or not; I hope the Lord rooted it out of her life eventually. But I know this: there are many people in this room right now that have plenty of reason enough to hate somebody. Maybe you've been deserted, abandoned, betrayed, abused, bankrupted, threatened or fired by somebody who really ruined your life. Maybe it was something far less than that. Maybe it was even a brother or sister in Christ. But I will tell you this, if you can truly hate them and continue in it without remorse, John says, "How can the love of Christ dwell in you?" If that love truly lives in you, cultivate it, choose to act out of it, whether you feel like it or not. Cry out to God for the grace to obey His commandment to love and you'll find the strength to do what's humanly impossible, to love with the very love of God.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

Do Not Love The World - 2:12-17

Last time as we looked at verses 7-11, we saw how John emphasized that special command given to us as believers to love one another. Now as he moves forward, in verse 15 he is going to give us an opposite command and tell us what NOT to love! In living the Christian life, we have two enemy forces that oppose us and seek to destroy us. First, we have an internal enemy, the force of sin dwelling inside our minds and bodies and striving to control us through our flesh, the learned patterns of thinking, feeling and acting that have been ingrained in us. But we also have an external enemy, the world in which we live with all of its evil influences and enticements, complete with Satan its ruler. In the upper room on His last night with His disciples, Jesus Himself made the same contrast that John makes here in his letter, This is my command: Love each other. If the world hates you, keep in mind that it hated me first. If you belonged to the world, it would love you as its own. As it is, you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world. That is why the world hates you. - Jn. 15:17-19. As believers, we have been chosen out of the world and set apart from it. We don't belong to it anymore; our citizenship is in heaven! So, the whole of our Christian lives, the world is set against us and is constantly trying to do one of two things. Its first strategy is to woo us into loving it, to lure us to fall back into its ways of thinking and acting so as to absorb us into itself and reclaim us. Or in times and places where that fails, it will attempt to destroy us outright through persecution. Now as we think about facing this lifelong battle, let's read:

I. The Assurance John Gives Us (12-14) This portion is written in sort of a poetic format, but let me summarize for you what John is trying to get across. That first little children in verse 12 means ALL of us; John uses it seven times in this letter as his tender term of address to us; we saw it back in verse 1 and we'll see it throughout. So, what John writes here is meant for all of us who believe, even though, as he goes on to indicate:

1. we may be at different stages in life physically and spiritually Some of us are "fathers". We are older physically and more spiritually mature. Just as Israel in their villages had "elders", respected men of the community who were looked to for example, advice and judgment, so in the body of Christ we have spiritual "fathers" (and "mothers" too) whom we look to as our moral and spiritual examples. Then some of us are "young men", vital and strong and in the prime of life both physically and spiritually. In the army they're the warriors, not the planners; they go out and fight the battles. In the church the "young men" and "young women" are the movers and the shakers who are busy "doing the ministry", reaching out into the community, teaching, planning, organizing, fighting the battle to rescue others out of the world. Then some of us really are "children", at the end of verse 13, where John uses a different Greek word to show he's referring to those who've only recently come to Jesus and are still untaught and immature in Christ and really vulnerable to the world's attack. In the body of Christ, we're all at different ages and spiritual stages and our needs at each one may vary, but all of us together:

2. we have a three-fold assurance There are three things that John wants us to know and be absolutely sure of as we face this battle together. Number one:

a. our sins have been FORGIVEN for the sake of Jesus' Name (12) We are different from the world of people around us. They commit sin because it's their nature; it comes naturally. They commit sin because they choose to follow their own desires. As a result, they stand under the condemnation of God for their sins and face the prospect of eternal death. But we are different from them. Our sins have all been forgiven, once for all, forever. And we have been forgiven not because we have done anything or deserve it in any way. We are forgiven because Jesus died to take away the penalty we deserved. We are forgiven solely and only for the sake of HIS Name, so that He might receive all the credit and the glory for saving us and so that our lives might be used to declare glory of His Name among the peoples of the earth. As Paul put it, ...You are not your own, for you were bought with a price. So glorify God in your body. - 1 Cor. 6:19-20. The first factor that keeps us separate in this evil world is that we know we are forgiven and we know the price that bought us! Number two:

b. we KNOW both the Father and the Son John says it three times in these verses. You KNOW Him! And that word know means to know by experience, to know by connection, to know by relationship; it does not mean academic knowledge. You KNOW the Father; you know Him the way you know your wife or your husband or your mom or dad. Jesus said, ...you do know him and have seen him. - Jn. 14:7. We have a personal relationship with both the Father and the Son. We talk to them; they speak to us in the thoughts of our hearts. The world doesn't know the Father, nor the Son, nor the Spirit! But we do! We have entered into a personal walk with God where we commune with Him. That's the second factor that keeps us separate from the world. Number three, John says:

c. we have CONQUERED the evil one That word overcome means conquered and the tense indicates that it is a permanent victory after the conflict. Satan is a defeated foe; the victory over him was won once and for all at the cross! The battles we find ourselves in with him now are merely mop-up operations! We fight a foe who has already lost, one who cannot win. And even in that, John reminds us that:

(1) we are strong, but not in ourselves. We are strong with God's divine power. 2 Cor. 10:4 says, The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. Our weapons have divine power, the very power of God Himself. We don't fight with our own resources by our own strength; we stand before our enemy in the power of Almighty God Himself. We are strong! And, John says:

(2) the Word of God abides in us It dwells in us; it lives in us. We know what GOD has said and we know that it stands as truth, no matter what the world tries to tell us, no matter what Satan screams at us. The Word is our sword, our weapon against the enemy.

In his book Forever Triumphant, F. J. Huegel wrote that after General Jonathan Wainwright was captured by the Japanese in World War II, he was held prisoner in a Manchurian concentration camp. Cruelly treated, he became "a broken, crushed, hopeless, starving man." Finally, the Japanese surrendered and the war ended. A United States army colonel was sent to the camp to announce personally to the general that Japan had been defeated and that he was free and now in command. After Wainwright heard the news, he returned to his quarters and was confronted by some guards who began to mistreat him as they had done in the past. Wainwright, however, with the news of the allied victory still fresh in his mind, declared with authority, "No, I am in command here! These are my orders." And from that moment on, General Wainwright was in control. Friends, our side won! We must stand and act on the truth of that news! The group Harvest recorded a song years ago called The Army Of The Lord and the chorus of it says:

*Are we walking into the enemy's camp, laying our weapons down Shedding our armor as we go, leaving it on the ground?
We've gotta be strong in the power of his might and prove to the enemy
We are the army of the Lord and we've won the victory.*

Listen, as we go into the battles of life that we face, we go with the assurance that our sins are FORGIVEN, that we KNOW God Himself, and that our enemy is already CONQUERED by Jesus Christ! So now, having heard this great assurance, we are ready for:

II. The Command John Gives Us: Do NOT Love The World (15-16) As I mentioned earlier, the world's first tactic, before persecution, is usually to woo us into loving it, to try to absorb us back into itself. So, let's dig deeper and let John show us how this works. First off, I've been using a word without really defining it. The word:

1. world here means the place/time environment in which we live In some places, such as John 3:16, it simply means the whole human race. But in verses like this one, the world refers directly to the spiritually hostile environment which surrounds us. Look with me at Eph. 2:2. This world:

a. it is an environment designed and ruled by Satan to oppose God The Greek here is a very peculiar expression, literally "the age (era) of this world". You were born at a particular time in history in a particular place in a particular country in a particular culture, to a particular family with a particular background in a particular neighborhood. When you come into this world there is an ordered environmental system all about you which exerts its force upon you from the earliest part of life until the day you die. Before you are saved this world system actually dominates and controls you because it colors and affects every aspect of your life. Now, who invented what surrounds you? Satan did. He is the prince with the authority over the air, that is, the surface of the earth, the world of men. He is called elsewhere the prince of this world and the god of this world. He is the one controlling that world in which you live. The entire world has always been dominated by Satan and has followed paths that he has laid out. Of course, his tactics are different at different places and times. Multiplied millions in Asia have been enslaved for centuries following false paths of religion that he has laid down in Hinduism and Buddhism. Over a billion live under obedience to a false representation of God in Islam. The Greek and Roman culture of John's day was led down a path of pleasure-seeking polytheistic idolatry which the USA seems to be bent on repeating. The devil has been allowed control over the systems of this world and he has ordered all of them in opposition to God. So, the world in which we live:

b. it is an environment that pressures us into its way of life Ever since birth you walked on the paths that system had laid out for you. You dressed in the manner it laid out. You cut your hair according to its patterns. You listened to its music. You were inoculated with its general beliefs and patterns of thought; you had its values and customs drilled into you. And those things were ingrained in you deeply, even if you grew up in a Christian home which sheltered you from some of its effects. Now, because Satan organized the system, from little on up the greater majority of the paths that have been laid out for you to walk in by the forces of your environment have been self-centered, self-serving, and self-gratifying; that is, they have been sinful and opposed to God. Now let me ask you this; when you walk through thick brush, where do you walk? Do you make your own path or go down the trails that are already there? You follow the paths, don't you, because there are too many obstacles to making your own, because being different is too hard. So, the environment all around you pressures you to live the way everybody else does and makes it hard for you to strike out on your own.

Now on top of that, inside you there are forces which make you WANT to go down those worldly paths. In fact, in verse 16 John explains to us that:

2. the world appeals to three passions within us to pressure us (16a) John says that you can sum up every tool that this world system has to use against you into three categories. The first one is:

a. the desires of our flesh In modern terminology he might call it the longing to get our needs met. In many places the Bible calls it lust. It is that passion I have to get what I need. At the most basic level, it is:

(1) the urge to satisfy bodily drives like hunger and thirst. Eve saw that the fruit of the tree was good for food and she was hungry. You can push an honest man to steal if you make him hungry enough. You can drive a kind man to keep all the water for himself if you can get him thirsty enough. You can get him to break into a house if he's cold enough. And you can lure a man or a woman into sexual immorality if you fan the flame of that urge strongly enough. But it is not only basic bodily drives that we are desperate to satisfy; the term flesh also includes:

(2) the urge to satisfy emotional needs like the need to have significance (to know that we matter), the need to have security (to feel safe) and the need for love and companionship. It's nearly impossible to live without those things and if the system around you denies them to you, there is great pressure to give in and bend the rules to get them. But remember, Rom. 8:6-7 says, For to set the mind on the flesh is death, but to set the mind on the Spirit is life and peace. For the mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God, for it does not submit to

God's law; indeed, it cannot. If the most important thing in your mind becomes getting your own needs met, you'll end up rebelling against God and hostile to Him. The second appeal the world uses against us is:

b. the desires of our eyes, that is, the longing to possess what we see. Eve saw that the fruit of the tree was a delight to the eyes; it was beautiful to look at and she wanted it, so she took it, even against God's instructions. The Bible calls it greed, the desire to possess what I see simply because I want it. It might be a beautiful woman or a handsome man who belongs to someone else. It might be a car or a house or a boat or a sum of money. If the world can get you to see it and to want it bad enough, whatever it is, it can pressure you into going about getting it in the wrong way. The third appeal the world uses against us is:

c. the pride of life It is our empty boasting that we are god-like. Eve saw that the fruit would make her wise, that it would make her just like God, so she could make the rules instead of Him! People will do all kinds of things if you appeal to their pride. There is this urge within us that is always:

(1) striving to gain power and control in every situation, to be in charge, to make things turn out the way we want them to, regardless of whether it's right or not. And there is this urge we have of:

(2) striving to be recognized and served by others We want to be noticed. We want to be thanked. We want others to regard us highly. We want to BE somebody! All the world has to do is offer someone the chance to be that and he will hurt all kinds of people as he climbs over them to get there!

We need to recognize that these desires are still in us. They are not gone. And the world around us is always appealing to one or more of these three passions that we have to get us to conform to it. That's why:

3. we are commanded NOT to love the world nor the passions it foments in us. You see:

a. the satisfying of these passions on our own is not from God (16b) When we seek and strive to get all these things, to satisfy all these desires on our own in our own way, that's not from God. That's the way of the world around us. If we fall in love with that, if we make that our highest priority and give our lives to the pursuit of it, we love the world and John says clearly:

b. we CANNOT love God and love the world (15b) If we love truly love HIM, we cannot love what is hostile toward Him. James put it like this, You adulterous people! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world makes himself an enemy of God. - 4:4. You can't have both! You can't sit on the fence! You can't love God and sleep with your girlfriend or boyfriend to satisfy your sex drive or steal from your employer to get new golf clubs or lie about your coworker to get the promotion you want. That's loving the things of this world and you can't love what God hates if you truly love Him! What the world will never tell you is this (17):

c. the world and its passions is perishing, along with those who pursue it The world system is destined to perish. In the end Jesus will reign. The satisfying of everything we want ends at death and if that's what we lived for, we'll have nothing we ever wanted for all eternity. But if what we really wanted is Jesus, if the true satisfaction of every desire of our hearts is really found in Him, then:

d. we who pursue the will of God remain forever and enjoy Him forever! We have what we really want eternally!

Ray Stedman puts it like this: One of these days the world and all that we see in it and all that history records of it, will have been forgotten, will have passed into the silent dust of the centuries. But according to the Scripture, one day the Lord shall stand with his own and view a universe where all things have been brought together and reconciled in Christ... What a thrilling thing it will be to stand there and see that come to pass and say, "Thank God, I had a part in that, in the reconciling of all things in Christ." Our Lord divided the issues of life into two words. He says there are two things, and only two things, you can do with your life. "He that is with me gathers, but he that is against me scatters," (Matthew 12:30). Now which are you doing? Are you gathering, or scattering? Are you uniting and reconciling, or are you dividing and breaking up and severing? All the issues of life funnel down into those two things. This is also where John puts it. If you are living for the world, loving its glory, seeking its fame, counting important the things it can give, clinging to these desperately, letting your emotions get wrapped up in them, you are scattering, you are breaking up, you are dividing. But if you are walking with Christ, if the things that he loves are most important to you, if a cup of cold water given in his name is of far more value than another dollar in the bank, if time is spent in comforting or encouraging some lonely person is to you a far greater treasure than a killing in the stock market, then you are building, you are gathering, you are building that which will endure, which will last forever, you are laying up treasures in heaven. [<http://www.raystedman.org/new-testament/1-john/the-enemy-around/>] Following his graduation from Wheaton College, as he was preparing for missionary service, Jim Elliot wrote these words in his journal entry for October 28, 1949, "He is no fool who gives what he cannot keep to gain that which he cannot lose." He obviously meant them. On Jan. 8, 1956 the bodies of Jim and his three companions were found below a sandbar in the Curaray river in Ecuador, murdered by Waodani tribesmen. Today much of the tribe has adopted their faith and many have already joined them in heaven. These men gave up their love for everything this world holds dear, even life itself because of their genuine love for Christ and they gained what they can never lose. They were no fools and neither are you if you choose to put to death that natural love we have for the things of this world and choose to love Jesus Christ and the things that matter to Him above all. As Ray Stedman concludes: That is where John rests his case.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

Antichrists - 2:18-27

At verse 15 John began to warn us about the evil world system that surrounds us all and is constantly trying to lure us back into itself by appealing to the passions that are inside of us. Now he moves on to give us a grave warning about one specific element of that world system that is particularly dangerous. It is filled with false teachers who continually try to lead us away from the truth. And to emphasize the seriousness of this danger, John gives them a shocking label. He warns us that:

I. We Must Be Alert To The Presence Of Antichrists (18-19) Beloved, John tells us that:

1. we live in the last hour of human history before God destroys it all and sets up His Kingdom on earth. He's obviously not talking about a literal hour; this phrase is similar to Paul's telling us that we live in the last days. It does not mean that John and Paul thought Jesus would return in their lifetimes, but they were mistaken. They probably did live in that expectation and so have the many generations of believers that have followed. How often have you heard it said of our day and age that surely, we live in the end times; the world can't get much worse than this! We are ALWAYS to expect the Lord's soon return and live that way. But looking back from our perspective, they were right. We live in the final age before the end; the whole time from the apostles to us and until Jesus actually returns is the last hour, the final stage of human history and the world system dominated by Satan and John says that:

2. this age is to be characterized by antichrists We know this from the teaching of Jesus Himself. He said ...See that no one leads you astray. For many will come in my name, saying, 'I am the Christ,' and they will lead many astray.... And many false prophets will arise and lead many astray. - Mt. 24:5, 11. John calls them antichrists. What does that mean?

a. an antichrist is one who is either against Christ or instead of Christ, either one who opposes Christ or one who falsely claims to actually be Christ. False Christs and false prophets are both, in reality, antichrists. Now as soon as we hear that term, we can't help but think of exactly what John tells us. In the end time tribulation period:

b. there will be a specific world leader, the antichrist, before Christ's coming In Revelation John calls him the Beast. Paul calls him the man of lawlessness or the man of sin. A Satanically energized world leader will arise during that end time and make his bid to dominate the entire world. Paul says, Let no one deceive you in any way. For that day will not come, unless the rebellion comes first, and the man of lawlessness is revealed, the son of destruction, who opposes and exalts himself against every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, proclaiming himself to be God....then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus will kill with the breath of his mouth and bring to nothing by the appearance of his coming. - 1 Thes. 2:3-4, 8. When we use the term antichrist, this man is who we are usually referring to and much speculation has occurred through the ages as to who this antichrist is. I'm sure early believers considered the Roman Emperor a candidate. Martin Luther, along with many of the Protestant reformers, declared that the Pope was the antichrist in their day. Hitler was also seen as the antichrist by many and there have been others, but the truth is that we will not be able to truly identify this person until that day when he sets up his statue and takes his seat in the Temple at Jerusalem and proclaims himself to be God. However, that antichrist is not who John wants to talk about here; he says that:

c. there are many antichrists already present in the world during this last age. Who are they? Look at 2 Jn. 7. The antichrists John is talking about are false teachers, teachers who oppose and deny the truth about the central Person of our faith, Jesus Christ! Throughout this age they have been and they continue to be literally everywhere. Where did they come from? John says:

3. these false teachers separated themselves from the true church He is not talking about proponents of other religions who deny the truth about Christ. He is concerned about people who began in the context of the church, but refused to continue to believe the truth and then separated themselves to gather their own following. Groups like this were already common in John's day. Hegesippus, who lived from 110-180 AD shortly after John died wrote this, ...Thebuthis, because he was not made bishop, began to corrupt it [the church]. He also was sprung from the seven sects among the people, like Simon, from whom came the Simonians, and Cleobius, from whom came the Cleobians, and Dositheus, from whom came the Dositheans, and Gorthaeus, from whom came the Goratheni, and Masbotheus, from whom came the Masbothaeans. From them sprang the Menandrianists, and Marcionists, and Carpocratians, and Valentinians, and Basilidians, and Saturnilians. Each introduced privately and separately his own peculiar opinion. From them came false Christs, false prophets, false apostles, who divided the unity of the Church by corrupt doctrines uttered against God and against his Christ." [Quote from Hegesippus in Eusebius' Ecclesiastical History IV. 22.]

Thebuthis was a leader who got offended and left and started his own following, trying to lead others with him and tear the church apart. You remember Simon! He believed Philip when he preached in Samaria in Acts 8 and was baptized, but after he was rebuked by Peter for his thirst for power, he left the believers and started his own cult that lasted into the third century and his followers ended up worshipping him. Marcion was a bishop in the church, but he declared the God of the Old Testament was not the true God, the loving Father that Jesus talked about, and was excommunicated around 144 AD. The group that followed him lasted some 300 years. All these heretical teachers:

a. they were once part of the church and seemed much like the rest of us There was a time when, from every appearance, they were regarded as genuine believers, but they did not continue in the faith. They did not persevere in believing the truth but left it. That has been the case with almost every false teacher down through history. Joseph Smith's family was deeply impacted by the religious revivals sweeping New York in his day, until he claimed to have a vision where he was told to join none of the churches but that he would re-start the true church and thus the Mormon Church was birthed. Charles Taze Russell was a Presbyterian and then a member of a Congregational Church, but became disenchanted and started promoting his own doctrines to those who listened and thus the Jehovah's Witnesses were born. False teachers have always been so; they come out of the church itself and that bothers us. How can it be that one who professes the truth can apostatize? How can they give it up and profess something else? Well, John explains, they were not OF us. That is:

b. they were never truly one with us through genuine faith in Christ Oh, they tasted the truth. They saw the work of the Spirit. They joined in the worship and gave assent to what they were taught. But they were never truly born again, never truly regenerated and transformed on the inside by the power of Christ's Spirit; they never genuinely believed with their whole heart. If they had, they would have remained part of the true church and stayed true to the teaching of Jesus and His apostles! The very fact that they now repudiate it says that they were not real!

And now it is evident that they are antichrists! The world around us is filled with them and we must be alert to discern what they truly are, so that they are not able to lead US astray. Now John goes on to tell us clearly:

II. How We Are To Recognize Antichrists (20-21) First of all, John urges us to remember that:

1. God has anointed us, and he means anointed us with His Holy Spirit. Listen to the words of Paul in 2 Cor. 1:21-22, ...it is God who establishes us with you in Christ, and has anointed us, and who has also put his seal on us and given us his Spirit in our hearts as a guarantee. God has claimed us as His own and imbued us with everything we need of Him by placing His own Spirit in our hearts! The presence of the Holy Spirit in us is our guarantee that we genuinely belong to Him. And:

a. the Spirit who lives in us has convinced us that we know the truth. We don't believe that Jesus is God and that He is the only Savior based on some academic evidence! We believe because we were convicted of it by the Spirit. He convinced us that what we now believe is the absolute unchanging truth. The world today says, "That's bigotry; that's pompous and presumptive. How can you claim you're the only ones who are right?" But the Bible says we KNOW the truth because God Himself has convinced us of it and shown it to us! And, John says:

b. truth is exclusive; if what we believe is truth, then any teaching opposed to our core beliefs concerning Jesus Christ is a lie! It is not just misinformation, not merely an unclear understanding. False teaching is deliberate deception. It is against Christ. It is anti-Christ! So, it is not something to be tolerated kindly, not simply something about which we can shrug our shoulders and say, "Oh well, everyone has the right to believe what they choose!" False teachings are lies from the enemy and false teachers are antichrists! They represent a grave danger, not only to us, but to the souls of human beings everywhere whom they seek to capture and lead straight to hell. Now look at:

2. the lies that antichrists propagate (22-23) Some of them:

a. they deny the Incarnation, the fact that God actually became man in Christ. They deny that the man Jesus of Nazareth is the Divine Christ. John puts it another way in 4:2. M. R. Vincent says that these...words are aimed at the heresy of Cerinthus...[a false teacher of John's day]. He denied the miraculous conception of Jesus, and taught that, after His baptism, the Christ descended upon Him in the form of a dove, and that He then announced the unknown Father and wrought miracles; but that, towards the end of His ministry, the Christ departed again from Jesus, and Jesus [the man] suffered and rose from the dead, while the Christ remained incapable of suffering as a spiritual being. You might say that's an old dead heresy, but you can go into liberal theological circles today and you'll hear the same teaching that we all have Christhood, that Jesus was just the fullest example of it! He was merely a man supremely anointed by God! In essence:

b. they deny the Deity of Christ; they deny that both Father and Son are fully God Every sect you can name, every cult that has come out of orthodox Christianity, holds some variation of this deception. They say Jesus was only the SON of God, not fully and completely God Himself, not GOD THE SON, coequal and coeternal with the Father. And so:

c. they acknowledge the Father but deny the Son There are plenty of people all around us who want to believe in God but reject Jesus Christ! The Unitarians shout, "There is one God behind all religions! They are all the just different pathways to the same God." But John says you can't have God without Jesus. You can't have the Father without the Son! If you don't have Jesus Christ in your life, you don't know the Father. You don't know God at all! And if you have Jesus, you have the Father also, because they are One! That is the very essence of Christianity and these teachers are trying to get you to deny it! Look with me at 2 Cor. 11:3-4. They present you with another Jesus, not the Jesus of the Bible, and another Gospel, not the Truth once for all delivered to the saints. They preach a whole other way of salvation than believing in Jesus Christ alone. Now, exactly who are we talking about? Well, here are:

3. some groups that fall into the category of antichrist today Many of them are:

a. sects like Jehovah's Witnesses who walk up and down your street and knock on your door, wanting to convince you that Jesus is NOT Jehovah, the great I AM, and that salvation comes through joining their group alone and by being baptized by them and by obeying all the commandments they deem important. The Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints, commonly known as the Mormon Church, teaches much the same thing, but adds to the Bible The Book of Mormon as a source of truth. They are not just another Christian denomination, as you might hear it put in the ad campaigns these days. In my seminary days LuAnn and I lived in a little town in south-west Ohio called West Elkton. It had 200 people but it had four churches. One of them was a Church of Christ and one of the older couples in our church had a daughter and family who left the church and became committed members of the Church of Christ. They caused the parents much heartache because they no longer regarded their parents as true Christians. I remember when I spoke to them about their beliefs, how confusing it was. They believed the Bible and turned to it at every opportunity. But, they said, it was not enough to believe in Jesus; you must OBEY Him and be baptized. You must OBEY Him and take the Lord's Supper every day. You must OBEY Him and only associate with people who do exactly the same as you do. Doesn't the Bible say all that? Finally, the Lord showed me clearly what was going on; they believed in salvation by faith PLUS good works! At the bottom line, Christ was not enough. Your salvation was based on what YOU DO, not solely on what HE DID! Go to their website and you'll find there are 1.5 million members in 1200+ churches all over this country, but read their doctrinal statement and you'll find that their roots are in Mormonism and they hold the Book of Mormon along with the Bible, yet they'll never tell you that up front! The Disciples of Christ church comes out of the same movement but has become ultra-liberal today instead. Christian Science or The Church of Christ, Scientist, is in the process of dying out with perhaps as few as 30,000 members left, but there is nothing truly Christian about it. Antichrist groups are all around us but at least you can identify them. An even greater danger are the:

b. theological liberals found in many mainline denominations I went to a denominational college and then on to a seminary where virtually NONE of the professors believed that the Bible was the inerrant Word of God and Jesus was the ONLY way of salvation. Many of our mainline denominations, Lutheran, Methodist, Episcopal and a host of others, literally have antichrists teaching their people from numerous pulpits every week and don't see it! Of course, there are still lots of conservative true believers and pastors in these denominations too but the false teachers have been invited right in among the sheep! To their credit, this same process was happening in the Southern Baptist convention, but the conservatives staged a takeover and threw the false brethren out of their leadership positions before error became too deeply rooted! Antichrists are outside the church and even INSIDE it! So finally, John tells us:

III. How We Must Guard Ourselves Against Antichrists (24-25) First of all, he says:

1. continually choose to trust in what you've been taught Stay in the Word. Cling to its teachings. Hold fast to what you have been taught by those who have instructed you in the faith! Hold on to the sound teaching that has been passed to you through a chain of faithful people brothers and sisters over 2,000 years. Why? Because this is life! Clinging to the Truth is abiding in His wonderful promise that we have eternal life. Second:

2. be aware that false teachers are trying to lead you away from Christ (26) Yes, so many of them are actually nice people! They are thoughtful and kind and do many good deeds. In many ways they may act more Christian than some Christians I know! They are moral and pray and say they believe in God and want to help people. And they are sincere; they want you to believe what they believe because they sincerely think it is a good thing for you. Jehovah's Witnesses knock on your door because they think YOU're lost and they don't want to see you be lost! But despite all the good intentions, Satan's design is to use them to lead you away from pure faith in Christ! Be aware of the underlying reality; their teaching is antichrist and Satan is trying to deceive you! I remember sitting in a Philosophy class in college, thinking, "What on earth am I doing here?" And I glanced over and on the cover of someone's notebook he had written Col. 2:8, See to it that no one takes you captive through hollow and deceptive philosophy, which depends on human tradition and the basic principles of this world rather than on Christ. That became my theme verse and it went on my notebook! It is your responsibility to see to it, to beware, to be AWARE of the false teaching that comes your way and to reject it, to shun it for what it truly is. But, you say, "What if I don't know enough to do that?". Look at (27). John says:

3. trust the assuring work of the Holy Spirit within you You don't need to know all there is to know. You don't need to have somebody else to tell you. You have God's own Spirit. He will guide you into all truth. Just ask Him to show you the truth and He will. Trust the Spirit. Abide in Him and you will abide in the Truth.

During the Revolutionary War, a loyalist spy appeared at the headquarters of Hessian commander Colonel Johann Rall, carrying an urgent message. General George Washington and his Continental army had secretly crossed the Delaware River that morning and were advancing on Trenton, New Jersey where the Hessians were encamped. The spy was denied an audience with the commander and instead wrote his message on a piece of paper. A porter took the note to the Hessian colonel, but because Rall was involved in a poker game, he stuffed the unread note into his pocket. When the guards at the Hessian camp began firing their muskets in a futile attempt to stop Washington's army, Rall was still playing cards. Without time to organize, the Hessian army was captured. The battle occurred the day after Christmas, 1776, giving the colonists a late present--their first major victory of the war. [Today in the Word, MBI, October, 1991, p. 21.] Beloved, John has sent you an important note that reads, "The enemy is on the move. Antichrists surround you with their false teachings and in reality, they hunt for your soul! If you fail to recognize them and cling to the truth, they will lead you astray from the true faith." And, like Rall, you have a choice. You can either dismiss the urgency of the note, stick it in your pocket and go on playing the daily game of life or you can heed the warning and be ready for the danger when it comes, by staying in the Word and feeding yourself daily. If I hadn't heeded that warning many years ago, the false teaching that surrounded me would probably have captured me like it did so many others and I literally wouldn't be standing here saying this today. I pray we ALL heed the warning; it truly is a matter of life and death!

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

Children Of God - 2:28-3:10

As we pick up our study today at the beginning of chapter 3, there is a concept I would like you to consider with me first. You may never have thought about it in quite this way, but look with me at Heb. 2:10. We usually focus on the beginning or the end of this verse and miss the middle. It tells us that:

I. God Has An Immense Desire To Have Children Yes, God made everything that exists for Himself, but that was not enough! God was not satisfied to have a universe full of created things to obey his will. He wanted CHILDREN! He wanted beings made in His own image who would be with Him and share His glory forever, sons and daughters who shared His very Spirit with whom He could commune and fellowship from the heart forever. That's why He created the human race, but they turned around and rejected Him! Still, His desire to have those children and bring them to glory was so great that it was necessary to send His own Son to earth and make Him complete through the suffering of the cross to bring those sons and daughters to Him! Listen, where do you think that innate instinct comes from that is inside us. Those of you who don't have kids, please forgive me for bringing this up, but recognizing that circumstances may affect this, the hearts of husbands and wives normally long to have children! Why? They're a lot of work! They're expensive! They get you up in the middle of the night and make your life centered on them for decades! Yet you want them! Why? Because you long to have sons and daughters that are sprung from you and share your very nature who can share your life at the deepest level and make it fulfilled. Why do you long for that? Because your nature mirrors that of God Himself, only His desire to bring MANY sons to glory is so deep and vast that it will never be satisfied until there is an innumerable multitude of sons and daughters from every tribe, tongue, people and nation standing in glory with Him! Now all of that being said, maybe you're ready to feel the depth of emotion that John is trying to convey when he tells us that:

II. God Has Made US His Very Own Children (3:1-2) Hallelujah! We are not just beings that God created. We are not just servants made to carry out the will of a heavenly Master. WE are the very sons and daughters of Almighty God! And when we say that, John assures us that:

1. this is not just a title by which we are called; it's not just some fond way of referring to us, the way an older man might say to a younger man, "Son, let me help you..." It is what we actually are! We are the very children, the offspring of God Almighty Himself, the Creator of all things, destined to share His life forever in glory! Moreover, according to verse 2, we are that RIGHT NOW! It is not some position that is accorded to us after death upon our arrival in heaven. Today, this moment, we who follow Jesus actually ARE the children of God. Yet here we sit and nobody around us really knows it! John says, "Don't worry..."

2. the world doesn't recognize us as such because it didn't recognize Him They didn't know He was the Lord of glory or they wouldn't have crucified Him! Though He was God Himself, He looked like just another ordinary man to them; even so the world around us is absolutely blind to the fact that we truly are God's children who will reign with Him forever! But their blindness to it doesn't change the truth of it. You see:

3. we became His children by an actual birth experience (2:29) We are not children just by accepting a doctrine; we are not children because we believe a truth. We are children because we were literally born of God. We experienced a spiritual rebirth. Look with me at Jn. 1:12-13. The moment we believed in Jesus' Name, His Spirit did a mighty work in us. It put to death our old, dead nature and literally created or birthed a brand-new spirit, a new nature inside of us, one that is created exactly like our Father in true righteousness and holiness. That's what makes us His children! But there's more! John says in verse 2 that:

4. we shall be made completely and perfectly like Him at His coming Right now we're stuck in these old bodies that still have sin dwelling in them. But one day Jesus will come! And when He does, the process will be made complete; we'll be given brand new resurrected bodies made exactly like His glorious body. And friends, we have no idea what that will be like! We can't even imagine it. Our minds can't comprehend all the things that God has prepared for us, His children, but what we do know is that we shall see Jesus as He really is, face to face, and it will transform our lowly bodies so that we shall be made fully like Him, sons and daughters of God made perfect! No wonder John begins by saying Behold! See! Look! He is encouraging us that:

5. we must ponder the indescribable love He lavished on us in doing this! How great must God's love for us be that He would do all that for us! There is nothing in us that would merit or deserve it; He has bestowed it on us by His free choice. Steven Curtis Chapman wrote a song that captures some of that joy:

Who are the treasured and the prized? Who is the apple of God's eyes?

Who is? We are, We are, We are!

Who are the ones who bear His name Who are the children he has claimed

As His? We are, We are, We are!

We are the ones God has sent His Son to rescue and now He calls us His own.

We are the children of God! We are the children of God!

We are the sons and the daughters. Almighty God is our Father!

Hallelujah! What an amazing thing! We will stand in awe of it for all eternity! But now we come to the reason John wants us to revel in this. You see:

III. As Children Born Of A Holy Father, We Replicate His Holiness (3:3) Children by nature display the core characteristics of the parents that begot them. Your offspring are always made like you are. You don't have to worry that your pregnancy could result in the birth of a goat or a monkey. It will always be a human being like you. It will have a brain like yours and human capabilities like yours. It will be of your same race and even likely have a number of your more subtle physical characteristics. Well, God is not physical; the Bible says He is Spirit. And as His children who now have His nature dwelling within us, we also bear His core qualities in the spiritual realm. One of those we read back in 1:5, God is light and in Him is no darkness at all! That means our Father is righteous, absolutely pure and holy. And what John's trying to say is that:

1. our Father's righteous nature resides in us perpetually (3:9) Now, the ancients didn't know much about genetics, but they did know that if you plant the seed of a corn stalk that it would reproduce a corn plant exactly like itself. If you plant a kernel from a head of wheat, you get a stalk of wheat exactly like the parent. Well, God planted HIS seed in you! He planted His very own nature of righteousness and true holiness inside of you and it remains in you! It never goes away! It CAN NEVER go away any more than you could be un-born! So what John is saying is that because our nature is permanently changed:

a. it is impossible for us to continually practice sin contrary to our nature With the exception of God Himself, any created being can act against its nature temporarily, but ultimately it will act like what it is. You can get a lion to sit up and do tricks for a while and under certain conditions, but sooner or later he's going to act like a lion, he's going to kill and eat other animals (or people)! A cow is an herbivore. Maybe you could get a cow to take a bite of roasted chicken somehow, maybe by hiding it in a salad or something. But ultimately the cow is going to eat grass because it's a cow. You are a child of God. You have the nature of your Father inside you that loves and only wants to practice righteousness. Satan can find ways to tempt you and lure you to do otherwise, to do things that are against your nature, but ultimately you cannot keep it up. If His nature is really in you, you CANNOT continually practice sin over and over, without any guilt or remorse. It is impossible. It is acting against your own nature and you just can't sustain that for very long. You see, John says that:

b. the practice of sin is lawlessness (3:4) In the Greek, sin is anomia, living as though there is no law, living as though there is no order of right and wrong established by God. In essence, he's saying that the practice of sin is rebellion against God Himself. And ultimately, we who are like God cannot persist in that which is anti-God; it is actually anti-ourselves. Why? Because:

c. Jesus, the sinless One, came to take away our sins (3:5) - 1 Pet. 3:18 says, For Christ also suffered once for sins, the righteous for the unrighteous, that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh but made alive in the spirit... We were unrighteous, dead in trespasses and sins. But on the cross, Christ the righteous One made a great exchange. He took away our sins by taking them upon Himself and gave us His righteousness. Not just as a position, but in very reality. We are not simply DECLARED righteous, that is, forgiven. We are MADE righteous. The same thing that happened to Him happened to us. WE were put to death in the flesh and made alive in our spirit by Him through new birth. That's how He can bring us to God as His children! If we could continue to practice sin, then His work would be faulty; it would be incomplete and ineffectual. We can no more continue to practice sin as an ongoing habit, than a fish can breathe air and perpetually live out of water. But on the other hand, John says:

2. Satan's unrighteous nature still resides in those who belong to him (3:8) Now think this through. Satan made the choice to rebel against God in the very beginning of all things and when he did, his nature was changed. He was a good angel like the rest but he BECAME evil. The reason he came into the garden after Adam and Eve seems obvious: he wanted to take away from God the very thing that God wanted most, the deepest desire of His heart. He wanted to keep God from having children, from filling up the glories of heaven with many sons and daughters! And when Adam and Eve chose to follow him instead of God, THEIR natures were changed; they became LIKE HIM. Sin entered the very core of their beings; they BECAME evil in nature. And they produced offspring that were like them, who had their nature. So, all human beings (including us) as they come into the world are "OF" the devil and because they have his sinful nature:

a. they continually practice the deeds of their father The Jewish religious leaders were arguing with Jesus one day and He said straight out to them, You are of your father the devil, and your will is to do your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks out of his own character, for he is a liar and the father of lies. - Jn. 8:44. They were the devil's children by nature and they were acting just like him. That was ALL of us, not just them. It is still ALL of those who are outside of Christ. They sin because it is their nature to sin. They can do some good things, but they cannot continually practice righteousness any more than a lion can eat grass for very long. That is the work of Satan, to deny God his children and drag them all to hell after himself. But John says:

b. Jesus came to destroy Satan's work How? Specifically, in us! Through the cross Jesus destroyed what the devil had done; He paid the price of sin and bought God's children back and transformed them through new birth so that they are once again fit to share the glories of heaven! God WILL have His dream of many sons to share His glory after all! But here's John's bottom line point:

4. the behavior we practice is the evidence of our true parentage Now go back and look at 3:6-7, 10. Here is the test. Here is how you can tell people apart. You look at their behavior. Those who truly are God's children ACT like Him continually! Those who continually DON'T act like Him are not His children, no matter what they may say! Jesus put it like this in Mat. 7:15-20. A person's fruit is how they act, how they live. Good trees produce good fruit; bad trees produce bad fruit. That's the rule; that's how you tell a good tree from a bad tree and that's how you tell a true child of God from an impostor. Both Jesus and John are actually giving us a warning here. They are warning us that:

5. we must beware the deception of those who teach differently Let no one deceive you! There are those who would claim to follow Jesus, who would claim to be children of God, but who practice and who advocate the practice of evil. Who are they? Well, in John's day, for example, there was a group known as the Nicolaitans whom John wrote about to the churches he oversaw in Revelation. Look what Jesus says to Ephesus in Rev. 2:6. However, in Pergamum they're in the church in 14-15. Thyatira has a deceitful woman there in 20-23a. There were people in John's beloved churches teaching that it is OK to participate in idolatry with your neighbors and you can freely have sex with multiple partners outside marriage like they do and STILL follow Jesus! In other words, you can continue to live like a pagan and still be a Christian because your sins are forgiven. Idolatry and immorality have gone hand in hand from the time of Balaam and you don't have to look very far in the modern church today to find the same kind of teaching. There are hundreds of "gay churches" across our country where those who practice that brand of immorality are openly lauded as believers. And there are literally thousands of churches who have departed from the authority of the Word of God, who don't care what you really believe as long as you believe in a God and where sexual promiscuity is no big deal because God loves everybody and forgives everything. There is no judgment to fear or hell to avoid. John is saying, "Watch out! That's a deception that kills people! Beware and avoid it; in fact, purge it out from among you! True children of God ALWAYS live like their Father! They practice righteousness and holiness and those who don't are imposters!"

As Children of God, we replicate His holiness! We can't help ourselves; it's our nature! But John also says here that:

IV. As Children Of A Perfect Father, We Intentionally Strive To Emulate Him It's not merely automatic; it's something we want, something we work hard at, something we strive for. We have the greatest Father in the universe and we want ourselves to be like Him! Why? Well, on the negative side:

1. we do not want to be ashamed when we face Him (2:28) Do you remember the shame you felt as a child when you did something wrong and your parents found out? But you can't hide what you do from your Heavenly Father; He knows everything you do! On that day when you see Jesus face to face, when you walk into the throne room of heaven and see the Father, can you imagine the shame of knowing you've disappointed Him by going after sinful and worldly things as His child? And it's not just about then:

2. we want to have boldness and freedom in our relationship, even now How do you feel when you know you've got sin in your life and you come to read the Word and try to pray? There's this wall because you know what you've done and you know HE knows what you've done and you can hardly approach him. Many years ago, I confronted a friend whom I knew was a believer but was sleeping with his girlfriend at the time and his reply was, "Don't you think I know it's wrong? I can tell the Lord isn't anywhere around when she's here..." He knew the Lord was asking him to give up that idol of sexual pleasure in his life and, thank God, not long after, he did. But oh, how sin hinders us. We can't approach the throne of grace boldly to find help in our time of need if we're living a lie. We can't enjoy the pleasures of closeness with God if we're regularly eating at His enemy's table. The practice of sin denies us the very thing we were created for, to love our Father and enjoy Him forever. But we want to be like Him for a positive reason also:

3. we are deeply moved with gratitude by His lavish love Go back and read again 3:1-3. Oh, what love has God poured out freely upon us to make us His children, to plan our glorious future together! Amazing grace! How sweet the sound that saved a wretch like me! What humble gratitude that should fill us with! We want to please our Father because He loves us so!

The story is told of a ragged boy with a violin under his arm who roamed the streets of a great European city. Because he had no home or family, he wandered around for food and shelter. He had a strange gift for music and had somehow gotten hold of a violin, and so would stand on the corners and play for the crowd. When he finished, they would toss some coins and this is how he lived. In the same city lived a famous musician. One day he happened to hear the boy playing and was impressed by the quality of music. He asked the boy, "Son, to whom do you belong?" "I don't belong to anybody," the boy answered. "Well, where do you live?" was the next question. "I don't have any place to live. I just sleep on the streets or wherever I can." The man thought for a moment and then asked, "How would you like to come to live with me and be my boy? I'll teach you all I know about how to play the violin." The boy's eyes sparkled, and he said, "Mister, I'd love it." So, the great musician took the boy to his own home, had him cleaned and dressed up, and the man became a father to him. For several years he poured into the eager young mind and heart all he knew about the violin. Finally, the boy was ready to appear on the concert stage for his first public recital. The house was filled to capacity. At last, the boy came out, put the violin beneath his chin and began his concert. He played beautifully and there was much applause, but the boy paid no attention. He merely kept his eyes turned upward and continued to play. The audience was mystified by his behavior and finally someone said, "I don't understand why he is so insensible to all this thunderous applause. He keeps looking up all the time. I'm going to find out what is attracting his attention!" So, by moving about in the concert hall, the observer found the answer. There in the topmost balcony was the old music master, peering over the banister toward his young pupil. He was nodding his head and smiling, as if to say, "You are doing well, my boy; play on!" And the boy did play on, not seeming to care whether the audience laughed or applauded. He kept his gaze upward. You see, he was playing to please the master only. Dear ones, God has done for us so much more than this! He has taken us who were lost enemies and rebels, dead in our sins, and made us His very children who will live in His house and share His glory forever! If we really ponder and grasp that, we will live for one thing to the ignoring of all others; we will live to please our Master only.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

Love One Another - 3:11-24

This letter John wrote is composed at its core around three fundamental contrasts. In chapter 1 John focused on the contrast between light and darkness. Here in these middle chapters, John has been focusing on the contrast between love and hate which he first expressed in 2:9-10. Now in chapter 3, beginning at the end of verse 10, John re-expresses that same theme of contrast and develops it further. Taking together verses 11-15, what John is really saying is that:

I. Hatred Is The Way Of Satan And His Followers (11-15) Let's drop back and read (10-11). In other words:

1. one who does not love his brother is a child of the devil, because WE have had and have been obeying the command to love one another from the very beginning. Not loving your brother is a sign of your spiritual parentage, a mark of whose child you are in the spiritual realm. You act out of whatever nature is inside you, either the nature you've received from God through new birth or the nature you were born with which is the nature that originated with Satan. If your behavior shows no love or open hatred, it reveals that you belong to Satan rather than God. John says:

2. this can be seen in the example of Cain (12) Have you ever stopped to think what an indictment it is concerning the nature of the human race, that the third person ever to exist hated the fourth and murdered him! And he was literally his own brother! You know the story, but you might want to look at it with me back in Gen. 4:5-8. Amazingly, God did not withdraw His personal presence when He cast Adam and Eve out of the garden. Cain offered a sacrifice to God which was unacceptable and the Lord actually came and spoke to him personally about the reason why and warned him. We always think the problem was with WHAT Cain offered but it wasn't; the problem was with what was inside Cain himself. God called on him to look in the mirror and literally said, Why are you angry, and why is your countenance fallen? Is there not, if you are good, a lifting up? But if you are not good, sin lies before the door, and its desire is toward you; but you should rule over it. God told him, "The problem is not with ME not accepting your offering; the problem is in YOU, in your heart! You are NOT good and the evidence is that you haven't been practicing good or I would have accepted you. Sin is ready to control and own you if you yield to it!" John spells out the story of Cain this way in verse 12. First, we see:

a. his nature: he was of the evil one Cain didn't love God and strive to please Him; He was not a person who loved and practiced good. He lived the way he wanted to and sought to please himself. He sold himself to and belonged to Satan. What's:

b. the evidence: he murdered his brother Think about this. Two boys raised in the same home, growing up together in the same family. And there were NO other families, no other people in the world, just them! They ate together and played together and slept together and worked together, just the four of them. There was no "world system" to lure them astray, no evil people to lead them into sin. No human being had ever died and, obviously, there had never been a murder; they didn't even kill and eat animals at this point in history! Yet despite all of this, Cain attacked his own brother Abel in a field and, the Hebrew says, slaughtered him, butchered him, the way Abel had the slaughtered the lambs from his flock for sacrifice. Where did that come from? It came from inside Cain, from the powerful force of sin trying to control him and he yielded to it, despite God's personal warning. Why? John tells us:

c. his motive: he hated his brother's good works It was not simply that he was jealous of Abel because God accepted him. He hated Abel because Abel was good, because he was constantly living a life of good works, living God's way. Cain didn't live that way and didn't want to live that way. He lived a self-centered, self-serving life. But every time he looked at Abel, Abel's life pointed out his sin and made him feel guilty. So instead of repenting, he blamed Abel and grew to resent him and the resentment turned to hatred and ultimately led to enough fury to murder him!

Now in Jude verse 11, Jude says about certain false prophets, For they walked in the way of Cain... Cain chose the path to hatred of his brother. It is a way, a road, a highway that, not only Cain, but many people in this world travel. John reminds us that:

3. hatred of the righteous is a common pattern in this world (13) It should not surprise us! Those who belong to Satan have been hating God's children ever since Cain's time. Jesus warned us the world would hate us and throughout history and even today Christians have often been the on the receiving end of the hatred. Our friend David Dayasagar in Nellore, India sent me a Hindu newspaper article that read, After lying low for some time, the problem of proselytization has reared up its ugly head once again at Tirumala, the abode of Lord Venkateswara [Hindu god]. ...in a raid conducted by the TTD's Vigilance and Security personnel on three houses in the TTD staff quarters at Tirumala late on Monday night following a tip-off, bundles of religious publications, wall-posters and such other propaganda material belonging to Christian missionaries were reportedly recovered. ...all [three men were] working as 'sweepers' in the TTD's Health Department... The trio was immediately taken into custody for interrogation in view of a blanket ban imposed by the government... The BJP [radical Hindu party] leaders...urged its top-brass to go all out to end the 'menace' once and for all. They hate Christians! Even here in America there are people that hate you just because you believe in Jesus and want to practice righteousness according to God's standards. You may have read in the paper that our local Abington Hospital planned to acquire and merge with Holy Redeemer and that the Board agreed that abortions would not be done. Well, the backlash to that was so mean and so aggressive that the merger was canceled! And Abington only does about 65 abortions a year, so it's not about money. People have a hatred toward anyone and anything that shows their deeds for the evil that they are! And you don't have to physically kill someone; John says that:

4. anyone who hates his brother is a murderer (14-15) You remember what Jesus taught about this. Look with me at Mt. 5:21-22. Murder is just the outward manifestation of the hatred that's inside. That same hatred can manifest itself in angry behavior and talk, in insults and name-calling and cursing, or simply in that angry sullen countenance that Cain displayed. John says, Everyone who hates his brother is a murderer! What's more:

a. no murderer has the eternal life of God inside him - Rev. 21:8 says that murderers have their place in the fiery lake of burning sulfur. They'll be separated from God for all eternity, so they don't have His life inside them. Quite the opposite:

b. not loving a brother is evidence that the heart remains in death If God's nature and His Spirit is present in us, His boundless love overflows into our hearts. Therefore:

c. loving a brother is the evidence of God's life dwelling inside us, the evidence that we are children of our Heavenly Father.

And that's the second major point that John wants to make. Hatred is the way of Satan and the way of his followers, but:

II. Love Is The Way Of Christ And His Followers (16-18) And what is love? It is far more than simple kindness, much greater than the affection we feel for members of our own family. John says that:

1. the cross is the defining act of love (16a) This is how we know what love is; we look at Jesus and what He did there on the cross; He laid down His life for us. And then we hold up our own behavior to it and say, "Is this like that?" Not in degree, of course, but in nature! Am I acting like Jesus acted, with the same attitude and heart that He displayed? Now, notice the three things about that act of love that are in this simple statement. First of all:

a. it was voluntary: He chose to lay it down He was not forced. Nobody took His life from Him. He could have called 12 legions of angels and put a stop to it rather quickly. But He chose to do it for us; He did it because He genuinely wanted to. Secondly, notice that:

b. it was costly: He laid down his life Most people are willing to do something kind if it doesn't really cost them anything they truly care about. But if it really invades their money or their time and becomes a sacrifice of any sort, willingness immediately begins to diminish. Jesus did not just give away all of His money to help someone; He gave His life in our place. He died for us. He gave that which to lay down is the last full measure of devotion, his very life itself. And thirdly:

c. it was selfless: He laid it down for us He didn't do it for His own benefit to obtain some reward for himself. He did it solely for OUR benefit; it was a selfless act! I like the way Francine Rivers imagined the thoughts of the rich young ruler after he left Jesus in sadness: I walked away. I went back to all I knew, back to the life that left me empty. When I went up the steps of the Temple, I put coins in the hands of beggars, and cringed inwardly. I knew the truth. I gave not for their sake, but my own. A blessing—that's what I was after! Another mark in my favor, a deed to bring me closer to the assurance of hope and better things to come. For me. [Rivers, Francine (2011-04-22). Sons of Encouragement (p. 586-7). Tyndale House Publishers. Kindle Edition.] So many of the good things people do, if you could actually see the motives of their hearts as God can, are at the root selfish, ultimately done in some measure for their own benefit. But love is totally selfless; it thinks not of itself, but only of the need of the other. Jesus showed us what love is; it means doing costly, self-sacrificing things that meet the needs of others because we truly want to. And John adds that if we truly belong to Him:

2. His love will be replicated in our behavior (16b-17) If we are His, then WE lay down our lives for our brothers. What does that look like? Well, John gives one simple example:

a. we see a brother in need They lost their job and can't pay their bills. They became ill or were in an accident and can't support themselves. Their husband left them and they struggle to make it on their own. Or maybe they were simply born into a situation where there is no way available to them to make it. They are in need and:

b. we may have the means to meet that need We may have money in the bank or income we can spare or something we can sell or a house to share. Of course, we may NOT have the means. We may be in need ourselves, but even then, we will share our hearts with that brother and pray. In either case:

c. the love of God in us creates compassion and causes us to share Because His love is in us, we WANT to meet the need of the other, we are willing to SACRIFICE and do without in order to meet it and we do it for no other reason than that we care deeply about the other. That's love! I see it constantly. But John warns that:

3. our love must be genuine (18) Rom. 12:9 puts it like this, Let love be genuine. Literally, the Greek says, without hypocrisy. It can't be an act.

a. it cannot be mere words without deeds Saying that we love one another is not enough. Love is not merely a feeling of pity; it is being moved enough to act on the other's behalf. And likewise:

b. it cannot be mere talk without truth It cannot be actions that we only say are acts of love without genuine caring on the inside. Paul said, If I give away all I have, and if I deliver up my body to be burned, but have not love, I gain nothing. That's why Peter urged us, ...love one another deeply, from the heart... - 1 Pet. 1:22.

Our love must be real and to be real it must come out of a heart like God's and result in actions that are like God's. Praise the Lord, it happens right here among us all the time. I see it constantly in a thousand small ways. Envelopes full of money mysteriously appear on my desk or in the offering plate with nothing but the name of a brother or sister in need, for us to deliver. One is sick in bed and brothers and sisters begin to show up with meals for the family. Another is moving and needs help and a team of people will sacrifice their time and energy to see that the job is done. Another experiences a loss and a flood of cards and calls and visits begins to come their way. Our people have opened their homes to one another when they have no place to go and even to strangers they don't know when there is a need. Real love, Christ's love, displays itself here among us today because love is and has always been the way of Christ and His followers! But the point John is trying to get to is this:

III. The Practice Of Genuine Love Becomes Our Assurance (19-24) Now please understand, loving our brothers does not save us; it is not the source of our salvation. We can't earn heaven by loving people like so many think. But this love IS the EVIDENCE of our salvation and its presence in us is the very thing that assures us that we truly belong to Christ. We experience this assurance in three ways. First of all:

1. we are assured by observation of our own lives (19-20) John is implying that:

a. our own heart [and by that John means what we usually call our conscience, our inner God-implanted sense of right and wrong] may raise doubt about whether we truly know Him. Why? It knows things against us. We know the evil thoughts that sometimes cross our minds. We know the anger that sometimes flares up inside us. We know our impatience and see how quick we are to hurt a brother or sister when things don't go our way. Inside, we know all our many flaws and failings and sometimes they are enough to cause our own heart to question whether our experience of Christ is genuine and real. But, John says:

b. seeing ourselves practice love sets our hearts at rest in His presence When we spontaneously respond to the needs of our brothers in love, we know that doesn't come from us! We know that's a God thing! And as we see ourselves love and ponder why we just responded like that, it occurs to us that we did it because GOD is IN us! We HAVE been born again and made new! We don't need to be afraid to approach Him! He knows our faults and failings too, but He knows more than that; He knows we are His children. So, seeing love flow out of us assures us and in fact:

c. it gives us great confidence to ask God for what we need (21-22) It gives us confidence to walk right into His Presence and boldly ask for what we need as His child and to see Him answer the way a true child would expect Him to! Seeing ourselves love makes us sure we are His! Secondly:

2. we are assured by God's declaration about us (23-24a) Look at the beginning of verse 24. God says it very clearly:

a. those who obey His commandment belong to Him And what is His commandment? To believe in the name of His Son Jesus and to love one another. Well:

b. WE keep His command We believe in the name of His Son Jesus and we love one another. Therefore, He Himself declares that we live in Him and He lives in us. If that weren't true, we couldn't believe and we couldn't love! He declares it. He says that because these things are true of us that we are His. You can't argue with Him! And finally:

3. we are assured by the Spirit's confirmation (24b) You remember Rom. 8:15-16, don't you? ...you have received the Spirit of adoption as sons, by whom we cry, "Abba! Father!" The Spirit himself bears witness with our spirit that we are children of God. There's a Spirit that now lives in you, the Holy Spirit, a Spirit that knows you are a son or daughter of God, a Spirit who bears witness together with your own new spirit inside you that God is your Father and you can come to Him and cry out, "Daddy!" because He loves you and you belong to Him! And that same Spirit is the very One who causes you to love God and love others.

In her book Love In A Lunchbox, Elaine Ward tells this parable: A king who had no sons sent out his messengers to announce that every young man in the kingdom might apply for an interview with the king to apply to become the next king, but only if they met two specific criteria: They must love God, and they must love others. One young man did indeed love God and others, but he was so poor that he had no clothes that he could wear in which to be interviewed. At last, he begged and borrowed until he had enough money for his clothes and food, and he set out for the castle. He had almost arrived at the castle when he came upon a poor beggar by the side of the road. The beggar was trembling and dressed only in rags. "Would you help me?" he cried weakly. The young man was moved to compassion at the sight of the beggar so much that he took off his new clothes to dress him and gave him his food. Then, uncertain of what he should do, he slowly walked on toward the castle. When he arrived, he was brought before the king and, to the young man's amazement, the king bowed before him. When the king looked up, the young man recognized his face and said, "You...you...were the beggar beside the road?" "I was that beggar," said the king. "But aren't you the king?" "Yes, I am the king." "I do not understand," stammered the young man. And the king replied, "I had to find out if the one who followed me as king truly loved God and others. I had to see what was in your heart. Now I know you will rule my kingdom well." [Love in a Lunchbox by Elaine Ward. Abingdon, 1996. Page 124.] Dear friends, God has the same two criteria sandwiched into one command: Love God; believe in the Name of His Son who died for you. And love one another. The second is the evidence that the first is really true. If you love others, you truly love God. And one day the True King will say to you, "Come, Inherit My Kingdom!"

Test The Spirits - 4:1-6

As we enter chapter 4 in our continuing study, John uses his last phrase in chapter 3, by this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit whom he has given us, and springboards from there to re-visit the warning that he had given back in chapter 2 about false teachers whom he called there, antichrists. I don't think we have nearly enough appreciation for the tremendous difficulty that believers in the earliest days of the church faced in knowing what they should believe as truth and what they should reject. They had no written New Testament to compare as a reference as we do. Copies of letters from the Apostles were made and circulated by being passed around to various house groups so that they could be read in meetings, but certainly, no one had a personal copy to refer to. Everything they were taught was oral, by mouth, and they had to rely completely on their memory for retaining it. Further, with the many who were coming to faith, the one who was teaching them was likely not an apostle or someone like Titus or Timothy who had been taught thoroughly for years, but probably someone who was relatively young in the faith themselves. Under these conditions it was EASY for wrong teaching to develop and propagate, even from sincere sources. One of the earliest problems in the church arose from Jews who had believed in Christ trying to teach churches out in the Greek world that they had to become circumcised as they were in order to be saved. That heresy is the subject of Paul's letter to the Galatians who were being troubled by these teachers. The explosive growth of the church in China in the last 50 years created similar conditions and might help us understand the problem. For example, a man who had fallen away from the Lord fell into an old well while walking through a field and landed on his head. It was not big enough to turn around in so he started praying, "Lord, if You will get me out of here, I will follow You forever." He called out for help, but knew it was useless; no one ever came by that deserted place. Suddenly he heard voices and soon felt a rope around his legs and was pulled out. So, he began a group, which at one point came to number 10,000 people, who believe that the only way to pray is standing on their heads! [The Coming Influence of China, Lawrence, p. 87]. We laugh, but you get the point. Untaught people start all kinds of false teachings based on experiences they have or on limited or wrong understanding of what they've heard from others. And that is as much a problem today and right here as ever. There are several churches in Philadelphia, for instance, that teach faith in Christ, but as a corollary teach strongly that medical care and blood transfusions are morally wrong and their members, not infrequently, die needlessly from things like childbirth or pneumonia. It is of vital importance that we have a way to know that the things we are being taught are true and are actually from God. That's why John writes this in (1-3). Now let's try to understand:

I. The Concept Of Inspiration that John is explaining to us here. We don't use the word prophet in the church any more, probably because we think the word means somebody who predicts the future. But that's not what it means.

1. prophets are people who claim to speak a message from God I'm acting as a prophet, or exercising the gift of prophecy if you will, right now. I am proclaiming a message to you, teaching you things which I contend are true because they ultimately come from God. I'm certainly NOT claiming that God told me word by word exactly what to preach this morning, but simply by standing here and doing this, I am claiming that the basic principles and content of what I'm teaching you is from God. And you probably believe me or else you wouldn't be sitting here week after week. Now in the early church there were also people whom God endued with a particular gift of prophecy where He actually did give them specific words to speak, just as He did the prophets of Israel. Agabus, for instance, came to Paul in Acts 21:10-11 and told him that the Spirit said he would be bound (arrested) at Jerusalem and turned over to the Gentiles, which he was. I'm sure God gave this sort of direct prophecy much more commonly then because there were still no written New Testament records, but He is not limited. He still gives specific messages that way to His church, even today, especially out among the unreached peoples where the church is very young and vulnerable. Well, you can see the obvious danger that goes with prophecy; there is a real need to discern who is really speaking from God and who isn't! John explains that:

2. prophets speak by whichever spirit is compelling them They don't just stand up and speak on their own. Preaching and teaching on spiritual things is more than a lecture or a class session. Prophets are inspired. They are compelled to share what they share by a spirit who is at work in and through them. To get a picture of how this works, look with me at 2 Pet. 1:20-21. That last phrase is how prophecy works; men speak from God as they are carried along by the Holy Spirit, the same way a sailing ship is pushed across the ocean by the wind or a kayak is propelled downstream by the current. The Spirit, working in and through the person, compels them to say what they say. Well, John points out that, unfortunately:

3. there are two different spirits which may be moving a prophet Of course:

a. true prophets are moved by the Spirit of God (2) The Holy Spirit lives in them and as He impresses the message He wants to deliver upon their minds, they speak the truth from the Spirit of truth, as He is called in (6b). The Holy Spirit can only speak truth and Jesus said He would be given to us to guide us into all the truth. A true prophet speaks from God's spirit, but there are also false prophets, counterfeits, who claim to be speaking from God but really are not. In fact, John says that:

b. false prophets are moved by the spirit of the antichrist (3) The antichrist who is to come in the end time will also be moved by a spirit and that same spirit is already at work today. Of course, this refers to evil spirits or demons who are controlled by Satan. 1 Tim. 4:1 says, The Spirit clearly says that in later times some will abandon the faith and follow deceiving spirits and things taught by demons. Demons are teachers! They invent lies, false information, and feed it to the minds of people whom they control. Let me give you one obvious example. In the Middle East there are about a million Arabic speaking Druze people who departed from Islam centuries ago and have their own religion. The Druze emphasize belief in the reincarnation of souls and this belief in reincarnation is also linked to the practice of "speaking out," which is essentially an effort to encourage small children to practice a kind of divination. Some children and adults do apparently have revelations, and speak about details of other peo- ple's lives that are impossible for them to know otherwise. When young children "speak out," it is considered a sign and even a proof of their reincarnation. [www.30-days.net/muslims/muslims-in/mid-near-east/druze-middle-east/] Where do children get such information? They're actually inviting demons to feed it to them! Evil spirits are compelling people to say what they say and that is true for all false prophets. They teach error or falsehood from the spirits who induce error according to (6b). And that brings us to John's main point:

II. We Must Test The Inspiration Of The Teachers We Hear (1) Or to put it another way, John is warning us that:

1. we must continually exercise the gift of discerning which spirit is really doing the speaking whenever we hear someone claim to speak for God. If you look at 1 Cor. 12:10 you'll see there a listing of spiritual gifts that some people are given and one of them is the ability to distinguish between spirits. That doesn't mean to sort them out into different varieties; it means the ability to tell whether the spirit who is speaking through a person is the Holy Spirit or an evil spirit! When Simon the magician of Samaria, after he had believed and been baptized, saw people receive the Holy Spirit through the laying on of the apostles' hands and offered Peter money to gain this ability for himself, Peter immediately said, ...your heart is not right before God...I see that you are full of bitterness and captive to sin. - Acts 8:21-23. Instantly he perceived that the spirit who was speaking through Simon was NOT the Holy Spirit! And that's what John says we have to be able to do on a continual basis. Some people may be particularly gifted at distinguishing like this in difficult cases, but ALL of us have a responsibility to develop and exercise this gift of discernment, which John shows us has two phases. First:

a. we must not indiscriminately believe everyone who claims to speak God's message The first step is to realize that not everyone who claims to be speaking for God is really doing it. Just because a person says, "God said..." doesn't mean God actually said it! In other words, we need to develop a healthy skepticism instead of blind acceptance. Just because a person is pastor of a church or a professor in a seminary or is on the radio or TV or has gotten a book published is no guarantee that what they are teaching is truth from God. As I told you earlier, I had lots of professors in college and seminary who were very nice, religious and learned people. They spoke from years of experience and training, yet they taught me things I knew were not true, things that did not come from God. And many were deceived into believing those things. That's why John says that, rather than simply believing everyone:

b. we must "assay" test everyone who claims to speak God's message You know what an assayer does, don't you? You take him the gold-colored rocks you found in the stream and he tests them chemically to determine whether they are really gold or not, how pure the gold is and how much of other metals is mixed with it. That's the root meaning of the word test here and that's what we must do with everyone who claims to speak for God. We must test them; we must make a deeper examination and analyze whether it is really God speaking through them or not. Now John gives us:

2. the marks of a person inspired by the Spirit of God (2) If a person is speaking by the Spirit of God, first:

a. they demonstrate a personal confession of Christ That word confess means more than simply saying something or stating a fact; it means to agree with it, to admit and adhere to the truth of it for yourself. A person speaking by the Spirit will personally confess that Christ is their Savior, that they love Him and are His follower, that He is their only Savior and their Lord or Master. ...No one can say, "Jesus is Lord," except by the Holy Spirit, Paul said in 1 Cor. 12:3, and truly mean it. Second, if a person speaks by the Spirit:

b. they teach a true understanding of Christ's person and work They confess that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, that He is the one and only Savior of the world. And that He is come in the flesh, that He, God the Son took to Himself a truly human body in Mary's womb and actually became a man in order to go to the cross and save us from our sins. The Spirit of God KNOWS who Jesus is and, obviously, anyone who is speaking from Him will hold to what we know as the biblical doctrine of who Christ was and what He did. Then third, if a person speaks by the Spirit:

c. the right audience listens to them (6) People who truly know God, genuine believers, listen to people who speak from God. In other words, don't trust only in your own judgment. Look at who else believes and trusts this person and their message. In the multitude of counselors there is wisdom; if a number of people whom you know to be mature and discerning in the faith, sense that the Spirit is really speaking through the person, that's pretty good evidence that they are the genuine article.

Now on the other hand John gives us:

3. the marks of person inspired by the spirit of Satan (3) If a person is really being inspired by an evil spirit:

a. they demonstrate no clear personal confession of Christ They are not quick to say that Jesus is Lord and that He is their Savior and that they love Him with all their heart. At the same time:

b. they teach a false understanding of Christ's person and work They will teach that Christ was the son of God, but not completely and fully God. They will teach that He was a good man, a great teacher, a man through whom

God worked, and they will not see His death on the cross as a substitutionary sacrifice for the sins of men and the only means of salvation. They will add works to it in some fashion or another. They will tell you that there is something else, something more, that you must DO to be saved, in addition to believing in Jesus. And if you look around, you'll notice that:

c. the wrong audience listens to them (5) The unbelieving world is willing to listen to what they say and doesn't have a problem with it. When you teach biblical truth concerning creation or miracles or moral purity or a myriad of other subjects, people all around object to it and even become angered by it. But they have no trouble with someone claiming faith who endorses evolution and abortion and salvation by doing good things. Look at who listens.

The world tends to hate people who genuinely proclaim God's truth!

The habit of testing the teachers you hear is crucially important! You need to have it going on all the time, to be constantly evaluating what you hear, doing like the Bereans did when they heard Paul, ...they received the message with great eagerness and examined the Scriptures every day to see if what Paul said was true. - Acts 17:11. Listen for a personal confession of Jesus, compare what is being taught to the Scriptures and look at who else is listening to it. Test the spirits that are behind what you hear being taught, but don't be discouraged that false teachers abound. They always have and always will. Look at:

III. Our Assurance Concerning False Teachers First, Paul tells us that:

1. it is no surprise that Satan disguises his messengers Listen to 2 Cor. 11:13-15. Deceit, wrapping up lies to declare them as truth, dressing up his servants to make them appear as servants of God, that is all standard operating procedure for Satan. He is the "Deceiver"; that is what he does! Expect it. Yet we need not fear that his false prophets will win the day by overwhelming and leading us astray. Look at the assurance that John gives in (4)! Hallelujah!

2. we are indwelt by God Himself He is IN us! In the Greek it says we are out of God, that is, He is our very source. His Spirit is the One who lives inside us, so that when we speak, we speak by God Himself! Our message is HIS message and it is HIS Word that will prevail, not the deceitful teaching of the false prophets. In fact, John says literally that:

3. we have conquered them and have continuing victory over them The verb is to conquer, in the Greek, is in the perfect tense which means that the progress of an action has been completed and the results of the action are continuing on in full effect. In other words, the progress of the action has reached its culmination and the finished results are now in existence. The conquering has already been done at the cross; Satan is a vanquished foe. He has already lost. And the effect of that loss is permanent and continuing. We are not striving against false prophets and their message to overcome them; they're already defeated and can't win! Why? Because:

4. our God is greater in both power and authority than theirs The one who is in them is no match for the God who spoke the worlds into existence and who upholds the universe by the power of His Word! For all his striving and trying, he cannot contend with the One at whose Name one day every knee shall bow of things in heaven and on earth and under the earth! Jesus is Lord of ALL! And He lives in ME by His Spirit; so, whom shall I fear? The Psalmist said, Why do the nations rage and the peoples plot in vain? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the LORD and against his Anointed, saying, "Let us burst their bonds apart and cast away their cords from us." He who sits in the heavens laughs; the Lord holds them in derision. Then he will speak to them in his wrath, and terrify them in his fury, saying, "As for me, I have set my King on Zion, my holy hill." - Ps. 2:1-6. Beloved, Jesus is already seated on His throne; nobody is going to move Him from it! And because we are joined to Him and He is in us, nothing can separate us from Him, not now and not ever!

In The Case for Christianity, Colin Chapman quotes Ugandan bishop Festo Kivengere's account of the 1973 execution by firing squad of three men from his diocese: "February 10 began as a sad day for us in Kabale. People were commanded to come to the stadium and witness the execution. Death permeated the atmosphere. A silent crowd of about three thousand was there to watch. I had permission from the authorities to speak to the men before they died, and two of my fellow ministers were with me. They brought the men in a truck and unloaded them. They were handcuffed and their feet were chained. The firing squad stood at attention. As we walked into the center of the stadium, I was wondering what to say. How do you give the gospel to doomed men who are probably seething with rage? We approached them from behind, and as they turned to look at us, what a sight! Their faces were all alight with an unmistakable glow and radiance. Before we could say anything, one of them burst out: "Bishop, thank you for coming! I wanted to tell you. The day I was arrested, in my prison cell, I asked the Lord Jesus to come into my heart. He came in and forgave me all my sins! Heaven is now open, and there is nothing between me and my God! Please tell my wife and children that I am going to be with Jesus. Ask them to accept him into their lives as I did." The other two men told similar stories, excitedly raising their hands, which rattled their handcuffs. I felt that what I needed to do was to talk to the soldiers, not to the condemned. So, I translated what the men had said into a language the soldiers understood. The military men were standing there with guns cocked and bewilderment on their faces. They were so dumbfounded that they forgot to put the hoods over the men's faces! The three faced the firing squad standing close together. They looked toward the people and began to wave, handcuffs and all. The people waved back. Then shots were fired, and the three were with Jesus. We stood in front of them, our own hearts throbbing with joy, mingled with tears. It was a day never to be forgotten. Though dead, the men spoke loudly to all of Kigezi District and beyond, so that there was an upsurge of life in Christ, which challenges death and defeats it. The next Sunday, I was preaching to a huge crowd in the home town of one of the executed men. Again, the feel of death was over the congregation. But when I gave them the testimony of their man, and how he died, there erupted a great song of praise to Jesus! Many turned to the Lord there.

Jesus can't lose! He's already won! And so have we! We need not fear anything the enemy does to us; they can even kill our bodies, but after that there is no more they can do! But we DO need to expose Satan when we see him at work. We do need to constantly discern who his followers are and how they are trying to lead people astray and denounce their false teaching for what it is. We DO need to continually test the spirits of the teachers we hear, lest we be led away from the Word, the very source of our assurance.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life

God Is Love - 4:7-21

For the remainder of the fourth chapter, John returns to the theme of this section of his letter, which is love. To me it feels a little like he's saying the same thing over and over and as I preach it, I'm doing likewise, saying the same thing over and over. But maybe there is a point to that. Around 380 AD, a priest by the name of Jerome gave the Roman world its first complete Latin Bible translated from the original languages, known as the Vulgate. But Jerome also wrote other things, including a commentary on Galatians, and in that commentary he recorded this tradition that had been passed down to him about the last days of the Apostle John: When the blessed evangelist John, the apostle, had lived in Ephesus into his extreme old age and could hardly be carried to the meetings of the church by the disciples, and when in speaking he could no longer put together many words, he would not say anything else in the meetings but this: "Little children, love one another!" When at last the disciples and brothers present got tired of hearing the same thing again and again, they said, "Master, why do you keep saying the same thing?" John replied with a saying worthy of him: "Because it is the Lord's command, and it is enough if it is really done" [Jerome, Commentary on Galatians 6:10 AD 387-388]. In other words, "I keep on saying it so you will actually DO it!" Repetition is not a bad thing if you see that the point of it is for you to really GET the message! So don't crinkle your nose in boredom when John writes yet again in verse 7, Beloved, let us love one another! He just wants us to REALLY DO IT! Actually, John goes much deeper than that; this portion of his letter can be divided into three sections, each of which spells out for us an important fact about love. In the first section, verses (7-12), he explains to us that:

I. Our Love Comes From God It is not something that originates from or is generated by us. It is not a human thing, not a natural thing, but rather a supernatural thing, a God thing. Look at (7-8):

1. God's very nature is love You see it in verse 8 and John repeats it later in verse 16, God IS love. Love is not just some secondary quality that describes God like majesty or beauty. It is the very core of His person; love is what He IS. All that He does, even judgment, He does in love. All that He says, even rebuke, He says in love. Even consigning the wicked to hell, He does in love because He IS love. Now evidently His love is not exactly love in the way we commonly think of it; it is much bigger, much grander, much deeper and wider, and much more multi-faceted than we're prepared to fully understand with our limited human minds. However, we can POSSESS it. Love is from God; it comes from God. He is the one and only source of that kind of love; it comes from nowhere else. Therefore, John says, its presence in us indicates His Presence in us! If we love with that God-kind of love, we must know God and have been born of Him so that He dwells in us with His love. Where else would it come from? If we don't love with that love, we couldn't really know Him or have Him living in us, else we would love! His Presence in us would compel us to love! Now what does that love look like? John says:

2. God's love was fully revealed in the sending of His Son (9) The cross is God's full, final, and complete revealing of His love. God loved us human beings, whom He lovingly created for intimate fellowship with Him, so much, that even though we rebelled against Him and followed His enemy and became absolutely lost and dead in our trespasses and sins, deserving eternal suffering in hell, He sent His one and only, absolutely beloved Son into the world to become one of us and ultimately to die the cruelest of all deaths upon a cross as the sacrifice for our sins so that we might live with Him after all! THAT is love! Nobody generates that on their own! Sure, some people might give up their lives for a worthy cause to help others or to rescue someone they care about, but NOBODY sacrifices their own infinitely loved son to save their very enemies! That kind of love that cares about, sacrifices and redeems people who don't deserve it, that's a God thing! And that's why:

3. God's love for us precedes and produces our love (10) It wasn't that we loved God and because of our love for Him, He saved us. It's the other way around! Because He loved us first in such a tremendous sacrificial act, we love Him! His love came before ours and the experience of His love produced in us a genuine love for Him. How can you not love Someone who loved you that much? In the early 1500's Francis Xavier expressed it well:

My God, I love Thee; not because I hope for heaven thereby,
 Nor yet because who love Thee not Are lost eternally.
 Thou, O my Jesus, Thou didst me Upon the cross embrace;
 For me didst bear the nails, and spear, And manifold disgrace,
 And griefs and torments numberless, And sweat of agony;
 Yea, death itself; and all for me Who was thine enemy.
 Then why, O blessed Jesus Christ, Should I not love Thee well?
 Not for the sake of winning heaven, Nor of escaping hell;
 Not from the hope of gaining aught, Not seeking a reward;
 But as Thyself hast loved me, O ever-loving Lord.
 So would I love Thee, dearest Lord, And in Thy praise will sing;
 Solely because Thou art my God, And my most loving King.

[Francis Xavier, 1506-1552 Translated by Edward Caswall, 1814-1878.]

His love makes us love Him, but at the same time:

4. God's love for us generates the duty for us to love one another (11) Since God loved us this much when we didn't deserve it, since we have received so great a love, does not that make it binding upon us to love others the way we've been loved? You remember the parable where the King forgave his servant a tremendous debt he could not pay, but that servant turned around and refused to forgive another who owed him only a small amount. The King rebuked him by saying, Should not you have had mercy on your fellow servant, as I had mercy on you? Should not the one who has been forgiven so much forgive others? Forgiveness creates the duty to forgive and it is the same with love. To be the recipient of such great love, if we truly grasp it, compels us to love others with the love that we have received from God. And as we do that, as we live out His love:

5. our love fulfills the complete revelation of His love (12) The world can't see God. They can't go to some temple or some sacred mountain and catch a glimpse of Him. But they can see us! And as they see us loving others, they see Him as He lives in us. In fact, as we love, His love is brought to its most full and perfect completion. In his Gospel John says that No one has ever seen God, but God the One and Only, who is at the Father's side, has made him known. When people saw Jesus, they saw God in all His fulness. He was the complete revelation of God to us. Likewise, when people see us loving with the very love of God, they see God's love in all its fullness. It is made perfect, brought to completion, in us so the world can see His true nature shining through us. During the conflict between Armenia and Turkey an Armenian nurse had been held captive along with her brother by the Turks. Her brother was slain by a Turkish soldier before her eyes. Somehow, she escaped and later became a nurse in a military hospital. One day she was stunned to find that the same man who had killed her brother had been captured and brought wounded to the hospital where she worked. Something within her cried out "Vengeance". But a stronger voice called for her to love. She nursed the man back to health. Finally, the recuperating soldier asked her, "Why didn't you let me die?" Her answer was, "I am a follower of Him who said, 'Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you.'" (Luke 6:27). Impressed with her answer, the young soldier replied, "I never heard such words before. Tell me more. I want this kind of religion." As we love with His love, God reveals Himself to others.

So, our love comes from God. Now the second fact John tells us in (13-16) is that:

II. We Love Because God Lives In Us Five times in these four verses you find the words live in if you're reading the NIV. If you have the ESV you find abide in and the good old King James has dwell in. All three are right. God lives inside us. He dwells in us; we are His permanent home. He abides there; He remains in us. And that's the reason we love, because He is IN us and He is love. But the reverse is also true. We live in Him, we dwell in Him and we remain in Him! Our very life is joined to His. And John tells us how we know that. First, John says:

1. we know He lives in us because we possess the Spirit (13) That was Peter's first promise in the invitation he gave at the end of his first sermon, ...Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the forgiveness of your sins, and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. For the promise is for you and for your children and for all who are far off, everyone whom the Lord our God calls to himself. - Acts 2:38-39. When we give our hearts and lives to Christ, we receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. The Holy Spirit of God Himself comes to literally live inside us, to dwell in our spirit and be united with us. And we know He is there. The Holy Spirit changes us and He gifts us and empowers us. He gives us a new posture of intimacy with God. We can tell He is present because we are different and that difference means that God Himself lives in us. We have the evidence of our own experience. Second:

2. we know He lives in us because we confess His Son (14-15) If God lives and dwells in all those who confess with their hearts that Jesus is the Son of God as He promised, then since we openly confess and testify that He is indeed the Savior of the world, He MUST live in us! He said so! We have the evidence of His very Word on it! But where John is going is the third evidence:

3. we know He lives in us because we live in love (16) In believing the Gospel we have both understood and experienced the great love that God has for us. We have believed and trusted in that love; we have relied upon that love to save us. So, when we live a life of love, when we abide in loving others with that agape kind of love, we demonstrate that God Himself, who IS love, is dwelling in us and that we are joined to Him. Our love to others is the evidence that He lives in us. We couldn't do that without His Presence!

Our love comes from God; we love because He lives in us, and finally John tells us in (17-21) that:

III. Our Love Gives Us Great Assurance First of all:

1. our love gives us confidence to face the day of judgment (17) Paul told us that ...we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive what is due for what he has done in the body, whether good or evil. - 2 Cor. 5:10. This is not a judgment of our sins (that occurred at the cross), but an evaluation of our service, of how we lived as believers, of what God was able to do through our body, whether it was valuable or worthless. If we are living a life of love now, the life we are living right now in this world is His life, the character we are displaying is His character. And because of that we are not ashamed to face Him on that day; we are not hesitant and questioning as to how we will be received. Rather we are confident, looking forward to that day, because we know love is what He really wants of us. In fact:

2. our love drives out all fear of punishment (18) People are always afraid that when they stand before God they will be punished. People know their own hearts. But we are never afraid of someone who loves us. No matter how big they are or how strong they are or how capable they are of hurting us, if we are fully convinced they love us, we have no fear. If we are fully experiencing God's love and we see that love flowing through ourselves, all fear of punishment is gone. We are not afraid of God anymore; we call Him Abba, Father, Dad. We know that there is no condemnation for us because we are in Christ Jesus; His love takes all fear away. Now the thing that makes this all work is that:

3. our love could not be self-generated (19) We only love because He first loved us and placed His love in us. We can't generate love for Him and we can't generate love for others on our own. So, the fact that we see ourselves loving means it HAS to be from Him. It has to be real! It demonstrates to us the reality of our own faith.

4. our love demonstrates the reality of our claim to love God (20) Lots of people claim to love God; it's pretty easy to say. But the proof of it is in whether or not they demonstrate His love to other people. If you can't bring yourself to love people whom you can see and interact with on a direct personal basis, how can you love Someone you've never seen? It's like Jesus' question to the Pharisees in Mat. 9:5 about the paralyzed man, For which is easier, to say, 'Your sins are forgiven,' or to say, 'Rise and walk'? I'm sure they thought it was easier to say your sins are forgiven because that's an intangible thing that you can't see or prove. But Jesus' point was that the intangible thing of being able to forgive a person's sins was MUCH harder than the physical miracle of healing him which you could see. So, Jesus went ahead and did the miracle of healing the man and told them that was to prove that He could do the even harder thing, that He had authority to forgive sins. John says, "Which is harder, to love a God you can't see or to love people you can see?" The spiritual reality of loving God is actually a harder thing, even though it is easily claimed. The proof that you do it is not in the words, but it is in the easier thing of loving the people around you right here and now! Our practice of loving other people proves that our claim to love God is real and genuine. It gives us great assurance. But finally, John reminds us that:

5. our love is always an intentional response to God's command (21) It is never fully and completely automatic. Even though God Himself dwells in us by His Spirit and has placed His love in us, we never love others against our own will. We are never puppets that are just forced to go around loving because we can't help it; we always have to choose to do it, to choose to let that Divine love in us be poured out on the other person. That's why it's a command. It still requires obedience.

I know I've read this story to you before, but it is really a classic. Those of you who are older will remember the name of Corrie Ten Boom, a Dutch lady who was interned in a Nazi concentration camp for sheltering Jews. It was a place of untold horrors and in it she lost both her beloved elderly father and her sister Betsy who shared her ordeal. But God touched Corrie in that awful place and the rest of her years she traveled the world telling the story of God's incredible love and the healing it can bring. In her book, The Hiding Place, she writes of this experience she had after the war: It was at a church service in Munich that I saw him, the former S.S. man who had stood guard at the shower room door in the processing center at Ravensbruck. He was the first of our actual jailers that I had seen since that time. And suddenly it was all there-- the roomful of mocking men, the heaps of clothing, Betsy's pain-blanced face. He came up to me as the church was emptying, beaming and bowing. "How grateful I am for your message, Fraulein," he said. "To think that, as you say, He has washed my sins away!" His hand was thrust out to shake mine. And I, who had preached so often to the people in Bloemendaal the need to forgive, kept my hand at my side. Even as the angry, vengeful thoughts boiled through me, I saw the sin of them. Jesus Christ had died for this man; was I going to ask for more? "Lord Jesus," I prayed, "forgive me and help me to forgive him." I tried to smile. I struggled to raise my hand. I could not. I felt nothing, not the slightest spark of warmth or charity. And so again I breathed a silent prayer. "Jesus, I cannot forgive him. Give me Your forgiveness." As I took his hand the most incredible thing happened. From my shoulder along my arm and through my hand a current seemed to pass from me to him, while into my heart sprang a love for this stranger that almost overwhelmed me. And so, I discovered that it is not on our forgiveness any more than on our goodness that the world's healing hinges, but on His. When He tells us to love our enemies, He gives, along with the command, the love itself. [The Hiding Place - Corrie Ten Boom - p. 238]. Oh beloved, God's love is in us, the very love which drove Him to send His Son to earth to a cross to save us from our sins! It dwells in us by His Spirit. But we must choose to let it out, to release it in each situation upon each other, upon those we live near and work and go to school with, even upon those who hate us, and we let it out by simply calling upon Him and asking Him to love through us. And when you do that and sense that love that is not your own flowing out to others through you, what tremendous assurance it will give your heart that you are living out His very life in this world. You really do belong to Him.

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life Conquering The World - 5:1-5

Before we start today, I have an admission to make to you. 1 John is hard! I know it has a number of simple lessons and concepts in it and we often recommend it to young believers, but the actual study of it is tough! Looking at it verse by verse and phrase by phrase in a serious fashion, it is MUCH deeper than a cursory reading reveals. There are only five verses in the section of chapter 5 we'll study today, but I spent hours looking at those verses, reading commentaries, and looking up Greek grammar while praying, "Lord, exactly what are you saying and what do you mean?" And then when you do figure it out, it's not always what you would expect it to say or want it to say! Anyway, after all of that agonizing, here's my best shot. If you remember, in the last verse of chapter 4, John had reminded us that loving each other is a command that God has given us; it is a choice that we must make to obey Him and do it. But do you realize how HARD that seems sometimes? And I'm not even talking about loving your enemies! I mean just how hard it can be to love people that you know are believers just like you; they can be just so "unlovable" sometimes! I read one pastor's personal lament about this. He said, As a pastor in my younger days, I had my share of [difficult people]! There was Helen, who lived across the street in our small New England town and kept her eye on the parsonage. When the furnace acted up in the dead of winter, I had to monkey with it to keep it going, and she complained to the church board about "Mr. Leonard playing with his tinker toys." (I guess we were supposed to freeze to death instead?) Then there was Marion, the treasurer in another church, who became so hostile to me that she tried to withhold my salary — or the nominal stipend that was euphemistically referred to as my salary — until the Bishop intervened. And there was Joe in my western Illinois parish. I tried to make a few changes when I came to that church, such as asking the Board to meet in the well-lighted basement instead of the dim parlor at the back of the church. For this and other things, Joe became so angry at me that after church services he would leave by the side door rather than shake my hand at the main entrance. It really galled him when I beat him to the door and made him shake my hand anyway. The list could go on and on. [Dr. Richard C. Leonard, "Difficult People: Gotta Love 'Em!", www.laudemont.org/sermons/s-difficult.htm] As it could for each one of us, couldn't it? Well, my take on what John is continuing on to tell us as we begin chapter 5 is that it is NOT hard to love our brothers and sisters in Christ! The command that Christ gave us to love our brothers, as difficult as it may seem at times, is not some impossible goal we can never reach; it is not some awful task that we must grit our teeth and bear up under. It is not hard for us to do and John gives us three reasons. First of all:

I. It Is Not Hard To Love Our Fellow Believers By Nature (1) In other words, it is our very nature to love one another and when it's your nature to do something, it's not hard for you to choose to do that thing, even if the task itself is difficult. For example, is it hard for you to love your children? Of course, your first response is probably, "No! Of course not! It just comes naturally!" But others of you, if you are honest, are thinking, "Yes, it is!". Maybe your child has rebelled against you and done all kinds of things that break your heart. Maybe your child has a chronic illness or a handicap and it takes all you've got to handle an endless round of doctor visits plus their physical care. But you do it anyway; you don't even think about not doing it. Why? He's your child or she's your child and making the choice to love them comes easy no matter how difficult the doing of it is! Well, John begins by saying that:

1. everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ, (or as he puts it in verse 5 in) the Son of God, is a genuine believer He is still wanting to exclude those false prophets, those false teachers whom Paul referred to as false brothers. He excludes those who claim to be brothers, who claim to be believers, yet do not confess that Jesus is God the Son, that He is the only Savior who came to pay for our sins on the cross and that trusting in Him is the only way to heaven. They are NOT who he's talking about. But everyone who DOES believe and confess those things is a real, genuine believer in Christ and:

2. all genuine believers have been "fathered by" God and so contain His nature I learned something really interesting this week that I had never realized before. The verb in that phrase born of God has a different meaning depending on who is doing the bearing. In the case of a woman, it obviously means "to give birth" and refers to the act of delivering a child. But when the actor is a male (as is true in the genealogies of the Bible where Abraham "begat" Isaac and so on), it refers not to the act of birth itself, but to conception. It means "to cause a child to come into being" or in shorter form in English, to "father" a child. Now the ancients didn't know all the biology involved in procreation, about DNA and chromosomes and all that; rather they saw it in a much simpler agricultural image. A husband planted a seed of himself in his wife, much like planting a seed of corn or wheat in rich soil prepared for it, and from that seed a child would grow like a young plant. And just like the wheat seed would bear a stalk of wheat which had the nature of its parent, so the child that was born was the “seed” or the “offspring” that sprang or rose up from the father and shared his nature. The nature of the father is transferred to the child whom he “fathers”. That’s what John meant in 3:9. The NET Bible translates it, Everyone who has been fathered by God does not practice sin, because God’s seed resides in him, and thus he is not able to sin, because he has been fathered by God. God “fathered” us! His “seed” is in us. His very nature has been planted in us because we believed! Now, John says:

3. everyone who has been “fathered by” God innately loves the other children He has “fathered” You see this in your own family, if you have more than one child. When the second one is comes along, the first one naturally loves the second. And the first two love the third. You don’t have to teach them, “Now, this is your baby brother or sister. You have to love them!” It is innate; it is inside them; it happens for them just like it does for you. Why? Because they share the same nature. And the same thing works in the spiritual realm. All of us who believe, share the nature imparted by our Father, so it is our very nature to love one another! It comes as part of the salvation package imparted to us in our new birth. It is not hard to love our brothers and sisters because it is part of our new nature to do it! We’re not forcing ourselves to do something alien, rather we’re doing something that is as natural as breathing or eating or sleeping or loving our own children!

Yet it is still a choice. A brother or sister can choose to act selfishly in their own interest or become alienated from the family. So, we still have to choose to do even what comes naturally. And that brings us to John’s second point:

II. It Is Not Hard To Love Our Fellow Believers By Command (2-3) Now this section is a little tougher to understand, so let’s dissect and examine it. First, John is saying:

1. when we love God, we naturally keep His commandments Because I grew up on the King James, I always thought that when Jesus said in Jn. 14:15, If you love Me, keep my commandments, that He was giving a command, an ultimatum. “If you really love Me, then DO what I say!” But the best Greek manuscripts, which the more recent translations, follow have a future tense, If you love Me, YOU WILL keep my commandments! It’s a statement of fact, of what will happen. Love for God, love for Jesus, naturally results in obedience. And John confirms that thought, even going so far as to say that:

a. loving God IS keeping His commandments They are one and the same thing! Loving God is not just a bunch of gushy emotional feelings toward Him, as nice as it may be to have those. Love for God is an absolute dedication to Him, a giving of your life completely over to Him, so that doing what He says, keeping his commands, is just something that comes naturally. You do it without a second thought. The love and the doing are all one and the same thing! And that’s why John says that:

b. His commandments are not a burden They’re not a heavy load that weighs us down; they’re not some grievous awful duty that we’re saddled with. Look with me at what Jesus said in Mt. 11:28-30. Now what’s a yoke? A yoke is a wooden bar or frame that joins two animals like oxen or horses so that they can pull a wagon or a plow together for their owner, and of course, figuratively, taking a yoke upon yourself means entering into the service of another. When you come to Christ, you enter His service and take upon yourself the yoke of obeying His commands and doing his will. But He says that He is not a harsh Master! He doesn’t whip the oxen pulling His plow nor scream and curse at them like many drivers do. In fact, He says that in His yoke you’ll actually experience rest, not hard toil and exhaustion! That’s strange; why? Well, I’m not sure whether Jesus meant it like this or not, but I like to take the image of the yoke literally. It requires two to pull the plow! So, when you get into His yoke, He is the one on the other side! He is the one pulling the plow, doing the work with you and He’s pulling all the weight! It’s like riding a two-person bicycle with the guy in the front so big and strong that he’s doing all the work and the guy in the back is just barely keeping his feet turning on the pedals! To say it another way:

c. He provides the power to keep His commands That’s why they’re not a burden. His power resides in us in the person of the Holy Spirit and when we choose to let Him pedal, He does life through us! His energy accomplishes the work through our bodies. That’s why His yoke is easy and His burden is light. Love for Him makes us naturally WANT to do what He says to do and His power ENABLES us to do it. So, keeping His commands is not hard, if we yield ourselves to Him. But here’s the tricky part. In verse 2, John says that:

2. whenever we see ourselves loving God by keeping His commandments, we know that we love His children You see, the reason we sometimes wonder whether we really love some brother or sister is because we don’t always have warm, fuzzy, feelings about them. We don’t want to rush over and give them a hug; it would be like hugging a cactus! So let me give you an example. Look at Eph. 4:25-29. When you see yourself obeying God’s commands, when you see yourself telling the truth to that person you struggle with instead of lying to them and deliberately keeping your anger towards them under control and sharing materially with them when they have need and choosing only to say true and useful things to them and about them, and forgiving them and not holding bitterness (which comes in the next verses), you ARE LOVING THEM! You are loving your neighbor, your brother, as yourself! God doesn’t expect you to generate warm affectionate emotions toward somebody; He provides you with both the desire and the ability to keep His commands toward them. So, when you see yourself keeping His commands, you know you are loving them. And, trust me, if you DO that, the emotions will follow later!

So, it is not hard to love our brothers because of our nature and it is not hard to love our brothers as a command of God. And thirdly, John says:

III. It Is Not Hard To Love Our Fellow Believers Because We Have Conquered The World (4-5) As we explained back in chapter 2:

1. the world is our Satanically-arranged environment which pressures us to join its evil way of life When we come into this world there is an ordered environmental system all about us which exerts its force upon us from the earliest part of life until the day we die. And, as the prince of this world and the god of this world, Satan arranges and controls it through the lives of the billions who unknowingly follow him. And the world around us is always pressuring us to join it, to think like it thinks and to live its way. Just look at TV commercials; how many of them seek to either arouse you sexually or lead you into materialism and pleasure seeking. You don't see, "Love God with all your heart and be chaste!" commercials during the Superbowl! That same pressure to disobey God and essentially live in idolatry is all around and comes at us from everywhere. But here's the good news:

2. God conquered the world through Jesus' death at the cross The Greek word nikao, translated overcome, literally means to conquer the enemy, to win the battle. In English, overcome to us carries the sense of struggling and wrestling against a difficult situation and making it through. Do you see the difference? In Jn. 16:33 Jesus said, ...In the world you have trouble and suffering, but take courage – I have conquered the world. He is not engaged in some long struggle against Satan and his system down through the ages in which He will eventually succeed at last. He already won the battle! The battle occurred on the cross and there the victory was accomplished once and for all! We're just engaged in the long mop-up operation of rescuing as many of Satan's hostages as possible before Christ imposes His Kingdom upon the world at His coming! He can do that any time He wants; He won the battle and He can take over the world at will. Now the implication that John seems to be drawing from that is this:

3. everyone who has been "fathered by" God conquers the world's attack against his own life To be fathered by God is not only to share His nature, it is to share all that is His. His position is our position. His rulership is our rulership; that's why the Book says, if we live with Him, we will REIGN with Him. And His victory is OUR victory. The battle that He won at the cross was our battle; that's why we are more than conquerors, we are superconquerors, through Jesus Christ our Lord. When the world throws its most powerful pressures against us, it is not hard for us to conquer them, IF we realize the truth of who we really are. Now John adds that:

4. the conquering force that does this in our lives is our faith That word victory means the actually winning of the battle, the conquering of the enemy. The conquering force that wins this battle, when we face it every day, is faith. You see:

a. this conquering is not by our own effort God does not simply say, "Go out and live in this pressure filled world, where Satan is always skulking around behind your back in the grass like a hungry lion waiting for the opportune moment to devour you, and take your little spear and fend him off when he charges!" He does not say, "Go out and fight the enemy the best you can. Be strong, be a man, be tough!" He says, "Go and when the lion charges, call upon Me and trust Me; I will take care of him. I already did!" In other words:

b. this conquering occurs because we trust Him to supply the power It occurs because, I have been crucified with Christ. It is no longer I who live, but Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. - Gal. 2:20. When I realize that I live, that I love, that I obey only by His power, then I call upon Him in every situation and I win, I conquer, I live out His will! It is my faith, my trust, my counting on and depending on Jesus in every moment, in every situation, that makes it easy to not act like the world pressures me to act toward my brothers and sisters. When I trust Him to act through me, I love them! And John finishes by bringing the circle round to where he started it:

5. all genuine believers have conquered the world simply by believing that Jesus is the Son of God! This victory is not just for some select few. It is not just for monks secluded in some monastery away from temptation. It is not just for super-spiritual people who read their Bibles five hours a day and have calluses on their knees from praying half the night. Everyone who has believed that Jesus is the Son of God, who has confessed Him as their Lord and Savior, has conquered, has won, and has this victory available to them, if they will choose to simply trust Jesus and call upon the power that is already in them. That's why it's not hard to love, as difficult as it may seem.

I love the story that Beth Moore tells about waiting in the Knoxville Airport to board a plane: I had the Bible on my lap and was very intent upon what I was doing. I'd had a marvelous morning with the Lord... I tried to keep from staring but he was such a strange sight. Humped over in a wheelchair, he was skin and bones, dressed in clothes that obviously fit when he was at least twenty pounds heavier. His knees protruded from his trousers, and his shoulders looked like the coat hanger was still in his shirt. His hands looked like tangled masses of veins and bones. The strangest part of him was his hair and nails. Stringy gray hair hung well over his shoulders and down part of his back. His fingernails were long. Clean, but strangely out of place on an old man. I looked down at my Bible as fast as I could, discomfort burning my face.... There I sat trying to concentrate on the Word to keep from being concerned about a thin slice of humanity served on a wheelchair only a few seats from me. All the while my heart was growing more and more overwhelmed with a feeling for him. Let's admit it. Curiosity is a heap more comfortable than true concern, and suddenly I was awash with aching emotion for this bizarre-looking old man. I had walked with God long enough to see the handwriting on the wall. I've learned that when I begin to feel what God feels, something so contrary to my natural feelings, something dramatic is bound to happen. ...I immediately began to resist because I could feel God working on my spirit and I started arguing with God in my mind. "Oh no, God please no." I looked up at the ceiling as if I could stare straight through it into heaven and said, "Don't make me witness to this man. Not right here and now. Please. I'll do anything. Put me on the same plane, but don't make me get up here and witness to this man in front of this gawking audience. Please, Lord!"... There I sat in the blue vinyl chair begging His Highness, "Please don't make me witness to this man. Not now. I'll do it on the plane." Then I heard it..."I don't want you to witness to him. I want you to brush his hair." The words were so clear, my heart leapt into my throat, and my thoughts spun like a top. Do I witness to the man or brush his hair? No brainer. I looked straight back up at the ceiling and said, "God, as I live and breathe, I want you to know I am ready to witness to this man. I'm on this Lord. I'm you're girl! You've never seen a woman witness to a man faster in your life. What difference does it make if his hair is a mess if he is not redeemed? I am on him. I am going to witness to this man." Again, as clearly as I've ever heard an audible word, God seemed to write this statement across the wall of my mind. "That is not what I said, Beth. I don't want you to witness to him. I want you to go brush his hair." I looked up at God and quipped, "I don't have a hairbrush. It's in my suitcase on the plane, How am I supposed to brush his hair without a hairbrush?"... God was so insistent that I almost involuntarily began to walk toward him as these thoughts came to me from God's word: "I will thoroughly furnish you unto all good works." (2 Tim 3:17) Even as I retell this story my pulse quickens and I feel those same butterflies. I knelt down in front of the man, and asked as demurely as possible, "Sir, may I have the pleasure of brushing your hair?" He looked back at me and said, "What did you say?" "May I have the pleasure of brushing your hair?" To which he responded in volume ten, "Little lady, if you expect me to hear you, you're going to have to talk louder than that. At this point, I took a deep breath and blurted out, "SIR, MAY I HAVE THE PLEASURE OF BRUSHING YOUR HAIR?" At which point every eye in the place darted right at me. I was the only thing in the room looking more peculiar than old Mr. Longlocks. Face crimson and forehead breaking out in a sweat, I watched him look up at me with absolute shock on his face, and say, "If you really want to." Are you kidding? OF course I didn't want to. But God didn't seem interested in my personal preference right about then. He pressed on my heart until I could utter the words, "Yes, sir, I would be pleased. But I have one little problem. I don't have a hairbrush." "I have one in my bag," he responded. I went around to the back of that wheelchair, and I got on my hands and knees and unzipped the stranger's old carry-on hardly believing what I was doing. I stood up and started brushing the old man's hair. It was perfectly clean, but it was tangled and matted. I don't do many things well, but I must admit I've had notable experience untangling knotted hair mothering two little girls. I began brushing at the very bottom of the strands, remembering to take my time not to pull. A miraculous thing happened to me as I started brushing that old man's hair. Everybody else in the room disappeared. There was no one alive for those moments except that old man and me. I brushed and I brushed and I brushed until every tangle was out of that hair. I know this sounds so strange but I've never felt that kind of love for another soul in my entire life. I believe with all my heart, I - for that few minutes - felt a portion of the very love of God. That He had overtaken my heart for a little while like someone renting a room and making Himself at home for a short while. The emotions were so strong and so pure that I knew they had to be God's. His hair was finally as soft and smooth as an infant's. I slipped the brush back in the bag, went around the chair to face him. I got back down on my knees, put my hands on his knees, and said, "Sir, do you know my Jesus?" He said, "Yes, I do." Well, that figures, I thought. He explained, "I've known Him since I married my bride." "She wouldn't marry me until I got to know the Savior." He said, "You see, the problem is, I haven't seen my bride in months. I've had open-heart surgery, and she's been too ill to come see me. I was sitting here thinking to myself. What a mess I must be for my bride." This was one of those rare encounters when I knew God had intervened in details only He could have known. It was a God moment, and I'll never forget it... Loving a brother or sister is not hard; it's a choice. But He will both make you want to and make you able to; He will give you grace to ignore all the embarrassment or the fear the enemy can throw at you and even let you feel what He feels -- if you let Him.

God Gave Us Eternal Life - 5:6-12

At verse 6 of chapter 5 we come to the third and final division of John's letter. In the first section in chapter 1, his message was God is light! And his application for us was to live holy lives like His. In the second section, the middle chapters, his message was God is love! And his application for us was to love one another. In the final section from here on, his message is God is life! And his application for us is to be sure of it! Now if you read the seven verses in our text, there is one word that you will see over and over (in fact it is repeated 8 times), the word testimony or in verb form, testify. The Greek word means to bear witness to something, to give evidence or proof that a thing is true. In court, a witness swears to tell the truth and then testifies to what he saw; he gives proof that a certain thing is or isn't true by verifying that he saw or experienced it. Well in these verses we have:

I. The Testimony God Has Given About His Son And we're going to study this in reverse order from the way John writes it; we'll look first at the actual testimony, at what God SAYS about His Son, in verses 11-12 and then go back and look at how John proves that the testimony is valid in verses 6-10. So, look with me at (11-12). This is the testimony; this is the declaration; this is the sworn statement of truth of Almighty God Himself. Notice that it has two parts. The first is that:

1. God gave us eternal life Now what is eternal life? Most of the time we think of it as simply life that doesn't end. But even Satan has that; he will exist forever and so will every human being ever created. The English word eternal actually reflects better the meaning of the Greek term. If something is eternal, not only does it have no end; it also has no beginning! It always exists; it just IS! Well, the only being who has that kind of life is God Himself. So, the life that God gave us is not simply an endless quantity of time to exist:

a. it is His very own life He gave us the very life that He has. Look at what Jesus prayed as He was talking to the Father in Jn. 17:2-3. Did you see that? Eternal life is not a quantity of existence; eternal life is to know God Himself, not to know about Him, but to know Him by experience, to be joined to Him in relationship so deeply that His life becomes your life! The living illustration that God Himself uses to exemplify this is the union of a man and a woman. Paul said in that kind of union ... "The two will become one flesh." [that is, they become one in body.] But he who is joined to the Lord becomes one spirit with him. - 1 Cor. 6:17. We become one in spirit with God; His Spirit is joined to our spirit permanently, so His true undying life becomes ours! As the hymnwriter George Robinson put it, ... But while God and I shall be, I am His, and He is mine. THAT's the life God gave us, and notice the past tense, gave. It's not something you wait until you die to get! And it certainly isn't something you wait until you die to see whether you're going to get! For us, that is, for believers, it is already given; we got it already! To be technical, the gift of life was given 2,000 years ago at the cross, but it was delivered to me and I received it when I was fifteen years old. Some of you received it much longer ago than that and some of you received it only recently, but whenever you get it, you get it here and now while you're still alive on planet earth, not after you die. Then also notice that this eternal life:

b. it is a gift freely given It is not something we buy or earn by merit. The rich young ruler really missed the boat when he asked, What must I DO to inherit eternal life? You don't DO something to receive an inheritance; it's a gift from someone! A gift always originates with the giver; the recipient's only role is to accept it and say, "Thank you!" Eternal life, His own life, is a gift, an inheritance that God bestows on those who choose to receive it! That's the first part of God's declaration in verse 11, He gave us eternal life! The second part is:

2. this life is in His Son Eternal life is not a thing; it is not a force like electricity or magnetism. Eternal life is a Person. You know Jn. 14:6; Jesus said, I am the Way, the Truth and THE life! God Himself IS life. Jesus IS life. He told Martha, ... I am the resurrection and the life. Whoever believes in me, though he die, yet shall he live. - Jn. 11:25. Why? Because Jesus IS life. Look back to how John began this letter in 1 Jn. 1:1-2. JESUS is life. That's why God declares in verse 11:

a. whoever has the Son has the life There is God's assurance for you! If you have Jesus, you have life! Satan uses all kinds of things to cause us to doubt whether we have life. We look at our behavior and see that we often sin. We look at our past and realize how unworthy we are. We look at God's standard of righteousness and see how hard it is to be like Him. So we doubt and we wonder, but God says, "Forget all that stuff! There is only ONE issue as far as I'm concerned. If you have My Son, you have My life! Period!" Trust in that! Rest in that! BASK in that! But that declaration necessitates the awful opposite truth:

b. whoever does not have the Son does not have the life And that, dear friends, is most of the world. It is most of the people around you. There is no other way to get life. It doesn't matter how religious they are, how devout they are, or how good they are. Without Jesus they cannot have life! In fact, Jesus said, ... whoever does not believe is condemned already, because he has not believed in the name of the only Son of God. - Jn. 3:18. You don't have to do anything to NOT have life; you come into the world not having life! Everyone without Jesus stands condemned and cannot have the life of God unless they receive Jesus.

In the year 1829 a man named George Wilson of Philadelphia robbed the U.S. mails, killing another person. He was later arrested and brought to trial. He was found guilty and the judge sentenced him to be hanged. Some friends intervened on his behalf and were finally able to obtain a pardon for him from President Andrew Jackson. But when he was informed of this, George Wilson refused to accept the pardon! The sheriff was unwilling to act; for, he reasoned, how could he hang a pardoned man? An appeal was sent to President Jackson. The perplexed President turned to the United States Supreme Court to decide the case. Chief Justice Marshall gave this ruling: "A pardon is a piece of paper, the value of which depends upon its acceptance by the person implicated. It is hardly to be supposed that a person under the sentence of death would refuse to accept a pardon; but, if it is refused, it is no pardon. George Wilson must be hanged." George Wilson was executed, although his pardon lay on the Sheriff's desk. [Grace Discipleship Course, p. 15] The gift of eternal life is no gift unless it is received! It must be accepted, otherwise the person stands condemned and will die with the gift that would save them unwrapped. Some folks divide the world materially into two classes, the "haves" and the "have nots". God divides the whole human race spiritually the same way, into the "haves," who have Jesus and life in Him, and the "have nots," who don't. And, by the way, some 3 billion "have nots" are, in reality, "can't haves," because they have no opportunity to hear about Jesus and the gift! That's why Jesus sent us to tell them! At any rate that is the testimony God has declared about His Son. Now let's go back to the earlier portion of this section in verses 6-10 and look at:

II. How We Know This Testimony Is True Well, according to John:

1. we have three witnesses that testify that God gave us life in Jesus (6-8) Wow, this was simple up until now; anybody could understand that other part, but water and blood, what's this about? Well, let's take it apart. First John says that Jesus, the Son of God, came to us, literally:

a. through the water Most Bible students believe that in that phrase John is referring to Jesus' baptism by John in the Jordan river. If you remember, it was there that God testified that He is the Son. Let me read you Mt. 3:16-17, ...when Jesus was baptized, immediately he went up from the water, and behold, the heavens were opened to him, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and coming to rest on him; and behold, a voice from heaven said, "This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased." Now this is a big deal. The Jews wanted to kill Jesus because in their understanding when He called God "Father", He made Himself equal with God [Jn. 5:18]. When the Father called Jesus "My Son", He made Jesus equal with Himself! He declared Jesus to be God in a human body! At the water is where God first publicly revealed Jesus as the Son of God and called the world to believe, as John shouted the next day, Behold the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! Of course, we mirror this testimony in our own baptism. By passing through the waters of baptism, we declare publicly that we believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, that He died and was buried and rose again for us and we identify ourselves as being united with Him, as being raised with Him to new life, as sharing His life. But Jesus did not come to us by the water only; John says He came:

b. through the blood And it's obvious that now John is referring to Jesus' crucifixion. John himself was actually standing there that day. Look with me at Jn. 19:33-35. This is John's testimony. "I saw it! I was there! I saw the Son of God die! I saw His blood be shed that day for us! I saw the Lamb of God take away our sins and I tell you so that you might believe in Him!" The writer of Hebrews explains what was really happening when Christ shed His blood for us, saying, He entered once for all into the holy places, not by means of the blood of goats and calves but by means of his own blood, thus securing an eternal redemption. ...when Christ had offered for all time a single sacrifice for sins, he sat down at the right hand of God. - Heb. 9:12, 10:12. Through the blood, John says, God testified that He made atonement for us. The shed blood at the cross is the witness of the atonement that was made. And, of course, we mirror this testimony in celebrating the Lord's Supper. As we take the cup, we testify that we believe that the shed blood of Jesus has cleansed us from all our sins, that we are counting on His blood and His blood alone as the means of our salvation and giving us life. That's two, the water and the blood, but there is still a third witness that John mentions in verse 6:

c. through the Holy Spirit God testifies that Jesus is the Son Now how does the Holy Spirit testify about Jesus. Well, the most obvious meaning would be that He testified about Jesus:

(1) through descending on Him at His baptism Look at what John the Baptist declared in Jn. 1:29-34. After Jesus was baptized, the Spirit came down from heaven in the appearance of a dove and alighted upon Him, and as I like to picture it, merged into Him, at the very time the Father's voice was speaking from heaven. The Father was marking His Son as having His Spirit. John said God had told him that the One he would see with the Spirit descending on Him and remaining on Him WAS His Son and the result was verse 34, I have seen and borne witness... That's what the Spirit was doing that day, testifying that Jesus is the Son. It's what He ALWAYS does! In fact, He does it even today:

(2) through bearing witness in our own hearts Look what Jesus promised in Jn. 15:26. Ever since Pentecost, when the Holy Spirit came, He has been bearing witness about Christ, not only in signs and wonders and gifts, but in the very hearts of each one who believes. Paul said, ...because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, "Abba! Father!" - Gal. 4:6. Inside you, you know that you are a child of God because of your faith in Jesus. The Holy Spirit did that! He convinces you that Jesus is the Christ and that you have life through His Name.

So, there are three witnesses that testify that Jesus is the Son of God, the Spirit, the water, and the blood, John says. And by the way, just in case you're reading the King James and are confused, thinking we missed a large part of verses 7-8 that says and there are three that bear witness in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit and these three are one, you'll notice that the NIV puts it down in a footnote and other translations ignore it altogether. That's because we now have better resources than they did in 1611 and realize that it does not appear in any Greek manuscript before 1300 AD and was definitely not part of John's original text, but rather was inserted by later copyists who wanted to affirm the doctrine of the Trinity. However, don't fret; the content of what it says is true and accurate. The persons of the Godhead DO bear witness to one another; it's just not part of the actual text. John only mentioned the Spirit, the water and the blood, and now he explains:

2. the validity of this testimony (9) First of all, there is a principle that God repeats in Scripture in a number of places, but it is stated most clearly in Deut. 19:15 [NET], A single witness may not testify against another person for any trespass or sin that he commits. A matter may be legally established only on the testimony of two or three witnesses.

a. three witnesses make a testimony valid One witness is not enough because he may have a biased motive or an incomplete understanding of the situation. Two witnesses whose testimonies agree are much better as the second confirms the first, but the third witness seals the matter and establishes it. There are many more witnesses to Jesus; for instance, He Himself said that the miraculous works He did bore witness of Him. But three is enough to settle a matter. If three concurring witnesses are enough to settle a human matter, if you would believe three witnesses who gave testimony in a human court, how much more should we believe the three witnesses God has given us because:

b. all three are actually the testimony of God Himself about His Son HE said of Jesus at the water, "This is My Son!". By sending His Spirit upon Him in that moment and also into our hearts today, HE is saying, "This is My Son!". At the cross HE said it so loudly that the very centurion whose soldiers pierced Jesus and shed His blood said, Truly this man was the son of God! The Son of God came to give us life; He died to give us life. Through Him God has given us the gift of life! So here's:

3. the choice we face (10) We either believe the testimony that God has given about His Son or we choose not to believe it. Near the end of his Gospel, John tells us why he wrote it, ...these [things] are written so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that by believing you may have life in his name. - Jn. 20:31. If you believe with your heart that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, God gives you the gift of life, eternal life, his very own life in His Name! And, John says:

a. if we believe God's testimony, He validates it in our hearts We have His own testimony inside ourselves. His Spirit bears witness with our Spirit that we are children of God, that we have His eternal life! BUT:

b. if we refuse to believe God, we call Him a liar It is not just that we miss out on life, as awful as that is, but we actually add to the weight of our sins this terrible indictment, we regard the God of the universe as a liar. When I call what God has said about His Son untrue, when I say Jesus is NOT the only way, that He is NOT God the only Savior, that I can be saved some other way, my own way that I have invented, then I am saying that the Living God who is Truth is a liar! And I would not want to stand before Him with that on my record!

It's a choice that every human being must make. Believe Him or don't. A military chaplain shares this testimony: While I was working in the V Corps Chaplain's office in Frankfurt, Germany; I came in contact with many wonderful Christian individuals. One of the most inspiring was a German by the name of Carl Scholz. In speaking to him one day, he related to me how that during the Second World War he served as a Nazi soldier, but, not believing fully in what they were doing, he tried to desert. Failing in his attempt, was captured and thrown into prison. He was accused as a deserter, and thus was sentenced to die before a firing squad along with another of his comrades. When the day came, they were both marched to the outskirts of the town and the spot where they were supposed to be executed. Not hearing the orders given to the squad, Carl didn't realize that all rifles were to be turned to his comrade instead, letting him live. When the rifles fired, in shock, he also fell to the ground. They picked him up and again he was placed in prison. The months passed and finally when the war ended, Carl was set free. Not having any place to go to, he went from one war-torn village to the next. His one last hope was his only living relative, his mother...and by the time that he found her, he realized that she was trapped in the communist side of Berlin. Again losing all hope, he made his dwelling in the bomb-stricken buildings, drinking more and more with each passing day. Finally, receiving word that his mother had been killed while trying to escape the communists, he felt his last hope fly out of his body. He said to himself, "Now, what's the use of living!" So, he went down to a near-by river hoping to drown his sorrows by throwing himself in. But as he was about to jump, he heard soft singing coming from a near-by wooden building. He heard the words...

*"When Jesus comes the tempter's pow'r is broken, When Jesus comes, the tears are wiped away;
He takes the gloom and fills the life with glory, For all is changed when Jesus comes to stay."*

Hearing such sweet words, he came closer to the building wanting to hear more about this Jesus. As he approached the door, he read those gentle words which have meant so much to millions of individuals throughout the ages...

"Gott Ist Liebe - God is Love; Gott Ist Leben - God is Life!"

He went inside, and there for the first time he heard about the wondrous love that God had for him. He heard how God sent his only Begotten Son to die on the cross so that he could have life - and have it more abundantly! Eternal Life! The young missionary who was speaking said, "Christ says, 'Come unto me all ye that are heavy laden, and I will give you rest'" Carl said to himself, "If there is anyone here burdened down it's me! I am tired of this life I am living." And that night, Carl went to the altar and said, "Lord, if it's true that you can change the worst sinner like this missionary says, change me! If it's true that you can give rest...give it to me! If it's true that you can straighten out the most twisted life...straighten out mine!" And that night the Christ that had saved Carl from the firing squad also broke the chains of bondage of sin that had his life captive, and he got up from that altar a new person. Christ had saved him...he had life, eternal life! From that time on Carl continued preaching and helping as part of the Berean Missionary Fellowship in Erzhausen, Germany, and brought many others to Christ with his wonderful testimony of how he was changed by receiving the gift of life.

Have you received God's gift of eternal life? I know most of you have and if you have, rejoice today that you have the life that is truly life! And rejoice that God has given you His own testimony so that you can be absolutely sure of it. What a gift! Hallelujah! But if you have not received the gift, why not accept it right now by asking His Son into your life?

1 John Verse by Verse: Light, Love and Life That You May Know - 5:13-20

Today we come to the end of our study of 1 John and, if you remember, last week I told you that the theme of this final section of the letter is that God is Life and John tells us that to give us assurance of it. He wants us to KNOW it! If you count carefully, you'll see that seven times in the eight verses of our text, John says, we know... He wants us to know that we know that we know it! It's the kind of "know" you don't hear from the person who says demurely, "Yeah, I know Jesus is my savior...", rather it's what you hear from the person who is thrilled to belong to God and declares, "I KNOW Jesus saved me!" God does not want to leave you guessing about your relationship with Him. He wants you to have complete assurance about every aspect of it! So, as he closes his letter to us, there are four things that John declares that we know! The first one is:

I. We Know That We Have Eternal Life (13) To nonbelievers this sounds awfully presumptuous. If you say, "I know that I will go to heaven; I know that my sins are all forgiven; I know that I belong to God and have eternal life", people think, "Isn't that a bit prideful? Do you think you're better than the rest of us?" They actually feel like it's wrong to be so sure because they believe salvation has to be earned and that you think too highly of yourself. Listen, there's no pride at all. I didn't do anything to save myself. I'm not better than anybody; I deserve an eternity in hell, but verses 11-12 say God gave us eternal life and this life is in His Son and he who has the Son has the life! God offered me a free gift and I signed up for it by asking Jesus into my life, that's all! The Holy Spirit had John write those words so that we would KNOW! God doesn't want us walking around all our life wondering whether or not we belong to Him; all that does is make us focus on ourselves and our own status all the time, trying to please God and never being quite sure of it. God wants us to KNOW for sure that we do have His eternal life so He can use us to focus on sharing the Good News with others! He has a world to reach and we can't share what we don't know that we have for ourselves! Now here's a second thing God wants us to know:

II. We Know That God Answers Our Prayers (14-17) Let's read (14-15). Many people see God as some heavenly Monarch who sits on his throne and has a line of needy subjects coming before Him all the time trying to get something from Him. They feel that, somehow, they have to convince Him to hear their case and do something to get His ear and His attention and move Him to respond. But that's not the Christian view of prayer at all! John says:

1. we are confident that God hears us when we pray He is never too busy or too preoccupied to hear us. He is not like a customer service representative who will be with us as soon as He finishes helping another customer who called first! He's never too tired, never too far away and never simply "not in the mood". As His children who share His very life, we KNOW He always hears us! And He doesn't hear the way I sometimes hear other people, "Yeah, I heard you..." He REALLY hears us.

a. He considers and understands what we have asked Of course, when we ask, He already knows all about the situation, whatever it is. He is right there. He saw the whole thing. He felt what we feel. He knows what we're thinking about it. And, Jesus said, He knows what we need before we ask Him! We're not informing Him of anything; we're crying out to our Father and sharing our hearts! We're sharing our sorrows and our pain and our joy and our concern about things. And God always has time for that! He delights in that and He hears it. He listens to you the way you listen to your child who comes to talk with you about what's on her heart - well, probably better than you listen! He understands, not only the situation itself, but you and all that's going on inside. And He listens from the perspective of already being committed to helping you, just the way that when your child comes to you and says, "Mom, I'm hungry!", you're already prepared and committed to feed him. If he says, "Dad, I'm hurt!", you're already prepared and committed to help him. In the same way your Heavenly Father is committed to meeting all of your needs, whether they're physical or emotional, just because you're His child and He loves you. But you know how kids often ask for stuff that you don't want them to have because you know it isn't good for them or isn't what they really need? Like, "Dad, can I have $200; I want to buy these new sneakers like all my buddies have?" Well, we do that with our Father too. That's why:

b. we must be careful to ask according to His will Unlike an earthly parent, our Father has all wisdom. He knows what is best and will always do what is best. Plus, He has a plan in which He is working all things together for good, to accomplish His eternal purpose. So, when we ask Him to do something outside of that, He's not going to do it, no matter how much we want Him to. Oh, He'll still hear us; He won't dismiss our prayer, but if we will spend enough time with Him and listen to Him, He'll show us what HE wants to do. But when we ask for things that we are confident that are in His will, we can ask with all certainty. If you'll turn there with me, that's what Jesus meant when he said this in Jn. 14:13-14. In His Name doesn't mean just tacking the words "in His Name" on to the end of whatever you ask, like hitting the "enter" button on a computer after you type in your information. It means asking for His sake, in accord with His purpose and will and character. When we genuinely ask what we want in His Name, we're wanting what HE wants and He promises to do it. But how do you know that what you're wanting is really according to His will. Well look ahead to 15:7. Again, that's not like a magic ticket to get whatever you want. He's saying prayer is born out of relationship. When we abide in Him, when we spend quality time with Him in prayer and ingest His Word so that it becomes a part of us and our thinking, when our life is so joined to His that we think His thoughts after Him, then what we want will BE what He wants and when we ask for it, we'll be asking for His will and He will do it. That's why John says:

c. we are confident that we have what we asked of Him If we have checked our hearts on the matter, when we come to Him, we should come, not to beg him to do what we want, but confident that He will do what we want, because we're asking for the right thing. God doesn't want us to come to Him in prayer with a "will God or won't God" attitude; He wants us to come with the same confidence that your child has when he asks you for a glass of milk. He asks because he knows you'll do it. He already KNOWS you will, because it's your will for him to have it. That's why Jesus said ...whatever you ask in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours. - Mk. 11:24. He didn't mean, "Let Me measure how much faith you have and if you have enough, I'll do what you want." He meant "Come KNOWING in your heart I'm going to give it to you! Come with confidence that I love you and that because you're asking for what you know I want. I'll do it! Come trusting in Me!"

In 1854 Hudson Taylor, the young founder of the China Inland Mission, sailed from England to China on a voyage that lasted more than five months. As the ship neared the channel between the southern Malay Peninsula and the island of Sumatra, the missionary heard an urgent knock on his stateroom door. When he opened it, there stood the captain of the ship. "Mr. Taylor," he said, "We have no wind. We are drifting toward an island where the people are heathen, and I fear they are cannibals." "What can I do?" asked Taylor. "I understand that you believe in God. I want you to pray for wind." "All right, Captain", Taylor replied, "I will, but you must set the sail." "Why, that's ridiculous! There's not even the slightest breeze. Besides, the sailors will think I'm crazy." Nevertheless, the captain finally agreed. Forty-five minutes later he returned and found the missionary still on his knees. "You can stop praying now," said the captain. "We've got more wind than we know what to do with!" We must pray like Hudson Taylor prayed; we must set the sail! We pray with confidence that our Father hears us. We KNOW He hears us and will answer because we're asking for what HE wants! Now, while he's on the subject of assurance that God answers prayer, John goes on to admonish us that:

2. we should pray when we see a brother committing sin (16-17) Didn't I tell you that 1 John was HARD? The meaning of these two verses and particularly the phrase, the sin unto death, has sparked lively debate throughout the centuries. You can read it all online; I read a good bit of it and what I came away with is this, don't throw the baby out with the bathwater. The point is not for us to figure out what specific sin he's talking about or whether life and death in this text is physical or eternal. The point is that when we see a brother or sister in Christ committing sin, we should not gossip about them; we should not shake our fingers and shun them as though we're better than they are; we should PRAY for him or her! And we should pray for him with the same confidence that we've just been talking about, expecting God to give him life because we pray! The rest of the text is God giving us one caveat, telling us there is one exception to that rule. And here's what I think he means:

a. it is possible for that sinning brother to sin so grievously that God decrees his death We have an example of that in Acts 5 where Ananias and Sapphira deliberately conspired together to lie to the Apostles about their giving to make themselves look good, to get glory for themselves. The Spirit revealed the lie to Peter and he told them, You have not lied to men, but to God! It was God's Name and reputation they were dishonoring and His presence they were deliberately disregarding, thinking they could fool Him as they fooled people. And God terminated their lives on the spot. Now I don't mean that they were eternally lost; I think God took them off the planet and home to heaven so they could not continue in that attitude and make Him look like a fool. I think that was a "sin that leads to death". In 1 Cor. 11:29-30 we read how the Corinthian believers were absolutely disregarding the sacredness of the Lord's Supper as though it were just some common kind of eating and drinking. And Paul told them, For the one who eats and drinks without careful regard for the body eats and drinks judgment against himself. That is why many of you are weak and sick, and quite a few are dead. God actually decreed the deaths of some of His own children who would not regard the death of His Son with reverence! I imagine that He would still do this today; who knows how many have died through the centuries because of this sin. But the word dead in the Greek is literally sleep, the word that Paul always uses for the death of a believer. When one of God's children sins so grievously, so continually and so boldly that God determines he is done with this world and MUST be taken out, he has committed a sin unto death. BUT:

b. if he has not reached that point, God will grant him extended life Generally speaking that point is arrived at gradually, through a course of smaller sinful choices that grow and grow in intensity and frequency until that point is reached. It's a PATH of sin that leads to death and each choice is another link in the chain. But if we pray, John says, we can partner with God to break the chain, to call him back to repentance and change the course of his life, to gain him more time on this earth to serve God. Who knows how many people you've prayed for through the years as they've headed down a path toward destruction, that you rescued from death and extended their very lives! Pray for brothers and sisters when you see them sin, expecting God to rescue them! But sadly, John says:

c. if he has reached that point, our prayer will be ineffective No praying would have saved Ananias and Sapphira. But you can't know they've reached that point unless they die. So, the mandate to pray stands; we keep on praying! The point is that if in the end God does take that person home, if He does NOT extend their life, we should not think God failed to keep His promise. He warns us that He has the right to deny this particular request when in His infinite wisdom and love the situation warrants it.

He simply wants us to be sure that nothing will shake our faith in the fact that He hears and answers our prayer! Now the third thing God wants us to know follows right in line with this:

III. We Know That Genuine Believers Do Not Keep Practicing Sin (18-19) There is a fine line between a seriously sinning genuine believer and a non-believer who merely claims to have faith. To our eyes they look the same; in fact, I think many of the people we know who give lip service to faith because they prayed a prayer some time earlier in life but live lifestyles that say otherwise, are actually fooling themselves. If they were real, God would long since have taken them off the earth to keep them from dishonoring His name! Genuine believers still sin, but they do not continually practice sin as a habit and a lifestyle. We saw one reason already back in 3:9. We have God's very nature in us through the new birth. We've been made holy like Him and we CAN'T keep on sinning. It's not in our nature any more. But here John gives us a second reason why we don't:

1. God Himself carefully guards us We used to belong to the evil one. We used to be slaves under the control of Satan, because we gave ourselves to him through sin! But now we are Divinely protected from Him; Jesus, God's Only Begotten Son, protects us! We know that we are "OF God":

2. we are joined to God in our very spirit and we belong to Him. We are His! And because of that:

3. Satan cannot lay hold of us He cannot snatch us out of God's hand and drag us back under his dominion and power. Why not? Because, Jesus said, I give them eternal life, and they will never perish; no one will snatch them from my hand. My Father, who has given them to me, is greater than all, and no one can snatch them from my Father's hand. There is no power, not Satan himself, who can snatch us out of the relationship we have with our Father. Our life is eternal! But more than that, John says:

4. we are free from his power The whole world lies under it! The whole rest of humanity is bound by it. That's why they offer rice to a stone statue or a picture or worship a cow as sacred. That's why they bow on their faces five times a day toward Mecca. That's why they boldly proclaim in college classrooms that there cannot possibly be a God! That's why tyrants terrorize their own people and why the poor live in slums and the rich don't care. Satan has the whole ball of wax under his power! But not US! He can't control us! He can't get his grubby talons on us and drag us back into his kingdom and make us obey him. We are free and we know it! We are free to obey God and God Himself will see to it that we stay that way! And finally, here's the fourth thing we know:

IV. We Know That Jesus Christ Is The True God (20-21) This is kind of like a final confession of faith as John closes. He says four things about Jesus. First:

1. we know that as God He came to us in a human body The false teachers then and now deny it, but we KNOW it. He was God the Son, come down from heaven, taking a human body and becoming a true human being to die on the cross for our sins and rise again. Second:

2. we know that He gave us understanding so that we could know God Many of us tried other paths to God; we tried other ways, whether other religions or simple self effort, and failed. But when we met Jesus, our eyes were opened and we were connected to God. We know that we KNOW God! In fact, thirdly:

3. we know that we are joined to the true God by being joined to Jesus We are IN Him and He is IN us! Our lives, our spirits, are joined together in one and Jesus did that! Fourthly:

4. we know that being joined to Him is our eternal life We know that there is no other name given under heaven among men that can save us, that can give us the eternal life our souls so desperately crave. JESUS did that! Jesus gave us life by joining us to Himself. And therefore, we confess that JESUS IS THE TRUE GOD! He's not simply the best or the most powerful. THERE IS NO OTHER! He is the REAL GOD, the ONLY GOD. All the gods of the nations are idols! All the ideologies and the theologies and the "isms" that surround us are idolatry. JESUS is the True and Living God and Him alone will we worship! And that's why John ends his letter with a short fifth and final note, Little children, keep yourselves from idols!

5. we know that we must guard ourselves against idols They creep so easily into our lives. Whether it comes today in our society in the form of a hobby or a pursuit of something or a person or money or material things, instead of a statue of wood or stone, whatever draws from us the allegiance, the investment of our lives, that belongs to Jesus is an idol. And we know that it is SO easy for idolatrous things to begin to creep slowly into our lives if we let them.

During the reign of the cruel Roman Emperor Diocletian who persecuted Christians severely about 300 AD there lived a man named Genesius. He was hired as an actor to entertain the crowd in the arena by pantomiming a Christian baptism before the Emperor. But in the midst of his act, he saw a vision of angels which convicted his heart and suddenly he stopped and shouted in earnest, "I want to receive the grace of Christ that I may be born again. I want to be set free from the sins which have been my ruin." Then he turned to Diocletian, "Illustrious Emperor, believe me, Christ is the true King!" Diocletian became furious and ordered him ripped with claws, burned with torches, and then beheaded. Just before his death he cried out, "There is no King but Him whom I have seen. I adore and worship Him, and for His sake, even though I be slain a thousand times, I will always be His. Torments are not able to take Christ from my mouth, nor from my heart. Bitterly do I regret that I detested His Holy Name in holy men, and came so late, like a haughty soldier, to adoring the true King." Dear friends, Christ is the True God and Eternal Life. Give your all, give your life to Him!

2 John - An Appeal For Discernment

This is one of the the four one-chapter books that we have in our New Testament. Each one is just a little letter, but each one addresses a big issue that impacts our lives. The first of these was the letter of Philemon, which was an appeal for reconciliation, for Philemon to be reconciled to Onesimus, his runaway servant, and for us to both give and to seek forgiveness with one another. The second of these is the book of 2 John, which like the following two letters, is just before Revelation. It is an appeal for Christians to be careful to discern between false and true teaching and, like any letter, it begins with a:

I. The Salutation (1) This is the To: and From: section and here we learn that:

1. the author is the apostle John, who calls himself the Elder, the “Old Man” of the church, the last remaining one of the apostles who had walked with Jesus on earth, a man greatly respected by everybody who believed in Jesus. But:

2. the recipients are not quite as easy to identify. Some have felt that the phrase the elect lady and her children refers to an actual woman that John knew and her literal children, but when John says in verse 4 that he had run into some of her children and then closes in 13 by saying, the children of your elect sister greet you, it seems that the elect lady is probably a local church and her children are individual members of the church. He also says that all who know the truth love her which would not likely be true of an individual person. He writes as though he’s writing to a group, as though he’s writing a letter that will be read and circulated within the churches and certainly, he intends his advice to apply to all believers, including all of us! His concern is that by this point, late in the first century, many false teachers had arisen and were impacting the church and he wanted to urge Christians to remain firmly grounded in the truth, so he even begins with a:

3. the truth-filled greeting (1b-2) You see, we who have believed KNOW the truth, but the truth we know is not merely accurate information about Jesus. He Himself said, I AM the Truth! And when we came to understand and believe who He is and what He did for us, He Himself, the Truth, came to live inside us and transformed us. We know the Truth by personal experience because we know Jesus! And John says that:

a. we love one another because of the truth which dwells in us The reason that I love you and you love me is not primarily because we’ve done something for each other, and it certainly isn’t because of our appearance or our personality; it’s because we both believe that Jesus is God and that He died to save us and now He lives in both of us and has transformed us and placed His love inside us! When we came here 40 years ago, an inexperienced young couple trying to raise a two year old, you loved us immediately, before you ever got to know us, and we loved you. Why? It just happens, because Jesus lives in us both; we share the same Spirit of Truth, His Holy Spirit! Moreover, John says:

b. that truth remains in us and is eternal and unchanging It’s not going anywhere, because He’s not going anywhere! It’ll always be in us, because He’ll always be in us. And it’ll never change because He is the same yesterday, today and forever! But then John says something unusual in verse (3); listen to the NLT, Grace, mercy, and peace, which come from God the Father and from Jesus Christ—the Son of the Father—will continue to be with us who live in truth and love. Instead of the usual greeting where you merely wish somebody grace, mercy or peace, He declares confidently that:

c. grace, mercy and peace will be ours as we continue to live in truth and in love If we live out of who Jesus is and what He’s done and out of the intimate relationship that we have with Him and allow His love to flow out through us to one another, then we will experience His grace, we will experience His mercy and we will experience His peace. If we don’t, if we choose to live a self-oriented life and live out of our own resources, then we will miss out on all three! Living in truth and in love is the key to every spiritual blessing we receive from God. Err from the truth about Jesus or the truth of His Word or stop loving others and His grace, mercy and peace begin to evaporate. And that leads John to the main:

II. The Message Of His Letter: The Importance Of Discerning The Truth in verses (4-11) First of all, he gives this church:

1. a warm commendation for her influence on her “children” (4) John’s headquarters during his later years was the city of Ephesus and he was basically the shepherd of all the churches in the region of Asia minor, seven of which are mentioned in Revelation. So I’m sure he visited around to various locations and groups of believers and in the process, he says, “I met some of your people and I am so pleased that they genuinely know Jesus, believe the right things about Him and are living a life of love empowered by Him!” He shares how pleased he was to meet them and then gives the church:

2. a strong admonition to love one another (5-6) Love one another is John's theme song and it had been from the beginning. The beginning was actually in the Upper Room when Jesus said in Jn. 13:34, A new commandment I give to you, that you love one another: just as I have loved you, you also are to love one another. John took that to heart and repeated it over and over to his followers through the years. Tradition says that the Apostle John continued preaching even when so enfeebled with age as to be obliged to be carried into the assembly; and that, not being able to deliver any long discourse, his custom was to say in every meeting, "My dear children, love one another." [Google] And here he says it to us again and spells out a bit what that looks like. When we walk in love, we carry out the commandments of Christ toward one another. We help one another, we encourage one another, we teach one another, we correct one another, we forgive one another, we pray for one another and so on. Our every action toward one another is a loving act, one of the loving acts Christ commanded us to do! It's a challenge each of us needs to hear over and over again, which is why John kept repeating it! But now he dives into his main subject:

3. a grave warning about deceptive false teachers (7) Notice he says:

a. there are many of them False teachings and false teachers still claiming to be "Christian" had multiplied greatly in the first half century of since Jesus' resurrection. The New Testament warns about them everywhere. In the beginning these were actually within the church. The first were Judaizers who taught that Gentiles had to be circumcised and keep the law of Moses in order to be saved. Paul mentions some in Corinth who taught that there is no resurrection of the dead. To Timothy he names Hymenaeus and Philetus who taught that the resurrection had already happened. The church at Pergamum was chastised in Revelation for holding to the teachings of Balaam and of the Nicolaitans and the church of Thyatira had a woman named Jezebel who encouraged believers to commit sexual immorality and eat food sacrificed to idols. All these last were in John's region and he had good reason to be concerned! And even today, within the boundaries of the "Christian Church" we have all kinds of people that teach false things. Some believe the Bible is just a human book and deny its inerrancy. Some teach that Jesus didn't really rise from the dead bodily. Some teach that there is no hell and salvation is by good works or they deny the reality of the miracles or that Jesus is the only way of salvation. I know that's true because some of them were my college professors and my seminary professors! They abound in institutions of higher learning and in large mainline denominations and are still part of "the Church". But, just as in John's day:

b. many left the true church to form their own - 1 Jn. 2:19 The NLT expands the thought, These people left our churches, but they never really belonged with us; otherwise they would have stayed with us. When they left, it proved that they did not belong with us. The largest such group in John's day were the Gnostics (with a silent G like the animal, Gnu), who blended Christianity with pagan ideas. They believed that matter is evil, so they could not accept that God actually took on a real human body. They say He only appeared to be a man. Their most well-known teacher in John's time and locality was a guy named Cerinthus, who taught that the divine Christ was different from the man Jesus, that the Christ came upon Jesus at His baptism and left Him at the cross to return to heaven. There have been many groups down through the centuries that have splintered off from the true church, most of them over the issue of who Jesus is. Today we have Jehovah's Witnesses and the Mormons, both splinter groups from the 1800's who do the opposite; they deny that Jesus is fully God. He's only the Son of God, a lesser being and his death does not save us. We save ourselves by faithful obedience. The New Church or the Swedenborgians (over in Bryn Athyn), which originated a century earlier, believe Jesus is God (but not from eternity) and again that we save ourselves by our deeds. Then we have Christian Science, the Unification Church, Scientology, The Way International and a whole host of other cults of various sorts, all of whom deny the true nature of Christ. Now look again at what John says in verse 7. Any teacher:

c. one who denies that Christ is fully human (and we could also include fully God) is, first of all:

(1) a deceiver: one who is trying to lead you away from truth, one who is lying to you, even though they don't think they're lying. They think you're deceived and they're trying to tell you the truth, but the reality is opposite. As Paul put it, These people are false apostles. They are deceitful workers who disguise themselves as apostles of Christ. - 2 Cor. 11:13. They are trying to get you to believe in a different Jesus from the one you have believed in and John is even stronger, saying such a teacher is:

(2) an anti-Christ: that is, one who is against Christ, working against the Jesus you believe in, the One who is the Way, the Truth and the Life, one who is working to tear down His Kingdom. And if we are not discerning and choose to listen to them, John warns that:

d. they could cause us to lose the full reward of our labor (8) All of us have served the Lord diligently; we've sacrificed and given of our time and talents to advance His Kingdom and because of that, there is a great reward of glory laid up for us, however, if we let Satan cause us to doubt and draw us away and get us to stop, we can't lose our salvation, but we lose the wonderful full reward that would have been ours! So, we need to watch, to be careful, to discern between truth and error and John tells us:

4. the sure way to discern a false teacher is their view of Jesus (9) Jesus is the sword that divides the whole earth into two camps. You're either in His camp or you're not. John says clearly:

a. one who denies the true teaching about Jesus does not know God It is not enough to simply believe in God. It is not enough to respect Jesus and believe that He was a great teacher or a religious leader who gave us wonderful teachings. If you do not believe that Jesus is fully God and fully man and that He died for your sins and that only HE can save you, then you DO NOT KNOW GOD, no matter how religious or devout you may be, whether you're Jewish, Protestant, Catholic, Orthodox, Muslim, JW, Mormon or Republican! But on the other hand, John says:

b. one who holds to the true teaching about Jesus has both the Father and the Son If you believe in the True Jesus, the Real Jesus, the One who was God and man and died for your sins and rose again and saved your soul, then you automatically know the Father! He is the Way to the Father; you come to the Father through Him. It is not that the Father is up there in heaven waiting to judge you, but Jesus has to go before Him to save you. In fact, Jesus said that if you believe, the Father AND the Son AND the Spirit come to live in you and make their home in you! He said, ...the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God. - Jn. 16:27.

If you have Jesus, you have it all! But if you don't, you don't have anything! Now, we need to apply this personally and John explains to us:

5. the proper way to react to false teachers who come to us (10-11) That sounds rude and harsh to our 21st century ears. Let me give some background. In these early days religious teachers routinely traveled in the same fashion that Paul did in Acts. They traveled from location to location and taught and often stayed in the homes of those they taught. John might often have come from Ephesus to visit a house church, say in Smyrna, and one of them would put him up and feed him and they would let him teach their group and the group would give him love gifts to send him on to his next stop. That's how the church was nurtured in those early days. John was saying, "Now when a person comes expecting that kind of treatment and wants to stay in your home and teach in your body, but he doesn't teach the truth about Jesus..."

a. they should not be given support in their work or opportunity to teach Don't take them into your house and give them money and let them teach your people! Further he says:

b. they should not be given approval or encouragement They should not be greeted as though they are brothers. They should not be given any sense that you approve of what they're doing or be encouraged by you in any way. It is tantamount to participating in their evil deeds! There is a story recorded by the early church father Irenaeus who says this story was passed down to him. You know that in those days homes didn't have a bathroom and most towns in the Roman era had a public bath house where you would go periodically to bathe. Irenaeus says: John, the disciple of the Lord, going to bathe at Ephesus, and perceiving Cerinthus within, rushed out of the bath-house without bathing, exclaiming, "Let us fly, lest even the bath-house fall down, because Cerinthus, the enemy of the truth, is within." We laugh, but we have to take a clear stand against false teaching. Thirty years ago, a young man attended church here one Sunday. He carried a Bible and gave the appearance of being a believer. He said he was new in town and we welcomed him. The next Sunday he asked whether we had a youth group and when it met and whether he could see what it was like. But his car was parked on Weldon Ave. and our Assistant at the time noticed that he had a sticker on his car that said, "The Way International". I'd never heard of it, but quickly found out that it was a cult that tried to attract young people. They had deliberately rented a house on Easton Rd. and moved some of their members into it to try to attract youth from the churches of Glenside. Well, we met with him and told him in no uncertain terms about our belief in Jesus and that his teachings were NOT welcome here, though we would love to see him give his life to the REAL Jesus! We never saw him again - and you didn't even know we protected you like that many years ago! Now, in contrast to the way that we should treat false teachers:

c. ordinary wrongly-taught people should be reached in love A person who doesn't know that they're wrong, who simply believes differently because that's what they've been taught or have come up with is simply another nonbeliever who needs Jesus. I'll quote what Catholic Answers has to say: A person who is ready to be corrected or who is unaware that what he has been saying is against Church teaching is not a heretic. If your neighbor is a Mormon or a Muslim, you don't shout over the fence, "Your religion is false and I want nothing to do with you!" You build relationship with them. You love them. You help them. You earn the opportunity to share the truth and pray for them to be saved. If a Jehovah's witness comes knocking on your door, you don't need to say, "Go away, you heretic!" or lock the door, pull down the shades and hide. They're just run of the mill followers out doing what they're told to do. And if all they see from you is rudeness, what will they think about your faith compared to their own? You can explain simply that you believe differently, that Jesus has saved you and changed your life and since they're interested in religion, you'd be glad to tell them about it if they'd like to listen! You can say, "No? Then let me pray for you before you go!" You don't have to listen to their stuff, but don't drive them further away from Jesus. Most of them are just ordinary people mistakenly trying to earn their salvation. It's the false teachers you need to beware of!

But discernment is SO important. Recognizing and standing against false teaching is absolutely necessary. On July 6, 1984 David Jenkins was appointed to the office of Bishop of Durham in the Church of England. Many within the church opposed his appointment because he was known to deny the truths of Christ's virgin birth and the literality of His bodily resurrection. Three days later, Yorkminster Cathedral, the seat of his bishopric, was struck by lightning and burned. A rash of articles were soon published, each titled something on the order of, "Coincidence or the Wrath of God?" At any rate as a result, his teachings, if unintentionally, got audience all over the world. Desmond Goonasekera, an Anglican rector in Africa, when later asked about the growth of the Christian church in his country, shook his head. "We're losing badly to the Muslims," he said. "It all began with the Jenkins business." Aggressive Muslims were visiting Christian communities and using Bishop Jenkins' quotes as authoritative proof that Christians need no longer believe in Christ's resurrection. Since Muslims and Christians now see Jesus as merely a prophet, they argued, why not worship together in the mosque? "They are killing us with our bishop's own words," Goonasekera concluded. One man's heresy became a stumbling-block to Christian faith halfway around the world. [The God of Stones and Spiders by Charles Colson. Crossway, 1990. Pages 128-129.] And the same can happen here if we don't stand for the truth. Well, I'll leave you this morning by paraphrasing John's words in his:

III. The Closing in verses (12-13) which essentially says, "I have so much more to say, but I'm out of time!" Let's pray!

3 John - An Exhortation To Partnership

We are taking a quick look at the four one-chapter books we have in our New Testament. They seem like such little letters yet each one addresses a big issue for the church and 3 John is no exception. Unlike John's other letters which are written for a more general church audience, this one is written to a specific person, but it still applies wonderfully to all of us. Look with me at John's:

I. The Salutation (1) Of course:

1. the author is John the apostle, the Elder, the "old man" of the church, the last remaining of Jesus' apostles. But:

2. the recipient is Gaius, who appears to be both a dear friend and also a local church leader in one of the churches under John's care, somewhere in the Roman province of Asia. Now look at his:

3. the greeting (2-4) Evidently some Gospel workers, some missionaries, had passed through that area and had received hospitality from Gaius. So they came to John at Ephesus and shared a glowing report about Gaius with him. And when he heard it:

a. John was overjoyed to hear that he was spiritually healthy He was standing firm in the truth concerning Jesus and he was walking in, or living out, that truth through the loving way that he had cared for these missionary workers. John was thrilled! He was filled with joy because one of his "children", one to whom he was a spiritual father was showing evidence of being mature in the Lord. Parents are always thrilled to see their children grow up to be mature, to see them adopt the same values and the same cause that is on the heart of their parents, make it their own and live it out. If you watch Animal Planet, you probably know that Steve Irwin, the "Crocodile Hunter" and founder of Australia Zoo passed away some years ago and now his two children are featured with his wife in their own program. And she is so proud because they have adopted his vision for wildlife conservation and are living it out with her. That's the joy that John felt over Gaius and the same joy we have whenever we see our disciples maturing and living out the life of Christ on their own! And out of that joy over Gaius' spiritual health:

b. John wished him corresponding success and physical health He says: Dear friend, I hope all is well with you and that you are as healthy in body as you are strong in spirit, in the NLT. Wouldn't that be nice? If all the ducks in our lives were lined up in a row and everything was going well and that our body was just as healthy as our soul? Well, it's wonderful to wish that for each other, but the longer you live, you find out it's not going to happen! The ducks fly off in all directions! Something always seems to go wrong and your body grows increasingly more decrepit! Seriously, what this verse does show us is that we should care about every aspect of each other's lives, all the other person's circumstances and even their health, and not simply about their spiritual life, as important as that surely is. At any rate, now in verses (5-12) John gets to his:

II. The Message, and it's this: We Must Partner With Missionary Workers! From the very earliest days of the church, there have always been those who felt the call of God to leave their home town and the security of family and the warmth of their home fellowship and go to make disciples and plant the church in places where people have not yet heard the Good News of salvation through Jesus Christ. If they stay closer to home among their own people, we call them Evangelists; if they go farther and cross geographic and cultural and language barriers, we call them missionaries. And the only way they are able to answer that call and do the work that God wants done, is if believers like you and I who remain at home working and worshipping God together in our local bodies enter into deep and significant partnership together with them. If there is a description anywhere in the New Testament that describes the relationship of mission work to those on the home front, these next three verses (5-8) are it. I believe that the Holy Spirit preserved this little letter of John to exhort us that:

1. we must imitate the wonderful example of Gaius in carrying out partnership with missionaries. Some of you may not know this, but we as a church have partnerships with 11 active missionary couples or singles who have been sent out to serve the Lord in various countries around the world plus an additional 9 couples or singles who are technically retired, but most of whom still continue to engage in some level of active ministry. On top of that we have 9 national partnerships with individuals and organizations who are actively reaching people within their own countries where the majority haven't yet heard the Gospel and on top of that in 1996, we adopted the Kyrgyz people of Central Asia and promised God to do everything within our power to see them reached with the Gospel. And if we are to follow the example of Gaius:

a. we must partner with them faithfully as he did (5-6) Gaius made many efforts for these missionary brothers who passed through his town. He opened his home and let them stay with him. He fed them meals and helped them with all the needs they had at the moment. Maybe they needed shoes or clothing or medical attention as they neared the end of their journey. Certainly, he prayed with them and listened eagerly to their report of what God had done through them and he probably gave them whatever money he could to help them along on the next step of their journey. And many of you have done the same for our many partners when they pass through our area. When they come, you take them into your homes to stay. You feed them meals. You help them with various needs they have and press gifts of money into their hands privately. You come to hear their reports and encourage them. You pray for them and their ministry. And for our missionary partners who live and worship here among us, yet impact the wider world, you do the same. So, I commend all of you who do such things because you are being faithful partners. Did you notice that John says that:

(1) we must do these things in a manner worthy of God? If you think about that statement, those words will take you back. We are representatives of God; we are the hands and feet of Jesus. We need to treat our partners in a manner that is fully pleasing to Him. In essence, it means that we must treat them like God would treat them! That means we give them good gifts, not our leftover, worn out, unwanted stuff. It means we send our support to them faithfully and without fail, not only when we have extra or when we happen to think of it. It means we pray for them consistently, not just when we happen to think of them. We must treat them in a manner worthy of God and, John says:

(2) we must not do it based primarily on personal relationship Gaius didn't even know these brothers he had helped; they were strangers to him. I have varying levels of personal relationship with all of our partners, some of them deeper than others, but you can't possibly know them all in a personal way. We are faithful to all of them and treat them in a manner worthy of God whether we have a personal relationship or not. Why? John explains our motive in verse (7):

b. we must be primarily motivated by the glory of God The workers went out for the sake of the Name and Gaius ministered to them for the sake of the Name, that is the Name of Jesus Christ. We do it for the sake of His Name among the nations. We reach the peoples of the world for the sake of the glory of Jesus Christ, that all peoples might call Him Lord. Our God is a great God and worthy to be praised by all peoples. And He's given us the vision of His greatness, that one day when it's all done and we stand in heaven around the throne there will be numberless multitudes from every tribe and people and nation, all in their splendor and diversity which He created, praising Him in their own languages, falling before His throne in worship singing, "Thou art worthy, thou art worthy, O Lord!" We want to make that come true for Him:

(1) it is never to get something for ourselves Those workers were like Paul; they wouldn't take anything from the peoples to whom they went because they didn't want to be perceived as coming there to "get something". And we don't either. We must never be involved in mission to get something, even if it is in the smallest measure, to get recognition, a pat on the back, the admiration of people, or a bigger reward in heaven, let alone material gain here somehow. Now certainly we're involved:

(2) it is because of Jesus' command He said in Mt. 28:18-20 to go and make disciples of every people and our missionary partners are involved among many of those peoples and disciples need to be made of them and we want to be obedient to God, so we are involved in the process. That's OK but it's not enough. It doesn't move the heart very well when the going gets tough. Another answer would be that:

(3) it is certainly out of love for unreached people They're lost. They're perishing without Christ and most of them, not only have never heard, but they still have no opportunity to hear. And by now many of us have been overseas and met some personally. We've looked in the eyes of little children in India or orphans in Nigeria or refugees in Greece or struggling families in Kyrgyzstan and for us they are no longer an impersonal entity. They have names and faces and we don't want to see them be lost eternally. Many of you know what I'm talking about. But that in itself is not motive enough.

Last year we not only faithfully supported our missionary partners and sent out our own teams to India and Greece, but, believe it or not, we gave approximately $110,000 to missions! Why? Not for us or for the workers or for the people, but for the sake of HIS Name among the nations! That HE might be glorified in all the earth! But here's something exciting; John told Gaius that when we partner faithfully with our missionaries:

c. we become co-laborers with them for the truth (8) In the Greek we become sunergoi, with-workers, co-laborers. Those on the field and we at home are co-laborers involved together as one with them in the same task, declaring the Truth of His Name. And John points out to those of us here at home that our co-laboring involves two very special functions. First of all:

(1) we walk alongside them as they go In (6b) we send them on their way. The Greek word means to "send someone forward" and in that time it meant literally to walk with them or escort or accompany them on the next section of their journey as they parted from you. It also meant to provide them with gifts and necessary provisions for that part of the journey. That's our function. We walk alongside these beloved laborers both as they go and as they are there. We are their companions in the process and our fingers need to be on the pulse of what's going on where they are, what their immediate needs are, what the crisis is that's in process and do whatever it takes on this end to propel them forward in the work of the Gospel. Often that means banding together in a blanket of prayer to cover an emergency situation. A couple years ago our missionary couple in Brazil sent out an SOS that, because of a change in Brazilian air force personnel, the mission planes that are their only lifeline of supply out in the Amazon jungle, had not been given needed permission to fly. Without them, staying would be impossible so we and many others began immediately to pray. Two or three weeks went by without permission and things were looking grim, when at last God answered and permission was given. We prayed again the next month and from then on that permission has been given every month! We prayed with another partner as she was going through and recovering from surgery last year in New York. We prayed with a retired partner couple as they traveled to Paraguay to serve field workers and this month we're praying for others with needs. We walk alongside our partners in prayer! Then secondly:

(2) we undergird them by providing what they need The words, support people like these, in verse 8 in Greek means "to hold from underneath and lift up", that is, to undergird or underwrite, to assume responsibility for providing what they need! Our role is to make sure that they have everything they need to get the job done that God has laid out before them. We are the vital supply lines that propel the army forward. A number of years ago in China one of our partners needed a laptop; through you, we got her one and she's still using it today in another country. When she needed discipleship materials for her new converts, we sent them. Another worker needed a data projector for the new kiosk her team is establishing in Puebla, Mexico and we had a nearly new one someone had just given us, so we sent it to her. When a partner in New York called for helpers to support a conference on reaching Muslims, half a dozen or more of us hopped on a train and volunteered and a group has been doing it annually now for several years! We do things like these all the time.

You see, we are co-laborers with those on the field. Our labors and theirs blend into one whole that God's glory might be revealed among the nations! So, each one of us must imitate the example of Gaius and be faithful. On the other hand, John goes on to warn us that:

2. we must avoid the terrible example of Diotrephes (9-11) Diotrephes was evidently a leader in either the same church group as Gaius or one nearby. John had written him a letter about this same subject also and he either destroyed the letter or kept it from the church because:

a. he put himself and his own priorities first He loved to be in charge, to be noticed and to control things. He had no respect for John as one who had the special privilege of walking with Jesus personally and even made up false and wicked things about him to prevent others from listening to him. And because of his self-centeredness:

b. he refused to partner with missionary workers He didn't receive or welcome them or help them in any way and what's worse:

c. he discouraged others from partnering with them, even threatening to throw them out of the fellowship if they did! Can you imagine?

But that attitude of "Who needs missions? Who needs missionaries? We have enough people to reach right here and we need all our resources for what we're doing!" has come up more than once through the ages. When William Carey proposed the forming of an agency to send missionaries to a meeting of Baptist leaders in the late 1700's, he was abruptly interrupted by an older minister who said, "Young man, sit down! You are an enthusiast. When God pleases to convert the heathen, he'll do it without consulting you or me." And that attitude has never gone away. There are always those in the church who say, "Too much emphasis on missions; we're tired of hearing about it! Let's focus on our own needs." That's like saying, "The heart of God for the lost peoples of the earth doesn't matter to me; I only care about what I'm involved in!" One of our missionary partners comes from a large church with several thousand people. New leadership has brought about changes there in recent years and a building program. So, this worker was home for half a year, in desperate need of more support to return to the field, and was never given even a 3 minute opportunity to stand before the congregation and share about their work. The majority of the congregation doesn't even know who this person is or that they are one of its missionaries. We're praying that will change, and soon, for them, but we must be careful that this attitude of Diotrephes never has a chance to take root here! Then finally John tells us that:

3. we must partner with trustworthy workers like Demetrius (12) We don't know who this Demetrius is, but given the context, he's probably a worker heading out to his field of service and probably the one carrying this letter to Gaius as a recommendation from John to help him forward on his way. Gaius didn't know him, but John says, "Everyone here knows he's a trustworthy worker to send out; I myself recommend him as a trustworthy worker and you can listen to his own testimony of commitment to the Truth and you'll be convinced!" We don't partner with just anybody who takes a notion to go do something. We partner with people we trust, with people that we know sincerely love Jesus and are genuinely called by him. All of our partners are "Demetriuses", trustworthy workers, brothers and sisters worthy of our partnership with them and together with them we are changing the world.

In the 1960's Dan and Barbara Lunow went out to the Sougb tribe in the jungles of Papua, Indonesia in partnership with us and other churches. The fruit of their almost 40 years of ministry there is more than 10,500 baptized believers, almost the entire tribe. And they began to send out missionaries (now 13 couples) to other tribes, the first of whom were Urias and Lowes Ahoren, who have also been our partners directly for many years. Some years ago, Urias sent an exciting report on his witness and work among the Irarutu people and how the Gospel was spreading among them and he ended it with this phrase, "But I'm just standing on top of the table!" When the Sougb go into the tropical forest to cut down a tree, all they have are small axes and chopping through the base of a huge tree is a formidable task. So what they do is to get together and build a shaky scaffold made of poles and vines part way up the tree and on the top of that scaffold they put a platform or in their language a "table" and attach it to the tree so they can stand way up there and cut through the tree where the diameter is smaller and their axes can get through it. So when Urias said, "I'm just standing on top of the table", he meant, "I'm not here by myself; I'm standing on top of all of you, and together we are cutting down this tree; we are reaching this people for Christ." Friends, we are the table on which our missionary partners stand; we are those who co-labor together with them, send them on their way and undergird them. We share equally in the process and we will share equal joy in seeing the reward of it one day. Let's all be faithful partners like Gaius. Well, I'll leave you again this morning by paraphrasing John's words in his:

III. The Closing in verses (13-14) which essentially says, "I have so much more to say, but I'm out of time!" Let's pray!

Jude - A Warning Against Apostasy (Part 1)

This morning we come to the last of the four New Testament letters that are only one chapter long, the letter of Jude. It is perhaps THE most neglected book in our New Testament, probably because of the strong statements Jude makes, which seem offensive to modern ears. It is not a long letter, but it contains enough material that it will take us two weeks to get through it, so today is Part 1. And like any letter, we begin with:

I. The Salutation (1-2) The letter is named for its:

1. the author: Jude, but who was he? Jude is a shortened form of Judas and there are a number of Judases mentioned in the New Testament. This one, however is the one mentioned in Mt. 13:55, which lists the other children of Mary and Joseph by name. So, he was a “half” brother to Jesus, if you will, and he was a full brother to James who is also mentioned in that verse. This James the Lord’s brother was the head of the Jerusalem church in Acts 15, a man respected by all in that day. Neither of these brothers believed in Jesus until after His resurrection, but both of them became completely devoted servants of Christ and respected leaders in the early church. As for:

2. the recipients: Jude is not writing to an individual person or to a church. He’s writing this to be circulated among true believers everywhere and certainly, it is meant for us along with them. Before we leave the salutation, however, Jude begins the same way he ends his letter, with a word of assurance to us. Notice these three truths. First, Jude says:

a. we were called to salvation I didn’t go seeking after God trying desperately to find Him; God invaded my life! He threw a friend into it who talked to me about Jesus, a friend who invited me to church and a family who brought me. He worked in my heart to cause me to see how lost I was and how much I needed to be saved and finally I gave in! He drew me to Himself; He called me. We were called to this salvation we have! It was a work of God, not of ourselves! He wanted us! Second, Jude says:

b. we are beloved to God the Father God didn’t just save us; He loves us! How much? So much that He was willing to give His only Son whom He loved to the awful fate of the cross in order to save us from our sins so He could have us for Himself! Michael Card put it this way: “God loves you so much that He would rather die than live without you!” We are dearly loved by God; He loves us more than any earthly father or mother could ever love one of their children! And third, Jude says:

c. we are being kept by and for Jesus Christ That word kept means preserved or protected. Remember how Jesus prayed for us the night before He died in Jn. 17:11-12, 15? Now I am departing from the world; they are staying in this world, but I am coming to you. Holy Father... protect them by the power of your name... During my time here, I protected them by the power of the name you gave me. I guarded them so that not one was lost, except the one headed for destruction, as the Scriptures foretold... I’m not asking you to take them out of the world, but to keep them safe from the evil one. God the Father is keeping us saved, preserving and protecting us in our salvation for Jesus, letting NO ONE snatch us out of His hand! We are loved so much that we cannot be lost!

That assurance is important and you’ll see why in a moment. Now Jude comes to his:

II. The Theme in verse (3) His message is: We MUST Contend Earnestly For THE Faith. Now here he is not referring to our personal faith in Jesus:

1. THE faith is the body of revealed truths we hold, the truths that all genuine believers have held since the very beginning. Truths about who Jesus was and what He did, His Deity, His incarnation as man, His virgin birth, His death as a sacrifice for our sins, His resurrection and His coming again. Truths about the Father and the Holy Spirit, about salvation by grace through faith, not works. Truths about the Scripture, that it is the very word of God and is to be believed and obeyed. Taken all together, that core body of beliefs is THE faith, THE Christian faith, and Jude says that:

a. it is a sacred trust that God has deposited with us God has delivered it to us saints who believe; He has handed it over to us. He has deposited it in our hands the way that we go down to the bank and hand our money over to the teller to keep it safe and protect it. It is a sacred trust given to a holy people by a Holy God that must be preserved and protected and passed down from one generation to another until Jesus returns. And Jude says it was delivered once for all, that is, it was entrusted to us once for all time. In other words:

b. it is an unchanging body of truth It is not like scientific knowledge which is constantly being researched and revised through new evidence. It is not being added to and nothing can be subtracted from it. God put a warning right at the end of the Book in Rev. 22:18-19 that if anyone adds to it or takes away from it His curse is upon them and they will not have eternal life. The Bible itself is complete and is to remain unchanged and so is THE faith. It is not to be altered or added to or subtracted from. It must be passed on whole and complete through time. And therefore, Jude's admonition is that:

2. we must strive zealously to keep it unchanged and pass it on He uses a term from wrestling. The way that a wrestler strives with all his might to pin the other person, exerting every bit of his energy and strength, that's the way we must contend for or defend the integrity of THE faith that has been entrusted to us. We must do everything in our power to keep it unchanged as we pass it on to others. And obviously:

3. this is a matter of utmost importance Jude says, "I wanted to write about some other things, but I HAD to write about this; it is so important!" Think about it. THE faith that we hold is the one and only key to eternal life! Suppose God revealed to you the one sure cure for cancer. Suppose He gave you a list of 25 chemical ingredients and told you the exact proportions by which to mix them together and you did it and found that everyone you gave it to was cured completely. How would you treat that formula? Would you let anyone add something else to it? Or omit something from it? Or change the proportions in it? No, you would protect it from being altered because people's very lives depend on it! When you pass it on to others you would be absolutely certain that the formula was intact and unchanged because so much was at stake; so many lives would be lost if it was not preserved intact! That's how it is with THE faith. If we let it be altered or added to or subtracted from, the resultant belief will not save anyone. And the ball has been passed to us. People's eternal future depends on us in our generation doing what all previous generations of believers have done, contending for THE faith which was once for all delivered to the saints! Now Jude says:

III. The Reason we need to contend so mightily for it is that There Are Ungodly People Within The Church who want to change and corrupt it (4). Within the church, within the body of people who claim to believe in Christ, there are some who do not truly believe in their hearts like we do, who are actually being used by Satan to destroy and corrupt that upon which our lives depend. How is that possible? Jude says:

1. they sneak in stealthily and go unnoticed They sit in same pew, they sing the same songs, they say many of the right words, and they serve alongside of us. In appearance they are no different from us so we don't notice them. Paul wrote about people like this in 2 Cor. 11:13-15, if you'll turn there with me. They're in disguise. They appear like and seem like apostles and servants of Christ, but in reality, they are working for a different master and he has planted them among us to corrupt and destroy THE faith that alone can save people. And Jude gives us two:

2. key distinguishing marks that allow us to recognize them Some of them are evident through their behavior:

a. they misuse grace as a license for immoral behavior They say, "Since God loves and accepts us by His grace and not by what we do, then what we do doesn't really affect our relationship with Him!" And that line of thinking always leads to sexual immorality. "God loves me but that has nothing to do with my romantic life. I can sleep with who I want when I want. After all, He created me to enjoy it." Others of them are more evident through their doctrine:

b. they deny the nature and uniqueness of our Lord Jesus Christ They either deny that Jesus was truly and fully God or that He became truly and fully a man. Take away the first and he is just another prophet, just another good and holy man showing us the way. Take away the second and the thought of salvation through his death becomes meaningless because he was not one of us. Or else they say that He is only one of many ways to be saved, not THE Way, one of many paths that lead to heaven, not the ONLY Lord and Savior.

Now you say, "But who ARE these people? Give me:

IV. An Example." All right, let me tell you about a group that was around in Jude's day, one of the groups he would have been talking about. They are called The Nicolaitans and we meet them in Rev. 2, if you'll turn there. Jesus tells the church at Ephesus this (6). Then He tells the church at Pergamum this (14-15). And then He tells the church at Thyatira this (20). Jezebel was probably a Nicolaitan. The Nicolaitans traced their beginning back to Nicholas of Antioch whom we meet in Acts 6. He was one of the seven men of good reputation, full of the Spirit and of wisdom whom the apostles chose to take care of the distribution of food to the widows in the church. Opinion is divided over whether the group simply borrowed his name to appear legitimate or whether he himself began their teachings. At any rate:

1. they were apostates: They carried the identity of being Christian but in reality, they had fallen away from the true faith. They no longer held the same truths that genuine believers hold nor practiced the same behavior that genuine believers do. Instead:

2. they taught people to identify with the idolatry of their culture If you remember, one of the few things the Jerusalem church had asked the Gentile believers not to do in Acts 15 was to not eat meat that had been sacrificed to idols. But in the Roman world, much of the meat available to purchase came from sacrifices that had first been offered to pagan idols in the many temples of Greek and Roman gods that abounded. Everybody around them worshipped in those temples; everybody around them got their meat that way and ate it. The Nicolaitans said, "Why should we be different? Why should we alienate people around us and cause them to dislike us by rejecting what they do every day?"

Of course, once you're in the temple to buy the meat, it appears as though you worship there like everyone else and it's a much smaller step to actually begin to acknowledge the idol in some way and believe in its power. Secondly:

3. they taught people to practice the immorality of their culture Greek and Roman culture was rife with immoral sexual behavior. Ritual prostitution was part of much pagan worship. Mistresses and affairs were everywhere. Homosexual behavior was openly practiced. The Nicolaitans said, "Why not join in? Everyone else does it. Look at the great pleasure you're missing by holding that sex should only be within marriage!" Of course, the easiest way to get involved is to stop by the idol's temple and get in line and in that way you participate in the worship of the idol. It was a great temptation. So, people like Jezebel and others were teaching these things and, as we read:

4. they were tolerated within some of the churches They were being allowed to practice and to teach these things to the believers in some places and Jude is saying, "You've got to wrestle against this stuff with all your might! You MUST preserve true Christian teaching and practice!"

Now you might say, "But I don't know any Nicolaitans!" Oh yes you do! They are all around us, people who would call themselves Christian but who identify with the idolatry and advocate the immorality of our increasingly pagan culture. Let me throw a few statistics at you:

1) A Pew Research survey in 2017 found that only 4 out of 10 who identify themselves as Christians in the US believe the Bible is the Word of God and should be interpreted literally.

2) A Pew Research Survey in 2007 found that 57% of those who call themselves evangelical Christians in the US accept the idea that Jesus may not be the only path to salvation. A 2011 Baylor Research survey found that 69% of churchgoers believe everyone will go to heaven.

3) A BBC survey in Great Britain in 2017 found that only 31% of people who identify themselves as Christians believe in the literal resurrection of Jesus Christ.

4) In a 2014 survey mentioned in the Christian Post, 61% of Christians said they would have sex before marriage. 56% said it's appropriate to move in and live together after dating for a time.

5) In the Roman world unwanted babies were commonly abandoned in a field somewhere to die of exposure; in our culture they are systematically and legally killed before birth in the womb. And the right to do that is being advocated in the church! According to Wikipedia, the United Church of Christ, the Episcopal Church, the Presbyterian Church USA and the Lutheran Women's Caucus openly support the right to abortion, while many other denominations support it in a more limited fashion.

6) Our country has now legalized gay marriage and considers homosexuality as a simple genetic difference, though it isn't. Despite the Bible's clear forbidding of the practice of homosexuality, the Episcopal Church, the Evangelical Lutheran Church, the Presbyterian Church USA, the Quakers and the United Church of Christ all sanction and recognize gay marriage according to the Pew Research Center and the United Methodist Church has had huge internal debate about these matters for years.

And all of this is new within the last 100 years. Folks, the Nicolaitans have gotten into the church and spread their teaching everywhere! How? Certain people crept in unnoticed and multiplied, and it began largely through our educational institutions. I was a student at Lebanon Valley College (a Methodist-related institution founded to train clergy, by the way) when I surrendered to God's call to the ministry one night at the age of 19. The next morning, I went in and switched to being a religion major. In my first religion class we were studying the Exodus and the professor got up and clearly told the class that the Israelites crossed the Reed Sea, not the Red Sea, that it was basically a marsh and that the Egyptians' chariot wheels got stuck in the mud so they could not pursue the Israelites. He denied the miraculous parting of the waters. I wanted to ask, "Well then how did the Egyptian soldiers wash up dead on the seashore?" And for the first time I realized I was being lied to in the guise of religion. In another class on the Gospels the professor taught us that the resurrection of Jesus was a sacred myth treasured by Christians, not a literal fact and when I said, "You mean to tell me that Luke did not intend his readers to understand that Jesus' body literally came out of the tomb!", I was so mad because he refused to acknowledge it. This same kind of thing went on all through college and I watched student after student who had come in believing the Bible from their local churches lose their faith by the time they left. And then I went to seminary! In three years, I don't think I had a single professor who believed that the Bible is literally true, that heaven and hell are real places or that salvation comes only through a personal relationship with Christ. Dozens of seminaries around the nation are like that and they're producing church leaders who step into churches and lead people to adopt the views of culture, rather than the faith that was once for all delivered to the saints. Well, it became a real struggle for me. You see, these were nice people. They were kind. They went to church and studied the Bible and prayed and claimed to follow Jesus. They did many good and helpful things for others. I liked them as people, yet they denied so many things I knew were true. It was so hard for me to see them as lost and evil and I kept praying, "God, I don't know what to think; what is really true about all these teachers?" And one night God made it crystal clear in my mind, "They do not know Me." To use Jude's word in verse 4, they are ungodly, destitute of true reverential awe toward God. There are multiplied thousands of them in churches and institutions across our land and community, pastors, professors, teachers leading people to deny THE faith once for all delivered to the saints. Jude issues a strong:

V. The Warning to them: They Will Be Judged By God Quickly, he says:

1. God destroyed the rescued Israelites who did not believe (5) Within the ranks of His people Israel there were many who did not truly believe and God later destroyed them. Then he says:

2. God will destroy angels who deserted His service (6) While some of the angels who rebelled against God are loose as demons, evidently some of them are being kept in chains and one day God will destroy them. Check out 2 Pet. 2:4. Then he says:

3. God destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah for their immorality (7) They are an example to us of what God will do with all who practice immorality. Jude's point is that:

4. apostates do these same things and will also be destroyed (8, 10) No matter how appealing or nice they seem, they do not know God and in the end will be destroyed unless they repent.

Beloved, we MUST wrestle with all our might to keep and protect THE faith that has been entrusted to us intact. We must NEVER let apostasy begin here or anywhere that we have influence. The eternal lives of people depend on it! Methodist theologian Thomas Oden, in his book "After Modernity...What?", tells about a strange dream he once had. He was walking in the New Haven cemetery when he stumbled over something and looked down, only to discover that it was his own tombstone. Carved on the front was this epitaph: "He made no new contribution to theology." Then Oden woke up and experienced a deep feeling of relief because all his life he had, in his words, "been trying in my own way to follow the strict mandate of Irenaeus not to invent new doctrine." His goal was not to be original, but to restate and clarify "the faith that was once for all entrusted to the saints". [Christian Week, Mar 4, 1997. Page 5]. That's my goal too and I hope it's yours, but it MUST be ours! Next time Jude will go on to tell us that we can reach some of these very people and those that they are leading astray.

Jude - A Warning Against Apostasy (Part 2)

Today we're going to look at the second half of the Epistle of Jude which we began last week. If you remember, Jude was warning the churches, and us, against apostasy. Let's just look back at verses 3-4 to see Jude's theme, [I urge] you to defend the faith that God has entrusted once for all time to his holy people. I say this because some ungodly people have wormed their way into your churches, saying that God's marvelous grace allows us to live immoral lives... they have denied our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ. (3-4) Jude is warning us that we absolutely must be careful to jealously guard the core truths that are vital to our faith, because many false teachers who don't really know Christ have infiltrated the church and are leading people astray from the truth by their worldly teachings. And I shared with you specific examples of how, within the boundaries of the church today, there are thousands who teach that the Bible is not the Word of God to be interpreted literally, that Jesus was not born of a virgin, did not literally rise from the dead, is not really coming back again, that there is no literal heaven or hell, that we can practice things the Bible calls sexual immorality, like living together or gay marriage, or things that are morally wrong like the killing of a baby through abortion. I listed for you some entire denominations of churches that have officially espoused these things. But conservative believers in those churches are also standing up for truth. St John's Episcopal in Huntingdon Valley left their denomination over these very issues, had their building taken away and became St. John's Anglican Church, a conservative congregation. God gave them a new building and they're prospering. Holy Trinity Lutheran in Abington left the liberal Evangelical Lutheran Church in America to help found and join the North American Lutheran Church, an entire new conservative denomination. Oreland Presbyterian left the Presbyterian Church USA to join the Evangelical Presbyterian Church because of these things. These are just churches in our neighborhood; the church, all over America and the world, is rife with apostasy! Now in verse 11 Jude talks about:

I. The Motives Of Apostate Teachers like these that have come into our churches and educational institutions (11). He uses three Old Testament characters to illustrate their motives. First, he says that:

1. they want to live their way and detest purity like Cain did What is the way of Cain? We remember the story in Gen. 4, but 1 Jn. 3:12 NLT explains it, We must not be like Cain, who belonged to the evil one and killed his brother. And why did he kill him? Because Cain had been doing what was evil, and his brother had been doing what was righteous. He had been living in an evil way and his goody-goody brother Abel made him angry. He didn't want to live Abel's way and be pleasing to God and Abel was a constant irritant that enraged him. Just tell some so-called "Christians" that abortion is wrong or the practice of homosexuality is wrong and see the reaction you get. They don't often say, "Well, I disagree with you." You get anger and accusations of bigotry and sometimes threats, because at the bottom line people want to live like they want to live and the purity of others is detestable to them. So in the church they teach, "It's Ok with God; there are 'other ways' to interpret the Scripture." No, there are not! You simply disregard the Scripture as being true! Second, he says that:

2. they ultimately seek their own gain like Balaam did I won't recount the story of Balaam from Num. 22-23 but ultimately in the end of it, he advised Balak, King of Moab to entice the Israelites to join in worship of their idols and get them to commit sexual immorality so that God would destroy them. It worked and thousands died, including him. But he gave that advice in order to get paid handsomely for it, to get something for himself, even though he KNEW God did not want Israel cursed. Ultimately, false teachers get something out of it for themselves. In some cases, it's money, but many times it gets them acceptance and recognition by their followers and students or advancement in their organization, perhaps a better appointment to a more prestigious or larger congregation in a nicer area or a higher professorship in their learning institution. For many, if they would repudiate the false truths and stand up firmly for Scripture, they would quickly be let go and lose their livelihood! They gain by it. Third, Jude says that:

3. they rebel against God's ordinances like Korah did You remember the story of Korah's rebellion in Num. 16, how he and his followers challenged Moses saying, "We're just as holy as you and Aaron are and we can offer incense to God as well as you can!", totally rejecting God's command as to whom He chose to be priests. So God opened a hole in the earth and buried them all alive! Let's face it; people don't like God to tell them what to do and how to live! They want to do what they want to do, no matter what HE says. So, these apostate teachers are directly rebelling against what God has said in His Word because they want to teach and do what THEY want and, sadly, the inference is that their end will be much the same! Now Jude waxes eloquent to give us:

II. A Poetic Description Of What Apostate Teachers Are Like (12-13) He says:

1. they are hidden rocks that wreck the spiritual lives of believers, the way a ship is wrecked and sunken when it hits an underwater reef. Because they look like us and are mixed into the church, you don't see them; you don't realize these teachers are different until it's too late and by then the damage has already been done in many lives of those who listen to them. It happens subtly. They may be mixed with the crowd eating at your love feast, but spiritually they are shepherds feeding themselves instead of their sheep. He says:

2. they are clouds that produce no nourishing rain We've all seen days when the sky the sky is black with cumulus clouds and you expect it to rain, yet it blows over without a drop to nourish the crops or fill up the cisterns and bless the people. You look to these folks to provide spiritual teaching that will bless and nourish souls, but there is no spiritual help from them. He says:

3. they are trees that produce no fruit through an entire season They look like good, healthy trees that ought to bear fruit, but they don't. And they come down to the end of their season, the end of their lives, and die twice, once physically and once eternally. The only thing left is to uproot them and pull them out of the ground. Jesus used the same image in Mt. 7:15-20 to tell us how to recognize false prophets who come among us. He said we'll recognize them like we recognize bad trees, by their bad fruits, by the unrighteous deeds they do and the false things they teach. And in the end, He too says that diseased trees get cut down and thrown into the fire. Jude says:

4. they are wild waves spewing worthless shameful foam on shore We've all seen the waves thunderously pounding the beach and leaving behind them only patches of empty frothy foam to evaporate on the sand. These teachers speak forcefully and boast of much, but their words and actions, of which they should be ashamed, are only so much empty froth that they leave behind. And finally, Jude says:

5. they are unreliable shining stars that will end up in darkness The ancients navigated by the stars because their locations were fixed in the heavens. "Wandering stars", such as planets or comets that move across the sky, are unreliable to follow, no matter how brightly they shine. These apostates may shine brightly, but to follow them is to be led down a false path that leads to eternal darkness.

Wow, these are strong words, aren't they?! Why is Jude so severe in his condemnation of those who teach false things in the name of Christ? Because through their "Christian" appearance, their religious language and their sincerity, they end up leading people to eternal death, to an eternity in a lake of fire, by preventing them from simply trusting in Christ for salvation! Years ago, a physician was administering a controlled mixture of oxygen and anesthetic gas to a patient in a New York hospital. When one of the tanks was empty, the doctor attached a new one marked "Oxygen". Almost immediately the patient died. The coroner's autopsy revealed carbon dioxide poisoning. Further investigation revealed that the second tank was found to contain pure CO₂ and had somehow been mislabeled. The manufacturer denied any wrongdoing. No one knew how it could have gotten by the inspectors. The doctor had no doubt that he was using oxygen when he administered the lethal gas. All were sincere; no one wanted the tragedy to happen, yet they were all sincerely wrong. And when you realize that there is only one way to have eternal life, being sincerely wrong kills people, forever! Now in case this whole concept that there are false teachers in the church shocks and surprises you, next Jude reminds us that:

III. God Warned Us Ahead Of Time That Apostate Teachers Would Arise Jude begins as far back as he could go:

1. Enoch said God will convict such people at His coming (14-16) Back before David's time and Abraham's time, back before Noah and the great flood, only 7 generations from Adam, we read about a man named Enoch who walked with God and God was so pleased with him that He translated him; He took him to heaven without dying. One of Enoch's sayings was passed down for generations and ultimately recorded both in a non-canonical Book of Enoch and also by the Holy Spirit here in Scripture. Way back then, Enoch knew there was going to be a great coming of the Lord in glory to judge the whole world and on that day all those who have committed unrighteous deeds against His commands and who have spoken harsh things against His truth will be shown their great sin and condemned. Jude says the false teachers of his day as well as our own day are among those Enoch was declaring would exist on that great day. Then Jude goes on to remind us that:

2. the Apostles warned that such people would arise (17-19) Jesus warned about them often. Paul warned about them in a number of his letters. Peter warned about them in his writing. So why should we be surprised that they have shown up? They have been present in every age of church history since Jude's day, so why should we be surprised that they have multiplied so greatly now as His coming draws nearer? We've been warned and we must warn the believers of our day to beware of them or the precious faith handed down to us will be lost in the next generation! Now this next part of Jude's letter may surprise you. After all the strong condemnation, he tells us that:

IV. We Can Reach Some Of Those Going The Way Of Apostasy in verses (20-23), but before he actually says that, he warns us that before trying to do so:

1. we must be spiritually prepared (20-21) Notice the four things he mentions. First, we must build ourselves up in our most holy faith. He's not talking about "getting more faith". He means:

a. we must be rock solid in our commitment to what we believe He's talking about THE faith, that most holy body of Truth we are called to preserve. We must know it well and thoroughly. We must be absolutely convinced of the truth of it. We must be so thoroughly committed to it that we will NEVER waver, so that there is no possibility for us to be convinced of error. Second:

b. we must be praying in the Spirit, that is, depending on Him. We cannot reach people like this in our own strength and wisdom. You can't just out-argue them in some debate and think they'll change. It is an impossible task, like convincing the President of Iran to become a Jew. It's not happening unless the Spirit of God does a mighty supernatural work and for that we must pray! Third:

c. we must develop a deep loving relationship with God When you've got people telling you that immorality is OK and you've got strong hormones and opportunity arises, the temptation to follow that false notion is pretty strong. Only a real relationship with God can protect you. Joseph had a beautiful woman begging him to sleep with her and ripping off his clothes and his response was ...How could I do such a wicked thing? It would be a great sin against God! Only a deep, deep love for God will keep you from falling into sin. And fourth:

d. we must be looking for Christ's return, like Enoch, waiting for Him to come back and take us into His eternal Kingdom. We must live to be found faithful when He comes!

Now, if all of those things are true of us, then, Jude says that we have a chance of reaching some who are caught in apostasy. Verse (22):

2. we must lovingly convince those who doubt the truth Not all people who believe false teaching are hardened, committed teachers of it. Some are simply followers of it, people who've come to doubt the truths of the Bible, people who may argue with you a bit, but don't know enough to support their own arguments. Those who are simply doubters you can have an attitude of mercy toward; you can pray for and talk to them and God can use your loving concern over time to rescue them. But:

3. we must reach out to hardened apostates with utmost care (23) You treat them the way you would pull a stick out of a burning campfire, taking the utmost care not to get burned yourself. You know, when you try to save a drowning man, either you can rescue him or he can drown you with him if he latches on hard enough. With people who are deeply committed to apostate beliefs, be very careful. If you have any sense at all that talking to them is beginning to cause you doubts, back away. Rather, flee! But God can save even these.

A young man named Brewster Hastings came to serve as the rector of St. Anne's Episcopal Church in Abington 26 years ago. He was educated at Union Theological Seminary in New York city, an institution at the forefront of liberal theological thinking and teaching. He arrived here a typical liberal preacher exhorting people to do good in order to be accepted by God, not clinging to any of the tenets of the faith that we hold dear. His first marriage fell apart and things were not going well. At some point, Mike Tavella, pastor at Holy Trinity Lutheran on the opposite side of Old York Road met Brewster and began to be a friend to him, to share his faith with him and before too much time passed Brewster met Jesus! What a change! It became his passion to lead people to know Jesus. He became a devoted husband to a new wife and a father to her two children. Let me read you this: Brewster brought joy to all whom he touched. He organized Pastors United in Prayer in 1992, whose mission was to bring together church leaders of all denominations every month to gather in prayer for the greater community and world. He organized numerous weekly Discovery Bible Study groups in many churches, some even meeting in the local mall, where he sat in the food court with a sign stating "Free Prayer"; in his inimitable fearless style, he constantly met and prayed for myriad strangers. The healing ministry was his passion and gift. He created disciples everywhere he went through his "catch-and-release" style of leadership. In every way, Brewster fully lived for God. He became devoted to the Word of God and the salvation of people; I remember in some of the early prayer meetings we had with just four of us, seeing him lying on his face on the floor begging God to save souls. Sadly, in 2016 Jesus suddenly and unexpectedly took him home. What I just read you was his obituary. He was one of those false teachers Jude warned against, but a dear brother had mercy on him, carefully snatched him out of the fire and he became a flaming apostle for Christ to the day he died. There is hope, even for terrorists like Saul and apostates! In closing, Jude gives us:

V. A Wonderful Assurance For All True Believers that has been used as a benediction down through ages (24-25).

Listen, in case our study of this letter has made you anxious or worried about yourself in any way, always remember these two things: God has all the power in the universe to keep you from falling into false teaching and you can rest assured that He WILL present you blameless to Himself with great joy one day! Look forward to it.

Revelation: Things To Come

Christ: Exalted and Coming Again - Ch. 1

Today we begin a brand new series of messages. We're going to study together through the very last book of the Bible, the Book of Revelation. But even as I say that, I know that there is a very mixed reaction going on. Some of you are thinking, "Why? It's so confusing; nobody really understands it. And besides, what does it have to do with my life? It's all about stuff that's going to happen at the time of Jesus' return; why do I need it?" And at the same time, others of you are thinking, "Oh boy, now I'm going to finally make sense out of all the events that are going on in the world and see how they relate to the Bible." So let me assure you of two things you can count on. First, it will have something directly to do with your life and second, you will not be able to read the morning newspaper next to your Bible and draw clear lines from one to the other. We are going to study it because it is an important portion of God's Word and there's a good chance that a many of you may never have heard a balanced exposition of it! Right in the beginning of chapter one, the Apostle John who wrote it declares:

I. The Purpose Of This Book in verses (1-3) First of all:

1. it was given to provide us with information about the future (1a) It is a revelation, a revealing of that which was not previously known. The Greek word is apocalypse which means a taking away of the veil, an uncovering of what was hidden. God wanted to show us, His servants, what is going to happen in the future, things that will soon take place. And we might as well deal with that word soon right up front. 1900 years have passed since this was written and these events still haven't happened. The word soon in that sentence means literally, speedily, quickly. When they happen, they are going to happen fast. In verse 3 he says the time is near. The truth is that near doesn't mean tomorrow or next week. It means what Paul said in Rom. 13:11, ...our salvation is nearer now than when we first believed! Every year, every month, every day brings us nearer to the day when these things happen, but no one knows exactly when that day is. It means they are imminent; they could happen any day; they could begin at any time. God has intended for every generation to live with the sense of immanence of Christ's coming, to live always looking, always watching, waiting, expecting Him. But God wanted to show us clearly exactly what it is that we are waiting and watching for. Were it not for this book, we would indeed know comparatively little about God's plans for the end of this age. What Romans does for doctrine, Revelation does for Bible prophecy; it is the book that pulls it all together in an organized fashion. The story of human history is being written chapter by chapter, but God wanted us to read the end chapter of the book so we know where it's all headed! Second:

2. it was given to provide us with unerring truth (1b-2) At the time this was written, Rome ruled the world. 30 years earlier Nero had begun the persecution of Christians and Domitian was continuing it. It was illegal to be a Christian and believers were suffering terribly because of it. It probably seemed like the world was lost in that hour, like evil would triumph and the church would be wiped out. Of course, it passed and 200 years later Christianity was the official religion of the Roman empire. But history has been filled with times like that. Jesus warned that before the end came that there would be wars and rumors of wars, nations rising up against nations, famines, earthquakes... And so, it has been: plagues, world wars, natural disasters, terrorist attacks. In every generation people try to predict and propose what the world will come to. But GOD wanted to tell us what the world will come to! He gave us truth, unerring, unfailing truth, His very own WORD as to how it all ends! And third He tells us why:

3. it was given to touch our hearts and impact our lives (3) This book was not meant to be a mystery, hidden away and pondered by theologians. It was written to be read publicly in the churches and listened to by believers like you, so that we would take it to heart and have our lives transformed by God's vision of the end and live every day in expectation and anticipation of Christ's coming! Dr. Warren Wiersbe tells about the time when as a young preacher he preached a sermon on the second coming in which he tried to explain every detail. Another pastor who sat through that message said to him at the time, "You sound like you're on the planning committee for the return of Christ." And then he went on to say, "Personally, I've transferred from the program committee to the welcoming committee!" [Be Hopeful by Warren W. Wiersbe. Victor Books, 1982. Page 107.] The point of the book is not that we understand and know every detail of the 7 seals, 7 trumpets and 7 bowls or that we can decipher the identity of the Antichrist from the numeral 666 or identify the 10 nations of the beast's empire; the point of the book is in its second last verse where John responds to all he has seen by saying, AMEN, COME LORD JESUS! That's the purpose of this book and that's why we're studying it, so you'll become an enthusiastic member of the welcoming committee, so you'll become one of those Paul mentioned who get a crown because they long for His appearing! Now let's look at:

II. The Message Of This Book (4-8) John summarizes it as he begins his letter, even before he tells what he saw. First, this book:

1. it declares who Christ is (4-5a) Did you hear that? He is the Ruler of the Kings of the earth! In John's day Caesar would have laid claim to that title! And through the centuries there have been many more Gengis Khans and Napoleons and Hitlers and Stalins and Maos who have aspired to it. But for all of their power and military might, none of them is King of the World! Jesus is! He returned to heaven to REIGN and He reigns as King on His Throne today. He is the KING who is over all Kings and the Lord before whom all Lords must one day bow. Nothing of all that goes on in this world phases Jesus. Nothing of all that will happen in the end of the age will stop Him. HE is absolutely in charge; He is on the throne and His will is being played out and accomplished in the history of the world, no matter what it looks like to us! Second, this book:

2. it declares what Christ has done (5b-6): He saved us to reign with Him He loved us so much that He died on a cross to save us, but why? He has made us to be, literally, KINGS! Kings who will reign with Him eternally. And PRIESTS! Priests who will serve Him and carry out His will forever! It doesn't matter what our lot is here in this world! It doesn't matter if we are despised and persecuted or thrown in prison and tortured. We are those of whom the world is not worthy; those who will reign with Him forever. You will see that in this book and thirdly:

3. it declares what Christ will do (7): His rule will not always be a quiet, secret, behind the scenes, unknown control. He will come to assert global rule. He will come with the clouds of heaven and every eye will see Him. He will come visibly and powerfully with all the hosts of heaven in His train. He will step into this miserable world and stage a complete takeover, when He's ready. He will set up His Kingdom on this earth and the kingdoms of this world will become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ and He shall reign forever and ever! The message of this book is simple and straight forward: HE IS COMING AGAIN! And that message:

4. it is declared with all the certainty of God Himself (8) The Father puts His stamp of veracity on this. He says, "I am the A and the Z of all things, the source and the ending; I am ETERNAL and I tell you that this is how things will turn out. Jesus WILL REIGN!" This is not some ancient myth the church used to believe. This is not some fairy tale that poor misguided Christians use as a crutch to escape dealing with the real problems in this world. This is the very Word of God Himself: JESUS WILL COME AGAIN AND RULE THIS WORLD!

Now in the second half of this chapter John begins to share what he saw and He describes for us:

III. The Christ Of This Book in verses (9-20) And He is NOT like He was when He left! Let's look at how:

1. He revealed Himself to John (9-11) You need to be aware of:

a. John's suffering on Patmos John was for many years the leader and overseer of the churches in what we would call Asia Minor, modern Turkey. In the year 95 AD, when he would have been an old man of at least eighty, he was arrested. Tradition says that he was first thrown into a vat of boiling oil but emerged unharmed. So Domitian banished him from the Roman Empire because he wouldn't quit preaching or deny Jesus. He was sent into exile on this tiny, rocky 13 square mile island off the coast of Asia called Patmos. Victorinus, the first commentator on John's book in the 200's, says that John was sentenced to hard labor in the mines or quarries there. William Ramsey writes: Banishment combined with hard labor for life was one of the grave penalties. Many Christians were punished in that way. It was in its worst forms a terrible fate: like the death penalty it was preceded by scourging, and it was marked by perpetual fetters, scanty clothing, insufficient food, sleep on the bare ground in a dark prison, and work under the lash of military overseers. It is an unavoidable conclusion that this was St. John's punishment. In the midst of this incredible suffering, tradition says that it was in a cave in the rock that:

b. John saw a vision It was not a dream, for he was fully awake. He was transported by the Spirit to another place, to heaven. Paul mentioned an experience like this happening to him once in 2 Cor. 12 and comments, Whether it was in the body or out of the body I do not know--God knows! The spirit of God took John in an instant out of his squalor and suffering all the way to heaven and He saw Jesus! And He tells us what Jesus looked like (12-16). The best way I know to describe Him is to say that:

2. He has been restored to His pre-incarnate glory, the very thing He prayed for in Jn. 17:5. All the glory that He had with the Father before the world came into being was restored to Him! Oh look at Him, dressed as our great High Priest in a long robe with a golden sash around His chest, His face shining with all the brightness that knocked Paul to the ground on the Damascus Road and blinded him! His voice is so loud and powerful that the whole earth can hear it and His words are like a sharp sword going out of His mouth to slay His enemies. He is no longer "gentle Jesus, meek and mild"; He is no longer the beaten man who was dragged onto a cross and nailed there to die! He is the Master of the Universe! He is the Lord of Glory! John's reaction to seeing Him was immediate (17a). It knocked him out! He fainted dead away, the sight was so grand. He was the disciple who was closest to Jesus, who was His cousin and confidant on earth, but when he sees Him as He is now, he cannot stand in His glorious Presence! Listen, when we're suffering down here in our exile, when we have been pressed and squeezed to the end of our endurance so that we literally believe that Patmos will be the place of our killing, as its meaning is, we need to see Jesus as He really is. Stephen saw Him! As the rocks were pelting his body, he cried out, Look, I see heaven opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God! And in that instant, it came home to him that his very death was gain and he forgave his own murderers! Listen, our Jesus is not some weak being struggling to boost His lagging forces in battle; He is the Ruler of the Universe, the One in charge, the One against whom there is no rebellion! That's who He is and:

3. He is sending a message to His Church (17b-20) Look closely at what He has to say. First of all, He says to John and to us:

a. Do not be afraid! Some of us may be thinking, "If I thought of Jesus like that, I'd be afraid of Him!" But He says, "It is ME; don't be afraid!" I am still the same Jesus; I am still the One who loves you! It is the same thing He said to John in the boat that night on the sea of Galilee in the middle of the storm when He came walking on the water, It is I; don't be afraid! It is what He said to John in the darkest night of his life, exhausted in a dark cave on an island forgotten by the world, It is I; don't be afraid! It is what He says to us when the circumstances of our lives threaten to sweep over our boat and drown us in the depths, It is I; don't be afraid! But why not, we ask, and Jesus answers:

b. I am alive eternally! "You know that I died. You believe that part of the story well, but now believe this, I am alive forever more! I am the Living One! I AM LIFE! So, you are not alone. You are not forsaken. You are not forgotten. I am alive and well and on My throne! And guess what?"

c. I govern life and death! "I hold the keys! By my death and resurrection, I bought them. Satan no longer has the power of death! He can't do anything that I don't let him. If he kills you there on that island, he's only doing my will to send you home! I am in charge! Not Caesar, not some emperor or king, not some earthly tyrant or government. The king's heart is in My hand and I turn it wherever I wish! I RULE! I have a plan in place; I plan to come again and set this world straight! But meanwhile down there in that dark empire, you are not alone because:"

d. I am in the midst of you! "Here you are like 7 lampstands, 7 menorahs, standing there all over the coast of Asia, 7 suffering churches. And now that you can see ME, where am I? I am right there in the midst of you! Right where I said I would be! I promised to be with you always, to the very end of the age and I keep my promises. I am right there with you! I am among you, in your very midst! I am not sitting up here in heaven on My throne watching you fight all my battles; I am right there with you! And because I am:"

e. You are My Light in a dark world! "The world I've put you in is a dark place. It's riddled with suffering and injustice. Terrorists blow up unsuspecting people; horrible diseases cause millions to suffer, genocidal governments wipe out innocent victims because their skin is the wrong color. For all of the good things I created, the world is a dark place, but I've put you in it as My lights. You are the city set on a hill for all to see. You are the light that isn't hidden under a bushel, but set up on a lampstand to give light to all who are in the house. You are the light of the world! You are the world's only hope! Through you they can see me! Go and shine My light! Go and build my church! And remember this:"

f. I hold you in My hand! The seven stars are the “angels” of the seven churches. We’re not sure whether that literally refers to heavenly angels or to the human messengers, the leaders of those churches, who may have come to John on that island for his direction. I rather think it applies to us, to His leaders and to His church. He said, “My sheep listen to my voice; I know them, and they follow me. I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish; no one can snatch them out of my hand. My Father, who has given them to me, is greater than all; no one can snatch them out of my Father’s hand. I and the Father are one. - John 10:27-30. I’ve got you the whole time! I’m holding you in My powerful hand! You are safe in me!”

Do you know how John’s story ended? Domitian said, “John, I sentence you to suffer and die on Patmos! You’ll never set foot in my empire again. You’ll never preach this Christ again!” But 18 months later Domitian’s body lay rotting in a tomb; all his edicts were annulled by the Roman Senate. John was back in Asia among His beloved churches and the vision Jesus gave him was spreading among the churches throughout the Roman Empire to encourage churches everywhere. Only 85 years later, on the 17th of July in the year 180 a group of 6 believers from Scillium in modern Tunisia, North Africa, stood before a Roman Proconsul. We believe the record we have may be the actual transcript of their trial. It reads like this: “Saturninus the proconsul said: You can win the indulgence of our lord the Emperor, if you return to a sound mind. Speratus, the spokesman for the group said: We have never done ill, we have not lent ourselves to wrong, we have never spoken ill, but when ill-treated we have given thanks; because we pay heed to our Emperor. Saturninus the proconsul said: We too are religious, and our religion is simple, and we swear by the genius of our lord the Emperor, and pray for his welfare, as you also ought to do. Speratus said: If you will peaceably lend me your ears, I can tell you the mystery of simplicity. Saturninus said: I will not lend mine ears to you, when you begin to speak evil things of our sacred rites; but rather swear by the genius of our lord the Emperor. Speratus said: The empire of this world I know not; but rather I serve that God, whom no man has seen, nor with these eyes can see. I have committed no theft; but if I have bought anything I pay the tax; because I know my Lord, the King of kings and Emperor of all nations. Saturninus the proconsul said to the rest: Cease to be of this persuasion. Speratus said: It is an ill persuasion to do murder, to speak false witness. Saturninus the proconsul said: Be not partakers of this folly. Cittinus said: We have none other to fear, save only our Lord God, who is in heaven. Donata said: Honour to Caesar as Caesar: but fear to God. Vestia said: I am a Christian. Secunda said: What I am, that I wish to be. Saturninus the proconsul said to Speratus: Do you persist in being a Christian? Speratus said: I am a Christian. And with him they all agreed. Saturninus the proconsul said: Will you have a space to consider? Speratus said: In a matter so straightforward there is no considering. Saturninus the proconsul said: What are the things in your chest? Speratus said: Books and epistles of Paul, a just man. Saturninus the proconsul said: Have a delay of thirty days and bethink yourselves. Speratus said a second time: I am a Christian. And with him they all agreed. Saturninus the proconsul read out the decree from the tablet: Speratus, Nartzalus, Cittinus, Donata, Vestia, Secunda and the rest having confessed that they live according to the Christian rite, since after opportunity offered them of returning to the custom of the Romans they have obstinately persisted, it is determined that they be put to the sword. Speratus said: We give thanks to God. Nartzalus said: Today we are martyrs in heaven; thanks be to God. Saturninus the proconsul ordered it to be declared by the herald: Speratus, Nartzalus, Cittinus, Veturius, Felix, Aquilinus, Laetantius, Januaria, Generosa, Vestia, Donata and Secunda, I have ordered to be executed. They all said: Thanks be to God.” All were executed but at the end of that document, some Christian later penned these words: And so, they all together were crowned with martyrdom; and they reign with the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, for ever and ever. Amen.” The church got the message. “Do not be afraid. I am alive forever and I hold the keys of life and death. I am the true King. Shine My light where you are. I am with you and you are safe in My hand.” That message is for you too; have you gotten it?

Revelation: Things To Come

The Church: Persevering and Persecuted - 2:1-11

As we move into chapter two, it is important that we understand who John is writing to. Look at 1:4. These seven churches were actual churches that not only existed in John’s day, but John had been the pastor or bishop of the church of Ephesus for many years and these churches in Asia, today the modern province of Anatolia in western Turkey, were part of his flock and they looked to him for leadership. They form a horseshoe shape beginning with Ephesus and stretching round to Laodicea. There were more churches than these in the province and why Jesus chose to address these and not others, we don’t know, but it seems to be inferred that these churches had sent messengers to John who was suffering at hard labor on the island of Patmos about 40 miles off the coast to get his directions and word for them. Meanwhile, that Lord’s Day Jesus appeared to John and gave him this great vision of Himself which we looked at in chapter 1. And the first thing Jesus did in that vision was to give a message to John to convey to each church through its messenger. And thus, we have what we’ve come to call:

I. The Letters To The Seven Churches In Revelation 2-3 But let’s talk about them as a whole before we begin to read them. As I said:

1. Jesus sent a personal message to each church through its leader Each message begins the same (1, 8) To the angel of the church in... That word angel means messenger and can be and is often used of human messengers which makes more sense in this context; after all, why would Jesus write a letter to angels in heaven? These messengers were probably key leaders, pastors from the churches, coming to John for instruction and advice now that he was absent from them. But think about this: instead of human direction, they get a message direct from Jesus! What if we answered our GBC phone on Monday and the voice said, "This is heaven calling; the next voice you hear will be that of Jesus Christ Himself! And Jesus comes on the line and says, 'This is how I see what is going on in Glenside Bible Church and here's what I command you to do about it!'" How would we feel? Well, that's exactly what each of these churches got!

2. each message was an evaluation of the spiritual state of the church To each one, Jesus says the same thing, / KNOW... verses (2, 9). That's a comforting and at the same time a scary thought! He knows what's truly going on. He is not impressed by a fancy PowerPoint or flowery words. He sees right into our hearts, all of our hearts. He knows all the good things about us and all the bad things. You can see that as He talks to each church. There are things that He commends and encourages and things that He condemns and warns strongly about. But before you wipe your brow and say, "Phew, I'm glad we're never going to get a message from Jesus like that...", let me assure you that we already have!

3. these messages were intended to be read and applied by all of us, both as churches and individuals. After every message, look what He says in verses (7, 11). Each of these churches was typical of other churches then, down through the ages and now! The people in these churches are typical of believers in churches today. These letters were intended to be read by the whole church worldwide and to be read to the church down through the centuries so that as each of us hears the message and we are able to see ourselves or our church in them, WE can hear what the Spirit is saying to US! So, as we read and study these, keep your EARS OPEN! Listen for what the Spirit is saying to GBC; listen for what He's saying to YOU personally! And let's begin with:

II. The Letter Jesus Wrote The Church At Ephesus (1-7) Ephesus was a seaport on the southwestern coast. Politically, it had become the capital of the province and the Roman governor resided there. It was known as "the supreme metropolis of Asia". Commercially, it was at the convergence of three major highways and the center of trade for the region. Religiously, the city was the home of one of the 7 wonders of the ancient world, the great Temple of Diana, the goddess of fertility, and it was the center of the cult of her worship, with thousands of priests and priestesses involved in her worship, many of whom were cult prostitutes. We read in Acts that the church there began 40 years earlier with Paul, Priscilla and Aquila stopping there on his second missionary journey, but Paul soon returned and spent 3 years in the city building the church. Great things happened during that time; the Gospel went out from there to the whole province and at last the Diana cult suffered so much that the silversmiths who made images were losing their business and launched an attack on Paul! Later the church was pastored by Timothy and eventually by the Apostle John himself until he was exiled. Now let's look more closely at:

1. how the believers in Ephesus were living in verses (2-3). Jesus says:

a. they were actively and energetically laboring for Christ They were busy. They were sharing their faith with others around them. They were helping the poor and the needy. They were meeting for worship and teaching and discipling others. And they worked hard at it; they sacrificed heavily of their time and their money. They didn't just "attend church"; their faith was at the core of their lives and they were really living it out. And it wasn't easy:

b. they were persevering through many hardships Twice Jesus mentions their perseverance, that they kept on in the face of many hardships. Some of them were, no doubt, thrown out by their families for joining a despised and illegal cult. Others were fired from their jobs or people refused to do business with them because they were "Christians". Some may have been arrested and brought before the proconsul, but none of this stopped them; they stood firm in their faith and kept right on serving Jesus, never growing weary of it, just like our brothers and sisters do in Kyrgyzstan and so many other places in the world today. What's more, Jesus says that:

c. they were spiritually discerning and faithful They didn't just believe everyone who came along and taught strange things. They were mature; they were able to see when somebody was a false apostle. They compared what he taught to what they had been taught by Paul and Timothy and John and if he was false, they did something about it and threw them out of the fellowship! And morally:

d. they were living holy lives (6) The Nicolaitans were the libertarians of their day. They claimed to be followers of Christ but lived licentiously. They approved of sacrificing to idols and of the immorality that went on. They brought the horrid practices of their culture right into their faith as so many churches have done today. But the Ephesian church didn't buy into that; in fact, they hated it, just like Jesus does! You wouldn't find them debating about the validity of gay marriage or ordaining homosexuals or encouraging their youth to simply be careful and use condoms! Holiness mattered to them.

They sound a lot like some of us, don't they! And Jesus encourages them by saying, "I know all of that; I see it; I haven't forgotten it and I'm glad for it. It pleases Me! Keep it up! BUT there is one thing I have a problem with..." Note:

2. what Jesus said to admonish them (4) He says:

a. you have left the motive which first moved you to all this: love! In nearly 40 years, a whole next generation of believers had come along. Imagine GBC or one of the congregations that combined to form it as it was 40 years ago! Those folks are all in heaven and here we are today! So it was at Ephesus and to their credit, they were doing all the right things! They were following in the pattern they had learned! But they had lost something important; they had lost the motive that drove it all. They had drifted away from the passionate, zealous love they had in the beginning. When they were first saved out of paganism and knew that all their sins were forgiven and that they were sure of heaven, they loved Jesus with all their hearts. They couldn't wait to talk to Him, to hear His Word, to tell others about Him, to fall at His feet in worship. They loved Him so that they would gladly die for him, gladly endure any hardship, any suffering. And they were still doing all of these things! Only now they were going through the motions without the motive. Their love had been reduced to duty. They were doing what they knew they were supposed to do; they were doing it faithfully, but it lacked the one thing Jesus wanted most. He said the first and greatest commandment is what? To love the Lord our God with all our heart and soul and mind and strength! Remember Paul's words, If I speak in the tongues of men and of angels, but have not love, I am only a resounding gong or a clanging cymbal. If I have the gift of prophecy and can fathom all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have a faith that can move mountains, but have not love, I am nothing. If I give all I possess to the poor and surrender my body to the flames, but have not love, I gain nothing. - 1 Cor. 13:1-3. What a call to us to examine our motives! Many of us are busy teaching Sunday School, working with Pioneer Clubs, holding flea markets, in men's groups and ladies' groups and home groups and Bible studies. But why are we doing it all? I love the chorus that says, To love the Lord our God is the heartbeat of our mission, the spring from which our service overflows... Is it? Jesus said to the Ephesians, "I know it isn't!" and then warned them:

b. you must return to it or lose your privilege of light-bearing! (5) Do you remember how it was when you first invited Christ into your life? How filled with gratitude and love to Him you were? Go back there! Realize that you've drifted away and run back! Fall in love with Him all over again! If you don't, you'll lose a great privilege. He won't use you to bear His light in a dark world anymore! He'll blow out the light and pack away your lampstand. The city of Ephesus was sacked by the Goths, devastated by earthquakes and eventually abandoned altogether, its inhabitants scattered to the winds, its believers gone. Its light went out. I can tell you about a church I know right now, once thriving and vibrant in their neighborhood, still doing all those good things, busy and active and persevering, but dwindling more and more each year as they refuse to change, refusing to acclimate and reach out to their changed neighborhood, refusing to participate in the Harvest Crusade because they have doctrinal issues, losing young people and younger families one after the other. And one day soon there'll be a big stone building that's just an empty shell. Their light is flickering; it's going out. And unless they get back their first love, some other ethnic congregation will probably end up with that building and be the light they should have been. That story has been repeated a thousand times over; I pray it never becomes our story, but it could easily be! Here's:

3. what Jesus wants us to remember (7): You will eat from the tree of life in Paradise! You'll do what Adam never had the right to do! His whole life he could never go back into that beautiful garden and eat from the tree of life which was planted for him! His sin kept him from it! But Jesus washed away all your sins, every last one. He has opened the door to God's new Eden, the Paradise of Heaven, for you and you will eat from the tree of His very own life forever and ever! Ponder on that! Picture that! That will keep you in love with Him! Now let's move on to:

III. The Letter Jesus Wrote The Church At Smyrna (8-11) 40 miles north of Ephesus was Smyrna, today called Izmir, a thriving city of 200,000 in that day. Spanning it was the "golden street" with temples to Cybele and Zeus at either end and Apollo, Asclepius and Aphrodite along the way. More notably, Smyrna was a center of Emperor worship. It won the right from the Roman Senate in 23 AD to be the first to build a temple in honor of Tiberius. Under Domitian, emperor worship became compulsory for every citizen under threat of death. Once a year every citizen had to burn incense on the altar to the godhead of Caesar and say "Caesar is Lord", after which he was given a certificate. Nowhere was life more perilous for believers than here, so you can guess:

1. what the believers in Smyrna were suffering Verse (9) tells us:

a. they were living in persecution They had to meet in secret. They could not be open about their faith. They had to be careful always and try to find ways to avoid getting put in that position of having to swear loyalty. Believers in Afghanistan today are so reluctant to meet because they can't trust one another. You never know who might be a false pretender who will turn you in and the Taliban will come knocking at your door in the middle of the night. You share your faith discreetly with people whom you know to be sincerely seeking slowly over time. Then there were the Jews in town who had a particular hatred for them, so that instead of siding with believers, they sided with the pagans and created more hassle for them and turned them in! Imagine believers in Saudi Arabia today where it is a capital offense to convert from Islam, how they must live. At one point, Iran introduced a new law making the death penalty mandatory for those who convert from Islam. Our Cyprus team met Iranians who had fled from there and are now believers. If they are sent back, they face certain death! This is no ancient edict; it is very real in our world today! And because of their faithfulness and unwillingness to compromise and bow to the emperor:

b. they were living in poverty Disowned by family, cast out by friends, left to fend for themselves and having to stay off the radar screen while eking out a living somehow, their life was literally one of abject poverty amid the abundance of wealth in their city. And look:

2. what Jesus said to encourage them First:

a. don't lose hope; God knows what you are suffering (8-9) Jesus says twice, "I know! I know what you are going through. I have not forgotten you. I have not sent you there to suffer and left you. I know the persecution; I know the poverty; I know the pain of being slandered and lied about and betrayed. I know...I became dead, remember? I was sentenced to death before a Roman governor! I was mocked and spit on and I died a cruel death - so I KNOW! I understand! I haven't asked you to go through something I haven't already gone through first, for you!" Second:

b. don't be afraid; God controls what you are suffering (10a) "Greater persecution is coming but it will be limited; it will only last 10 days!" We don't know exactly what Jesus meant by that; some think it points to the 10 official decrees of persecution beginning with Nero in 64 and ending with Diocletian in 250 AD. But each wave only lasted for a time and ended. Domitian's awful decree ended with his death 18 months after Jesus said this. He controls and He limits what you suffer, so don't live in fear. He's in control. Thirdly:

c. don't give up; God will reward what you are suffering (10b) Don't be afraid of those who kill the body and after that have no more that they can do! Stand firm, even if it sentences you to death, because I have you given you the martyr's crown of life that lasts forever! Look at:

3. what Jesus wants us to remember (11): I like to put this simply, Born once, you die twice; born twice, you die only once! If you are only born once, you will die twice. Your body will die and then your spirit will be cast into a lake of fire which is the second death, eternal death! But if you are born twice, once physically and then born again by the Spirit of God, you will only die once! You will surely not die in eternity! You will never be touched by the lake of fire that will swallow up all your enemies! So be faithful!

The Apostle John had a young disciple by the name of Polycarp whom he personally taught. He surely saw and read these words. Later in life he actually became the bishop or overseer of the church at Smyrna. About 70 years after John wrote this, when he was an elderly man, Polycarp fulfilled these very words personally. He was arrested, taken from his home and brought before the Roman proconsul and here is the record of what happened: ...the proconsul was insistent and said: "Take the [Emperor's] oath and I shall release you. Curse Christ." Polycarp said: "Eighty-six years I have served him and he never did me any wrong. How can I blaspheme my King who saved me?" And when the proconsul kept on and said, "Swear by the fortune of Caesar," Polycarp answered "If you vainly suppose that I shall swear by the fortune of Caesar, as you say, and pretend that you do not know who I am, listen plainly: I am a Christian."....But the proconsul said: "I have wild beasts. I shall throw you to them if you do not change your mind. But Polycarp said, "Call them. For repentance from what is better to what is worse is not permitted to us, but it is noble to change from what is evil to what is righteous." And again, he said to him, "I shall have you consumed with fire, if you despise the wild beasts, unless you change your mind." But Polycarp said: "The fire you threaten burns but an hour and is quenched after a little; for you do not know the fire of the coming judgment and everlasting punishment that is laid up for the unbelieving. But why do you delay? Come, do what you will." [Early Christian Fathers, Martyrdom of Polycarp, pp. 152-3]. They built a pyre of wood and placed him in the middle. When he had prayed and committed his soul to God with thanksgiving, they lit the pyre. It burst quickly into a huge flame but in amazement the crowd watched as the flames curved outward around his body in an arch and never touched him! At last, when the governor saw that he could not be burned, he ordered a soldier to go near and pierce him with a dagger and that's how he died. Nearly a hundred years old, Polycarp never lost his first love; He still passionately loved his King for saving him. He persevered through a century of suffering and was faithful even unto death. And just as the earthly fire couldn't touch him, so the flames of the second death will never even come near him. He gained the crown of life. So will you. Follow his example.

Revelation: Things To Come

The Church: Compromised and Complacent - 2:12-29

Jesus has appeared to the Apostle John there in his exile on Patmos and in this vision, Jesus is giving John messages to write to the leaders of seven churches in the province of Asia, churches which had been under John's care and oversight and who were looking to him for leadership. The third and fourth churches Jesus writes to are actually pretty much alike. They have a particular problem in common and I have chosen two adjectives to try to describe it. The first one is compromised and, in the sense I'm using the word, it means to expose or make vulnerable to danger. I read the story of two young women who lost their lives in a fire that swept through their apartment as they slept. Their home was equipped with a smoke detector that was in good working order, but it hadn't gone off. Fire inspectors concluded that this safety device had been deactivated for a party that was held the night before. Someone had disconnected the unit to keep it from sounding off because of the smoke from cooking or candles. So, their safety was compromised; they were made vulnerable and exposed to danger by something they chose to do. And the second adjective is complacent, which the dictionary says means pleased with oneself or one's situation, often without awareness of some potential danger or defect. Those two women went to sleep happy, blissfully unaware and uncaring about the danger they had made themselves vulnerable to by disabling the smoke detector - and it cost them their lives. Like the two women, these two churches were making choices that compromised their own spiritual safety and went to sleep, complacently unaware that danger was creeping upon them. So, Jesus writes to warn them. Let's begin by looking at:

I. The Letter Jesus Wrote The Church At Pergamum (12-17) The city of Pergamum lay about 65 miles north of Smyrna and, like both Ephesus and Smyrna, it was a rich and important city. It was a center of knowledge. Its claim to fame was its great library of 200,000 volumes, second only to the Egyptian city of Alexandria. Several centuries earlier, when King Eumenes II was planning to build the library, the king of Egypt tried to prevent him by stopping the export of papyrus which was made from the reeds of the Nile delta and was the common writing material of that day. So, Eumenes developed a new material to write on from dried, stretched animal skins scraped thin. It became known as vellum or parchment, but in Greek its name was pergamene, meaning from Pergamum, and it was what all of Europe wrote on for the next 1000 years until the art of papermaking finally arrived from China. Religiously, Pergamum was a world-renowned center of pagan religions. Its chief deities were Dionysius, the royal god of kings (represented as a bull) and Asclepius, the savior god of healing, who was represented as a snake and whose devotees came from all over the world to seek healing in the courtyard by contact with hundreds of slithering reptiles. On the acropolis or hill overlooking the city stood the great open-air altar of Zeus, 100 ft. long and 35 feet high, listed by some among the wonders of the ancient world. Besides all these there were three temples dedicated to the worship of the Emperor. So I want you to take particular note of:

1. how Jesus encouraged the believers in Pergamum (12-13) Now, because we preachers like to neatly categorize things and make them fit into outlines, Pergamum usually gets a bad rap because we focus on the following verses about how they had compromised themselves and minimize these two. One article I read said after quoting them, The Lord's critique offered little praise and hinted strongly at the church's spiritual decline... That's not what I just heard, did you? Jesus said, I know where you live! He was acknowledging that:

a. they lived in a particularly hard place Jesus said, "Satan has his throne there!" Some think that's a cynical reference to that great altar of Zeus towering above the city. Others say that from earliest times Babylon had been the center of Satan's pagan, idolatrous operations on earth and that center had by Christ's time been shifted to Pergamum and later moved to Rome. I just think Jesus was saying, "I know how hard it is to live where you live! I know how tough it is to stand firm and trust in Me when Satan is so hard at work all around you and trying so hard to destroy you!" We like to think we have it tough, that our society has gone so far downhill that it's tough to be a Christian here. That's baloney! The United States is one of the easiest places in the world to be a Christian! If you don't think so, try living in Kyrgyzstan where the government may shut down your little church and tell you that you can't meet, where your family and your village will throw you out for becoming a Christian. Try living in Iran where the church has mushroomed from nothing to literally millions in spite of the fact that believers are watched and their secret gatherings are infiltrated and the death penalty may soon be made mandatory by law for anyone who converts! Try living in Thailand, a world center of sex trade where thousands of foreign pedophiles come each year to find children, where multiple thousands of women are sold into sexual slavery or fall into legal prostitution through poverty and AIDS is a leading cause of death and still stay pure! Listen, if you can't live for Jesus here, you can't do it anywhere! We've got it easy, but Pergamum was one of those kinds of places; they had it hard and yet, Jesus says:

b. they had remained faithful even unto death They didn't renounce their faith, even when put on trial. We don't know much about Antipas from early sources, but tradition says that John had ordained him as the bishop or overseer of the church in Pergamum. He was their pastor. About three years before Jesus said this, Antipas was seized and martyred for his faith. But even that didn't stop them. I wonder if your pastor was arrested and executed this week how many would be willing to gather next week. They were remaining true to His Name and not renouncing their faith, even under the threat of death, a threat that wasn't hypothetical, but had been made very real to them. These were not backslidden, half-hearted believers; Jesus was pleased with them, but warned them strongly about:

2. the teaching that had ensnared some of them (14-15) What's that all about? Well, to find out what Balaam taught let's look at the story back in Numbers. Balaam was a prophet-for-hire. Balak, the King of Moab had summoned him to put a curse on Israel as they were camped in his territory before crossing Jordan into the land. But God caused Balaam to bless them instead, not once but three times! This made Balak really angry and he sent him home, but Balaam must have really wanted to stay in his good graces, so he gave him some devilishly good advice before he left. Look at Num. 31:15-16. Balaam's advice, what he taught Balak, turned Israel away from the Lord and 24,000 of them died under judgment in a plague. To see how it worked, look at 25:1-3. The Moabites were Baal worshippers and Baal worship had lots of feasts and celebrations, so Balaam said, "Don't attack the Israelites! Show friendliness and hospitality! Invite them, particularly the men, to join with you in your celebrations! And get the girls to do the inviting!" So quite a number were:

a. they were lured by the physical activity of feasting Everybody loves a party where there's lots of food and drink and dancing! After 40 years in a desert eating manna, that would begin to look pretty good, wouldn't it?! But Baal was a fertility God and his worship included not only feasting, but orgies and so:

b. it led to the enticement of sexual immorality The promise of freely available sex with young beautiful women is a powerful lure to a man and many yielded to it. Besides, it was a sign of the ceasing of hostility. "We will give our daughters to your sons; we can intermarry; let us live together in peace. Come, enjoy yourselves!". And they did, but:

c. that led to the spiritual harlotry of idolatry The women bowed down and worshipped Baal and their new male friends bowed with them, no doubt thinking, "Boy, this is the life! Our God has all these rules, but if we follow Baal, look how free we can be! We can have all the things we were told were wrong! Let's switch!" So, they bowed down to false gods and became unfaithful to the Lord.

But it was a trap! The original says Balak cast a "stumbling-block" before them; he hid a snare in their path and lured them to step on the trigger. Their very lives were in danger and they were totally unaware. Now in John's day, a group had arisen that taught this very same thing; they were called the Nicolaitans. They said, "Yes, let's be followers of Christ, but let's not make enemies of our culture and society. Let's be open to them. Everybody goes to the temples of the idols to eat and joins in the feasts. We can join in with them and still hold our faith to ourselves. And that old morality that we've been taught is outdated anyway. Sex is just a normal part of human life like breathing or eating. We can follow Jesus and participate with them in their sexual orgies at the temple. It's therapeutic." Does any of that sound familiar? There were people among the little house churches in Pergamum teaching that and there are people that have entered into many of our mainline churches today teaching the same thing! "Christianity is not exclusive. Other religions hold truth too. We can meet and worship together. We need to lay down our outdated rules. Gay couples should be allowed to get married. People should be free to engage in sex as long as they do it in a responsible fashion!" The Nicolaitans are not gone; their descendants are in the church today! But look:

3. how Jesus warned the church at Pergamum (16) They needed to repent! But of what? The church at large was NOT doing these things! They were standing against their society and suffering and even dying for it. So, what does He mean?

a. the church needed to repent of allowing this teaching in their midst They were letting it go on and doing nothing about it. They were letting Satan set a dangerous snare in their midst that was bound to result in spiritual disaster. But the stronger warning was that:

b. the false teachers themselves were in danger of judgment Jesus said, "If you don't put a stop to this and cast them out, I WILL soon do something to protect My church! I won't tolerate this!" We'll see just what He means later, but here's:

4. what Jesus wants us to remember (17) What does that mean? We are holy intimates of Christ! We don't need some indulgent feast; Jesus is our Bread of Life, the holy hidden manna that only we get to sustain us. We don't need the intimacy of sexual immorality; we are intimates of Christ! We are declared holy and pure, given the white stone, brought close to Him in personal relationship, given a name that only we and Him can know! Everything Satan tries to offer you, you already have something better!

Now let's look at:

II. The Letter Jesus Wrote The Church At Thyatira (18-29) It is almost the same letter! About 45 miles east of Pergamum was the city of Thyatira, today called Akhisar. Thyatira was largely a commercial city which seems to have had more guilds of craftsmen than any other city in the province. It was known for the manufacture of a particular, expensive, purple dye known as Tyrian purple (we'd call it a deep red or maroon), which was actually derived from sea snails. It was sought after to dye cloth for its permanence of color and was known as "royal purple" or "imperial purple". In Acts 16 Paul met a woman over in Philippi named Lydia who was a businesswoman, a dealer in purple cloth from the city of Thyatira. Now look at:

1. how Jesus encouraged the believers in Thyatira (18-19) Basically, Jesus was very pleased with them:

a. they were doing well in every area They were busy and active serving Jesus. And they even had the love which Jesus said the Ephesian church had lost. They were passionate about Him. They were trusting Him and, like all the previous churches, they had persevered and not given up their faith despite the difficulties they faced in their town. And not only were they doing well:

b. they were actually growing and increasing, not necessarily in numbers, but they were maturing in their faith, being more bold and firm, serving more and more with all their hearts.

Again, like Pergamum, this church usually gets a bad rap because of what comes next, but it's undeserved. They were doing really well, but just as in their sister city, look at:

2. how Jesus warned the believers in Thyatira (20-23) Here was a new form of the same problem. There was a lady who was part of the body there. Jesus calls her Jezebel, but we don't know if that was her actual name or if He was calling her that because she was being used to lead people away from the Lord and into idolatry, just like wicked

Queen Jezebel did in Israel centuries before. At any rate old "Jezzie" claimed to be a prophetess; she claimed to have the gift of getting revelation directly from God. She claimed to know mysteries and have secret knowledge from God to impart to the church. But the bottom line is that she was teaching the people that it was OK to participate in idolatrous feasts and immorality; she was just another Nicolaitan! So, while the majority of the believers were being faithful, where they were failing was simply this:

a. they tolerated the presence of a false prophetess who misled others, instead of doing something about it, instead of exposing her for the servant of Satan that she was and throwing her out! Again, their spiritual safety was being compromised and they were complacently letting her do it, unaware that she was planting the seeds of their own destruction. Now Jesus says that:

b. He has been patient with her, allowing her time to repent He cared even about her. She started out probably as a seemingly genuine believer but had fallen into this sin and over time had become a false teacher. He still wanted her to be saved. But she was unwilling, so He says:

c. He will bring judgment on her and those who follow her He will give her and those who listen to her a bed of suffering! Intense suffering! Intense suffering that is going to lead to people dying! Jesus is not going to continue to tolerate this in His church; He's going to take them off the scene. But look:

3. how Jesus encouraged the believers in Thyatira (24-25) To the rest, to the faithful ones, He said simply, Hold fast! Keep on! Keep being what you are and doing what you are! I have nothing to add; just stay away from her Satan-ic teaching and keep on! Here's:

4. what Jesus wants us to remember (26-29) We will judge the nations! We'll be with Him when they're gathered before Him and He separates the sheep from the goats. And we'll have a part in it. We'll be asked to rule in His Kingdom, to know right from wrong! We have not only that right, but that responsibility, even now! Here's:

III. The Point: Compromise and Complacency Kill The Church When you let these kinds of people into the church and tolerate their teaching, you've opened the gas valve on the stove and gone off to sleep! Do something about it! Remember over at Corinth there was a man in the body who was living in immorality, sleeping with his father's wife, and the church was tolerant and accepting. And Paul wrote them: I have written you in my letter not to associate with sexually immoral people-- not at all meaning the people of this world who are immoral, or the greedy and swindlers, or idolaters. In that case you would have to leave this world. But now I am writing you that you must not associate with anyone who calls himself a brother but is sexually immoral or greedy, an idolater or a slanderer, a drunkard or a swindler. With such a man do not even eat. What business is it of mine to judge those outside the church? Are you not to judge those inside? God will judge those outside. "Expel the wicked man from among you." - 1 Cor. 5:9-13. Brothers and sisters, we live in a day when the morals and the values of our now-pagan culture are being more and more tolerated and even taught in the church. Our own young people are the ones who are the most susceptible to it. And why? Because they're not seeing in us what the church saw in Antipas of Pergamum whose story was no doubt repeated for generations.

Tradition gives us actually two stories of what brought about his death. One says that the priests serving that famous temple of the god Asklepios, the snake, were the first to accuse Antipas who was by then very old, and to have him arrested. They said that the demons who appeared to them in a dream, had told them they could not accept sacrifices because Antipas with his continuous praying was chasing them away from the town. The priests summoned a large number of people against Antipas and began to interrogate and to force him to deny Christ and to worship idols. Antipas said to them: "When your so-called gods, lords of the universe are frightened of me, a mortal man, and must flee from this city, do you not recognize that, by this, your faith is an aberration?" The other story says simply that Antipas, having been accused of being a Christian, was brought before a statue of Caesar and told to declare that the emperor was God. With great courage Antipas said that only Jesus was the Lord and that there was no God other than Him. Therefore, the Roman Governor said, "Antipas do you not realize the whole world is against you?". To which Antipas answered, "Then Antipas is against the whole world". In both versions of the story Antipas was condemned to a terrible death; he was placed inside the hollow body of a bronze bull statue and a fire was lit underneath. As he was being roasted alive Antipas was heard from within the bull to glorify God with thanksgiving. He prayed for his flock and for the entire world until his soul parted from his weakened body and ascended among the angels into the Kingdom of Christ. Let Antipas be a powerful reminder to you that the whole world is against us! Our culture is against us. Satan wants us to compromise and join in and lower our standards to participate in sin and to call evil good and to join in the idolatry of those around us. There is tremendous pressure to do it. But so be it! If the whole world is against us, then we are against the whole world! Hold fast to the Savior, no matter if it costs your friends, your family, your job, your worldly possessions or your very life itself.

Revelation: Things To Come

The Church: Dying and Dead - 3:1-6, 14-22

Remember that Jesus has appeared to the Apostle John there in his exile on Patmos and in this vision, Jesus is giving John messages to write to the leaders of seven churches in the province of Asia, churches which had been under John's care and oversight and who were looking to him for leadership. The first two churches Jesus writes to, Ephesus and Smyrna, were persevering in the midst of strong persecution. The third and fourth churches, Pergamum and Thyatira, were compromised and complacent; they were tolerating serious sin in their midst and doing nothing about it, a dangerous practice. The fifth and seventh churches, Sardis and Laodicea (we'll save Philadelphia for last), had degenerated about as far as churches can go. They were dying and in Laodicea's case, I think, already dead. Not physically or in terms of numbers, but in the sense that Paul uses the word to describe the widow who lives to seek her own pleasure, saying she ...is dead even while she lives! - 1 Tim. 5:6. You know what that's like, because the scripture says that before Christ came into your life and made you spiritually alive, YOU were dead in your sins and you were living in them, following the ways of the world around you (Eph. 2:1). You were a walking, talking, breathing, acting dead person who had no life inside and that's what these two churches were like. Now let's look at:

I. The Letter Jesus Wrote The Church At Sardis (1-6) Sardis was about 30 miles south of Thyatira and was an important city commercially and militarily throughout its history. I think there are two things worth knowing about it. First, at this writing its glory was all in the past. It had an unconquerable fortress at the top of the hill that had only been taken twice. It was the capital city of Asia for the Persian Empire 500 years earlier, wealthy, affluent, politically important, but its glory days were over and it was in severe decline. Second, Sardis was known for its impressive necropolis, the cemetery "of a thousand hills," named for the hundreds of huge burial mounds visible on the skyline. It was a dying city and one obsessed with death. So notice:

1. how Jesus addressed the church in Sardis (1) The church was much like the city in which they lived:

a. they had a reputation [literally, a name] of being alive but it was in the past There were still people there who identified themselves as Christians. They still met together and had services, probably ate together, maybe even did some good deeds. In earlier days, they had a name for being faithful followers of Christ, for declaring the Gospel clearly and powerfully. But now they were just a shadow of what they once had been. Jesus said, including verse 2a:

b. they were actually dying and nearly dead This church had become a spiritual necropolis, a cemetery full of spiritually dead people. Again, don't think of this in terms of an empty church building with a handful attending. Churches didn't build buildings until the 300's when Christianity was legalized. Little groups met in homes or wherever they could find a place. And they were still doing it, so what does it mean that they were dead? Well, to me it means that:

(1) many had the name Christian but were not truly born again You know what that's like! It's much more true here and now than it was then. All around you in this culture are people who would say, "I am Christian; I am not Muslim; I am not Buddhist." Or maybe, "I am Catholic or Lutheran" because that's the church they went to when they were young. In fact, they may go to a church on Sunday and sing songs and give some money. They may read liturgy and say prayers. But at the bottom line they believe that because they're baptized or because they belong to a church or because they try to live a good life and do good things that God will let them into heaven. But they have never had the living Christ come and live inside them and transform their hearts. They have a name that should mean they're alive, but they're dead spiritually! In 2008 I sat at the tables of at least a dozen pastors in Kyrgyzstan and asked them to tell me their stories. Every one of them was formerly a Muslim, but when they believed in Jesus, He transformed their lives radically. He put His life in them; they became new people and they stood firm through awful persecution from their families and villages. But many in Sardis had never experienced that, just like many around us haven't. We have whole churches full of people like that here and many in the church at Sardis were like that. Then second, I think it means that:

(2) many who believed had fallen into living like those around them Remember in the parable of the sower Jesus warned that, Still others, like seed sown among thorns, hear the word; but the worries of this life, the deceitfulness of wealth and the desires for other things come in and choke the word, making it unfruitful. - Mark 4:18-19. There have always been people that make a profession of faith in Christ, yet never really get their souls connected with Him. They let the worries of life overwhelm them or let their desires for money or sex or other things take first place in their lives. They may seem different for a bit but they soon return to living just like everyone else around them. Instead of living for Jesus they live for self and the things of this world. We all know people who say, "Oh yes, I believed when I was 12!" but they're living with their girlfriend, drink heavily on the weekends, have no desire to go to worship and have no clue what the Bible says, because they've never read it. They're spiritually dead. That's how it was in Sardis but look:

2. what Jesus commanded the church at Sardis (2-3) He gives them three important commands. First, He says:

a. Wake up! That is, realize the dire situation you are in! Not everyone at Sardis was spiritually dead, but many were and it was getting worse. The church was about to die, about to be in that place where the true faith was fully lost. They needed to wake up from the spiritual lethargy they had been lulled into. Listen, if anything I just said describes you, you need to wake up! You're in danger! You need to be concerned for your soul! One of these days you're going to die and stand before a Holy God and what will happen to you then? Second, He commands them to:

b. Remember! That is, to return to the truth of the Word of God! Go back to the truth you've received and heard. Get your Bible out and read what it says. Remember that Christ died for your sins according to the Scriptures. He was buried for you and on the third day He rose again for you! Let the power of the Word of God impact your dull heart. And thirdly:

c. Repent! That is, change your mind! Deliberately place your trust in Jesus; invite Him into your life and then obey Him; change your way of living. Make Him your Lord and determine to live the life of holiness and purity that He's commanded.

Let me tell you about a friend of mine. He graduated from Princeton Seminary. He came to Abington to be pastor of a church, but he didn't believe the Bible was verbally inerrant. He didn't understand that every one of us needs a new birth. He had a form of religion that he thought would help people be better people but his own marriage fell apart. I went to school with dozens of people just like him. He was spiritually dead and pastor of a congregation composed mostly of dead people just like him. But a fellow pastor from the Lutheran Church across the street befriended him and began to show him the truth from the Scriptures. He began to open his heart and one day the light turned on and He understood. What once were religious facts now became personal. He knew "Jesus loved ME and Jesus died for ME and Jesus saved ME!" His first assignment was to win the members of his own church back to deep personal faith in Christ and he went on to do that. He was dead but he woke up and remembered the truth and repented and found spiritual life! He was transformed! Listen there is hope! Here's:

3. what Jesus wants us to remember (4-6) Notice that:

a. even in this dying church there were some genuine faithful believers There were a few people who truly knew Christ, who had been changed by Him and were living His way. They were not soiling their clothes! And that's probably true of dead churches you may be thinking of today. We have to be careful not to be so proud that we write them off totally. Even in congregations where the Gospel hasn't really been preached for a long time there are still precious souls who get it, who truly believe, who trust in Jesus alone, who love Him and are faithful to Him just like we are and here's what He wants all of us to know:

b. we are destined to walk with Him in absolute purity We'll walk with Him in white. His death has purified us and cleansed us and made us worthy of being in His presence! And what's more:

c. our names will never be removed from the Book of Life In heaven there is a record, a book, a roll book of all those who are the recipients of eternal life and our names are written there. Hallelujah! And He says they will never be erased, never be blotted out. Nobody can take that eternal life away from us. We are secure in Christ! Again Hallelujah!

Now let's move on to:

II. The Letter Jesus Wrote The Church At Laodicea (14-22) Laodicea completed the horseshoe and was 100 miles due east of Ephesus. It was a wealthy city, a center of trade. Three things stand out about it to me. First, it was known for the production of a famous fine quality black wool used in the making of garments. Second, it had a famous school of medicine and was particularly known for a special ointment known as "Phrygian powder", an eye salve famous for its cure of eye defects. Third, its water supply arrived through a 6 mile long aqueduct. The water was cool and drinkable at its source, but by the time it got to the city it was tepid, lukewarm. Plus, along the way it picked up calcium carbonate and other minerals. Everybody knew that if you go to Laodicea, you don't drink the water; in fact, it was known as a good means to induce vomiting! And if you keep that in mind, you'll probably understand better:

1. how Jesus addressed the church in Laodicea (14-16) Like the city's water supply, these believers:

a. they were neither cold nor hot, but lukewarm Hierapolis to the north had famous hot springs and they were good for bathing. Colossae to the east had wonderful cold clear water for drinking. But their lukewarm mineral laden water was good for NOTHING! And likewise, they were neither hot with passionate love for Christ, nor cold, standing against him. They were just like the folks at Sardis; they had the reputation of believing, but they were like a body that had just died, neither hot like a living soul, nor cold like a corpse long dead, but merely warm. And:

b. they were in great danger of being rejected by Him altogether Like the awful city water, He was about to vomit them out of His mouth. They were even further down the road than Sardis. If folks at Sardis were dying, folks in Laodicea were already dead. Jesus warned us plainly, Many will say to me on that day, 'Lord, Lord, did we not prophecy in your name, and in your name drive out demons and perform many miracles?' Then I will tell them plainly, 'I never knew you. Away from me, you evildoers!' - Mat. 7:22-23. Now how can that be? Well look:

2. how Jesus described the church in Laodicea (17) First:

a. they were boastful of their own achievements They were not merely trying hard and hoping they would be good enough for God; they were confident that they were! They looked at their material wealth and their fine wool clothes and their great medical abilities and put their trust in those things. They were just like the Pharisees who did all the right things and were convinced that God looked on them with favor because of how wonderful they were, but:

b. they were blind to their true spiritual need In His eyes they were wretched, pitiful, poor, and naked. They couldn't see their true spiritual condition. How many of the people all around us are exactly like that? They are nice people; they are somewhat religious; they believe in God and pray when they get in trouble, maybe even belong to a church. But they have a nice house and two cars and a good education and a kind disposition and don't really need anything, yet they can't see that they are absolutely lost and in terrible danger of being spit out, of being separated from Christ forever, because they don't know Him! But look:

3. how Jesus entreated the church in Laodicea (18-20) He doesn't treat them as they deserve. He doesn't reject them out of hand and say, "That's it; you've had your chance! I'm done with you!" No, He says:

a. Come to Me; I love you; I want you; I'm knocking! "Forget your gold; I have the real gold I want to give you; I want to give you the true riches! Forget your fine black wool; I want to give you white garments of purity and holiness. Forget your Phrygian eye salve; I want to open your eyes and heal them so you can see spiritually. I love you and that's why I'm chastening you. I've been standing at your door and knocking and knocking and knocking. I want to come in. I want to be in your life. I want to live there and spend eternity together with you! But:"

b. You must make the choice; open the door; repent! "I will not violate your will. I can't open the door; YOU have to do that! You have to choose ME! You have to change your proud attitude and realize that my words are true and that you all your righteousnesses are like filthy rags and invite ME to come in and save you and give you life!"

James had worked for a Fortune 500 company for some 20 years when his world fell apart; his wife left him and took the children to another state. He was depressed and hurting but tried his best not to show it. Eventually in his loneliness he found the courage to ask one of the girls in his office if they could go out. She suggested they go to her church. He says, "When we arrived, I was surprised to see such a small church building. Then when I went in, I was further surprised to find there were no statues, no stained glass windows, no candles, no pipe organ and no altar. Then the pastor came out in a three piece suit. I thought to myself, 'As a church this doesn't even count!' I let my mind drift in and out of the service but on one of my drifts back in, I heard the pastor say something that hit my mind and brought an incredible peace to me. I kept rolling it over and over in my mind so I could remember it for those dark moments I had been having. Afterward I figured, 'This is one strange girl and we have absolutely nothing in common!' Some weeks later I was in a prestigious hotel in Connecticut for a few days. I skipped going out for supper with the other guys. As I sat in my room, deeply depressed about my situation, I suddenly remembered the pastor of that church and how the words he spoke had comforted me. I figured they must have come from the Bible. Then I remembered that they say every hotel room has a Gideon Bible. So I looked around and didn't see it but as I opened the drawer in the bureau next to the bed, there it was and I could see that it was lying open. I lifted it out and put it on the table. My eyes were drawn to the marks of a highlighter on the open page. As I looked closer, my breath caught in my throat as I read, 'Be anxious for nothing...let your requests be made known to God and the peace of God which surpasses all understanding will guard your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.' They were the very same words the pastor had said! My heart was thumping in my chest and my mind was spinning. Only God could do that and He did it for me! All I could do was to keep thanking Him over and over! I picked up the telephone and called the girl who had brought me to church. I told her what happened and asked if I could go to church with her again. Soon I responded to an altar call and asked Jesus Christ to come into my life!" Later James married that girl, went into the ministry and became the pastor of Christ's Home here in Warminster! Oh, he would have said he was a Christian, that he believed, but he was lukewarm! He had a form of religion, but denied the very power and life of God. He was proud and thought he had need of nothing, until Jesus brought him down to size through suffering and showed him how much HE loved him personally and wanted to come into his life. Jesus is loving and gracious. He never stops standing at the door and knocking and oh, how happy He is when one of us, like James, finally opens that door! Now here's:

4. what Jesus wants us to remember (21-22): Not only has He come into our lives, but we've entered into His. He gives to us the right to sit with Him on His throne! He has a glorious plan for us which includes being side by side in what He's doing forever. We will reign with Him! What a wonderful thing to look forward to! But if we want to sit with Him on His throne then, we have to invite Him in to sit on the throne of our hearts now!

Most of us today have done that already and we know it. But maybe God has brought to your mind people you know and care about that are just like James. Spiritually dead and lukewarm are the same thing. They are sort of religious but lost, depending on themselves and spiritually blind. Pray for them just now, won't you? And if by chance you're here today and you have never received the living Christ personally, know that it is not by chance! It's a Divine appointment. Jesus loves you and is knocking on your door, calling your name. So I'm going to invite you to pray with me...

Revelation: Things To Come

The Church: Alive and Well - 3:7-13

I saved the letter that Jesus wrote to the Church at Philadelphia for last. The reason is that among these seven churches it is unique. It had not lost its first love like Ephesus, nor was it compromising or complacent like Pergamum and Thyatira, much less dying and dead like Sardis and Laodicea. Smyrna is the only other church that Jesus does not chastise for something, but Smyrna seems to have been locked into a time of intense persecution. For her to simply hold on and be faithful in her suffering was all she could do. But Philadelphia was a church on the move. She was facing opposition and persecution also, but somehow, she was advancing and making a difference in spite of it. The city of Philadelphia lay about 23 miles southeast of Sardis on a high plateau and the modern city of Alasehir sits there today. It was named for its founder, King Attalus II, who was called "Philadelphus" which means "brother-lover," because of the extraordinary love he had for his own brother. It was founded about 189 BC to be a mission-city, to disseminate Greek language and culture throughout the provinces of Phrygia and Lydia. It was destroyed by an earthquake in 17 AD and the fear of earthquakes governed the lives of its people for years. It was rebuilt by the emperor Tiberius and renamed Neocaesarea. 50 years later it was renamed again as Flavia. The church there was strong and you ladies will be encouraged to know that it was cared for after John's death by a prophetess named Ammia who is mentioned by early writers with the same regard as Paul's companions Judas and Silas and the prophet Agabus in Acts. In later centuries, long after the surrounding country had fallen to Islam and the Turks, Philadelphia held out as a "Christian city" until it finally fell in 1392. Now, as He writes to the believers there, I want you to notice:

I. Three Things Jesus Declares About Himself (7) Hear it again from Young's Literal Translation: These things saith he who is holy, he who is true, he who is having the key of David, he who is opening and no one doth shut, and he shutteth and no one doth open! Jesus is declaring His own character, spelling it out in a triplet. First:

1. He is holy. If you're like me, I usually read statements like that without giving them a second thought. Why does He say that first? What does it mean? It means that He is totally separate from evil, He does not and cannot condone sin in any form and that if we want to approach Him and serve Him, that we must be likewise. Peter understood the implication of that, 1 Pet. 1:14-16. The Philadelphian believers had gotten this one right. There is no criticism in this note of sin creeping into their lives, like it had at Pergamum or Thyatira. They stood for purity without compromise and therein lies the lesson for us as a body. So many churches fail in this very thing; they lower their standards and tolerate things they should be dealing with, and it's not always up front things like immorality. Often, it's things like pride and stubbornness and the need to have power and control or unkindness toward each other or gossip and backbiting. And as a result, Jesus can't use them. They miss out on their mission as a church. Second Jesus declares that:

2. He is true. Another simple statement. What does that mean? I think it means His nature is unchanging. John wrote elsewhere, We know also that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding, so that we may know him who is true. And we are in him who is true--even in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life. - 1 Jn. 5:20. Jesus is the real, the true, the genuine, the only God and the only source of eternal life. And He never changes! With Him there is no variableness or shadow of turning. He is the same yesterday, today and forever. His character is the same. His Word is the same; what He said, He will do! His promises and His predictions are sure. We can depend on Him because His Name is Faithful and True (19:11). So many churches have shaped and formed "another Jesus" to believe in, as Paul warned in 2 Cor. 11, one who condones sin, one who is not fully God, one who is not the only way, one whose death is merely an example and not an atoning sacrifice, and one who did not rise bodily from the dead! But that Christ is an impostor! Philadelphia stood for the True Christ and so must we, no matter who stands with us! And here's the point Jesus really wants to make to us:

3. He has complete authority. That phrase about having the key of David goes back to an incident in Isaiah. Shebna had been the steward in charge of the palace under King Hezekiah, but he was using his office for personal gain, taking from the royal treasury to enrich himself. So, here's what God says to him, Is. 22:20-22. That key was the key to the palace, the key to the Royal Treasury. When he opened it, it was open and when he shut it, it was shut. He had all authority. And Jesus says, "Now I have the key! The Kingdom of David is MINE! In fact, all authority in heaven and earth has been given to Me. And whatever I do, no one can undo! I control everything!" It means no one can oppose Him! Neither Satan himself nor the Emperor nor the governors or soldiers or any of the forces arrayed against the church can do anything He does not allow; they do only what His will and authority have determined ahead of time to complete His purposes. That's the Jesus we worship and look where He wants to go with that statement. Look at:

II. The Opportunity Jesus Offers To A Faithful Church (8) Just as Philadelphia was a city created with a mission to spread its Greek culture, the church at Philadelphia was born with a mission to spread the Gospel to its surrounding region and to the ends of the earth and, if we are faithful like they were:

1. He gifts us with an unopposable opportunity for service What kind of door would He be talking about? It is not a door to prosperity and tranquility and health; it is not a door to a problem-free happy life like you often hear preached today. The New Testament knows no such message. The earth is a war zone and we live in the middle of the Battle of the Ages. Jesus is building His church and sending it out to march against the gates of hell to rescue precious souls into His Kingdom. He has given us our marching orders and He has set before us an open door. He has set before us a place of ministry, an opportunity to be involved. You have heard this morning about a fraction of the open door that He has placed before His body here at Glenside in our community. In our Missions Conference you'll hear about other portions of the open door that God has placed before us around the world, in Nepal and Japan, in Kyrgyzstan, in Liberia. We have open doors in India, in China, in Indonesia, in Paraguay, in Mexico through workers we partner with. All of these are part of the open door of opportunity God has offered us to be involved in in building His kingdom, of marching on the gates of hell and tearing down Satan's wall. And here's the deep part. See that phrase, set before you? It is literally, given before you. The opportunity to serve is a gift! It's a privilege! God has offered us a commission in His service to change the world. He puts it before us and calls us. He says, "Here! Come, follow Me into this ministry, into this life, into this service. Come, let's change the world; I want to use you; let's build My Kingdom!" And if He has opened the door, nobody can shut it! No matter what they do, no matter what may happen or what opposition you may face, His purpose and His plan will prevail. Now it may not always look like it to you, but neither did the Cross! Whether you seem to succeed or fail by human estimation is not your problem; if you walk through the door He's opened, He wins! Nobody can close that door except Him and until He does, it stays open! Now look at:

2. the reason He offers us this gracious opportunity. Look at the text. He knows us! He REALLY knows what has been going on in our lives and He invites us to join Him for three reasons. He offers it literally, because thou hast a little power:

a. because we have learned to tap into a little of His power We have no power, no strength of our own. Apart from Him we can do nothing and He knows it. He's not interested in what we can do on our own anyway. But somehow, like Philadelphia, we have learned that He is all powerful and we have learned in some small measure to cry out to Him and receive His power. We have seen HIM change and save people and answer our prayers, so we're learning to lean on Him. And He offers it:

b. because we have obeyed His Word We have not done what we wanted; we have chosen to regard His Word as our command and have pledged ourselves to DO it. That's what Philadelphia did and it's our habit of life also. And He offers it:

c. because we have not denied His Name In the pinch when the pressure was on, Philadelphian believers stood up for Him. They refused to cave in and deny Him, even though it put them in danger. And like them, we have stood for Him unashamedly in our culture.

And that's why Jesus invites us into His service! He wants soldiers who depend on Him, who obey Him and who will stand for Him to the last breath! If that's who you want to be, He wants to give you the privilege of serving Him and He'll put an open door of service before you. But:

3. we must choose to enter the door! He won't shove us through the opening! He won't draft us to enlist. He wants you because you want Him. If you want to go live for self, for your own goals and dreams, you're free to do it. Lots of believers do! But if you're willing to sign up, here are:

III. Three Promises Jesus Makes To Those Who Join Him They are for the believers in Philadelphia and for us today. First of all:

1. He promises us victory over our enemies (9) Evidently those who were giving the believers in Philadelphia the most trouble were Jews, who, of course, weren't acting like godly Jews but like instruments of Satan. Today in modern Turkey, they would be Muslims, like those who attacked and killed three of our brothers in Malatya only a few hundred miles to the east some time ago. Here we might face liberal left-wing activists who call Christians bigots or intellectuals who call our faith a myth. But Jesus says, "I'll make them all come and fall at your feet and acknowledge the truth! I'm going to build My church and the gates of hell will NOT stop it!" - Mt. 16:18. Now what does that promise mean? Well:

a. we may see this fulfilled on earth through their conversion Paul was a great persecutor of Christians, but Jesus stopped him in his tracks, blinded him and sent him to a believer to receive salvation. If you read the journal of my Kyrgyzstan trip, you read the story of a young Uighur man who believed and when he went home and told his father, the father went to the mosque to the Imam and said, "What shall I do, my son has become a believer in Jesus?" And the Imam said, "Go home and beat him every day, beat him hard". So every day for a month the father beat his son and instead of cursing or fighting back, the son said to him, "Father, I love you and Jesus loves you!" After a month, the father went back to the Imam and said, "This isn't working; I beat my son every day; I beat him hard. Every time he says 'I love you and Jesus loves you'. What shall I do?" And the Imam said, "Then you must kill your son!" "Kill my son? He is my son; how can I kill Him?" The Imam said, "If you cannot kill your son, we will help you!" The father replied, "I will think about it." and he went home, got his son, seated him at the table and told him, "Son, I went to the Imam and he says I should kill you. Son, I want to accept your Jesus!" In family after family that I talked to, if the first one to believe was willing to stand up and endure persecution for a year or so, eventually their opponents would believe or at least admit they are truly better off and make peace. Loving your enemies always wins some! But even if we do NOT see it here:

b. we will see this fulfilled at His return - Phil. 2:9-11, Therefore God exalted him to the highest place and gave him the name that is above every name, that at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, in heaven and on earth and under the earth, and every tongue confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father. And on that day, you'll be seated there right beside Him! All the legions of those who are against us and who oppose us and who have tried to eliminate us will bow in that day before our Savior, at our feet as we stand with Him, and confess His Lordship. We will see true victory. We win! Secondly:

2. He promises us deliverance from the time of His wrath (10) The Scripture everywhere tells us that:

a. there is period of worldwide tribulation coming at the end of this age. Jesus said, for then there will be a great tribulation, such as has not occurred since the beginning of the world until now, nor ever shall. - Mt. 24:21 (NAS). It is an hour of trial for the whole world and according to what God showed Daniel, it will last 7 years. In John's vision he goes on to see it visually in chapters 6-19. He sees the wrath of God poured out on the inhabitants of the earth and there will be no place on earth to hide from it. It will be unlike anything the world has ever known! But He promises to Philadelphia and to us that:

b. He will keep us "from" it How will He do that? I say this with genuine love and respect for our dear friends who believe that the church will be preserved "through" the Tribulation, but the Greek says He will keep us "out of" it! How? By rapturing us out. I believe in the Rapture of the Church, that ...the Lord himself will come down from heaven, with a loud command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet call of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. After that, we who are still alive and are left will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And so, we will be with the Lord forever. - 1 Thes. 4:16-17. And that that Rapture will occur BEFORE the hour of trial begins. Because we've been faithful to endure, to press on through many difficulties here, He will spare us FROM that great day of His wrath as He promised in this letter! Third:

3. He promises us eternal reward (11-13) If we serve Him faithfully there's a crown of reward waiting for us and He describes it with two images. First, He says He will make us:

a. a pillar in the Temple of God. Philadelphia was leveled by earthquakes several times. One great ruin there today is the ruin of a great pagan temple and only the pillars still stand. The ancient church knew what that meant. Solomon's Temple had two pillars that held up the roof. They were even given names, Jakin and Boaz, meaning "in him is strength" (2 Chron. 3:15-17). To be a pillar speaks of our permanence. We'll stand in His presence permanently; we'll never leave it. We will be perpetually in His Holy Presence. And Jesus will name us, He will write on us:

b. the Name, the Name of the Father, the Name of God's city, the New Jerusalem, and His OWN new Name. Sometimes citizens of these ancient cities who had performed exceptional service were honored by having their names inscribed on the pillar of a temple for all to see. So, this image speaks of the honor of belonging to Him. He will proclaim us as His own, mark us as belonging to Him and display us permanently in His presence as trophies of His grace. He will say, "These are those who are mine, who stood faithfully through the battle for My Kingdom! Well done!"

Well, now that you've heard the promises, do you want to enlist? Do you want to sign up and walk through that door of service God has opened before you? Our missionary, Dan Lunow, began life as a Hitler youth in Germany. When he was 14, he went down to the recruiting station and "signed up" in the Hitler Youth. He knew what that meant. He gave everything to Hitler, pledged his loyalty and his life. Hitler was his god. But when Germany lost the war and Hitler died, Dan was totally disillusioned. His god up and died on him. Ironically in the aftermath of the war, Dan was placed into an exchange program and ended up on a farm in Wisconsin to learn agriculture. The farmer invited him to church and he went once to meet the community, but he did not believe all that "stuff" and stayed home on Sunday mornings to rest and listen to the radio. One Sunday morning he was alone and listening to a Gospel program that caught his ear and as the preacher was speaking, Jesus spoke to his heart in an inner voice as clear as a bell and said, "Do you want to sign up with me?" And he did. He bowed before Jesus and made Him his Lord. He gave his life, body and soul, every part of it, to Jesus. He never thought about NOT serving full time. He entered Moody Bible Institute and trained to be a missionary. In 1962 God sent him and his new wife Barbara to the Sougb people in the remote highlands of Indonesia. Today of the 12,000 Sougb there are 10,500 believers in more than a hundred churches and the Sougb church has sent out 13 missionary couples to neighboring areas. What a life well spent! Now, your door and my door of service may look completely different. God does not send us all to the ends of the earth, but He sends all of us into the battle. The question is the same, "Do you want to sign up with Me? Come, be faithful! I have prepared for you a great reward!"

Revelation: Things To Come

The Church: In Heaven - Chs. 4-5

At Revelation 4 we enter a new division of the book. Back in 1:19 Jesus told John to write down what you have seen, what is now and what will take place later. The letters to the 7 churches were the what is now part to John. From chapter 4 on are the things that will take place later, at the end of the age. But what I want to impress upon you this morning is that this is not just a book about THE future; it is about YOUR future! If you're a believer, then YOU are in this vision! You will live through this time in heaven. You will see and experience all these things that John saw! Imagine that God sent you a DVD of your own future and you put it in the player and watch the screen and bingo, there you are! You see how you'll look and what you'll do and experiences you'll have. If you had one of those, you'd watch it closely, wouldn't you? Well, that's exactly what Revelation is; you can see yourself and your own future in it! You'll be standing there around the Throne of God when all these things happen, so let's look at:

I. Our Future Vision Of The Throne - Ch. 4 As Jesus finishes speaking with him about Laodicea, John lifts his eyes up and sees a great door standing open in heaven, just like Stephen did. And he hears a loud, trumpet-like voice say, "Come up here!" and instantly, there he stands in heaven before God's throne! And you know, I just can't read that without thinking about the fact that:

1. we'll get there like John got there (1) Do you remember what Paul said? ...the Lord himself will come down from heaven, with a loud command, with the voice of the archangel and with the trumpet call of God, and the dead in Christ will rise first. After that, we who are still alive and are left will be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And so we will be with the Lord forever. - 1 Thes. 4:16-17. On the appointed day Jesus will descend into the air, the archangel will shout, "Come up here!" and instantly we'll all be caught up to heaven with Him in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye! The Rapture of the Church will occur and we'll find ourselves all standing there where John stood. Some of us will get there early by death, but even those will get new resurrection bodies through that shout and will be part of that grand moment and when we stand there:

2. we'll see there what John saw (2-8) The first thing that grabs John's attention is:

a. the Father seated on His throne, the very throne of the universe, the control room from which the entire cosmos runs. And there seated on that throne is our very own Heavenly Father in command of it all! His appearance will be gloriously indescribable. The best John could do was to say that His appearance seemed to be like jasper (a clear diamond) and carnelian (a red ruby). And in a full circle around His throne is the ancient sign of the promise, an emerald green rainbow. Listen, when we get there, it will really come home to us: our God is on the Throne and He keeps all His promises! He always has been and He always will be! Then as John's gaze broadens out, he begins to take in the wider scope of what surrounds God's throne and he sees:

b. the Heavenly Temple surrounding Him Now, you may never have thought about this, but look with me at Heb. 8:5. The reason Moses had the tabernacle made like he did, the reason all those exact measurements and specifications are back there in Exodus, is that Moses was making an earthly scale model of what God showed him in heaven. God opened the door and let Him see in there and told him to make a tabernacle here that looks like heaven! Look back to verses 1-2. God has a Tabernacle, a Temple in heaven. At its center is a Throne and that throne is a Mercy Seat, the place where His presence is. In front of it, just like the lampstand in the Old Testament, in verse 5 John sees:

(1) seven lamps blazing and we're told that these are the Holy Spirit shining His light. Of course, there are not literally "seven Holy Spirits," but one "seven-fold" Holy Spirit (you can read what those 7 aspects are in Is. 11:2 if you like). Then, remember how there was a veil before the holy of holies and what was embroidered all over it? Cherubim! Angels! And what was on either end of the mercy seat? Cherubim! And what does John see all around God's throne in verse 6?

(2) four cherubim around Him Serving Him, guarding His throne, declaring His holiness and calling all of creation to worship Him. You can read the details for yourself; they all have meaning. Now in the Holy Place in the Tabernacle, there was a basin full of water for washing called the laver. In his Temple Solomon replaced that with a tank full of water that rested on 12 bronze oxen so huge that he called it a "sea". So, what does John see in heaven in verse 6?

(3) a sea of glass, clear as crystal! No water there! No cleansing is needed any more. It is solidified into glass you can stand on!

So here in an instant we find ourselves in the heavenly Temple, in the very Holy of Holies where God is seated and there seated with him are a group of human beings. Who are they? Who can go into His Holy Presence? Only His priests! So, there in verse 4 you have:

c. the Holy Priesthood seated with Him The 24 elders, who are they? You might be interested to know that in preparation for serving the Temple, David divided the entire priesthood in his day into 24 courses of priests who would take turns serving. When the elders, the leaders of those 24 priestly family courses were together, they represented the ENTIRE priesthood of thousands. Now look back with me at 3:4-5, 11, 21. Who gets to be clothed in white, to wear crowns and to be seated with Him on His throne? The Church! We do! Look back to 1:6. Beloved that's US! When we get to heaven, we find ourselves seated with Him to reign. And we find ourselves:

(1) clothed in white: perfectly purified No more sin, no more temptation, no more struggling. Made perfect by the blood of Jesus Christ. And we find ourselves:

(2) crowned with gold and the word here is not the word for a king's crown, but stephanos, the Olympic wreath of victory. We find ourselves properly rewarded with that crown of righteousness which the Lord Himself has laid up in store for all those that love His appearing!

Look at us! There we sit! Raptured up to heaven. Sharing in all His glory! Seated with Him in His Holy presence in the Holy of Holies and:

3. we'll experience there what John saw (9-11) The cherubim cry out, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God Almighty! They don't say just Holy! to state a fact. They don't simply repeat, Holy, holy! for emphasis. They make it a superlative, the trishagion, a three-fold expression to declare:

a. the supreme holiness of God Our God is absolutely without defect or flaw. He is perfect and has done all things perfectly. He is worthy that all things He has created should acknowledge Him and that's why, whenever they cry "Holy, Holy, Holy," the whole church, that's US, is consumed by:

b. the overwhelming desire to give Him all glory and we fall before Him on our faces and cry out, "You are worthy! You are worthy!" And we take off our crowns, the rewards of our own labors and we place them tenderly before Him because we realize that even those are His, that He deserves all credit, all glory, all honor.

Listen, don't think that one day you're going to waltz into heaven and meet God with a "Yo, Dude, good to see ya!". We have so little reverence for God in our generation. We have forgotten His greatness and His holiness. Nothing makes our spine tingle and the hair on the back of our neck stand up any more. I've told you before about a dream I had when I still lived at home. And in that dream, I was out in our front yard and Jesus was coming. I sensed the Rapture was happening and I was overwhelmed with this sense of absolute gratitude. In my dream I couldn't stand up; I just knelt there and kept saying, "Thank you Lord, thank you Lord!" over and over. Of course, I'm not saying that's how the Rapture will occur, but that sense of awe, that He would take me, that He would make me His own, that I cannot even stand before Him and all I can do is kneel and praise Him. That sensation is maybe a small glimpse of what we will experience in that moment when we are called into His presence and we hear the cherubim proclaim, "Holy, holy, holy..." Every one of us will fall at His feet; everything in our being will drive us there and our mouths will proclaim His worthiness as our Creator and God! And this will happen over and over again, no matter what other service He may have for us to do; this will happen every time we're in the great Throne Room of heaven, forever. Then as we move into chapter 5 the scene continues and John records:

II. Our Future Vision Of The Lamb - Ch. 5 It begins with what I've called:

1. the search for the Lamb (1-4) A great inquiry is made. A mighty angel, maybe Gabriel himself, shouts through all of heaven, indeed through all the universe, "Who is worthy to take this scroll and open it?" And there is dead silence. Obviously, we have to ask, what is:

a. the scroll Of course, it's a long roll of paper that has been wound up into a tube, but it is unusual. As John looks there is writing not only on the inside like a normal document, but also on the outside. And the scroll is sealed, not just with one ribbon or strap bound around it and stamped with a wax seal, but with 7 of them. It must be a pretty important document if no one has the right to take it and open it. Well, to find out what it might be, let's cheat. Let's turn to Daniel 7 where God showed Daniel a shortened version of this exact same scene in Dan. 7:13-14. Jesus approaches the Father's throne. In Daniel's vision He's given authority, glory and sovereign power to set up a kingdom over all the earth. In John's vision we'll see in a minute that Jesus approaches the Father and is given this important scroll. It doesn't take much to figure out that this scroll is the title deed to the universe; it is the right to judge and reign over all creation, to rule and reign over all the earth. Now who has the right to do that? Who has the right to claim that scroll and open it? Who has the right to be King of Kings and Lord of Lords? And there is dead silence! It is a poignant moment, a staged moment. It is like that moment when they threw the woman taken in adultery at Jesus feet and Jesus made a tremendous point with a simple statement, "Let Him who is without sin among you cast the first stone!" Dead silence. No one is worthy! And here God is deliberately making the same:

b. the point: No one in all creation is qualified! He asks the question so that everyone in all creation gets the point deeply; none of us is worthy! No politician, no statesman, none of us is worthy to take charge over this evil world and set it straight and own it! The human race cannot undo what it has done. And that moment is so sad that John is overwhelmed and begins to cry and to weep. It felt in that moment like all was lost, like no one could ever take the scroll and set things straight, that all God's purposes were thwarted. But then one of the elders, the church, reminded John of what He already knew (5-7). John was so busy crying with his head buried that he almost missed:

2. the exaltation of the Lamb Suddenly, in the very center of the Throne, Jesus appears. Not in all his glory like in chapter 1, but now with the appearance of a Lamb. And please don't think this means He looks somehow like a sheep with a wool coat or something. Do you remember that day out by the Jordan River when John the Baptist saw Jesus coming and shouted, "Behold, the Lamb of God who takes away the sins of the world!" God's sacrificial lamb had the form of a man! And here He is, looking as though He had been slain, with all the marks of His crucifixion still visible, looking here in the Holy of Holies as though the sacrifice had been offered and the blood had been brought in and sprinkled on the Mercy Seat and atonement had been made for all the people. And Jesus comes to the Father and receives the title deed to all creation from the hand of the Father. How can He do that when no one else can? Well, the elder tells John:

a. He is worthy by His title He is the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David. He is the Messiah, the true heir to David's throne and to his Kingdom. He is David's greater Son who was also David's Lord and the promise of the Kingdom that will last forever and ever belongs to Him. He is worthy of it because it is His right. But:

b. He is also worthy by His triumph He has CONQUERED! What? Sin, death, the grave and Satan himself! Where? At the cross! How? By being slain! You see, that right to rule the world belonged to God, but He entrusted it to man way back in Gen. 1. Then man turned around and handed it to Satan by following him into sin and he became Prince of this world. The world system was given into his hands; he even taunted Jesus with it during His temptation. But Jesus bought it back at the cross! Through His death and resurrection, He tore it out of Satan's grasp; He took back the keys! And here in this moment He steps forward to lay claim to what is rightfully His. The kingdoms of this world will become the Kingdom of our Lord and He shall reign forever and ever and the rest of this book shows us exactly how He will lay claim to it!

And it all begins here. This moment is so powerful, so dramatic, that it has a drastic effect. Everything begins to:

3. the worship of the Lamb First, He is worshipped:

a. by the whole Church (8-10) Remember the 24 elders represent the raptured church in heaven. They fall before Jesus and begin to praise. And I hate to mention it at a moment like this, but there is a textual problem here. Almost every ancient manuscript we have, but one very important one, has the word US in that song and yet the NIV and most other modern translations follow that one lone manuscript and eliminate it. Listen to it in the New King James, And they sang a new song, saying: "You are worthy to take the scroll, And to open its seals; For You were slain, And have redeemed US to God by Your blood out of every tribe and tongue and people and nation, And have made US kings and priests to our God; And we shall reign on the earth." Beloved this is OUR song; this is US falling on our faces and shouting to Jesus and praising Jesus for saving us! And just look who we are! Those 24 symbolically represent all of us who have believed from every tribe, every language, every ethnic group and every geographical nation of the world! What does that tell you? The job of world evangelization will get done. The job of reaching all the unreached peoples of the earth will be completed. The mission of the church in this world will be completed and there will stand the evidence, believers from all peoples on earth falling before Him in worship on that day! We'll be in that crowd and our hearts will be overwhelmed that our Jesus will reign. We'll be the first to shout, but we'll be followed:

b. by all the angels (11-12) Heaven will be flooded with them on that day. They'll all be called back from their duties for a moment and there will be millions (if you take that phrase literally, at least 100 trillion) of them and they circle the throne and the Lamb and the church and they shout, "Worthy is the Lamb! Worthy is the Lamb!" But even as they take up the cry, it is still not done. They are followed:

c. by all of creation (13-14) Maybe this is what Paul meant in Rom. 8:21 when he said that ...the creation itself will be liberated from its bondage to decay and brought into the glorious freedom of the children of God. Maybe the very rocks WILL cry out! All of creation has been waiting and longing for this day! And it will celebrate!

It is so difficult to convey even a hint of what it will be like on that day. Most of you were watching on Wed. night Oct. 29 as the Phillies won the world series. Dedicated fans had been waiting for this moment since 1980. Citizens Bank Park went wild, screaming and cheering and jumping and shouting. If we had been standing there the roar would have been overwhelming as thousands upon thousands of people released their joy in celebration. Any dedicated Phillies fan would practically have given his right arm to be there in that stadium to experience that victory. Maybe that's a tiny glimpse of what it will be like on that great day for us. Or maybe it's more like this: In the year 1869 a great celebration was held in Boston in to commemorate the end of the Civil War. You can only imagine how the American people had been longing for the end of that bloody conflict and their joy that it was finally over. A man who was at that celebration wrote a letter to a friend and described some of the events of the day. He told of a 10,000-voice choir supported by a 1,000-piece orchestra. The violin section included 200 musicians, led by the world's greatest violinist, Ole Bull. Two hundred anvils were used in the Anvil Chorus. And when the soloist sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and hit high C with the full orchestra and chorus, her voice was so loud and clear that it seemed to bury everything else. With those memories flooding his mind, the letter writer concluded, "I am an old man now, but I am looking forward to the music of heaven--music infinitely superior to the marvelous chorus I listened to that day." Friends, you and I will be there as Jesus the Lamb takes the scroll, takes His rightful position and begins to judge the earth and set up His Kingdom. All of our hesitation, all of our shyness and reserve will be lost. We'll be there and join in as heaven goes wild, the whole church, hundreds of millions of us together shouting "Worthy is the Lamb!", surrounded by 100 trillion angels shouting "Worthy is the Lamb!", in turn surrounded by the whole creation joining us shouting, "Worthy is the Lamb!", then bowing before His feet in reverent worship. Anyone who is truly in love with Jesus, who truly knows they have been redeemed, is anxiously looking forward to that day, is waiting with deep longing to see Him reign! So, if that scene doesn't sound very appealing to you, if you're thinking "what's all the big deal about?", then maybe you'd better check your heart. What are you living for? Who do you love the most? Who really is Jesus in your life?

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: An Overview - Chs. 6-7

Last week we saw in chapter 5 John's vision of that great day in heaven when Jesus takes His rightful authority, when He takes the seven-sealed scroll from the Father, the title deed to all creation, and all the throngs of heaven fall down to worship him. That was the good news! Today's study is the bad news. As we move into chapter 6, that same scene continues as Jesus opens the seals on the scroll one at a time and when He does, John sees a whole series of horrible events begin to happen on the earth. But before we study those, I think it will help us a great deal to take a moment to look at:

I. The Prophecy That Sets The Stage for understanding them. Turn with me to Dan. 9:24-27. If you look closely, here you have the exact time of the death of Christ predicted. After his death the Romans destroyed Jerusalem and the Temple in 70 AD. There follows then a break of undetermined length, which is the church age in which we're living right now. But verse 27 states clearly that:

1. a final seven year period of judgment will occur before Christ's return to set up God's Kingdom on earth. We usually refer to it as the Tribulation period. Jesus warned in Rev. 3:10 about the hour of trial that is going to come upon the whole world to test those who live on the earth. That "hour" is a 7 year period and it is the events that occur during this period that we are seeing as we stand in heaven from Rev. 6 through 19. In summarizing it, God says to Daniel that during that period:

2. a world leader will first make a covenant with the nation of Israel, then in the middle of that period break that covenant by desecrating the Temple and declaring himself God. But when that 7 year period ends, he will be judged and ultimately destroyed. Now let's go to Rev. 6 and watch with John:

II. The Events That Will Shake The World during that awful period - Ch. 6 Each seal on that scroll, as it is opened, causes another event on earth. Listen, heaven and earth are connected; earth does not just run on its own! God issues commands on His throne; He decrees His will and corresponding things happen on the earth. First, in heaven John sees what we've come to call "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse" come forth. They are God's way of symbolically displaying the nature of the four events that He is going to bring about on the earth as the Tribulation period begins. The first one tells us:

1. there will be a global leader (1-2) The white horse holds a man, a real human being who is intent on ruling the world as many have been before him. Only he will actually succeed for a time. He will come from the same people who destroyed Jerusalem in the first place, so he will be of the old Roman Empire, a European leader. You will notice that he goes out with a bow, but no arrows; he will not begin his conquering by waging war, but by making peace. He will come upon the scene as a hero on a white horse, one that the nations of the world will hail as the answer to their problems, who will unite them to bring in an era of peace and prosperity, just as we saw him in Daniel make a covenant with Israel to allow them to worship at their Temple in peace. We usually call this global leader the Antichrist; he is actually a false Christ, a false Messiah, a fake who promises to do for the world what only Christ can do. And much of the world will run to follow after him. Interestingly, all the things Jesus warned His disciples about in Mat. 24, and which we have seen over the last 200 years, all seem to recur exactly in that order in Rev. 6. The first thing He warned them about there was not to be fooled by false Christs, false Messiahs who WILL come! And this man will be the last and the worst of them all. Look with me at 2 Thes. 2:3-9. After promising all these wonderful things, after 3 ½ years have gone by, this lawless man will set up his own statue in the Temple in Jerusalem, proclaim himself God and demand that the whole world worship him, just like Daniel said. And he will enforce it with great power as we'll see later! Now, for centuries people have been speculating about who this man could be. Early Christians speculated that one or the other of their horribly cruel Roman Emperors could be him. In the Middle Ages many of the Protestant reformers believed and stated that the Pope was the Antichrist! The internet at one point was full of articles titled "Is Obama the Antichrist?" But this man hasn't been revealed yet; Paul said there is something holding him back, someONE keeping that tribulation time-clock from starting to tick on God's schedule, someONE who has to be taken out of the way first. And I believe that ONE is the Holy Spirit, who is indwelling His Church! When the church is raptured out to heaven as John was in Rev. 4, then this global leader will ride out publicly to develop his kingdom in Rev. 6! The world will not know who he is until his statue is sitting in the Temple and then it will be too late! Now, at some point it will become clear that the promise of peace won't get him too far and:

2. there will be global war (3-4) The red horse symbolizes that that initial peace will be taken away and the world plunged into bloody war. The antichrist will resort to military strength to dominate the world and others will resist. At the end, Daniel tells us that the world will find itself divided into four power blocks, four huge confederacies of nations that all meet in the final battle of Armageddon at Christ's return. And in the wake of these conflicts that engulf the world, as always:

3. there will be global famine (5-6) The black horse symbolizes the fact that the destruction of war will drastically reduce the world's food production and shortages will drive the prices up. A quart of wheat, enough to make a good meal for one person, will sell for a day's wages. Just imagine a small loaf of wheat bread selling for $100 or if maybe you could get 3 meals by buying barley which is cheaper. Only the rich will have anything left to buy oil and wine. If you think world hunger is a problem today, we haven't seen anything yet! And of course, the inevitable result of all this is that:

4. there will be global death (7-8) The color of this pale horse is literally a putrid ghastly green like that of a rotting corpse. The rider is death, which claims the bodies of men and behind him follows Hades or Hell, which claims their souls! Between those who die directly in battle, those who die of starvation in the famine, those who die of the plagues of disease which always follow, and those who are killed by wild animals that multiply in depopulated areas, one fourth of the population of the world is destroyed. Now stop and ponder that a minute; if it happened today that would be almost 2 BILLION people! That's like the populations of China, Russia and the US combined! A carnage like the world has never seen! But then, at the fifth seal, John's gaze moves away from earth back to heaven for a moment (9-11). Under the altar of incense there in the heavenly Temple, John sees a crowd of people who have been martyred because of their testimony for Christ. So evidently on earth:

5. there will be global persecution also. There will be those who believe, those who have heard the Gospel from their now-missing friends and loved ones, who have picked up Bibles and books left behind, and believed. In fact, overall, there will be a GREAT harvest of souls, even during this awful period. However, the Antichrist will demand worship and kill most of those who won't give it. And here they stand in heaven, comforted by God and waiting for justice to be done. But they're encouraged to be patient because even more will have to join their number as the Tribulation progresses. And finally, this period:

6. it will conclude with global signs (12-17) At the very end, as Christ comes, there are tremendous phenomena that occur in the universe; things so huge that John has no understanding or words to accurately describe them. But you'll find them all over the Bible, in Joel 2:20-21, in Isaiah 34:4, in Jesus' own words at the end of Mt. 24. The sun is darkened, the moon turns blood red, the stars seem to fall from the heavens and the whole sky seems to roll up like some huge scroll! They are signs that will shake the universe and drive men to hide from the very presence of God and then Jesus will come to set up His Kingdom!

Listen, this is no fairy tale! This is no ancient myth, no science fiction Star Wars story. This is God's decree of where the world is going. You can put up all the "Pray for Peace" signs you want and sing, "Make the world a better place," but once the church is gone, the world will basically be destroyed in 7 years! Some time ago there was a merchant in Calcutta who was a believer. He had just given a check for $150 to the secretary of a missionary society when a cablegram was handed to him. Reading it, he turned to the man and said, "I've been informed that one of my ships has just been wrecked and the cargo lost. That will make a difference in my business affairs. I shall have to write you another check." "Oh, I understand perfectly," replied the mission representative as he handed back the first one. The merchant then wrote another check and gave it to him. The secretary was amazed to see that the amount was $600. "Haven't you made a mistake?" he asked. "No," said the merchant, "I haven't." With tears in his eyes he added, "That cablegram was like a message from my Father in Heaven that read, 'Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth.'" Friends, this chapter is a message from your father in heaven that says, "Don't invest your life laying up treasures for yourselves in this world!" In a few short years you'll die or Jesus will come for us and it'll all be destroyed anyway. If the Lord comes, your friends and neighbors without Christ will enter this horrible tribulation time, not to mention the multitudes around the world who've never heard the Gospel! Live for the Kingdom! Make your life about bringing people to faith and maturing them in Christ; make that the focus of your prayers; invest your money in it! And yet, even in this horrible tribulation period all is not lost. The next chapter gives us a glimpse of:

II. The Multitudes Who Will Believe - Ch. 7 Please note that this chapter is not sequential; it is a flashback. Chapter 6 was a picture of what will happen in the world in general; chapter 7 now goes back to show that God will reap a tremendous harvest of souls during it all! This part of the vision has two scenes. First of all, we are shown that:

1. a believing remnant of Israel will survive (1-8) God is not done with the nation of Israel. Yes, He set them aside from the center of His plan and purpose for the last 2000 years of this church age, but He has carefully preserved them as a people and Romans says that just as they were broken off as a branch and we nations were grafted into the trunk of their faith through Christ, so in the end, God is going to graft them back into the tree of faith once again! When the anti-Christ breaks his covenant and plants his statue in their Temple and proclaims himself God, their eyes will be opened. Many thousands of them will believe in Christ at last. And what we see here is a special remnant out from among those believing Israelites, 144,000 of them, and no, they are not Jehovah's Witnesses as the JW's teach; they are real Israelites, 12,000 from among each tribe who believe. And:

a. they will be sealed to protect them through this period The Antichrist will try to control the world by putting a mark on the forehead of all his followers as we'll read in chapter 13. And here God is putting a mark on HIS! Look at 14:1. There they are again, standing with Jesus on Mt. Zion when He returns, marked with His Name and His Father's name on their foreheads. And the fact that they are standing there means that they will survive; that seal will protect and preserve them through all the devastation and destruction and the plagues that we'll read about that will come upon the earth. So, at the end:

b. they will stand with Christ and enter His Kingdom alive in mortal bodies! That's how there's going to be a literal kingdom on earth with a literal Israel. This is His "seed stock" if you will, preserved alive through the midst of terrible suffering and through every attempt of the Antichrist to wipe them out! We'll learn more about them in future messages.

But now, in the vision a second scene emerges and we are shown that:

2. a great multitude from all nations will be slain (9, 13-14) In contrast to exactly 144,000 on earth, here is a crowd so huge in heaven that it is innumerable. And we're told who they are. They are not the church; the 24 elders represent the church and it is one of their number who talks to John. This is a huge multitude from all the peoples and language groups of the earth who have believed. They have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb! And here they stand in heaven. They came out of the great tribulation. How? By death! These are the victims of all that persecution the Antichrist will bring on the world; in fact, we've met them before. Look back to 6:11; these ARE the fellow-servants who were to be killed by the end like those first martyrs were! You'll see them there on that day! Look how many there are! You can't count them! And look who they are! There are some Kyrgyz and some Guarani from Paraguay. There are some Sougb from Indonesia and Fulani from Guinea. They're speaking in Farsi and Tagalog and Urdu and Mandarin. Oh, in the midst of this awful period where Satan tries to rule the world, GOD is the one in control and He will reap a huge harvest from all nations all over again, even as He has done in the church age! And this huge multitude:

a. they will worship with us before the Throne (10-12) We'll see them there crying out in joyous thanksgiving for their salvation and when we see them, all of us together in our blood-whitened robes will fall down on our faces before the throne and shout, "AMEN! AMEN!" and glorify God. Listen, what will move your heart when you get to heaven is not the privilege and position of your reward; it will be the PEOPLE you see there, your brothers and sisters from all over the world who will join you. The Father's whole family will be gathered in heaven, even those who come to work in His vineyard at the last hour of the day! And:

b. they will enjoy with us the pleasures of heaven Look at verses (15-17). Together we will enjoy:

(1) the presence of God (15) That must be a Kyrgyz expression. God will literally pitch His tent with us, His yurt. He'll dwell with us. We will be in His personal presence forever serving Him. How many times in our struggles down here do we just long to see Him face to face; how many times must these dear ones have longed to see Him with their eyes in those dark days that took their very lives? And here is the fulfillment of His promise; together we are in His presence. It is permanent; nothing will ever separate us or stand between us again. And there together we'll enjoy:

(2) the protection of God (16) Those are all the terrible plagues they suffered on earth during that time. But they are not alone. God's people down through the ages have always suffered terrible hard things. The writer of Hebrews says, ...others were tortured and refused to be released, so that they might gain a better resurrection. Some faced jeers and flogging, while still others were chained and put in prison. They were stoned; they were sawed in two; they were put to death by the sword. They went about in sheepskins and goatskins, destitute, persecuted and mistreated-- the world was not worthy of them. They wandered in deserts and mountains, and in caves and holes in the ground. These were all commended for their faith, yet none of them received what had been promised. - 11:35-39. That is, until now! Once they are all home, God says, Never again! No more sorrow; no more dying; no more suffering; no more cancer; no more wheelchairs; no more diseases; no more pain! Never again! Not in His presence! There we will all know His protection from all harm forever. And thirdly, there we'll enjoy together:

(3) the provision of God How many times have we said it, The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He makes me lie down in green pastures; He leads me beside still waters. That doesn't really describe what they experienced on earth and if we're honest, it doesn't really describe a good bit of our lives either. But just look! (17) There it will be completely fulfilled! There He will be our Shepherd. There at the Throne He'll provide everything for us. He will personally care for us and meet all our needs forever and ever. His hand will wipe away all tears from our eyes. We won't cry ever again unless it is with joy!

A missionary shares this story: "What will he say when he shouts?" The question took me by surprise. I had already found that West African Bible College Students can ask some of the most penetrating questions about minute details of Scripture. "Reverend, 1 Thessalonians 4:16 says that Christ will descend from heaven with a loud command. I would like to know what that command will be." I wanted to leave the question unanswered, to tell him that we must not go past what Scripture has revealed, but my mind wandered to an encounter I had earlier in the day with a refugee from the Liberian civil war. The man, a high school principal, told me how he was apprehended by a two-man death squad. After several hours of terror, as the men described how they would torture and kill him, he narrowly escaped. After hiding in the bush for two days, he was able to find his family and escape to a neighboring country. The escape cost him dearly: two of his children lost their lives. The stark cruelty unleashed on an unsuspecting, undeserving population had touched me deeply. I also saw flashbacks of the beggars that I pass each morning on my way to the office. Every day I see how poverty destroys dignity, robs men of the best of what it means to be human, and sometimes substitutes the worst of what it means to be an animal. I am haunted by the vacant eyes of people who have lost all hope. "Reverend, you have not given me an answer. What will he say?" The question hadn't gone away. "Enough," I said. "He will shout, 'Enough!' when he returns." A look of surprise opened the face of the student. "What do you mean, enough?" "Enough suffering. Enough starvation. Enough terror. Enough death. Enough indignity. Enough lives trapped in hopelessness. Enough sickness and disease. Enough time. Enough!" [Gregory L. Fisher in Leadership-Vol. 12, #4.] If believers face horrible things like this even today, how much worse will it be for those who believe during that horrible tribulation period. But there in heaven, God will say to all of us, "Enough! No more for you! Never again!" Hallelujah!

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: Intensified - Chs. 8-9

As John continues to look on in his vision, the scene in heaven continues. After Jesus took the scroll from the hand of the Father and was worshipped by all of heaven, he began to open its 7 seals one by one. And we saw in chapter 6 a horrible time unfold on earth as He did, a 7 year period we call the Tribulation that leads up to Christ's return. John watched as a world leader came forth, but then the world was plunged into war and famine and death as a result, leading up eventually to cataclysmic signs in the heavens. Then John saw a great harvest of souls in heaven, people from every tribe and nation who believed and were killed for their faith and he worships with them around the throne. And now as we enter chapter 8:

I. Jesus Opens The Seventh Seal In Heaven - 8:1-6 It is in this moment that:

1. God begins to send direct judgments upon the human race In the beginning of the Tribulation period He left the human race simply self-destruct, fall into war and famine and disease. But now at some point during this time (and we don't know exactly when, but I suspect it is after the middle, perhaps in year 5 or 6) God is going to begin to send powerful punishments from His hand directly upon the human race for their sin. Seven angels stand with 7 trumpets to announce each one of them. Now, one of the points of what John sees there in heaven in the scene we just read is that this process of sending judgment upon the world:

2. it is holy and righteous There in the Temple in heaven before the Throne is an altar of incense. And an angel comes and he has a golden censer, a bowl, full of incense. And there is a fire on the altar, burning coals. And he pours out the incense upon the coals and a cloud of smoke goes up before God. Then he takes that golden dish and dips it full of fiery coals from the altar and hurls it to the earth and the judgments begin. What does that mean? Well, that altar is holy and the fire on it is holy. It is righteous; it is pure. So, when God pours out His judgment on the earth it is symbolized by pouring out of fire from the altar. In other words, this is a holy act! God has a moral right to do it. He is not a wicked, cruel God who kills human beings for His own pleasure; in fact, He swore it to Ezekiel: As surely as I live, declares the Sovereign LORD, I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather that they turn from their ways and live. Turn! Turn from your evil ways! Why will you die...? - 33:11. People say, "Oh, the God you believe in is an angry God, a vengeful God; the God I believe in is a God of love!" Listen the God of the Bible IS a God of love, but He is also a just God, a God who is righteous and who MUST punish sin! In spite of every opportunity He has given the human race, the entire world will rebel against Him and He will HAVE to punish them. And He is RIGHT to do so! Nevertheless, God does not take this duty of His lightly:

3. it is somber and serious to Him. That's why in heaven it is preceded by prolonged silence before He does it. Have you ever stood in one place silent and unmoving for half an hour? That's a long time. These visions have been moving forward at a pretty good clip and suddenly when this seal is opened, God has all of heaven observe a half hour of reverent silence. Why? To ponder what's about to happen, to think about it. To realize that God takes no pleasure in it, that He sent His own Son, the Lamb, to be slain so that people could escape His judgment, but that He HAS to do it. It's like watching an execution; there's a sense of realizing it has to be done, but oh, how sad is the fact that it has to be done and how serious a thing! It's a sobering moment. However, we are also being shown here that:

4. it is an answer to the prayers of God's people That incense in verse 4 going up before God is connected with the prayers of the saints. Not just the martyred ones back in 6:10 who cry out, How long, O Lord, before you send your judgment and avenge the evil of our deaths? God's people have been praying this way for centuries; just read the imprecatory Psalms in the Old Testament. Believers have prayed, "How long, O Lord, will you let the evil of this world continue! When will you judge it and put a stop to it? When will You judge the evil of this world?" How many times must our brothers and sisters who have been imprisoned and tortured for their faith around the world prayed like that! And God has not turned a deaf ear! He has not forgotten those prayers; He remembers them; He has simply said, "Wait!" all these years, but here is the beginning of His answer! Here in heaven when Jesus opens the seventh seal, God begins to pour out His wrath upon the earth. He begins to administer the righteous punishment His people have longed for and:

II. It Unleashes Six Trumpet Judgments On Earth Seven, actually, but there is a delay of 1 ½ chapters before we get to it. Trumpets played an important role in the life of Israel. They were originally a shofar, a ram's horn used to signal the whole camp of Israel and to communicate with the army. But Moses was told to make two trumpets of silver for this. They were blown to announce certain feasts, especially the Feast of Trumpets and the weekly beginning of the Sabbath and to announce important events. So these six angels sound the trumpets of God in heaven to announce and declare God's judgment as it falls upon earth. When the first angel sounds his trumpet:

1. 1/3 of earth's vegetation is burned - 8:7 Do you remember what God did in Egypt? He sent a horrible plague of hailstones that beat down all the crops and vegetation and actually killed any men and animals caught out in it. All through the storm there was lightning striking everywhere. Well, this is far worse. Whatever this hail is, it has the red color of blood and its effect will be wide-ranging fires. Have you seen the pictures of wildfires burning in our country in the news? Acres and acres of scorched earth, no grass, no trees. Can you imagine how many will die in this judgment, what the earth will be like, when a full third of it, more than the entire continents of North and South America combined, is destroyed by fire and becomes uninhabitable? And who knows, maybe we are the regions that get destroyed! Or maybe it is portions here and there throughout the whole earth. But whatever part it is, it's a doomsday scenario that makes science-fiction movies pale in comparison! Then the second angel sounds his trumpet and:

2. 1/3 of earth's seas are devastated - 8:8-9 Something like a giant flaming meteor hits the ocean, filling it with pollutants that turn it blood red and causing huge tidal waves. We're not told where it hits, but it devastates a full third of earth's oceans; that's equivalent to the entirety of the Atlantic Ocean plus a third! Of course, all the fish and sea creature in the affected areas die, 1/3 of all earth's ocean life. Plus, all the ships in those areas are destroyed, 1/3 of all ocean-going vessels. How much of the world's population draws its life from the sea and how many of those will die! But then the third angel sounds his trumpet and:

3. 1/3 of earth's waters are poisoned - 8:10-11 Another meteor-like object falls into earth's atmosphere, this time perhaps shattering and breaking up with particulates being distributed over a huge area. It's named Wormwood, which is a bitter herb that is poisonous in high concentrations, and the effect of this material entering the world's fresh water sources is that a third of the world's drinking water is poisoned. Polluted water already kills thousands each year in the world; just imagine how many multiplied thousands will die drinking poisoned water because they are desperately thirsty! It's not clear whether this is temporary and the waters may clear up after a time as the Nile did back in Egypt, but it's effect will be unimaginable. And then the fourth angel sounds his trumpet and:

4. 1/3 of earth's light is darkened - 8:12-13 Somehow God causes disturbances in the heavens that cause the sun, the moon and the stars to shine less. So, the length of the day is shortened by a third; maybe it only gets light at 9 and gets dark at 3. And a third of the night is pitch black without any light in the sky at all. Oh, imagine the tremendous effects of this on power usage, on growing crops, on ocean tides! One would think that the human race could not miss the point. These four judgments shake the entire world. Whether they occur over weeks or months or even a year, NOBODY will miss them! Nobody will write them off as simple natural disasters. On Aug. 24 in the year 79 AD, a volcano near Naples, Italy named Mt. Vesuvius erupted. The city of Pompeii, which lay to the south, was engulfed by a flood of lava. One historian writes, "Many of the people--chiefly the wealthy--refused to abandon their homes and precious possessions, hoping the horrible calamity would not reach them. The decision cost them their lives. Steadily the hot tide of rock and ashes rose against the doors and windows, burying the victims as they huddled in courtyards and cellars. Poisonous volcanic gases seeped in and killed others who had taken refuge in the upper stories of their homes. Eventually the molten mass of liquid fire crept above the highest rooftops, and Pompeii was destroyed." Today it has been excavated and you can see plaster casts of many inhabitants as they died, huddling in fear. The human race instinctively believes the lie, "It will not happen to me! This thing will not reach me!" As long as they're alive and it hasn't touched them, they refuse to change. And that's why God doesn't stop, even after such brutal devastation, and John hears an eagle flying by in heaven saying that the for the inhabitants of earth the worst is yet to come! So we move into chapter 9 where the fifth angel sounds his trumpet and:

5. many of earth's people are tormented: God sends a plague of locusts - 9:1-12 Now what on earth are these things? They are called locusts, but I think that is simply because there are so many of them. They are obviously not insects; they are the size of horses and have faces, heads and hair and yet have tails like scorpions. They are not like any creatures this world has ever seen, but we are shown where they come from:

a. these are evidently demonic beings released from the pit The Abyss or the Pit is where the demons at Gadar begged Jesus NOT to send them. It is a place where God keeps certain demonic spirits confined until the time appointed for their judgment. But God has them released for His use on this occasion and He controls them closely. They are given specific instructions that they cannot disobey. They cannot cause any further devastation to the environment and they cannot actually kill human beings. Instead, they are given power to:

b. they torture people with pain for 5 months They will sting people with their tails and cause them excruciating agony. I read this post on the internet from a guy who got stung by a tiny little scorpion: Well in my 11 years living in Nevada, last night I was stung twice on my right wrist! The pain is intense, throbbing, and I have pins and needles from my wrist to my fingertips... Its almost 24 hours since the 2 stings and the pain is just as intense. Later he wrote: I was bit Monday night, now its Thursday and my hand is just about back to normal. I did end up going to the doctor... He did say in some cases people who get stung take years for the area to get feeling back, but most get over it in a week or so... man that Scorpion was nasty and painful! Now imagine getting stung by one the size of a horse! No wonder the pain lasts 5 months! It will be pure agony. Those who are bitten will want and hope to die to get out of the pain, but they won't die! Death will elude them! They will have to suffer night and day in agony until it passes. Now, one would think after seeing one of these things and being terrorized by it and then suffering from its sting that people would KNOW this was not some natural disaster but a direct punishment from God and that they would fall on their faces, but even this is not enough. So, the sixth angel sounds his trumpet and when he does the result is that:

6. 1/3 of earth's people are killed: and God does it by means of an army - 9:13-19 Now what is this? In contrast with the "locusts" who come out of the pit and are demonic in origin:

a. this is evidently a human army coming from the east We'll see it mentioned again in 16:12 where we find that there is a drying up of the Euphrates River to prepare the way for the "Kings of the East". It is a huge army; John can't count them but he hears a number, 200 million. No nation on earth has ever fielded an army of 200 million. Where are you going to get that many people and how are you going to support them? Well did you know that way back in 1965 Time magazine quoted Chinese leaders who boasted of their ability to field an army of 200 million! China and the nations of Asia could do it! And notice something else that is unique here:

b. they slay people with their "horses" In the cavalry it is the riders who hold the weapons and fight; the horses just carry them. These are obviously not literal horses. Remember, John lives in the first century. He has never seen a gun or an explosion or anything like it; he has to describe what he sees using terms that he knows. These "horses" sound almost like tanks, don't they, belching fire from the front and spitting machine gun fire from their tails. In any event they are vehicles that humans will invent and this army of 200 million people moves west across all of Asia toward the Middle East to arrive there for the final battle, Armageddon, killing everything in its path and we're told in verse 18 that the effect is that a third of earth's remaining population, today another 2 billion people, are killed.

Listen between the early wars of the tribulation and this great carnage from the east, more than half the world's population lies dead. Vast portions of the earth's surface are devastated and uninhabitable. Nobody will miss the point that these things are acts of God. One would think they would give up everything they have believed and practiced and cry out to God to forgive and help them. But look at:

III. The Sad Result Of These Judgments - 9:20-21

1. the majority of those who survive refuse to give up their idolatrous worship They still worship the statue of the antichrist, still worship demons and pagan idols. Instead of seeing the folly and inability of their false beliefs to help them, they doggedly refuse to give them up. And further:

2. the majority of those who survive refuse to give up their evil practices They keep on murdering one another and stealing from one another to get what they want, keep on following their occult practices, their drug induced states of trance, keep on practicing open sex of every description. They keep on doing what they've been doing all along, EVIL. They don't stop, they don't repent, they don't turn to God even after such fearsome events.

It's hard to imagine a world like that. It's hard to imagine people like that. But without the church, without the presence of Christianity that today influences an entire 1/3 of the world and provides at least some sort of godly influence that brings balance, this is where the world is headed and what its people will be like. Make no mistake; God may use symbolic elements to describe these events, but the events are real. They will come. They can't be ignored and yet people will. On that fateful day when Mt. Vesuvius erupted and buried Pompeii, a young Roman by the name of Pliny was watching from a villa across the bay at Misenum. His uncle, also Pliny, known as the Elder, was commander of the fleet. In a letter to a friend, young Pliny described his uncle's death: "He called for his shoes and climbed up to where he could get the best view of the phenomenon. The cloud was rising from a mountain - at such a distance we couldn't tell which, but afterwards learned that it was Vesuvius. I can best describe its shape by likening it to a pine tree. It rose into the sky on a very long "trunk" from which spread some "branches." I imagine it had been raised by a sudden blast, which then weakened, leaving the cloud unsupported so that its own weight caused it to spread sideways. Some of the cloud was white, in other parts there were dark patches of dirt and ash. He ordered a boat made ready... As he was leaving the house, he was brought a letter from Tascius' wife Rectina, who was terrified by the looming danger. Her villa lay at the foot of Vesuvius, and there was no way out except by boat. She begged him to get her away... He launched the boat and embarked himself, a source of aid for more people than just Rectina, for that delightful shore was a populous one. He hurried to a place from which others were fleeing, and held his course directly into danger. Was he afraid? It seems not, as he kept up a continuous observation of the various movements and shapes of that evil cloud, dictating what he saw. Ash was falling onto the ships now, darker and denser the closer they went. Now it was bits of pumice, and rocks that were blackened and burned and shattered by the fire. Now the sea is shoal; debris from the mountain blocks the shore... At Stabiae, on the other side of the bay formed by the gradually curving shore, Pomponianus had loaded up his ships even before the danger arrived, though it was visible and indeed extremely close, once it intensified. He planned to put out as soon as the contrary wind let up. That very wind carried my uncle right in, and he embraced the frightened man and gave him comfort and courage. In order to lessen the other's fear by showing his own unconcern he asked to be taken to the baths. He bathed and dined, carefree or at least appearing so (which is equally impressive). Meanwhile, broad sheets of flame were lighting up many parts of Vesuvius; their light and brightness were the more vivid for the darkness of the night. To alleviate people's fears my uncle claimed that the flames came from the deserted homes of farmers who had left in a panic with the hearth fires still alight. Then he rested, and gave every indication of actually sleeping; people who passed by his door heard his snores, which were rather resonant since he was a heavy man. The ground outside his room rose so high with the mixture of ash and stones that if he had spent any more time there, escape would have been impossible. He got up and came out, restoring himself to Pomponianus and the others who had been unable to sleep. They discussed what to do, whether to remain under cover or to try the open air. The buildings were being rocked by a series of strong tremors, and appeared to have come loose from their foundations and to be sliding this way and that. Outside, however, there was danger from the rocks that were coming down, light and fire - consumed as these bits of pumice were... They tied pillows on top of their heads as protection against the shower of rock. It was daylight now elsewhere in the world, but there the darkness was darker and thicker than any night. But they had torches and other lights. They decided to go down to the shore, to see from close up if anything was possible by sea. But it remained as rough and uncooperative as before. Resting in the shade of a sail he drank once or twice from the cold water he had asked for. Then came a smell of sulfur, announcing the flames, and the flames themselves, sending others into flight but reviving him. Supported by two small slaves he stood up, and immediately collapsed. As I understand it, his breathing was obstructed by the dust-laden air, and his innards,... simply shut down. When daylight came again two days after he died, his body was found untouched, unharmed, in the clothing that he had had on."

What a graphic picture of what the day of God's wrath will be like on earth. And what shame! This man's own ignorance and arrogance killed him; he did not have sense enough to simply flee from a danger so obvious. And millions will be like him on that awful day when that wrath is poured out. But thank God YOU were not like that. The Scripture says this about you: ...you turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God, and to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead--Jesus, who rescues us from the coming wrath. - 1 Thes. 1:9-10. What we've studied today, dear brothers and sisters, is the coming wrath He's rescued you from. Thank God that like Pliny the younger watching securely from the other side of the bay, you will only watch this wrath safely from heaven like John did. You are rescued! Hallelujah! But all around you are people who are not. What about them?

Revelation: Things To Come

The Word Of God - Ch. 10

Revelation 10 is an interlude, a parenthesis in the middle of the book, a break after the sixth trumpet judgment, where God pauses in the events He's been revealing to John to reinforce for him and for us:

I. Some Truths About Bible Prophecy (1-7) Now put yourself in John's place for a moment. If you had just seen all these visions of terrible judgments coming upon the earth, you would probably be thinking two things, "Can such things as these really be so? Can they actually happen?" And if they will, "When will they happen? When will all of this end?" Well, this mighty angel that John sees is sent to assure John (and us) with absolute certainty that these things will indeed happen and that they will happen and be brought to completion at just the right time, the time that God has appointed. Indeed, when we read of things like a fourth of the earth's population being killed or of a horde of demonic locusts torturing people with pain, our modern minds tend to have the same questions, "Can this be real? Is it actually possible?" So, let's look at what we just read and see what God is saying to reassure us. First of all:

1. God is in absolute control of everything This glorious angel just looks SO powerful and in verse 2 he takes his stance on the sea and on the land. It's a stance of ownership, of control, and when he shouts, the heavens answer with thunder. What does all that mean? God is in control of the earth, the sea and the heavens, the whole universe! He created it and He controls it; it obeys Him today just the way it obeyed Him when His command brought it into existence. God is God and nothing is impossible for Him. The things God says will happen, He has the power to make happen, however:

2. God has chosen not to reveal many things to us In verse (4) seven thunders spoke in loud voices to John yet God tells him not to write it down, but rather to “seal it up” and keep it to himself. Why? God does not tell us everything. He does not spell out for us every detail of His plan. He reveals to us only what we need to know. The things He hasn’t revealed we must leave with Him and trust Him that we are best off not knowing them. Speculating about things that God has not clearly revealed has always been a dangerous pastime in the church and has led to all kinds of disasters. What we need to focus on is this:

3. what God has revealed is as dependable as His own character In verse (6) the angel takes an oath. He swears by Him who lives forever and ever, who created the heavens and the earth and the sea... that all these things will happen and come to a completion. An oath depends on the nature of the one who is sworn by. If God is eternal and God did indeed create the universe, then just as surely, everything He has said will happen WILL happen! Do you get that? What He has revealed is as dependable as His own character, His own nature. We’re convinced that God is eternal; we’re convinced He created the very earth we stand on and the heavens we look at. Just as surely, everything He has revealed will come to pass, no matter how crazy or unlikely it may seem to us. If God is God, then His Word is dependable and:

4. what God has said will come to pass at the time He has planned It may be a mystery to us, a hidden thing, but according to verse (7) it will be accomplished just as He has announced it. It will arrive right on schedule in His Divine plan. The best illustration of this that I can think of is Gal. 4:4 (NASB), But when the fulness of the time came, God sent forth His Son, born of a woman... The prophecy, the promise of the Christ, stood for centuries. Some sparse details were revealed to Isaiah and to Micah, that a virgin would conceive and bear a son and that he would come out of Bethlehem. And that’s about all, but when the exact right time came in God’s plan, God sent forth His Son, born of a woman. The birth of Christ is one of the greatest proofs we have that God keeps His Word, that what He says will happen, will indeed happen! And the same God who made that promise also says that He will send His Son back again to reign! He’s given us some scanty details of how in Revelation, but we can rest assured that His timetable is right on schedule and all these things will happen when the fulness of the time comes!

Now let’s move on to the second half of the chapter, verses (8-11). Notice that the angel has a little scroll in his hand which is open or unrolled. The scroll is evidently a record of the things John is going to say or write down further in the rest of his book. Note the word again in verse 11. Now John is going to go back over again the same events he’s already seen, but in more detail. Chapters 11-19 will cover the same ground as 6-9. The big scroll Christ is opening in 6-9 gives the macroscopic view, the overview; the little scroll in 11-19 is the microscopic view, the things that don’t appear clearly in the bigger picture. But the little scroll IS the Word of God and what does John do with it? He EATS it so he can give it out to us! So, in that little scene we learn:

II. Some Truths About The Word Of God that are really a great reminder for us. First of all, like John:

1. we are commanded to take it (8) God’s voice from heaven commanded John to go get it and take it. Likewise, His voice commands us in Josh. 1:8, Do not let this Book of the Law depart from your mouth; meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it... Those very first believers in Acts devoted themselves every day to the Word of God and prayer. They listened daily to the apostles teaching what Jesus had said; they didn’t have a Bible to read for themselves, but you and I do! What a precious privilege! God told John to write down all that he saw so YOU could read it! God Himself wants you to read His Word! And here’s a note of encouragement:

2. we can understand it In both verses (2, 8) the scroll is lying open, unsealed and unrolled in the angel’s hand. It reminds me of what Moses said, The secret things belong to the LORD our God, but the things revealed belong to us and to our children forever, that we may follow all the words of this law. - Deut. 29:29. God didn’t give us this precious Book to confuse us, to confound us. He gave it to us to follow! We CAN understand it. We can know what God wants. We CAN understand His instructions; we don’t have to have some expert to tell us all it means. However:

3. we must make the effort to get it (9) The angel didn’t grab John and shove it down his throat. He had to make the effort to go ask for it and take it and we must make the effort too, the effort to set aside time regularly every day to read the Word, the effort to study it sincerely with a desire to understand it, the effort to stop and look up hard words, the effort to listen and look for what the Holy Spirit is saying to us personally through it. If you’re looking for a New Year’s resolution that will change your life, here’s a habit you can build in and develop that will do just that. I challenge you to set aside the time to read or listen to God’s Word regularly, daily if at all possible! But we can’t do it mechanically. The next thing John does in the vision is to eat the scroll, literally. What that says to us is that:

4. we must ingest it (9), internalize it, take it to heart. It will do us no good if we simply read for reading’s sake, as though we can say to God, “There, I read my daily chapter. I did my duty.” No, we must think about what we read and memorize important parts and ponder how to apply it in our lives. We must let it transform us and direct us and guide us and warn and admonish us. It won’t always be a fun thing; in fact, like John:

5. we will find it both sweet and bitter (9-10) In his mouth it tasted sweet as honey but it upset his stomach. As we read things like Rev. 4-5 and that glorious description of the throne room of heaven, they will be sweeter than honey to us. But as we read things like 8-9 and the judgments coming on the earth, it will seem bitter to us. In this book we find both heaven and hell, suffering and glory, comfort and conviction, encouragement and admonishment. Both sweet and bitter things are needed in our lives. And finally, verse 11 reminds us that:

6. we must share it with others (11) This vision was not given to John to keep to himself, but to share with others. Likewise, the Word of God is not given to benefit us alone; it is for us to share with others. As we ingest and absorb it and it touches us, God wants to use it to touch others through us as we share it.

We just don't realize the power and the importance of the Word of God! This was brought home to me in an extremely powerful way during my trip to Kyrgyzstan in 2008. Since I've never had the opportunity to report to you about that trip, let me just share with you the stories of a few of the Kyrgyz pastors that I visited and have been keeping in touch with ever since.

Almaz was our driver and translator for that week: My uncle was the head mullah for all of Naryn. I was under his tutelage, learning Arabic and the Quran. My older brother believed in '94 and started spreading the word to us and others in our village. I was very angry with him and prayed, "God, what do you want me to do? If you tell me to kill him, I will." But there was no answer. For two years I didn't even talk to him. I was told that Baptists knew some spells and brainwashing techniques, but I was curious about the change in my brother's life. One day when no one was around I saw his New Testament on the table. I read a little bit but when I heard someone coming, I quickly put it back down and acted as if I was just sitting there thinking. I had read enough to get interested, and every night I would sneak the New Testament from my brother's room, read a little, and put it back. I read the whole New Testament a few times and then asked my brother for some more books. An influential one was McDowell's, More Than a Carpenter. I really started searching after I read that. Pastor Kairbek visited one day in '96 at the Baptist church and my brother persuaded me to go. As soon as I stepped into the room where he was speaking, I felt joy in my spirit and a sense that the truth is here. I asked the people there what to do since I now believed. They said I had to repent, but it needed to happen on Sunday so I should come back then. I did that and made a list of friends and relatives to tell. Today Almaz is a pastor and leader of an extensive house church movement.

Kubanychbek say: In '94 I was in debt. My second son was just born, my wife still in the hospital and I was out of work. I was lying in bed thinking about life and what I have done. You can lie to other people about that but not yourself. I was thinking about God's judgment after death. I wanted my sins to stay here when I went to God. I heard something like a voice saying, "Come." I knew it was God and that I was going NOW instead of 100 years from now, as I had always been thinking. There was no time to think. In fear I said, "When?" but I was thinking, "Where can I hide?" I was getting ready to go and I realized in my panic I had put on four pairs of pants, one over the other. I fell on my knees and said, "I'm a sinner." Then I saw a scene [vision] where God came to earth and all people were bowing before him. I woke up. After that I started looking at all religions, Islam, Hare Krishna, and the Orthodox. After a month, God guided my steps to this place in the south, to the first [evangelical] church I had actually set foot in. The Korean pastor told me of Christ and said to accept him but inside I was against it; I was afraid of God. I looked for something bad in Christ to use as an excuse to turn him down, but I couldn't find it. Something inside me was saying, "Don't accept it! Don't accept it!" I said, "I have no reason not to." The voice stopped. I knew the Muslims could report on Muhammad's faults, but the believers could not do that for Christ. Then I asked for some water to wash myself and I accepted Christ. After I believed, I started reading the Bible. I had accepted Christ as a prophet. I was thinking I would go all the way through the Bible and then keep on looking at other faiths, aiming to come up with a new religion that would satisfy me. We (the pastor and I) began in Genesis. When we got to Lev. 11, I realized I was a believer and not a Muslim. The chapter is about what is clean and unclean. The Quran also talks about purity but not like this. I realized that comparing the Quran to the Bible is like comparing "Adidas" sneakers made in China [fakes] with an Adidas original [the real thing]!

Aytu was a boxer and had dreams of becoming a world champion, but then he started pondering it, thinking, what would it mean if he did? People had told him about Jesus but he wasn't interested. They gave him a Bible and when he opened it, he just started to read in Ecclesiastes where it says, "Vanity of vanities; all is vanity!" In other words, life is totally meaningless apart from God! It hooked him completely because it dealt with his big question and eventually brought him to Christ.

Gany is an incredible young man: I was a difficult little boy. Mom told dad to discipline me. He said he was too busy with work so they should send me to a madrassa in the South of Kyrgyzstan at age 8. The first of the four years I behaved well because I was afraid of God. The second year I lost my fear and resumed my bad behavior, but I was still a good student and at the end of the 4 years I was one of the top 4 boys with the best Arabic and knowledge of the Quran. They said I should go home for a year and then they would send me to Saudi Arabia for further study. My family was delighted with me. They also told me they had some good news; my older sister had gotten married. I went to visit her and found her and her husband praying on their living room couch in Kyrgyz. I knew this was not right. They said they were believers and were praying for me. They wanted to give me an Injil [New Testament]. I said many bad things to my sister, and I told myself I never wanted to go back there again. I had been taught at the madrassa that my whole family will go to hell if I ac- cept Christ. I didn't want to go to hell for my sister's apostasy so I tried to think of a way to show her the error of her ways. I decided I would go back, accept the gift of the Injil, read it, and then explain the errors in it to her. I put the Quran and the Bible side by side and began to compare Mohammed and Jesus on about 20 points. I got an Arabic biography of Mohammed, which included a lot of things I did not admire, like going to war and accepting the gift of a 9-year-old girl as his third wife. But the biography of Jesus in the gospels was amazing. I had nothing to say to my sister on the day I next visited. She invited me to come to their meeting that evening at 6. I refused and went away but a voice in me kept saying, "6:00, 6:00, 6:00." I called my friends to get together at that time, which normally would have been easy, but they were all busy. At 6:00 I went. I didn't actually hear any of the words but I felt that God was close. Another time I went to her birthday party and there were a lot of believers there. I asked them questions about Mohammed and Jesus but they did not know Islam well enough to answer so I started answering my own questions. Then they said to me, "Then why don't you accept Jesus?" I did. It was 1992 and I was 14. The year was up and the madrassa called me back to go to Saudi. I told them that I believed and they instantly kicked me out. They called my dad and said, "Your son is crazy." He was going to beat me but I asked him to watch my life for one month. He did, and afterward he made no objection to my faith.

Finally, here is Sharshenbek: I am from Naryn. My brother believed first and prayed for me for a long time. I used to forbid him to spread the news when he would come to the village. After moving to Bishkek I started working in a factory with some Baptists. I'd rebuke them, call them traitors, tell them they were fooled by Americans who were "taking their money". I thought that Baptists were zombies. I was afraid to go to any of their meetings lest I come under a spell. I was curious but afraid. I was also in a difficult time. I had my own house and business but I lost it all in about ten days. I took a mortgage on my house at the 20 som/$ rate; it shot up to 38 som/$ in a few days and I lost everything. I considered suicide. I went to the mosque. For a long time, I had thought about serving God there. I thought it would draw me closer to God, but when I went, I didn't like it. They said if you die as a Muslim, you will see a river of milk and honey and you will have many beautiful wives. I said this is a fairy tale. Even as a child I didn't believe that kind of bunk. Another thing I didn't like was that the mullahs never went out from the mosque like the Baptists did to spread their ideas. Everybody had to come to them. I started asking myself which was the true way. My sisters and my older brother were believers at that time. They were afraid to talk to me about it, but they did give me a children's Bible. I read it and got the Good News that way. I didn't know Islam well so I didn't know how to decide what was true. I was saying, "God, if I die tomorrow, I don't know where I will go. If someone kills me or I die in an accident, I won't have a chance to ask for forgiveness before I die. God, these people don't agree concerning the truth. My ancestors were Muslims. God, reveal the true path and I will go there." My wife had also believed before this. I told her that if I saw her going to a church meeting, I would break her leg. My wife's sister lived with us at the time and she also became a believer. One day she came home late and said she had been at a church meeting. I kicked her out and told her to go live with the Baptists. After some time, I had a dream about an empty tent in the wilderness. There was a rock to sit on, a wooden bowl, and a bow (and arrow) hanging up. I realized it was John the Baptist's house. A voice spoke but there was no one there. It said, "My son, for how long will you be running away from me. Come to me." I woke up and gave my life to God. I didn't want to tell this to my wife but I asked her when their meetings were being held. I went to the meeting and accepted Christ.

All these guys are pastors and I've been calling them regularly with a translator to encourage them. They all face situations so much more difficult than anything we know. But do you see the power of the Word of God in each of these lives? Listen to Heb. 4:12, For the word of God is living and active. Sharper than any double-edged sword, it penetrates even to dividing soul and spirit, joints and marrow; it judges the thoughts and attitudes of the heart. The Word of God you hold in your hand today is living; it is powerful. It pierces hearts and changes lives! Will you make the effort to take it in, to listen to it, to read it, to internalize it and apply it, and to share it with others?

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: Two Witnesses - Ch. 11

Today we enter Chapter 11. By way of a quick review, in chapters 6-7 John saw 7 seals opened and received a broad overview of the 7 year period we've come to call the Tribulation. It is a 7 year period between the day that the Church is taken out of the world to meet Christ in heaven at the Rapture and the day that He returns to the earth to set up His Kingdom. During this period God will pour out His wrath in mighty judgments. In chapters 8-9 John saw 6 angels sound trumpets in heaven and each one unleashed another of these devastating events. Then after the sixth trumpet in chapter 10 came an interlude, where in his vision John was given a book to eat and we learned some lessons about the power of the Word of God. But in the last verse of that chapter, John was told that he must prophesy AGAIN about many peoples, nations, languages and kings. In this next section of the book through chapter 19, God is going back to reveal to John a more detailed view of this whole period and the events that occur during it. Now, the fact is that God is not simply going to judge the world during this time of tribulation, but He is going get an immense amount of glory for Himself by reaping a tremendous harvest of souls in the midst of it. We saw them back in chapter 7, this great multitude in heaven who were martyred during that time. But how do they come to believe? At the beginning, the church is gone; all believers are in heaven; there is nobody on earth to tell them! Chapter 11 reveals to us that during this time, under the worst possible conditions the world has ever known, God will use tremendous supernatural means to bring people to faith. The first thing you'll notice is that this vision shows us that:

I. God Will Have A Temple In Jerusalem (1-2) Now think for a moment. John saw this vision just after 90 AD. Was there a Temple in Jerusalem to measure? No, it was destroyed by the Romans in 70 AD! From that day to this there has never been a Temple in Jerusalem. There is only one portion of one wall of it left, known as the "Wailing Wall". In fact, on the mount where it once stood now stands a mosque known as "The Dome of the Rock" built in 691 AD, the third holiest Islamic site in the world! But God isn't showing John what was then or what is today; He's showing him what WILL BE in those final 7 years of history. So, the fact that John sees a temple and John sees worshippers tells us that:

1. the temple will be rebuilt and used for half of the tribulation That number, 42 months, is 3 ½ years. No matter what stands on that site today, one day it will come down. God's Temple will be rebuilt once again by Israel on this spot; it can be built nowhere else because this is the place of which God said that He would set His Name there forever. And oh, how the Jewish people have been waiting and longing to build it down through the centuries! Ever since they became a nation again in 1948, it has been the desire of their hearts. If they did it today, it would ignite World War III, but one day they will. How? Well, earlier in our study we read Dan. 9:27, He [the world leader or antichrist] will confirm a covenant with many for one `seven' [that is, one 7 year period]. In the middle of the `seven' he will put an end to sacrifice and offering. And on a wing [of the temple] he will set up an abomination that causes desolation, until the end that is decreed is poured out on him. As he comes to power, this leader of the western world will make a covenant with the Jewish nation. They will build their Temple. They will offer sacrifices and offerings daily once again! But right in the middle, at the 3 ½ year mark, he will break his covenant and desecrate that Temple by putting his own statue up in it and proclaiming himself to be God. And from that point:

2. it will be desecrated for the second half along with the city of Jerusalem It will be overrun by the nations and trampled underfoot. Look what Jesus said when His disciples asked Him to tell them the sign of His coming in Mt. 24:15-16, 21. In that moment the Jews will realize who this man is and they will flee to the mountains in hiding. Many of them will believe in Christ and form a believing remnant of Israel that we'll see again in chapter 12. But let's not miss the point of these verses; this scene is before that awful moment and in his vision, John is given a reed to use as a measuring rod and told to measure the Temple and count the worshippers. However, did you notice he doesn't report any measurements or numbers? And then notice also that he is not to measure the outer court; that part is going to be desecrated and trampled by the nations; God has given it to them. He measures the inner Temple, the Holy Place and the Holy of Holies; evidently God plans to keep that part for Himself. You see, measuring implies ownership. He measures what belongs to Him! So, what's the point? I think it's this:

3. God is in complete control of what happens to it Man does not succeed in "ousting God" from His own house! God causes it to be built and used, God determines that a portion of it will be defiled and desecrated and trampled underfoot, and God preserves a portion of it safe in the midst of it all by His power. He's in complete control. He will use the very desecration of His own Temple to be a tremendous and powerful means of witness to the Jewish people to bring them to faith. But for the rest of the nations of the world God has planned to do something more specific and graphic. We read in verses 3-14 that:

II. God Will Have Two Witnesses That Impact The World (3-4) Here is how God is really going to get the message out. He will have two witnesses (Greek, martyrs), two special individuals that He plans to use in a tremendous way. I believe that:

1. they will be two literal persons That phrase, these are the two olive trees and the two lampstands, comes from a vision that God showed Zechariah in chapter 4 of the book that bears his name. In Zechariah's day after the Babylonian Exile, God used two special people to rebuild His temple and restore worship and anointed them with the power of His Spirit; they were Zerubbabel the governor and Joshua the High Priest. But the final and complete fulfillment will occur during the tribulation period. God will have two other men to be His Spirit-empowered witnesses to the world and their ministry will last for a period of 1260 days, which is (you guessed it!) 3 ½ years, half of the Tribulation period. Now it doesn't say which half and Bible students have been divided in their opinions over this and over the whole chapter, but what makes the most sense to me as I try to understand it is that their witness occurs during the first half of the Tribulation period. I'll show you why later but notice this:

2. they will have supernatural powers (5-6) Now who does that sound like? Who called down fire from heaven twice when the king's soldiers came to capture him? Elijah! And who prayed that it wouldn't rain and it didn't rain for (coincidentally) 3 ½ years? Elijah! And who turned the water into blood and struck Egypt with every kind of plague? Moses! Just as God empowered Elijah and Moses in their day to do supernatural miracles for their own protection and for a witness to the world, these two men will display the power of God in supernatural miracles as they proclaim to the world the truth of the Gospel. In fact, I think there's a good chance that they actually ARE Elijah and Moses sent back again. Why? Well, why did Jesus meet with Elijah and Moses on the Mount of Transfiguration if God was done using them? Elijah never died, remember? He went to heaven in a whirlwind. Maybe God plans to send him back! Maybe that's why Malachi says that God will send Elijah the prophet before the great and terrible day of the Lord comes and even Jesus said that Elijah WILL come again! And then there's that crazy little verse in Jude 9 where it says that Michael the archangel had a dispute with Satan over the body of Moses. Why on earth would God want Moses' body? Genesis says that "God buried it." What if He's preserved it somewhere all these centuries because He plans to send Moses back again! Well, whether it is literally these two men or two others who are very much like them:

3. their impact will be worldwide Verse (9) clearly shows that what happens to them will be known and seen by every people, tribe, language and nation. How on earth is that even possible? How can two people in one place be seen by the whole world? Well, did you watch the evening news last night? You know, for 1900 years there was no way in which this verse could be literally true. However, in our generation God has wired the world by satellite and internet. Today I can sit in my office and talk live to a friend in China and see her on my computer screen! I can watch on my TV what is happening live right now anywhere on earth with a satellite uplink. Maybe God has wired the world so that in the end times His messengers will be shown on the evening news all over the world, so that the entire world can listen to them and see what happens to them and the miraculous thing God does. And maybe God has wired the whole world so that every eye can see at once the return of His Son in glory as He sets foot on the Mount of Olives outside Jerusalem! Well, pardon my digression there, but here's what will happen to these two:

4. they will be attacked and killed by the world leader [antichrist] (7-10) The beast is the world leader whom we'll meet in detail in chapter 13. Even though their supernatural spiritual power will protect them through the 3 ½ years of their ministry, when God has done all He wants to do through them, he will allow this leader to attack them and overpower them and actually kill them. Their bodies will lie unburied in the street of the city of Jerusalem. Can't you just see CNN panning cameras over their bodies every day as a worldwide holiday is declared? The enemies of the state are dead; those who tormented us and stood against us are lying there. People will send each other gifts like it's Christmas! These two prophets will be hated by the world in general like the US hated Osama Bin Laden and their deaths will be celebrated for 3 ½ days, but then suddenly, look at (11-12):

5. they will be resurrected and ascend to heaven Boy, can you imagine watching the news that day as some reporter comes on and the cameras pan their dead bodies for the thousandth time and suddenly, they get up and stand on their feet?! Instantly terror is struck into the hearts of the watching world; they're overcome with fear of a God who raises the dead! And then, as the cameras roll, a voice thunders from heaven and says, "Come up here!" and they ascend up into the air until they vanish from sight in the clouds, just like Jesus did. And they do it while all their enemies watch! What a powerful testimony! Just as God proved to all men that Jesus was who He said He was, the Son of God, by raising Him from the dead, so He will prove to all men that what these witnesses said for 3 ½ years was true by raising them from the dead in the sight of the whole world and many around the world will believe, some from every tribe, tongue and nation. These folks believe and are later martyred for their faith by the world leader. That's where the great multitude or martyrs comes from in chapter 7! So:

6. their ultimate impact will be to turn many to Christ (13-14) God has one more dramatic turn to add. As the cameras continue to roll looking up into the sky there in Jerusalem there is a severe earthquake. The cameras shake and fall over. A tenth of the buildings in the city crumble and fall. 7,000 people lose their lives. And at last, there is a note of hope; the survivors in the city finally give glory to the God of heaven!!

It sounds to me like this whole scene plays out at the midpoint of the Tribulation. For 3 ½ years these two witnesses give out the Word and are unstoppable, but at the midpoint, the antichrist reveals himself, sets up his statue in the Temple, demands that the world worship him, and then successfully attacks and kills them. But God raises them and sends the earthquake and together these things are what cause the remnant of the nation of Israel to finally believe that Jesus is their true Messiah and that they missed Him, as they are fleeing into the wilderness to hide! Listen, even in the darkest, deepest places God does not leave Himself without a witness! We look at it and think there are places so hard, so difficult, so resistant, so godless, that it is impossible for people to hear the Gospel; nobody there will ever get to believe. And we read things like this, supernatural interventions, and we wonder, "Can God really do things like this anymore?" But friends, He is! All over the world, even today, He is doing them! LuAnn and I were attending a funeral a few years ago for one of her relatives at a little church near Harrisburg and during an idle moment I was chatting with the pastor about missions and he told me this story. There was a woman who began to attend his church who was from Ghana, West Africa. She had come to this country and was working for a personal care service for the elderly. She shared with him how she had become a believer. She was a devout Muslim in her home country and after many years she had saved up enough money to go on the Hajj, the pilgrimage to Mecca. So, there she was in Mecca, the holiest place in all Islam, where no Christian is allowed to enter, with thousands of other pilgrims participating in worship near the Kaaba, the sacred black stone and Jesus appeared to her! She immediately knew who He was and He said to her, "You're looking in the wrong place!" She went back home and found someone to share with her and believed in Jesus! Story after story like this comes out of the most difficult places in the world today. Jesus is alive and He will not leave Himself without a witness, not even after His church is taken out, not even in the Tribulation period. Even then, during Satan's final attempt to steal the entirety of the human race in that generation away from God, condemn every last soul of them to hell, and claim full dominion over this world, God will still raise up a vast multitude from every people and language to believe! And then, when He's all done:

III. God Will Set Up His Kingdom On The Earth (15-19) Now the seventh angel sounds his trumpet and John sees a whole new thing in his vision. And what you need to understand is that:

1. this is a preview of the events detailed in chapter 19 We've been in an interlude, a parenthesis, and here at verse 14 John's vision is actually picking the story back up where it left off at the end of chapter 9. 9:12 says the first "woe" is the demonic locust horde unleashed by the fifth trumpet. The second "woe" must be the invading army from the east unleashed by the sixth trumpet and the third woe will soon happen when the seventh trumpet sounds and it will be the return of Christ Himself. It's described in detail in chapter 19, but here we are given only a preliminary glimpse of that moment, not from the earthly viewpoint at all, rather:

2. in it we see the worship of all heaven at Christ's return They're shouting those amazing words forever embedded in our memories by Handel in that majestic chorus in his "Messiah", The Kingdom of this world is become the Kingdom of our Lord and of His Christ and He shall reign forever and ever! Hallelujah! Oh, how great the rejoicing will be in heaven when Jesus at last leaves to take the earth back once for all and set up His Kingdom! And we're there! We're the 24 elders, the church, and we're falling on our faces and worshipping Him and giving Him thanks because:

3. in it we see the purpose of Christ's return (17)

a. it will be time for Him to rule the earth at last Satan has too long held dominion; it is time for Him to come and take His rightful Throne and rule the world. And verse 18 says:

b. it will be time to raise and reward His servants Oh, how the saints of all the ages have waited for this day, but how much the millions we have seen in heaven who have been martyred during this horrible period, who've been crying out "How long, O Lord? How long must we wait?" have longed for it! And when the trumpet sounds it will be time to receive their resurrected bodies and be rewarded. And at last:

c. it will be time to destroy those who destroy the earth, to put Satan and his world leader and all the leaders of the nations who have turned the earth into their evil playground for so long, who have perverted it from God's intended purpose, to put them out of business and bring them to an end once and for all.

No wonder all of heaven will celebrate! This is the grand and glorious culmination of all of human history. It is so hard for us to imagine what it will be like. Words fall short. The best that I can think I can think of is this; I heard a song by Travis Cottrell, a wonderful new song that imagines that pictures the scene in heaven at the birth of Christ and follows it through to His return. It's called, "In The First Light" You can hear it at this link:

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: Israel's Place - Ch. 12

There has always been a great deal of confusion in the church about the nation of Israel. After all, in the whole of the Old Testament which we treasure and believe, Israel is God's chosen people. But when Christ came, she rejected and crucified Him and became the enemy of the church. So, it has been really easy for the church to simply conclude that the church took Israel's place, that she is His new people and that's that, end of story. And what made it easier is that for 1900 years there was no nation called Israel. In 70 AD Rome destroyed Jerusalem and much of the Jewish race was scattered to the four winds, literally over the whole world. But in 1948 she came home! Jews from all over the world came back to their homeland and the nation was reborn. And not only is she a nation again, she's on the nightly news; she's the focus of world attention, and anger! So, what about Israel? Does she still have a special relationship to God or not? Well, in Rev. 12, God reveals to John in his vision the place that Israel has in His plan, both anciently and in the end-time tribulation period. We're told twice (verses 1 and 3) that what John sees in this chapter are "signs"; they are symbolic representations seen in heaven that describe earthly realities. The first half of the chapter displays for us the ancient part of God's purpose:

I. God's Plan For Israel To Bring Forth Christ (1-5) The first character we meet in this drama in symbol is:

1. the pregnant woman (1-2) She is really royal looking, clothed with the sun and with the moon under her feet and a crown with 12 stars. Now who would she represent? Well, do you remember one time when he was young, Joseph had a dream in Gen. 37:9-10 and in that dream he saw the sun, the moon and 11 stars bowing down to him and his father knew what it meant. The sun and moon were his parents and the 11 stars his brothers. So, the sun, moon and 12 stars would easily symbolize the entire family of Jacob, whose other name was Israel! The real clue is that in verse 5 this woman brings forth a Child who is to rule the nations and that has to be Christ, so the point is that:

a. God used her to bring Christ into the world - Rom. 9:5 says about Israel, Theirs are the patriarchs, and from them is traced the human ancestry of Christ, who is God over all, forever praised! God granted to the nation of Israel the high and holy privilege of being the people who would give the world His Son, their Savior. And John sees her pregnant and in the throes of labor about to give birth. Well, that probably represents:

b. her suffering for years before Christ came For almost 600 years Israel suffered as a conquered nation under the Babylonians, the Persians, the Greeks and finally, the Romans. Just before the time of Christ, she was able to throw off the yoke for a brief period, but then the heavy hand of Rome fell upon her and at the time when Christ came on the scene she was yearning, travailing in pain, deeply anguished, wanting her Messiah, her Deliverer to come. But there is a second actor in this drama:

2. the red dragon (3-4) He's enormous, giant and he's red. If you want to know who he is, just look at verse 9. He is Satan, the ancient serpent who was around in the garden and ever since has been the great enemy of God and of God's people. That phrase about his tail sweeping 1/3 of the stars out of the sky is controversial, but has often been taken to mean that 1/3 of the angelic host fell with him in his original rebellion against God and became the demonic hosts under his control today. But in this vision as a dragon he has a particular appearance. He is a huge beast with 7 heads, 10 horns and 7 crowns on his heads. We'll be seeing that again in chapter 13 and again in 17. Without explaining it fully now, let me simply say that his form here is meant to advertise:

a. his control over the nations His heads and horns represent an empire of kingdoms and we'll see later on that it will be a revived form of the Roman Empire, the very empire that was in power at the time of Christ's birth. Satan was in control of the Empire that ruled the world and he stood before Israel waiting to use his earthly vassals to carry out:

b. his intent, which was to destroy Christ after His birth. Satan could not stop Christ from coming, from being born, but he could do his best to destroy him afterwards. How did he do it? He began by using an unscrupulous, crazed, power-mad Roman pawn king by the name of Herod and stirred him up by the visit of some innocent wise men from the east to order the slaughter of every male infant in Bethlehem! And he ended up using the insane jealousy of the highest of Israel's religious leaders to deliver him over to a Roman governor named Pontius Pilate who ordered Him to be crucified. Acts 4:27 says, Indeed Herod and Pontius Pilate met together with the Gentiles and the people of Israel in this city to conspire against your holy servant Jesus, whom you anointed. It was a conspiracy, a Satanic plot to destroy Jesus, to devour Him, to swallow Him up in death. But I'm ahead of myself; the third actor in this drama is:

3. the male Child, who is obviously Christ (5) You see, this conspiracy is all about:

a. His destiny He is destined to rule the nations, to rule the world. God had said so in Ps. 2:8-9, Ask of me, and I will make the nations your inheritance, the ends of the earth your possession. You will rule them with an iron scepter; you will dash them to pieces like pottery. Christ was born to rule the world, to be King over all kings. But Satan hated that! Ever since Adam had handed the authority over to him in the Garden, he had been the prince of this world. And he wanted to keep it forever. He wanted to be king. So, when Christ was born, he conspired to kill him, to put him to death and I guess he thought he had succeeded! He even had his Roman henchmen post a guard at the tomb to make sure Christ stayed in there! But the joke was on him! In the last part of verse 5 we have:

b. His ascension and exaltation God raised Him from the dead! I don't think Satan really believed that was going to happen, but God did it and caught Him up to Heaven and seated Him on the throne of the universe and in the process provided salvation for the entire human race. Satan ended up doing exactly what [God's] power and will had decided beforehand should happen - Acts 4:28! Hallelujah!

But let me get back to our major point. God used Israel ultimately to bring Christ into the world. He sent His Son to His own people, but His own people didn't receive Him. They refused and rejected Him. And even after He rose from the dead and He sent the apostles to them with the news, they rejected them. So, at that point there was a dramatic change in God's dealing with them as a nation. There is a huge gap in time, nearly 2000 years, between the end of verse 5 and what happens in verse 6. And that gap represents:

II. God's Rejection Of Israel During The Present Church Age It is described for us in Rom. 11:25-26. Here's what that means:

1. Israel was set aside nationally while God uses the church to reach all nations After their full rejection, their temple was destroyed, their holy city was destroyed and the people of Israel were scattered to the very ends of the earth. The focus of this age is found in Jesus' words: I will build my church! God's use of Israel as a nation is paused, put on hold. Today there is no difference between Jew and Gentile. Both are called to faith in Jesus and when we believe, that dividing wall of Jewish ethnicity is broken down; we're all on the same plane. We are one body of believers, Jew and Gentile alike, one church. Now this brings up an interesting point of application. How should I regard the nation of Israel today? The answer is in 11:28-29. As far as the Gospel is concerned, they are on the other side of the fence. They are unbelievers and enemies of the Gospel. But at the same time, they are beloved because they are the one people on earth that God has chosen to claim as His own out of all the rest. We love Israel and long for their salvation! As we sit here today Israel is in a war. Susan Estrich wrote this in her Thursday column: The world is quick to condemn her as the casualties mount. "Go back to the oven," the woman in her hijab in Fort Lauderdale, FL, yelled to the Jewish Americans demonstrating their support for Israel. "You need a big oven, that's what you need." Israel is ti- ny. If you live in Massachusetts, as I did ...imagine Rhode Island being in the hands of those who are committed to destruction, sending rockets over your common border. If you live in Los Angeles, as I do now, imagine San Diego being not only a different state, but a committed enemy whose official government has long been listed as a terrorist organization. How do you live like that? How do you raise your children knowing that, when they graduate from high school, they will go to war against those who do not place the same value on human life as you do, fighting people who send their children to be suicide bombers? Amid the violence in Gaza, Israel stopped shooting for three hours yesterday to allow the people to get food and supplies, to allow trucks with medical supplies to deliver them in safety. Imagine Hamas doing the same thing to help Israeli civilians. I cannot. Not for a minute. I do not always like everything Israel does. I do not always like everything my own country does. But I love Israel for the determination and courage of its people in standing up to the terrorists who would destroy it.... Maybe that will help give a little perspective to the current situation, but that's not why I love Israel. I love Israel because GOD loves Israel. He set His love upon her forever. For a time, He set her aside in His plan to reach the world, but His eye is on her yet and He who touches her touches the apple of His eye. And there's more, God is not done with Israel as a nation. In fact:

2. God's plan for Israel resumes when the church is removed In Dan. 9:25-27 God made this very clear. He declared that 70 "sevens", 70 periods of 7 years, would sum up the entirety of His plan for Israel as a nation. After 69 of those periods, He told Daniel that Messiah would be cut off, that is, die, and if you calculate it, the death of Christ happened right on schedule! At that point the clock stopped ticking for Israel. However, He also said that the people of the prince that would come in the future would destroy the city and the Temple (which the Romans did) and that desolations and war would continue until the time of the end. And then, when the fulness of the harvest of the nations has been brought in by the church, the clock starts ticking once again! The 70th seven, the final 7 year period, begins, which we call the Tribulation. God begins to deal with Israel as a national identity once again. We already saw last week in chapter 11 that:

a. she will have a Temple and offer sacrifices again - Rev. 11:1 The world leader, the Antichrist, will make a covenant with her and she'll build her temple and offer sacrifices for 3 ½ years. But at the midpoint, the Antichrist will break his covenant, set up his statue in the Temple to desecrate it and through that:

b. God will open her blinded eyes and bring many Israelites to faith in Jesus In fact, we saw in Rev. 11:13 that there will be a great earthquake and the survivors in the city of Jerusalem will turn to God in faith and give Him glory. Now, all that happens after verse 5 in our text and that's the moment at which the story picks up again in verse 6. What we see in the rest of the chapter is:

III. God's Rescue Of Israel During The Tribulation Period (6-17) We are told five things that will happen during the final period before Christ returns to earth. First:

1. Israel will flee to the wilderness (6) Jesus gave them the instructions for this 2000 years ago in Mt. 24:15-21. Israel will flee en masse; she will run toward the desert. When they realize who the antichrist really is and who Jesus really was, they will flee. They will leave their homes and not take anything with them. They will flee as hard and as fast as they can toward the wilderness, the desert, the south of Judea, to get away and save their lives. Now hold that thought and here's the second thing that will happen:

2. there will be a great war in the heavenly realms (7-12) Now, I don't pretend to understand this completely, but somehow:

a. Satan has continued to have heavenly access to accuse us Verse (10) says that this has been a continual practice of his. You can actually see him doing it in the prologue to the book of Job, standing before God and accusing him. For whatever reason, God has chosen to allow him continued access to the heavenly realms. But at this moment, when Satan's man sits in God's temple and says he's god, God says "No more!"

b. Michael the archangel and the angels of heaven will oust him and his forces - Dan. 12:1 says, At that time Michael, the great prince who protects your people, will arise. There will be a time of distress such as has not happened from the beginning of nations until then. But at that time your people--everyone whose name is found written in the book--will be delivered. Satan will lose this great war; in fact, it will be a rather short war! He and his demonic forces will be hurled down which means that:

c. he is permanently barred from heaven and confined to earth Any hopes that he had of taking the throne are dashed. He will never go back to those realms and the effect, according to verse 12, is that:

d. he is furious because he knows his time is short He knows the clock is ticking and he's only got 3 ½ more years before Jesus comes to rule and he's bound in the pit for a thousand years. And that's why the short, second half of the tribulation is such an ugly, awful time unlike anything the world has ever known! Woe to the inhabitants of the earth in that day! Now the third event is that:

3. Satan will pursue the fleeing remnant of Israel with all his fury (13) He will hate Israel more than he did for bringing Christ forth! He will hate her all the more because now he knows he can't stop Him from coming back. And he will pour out that wrath, of course, through his world leader and his armies! They will pursue the Israelites out into the desert to destroy them. But it won't work. We read next that:

4. God will supernaturally protect this believing remnant for 3 ½ years (14-16) God has a place prepared there somewhere in the wilderness, a place of refuge, of safety. Many have speculated that the place could be Petra, which is just across the line in modern Jordan, a huge basin capable of supporting an entire city of 10,000 or more people surrounded by an impenetrable wall of rock mountains with only one tiny narrow entrance, one of the wonders of the ancient world. We don't know if that's the place or not, but wherever they flee to, God will grant them supernatural aid. They will get there with supernatural speed and the flood of soldiers that are sent after them, God will swallow up in the desert somehow. He will protect them out of Satan's reach for the entire remainder of the Tribulation, until Christ returns. And Satan will realize that, not only is he barred from heaven, but he can't even take it out on Israel whom he hates! So:

5. Satan will furiously turn to the persecution of all believers (17) The rest of her offspring, I believe, refers to Gentile believers, those who come to believe among every tribe and nation of the earth especially through the two witnesses of chapter 11. Thousands of them, too many to number, will be martyred for their faith during this awful time. We met them standing before God in the second half of chapter 7. Yes, people will believe during that time, but there will be an awful price to pay for most of them.

And that brings me to close by making a point that we can learn something from these Tribulation believers. Look back to verse 11. How will they stand for Christ in this awful time? How will they withstand Satan's furious hatred for them? They will place their trust fully and completely in the blood of the Lamb to wash away their sins. And they will be unashamed to share the testimony of what Jesus Christ has done for them. And they will love Him so much that they will be absolutely unafraid to die, because to them to live will be Christ and to die will be gain! That's how the first generation of believers was! That's how the last generation of believers will be! What about us?

On March 21, 2007 Christianah Oluwasesin looked forward to the ending of school that day. That's because the Christian teacher was to leave the government high school in Gombe, northern Nigeria and rejoin her husband. But first she had to give her female students their final exam. To prevent cheating, she collected the book bags of each student and brought them to the front of the class. One of the students began to cry. She told the class that there was a Quran in her bag and by touching the bag the Christian teacher had desecrated the Quran inside it. Tears turned to outrage and anger and soon the class was shouting, "Allahu Akbar - God is great!" They began threatening the teacher. A fellow teacher rushed her to the principal's office and he locked her in the bathroom to get her away from what was now an angry mob. Outside, the anger was growing. Radical Muslims who lived nearby heard the commotion and ran to the school. Eventually a mob of extremists dragged Christianah out of the school, clubbed her to death and burned her body. [VOM, Special Issue 2009]. There are many places in the world where tribulation conditions exist right now, where to stand for Christ places your life in jeopardy every single day. What if you or I lived in one of those? Do we love Him more than life itself? Are we willing to share the word of our testimony?

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: World Leaders - Ch. 13

Just like any other era of history, the end-time 7 year tribulation period that precedes the return of Christ to earth will have its key figures. John is introduced to them in his vision as we enter chapter 13. They are revealed here in symbolic form as two beasts, not referring to literal animals, but characterizing them as men with animal-like characteristics, men who act like animals, who tear and destroy, who have no human compassion, who kill anyone that gets in their way. Their titles are not actually given fully in this chapter, but if you compare 19:20, they are called the Beast and the False Prophet and you'll also note that they are Christ's chief opponents at His return and their end is destruction in the lake of fire! They are mentioned elsewhere in the Bible, but here in chapter 13 we have the clearest picture of them. The first man will be:

I. A World Political Leader described in verses (1-8). He is called The Beast or is commonly referred to as the Anti-christ which comes from 1 John 2:8. Elsewhere he is called "the man of sin", "the lawless one", "the son of perdition", and even "the one who opposes and exalts himself above all that is called god." The key thing to note is that he is a political leader, a general of armies, a man who sets out with the dream of ruling the entire world and almost makes it happen. But in the way that he is revealed to John here in the image of a beast, two things are actually in view. Look at (1-3a). First of all:

1. this beast pictures a revived Roman empire and in order to understand that, we're going to have to look at two visions that God gave the prophet Daniel. This beast which John saw clearly represents the Roman Empire and, from our perspective, that means that:

a. this empire must be revived King Nebuchadnezzar of Babylon had a dream about huge human statue made out of four different metals from top to bottom. And here's what it meant: Dan. 2:36-44. God declares that there will only be four world empires. The first one was Babylon, Nebuchadnezzar's own empire. After that would come another, the Persian empire, followed by a third, the Greek empire built by Alexander the Great. These are actually named in later chapters. And the empire to follow the Greeks was, of course, Rome, which ruled much of the known world for more than a millennium. Now this fourth empire was seen to change in form from a single unit on the lower torso of the statue to the two legs representing a division of that empire, an east-west division that actually occurred in history about 500 AD, and in its final form, it would be an empire of 10 kings, represented by the 10 toes of the statue. However, note verse 44. It is in the days of this fourth empire, the Roman Empire existing as a union of 10 kingdoms, that God will set up HIS kingdom. But how is that possible? No vestige of the Roman Empire has remained after 1453 AD; it never did take the form of a union of 10 kingdoms and Christ has not returned! The answer is uniquely simple; it hasn't happened yet! Somewhere in this vision we passed from what is past to us to what is still future and that means that God must be planning to put this Roman empire back together, to revive it! Sound far-fetched? Well, humor me for a moment and let's look at Daniel's second vision and see:

b. what this revived empire will be like - Dan. 7:1-7, 23-27 Here is a vision just like John's! Out of the sea of the nations come four beasts, a lion (Babylon), a bear (Persia), a leopard (Greece) and then a fourth ugly beast with 10 horns that has to be Rome! And out of this 10 horned Roman empire comes a leader who rules the world, oppresses the saints and is destroyed when God sets up HIS kingdom. Remember those images and go back with me to Revelation 13. What do we see in verse 2? A beast coming out of the sea and it has the body of a leopard, the mouth of a lion, the feet of a bear and 10 horns on its head!

(1) it will be a composite empire (2) This end-time empire will have the swiftness of Greece, the strength of Persia, and the awful bite of Babylon, all rolled into one 10 nation empire. It will be the strongest empire that the world has ever known. And here's what I've been waiting to show you:

(2) it will reemerge after not existing (3) One of the heads of this beast seemed to have a fatal wound. It appeared to be dead. But somehow it was healed; it was brought back to life after it was dead. Look over with me at 17:8. This beast will exist, then "not exist," and then exist once again! I believe one day it is going to be put back together again! The territory that Rome once ruled, all of Europe and the Mediterranean coast, is going to be reunited, reconstituted once more into a world empire of 10 nations in the end time! You say, "that can't be!" Well, we're not far from it today! All of Europe is already united in a European Union. On Jan. 1, 2002 it adopted a new common currency, the "euro", which is now the currency with the highest cash value in circulation in the world, surpassing the US dollar! The Eurozone (economic zone) is the second largest economy in the world. It is already the largest aid donor in the world. Its citizens can live and work in each other's countries, cross each other's borders freely and there hasn't been a war between member nations in 70 years. It would not take much to make them one nation and, if they had the right leader, the right unscrupulous Hitler-type popular madman, it would not take much to forge them into a true world empire which would in essence BE the old Roman Empire in a new multi-nation united-together form! The old Roman empire WILL come back to life and in Rev. 13:

2. this beast also pictures the man who will lead that empire (18) Literally, it is the number of a man! Now don't bother trying to figure out WHO it is! People have been doing that ever since John wrote this. And don't worry if you move out to Valley Forge and Verizon gives you a new phone number that starts with 666. Nobody is going to know who the antichrist is until the Tribulation period, but people who believe during that period are going to be able to identify him by calculating the numerical value of the letters of his name. There will be a man who leads that revived western empire and he is in view here. And look what John is shown about him:

a. he will become the world's idol (3b-4, 8) They will be astonished by his power, by his military might, by his ability to pull this empire together. In principle his authority will extend to the whole earth, though in the end whole sections of it will rebel against him, bringing on the final battle of Armageddon. But the world will literally worship him and the one who gives him his power, that is, Satan. Have you ever seen any of the old films where they show Hitler speaking to the masses in Germany in the pre-war days? How the crowds were mesmerized and hung on his words and followed him unquestioningly! They idolized him and it will go even further with this man. Now please listen carefully to what I'm about to say; I am NOT intending to say anything negative about our former President Obama. God put him in place and we respected him and prayed for him. But in watching the events of the inauguration I was struck with how much of America idolized him. Two million people converged on Washington; the entire mall was packed. People who were interviewed said things like, "I have been waiting for this man all my life!" They wrote songs about him and played them on the national network. Many Americans seemed to be hailing him as a sort of messiah who would lead us into a golden age. Again, I am not saying that any of this is his fault or that he is an evil person or anything like that; I am simply pointing out how prone even we wise educated Americans are to idolize and how easy it will be in the future for the world leader to sway masses around the world to worship and follow him, in the beginning by popularity, and then later on by force! Now note that:

b. he will be a blasphemer (5-6) A change will occur in this man. During the first half of this period, he will seem like a Savior, like the answer to the world's many problems. However, at that midpoint he will reveal his true nature and intentions. Look with me at 2 Thess. 2:3-4. He will sit in the Temple of God in Jerusalem and proclaim himself God. He'll put his statue there, as we'll see in a moment. And he will demand that the world worship him, and they will! And for those who won't:

c. he will be a persecutor (7) Just as the US declared a war on terror, intending to seek out and hunt down terrorists, this man will declare war on believers. He will hunt them down to destroy them wherever they are. The multitudes who have believed through the two witnesses of chapter 11 will be slain and appear in heaven as a great host of martyrs that we met back in chapter 7, millions upon millions of them. He will seek to eradicate faith in the true God and faith in Christ from the earth!

Now the reason he will be able to pull this off so well is because alongside the beast or antichrist, the political leader, there will be:

II. A World Religious Leader whom John refers to as The False Prophet (11-18) Look at (11-12). This second beastly person is a religious leader, a prophet, and:

1. his purpose is to cause the world to worship the political leader His life will be dedicated to bringing glory to the beast, to bringing him the worship of the whole world. Do you see that there is an unholy trinity in place here? Satan is trying to usurp the position of God Himself; the antichrist is trying to be a false version of Christ and set up his kingdom to rule the world and receive its worship. So, the false prophet is filling the role of a counterfeit Holy Spirit, glorifying the false Christ and drawing the whole world to worship him and the one who empowers him! And:

2. he will exercise tremendous power to accomplish this First of all:

a. he will demonstrate miraculous powers (13-14a) Satan will empower him to do great miracles. He will even call down fire from the heavens as Elijah did, and as the two witnesses did in chapter 11. He will counterfeit the works of God to deceive the world into worship. Paul said, The coming of the lawless one will be in accordance with the work of Satan displayed in all kinds of counterfeit miracles, signs and wonders, and in every sort of evil that deceives those who are perishing. They perish because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. For this reason God sends them a powerful delusion so that they will believe the lie. - 2 Thes. 2:9-11 The world will be deluded and deceived by the miracles done by this false prophet and they will believe the lie! So:

b. he will exercise sweeping religious authority (14b-15) He will be the leader of a world system of religion for those last 3 ½ years. He will come up with the idea of setting up a statue of the antichrist in the Temple and demanding the world to worship it under penalty of death. He will even somehow get this statue to appear to have life, either by demonic power or mechanical deception, and he will get even get the statue to declare that those who refuse to worship must be killed! So, people will worship the antichrist out of awe and also out of fear for their lives. But that's not all:

c. he will exercise sweeping economic authority (16-17) He has another idea. He will invent "the mark of the beast". He will declare that everyone must show their allegiance to the antichrist by wearing his mark, his name stamped on their forehead or their hand. And without that mark they can't buy or sell, so they will have no income; they won't be able to get food. In short, they won't be able to survive unless somehow, they live out in a wilderness where they can fend for themselves and avoid detection!

Oh, what an awful time that last 3 ½ years will be before Jesus comes! Satan will literally do his best in a final bid to take over the world. And he will appear to succeed! How frightening and discouraging it will be to any believers who live during that time! How frightening and discouraging it is to us even today, as we watch Satan's evil henchmen be in control of so many portions of the world! But right in the middle of our text, in the verses I skipped over, there is exactly what we need:

III. A Reminder That God Is In Ultimate Control (9-10) Verse 9 is a great big "STOP, LOOK and LISTEN" sign! Pay attention! God is about to tell you something that He REALLY wants you to know! And here it is:

1. He determines what will happen to His people, not the evil rulers of the world! When they haul one of us off to prison, it looks like they are in charge. When they kill one of us with the sword, it looks like they have won, like their kingdom rules, like evil has prevailed and good defeated. But don't be fooled! God determines what happens to His people and He has determined that some of us will be imprisoned and some of us will die for our faith. We may not understand the reason, but we can know that it is HIS choice and if we are in prison, He will sustain us and if we are killed, He will welcome us to all the riches of glory! And we can know that in the end HE will prevail because we've read the end of the book! And we know that those who do the imprisoning and the killing will end up in the lake of fire and Jesus WILL reign. Just not yet! But Jesus has told us beforehand that it will be so. He said, If the world hates you, keep in mind that it hated me first. If you belonged to the world, it would love you as its own. As it is, you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world. That is why the world hates you. Remember the words I spoke to you: 'No servant is greater than his master.' If they persecuted me, they will persecute you also. If they obeyed my teaching, they will obey yours also. They will treat you this way because of my name, for they do not know the One who sent me.... All this I have told you so that you will not go astray. They will put you out of the synagogue; in fact, a time is coming when anyone who kills you will think he is offering a service to God. They will do such things because they have not known the Father or me. I have told you this, so that when the time comes you will remember that I warned you.... - John 15:18-21, 16:1-4. That has pretty much been the history of the church. From age to age believers have experienced persecution at the hands of wicked leaders. In fact:

2. He warns His people to expect antichrists in all eras John wrote earlier, Dear children, this is the last hour; and as you have heard that the antichrist is coming, even now many antichrists have come... - 1 Jn. 2:18. History is replete with leaders, both secular and religious, trying to set up their kingdoms on earth and persecuting the saints of God. The Neros and Diocletians have given way to the Genghis Khans and the Napoleons and the Stalins and the Hitlers, who in turn have yielded to people like Kim Jung Un of North Korea and Ahmadinejad of Iran and the Taliban and Hamas and Hezbollah and dozens of others like them who hate, persecute and kill believers. Jesus said, "Expect it! When it happens don't be surprised! They did it to ME; they will do it to you! I want you to remember that I warned you because then you'll remember that I am in control, not them!" In all ages:

3. He expects His people to remain faithful and endure suffering as it comes upon them. He wants us to hold firmly to Him to the very end, no matter what we face, and He will strengthen us for it. We must patiently endure all that comes upon us, trusting that He is in control and that He has a plan and we must wait for His coming to set things straight.

John and Betty Stam were young missionaries serving with the China Inland Mission in the early 1930's. Scarcely one year after their marriage in China, they found themselves caught up in the advance of the Communists into the town where they were living. They were captured, held for an exorbitant ransom, marched through the streets of the village, and finally executed. They managed to leave their 3 month old baby Helen wrapped in blankets in an abandoned house where they stayed their last night. 30 hours later she was found by local believers who staged a daring rescue and smuggled her out of China to her grandparents. With the baby was found, two $5 bills were pinned to her clothes and this letter: "Dec. 6, 1934 - China Inland Mission, Shanghai. Dear Brethren, My wife, baby and myself are today in the hands of the Communists in the city of Tsingteh. Their demand is twenty thousand dollars for our release. All our possessions and stores are in their hands, but we praise God for peace in our hearts and a meal tonight. God grant you wisdom in what you do, and us fortitude, courage and peace of heart. He is able-and a wonderful Friend in such a time. Things happened so quickly this AM. They were in the city just a few hours after the ever-persistent rumors really became alarming, so that we could not prepare to leave in time. We were just too late. The Lord bless and guide you, and as for us, may God be glorified whether by life or by death. In Him, John C. Stam." On their tombstone in China today are these inscriptions: "John Cornelius Stam, 18 January, 1907, "That Christ may be magnified whether by life or by death." Phil. 1:20; Elizabeth Scott Stam, His Wife, 22 February 1906 "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain." Phil. 1:21. As they were being marched to the town where they were executed, they stopped at a small post office, and the clerk asked John Stam, "Where are you going?" He replied, "I don't know where the soldiers are going, but we are on our way to Heaven!" Their ministry was not long, their accomplishments not great. But thousands have surrendered to serve God through their example. Whether we are near the end time or not, the world is full of those who will hate God's people. One day we or our children or grandchildren may be the ones living under one of them. And if that should be, He has told us ahead of time to remember that He is in control and to be endure suffering patiently and be faithful unto death.

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: A Preview Of The End - Ch. 14

How many of you have been to see a movie in a theater lately? The last one we went to, we got into the actual auditorium about 10 minutes late and didn't miss a moment of the show and you know why. The first 20 minutes after the listed show-time are devoted to something called "previews." Preview literally means to view ahead of time, to view something before the real thing happens. So, in the theater you watch a miniature summary of a movie that many times hasn't even been released yet; it isn't even finished, but there in front of you is a brief and exciting summary of the most important happenings in that "film-to-be". Well, that's exactly what chapter 14 of Revelation is! Having shown John the two witnesses who will reach the world during the early part of the tribulation in chapter 11, what will happen to Israel during the Tribulation in chapter 12 and what the two awful world leaders of the Tribulation will be like in chapter 13, God now shows John a preview of the events that will occur at the end of the Tribulation. This chapter is a miniature summary revealed to John ahead of time of the events that actually follow in chapters 15 through 19. And you know what? Sometimes those previews are almost better than the real thing, aren't they? You can actually enjoy them for their own sake and benefit from what they have to share. So, let's attempt to enjoy chapter 14 on its own merit because God put it here for a reason. The first thing we come upon in the chapter is:

I. The Triumph At The End Of The Tribulation (1-5) Here he sees Jesus, the Lamb of God, now standing on the earth once again, standing on Mount Zion, standing on the mountain near Jerusalem. You know that's where He left from and Zechariah says, On that day his feet will stand on the Mount of Olives, east of Jerusalem, and the Mount of Olives will be split in two... He'll set foot on earth once more in triumphant glory right where He left from! But verse 1 shows us that:

1. 144,000 believing Jews stand with the Lamb at His return We met them before, way back in chapter 7 where God had them marked with a special seal, 12,000 from each of the tribes of Israel, to protect them from all the awful plagues that were to come upon the earth during the Tribulation period. Now here we are given a glimpse of them again at the very end when it's all done and they are still alive, despite all the awful fury of the antichrist and the false prophet directed against them and they have run to stand with Jesus as He touches down in triumph. Not one has been lost, just as He said! Oh, what an encouragement to us! If all the forces of hell, loosed in all their fury, cannot penetrate God's protecting shield around these who will be the most hated and targeted of all, then His promise is true for us, My sheep listen to my voice; I know them, and they follow me. I give them eternal life, and they shall never perish; no one can snatch them out of my hand. My Father, who has given them to me, is greater than all; no one can snatch them out of my Father's hand. - John 10:27-29. Listen, no one and nothing can snatch us out of His hand! Anything that comes into our life, HE chooses to allow to enter between His fingers! He is in complete control. No wonder the 144,000 are rejoicing!

2. they sing of the Lamb (2-3) Heaven touches earth here. A new song is being played in heaven by a thousand harpists; loud voices are singing it, so loud that it is heard on the earth in that day. The hosts of heaven are shouting (That's us, folks!); we see it in the first half of chapter 19 as Jesus comes down. And earth can hear it. The 144,000 hear it; it's just for them, a special song of praise, and they learn it and they sing it to the Lamb. Oh, what praise they will render (and so will we!) when this man-made mess is all over with and Jesus is in charge! And then notice that:

3. they have served the Lamb (4-5) Here is some special information about how they served Jesus during those awful years until He arrived. They evidently chose to remain single, like Paul, to give the fullest possible service to Him under those horrid conditions and never yielded to immorality though it was all around them. They were holy, blameless. They never lied to save their own necks. Like Job in all his affliction, they did not sin with their lips! So now they get to share in His Kingdom on the earth and follow Him wherever He goes! If I'm right, they are His firstfruits, His seed stock to re-start a righteous nation of Israel all over again during His millennial reign. Remember, in Mt. 25 Jesus said that when He comes in all his glory all the people of the world will be gathered before Him and separated like sheep and goats. And they are judged based on what? On how they treated HIM! And remember, He said, In that you did it to the least of THESE MY BROTHERS you did it to me! Well, if all the peoples of the earth are in front of Him, who are "these My brothers?" You're looking at them! These dear believing Israelites who bravely live through it all and they enter along with the sheep into His Millennial Kingdom. Hey, are you sold out to Jesus, are you fully consecrated to Him like these are? Listen, when He comes, you'll be glad you were!

Now the scene changes and John sees three angels flying, not in heaven and not on earth, but in midair, through the skies above the earth. And these three are sounding:

II. The Universal Warning Before The End Of The Tribulation (6-11) During this age Jesus is using His church to reach all the peoples of the world. After we're gone, during the early part of the Tribulation, He plans to use the two special witnesses of chapter 11. But some time just before the end comes, God will use the ministry of angels in a direct way to the human race. During the first week of August 1945, American planes flew over 35 Japanese cities and blanketed them with a million leaflets that read: Read this carefully as it may save your life or the life of a relative or friend. In the next few days, some or all of the cities named on the reverse side will be destroyed by American bombs. These cities contain military installations and workshops or factories which produce military goods. We are determined to destroy all of the tools of the military clique which they are using to prolong this useless war. But unfortunately, bombs have no eyes. So, in accordance with America's humanitarian policies, the American Air Force, which does not wish to injure innocent people, now gives you warning to evacuate the cities named and save your lives. America is not fighting the Japanese people but is fighting the military clique which has enslaved the Japanese people. The peace which America will bring will free the people from the oppression of the military clique and mean the emergence of a new and better Japan. You can restore peace by demanding new and good leaders who will end the war. We cannot promise that only these cities will be among those attacked but some or all of them will be, so heed this warning and evacuate these cities immediately. Acting in grace, we gave Japan a last warning before the awful atomic judgment fell that finally ended the war. God will do the exact same thing during the second half of the Tribulation using angels, three of them, who will somehow circle the globe and give an angelic warning from the sky to every people on earth in their own language. The first angel will bring:

1. a warning of the last opportunity to repent (6-7) "Turn to God! Turn to the One who made the world, who made you! Give up your foolish false worship! The hour of His judgment is come; it will not wait any longer. This is your last opportunity! Turn to Him or be destroyed!" And right behind the first angel comes a second with:

2. a warning of the fall of the world system (8) "Great Babylon, the world empire of the Beast, which has you under its thumb, which demands your allegiance and control, that empire is fallen! It is about to be destroyed! It will not be able to protect you from God's wrath! You cannot trust in it; it cannot help you and you don't owe it allegiance anymore! Turn from it and all its wicked practices!" And behind that angel comes a third one with:

3. a warning of the awful punishment of hell (9-11) "Don't worship the beast! Don't take his mark! Don't fall prey to his deception! If you do, if you choose this foolishness of idolatry and rebel against the true God, He will pour out His Divine wrath full strength!" In those days they used to dilute wine with water before drinking it, but God's wrath will be poured out full strength; that means you will endure an eternity of suffering in the lake of fire which we call hell! Now notice that there are some things we can learn about hell itself right in this passage. First of all:

a. it is physical anguish; it is a place of burning, of the torment of physical pain. It will not just be unpleasant; it will be torture, painful suffering. On top of that:

b. it is mental anguish It is not so much that heaven can see into hell, but that hell can see into heaven. Those who are suffering can see and know what they missed, that they could have been in the presence of the Lamb with the holy angels. It seems that they may somehow have a continuing view of it that only serves to torment them further, just as the rich man in hell was able to lift up his eyes and see Lazarus across the great gulf being comforted. Then note in verse 11 that:

c. it is eternal anguish It lasts forever and ever, to the ages of the ages, and finally:

d. it is continual anguish There is no rest, no respite from it day or night, no drop of water to cool the tongue, no wisp of breeze to cool the brow, no moment of relief.

Listen friends, I know this is a warning for those in that day for those who choose the ultimate wickedness of worshipping Satan over God and the antichrist instead of Christ Himself. But it is also a description of the same lake of fire that awaits every human being who dies outside of Christ! Every one of them is ultimately doing exactly that same thing and the penalty is the same! I know we don't enjoy talking about this; I don't enjoy preaching about it. But Jesus talked about it quite a bit and gave bold warnings about it. Whether a person believes there's a hell really doesn't matter. Reality is reality. Jesus said there is one, so there is, and our responsibility is to rescue people from it by taking the Gospel to everyone both near and far away. In essence, we do today exactly what God is doing in our text; we show mercy! Just as He will show infinite grace and mercifully warn every single soul in the world in that future day; today He has sent us to give people a last warning before it is forever too late! God DID something about their awful situation; HE SENT US! But finally, after the warning, John is shown a vision of:

III. The Great Harvest At The End Of The Tribulation (14-20) This is a two-fold vision. John sees two symbolic actions, the reaping of the whole earth as one would reap a grain harvest, and the harvesting of grapes and throwing them into a winepress to be trampled into juice. These don't seem to be two separate events, but rather two views of the same thing. The words of the vision clearly indicate that this is when the vision of Joel will actually happen. Joel 3:12-14 says, Let the nations be roused; let them advance into the Valley of Jehoshaphat, for there I will sit to judge all the nations on every side. Swing the sickle, for the harvest is ripe. Come, trample the grapes, for the winepress is full and the vats overflow-- so great is their wickedness! Multitudes, multitudes in the valley of decision! For the day of the LORD is near in the valley of decision. Here in Revelation, we see it come to pass and what it means is this. At Christ's return:

1. all unbelievers will be gathered to one place (14-16) In reaping all the acres of wheat, stalks are cut and gathered and brought to one place for threshing. But this harvest is not one of good grain. In the Greek, this harvest is literally withered away, dried up. In farming terms, this harvest has been lost to drought and it needs to be cut down and burned up. Jesus told his disciples, As the weeds are pulled up and burned in the fire, so it will be at the end of the age. The Son of Man will send out his angels, and they will weed out of his kingdom everything that causes sin and all who do evil. - Mat. 13:40-41. "I tell you, on that night two people will be in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. Two women will be grinding grain together; one will be taken and the other left. Two men will be in the field; one will be taken and the other left." "Where, Lord?" they asked. He replied, "Where there is a dead body, there the vultures will gather." - Luke 17:34-37. At the time of Christ's return the angels of God will gather ALL the unbelievers of the earth to the same place, to Israel, to Jerusalem where He is, to receive judgment. And there:

2. all unbelievers will be destroyed (17-20) Now the vision is one of cutting all the ripe grapes from the vine and throwing them into the winepress and crushing them so the wine runs out. Only God's winepress is not a stone pit; it is an entire valley outside Jerusalem where the masses of unbelieving people from earth are physically slain. They are killed and crushed in a carnage so awful that the blood runs out in a river as deep as a horse's bridle and flows 180 miles south into the Red Sea. I know that sounds unbelievable, but just think if the average human has 1.25 gallons of blood and if, using today's numbers, let's say 5 billion people perished in one place, that would be some 7.5 billion gallons of blood! Then God calls the carrion birds to come and feast on the carcasses - Rev. 19:17-18.

What a gruesome picture! What an awful end for the human race! God wiped the earth clean with a flood once before; this time He will do it selectively with his angels and only those who acknowledge Him will survive to populate His millennial Kingdom. Now, the world, hearing these things, immediately points a finger of accusation. They say that we have a sadistic God, a cruel God who enjoys tormenting and killing poor defenseless human beings! They can't believe in such a God. But listen, our God is a God of grace and mercy! That is the awful fate that ALL human beings deserve. But smack in the middle of the broad road that leads to destruction, God planted a CROSS on which His own SON was crucified to save them from it, to keep them from falling over that precipice into hell! To get to hell you have to walk out around Calvary.

Listen, God is not willing that ANY should perish but that ALL should come to repentance! He swears it to us: ...As surely as I live, declares the Sovereign LORD, I take no pleasure in the death of the wicked, but rather that they turn from their ways and live. Turn! Turn from your evil ways! Why will you die... - Ezek. 33:11. God is a God of mercy and grace and love. He loved the world so much that He gave His only Son to prevent them from perishing, from enduring this awful fate! He sent His church for 2000 years to tell the whole world the News. In the Tribulation He will tell the whole world again by the two witnesses and at the last He will warn them one more time directly by His angels. They will all hear; they will all know; they will all be without excuse! But if they refuse His mercy, there is nothing left for them but to endure His eternal wrath! Take a deep breath and let the enormity of that sink in. Now in the middle of all of this I skipped two verses. Many WILL listen to the warning! Many WILL believe and God puts here:

IV. An Encouragement To All Who Believe During The Tribulation (12-13) God is honest with them. He tells them straight up that as believers:

1. to live will require faithful endurance of enormous hardships Since they refuse the mark of the world leader, they will have to flee their homes, they will be hunted and sought out, they will lose everything and not be able to buy. They will have to trust God through incredible hardships that we can't begin to imagine. And the result is that many of them will die; they will have to give their lives, but here He also gives them this wonderful assurance that:

2. to die will be a blessed release from suffering To die will be gain! It will be a rest from the awful labors and toils they are suffering during that horrible time. And God will not forget they have endured it all out of love for Him. There will be a great reward for all they have done.

We usually read this verse at funerals but this promise is meant specially for those who will believe during that awful period. It will be a precious word from God to them that will strengthen their hearts. It will help them to overcome by trusting the blood of the Lamb; it will help them to love not their own lives even to the death. But it certainly is true for all of us even now. As Paul put it, to die IS gain, today! It is the icing on the cake of salvation. To die is to be blessed; it is to enter into glory and to be with our Lord and rest from all the misery that life brings on earth and be eternally rewarded. Here's something I read in a missionary newsletter; it is the explanation of a Native American living in Alaska. May these words encourage you: "I take family on holiday camping in Alaska beautiful mountains. Mountain paths. Quiet clear stream. Sweet perfume flower. Tall mountain. I use best supply I can get. I want holiday to be happy. I look and look for the best spot make camp. Find best spot before other person find. Then I put up good tent. Buy it at good store -- not cheap -- and I work hard to make tent sturdy for wind and rain. I do good. Stand strong and we ready for nice holiday in tent. But whole time I put up tent and after when I see good job -- never -- not once ever say to self that we live in tent forever. Even when I put up, I know in a few days it come down. I go home. Father in heaven not make us for feel at home in this tent body. Body very fickle home like tent. Move it around. Never meant be permanent house like Paul say (2 Cor. 5). Tent come down. Self soul move on. One day I sit in tent and wind start to blow. Door flap tear. Stitch start ravel. Then I not so comfortable in tent any more and Father say, "OK. Permanent house ready now. Come move in." Family sad. My tent all they know. One day be happy when move out their tent and go live permanent house by me and Father in Heaven. Until then pray my family comfort and we enjoy tent life for little while until our house ready in heaven." [newsletter from Jeff and Terry Krimmel, serving Christ with SEND Int'l., in Alaska].

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: The Last Plagues - Chs. 15-16

Part of the problem with understanding the Book of Revelation is that there are a number of events that are happening simultaneously. In a movie the scene would suddenly cut from the action in this place to the action in that place and then to a third and then back again, so you would easily get the idea that while A was going on, that B was going on at the same time and so was C. That's actually the way that God is showing these scenes to John! He is cutting from one scene to another, describing many things that are all happening in parallel during the final 7 year tribulation period. Our problem is that when we read a story in print, our minds seem to expect it to be chronological, to progress continually in order. And overall, Revelation does that in its outline. The church appears to be raptured in chapter 4; the Tribulation begins in chapter 6 and it ends in chapter 19, then comes the Millennial reign of Christ in chapter 20 and finally new heavens and a new earth as it ends. But in that long middle portion, there the scenes often cut back and forth giving details, but frequently not advancing the story timewise. Let me try to summarize all we've studied about the Tribulation. On the Political Scene, in the beginning a man called the Beast or Antichrist unites the west to form a 10 nation empire, becomes acclaimed as the ruler of the world and tries to force his rule upon all nations, however, in the end three major blocks of nations rebel against him and come to fight him in what we call Armageddon. At the same time on the Religious Scene, in the beginning he makes a covenant with Israel and restores her worship. God has two witnesses that impact the whole world. But right in the middle the beast kills them, breaks his covenant, desecrates the Temple and demands that all human beings worship him. Israel flees into the desert where God protects her and he begins a huge campaign to eliminate faith in God from the earth, in the end killing millions. At the same time on the Scene of God's Judgments, in the beginning He sent the world into the chaos of war, famine, disease and death, described as "seals", and as this period progresses, He sends another round of judgments described as "trumpets," which destroy a third of earth's vegetation and pollute a third of the sea and the waters. Then He sends demonic beings who torment men with suffering and later draws an army from the east which destroys a third of the human race as it travels. Finally, after warning the entire race that it is their last chance by means of angels, we come to what are called the 7 last plagues, described for us in chapters 15 and 16. In chapter 15 we have:

I. The Preparation For The Last Plagues - Ch. 15 In verse 1 the scene shifts back now to what is going on in heaven. He sees seven angels who were assigned to a specific task. They were to bring about the 7 last plagues on earth. And as his gaze sweeps around the heavenly panorama, he sees:

1. the victors and their song (2-4) He sees a multitude of men and women standing before the Throne of God, playing harps and singing to God a special song which is called the Song of Moses and the Song of the Lamb. Some of the words of that song are recorded here for us. But first let's ask:

a. who they are Think about it; it says that they were victorious over the beast and his image, so they must have lived on earth during the second half of the Tribulation. Yet here they stand in heaven, so they must have died!

They are believers martyred during the Tribulation. We met them singing before the throne of God way back in 7:9 and in verse 14 we were told that they had come out of the great tribulation. Here they are again, coming back into view once more for a closer look. As God is about to pour out the fullness of His wrath on the human race, they sing about how just He is in doing it, how righteous He is in pouring out on mankind what they deserve! But look closely and here's:

b. what they show us The text says they were victorious over the Beast and his image and his number. They defeated him! But not by fighting back, not by wresting control from him and destroying his armies and killing him. In fact, the world would say they were defeated; they lost. They died and he won. But the opposite is true; they died and THEY won! They became victorious by dying! You see, the real battle is not physical! It is spiritual. Satan's goal, especially during this time, is to utterly destroy faith in God and drag every single human being away from God to make them worship him. That's why they won! Do you see that? They loved not their lives to the death; they died in faith believing to the very end and were ushered straight into His presence! Satan lost! The beast lost! They won! God won! You see, faithfulness is the true victory! Satan's strategy against you before you were saved was to keep you from believing. But now that you believe, Satan's goal is the same as it was with Job, to get you to curse God and turn away from Him, to make you suffer enough or make you afraid enough or whatever tool he can use, to get you to rebel against God and walk away. But if you don't, if you remain faithful through it all even to the very end, God wins and you win! Oh, be faithful! Whatever you're facing, however deep your pain is, stand with Job and declare, Though He slay me, YET will I trust Him! Stand with these who will suffer more than you can imagine and sing with them, Great and marvelous are your deeds, Lord God Almighty. Just and true are your ways, King of the Ages! That is victory! And look:

c. what they sing next: all nations will worship YOU! The very thing Satan is trying to prevent, the very thing the Beast is trying stop from happening by making every human being worship him, won't happen! All the nations, all the peoples that God has created WILL come and worship before Him! They will do it in heaven and when Jesus comes, they will do it on earth! Isaiah said, the earth will be full of the knowledge of the LORD as the waters cover the sea. - 11:9. Zechariah said, The LORD will be king over the whole earth. On that day there will be one LORD, and his name the only name... Then the survivors from all the nations that have attacked Jerusalem will go up year after year to worship the King, the LORD Almighty, and to celebrate the Feast of Tabernacles. If any of the peoples of the earth do not go up to Jerusalem to worship the King, the LORD Almighty, they will have no rain. - 14:9, 16-17. John heard it sung again, All the nations will come and worship before You! Listen, He wins! That was His goal from the very first! It was His goal all the way through Bible history, it is His goal today and, in the end, He will have it! Hallelujah! Now we look back to the seven angels and we see:

2. the bowls and their meaning (5-8) These angels are given 7 bowls and we are told:

a. what they contain: they are full of the wrath of God. Don't think of wrath as some sort of flaring up of temper, as though God has finally had enough and blows up. No, God's wrath is His holy, righteous, pure anger at sin and evil. The plagues that God is about to send upon mankind are plagues that mankind deserves for their rebellion against God. They are His just judgment upon wicked people who have refused time and again to repent despite all His warnings. And here's:

b. what their pouring out symbolizes: completeness Look at verse (1). When these last events are poured out: (1) the judgment of God upon the human race is completed. It is the same word Jesus cried from the cross, It is FINISHED! It's completed. Everything there is to do has been done; everything there is to pay has been paid and it's fulfilled, brought to an end. So now God's judgment is FINISHED, brought to completion, poured out to its last full measure of justice, to the very last drop! And from the fact that in heaven the Temple where God's very presence is it filled with smoke from the glory of God and His power so that no one can enter until they are poured out, we learn that:

(2) the judgment of God is, at this point, irreversible No one can stop it. No one can intercede any longer. No one halt the judgment. The human race has passed its final warning sign; they have sinned away any remaining grace and nothing is left now but to experience the wrath of God. Oh, what a fearful thing! Then as we move into Chapter 16, we watch:

II. The Pouring Out Of The Last Plagues - Ch. 16 These plagues happen right at the end, it seems, in the very last days of the Tribulation, and they seem to happen in quick succession, one right after the other. The first one is:

1. the plague of sores (1-2) Painful, malignant sores break out on men all over the earth. But notice that it's selective: they break out ONLY on those who have the mark of the beast and worship him, but they break out on ALL of them. It's just like the plague of boils that God sent upon the Egyptians in Moses' day! The magicians of Egypt couldn't stand before Moses, they were in so much pain. And these sores don't heal overnight or in a couple of days; in verse 11 they are still cursing God because of their painful sores! Next comes:

2. the plague on the sea (3) Earlier a third of it had been turned to blood and a third of its sea life died. But that was merely a warning shot. Now the entire ocean becomes coagulated with red sediment like the blood of a dead person! All marine life dies! And after that comes:

3. the plague on water sources (4-7) Earlier a third of earth's water sources had been poisoned. Now every fresh water source, every stream and river and spring, is turned to blood, is poisoned with red sediment and made unfit to drink. The angel adds his comment, "How just this is, O God! They have shed the blood of millions of your people! So you have given them blood to drink! They deserve it!" And notice verse 7. Altars don't talk! Back in 6:9-10 we met a group of people under the altar, early tribulation martyrs who were asking God, "How long before you avenge our blood?!" And they were told to wait a little longer until all their brothers were also killed. And now God is doing it! He's avenging their deaths and they cry, Yes, Lord God Almighty, true and just are your judgments! Then comes:

4. the plague of scorching (8-9) Earlier the sun was lessened, the day shortened by a third. Here the opposite occurs. God intensifies the heat of the sun or removes the ozone layer or however He does it, so that it scorches people. It sears them; it burns them. They can't be out in its full light without some shield. And get this; they know who is doing this! They know who controls the sun and who polluted the waters and sent the sores and they CURSE Him! They refuse to repent and fall before Him in sorrow for their sins; they display the hatred of God and the true wickedness that is in their hearts. He IS just! Then after a bit of being scorched, God turns the sun off and sends:

5. the plague of darkness (10-11) Now there is a period of darkness, like the darkness of Egypt, and it is focused particularly upon the kingdom of the beast, that 10 nation western empire. God shrouds the sun somehow and daytime is black as night. And there they sit, those followers of Antichrist, covered by painful sores, nothing to drink, nursing their burns, biting their tongues in agony and what do they do? They curse the God of heaven and still refuse to repent! Oh, the heart of man is desperately wicked, Jeremiah said! Then comes the sixth angel and the effect when his bowl is poured out is a little different. It is:

6. the plague of the gathering of armies (12-14, 16) Now this relates to what we saw back in 9:14-16. There God released some wicked angels, some demons, who had been kept bound at the Euphrates River. And by them God started a vast army of 200 million from the east, sweeping across the land mass of Asia, slaying a third of the earth's population as they go. Verses 13-15 here seem to be a flashback showing how that worked. Satan had sent out three of his most powerful evil spirits to indwell the kings of various regions of the earth. In Daniel we are told that there is a northern, probably Russian, confederacy, a southern, probably African, confederacy and an eastern, probably Chinese, confederacy. These leaders receive miraculous power and are able to lead their groups of nations to rebel against the Beast, the western ruler, who is dominating the whole world. So, in this final hour these armies are all drawing near to Israel. This vast army from the east is approaching and the only remaining thing standing in its way is the great Euphrates River, so now God dries it up. Maybe supernaturally, but there are already dams on the Euphrates River today that could do this. The target of these armies is a broad valley in northern Palestine, the valley of Megiddo, and they come for a clash, a final war that has become known as Armageddon. The sixth plague really is the arrival of this vast eastern army for the final battle! Now you might want to ask yourself, "Why would Satan want to gather all the armies of the earth to fight against his own man, his own ruler who already dominates the earth? Why would he want to divide his own kingdom?" I think the answer is that Satan is using it as a ruse; his goal is to gather all of earth's military might in one spot, the right spot, so that it can all be turned directly against Jesus Christ as He comes! So now it's all in place and just before Christ lights up the sky with His coming God sends the last plague:

7. the plague of destruction (17-21) First there is:

a. a colossal earthquake in verses (18-19) that is worse than any ever recorded. It's off the top of the Richter scale. It is felt worldwide, so severely that cities all over the world collapse and that great city which is called Babylon in the text, but is probably Rome, the capital of the beast's kingdom, crumbles and is split into three parts. We'll see more about this in the next chapters. But one can hardly imagine the seismological changes and the changes in the plate tectonics underlying the earth's land masses. No wonder that along with the earthquake comes:

b. physiographical changes in verse (20) Great geological shifts occur worldwide. Islands sink and disappear; mountains are leveled. The world seems to be falling apart, it's very foundations crumbling. And from heaven God rains down:

c. gigantic hailstones in verse (21) Hundred pound hailstones! Imagine it! That would break right through the roof of your house! People must be hiding in basements and cellars and yet what do they do? Instead of turning to Him, they still curse God! Listen, when Christ gathers all the unbelievers of earth at His coming to destroy them, He is not gathering poor innocent people who never heard of Him. He is gathering wicked people who have been warned time and again, who have seen and know the power of His judgments and who have wickedly cursed Him to the bitter end! They deserve His wrath; He is just in what He does!

But what about His own people! There will still be a multitude of believers living in that hour and they will have to live through the suffering of these final days. Well, right in the middle of these last plagues, John hears the voice of Christ Himself breaking in. Look at verse 15 where we have:

III. Christ's Encouragement To His People (15) What is He saying? "Look to My coming!" "See, open your eyes and watch for me. I know it looks like all is lost and the very foundations of the earth are shaken but I am coming swiftly and suddenly. Be ready and look for it! I am coming to deliver you!"

I am reminded of that scene in the Lord of the Rings movie where good King Theoden and Aragorn and his people are under siege in the castle of Helmsdeep by an army of 10,000 horrible uruchai. The castle wall has been breached. They are locked in the inner keep and the enemy army is battering down the wooden door with a battering ram. The death of all seems only moments away. And Theoden is ready to give up in total despair and says, So much death! What can men do against such reckless hate! And at that moment a ray of light bursts through the upper window and Gimli says "It is dawn." And with that the words of Gandalf, the Christ-figure in the movie, come echoing back to them all... Look to my coming at first light on the third day. At dawn look to the east. So they mount their horses and ride out through the door trampling their enemies and there on the high ridge above the valley sits Gandalf on a shining white horse with thousands of riders gathered behind him and they sweep down in a majestic wave and destroy every last enemy! Friends, that is what Jesus is saying to his despairing end-time followers, Look to my coming! I am coming quickly, swiftly! In just a few days now. Do not despair; do not give up; stay faithful to Me. I will be there right on time! Oh listen, that is His encouragement to you even today. If you are suffering, if you are struggling, if the foundations of your world seem shaken and you have no place to turn and it seems all is lost, hear His encouragement, Behold! Look! See! I am coming. Watch for Me! Stay faithful; keep your garments of righteousness. Be ready for at just the right moment I am coming. And even if I take you home to Me first, still know this: I AM COMING and I will set the world straight! Evil will not triumph. I will!

Revelation: Things To Come

The Tribulation: Two World Systems - Chs. 17-18

As we ended chapter 16 last time, we saw that the last plague God pours out on earth at the very end of the Tribulation period just before Christ comes is the destruction of a city called "Babylon the Great" (verse 19) with a great earthquake. Chapters 17 and 18 are a fresh vision which spells out that destruction in greater and more graphic detail. Now the first question that should be on your mind is, "What is all the talk about Babylon all of a sudden?" The word only occurs five times in the New Testament outside of Revelation and four of those times it refers to the Babylonian captivity of the Jews in the Old Testament. The best that I can tell, at the time that John wrote this, the literal city of Babylon on the Euphrates River had been lying almost completely in ruins for 200 years! There has been no city of Babylon for 2100 years! Saddam Hussein set out to rebuild its ruins and make himself the new Nebuchadnezzar until the US invasion put a stop to it! You know why? God said in Is. 13:17-20 that He would overthrow Babylon and it would never be inhabited again to all generations! So the name:

I. Babylon: is A Veiled Reference That's what the word MYSTERY means in verse 5. It is not part of the name. God is telling John to stop and think and realize that the Babylon the Great is not literal. It is a code name, if you will. Verse 9 confirms again that we must think about it and realize that it's not literal. It is in fact, A Code Name For Rome. In 1 Peter 5:13, Peter signs off his letter by saying, She who is in Babylon... sends you her greetings, and so does my son Mark. Peter and Mark were not camped in the ruins of ancient Babylon; they were in ROME! Peter was beheaded there! Mark was with Paul there! Babylon the Great was a way of talking about Rome, the great empire that ruled the world, the center of all that was evil on earth in its day, the great city that was shedding the blood of the saints in awful persecutions. So why not just say "Rome"? Well, maybe God was shielding Christians from even greater persecution on the basis that their holy documents say Rome will be destroyed. But I rather think it's because God is describing something that it is more than just a literal city and empire. Rome in John's day was the climax and the epitome of two systems, a system of religion and a system of secular power, that had been present through all of human history and will reappear and rise to their fullest height during the Tribulation period. So, as we enter chapter 17, we see:

II. Babylon first as: The Religion Which Dominates The Early Tribulation - 17:1-6 Adultery, harlotry and prostitution are all terms which the Bible uses throughout the Old Testament to describe those who leave the worship of the true God and become unfaithful by giving themselves to the worship of false gods, idols. Chronicles describes Israel thus, ...they were unfaithful to the God of their fathers and prostituted themselves to the gods of the peoples of the land... - 1 Chr. 5:25. Babylon became the symbolic name for this kind of false idolatrous religion and I guess the reason is that it all began there in the first place!

1. Babylon is the root of all false religion Look with me at Gen. 10:8-10, 11:2, 9. Nimrod was not a hunter of animals; he was a hunter of people, a great warrior. He was the first empire-builder of the human race, the first man to set out to rule the world. 3,000 years before Christ he established four cities in Mesopotamia and his capital was Babylon. There he led his people in building a tower. It wasn't an architectural feat or an astronomical observatory; it was a ziggurat, a tower built for false idolatrous worship! Nimrod led the people of earth into rebellion against God and established the first system of apostate adulterous religion, of trading the knowledge of the true God for the worship of created things. Of course, God scattered them abroad and the tower of Babylon became the tower of Babel, the tower of confusion. But the religion birthed there did not die out. Rather:

a. it reproduced into a multitude of Babylonian cults that continued for centuries. The ancient religious myths say that Nimrod had a wife called Semiramis. She was the high priestess of the idol worship. She had a son, a son whom she claimed was miraculously conceived. He was named Tammuz and was worshipped by many of the peoples of the ancient near east as a savior. After her lifetime Semiramis was worshipped as the "Queen of Heaven", even by some of the Israelites mentioned in Jer. 7:18, 44:17-19. Tammuz, it was said in the stories, was killed but he rose again and weeping over him was practiced even by Israelites in Ez. 18:4. Among the inhabitants of Canaan Tammuz was known as Baal and worshipped together with his lover Ashtoreth by several cultures in that region. Egypt had similar legends about its gods and the whole of the ancient world became filled with cult after cult in imitation of early Babylonian worship and almost all of them included ritual sacred prostitution and blood sacrifices (both animal and human). The gods were re-named but the concepts kept on being passed from one people to another. As the rule of this part of the world passed from one empire to another, from Syria to Assyria to Babylon to Persia to Greece and finally to Rome, this Babylonian paganism:

b. it morphed into not only into the legends of the Greek and Roman gods and goddesses but into the plethora of the mystery religions of the Roman era which Paul contended with. The myth of a mother goddess and a savior son was obviously a Satanic counterfeit of God's plan to send Christ into the world, but in its various forms it fit awfully conveniently with the story of Christ and later, once Christianity became the official religion of the Roman Empire in 325 AD, it was integrated into the very practice of Christianity itself. Instead of a vibrant personal faith in Christ, over the centuries Christianity was often reduced to rituals and ceremonies that were strangely pagan in origin. Such concepts as the continuing dying of Christ over and over in the mass, that's what Tammuz did every year! Or the concept of praying for the dead or worshipping dead saints. Worshipping the virgin mother and paying her homage, having a priesthood to offer a sacrifice for the people, so many of the practices of medieval Christianity have roots in this paganism and led it so far astray from the church Jesus came to establish. It amassed huge amounts of wealth and property and joined itself to political systems so that popes were crowning kings and sending armies to do battle. No wonder that God broke in and "reformed" His church 500 years ago and split off whole new wings of it that went back to apostolic and true faith. But of course, these "Protestant" manifestations of the church often fell back into the same trap. Well, I said all of that as background to say this; this passage is showing us that:

2. ultimately during the Tribulation a "false church" will arise And that makes sense if you just think about it for a minute. If the Rapture occurred today and suddenly all the true believers in the world were gone in an instant, would there still be churches? Would there still be people attending them? Sure! Of course, evangelical churches would sit largely empty but many congregations in some of the very liberal mainline denominations would still have a good portion of their people left! And all of those left would be people who didn't know Christ, who didn't believe the Bible, who will be glad to be rid of the ancient archaic notions which we hold, who will be glad to embrace open morality and homosexuality and abortion, who will be glad to say that their way is only one of many ways to reach out to God and join together to finally bring about a true worldwide church, one umbrella for all religious people to enter. That's how during the Tribulation a "false church," an "unfaithful, harlot church" will arise.

a. it will be completely unfaithful to God in teaching and practice In fact, for all its modernity it will probably look strangely like ancient idolatrous religion has always looked, filled with immoral practices and absolute denial of Christ as the only Savior. But this "harlot church":

b. it will deeply impact the world's political system It will "ride the beast", just as its forbears did. It will have heavy political clout and influence, particularly over the western portion of the world. And:

c. it will accumulate great material wealth That's why this harlot is dressed in purple and scarlet and glittering with golden jewelry. Just as the church became steeped in materialism before, so it will again. And sadly:

d. it will persecute true believers Those who do come to believe and trust in Christ for real will be the enemy. And so, she is drunk in verse 6 with the blood of the martyrs. It will be a new inquisition, a new purging of the world once and for all, in their eyes, of all religious bigotry, a triumph of modern religion. Then note in verse (18):

e. it will be identified with the city which rules the world, that is, Rome. Now, PLEASE don't go home and say that I said that the pope is the antichrist and the Roman Catholic church is the great harlot of Rev. 17! Luther said that, but I didn't say that! This harlot church will have Catholics in it, no doubt, but it will also have Episcopalians and Lutherans and Methodists and Presbyterians and Baptists and probably some independents too. They'll all join in one massive body that is identified with and probably headquartered in what will then be the capital of the western world, Rome. However, this false church:

3. it will be destroyed by the ruling empire (15-17) To put it simply, this false religious system:

a. it will be wiped out at the mid-point of the Tribulation During the first 3 ½ years I'm sure the world leader, the antichrist, will encourage it, just like he will the Jews. But in his heart, he has other plans. At that midpoint, when he shows his true colors and sets up his statue in the Temple, he'll wipe this false church out and:

b. it will be replaced by the cult of worship of the world ruler alone. The only acceptable religion will now be the worship of him and only him.

Now why talk about this anyway? We'll be gone! Well, if the Rapture were to happen today, we just read the fate of so many of our friends and neighbors, good people who may be religious, but they're lost and don't know Christ. They have a "form of religion"; they go to church; they say prayers; they do good works. But they have never experienced the "power of God" to make them new creatures. Of course, if they die without Christ they will be lost forever. But if they should live into this period they will almost surely be caught up into this false movement and swept along to oblivion! Their chances of genuinely trusting Christ will be far less than they are now! We have to learn to see the world as Jesus does. When He saw the people of the nearby Samaritan village coming out to meet Him, He said, ...I tell you, open your eyes and look at the fields! They are ripe for harvest. - John 4:35. We are harvesters! That's the purpose of our lives on earth, to bring people into the kingdom. But so often the harvest stands in the field unreaped while we are off seeking our own pleasure or prosperity. May God give us eyes to see and care about the great need of the many around US that we may bring them to Him! We need to move on to look at:

III. Babylon, second, as: The Empire Which Rules During The Tribulation - 17:7-14 This beast is the political system of the end time. It is an Empire, a world empire, and notice three things about it. First:

1. it will be restored after going out of existence (7-8) It will exist, then not exist, and then be restored to life again. Without going back to Daniel again, we saw already there that if God's word is true this HAS to be the Roman Empire. The nations that made it up never ceased to exist; it simply fell apart into a jumble of individual nations. But it will be put back together once more as an empire, an empire with a taste to rule the world. Second:

2. its emperor will be the last in the line of godless rulers of that empire (9-11) The seven hills point to Rome but they also represent kings, rulers. Multiple attempts have been made to guess who God means here and truthfully, we don't really know. What we do know is that just as there was a succession of Caesars at Rome who ruled the world, there will be a last in their line, the beast, the antichrist of chapter 13. He will be the last and greatest of all. And third:

3. its form will be a confederacy of 10 nations (12-13), a unity of 10 member states who join together in the final hour of the world to give him their power. The desire to rule the world which began in Babylon and moved through state after state to Rome and lasted almost 1000 years, will revive and emerge into this end time political system that rules the world. But at the same time, it is also an economic system and in chapter 18 we see:

IV. Babylon, thirdly as: The City Leveled In The Last Plague Of The Tribulation - Ch. 18 That last plague from heaven in chapter 16 was a great earthquake that crumbled the great city, great Babylon that ruled the world! And here we see that:

1. its destruction is complete (1-3, 21-24) Those words are strangely like the words of doom that Isaiah pronounced against ancient Babylon. Just as that city has lain in ruins perpetually, so this great city of rebuilt Rome that will rule the world during that time will be completely destroyed. Why?

2. its destruction is deserved (4-8, 20) She is evil and she is proud. She has set herself against the people of God and she deserves to be destroyed. It is absolutely just. And look who misses her!

3. its destruction is lamented, first of all, by kings (9-10). All the kings of the earth who had allied themselves with her stand terrified. How can this be? How can she be destroyed in a day, so completely! Merchants stand there too

(11-17a). She was the center of world trade, of economic prosperity and here she lies in ruins in an hour! All their wealth has fallen into a heap of rubble! And Seamen stand there in (17b-19). They stand on their ships and watch her from afar (by the way that's another reason this can't literally be Babylon; there is no ocean, no seaport for hundreds of miles there). They throw dust on their heads as they see the end of their economic life before their eyes and shout the same lament.

So, what lesson does God have here for us? It seems obvious: People who set their hope in the things of this world are doomed to lose them! Jesus put it like this, What good is it for a man to gain the whole world, yet forfeit his soul? - Mark 8:36. Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy, and where thieves break in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust do not destroy, and where thieves do not break in and steal. - Mat. 6:19-20. That's true right now, whether we are close to the end time or not! When you die, it all goes up in smoke. You brought nothing into the world and you can't take anything out of it. The only treasures that last are spiritual, the development of our relationship with Jesus Christ and the fruit that results from Him living out His life through us on earth. But it's also true in a historical sense. Even today we live in a Satanically-controlled world system. Babylon, the empire of this world, is always trying to get its clutches into us! Its message comes at us from every direction; we are pressured at work, at school, and by the media that bombard us. Babylon never stops trying to get us to join in its rebellion against God, to think the way it thinks, to do the things it does, to leave our status as Christ's pure virgin bride and become an unfaithful adulteress. The pressure is awful, but I saved the good news for last:

V. Babylon: Satan's System, will be Annihilated At Our Return With Christ - 17:14 At the very end all the forces this world system can muster will be gathered in Israel to make war against the Lamb, to stand against Him as He returns to stop Him from setting up His kingdom on this earth. But the Lamb will conquer them; the Lamb will be victorious. In fact, we'll read next week that He will wipe them all out simply by the word that goes out of His mouth! How can He do that? Because He is King of Kings and Lord of Lords and nothing can stop Him! But look, there's more! With Him when He comes are His called, chosen and faithful followers! Who are they? US! We are with Him when He comes! Oh brothers and sisters, it's tough to live under the evil system of this world, even now! The pressure to give in and worship the beast through materialism and self-centered philosophies and false religions with empty promises is almost unbearable at times. But be faithful! Jesus is coming soon to wipe out Satan's kingdom forever. One day the kingdoms of this world will all come crashing down and He will set up a Kingdom where the lion will lie down with the lamb, where they won't hurt or destroy in all His holy mountain, where all the redeemed nations will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks and they won't learn war anymore and the knowledge of the Lord will cover the earth like the waters cover the sea. And when He does it, we will be with Him!

1700 years ago (Feb. 23, AD 303), the Roman Emperor Diocletian issued his well-known "Edict Against The Christians" which began 10 years of the last, bloodiest and harshest persecution the church had ever faced. Hundreds of thousands died, many by the most gruesome forms of torture. Diocletian was so bold that he and his co-regent Maximius both minted coins commemorating the extermination of Christianity from the earth. Eight years later (311) Diocletian died, an emaciated man, his body ravaged by illness and having stepped down from emperorship in disillusionment. He may have committed suicide. One year after that in 312 his successor Constantine saw a vision of the sign of the cross in the heavens and openly declared himself a Christian, ending 250 years of waves of persecution. 70 years later (380) the emperor Theodosius declared Christianity the official religion of the Roman Empire. No Babylon, no earthly empire or system that sets itself up against Christ, has ever stood. The last and worst of them all won't stand, because HE is King of kings and Lord of lords and HE WILL REIGN! And when He does, Beloved, we will be WITH HIM! Be faithful!

Revelation: Things To Come

The Return Of Jesus Christ - Ch. 19

Rev. 19 contains the prophetic record of the central event of all history, the moment that the entire universe has been poised and waiting for ever since Genesis 3, the moment that the church has been longing and looking for ever since Jesus ascended in Acts 1, the Return of Jesus Christ to set up the Kingdom of God on this earth! As we began this series, I urged you to view Revelation as the record of your own future, to study with anticipation and see yourself participating in it. In chapters 6 through 18 that's been a bit difficult because they describe the 7 years of the Tribulation, during which time you and I will not be on earth but in heaven. But now in chapter 19, if you look closely, you will find yourself squarely in the middle of all that is happening. The chapter divides very obviously into two halves. In the first half we watch as:

I. All Of Heaven Celebrates Jubilantly (1-10) That great day and hour has finally arrived. Among heaven's millions the excitement runs so high that all of heaven is shouting their praise to God with all their might. Try to picture it. Think of the multitude in Times Square on New Year's Eve at the moment the ball drops, how they all scream. Or imagine the noise in the stadium full of fans as the Phillies won the World Series! Now multiply that sound into millions upon millions and that's what John calls, the roar of a great multitude in heaven! And what they are shouting is one word that occurs nowhere else in the New Testament, yet we find it here four times. Hallelujah! It's a Hebrew word that shows up only in the Psalms and then only in a few of them, such as Ps. 150 which starts and ends with this word being translated, PRAISE THE LORD! In Hebrew it is Hallelujah! It is an expression of great joy emanating from the heart. Handel tried to capture the majesty of it in his grand "Hallelujah Chorus". When King George II first heard it, he was so moved that he, the King, rose to his feet to acknowledge Christ and the entire audience rose with him which is why we still do that today. The story is told that one day Handel's assistant walked into Handel's room after shouting to him for several minutes with no response. The assistant found Handel in tears, and when asked what was wrong, Handel held up the score to the Hallelujah Chorus and said, "I thought I saw the face of God!" We can try to picture it; we can try to sing it, yet try as we might, we can't begin to imagine the overwhelming explosion of joy that we will personally experience in heaven on that day! And in the text, we read that that joy will come from two sources. First there will be joy:

1. because the world system has been destroyed (1b-4) The destruction of great Rome, the Great Babylon, the capital city of this world during the Tribulation, has been destroyed, just shortly before this by a great earthquake in chapters 16-18. But it is more than that; heaven is rejoicing because in just a few moments Satan's entire system will be shut down and brought to an end! The day of evil will be over at long last and the era of righteousness will be brought in! No more war! No more disease and famine! No more poverty! No more murdering the innocent; no more fear for the helpless! It's over; its day is past! Hallelujah! That's reason enough to shout, but the heavenly multitude is also shouting for another reason. They're shouting:

2. because the wedding supper of the Lamb has come (5-9) Oh, there's a grand wedding reception about to happen. Our beloved King is getting married! On the 29th of July 1981 crowds of 600,000 people filled the streets of London trying to catch a glimpse of Prince Charles and Lady Diana Spencer on their wedding day. More than 750 million people watched the ceremony around the globe, making it the most popular program ever broadcast. She was the first English woman to marry an heir to the throne in 300 years and it seems the eyes of the whole world were upon her. Yet even all of that pales in comparison to the grand wedding that will occur at the return of our King! The eyes of the whole UNIVERSE will be upon it, shouting and cheering for it. And we are told in verses 7-8 that:

a. His bride is ready (7-8) Now who is that? What wife would our great King of the universe choose for Himself? Listen to what Paul said, Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her to make her holy, cleansing her by the washing with water through the word, and to present her to himself as a radiant church, without stain or wrinkle or any other blemish, but holy and blameless. - Eph. 5:25-27. The Church is His wife, His bride! And who is the church? YOU are! I am! Everyone who has believed in Christ for the last 2,000 years is! This is OUR wedding feast, the celebration of OUR union with Christ! But please understand that this image of a wedding which Scripture uses in a number of places is different from weddings the way we are used to them. A Jewish marriage had essentially three parts. The first is betrothal. The potential groom would approach the father of the bride with his desire to marry his daughter. And if it was agreeable and the arrangements suitable, he would pay the bride price that was asked and a covenant was made. The couple drank from a common cup of wine as a sign of it and from that moment they were considered married, although she continued to live in her father's house for the next year and they had no physical union. During that year apart, she would prepare herself and collect the dowry she would bring with her and the groom would prepare a room in his father's house for them to live. The pattern of Christ's betrothal is obvious; the Church:

(1) she was betrothed to Him in covenant at the Cross Look with me at Mt. 26:27-29. That cup was the cup of His marriage covenant. He drank it together with His disciples, with His church. We drink it with Him every time we celebrate Communion. It reminds us of the great bride price that He paid to have us, His own blood shed on the cross! Beloved, we are betrothed to Christ. We are His chaste virgin bride as Paul said. He left us for this season of betrothal, this church age, to get ready for the wedding and He went back to His Father's house to prepare a place for us! But on the appointed day, the second step would happen; the groom would come to the bride's house to take her to His house, her new home, where they would live in full union from then on. And so, with the Church, Christ:

(2) He will come to take her to His home at the Rapture He said, In my Father's house are many rooms; if it were not so, I would have told you. I am going there to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come back and take you to be with me that you also may be where I am. - Jn. 14:2-3. On the appointed day He will come and get us and take us to our new home with Him in the heavenly city, the New Jerusalem. But there is one thing left to do! The marriage must be celebrated. A great banquet of celebration is prepared. When the bride arrives at the groom's home, the guests have already been called and they are waiting to have a feast, a joyous celebration that could last for days, even an entire week. And for the Church:

(3) the marriage feast will occur in the Kingdom That's what our text is talking about. At Jesus' coming there will be a great celebration as His bride is unveiled in all her beauty before all of creation and there will be a feast like nothing the world has ever seen! Jesus spoke of it in Mt. 8:11, I say to you that many will come from the east and the west, and will take their places at the feast with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. You see that's what it means when it says that:

(4) His guests have all been summoned in (9) We use this as an invitation like, "Hey, do you want to come to a wedding? Do you want to receive Jesus?" But the Greek says, Blessed are those who HAVE BEEN CALLED. They've been summoned and they are already there to celebrate! If the bride is the church, then who are the guests at this feast? We just read the names of some of them! Abraham, Isaac and Jacob will be there! The Old Testament saints will join in the celebration and so will those great multitudes that believed during the tribulation once we were taken up. They're the guests and they're all there to celebrate with us! And what a time it will be! John Eldredge described the wedding feast of the Lamb like this, Now, you've got to get images of Baptist receptions entirely out of your mind--folks milling around in the church gym, holding Styrofoam cups of punch, wondering what to do with themselves. You've got to picture an Italian wedding or, better, a Jewish wedding. They roll up the rugs and push back the furniture. There is dancing. "Then maidens will dance and be glad, young men and old as well" (Jer. 31:13). There is feasting. "On this mountain the LORD Almighty will prepare a feast of rich food for all peoples" (Isa. 25:6). (Can you imagine what kind of cook God must be?) And there is drinking--the feast God says he is preparing includes "a banquet of aged wine--the best of meats and the finest of wines." In fact, at his Last Supper our Bridegroom said he will not drink of "the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes" (Luke 22:18). Then he'll pop a cork! [The Journey of Desire - p. 141-2]. Hey, maybe they'll be music by David and Heman and Asaph! Listen, there is a great party coming when all the people of God will celebrate the Marriage Feast of the Lamb at His coming! No wonder all of heaven is shouting, "Hallelujah, it's finally here!" But here's a detail that we all should pay attention to. Did you see the dress the bride had on? Guess what!

(5) she is wearing a garment of her own making (8) We're making our own wedding dress! While our Groom is in heaven preparing our home, we're on earth preparing our garment by what we do with our lives! The reward of our righteous deeds done through the Spirit is a glorious garment of white to wear on our wedding day! That ought to make us consider how we're living, shouldn't it? Well, in verse 10 we have:

b. a reminder: the purpose of prophecy is to glorify Jesus (10) John is so overwhelmed that he can't take it all and simply falls down at the feet of the messenger to worship. But the angel warns him: never mistake the created thing for the Creator! It is so easy to get all caught up in the abundance of revelations, to immerse yourself in all of the details of what we've been shown and, in the end, to love the study of the book more than the Groom who's coming to get us! The spirit and purpose of all prophecy, all revelation, is to glorify Him! Now, as all of heaven celebrates jubilantly, in the second half of the chapter:

II. Jesus Returns To Earth Triumphantly (11-21) Oh, just look at:

1. the manner in which He will come (11-16) What a sight, our Lord Jesus on the day of His Return, radiant in all His glory! Look more closely at Him and here are some things you can see. First:

a. He will come as a Victor (11a) The scene here is clearly like that of a Roman "triumph", the grand parade where the victorious general rides into the city on a white horse at the head of all his troops, the streets lined with cheering citizens! The next time Christ comes it won't be humbly and riding on a donkey meek and mild; it will be on a white horse at the head of a heavenly army! He will come as the triumphant Victor who has conquered all His foes and put all His enemies beneath His feet! Second:

b. He will come as a Judge (11b-13) His garments are red, not this time from His own blood as our sacrificial lamb, but from the blood of His enemies! He comes to slay all the wicked of the earth in a just judgment. Third:

c. He will come with His saints (14) When the Lamb comes to destroy His enemies, 17:14 says, with Him will be His called, chosen and faithful followers! The armies of heaven are US! We'll accompany Him on that great day at His return. Won't it be grand to ride in with Him like the cavalry, just in the nick of time to save the world and to rescue that poor remnant of tribulation believers who are just hanging on by a thread! Finally:

d. He will come to rule the earth (15-16) Don't worry; we are with Him, but we do not come to fight! There is a sharp sword that comes out of His mouth that destroys them all which is a symbolic way of saying that:

(1) His word will destroy His enemies He will not lift a finger. He will not raise a sword. He will not lift a shield. He will simply speak a word! And at His word they will all die. Their very life is sustained by the power of His word and at His word it will be removed and they fall lifeless before Him in heaps. And:

(2) He will assume His rightful position His title is emblazoned on His robe, King of Kings and Lord of Lords! From this moment on, the earth will be directly under His rule. No more usurpers! No more tyrants! No more will Satan have his way and wreak havoc on His creation! Now look:

2. what will happen when He comes (17-21) First:

a. He will destroy all the armies of earth at His word. They have been gathered in the valley of Megiddo in the land of Israel to fight one another, and as His sign appears in the sky, they will all turn en masse to stand together against Him. But one little word will fell them all! In fact, they will become carrion for the birds, a huge feast for the vultures, who will clean up the bodies! All the might of this world cannot stop the King of Kings from taking up His Kingdom. But a special doom is reserved for some of them:

b. He will cast the leaders of earth alive into the lake of fire The Beast, the antichrist, and his henchman, the False Prophet, are thrown alive into gehenna, the lake of eternal fire to suffer eternally. And if you look down to 20:10 you'll see that they are still there 1,000 years later and that their torment lasts forever and ever. That is the true and just penalty for opposing the King.

And with all opposition finally out of the way, the kingdoms of the world become the Kingdom of our Lord. But more about that next week. I'd like to close with a story that I borrowed from Dr. David Jeremiah: Once there was a nobleman whose wife was dead and his only child was a beautiful young lady of marriageable age. The father invited all the young noblemen in the country to come for a week of entertainment at his castle. Great preparations were made. Strolling musicians were hired, minstrels were engaged, while pigs were roasted and a hundred appetizing foods were prepared. The castle was a bustle of preparation. Early on the day of their arrival, a loud knocking was heard at the postern gate. It was a deformed man on crutches. A few crusts were thrust at him and the gate slammed in his face. He continued to knock. "What do you want?", someone asked. "Isn't this the day the guests seek the nobleman's daughter? I've come to beg for her hand." Peals of laughter echoed as cooks, servants and soldiers gathered to laugh and to mock the poor fool. Hearing the noise, the daughter asked what was happening. When told, she said, "I'll go and see him." Down the winding stairs she went, out into the cobbled yard and the crowd opened to let her pass. "What is it you want?" she asked the beggar. He fastened on her an earnest look. "I have seen you while I myself was unnoticed and I love you and have come to ask if you will marry me." The crowds howled, but the man and maid eyed each other deeply. "Yes, I will marry you," she said as the crowd shrieked with merriment. "Very well," said the beggar. "I will return in a year and a day." The guests arrived in due course but she gave them no encouragement. The nobleman scolded and importuned and finally was actually cruel to his daughter. The servants were the same. Gloom descended on the castle. "You would marry a beggar," snapped her father. "He will never come back, that's sure!" But the girl simply smiled. A year passed and finally the day came. The morning passed uneventfully, then at high noon distant peals of music were heard and the rumbling of drums. The sun flashed on spears and polished armor. A courier spurred to the gate with the astonishing news that the king's son, the royal prince, was arriving. The nobleman and his daughter had barely time to reach the gate. There, riding between two rows of knights was the king's son mounted on a magnificent white charger and clad in golden armor. Swinging gracefully from his steed he stood before the nobleman, to whom he gave no recognition. He took the girl by the hand and in a most endearing fashion said, "My love, I have come back for you as I promised." Her eyes filled with tears as she murmured, "I knew you would come." So he took her as his bride. But before she left there was just time for one of the maids to ask, "How did you know that the beggar was the Prince in disguise?" "Ah, I recognized him the first time" she said. "I looked into his eyes and listened to his voice and I knew that day that he was indeed the son of the King." [Turning Points Magazine, Feb. 2009, p. 15]

Jesus came the first time in humility as the poorest of men. He came to seek His Bride, to ask her hand, to claim her as His own. He was mocked and ridiculed and crucified. But His Bride said, "Yes, I will marry you!" And today His Bride is making herself ready. She's often scorned and ridiculed, even rejected and treated cruelly. Yet we who have been betrothed to Jesus simply hang on to His promise that one glad day He will come to take up His Kingdom and that together we will rule in joy forever and ever! And people ask us, "Why do you wait for this beggar?" And we answer, "Many years ago I listened to His voice and I knew that day He was the Son of the King! I know He will come."

Revelation: Things To Come

The Kingdom Come - Ch. 20

For 2000 years Christians have been praying, Thy Kingdom come; Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven! And while that is something we are praying will happen even in our current world, chapter 20 of Revelation records the ultimate answer to that prayer. After Christ returns to earth and defeats His enemies in chapter 19, He will set up His Kingdom right here on the earth. As loud voices from heaven put it when the seventh trumpet sounded back in 11:15, The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he will reign for ever and ever. That is what chapter 20 is describing and we note here five important events. The first thing that happens when Jesus comes is that:

I. Satan Is Bound (1-3) Even though he was defeated at the Cross and "put out of business" there, as Heb. 2:14 says, God has still allowed him to be free all these years, free to use the only weapon he has left, deception. He has been free to blind the minds of unbelievers and deceive them through all kinds of lies that the culture around them brainwashes them with from their earliest days. He's been free to convince people that good is evil and evil is good and lure them into all kinds of awful behaviors, but more than anything, he's been free to keep them locked away from the knowledge of the truth of God. However, now things will be different. In that moment he will be bound with a great chain that he can't break and locked securely in a place that he can't escape from. Notice first:

1. the place of his confinement: the Abyss, literally the Bottomless Pit. We've seen the abyss before, back in 9:1-2. The abyss is not hell, the lake of fire where eternal punishment takes place; it is the place where demons are confined by God. Look with me at 2 Pet. 2:4. Not all of the angels that fell with Satan are running around as free demons wreaking havoc. Many of them God confined in a special place. The Greek word here is not hell, but tartarus, which simply means the underworld. In Revelation that same place is called the Abyss or Pit. There they are confined in chains and suffer while awaiting their eternal judgment. The legion of demons in the man in Gadara begged Jesus not to send them to this place, the Pit, but to let them keep roaming free. But now Satan himself is chained and locked securely there in the pit, a place from which he cannot escape to roam free any more. And the text doesn't say so, but I imagine that all of his demonic hosts are locked up along with him. But for how long? Well, we read that:

2. the length of his confinement is 1000 years For a thousand years he will not be able to deceive the nations, to lie to people or to tempt people. Imagine that! No more external temptation! No more demonic thoughts being whispered into people's minds! No forces outside of people urging them to do evil. No one will be able to say, "The Devil made me do it!" or even, "The Devil tempted me to do it!" And therein lies the reason for this confinement; it is to give the human race the opportunity to respond to God in and of themselves without Satan's interference and influence. From the first days in the garden of Eden he has been there suggesting evil, leading astray, but no more! Not in Christ's Kingdom! Now, immediately after Satan is bound, a second thing happens:

II. The Saints Are Resurrected (4-6) At the beginning of the Kingdom there is a great Resurrection. What's that about? Well, remember what happened at the Rapture of the Church seven years earlier? Thessalonians says that when the Lord descends for us, the dead in Christ RISE first. That is, they are resurrected. What does that mean? Their spirits are already with Christ, but now their bodies are resurrected; they are given new spiritual bodies just like that which Jesus had when He rose from the dead. And those who are alive are translated into new bodies on the way up. So we, the church, are already resurrected; this is not us. Then who are these people? They are people who had not worshipped the beast or his image, so:

1. they are tribulation saints who perished For seven years, people have been believing and dying, slain by the Satanic world system of the Tribulation period. Thousands, millions of them. We saw their souls waiting patiently in heaven before the Throne and worshipping in several places in Revelation. And now they come to life. That is, their bodies are raised; they are given new glorified resurrection bodies, just as we were! And the text doesn't say this, but I happen to think that:

2. they probably also include the Old Testament saints, because Dan. 12:1-2 says, ...There will be a time of distress such as has not happened from the beginning of nations until then. But at that time your people--everyone whose name is found written in the book--will be delivered. Multitudes who sleep in the dust of the earth will awake: some to everlasting life, others to shame and everlasting contempt. All the people of faith from Adam to Malachi died and were with the Lord, but they were not the church; they were not "the dead in Christ" who were resurrected at the Rapture. They don't have bodies yet, probably not until this moment when their believing Israelite brethren who died in the Tribulation get theirs! Yet at any rate, the point is that:

3. they are given resurrection bodies to serve and reign with Christ They'll be priests of God and of Christ; they'll serve Him. They'll go about carrying out His service and leading in His worship. And they will reign with Him in His Kingdom. They'll be His administrators and coregents for the new world order, as will we! We reign with Him too! And once Satan is gone and the believers from all eras have been raised, then:

III. The Savior Reigns For 1,000 Years We call it The Millennium (6b) You can't miss the time frame. God writes it six times in seven verses (2 thru 7), a thousand years, a thousand years...! He wants us to get the point. There is a new age coming in this world, the Kingdom age, and it will last for a specific period, a thousand years. Not much is really said about this period here, but we know plenty from other places in the Scriptures. First of all, think about this:

1. the earth is repopulated with nations by surviving tribulation believers When Jesus returns, He says that all the peoples of the earth who are still alive are going to be gathered before Him and separated into sheep and goats. The goats are destroyed, but to the sheep He says, Come, you who are blessed by my Father; take your inheritance, the kingdom prepared for you since the creation of the world. They go as normal human beings, alive in human bodies, on into the millennial earth. They build houses and cities. They multiply into nations. They fill the world again, but it happens so fast because the world:

2. it will be transformed by the presence of Christ Look with me at Is. 11:6-10. What a world, transformed into peace by the presence of Christ! No more violence; no more hatred; no more war; no more crime. Never again will there be in it an infant who lives but a few days, or an old man who does not live out his years; he who dies at a hundred will be thought a mere youth; he who fails to reach a hundred will be considered accursed. They will build houses and dwell in them; they will plant vineyards and eat their fruit. - Is. 65:20-21 The longevity of man will be restored as it was before the flood. Yes, the people who dwell on earth will be real humans in real bodies, just like ours, doing real work but enjoying the reward of it. They will die, but only of natural causes! Violence is gone and people live in peace and harmony and here's why:

3. it will be ruled by Christ and all will worship Him Look with me at Zech. 14:9, 16. His rule will be direct and visible. All the nations will worship Him; they'll all go up to Jerusalem, the seat of His government, to worship. We will rule from there with Him and administer His government of the world. He will literally be worshipped by every tribe, people, tongue and nation, not merely in heaven, but right here on this earth! For a thousand years it will literally be heaven on earth.

But oh, how different that is from the world as we live in it today. There's an old movie called "Network" and in it there's a fictional newscaster named Howard Beale who's really losing it and in one of his rants on the air, he says: "I don't have to tell you things are bad. Everybody knows things are bad. It's a depression. Everybody's out of work or scared of losing their job. The dollar buys a nickel's worth; banks are going bust; shopkeepers keep a gun under the counter; punks are running wild in the street, and there's nobody anywhere who seems to know what to do, and there's no end to it. We know the air is unfit to breathe and our food is unfit to eat. And we sit watching our TVs while some local newscaster tells us that today we had fifteen homicides and sixty-three violent crimes, as if that's the way it's supposed to be!" No, that's not the way it's supposed to be! And these verses are here as a reminder that Somebody IS going to do something about it! Jesus is going to return and set it all straight. In the last days the mountain of the LORD's temple will be established as chief among the mountains; it will be raised above the hills, and peoples will stream to it. Many nations will come and say, "Come, let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the house of the God of Jacob. He will teach us his ways, so that we may walk in his paths." The law will go out from Zion, the word of the LORD from Jerusalem. He will judge between many peoples and will settle disputes for strong nations far and wide. They will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks. Nation will not take up sword against nation, nor will they train for war anymore. Every man will sit under his own vine and under his own fig tree, and no one will make them afraid, for the LORD Almighty has spoken. - Micah 4:1-4. For a thousand years, an entire age, the world will be the way God made it to be! Hallelujah! However, there is a fly in the ointment. At the end of that glorious 1,000 Kingdom years, God's:

IV. The Subjects Rebel Again (7-10) But how can that be? Well, remember we are talking about a world full of people who are real human beings exactly like you and I. What are they born with? A nature that WANTS to sin! Man is NOT basically good at the core. Forever people have said, "If you just put the child in a good environment, he'll turn out good! Take away all the evil influence around him and his inner goodness will come out!" For a thousand years people will be in the most excellent environment possible. They will have no external evil influence. They will see Jesus in a direct fashion. They will obey and worship Him, at least EXTERNALLY. But at the end of that time:

1. Satan will be loosed once more from his prison. He'll be allowed to spread his lies once more. He'll be allowed to tell people that there is a way they can get free from God's control over them, that THEY can be god and control their own destiny. So, in spite of the fact that they have seen Christ with their own eyes and experienced His goodness, the minute they are given the opportunity, a number will jump at it! Why? Because the force of sin dwells INSIDE us, no matter what's outside! And because of that:

2. the nations will be deceived once more Not all of them, of course. But many, many, will believe Satan's lie. They will form an army once again. He will tell them that with the might of their human strength they can go to Jerusalem and take the throne of the Kingdom away from Jesus Himself! A fool's errand! And so, after a thousand years of peace and prosperity a generation will rebel once again, proof for all eternity that man is evil and needs a Savior, that he will never be able to build his own utopia, but must be transformed by the power of Christ. Yet, as every other attempt of Satan has, this one will fail too.

3. the rebels will be destroyed suddenly It will be only a brief attempt. Fire will come down from heaven and destroy them all. And now that God's demonstration is over and Satan has served God's last purpose for him:

4. Satan will be cast into the lake of fire permanently in verse 10 and there he will suffer in torment and torture forever and ever in that fire which Jesus said was prepared for the devil and his angels! He will get what he deserves and he will never ever be free to touch our lives in eternity anymore! Oh, how we will rejoice to see our old enemy, that ancient serpent, be cast into the fire once and for all! Then finally, also at the end of that 1,000 years, we read that, at last:

V. Sinners Are Judged Eternally at what is described as The Great White Throne (11-12) Here it is at last, Judgment Day, the day when the dead stand face to face with Eternal God for their sentencing! Now who are these dead? Look back at verse 5. These are the rest of the dead. You see, the resurrection of the dead occurs in two waves. The first wave is the resurrection of the church at the Rapture and then the resurrection of the tribulation believers and Old Testament saints at the beginning of the Millennium. We do not stand before THIS throne! There is no Judgment Day for us! Our judgment occurred at the Cross; that was our Judgment Day! The judgment for our sins fell on Christ and there is no condemnation left for us to face. This second wave includes everybody else that's left. It is all the rest of the dead of all the ages, those who were non-believers, those who were not rightly related to God. It includes all the dead who died during the horrors of the Tribulation without Christ or were slain at His return. Plus, all the people who repopulated the earth and even died during the Millennium, whether they truly believed or not, haven't been resurrected yet. So here they stand, all of them, millions of them, before God's throne and when they do, notice that:

1. the books will be opened Our God is a record-keeping God. He keeps books! The deeds and the acts of every human being are recorded in heaven. It doesn't matter whether the person was great or small, important or insignificant; no one is exempt and there will be everything they've ever done fully exposed. Nothing will be secret; nothing will be hidden; all will be revealed. And these dead will be judged by what is written in the books! But only one verdict can come from that evidence! Guilty! Guilty of sin! Now, the millions of souls who stand there on that day:

2. they will be given resurrection bodies (13) What does this mean? Well, unbelievers don't simply sleep until the resurrection. Just as the souls of believers are instantly in heaven when they die, so the souls of nonbelievers are instantly in hades or hell when they die. You remember what Jesus said about the rich man and Lazarus. The rich man died ...and in hell he lifted up his eyes... He was tormented in the flame, yet he was still only a soul; he did not yet have a body and he had not yet stood before God. The millions and millions of dead bodies will be given up by the grave and by the oceans. Each unbelieving soul will be resurrected, re-embodied in a body that will last forever, just as we will be. And then they will stand before God for sentencing, to receive the just verdict of punishment they deserve. But then look! Another book is opened, a more important book, the Lamb's book of life, the record of all who have trusted Jesus personally to save them from their sins. That's the book where our names are written and Jesus told us that we should rejoice that our names are written in heaven. And their names could have been written there too, yet except for those who believed during the Millennium, for the billions of all the ages who did not believe, their names do not appear! And because of that:

3. they will be sentenced to a second, an eternal death (14-15) They will die a second time in their immortal bodies. They will be cast bodily into gehenna, the lake of eternal fire where, Jesus said, their worm does not die and the fire is not quenched. It is a place of outer darkness, of weeping and gnashing of teeth.

Listen, so many people think that when they die God is going to weigh their deeds and balance them out and are hoping against hope that the scales tip in their favor and God will let them into heaven. I don't know who started that, but in this courtroom, there is no trial! There is no defense; there is no voice. There is only a presentation of the condemning evidence and a sentence passed by the Judge of all the Earth. And the sentence is real suffering in a real body in a real lake of fire forever! The time to escape it is now by fleeing to Jesus! Once we're dead, it's too late! To put it simply, if you're born once, you'll die twice! If you're born twice, you'll die only once! If you are born physically, but are never born again by the Holy Spirit, you'll die twice. You'll die a physical death first and then a second eternal death. But if you are born physically and then born again spiritually, you will die physically, but you will surely NOT die in eternity - John 11:26! You will not be hurt at all by the second death - Rev. 2:11! Listen, this second death is a real thing. Hell is a real place! We hear many stories of believers who have near-death experiences and get a glimpse of the light of heaven. But the opposite also happens. Dr. Maurice Rawlings, a cardiologist in Chattanooga, writes about a time when a man went into cardiac arrest right in his clinic. The doctor and his staff worked feverishly to resuscitate the patient, but he kept fading in and out. The doctor was performing heart massage, but every time he stopped the man appeared to die again. At one point the man regained consciousness. With a look of sheer terror on his face, he yelled at the doctor, "I am in hell! Please don't stop. Every time you quit, I go back into hell. Don't let me go back!" The patient survived and recovered, later committing his life to Christ and gaining the assurance that he would go to heaven when he died. [Beyond Death's Door by Maurice Rawlings. Thomas Nelson, 1978. Pages 19-20.]

So, consider this: the "rest of the dead" who will stand at the Great White Throne on that day are standing all around you and I right now! And they are standing in even greater numbers at the ends of the earth, in the 10/40 Window, in the Muslim block, in the heart of Asia. And our assignment is to make disciples of them all! Listen to what Peter wrote, First of all, you must understand that in the last days scoffers will come, scoffing and following their own evil desires. 4 They will say, "Where is this 'coming' he promised? Ever since our fathers died, everything goes on as it has since the beginning of creation."...The Lord is not slow in keeping his promise, as some understand slowness. He is patient with you, not wanting anyone to perish, but everyone to come to repentance. - 2 Pet. 3:3-4, 9. He is patient with US! He is waiting for us to do our job! We are that doctor! We are the ones keeping people out of hell! That's why we're still here! May that same dedication and that same urgency be ours!

Revelation: Things To Come

Our Eternal Home - Chs. 21-22

In chapters 21-22 of Revelation we come to several ends, to the end of this series of messages, to the end of the book of Revelation, of the vision that God gave to John, to the end of the Bible itself, so that we now have in writing all that God has planned to reveal to us, and finally, to the end of time as we mark it. In chapter 19 we saw that Christ will return to earth. In chapter 20 we saw that He will reign over a transformed earth for a thousand years, a Millennium. But then what? The life that Christ has given us is eternal; it has no end! So, what will forever and ever be like? These two chapters are almost the only glimpse we have in the Word of God of:

I. The Eternal State (21:1-8) And the first thing we are told is that:

1. there will be a new creation (1-2) The heavens and the earth that we know now will pass away and God will make new heavens and a new earth. We're not told here just how that will happen, but look with me at 2 Pet. 3:7, 10-13:

a. the present heavens and earth will be destroyed by fire After that day of judgment of ungodly men which is the Great White Throne judgment at the end of the Millennium, God is going to remake the world. He's going to purge the earth with fire and melt the elements and reshape the whole thing. We don't know exactly what it will be like; we are only told that there will be no more seas. Do you realize that 70% of the current earth's surface area is covered by oceans? That will not be the case in the new earth. I wonder why? I wonder what God has planned? It sounds like He's making room for expansion! I guess we'll just have to wait and see! It will be a different order of creation from what we know now and it will have a wonderful city different from any earthly city that ever existed for us to dwell in. What we do know is that:

b. the new heaven and earth will contain only righteousness The one thing that will be missing completely is sin along with all its effects. In this new world there will only be righteousness. There will only be truth. There will only be love. All of the things that have characterized our world since its inception will be gone. In fact, Is. 65:17 says, Behold, I will create new heavens and a new earth. The former things will not be remembered, nor will they come to mind. Nobody is even going to remember "the way things used to be". And unlike the current world which is running down, wearing out, and has a termination date:

c. the new heaven and earth will endure forever - Is. 66:22 says, As the new heavens and the new earth that I make will endure before me, declares the LORD, so will your name and descendants endure. The new heaven and earth will endure; they will last for eternity. They are our eternal home. Now, in this new creation that God will make:

2. there will be a new intimacy with God (3) It will not be like it is now where we cannot see Him or only as through a mirror, darkly. We will have full communion with Him; He will be our God and we will be His people. He'll be with us and we'll be with Him. There will be no gap, no distance, nothing to separate us from His love. He will not be high and separate; He'll be our Father and we will be His children. We are created to enjoy God forever, the catechism says, and He plans to enjoy us the same way! And notice Who says so! This voice is from the Throne; this is voice of God Himself telling us that this is the way it will be! And:

3. there will be a new order of things without suffering (4-5) Oh, think about it! Nobody dies; nothing dies anymore! Things don't come to an end. And nothing will make us sad any more. No tears. No parting from anyone. No injustice, no fear of anything, nothing to cry about. All tears gone. And no pain, not from anything. Nothing will ever hurt again! The old order that we live in now where you die and cry and sigh will be over and gone; it's never coming back! Everything will be new! GOD says so. He says, "Write it down so people will know you can count on it! I mean it!" However, God also makes it very clear that:

4. all this will be enjoyed only by believers (6-8) You see:

a. it is freely available to all who will come and believe Anyone who is thirsty for it, anyone who wants to have life, can come and believe. It's freely available. And if they are genuine and continue in the faith and don't simply pray some prayer of repentance and then go their own way, if they genuinely want this relationship with God, they can have it. Anyone can! And through it, they will inherit all this. But:

b. all who refuse are punished eternally Those who won't come to Christ and continue in their sinful lifestyles, their eternity looks quite different. It is a lake of eternal fire as we saw last time.

So now God gives John a good look at:

II. The Eternal City (21:9-22:5) Start with 21:2, 9-10. Notice here:

1. the identity of that city: the New Jerusalem Rome has been called for centuries the Eternal City, but it really isn't! There is a far more glorious city! It is the place that Jesus said He was going to prepare for us; it is the city that has foundations that Hebrews 11 says Abraham was always looking forward to by faith. It is a city that was constructed in heaven, of heavenly materials and is lowered down to earth by God Himself as a dwelling place for His people. This is ...the heavenly Jerusalem, the city of the Living God - Heb. 12:22. And this is your new neighborhood; this is where you will live with God for eternity! Now John is shown closely:

2. the appearance of that city (11-21) Let me summarize all of that by simply saying two things. First:

a. it will be unbelievably glorious It is built of the most exquisite and beautiful materials imaginable and some that aren't! Just think, if some of you ladies have good taste and can beautify a house and make it look incredible, how much more taste does God have! It will be beautiful beyond belief! And secondly:

b. it will be absolutely enormous One stadion is 600 feet, so this city is built like a cube that is 1,364 miles long, wide AND high! That's like a city stretching from here, west to the Mississippi River and south, all the way to Florida and it's that high as well. That's more than 1.8 million square miles of space, simply on the first level. And the total space is more than 2.5 billion cubic miles! It's huge! There will be plenty of space for all the Old Testament believers from Israel and all the believers from the church age, from all time! Just for fun, the Population Reference Bureau estimates that the total number of people who have ever been born on earth was roughly 100 billion in 2002. There's enough space for every person who ever lived to personally have a space 500 yards (5 football fields) long, wide and high! Or for you farmers, that's a 51 acre plot that's 500 yards high! And of course, most of the people ever born were not believers and won't be there! It's enormous beyond comprehension. But what's so neat is:

3. the central Source of that city (21:22 - 22:2) There's no Temple because the Father and Jesus are the Temple. We get to interact with them personally and directly. We don't have to go to a place and go through motions to worship. We can express our hearts to them directly! And we don't need to worry about the weather. It isn't lighted by the sun or moon or by electricity; it is lighted by the very glory of God Himself! And it'll never go dry because there's a river of the pure water of life flowing out from the Throne of God and down the main street! Now honestly, I personally hold, along with a number of scholars, the opinion that because of these verses about the nations walking in its light, that the city actually comes down from heaven at the beginning of the Millennium and hangs above the earth like a giant chandelier and the nations of earth have access to it and are blessed by what it supplies to them. And then it is lifted while the earth is remade and comes back down once more for eternity. That makes sense to me, but in truth it's only a guess at the meaning of some of the symbols here. At any rate, what we really want to know about is:

4. our life in that city which is described for us in (22:3-5) What will we do there? What will our life be like? It says that:

a. we will serve Him We will have tasks and responsibilities to perform in this vast new world of His. We won't just sit around on clouds with harps idly doing nothing. We won't just sing or bow down eternally. We'll have a real existence with real things to do, real work, only without effort and strain. And it says that as we do it:

b. we will see His face We will be in His Presence continually, in perpetual personal fellowship and interaction with Him. That will be our worship, continually doing things together with Him forever. And it says that:

c. we will share His reign eternally What does that mean? I read somewhere that there are about 125 White House office staff and something like 3,800 employees. If it takes almost 4,000 people to run one little White House, imagine how many people it will take to run the New Jerusalem! And the new earth! Reigning is not sitting on a golden throne looking picturesque and barking orders! It is being in charge and planning and carrying out responsibilities and overseeing projects. Who knows what God plans to do with us!

The great 18th century Bible commentator Matthew Henry, anticipating that some would unduly mourn his death, wrote these words of comfort and assurance: "Would you like to know where I am? I am at home in my Father's house, in the mansions prepared for me here. I am where I want to be--no longer on the stormy sea, but in God's safe, quiet harbor. My sowing time is done and I am reaping; my joy is as the joy of harvest. Would you like to know how it is with me? I am made perfect in holiness. Grace is swallowed up in glory. Would you like to know what I am doing? I see God, not as through a glass darkly, but face to face. I am engaged in the sweet enjoyment of my precious Redeemer. I am singing hallelujahs to Him who sits upon the throne, and I am constantly praising Him. Would you like to know what blessed company I keep? It is better than the best on earth. Here are the holy angels and the spirits of just men made perfect. I am with many of my old acquaintances with whom I worked and prayed, and who have come here before me. Lastly, do you want to know how long this will continue? It is a dawn that never fades! After millions and millions of ages, it will be as fresh as it is now. Therefore, weep not for me!" Hallelujah, that is our eternal future! Now as John's vision comes to an end, the Lord concludes it with a long warning, a warning that stands through the ages:

III. The Eternal Warning (22:6-21) Prophecy is not speculation; it is not a fantasy world of religious myth. It is actual history recorded ahead of time and therefore, to read it and to be told what lies ahead in the future brings with it six great dangers. First is:

1. the danger of doubting (6, 8-9) There is a great danger in hearing that Jesus is coming again and all the things that will happen and thinking, "It is not so; it can't be like that!" There are only two ways to know something; you either accept the information that God has given you or you decide for yourself what you think the future holds. Which one of those do you want to trust? These words are trustworthy and true! The Lord Himself sent an angel to show John, and through him us, what is going to take place in the future. John wrote them down carefully and testified that they are so. It would be very foolish to doubt what God has gone to such great lengths to make clear to us! Second is:

2. the danger of procrastinating (7, 12-13) Twice Jesus says, I am coming SOON! The concept in the phrase here is not so much immediately or right away; it's obvious that some 1900 years have come and gone since this was written! Rather soon means swiftly or suddenly. The events recorded in this book can begin without out any notice and when they do it will be too late. To hear the words of this book and say, "I believe it's true, but I have time; I'll wait to give my life to Jesus and follow Him!" is tremendously dangerous. Third is:

3. the danger of ignoring (10-11) Now what does that mean? Some who hear will just go on their merry way and ignore what they've heard; it will roll off them like water off a duck's back. It will make no impact. Verse 11 doesn't mean that God doesn't want anyone to change; it means simply that if you don't do something, if you continue to pursue the present path, the Lord is going to come and there'll be no changing. How you are in that moment is how you are! And you'll have to face it one way or the other. You can't prevent His coming by ignoring it! Fourth is:

4. the danger of refusing (14-17) Oh, see the wonderful three-fold invitation to life here: Come, come, come! God says, Come! Whosoever will may come! Eternal life is free; just come to Jesus and receive it! He made this wonderful new world and new city for you! But if you don't come to Jesus, you end up excluded! You can't get in! You're not only outside, but locked forever in a lake of fire. Oh what a dangerous thing to do, to act like the guests in the parable who were invited to the wedding of the King's Son and make some excuse to say, "I cannot come"! This is one invitation no one can afford to decline! Fifth is:

5. the danger of tampering (18-19) Here is the most devious thing of all, to try to change what is written in the book, to add to it or remove something from it. Of course, that stands as a warning to the many copyists who hand-copied it thousands of times over the centuries not to try to change it or doctor it up. But it also stands as a warning to thousands of pastors in pulpits in liberal churches across world who ignore its words and count them as so many fairy tales, who would just as leave cut them out of their Bible and ignore them because they refuse to believe in a living Savior who is going to come back again as He promised! In fact, this warning stands at the end of the entire Bible; with the next words, the whole of the Scripture is completed forever. It is dangerous to tamper with God's Book! That is the pathway to damnation; it is the pathway to eternal death.

*Many years ago, a terrible railroad accident occurred which killed many people. A commuter train had stalled on the tracks just minutes before a fast freight was due to arrive. A conductor was quickly sent to flag down the approaching "flier." Being assured that all was well, the passengers relaxed. Suddenly, however, the speeding freight came bearing down upon them. The crash left a ghastly scene of horror. The engineer of the second train, who escaped death by jumping from the cab, was called into court to explain why he hadn't stopped. "I saw a man waving a warning flag," he said, "but it was yellow, so I thought he just wanted me to slow down." When the flag was examined, the mystery was explained. It had been red, but because of long exposure to the sun and weather, it had become a dirty yellow. Listen! God is not saying, "Slow down!" The flag of His Word is not yellowed! He's waving a bright red flag and shouting, "Stop! My Son is coming! I'm telling you it's a sure thing! Come to Him and receive the gift of eternal life now!" We close our study with verses 20-21. There is Jesus' last word, Yes, I am coming soon! And there is John's prayer, Come Lord Jesus! In the early church this thought became, not only a prayer, but also their greeting, the first words on their lips to one another. The Greek word is maranatha, "the Lord is coming". It became the last word they spoke as they parted from each other. It became the thought that bound them all together. Maranatha! The Lord is coming! We add our prayer to theirs, *Even so, come Lord Jesus!
