

PASTOR JOHN KLESS

A LIFETIME IN THE WORD

VOLUME 1 - OLD TESTAMENT

Dedication:

To my wonderful wife: LuAnn

Without your commitment to share together in ministry with me these 47 years I could not have had a “lifetime in the Word”! Your countless hours of caring for me, our children, our home and the church body gave me the ability to pursue the deep study of God’s Word each week so this book is as much a product of your life as it is mine. I am thankful for you and I love you.

To our five wonderful children: Andrea, Benjamin, Amy, Jennifer and Dan

You have sat under my teaching and preaching literally your entire lives. The greatest fruit of my ministry has been to see each one of you grow up to be mature believers who deeply love Jesus, understand and value His Word and are committed to serving Him, even alongside me. I am blessed to be your father and I love you.

To my church: Glenside Bible Church

You have loved and cared for me as your pastor for 41 years. It has been my great honor and privilege to preach to you and instruct you in the Word of God. Almost all of the sermons in this book were carefully prepared for you and graciously received by you as truth from God. Thank you for being patient with me and giving me the opportunity to serve God among you in this way. I love you all.

How To Use This Book

From June of 1974 at the age of 19 to the present at age 67 it has been my greatest privilege to preach and teach the Word of God nearly every Sunday. Originally, I made handwritten notes on paper, most of which have been lost, but around 1985 God blessed me with a personal computer (an Apple IIc with 128K of RAM and 5 ¼ floppies if you can imagine that!) and I began to type out messages and save them as digital files. Over the years I have preached hundreds of times and because they have been stored digitally, I now have the ability to edit and format them and share them with you. This book is my collected work from a life of ministry. It literally represents A Lifetime In The Word, a lifetime of studying the Word of God for hours each week, endeavoring to understand it as God intended and faithfully communicate it to the people of God.

So, this is obviously a book of sermons, not the kind of book that you sit down and read from beginning to end. It is more like a Bible commentary, a book in which you turn to the portion you wish to know more about at the moment. To keep its size reasonable, I have divided it into three separate volumes:

Volume 1 - Old Testament in which you'll find studies covering most of the books of the Old Testament.

Volume 2 - New Testament in which you'll find a study of every New Testament book.

Volume 3 - Thematic Studies in which you'll find studies on biographical, doctrinal, missiological and prophetic themes and more.

1. Use it like a Bible commentary - If you are studying a particular passage of Scripture, find the message that covers that text and it will probably help you understand the meaning of the passage. The messages are based on a lot of thorough research including commentaries by many others, as well insights from the original language. It has always been my goal not to teach or say anything that wasn't true and accurate to the best of my knowledge, so you can benefit from the research I've put in by simply reading my explanation of the passage and its context.

2. Use it as an aid in teaching and preaching - These are expositional sermons which means that the points of the message are derived from the text as much as possible. The messages are in outline form rather than paragraph form so that the points of the outline are in BOLD type, followed by further explanation and devotional comments. Thus, here you have an outline for many of the books and chapters of the Bible and also for many of its important themes that you can use as they are or reword to suit yourself as you present them to others.

3. Use it for devotional purposes - Because the point of sermons is to motivate people rather than simply giving them information, there is much devotional material and there are many touching illustrations in this work. So, you can read through all or part of a message as part of your regular devotional life, perhaps as you read through the section of Scripture it points to.

Permission To Use This Material

You have my permission to copy, share, edit and use any of the material in this book, with or without giving any credit to me, as long as you are using it to sincerely help yourself or other people grow in their knowledge and understanding of the Bible. Freely I have received from God insight into the Word and freely I give it to you. However, it MAY NOT be sold or used to make a profit.

To the glory of God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ,

Rev. John M. Kless, Jr.

The Creation Of The Universe - 1:1

The Bible is one united story from beginning to end. It is the story of God and His plan for human race. When we hear the word story, we often think of a fictional story, a made-up story, but the Bible is a REAL story, a TRUE story, a story that actually happened historically exactly as recorded. God's story begins by telling us how and why man came to exist, continues by telling us what his history is all about and how God entered it in Jesus Christ and concludes by telling us what will happen to mankind in the distant future. Chapters 1-11 of Genesis form the introduction to the entire Bible; they set the stage for the entire story. In these chapters God tells us 1) how the universe came to be, 2) how our earth and everything in it came to be, 3) how man ruined the nature of both of himself and the whole world, 4) how God destroyed the human race and started it over again through a great Flood and 5) how the human race became the conglomerate of differing peoples and languages that we experience today. These are important, fundamental issues and that's why we're going to spend the next several months looking at these chapters and we begin by looking at the very first verse, In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth. The Hebrew language has no word for universe; the heavens and the earth is its summary term for everything that exists. Vs. 1 is explaining how the entire universe came to exist and the explanation is simple yet profound, in the beginning God created it. And right there God addresses two of our most basic questions. One is:

I. The Time Of Creation: When Was The Beginning? We can find that easily. Just google it! Google age of the universe and you'll get 13.772 billion years. Google age of the earth and you'll get 4.543 billion years. Isn't it amazing how the internet can tell you anything you want to know and with such exactness?! And, of course, if you read it on the internet, it must be true, right? But seriously:

1. current scientific theory says says that the age of the earth is roughly 4.5 billion years and that is widely taught everywhere, in schools, universities, and the media. Using the theory of evolution as a basis, scientists have developed what is known as the geologic column because it lays out the order of the kinds of fossils we find in rocks and here's a picture of it. The history of life on earth is divided into 3 eras and further subdivided into 12 periods, the current one of which is said to have started 2 million years ago with fossils of the earliest and least complicated organisms going as far back as 600 million years and more. In this model, recognizable human beings begin to evolve around 200,000 years ago. In this theory the earth is Old. Now to put it bluntly, even though this is all actually just a theory, it is almost universally taught and believed as being factually true. And if you don't subscribe to it, you are often lumped in with people who used to believe the world was flat or called a religious fanatic and your view is dismissed without consideration. But be that as it may:

2. the Biblical timetable is 4-5 thousand years before Christ or roughly 6,000 to 7,000 years ago. Everyone almost universally agrees that the time of Abraham is roughly 2,000 BC and recorded human history doesn't go back much farther than that. Gen. 5 and 11 contain two genealogies which enumerate the time between the first man, Adam, and Abraham. If you add up the ages of the people, you find that the Bible clearly teaches that Adam was created just before 4,000 BC and even allowing for missing information or textual errors won't make much difference. AND that was just six days from the creation of the universe. So, the Bible teaches that the earth is YOUNG and stands at complete odds with popular theory. Now I am not a scientist but I know enough to know that there is a huge amount of scientific evidence that indicates we do indeed have a young earth and universe and, while I don't profess to know enough to understand all of the more complicated arguments, let me share with you just:

3. a few simple evidences that the earth is young as Scripture says One is:

a. the sun's increasing brightness Put very simply, the sun is getting brighter because of the thermonuclear reactions that power it. Scientists estimate that the sun would have been 25% less bright about 4 billion years ago with a corresponding lower temperature. The average temperature of the earth today is 59° F. At the current rate, back then it would have been 26°, and thus, when life was supposed to be developing, most of the earth would have been frozen. Plus, most scientists believe earth's temperature has always remained relatively constant. That's only possible if it's young! Another evidence is:

b. the moon's rapid rate of recession As it orbits us, the moon is gradually moving away from the earth at a known rate. If the earth is 6,000 years old, the moon would only have been 850 feet closer than it is now. But if we extrapolate back only 1.5 billion years the moon would have been touching the earth. It MUST be young. A third evidence is:

c. the earth's rapidly decaying magnetic field The earth is surrounded by a magnetic field that protects us from solar radiation, but it is decaying extremely rapidly. Since measuring began in 1845 it has been decaying at a half life of 1465 years. If we extrapolate that backwards, merely 10,000 years ago our shield would have been TOO good and kept out radiation that is necessary for life. It must be young. Fourth is:

d. the oceans' missing sediment and salt Every year, the continents, atmosphere, and sea floor add 458 million tons of salt into the ocean, but only 122 million tons (27%) are removed by natural processes. At this rate, today's level of saltiness should be 9 or 10 times greater if the earth is billions of years old. Not only that, but every year water and wind erode about 20 billion tons of dirt and rock debris from the continents and deposit them on the sea floor. Yet the average thickness of sediments globally is only 1300 feet deep. If the earth were billions of years old, it would be some 60 MILES deep! It MUST be young! Lastly, consider:

e. the size of earth's human population This is simple mathematics. The census bureau tells us that earth's population currently doubles every 40 years or so. Even assuming that it doubled every 150 years down through history, which is VERY conservative, that would mean the earth's population should be 10 to the 99th power in 55,000 years, the normal date for human beginnings. Instead we have only 7.6 billion (7 times 10 to the 9th power) which is consistent with the population beginning about 6,000 years ago. [Sources: <https://answersingenesis.org/evidence-for-creation/the-10-best-evidences-from-science-that-confirm-a-young-earth/> <https://answersingenesis.org/evidence-for-creation/six-evidences-of-young-earth/>]

The list goes on and on, but my reason for sharing these few facts is to point out that science, when used in an unbiased fashion, actually confirms what the Scripture says and we don't need to be ashamed or embarrassed to say that we believe what the Scripture clearly teaches, which is that the beginning of the universe was something over 6,000 years ago. Now what about:

II. The Method Of Creation: How Did The Universe Come Into Being? Well, current:

1. scientific theory says it evolved on its own Much of the scientific community and the public at large has placed complete faith in a theory that everything we see in the universe around us evolved by chance and natural selection. To be more specific, it asserts that time, space, and matter originated from nothing in a "big bang", that all elements "evolved" from hydrogen, that stars and planets formed from gas clouds, that life began from inanimate matter, and that animals and plants changed from one type of organism into another into another until human beings were produced. Truthfully, it requires more faith to believe that than it does to believe that there is a God who created it all with all of the infinite variety and tremendous orderliness that we observe in the world. Evolution:

a. it requires believing that life came from non-life, that life somehow spontaneously generated itself which is something that has never, ever been observed anywhere in nature. Rocks and liquids and chemicals cannot produce even one single-celled amoeba. Life is always and only produced by life. Second:

b. it requires believing that organisms can add to their own genetic material to become more complex. In other words, an amoeba can add enough information to its own DNA to become an amphibian which can add and become a reptile which can become a bird which can become a mammal and so on. Nowhere do we observe anything like that happening in nature. Watch this: [<https://answersingenesis.org/kids/videos/series/check-this-out/> Click on Evolution].

2. the Bible says the universe was created by God The first verse of John's Gospel tells us that in that very beginning, God already was! He existed before the universe and, All things came into being by Him, and apart from Him nothing came into being that has come into being. - John 1:3 NASB. And John's point is that the Him, the Word, was Jesus! Father, Son and Holy Spirit were there in eternity past and at that point called the beginning they took action to bring all other things into being. To be more specific:

a. the Bible says the universe was created out of nothing Look with me at Heb. 11:3 There is a tremendous difference between the word create and the word make. To make means to take something that already exists and form or shape it into something else. We humans can make clothing or make a spaceship. But to create means to to bring into being, to cause something to begin to exist. In the Bible that word create is only ever used of God. We can't create anything in the technical sense. God caused everything that exists to begin to exist simply by speaking, by commanding. For instance, God said, "Let there be light" and there was light! And that's how everything that exists came into being. The phrase used to describe this is Latin, ex nihilo, which means, out of nothing. God brought everything in the universe into existence from nothing and:

b. the Bible says it was completed in six literal days Virtually all Hebrew scholars, whether they believe it's true or not, agree that Genesis is saying that God created in six literal 24 hour days. If there is any doubt about that, simply look at with me at Ex. 20:9-11. The days in vs. 9-10 are the seven 24 hour days of the week. And the reason the seventh one is to be set aside to rest is because in vs. 11 God made the universe in 6 of the same kind of days and rested on the seventh. Day means a normal day. God Himself declared this from Mt. Sinai in a thunderous voice and Deut. 9:10 tells us that those very words which He had spoken that day, He Himself wrote down on tablets of stone with His own finger and gave them to Moses. There can be no question that God Himself declares a 6 day creation. However because of the widespread acceptance of the "millions of years" concept, Christians have felt a need to try to reconcile the two positions. Here are the major:

3. ways that Christians have tried to accomodate the Bible to scientific theory The first one is:

a. Theistic Evolution: This position says that evolution is completely true, but God caused the geologic ages. God set it all in motion and left it to work out and maybe even dabbled a bit here and there to help it along, but basically Genesis is a myth, a religious story designed by ancient people, a poetic way of picturing the beginning of all things but it has no historical accuracy whatsoever. Another attempt is the:

b. Gap Theory: Some have said that there is a gap between Gen. 1:1 and 1:2. The earth BECAME without form and void. They say the geologic ages happened BEFORE the days of creation, that there was an original creation which was somehow destroyed or ruined and what we have in Genesis is a RE-creation of things. This used to be popular but to be honest, not many folks hold this any more. The most popular view is what today is known as:

c. Progressive Creation or the Day-Age theory as it used to be called: These folks say that the days of creation represent the geologic ages that science proposes. So one day is thousands or millions of years long. They may even hold that at each of those points God stepped in and created the next order of beings, that they didn't evolve from one another. One major problem with this is that the Genesis order of creation is out of order with the order science proposes. At any rate many people who hold a belief in God hold something generally like this, but the real truth is that it is IMPOSSIBLE to take the Genesis record literally and harmonize it with evolutionary theory but we don't need to! What the Bible teaches is called:

d. Special Creation: This position says that the 6 days of creation were literal, that God created everything in six days as the Bible says and it is not the Genesis account, but rather the geologic ages which are a myth! They are based on a theory that the universe MUST be billions of years old to have come about on its own and that God doesn't exist or at least didn't create it.

Now the question in some of our minds is, "Why make such a big deal about this? Does it really matter?" Well, let me explain:

III. Why What We Believe About Creation Is Important And let me be clear:

1. one can be a genuine Christian and believe wrongly about creation There are plenty of "old earth" creationists who genuinely believe in Jesus and they are true brothers and sisters. You only need to trust in Jesus to be saved; you don't need to believe in a 6 day creation to get to heaven. However, I would dare to say that it is inconsistent for a believer in Jesus Christ who places a high value on the truth of the Scripture to not believe in a 6 day creation, and here's another basic reason why:

2. a wrong view of creation denies God's clear statement on death Look with me at Rom. 5:12. The Bible clearly says that Adam brought sin into the world; before Adam there was NO death. Through him death came into the world and passed to all people and to everything else in creation. Before him the world was perfect; after his sin it was cursed and fallen and filled with death. Evolution says creatures died and died repeatedly for millions of years before the first man came about. Now is Romans true or isn't it? And Romans is just summarizing what Genesis 3 records. Is that true or isn't it? It is impossible to hold that death started with Adam and that living creatures evolved. You see, what I'm driving at is that:

3. a wrong view of creation undermines the integrity of the whole Bible If the Genesis record of creation is not accurate and cannot be trusted, then the Bible contains erroneous information. So how do we know that it is true when it records the miracles of the Exodus or the miracles of Jesus or even the fact that Jesus purchased our salvation on the cross and rose again? It makes everything about our faith unsure in some degree. Liberals who identify themselves as Christians pick and choose which parts of the Bible they want to believe, but how can you do that? Either the Bible IS the Word of God or it isn't! Either what it teaches is true or it isn't. Either we can trust it or we can't! To say, "I believe it all EXCEPT this part" is a slippery slope that leads to me not believing anything about it that I don't agree with. It does away with the Bible's authority as the final word that determines our faith and practice!

John Warwick Montgomery wrote years ago in Christianity Today, ...the total trust that Jesus and the apostles displayed toward Scripture entails a precise and controlled hermeneutic. They subordinated the opinions and traditions of their day to Scripture; so must we. They did not regard Scripture as erroneous or self-contradictory; neither can we. They took its miracles and prophecies as literal fact; so must we. They regarded Scripture not as the product of editors and redactors but as stemming from Moses, David, and other immediately inspired writers; we must follow their lead. They believed that the events recorded in the Bible happened as real history; we can do no less. [7/29/77, pp. 41-42]

The Creation Of The World - 1:2-19

Verse 1 of Genesis stated the fact that God created the heavens and the earth, the entire universe. The Bible boldly declares that in six days God made everything that exists. He spoke it all into being by the omnipotent power of His Word. In verses 2-19 we are given a more specific look at exactly what God created on the first 4 days of creation week. Christians often read over these verses quickly and regard them as general statements that don't require much attention, but that is not so. They are a very specific and detailed record of the creation of the world and they deserve careful and thoughtful study. The plan this morning is to try to give you a meaningful overview of each one, but please remember that it is the words of Scripture that are inspired and inerrant, not my attempt at interpreting what they mean. The Scripture is infallible; I am not, and I'll be first to admit that my understanding of some of the things I'll share today has changed over the last 20 years as science has made new discoveries. Let's begin with vs. (1-2):

I. On Day 1 God Created The Earth And Light. The very first thing was that:

1. He created planet earth itself That fact is significant. In the way that God looks at things, the earth is the central focal point of the universe. It is the center of all that God did in creation. Is. 45:18 says, For thus says the LORD, who created the heavens (He is the God who formed the earth and made it, He established it and did not create it a waste place, but formed it to be inhabited), "I am the LORD, and there is none else. Did you hear that? God had a plan in creating earth; He created it specifically to be a habitation for life and primarily as an environment in which human beings would live. Everything else in our universe was created in relation to earth, not vice versa. Let's watch this: <https://answersingenesis.org/kids/days-creation/creation-week-day-two/> What are the odds of that all happening by chance? What an amazing God we have, a master designer! And note that He didn't create the whole universe and then put the earth in exactly the right place within it; He created the earth and built the universe around it in exactly the right way so that it would sustain human life! Now on this first day, the earth:

a. it was unformed as to surface features and empty of any living beings All of the elements it has were present in its core but at this point it had no surface features. It was formless. And it was empty, that is, it contained no distinguishable features and no living beings. It was simply a ball of elements and:

b. it was completely covered with a layer of water In other words, the solid elements were in a ball together and all the water was on the surface layer over the whole planet.

And vs. 2 tells us two more important things. First, the Spirit of God, the Holy Spirit was hovering over and moving above the waters, having created the earth and in preparation for the creative acts to follow. And second, everything was in complete darkness, so now God:

2. He created light (3-5) Light is perhaps the most mysterious thing in the universe. We know what it does and how it travels and all of that. We use it as a constant and an absolute in our physics formulas. But it's still tough to describe exactly what it is. Cosmos magazine says it's "an electric field tied up with a magnetic field, flying through space". It's a small spectrum electro-magnetic wave, but all that means to us is it is something that enables us to see. Well, the planet itself and all the empty space in the universe around it were completely and utterly dark. Of course, that was not a problem to God because even the darkness is as light to Him. But God created the "substance" called light (for lack of a better word) in that darkness. Paul said in 2 Cor. 4:6, God caused light to shine out of the darkness. Right there in the midst of the darkness, light suddenly appeared at God's command, however:

a. it was not concentrated in a source We always think of light as emanating from a source, from a fire, or a star, or a light bulb and traveling outward. This light that God made was not located in any source originally, but simply free. Yet:

b. it was made distinct from darkness There was a division or a distinction "between the light and between the darkness". Of course, part of the problem here is using human words to describe an incredible galactic process, but the result of what the verse is saying is that:

c. God created a cycle of darkness/light known as night/day From the moment that God created light, He began the night/day cycle. He caused the earth to be dark for a time and to be lighted for a time. And He did this 3 times simply by Divine command before permanently entrenching the responsibility for that cycle in the universe itself through the creation of the sun. So night and day, darkness and light, did not originate with the sun per se; they come from God. Now notice that God began by creating the earth in darkness on Day 1 and then creating light for a portion of that day. Thus we have the order, evening and morning, the first day.

And that is the way the Hebrews were still counting their days 4000 years later in the time of Christ. Religious Jews still do it today; the Sabbath begins at sundown Friday and lasts until sundown on Saturday. As weird as it seems to us, the day began at sunset and ran for 24 hrs. so the darkness of night came as the first part of a day, not the last. So here's a thought. How did the Hebrews ever invent that way of counting days? It comes from the very creation! And it was later adopted by other peoples like the Babylonians and much later the Arabs. Still, most of the world feels naturally that a day begins with light in the morning followed by darkness at night and that's a "day". How would the darkness-first-then-light concept even exist at all except that it was passed down from the very beginning! Well next:

II. On Day 2 God Created Earth's Atmosphere (6-8) God created an expanse, an extended surface. We often speak poetically of the "vast expanse of the heavens". God called it in Hebrew shamayim, which can mean heaven in the spiritual sense of God's spiritual home, but here and many other places it simply means the sky or sometimes what we call space. It's obvious that here He's talking about the atmosphere of the earth, the sky with all its clouds that seems to stretch upward forever. He created that perfect mixture of gases which makes it possible for living things to breathe and to thrive and surrounded the earth with them in a band. Now these verses are difficult to understand because they seem to teach that there is water above the sky which doesn't make sense to us. What it really seems to be saying is that:

1. God lifted and suspended a portion of the waters above the surface But how could that be? Well, consider this statistic: The US Geological survey says, One estimate of the volume of water in the atmosphere at any one time is about 3,100 cubic miles... If all of the water in the atmosphere rained down at once, it would cover the globe to a depth of ...about 1 inch. That's a lot of water that is no longer on the surface of the earth but is now up in our atmosphere and if you do the math, that amount of water weighs 1.7 trillion tons! So what keeps it up there? Well, it is not liquid water, of course, but water vapor, and water vapor molecules are lighter than the nitrogen and oxygen molecules that make up most of our air, so water vapor rises! The earth is essentially surrounded with a layer of water vapor that God suspended up in the atmosphere. But why would God do that?

2. this vapor in the atmosphere shapes the earth's climate Water vapor is the major gas that helps control the temperature of earth! It, in combination with a couple of other gases, creates the greenhouse effect that traps the sun's radiation and helps regulate the temperature of earth to make it habitable. God knew that it needed to be up there and in place before He created living things, so He raised it there originally as a wise and mighty Creator and later sustained the process through evaporation and the water cycle! And thus ends Day 2.

OK, remember that the earth is still covered with a layer of water and no land is visible so:

III. On Day 3 God Created Dry Land And Plant Life (9-10) Let's try to picture this in a model we can understand. We can't make a ball that has a layer of water all around it so let's think in two dimensions; imagine a washtub, say 2 feet in diameter, filled with a foot of sand and we pour in 3 inches of water on top of the sand. Now let's try and make a continent rise above the water. So you reach down into the sand with your two hands and pull up a great mound of it so that it sticks out above the water. What happens? That leaves trenches where the sand came out so the water sinks down and the water surrounds the land. Even if you were to do that 2 or 3 times, you'd have 2 or 3 raised areas of "land" and the water would surround them all at a lower level with a number of deeper "holes" in it and the water would all be connected surrounding the "land". That's essentially what God did on Day 3:

1. He raised the land above the waters, dried and shaped it Look with me at 2 Pet. 3:5. The dry land or what God called "earth" was formed by God's Word. God spoke and the land area of the earth rose up out of the water and as the water ran off into the huge trenches left behind, it shaped the surface of the ground. It was formed out of the water and through the water! The land was raised and its features were shaped all in the same process. Now the text seems to sound like at creation there was one great continent and one great ocean that would have surrounded it. Today, of course, we have 7 continents on earth; how can that be? Well, for years geologists have noticed that the continents seem like they originally fit together like pieces of a puzzle in one immense land mass that broke apart sometime later. They now talk about one original supercontinent called Rodinia that existed a billion years ago, followed by Pangaea, still a supercontinent that broke apart 175 million years ago. Could it be that the Scripture was right and originally all dry land was one connected mass that God broke apart, not millions of years ago, but either in the process of creation or perhaps even later during the global flood that engulfed the earth? We can only speculate about that, but as God raised the land out of the water:

2. He left the waters connected in one gigantic ocean bed This passage used to be scoffed at because it seemed to teach that there is only one ocean. Well, now we realize that if there was only one immense land mass at creation, there would only have been one ocean surrounding the whole thing! Today, of course, we recognize 5 oceans on earth but listen to what The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration says, There is only one global ocean, the vast body of water that covers 71 percent of the Earth, geographically divided into distinct named regions.

[\[https://oceanservice.noaa.gov/facts/howmanyoceans.html\]](https://oceanservice.noaa.gov/facts/howmanyoceans.html) All the seas (plural) on earth are connected in one gigantic bed. It is not that there is a land mass surrounding the ocean but a vast ocean that surrounds several land masses which are raised in the middle of it, as it were. Well, once God raised and dried all the land:

3. He created all the varieties of vegetation upon the surface of the land (11-13) God covered the newly-raised continents with a blanket of vegetation, plant life. He created all plant life from small to large, simple to complex, in one fell swoop. He gave a command and all the varieties of plants sprouted from the dry land and grew. Now if you look closely you'll notice that there is actually a 3-fold description here that sums up the varieties. The word vegetation in the ESV and NIV is literally:

a. grasses, as in the KJV. The Hebrew word deshe means grass, that is the varieties of plants which do not bear fruit or usable seed, from moss and ferns to lawn and pasture grasses. He also created:

b. seed-bearing plants The Hebrew word is eseb which means herb but one that is said to bear seed, that is, plants whose most important feature is the seed they produce like the grains, wheat and oats and barley. And it says He also created:

c. fruit-bearing trees The Hebrew word peri means fruit. It means plants that produce fruits that have seed inside, like apples and pears and bananas.

Do notice that these varieties are not said to derive from one another as lower or higher forms of plants that evolved, but that all were specially created at the same time. It's interesting that botanists still use a similar (but not identical) classification system for plants according to the number of embryonic leaves (called cotyledons) that appear as they germinate. Acotyledons (no-leafers) are seedless plants, especially ferns and mosses. Monocotyledons (one-leafers) are seed-bearing plants like grains and grasses, and dicotyledons (two-leafers) which include most common garden plants, shrubs and trees.

Now, why did God cover the earth with plants? Let's watch this: <https://answersingenesis.org/kids/days-creation/creation-week-day-three/> Just look at all the amazing design in plant life; could that have come about by random chance? No, it is evidence of a wise, intelligent Designer, our Mighty Creator God! And God made it all because we human beings were going to need the energy that could only be transferred to us by plants. This was all in preparation for what God would do on the next day:

IV. On Day 4 God Created The Sun, Moon And Stars (14-19) On Day 4:

1. He created the sun and moon as light-bearers The Hebrew word lights means luminaries or light-bearers. In other words, the light earth was to receive was now concentrated in the sun and, through reflection from it, the moon so that the earth would be properly illuminated on both sides. Light was also concentrated in the stars. Notice that the purpose for the creation of the sun and moon is 3-fold. First He created them:

a. to continue the night/day cycle It is now the sun and moon and the rotation of the earth that will produce the day/night cycle that He had begun. If it was not so from the first day, then it may have been on this day that He set the earth in its rotation. He also created them as a way:

b. to mark time in days and years By a consistent revolution of the earth time could be marked. And evidently the earth was also set in its revolution around the sun at this time which would create years and it would also:

c. to create seasons By placing the earth in an oval-shaped revolution around the sun and tilting its axis, God planned from the beginning that the climate of earth would have cycles in it, that there would be seasons: winter, spring, summer and fall in areas closer to the poles or simply dry and wet closer to the equator. And whether we like winter or not, all the seasons are needed in order to have life spread all over the planet as it is. But the main purpose of the sun and moon was:

d. to provide the sustained light and energy needed for life on earth God placed them in exactly the right places to make the whole system work so that earth could be inhabited by human beings made in His own image. And finally:

2. He created all the stars in the universe How amazing is that! Billions and billions of stars and planets and God dismisses their creation with a tiny phrase in vs. 16 -and the stars! You know, I'm told there are some 50 chapters which discuss the construction and significance of the Tabernacle, but merely 2 Hebrew words to mention the creation of the stars. God dismisses them all as being of little account. Their best use in Scripture is as a visual object lesson for God to show humans the uncountable number of people He was going to create.

You see, God is creating all of this, the whole world as it is, in order to create people who would live in it, fill it, and walk with Him. That's what He was about - and still is! He made it all for YOU! But He made YOU for HIM! What an amazing God we have!

The Creation Of Living Creatures - 1:20-2:3

The Bible tells us that God created the entire universe in six days. Last time we saw that on Day 1 God created our planet earth, its surface covered with water, and He created light. On Day 2 God created earth's atmosphere and lifted a portion of the surface waters up into it to form the layer of water vapor we have above us. Coincidentally (or not) as I was reading Proverbs the other day in devotions, I came upon 3:19-20 which say, The LORD by wisdom founded the earth; By understanding He established the heavens [i.e., its atmosphere]. By His knowledge the deeps were broken up [i.e., divided], And the skies drip with dew. [NASB] Even Solomon understood what God did on Days 1 and 2! Then on Day 3 He raised a huge mass of dry land out up out of the waters and created plant life which began to sprout on it, before creating the sun and moon and all the stars and concentrating light in them on Day 4. So, at last everything was set for God to create living creatures and:

I. On Day 5 God Created Marine Animals And Birds (1:20-23) God now began to fill every realm of the world that He had created with living beings or what we would call animal life. The water was to swarm or teem with living things as the original pairs of each type of marine animal that He created multiplied abundantly and the sky above was to be filled with bird life as the original pairs of each type of bird He created did the same. Verse 21 says:

1. He created great sea creatures The Hebrew word is tannin which simply means a large animal that lives in the sea, which could include whales, large reptiles and any number of creatures including marine dinosaurs which are now extinct. And:

2. He created all the other marine creatures that live in the water, both salt and fresh. He created all kinds of fish, turtles, amphibians and crustaceans and notice that He created them all at the same time; they did not derive from one other. So, the waters of earth were prepared to abound with the tremendous variety and profusion of living creatures that we find in them today. Then also on Day 5:

3. He created winged birds Evolutionists insist that birds evolved from reptiles, but that's a bit hard to believe when you watch this: <https://answersingenesis.org/kids/days-creation/creation-week-day-five/> All of those features are necessary for birds to fly; what are the chances of all of them happening randomly? It's just so obvious that the hand of an Intelligent Designer created birds so that they could do such an amazing thing, routinely fly through the very air that surrounds us! What a brilliant God we have! Then next:

II. On Day 6 God Created Land Animals (1:24-25) First, I want you to notice a simple three-fold classification system here for animals, just as there was for plants in vs. 11-12. It says:

1. He created livestock, that is, domestic animals that would be associated with man, like cattle and sheep and goats and dogs and horses and so on, animals that would be associated and live with man to provide his needs. Notice once again that everything that God created, He sees in relationship to human beings. This world, and even its animals, is created to be a home for US. Second, it says:

2. He created beasts of the earth, or what we would call wildlife, animals not destined to be associated with man, like deer and antelope and lions and monkeys and elephants and on and on and on. And finally, it says:

3. He created creeping things, which would include reptiles, insects, small mammals like rodents and everything else that is on or near the ground and not large enough to fall into the first two categories. But what's really important to notice here is what is repeated 7 times and that is the phrase according to their kinds.

4. He created all the animals in specific "kinds" Now that is not a general use of the word kind, as we might say, "What kind of animal is that?" You would understand it better if it were translated according to their species. Each animal "species" was created as a distinct entity from one another. Now you know that modern biologists have a system of classifying every living thing. The classification tree is kingdom, phylum, class, order, family, genus and species. For example, a fox is of the class mammals, the order carnivora (carnivores or meat eaters), the family canidae (canines, the dog family), the genus vulpes (foxes) and then there are a ton of species of foxes like the red fox, grey fox, arctic fox, fennec fox, and 8 more. Now specifically, the Bible's use of the word:

a. "kind" equates roughly to "family" in terms of modern biological classification In other words, God didn't initially create 12 species of foxes, let alone the 340 recognized breeds of domestic dogs. He probably created an original ancestral pair of the canine or dog kind or family with enough genetic information in their DNA structure that from them through genetic combination in breeding and adaptation to their habitat, could descend wolves, foxes, domestic dogs, jackals and so on. By the way, that means that Noah didn't have to take nearly as many animals on the ark as we often think! But the distinguishing thing being said here is that:

b. each "kind" only reproduces its own "kind" Members of the canine family can interbreed and produce offspring. Wolves and dogs, coyotes and dogs all commonly mate. Members of the cat family can interbreed and produce offspring. A lion and a tiger can produce a liger! But a dog and a cat can't produce a "dat" or a "cog". A horse and a dog can't mate and produce a "hog". Each kind or family of animals is completely distinct and separate and only reproduces offspring of its own kind; none derives from another. That's what the text is saying and that's exactly what we observe in nature today. And that means that the variety of animals we have was not produced by evolution, one from the other, but by direct creation.

Now I'd like to take a minute to address a question that I know some of you are pondering, "What about the dinosaurs? Where do they fit into creation?" Well, there is no question that dinosaurs existed; we have their bones. And therefore obviously:

5. God's creating on Days 5 and 6 included dinosaurs, both marine dinosaurs and land dinosaurs. Part of the problem is that we have been so preconditioned by our culture to think of dinosaurs as having lived millions of years ago and before mankind, so it's hard for us to look at the existing facts we have in an objective fashion. Marine dinosaurs were created along with marine life, bird-like dinosaurs were no doubt created with the birds on day 5 and land dinosaurs with all other land creatures on day 6. Everything God made, He made in these 6 days and nothing died until man sinned so all the kinds of creatures ever created were created at the same time. Therefore, dinosaurs existed concurrently with mammals, birds, fish, and other modern creatures we see today and not only that:

a. dinosaurs existed at the same time as pre-flood man We have this image that almost all dinosaurs were huge and weighed tons. We've watched too much television from the Flintstones to Jurassic Park. That's just not what the fossil record shows. A few were huge, of course, but there were many dinosaurs that were small, some as small as a cat, and I just read a research paper that says the median size of a dinosaur was around that of an American buffalo, which is smaller than an adult cow and only half the weight of an adult bull.

<https://answersingenesis.org/dinosaurs/determining-average-dinosaur-size-body-mass/> So the majority of dinosaurs were not the imposing creatures that we imagine and there is a ton of evidence that they did indeed live alongside human beings. In fact, Job describes one of those that remained in his day that he calls behemoth in 40:15-24; it sounds much like a large brontosaurus or brachiosaurus that was still remaining in his day which was likely before Abraham's time. But for the most part:

b. the flood destroyed the dinosaurs and created the fossil record Except for the relatively few that would have been safe in the ark (and we'll talk about that later on), the whole world full of land dinosaurs was destroyed at one time. Many of the marine dinosaurs also died in the turbulent flood waters. Now think about how a fossil is produced. When an animal dies and falls on land or into water what happens to its body? Does it become a fossil? No, it rots! A fossil is created when a living being is buried suddenly and trapped without air so that normal aerobic decay does not take place. The silt acts like a sort of mold formed around the body. The organic body material inside the mold is then gradually replaced by minerals which fill the exact mold and become hardened into stone. That's how you get a fossil. So why is there such a vast record of dinosaur fossils? Because they were buried rapidly in the upheaval of the flood! That's where the dinosaurs went and where the fossils came from and it wasn't millions of years ago; we still find red blood cells and soft tissue in dinosaur bones that wouldn't be there if it was!

Anyway, off that rabbit trail and back to the text. After creating land animals, we read that:

III. On Day 6 God Also Created Mankind (26-27) Evolution teaches that man not only came from an animal but that he is now nothing more than the highest animal. The Bible says that human beings are specially created, distinct from everything else that He made. Man is the very crown of God's creation, the thing that He created everything else for, one who had a special purpose:

1. man was made in the image of God to fellowship with God Watch: <https://answersingenesis.org/kids/days-creation/creation-week-day-six/> God created a being that is like Himself, one that could know Him and have fellowship with Him. No animal has even a complete self-consciousness, much less a god-consciousness. Man, on the other hand, is aware of himself and aware of God. Every human culture has developed a religion, has at least shown evidence of the awareness of God. That's because man started out knowing God, though gradually through the years this knowledge was lost and corrupted. And part of being created like God means being created with knowledge, wisdom and intelligence. Man was not originally a primitive savage who acted like an animal. From the very first day man had a language and communicated and had a high degree of knowledge. And notice in the summary given here that God created an original pair, a male and a female, and BOTH of them were the very image of God. Then God said that:

2. man was to multiply and fill the environment God had created (28a) God expected, indeed He commanded, Adam and Eve to populate the earth, to become a huge race of human beings that would inhabit the entire planet that He had made for them. The planet was created as a home for man and:

3. man was to rule and manage the earth and all its creatures (28b) To subdue it, means to literally bring it into slavery to yourself, to make it serve you. The earth itself was put here to provide man's needs. How it ever came to be regarded as "Mother Earth" I don't know, but that idea is completely backward. Man is to harness the earth in the wisdom God has given him and to use it for his needs. God's goal was not a pristine world untouched by human hands but a world filled with immense resources used wisely to support billions of human beings, generation after generation. And man is to rule over, to control or dominate all earth's creatures; they were put here for the benefit of and to provide the needs of man. Man was to control them in the wisdom God had given him. Evolution naturally leads to the whole "animal rights" movement we have today, since we are just another animal. But animals are animals; they do not have "rights". God made them to serve us and later on, after the flood, even to serve as food for us. Speaking of which, in the beginning:

4. both man and the animals were vegetarian (29-30) Animals did not eat animals. People did not eat animals. There was no death until Adam sinned and then all of that changed under the curse of sin. Death came to the animal kingdom, just like it did to human beings. Carnivorous animals began to eat other animals. God Himself killed animals to make coats of skins for Adam and Eve. Man killed animals to offer as sacrifices. Death came to the animal world, but in the beginning every creature including man ate only plants. And then when the creation of all the living creatures was completed on Day 6:

5. God declared His finished work of creation "very good" (31) God Himself declared that Everything He had made, the entire universe, was perfect, exactly the way that He had intended for it to be. It was ONLY good; there was nothing wrong in it anywhere. There was no death, no decay and evil did not exist in it anywhere. By the way, that means to me that the fall of Satan and his "angels" had not yet occurred, but we'll talk more about that in chapter 3. So at last:

IV. On Day 7 God Rested (2:1-3) The word rest is shabat, sabbath in English, and it means to cease or to stop. Vs. 2 is not saying that there was some last final portion of creating that God finished on Day 7; rather, it means that:

1. He completed all His work BY ceasing and resting In the Hebrew mind, ceasing and resting is the sign that the work is all done. It is not finished until you stop all working and rest without doing any more. Resting is God's testimony that His work was complete. Now, does an omnipotent God get tired and need to rest? Obviously not! And yet it is interesting that Ex. 31:17 says that:

2. He rested and was refreshed It is a sign forever between me and the people of Israel that in six days the LORD made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed. Barnes comments, Literally, "he took breath"... The application of the word to the Creator, which occurs nowhere else, is remarkable. And Clarke comments, God, in condescension to human weakness, applies to himself here what belongs to man. In other words, God "took a breather" so that we would know to do the same! That's why in vs. 3 it says God made the seventh day holy; He sanctified it:

3. He set this day apart as a pattern for humans to follow Work 6 days and rest 1 to refresh yourself. It is a pattern that God built in from the very creation itself to bless and benefit finite man who needs a day of refreshing. Here it is a principle; later God made it a law for Israel to follow, but mankind did not follow it. Working every single day without a rest day has been the more common norm in the world because human beings always want to "get ahead", but God knows that we need at least 1 day in 7 to be refreshed and He showed us so from creation.

Now in closing, let me just point out this fact. Literally every culture on earth counts time in a 7 day week and always has, with only a couple of minor, temporary exceptions where governments deliberately tried to change it. Why is that the case? It didn't come from astronomy; a solar or even a lunar year does not divide evenly into sevens. Why do we not find cultures with 6 or 8 or 12 day cycles of time? If you google it, people try to credit the ancient Babylonians with inventing the 7 day week, but the ancestors of the Hebrews had it long before they did. And where did they get it? They got it from creation. They got it from God Himself. They got it from the first human beings who rested every seventh day like God did and therefore counted time in weeks, which literally means sevens. Isn't it amazing that God has left this proof of His own existence in every culture on earth?

The Creation Of Human Beings - 2:4-25

Since the creation of mankind was mentioned at the end of chapter 1 and now appears again in chapter 2, critics have tried to say that they are two different stories of creation written by two different authors. That's not true at all. Having summarized the creation of man in chapter 1 as part of the creation of all things, the Holy Spirit, through Moses, now in chapter 2 goes back to tell the detailed story of HOW God made man on Day 6. But before we get to that, let me explain something important about the book of Genesis itself. Look at vs. (4) Do you see that phrase at the beginning of the verse, these are the generations of...?

I. Genesis Is Divided Into Sections By The Hebrew Word Toledoth which technically means generations but is here obviously used as a historical term and is often translated, this is the account of... You'll find it again at 5:1 concerning Adam, 6:9 concerning Noah, 11:27 concerning Terah, Abraham's father, and so on. It means, "this is the record of" or "this is the story of" or "this is the history of" and the Scripture then always goes on to tell what happened afterward to the person who is named. In verse 4 we don't have a person, but the principle is the same. In chapter 1 we're told WHAT God created:

1. Chapters 2-4 are the history of what happened to God's creation and if you summarize it, you find that:

a. man was created perfectly (Ch. 2) and then:

b. man fell by sinning and brought a curse upon all creation (Ch. 3) and then, sadly:

c. the effects of man's fall spread throughout the human race (Ch. 4)

So look for this important phrase to indicate divisions of the story as we go along. And the second important thing to notice in verse 4 is that:

2. God's personal Name is now introduced The word God is a title like King or Prince. The phrase Queen Elizabeth tells us that the ruler of England is a woman whose name is Elizabeth. The phrase LORD God tells us that the ruler of the universe is a being whose name is... what? By convention, in most English Bible translations whenever you see the word LORD in all caps, that is God's proper name. In Hebrew it is 4 consonants since the language was not written with vowels, YHWH. It was probably pronounced YahWeH but the Hebrews felt it was too sacred, too holy to pronounce. Even today when they come to it, they reverently say, HaShem [The Name]. When the Jews finally introduced vowels into their written language 600 years after Christ, they deliberately wanted to make God's name unpronounceable so they gave it the vowel pointings from the word Adonai which means Lord, and it reminded them to say "Lord" instead. When we transliterate that unpronounceable Hebrew word into English, we get the pronounceable word Jehovah, which is the name used for God in the early English Bible translations and hymns and is still known and used all over the world. When we go to India, I can't speak a word of Telugu, but I can always recognize God's Name, Yehovah, when it is read or sung or prayed! The Apostle Paul wrote, For although there may be so-called gods in heaven or on earth—as indeed there are many “gods” and many “lords”—yet for us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things and for whom we exist... [1 Cor. 8:5-6]. God is not a force or an energy. He created all things to serve His purpose and He is a personal being who can be known and experienced as a Father. And His Name is Yahweh, Jehovah, the LORD our God! Now we go on the see:

II. The Environment In Which God Created Man (5-6) You see:

1. on Day 6 the earth still did not have fully developed vegetation In Ch. 1 we learned that on the previous day God had created all the varieties of vegetation. But here we learn that they were not created full-blown. Evidently God created them in seed form and caused them to begin to sprout from the ground but the land was still barren and not yet a fit place for human habitation. And that's why:

2. God created a fully developed garden as man's initial home Skip ahead to vs. (8-9a) He called the garden Eden, which means pleasure and that was truly His aim. It was intended to be a place where man could live in pleasure. It was a beautiful garden where man could walk with Him in joy and He caused all kinds of full-grown fruit-bearing trees to grow in it so life would be easy and all man had to do was to reach out and take what he needed to eat. It was a lovely, wonderful home designed for man's enjoyment. But, in addition, (9b) tells us that:

a. He placed two specific trees in it, the Tree of Life right in the very center of the garden and the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. The tree of life is sort of a mystery, but we see it again in Revelation 2 and 22, so suffice it to say it must have been a real tree that had special properties. The other tree we'll see again in a moment. People have always wanted to know where Eden was and its location is actually given in (10-14). Now from those verses it would seem to have been somewhere in the highlands of eastern Turkey where the Tigris and Euphrates originate, but the real truth is:

b. we can't know its location; it was destroyed in the flood, if not before. The flood altered the geography of the whole world, including the flow of rivers, and if it was indeed the force that separated the continents as many propose, there is simply no way to know what precise location these verses are talking about. And, indeed, what matters is not WHERE Eden was, but what happened in Eden!

So now let's go back to vs. 7 where we have:

III. The Details Of How God Created Man (7) Ch. 1 tells us THAT God created man; here we learn HOW:

1. God created the first man who became known as Adam. Now the word adam means man. It's kind of like the confusion of naming your dog Dog. If you say, "Let the dog in!" then dog is referring to a type of animal called dog. But if you say, "Let Dog in!" then Dog is the proper name of your pet. So in vs. 7 God formed the man, but in vs. 20 for Adam a suitable helper was not found. Same word, different usage. At any rate, Adam's creation was special in that:

a. God personally formed him Everything else God had created by His word. He spoke and said "Let there be..." and it happened. But when God made man, He personally "formed" or "fashioned" him. The word means to squeeze into shape the way that a potter fashions a vessel from clay. It implies planning and artistry. Man was God's masterpiece, the crown jewel of His creation, and the amazing thing is that God is still doing it! Look with me at Ps. 139:13-14. God personally formed and fashioned you in your mother's womb! He made everything about you exactly the way He wanted it to be. YOU are His masterpiece and when we look at the way God has created us in all its intricacy of design, we cry out with the Psalmist, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made!" Now in Adam's case:

b. God formed his body of the materials found in the soil This is more than some ancient myth saying God made man out of dirt. Your body is composed of the very materials found in the earth. 65% of your body weight is oxygen and another 10% is hydrogen and the reason you're not a gas floating away is that most of that is combined into H₂O, water! If you weigh 100 pounds, probably some 60 pounds of you is water! Another 19 pounds is carbon, another 2 is calcium and the rest is small amounts of phosphorus, potassium, sodium, magnesium and sulfur.

[<https://askabiologist.asu.edu/content/atoms-life>] Ladies, you can buy the chemicals to make a man at the drug store and add lots of water! However, just try to make a man out of that goopy mess! Some assembly is required! The human body has 11 different organ systems that enable it to function: circulatory, digestive, endocrine, muscular, skeletal, nervous, respiratory, reproductive and so on. I read somewhere that a piece of skin the size of a postage stamp contains 3 million cells, a yard of blood vessels, four yards of nerves; one hundred sweat glands, fifteen oil glands, and 25 nerve endings! Watch this: https://youtu.be/cM51_6lipq0 God took ordinary materials and fashioned this incredibly complex organism we call a human body! Could that all happen by chance? Only God could create something as complex as a human body! The point of the verse, though, is that man's body was real and fashioned out of earthly raw materials, just like all other created things, and yet He is completely different because:

c. God infused His own life into him, He breathed into him the breath of life, the very spirit of life which was His own. God imparted to man something He never gave to any of the animals. To them He gave natural or physical life, but to man He gave a whole other component. Every human being is an immortal, undying spirit like God, that lives inside a body made of clay, a unique combination of material and spiritual in one whole person. And Job's friend Elihu says, it is the spirit in man, the breath of the Almighty, that makes him understand [i.e., that gives him understanding, the ability to know and commune with God] - Job 32:8.

We are unique creations of God and somehow we know it. Even Jean-Paul Sartre, a militantly atheistic philosopher who died in 1980, near the end of his life told Pierre Victor: "I do not feel that I am the product of chance, a speck of dust in the universe, but someone who was expected, prepared, prefigured. In short, a being whom only a Creator could put here; and this idea of a creating hand refers to God." [HIS Magazine, April, 1983.] Amen! Now after creating the man, God put him in the garden of Eden and as He must have explained to him, "This is where you're going to live":

2. God gave Adam one clear command (15-17) Even in Eden, Adam was not meant to live a life of laziness and idleness. God planted the garden yet Adam was to care for it and maintain it, but overall:

a. he was given tremendous provision and freedom All the fruitbearing trees were available to him and he could eat whatever he wanted whenever he wanted. Work a little, eat a little and walk with God, what a wonderful life! However:

b. he was given one limitation and warned of its consequence God gave one clear rule: don't eat from that one tree! Now I don't think the tree of the knowledge of good and evil was a particular type of tree. I think God simply picked one of the fruit-bearing trees and said "Don't eat of this one tree" and by virtue of His command it would cause Adam to experience the meaning of good and evil immediately if he ate of it! The point was not that the tree was poisonous or possessed mystical properties. The point was that God required one thing of Adam: obedience. Adam needed to know that in all of his blessing and freedom he was under the authority of God and to acknowledge that by obeying. And God warned, "If you eat of it, you WILL certainly and immediately die." Now I'm not sure how Adam knew what death was; it was still day six and nothing had yet died. Perhaps God explained it to him but either way this warning is important because it paves the way for chapter 3. Well, after creating Adam and putting him in the garden:

3. God created the first woman, Eve The record begins with vs. (18). This is the first time in 6 days that God said something was not good! And what was not good was that Adam was not complete or finished in himself. At the very least, there could never be more than one of him; he couldn't fill the earth. You see:

a. God created Adam with the need for an indispensable companion, in Hebrew an ezer, not a mere helper in the sense we would think of it, but more like a complement, one who would complete everything that was lacking about him so that in unity together they would be pronounced "very good". She would be indispensable to Adam fulfilling the purpose for which God created him. But before creating her:

b. God demonstrated to Adam that no animal could fill his need (19-20) Remember this all happened on the 6th day. God brought each animal he'd created earlier that day to Adam and let Adam name them so that he could recognize a simple fact: not one of them was like him. Not one of them was "bone of his bones and flesh of his flesh". Not one could be the indispensable companion he needed. Only another human being like himself could fill that need. He was not just another species of animal, but totally set apart from all the animals God had made. God wanted Adam to know that from the very beginning and down through history human beings have always known that. How sad that with all the intelligence we have gained in the last century and a half, we have reverted to the foolishness of thinking that we are just a higher form of animal! So now God is ready to create this companion and how does He do it? (21-23):

c. God made Eve out of material from Adam He put him under Divine anesthesia, removed a portion literally from the side of his body, closed and healed the wound and from that fashioned a woman. The point of that is to mean she is fully like him, that she shares his nature in every way. And Adam realizes it; when he sees her, he exclaims, "AT LAST! Someone who is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh! We are the same! She's what I need!" However, she is also different here. A new word is introduced. Now the word man is ish which means a male human or husband and she is called ishah which means a female human or wife. Eve is the female version of Adam, exactly like him in nature and being but created with a set of physical and emotional features that complete and fill up all that was lacking in him by himself, so that together they would form one complete whole, one flesh, one body. And then in one fell swoop as He brought her to Adam:

4. God created the institution of marriage (24-25) These are Moses' words, not Adam's. They are his comment that:

a. Adam and Eve now modeled the roles of husband and wife for all generations to follow. Adam, of course, didn't have parents to leave but every in every generation thereafter human beings were to pair as husband and wife and vs. 24 is quoted repeatedly throughout the Scriptures to confirm various facts about marriage. We obviously don't have time for a long study about marriage but just notice a few things:

b. their union was primary. A man is to leave the authority of his parents to cling to his wife and form a new family. That is to be their primary relationship in life. Second it is exclusive. The words are singular; a man is not to cling to his "wives". A marriage relationship is to be one man and one woman for life. Third, it is obviously heterosexual, male with female, man with woman. Paul says clearly that the practice of men being with men and women with women is against nature (Rom. 1:26-27); it is not the way God created things to be. Jesus Himself quoted this passage and commented that in the beginning God made them male and female and He went on say in Mt. 19:4-8 that it means marriage is indissoluble. The two are joined by God to be one flesh and what God has joined, man shouldn't take apart. Malachi refers to this text to say that the marriage union is spiritual, Did he not make them one, with a portion of the Spirit in their union?... - Mal. 2:15. God Himself unites the husband and wife by His Spirit. Paul uses this passage to show that the marriage union is real, that when a husband is loving his wife, he is actually and truly loving himself because they are one - Eph. 5:28, 31. And finally, according to vs. 25, here in marriage they were naked without shame. They ended the day a perfect couple in a perfect union thoroughly enjoying the love of God Himself, the beauty and bounty of the garden around them and the perfect companionship of each other in every way.

Now here's a final thought. Wikipedia says that When defined broadly, marriage is considered a cultural universal, that is, an element, pattern, trait, or institution that is common to all human cultures worldwide. Every culture on earth recognizes marriage as an institution in some form! They all have a way of recognizing that this man and this woman now officially belong to one another and not anybody else, even if people often violate the idea. On the other hand, nearly all animals have multiple partners; only a few mate for life. Most exist in herds and flocks and procreate whenever and wherever they can to produce as many offspring as possible. One would think that if human beings are evolved animals, we would find that same pattern to be the norm. But what we find instead is that every culture on earth has developed this same concept of an exclusive marriage union between a man and a woman and has some way of creating and recognizing it. Where did they all get it? The answer is obvious, from God! It has been there since the very beginning of the race and its very existence is another piece of evidence that He created us.

Beginnings - Genesis 1-11

The Entrance Of Sin Into The World - Ch. 3

In Genesis 3 we have the story of Adam and Eve; who among us does not know the story? Everybody's heard it. The issue is whether or not we believe the story is real, that it is historical. In Compass Magazine one author describes an incident in his first week of class in a Christian university: "The professor was an old man with a heavy accent, denoting his Belgian origin. During his first class, he stated a belief that I had already heard rumors of but never witnessed personally: 'Adam and Eve never existed! The first three chapters of the book of Genesis are a myth! It never happened that way.'" [<https://thecompassmagazine.com/blog/9-truths-the-creation-account-teaches-us>] That's what we're told; this story was never meant to be taken literally, but only to teach truths in symbolic fashion. I have a simple way to show you that this WAS written to be taken as real history: genealogies! And you thought they were boring and pointless! Genesis 5 says Adam lived X number of years, had a son named Seth and died. Seth lived X number of years, had a son named Enosh and died, then Kenan and Mahalel and on and on until you come to Noah. The genealogy in Gen. 11 picks up with Noah living X years, having 3 sons and dying and goes on and on until you get to the life of Abraham. The genealogy in Matthew 1 picks up the line at Abraham and traces it all the way to Jesus, however, the genealogy in Luke 3 starts in reverse with Jesus and traces it one ancestor at a time the entire way back until it ends with Adam! Genealogies do not contain symbolism! The Bible clearly teaches that Adam is just as real a person as Noah, Abraham, David and Jesus Himself! Adam was a real human being who lived a real life and died a real death, just like you and I! And the story in Genesis 3 we're about to look at is a true story that really happened. In fact, Paul believed it was literally true - as did Luke, Jesus, Moses and the other biblical writers! Look with me at:

I. The New Testament Summary Of Genesis 3 It's found in one verse: Rom. 5:12. And that one man's name is mentioned in vs. 14, Adam. Here is Paul's clear explanation of how the world got the way it is. It's outlined in your notes...

- 1. the world and the human race were created without sin
- 2. sin entered the world through Adam's act of disobedience
- 3. the consequence of sin was death, both physical and spiritual
- 4. death passed to all human beings and became part of the world

But you'd probably rather watch this: [<https://answersingenesis.org/kids/videos/series/check-this-out/> Click on Pain and Suffering]. Unfortunately, I feel the need to say some more! Let's go to Gen. 3 and look more closely at:

II. The Sin Of Adam And Eve in vs. (1-6). The first thing we read is that:

1. the serpent tempted Eve to sin (1) Wait a minute, I'm supposed to believe in a talking snake? Not really. Between the last day of creation week and whatever later day this scene happened, another incident occurred that we only learn about elsewhere in Scripture. God's chief angel tried to overthrow Him and take His place; he led a rebellion of some of the angels against God and was cast out of heaven to become Satan, God's eternal adversary. That's a story for another day, of course, but the first place Satan headed was to the Garden of Eden. Why? To take God's greatest treasure away from Him; to turn human beings away from God by getting them to obey him instead.

a. the serpent was not a talking animal; it was Satan himself inhabiting the body of a snake and speaking out of its mouth. How do I know that? Rev. 12:9 says, ...the great dragon was thrown down, that ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world... 20:2 calls him that exact same thing, ...that ancient serpent, who is the devil and Satan. That word ancient is archaios which means the primeval or original one. Satan was that original serpent. Of Satan, Ez. 28:13 says, ...you were in Eden, the garden of God... Satan indwelt a snake the same way that demons indwelt the demoniac who lived among the tombs at Gadara and spoke through his mouth, "What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth?" And in this serpentine guise, Satan approached Eve, spoke to her when she was alone and:

b. he deceived Eve by his cunning Look with me at 2 Cor. 11:3. Evidently Paul believed this story was true! But he says that Satan deceived Eve. That is, she was not aware that he was lying to her and she acted trusting in the false information that he gave her. He used his cunning, his intentionally evil trickery, and she unwittingly swallowed the bait, like a fish that is deceived into swallowing a worm not knowing it contains a deadly hook. Satan is a wise being when it comes to evil. He knows how to tempt us and in this story we see spelled out for us:

2. the process of temptation to sin (1b-5) Notice what Satan did:

a. Satan introduced doubt about God's word and character His very first words implied doubt, "Did God actually say that?" and then he deliberately misquoted the rule God had given, making Him appear stingy. "You can't eat of ANY of these trees?" Eve actually tries to defend God by straightening him out, "Oh yes, we can eat of them all except that one over there. If we eat of or even touch that one, we'll die!" Notice that she had already added her own rule about not touching. Then:

b. he convinced her to believe a lie He goes for it and declares, "No, you won't die! God's just trying to keep you from being like Him. He's being selfish!" And, not having any experience with lying, she believes him. That's how Satan always works. He introduces doubt about God's Word. "Is that really true? How could God mean that?" Then he implies that God is selfish and just wants to keep us from enjoying all the good things we deserve by keeping them off limits. And finally, he whispers, "Go ahead, do it. It won't hurt you! You won't die! See, everybody else does it and look how happy they are!" Satan is a liar! And your best defense against him is knowing the Word well, trusting it completely and walking closely with God. Those things are your shield against Satan's lies. Then in vs. 6 look at:

3. the choice they made to sin against God (6) Notice that Satan's temptation:

a. it was fed by inner desire in her It appealed to her hunger, to her sense of beauty and to her desire to be more than she already was. That's how it works. James says, ...each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire. Then desire when it has conceived gives birth to sin, and sin when it is fully grown brings forth death. - James 1:14-15. A fish is deceived by the bait because he's hungry inside. When he's not hungry, he doesn't bite! Satan lures us with things he knows that we have a desire for, counting on the fact that when we look at the tree long enough and that desire grows strong enough, we'll believe his lie and take his offer and sin - and die! That's what happened to Eve, but in Adam's case:

b. it was a knowing choice of the will made by him He was with her, not when the serpent first talked to her, but sometime later when she actually ate the fruit and she gave it to him and he chose to eat it. 1 Tim. 2:14 says, ...Adam was not deceived, but the woman was deceived and became a transgressor. Eve didn't realize what she was doing; she was completely fooled, deceived. But Adam DID know. He deliberately chose to violate the direct order that God had given him. It was a willful sin!

But before we throw too many stones at them, let's admit that we sin in the same ways. Sometimes we're deceived like Eve; we believe Satan's lie that we'll be happier if we do the wrong thing. We become convinced that the wrong thing is the right thing. Sometimes that burning desire that we have inside to do the wrong thing overwhelms us and we yield to the pressure, like David did with Bathsheba. But sometimes, like Adam, we just stubbornly and deliberately say, "I want to do this and I'm gonna do this, no matter what! I'm gonna run my own life!" Presumptuous, willful sin, deliberately rebelling against God is the worst type and yet we still choose to do it! But when we do, it has disastrous consequences. In vs. (7-24) we see:

III. The Consequences Of Their Sin Immediately:

1. they experienced shame and separation from God (7-10) Before they were not ashamed; they ran to the LORD God when He approached them in the garden. Now they were ashamed. They covered themselves and tried to hide from Him when they heard Him coming. Immediately they knew and understood that they had done evil and were ashamed of what they'd done. When we sin, especially now that we as believers have the Holy Spirit living in us, that's the first thing that happens. Instead of the elation of having gotten what we wanted, we feel shame and guilt. We want to run from God and hide from Him, but we know we can't. Second:

2. they were made to confess what they had done (11-13) Yes, they both tried to blame someone else as the root cause, but still they both admitted the truth, "I ate". And that's what we must do. 1 John 1:9 says, If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. When we come to God like the Prodigal Son and say, Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you...., He forgives us, and not only that, He cleanses us! He purifies us. He takes away that desire to disobey and makes the thought abhorrent to us! That's the personal lesson for us, but there are much bigger consequences in this case. First:

3. the serpent was cursed (14-15) Notice that in vs. 14 God is speaking to the animal, the snake Satan used, but in vs. 15 God is speaking to Satan himself.

a. the animal was made to crawl on its belly and ultimately to die Evidently snakes didn't crawl initially; perhaps they had legs like lizards. At any rate now the snake and its descendants would crawl in the dust all its life and the phrase all the days of your life indicates that ultimately death would come. So, death entered the animal kingdom. But the greater pronouncement was directed at Satan. God says that:

b. there would be perpetual conflict between Satan and human beings Life would now be a war; history itself would be one long battle of Satan struggling to bring all the descendants of Adam and Eve under his dominion and them warring against him. But here in vs. 15, God gives the "first Gospel", the first pronouncement of the Good News:

c. Satan was doomed to be crushed by the Offspring of the woman and notice that the term is singular, HE, Jesus, would one day come and though He would be nailed to a cross to rescue us from our sins, He would ultimately crush Satan and destroy him in His resurrection power! Then God turned to Eve:

4. the woman and her female descendants were cursed (16) God says:

a. they would have increased pain in childbearing Evidently childbirth originally would have been an easy and painless process, but I'm sure you mothers out there can testify that God meant what He said! Childbirth is now an incredibly painful and even dangerous process. The UN says that in the world still today a woman dies every 2 minutes in childbirth and for every one who dies, 20 or 30 more have serious or long-term complications. But beyond that, God says that:

b. there would now be conflict in the marriage relationship He is not placing the husband in charge here as it might appear. Rather the New English Translation of vs. 16 conveys the sense more accurately: ...You will want to control your husband, but he will dominate you. Instead of perfect symbiotic harmony, completing and complementing each other, from now on you will try to get him to do what you want and he will try to make you do what he wants. And thus it has been down through the ages in culture after culture; only when both are in Christ can this tension be healed in the relationship. But the biggest consequence of sin came as God now turned to Adam:

5. the man and all his descendants were cursed (17-19) Human beings:

a. they would now have to survive by difficult labor instead of enjoying the easy life of pleasure Adam had known in the garden. They would have to work hard and sweat to eke out a living from the ground. And now:

b. their bodies would all be subject to physical death Adam could have lived forever. His body was immortal just like his spirit, but now it was made subject to decay and injury and growing old and eventually his spirit would have to leave it and it would return to the dust from which it was made. Heb. 9:27 says plainly, ...it is appointed for man to die once... and this is when that happened. From that moment on, all human beings die without exception. But what's even worse is what the text here does not say, but the New Testament does:

c. sin entered the nature of all human beings - Rom. 5:12, ...sin came into the world through one man, and death through sin, and so death spread to all men because all sinned. The spiritual power called sin, the nature, the drive, the bent to sin, came to live in Adam and in Eve and they passed it on to every one of their descendants. Look with me at Eph. 2:1-3. All mankind are now by nature children of wrath, born with sin in our very nature, spiritually dead, and living like what we are inside - until Jesus saves us and makes us spiritually alive. That's what Adam did, acting as the head of the human race! He brought us all into slavery and bondage to sin from which Jesus must set us free. But, looking back again, there's one more thing:

6. the creation itself was cursed in vs. (17b-19) God says:

a. the ground would bring forth thorns and thistles Agriculture would now become a hardship because the very earth was changed. But the fuller explanation is found in Rom. 8:20-22:

b. the entire creation was placed in bondage to corruption For the creation was subjected to futility, not willingly, but because of him who subjected it, in hope that the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to corruption and obtain the freedom of the glory of the children of God. For we know that the whole creation has been groaning together in the pains of childbirth until now. The very creation itself was changed from its perfection; it was corrupted. Everything dies. Everything wears out. It fades away. The animal kingdom struggles and fights. Drought and famine and hurricanes and earthquakes become part of life on earth until Jesus returns and God makes it all new.

Oh, the terrible consequences of one simple act by Adam and Eve; it corrupted the world, it corrupted the human race, and it corrupted ME. Philip Yancey tells about a World War II soldier who was part of the liberation of the Nazi concentration camp at Dachau, Germany, where thousands of Jews had been exterminated. The man told this story: "A buddy and I were assigned to a boxcar. Inside were human corpses stacked in neat rows, exactly like firewood. Our job was like moving furniture. We would pick up each body--so light--and carry it to a designated area. I couldn't believe it the first time we came across a person in the pile still alive! But it was true. Incredibly, some of the corpses weren't corpses. They were human beings. We yelled for doctors and they went to work on these survivors right away. I spent two hours in that boxcar; two hours that for me included every known emotion: rage, shame, pity, revulsion. They came in waves...all but the rage...it stayed, fueling our work. After we had taken the few survivors to a makeshift clinic, we turned our attention to the Nazis: the SS officers in charge of Dachau. Our captain asked for a volunteer to escort a group of a dozen SS officers to the interrogation center, and a guy named Chuck...his hand shot right up. Chuck grabbed his machine gun and prodded the group of SS prisoners down the trail. They walked ahead of him with their hands locked behind their heads, their elbows sticking out on either side. A few minutes after they disappeared into the trees, we heard the rattling burp of a machine gun and three long bursts of fire. Soon Chuck came strolling out, smoke still curling from the tip of his weapon. 'They all tried to run away,' he said with a kind of leer... I could not absorb such a scene. I did not even know that such absolute evil existed! But when I saw it, I knew beyond a doubt that I'd spend my life serving whatever opposed such evil...serving God. Then came the Chuck incident. I had a nauseating fear that the captain might call upon me to escort the next group of SS guards; and even a more dreadful fear that if he did, I might do the same thing that Chuck had done! The beast that was in those guards was also in me. The beast within those guards, the beast within Chuck, the beast was also in me." [Descending Into Greatness by Bill Hybels, Zondervan, 1993. Pages 144-145.] That beast is called sin and sin is in me; it is in every one of us descendants of Adam. There is NONE righteous, not even one. I am capable of the most grievous evil and rebellion against God, but thank God for His grace which has done something about it. Look at:

III. God's Graciousness Toward Adam And Eve Right away:

1. He made provision to cover their sin (20-21) Where did God get the skins? He killed animals and in doing so He graciously taught them the principle of sacrifice, that blood must be shed, that something must die to cover their sin. And so, humans learned to offer sacrifice to God and it is all to picture that one day Jesus would provide the ultimate sacrifice for our sins, shedding His blood to purchase forgiveness for our sins and remove them once for all, forever. Hallelujah! And secondly:

2. He prevented them from living forever in their fallen state (22-24) God didn't want Adam and Eve to continue living forever in their now corrupted bodies. So, He cast them out of the garden, barred the way to the tree of life and ultimately removed the garden itself. It seems like an act of punishment, but it was really an act of grace. Now they would leave their bodies at death, join Him in heaven and eventually be given new and perfect bodies in which to live forever with Him.

Friends our hope does not lie in this fallen world filled with pain and suffering. It lies in a spending a glorious eternity with Jesus.

The Degradation Of The Human Race - 4:1-6:8

It was L. Ron Hubbard, the founder of the Scientology cult that said, "Man is basically good, but man can act badly..." That is basically the humanistic philosophy that pervades our culture. However, the first millennium and a half of human history following creation are positive historical proof that that is just not so, as is the whole rest of human history! Adam and Eve's original descendants had no organized government to obey and no system of laws to follow. They did what came naturally to them, with the result that instead of human society getting better and better and becoming a wonderful thing, it degenerated further and further into lawlessness and anarchy and immorality until the whole race became so degraded that God could no longer tolerate it. It begins with:

I. The Account Of Cain And Abel in (4:1-15), and I say account rather than story, because in English a story may or may not be true; this is a historical account of what actually happened (1-4a) After leaving the Garden, Adam and Eve had two sons. Cain grew up to become a farmer, helping his father till the soil and raise crops to feed the family. Abel grew up to become a shepherd, helping his father care for a flock of sheep and goats that provided clothing and milk for the family. In the process of time, at some point:

1. Cain and Abel offered the first sacrifices to God that we read of. Each brought to God a portion of the results of their personal labor. Cain brought some grain or perhaps some vegetables that he had grown as an offering; Abel brought the fattest of the firstborn lambs of his flock to God. However:

2. Abel offered a more excellent sacrifice than Cain (4b-5a) God accepted Abel's offering, but not Cain's. Why? Turn with me to Heb. 11:4. People often teach that only animals are acceptable as sacrifices and Cain brought the wrong offering, but these are evidently thanksgiving offerings and even later under the law grain offerings were accepted and a tithe of all the produce of the fields was brought to God. The problem was not with what Cain brought, but with the attitude of his heart. Abel brought his gift in faith, trusting in God, loving God, realizing that the increase of his flock was a gift from God and anxious to bring him the very best he had to say, "Thank You!". Cain brought some of his produce as a duty, because he felt he had to, perhaps reluctant to part with the hard-earned fruits of his labor; his heart wasn't in it. Hey, do you think there's a lesson there about how WE ought to give to God and about how God looks upon our act of giving? What's the attitude of YOUR heart when you give to God? Are you Abel-hearted, truly thankful to God for all you have and giving to Him the first and best parts of it? Or are you Cain-hearted, tight-fistedly giving some of your leftovers to God because you know you should? Now notice that even though He didn't accept Cain's offering, God showed Cain grace (5b-7). In this first family God was evidently still speaking personally and directly to them all. Cain was angry that he was rejected and:

3. God warned Cain that anger leads to sin. He said, "Think about why you're so angry! Look, I'm not rejecting you; I would be glad to receive your offering if you bring it the right way, if your heart is right! But this anger is not good. I see that sin is like a lion crouching at your door, ready to spring. You're ready to do something very wrong because of it. Master it; don't give in; don't let it control you!" Aren't you glad God is a God of second chances? And third and fourth chances? But instead of listening he killed his brother Abel (8) Now why did he do that? The apostle John warns us, We should not be like Cain, who was of the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his own deeds were evil and his brother's righteous. - 1 Jn. 3:12. Think about this. Two boys raised in the same home, growing up together in the same family. And there were NO other families, no other people in the world, just them! They ate together and played together and slept together and worked together, just the four of them until other children were born. There was no "world system" to lure them astray, no other evil people to lead them into sin. No human being had ever died and, obviously, there had never been a murder; they didn't even kill and eat animals at this point in history! Yet despite all of this, when they grew up, Cain attacked his own brother Abel in a field and, the Hebrew says, slaughtered him, butchered him the way Abel had the lambs from his flock for sacrifice. Where did that come from? It came from inside Cain, from the powerful force of sin trying to control him and he yielded to it, despite God's personal warning. In the first place, John says Cain was of the evil one, that is he was influenced by and listening to Satan, living in his way instead of God's way. And secondly, he hated Abel because Abel was good, because he was constantly living a life of good works, living God's way. Cain didn't live that way and didn't want to live that way. He lived a self-centered, self-serving life. But every time he looked at Abel, Abel's life pointed out his sin and made him feel guilty. So instead of repenting, he blamed Abel and grew to resent him and the resentment turned to hatred and ultimately led to enough fury to murder him! What a warning God has given us! Don't be like Cain! Alexander the Great conquered every nation in the entire known world of his day by the age of 33 and then lamented, "There are no more worlds to conquer!" He was an amazing general, however, several times in his life he was tragically defeated by one weakness--anger. On one occasion, a childhood friend of his who was a general in his army became intoxicated and ridiculed the emperor in front of his men. Blinded by anger, Alexander snatched a spear and hurled it at Cletus. Although he had intended only to scare the drunken general, the spear took his friend's life. Alexander conquered many cities and countries, but he had failed to conquer his own spirit. [Moody, Mar 1993. Page 74.] Don't let anger and resentment fester and grow until it takes control of you and you do something awful! Master the power of sin that so desperately wants to control you by yielding to the control of the Holy Spirit and let His power rule your heart and mind! Well, afterward:

4. God punished Cain but extended grace to him (9-15) God still spoke to him! Now remember that Cain was a farmer, that he got his living from the ground. But God said, "That will never work for you any more. The ground will not produce for you any longer. You'll be driven away from your family and be a vagabond and a wanderer getting food any way you can." God didn't put him to death as he deserved but he was worried about dying. He realized he would no longer have access to the presence of God and he thought that if any of his family members found him (Adam and Eve evidently already had other children and possibly grandchildren by this point) that they would take vengeance on him and slaughter him as he had Abel. So, God graciously put some sort of identifiable mark on Cain so that everyone would recognize that he was under God's immediate protection and that his death would be avenged 7 times over. Why? I believe God was trying right from the beginning to prevent the cycle of vengeance - you killed my brother, so I kill you - from starting. It seems that wherever human societies are isolated, like in the jungles of Brazil or Indonesia, they somehow always degenerate into a horrible cycle of perpetual revenge killings. God made of Cain an example that He didn't want that to become the way of life for the human race right in the beginning. However:

II. Two Different Lines Of Adam's Descendants Developed As A Result Of This Incident (4:16) Adam and his family must have stayed near to Eden because at its edge somehow, they continued to meet with God. But Cain now migrated away from there to the east, to a land that became known as Nod, the land of wandering, but the sad thing is not that he moved, but that he moved away from the presence of the Lord. Therefore, sadly:

1. Cain's descendants multiplied without the knowledge of God (17) We're told in Ch. 5 that Adam had many other sons and daughters. Cain had married one of his sisters and they had children who had children, but instead of wandering aimlessly, he had a different idea. God had said Cain was to be a fugitive and a wanderer but:

a. he built a city in determination NOT to be a wanderer As his descendants increased, they stayed in one place until it became a town and then a city. Remember these folks were living hundreds of years, so they had many children through multiple generations. Not surprisingly:

b. his descendants introduced polygamy (18-19) Lamech took two wives and he's probably not the only man who did it and that made the population increase even faster. Our missionary Yallah in Liberia has 50 brothers and sisters! His father was the headman of a village and had 7 wives. So, from one man came 50 descendants in one generation and think how many grandchildren that produced! Cain's descendants multiplied rapidly and:

c. they focused on developing earthly, material pursuits One of Lamech's sons became a shepherd like Abel and developed the practice of livestock breeding! Another developed the art of music and invented instruments. Another figured out how to cast and work bronze and iron to make weapons. Notice how fast human knowledge developed and it was evidently passed on widely. And that wasn't bad, but notice that nothing spiritual at all is said about any of these folks. They learned all these things but they didn't learn to know God and so:

d. they endorsed societal values of pride and vengeance (23-24) Lamech boasts about killing someone who hit him and vows that his vengeance would be 10 times greater than that which God promised Cain on anyone who opposed him. Pride and power increasingly became the values endorsed by the society of Cain's descendants apart from God. On the other hand:

2. Seth's descendants retained the knowledge of God (4:25-26) Eve continually acknowledges that her children are a gift from God and Adam and Eve evidently successfully passed their faith and their relationship with God on to Seth who passed it on to his son Enosh and that last phrase of vs. 26 seems to be indicating that now that there were a significant number of people in the developing family, they began to meet and worship together corporately and not merely individually. Now in (Ch. 5) we hit the next division of the book; we have the toledoth, the history:

III. The Account Of Adam's Descendants through the line of Seth [Read 1-5]. And the chapter goes on to spell out the names and ages of 10 generations in Adam's line until you arrive at Noah. Of course, we don't have time to read the whole chapter, but let me just make 3 observations about it. First:

1. God multiplied the race rapidly through long life spans Adam lived 930 years, Seth 807, and Methuselah was the longest at 969 years! These long life spans were God's way of multiplying the human race quickly. To illustrate: LuAnn's grandmother had 12 children. One of those twelve, her mother Shirley, had 5 children. From those 5 children there are 31 grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Most of the other 11 siblings also had kids and grandkids so there are probably well over 100 in 3-4 generations from one couple who didn't live all that long! How many children could a couple have whose bodies lived healthily for hundreds of years? World population increased quickly! Secondly, if you add up the ages at which each of these men had the next-named son, you discover that:

2. it took only 1656 years for the human race to completely degenerate In one sense a thousand years is an extremely long time but in terms of history, it is a fairly short space. While the knowledge of God must have been passed along by each of these 10 men to their sons, overall, it was gradually forgotten so that by the time of Noah, despite the greatly increased population, 1656 years later, Noah was the ONLY one remaining on earth who knew the Lord. It took a comparatively SHORT time for the human race to forget God and be ruled by sin. The third thing worth mentioning is that during that millennium and a half, it is said that:

3. two men, Enoch (and later on, Noah in 6:9), walked with God (22-24) About 1000 years into this period, Enoch walked so closely with God that he was granted a special privilege. Heb. 11:5 says, By faith Enoch was taken up so that he should not see death, and he was not found, because God had taken him. Now before he was taken he was commended as having pleased God. He never died! In the midst of life, he was translated directly to heaven to be with God! So, at this point at least SOME folks still loved God dearly, but by the end of the next 600 years, we arrive at:

IV. The Total Corruption Of The Human Race in (6:1-8). Let's start in vs. (5):

1. the entire race became evil in their actions and thoughts Without the knowledge of God and with no external factors to restrain their behavior, sin came to dominate the lives of everyone. They thought it about evil things all the time and they did them. Instead of a world full of righteousness as God intended, it became a world full of evil and corruption. But if Seth's descendants retained the knowledge of God for a long time, how could that be? That's what vs. (1-2) are explaining:

a. Seth's godly line became corrupted through multiplied indiscriminate marriages Now these verses, along with vs. 4 have been the subject of endless debate forever, it seems. There have been many interpreters who contend that the sons of God were angels who married human women and produced a race of half-human giants. There are a number of reasons why that makes no sense, not the least of which is Jesus' plain statement that angels neither marry nor are given in marriage. Rather, the majority of interpreters feel that the sons of God are the descendants of Seth's line who retained the knowledge of God. But instead of marrying only wives who shared their faith, they married any they chose, including those from the godless descendants of Cain. And instead of bringing them to faith, the godly were drawn into their wickedness and gave up their faith. The Holy Spirit is here explaining that this indiscriminate unequal yoking generation after generation is what led to the eradication of faith from the earth and that should be a strong warning to us! Young people, commit yourself before God NOW to only ever marry someone who loves Jesus with all their heart! Don't consent to being unequally yoked with someone who doesn't believe! The consequences can be utterly disastrous for generations to come! Now look at vs. (4):

b. the race became dominated by powerful, oppressive men The word Nephilim is a Hebrew word that is often translated giants but Mickelson says it means bullies or tyrants, properly, those who fell or slay others. Later we read in Ch. 10 about Nimrod who was a mighty man in the earth, a mighty hunter, that is, a hunter of men, not animals, who built his own kingdom. In this lawless world, those who were the strongest, most powerful and most violent pushed themselves to the top through fear and dominated the others. They made terrible reputations for themselves and this, no doubt, became the source of all the pagan legends about superhuman men like Hercules and Achilles. It became a world of fear and injustice, filled with immorality and the blood of the innocent, an awful place, so at last:

2. God decided to exterminate the human race and cleanse the earth (6-7) God was sad, saddened to the very core of His being. He made mankind in His image to know and be with Him but He saw that if He was ever to have a world of human beings who would love and fellowship with Him, there was no remedy but to wipe out all He had made and start over again. But still:

a. He set a grace period of 120 years before judgment (3) God set a limit as to how much longer His Spirit would strive with the human race to patiently try to win them back. He gave them an additional 120 years until the Great Flood came. Look with me at 1 Pet. 3:20. God was patient. Noah was building a huge ark but while doing it he was preaching righteousness to the people according to 2 Pet. 2:5. They had one last whole century of opportunity but they universally shunned it and every one of them perished. But God:

b. He extended grace to Noah because he alone walked with God (8-9) Those who had passed the faith to him, his father Lamech, who died 5 years before the flood, and his grandfather Methuselah, who died the very year of the flood, were gone and he was the only one left who knew God so God determined to start the human race all over with Noah and his 3 sons and their wives who would all know Him by graciously and miraculously saving their lives from the great catastrophe which would wipe the world clean.

But as we close, I don't want you to just think of this as so much factual information. I want you to ponder that phrase, it grieved God to His heart. Think how God must have felt. Human beings, made in His own image, the crown of His creation, His greatest treasure and instead of seeking Him and becoming all He hoped they would be, they turn on Him and, despite His gracious love, become everything He hates. So much so that He has to destroy them. It broke His heart to do it. Do any of you remember watching the ancient Disney film, Old Yeller? It's about this frontier family in the 1860's in Texas and they take in this big old mangy yellow dog. The father's away on a cattle drive and the young teen son, Travis, is left to be the man in charge. At first Yeller is a bother but over time the whole family, even Travis, comes to love him as he rescues one and then another from bears and wild hogs and wolves. He becomes their treasured possession. But then one day, in protecting the family, Yeller is bitten by wolf that has rabies. They have to pen him up in a cage because they know there's a good chance he might get rabies. And sure enough, in a few days he begins to show signs of anger and aggression, frothing at the mouth and lunging at the very ones who love him against the walls of the cage. The family is heartbroken, torn apart. The dog they loved and who loved them is now raging against them and would hurt them if he could and there's nothing they can do about it. And Travis knows what he has to do. With tears in his eyes, he takes his rifle and goes to the cage and shoots Old Yeller, the dog he loved who has now turned into the very thing he hates. Maybe that's a tiny human-sized picture of some of the feelings of God's heart. Mankind, His most-prized treasure, has been bitten by sin and become thoroughly infected beyond all hope of recovery. He knows what He has to do and with a broken heart, He makes the decision to do it. He will wipe off the planet the race of people He lovingly created. The Great Flood will come. It has to. But please understand that God took no pleasure in it.

The Great Flood: Noah and the Ark - 6:9-7:24

If you happen to go downstairs and visit our GBC nursery what will you see? Noah's ark and pairs of cute animals all around the room drawn by Ken Sleep and a team of young people years ago. We tell our children the story of Noah and the ark; we teach them songs about it and let them color pictures of it. But so much of the world is content to stop there and regard it as exactly that, nothing more than an ancient children's story to be regarded as a myth. I can assure you it was anything but! It was a real event, an apocalypse that engulfed the entire world in a doomsday scenario unlike anything the world has ever seen since! And the signs of it are everywhere. Now as we pick up our study in chapter 6 at vs. 9, we have once again Moses' dividing phrase, These are the generations of Noah, meaning "this is the toledoth, the account of, the history of Noah and what happened to him". It is a statement indicating that this is a historical record, not parable nor a story, and it begins with:

I. The Building Of The Ark - 6:9-22 Now I'm sure you've seen various artist's renderings of the Ark. Most of them try to make it include features that we now include on boats that move through the water like a curved prow or rounded corners, but it is more likely that the Ark was simply a huge rectangular flat-bottomed structure. It was never designed to navigate, simply to float. And even if there was shipbuilding knowledge in Noah's day, Noah was nowhere near an ocean when he built it. It probably would have looked more like a long rectangular building with an attached floor. The first thing to notice in vs. (15-16) is:

1. its immense size It was 450 feet long, a football field and a half. And 75 feet wide, as wide as our sanctuary is long. It was 45 feet high inside, about twice our ceiling height. It was roughly the dimensions of a modern ocean liner. The best thing I can do is recommend that you plan to visit the Ark Encounter in Williamstown KY in person or online at <https://arkencounter.com>. This is a real life-sized model of the ark, inside and out and look how huge it is! So please understand we are talking about a huge vessel, the likes of which was not built again for thousands of years! It also had a window or more accurately a vent in its roof which no doubt ran the length of the boat and was itself a cubit high. Through it light and air and perhaps rain water for drinking came into the boat. We are not given details, but from the dimensions we can understand:

2. its wonderful stability It had a length-to-width ration of 6:1, similar to that of modern vessels which usually are closer to 8:1, though they are designed for propulsion. The low height compared to the wide base made it extremely stable. Experiments with models show that the only way to tip such a shape and capsize it is to stand it up on one end. The extreme length meant that the action of any given wave could affect only a small portion of the vessel's length at one time so it was not constantly weaving and pitching like a smaller craft. Also, the rectangular shape would tend to turn perpendicular to the direction of the waves constantly so as to meet them in the most stable direction. It was a very stable ship and it's not hard to grasp:

3. its incredible spaciousness The floor space of the ark was about 34,000 sq. ft., but it had 3 decks, 3 floors inside or over 100,000 sq. ft. feet of floor space total. Its total inner volume was 1.4 million cubic ft. It had room for thousands of compartments and storage areas. I'm told that is enough floor space to carry 2 of every species of animal alive in the world today, in half of its floor space! And, I might add, with plenty of room for birds to fly on the inside! Now, from vs. (3) that we mentioned last time, we learn of:

4. its tedious construction It took 4 men a tremendously long time to build and equip such a vessel; it took them 120 years, more than an entire lifetime to you and I. They had to find and cut lumber by hand, transport it, cut it into boards, then actually construct the ark using braces and probably pegs for nails and finally seal the entire exterior with pitch to make it waterproof. Such a feat was an immense undertaking and required extreme perseverance, actually extreme FAITH to complete. Who would ever do such a thing if they didn't believe the word of the Lord that a flood was coming?! Now why did God command it to be built? Of course, it was meant to preserve a seed stock of the human race so God could start to build it all over again, but vs. (19-20) also mention:

5. its preservation of animals God also planned to wipe out all the land dwelling, air breathing animals along with the human race, so He planned to preserve a seed-stock of every family or kind of animal so that they could repopulate as well. Now how many animals are we talking about? Notice that it doesn't say two of every species. The Hebrew word min equates to the level of family in our modern classification system. Noah only needed to take two of the dog or canine family, two of the cat or feline family, two of the horse or equine family and so on. And from those two originals of each family, through the natural processes of genetic variation, and survival of the fittest many species of animals developed within each family. Researchers estimate that, including now extinct kinds or families, there are only about 1,400 different pairs of animals that Noah would have needed to take with him. And despite all the cute animals in cartoons and baby mobiles that have formed our impressions, the original ancestral animals of Noah's day may have looked much different from the animal species we see today. <https://answersingenesis.org/media/audio/answers-with-ken-ham/volume-127/how-many-animals-were-on-ark/> The best example of this process is the human race itself. We ALL come from one original couple, but look what a huge variety of races and peoples exist in the world today. People come in all shapes, sizes and varieties yet all the varieties of humans can marry and have children and are constantly producing new varieties in the process. That's exactly how we got all the variety of animal species we have today. But somebody will say, "What about the dinosaurs?" Yes, those 1400 animal kinds or families on the ark must have included dinosaurs too! And, there are only about 50 families (not species) of dinosaurs so that would mean that only about 100 dinosaurs would have been on the ark. I shared with you in chapter 1 that most dinosaurs were small and the median size of a dinosaur was about the size of an American buffalo, smaller than an adult cow. So, the smaller families of dinosaurs were easily housed and of the truly giant ones, pairs of juveniles were obviously brought aboard the ark, while all the rest of the dinosaurs perished in the flood. Finally, notice in vs. (21):

6. its planned provisioning Noah took aboard the ark a year's worth of food for his family and also for all of the animals. What a huge task that must have been, once the ark was built! But once all was in readiness, God sent:

II. The Great Flood upon the earth in Ch. 7 Of course, in the eyes of the world around us, that's just a fairy tale. It's enough for me that the Bible records it, but you have to be blind not to recognize the:

1. scientific evidences of the flood that abound in the world. Watch this:

<https://answersingenesis.org/media/video/science/fossils-and-the-flood/>

Let me expand upon just 4 evidences that there was a global flood. First of all, archaeologists tell us that:

a. sea creatures are buried on mountaintops worldwide For example, fossilized shellfish are found buried high in the Himalayas, the highest mountain range in today's world. How in the world did they get there without being submerged in water? Second, as the video said, around the world:

b. billions of dead things are buried in rock layers and fossilized. As you saw, fossils aren't created by normal or slow burial; they only happen with "rapid burial". In the Grand Canyon we find a "fossil graveyard" where billions of squid-like nautiloids were buried. It would take a lot of water to bury that many creatures! We also find land animals buried with sea creatures. In northern Tasmania we find a toothed whale and a possum buried together. Whales and possums do not live in the same place! The only answer is that a powerful Flood must have buried them together. We also find fossils that were buried very quickly. For example, a six-foot-long ichthyosaur was fossilized while she was giving birth! The existence of billions of fossils points to the global Flood as recorded in the Bible. Third, geologists tell us that:

c. rock layers can be traced across continents Two rock layers in the Grand Canyon, the Tapeats Sandstone and the Redwall Limestone, can be traced across the whole United States and into Canada. Both layers can even be traced across the Atlantic Ocean, the Tapeats Sandstone right across northern Africa into Israel, and the Redwall Limestone into England and beyond! What could possibly have laid down so much sediment across such a huge distance to harden into rocks? Only a global Flood! The sand that makes up the Coconino Sandstone layer of the spectacular Grand Canyon in Arizona came all the way from the northern US, the far eastern US, and Canada! What could pick up such a huge amount of sand and dump it so far away? A really big Flood, just like the one in Genesis! In addition, if the rock layers we see were really laid down slowly with millions of years between each layer, as many people think, the wind and water should have worn hills and valleys into the rocks. This process is called "erosion" and happens to rocks all over the world today. However, most rock layers show no evidence of such erosion between them! The layers fit together perfectly without any hills or valleys between them, so they were not laid down slowly over millions of years. They were laid down quickly by the global Flood! Then think of this: If you take soft playdough and try to bend it, what happens? It bends, of course! What if you let that playdough dry out? When you try to bend it again what happens? It breaks! This same thing happens to rocks. Before they harden into solid rock, they are bendable, like soft playdough. When they get hard you can't bend them anymore because they just crack and break. Yet in many places around the world, we observe rock layers that are folded, or bent, without having been broken. This means the rocks had to be "wet" (like soft playdough) when they were bent. If the rock layers were slowly laid down millions of years before they were bent, they would have already dried out and thus cracked instead of folding like they did. So, these rock layers cannot be millions of years old. They were quickly laid down and then bent, all during the year of the Flood of Noah!

<https://answersingenesis.org/kids/geology/evidence-flood/> Then fourth, anthropologists tell us that:

d. over 270 cultures worldwide retain flood stories in their history They retain distant memories of that "life-changing event." The details have been lost, but most of the legends share common themes: Man became corrupt; the Flood was worldwide; eight people survived; representatives of all land animals were saved; a dove was released to seek dry land; the survivors came down from a mountain to repopulate the whole world, and so on. Noah-like names such as Nu-u, Nu-Wah, Noh, Nos, and Nuh are preserved in so many of the Flood legends.

<https://answersingenesis.org/the-flood/flood-legends/legends-of-the-flood/> The Hualapai Indians live in the western Grand Canyon. At the foot of Spirit Mountain in southernmost Nevada, are ancient pictographs that contain a flood story that contains these elements. Rains fell on the earth for 45 days. The rising waters wiped out all peoples with the lone exception of an old man atop Spirit Mountain. The Creator eventually sent a bird to the man with instructions to dig with a ram's horn into the foot of the mountain to enable the waters to drain. The man obeyed and soon the bird returned a second time with grass in its beak to inform the man that the waters had receded. Sound familiar? A second pictograph depicts a vessel carrying eight passengers “across the waters,” from whom all the peoples of the earth were descended. <https://answersingenesis.org/the-flood/flood-legends/flood-tales-canyon/> Hawaiians have a flood story that tells of a time when, long after the death of the first man, the world became a wicked, terrible place. Only one good man was left, and his name was Nu-u. He made a great canoe with a house on it and filled it with animals. In this story, the waters came up over all the earth and killed all the people; only Nu-u and his family were saved. Another flood story is from China. It records that Fuhí, his wife, three sons, and three daughters escaped a great flood and were the only people alive on earth. After the great flood, they repopulated the world. Watch: <https://answersingenesis.org/the-flood/flood-legends/flood-legends/> Yes, the stories vary greatly, but how is it that all these cultures believe there was once a global flood? Maybe because there WAS one and their distant ancestors passed their flawed memory of it down! Thank God we have the original, the true account of the flood in the Bible! I’ve noted the sources of the information I’ve just shared in your outline, but now let’s return to Gen. 7 which begins with:

2. the loading of the ark (1-10, 13-16) It took 7 days to load the ark, for Noah and his family to get their belongings and food on board and to load all the animals and get them situated in their enclosures. By the way, how did Noah get them all? V. 9 in the Hebrew says that they went unto Noah unto the ark or, as the NIV puts it, they came to Noah and entered the ark. In other words, God caused the animal pairs to come to Noah at the ark to be loaded aboard. And then God shut the door of the ark to make sure it was sealed and the rain began. Now where did all that water come from?

3. the sources of the flood (11-12) It came from 2 sources. It was more than simply rain produced by condensation of water vapor in the atmosphere. It rained for 40 days and covered the earth to great depth. How? The answer is that God had vast reserves of water stored up from the time of creation. A great deal of moisture was stored in the earth’s outer atmosphere in the form of a vapor canopy of some sort as we mentioned on Day 2 of creation. At the time of the flood, God allowed that vapor to condense and fall as intense rain. The fact that it took 40 days to stop raining intensely shows just how much water was up there. Secondly it states that subterranean springs were broken open so that vast reservoirs of water stored beneath the earth’s crust were released as well. This would explain why it seems as though the waters continued to rise even after the rains stopped. The waters did not begin to recede until 150 days. It is not likely that maximum depth was reached at 40 days and everything was stable for 110. These springs held vast quantities of water which kept gushing out full-force for months until they were exhausted. Then notice:

4. the depth and universality of the flood (17-20) It covered the highest mountains then existing to a depth of more than 20 feet. As we’ll see, the mountains then existing were not nearly as high as the ones we have today, nevertheless there was a lot of water. 20 feet is the approximate draught of the ark (the part under water) so that it would clear the highest mountains during the deluge without being smashed. And notice it clearly indicates the flood covered the entire earth; it was not just a local phenomenon as some critics say. And, of course, evidences of it are found all over the earth today. It’s effect?

5. the universal death wrought by the flood (21-23) Everything died; all human and animal life, everything was blotted out, except for those who were saved in the ark. And finally notice.

6. the duration of the flood (24) In round terms the flood lasted a few days longer than a year from the moment it began to rain until the waters were completely dried. Here’s a chart from the Bible Knowledge Commentary [SLIDE]. In rough terms it took about 5 months for the waters to crest and begin to recede. It took roughly about the same time (5 months) for the waters to recede to their current level. And then it took over 2 months for the surface of the earth to completely dry out. Altogether Noah and his family spent 377 days in the ark. But let’s not miss:

III. The Point: Noah, the Ark and the Flood are A Grave Warning God judges sin! Peter warned us that, ...by the word of God... the world that then existed was deluged with water and perished. But by the same word the heavens and earth that now exist are stored up for fire, being kept until the day of judgment and destruction of the ungodly. - 2 Pet. 3:5-7. One day Jesus is coming and the whole world will face God’s judgment all over again. Jesus Himself warned us, Just as it was in the days of Noah, so will it be in the days of the Son of Man. They were eating and drinking and marrying and being given in marriage, until the day when Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. - Luke 17:26-27. God said there would be a flood and it came. The world thinks it can party on and pursue anything it likes, but God’s judgment is coming and His Word on that is just as sure as that which brought the great Flood. You all know the tragic story of the Titanic which sank after hitting an iceberg in the North Atlantic in 1912. What you may not know is that day the ship received 6 separate warnings from other ships that had seen dangerous icebergs, at 9 AM, 1:42 PM, 1:45 PM, 7:30 PM, 9:40 PM and finally at 11 PM, the wireless operator, replied, “Shut up, I’m busy”. 1500 people died that night because no one would heed the warning. The Great Flood is an immense warning to the world; God means what He says and judgment is coming. Get in the ark! Give your life to Jesus and be saved. Don’t ignore the warning!

The Great Flood: Its Effects - Chs. 8-9

One of the aspects of the flood we seldom think about is the tremendous effect it had upon the world. Water is a tremendously powerful force as floods demonstrate even today. I lived through one when I was 16. Twelve inches of rain in 2 days caused the small stream that ran beside our house to rise 17 feet and become a raging river. It engulfed our 3-story house on its edge halfway up but entirely destroyed the ranch house on the other side of it, going over its roof. It is a very naive view of Noah's flood to think that God just quietly rained the earth full of water and quietly dried it up again. Tremendous quantities of water unleashed in a brief time would create huge currents and waves and erosion. Add to that the presence of strong winds, volcanic action, subterranean shifts and you begin to realize that the entire world was subjected to tremendous hydrologic and geologic forces that changed it forever. Peter says, ...the world existing at that time was destroyed when it was deluged with water. - 2 Pet. 3:6 NET. The Greek word means completely or fully destroyed. That means more than just the people and the animals on it. Let's look briefly at:

I. The Effects Of The Flood On The Earth Itself The vast quantity of water:

1. it radically altered the earth's surface Look with me at Ps. 104:6-9. That's a poetic description of the effects of Noah's flood:

a. it reshaped the continents into their present position, rapidly uplifting mountain ranges and creating deep ocean beds As I mentioned to you earlier, scientists believe that there was originally only one huge continent of land on the earth surrounded by water and Genesis 1 seems to confirm that idea. The releasing of tremendous amounts of underground water under pressure triggered vast movements in the tectonic plates which cover earth's surface, spreading the continents apart. Some areas where plates collided were rather suddenly raised up into high mountains like the Himalayas and others where they spread apart were just as rapidly depressed into deep ocean beds like the Atlantic. Scientists looking at continental shift think in terms of millions of years, yet tremendous catastrophic events can happen in just a short time. Many of you remember the eruption of Mt. St. Helens in Washington state in 1980. This is what it looked like before. This is what it looked like afterward. That happened in a couple days' time from one eruption. Can you imagine the force of hundreds, maybe thousands of underwater eruptions like this as ...the fountains of the great deep burst forth and lava and water and steam burst forth into the oceans? The flood is what gave the earth its present form. Second:

b. it formed worldwide sedimentary layers of rock strata That 3-day flood in 1972 left a full inch and more of mud over the entire inside of our house. Water, especially violently moving water, erodes soil and rock and picks it up and carries it until eventually the water is stilled and it settles out. The flood carried huge quantities of eroded surface materials which eventually settled out and formed sedimentary rock layers on the surface. Scientists tell us that: About three fourths, perhaps more, of the land area of the earth, 55 million square miles, has sedimentary rock as the bedrock at the surface or directly under the cover of mantle rock... The thickness ...ranges from a few feet to 40,000 ft. at any one place... The vast bulk of the stratified rocks is composed of shallow water deposits. (Genesis Flood, p. 270). Layer upon layer of sediment was laid down over the entire earth and formed into rock. You can see this clearly in places like the Grand Canyon where you have a cut-away view, but I shared last week, but the layers you see there extend all over the world. At the same time, the flood:

c. it formed water-created features on land Huge volumes of water receded from the land and were moved and reconcentrated in the deepened ocean beds. This created huge temporary inland lakes. For instance, at one time there was a huge lake that once covered most of the entire state of Utah, known as Lake Bonneville. It still shows at least four distinct strand or shore lines, the highest being 1000 ft. above the level of Great Salt Lake, but it's gone today, drained into the ocean. The same is true for every major inland lake known today. And the draining of the waters in such a short time created huge land features such as the Grand Canyon, which was not cut by the Colorado River over millions of years, but was cut by receding flood waters in a matter of weeks or months, leaving a little stream at its bottom today! The Flood also:

d. it formed layers of fossils and coal deposits Many of the living creatures that were trapped in the waters were buried in the sediment which became rock and over time turned into the fossils we unearth today. Huge masses of vegetation from the earth's surface were swept underwater and buried under tons and tons of mud and silt and then carbonized through the heat generated by vast amounts of thrust and weight pressure. We've discovered that coal can be made from organic material in a lab in a matter of days. Earth's coal deposits were formed suddenly, not gradually over millions of years and they are the remains of the plant material of Noah's ancient world. And finally, the great Flood:

2. it radically altered earth's climate creating polar ice caps and an ice age of several hundred years in the upper northern and southern hemispheres This video will explain it briefly much better than I can:

<https://answersingenesis.org/environmental-science/ice-age/> Yes, as science say, there WAS an ice age, but if you noticed in the video, the ice sheath never got very far south. It covered Canada and touched the northern US and northern Europe but Asia was relatively exempt. Where the ark landed and civilization redeveloped in the Middle East was many thousands of miles south and east of where the temporary ice-cap grew and then receded to its present dimensions.

Do you understand why I'm sharing all these kinds of things with you? I want you to realize that Christians are not stupid for believing the Bible. Scientific observation does not contradict the Bible, but rather affirms it. It is the unjustifiable, almost universal, assumption of billions of years that we deny. God's Word holds the answers to the very facts that we observe in nature. You CAN trust it. So, let's go to the Scripture and look at:

II. The Effects Of The Flood On The Human Race in Gen. 8. We left Noah and his family busily feeding, watering and cleaning up after animals inside the ark, but eventually:

1. the Flood ended (1-5) God stopped the rain and also the underwater volcanic activity and release of water and:

a. the waters receded gradually over a period of 5 months until the ark bottomed out and came to rest somewhere on the mountains that came to be known as Ararat, which lie in the eastern portion of modern Turkey today. Of course, it took months after the waters receded before:

b. the ground dried out We won't read vs. (6-14) but there we have the whole story of Noah sending out a raven and then a dove which came back with a leaf the first time and didn't come back the second time so Noah figured the water was gone and he finally opened the upper covering of the ark and saw with his eyes that the ground was fully visible. But still they remained in the ark almost another 2 months until it was dried enough to walk and live on and then, at God's command:

c. Noah's family and the animals went forth to repopulate the earth (15-19) The purpose of the whole story is in v. 17 and it was not only meant for the animals; it was repeated to Noah's family in 9:1. They were all to be fruitful and multiply and fill the earth. God had preserved them all as a seed stock, to repopulate His world with living creatures and with human beings. Now after they left the ark:

2. God made a covenant with Noah and all living things Bible scholars call it the Noahic Covenant. A covenant is an unbreakable sacred vow between two parties and in this case God Himself made an unbreakable vow that still stands today.

a. He vowed never again to destroy all living things as long as earth remains (20-22) Notice that His determination arose as Noah worshipped Him and that God was so pleased with Noah's love and worship that He made this vow. Also notice in v. 21 that it began in God's heart first. It was a vow that He made in His own heart to Himself first. He said, "Never again will I do what I have done again!" But then He revealed His decision to Noah and his family as a covenant vow in 9:8-11. He says, "Count on it. I will never send another flood like this and destroy all living things! You don't have to live in fear that this will happen again, that man will grow so evil that I will wipe you all out again. I, who cannot lie, promise, I vow, that I will not do it - at least until I am ready to melt the earth itself and make a new heaven and earth!" But if you go back to 8:21 you have:

b. His explanation of WHY: The evil that man does is not mere external acts. He's born that way! Sin is in the human heart! It cannot be gotten rid of by removing all the evil people and starting over with new ones. It can only be remedied by sacrifice, as Noah is offering. And that points to the ultimate Sacrifice of His own Son, the Lord Jesus, on the cross! You see, in one sense the whole history of man degenerating into continual evil and then being judged by a flood and the race starting over is one huge object lesson for us. God killed off the evil ones and started over but the evil was in their hearts and humans were soon doing evil all over again! Man is NOT basically good! He ALWAYS sins! The only remedy for that is forgiveness and the transformation of his heart and that only comes through Jesus! Even God can't achieve a world full of human beings that love Him by outward improvements; He has to transform people's hearts one at a time and make them righteous. Well, in this covenant God gave some new provisions for man. For instance:

c. He now allowed man to eat animals as well as plants (9:1-4) Though before the flood humans were at least supposed to be vegetarian, now we are allowed to hunt or raise animals and kill them for food. I can be a hunter and kill and eat animals. I can go to McDonalds and eat a hamburger. I can go to a restaurant and eat a steak dinner. God Himself says it's all OK. Animals are not human. God gave them to us as a food source. However, God says to respect the life that was taken by not eating the blood which is His designated symbol of that life. Next:

d. He now instituted the concept of human government (5-6) Before the Flood, everyone did what they wanted, whatever they had power to get away with. Now God says, "Police your ranks! If someone kills another person intentionally, you, collectively, are responsible to administer justice and kill him!" Scofield says this is ...the institution, for the first time, of human government--the government of man by man. The highest function of government is the judicial taking of life. All other governmental powers are implied in that. And so, begins the foundation of all human government as it has been practiced in various ways down through history. Now why did God do this? He says God made man in His own image. So, when you murder a human being, you're in essence "killing" the image of God, directly rebelling against Him. This law is to keep human beings mindful of His existence and of His judgment on sin. But beyond that, I believe it was a Divine check that God put in place to prevent the human race from degenerating all the way into the deplorable level of sin that it was in before the flood all over again. Paul says in Romans 13 that rulers and governing authorities are God's servants; they serve His purpose of punishing evil and rewarding good. And it is that fear of earthly punishment that makes humans living together in a society possible. At any rate, God now repeats Himself. Again:

e. He commanded Noah and his sons to multiply and fill the earth (7) God wants a world filled with people. He always has, from the very beginning. Earth does not have a population problem. God put plenty of space and plenty of resources here to support many billions of people. Earth has a sin problem! It is human oppression and hatred and greed that causes whole populations to suffer! But some day, when Jesus returns, God will have His wish at last. Habakkuk said, ...the earth will be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the LORD as the waters cover the sea. - 2:14. In any event, after He makes His promise to Noah and all generations to follow in vs. 8-11:

f. He gave Noah a perpetual sign of the covenant: the rainbow (12-17) So when it is raining and the sun begins to come out and this beautiful arc of a giant rainbow appears briefly in the sky, it is a natural phenomenon God Himself has put in place for us. It is not that He might forget His promise and needs a reminder to remember. It is that WE need a reminder that He will not forget and every time we see one, we can be thankful that instead of being punished for our sins as the world was long ago, that God promised not to destroy us, but instead to give us eternal life through Jesus. Hallelujah! Well, in the remaining verses of Ch. 9 we have a brief record of:

3. Noah's life after the Flood First we read that:

a. his three sons repopulated the entire earth (18-19) Now that's a powerful statement. Everyone knows what DNA is, the genetic information contained in our human cells, and today everyone is busy getting their DNA tested to find out where their ancestors were from. But there is another kind of DNA those ordinary tests don't show called mitochondrial DNA; it is found in the mitochondria in the nucleus of our cells and, unlike regular DNA, it is passed down ONLY by the mother, not the father. So, from studying mitochondrial DNA scientists are most recently positing the concept that all human beings seem to descend from some ancestral common mother whom they have dubbed "mitochondrial Eve". What a concept! But even more interesting than that is that it appears from worldwide sampling that underneath that common mother, all human beings belong to one of 3 basic mitochondrial DNA groupings. That is, all human beings in the entire world, no matter their appearance or race or gender, appear to have descended from one of 3 long-ago ancient mothers. I wonder who they might be? How about the three wives of Noah's sons from whom the Bible says the whole of the human race descended? <http://www.icr.org/article/new-dna-study-confirms-noah/> Read about it online. Now alas, even poor Noah who was a righteous man and walked with God:

b. he fell into drunkenness on one occasion (20-21) The Bible never says "Don't drink alcohol" but everywhere from Genesis to Revelation it warns against getting drunk and often shows the awful trouble people get into when they do. Even Noah fell victim to this temptation and here's what happened (22-27). His son Ham saw him lying naked in his tent and dishonored him by talking to his two brothers about it disrespectfully instead of covering him. So, when he was sober:

c. he uttered a prophetic curse and blessing on his descendants It's extremely difficult to make sense of why or how this relates to the incident, but remember this is Moses writing many years afterward and the significance of the words is that Noah through the Spirit was acting as a prophet and telling what would happen to his descendants. The godly line of Noah would be continued through Shem and Japheth's descendants would be blessed through him. But Ham's son Canaan would be the ancestor of the Canaanites who would descend into great evil and be partially destroyed and enslaved by Israel hundreds of years later in Moses' day. Noah's words came true and eventually:

d. he died at 950 years old (28-29) In those remaining 350 years Noah is never mentioned but he lived through the Tower of Babel incident and the dividing of the nations mentioned in chs. 10-11 and only died about the time Abraham was born!

Now let me close by sharing this. Have you ever wondered how Moses could write the account of creation, the Fall and the Flood in such detail? Well think about this. [CHART] Adam lived 930 years which means he lived to know Methuselah, Noah's grandfather and Lamech, Noah's father. Adam only died 56 years before Noah was born, so the knowledge of creation and the fall and the whole first millennium of human history was directly passed by Adam to Noah's father, and so almost directly to Noah. Noah lived until the time of Abraham's birth so firsthand knowledge of the events of Gen. 1-11 was not merely a distant memory retold from generation to generation; it was carefully passed down directly through only 3 lives in the first 2000 years of human history and that is only about 500 years before Moses wrote it down. So, the events we're studying, creation, fall, flood and Babel are real! They're not myths; they're not legends. They happened!

Knowledge of them was passed down from firsthand sources and we hold an accurate record of them preserved by the Holy Spirit in our very hands!

The Creation Of The Nations - Chs. 10-11

Genesis 1-11 is the introduction to the entire Bible. It sets the stage for the age-long story of God's redemption of the human race that begins with His calling of Abraham in Genesis 12 and continues all the way through Revelation 22. But before Moses can begin the story, he has to explain how the barren world of Noah's later life was transformed into the world that Abraham was born into and, by extension, the world as we know it. Chapters 10-11 of Genesis explain how the human race after the flood went from being one small family of eight people to being 7.6 billion individuals in some 16,000 people groups, speaking some 6500 different languages and living in every habitable place on the planet. Or to put it in a simple phrase, they explain how God created the nations. But before we look there, I want you to turn with me to Acts 17:26-27 where Paul gives us a two verse:

I. The Summary Of The Creation Of The Nations From one man, Adam and over again later from Noah, from one family and one line, God made the infinite variety of peoples that we find today. So, first of all:

1. God multiplied the human race exponentially. The population of living things does not grow in an even linear fashion. It is affected greatly by how long people live and how many children each family has. If each couple on earth had only 2 children, there would be no population growth. But since the population of the world in the last 2000 years has increased by more than 7 billion and has increased by 1.5 billion in the last 18 years it is obvious that the families of earth have and are averaging far more than 2 children. Population grows exponentially. For example, 2 people having 2 children repeated for 10 generations does not result in 20 people ($2+2+2\dots$); it results in 1024 people ($2 \times 2 \times 2 \dots$ or 2^{10}). This graph [SLIDE] shows the growth of world population in the last 2000 years. See how rapidly the growth increases as the number grows! The Bible tells us that there were 1656 years from Adam to the flood, but people lived 800-900 years, had children beginning at 100 years and had lots of them! Assuming a life span of only 500 years and an average of 6 children, by the time of the flood, there could easily have been over 200 million people on earth to die in the flood and that figure may be low. There is no problem at all with Cain, Adam's son taking a wife, building a city, or being afraid of avengers! But God started the process all over again with Noah. At the tower of Babel about a hundred years or so after the Flood there must have been at least 70 families because there are 70 nations mentioned in Gen. 10 as having descended from Noah. In 3 or 4 generations after the Flood the population probably grew from 8 to at least 800-1000 people total. By Abraham's time about 300 years later still, earth's population at the same rate could easily have grown to over 3 million people, plenty enough to have nations and civilizations established as they seem to have been from the Biblical record. However, rather than leaving the human race to multiply as one homogeneous unit, God divided it into a plethora of nations, and by that I don't mean political nations, but rather peoples, extended families of human beings that share the same ancestors, language and culture, but are distinct from other groups. From one family God made thousands of separate smaller families who were very different from one another and then:

2. God dispersed those peoples to specific places over the whole earth God had a plan for each of those groups, where they were to live and the time frame of their history. Some of them died out or were exterminated and became extinct; there are no more Hittites and no more Philistines. Yet others not only continued but branched and divided further over time. And they migrated away from one another until they covered the earth. Now why did God do this? V. 27 tells us that:

3. God did this in order to draw those peoples to know and worship Him It was His plan to keep the human race from becoming one united wicked mass, even worse than it was before the flood. It was a divide and conquer strategy. He would create a people of His own, first Israel and now the Church, and use His one people to take the knowledge of Him to all the peoples of the earth, one by one, until He has worshippers in all of them. Jesus made that clear in the Great Commission and we are still carrying it out today. The events of Gen. 10-11 are the first step in God's plan to save a remnant of the human race from the evil that lies within them. So now let's begin in Gen. 11 and look at how:

II. God Divided The Human Race in 11:1-9. After they got off the Ark:

1. Noah's family multiplied for 4 generations and about 100 years Look at 10:25. It was in the lifetime of Peleg, Noah's great-great-great grandson, that God divided the peoples of the earth and if you add up the ages at which each generation had their first child in 11:10-16, you can calculate that Peleg was born about 100 years after the Flood. Now during that first hundred years:

2. they remained a united group and journeyed eastward (1-2) As Shem, Ham and Japheth had children and grandchildren, they remained one extended family and they stayed together as a group. Naturally they only spoke one language, the language that Noah and the whole world before him back to Adam had always spoken. From the mountains of Ararat in eastern Turkey they began to migrate south to a warmer climate and eastward until eventually:

3. they built a city and tower on the plain of Shinar which is another name for Babylonia (3-4) 1000 people would make a good-sized town or small city and, not understanding that the world would very soon have millions of people as they kept multiplying, they wanted their situation to remain the same permanently. So, they decided to build a lasting city with bricks and mortar and to build a tower that reached far up into the sky. Now we learn in Ch. 10 that:

a. this was the work of a tyrant called Nimrod (10:8-12) Mighty one means a powerful man, a warrior. He was not only a mighty hunter of animals, but a mighty warrior in battle. Vs. 10 says that he was building himself a kingdom, that is, he was powerfully ruling over the people. This whole idea of staying in one place and having a permanent city was his idea, so that he could rule as king. And in the midst of it he led them to build a tower, the highest structure ever built at that time. It was likely not just a plain tower, but what we now call a ziggurat, a massive stone or brick structure that became common in Mesopotamia. [SLIDE] This is the Great Ziggurat of Ur which was close by and dates back to shortly after this time. It was 210 feet long, 148 ft. wide and over 98 feet high (that's about twice as high as our steeple). Saddam Hussein had the lower portions of it rebuilt but the top is missing [SLIDE] as you can see in this drawing. Ziggurats often had a shrine on the top for the worship of the gods. Wikipedia says, The Mesopotamian ziggurats were not places for public worship or ceremonies. They were believed to be dwelling places for the gods and each city had its own patron god. So, it is likely that this tower was the beginning of idolatrous worship, but in any event, we know from the text that:

b. this was an act of rebellion against God God had commanded Noah and his sons to fill the earth, but Nimrod and his people didn't want to be "scattered". They wanted to make a central monument so that all the race as it grew would stay centered in this location and under his dominion. Well:

4. God was not pleased (5-6) He realized that they would only become more powerful and rebel further and commit more and more acts of rebellion as their combined strength grew. So, He determined to disperse them, but He did it in a very ingenious fashion:

5. He did it by miraculously imposing differing languages on them (7-8) They were all one big extended family. But suddenly no individual family could understand the other's speech and this became so frustrating to them that they began to separate from one another. So, contrary to evolutionary thinking:

a. major language groups did not evolve from each other While there are families of languages which appear to have evolved from common roots over time, the major language groups on earth bear no phonetic resemblance to one another. If languages evolved over a million years you would expect to be able to find traceable roots among all languages, but that is not the case. Just look at the difference between English and Hebrew or Arabic or Chinese. How did it happen that people in different parts of the world adopted entirely different sounds for the very same things which were familiar to them and their ancestors from time immemorial? It doesn't make sense unless languages were forcibly and suddenly changed as the Bible says they were. And that sudden change was unbelievably effective:

b. the division of language caused groups to migrate to other areas (9) God scattered the people from the area of Babylon over the face of the earth. These families migrated and, as they reproduced, migrated some more, each keeping their little family/language group fairly intact. Some went south, some east, some north. If you look at a map, you'll notice that the major continents of the world all connect right there in the Middle East! But how did man and the animals get to the Western Hemisphere? How were there Indians here before the Vikings and Columbus? Almost everyone now feels that at one time there was a major land bridge across the Bering Strait from Siberia to Alaska and with the lowered ocean levels after the flood this may very well have been the time as the glacial period was ending in northern reaches that men and animals crossed that land bridge before it was submerged beneath the rising oceans. This migration need not have taken long centuries; consider the fact that it was only 500 years ago that Columbus set foot in the Americas and look at the European descended population in them and the extent to which it spread. It actually took only a couple hundred years for white men to explore and colonize and fill two entire continents separated from them by a vast ocean! Now backing up to Ch. 10 we have the record of how:

III. God Dispersed The Human Race This marvelous chapter is known as the Table of Nations (1). These two chapters are the toledoth, the account of what happened to Noah's sons. We won't take time to read it but

1. God multiplied and divided Noah's descendants into 70 nations, 70 extended families or people groups descended from the 3 sons of Noah. The names in this chapter are not names of individuals, but names of peoples and they correspond to early place names that are recognizable. [SLIDE] First you have:

a. the Japhetic peoples in vs. (2-5) [in green] which include Europeans, the West and the islands The names on this list correspond to modern place names like Germany, Spain, Italy, Thrace, Greece, Russia, and Media. Japheth and the families descended from him seem to have traveled north and broken off from each other along the way. These peoples eventually colonized the Western Hemisphere and many of the islands of the world. Second, you have:

b. the Hamitic peoples in vs. (6-20) [in orange] which include Canaanites, Africans and Asians The names on this list correspond to names like Egypt, Libya, Ethiopia, the Philistines, Canaanites, Assyrians, Babylonians. This family seems to have dispersed west, south and east and become the basis for populating Africa and Asia as well as portions who remained close to their origin in the Middle East. Of particular notice is the origin of the 7 nations of Canaan whom the Israelites eventually conquered. Lastly you have:

c. the Semitic peoples in vs. (21-31) [in purple] which include Jews, Arabs, Persians and Syrians. They are all related, all descended from Shem. These peoples stayed very near the place of their dispersion, in Mesopotamia. All the peoples on earth can be traced back to one of these family groupings found mentioned here.

OK, that accounts for language and geographic location but how did human beings come to actually look so different from one group to another? The answer is that as the groups were separated, over time:

2. God diversified people physically into different racial groups and He did it in two ways. First of all, He did it:

a. through genetic combination Rather than explain it verbally, let's watch this:

<https://answersingenesis.org/kids/videos/evolution/origin-races/>

So, the entire range of physical characteristics, including skin color, which humans display all comes from different combinations of genes from their parents. Now when a small group of people continually marry within themselves and exclude others who are different, the same characteristics will tend to occur much, much more frequently than in the general population. For example, we have developed and preserved hundreds of breeds of domestic dogs through selective breeding which are vastly different from each other. Yet if they are allowed to mix freely in the wild with other dogs, within a few generations their offspring end up being the same kind of generic mongrel! The same happens when people groups intermarry freely. Two Japanese may marry and have a Japanese-looking child but if that child marries a Caucasian, their child will probably be a combination and then if that child marries an Arab - you get the idea. The so-called races are preserved by isolating genetic material in a particular group of people. After the languages were confounded at Babel and families could no longer understand each other, they began to marry only within their family line/language group. Then God enhanced that genetic isolation:

b. through geographic isolation As they became more and more isolated from each other geographically and found no one outside their own family to intermarry with, each group tended to repeat its own characteristics more and more until over a few generations whole groups of human beings developed which looked vastly different from each other. Groups that eventually began to intermarry soon began to amalgamate into one group and become physically indistinguishable but groups that chose to stay apart tended to keep the genes of their ancestors dominant. So, distance and geography played a great role in keeping certain gene combinations from intermingling and thus the appearance of entire races of people was preserved and, considering the rapid rate at which the human race reproduces, it did not take many generations for this process to happen.

Now in the remainder of Chapter 11, we're told how:

IV. God Prepared To Create His Own Nation (Israel) Through Abraham Let me just briefly mention that in 11:10-26 we have:

1. the genealogy of Abraham and if you add up the ages at which each son had their first child, you'll find that Abraham was born about 350 years after the Flood roughly about 2000 BC. [SLIDE] This chart actually shows that Shem and the next 3 generations after him all lived during Abraham's life, so were probably there in Ur in Mesopotamia with him, well known as elders and probably were the source of his faith! Then in 11:27-32 we're told of:

2. Abraham's migration from Ur to the land of Canaan and of his childlessness, which introduces and sets the stage for the story of the life of Abraham that occupies the next 14 chapters.

And the first thing God says to Abraham in Ch. 12 is, "I'll make of you a great nation of My own and cause all peoples to be blessed or cursed as they interact with your people and eventually through you, I will bless all the peoples on earth!" And thus begins the story of Redemption, the story of the salvation of the world through faith in the One True God and eventually through faith in His Son Jesus, the story that IS the remainder of our Bible. You see, God did all this for Redemption: Creation, Fall, Flood, Babel and the Creation of Nations were all His plan so that millions from every people would be redeemed and transformed and eventually occupy new heavens and a new earth filled with righteousness together with Him forever!

 - 3. Jacob called on God to do for Joseph's children what He did for him (13-16) shepherd = provision; delivered = redemption, protection
 - 4. Jacob prophetically recognized God's purpose for the boys rather than Joseph's (17-20)
 - 5. Jacob reassured Joseph and the boys that Israel would go back to Canaan (21)
- II. Jacob Blesses His Own Sons - Ch. 49 i.e. he prophesies their future (1-2)
 - 1. Reuben's sin would catch up with him (3-4)
 - 2. Simeon and Levi's character would cause their descendants to be dispersed (5-7)
 - 3. Judah would produce the line of kings and ultimately the Christ (8-12)
 - 4. Joseph would be extremely fruitful (22-26)
 - 5. Jacob's last act was to instruct that his burial would be in Canaan, not Egypt, in recognition of God's promise (29-33)
- III. The End Of Joseph's Life (Ch. 50)
 - 1. he buried his father in the land of Canaan (1-14)
 - 2. his brothers reacted in fear (15-18)
 - a. the fear that Joseph's forgiveness wasn't real continually haunted them
 - b. Joseph reassured them and expressed his understanding of God's plan (19-21)
 - 3. he died after 80 years in Egypt, refusing burial there, identifying with God's people and promise (22-26)

One Man's Story: The Life Of Jacob – Genesis 25-49

His Programming In Childhood Gen. 25-28

We're going to take a look at one man's story, a very ordinary man who became extraordinary: Jacob, the supplanter, who became Israel, the prince of God. It's the story of a life that was changed or more properly exchanged for a different kind of life. Though it is one man's story, the key components of it are every man's story and that is especially true of the portion we'll talk about today: His Childhood. Every one of us is programmed in childhood. We're programmed to think in certain ways, to believe certain truths about life, truth, ourselves, and God. And that programming affects our whole lives, whether it's good or bad, much of the time without us even realizing it. Programming in childhood can produce a Hitler or a Mother Theresa and everything in between the two. You too, were programmed. How was it done? It was done in the daily experiences you had as a child. Some was done by key, life-affecting experiences like a death or a tragedy of some sort. But much of it was simply the accumulated effect of the repetition of hundreds of daily smaller occurrences: mistreatment, being the tallest kid in the class, the way you got attention and so on. And together all of them programmed you to live a certain way. Now, of course, God could not record all the daily experiences of Jacob's childhood for us but through the wisdom of the Holy Spirit we do have:

I. The Key Experiences Recorded For Us And I'm going to summarize them for you briefly:

1. his birth and naming (25:19-24) Jacob's mother couldn't have children so his father Isaac prayed about it and got a two-for-one deal: twins. Esau was delivered first and Jacob came out with his hand clutching the heel of Esau's foot which is how he got his name Jacob = "heel-grabber" It is often translated to mean "supplanter" i.e., somebody who tries to pull the other person back and take their place, who tries to get ahead of others. The name itself became prophetic for the way he learned to live. Next, we have:

2. a summary of his youth (25:27-28) - These verses are very profound. As they grew up Esau's focus was a particular skill: hunting wild game and he spent much of his time away from home, living out in the field, camping from place to place. Jacob on the other hand stayed at home, he lived in the tents with his family and took care of the flocks, tended crops, etc. It says he was a quiet man = "blameless" That Heb. word occurs 13 times in the Old Testament, 9 of them it is translated in the KJV "perfect" or NIV blameless, once "upright" and twice "undefiled". This is the only place anybody wants to translate it "quiet"! It's the word God used over and over to describe Job, blameless and upright! He was the perfect son, the good boy, the one who never got in trouble, who stayed home and helped out and all that! He was "Mr. Perfect" in his behavior but as we soon see, what was inside him was not so perfect. The first key event we're told of is:

3. the purchase of Esau's birthright (25:29-34) You see, even though they were born at the same time, you can't have two firstborns so the one delivered first got that honor. It meant that upon the death of his father he would become the family or clan leader and he would receive a double portion of his father's property. This never mattered much to Esau but it must have really bothered Jacob. So, one day Esau came in from an evidently unsuccessful hunting trip exhausted and starving and begging for a bowl of stew Jacob was cooking. Jacob saw his opportunity struck a legal "deal" to exchange the birthright which Esau could have cared less about for a bowl of stew! He grabbed that heel and pulled himself up in line! Then we read of:

4. the family's sojourn in Gerar (Ch. 26) There was one period when for a long time there was a famine. The crops wouldn't grow and the stock had nothing to eat and the family had to move. They moved their tents west down out of the hill country onto the coastal plain near Gerar, Philistine territory. And Jacob's father Isaac was scared the Philistines would want his wife so he lied and said she was his sister and for a long time Jacob watched him play out this lie until one day he got caught and the situation actually worked out very well. Finally, they moved back to the hill country near Beersheba and in the last days of his father's life we have the story of:

5. the stealing of his father's blessing (Ch. 27) As the time of his death drew near, the father of the family would place a special blessing on the head of his firstborn son invoking the blessing of God upon him and his future. Well, you know the story of how Rebekah and Jacob tricked Isaac into blessing Jacob instead by dressing him up in Esau's clothes and making him stew while Esau was out hunting. Again, he grabbed the heel and pulled himself ahead. And that was the straw that broke the camel's back. Esau was so angry he switched to wanting to hunt Jacob. Mother Rebekah knew she had to get them apart so she got Isaac to send him off to her home in Syria to procure a wife and stay awhile. And it was on this journey that we read of:

6. his meeting with God at Bethel (Ch. 28) which we'll talk about last. But having summarized them, let's talk about:

II. The Profound Life Lessons He Absorbed From These Experiences Let me start off by telling you that every human being has the same 2 basic core needs: security and significance and the bottom line is that he or she will find a way to get them met. Let's look at Jacob as an example:

1. he never experienced true security = awareness of unconditional love and acceptance i.e. I am safe Jacob never got that from his parents. Instead:

a. he experienced rejection through favoritism (25:28) All his life he learned: Daddy loves brother, Mommy loves me. And look at the reason why. The Heb. says Isaac loved Esau "because game was in his mouth!" He loved what Esau became and what Esau did for him or maybe to turn it around Esau learned well what Dad liked and did it to gain his favor. It became a bond between them. And so, Jacob:

b. he learned he could never please his father He couldn't be what Esau was. It was just not him. He didn't have Esau's skill or personality. To Dad he would always be second rate; he could never measure up to the standard no matter how hard he tried. He would never be completely secure with dad and feel accepted and totally safe because Esau stood in between. Maybe you know what I'm talking about! Maybe you've been the neglected child. But on the other hand:

c. he learned he could always take refuge in his mother She loved him and he stuck around. He stayed near the tents and became everything she wanted him to be, such a good well-behaved little boy. He could always go to her because she liked him best. When Esau gave him a problem he could win if he could get to Mom first. And he found that she would side with him against dad too. Maybe you've been there too! What did he really learn?

d. he learned to gain acceptance by performance i.e., people accept you based on how well you perform, what you do! And you make security by finding someone you can please and pleasing them! PBA - performance-based acceptance. Mom and Dad accept me if I stay out of trouble, if I don't bother them, if I get good grades, if...if...if... So, I've got to watch myself and perform right or I'll lose my acceptance! They won't want me if I don't do good so I keep on doing good so they want me! And, friend, most of the human race is on that treadmill right there whether their parents played favorites or not. The experiences of life programmed them that people like you if you do what they want. You're good if you behave and you're bad if you don't behave. Let me tell you: that will shape your life in a hurry! You'll live with insecurity!

But there is a second basic need every human being has and will find a way to get met and that is significance. Look at Jacob:

2. he never experienced true significance = awareness of intrinsic worth and value i.e. I matter, I'm important, I'm valuable just because I'm here and I'm me. I'm worth something. In Jacob's eyes Esau was the one with significance. It was being the firstborn that seemed to matter. He was the one who got everything who became the leader, who everybody looked to and so:

a. he sought to acquire Esau's position For a long time, I'm sure, Jacob coveted that birthright. He saw what it meant. Esau could have cared less. But Jacob wanted to be what Esau was, to matter like he did and one day he saw his chance. You see:

b. he learned to take advantage of Esau's weaknesses That's what weaker people learn to do, to look for weaknesses that they can exploit in other people! And Esau was rather shallow. You can tell that from the story. He comes in from the field famished but he's still walking! But in front of him is that red stew Jacob's cooking that he likes so well and he says "Gimme some". My kids would have put out a hand and said "Gimme five bucks!" Then the other one would have said "No way, I'll make my own and gone to the fridge and got out the stuff and made his own bowl of soup. But Jacob was different. He said "Sell me your birthright" When dad dies, I get to be chief and I get 2/3 and you get 1/3. And Esau thinks "Big deal, dad's not going to die for a long time and besides, I'm gonna die if I have to wait and make my own and then what good will it do me?" Now that's not true, is it? It's just how he feels! The truth is in v. 34 "Esau despised his birthright" i.e., he didn't see any value or worth in it; it was only worth a bowl of stew to him. Heb. 12:16 holds a good warning See that no one is ... godless like Esau, who for a single meal sold his inheritance rights as the oldest son. I tell you what, there are a lot of God's children who have never seen the true value of who they are in Christ and have instead settled for some earthly bowl of stew like how much money they can make or how nice a house they can get or what car they drive or what kind of job they have. But the point is that Jacob found a way to make himself significant by taking advantage of weakness in others! Then add to that this:

c. he learned from his father to practice deceit for protection For long months he watched his father lie and pretend that he wasn't married to his mother while he was in Gerar just to save his neck. Never mind that that placed Rebekah in danger and jeopardy. The lesson: it's OK to lie if you have to for protect yourself and save your neck. Look out for #1; that keeps you significant! And he got the same message another way:

d. he learned from his mother to practice deceit for acquisition She wanted him to have Isaac's blessing so she told him to deceive his father, to lie and pretend. He objected, but I'll get caught and he'll curse me instead! But she pushed him into deceit. Lesson: it's OK to lie and cheat to get what you want, to get ahead of somebody else! And then when he was found out:

e. he learned to cover problems by deceit instead of dealing in truth Instead of confessing his sin to his father and begging forgiveness of him and Esau, Mother came up with another route of protection. Just cover up the problem. Send him away to Syria for a noble purpose, to get a wife who isn't one of these local pagan girls but who's a believer in God like us, one of our family! Lesson: don't tell the truth; cover up your problems. You see the real lesson is:

f. he learned to gain significance by power The guy who matters is the guy at the top, the guy in charge, the guy who controls the situation and sometimes you have to do whatever it takes to be that guy if you really want to be significant. Oh my friend, how many people are living like that right now because they were programmed that way when they were kids. They learned to make it, to succeed in life, to be something in life by grabbing a heel whenever they could get one!

The Point: He Learned To Get His Needs Met By His Own Resources! That's what happens. If you don't find your security and significance first communicated by your parents in the way they accept and value you just because they love you and cause you're their child, then as you grow up, you're going to find it somehow and your life is going to show it. Now let's look at how this programming affected:

II. The Kind Of Faith Jacob Developed - 28:10-22 After all, Jacob did not come from an unbelieving home. His father and mother worshipped God and he was taught that too. However, since Mom and Dad were busy getting their needs met out of their own resources instead of by God and he was learning that if you're ever going to make it in life you've got to get your own needs met, it colored his own faith in God. On the way to Syria, he stopped for the night to camp and laid his head on a rock (why, who knows) and had a dream where he saw the ladder or staircase going up to heaven and the Lord standing there and God spoke to him and what He gave Him was:

1. God's unconditional promise of grace (12-15) Notice that God promised or guaranteed him 2 things and there were no if's and's or but's. There was no, "if you, then I will..." These were things God appeared to promise him out of grace, no matter how he performed:

a. he was guaranteed a future i.e., significance (14) Jacob, your life is going to count. I am going to use it. I am going to build a whole nation out of you, just like I promised your grandfather. That nation will spread out far and wide and through them and thus through you, Jacob, I will touch every family on the earth with blessing! You have eternal value, infinite worth, tremendous significance, not because you can beat Esau, but because I will do it through you! And not only that:

b. he was guaranteed a present i.e., security (15) Jacob, right now I will be with you. You can't see what's out there on that road but I can and it doesn't matter where you go or what happens to you or how well you perform, I will be with you. I will never leave you. You are secure and safe not because you can get people to accept you or you are good enough at protecting yourself but through Me!

My friend in Jesus Christ we have been given both significance and security. He has made us of infinite worth and value and significance by adopting us fully as His children and guaranteed our future with Him and the eternal value of every day of our lives which will count for Him. And He has made us absolutely secure by placing Himself in us and joining Himself to us so that that promise "I will never leave you nor forsake you" is also true for us according to Heb. 13:5. We are so secure that nothing can separate us from the love of Christ and His father is greater than all so that no man can take us out of His hand! And best of all, we don't have to do anything to get it! Here Jacob, take it! Rest in it! But Jacob wasn't programmed to get it that way and so you have:

2. Jacob's conditional response of faith (16-22) The word if here actually means if! It is a conjunction of condition. Jacob doesn't know how to respond to anybody unconditionally so he responds to God like most of us do: God, if you will....I will.... You see:

a. he expected God to prove Himself faithful by giving him the circumstances he wanted. If God would give him food and clothing and shelter and protection from robbers then he could trust Him! So many of us have that problem in coming to God. We have learned that we can't trust anybody completely without performing so we expect God to perform for us. It is security by performance and when it looks like He's taking care of us, we believe and when it doesn't, we doubt and blame Him! Why, because we were programmed to! And notice this:

b. he expected God to approve his plans He didn't ask God where he should go and to direct his paths. He knew where he was going and where he wanted to end up, safely back home with Mom and Dad. If God would control and bend the circumstances to suit his plan then he would trust him. Isn't that how so many of us come to God?

This is significance by power and when it looks like God isn't powerful enough to do what we want we doubt.

Why? Because we were programmed to. We get significance our own way and if He helps us, we like Him.

And then notice the rest: Then You will be My God and I'll worship you on this spot and I'll tithe when I get back! If You give me significance and security in my terms, the way I want it, the way I've been programmed to see it, then I'll believe in You Lord! And maybe I'll do something for you and even give something to you. Do you know, God did His part and He's still waiting for Jacob to pay up! He never did! He couldn't accept grace. He couldn't throw himself unconditionally upon the Lord to be everything for him. Why not?

Let me tell you a story. At a 1994 Promise Keepers' conference in Denton, Texas, pastor James Ryle told his own story: When he was 2 years old, his father was sent to prison. When he was 7, authorities placed him in an orphanage. At 19, he had a car wreck that killed a friend. He sold drugs to raise money for his legal fee, and the law caught up to him. He was arrested, charged with a felony, and sent to prison. While in prison James accepted Christ, and after he had served his time, he eventually went into the ministry. Years later he sought out his father to reconcile with him, and when they got together, the conversation turned to prison life. James's father asked, "Which prison were you in?" James told him, and his father was taken aback. "I helped build that prison," he said. He had been a welder who went from place to place building penitentiaries. Pastor Ryle concluded, "I was in the prison my father built." My friends, Jacob was in the prison his father built! His father and mother and the experiences of his childhood programmed him to believe that he must meet his own needs; that God was not enough to do it. Some of us today are still in the prison that our father built or our mother built or the experiences of our growing up built for us. And now Jesus has come to us and given us freely both security and significance which are found in him, but we can't see it. We're still looking for it the way we were taught through more performance and more power. Dear friend, let me just tell you, if you're in that prison today, Jesus will set you free. He's got the keys! Just ask Him!

One Man's Story: The Life Of Jacob

His Experience With God Gen. 31-33

When we pick up the story of Jacob in Gen. 31, he has spent 20 years in the land of Syria living according to his flesh, i.e., handling life in the patterns he had learned apart from God. His family is large and complete and he has amassed a great deal of wealth for himself in the last 6 years of working for Laban. But he's growing older now and he wants to go home. Let's quickly summarize:

I. The Key Experiences Recorded For Us

1. Jacob's flight from Syria (31:1-21) Laban's attitude toward Jacob has changed and there is jealousy there. Jacob is actually somewhat afraid of him because he knows the kind of man he is down underneath and he decides to steal away secretly before Laban can find out and stop him by force. But it doesn't work and we have:

2. Jacob's encounter with Laban (31:22-55) Laban finds out Jacob has fled and sets out to catch him with all his men and he does. But the night before God warns him in a dream not to harm Jacob so they part instead with an uneasy truce at Mizpah and Jacob approaches Canaan. He sends word ahead to his brother Esau who lives down south in Edom to prepare the way. Esau sets out to meet him with 400 men and he is scared. But as he is still on the far side of Jordan by the River Jabbok, God meets him.

3. Jacob's encounter with God (Ch. 32) This is the famous wrestling match where Jesus himself meets Jacob in human form and wrestles him all night. Jacob loses but receives a blessing. His name is changed from Jacob the supplanter to Israel, the prince of God and the next day we have.

4. Jacob's encounter with Esau (Ch. 33) Jacob had sent all kinds of presents ahead to appease Esau but when he sees him, a miracle has occurred and Esau hugs him and the two are reunited.

This is a crucial period in Jacob's life. He's been living in the flesh for years but he's been paying the price of it and now it is time for God to do a work in his life and teach him to live a brand new way. That's what God wants to do in all of us. Let's go to the New Testament for a moment and look at:

II. God's Design: To Change Us From Trust In Self To Trust In Him - Phil. 3:3-11 You see, as I've said in previous messages, we all come into the world without God and have no choice but to rely on whatever tools we have to get our needs met. We learn very early to find ways to milk significance and security out of those around us and our environment programs us with a whole bunch more so we develop what the Bible calls our flesh, our old way of life. Ways of getting our needs met apart from Christ. And as we go on through life:

1. we develop confidence in our flesh and its abilities Look at what happened in Paul's life. He found his significance and security in his Jewishness. He was a real Hebrew born to Hebrew parents, circumcised properly on the eighth day with a genealogy and everything. When he grew up, he became, of course, a Pharisee, the epitome of Jewishness, zealously fulfilling the law in every minute point, the envy of all his Jewish peers, the hero of the Jews persecuting the church! All that stuff was part of Paul's flesh and he lived out of it in absolute confidence that it would continue to keep him secure and significant and that it would enable him to face anything that would come in life. That is until Jesus met him on the Damascus Road! Jacob was confident that either by performing or by deceiving he could face whatever life handed him. That was his flesh and he lived in it and had confidence in it. We are all like that and even after we are saved, we most of the time continue in it even if we Christianize our behavior a bit. But what God needs to do in our lives is this:

2. God needs to completely break us of confidence in the flesh Look where Paul was now in vs. 7. Everything he had thought was so great and so good about his life he now learned to count as loss. In fact, he says, I consider all those things rubbish, garbage, lit. sewage! Why? Those were the things that kept him from knowing Christ and experiencing the power of Christ in his life. So, God's design is that:

3. He needs to bring us to completely trust Him for everything What Paul is saying here doesn't just apply to salvation. Surely we've all learned that our salvation is all of Christ and there is nothing we can do to procure it. But the same is true of our Christian life. The righteous behavior that God wants to produce in my life comes not by keeping a set of rules and doing but by intimately knowing Christ and trusting Him moment by moment to produce His character and His behavior in our lives.

The term we use is brokenness. God needs to break us of living out of the flesh, of trusting in self to meet our needs in life so that we learn that He is the Source for everything. Now how does He break us? Usually by putting us in a situation we can't cope with on our own. For Paul it meant being knocked off his horse on the road and blinded and spoken to by a voice from heaven. For Jacob it was a wrestling match.

III. The Process God Used In Jacob's Life: Symbolized In A Wrestling Match You see, this wrestling match God had with Jacob was very real. It actually happened. Christ took the form of a human being and wrestled all night with Jacob and when Jacob was done, he knew that he had seen the face of God! However, the whole event is at the same time symbolic of everything that God was doing in Jacob's life. You see, for years:

1. God was wrestling him via circumstances to teach him to trust (32:24) All night he wrestled and all his life God had been wrestling him, struggling with him, trying to show him what a failure his own abilities, his own flesh was and how much he needed to trust in God. He does the same with us! He wrestles us in the circumstances of our lives to bring us to that same realization. How did He wrestle Jacob? In 2 ways:

a. by allowing his flesh to fail and consequences to catch up (31:23) Jacob was afraid of Laban and thought Laban would hurt him and take away his family and wealth so in his self-confidence he tried to sneak away and put distance between them. But God let it fail. Laban caught up to him and probably would have harmed him anyway. That's just one thing: God let his "get a wife" scheme fail and let him be deceived and end up with 2 wives. He let him get snookered and end up working for simple room and board for 14 years He let him fail to please his father-in-law and have his wages changed 10 times in 6 years. All those things were God saying, "Look up, boy, you need Me. You can't do it. Your flesh isn't going to make it!" But Jacob never got the lesson. And how many times has God let us fail, let our dream, our plan fall apart, let our way lead nowhere just to show us that we need Him! Then God wrestled him in a positive sense:

b. by giving glimpses of Himself and His all-sufficient power at the same time. God gave him continual reminders of His presence and power. Reminders:

a. like the stopping of Laban through a dream (31:24, 29) When Laban caught up, he told Jacob "It is in my power to harm you; I was thinking about harming you! But last night Almighty God told me in a dream that I better not so I won't!" God stepped in and rescued him when his scheme failed and he knew it. God was pointing to Himself, "Look up, boy, I'm here. It's me you need!" How many gracious things does God do in our lives to remind us of His power, that He is there and He can help. How many of our prayers does He graciously answer? How many provisions come to our doorstep just when we need them. All reminders that He is what we need! Reminders:

b. like the appearance of angels (32:1-2) Jacob had already seen angels in a vision at Bethel 20 years earlier when he left the land. Now he saw them again as he entered it. We don't know what they looked like but their appearance was a reassurance to him that the very forces of Almighty God were all about and he could depend on God's troops which far outnumbered his own measly band. But Jacob still didn't get it!

And so often we don't either. God may wrestle with us for years in our Christian life, through failures and blessings, just trying to break us of confidence in our flesh, of trusting in ourselves to live life. But look at this:

2. God finally crippled Jacob so he could not win (32:25) The Lord reached over and supernaturally touched Jacob's thigh as he wrestled to put it out of joint so he would be disabled, so there was no human way for him to win. And that's symbolizes the place God had brought him to in his life at that very moment. God had crippled him, had put him in a place from which he had no escape and with which he could not cope. How?

a. through placing his life in danger (32:6) Esau was coming out to meet him. That might have been OK but he was bringing 400 men! Why would you bring 400 men? Was it a welcoming committee? No, it was an army! Jacob sent a message seeking Esau's favor, telling him that he didn't want anything, didn't have need of anything but essentially his brother's forgiveness. But Esau didn't send one back saying "Welcome home brother!" When Lot was captured, Abraham gathered every servant he had, 318 of them, and went to rescue him in battle. Esau gathered every servant and friend he could find. Why? I believe he intended to make good his murderous threat toward Jacob. Jacob's life was in danger. He couldn't fight such an army. He couldn't stay alive by his wits. 20 years hadn't made Esau forget! And so, God:

b. through filling his heart with fear (32:7a, 11) He admits it. He was mortally afraid for his own life and afraid for his family, that Esau would destroy them all and he would not be able to protect them. And God dealt with him:

c. through removing his control over circumstances (32:7b-8) There was nothing he could do about it. That word distress means pressure, it means to be closed in, hemmed about, to have no place to go. Jacob couldn't escape. There was no way and no time to run. Nothing he could do mattered. His fate and his family and his life was completely out of his control.

And sometimes, my friend, if the regular wrestling God does with us doesn't work, that's where God have to put you and I in order to break our confidence in our flesh. In a place where we're in danger, where we're afraid and where we have no control, no power to change things. It could be a foxhole; it could be a hospital bed; it could be a divorce, a death, a bankruptcy. If God can't get your attention in the smaller things, He loves you too much to just let you go on in the flesh and sooner or later there'll be a big thing. God will send something into your life that your flesh can't handle, where your flesh is crippled and powerless to help you. But note this:

3. God crippled Jacob so he could only cling (32:26-30) By this time Jacob had an idea who he was wrestling with. All he had left that he could do since his leg couldn't help him was to wrap his arms around the man and cling and beg for the man to bless him! And Jesus said to him "Here's the greatest blessing I can give you. I'm changing your name. From here on out you're not going to be called Jacob, the "heel-grabber", the one who always gets ahead. You're going to be Israel, the "prince of God", the one that knows that God does the fighting! You're going to live a new way; you're going to learn to let Me fight your battles, to trust in Me and not yourself. Jacob is a failure in his flesh but Israel will succeed because he is My prince and I do his fighting for him!" And that symbolized what had happened in his life that very day:

a. he was finally reduced to prayer and trusting God (32:9-12) At long last, after 20 years of coping with life alone, Jacob had prayed and placed his trust in God when he saw there was no other way. At last, he says "I am unworthy, I am unable to rescue myself; You have given me everything I have, not me; You have a plan and promises for my life; I will not trust in me to save me from Esau; I will humbly ask You to save me!" And so:

b. he learned the lesson that the way to victory is clinging to God O that's where God wants to bring us, to a place, to an experience, where there is nothing left to do but cling to Him, where all human hope is gone, where all my ability and all my confidence is washed away and I know that in Jesus alone is all my hope and my strength and my victory. I need to learn with Paul that in my flesh dwells no good thing, that all the things about me that mean so much to me are but rubbish, worthless. Jesus is all that matters and to know Him and the power of His resurrection in my life is the only real way there is to live! That's why God wrestled Jacob. That's the lesson God was teaching Him and:

c. the lesson was reinforced by God's changing Esau (33:4, 10) When he finally turned from self and cast his all upon God, Esau instead of killing him ran up and kissed him! The anger was gone, drained away. Instead, there were favor and a welcome. I tell you, when God does things, He does them right! You can just hear the lesson: "Look, see what happens when you trust Me instead of yourself? Learn to live this way!" Now I wish I could report to you that Jacob did that, that from that moment on he always trusted God, always made his problems a matter of prayer, always looked to God for the answer instead of himself. I wish I could say that once God breaks us good, from that point on we will always trust Him. But I can't. Here's:

d. the catch: it was hard to give up the old ways (33:12-20) Jacob still didn't trust Esau and wanted to get away from him before he changed his mind. So, he went back to the flesh. He made up excuses. And he made a promise: you go ahead on home to Mt. Seir which was 90 or 100 miles due south and I'll come to you eventually. Then when Esau pulled out, he turned west and built pens for his livestock and a house in a place named Succoth. And eventually moved west across the Jordan into Canaan to Shechem and bought property there. He had no intentions of getting near Esau again. He planned to keep 100 miles between them. Back to the flesh, do you see it? He knew the answer was to trust God but he had a hard time letting go of the old way he'd learned to live, lying and solving things himself. So do we. And in essence we are faced with the same choice as Jacob every day:

4. the choice: Will I now live as a "heel-grabber" or as the "prince" I am? Will I today in this situation live out of my flesh, my abilities, my solutions, my ways? Will I be Jacob the "heel-grabber"? Or will I trust God instead to live and express His power through me and live out of the power of His spirit. Will I live as Israel, the prince of God that I truly am and let God fight my battles? You see, once we know the lesson, living it requires a commitment, a voluntary surrender! And that's what we'll see in Jacob's life next time.

But before I quit, let me encourage you to learn the lesson by listening; learn it by looking at in Jacob's life; learn it by looking at it in Paul's life and in the Scripture he wrote. Don't make God have to send you to a place like Peniel where he has to cripple you to teach you how much you need Him! A tourist in Scotland was driving along and saw a flock of sheep in a field. But one sheep was far away from the flock, limping along with a broken leg, bleating and crying. The tourist stopped and the shepherd came over. She asked what had happened to the lone sheep. With tears in his eyes the shepherd said "I had to break its leg. It always kept wandering away from the flock and I could not keep chasing it all the time. I find that when a sheep's leg is broken and I care for it and nurse it back to health, it always comes when I call." My friend, God loves you; you're His child. You're a prince and don't know it. And if you keep wandering off and doing your own thing, He loves you too much to let you go. He'll wrestle you and then He'll wrestle you some more. But if He has to, He may break your leg out of His love; He may put you flat on your back so there is nowhere to look but up and then nurse you back to health so you learn the lesson. But it's so much less painful to get it without that! Listen to Him today. You're a prince of God, not a heel-grabber. Jesus wants to be your strength, to fight all your battles, to be all you need. That's the way you were made to live. But you have to die to the old way; you have to die to self. Roy Brill's letterhead was, "Lord, help this proud and stiff-necked 'I', help me to bend the neck and die." Pray it!

One Man's Story: The Life Of Jacob

His Life In The Flesh Gen. 29-30

Now we follow Jacob into the first portion of his adult life. He's been sent to Syria to find his uncle's family and seek a wife. He's no longer at home by the tents with his parents; now he's on his own. But the not-so-amazing thing we discover is that even though he's left everything familiar behind, he's brought it all with him. For these 20 years or so of his adult life Jacob (to use a biblical phrase) lived according to the flesh. He went out and lived the way he'd been programmed to live and although he had a faith in God but it didn't play much of a part in his life. Let's begin by looking briefly at:

I. The Key Experiences Recorded For Us Even as he arrives near Haran, we have immediately:

1. Jacob's encounter with Rachel (29:1-14a) He meets her out by the well bringing the sheep. He gallantly moves the heavy rock from the well and waters her sheep and she takes him home to her father, his uncle Laban where he is well received. For a whole month he stays there as a guest helping out with the flocks before we have:

2. his engagement to Rachel (29:14b-20) Jacob in those 30 days has taken quite a shine to Rachel and decided that she was the object for which he'd been sent. Now in eastern culture marriages are arranged. The groom and the bride's father strike up an agreement of marriage. There is a payment involved, a dowry, a bride-price. But, funny thing, when Mom and Dad sent him on his journey to get a wife, they neglected to send any money! He was broke, penniless. He had no dowry to offer. So, he offered himself i.e., his service. He offered to work for 7 years without pay for her. This gives you some idea of the magnitude of the dowry that would have been expected. So, 7 years pass, but quickly because he is so much in love with her. But on his very wedding night we read of:

3. his deception by Laban (29:21-30) Rachel has a sister Leah and in the dark of that night Laban switches Leah for Rachel. How he pulled that off is to my thinking nothing short of miraculous. Jacob must have been drunk; Rachel must have been hog-tied and gagged somewhere and Leah must have deliberately pretended to be Rachel. Gee, does that sound familiar? Why would Laban do this? He saw a way to get 7 years more free labor so the following week Jacob actually got Rachel and then had to work 7 more years to pay off his debt for her. So now he had 2 wives, something he never planned on. And what resulted from that was:

4. the baby contest (29:30-30:24) It's like "Baby Wars". Leah has 4 sons in a row and Rachel can't get pregnant and she's angry so she figures out a plan: I'll give Jacob my maidservant Bilhah as his concubine and she can have children for me. (Wonder where she got that idea? Grandfather Abraham?). So now Jacob has essentially 3 wives and Bilhah has 2 sons. But Leah is not to be outdone. She herself can't seem to get pregnant any more but she has a maid too and so she gives Zilpah to Jacob and she has 2 more sons by him. That makes 8. Then Leah conceives again and has 2 more and finally, finally, #11, Rachel has a son whom she names Joseph. All in 7 years, do you believe it? Jealousy will drive people to great lengths. But at last, his servitude is over and he asks to leave but Laban doesn't want him to go. He knows a good thing so he offers to start paying Jacob now and we have:

5. his deception of Laban (30:25-43) Laban says "How's this? I get all the white sheep and goats born from now on and you get all the ones that are speckled or spotted or colored." Jacob agrees and says in his mind "I'll fix you!" and sets out to fool Laban. He comes up with this crazy scheme to peel sticks and stick them in the troughs in front of the flocks when they come to water so that as they mate, they will conceive striped and speckled offspring. Not very genetically sound but somehow it worked and he gathered huge wealth for himself.

And thus passes 20 years of his life before you know it. It was what the New Testament would call:

II. Life In The Flesh - Eph. 2:1-3 and I'd like to take a detour to Ephesians for a moment and look at what the Scripture has to say about it. The NIV sinful nature is a not-so-good translation of the Greek word sarx which means flesh. The flesh is something that every human being has which affects his life. It is obviously not just the physical flesh or meat that we call our boy. What is it?

1. what flesh is: that part of you which is not spirit Your spirit is the core of your being, your true essence which is the part capable of knowing God, the place where Christ comes to reside and join himself. Everything else which is not your spirit is part of what the Bible calls your flesh. So, to put it another way:

- it is your mind and body indwelt by the presence of sin It is your ability to think, your mind; your ability to feel, your emotions; your ability to choose, your will; it is all that makes up your personality along with the physical body in which all of that resides. The problem is that because you are descended from Adam, a power or force called sin lives there. Before you were saved, sin actually dwelt in your spirit too but God took care of that and gave you a brand new one when Christ came in. But all the rest of you, all that's left, i.e., your flesh is indwelt by the force of sin which drives it in a wrong direction, away from God. Now let me use another phrase to define flesh:

- it is your self = all that you are apart from God It is all that you are if you just take God out of your life totally. A lot of things in you are the result of the fruit of God's presence in you. The flesh is all that you would be on your own without that, if left to just your self. So, you can call it the self as opposed to God and His work in your life. And in a very practical sense you might define flesh as:

- your old ways = ways you learned to live out of your own resources The habits and practices, the ways of thinking and acting which you developed on your own as a human being apart from God to get your needs for acceptance and significance met. Bill Gillham says we develop "green highways" as we grow up and live apart from God to get our needs met. For instance, Jacob developed a green highway for deceiving. It was a pattern he learned from little on up by which he got his needs met. That deception was part of Jacob's flesh, the way he got his needs as a human being met on his own terms. And every one of us, including you, my friend, has our own particular variety of flesh, green highways that we've become programmed to follow to get our needs met apart from God. And that's exactly:

2. what flesh does: produces wrong ways to meet your needs Since you are born without God, the sin principle in you begins to connive all kinds of ways for you to get those basic human needs met. You begin to experiment and see how you can get those needs met and sin provides all kinds of creative solutions. Look at vs. 3:

a. it produces wrong (selfish) desires You discovered, for example, that you could feel significance and worth by exercising power over others and dominating or controlling them. Or you could find it through having money and things and possessions, or through having an image and a reputation and you name it. You could find the security and acceptance you needed through performing right for people and doing what they wanted. Or if you didn't get much love at home, you might try to find it through illicit sexual relations. The flesh produced in you from moment 1 all kinds of wrong and selfish ways of meeting your own needs which then as they were used time and again became ingrained patterns of living. So, your flesh produces in you desires for wrong things. And:

b. it produces wrong (selfish) patterns of thought along with those desires. You developed wrong ways of looking at yourself and other people like for instance seeing yourself as more important and treating others as objects to be used to serve your purposes, or like being critical of others to make yourself feel better and meet your need for acceptance. It produced wrong views of yourself as either inferior or superior, worthless or wonderful, and all of the above without God! Then add in this factor:

c. it is impacted by environment and Enemy programming The experiences you have in your home and in your life growing up and even later impact your flesh and program you to act and react in certain ways which you are taught. And then you live in a culture which also programs you to think in certain ways and do certain things. And Satan is the one with overarching control over the environment and culture in which you live so much of the programming that has gone into you is not godly in nature but is from the Enemy of our souls. So, the bottom line is that because of the presence of sin inside and the presence of Satan outside:

d. it results in wrong ways of living aimed at meeting your needs apart from God. Unless God intervenes and you learn to see Him and to seek Him as the source of everything you need, Christian or not, you will live out of your flesh, your old ways even as a believer. And all of us do it to some extent or another, some all the time, some much of the time, some seldom, but we all live in the flesh in some degree. Now returning to Genesis we can see that's what Jacob did.

III. Jacob's Life In The Flesh Here's Jacob living for the first time on his own, having been programmed by all the events of childhood we talked about last week and you can see clearly:

1. the things Jacob practiced

a. he continued to make self-directed choices All his life he made choices according to his flesh. He never was never taught to seek God's direction in anything and it is no surprise that when it comes to choosing a wife we read (29:16-18) Now remember he had only known the 2 for 30 days. This choice was not based on character or long-standing romance and emotional attachment; it was an arrangement and he chose according to appearance. He looked at Leah and Rachel and his flesh did the choosing. The only thing noted about Leah is her eyes. The Heb. wd. means tender or delicate. In 16 occurrences this is the only place it is translated as weak. It doesn't mean Leah was half-blind. She had tender, delicate eyes but Rachel was lit. beautiful in shape and beautiful to look at. Leah was average with attractive eyes but Rachel was Miss America. Now look at vs. 26. Laban is probably not lying. He probably should have asked for Leah who was older; in everything, even the birthright and blessing it is older before younger. It is evident from the rest of the story that God's choice was Leah. She was the one God gave children to, through whom He really built the house of Israel, not Rachel, and from her offspring Messiah came! But Jacob never consulted God for direction; he chose out of his fleshly desire. Never once in any of the deals or choices Jacob made do we read that he consulted God or prayed for wisdom. He just made choices according to program, followed his green highways! Then note that:

b. he continued to perform for acceptance (29:20), and look at his later description of these years in (31:40) Remember I told you last week that he was the model boy at home. So now he tried to be the model shepherd and servant. He performed for Laban to get what he wanted, Laban's acceptance and his daughter. He worked hard night and day and Laban's wealth increased considerably because of it. Whatever Jacob was, he wasn't lazy! But it never accomplished its purpose. Then note:

c. he practiced the conditional love he'd received (29:30-34) He ended up with 2 wives and instead of loving them both with all his heart, he did what his parents did, what he learned. He loved Rachel and obviously didn't love Leah and she knew it. With every child she had she said "Now he'll love me for sure". She had the same idea of performance by having babies but she could never earn his love. He just decided not to love her and it stretched to the children compare 37:3-4. He loved Joseph more than the rest because he was Rachel's kid although he had 10 others first and he showed it openly! He grew up loving the way he was loved instead of the way God loves and wants us to love. And finally, when performing failed to meet his needs:

d. he reverted to the practice of deceit just as he always had. He decided that he'd find a way to outdo Laban with his little breeding scheme. (30:37-39) By the way, God showed him the real reason that it worked in a dream (31:10-12) The speckled and spotted rams were the active breeders because God made it so. It had nothing to do with the crazy sticks! But he had a green highway built to get his needs met by deceiving and when pushed to the wall, he went down that highway instead of trusting God to meet his needs.

He lived his adult life the way he'd been programmed to live i.e., in the flesh. That's what all of us do to some extent or other! But, guess what? It costs us to live that way! So now we have to look at:

2. the price Jacob paid I want to show you a principle that is always, always true Gal. 6:7-8 What you sow you reap. It's a law God has set up and you can't get around it. If you sow to your flesh i.e., if you follow those green highways and live the way your flesh tells you to live, it will result in corruption, destruction and eventually death! But if you sow to the Spirit i.e., if you yield your life to the control of the Spirit of God instead of the flesh, you will through Him receive the things that are part of that wonderful, abundant, eternal life which He has given you. Just look at Jacob:

a. his self-direction resulted in loss of control He made his own choices, chose his own path by the flesh, wanted to be in control and where did he end up?

(1) he ended up with two wives which he never wanted and there wasn't a thing he could do about it. And instead of freedom:

(2) he ended up in bondage to Laban (29:27) He ended up a slave, a servant without pay for 14 long years. When he tried to control, he ended up being controlled by the very things he tried to control! Then:

b. his performance was taken advantage of All that good performing, that hard work which was to gain acceptance and make a place for himself and get rewarded, Laban took advantage of. Here's his summary later (31:38-41) He who had taken advantage of others now was taken advantage of himself, even though he was performing and working hard! And:

c. he became the victim of deceit He who learned to get what he wanted by deceiving met his match in his uncle Laban:

(1) Laban deceived him in the matter of Leah (29:25) Can you imagine the feelings going on inside him when he discovers that it's Leah and he's been deceived, especially when Laban says "It's not our custom to give the younger before the older..." What goes around has come around! And to top it off:

(2) Laban cheated him for years (31:6-9) He changed his wages ten times. Anything to keep him down, to keep him from getting anything. Cheat, cheat, cheat. Deception! When you practice deception, my friend, you are always the one who ends up being deceived! But when you live in truth, you end up seeing truth! And finally:

d. he experienced continual family strife Because he loved conditionally based on whim and performance:

(1) he had warring wives (30:1, 15) There was continual strife and jealousy between the two sisters and Jacob himself was in the middle. On one occasion Leah even bought the right to sleep with him from Rachel for a handful of mandrake plants. They bargained and plotted continually against one another. And it didn't stop there:

(2) his children were permanently affected Reuben became an adulterer and slept with his own father's concubine. Simeon and Levi became cruel and vicious men who killed all the men in an entire town through a wicked scheme. Judah violated his own daughter-in-law. All 10 of them learned to hate Joseph and almost committed murder but in the end sold him into slavery.

Listen again: Don't be deceived; God cannot be mocked. His law will stand. If you live out of your flesh, if you follow the green highways that are programmed into you, you will reap misery and corruption and destruction and death and your sins will be visited upon your children to the third and fourth generation! But if you will learn instead to choose to live out of the Spirit of God and the resources that are found in Jesus Christ, you will experience true life and spread it wherever you go! You have a choice to make and you make it daily. You either live in the flesh or the Spirit in every situation. It's either your way or God's way. And the consequences are eternal.

One Man's Story: The Life Of Jacob

His Life Transformed Gen. 34-35

There is a profound difference between the Jacob who in the early part of his life cheated his brother and deceived his father and the Jacob we meet in the later part of his life down in Egypt who lives by and is commended in Heb. Ch. 11 for his faith in God. He is truly a man who was transformed and God indicates that by changing his name. On two occasions God tells him: you are no longer Jacob; you are now Israel. There are two key experiences which produced that transformation in him. At Peniel we saw last week that God wrestled him and finally crippled him and brought him to the end of his own abilities. There he learned that only God could meet his needs. Today we'll see him at Bethel where he learned how his life could be changed through that principle. Let's briefly mention:

I. The Key Experiences Recorded For Us in these 2 chapters

1. the violation of Jacob's daughter (34:1-12) Jacob settled near Shechem after he crossed the Jordan and a sort of integration with the locals began to occur. His daughter Dinah was through this association seen and raped by the local prince named Shechem who then offered to marry her. Strangely, Jacob did not react on his own in the flesh this time, as he might have previously. He stood back and let his grown sons handle it.

2. the revenge of Jacob's sons (34:13-31) They devised a plan. The men of Shechem wanted to integrate the whole family and absorb them. So, Simeon and Levi said "You have to be circumcised first, and then we'll intermarry with you." However, while all the men of the town were weak and sore, the 2 brothers went door to door and massacred them wholesale and plundered the whole village in revenge for what Shechem had done. Again, Jacob was worried for his life and family if the surrounding Canaanites should retaliate but God had a piece of unfinished business with Jacob. There was a little place in the countryside where there was a rock he had used for a pillar and he had told God that if God would bring him safely back that spot would become a place of worship and so God appeared to him and called for:

3. Jacob's return to Bethel (35:1-15) This is where we'll concentrate our study today. It is where he learned the principles that transformed his life. And after that we read of:

4. various family events (35:16-29) including the death of Rachel and the birth of the 12th son, Benjamin, an act of incest committed by the oldest son, Reuben, and finally the reunion of Jacob with his father Isaac and Isaac's death. Now before we examine what happened to Jacob at Bethel, let's go to the New Testament and look at:

II. The Process Of Transformation - Rom. 12:1-2 I'm sure most of us have had these 2 verses memorized for years and that's good because they are very important. They describe for us the process by which God transforms us from those who walk according to our flesh into those who walk according to the Spirit. First note that this process:

1. it is rooted in gratitude: responding to God's mercy toward you in saving you. It is so easy to take what God has done in our lives for granted, to fail to appreciate the significance of that fact that He saved us and transported us out of the kingdom of darkness and into the kingdom of His dear Son! That has to become real. It became real for Jacob at Peniel. He had no way out and God rescued him and so when he goes to Bethel, he says Gene 35:3 (niv) Then come, let us go up to Bethel, where I will build an altar to God, who answered me in the day of my distress and who has been with me wherever I have gone. You won't begin to have a transformed Spirit-filled life until you see how utterly incapable and worthless your flesh is with all its schemes and abilities and that only God can meet your needs. If you're ever going to be anything, it is not going to be by trying harder and performing better. The flesh can't produce the fruit of the Spirit! So, you've got to go to Peniel first, to the end of self, before you're ready for God to transform you! How does it happen?

2. it occurs by an act of worship: presenting yourself completely to God Paul describes it in the symbolic language of the Old Testament sacrificial system. You undertake an act of worship. You become the victim, the sacrifice. You lay yourself, your own body, on the altar as a sacrifice belonging completely to God. Only you're not a dead sacrifice like those animals of old but a living sacrifice i.e., the whole of your life is given over and utterly abandoned to God for Him to do with as He chooses and pleases! You surrender every bit of control over your life, every right to yourself. You offer yourself as a whole burnt offering to Him. That's what God wants. That's what pleases Him. Absolute surrender. Now here's the catch. Everybody thinks that's a once- and-done thing. It's like getting your muffler replaced at Midas: you pay once and it's good for the life of the car! But I'll let you in on a secret: it doesn't work at Midas and it doesn't work for us either. This is not an action God wants you to take once in your life; it's a posture He wants you to live in every day of your life! He wants you to live like a dead man, like a man who can't do anything for himself but knows that he is God's to move at His will and to animate by His strength every day and in every situation of your life. Yes, there may be one dramatic beginning where we first get to that place of surrender but we must stay there and when we wander off, we must come back there! Somebody put it like this: the only trouble with a living sacrifice is it keeps trying to crawl off the altar! That's us! Now vs. 2, as we learn to stay there more and more:

3. it results in a new pattern of thinking: renewing of your mind You see your flesh is programmed by or conformed to the pattern, molded into the shape of this world! You think and react and operate according to the pattern you've developed on your own for living. But the more you choose to stop and abandon that and to lay yourself open to God for His thoughts and His direction something wonderful happens: your pattern of thinking, your mind is changed into something new. You learn to think a new way and react a new way and to feel a new way and to live a new way. God transforms you! He metamorphosizes you into something you never were before and never would have been on your own. And the Greek tense is interesting: it's a passive imperative. It's something you must do but you aren't the actor; it must be done to you. e.g., Get a haircut! means go let somebody cut your hair! Choose by laying yourself at God's disposal to let Him renew your mind instead of just conforming the e.g., flesh patterns you have always had. And guess what:

4. it ends up as a new way of life: living out the will of God It's not that you will discover what the will of God is and then go do it. It's that as you yield moment by moment to His control and allow your mind to be changed, you will end up living out His will moment by moment, day by day, hour by hour, situation by situation! You will prove it out, demonstrate it, in your life. 2 Cor. 3:18 And we, who with unveiled (unhidden) faces all reflect the Lord's glory, are being transformed into his likeness with ever-increasing glory, which comes from the Lord, who is the Spirit. It's simple. The more we surrender, the more the Spirit controls and the more we look like Jesus to every watching eye. It occurs gradually but continually in stages throughout our lives. And that's how Jacob got to be Israel by the time it was all done. So, let's go back and look at:

III. The Process God Gave To Jacob (35:1) There are 3 things God told Jacob to do in that verse and they are all important because each one is symbolic. Then we read in (14-15) the account of how Jacob did them. Let's look at them one at a time. God said first:

1. go up to Bethel... Notice the:

symbol: the place (Bethel=House Of God) where God talked with him

The symbol here is in the name of the place itself. Beth-El means House of God. When Jacob was there the first time on his way to Syria, his reaction was "Surely the Lord is in this place..." In 14-15 it is described twice as "the place where God had talked with Him." Bethel symbolizes for us the presence of God, the place where you meet God. And the lesson here is the:

lesson: enter the presence of God to talk with Him "Jacob, the answer to living life, to solving your problems is not to go and figure out and do; it is to symbolizes go into My presence and commune with Me. I am what you need!" Oh, if we could get hold of that! Day by day when the Canaanites around us are giving us trouble and we get afraid we won't be able to stand, if we could only realize that what we need is not a new set of Canaanites or to go out and buy the latest patented Canaanite-whooper-device-thing-a-ma-bob or a seminar on I'm OK and the Canaanites are OK or to download seasoned anti-Canaanite advice from the electronic oracle at Delphi; what we need is to go into the presence of God. He is always the answer. Now you name the problem! Any problem will do! Jacob, go up to Bethel! And when you arrive:

2. build an altar there... Now altars were a relatively new thing for Jacob. He knew about setting up pillars, monuments, things to help you remember, but altars were for offering sacrifice. He had set up one at Shechem after Peniel and before the tragedy happened there. He even called it by his new name El-Elohe-Israel (33:20), God, the God of Israel, his first real act of faith. But we don't know what he ever sacrificed on it. Now God says: Go to Bethel, into My Presence, and build an altar there i.e., offer to me a sacrifice. What did he offer? V. 14 says he set up a stone pillar as an altar and offered a drink offering on it. So, the:

symbol: the drink offering poured out Drink offerings are a new thing. This is the first mention of it in the Bible. They are not mentioned until the law of Moses. But basically, drink meant wine and wine was red and it symbolized blood being poured out, the giving of life. So, what's the:

lesson: pour out your life at His disposal Go up into my presence, Jacob and pour your life out at My feet, sacrifice it to me, offer it to me completely. Tell me that it is mine, given and consecrated to Me and I can do what I want with it. That's why Jacob went up to Bethel. However, he had by that time realized something. Surrendering his life absolutely to God meant there was something he had to do first. He had to get rid of everything he had put in God's place. You see, surrendering your life:

a. it requires seeing, admitting and burying the idols in your life (2-4) It was everywhere around him but it had never bothered him before. Rachel's father Laban had household idols, teraphim, in his tent. Rachel stole them when they left without Jacob's knowledge and probably still had them somewhere. And when he called for them, everybody else seemed to have a few too hidden away somewhere. And they were all wearing rings in their ears which must have somehow in that culture been associated with idol-worship (no offense to you ladies with beautiful earrings!). But Jacob had first to see them, to realize they were there and to admit it and then to take them down to the oak tree and bury them for good! They had usurped the place of God in some way and they had to go. Now I know you think you and I wouldn't ever do that. How interesting that John closes his first letter with this warning: 1 John 5:21, Dear children, keep yourselves from idols. Anyone or anything that gets control over your life whether it's a person or a job or a substance or money or whatever becomes an idol. We don't openly worship it but we when we give our lives to it, it becomes idolatrous. And we need to ask God to open our eyes so we can see these things that have taken His place in our lives, and admit what they are and then bury them! Take them out of that place of allegiance for good! And note what Jacob says:

b. it requires purifying both your heart and behavior from them Purify yourselves i.e., wash, take a bath, cleanse the part people can't see. And then put on some clean clothes. Change the part they can see. Ask God's forgiveness and surrender that part of your life; purify your heart. And then change your clothes. By His strength depend on Him and ask Him to change the behavior that goes with it. Present yourself a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God. And then God said, Jacob:

3. settle there... Lit. dwell there, remain there, abide there. When you get to Bethel, into My Presence and lay yourself out completely to Me, STAY THERE! And in vs. 14, there is a symbol that gives even deeper meaning to it.

symbol: the oil (the Holy Spirit) poured on the drink offering After Jacob had poured out the drink offering on the altar symbolizing his own life poured out unto God in complete surrender, he then poured oil upon the altar on top of it. Oil in Scripture almost always symbolically represents the Holy Spirit and His ministry. And there is a truth here in this symbol. It is when we are at the end of ourselves and utterly surrendered to Christ that the Holy Spirit will fill us and control us and we become His instruments. It is as we stay there on the altar of sacrifice that the Spirit of God stays in control of us and we live a life that is really His life through us. So, when you take God's command to stay there and the symbol of the oil together you have the:

lesson: abide continually in God's presence and power- Jn. 15:4-5 Remain [or abide] in me, and I will remain in you. No branch can bear fruit by itself; it must remain in the vine. Neither can you bear fruit unless you remain in me.5 "I am the vine; you are the branches. If a man remains in me and I in him, he will bear much fruit; apart from me you can do nothing. He is the Vine and the sap flowing out into the branches and bearing fruit is the Holy Spirit. He's not talking about staying saved. He's saying that unless we remain in continual dependence upon Him as our source, upon the life-giving power of the Spirit to flow through us, we will produce no fruit! Oh, we may produce some good works in and of ourselves, but the Spirit will produce no fruit through us! We must abide or remain in Christ and that means learning to remain in continual surrender, in continual offering of ourselves to Him so that He can indeed flow His life out through us!

And that, my friends is what eventually transformed Jacob into Israel. He didn't literally continue to dwell at the place Bethel, though perhaps he should have. But as his life progressed, he learned more and more the principle of staying spiritually at Bethel, of giving Himself to God's control and depending upon Him and the more he stayed there, the more he was changed until he finally became the Israel, the man of faith that Hebrews talks about. But I want you to see one last thing:

IV. The Blessing God Bestowed Upon Jacob (35:9) At Bethel God blessed Jacob. This whole thing is not simply for God's benefit. It is for Jacob's. God does not call us to be transformed by laying down control of our lives simply for His good, but for ours. He wants to bless us! Look at what He gave Jacob there:

1. the understanding of the change in his identity (10) This announcement that his name was changed from Jacob to Israel had already been made back at Peniel and he had even begun to use the name some but it is here that I think the realization of what it meant began to sink in. God was giving him a new identity. He had changed who Jacob was and I think Jacob could begin to see it. It meant:

a. I am no longer a heel-grabber (Jacob); I am God's prince (Israel) I am no longer somebody who makes his own way, who gets ahead. I have been chosen by God; He has made me a prince and He fights my battles. I am a person who lives in submission to Him. And lest you think that's just for Jacob, listen to 1 Pet. 2:9-10 But you are a chosen people, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people belonging to God, that you may declare the praises of him who called you out of darkness into his wonderful light. Once you were not a people, but now you are the people of God; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy. That's you my friend! Put your name in there. You are a chosen one of God. You are a king who reigns with Christ. You are a holy priest who can enter His presence with full acceptance. You are a person who belongs to God! That's your true identity and when you lay yourself down on the altar of surrender, that's when you get to understand it. Who I am is not the life I've lived, the things that have happened to me, the sins I've committed. Who I am is the choice and the work of God in my life. I have an identity that if formed and linked to Jesus Christ and:

b. when I abide, my behavior reflects what I truly am When I go back to living in the flesh and do things the old way, I'm living like who I'm not. I'm a hypocrite. But when I abide in His presence in full surrender, then I am living like what I truly am. John wrote 1 Jn. 2:28-3:3 And now, dear children, continue in him, so that when he appears we may be confident and unashamed before him at his coming.... How great is the love the Father has lavished on us, that we should be called children of God! And that is what we are! ... Dear friends, now we are children of God, and what we will be has not yet been made known. But we know that when he appears, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. Everyone who has this hope in him purifies himself, just as he is pure. A true child of God is a child of God by grace, it's a gift. But if I am a child of God then I live like one, I purify myself. I lay at His feet and continue or abide in Him, not in my flesh! Why? Cause that's who I am! And then old Israel got a second blessing:

2. the promise of God's control over his future (11-12) God had a plan for Israel's future and He is El Shaddai, God Almighty, the God who has power to do whatever He plans to do, the Omnipotent God. God made it clear: you put your life in My hands. I will control it and here's what I'm going to do with it. Now when Jacob got to living it, it didn't look like all that on the surface. Soon he would lose a wife and later a son and then there would be a famine and then in old age he would leave the promised land and move down to Egypt with his family and die there. It wouldn't look or feel much like what God had promised was going on. But what he couldn't see was that in the soil of Egypt God would plant the small seed of Israel that would grow to several millions of people and then He would destroy Egypt and bring them out with a mighty hand and turn them into a mighty nation and bring from them a line of kings that one day would bring forth the King of Kings who would bless every nation on the face of the earth! All he had was the promise of God's control but that was enough. He learned to live by faith trusting that his future belonged to God and God would control it. So does yours.

Listen, God's principle of transformation has always been the same. Go to Him and lay your life at His feet and stay there. That's it, pure and simple. He may have to wrestle you to get you to see it but that's all there is to it. The choice to respond is yours. A young man went into a church and started praying. He was so anxious to find God's will for his life that he took a piece of paper and wrote down all the things that he was going to do for God. Then he started to pray that God might reveal to him whether these promises were acceptable to Him. Suddenly he heard a voice speak to him saying, "This is not the way I want you to find My will. All I want of you is to sign your name and leave the paper for me to fill." Do you want to be an Israel instead of a Jacob? Just go into His presence and hand him the blank paper of your life and ask Him to fill it. And stay there, won't you?

One Man's Story: The Life Of Jacob

His Walk Of Faith Gen. 37-50

Today we come to the final years of Jacob's life. You know, it's not how you start a thing that is most important but how you finish it! I remember our missionary Dean Franklin when he was preparing to leave London for furlough and then to move on to a new position in the Caribbean asking us to pray that he might "finish well" both in his remaining time in Europe and that he might "finish well" in the remaining years of ministry he has left in the Caribbean. Finishing well is important. Jacob didn't start out so good but he finished well. The Scripture commends him for the faith in which he walked during the closing years of his life. Now at Ch. 37 the emphasis of the story line of the book of Genesis switches from the story of Jacob's life to the story of Joseph's life. That's a study for another day. We're interested in the remaining glimpses we find of Jacob himself in the midst of that story which covers the last 30 years of Jacob's life. Let me summarize briefly:

I. The Key Experiences Recorded For Us

1. Jacob loses his son Joseph - Ch. 37 Hatred develops between Joseph and his brothers during his growing up years. When he is 17 it peaks and while they are out in the field, miles from home, they intend to kill him but instead sell him as a slave to some passing Midianites who take him to Egypt. They lie and put blood on his coat and tell his father they found it, so from Jacob's perspective, Joseph is dead, he is gone, lost forever. But while Jacob is busy missing him:

2. Joseph ascends to the throne of Egypt - chs. 39-41 by way of a false accusation and two years in a prison. At age 30 Pharaoh yanks him out of prison and makes him ruler of all Egypt because God shows Joseph that a tremendous famine is to come upon the world. And in time the famine does come. The whole near-eastern world is starving. Nobody has grain to eat so:

3. Jacob sends his sons to Egypt - chs. 42-45 where they meet Joseph. But they don't recognize him, of course and he in turn tests them by accusing them of spying and ordering them to bring their youngest brother Benjamin back down to prove that they are telling the truth. The end result is that Joseph forgives his brothers and is reunited with them but also with Jacob himself and so we have:

4. Jacob's life in Egypt - chs. 46-50 for his final 17 years. What is recorded for us here is not so much events as the final blessings he gave to all his children. And he finally dies in Ch. 49 and in Ch. 50 they carry him up to Canaan and bury him.

It is during these last years of his life particularly that Jacob lives as Israel. Instead of walking in the flesh as he did for the first half of his life, now he learns for the most part to walk by faith. Before we look at his life, however, let's go to the New Testament and look at:

II. The Principle Of Living By Faith - Gal. 2:20 I have been crucified with Christ and I no longer live, but Christ lives in me. The life I live in the body, I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me.

There are 2 important facts there. Do you see them? First, Christ has become my life. I don't live any more. The old "I", the old man, my old spirit that was separated from God is dead. It was nailed to the cross with Christ when I was placed into Him at salvation. But I still live. How? His life has created a brand new spirit in me that is joined to Him so that He has become my life. John said that God has given us eternal life and this life is in His Son. He who has the son has life! Paul wrote, "when Christ who is our life shall appear...". If Christ were to remove His presence from me; I would cease living. He has become my life! And that should change the method by which I go about daily living. Paul says: the life I NOW (in Greek, missing in NIV) live in the body, I live a new way: by faith in, i.e., by trusting in the Son of God! By trusting the Son of God who is my life to live my life, to live out His life through me. That is living by faith. I quit trusting myself to do things, to handle situations, to react to people and I trust Christ to do it through me! Call it living by faith, walking by faith, walking in the Spirit, or whatever term you choose, it means trusting Jesus moment by moment and situation by situation to do my living, to supply my power, wisdom, and whatever else I need. Now Jacob didn't have the advantage of the personal indwelling of the living Christ like you and I have or the internal presence of the Holy Spirit like we have, but he still learned in the end of his life to walk by faith like his grandfather Abraham. He started to live more and more as Israel the prince of God. However:

III. The Flesh Of Jacob (Which) Was Still Present Just in case you were thinking that eventually your flesh would just gradually disappear and you wouldn't have to bother with it, let me clue you in: it ain't so! Sin still dwells in your flesh so there's always a force there remobilizing and remobilizing it at every turn. The most godly saint among us still faces the struggle Paul spoke of in Galatians (5:17): the flesh desires what is contrary to the Spirit, and the Spirit what is contrary to the flesh. They are in conflict with each other... The key is what v. 16 says So I say, live by the Spirit, and you will not gratify the desires of the flesh. Living by the Spirit will give us regular victory over the desires of our flesh but it won't make it go away and there will be times when all of us fall back into our flesh patterns. Even though Jacob was now different, there were still parts of his life where he lived according to the godliest patterns his flesh knew. For instance:

1. he "idolized" Joseph (37:3-4) i.e., he made Joseph into an idol in his life. Joseph was the first son of Rachel, the wife he really loved. He was the son he'd wanted all along and because he grew up in a family where the children were loved unequally and favorites were played, he did the same. He loved Joseph more than the others and he showed it outwardly, not just by giving him a beautiful coat but every day in the way he treated him. He kept him at home while the others went to pasture the flocks and so on. It made the others bitter. Jacob raised Joseph to too high a place in his heart. So, what did God do?

a. God took Joseph away from him Sold him into slavery. Jacob thought he was dead! God took Joseph away and look at:

b. his self-centered reaction (37:34-35) Interesting words: he refused to be comforted. Can't you hear him. "No, I won't stop being sorry. I deserve to mourn. I'm going to die mourning. In fact, I'd rather die, now than live now that Joseph is gone!" Do you see? Joseph has become life to him unlike Job who said in the same circumstance "The Lord gives and the Lord takes away..." Do you see, here's another one of those little gods that has sneaked into his life and taken the place that only God should have. He eventually got over the sadness but what happened was that next:

2. he "idolized" Benjamin (42:1-4) Benjamin took Joseph's place. He was the only son left by Rachel and the youngest. Now he stayed home with dad and became Jacob's life. When the famine came and somebody had to go to Egypt, he couldn't let anything happen to him; the others were expendable so he sent them! But:

a. God (in essence threatens to take) took Benjamin away from him Joseph insisted that the brothers couldn't return to buy grain unless they brought Benjamin back with them when they came and kept Simeon as a hostage to ensure they would. And just look at:

b. his self-centered reaction (42:36-38) Do you hear it again? If he dies, I'll die. His brothers understood that. Compare what they said later on (44:30) Again, Benjamin has become an idol; he has taken the place that only God should have in Jacob's heart and God has now put him in a place he has to willingly give him up or sentence himself and all his family to starve. God is testing Jacob, saying, Will you let him go and trust Me instead? Will you let me be Lord? Will you let me have the right to control your life, even Benjamin? And so, at last you have:

3. his surrender to God (43:1-7, 11--14) Can't you hear him little by little letting go?

a. he released his idolatrous clinging and trusted God Note the surrender in 14. His well-being depends on God, not on my protection. And the choice over whether he lives or not is God's. God and His will is more important than mine! God dealt with him about this and he surrendered at last to God. And look what God did:

b. God gave him back both Joseph and Benjamin! (45:25-28) Oh what a hallelujah meeting that must have been! A son back from the dead and Benjamin there to tell it besides! Now look, please don't think that I'm saying that all your stories will have a happy ending or that God will give you back everything you surrender to Him. It doesn't work that way but that's not the point.

All the way along there are going to be issues like this in your life because you still have flesh and they'll come up. God will bring them up. One by one He will point out the things that occupy His place in your heart and ask you to surrender them to Him. And sometimes there will be struggles, no matter how close you grow to God or how old you get. But what I want you to see at the same time is:

IV. The Faith Of Israel Which Continued Steadfastly This is not my thought but a distinct statement made by the Holy Spirit in Heb. 11:21 By faith Jacob, when he was dying, blessed each of Joseph's sons, and worshipped as he leaned on the top of his staff. Jacob is commended for his faith. What is not obvious is that if you read the Genesis account, this statement refers not to one incident but to two incidents in Jacob's life in which he displayed the faith he had learned to walk in. Let's take the second one first:

1. he counted God's Word as true ...he worshipped leaning on his staff refers to the incident in Ch. 47 where Jacob speaks to Joseph alone and makes him promise to bury him in Canaan. In order to understand this fully let's look at a few preceding thoughts. First of all, notice:

a. he stayed in the land where his father had sojourned (37:1) That's significant. He stayed as a dweller, put down permanent roots in the land where his father was only a sojourner, a temporary alien. Why? Cp. (35:12) At Bethel God had made him a promise, first when he went to Syria and then when he went back up to Bethel, God said "This is your land, the land of Canaan. It belongs to you. I give it to you and your descendants." Jacob counted God's promise as true and he stayed there. In fact, when Joseph sent carts from Egypt to bring him down to live there:

b. he left the land obediently counting on his return (46:1-4) God had to reassure him that it was OK to go down and reassure him that he would return. He obeyed and went down but counted trusted God that he would return. And that's why when it became apparent that he was going to die in Egypt:

c. he made Joseph promise to bury him in the land (47:27-31) Oh, picture it: "Joseph, this isn't my land. God told me that Canaan is my land and your land and that all of us are going back there. He told me I'm going back there and now I'm dying here. Swear to me you'll take me back and bury me. Please, Joseph, please. I don't want my bones to lie in Egypt. I believe the promise of God and I want to lie in Canaan." And it was when Joseph assured him he would do that that he leaned upon the top of his staff and worshipped God. Thank you, Lord, you have kept your Word; You are faithful. What you have said to me is true. And even in his last moments:

d. his last desire and command was to be buried in the land (49:29-33) Why? It was faith. Trust that God was going to bring his descendants back. Joseph died in the same kind of faith. Hebrews reminds us that he too gave commandment that when the time came that God brought Israel out of Egypt, they were to take his bones with them! He got that from his dad. God said it; I believe it; whether it looks like it or not. His Word is true.

That was his consistent attitude over the last 30 years of his life - FAITH. Trusting God to do what He said He'd do. Is that how you live day by day? Counting on what God says as true, leaning on Him like Jacob leaned on his staff and worshipping, thanking Him that it's true! How about Rom. 8:28 And we know that in all things God works for the good of those who love him... What if the all things means your spouse dies? What if the all things means losing a child of 17? What if the all things means having to move to a strange place and leave all that's familiar to you to live in a place you'd rather not be? What if like for Corrie Ten Boom, the all things means a prison camp and great suffering? Faith says, "Even in this God is at work for my good..." Faith consistently says "Let God be true and every man, every circumstance, every feeling, a liar!"

If you want to live out that transformed life, staying on that altar presented totally to God means trusting His Word more than anything your 5 senses tell you!

In 1958, a U.S. soldier wandered the streets of Berlin to see the sights. Despite the bustling new life in parts of the city, reminders remained of the destruction of World War II. Walking through a residential area one evening, across the cobblestone street he saw an open space edged with flowers. In the center stood the stone front of what had been a church. The building was no longer there, but the rubble had been cleared away in an attempt to fill the empty space with a little park. The former church's main door was shaped in a Gothic arch, and over it was carved into the stone in German: HEAVEN AND EARTH WILL PASS AWAY BUT MY WORDS WILL NOT PASS AWAY. What a graphic way for God to declare the truth; His Word will not pass away; we can trust it! Then, Hebrews commends Jacob for a second thing:

2. he submitted to God's control over the future ...when he was dying, he blessed both of Joseph's sons That happened in Ch. 48 after the first incident. Jacob was ill and Joseph came to see him with his two sons Ephraim and Manasseh and Jacob found strength to give Joseph through the boys his dying blessing, just as his own father had done so many years before. But, look what Jacob did:

a. he declared God's choice of Ephraim over Manasseh (48:13-19) He was by this time listening to God, understanding His will and direction. He was in these last 3 chs. a prophet speaking for God. And he deliberately put his hands in reverse order; he set the younger before the older. And when Joseph gets upset because that's not the natural way, he says "I know son, I know..." He did know. His own father had refused to do it. He refused to bless Jacob instead of Esau even though before their birth God had made it clear that Jacob was the one He had chosen. You see, Jacob had learned now something that Isaac never did:

(1) he learned to choose God's way over his own programming It didn't matter what the culture said. It didn't matter who made the most delicious stew. What mattered was what God wanted. He had learned to say "OK, Lord. Whatever you want..." And it also indicates that:

(2) he learned the importance of God's choice over achievement He realized it didn't matter how much Manasseh did, he couldn't alter the future God had planned for him. Nor could Ephraim. And nor could he. For all his own conniving and getting ahead, it was God who was his Shepherd and God who had delivered him from harm to that very day. All because it was God's choice. The future belongs to Him. In the same way he then called for all his sons and did it again:

b. he declared God's choice of Judah over Joseph (49:8-10) Oh, how he wanted Joseph to be the chief and the head and he was while they were in Egypt. But ultimately God had chosen otherwise. Messiah, the One to Whom It Belongs, Shiloh, would come from Judah's children. Judah would be the royal tribe from which the line of kings and ultimately the King of Kings would come.

Faith to Jacob now meant trusting control of the future to God. Trusting that He, the all-wise and all-powerful God will bring about His will and that's what's important, not mine! That's walking by faith. What about you? What if God chooses for you a path and a plan for your life that you don't want, that you don't even like? Do you live by faith in the Son of God, trusting Him with it all, bowing submissively to His will? Or do you want to hold on and control it for yourself? In May 1995, Randy Reid, a 34-year-old construction worker, was welding on top of a nearly completed water tower outside Chicago. According to writer Melissa Ramsdell, Reid unhooked his safety gear to reach for some pipes when a metal cage slipped and bumped the scaffolding he stood on. The scaffolding tipped, and Reid lost his balance. He fell 110 feet, landing face down on a pile of dirt, just missing rocks and construction debris. A fellow worker called 911. When paramedics arrived, they found Reid conscious, moving, and complaining of a sore back. But here is the irony. As paramedics carried him on a backboard to the ambulance, Reid had one request: "Don't drop me." (Doctors later said Reid came away from the accident with just a bruised lung.) He'd been saved from a 110 foot fall but was worried about falling 30 inches. How like us. God saves us from an eternity in hell and bestows upon us an eternity in heaven. But we can't trust God for these few years of life we have left. We have to control it. We have to protect ourselves, to do it our way! God is saying, "Let go, my child, let go. Trust Me. Put your future in My hands. Say yes to what I choose. The life you now live in the flesh, live by trusting in Me, the One who loved you and gave Myself for you!" Will you do it?

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

I. God's Preparation For Redemption - Chs. 1-4

Today we begin a new series of messages, studying through the book of Exodus. Exodus, as you well know, is the story of how God redeems a people, how God rescues the people of Israel who are in bondage in Egypt and brings them out. Indeed, the name Exodus means the way out or the going out. And it is a very popular story. The story of Israel's going out has been told and retold on the movie screen and TV by everyone from Charlton Heston to Disney's animation studios. The Jews, of course, cling to it as the source of their national identity. Yet everyone loves the story of poor suffering people being victorious over their proud dictator in the end. But Exodus is so much more than that. It is not really a story about Israel; it is a story about God, a story that was told and retold by parents to children generation upon generation for one purpose, to teach them to worship Him! Listen to the Psalmist:

*Ps. 66:1-7 Shout with joy to God, all the earth! Sing the glory of his name; make his praise glorious! Say to God, "How awesome are your deeds! So great is your power that your enemies cringe before you. All the earth bows down to you; they sing praise to you; they sing praise to your name." Selah Come and see what God has done, how awesome his works in man's behalf! [What's he talking about, what works?] He turned the sea into dry land, they passed through the waters on foot-- come, let us rejoice in him. He rules forever by his power, his eyes watch the nations-- let not the rebellious rise up against him. Selah

Exodus is the story of how God proved to all the world that He is the only True and Living God by destroying the mightiest nation on earth and taking the smallest and least deserving for His own people. If you stop to think about it, the whole of God's redemptive history of the human race is built around two key events: the Exodus and the Cross. Before Christ, people of faith for 1400 years looked backward to the Exodus as the once-for-all proof that Jehovah alone must be worshipped and redemption is found in Him, the same way that for 2000 years believers have looked back to the Cross and the Resurrection as God's once-for-all proof that Jesus alone is Lord and must be worshipped because redemption is found in Him! An Israelite could look back at the Exodus in faith and include himself in saying, "God redeemed US from our bondage!", just the way you and I look back at the cross and say, "Jesus redeemed US from our sins!" That's how important this event was and it is no wonder that the Exodus itself points forward to the Cross and pictures it as we'll see. The outline of these 18 chapters falls under 3 major headings:

I. God's Preparation For Redemption - Chs. 1-4

II. God's Process Of Redemption - 5:1-15:21

III. God's Preservation Of The Redeemed - 15:22-18:26

And we begin today with His preparation. We want to look at how God set the stage beforehand for what He was about to do, for the redemption He was about to accomplish. And the first thing that stands out clearly as we begin to read the story is that:

He Prepared The Circumstances - Ch. 1

But for the moment, hold that thought, and let's look carefully at:

I. The Historical Reality: which is that the Israelites at that time were in a veritable Holocaust Of Suffering. Here's how it unfolded. It began with:

1. the dramatic multiplication of Israel in Egypt (1-7) How many were there in Jacob (Israel)'s family when they came down to Egypt to live with Joseph? 70 males! No big deal. Pharaoh takes care of 70 of Joseph's relatives; a hundred people living in a whole nation of Egyptians. But look at v. 5: they were fruitful [they had a lot of kids]...multiplied greatly [like mice or rabbits!]...became exceedingly numerous [in 4 generations there were now 2-3 million of them!] and...the land was filled with them. At first there were just a handful of them up north by the Nile delta in the land of Goshen but now they were everywhere you looked. 2 million people take up a lot of space; they consume a lot of food; they create long lines at the bazaar! I have no idea how you can know the population of Egypt at that time, but I read on the internet that scholars estimate that it was between 3-4 million. If so, half of them were Israelites! This was a veritable population explosion and transformation! And the worry of the Egyptians is obvious: vs. 8-10 "There are more of them than there are of us! They could take over our country and rule the land or join our enemies against us. Or what if they leave! We've become economically dependent on their presence. We would be impoverished without them!" And so, the new Pharaoh who didn't know Joseph and didn't remember how he saved Egypt began:

2. the systematic oppression of Israel by Egypt (8-22) It had 4 notable elements and they increased in severity as each one failed. The first oppressive act was:

a. public enslavement (11) Men were taken away from their homes and from their crafts and their jobs and forced into public labor building cities to store provisions for Pharaoh's army, fueling Pharaoh's war machine. Egypt at that time was the mightiest Empire on earth, its chariots and horses were feared by all as the most advanced weapon system of the day and were exported for sale to other nations. Pharaoh thought to disrupt family life, to change the ease under which such a large population had bred, to stem the increase. But it didn't work. So, the Egyptians resorted to:

b. personal cruelty (13-14) They treated them harshly, gave them the heaviest of manual labor: making bricks, mixing mortar, carrying stones, laboring in the fields gathering straw. And they worked them as hard as they could with no sympathy, without rest, without regard for injuries or stamina. They made their lives bitter, hoping that all this would reduce their virility, that they would stop having children. But they kept right on. So next Pharaoh resorted to:

c. population control (15-16) It was a secret command, not known to the public. Shiphrah and Puah were probably the leaders or superintendents among the Hebrew midwives and they were told quietly to kill every boy that was born but to let the girls live. His thinking was simple: as time passed more and more of the Hebrews would be women and more and more they would have to be taken by Egyptian men so their children would be Egyptian and they would eventually be absorbed into the Egyptian population. Over time there would be no more Hebrews, only Egyptians! What a sinister plan! And it would have worked but the midwives wouldn't do it! They refused and made up excuses. So, at last the situation escalates to where the fear is so great that Pharaoh resorts to:

d. purposeful genocide (22) He made a law; He issued a decree binding on everyone in Egypt to kill outright every Hebrew baby boy that is born by throwing them into the Nile, a sacrifice to the river which was itself worshipped as a god. Genocide: kill the Hebrews outright because they're Hebrews. Does any of this sound familiar? It has been tried against the Jews time and again. Hitler was not the first! The Persians almost pulled it off 4 centuries before Christ, had not God used Esther to intervene! The Russian Empire had a series of pogroms over hundreds of years where Jews were attacked and killed. Central and Eastern Europe joined in their own pogroms as did the Arab world at various times. Hitler's mass murder of 6 million Jews was simply an attempt at the modern fulfillment of what Pharaoh wanted centuries before. Jews live in fear that it will happen again from their own history.

Yet I would hasten to point out that these are the same tactics that have been used against the Church, almost from its inception. From the persecutions of Saul down to the Cultural Revolution of Mao Tse Tung in which millions of believers died simply for their faith, Pharaoh's "wipe them out" genocidal tactics have been tried time and again. We heard two weeks ago about some of the persecution our brothers and sisters face in Serbia. A hand grenade tossed into a public gathering. In Azerbaijan, the CLC bookstore was robbed and one of its workers beaten a few months ago. Last Christmas out by Lake Issyk Kul one brother was martyred for his faith in Kyrgyzstan. Over the past few years our brothers and sisters in southern Ethiopia were being wiped out wholesale, entire villages at a time carried away as slaves or killed. And here we still think that is a strange thing, even though Jesus warned His followers repeatedly that they would be hated and arrested and even killed for His sake. We're considered as sheep to be slaughtered. The historical reality is that as God's people we are often forced to live in a crucible of suffering, suffering that is not of our own doing. God allows that and even chooses for that to happen to us. But here is:

II. The Heavenly Reality: in the midst of it all God's Plan Is Being Carried Out! Go with me back to the book of Genesis and stand with Abraham even before Isaac was born as he heard:

1. the revelation of God's plan - Gen. 15:12-16 "Not only will I give you a child; I will multiply your descendants like the stars of the heavens (v. 5). And here's how I will do it: your descendants will go into a foreign country where they will multiply. And there they will be forced into slavery and harshly treated and at the end of 400 years, 4 generations from now, I will judge that nation and bring them out with great possessions when My timing is right for them to come back into this land and dispossess the Amorites who live here because at that time their sin will be at a place where they are ready to be judged for it." In other words, even though Israel was living through a holocaust, through bitter suffering, slavery and genocide, and it might have appeared like God had forgotten and forsaken them, the plan of God was right on track; everything was happening according to a decree He had set in motion 400 years ago! In fact, God was using their dire circumstances to prepare for one of His mightiest acts in all of history! Wow, that sounds a lot like Rom. 8:28 (NASB) And we know that God causes all things to work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to [His] purpose. John Piper tells about a family in his congregation. The son was hurt in a boating accident where a motorboat actually ran right over him in the water. He survived, but his knees were severely injured. There were cuts on his neck and chest from the propeller. One day his father stood up in a deacons' meeting and gave a testimony about taking comfort in the sovereignty of God. He said, "God has His purposes for the life of my son and for my whole family. This will turn out for the good of all of us as we trust in Him. God could have taken my son with another half-inch difference. But instead, He said to the blade: 'Thus far and no farther.'" [The Pleasures of God by John Piper. Multnomah, 1991. Page 68.] Even in the crucible of tragedy and suffering God is in absolute control and He makes no mistakes. His plan is right on track! So, essentially, you're faced with two choices: you can resist it or you can cooperate with it! And in this chapter you can see both. On the Egyptians' part you can see:

2. the futility of opposing God's plan Look at the result of the oppression in v. 12. The more they oppressed them the more they multiplied! So, they began their program of genocide and look at vs. 20b. They multiplied even more! You can't stop what God is doing no matter how hard you try! You can't fight against God! Pharaoh learned that the hard way in the end. Mao Tse Tung tried to stamp out the church in China but instead he drove it underground and through the blessing of his persecution it multiplied and grew incredibly until today there may be as many as 100 million believers in China! That's a warning for the Pharaohs and the Hitlers of earth, but don't miss the fact that it's a warning for you too. God may have you in the crucible of suffering and you may not like it, but if that's where He wants you at this moment, your best course is to accept it and praise Him and run to Him for strength! So many times, our first response is to become angry and upset at God and blame Him for our suffering as though He doesn't love us or to frantically get involved in our own schemes to get out of the circumstances we're in by hook or by crook. That's where Israel went, as we'll see, and that's opposing God just as much as the Egyptians were. When suffering comes, God's desire for you is to be where Job was when all that terrible stuff happened: Job 1:20-21 At this, Job...fell to the ground in worship and said...The LORD gave and the LORD has taken away; may the name of the LORD be praised. Worship Him; praise Him; run to Him. He will be all you need! Now on the other hand you can see in the story of the midwives:

3. the blessing of cooperating with God's plan (17-21) Shiphrah and Puah determined to obey God rather than Pharaoh. They knew it was evil to kill babies and they did not do it. They made up an excuse to Pharaoh, but it was really God who allowed them to do that without losing their own lives as you would expect. They cooperated with God and sought to obey Him in the moment and God blessed them there in the midst of the crucible. He gave them families of their own. Following God, no matter how impossible or untenable it looks in your suffering, is always the path to blessing. Now let me remind you of one last thing from this story:

4. you have a specific place in God's plan You can see this most clearly as the story is retold by Paul in Acts 7:17-20a. AT THAT TIME Moses was born. God multiplied the people and placed them into a time of suffering and now that everything was prepared for their redemption, AT THAT TIME God sent Moses into the world in the midst of it all. He arrived at the exact time God had determined to fulfill a specific place in His larger plan. So did you! You may not be a leader like Moses. You may not be queen like Esther, but like her ...you have come to royal position for such a time as this!" - Est. 4:14 You have arrived at the exact place, the exact circumstance where you are right now at the very time that God has determined and wherever you are, God has something for you to do there! Ask Him! Rowland Bingham, the founder of SIM International, was once seriously injured in an automobile accident. He was rushed to a hospital in critical condition. The following day, when he regained consciousness, he asked the nurse what he was doing there.

"Don't try to talk now, just rest," she replied. "You have been in an accident." "Accident!" exclaimed Dr. Bingham.

"There are no accidents in the life of a Christian. This is just an incident in God's perfect leading."

Friend, your life has not been derailed and God hasn't taken a long vacation. You are right on track and He is right there. You are right where God has planned you to be. If your life is at this moment a life of bondage that is made bitter with hard labor, know that He has a plan to use it for your good and for His glory, just as He did the Israelites. For more than 50 years, John Wesley, the great English preacher and missionary of the 18th century, heeded the command of Psalm 37:1 (Do not fret because of evil men or be envious of those who do wrong.) as he correlated it with Romans 8:28 (God causes all things to work together for good...) He attributed much of his spiritual strength and freedom from worry to a total reliance upon God's sustaining grace and overruling providence. He said, "Ten thousand cares trouble me no more than ten thousand hairs upon my head. Yes, I feel certain things and at times may even grieve over them, but I fret at nothing!" He always delighted in those who clung to God in faith, rolled their care on Him, and refused to worry. In his Journal, Vol. 5, p. 66, he relates this incident: "Today I visited one who was ill in bed. She had buried seven of her family in six months, and had just heard that her beloved husband was cast away at sea. I asked, 'Don't you fret at any of these things?' She answered with a loving smile on her pale cheeks, 'Oh, no! How can I fret at anything which is in the will of God? Let Him take all besides; He has given me Himself. I have learned to love and praise Him every moment.'" There it is, beloved, the truth that makes all the difference! He has given me Himself! What more could He give? His Presence will go with Me and He will give me rest! IF, I am willing to rest in Him and in Him alone. Are you?

I. God's Preparation For Redemption - Chs. 1-4

He Prepared His Servant-Leader - Ch. 2

God not only prepares circumstances as part of His plan; He prepares PEOPLE! There is one key lesson I have learned throughout the years: whenever God wants to get something done, He raises up a person to do it! A champion, a leader, a person who has been prepared for the task and has a sense of being called to it. He operates that way right here in this church all the time; when He wants something done, He raises up someone to do it. So, it is no wonder that when God decided to redeem Israel and bring them out of bondage in Egypt, that He prepared and called a man, a man who was destined to become one of the well-known leaders in all of human history: Moses. The story of his life begins in Chapter 2 and in this chapter, we'll see how God prepared Him for the task; we'll see later in chs. 3-4 how God calls him to the task. First of all, I want you to see how:

I. God Shaped The Course Of Moses' Life By Events just as He does with each one of us. In Moses' case, we are given in the record only 3 of the thousands of events in his life so I'm figuring that these 3 are obviously what God wants us to know and that they are likely the 3 key events that shaped his life the most. The first is:

1. an incident of protection (1-10) [read text] You remember Pharaoh's genocidal edict from Ch. 1: every Hebrew baby boy that is born must be thrown into the Nile. For Moses to be born at this moment in history and live, God had to protect him, and He did, supernaturally! Of course, His protection:

a. it involved human means (2-4) His mother was a courageous woman and a loving mother. She had her baby in secret and she hid him as long as she could. But she was also smart. She had a plan. When she couldn't hide him any longer, she made a little ark, a basket boat out of reeds, cementing them together with tar and sealing the outside with pitch, exactly the way the Egyptians boat makers did it. Their papyrus boats crossed oceans and Moses' little ark built by her loving hand was no doubt safe and well-sealed! Then she put him in it and put it in the reeds near the bank, as though it had lodged there, near a public place where he would be found. But I'm also sure she did not choose just any place! For him to be found by any old Egyptian or even a Hebrew would probably guarantee his death. They'd be afraid for their own lives and throw him back into the Nile! The only ones who would not be afraid of the Pharaoh's decree would be his own family! I have a feeling she knew this was where Pharaoh's daughter came to the Nile to do her ritual washing, to pay her homage to the Nile god. And she stationed Moses' older sister Miriam, only a girl, nearby to watch over him and see what would happen. It was a daring, bold, well-thought-out human plan that God used, but:

b. it involved Divine intervention This plan, even though carefully crafted, was pretty feeble, as most of our human plans are. The right person had to find him. Their heart had to be touched with sympathy and they would have to want to keep a child of another race for themselves. What are the chances of all that happening? Well, you read vs. 5-6! The person to hear him was Pharaoh's own daughter. Jewish tradition has given her the name Bithiah from 1 Chr. 4:18 but at any rate, when she opened the basket Moses was crying and God touched her heart. She was moved with compassion and pity and decided to rescue him in defiance of her own father's decree! Just at that moment Miriam stepped up and volunteered to find a Hebrew wet nurse for him so in v. 9 Moses' own mother gets him back and gets paid to nurse and raise him! How neat is that! But what's even neater is the implication of v. 10, that because of God's intervention in this way, Moses is raised, not only as an Egyptian, but in the very court of Pharaoh. That day changed the very course of his life. In one hour God made him an Egyptian by default. Think about it: Pharaoh decrees that every Hebrew boy must be killed and God has Pharaoh himself raise and protect as his own grandson the very Hebrew who is destined to rescue Israel! What irony, protected by the very tyrant who decreed his death! Only God could do that!

How many times has God protected you! How many of us would be dead right now if God had not kept us from a car accident or healed us of some deadly illness? How many times has He spared your life in ways that only He could do so that you would be here to be used in His plan? Felix was a priest who served the Lord in Nola, Italy during the late 200's AD. Persecution under the Emperor Decius broke out and he was being sought. As he was fleeing from his enemies, he called on God for help and took refuge in a cave. He had scarcely entered when a spider began to spin a web over the opening. The pursuers saw the spider's lacy veil blocking the entrance and didn't bother to look inside. They figured that no one could have entered without disturbing that delicate curtain of silk. So, they left, and the life of one of God's noble men was spared for additional service for Christ. Felix of Nola later summed up his experience in these words, "Where God is, a spider's web is a wall; where He is not, a wall is but a spider's web." God prepares us for His service by protecting us and if He has decreed that we will be safe then it does not matter how hot the fiery furnace we are thrown in! Trust in Him, but know that these incidents of His protection are His means of shaping your life for His service. Your life is not your own; save it for His purpose! Now the second major event we know of in Moses' life was:

2. an incident of decision (11-15) It is now 40 years later. I have no idea how long Moses' mother got to keep him with her, but I'm pretty sure that it was way beyond the time when she stopped nursing him. Whatever months or years she had with him, God must have used to help him remember one thing: that He was a Hebrew and Hebrews worshipped the True God. On this day he went out to watch the Hebrew slaves, his own brothers at work. He was touched by the injustice they were suffering. He couldn't take the cruelty that was being dished out to one man and he made a decision that changed his life forever. He ended up murdering the Egyptian and hiding him in the sand to cover up his deed. And of course, the result was that it became known, he became a wanted criminal and had to flee the country with the clothes on his back. That one decision shaped his entire future. Fortunately for us, we know:

a. the true nature of his motives because God wrote it down for us from the lips of Stephen as he retold the story in Acts 7:22-25. The NIV omits one word in v. 23. "When Moses was fully forty years old..." This was not the rash impulse of a 20 year old youth with a crazy dream; this was the decision of a 40 year old mature leader. It was not born out of an outburst of anger but out of a reasoned conclusion that Moses had come to as he pondered for years the fact that God had him "switched at birth" from a Hebrew slave into a Prince of Egypt. At some point he had come to believe in the God of Israel and reasoned that God had put him in that place of power to rescue his own oppressed people, to deliver them! Surely God would use him to be the savior of his people, to end their long night of suffering! And so, he made the decision to act, the decision that changed his life. He thought surely his people would understand that and appreciate him, but they didn't, as he found out the very next day. But let's not skip over this too lightly; let's look at:

b. the true nature of his decision It is recorded for us in Heb. 11:24-25. He chose to identify himself with God and with His suffering people rather than with the power of the throne of Egypt. He chose Christ and with Him suffering rather than the path of selfish pleasure. He chose eternal reward over temporary ruling. And even though his understanding of how God would work was faulty, he did what he did because of faith, because he believed in the God of Israel and forsook the gods of Egypt. That is a decision God wants all of us to make and at one point or another He brings us all to a choice point. There comes a day when we have to make a decision: surrender our lives and our future and everything about ourselves to Him and risk the consequences of that or go on living to please ourselves, doing what we want, wasting our short earthly lives fulfilling our own lusts. That day came for me when I was 19 and the decision I made put me here today instead of where I had planned to go with my life. Many of us have already made that decision; we have sold out and recognized that all we are and have is His and we're willing to follow Him anywhere and do anything He asks. Our life is lived asking, "Lord, what would you have me to do?" But a lot of us are still too reluctant to leave the palace of our own dreams and desires and go out and join our true brethren who are following Him. We're not willing to risk all, or even risk much at all, for Him. If we think it's going to cost us our friends or our job or our money or our comfort, we're not willing to sign up. But Moses was! And as in our case too:

c. God determined the consequences of his decision Vs. 14-15 tell us that his deed became known, Pharaoh found out and became furious and tried to arrest him and put him to death for this act of treason. And he fled for his life, alone and probably on foot 250 miles through the wilderness of the Sinai Peninsula up around the end of the Gulf of Aqaba on the east across the boundary line of Egyptian territory into the land of Midian, the southern extreme of modern Jordan or northwest Saudi Arabia, where he sat down exhausted by a well. That moment of decision took him back from prince to pauper just as quickly as the moment of protection had taken him from pauper to prince. It cost him everything, but God used it to get him OUT of the land of Egypt where he would learn more about God through:

3. an incident of provision (16-22) He was a stranger, alone and without food. Yet:

a. he followed God's moral will. In v. 17 he rescued some shepherdesses who were being bullied at the well when they came to water their flock. He stood up for them and fought for them, one against several, just because it was the right thing to do. But unbeknownst to him:

b. God ordered his circumstances Their father Reuel (or Jethro) turns out to be a godly man, a priest of God even. And in vs. 19-20 he takes in the stranger, offers him a place to stay and then employment caring for his flocks and in time even offers his daughter in marriage. What was not clear while he was fleeing through the wilderness was becoming clear: "God has been at work and has provided a way for me to live. It wasn't what I expected but it sure must be from Him." And note that:

c. he accepted God's provision for him v. 21 says Moses "agreed"; the KJV says he was "content", lit. he made a decision of the will to stay with Jethro and accept this life. He decided that since he was being obedient and this is what God had led him directly to, that he would accept it from the hand of God. So, for 40 long years he becomes a shepherd, tending sheep in the wilderness with a staff, knowing nothing more than the simple joys of family life, a wife, a child, a hot fire and warm food at night and honest hard work during the day, forgetting all about that palace life in Egypt and the suffering of his people. He accepted what God provided and that provision also proved to be a key experience in his life.

You see, God not only shaped the COURSE of Moses' life by these 3 key events:

II. God Shaped The Character Of Moses' Life By His Experiences as a result of those events. Look back a moment and think about it:

1. his 40 years in Egypt gave him the qualities of a leader - Acts 7:22 says Moses was educated in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and was powerful in speech and action. Moses was no dummy. He had years of the best education Egypt could offer. He became a powerful man among his people, a leader that could be followed. It made him a man whose mind knew more than brick-making, one who understood freedom and justice and power and nations, one who was unafraid to step up and lead for the right cause. God needed that in him! And yet:

2. his birth and years with his mother gave him his unshakeable identity as a Hebrew - Acts 7:23 reminded us, When Moses was forty years old, he decided to visit his fellow Israelites. Why? Why care about them? Why visit them and be concerned about their suffering? No matter how hard he tried, He couldn't shake it. He was ONE of them; they were HIS people. And God needed that in him desperately. But then came the ultimate decision of his life and his whole world came crashing down around him. Yet:

3. his immense failure brought him to deep humility His cause was right, but Moses thought HE would deliver his people. He was too full of self for God to use. So God showed him how little and small and vulnerable he really was and sent him packing out of Egypt. And you know what the ultimate result of that was? A parenthesis in Num. 12:3 which says years later, Now Moses was a very humble man, more humble than anyone else on the face of the earth. How did he get that way? I suspect it didn't happen in Egypt, but rather through his awful failure, which is how God so often has to break us of our self-centered pride. And finally:

4. his 40 years in Midian gave him the patience of a shepherd which he was going to need to lead a million and a half grumbling and complaining people across that wilderness to the promised land. On one occasion in the middle of it he complains to God, Num. 11:12 Did I conceive all these people? Did I give them birth? Why do you tell me to carry them in my arms, as a nurse carries an infant, to the land you promised on oath to their forefathers? That was his assignment, to carry a nation of people in his arms as a nurse carries an infant. And how did he learn that? By carrying a flock of sheep back and forth across the desert in his arms for 40 years. There he learned the patience God would need to have in Him.

Someone put it this way: "Moses spent 40 years in Egypt learning to be something, 40 years in Midian learning to be nothing, and 40 years in the wilderness proving God to be everything!" And that last would not have come without the first two. God uses everything He sends into your life to shape your character and to create in you exactly the qualities He needs in you to fill the place in His plan He's shaping you for. The good news is that you don't have to understand the details of how He's doing it; you just have to trust it's taking place and follow Him no matter what happens! Now here's the key thought that pulls it all together:

III. God Correlated The Preparation Of His Man With His Entire Plan (23-25) Think about how God caused all these circumstances to come together.

Moses' 80 years of preparation ended at the exact time...when Abraham's 400 year promise was complete. God told Abraham that after 400 years his children would be brought out of slavery and 12:41 says, At the end of the 430 years, to the very day, all the LORD's divisions left Egypt. V. 25 tells us that his preparation ended... when the Pharaoh died who wanted to kill him so that now he could return to Egypt without being a wanted man. V. 26 tells us it ended... when the Israelites were desperate enough to leave their life in Egypt, when their suffering was so awful that they were groaning and crying out for help, ready at last to leave Egypt and its gods. And it ended at the exact time... when God was ready to judge the peoples of Canaan by bringing Israel into their land. The life of one man and three nations of peoples all woven together in a specific pattern that only the hand of God could correlate, a pattern called the plan of God. And that's what He's doing with your life too. He's preparing you, shaping you, molding you, for that exact place He has for you in His plan. It is not always easy. Only God knows how much Moses must have cried and agonized and perhaps despaired at times. So will you, but the lesson of Moses' life is that despite all of the upheaval and agony and pain that may come into your life, trust God; He knows what He is doing. I leave you with this poem by an anonymous author found in Ray Edman's book "The Disciplines Of Life":

When God wants to drill a man,
And thrill a man,
And skill a man,

When God wants to mold a man
To play the noblest part;

When He yearns with all His heart to create so great and bold a man
That all the world shall be amazed, Watch His methods, watch His ways!

How He ruthlessly perfects Whom He royally elects!
How He hammers him and hurts him,
And with mighty blows converts him Into trial shapes of clay which Only God understands;

While his tortured heart is crying
And he lifts beseeching hands!
How He bends but never breaks
When his good He undertakes;

How He uses whom He chooses,
And with every purpose fuses him;
By every act induces him
To try His splendor out--

God knows what He's about.

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

I. God's Preparation For Redemption - Chs. 1-4

He Called His Servant-Leader - Chs. 3-4

In chapter 2, we saw how God prepared Moses for the task that He had planned for him. In chs. 3-4 we'll see how God called Moses to the task He had planned for him. This idea of being called by God to His service is a scary thing to many believers. Often, they feel God only calls people to big important tasks like He did Moses. For instance, God might call a person to become a pastor or a missionary. But I believe God has planned a place of service in life for each one of us. It may be in those kinds of major life-altering directions or it may be a calling to go on a short term missions trip or to teach a Sunday school class or to care for babies in the nursery or even to care for the church's website. But whatever He has planned for us, He has prepared us to serve in that role and He also has to call us to serve in that role. Now that call may be very dramatic and unmistakable like Moses' was. I met an old preacher once who told me he was called to preach while operating a bulldozer one day, that God spoke to him just as clearly as you or I would. But God's call may be also be the aligning of a set of circumstances that all point to you as the one to do the job or it may be as simple as a desire He has placed in your heart to do the task that is in front of you. But however the call comes to you, it will contain the same 3 elements. Let's explore them together in the story of Moses' call.

I. The Elements Of God's Call [read 3:1-6] Every call, if it is from God, contains:

- 1. a vision: and by that I don't mean a miraculous sight like bush that burns but never burns up or a picture in your mind or a dream. I mean that every call, no matter how dramatic or how mundane, imparts to you: a clear sense of who God is. You see, God's call:

a. it comes in the midst of life's experiences to one who is ready Moses was busy being a shepherd, watching sheep and leading them all over the wilderness to find pasture. He felt called to that simply by the fact that all the circumstances pointed to it clearly 40 years earlier when he fled from Egypt and arrived in Midian. And he was simply going about it when God stepped into the midst of his experience to interrupt it and say clearly: "There is something else I want you to do!" That's how God works. He is always leading us on to the next task. His calling comes to us right where we are in the midst of life; you don't have to go off on some week long spiritual retreat and sit under a tree to hear it. He comes to you right where you are in the middle of all that you are doing and says, "Look at this. This is what I want you to do." When Moses saw the bush, he was interested. He knew it was a wondrous thing, a supernatural thing. He knew God was in this somewhere and when he heard his name, he said, Here I am! That means more than "I'm over here!" It is the Hebrew way of saying, "I am ready; I am waiting for Your instructions; I am at your service." Isaiah heard God and responded by saying, "Here I am; send me!" God doesn't call people who don't want to know His will, who don't want Him in their lives. God calls people who will "come over to look", people who live in readiness, who pray, "Lord, what will you have me to do!" And when God is making His presence known in our lives:

b. it always brings a sense of Gods' holiness and sovereignty. The fact that Moses saw a bush burn is incidental. Moses realized that God is sovereign, that He is in control and that he is holy and pure. He took off his shoes and bowed his head in reverence. He came before God humbly, reverently, with a sense of God. Whenever God shows up in our lives, we get that sense that Jacob had when he woke up after his ladder dream: ...Surely the LORD is in this place; and I knew [it] not. "This is God talking to me" and you feel humbled that He is showing Himself in your life and want to submit to Him. When you have a call, you always have a strong sense of WHO it is from. Secondly, every call contains:

2. a purpose: that is, a clear understanding of what God is doing (3:7-9) Moses hadn't thought much about that in years. Egypt and the suffering of his people was out of mind. His life was occupied with what was in front of his nose, sheep and shepherding. But God told him, "I'm about something bigger than this; I have redemption on My heart. I hear the suffering of My people in Egypt and I'm getting ready to rescue them and bring them out." Oh, Jesus has a bigger purpose on his heart than the daily stuff that we are so occupied with and bogged down in. He is about redemption! He is ...taking from all the nations a people for himself - Acts 15:14. He is making disciples from among all the nations, building His church, advancing His kingdom into the hearts of people where you live and where you work as well as all over the world. The heart of God is not about building the size of your flock, or increasing the amount of money you have in the bank or making your business successful; it is about redeeming people from the bondage of sin and delivering them out of the kingdom of darkness where they live and into the kingdom of light where you live. That is why you are on earth! That is His program and He has a place for you to be involved in it! If God is calling you, He makes it clear to you not only who He is, but how the most important task on earth is bringing people into relationship with Him! Then thirdly, every call contains:

3. a plan: that is, a clear direction as to what I am to do (3:10) God says, "I need a man to lead my people out and I want YOU to go do it!" He showed Moses the place he was to have in the purpose God was about. Of course, He does not call everyone to be the leader, the "Moses". He calls plenty of "Joshuas" to assist the leaders with practical details and He even calls "Bezalels" and "Oholiab" to build the physical structure where He will be worshipped. But whatever His plan for you is:

a. it is revealed specifically (16-22) Notice how He tells Moses who to speak to and exactly what to say. God's call is not "Here, go do this and make up your own plan!" He is a God of details. He wants to lead us in the specifics. He wants to show us what, when, how and who. But that brings up another thought. His plan:

b. it is revealed progressively God gave Moses an outline but He didn't tell Moses everything all at once. All of the 10 plagues God was planning are covered by the simple statement of v. 20. Moses had to keep on listening and as he needed instructions, God would make them clear. That's how a call works. After you take the first step that God has made plain to you, He will make the next step clear and then the next and the next. God will not give you a blueprint for the next 10 years of your life all at once; He reserves the right to be Lord, to superintend and direct as you go. What He has in mind is often nothing like what you imagine and He has the right to change it as He goes. The future is His; the important thing is to obey what He has shown you do to NOW and rest in this:

c. it is revealed sufficiently Whatever He has shown you to do is ENOUGH. It is all you need to know. If you needed more, He would have given it! When He lifts your eyes to what He's about and impresses on you, "I want you to do THIS.", just DO it and trust Him.

Listen to this testimony of one couple who were met by God's call in their lives:

As I stood on the trail, a shot rang out. I whirled around because the noise was loud, coming from close by. I peered into the woods, but no one was visible. I placed my hand on my leg and felt something warm. When I pulled my hand away, I could see that it was covered in blood. I had been shot! I would later consider this as God's call on my life. During my recovery from the bullet wound I had time to think. Why did this happen to me? What is the meaning of this? While recuperating at home I read about the need for agricultural missionaries in Bangladesh. I learned it was one of the world's poorest countries. There was a desperate need to increase agricultural production to feed its starving population. I had been raised on a farm, had a degree in agriculture and was working as a soil scientist. After talking with my wife, Donna, praying and discussing my thoughts with our pastor, I submitted an application to a missions organization for possible service. Then I waited ... and waited and waited some more! I never heard back from the mission's office. With time, I accepted that as God's response. God didn't want us in Bangladesh for some reason. We now know that God had other plans for us. Over the years, while working in the secular world, Donna and I have found a variety of ways to serve. They have included ministering in choir, the church kitchen, servant ministries, church maintenance, human resources, on the nominating committee, official board, as delegates — wherever we can contribute. We have learned that God's call to service doesn't always mean full-time work in missions or ministry; it just means full-time service to God wherever we are. Donna and I are now close to retirement age. We don't feel that God only calls the young. We know that God calls those who are in their 50s, 60s and beyond. We don't feel too old for ministry. We are waiting on the Lord with obedient hearts, praying for His guidance and continuing to listen for His next call. [“God's Call” by Glenn Weesies www.freemethodistchurch.org/Sections/LifeAdvice/Stories/08-20-04_Weesies.htm] God has a call for you too, if you're listening! What is yours? But once you've heard it, the question becomes, how will you respond? Let's look at Moses' response to what God revealed and we will see:

II. The Effects Of God's Call

There are two of them. The first, as I've already alluded to, is:

1. genuine humility: (3:11) Moses' first thought is: I am not worthy! He is absolutely awed with a profound sense of wonder that God would use him for so great a task. That's a tremendously healthy thing. If your reaction is, “Wow, God finally noticed my abilities and gave me something important to do!”, you're in deep trouble! Jesus said, you also, when you have done everything you were told to do, should say, 'We are unworthy servants; we have only done our duty.'” - Luke 17:10. Even the great Paul never lost that; he wrote, I am the least of the apostles and do not even deserve to be called an apostle - 1Cor 15:9. We are not worthy of whatever privilege God has granted us. But in answer to that we have:

- God's assurance: (3:12) God says, I am with you! Always! This means nothing to the proud, but to the humble it means everything. When God calls us to a thing; He will be WITH us in the thing! What more could we ask! And the second effect of His call is:

2. genuine curiosity: (3:13) Our question is always How will this work? “What should I say?” “What about this or that?” “What if this happens or that happens?” We're curious; we always want to know how God is going to work out all the details. It's natural. But in answer to that we have:

- God's answer: (14-15) God did not explain the details; He simply said, remember this: I AM who I AM! “My Name is Jehovah, the Eternal I Am, the One who always was, always is and always will be! I am the God of your fathers, the God who was there for all the generations of the faithful before you and who will be there for all the generations after you. I gave Abraham a son, I gave Isaac a wife, I delivered Jacob from Esau and put Joseph on the throne of Egypt and I haven't changed!” Get the point? God is God and that's really all you need to know! How it's going to work is HIS problem!

Humility and curiosity are normal reactions when God calls us to serve Him, and God is quite patient with us and willing to reassure us. But in Ch. 4 Moses had some other reactions too. These are actually:

III. The Objections To God's Call (4:1-23)

These are not brought in a spirit of humility but in a spirit of resistance and doubt. The first one that always comes up is:

1. impracticality: (1) The first thing we always object is: This won't work! And we always have our reasons! “I tried this before. They didn't listen. You don't know them; they're hard-nosed people. Yada...yada...yada...” We always have fifty reasons why it doesn't make sense to do what God is telling us to do, why it will never work. But again, we have:

- God's assurance: (2-9) God says, I will MAKE it work! “What do you have in your hand? A stick? Just watch! I can make a stick into a snake and I can make it back into a stick again when I want to. I can give you an illness and I can take it away from you just as easily. Water changes into blood or into wine at My Word! I will MAKE Israel listen to you!” Nothing is impractical if God chooses to do it! Moses divided the sea by waving a stick. Gideon sent almost all his soldiers home to win the battle! David killed a 9 foot armor-clad giant with a stone and Israel knocked down impenetrable walls at Jericho by shouting at them. And if God tells you to do something, He will make it turn out exactly as He has planned, no matter how impractical or foolish it looks. And the second objection that always comes up is:

2. inability: (10) I can't do it! “I can't speak in public. I'm too shy. I'm not organized enough. I have no experience. I've never done anything like that before. I'm not strong enough. I'm not smart enough.” The excuses are many and varied but they stem from one faulty thought pattern: this depends on ME! But that is not what God intends at all. We have:

- God's assurance: (11-12) God says, I will enable you! “It is not about you or your ability. It is about ME and MY ability. I made you and prepared you for this and I will empower you to do what I command!” God has no lack of ability! Rather what He needs is our availability, our willingness to obey and do what He says. But often when we throw up the objection of inability to God, it is merely a disguise for one of the:

IV. The Obstacles To God's Call that we see in the end of the chapter (4:13-26). Was Moses really not eloquent and slow of speech? Stephen said in Acts that at 40 he was a man "mighty in words and deeds". The truth is that he was trying to disguise his:

1. unwillingness: (13) There's what he really means: I don't want to do it! "I like my life as a shepherd here with nothing to worry about beyond these sheep. I don't want to go back there and get involved in all of that. I don't want to face the trouble, the danger, the responsibility. Send somebody else! I don't want to go!" Now God has been very patient with Moses up to this point, and has assured him and even reassured him after his objections. But Here is the line. When I am unwilling to do what God wants me to do, that is insubordination against the Lord of the Universe. He doesn't like that (14-17) Moses got the tone of that. Accommodations God will make, but unwillingness is an offense and Moses knew better than to continue in it. So in vs. 18-23 Moses finally obeys and goes! He heads home and tells his father-in-law and packs up his family and heads for Egypt. And on the way we have this strange story in vs. (24-26) that spells out for us the final obstacle that impedes God's call:

2. disobedience: (24-26) I don't have time this morning to explain all there is to know about this story. Just note that in v. 20 mentions Moses' sonS, plural. His first son, Gershom, was born over 35 years earlier in 2:22; he was a full-grown man. This fight is over his second son, who is unnamed here, but whom we find out later he names Eliezer in connection with this incident. Look at 18:1-4. God sent his wife and sons back to Midian after this incident. Eliezer's name is given with the exclamation, "God saved me from the sword of Pharaoh." When? Look back to 4:19. That's his response to God's news that Pharaoh is dead! My guess on what's happening is this: Zipporah was pregnant while Moses was out in the wilderness meeting God. He arrived home in time for the birth. Hebrew children were always circumcised on the 8th day as far back as Abraham. Moses and Gershom packed up mom and baby and started for Egypt and the 8th day happened on the way. That night Moses was supposed to circumcise and name his son and he and Zipporah have a fight about it. She will not give in. It is a bloody custom! And Moses is evidently about to give in to her and disobey God's command so God holds him paralyzed until she gives in and he obeys. Now you don't have to buy that scenario, but it makes sense to me. In effect Moses said: I WILL NOT do what You say! until he was forced. Unwillingness and disobedience are the two obstacles that fully stand in the way of your calling. As long as you remain unwilling or disobedient, instead of using you, God has to discipline you! Remember Jonah's lesson! And don't forget this lesson from Moses, either. Be like Mary, who when God's call came to her answered, "I am the Lord's servant,...May it be to me as you have said." - Luke 1:38. A businessman by the name of Reynolds from Peoria IL, gave this testimony about evangelist D. L. Moody, "The first time I ever saw him was in a little shanty that had been abandoned by a saloonkeeper. He had managed to get possession of the place in order to hold a meeting that night. I was a little late and had never met Mr. Moody, but when I came in, the first thing I saw was a heavyset man standing up holding a small black boy in his arms. By the light of a few tallow candles he was trying to read to him the story of the prodigal son. A great many of the words he could not make out, and so he had to skip them. I thought, if the Lord can ever use such an instrument as that for His honor and glory, it will certainly astonish me! After the meeting was over, Moody said to me. 'Mr. Reynolds, I have only one talent; I have no education, but I love the Lord Jesus Christ. I want to do something for Him. Pray for me. Pray for me every day; pray now that the Lord will keep me humble.'" Reynolds reported later, "I have never ceased, from that day to this, to pray for that devoted Christian soldier. I have watched him since then, have had counsel with him, and know him thoroughly; and, for consistent walk and conversation, I have never met a man to equal him." God used D.L. Moody to change the world of his day just the way He used Moses in his day. And He will use you just the way He has planned. If you maintain that humble spirit and have a heart that has truly caught a vision of His greatness and wants to do something for Him, He will call you to it. Are you listening? How will you respond?

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

I. God's Preparation For Redemption - Chs. 1-4

He Prepared Israel Through Discouragement - Chs. 5-6

In Ch. 1 we saw how God prepared the circumstances to redeem Israel. In Ch. 2 we saw how God prepared Moses to participate in that redemption and then in 3-4 how God called him to that task. But God's final step of preparation for what He was about to do in chs. 5-6 is one that we would not immediately recognize. Ch. 5 is the story of a grand failure. Moses goes and does what God tells him and it backfires; it makes everything ten times worse than it already is. It has the opposite effect of everything he intended. And as a result, both He and Israel become discouraged. Now failure and discouragement are not high on our list of favorite ways we'd like God to work. In our estimation they rate right up there with root canals and colonoscopies as things He might use to enrich our lives, yet failures, discouragements, setbacks and like painful events are some of His greatest and most powerful tools as we've already seen in Moses' early life. So, let's trace the story together and see what we can learn. We begin with:

I. The Hopeful Obedience Of God's Servants Moses is on his way back to Egypt as we meet him in 4:27-30: So, notice that:

1. Moses went to the elders of Israel exactly as God had commanded; he did what he was told and he was encouraged by seeming initial success (31). They believed him! That was a miracle in itself! And they bowed down and worshipped; they believed God. I'm sure Moses thought, "Wow, this is really working!" And so:

2. Moses went to Pharaoh as God had commanded (5:1) Can't you see him marching in there full of confidence making his demand? I'm sure he fully expected Pharaoh to comply with it in one way or another or at least to reject it temporarily in some more minor fashion, but he was clearly not prepared for:

II. The Discouraging Results Of Their Obedience Pharaoh had a fit. He reacted entirely the opposite of how they expected that God would have him react! You see, we think (and we are taught) that if God is in it, it has to succeed; it has to work! But what about when God is in it and we do everything by the book and it doesn't work? Now Pharaoh is kind of the villain of all villains, the kind of guy you love to hate. He is a picture of every haughty, proud person who lifts themselves up against God and His people. He's a type of every tyrannical ruler who tries to persecute the church down through the ages. And in the end, he's a pretty good stand-in for Satan himself as he stands opposed to the work of God, to God's redeeming actions, whatever form they take. God's people obediently advance and he fights back. Just think how this looks from the viewpoint of Moses and Israel. As a result of their listening and going to Pharaoh:

1. their God was ridiculed (2) "Who is this God of yours, anyway? I never heard of him! He's not real or if he is, he is the god of slaves! Look at how he treats his people! He lets you suffer!" When failure comes, when tragedy strikes, when you suffer, it does not take long for someone to mock and say, "Where is this God you're always talking about!" You probably know what that feels like, it's discouraging! You wanted this to be a witness and instead, it turns out to reinforce the opposite. And, of course:

2. their demand was rejected (2b) Pharaoh would not do what they wanted; they were not able to move forward. In effect, their prayer for deliverance, their groaning that the Lord heard, was not answered. He seemingly didn't do anything to set them free. I'm sure you know what that's like: you pray and pray for something and what you wanted with all your heart does not come to pass. How discouraging is that? When all you've planned and worked and prayed for doesn't come through, it's very discouraging. And what's worse is:

3. their motives were maligned (4-5) Pharaoh says, "You're lazy, that's the real problem. You just want to get the people a rest!" And he repeats that theme a little later when the Israelites can't do what is demanded of them (14-18). "You're lazy! Work harder and you won't be worried about this religious stuff!" When our plans fail, when our prayers go unanswered, how often are we ourselves blamed? Called fakes or charlatans, even if not out loud, in other people's minds. We're bigoted or narrow-minded or archaic or we're in it for the money or we're hypocrites, etc. etc. We want to see the glory of God and we get accused of all kinds of things, especially when we don't succeed and that is REALLY discouraging. And the worst result is:

4. their misery was multiplied (6-13) Now they had to make bricks without straw, and just as many of them! If they worked 12 hours a day before, now they had to go out and gather straw for another 6 hours so they could make the bricks and it was more than anyone could do. Their lives went from hard to impossible because Moses tried to do what God commanded! It backfired; instead of freeing them his efforts deepened their bondage and made them twice as miserable as they already were! You pray and you obey and instead of life getting better, it gets worse. New problems happen. New challenges arise. Instead of moving toward a light at the end of the tunnel, you become overwhelmed with the mountain of circumstances falling down all around you, too heavy to bear. Talk about discouraged! They were in the pits and when Moses saw what happened it sent him into the pits too! Now when you become discouraged it really affects you and you can see in the record that follows:

III. The Destructive Effects Of Discouragement When we become discouraged, it seems to be in our nature to look for someone to blame for our pain. And the three most likely candidates are other people, God or ourselves! When we are discouraged:

1. it often results in bitterness toward leaders (19-21) When people are leading us, we expect results and when things don't turn out the way we all expected, it's easy to say that it's their fault. Not that this is anything like what happened to Moses, but just as a case in point, myself and all our elders were very excited over the last year about the Jesus Video Project. We led you to donate something like $5,000 and to prayer walk repeatedly and finally 48,000 videos got mailed out at Easter. And we waited for the promised response cards...and waited....and asked...and waited. And last Thursday we got 3, yes 3!, cards in the mail. The lack of response has been tremendously discouraging all the way along and this is nearly unbelievable. And one very natural response you could have would be to blame me or to blame our leaders and we feel like blaming the leaders we know from Campus Crusade who led us into this thing. But the truth is that every home in 7 zip codes had the Gospel delivered to its front door; that WILL bear fruit. And moreover, every one of the leaders involved was only trying to be obedient to God as they were understanding His instructions to them. But when results don't happen and especially when things backfire and create worse problems, we become bitter toward our leaders:

- and display an unwillingness to follow them God sent Moses to speak to the Israelites again, but look at (6:9). Discouragement and suffering make us unwilling to listen, unwilling to follow the very people who are giving their lives to help and care for us, whether it is parents, teachers, or even church leaders. Secondly, discouragement:

2. it often results in bitterness toward God (5:22-23) Moses felt like God had failed, like He had not done His part, like He had forgotten that He was supposed to help. Oh, it is in these kinds of moments that Satan loves to implant these lies. "God should have protected me but He didn't. It wasn't fair, God shouldn't have let that happen to me; He doesn't love me!" You would be amazed at how many believers have some form of that lie hidden and buried away inside of them because of painful experiences they've gone through. We so often blame God when things go sour or if we're too scared to blame Him, we blame ourselves so that discouragement:

3. it often results in self-doubt (6:10-12) "It must be my fault. If only I'd have spoken with more authority or was more eloquent. If only I had known more... There's something wrong with me; that's why nothing ever works!" There's another lie that's buried down inside so many of us! And it keeps us from pressing on and serving God, because after all, "there must be something wrong with me! If I were better, smarter, stronger, more eloquent (you name it), things would have worked!"

And did you notice that all three of those responses on the part of Moses and Israel fell right in line with Pharaoh's plan? "Keep 'em in bondage! Make 'em suffer and they'll forget this Moses; they'll forget their god!" That has been Satan's strategy from that day to this! He wants to use discouragement and failure and suffering to drive wedges between you and the people who want to help you and between you and God! Divide and conquer; he knows that stratagem well! A few weeks ago, we watched a movie about the 16th century reformer Martin Luther. Luther was often overcome with depressing doubts. On one such occasion a friend said to him, "Our Lord in heaven is looking down and probably thinking, 'What shall I do with this man Luther? I have poured My mercies upon him and given him many gifts and much grace, and yet he will despair of My goodness.'" These well-chosen words shook Luther out of his gloom and uncertainty. So later on, when another friend visited him to complain about how severely the devil was buffeting him, Luther told his visitor, "The devil can do that in a masterly way; otherwise, he would be no devil! You come to me, dear friend, and believe that I can surely comfort you through God's Word, and that is good. But if you expect good from me, what may you not expect from Christ who died for you? Look up to Him who is ten thousand times better than I." Luther clearly learned how Satan wants to use our discouragement to defeat us and so must we. But we must also learn to see:

IV. The Purposes For Which God Sends Discouragement That's right, I said "God sends discouragement". I want you to turn back in the story with me for a moment and notice something. Look what God had told Moses before he ever went to Egypt: 3:18-20, 4:21 God had already told Moses Pharaoh wasn't going to listen! That Pharaoh was not going to let them go! God already knew it, planned for it and told Moses to expect it; when it happened, he should have been saying, "Wow, see! God said this was going to happen; everything is right on track!" It's clear that this setback, this failure, this discouragement was part of God's plan from the beginning. And God has also planned to build some of it into our lives, even if He doesn't spell it out so clearly for us. But why on earth would God put failure into His plan? Well, first of all:

1. God often enhances His glory through seeming failure Look what he says to Moses who is wallowing in doubt and discouragement (6:1). NOW you will see what I will do! Failure:

a. it reveals the human impossibility of what God is about to do Peter and the boys had been fishing all night and had failed to catch a single fish. Jesus came to them and said, "Let down your nets for a catch!" Peter's response was, "We've been fishing all night and we're the fishermen here; we know there aren't any fish out there to be caught! But I'll humor you and do it anyway." And when they pulled in all those fish, Peter's first response was to fall on his knees and say, "Depart from me for I'm a sinful man Lord!" He knew he was in the presence of God! His failure prepared him to understand that when the impossible happened that God was the one doing it. Moses' great failure proved to all Israel beyond doubt that their situation was humanly hopeless. No Moses, no mere man, could help them. So, when they were delivered it had to be the hand of God! Along those same lines, failure:

b. it reinforces the reliability of God's word when it eventually comes to pass Joseph had two dreams, that one day all his family would bow down before him. He thought they were from God. But what happened? His brothers sold him as a slave. They said, "We'll see what happens to his dreams!" He's taken to Egypt and just when he begins to get hope he is falsely accused and thrown into prison, and just when he begins to get hope, he is forgotten and left there two full years. But the Psalmist wrote, They bruised his feet with shackles, his neck was put in irons, till what he foretold came to pass, till the word of the LORD proved him true. - Psalm 105:18-19. Imagine the shock as his brothers are bowing down before him, now the #2 man on the throne of Egypt and he says, "I am Joseph!" I imagine that after their terror was over, they looked at one another and said, "He was right all those years ago; GOD was right! God's Word is true!" When God says something it always comes true and temporary failures just reinforce that all the more. It comes true DESPITE failures and discouragements. And failure:

c. it reinforces to us our absolute dependence on Him When we fail, we learn, "If this is ever gonna happen, it HAS to be God, 'cause I sure know I can't do it!" It throws us back on our knees crying out to him!

God finds all kinds of ways to get glory out of our very failures. They end up enhancing His reputation, verifying to us the very things He's taught us all along. But here's a second line of thought:

2. God often makes us willing to leave "the familiar" through suffering When life in Egypt was good, the Hebrews didn't want to leave. Egypt had become their home. If Moses had come and offered to lead them out, they'd have asked, "Why? We like it here!" So, God let them experience slavery and bondage, but even that wasn't so bad for a while. When they looked at Moses' offer to lead 2 million people out into the desert of Sinai where there were no roads and there was no water or food, maybe it wasn't so bad to work hard making bricks all day and at least have a couple of meals every day and a safe place to sleep. People stay in their suffering all the time because it's familiar; it's more comfortable than the alternative. Battered wives stay and keep getting battered because at least it's familiar and they understand it and can cope with it. So, in the bricks without straw phase God cranked the heat up a notch on Israel. He made their suffering so severe there was no way left for them to endure. He made them ready to leave! So often it is in times of failure and discouragement and suffering that we become willing to finally part with the things we're holding on to, that we become willing to "risk" following God into some new desert experience that we would have never have considered before! Then thirdly, if we're looking for Him:

3. God often reveals Himself more clearly in our time of suffering It is now, down in the pit of despair, that God chooses to give Moses a theology lesson (6:2-8). Why now? Why when is Moses so discouraged, he's hardly willing to go on? Well:

a. it is in these times we come to truly realize WHO He is (2-3) God says, "Moses, I've told you my Name, but now I want you to UNDERSTAND My Name! I am THE LORD, JEHOVAH, the Eternal One! Three times He says it, v. 6, 8. Through this time you will know me in a way that you never knew Me before, in a way that even your fathers never knew me! You will find out who I really am and what I can do! You'll see the greatness of My power revealed through your weakness! And:

b. it is in these times we come to truly realize He HEARS us (5) When He meets us down there in the pit of despair, when know we have reached our limit and our hope is dashed and God shows up and God speaks to us in a way that we can't miss. Then we KNOW it is HIM and that He cares! Sometimes in the midst of our discouragement we are finally ready to hear his still small voice because we've finally quit talking!

Irma Levesque tells this story: "I grew up in rural New Hampshire, the eldest daughter in a family of six children. In our chaotic household I found refuge in make-believe, often pretending that I was a beautiful girl named "Joan Bishop" (Joan from Joan of Arc and Bishop from the English translation of my French last name). I never told anyone else about Joan Bishop. It was a secret between God and me. Little girls grow up, though, and the day came when I bade good-bye to Joan Bishop...and to God. I moved to New York, got caught up in a fiercely competitive line of work, and gradually found my personal life getting lonelier and lonelier. In time I knew I wanted to return to God, but I hesitated. Would He welcome me back? One Sunday morning I could not stay away any longer. I went to a nearby church. I walked down the north aisle, past the old pews, each with its own waist-high door and tiny brass nameplates, relics from the 19th century when parishioners purchased their seats. I chose an empty pew and closed the door behind me. 'Please, God,' I began to pray, 'I'm lonely and afraid. Are You here? Is this the place for me? Will these people all around take me in?' I wanted God's assurance that I should stay in that church, but no assurance seemed to come. Suddenly I felt an overpowering urge to leave. Hastily gathering up my coat and scarf, I opened the pew door and stepped into the aisle. As I turned to shut the old door, my eyes were drawn to its tiny brass nameplate. The plate read: J. BISHOP. I returned to my seat. I was home again." [His Mysterious Ways. Fleming H. Revell, 1988. Pages 72-74.] It is in those times when it feels like the bottom has fallen out of our lives, when all our hopes are dashed and discouragement threatens to sweep us away. It is then that God often speaks the clearest if we're listening.

O my friends, when you fail is not the time to give up. When you're discouraged it is not the time to throw in the towel and become bitter and blame other people and blame yourself or even blame God. It is the time to listen harder, to say, "OK God, I know that NOTHING happens to me outside of your plan and You know what you're doing. This thing did not take you by surprise. So speak, Lord! I'm listening! Show me what to do next. Show me more of who You are. Show me how you want to get glory out of this thing. Speak Lord, for I love you no matter what the enemy seems to be shouting. I wait upon You for your instructions! Amen!"

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

II. God's Process Of Redemption - 5:1-15:21

He Displayed His Glory In Judgments On Egypt - Chs. 7-8

The second major portion of the story of the Exodus actually began last week. God began the process of redeeming Israel by allowing discouragement when Moses first approached Pharaoh. Israel was now in total misery, daily making bricks without straw and both the people and Moses are totally discouraged. So, God says at the beginning of Ch. 6, "Now you will see what I will do!" And in chs. 7-10 we see it! God sends ten awful plagues upon the land of Egypt. This is probably the most familiar part of the story to you, but before we get into the details, let's consider together:

I. God's Purpose In Sending Ten Plagues Upon Egypt (7:1-7) Before He did it, God explained why He was going to do it. First of all, these plagues:

1. they were judicial: they were mighty acts of judgment; they were His means of punishing Egypt for her sins (4a) God laid His hand upon Egypt and literally destroyed and devastated the whole country because of their sins. Not only were they idolaters who rejected the true God, but they wickedly enslaved His people, innocent people. They were cruel and heartless and ruthless in the way they treated God's people. And they were guilty of the wholesale slaughter of thousands of Israelite babies that were killed by being thrown in the Nile. In fact, that seems to be the very point at which God decided to step in and bring Moses into the picture. That ought to stand as a warning to those who destroy the innocent whether it is genocide in Africa or infanticide here. God will only tolerate this so long before judgment falls! Then at the same time as they were judicial toward Egypt:

2. they were merciful toward Israel: They were His means of saving Israel from her suffering (4b) These mighty acts are the means by which He heard the cry of His people and brought out and delivered them. They are an expression of His love for His people and a display of what lengths He will go to help us when we cry to Him! But beyond both of these, the ten plagues:

3. they were primarily spiritual: They were His means of declaring His own glory, of displaying and demonstrating who He truly is. As for the Egyptians who were terrible idolaters:

a. they taught the Egyptians that He is the true God (5) He wanted the Egyptians to know who He is, to know Him. He sent these plagues so that they would know Him. Look with me at 12:12; the plagues were judgments on the gods of Egypt. In each one of them God showed Himself superior to one or more false gods they worshipped. By the time He was done, He wanted them to know that their gods were nothing and He was God. When in the end He drowned their army in the Red Sea, look at 14:4, 18. He wanted glory and worship from the Egyptians! But the plagues also served the same purpose for the Israelites:

b. they taught the Israelites that He is the true God - 10:1-2 Israel entered Egypt worshipping the Lord but while they were in Egypt, Ez. 20:7-8 tells us that they learned to cling to the idols of Egypt and they even continued doing so after God brought them out. Joshua had to tell them in the land to throw away the gods they had worshipped in Egypt (24:14). So, God's point in all these plagues was to show Israel as well as the Egyptians that He is the only true God so they would worship Him with all their hearts for generations to come! And indeed, they did sing and write about this event for a thousand years. But even beyond these two peoples, these ten plagues:

c. they taught all the world that He is the true God - 9:16 God made Pharaoh obstinate so He would multiply His miracles so that all the watching world would hear about it and fear Him. Did it work? Listen to what Rahab told the spies 40 years later when they came to Jericho: Josh. 2:10-11 We have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red Sea for you when you came out of Egypt, and what you did to Sihon and Og, the two kings of the Amorites east of the Jordan, whom you completely destroyed. When we heard of it, our hearts melted and everyone's courage failed because of you, for the LORD your God is God in heaven above and on the earth below.

That was His point. He picked the most powerful nation on earth, the U.S. of its day, the greatest military power, and destroyed and devastated it completely to demonstrate to the whole world who He is so they would believe and worship! That is ALWAYS His point: that He might get glory and the nations might worship Him! Some of you are spending your nights like I am glued to the news about the war going on between Israel and the terrorist group Hezbollah in Lebanon. There is horrible devastation and terrible loss of life. But God's point is not whether Israel is right or how quickly American citizens get evacuated from Lebanon. His point is that He wants to use this fear and terror and loss to drive people to Him, to bring about believing Israelis and believing Lebanese and even believing members of Hezbollah and US citizens! That is always what He is up to! So, it all begins when Moses goes back to Pharaoh and we see:

II. God's Power Displayed (7:8-13) Pharaoh challenged Moses, "Let your God prove Himself! Let Him do a miracle!" So immediately Moses throws down his rod as God has told him to and it becomes a snake, no doubt a cobra! You can bet they jumped back quickly! But Pharaoh wants to make sure this is not some two-bit magician's trick so he calls his own magicians and:

1. the magicians attempt to duplicate God's power, to see if they can do what HE can do! And it seems they can; their rods "become snakes" too. Was this an illusion or could they really create life? Well, I rather think it was an illusion. And later they "prove" they can turn water red and cause frogs to come out of the Nile and conjure up biting flies just like God. They had warning for all these things and time to prepare. You see magicians do harder things on TV today than these and it's not just trick photography. Tremendously convincing illusions can be created, but make no mistake, some of these kinds of folks are connected to the spirit world and are demonically energized. The False Prophet of Revelation 13 is given satanic power to "perform great and miraculous signs", genuine miracles to deceive the world into worshipping the Antichrist. And I don't doubt that these magicians had a measure of that demonic power also. But as we'll see, there came a point when they gave up! Actually, I would think that if they had real power, they would have spent their efforts trying to STOP what Moses was doing instead of duplicating it! Clear up the Nile, drive back the frogs, blow away the biting flies and so on in a true magician's duel, but they didn't even attempt that. And even they came to admit to Pharaoh that he was dealing with God, not with magician's illusions like their own! In that there is a:

2. the lesson: all religious falsehood will be exposed By the way, we happen to know the names of the two chief Egyptian magicians, thanks to Paul, and he tells us the lesson in 2 Tim. 3:8-9. Their names were Jannes and Jambres and the lesson is that men like these will not get very far; they can only do so much and their abilities will end; their falsehood will be exposed so that everyone can see it. Not all that looks religious, that looks like it has spiritual power is of God! In the end if it is a false counterfeit it will be exposed, you can count on it! God is willing to take on all challengers and they all lose whether it's Moses and these two, or Peter and Simon the magician in Samaria, or Paul and Elymas the sorcerer who opposed him on Cyprus and was struck blind! In the end God shows them all for what they are, charlatans and impostors. Their snakes get swallowed up by His and He proves that He alone is God! But now that the stage is set for the contest:

III. God's Plagues Begin in earnest. We'll look at the first 4 of them briefly today and the rest next time. The first was:

1. the plague of blood (7:14-25) Please note how serious this was. Egypt is a vast expanse of desert sand except for the fact that the Nile River flows through it from south to north. The Nile is what gives life to Egyptians. They drink its water. They irrigate their fields with its water. Every year it overflows its banks in a great flood, bringing with it rich silt eroded from the mountains at its source and depositing it on the land creating great fertility. The Nile literally gives life to Egypt. Small wonder that they deified the Nile itself into a god and worshipped it. So, when God turned it to blood:

a. it was directed against Hapy (not "Happy") the god of the Nile, who is often pictured as a fat-bellied bearded man as well as other gods and goddesses of the Nile [they had literally dozens of gods and goddesses worshipped at various places and times - it's confusing!]. At any rate the ancient Egyptian Hymn to the Flood says, says in speaking about the Nile: Lightmaker who comes from the dark, Fattener of herds, Might that fashions all, None can live without him! That was God's point! He polluted their source of life by turning it blood-colored to remind them of the blood of those innocent drowned infants and causing it to become foul and stink and be full of death! They had to dig pits and let fresh water seep in through the sand to get water to live for a week. So:

b. its lesson was clear: Jehovah is the God of life! Not the Nile! Jehovah, the true God controls the Nile and turns off its life-giving powers at His command! Hapy is powerless! Now you should know that when the annual flood comes, the Nile naturally runs red with clay silt from the mountains and must be filtered for drinking. But whether God amplified some natural phenomenon like this or not, remember this miracle happened in a moment of time at God's command as Moses' rod struck it. Yet that was not enough for Pharaoh; his magicians could make water turn red too, so next God sent:

2. the plague of frogs (8:1-15) Did you ever wonder, "Why frogs?" Frogs don't bite; they don't eat crops or destroy anything. Why send frogs? At worst a million frogs are just a huge annoyance. Well, in Egypt, the frog was a sacred symbol, a symbol of fertility. Each year the Nile naturally teemed with frogs; literally millions of them were born right after the annual flood so they were seen as the sign of the fertility that the river brought and, of course, the Egyptians decided to worship them! So, this plague:

a. it was probably directed against Heqet the frog-headed goddess of fertility She is usually pictured in hieroglyphs as a woman with a frog's head (how attractive!) But she is the god of reproduction; midwives called themselves servants of Hequet and her priestesses were trained as midwives. Her title was she who hastens the birth and women in labor wore amulets and prayed to her. So, a million frogs are a good thing to the Egyptians and certainly nothing new, except that they always stayed in the river! Now they came out of the river and covered the land. They got into every house, every room, everywhere! I remember one year we were at the shore in Delaware and they must have had a mini-frog plague in the lakes we were staying on because dead frogs were everywhere on all the roads of the development. You could hardly ride a bike. Imagine them by the millions how annoying that would be. So, Pharaoh wanted the plague called off and that brings out this plague's:

b. its special feature: Pharaoh named the time for it to cease Moses said, to prove this is from Jehovah, I'll let you pick the time and of course he picked the next day and all the frogs died the next day. Yuck! Heaps of stinking dead frogs everywhere! Yes, the magicians could find ways to get frogs to leave the Nile too, but this was obviously no coincidence! So, what was:

c. its lesson? Jehovah causes fertility and reproduction, not Heqet or any of the other fertility gods. God opens and closes the womb; He creates and brings people into the world. He makes the frogs every year and brings about all the fertility in the animal and plant world that humans enjoy. Stop worshipping idols! Hey, we're not much better, you know, when we attribute all of the bounty we enjoy to purely natural means; we may not worship a frog but in many ways our culture worships nature itself! We even make our own goddess out of it, Mother Nature! As though creation runs by itself or the earth itself is our mother, the source of all of us! No, God is the source of it all and this lesson is for us too! But just as the lesson is often lost on us, it was lost on Pharaoh who broke his promise to let Israel go. So next God sent:

3. the plague of gnats (8:16-19) Despite the KJV calling them lice, they were likely not the head lice that we would think of. Nor were they probably the harmless little bugs that swarm around your head in your back yard. The word gnat is actually a non-technical term that is used to describe many species of small insects including biting midges (which we call no-see-ums and sand flies that sting and suck blood) and the whole family of mosquitoes which multiply quickly wherever there is standing water! This is a plague of biting, stinging, blood-sucking little pests. The last week or two before this heat wave, we've felt our back yard was like that. It rained and was damp and you couldn't mow and the grass was high and when you were out in the yard at night you got eaten alive! Now multiply that a thousand times and you get the idea of what this was like, Pharaoh and all his servants and all the people covered with little red welts, swatting and swishing, unable to escape it. But look where they came from: the dust. Moses struck the desert dust with the rod of God and as it swirled up it became insects. Not just there but all over the land as the little dust-devils kicked up they became mosquitoes! This plague:

a. it was probably directed against Set, the aardvark-headed god of the desert Imagine worshipping the image of a man with a pointy-nosed aardvark head! But the desert was all the rest of Egypt not along the Nile and Set was the god of it, supposedly a very powerful god. He was the god who controlled sandstorms, like our troops faced in Iraq and was prayed to by desert caravans. This was his dust that God changed into a plague of mosquitoes. And please note:

b. its chief feature: it could not be copied; the magicians couldn't replicate it and they told Pharaoh, "This is no trick, this is the finger of God! Only a god could do this!" From here on they quit trying. And of course:

c. its lesson was: Jehovah rules the desert sands and storms, not Set. And even Set can't stop Him. He made man of the dust of the earth and breathed life into him and He can make bugs out of it when He wants and He can make them all die when He wants! He is the God of the river and the God of the land, the God of ALL creation! But Pharaoh missed that somehow and so God sent another similar plague:

4. the plague of swarms of insects (8:20-24) Please understand the word flies is not in the Hebrew text anywhere. It simply says, swarms and its root means both mixture and incessant motion. So, it could mean swarms of all kinds of wasps and bees and other stinging insects. But this seems so similar to the previous plague, and v. 21 says that they would be on the ground, plus Psalms 78:45 in recounting this says He sent swarms [of flies] that devoured them... So, some scholars have suggested that there is a species of beetle, the oriental cockroach, that naturally arrives in swarms in Egypt in the fall of the year. These beetles gnaw and devour clothes, furniture, plants, animals and people if they can. Their Egyptian name sounds similar to the Hebrew word here and regardless of which particular insect is meant, this plague:

a. it was possibly directed against the god Khepri, the scarab beetle Egyptian artifacts are filled with scarabs, little oval-shaped amulets in the image of the scarab beetle. They observed this beetle rolling a huge ball of dung across the ground and somehow imagined that the great ball of the sun is rolled across the sky each day by a mythological beetle god, Khepri, and they worshipped him! So now swarms of their sacred beetle buddies were suddenly everywhere biting and chewing up everything in sight! And notice the distinct feature of this plague:

b. its feature: it affected only Egyptians. Moses made it clear. There would be no swarms in the land of Goshen among God's people. So, the Egyptians who worshipped the beetle would suffer but the Israelites who worshipped Jehovah would not. The message was clear: this was Israel's God! And God told them in v. 22 what the lesson of the plague was:

c. its lesson: "I, Jehovah, am in YOUR land; I control YOUR land!" You see, the Egyptians and most other ancients thought all the gods were localized. The god who is worshipped in this city or that land is the most powerful there where he is, but over here THIS god is most powerful. God says, "Lookout boys, your beetle is a hoax. The true God is IN YOUR LAND and I am ALL powerful EVERYWHERE! All power in heaven and on earth is MINE!

Listen, our God is the God of all the earth! Jesus Christ is Lord of the whole creation! It is not enough for us to think that He is our God here and that's enough. He was in Egypt and He is in America and He is in all the lands of the earth and He demands and deserves worship from them all. He says so: Mal. 1:11 My name will be great among the nations, from the rising to the setting of the sun. In every place incense and pure offerings will be brought to my name, because my name will be great among the nations," says the LORD Almighty. David states it well in Psalms 86:8-9 Among the gods there is none like you, O Lord; no deeds can compare with yours. All the nations you have made will come and worship before you, O Lord; they will bring glory to your name. God was at work carrying out His purpose then and He is still carrying it out today. Will Longenecker of WEC told this true story a few weeks ago. In the early 1970s in Indonesia, the largest Muslim country in the world, there were so many Muslims becoming Christians that the Muslim religious leaders asked the authorities of Al Azhar University in Cairo, Egypt, the largest Muslim University in the world, to come and help them to stem the movement of Muslims to Christianity in their country. At the head of the entourage from Al Azhar was the Presi- dent of the University, Dr. Fahaam, and after surveying the situation and discussing with the Indonesian Muslim Clerics, Dr. Fahaam and his Egyptian colleagues returned to Egypt. In order to better help the Indonesian Muslim Clerics, Dr. Fahaam procured a Bible to understand his enemy better and to garner convincing religious arguments to help his colleagues in Indonesia in their dilemma. It so happened that during this time Dr. Fahaam's young daughter had a medical problem, and it was thought best to send her, accompanied by her mother, to a London Hospital for treatment. As it also happened, two Christian ladies who had a burden to minister to the sick in that hospital happened upon the Egyptian mother and her ailing daughter in the hospital. After getting acquainted and inquiring about the medical problem, the sisters offered to pray for the daughter's healing in the Name of Jesus. No Muslim will ever turn down such an offer. At that very moment Dr. Fahaam was in his study reading the Bible, and Jesus appeared to him, calling him by name. The fact that Jesus knew him personally was rather ungluing, and then He said something which really puzzled Dr. Fahaam. Jesus declared, 'I have healed your daughter!' How could the Founder of Christianity show any regard for one who counted Christianity as the enemy and was trying to destroy it? Then Jesus left him. As Dr. Fahaam pondered this, the phone rang and his wife said, 'You will never guess what has happened here in London.' Dr. Fahaam responded, 'I know what has happened, Jesus has healed our daughter!' His wife blurted out, 'How could you know that?' He said, 'Jesus just told me.' Subsequently, President Anwar Sadat called Dr. Fahaam in and told him, 'I cannot protect you here in Egypt, you must leave immediately, and we will tell the people that you have been having some problems and that you have gone to the West for treatment. Dr. Fahaam and his family first of all went to Germany, and then they ended up in Belgium where they were discipled by an Arab Evangelical Congregation in that country.

My friend, Jesus wants the whole world to know He is God and to worship Him. He is doing great and mighty things among the nations even today! But He wants you to know it too! He wants you to realize what He's up to and dedicate your life to declaring His glory right where you are and to the ends of the earth. Will you?

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

II. God's Process Of Redemption - 5:1-15:21

He Continued To Display His Glory In Judgments - Chs. 9-10

We left off last time right in the middle of the story of the ten plagues that God sent upon the land of Egypt in the process of redeeming His people. And one of you was sharp enough to point out to me that I didn't mention the time frame of these plagues. The truth is that we're not given a time frame in Scripture; we know they ended in our March/April because that's the time the Passover was instituted and celebrated each year since. But we don't know when they began. Any story told in writing naturally appears compressed as the writer moves on from one event to the next so our tendency is to feel like the 10 plagues all happened one immediately after the other in perhaps 3 weeks' time. And, indeed, for all we know, they may have, but most interpreters feel that they are a connected series of events that began sometime in late summer and ended in March, covering perhaps 9 months. The reason for that is that in many of these plagues God seems to be supernaturally intensifying a cycle of natural events that occurs in Egypt each year. I told you last week that the Nile floods every year in mid-summer and turns red with clay silt washed down from heavy rains in the mountains at its source. God seems to have intensified that in turning the Nile blood-colored and filling it with a red-tide of bacteria in the first plague. I told you that after the flood goes down, millions of frogs hatch and the Nile naturally teems with them, but God supernaturally drove them out of the river and into the homes of the Egyptians in the second plague. After the flood, Egypt naturally teems with biting insects but God made millions more out of the dust in the third plague. So, if this is indeed the case, then there was some time between each of these plagues and some of them, like that third plague of gnats have no ending time mentioned and may have taken weeks to die off! Plus, we're not told how long some, like the fourth plague of swarms of insects or beetles, actually lasted before Moses ended them. So, we're probably into the fall of the year as we pick up the story and:

I. God's Plagues Continue with plague number 5:

1. the plague on livestock (9:1-7) Whether the disease of this plague was anthrax or hoof and mouth disease, we don't know but it killed a great many of their cattle. By the way Hindus are not the only ones who worship cows as sacred; the ancient Egyptians did the same thing. This plague was obviously:

a. it was against Apis, the bull god Apis was said to manifest himself as a real living bull, which, after death, reincarnated itself into a new bull. The black bull which matched the required sacred markings was selected from the herd, brought to a temple, given a harem of cows, and worshipped as an aspect of the god Ptah. At the temple, this live Apis bull was used as an oracle, his movements being interpreted as prophecies. His breath was also believed to cure disease, and his presence to bless those around with virility. He was given a window in the temple through which he could be seen, and on certain holidays was led through the streets of the city, bedecked with jewelry and flowers. The war god Menthu was also said to manifest himself in a white bull with a black face, which was referred to as the Bakha. A wild bull was chosen and was worshipped as such. When these bulls died, they were mummified, and placed in a special cemetery known as the Bucheum. Can you imagine in the morning when the Egyptians found their bull gods lying dead of God's plague! Hathor, the goddess of motherhood, was often depicted as a golden cow or as a woman with the ears of a cow and a headdress of horns. But it wasn't only cattle. Osiris was a ram-headed god said to be incarnated in a live ram kept at Mendes just like the bull gods! [source: wikipedia.com]. They worshipped animals as gods but their animals died just the same, however notice this plague's:

b. its feature: God protected Israel's livestock Their mighty war gods couldn't protect themselves, but all Jehovah's animals lived; not one died! Every Egyptian herd and flock of every kind of animal suffered loss; thousands of dead carcasses lying on the ground in one morning, but not one Hebrew animal in Goshen! Pharaoh couldn't believe it and sent investigators to make sure, but it was really true. Not a single animal died! The lesson should have been extremely clear:

c. its lesson: Jehovah controls both life and death! He, not the Nile, is the giver of life and if He wants to kill you, you're dead. No war god can protect you! By the way, in case you have any tendency to think that you're invincible, that you somehow are immune to dying by accident or disease or whatever, think again. You have All-mighty God to thank for the fact that you're breathing right now! Still Pharaoh is unmoved and God sends a sixth judgment:

2. the plague of boils (9:8-12) We don't know what this disease actually was but it sounds like some kind of horrible itching festering sores that broke out on everybody and even on the remaining animals throughout the land. This plague:

a. it was directed against Sekhmet, the Egyptian goddess of war and disease. She was a blood-thirsty violent goddess with a lioness' head, dressed in red. She was also seen as the bringer of disease and was prayed to in order to cure disease by placating her. The name "Sekhmet" literally became synonymous with doctors and surgeons during this period and many of Sekhmet's priests were often considered actual physicians. But pray as they would to Sekhmet, she could not protect them from Israel's God! And look at this plague's:

b. its feature in v. 11: the magicians could not stand before Moses. Now, they had quit trying to duplicate the miracles a few plagues back, but they were still with Pharaoh for moral support! But as Moses threw the ashes into the air, suddenly these sores broke out on them and they itched and ached so badly they couldn't stand there anymore! They ran away to try and find relief! You see, God cannot be opposed! Nobody can stand against Him; it's futile to try! And:

c. its lesson is obvious: Jehovah sends and heals disease! Not Sekhmet or any other false god. Look at the point God makes later in v. 15. "If I wanted to, I could have wiped you out long already! I could have sent the cattle plague on you or just had you die in your sleep! Healing and health are from ME! The fact that you're alive and standing here is from ME!" But even this didn't break Pharaoh's pride, so next God sends the seventh judgment:

3. the plague of hail (9:13-35) Judging by the note in v. 31 we're now in February when the barley harvest was about to be brought in and the flax plants were blooming. As you might imagine, it seldom rains in Egypt and hail is something that might not occur once in a century! To have a hail and lightning storm so violent that it beats down and destroys all the crops, strips the trees and actually kills animals and people who are out in the fields, can't be anything but supernatural! This plague:

a. it was directed against Nut, the Egyptian goddess who is the sky and would control these kinds of things in her domain! And probably against Tefnut, her daughter, the goddess of rain, dew and moisture. One by one Jehovah is showing so clearly that their beloved gods are no gods at all. But this plague also has a special:

b. its feature: it includes an offer of mercy Vs. 18-19, "bring in your livestock so they won't die!" Egyptians usually kept their cattle stabled from May through December during the Nile flood and the drying of the pasture lands, which explains why there are still cattle left to die after the livestock plague which only affected those "out in the fields". But by now the rest were being released to the outdoor pastures once again, and some of the Egyptians believed God and ran to get them all indoors once again. See, God does not hate the Egyptians and love the Israelites. He is not just a lover of one people; He wants the Egyptians to believe; He is willing to extend mercy to them too. In fact, that is this plague's:

c. its lesson: Jehovah is a God of mercy! He tells Pharaoh in v. 15, "By now I could have killed you easily but I want to use you to bring the whole world to believe in Me. I want YOU to believe, to bow!" But in spite of such obvious devastating power, Pharaoh still wouldn't and God sends judgment number eight:

4. the plague of locusts (10:1-20) [Read 1-6, 12-18] Now locust invasions are not new to this region, nor is the hot sirocco wind, the desert wind blowing from the east in late February. But this time the wind blew in from the Arabian Peninsula across the Red Sea a newly hatched cloud of locusts so thick that they covered all Egypt and devoured the wheat and the spelt which had now sprouted after the hail and any remaining green thing that was left. This plague:

a. it was possibly directed against Osiris, the Egyptian god of the underworld who was considered the god of vegetation who caused things to grow from the earth or perhaps Geb, the earth god. But neither one of them could stop or control it. In this plague:

b. its feature: Pharaoh's officials begin to see truth (7) "Egypt is ruined, destroyed, perishing! We have nothing left to eat! Let them go before their God kills us all!" Pharaoh is so busy with the pride thing that he really hasn't noticed what's going on. His land has been turned into a desolated desert. The worst famine Egypt has ever known is upon him and his people. I think that is this plague's:

c. its lesson: Jehovah provides food for mankind! Listen to Ps. 65:9-13. It's all from God! You don't do any of it. Whatever you have, whatever you enjoy, the very food on your plate every meal is a blessing from the hand of God and He deserves to be praised and worshipped for it! Pharaoh almost gave in on this one, but it was still not enough so God sends His ninth judgment:

5. the plague of darkness (10:21-23) Moses didn't even tell Pharaoh it was him when everything went dark, but he knew it was. Some have suggested this was an eclipse of the sun, but the text says the darkness was thick; it could be felt. Even inside their houses, the Egyptians could not see if they lit a lamp. Light would not penetrate it. Everyone stayed in their home and groped their way around in the dark as if they were blind. Some have suggested it was a sandstorm or some type of black fog-like mist. We don't really know, but it's obvious that:

a. it was directed against the chief gods of Egypt, Ra or Atum-Re and Horus, both of whom were sun gods. He-liopolis, the city of the sun, was the site of the great temple to the sun god. The sun ALWAYS shines in Egypt! To blot out the sun for 3 days, to blot out light itself, is clearly the work of a God more powerful than the very sun! But notice:

b. its feature: God's people had light! Inside their houses the mist did not penetrate. Their lamps shined and they could see! This darkness was from THEIR God. And the lesson of the plague I've already given you:

c. its lesson: Jehovah created and controls the sun! And yet culture after culture from Asia to Latin America has worshipped the sun itself as the giver of life instead of the God who made it. How sad! Now notice also Pharaoh's final threat in vs. 28-29. He draws a line in the sand. "NO MORE! One more plague and I will kill you, Moses!" Little did he know how true it was that he would never see Moses again and that God was the One drawing the line and saying, "I am about done; I will bring one plague more and Pharaoh will let you go!"

Whew, what an amazing season this must have been in the land of Egypt, for Egyptian and Israelite alike. But let's not leave the plagues without pointing out:

II. Some Lessons For Ourselves The first one is:

1. a lesson about refusing to compromise Pharaoh was a shrewd dude, just like his master, Satan, and throughout these plagues he offered a series of four compromises. The first two highlight for us:

a. our temptation to settle for partial obedience Pharaoh offers: "Go, sacrifice in the land (8:25)" "Take a few days off, have a religious festival. I'm not an unreasonable guy. Why go into the desert? Stay here and do it; it's easier anyway." But Moses wouldn't bite so he ups the ante saying, "How about you go... in the desert but not very far (28)" Stay nearby. Go camp out over the hill there by the shore where we can keep an eye on you. That should meet your God's demands!" Would you bite? Would you be tempted to say, "Half way is good enough. After all, look at who we're dealing with; look at how his foot is on our neck. This is all we're gonna get, so let's do it!" It is SO tempting to go only half way, to do only PART of what you know God has told you to do! If Israel had done that, they'd STILL be in Egypt and if that's how you choose to obey God, half-way, you WILL be right back there soon enough. The second two compromises highlight for us:

b. our susceptibility to the pull of family and possessions Pharaoh makes a new offer: "Have only the men go (10:11)" "Let your women and kids here. They're not important anyway; gods don't care about them. Go ahead, follow your god, but let them stay (and under his breath he's whispering, "that way I know you'll come back to my slavery!")" Then later when Moses wouldn't buy that one, he offered "Take the kids but... Leave your flocks and herds behind (24)" "Why take all of those things? Leave all your money here in the bank, your house, your car. Go camp out in a tent for 3 days, (you'll be back!)" How many times are we tempted to obey only in part, to do only part of what God has told us to do because of our loyalty to our family or because we really love our possessions? Satan can use those natural pulls to drag us right back into slavery to his cause if we are not careful to obey ALL that the Lord our God has commanded us!

John Fletcher was a coworker of John Wesley and as he stepped into his pulpit one Sunday to preach, the message he had prepared was suddenly swept from his thoughts. He tried to recall the text, the sermon, some illustration, but the mental blackout remained. All at once a picture of the three brave Hebrews who were cast into Nebuchadnezzar's furnace came to his mind (Dan. 3) and he therefore began to preach extemporaneously on that story. The congregation sat spellbound. But unknown to Fletcher, a woman in the audience was risking her life merely by coming to that service. Her husband was a baker, and he had sworn to her that he would kill her by putting her into his large oven if she ever went to church again. Yet she felt that she must obey God rather than man. So, in spite of his threatenings, she came to worship and the Holy Spirit reminded her that God is able to deliver His own even from a "burning fiery furnace." When that woman arrived home, her angry husband was standing in the doorway brandishing his big bread knife. With a prayer on her lips, she walked up to him with the confidence that God was with her. Suddenly he began to shake under deep conviction. Falling to his knees, he wept and pleaded, "Pray for me. Please pray for me! I'm a terribly wicked man!" After that threat she may have been tempted to compromise, to worship by herself at home in the closet or the shed or at night or to go out of the village under a tree. But she felt God wanted her to go to church and her obedience resulted in her husband's conversion. She refused to compromise; Moses refused to compromise; and so should we. Finally let me point out that in this story there is also:

2. a lesson about the hardening of hearts You can't help but notice the mentioning of Pharaoh's heart again and again, 15 times during the story of these plagues. They were designed to impact his heart but it was hardened, he hardened it and God hardened it, the various references say. Let's just look at (9:7, 12, 34-35). Now did the circumstances harden it? Or did he harden it himself? Or did God harden it? The answer is, "Yes, yes and yes!" All are true. Circumstances harden many people toward God and certainly people proudly choose as he did to defy God, but the real point of the texts is the danger that:

a. God may harden the heart of one who is unyielding God granted Pharaoh's own choice and reinforced it and made him even MORE obstinate and unyielding to get more glory by sending more plagues and destroying Egypt more thoroughly. Did they deserve it? Yes, they... exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles. - Rom. 1:23 They chose their path but because they chose it, God gave them over to what they had chosen and let them be blinded and hardened by it. He hardened their hearts and:

b. God has every right to harden (9:16) Paul explains that verse in the New Testament - Rom. 9:17-24 God has the right to do what He wants. He can extend mercy if He wants and surely He did, once and for all, at the cross! But He can also harden if He wants, for His own glory.

There is a tremendous danger in resisting and refusing Him. He may give you what you want. Aaron Burr, the third Vice President of the United States, was reared in a godly home and admonished to accept Christ by his grandfather who was Jonathan Edwards. But he refused to listen. Instead, he declared that he wanted nothing to do with God and said he wished the Lord would leave him alone. He did achieve a measure of political success in spite of repeated disappointments. But he was also involved in continuous strife, and when he was 48 years old, he killed Alexander Hamilton in a duel. He lived for 32 more years, but through all this time he was unhappy and unproductive. It was during this sad chapter in his life that he declared to a group of friends, "Sixty years ago I told God that if He would let me alone, I would let Him alone, and God has not bothered about me since." Aaron Burr got what he wanted. Pharaoh got what he wanted. Solomon warned: He, that being often reprov'd hardeneth [his] neck, shall suddenly be destroyed, and that without remedy. - Prov 29:1 (KJV) Do NOT resist and reject God; you may just get what you want!

II. God's Process Of Redemption - 5:1-15:21

His Final Judgment On Egypt - Chs. 11:1-12:42

God has brought nine plagues upon the land of Egypt, nine terrible judgments upon them for their sin and to cause them to let His people Israel go. The land of Egypt is devastated; it has no crops remaining in the fields, very little livestock and even the fish in the river have died off. Yet Pharaoh remains proud and refuses to let the people go. Chapters 11-12 tell the story of the 10th plague. The first 9 have been more or less the Divine amplification of natural events to epic proportions; the 10th is the direct going out of God Himself to take human life. We left chapter 10 with Moses standing in Pharaoh's presence saying, "You will never see my face again." Then as we begin chapter 11, we have:

I. Egypt's Final Plague Announced: Moses proclaims that God will bring about one final plague: The Death Of The Firstborn (11:1-10) Now in the first three verses we actually have:

1. God's instruction that He had given to Moses privately ahead of time (1-3) God had already told Moses, "This will be the last plague; you will leave after this one. In fact, instead of holding you back, they will drive you out! And not only that, be sure to have everyone ask their Egyptian neighbors for gold and silver before they leave." In other words, "I will cause them to send you away with parting gifts the way one is supposed to free a slave after his servitude is done!" But now at vs. 4 this parenthesis is over and we continue the live conversation with:

2. God's warning given to Pharaoh (4-10) "Tonight at midnight every firstborn son in Egypt will die. Your son, Pharaoh, will die, and so will the firstborn of your slaves and of every citizen of Egypt and even your animals." Now that is a direct challenge to Pharaoh; God had told Moses back at the burning bush in Ex. 4:22-23 Then say to Pharaoh, 'This is what the LORD says: Israel is my firstborn son, and I told you, "Let my son go, so he may worship me." But you re- fused to let him go; so I will kill your firstborn son." And that's what he's warning here! Not only is that a challenge to the Egyptian goddess Isis who was considered the mother and protector of the Pharaoh but Pharaoh and the son who would succeed him were both worshipped as gods themselves! But Pharaoh would not, could not believe it. So Moses stomped out furious that thousands of lives were going to be wasted because of his sheer pride. Now if you'll permit me to make a more personal application here, for us this plague of death is a:

3. the picture of the penalty of our sin Listen to the lesson in Ez. 18:4

(NASB) "Behold, all souls are Mine; the soul of the father as well as the soul of the son is Mine. The soul who sins will die. God is the owner of all human lives! He creates them and they are His! And Has a law. The soul who sins will die! Paul put it like this: Rom. 6:23 ...the wages of sin is death... The penalty for rejecting the grace of God, for refusing to bow before Him acknowledging His sovereign right over you is death, physical and spiritual eternal death! At one time all of us were just like Pharaoh, already dead in our trespasses and sins, waiting like all the Egyptians, for the rest of the promised judgment to fall! But in the next chapter we see a glorious thing; we see that for God's people:

II. Egypt's Final Plague was Averted: by the Death Of The Lamb (12:1-13, 28) God gave a final sign to Pharaoh; while all the households of Egypt would be affected, every one of the Israelite households would be protected from this plague of death in a special manner. First of all:

1. it required the offering of a perfect sacrifice (1-6): A substitute was needed for their firstborn and it was to be a lamb, a perfect, spotless year-old male lamb of the sheep or the goats. That lamb was to be chosen and kept until the right time and then slaughtered on that very night at sunset and the death of that lamb would form the basis for the Israelites to avoid the certain death that was coming. However:

2. that sacrifice required application (7, 12-13) The lamb could be killed and the meal could be eaten, but it would all be in vain unless there was blood on the doorposts, unless they would take the blood and go outside and smear it on the doorframe and the lintel of their house, death could still enter. But the blood on the door was a sign that the sacrifice had been offered and that God's people dwelt here under the blood, protected by it. And God's judgment of death would pass over that house. The blood of that sacrifice had to be applied and:

3. that application was done by faith (8-11) They were to eat the lamb ready to leave. They were to eat it with their bread unleavened and their robes tucked up under their sashes ready to walk. They were to eat it believing that in the morning they were leaving. They were to put the blood on the door in faith that they would be protected from death and live to leave tomorrow. Both of these were acts of faith; how do I know? Listen to Heb. 11:28 By faith [Moses] kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, so that the destroyer of the firstborn would not touch the firstborn of Israel. The blood on the door and the eating of the meal was a declaration of trust in God for protection and belief in His Word that they were leaving. Now you can hardly talk about this without seeing:

4. the picture of our redemption in Christ Peter explains it clearly for us in 1 Pet. 1:18-19. The perfect lamb pointed to Christ, God's perfect, spotless Lamb who would take away the sin of the world by shedding His own precious blood. He would be our Substitute, the Lamb who died in our place, who took the judgment of death that was coming upon us and poured out His life to save ours. Yet that sacrifice must be applied. I have to paint His blood upon the doorposts of my own life. By faith I have to declare that I trust in the sacrifice of Jesus on the cross to save me from my sins. I give up all vain hope that anything else will rescue me and place myself under the blood. Byron Chen says that in Chinese writing, the symbol meaning righteousness is formed by placing the character for a "lamb" above the character for "I". The Lamb is over me. When by faith I place myself under the merits of Jesus, God's spotless lamb, I am declared right for all time and eternity and God's judgment of eternal death passes over me!

Well, now we move to the third portion of our chapters where we find that:

III. Israel's Redemption was to be Commemorated (12:14-27) This event was not something God intended to be done one time. He intended them to sacrifice a Lamb and eat a Passover meal every year to commemorate perpetually what He was about to do that night, so they would never forget it in the generations to come. So:

1. their departure meal became the Feast of Unleavened Bread (14-20) Every year they would remember the day they left Egypt because that night they ate their bread in haste; they ate it flat, without yeast in it. They would eat that same bread annually, not just for one day but for 7 days to remind them of how God brought them out bondage in Egypt. And:

2. their sacrifice that night became the annual Passover ceremony (21-27) Every year on the anniversary of that day they would slaughter a lamb again and put its blood on the door so they would never forget how they were spared from death in Egypt that night, how God passed over them because of the shed blood of the lamb on the door.

Now I want you to look with me at 1 Cor. 5:6-8 where Paul explains the deeper meaning of these. The Passover sacrifice and ceremony are:

- a picture of our protection from death through Christ's shed blood Christ, our Passover, has already been sacrificed for us. His blood has been shed and placed over the doorposts of our heart by faith. We stand under the protection of the blood of Christ. So, the Feast of Unleavened Bread which started on that very day is:

- a picture of our cleansing through Christ to live a holy life We are now living in the days of Unleavened Bread! He tells us what the yeast represents: malice and wickedness! It represents sin in our lives and it represents (in this passage specifically) sin in the church! And if it is left there and not thrown out, not removed, it will spread throughout the life or the church body and leaven the whole lump. We have been cleansed by Christ and protected from judgment by Him to live a holy life! So, we need to keep the Feast! We need to throw out the old leaven and live in sincerity and truth.

And now we come to the last part of the chapter where we see:

IV. Israel's Redemption Accomplished: We call it The Exodus (12:29-42), lit. the way out or the going out. That night at midnight:

1. the firstborn of the Egyptians were slain (29-30) Now on a side note, please don't think of this as a kind of crib-death that killed thousands of innocent babies. How many of you are the oldest son in your family? Oldest sons come in all ages. Some of them were old men. Others were in the prime of their life and heads of families. Some were young adults working hard at their jobs and yes, some were children too. An entire cross-section of Egyptian society from young to old died suddenly at midnight as their families probably stood by helplessly waiting and praying to their gods, hoping against hope that this threat would not come true. But it did and in all the homes of Egypt someone died and they began to wail and mourn their losses. Now once this happened, four things occurred exactly the way God said that they would. Even though Pharaoh wouldn't let them go for anything before, now:

2. the Israelites were driven out (31-33) Pharaoh summoned Moses and by means of his officials said, "Go! Leave! Get out of Egypt! Take everything and everyone you have with you and leave! Now!" And the Egyptians hurried them along saying, "Go, please, quickly! Hurry up before we ALL die!" Isn't that what God had said would happen? compare 11:1, 8 God made Pharaoh do the exact opposite of what he had wanted to do and instead of holding them in, thrust them out! Next, we read that:

3. they plundered the Egyptians (34-36) The Israelites all ran to their Egyptian neighbors and asked them for gold and jewelry and they gave it willingly. "Go, take it, take it all! Just get out of here before we all die!" So, they ended up with a tremendous amount of valuables. But again, isn't that exactly what God had said would happen. compare 11:2. Way back in Gen. 15:14 God had promised Abraham: I will punish the nation they serve as slaves, and afterward they will come out with great possessions. And they did! The text says they plundered the Egyptians the way you would strip all the spoils of war from your enemies who lay dead on the battlefield. They took much of the wealth of Egypt went out into the desert with them. And notice that:

4. they went out a great nation (37-38) 600,000 men have 600,000 wives and most have at least one child and many have more. Seventy men came down to Egypt with their families and when they left there were probably between two and three million people, a great nation. But again, isn't that what God had told Abraham? compare Gen. 12:2 "I will make you into a great nation..." In 15:5 He took him outside and said, "Look up at the heavens and count the stars--if indeed you can count them." Then he said to him, "So shall your offspring be." And that's how they went out, from one man as many as the stars of heaven! And finally notice this:

5. they went out at the promised time (40-41) We often regard 400 years as the length of time Israel was in bondage in Egypt. Do notice the NIV's marginal reading on v. 40 in Egypt and Canaan. I rather think that 400 years is the time from the promise God made to Abraham in Gen. 15:13 where ...the LORD said to him, "Know for certain that your descendants will be strangers in a country not their own, and they will be enslaved and mistreated four hundred years and afterward He would bring them out. At any rate Moses' point, whether we understand the dates exactly or not, is that they came out at the exact time that God had promised! So, what's the lesson from all of this? It's simple:

6. the lesson: His words are true Jesus said: Mt. 24:35 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will never pass away. God's Word is unalterable, unchangeable. It comes true even if centuries pass. Not the smallest detail is ever forgotten. It is more sure than the very creation itself. You know, there is an application we can make for ourselves here. The context of that verse is the question about the timing and the promise of Christ's return. The Israelites are not the only ones who suffered in bondage. The whole of creation is suffering in bondage, Paul says in Romans, to this very day. It is waiting, waiting, for what, for the final redemption of the people of God that will occur at the return of Jesus Christ when all of creation will also be set free into the glorious liberty of the children of God! Just like Abraham, we too have a promise. But how do we know that day will come? How do we know that one day this long Egyptian night of suffering and bondage and evil for the whole world will end and Jesus will come again?

In 1958, a U.S. soldier wandered the streets of Berlin to see the sights. Despite the bustling new life in parts of the city, many reminders remained of the destruction it had suffered during World War II. Walking through a residential area one evening, across the cobblestone street he saw an open space edged with flowers. In the center stood the stone front of what had once been a church. The building was no longer there, but the rubble had been cleared away in an attempt to fill the empty space with a little park. The former church's main door was shaped in a Gothic arch, and over it was carved into the stone in German: HEAVEN AND EARTH WILL PASS AWAY BUT MY WORDS WILL NOT PASS AWAY. [Coleman L. Coates in Leadership - Vol. 9, #4]. That's how we know He is coming! His Word is sure. Every promise He has ever made He keeps! We have only to trust Him.

II. God's Process Of Redemption - 5:1-15:21

His Memorials Of Redemption - 12:43-13:16

Israel has now begun the long march out of Egypt. 12:37 says they had traveled out of the city of Rameses (perhaps Avaris?) that they had helped build as slaves in the Nile delta and pitched their first camp in the region of Succoth, perhaps 20 miles to the southeast. They are not out of the land yet, but they have been loosed. The name Succoth is interesting because it means "booths" or "lean-to shelters" and no doubt there they were introduced to the type of living quarters they would enjoy for the next 40 years, huts of branches. Later on, God would have the Israelites celebrate a feast of booths or tabernacles every year to remember those little huts in the wilderness. And, speaking of remembering, it appears that in that first camp God spoke to Moses about 3 other things that He wanted the Israelites to remember forever. He gave them 3 practices to serve as memorials or their redemption. In Washington my family and I have been to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial. It's a black granite wall engraved with the names of 58,249 soldiers who gave their lives in that conflict. As your eye scans name after name, its very presence causes you to stop and reflect on the depth of the sacrifice that was made in this conflict. It was put there so we will never forget. But not all memorials are objects; some are actions, ritual ceremonies that we repeat as a living visual reminder of something in the past. In the church communion and baptism are living memorials of Christ's death every time we act them out. On this night Israel was instructed about 3 things, 3 practices that would be acted out as living memorials of the event by which God set them free from the Egyptians the night before. The first event was:

I. The Passover Celebration (12:42-51) [Read 42-43a] They had slain and eaten the Passover lamb the night before and had spread its blood on the doorposts. Now they are given instructions to repeat this slaying and eating of the lamb every year as a memorial ceremony. And there are four specific principles that Moses is given which I think can help us reflect on the redemption from sin that we have experienced through Christ. First:

1. ONLY those who belong to God eat of the lamb (43-45) Circumcision was a sign of the covenant. God made a covenant that Abraham and his descendants would be God's people and the sign of that covenant was that all the males in his household would be circumcised. Circumcision set them apart as those who belong to God. To be uncircumcised became a term of derision for the Philistines and other enemies who did not believe in the true God. And eating of the lamb was a sign of participation in what the lamb symbolized. The lamb's blood over the doorposts saved them and those who eat the lamb are those who were saved by the blood. So, no foreigner, no stranger, no uncircumcised unbeliever can eat the lamb; he can't claim to participate in redemption along with God's people by eating because he is not one of them! The lamb did not die for him; its blood did not rescue him! This distinction was important because v. 38 tells us that other people, Egyptians and maybe other non-Israelites, went out of Egypt along with them. So, this ceremony reminded them that they were different from the whole rest of the world; nobody else could join them, only those who belonged to Jehovah. By the way, that's the same reason why only believers should eat of the Lord's Supper today when we celebrate it. Why? Because eating is a sign of participating in the redemption that was bought by the body and blood of Jesus, the Lamb of God. And if you don't know Jesus, if you haven't given your life to Jesus, you haven't been rescued by that broken body, you haven't been saved by His blood and you don't have a right to eat! We are different from all the people of the world; only those who trust in Christ have a right to eat of His table and remember how He redeemed them at the cross! Second:

2. eating of the lamb must be done in God's way (46) You don't eat it outside on the patio with your buddies for a picnic; you don't stop by McJacob's for a "lamb-burger" on your way home from work and count that as eating the Passover. You eat it the way God said, with bitter herbs, with shoes on your feet and a staff in your hand and with unleavened bread. Why? Because that redemption was a serious thing; it saved your lives. You don't break any of the bones of the carcass. Why? They probably never knew but John tells us the real reason: Jn. 19:33, 36 ...when they came to Jesus and found that he was already dead, they did not break his legs.... These things happened so that the scripture would be fulfilled: "Not one of his bones will be broken." Not breaking the bones was showing respect in advance for the precious body of Jesus, the true Lamb of God. And in like manner, we are to treat our memorial, the Lord's supper, with respect and honor in our hearts and eat it in God's way. At Corinth, Paul said that treating these symbols lightly or disrespectfully was resulting in sickness and even death among the believers; it is dishonoring the precious body and blood of the One who redeemed us! Who's to say that it would not do the same thing today? Paul says, examine your hearts before you eat! Third:

3. EVERYONE who belongs to God must eat of the lamb (47) It is not optional. Every one of God's people must eat the lamb each year, He says. You can't say, "Oh well, I'm really too tired or I have too much work in my carpenter shop or my kids have a donkey polo game tonight, I can't eat the lamb this time!" The whole community, everyone who belongs to God, must eat it! Well, that's not so different from our memorials either, is it? Baptism is something Jesus commanded for all His followers. He told us to celebrate the Lord's Supper until He comes. They're not optional. They're called ordinances, commands given to the church so we will not forget our redemption. But here's the good news. Fourth:

4. ANYONE can choose to belong to God and eat of the lamb (48-49) A stranger is welcome to eat the lamb. Anyone can freely choose to come and belong to God, to trust in Him. Egyptian or Amorite can become one of His people and take the sign of circumcision and then he participates in the redemption of God's people and can eat the lamb! How similar to the Gospel invitation that whosoever will may come and believe on God's Lamb, Jesus, and become one of God's children and then he can participate in our memorials of redemption right along with us! Now let's look at the second memorial practice God gave Israel which is:

II. The Consecration Of The Firstborn (13:1-2, 11-16) We see in vs. 1-2:

1. the principle: the firstborn male of every womb belongs to God God laid claim to every firstborn male whether human or animal because that night in Egypt they would have been destroyed, but God saved them by giving them the lamb as a substitute. He saved them and so now they belong to Him. Now look down further where the instructions for:

2. the practice of this command are given (11-13) And while we're at it, turn to God's restatement of this practice in Num. 18:15-17. Let me summarize:

a. the firstborn of clean animals was sacrificed An ox, a sheep or a goat are all clean animals, fit for sacrifice. Their firstborn was to be given directly to the Lord as a sacrifice. But some animals like the donkey or camel are not acceptable as sacrifices. So, the:

b. firstborn of unclean animals was either redeemed, replaced, or destroyed You could give money to the Lord in place of it. You could give the Lord an acceptable animal like a lamb in place of it and offer that as a sacrifice. Or if you didn't have means to do either of those you would simply kill it outright as it was not yours but the Lord's. Of course, when it comes to human beings, sacrifice is out of the question so:

c. firstborn sons were redeemed by a price, by the payment of 5 shekels of silver, that is, roughly two ounces. No one knows how much that was worth, but I'm sure it was more than pocket change because 400 shekels bought a field back in Abraham's day, so maybe that's like having to pay something between $50 and $100 today. Certainly not the full value of a life but yet a significant amount for a young couple to put out when their first son was born. Now what was:

3. the purpose of this practice (14-16) It was to be a sign, something that points beyond itself, and in this case:

a. it was a symbol of redemption from death in Egypt The redeeming of a firstborn child or animal was a visual reminder of that night many years before when God had spared the firstborn of Israel from death. And continuing to do this every time there was someone or something firstborn:

b. it enabled perpetuation: when your son asks you... in the years to come, you'll have an opportunity to tell him, to remind him about the redemption that happened so many years ago, which he was not there to see. As generation after generation redeemed their firstborn, the story of that night in Egypt would be told over and over and passed down forever. And this:

c. it enabled identification: By participating in this practice each generation could say God redeemed US! It is more than a piece of history; it is MY story. God redeemed ALL His people and that includes me; if not for that redemption I wouldn't be standing here today, I'd be making bricks in Egypt as a slave! Now of course what's important is:

4. the spiritual lessons from this practice that apply to us today. Well, have you ever thought about the fact that:

a. all believers are part of the "church of the firstborn"- Heb. 12:23 [You have come...] to the church of the firstborn, whose names are written in heaven. In Israel only firstborn sons were redeemed, but in the church, we are ALL God's firstborn! In Old Testament times the firstborn son is the most important; he inherits a double portion; he is the leader and priest of the whole clan. But in Jesus we are ALL in that position of most important to Him, joint heirs with Him of everything. We are ALL direct participants in God's redemption through the death of His lamb. So, to continue to use the analogy, we need to practice the memorial of our redemption. How? Well, Paul urges that:

b. we offer ourselves as "living sacrifices" - Rom. 12:1 Therefore, I urge you, brothers, in view of God's mercy, to offer your bodies as living sacrifices, holy and pleasing to God--this is your spiritual act of worship. Instead of paying money or killing some animal in our behalf, we put our own bodies on the altar and yield them to God so that He can live through them. We make our lives to become a living sacrifice. We let go of all control and give our life up to Him because it is His. Why should we do that? For the same reason that every firstborn belonged to the Lord in Israel:

c. we are not our own because of the price paid for us - 1 Cor. 6:19-20 You don't belong to yourself anymore! When Jesus paid the redemption price to save you with His blood, He bought you. You are HIS, not yours and that's why the goal of the life you live has to always be to glorify Him!

We have a hard time grasping this so let me tell you this story: Many years ago, an Englishman was watching a group of African prisoners as they were marched in front of a tribal leader. The chief singled out one of them because he had headed up a rebellion against him. Justly displeased with the man's crime, he ordered one of his warriors to kill him. The visitor's heart went out to the victim, so he offered to purchase his freedom with a large sum of money. "I need nothing," replied the angry chief. "I have sufficient. All I want is this traitor's blood." As the bowman prepared to shoot, the Englishman raised his arms in an effort to defend the condemned man. The next moment an arrow was buried in his own flesh. Removing it, he walked up to the chief and said, "Here is blood - my blood - I give it for this poor slave, and I claim his life." The chief had never seen anyone defend another in this way, so he released the victim, saying, "Yes, white man, you have bought him with your blood, and he shall be yours." The happy man was set at liberty and went away weeping tears of joy. That's what Jesus did for us! His blood rescued us from death and at the same time it bought our lives so now He owns us; we are His, His to command, His to do with what He wills for His own glory! Finally, the third memorial practice Moses was instructed about that night was:

III. The Feast Of Unleavened Bread (13:3-10) [Read 3-7] Just like on that day they ate their bread without yeast in it because they left Egypt in haste, so every year they were to eat bread without yeast for 7 days and of course:

1. it was a symbol of release from the slavery of Egypt (3) It reminded them that they are not slaves any more. God brought them out and they are free. They no longer had to live like they did back in Egypt. And because they did it every year:

2. it also enabled perpetuation and identification (8) As the practice was passed on from year to year and generation to generation, it would continue and each new generation of God's people would be able to say, "God did this for ME! I came out of Egypt! God set ME free!" And so:

3. it was a reminder to live as redeemed people (9-10) "You are now Jehovah's people, not slaves in Egypt. So Jehovah's law ought to be on your lips. The central concern of your life ought to be obedience to Him." Does that sound familiar? It should. Look with me at Rom. 6:17-19. We were all in bondage; we lived in slavery and our Pharaoh's name was sin! It ruled our lives, but when Jesus bought us at the cross, He bought us out of that slavery and set us free to follow a new master, Himself! Sin no longer has power and authority over us unless we choose to yield to it; we are free. And Paul reasons, ...now that you have been set free from sin and have become slaves to God, the benefit you reap leads to holiness, and the result is eternal life - Rom. 6:22. It is for freedom that Christ has set us free. Stand firm, then, and do not let yourselves be burdened again by a yoke of slavery - Gal. 5:1.

A ragged boy with a violin under his arm roamed the streets of a great European city. Because he had no home or family, he wandered around for food and shelter. He had a strange gift for music and had somehow gotten hold of a violin, and would stand on the corners and play for the crowd. When finished they would toss some coins and this is how he lived. In the same city was a famous musician. One day he happened to hear the boy playing and was impressed by the quality of music. "Son, to whom do you belong?" he said, "I don't belong to anybody," the boy answered. "Well, where do you live?" was the next question. "I don't have any place to live. I just sleep on the streets or wherever I can." The man thought for a moment and then asked, "How would you like to be my boy and come to live with me? I'll teach you all I know about how to play the violin." The boy's eyes sparkled, and he said, "Mister, I'd love it." So, the great musician took him to his own home, had him cleaned and dressed up, and the man became like a father to him. For several years he poured into the eager young mind and heart all he knew about the violin. Finally, the boy was ready to appear on the concert stage for his first public recital. The house was filled to capacity. At last, the boy came out, put the violin beneath his chin and began his concert. He played beautifully and there was much applause. The boy, though, paid no attention. He kept his eyes turned upward and continued to play. The audience was mystified by his behavior until someone said, "I don't understand why he is so insensible to all this thunderous applause. He keeps looking up all the time. I'm going to find out what is attracting his attention!" Moving about in the concert hall, the observer found the answer. There in the topmost balcony was the old music master, peering over the banister toward his young pupil. He was nodding his head and smiling, as if to say, "You are doing well, my boy; play on!" And the boy did play on, not seeming to care whether the audience laughed or applauded. He kept his gaze upward. He was playing to please the master only. That is the point of the Feast of Unleavened Bread. God bought you, so now get rid of the yeast, stop yielding to sin in your life, live with His law on your lips! Redemption freed you from that old life and made you HIS boy; play the tune of your life to please the Master only!

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

II. God's Process Of Redemption - 5:1-15:21

Israel's Final Deliverance From Egypt - 13:17-15:21

As we pick up the story in the middle of Ch. 13, God's people have been freed and they have already begun the march out of Egypt but they are not yet finally delivered from the power of Pharaoh. God has one more thing that He intends to do, an act so great that it will be sung of around the campfires and in the homes of Israel for a thousand generations. He is going to deliver His people out of the very teeth of the mightiest army on the face of the earth by a miracle so grand that here we are 3,000 years later telling the story of it. This portion of Scripture falls naturally into 3 sections. First, we read about:

I. The Journey To Deliverance - 13:17-14:4 As Israel embarks on their journey and the first thing you notice is that:

1. God accommodated their frailty (13:17-18) Two million people are leaving Egypt headed east to the land of Canaan. There are only three ways to get there. The short way is the northern route along the Mediterranean seacoast through the modern Gaza strip. This is also the populated way. It leads through the land of the Philistines and they will no doubt have to fight their way through. The middle route is smack through the middle of the Sinai Peninsula which is a rocky desert with no water. The third route which God chose, here called the desert or wilderness road, led south following the outline of the Sinai Peninsula down around the coast of the Red Sea. It was basically uninhabited but there were known water holes along the way. And why did God choose this way? Because He knew that if Israel marched into war right away, they might give up and go back to Egypt, even after all they'd seen already! He knew their weakness. He knew what would discourage and dishearten them. He knew what they were and weren't ready for and He chose their path based on what they were ready to handle. On this road they would learn to trust Him for food and water and then in minor battles before facing the full onslaught of war. Aren't you glad He does that with us? Aren't you glad that He knows our frame and remembers that we are dust and adjusts the path of our life's journey wisely, knowing what lessons we need to learn before we face particular difficulties? Secondly:

2. God fulfilled His promise (19) Now if you remember, Gen. 50:25 says that before he died, Joseph made the sons of Israel swear an oath and said, "God will surely come to your aid, and then you must carry my bones up from this place." So, when he died, they embalmed him and put him in a coffin in Egypt, probably one of those fancy gold sarcophagi like Pharaohs and important people had, but they never buried him! They never put him in a tomb. I don't know where they stored him, but throughout the years of their oppression that coffin was known to stand somewhere as the reminder of a promise made by God. Through the years one Israelite might have seen it and said to another, "Hey, why didn't they ever bury that guy?" And the answer would have been, "Joseph said God was going to come and take us out of here and we have to take his bones along when He does it!" Ray Urrich, my pastor's pastor, used to say that coffin was Israel's "Bible" during that long dark night of slavery. It was their visual reminder of the promise of God which somehow, they never forgot through all the years. Moses, even though he was born much later, knew the story of it; maybe he even saw it and learned about it as a child in the court of Egypt and God could even have used it to help him believe that God wanted to deliver Israel! So, when at last God fulfilled His promise made through Joseph, Moses grabbed his coffin and carried it with them as their fathers had promised. Aren't you glad that God ALWAYS keeps His promises? Though the night sometimes lasts long and the suffering seems to drag on and on, the promises of God never change; for no matter how many promises God has made, they are "Yes" in Christ. And so, through him the "Amen" is spoken by us to the glory of God. - 2 Cor 1:20. We will "Amen" every one of them eventually as He fulfills them on our life's journey! Third:

3. God guided their steps (20-22) On this day a new phenomenon happens. As they leave Succoth, a pillar of cloud appears in front of them and God is in the cloud. So, they follow Him as He moves forward until He stops and they camp at Etham on the edge of the desert. When nightfall comes the pillar of cloud changes to a pillar of fire so they could see and travel at night if He led on. That was His mode of directing them through 40 years in the wilderness. The cloud gave them protection from the burning desert sun and the fire gave them warmth in the cold desert night, but primarily these were to guide them. They had one responsibility - compare Ex. 40:36-38. When God moved ahead, they followed; when He stood still, so did they. They never planned their route; God guided their steps each day. What a picture of how God wants us to live life! There's nothing wrong with planning ahead for things you know are coming up, but our basic responsibility in life is to do whatever He puts in front of us each day, to do His will as far as we can see it one day at a time, relying on Him to continually go in front and guide us. If today doesn't turn out like I planned (and that's what most of mine are like!), I just follow and it ALWAYS turns out like HE planned! If we are ready to follow, He will guide us step by step and day by day on our life's journey. Then fourth:

4. God outwitted their enemies (14:1-4) None of these place names exist today but the point is that by turning Israel back to the west and then south, God deliberately put her on the wrong side of the Red Sea. She becomes hemmed in by the topography of the land with the sea to the east and mountains to the south. The only open route is west, back into Egypt, and there God tells her to camp! Why? She is the bait for His trap. He knows how hard Pharaoh's heart is, that it will not be long before he thinks of taking vengeance for the death of his son, that he will realize his entire slave labor force is gone and want it back. He knows that it will seem as though poor, stupid Israel is lost in the desert, milling around and trapped, easy pickings for his chariots. Aren't you glad that in the journey of life, God is smarter than all your enemies? That He knows how Satan and his people plan to come after you and He's ready. All of this is simply an illusion designed to draw Pharaoh and his mighty army to the banks of the Red Sea where God has planned:

II. The Miracle Of Deliverance, the crossing of the Red Sea. We'll read the story one piece at a time in 14:5-31. Just as God had said:

1. Egypt changed its mind (5-9) Their dead were buried and the terror of that awful night was past. Economic reality set in. "We have let our slaves go! Our land is a wreck and who will clean it up and rebuild it!" Pharaoh made his chariot ready. He got, it says, not only 600 of his best chariots, but ALL the chariots Egypt had, PLUS infantry soldiers on foot and set out to catch up with them. And he caught up with them camped against the sea and hemmed in by mountains with no way out! He was ready to massacre them wholesale if they would not return! No wonder that:

2. Israel became afraid (10-12) They were staring the full might of the Egyptian war machine in the teeth. Wouldn't you be terrified? And when God puts you in a place where you get scared enough you begin to say stupid things like, "I knew we should never have listened to God. We'd have been better off if Moses had never shown up! Moses, why did we ever listen to you; you're no prophet!" Is that what you do when you get to the end of your rope? People often do. Fear makes us say things we would NEVER otherwise say. This is exactly where we can get in trouble; if we let that fear, that panic, rule and control us, we make horrible poor decisions, we take desperate steps that make no sense and cause us great pain. But Moses was not afraid. He remembered what he had seen God already do, so:

3. Moses encouraged them to stand firm (13-18) He said, "Hey guys, just stand still. God didn't bring us here by accident; He has a plan. He will make a way where there is no way." Beloved, if you're following God and God puts you where you're hopeless and helpless between the Egyptians and the Sea, don't cast frantically about for some desperate solution; stand still and watch God work! This is HIS doing and His problem. Simply do whatever He tells you to do. God said to Moses, "stretch out your hand and watch Me divide the waters for you and destroy the Egyptians as they try to follow you!" At the end of your rope, hang on to Him and stand firm. Then notice how:

4. Israel was protected by God (19-20) All of a sudden that great pillar of cloud that had been in front of them and over them now began to move. It moved behind them and settled between them and the Egyptians and would not allow them to come closer. As it grew dark it changed to an impassible pillar of fire so that they were protected throughout that entire night. The army could not come near them. Oh, God has ways of intervening that you have no idea of! One friend that I pray with every Wednesday has a daily radio ministry which he funds largely through his secular work in addition to listener contributions. Two months in a row this summer the huge airtime bill came due and giving was down and there was not money in the bank to make the payment. And twice on the very last day an envelope came with thousands of dollars in it that protected them from losing their broadcast. Listen, if you got where you are by following Him and now it seems like all hope is lost, know that He is well able to protect you as long as He has you there until He makes the way out obvious! And that leads us to the fact that:

5. Israel crossed the sea on dry ground (21-22) God made a highway straight through the middle of the sea. His strong wind began to blow out of the east so hard that it blew a path right through the waters. And mind you, 2 million people can't cross even a narrow river single file in one night. For them all to cross that night, He had to open a path at least a half mile wide or even more. And the wind dried the ocean bottom up until it was firm and hard, DRY, it says, not a path of muck and mud. Down in they went and up again onto land on the far side, a huge broad stream of humanity flowing through God's highway all night. Listen, there is no limit to what God is able to do. Never limit Him to what YOU can think of. The Kyrgyz Chronicle in your bulletin today tells the story of an 8 yr. old boy in Kyrgyzstan who found a book about Jesus and accepted Him. The only person he told was his mom and for several years he prayed she would accept Jesus too. But she didn't. In fact, she was taken away from him and it seemed his prayer would not be answered! She was convicted of a crime and sentenced to 6-8 years in prison! Out of his reach, but not out of God's! So guess what? Two years later God saved her right there in the prison and now four years after that she is an evangelist herself inside the prison! The chorus says, "God can make way when there seems to be no way. He works in ways we cannot see; He will make a way for me!" God made a way and in the process:

6. Israel's enemies were destroyed (23-28) To get the full effect you have to read Ps. 77:16-20. You would have thought the Egyptians got the point with the pillar of fire but they rushed into the seabed after the Israelites and only when their chariot wheels began to bind and fall off did they realize they were fighting God Himself! And there was lightning and thunder and at last the sea came crashing back and smashed them all! In one fell swoop the entire might of Egypt's army is destroyed and washed up at the feet of Israel on the shore. And what is the result of it all?

7. Israel trusted God and Moses (29-31) The Israelites ended up on their knees in holy awe and worship with their hands in the air. It moved them. It changed them. They knew once and for all that Jehovah their God was the true God and they placed their trust in Him and in Moses his leader. That's how God has designed things to work. When He works in wonderful ways in your life, when He answers prayer when He saves that one you've been praying for or He takes that huge mountain of circumstances and melts it away, that is intended to have an effect. It is intended to teach you that you can trust Him going forward in ANY circumstance, that what your leaders have told you from Him really IS true and you can follow them!

Well, this whole event made such an impact on Israel that day that they immediately wrote and sang:

III. The Song Of Deliverance which has been recorded in 15:1-21 and preserved to this day. Now, no one has any idea what tune they sang to or what, if any, dance steps they used as they chanted it together. And also remember that it's a Hebrew song, not an English or American one. They didn't do things like rhyming and rhythmical stanzas the way we do. Nevertheless, you can sort of pick out three verses. The theme of:

Verse 1: God's power rescued ME (1-5) "Woo-hoo! Look what God did for me! He threw Pharaoh's horses and chariots into the sea as easily as you'd toss a stone into the waves and they sank straight to the bottom like that stone. That whole army, the pride of Egypt, the best of Pharaoh's officers are all floating with the tide! God did that for ME! He is my strength! He is my salvation, my deliverance! HE is for ME!" Then comes:

Verse 2: God's power is greater than ALL (6-12) "You are so great Lord that your anger burned them up like fire consumes a field of so much stubble. That mighty wind that drove back the sea was just the breath of your mighty nostrils. You heard them boasting to kill me and YOU killed them all. You are God Almighty; you are greater than ALL!" Then comes the logical conclusion in:

Verse 3: God's power will ensure our FUTURE (13-18) "Wow, Lord, if you can do that, You're gonna take us all the way to the promised land. If you destroyed Egypt, what chance do the Philistines and the Edomites and the Canaanites have! They'll melt away and be still as a stone until You take us into the promised land, the place where you're going to make Your sanctuary. Your power ensures our future for us!"

Moses sang the song first and all the men began to sing it after him. But then the women began to:

Repeat this refrain: (19-21) The very same song, the Song of Moses. They sang it all day antiphonally back and forth, men and women. They danced and sang before the Lord and worshipped with their hearts for this great deliverance He had wrought on their behalf. And to think how hard it is to get some of us excited about how He saved us! But in case you weren't paying much attention as we read that, you might want to go back and check it out again later because that's not the last time you'll hear it. When at the end of the age the children of God stand victorious in heaven and all His enemies lie at His feet, they're going to sing it again! Rev. 15:2-4, And I saw what looked like a sea of glass mixed with fire and, standing beside the sea, those who had been victorious over the beast and his image and over the number of his name. They held harps given them by God and sang the song of Moses the servant of God and the song of the Lamb: "Great and marvelous are your deeds, Lord God Almighty. Just and true are your ways, King of the ages. Who will not fear you, O Lord, and bring glory to your name? For you alone are holy. All nations will come and worship before you, for your righteous acts have been revealed." When all the earth lifts itself in that last time against God and His people and it seems that all is lost and Jesus comes leading the armies of heaven on a white horse and destroys them all with a word from his mouth, in heaven they'll be singing that Song of Moses one more time. But it will have a new verse, a new subject. It will not be about the Egyptians and the Red Sea of old; it will be the Song of the Lamb, now reigning triumphant on His throne forever and ever!

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

III. God's Preservation Of The Redeemed - 15:22-18:26

He Provides For His People - 15:22-16:36

Let me sum up our study of Exodus so far: In the first 6 chapters we saw God's PREPARATION to redeem His people Israel. He prepared them, their circumstances and the one to lead them out. In chapters 7 through 15 we saw God's PROCESS of redemption, how He redeemed them by sending 10 plagues upon Egypt and then parting the Red Sea so they could cross and destroying Egypt's army. It was a process of mighty miracles designed to get Him glory from all the nations of the earth. Now in chapters 16 through 18 we'll see God's PRESERVATION of His redeemed people, how He preserved and cared for them through their long journey in the wilderness to the Promised Land, and, of course, in the process we hope to learn some lessons about how He preserves us, His people, as well. Now if you were to lead 2 million people out into a wilderness on short notice, what do you think would be the first issue to arise? PROVISION, of course! Where are you going to get water and food for all those people in the middle of nowhere? Chapter 16 is here to give us the simple answer: GOD PROVIDES FOR HIS PEOPLE! When God takes us to be His people, He provides for us what we need! So, in the end of chapter 15 we have the record of how:

I. God Provided Water In The Desert (15:22-27) Read (22-23) We live in Pennsylvania where there are streams and rivers everywhere, where it rains frequently. But the Sinai Peninsula and all the Middle East is not like that. Any traveler's first concern is water. Israel left the shore of the Red Sea and marched into a dry desert following God's pillar of cloud. They walked for 3 days and by that time their water skins were empty and their throats parched. At last, they came to the first water hole or well, a place called Marah but the water there was bitter, that is brackish and polluted, undrinkable. Now remember that they got there by following God, so:

1. God sometimes leads us into dry circumstances, doesn't He? Some parts of our life are filled with long, painful days of trudging forward in circumstances that are truly unpleasant, conditions where we long for rest and refreshment and wish that we weren't trying to wring every last drop out of our waterskin emotionally or physically or financially. Now why does He do that? Why doesn't His path of life for us always lead through pleasant places? Well, the truth is in a phrase at the end of v. 25 ...there He tested them. You see:

a. dry circumstances test us They show US what we're really made of, what's really going on inside of us. He already knows, but WE need to know. Do we follow and obey the Lord only as long as things are pleasant, or do we follow Him no matter what comes? Those dry circumstances can make us bitter (24) Can't you just hear them? Imagine that you've marched 3 days to find water and the pond you come to is full of scum and algae or alkali! Can't you just hear YOU? "I've been following God; I haven't stepped out of His path at all, and He leads me to THIS? What am I gonna drink?" It doesn't take much for us to get there, does it? Sometimes just a few days of suffering circumstances are enough to make us doubt His character and think awful thoughts. But God already knew that Marah had bitter waters and He had a plan (25). While Israel complained, Moses prayed. That's what God intends for us to do, to cry out to Him in faith. Well, there was a tree nearby and God showed it to Moses and said, "throw that wood into the water" and when he did, it became sweet, that is clear and drinkable, and 2 million people quenched their thirst! Now why a tree? Well, I think there's a spiritual lesson there; it reminds us of another tree, another piece of wood, the one on which our Savior was crucified. Did you know that:

b. His Tree can make our bitter waters sweet? The remedy for that bitterness that wants to rise in us when we suffer in life is the Cross! When we go in our minds to the cross and we behold what Jesus endured there to save us, suddenly we find that our bitter waters become drinkable! We find that because of what He endured for us, we have grace to endure this for Him, trusting Him in faith! In the book, "The Fire of Your Life," Maggie Ross recounts the story of Emma, a survivor of the Holocaust, who regularly at 4 PM each day stood outside a Manhattan church and screamed insults at Jesus. Finally, the pastor, Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, went outside and said to Emma, "Why don't you go inside and tell him?" She disappeared into the church. An hour went by, and the bishop, worried, decided to look in on her. He found Emma, prostrate before the cross, absolutely still. Reaching down, he touched her shoulder. She looked up with tears in her eyes and said quietly, "After all, he was a Jew, too." [Diane Karay Rantoul in Leadership - Vol. 5, #3]. Listen, on that cross, He was thirsty too! He was wounded too! He knew pain and not being able to breathe too! He knew shame and derision and mockery too! He was single and lonely too! All things that He may lead you to endure, He has first endured for you. He is touched with the feeling of your infirmities! And if you throw that Tree into your bitter waters, you'll find that they grow sweet! You enter the fellowship of His sufferings and bear them together with Him! OK, let's skip ahead to v. 27. God does not always lead us to bitter places like Marah:

2. He also leads us into refreshing circumstances (27) Another day or two and they came to Elim where there was an entire oasis with twelve different springs or wells of pure, sweet water shaded by 70 palm trees growing around them. Last year we were with Andrea's in-laws in California. They literally live in the middle of the desert but one day we went to a park which was literally an oasis in the desert with a flowing stream and pools of water shaded by huge old palm trees just like this and I remember how cool it was down there in the shade and thinking what a welcome rest that oasis must have been to the early pioneers traveling through the region. Some places in life are like that, cool and refreshing, where our needs are supplied and everything is just good. Thank the Lord that He leads us to those too; in fact, His "Marahs" in our lives are often temporary stops on the way to better "Elims" He's planned for us to enjoy awhile as we keep traveling through life. But The Point of this whole section is that GOD, not the land, is their real source of water in life and that reminds me of what Jesus said in Jn. 7:37-39. Check that out yourself. Christ is our Water of Life. Today we carry our own oasis right with us. His Spirit now lives in our inmost beings and from Him flow out entire rivers of living water through our lives. There is inside us a source of spiritual nurture and refreshment and energy that never runs dry, if we will but learn to stop and drink of Him each day! Now as we move to Ch. 16, we see a second act of God's provision for His people:

II. God Provided A Continual Miracle Of Daily Bread (Ch. 16) Once again you see:

1. the continual need and complaining of God's people (1-3) It took 3 days to run out of water. It took about 30 days to run out of food. 2 million people eat A LOT! Every day! After the first month of travel, they had long since eaten everything they had carried with them and probably a good many of their livestock as well. I'm sure they rationed carefully what little they had, but it was rapidly becoming apparent that starvation was on the horizon, yet again, instead of asking God for their need, they complained about Him. It's funny how their memories of Egypt were suddenly embellished, "If God's going to starve us, at least He could have killed us all back in Egypt where our bellies were full, and it's all your fault, Moses!" It's amazing how we tend to convince ourselves that our past was better than it was, when we don't like the present! But graciously God hears their complaining and speaks to Moses before he can even pray and in vs. 4-11, we have:

2. God's commitment to provide for His people (4-11) [read 4-5] God took it upon His own shoulders that He was going to provide for daily food that all His people would need directly; He was going to rain down bread from heaven in the desert for them to eat. Of course, you know, don't you, that He has made that same commitment to us! - Mt. 6:31-33 The world runs around saying, "Where are we going to get what we need?" But we're to live with a confidence that our Father knows what we need and if we seek Him first, He will provide it. There are several principles we can take directly from the story. Just as He was going to do for Israel:

a. He will supply what we need each day by grace (4a) He will rain us down bread from heaven each day too. He will make a way for us to have what we need. It will be from Him, however, just as the Israelites had to go out each day and pick it up off the ground:

b. we must go out to gather it (4b) God didn't just have it delivered each morning in a basket by their fire. He didn't let them roll out of bed, spread their arms and get hit with a falling loaf to eat and then go back to bed. They had to get up early and gather what they needed while there was opportunity. That taught them the lesson Paul gave us in 2 Thes. 3:10 ...when we were with you, we gave you this rule: "If a man will not work, he shall not eat." God is not into laziness. He is willing to supply all you need, but He expects you to get out and work for it. Neither the world nor God owe us a living. He gives it by grace, but He expects us to participate in the process. Then, He gave one more instruction: on Friday they were to gather twice as much because on Saturday there wasn't gonna be any to gather! So:

c. His supply becomes a test of our trust (4c-5) If we obey Him and do life His way, we'll have all we need; if we don't, He's not responsible for our lack. How we go about the procuring of our daily bread is always a test of whether we trust God and believe that He's the source of everything we get or not. Now here's something we may not like:

d. we are to accept what He provides without complaint (6-10) When you grumble and complain about what you have or don't have and why you don't have all you want or what everybody else has, guess Who you grumble against! It's not the boss or the company or the government or the church, but the Lord! He is the source of your supply; He has committed Himself to meet your daily needs and when you moan and act ungrateful, you're complaining that He's not doing His job! Instead, God's desire is this:

e. He expects us to see His glory through His daily provision (11-12) Just like the Israelites, when He provides for us every day, He expects us to see it as His marvelous provision for us, a daily miracle of His love and grace which He lavishes on us. That's why we say "Thanks" before we eat! We recognize that today another miracle has been given to us, His hand has given what we need, as He so faithfully does every day. Now in the case of Israel, here's how He did it:

3. God's miraculous provision for Israel: quail and manna (13-16) That night a huge flight of quail came in flying down low and landing all over the area of their camp. It was a quail hunt to beat all quail hunts. Two million Israelites running around batting and catching quail and roasting them on their open fires! Now God didn't do this every evening. This wasn't their daily fare, but a bonus blessing of meat to eat that night. He did it one other time later on in Numbers 11. Their real surprise came in the morning. When the dew evaporated on the ground there was this flaky, powdery white substance that looked like frost on the ground. They'd never seen it before so they said, "Manna?" "What is it?" and that became its name. It was their bread from heaven, straight from God. And every morning for 40 years it "rained" bread just like this and their daily work was to go out and gather 2 quarts of it each to eat. Now not only was this God's means of feeding 2 million people in the wilderness but we read later that: it was intended to teach lessons to the generations to come (31-34) After the Tabernacle was built, they were to put a jar of it in the ark so that future generations who didn't get to see the actual miracle would still remember the lessons from this experience! So, it's not too crazy to think that we can learn some things about gathering what God gives us every day. Like the Israelites:

a. we are to share what we gather so all have enough (17-18) Everyone went out and gathered. Some were old and slow while others picked up a whole bunch quickly but Paul explained in 2 Cor. 8:14-15 that evidently, they pooled it and made sure that everyone had enough. Those who had a lot that day contributed some to those who didn't have enough and, in the end, everyone had all they needed. And Paul says the church is to do the same. God didn't give you all you get each day so you can hoard it up for yourself and let some brother starve; God wants to meet his need by giving through your hands. We are to share with each other so all will have enough! Second:

b. we are to depend on the Lord daily, not yesterday's provision (19-21) Sooner or later somebody would get the bright idea that I could work hard all day one day and gather enough for a whole week and then slack off and do nothing the rest of the time. Well, God made sure that wasn't going to happen; He made the manna so it melted away about 10 in the morning when the sun got hot so you couldn't wait and gather it whenever you felt like it and, if you kept any of it inside until the next day, it went bad. You couldn't store it up. So, every day you had to get out there and work to gather it and enjoy it and then do it again tomorrow. That's how God provided and that's how we're to depend on Him. Jesus taught us to pray: Give us this day our DAILY bread - Mt. 6:11. Literally, Give us today the bread of today... One day at a time. While He does allow us to save our money, the principle is that we are to depend directly on Him each day to provide what we need each day, not to rest on what we've accumulated and depend on it. And if we do that, we'll find that:

c. He will provide enough to give us a day of rest (22-30) The Sabbath was a command and a sign given to Israel. They were not to do ANY work at all on Saturday. So, every Friday God increased His miracle. He gave twice as much and made it last twice as long so they could eat for an extra day. Now we are not under that same command in a legalistic sense, but you can still trust God to provide enough in 6 days that you can give a day to Him for worship and rest on 1. When you get so wrapped up in your job that you're working 7 days a week and never resting, thinking you have to do that to make it, you're not trusting God as your source. He will give you enough so you have a day of rest also! and finally, note this:

d. God's provision will last until we reach the promised land (35) It lasted 40 years for them. For you it will last a lifetime. God will provide for you every day until you reach the land He's promised you also. You see:

The Point is that man didn't live by the bread alone, but by God whose word gives him his bread. He sustains us every day: Christ is our Bread of Life and Jesus had an interesting time talking to the Jews about that in Jn. 6:32-33, 48-51 if you want to check it out. Whether we're talking about physical life or about spiritual eternal life, He is the source of both. The founder of the China Inland Mission, Hudson Taylor, wrote the following words in his journal, "Our Heavenly Father is a very experienced One. He knows very well that His children wake up with a good appetite every morning. He always provides breakfast for them, and He does not send them supperless to bed at night... He sustained 3 million Israelites in the wilderness for 40 years. We do not expect He will send 3 million missionaries to China; but if He did, He would have ample means to sustain them all... Depend on it, God's work done in God's way will never lack God's supply." Child of God, the lesson from Marah and manna is simply this: if you're following Him daily and living by His principles, you will never lack God's supply!

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

III. God's Preservation Of The Redeemed - 15:22-18:26

He Protects His People - Ch. 17

Israel is now more than a month on her journey out of Egypt. She set out from Elim and crossed the desert or wilderness of Sin, eating her manna every morning. And now she has arrived and encamped at a place called Rephidim which means "resting places". And there, for the first time since leaving Egypt, she is attacked. Now actually Israel faced two battles there, not just one. They are the same two battles that we face on our journey through life. And the lesson God is picturing for us in this chapter is this: He not only PROVIDES for His people; He PROTECTS His people. The first battle they were faced with is not one that is readily visible, but we face it every day:

I. We Face An Internal Battle Against The Flesh (1-7) [Read 1-4] Their water skins were empty again after traveling through the desert and there was no water in this camp for them. And that same old reaction that was just waiting down inside them reared its ugly head again. They began to grumble about their thirst and argue with Moses and demand that He do something about it. You see:

1. when our needs are not being met according to our expectations, when we get really thirsty or tired, for instance, we are prone to test God, to demand that He do something about what's bothering us right now. They literally demanded of Moses that he do another miracle like he had done before and give them all water. And Moses said that in doing that they were putting God to the test. (2c, 7c) They must have been saying, "Is the Lord among us or not! If the Lord is here, then give us water! If God doesn't do what we want, then we won't believe!" You don't approach God that way; no human being can make God prove Himself. Who do we think we are?! But that pattern of demanding our own way, of judging God and trying to make Him meet our standards is part of what the New Testament calls "the flesh" Turn with me to Gal. 5:17 (Please note that the NIV mis-translates and has decided to insert the term "sinful nature" instead of using the word "flesh", but that is not really accurate.) (NASB) For the flesh sets its desire against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; for these are in opposition to one another, so that you may not do the things that you please. The spirit is who you really are, that part of you where Jesus dwells inside, the part that's been made brand new and holy by Christ. Your flesh is what today people often call "your baggage"; it's all that package of wrong ways of thinking and habit patterns of acting driven by emotions, wrong choices and their consequences, all those parts of you that sin has still got hold of. And there's a war on. Your spirit which is like God and loves God and wants to please God is always under attack. Your flesh, all that "yucky" stuff that at its root is driven by sin, is always trying to rise up and assert its desires and push you to do what IT wants you to do, for instance, to demand God give you water when you're thirsty and put Him to the test! Now:

2. when we yield to our flesh, we quarrel with our leaders (2-3) When they listened to their thirst, they grumbled against Moses. They quarreled with him and made demands of him. And, of course, when we grumble about and quarrel with our leaders, they grow discouraged! They've been giving all their energy and pouring out their hearts trying to help us, trying to show us what's best for us and our flesh gets its tail in a knot because we aren't getting what we want and we grumble and complain and blame them! That discourages anyone. No wonder Moses goes back to God and says, "What am I to do with these people!!!" No wonder Heb. 13:17 says Obey your leaders and submit to their authority. They keep watch over you as men who must give an account. Obey them so that their work will be a joy, not a burden, for that would be of no advantage to you. Well, in the end:

3. God gave His people water from a rock to meet their thirst [Read 5-7] At God's instruction, Moses took the rod of God which had parted the sea and he struck this rock with it and the rock split open and out gushed a pure spring of fresh water that continued to flow and watered 2 million people! Now that was a major miracle in itself and I don't want to minimize it but the New Testament tells us that there are some lessons God intended for US in the church to learn from this whole experience. It tells us that:

a. that rock pictured what Christ does for us - 1 Cor. 10:4, [They all] drank the same spiritual drink; for they drank from the spiritual rock that accompanied them, and that rock was Christ. Now that doesn't mean that Christ literally disguised Himself as a physical rock that followed them around everywhere giving them water. It means that just as they all drank of God's provision of life-giving water at the smitten rock, so Christ, who was smitten on the cross, was the source of their spiritual life AND of ours! Christ is the continual source of the spiritual water of which we drink as we journey through life. Now Jesus Himself explained that principle to His disciples. He told them that:

b. He provides us the Holy Spirit, who is a continual source of living water to us - Jn. 7:37-39 (NASB) Now on the last day, the great [day] of the feast, Jesus stood and cried out, saying, "If any man is thirsty, let him come to Me and drink. He who believes in Me, as the Scripture said, 'From his innermost being shall flow rivers of living water.'" But this He spoke of the Spirit, whom those who believed in Him were to receive; for the Spirit was not yet [given,] because Jesus was not yet glorified. Jesus gave each one of us as His followers His Holy Spirit to literally live inside us in our innermost being. And the Holy Spirit is like a river that never stops flowing, an inexhaustible source of spiritual power and energy for living, one that we carry around with us no matter where we are, no matter what dry desert we pass through. We have all received power through the presence of His Spirit in us. So how do we "drink" of Him? We drink by yielding to Him, by depending on Him, by relying on Him, by looking to Him as the source of all that we do. So:

c. when we drink by yielding to the spirit we live in victory - Gal. 5:16 (NASB) But I say, walk by the Spirit, and you will not carry out the desire of the flesh. When you yield yourself to the Spirit and live out of Him, you win the war. And by that, I mean simply this: stopping to pray "Holy Spirit, control me, I'm yours!" every day in every situation. When you do that, your flesh loses; its desires don't get carried out. Instead, you carry out God's desires.

As a boy, F. B. Meyer enjoyed visiting the Polytechnic, a science museum in London. One of the exhibits he liked most was a diving bell. It had no bottom, but there were seats attached to the rim at its base. At various times throughout the day, visitors were allowed to enter the diving bell and occupy those seats. It was then lowered into a deep tank of water. What fascinated Meyer was the fact that no water ever came up into the bell, even though its occupants could have reached out and dipped their fingers into it. How was this possible? The reason it did not fill with water is that air was constantly being pumped into the bell from above. If a vacuum had existed, the water would have rushed in. Meyer then made this application to believers: "If you are full of the Holy Ghost, the flesh-life is underneath you, and though it would surge up, it is kept out." The Holy Spirit is our God-given continual protection in the war against our flesh. His power is there for you, but if you don't access it, if you don't yield to Him, then your flesh will take over whatever part of your life He doesn't control. OK, that's the first battle we face in life, but there is a second:

II. We Face An External Battle Against The World (8-16) Let's read vs. (8) The Amalekites were actually cousins of the Israelites; they were descendants of Esau and they lived as a nomadic tribe in the region south of Canaan, the upper Sinai Peninsula. It was a pretty inhospitable place to live and they lived pretty much by raiding other nearby peoples. In fact, years later in David's day, they raided the town of Ziklag where he was living and captured his family! So as Israel was passing through their territory they laid in wait and attacked them. And there's the point:

1. the world around us will attack us on our journey through life Sometimes it is an outward attack of violence just like this. On Sept. 8 Hindu extremists laid in wait for Brother Thomas, a 60 yr. old evangelist who had been preaching in his home village of Guttigar, India and had established a small church there. At 7:30 PM he and his wife were driving to a meeting when he came upon a man lying in the road with a motorcycle a few feet away, looking like the victim of an accident. When he got out and went over, the man threw chili powder in his eyes and 15 men hidden in the bushes jumped out and beat him mercilessly with sticks and wooden clubs. They told he and his wife they would suffer a cruel death if they continued to preach in the village. This stuff happens. It is not even rare in the world. Sometimes the attack will come through discrimination where we work; sometimes it will be a legal attack against our work or a government trying to snuff it out. Many times, it will be our family or even our own spouse angry with us, perhaps throwing us out and disowning us because we've decided to follow Christ. It could be a neighbor or a coworker or a fellow student who just decides to dislike and hurt us. This shouldn't be unexpected; Jesus warned us that we can expect the world to hate us, simply because we believe in Him. And remember:

a. the attack will come at our point of greatest weakness Here's what upset God when they did this; turn with me to Deut. 25:17-19. Israel was weary from their long journey, tired and thirsty having been without water. Their line was strung out for a long distance along the path. And instead of facing them army to army, the Amalekites picked off the stragglers, the ones who were tired and lagged behind, the weakest and most vulnerable. The devil is despicable like that. He loves to prey on children and old folks, anybody that's weak. And he loves to find your greatest point of vulnerability, the area or time where you are weakest and can't protect yourself and send his troops to attack that! But understand this, when the world attacks you because you are a believer:

b. it is a direct affront to God's saving power He says, They had no fear of God! The Amalekites knew who they were attacking. They knew their cousins worshipped Jehovah; they were God's people. Word had traveled about what Jehovah had done to the land of Egypt, how He had destroyed it and had defeated their army. But they had no fear of God; they thought they could attack His people and He could do nothing about it. And they found themselves fighting against God! God said of Israel, whoever touches you touches the apple of His eye!, that is, the pupil, his tenderest spot. Whoever touches the child of God incurs the Father's wrath! If you don't believe it, just read the story of Haman in the book of Esther; it is the story of literally the last "Amalekite" mentioned in the Bible who wanted to wipe out the Jews and ended up hung on his own gallows! Anyway, back to our story. I want you to see:

2. God's means of assuring our victory (9-11) Two men were used to bring about victory over the Amalekites. The first is Joshua, a young man who became Moses' aide and eventual successor.

a. Joshua fought with them in earthly action He led Israel's troops into battle and they fought hand to hand with swords and clubs and whatever they had. It's interesting that the name Joshua is the Hebrew form of the name Jesus, because Joshua is a picture of Jesus. Jesus leads us in our response as we are attacked. He leads us as we engage those who oppose us. But while Joshua was down in the valley with the troops:

b. Moses stood above on the hill and in control of all. When he raised his hands up to God, presumably holding the rod of God up as he had before, then Israel was winning. When he lowered his hands, they began to lose. The outcome of the battle lay literally in His hands. And in that, Moses also pictures Jesus, now seated on high on the throne of God, reigning and ruling. He is in control. The outcome of the battle is literally in His hands, even while we are down here in the middle of it! JESUS is God's means of assuring our victory; He is with us in the battle and He's in control of the battle! The battle is the Lord's! Now in that same double picture, we see a picture of:

3. our means of obtaining the victory If you have ever tried to work on a ceiling you know the problem Moses had. You can't keep your hands up over your head for long without letting them down. So, here's what they did (12). Aaron and Hur assisted Moses in his work of controlling the battle. They held his hands up with him. And that pictures for us that:

a. we participate together with Jesus above in prayer When we lift up our hands to God in prayer and cry out to Him, we participate with Him in the battle, we impact the outcome of the conflict. That's why we emphasize prayer for missions each week. In one sense we live in a continual battle. Jesus is building His church; it is advancing against the gates of hell and they won't stand against it. But it will not advance unless we pray, neither around the world nor in this community right here. That's why we ask you to pray for our Nursery School which is going already, to pray for our Pioneer Clubs which are about to start up, to pray for this flea market outreach event next Saturday that we'll meet and impact community people there. Jerry Falwell used to say that nothing of eternal importance ever happens apart from prayer! We should be praying ALL the time, but especially when an attack comes, whether it is physical or legal or financial or relational. That is our first response. But while Aaron and Hur are holding up hands, look at Joshua (13). Joshua is out there with the troops engaging the enemy and that pictures for us that:

b. we participate together with Jesus below in action When our enemies attack us, Jesus leads us into earthly action! And let me be really clear that, no, we don't literally fight them and kill them as Israel did. Muslim extremists kill their enemies. Any time in history that the church has tried to play by those rules, such as in the Crusades or the Inquisition, it has been a disaster and the church actually becomes the enemy! You see, Jesus came and changed the rules of engagement. Luke 6:27-30, 35 ...Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who mistreat you. If someone strikes you on one cheek, turn to him the other also. If someone takes your cloak, do not stop him from taking your tunic. Give to everyone who asks you, and if anyone takes what belongs to you, do not demand it back... But love your enemies, do good to them, and lend to them without expecting to get anything back. Then your reward will be great, and you will be sons of the Most High, be- cause he is kind to the ungrateful and wicked. When we are attacked, we do take action. We engage our enemies in love, praying for their souls, giving them the word of our testimony and loving not our own lives even to the death! Paul had enemies everywhere he went and here's what he said: 1 Cor. 4:12-13 ...When we are cursed, we bless; when we are persecuted, we endure it; when we are slandered, we answer kindly. Up to this moment we have become the scum of the earth, the refuse of the world. That's how we fight and that's how we win and the church goes forward, but how do we do that? By grace! Jesus is with us in the battle. Jesus gives us love for our enemies and strength to repay evil with good.

In August 1983, Russell Stendal was taken hostage into the jungle of Colombia, South America, by a band of guerrilla soldiers. For nearly 5 months he learned what it really means to love one's enemies. He wrote a letter home, saying, "I am in danger only of losing my life; they are in danger in losing their souls." Through kindness, Russell befriended his guards. One day the commander told him, "We can't kill you face to face; we like you. So, we will have to kill you in your sleep." God enabled Russell to forgive, but for the next 10 days and nights he couldn't sleep. A submachine gun was repeatedly thrust in his face under his mosquito net, but the guards couldn't bring themselves to pull the trigger. On January 3, 1984, Russell was released. When he said goodbye, tears filled the eyes of some of his captors. Of course, not all such incidents have such a happy ending as we know from the Burnhams whom we prayed for as they were taken captive in the Philippines a few years ago. Gracia was rescued but Martin was killed in the process. There are always casualties in the battle. Martyrs line the entire history of the church, but we are still winning the battle; the church is still advancing today at a greater rate than ever before! More spiritual enemies are being swept into the kingdom of God in the last several decades than in all of previous history combined. The lesson from this story is simple:

4. the lesson to remember (14-15): The LORD is My Banner! Most armies fight under a banner, a flag. Our troops fight under the flag of the United States; they fight for our national cause. As believers we fight under Jehovah's banner; we fight for His cause. And His cause cannot lose! His Kingdom will be established and all enemies put under His feet!

God Redeems A People - Exodus 1-18

III. God's Preservation Of The Redeemed - 15:22-18:26

He Preserves His Leaders - Ch. 18

In the story of the exodus, we've been looking at how God preserves His redeemed people beginning at the end of Ch. 15. We've seen so far how He provides for us and how He protects us. Today we'll complete this section in Ch. 18 where we see how God preserves His leaders. After the battle at Rephidim, Israel is encamped and resting and Moses gets a great surprise. His father-in-law Jethro shows up from Midian to meet him there and brings Moses' wife Zipporah and his two sons with him. This chapter is the record of that visit and what came out of it and it is a great encouragement for leaders in ministry. Whether pastors or elders or teachers or counselors or youth group or small group leaders, anyone that is involved in caring for a flock of people, big or small, God understands the stresses and strains you face in caring for people and, if you will listen to Him, He will preserve you! He wants to preserve you! He doesn't want you to get overloaded and burn out and give up. And He doesn't want the pressure to damage your family. In fact, that's the first thing we see about leaders here. God:

I. He Seeks To Preserve Their Family Relationships (1-12) In vs. 1-6 we see how:

1. Moses is reunited with his wife and children (1-6) [read] We learn here something we were not told before, the fact of:

a. their evident separation (2) Moses never took Zipporah and his sons all the way to Egypt with him when he went there. The last we hear of them is 4:24-26, that unique story where he and Zipporah had an argument at a place along the way about circumcising their youngest son. It seems that at that point Moses must have sent her back to her father in Midian to be cared for while he went to Egypt to bring Israel out. They were apart perhaps 10 months or so. We're not told why. Her anger against what God had commanded might have been a factor. Or maybe Moses realized how badly she didn't want to go or perhaps he thought they might be safer. We can only speculate the reason why they were apart during this time; the one thing that is clear is that her father Jethro has been watching and listening for news of Moses and when it came, he immediately set out to bring her and the kids back to be reunited. We're not told anything about their reunion or their relationship going forward; God leaves all that in the dark. But there is one obvious lesson here:

b. an important lesson about separation Jethro knew that families should not be separated for long, that it is not good, not healthy. Paul obviously taught the same thing in the New Testament. In 1 Cor. 7:5 Paul explained that husbands and wives face sexual temptation when they are separated from each other for a prolonged time in that way. Do not deprive each other except by mutual consent and for a time, so that you may devote yourselves to prayer. Then come together again so that Satan will not tempt you because of your lack of self-control. This would be true whether they are simply abstaining sexually for a time or whether they are physically separated from one another and abstaining because of it. It is not good for husbands and wives to be continually apart, even though they may have to do it temporarily for the sake of ministry. When your ministry or your job begins to take you away from your wife or vice versa for prolonged periods of time through travel or even for long, late hours at the office or the church, it is absolutely necessary to make deliberate efforts to guard yourself so that you will remain pure and to be reunited as soon as possible. Jethro was wise and knew that and helped Moses in this area by bringing his family back. And that brings us to the next portion where we see how:

2. Moses is reunited with his father-in-law Jethro (7-12) [read 7] Think about this for a moment. Moses never really got to know and be with his Hebrew mother and father; he was raised by Pharaoh's daughter and likely had no real father-figure in the palace. But Jethro took him in in his time of need in Midian. He received him into his family and gave him his daughter. He employed him in his family business as a shepherd. Jethro was the father Moses never had for 40 years. And he was a priest of God, a godly man who taught and encouraged Moses. In fact:

a. Jethro had affirmed Moses in following God When Moses told Jethro that he wanted to leave with his family and go back to Egypt, Jethro said, "Go, and I wish you well." (4:18) He didn't try to stop him or to hold on to his grandchildren. He sent him away in peace with his blessing. Then when Moses sent them back, he gladly received them and cared for them until he could return them. From their meeting it is clear that:

b. Moses valued Jethro's fellowship in spiritual things (8-11) They both knew the Lord and that was the focus of their relationship. Moses was quick to tell him all that God had done in the 10 plagues and the crossing of the Red Sea and Jethro was quick to return praise, to express what an assurance that was to him about the greatness of God. You know, everybody needs a Jethro, an older, wiser person with whom to share about the things of the Spirit. If it can be your own mother or father, that is a wonderful privilege. But if not, as in Moses' case, everybody needs some kind of a spiritual mother or father figure to go to for encouragement and wisdom. This is another of the key things that God provides to preserve us in ministry, a mentor, a teacher, one who has walked the path before us and can keep us on track. In v. 12 you can see how:

c. they worshipped God together (12) The tabernacle and the law of sacrifices have not been instituted yet so Jethro just does what he's always done to worship God and Moses and his leaders join in. What a phrase; they ate bread in the presence of God! What a refreshing thing it is to talk together of the things of God, to ingest the meaning of the Scriptures together, to pray together about the problems you face. Leaders, if you don't have someone like that in your life, you might want to ask God how to find one! It would be a blessed means by which to preserve you in your leadership and your work. And then notice in the rest of the chapter how much Moses:

d. he valued advice from Jethro's experience (24, 27) Of course nobody is 100% right all the time, but if an older wiser person is walking with God, they are surely worth listening to! You have to value the experience they've had. In this case Jethro noticed one particular thing concerning the way Moses went about his daily ministry and he humbly tried to help him with it. So, God not only seeks to preserve His leaders in their family relationships, but secondly:

II. He Seeks To Preserve Them In Their Ministry (13-27) He wants them to last to the end, to continue on through and finish well. Now just look at:

1. the burden of responsibility Moses carried (13-18) Two plus million people are bound to have a few disputes, particularly when they live in temporary shelters in the wilderness! I'm sure dozens of them would come to Moses each day for help. They saw Moses as representing God so if they wanted to know His will, they would come and ask him what to do. It was overwhelming; all day long it continued. It took a toll on Moses, wore him down and fatigued him. Some folks think it would be great to be a Moses or a Paul, to have some big leadership position. Pastors may dream of pastoring a huge church or others of leading some great organization. People tend to think about all the authority and privilege that leadership seems to have. But the truth is that most leadership positions are a lot of work and the more people you're leading, the heavier the burden you carry. Lots of people mean lots of problems to deal with, lots of demands for your time and lots of long hours on your schedule. Lots of complaints and administrative headaches and logistics too! Not to mention emails and phone calls! Involvement in ministry, particularly a vibrant growing one, can be a wearying thing and nobody seems to understand it! But Jethro did. He knew just what to do and he said to Moses the obvious, the work is too heavy for you and you cannot handle it alone! Then he suggested:

2. God's solution: the delegation of responsibility (19-27) Get others to share in the task with you. The best leader is not the one who is simply able to do everything himself or herself like superman. The best leader is the one who knows how to delegate responsibility to others and make them responsible for the portion of the work that they can handle. Much more gets done that way and the leader is preserved to continue. For instance, in Acts 6, the apostles realized that they were overwhelmed with trying to see that all the widows in the church got fed each day and it was eating into their teaching and praying time. So, they chose deacons to carry out that responsibility and delegated it to them. That way both tasks got done. Now let's go back and look again at three of the verses we just read and clarify some key concepts about this. The first one concerns:

a. the people to delegate to (21) Who can you delegate responsibility to? You can't give it to just anybody. There are 4 qualities that Jethro mentions here in choosing people to be judges that really ought to be qualities found in any person that we entrust parts of the ministry to. The most obvious one is that:

(1) they must be capable That is, they must have gifts to do the kind of job you're going to ask them to do. If you need people to settle disputes like Moses did, they have to be fair and wise and patient and listen well to people. If you need people to organize events, they have to be organized detail people. If you need a building maintained or finances handled, you choose a person with those capabilities. If you need a person to preach or teach, they'd better have some aptitude and experience for it. Capability is important but it is of absolutely no value without the second quality:

(2) they must be spiritual Men who fear God. All the capability in the world is worthless if the person doesn't love God with all their heart and want to obey and please Him. Too often we give people responsibilities because they're able, but their hearts aren't right and we end up in big trouble. They become our new headache in the ministry, holding back and hindering God's work because their hearts aren't in the right place. Then of course:

(3) they must be trustworthy, literally men of truth, people who will not lie to you, who will not tell you only what you want to hear, who will not embellish what is happening to make themselves look good. And:

(4) they must be honest, hating dishonest gain. Not willing to take bribes or play favorites for gifts received. Not in it for the money or anything else they can get out of it.

That's step one to relieve stress in ministry: find the right person who is capable, spiritual, trustworthy and honest; it's not all that hard! Then apply:

b. the principle of delegation (22) In other words:

(1) encourage them to do what they can do Give them responsibility for the things that they can handle and LET them handle those things. Don't make them run back and report to you every 5 minutes or look over their shoulder on every minute detail. Let them lead. Trust them to do what they can do. But that doesn't mean that you do nothing. Delegation is not about giving your work to everyone else so you can do as little as possible. It means that while they are doing what they can do, you:

(2) do what only you can do Most leaders are capable of doing a lot of things. They can do most of the things that everybody else can do. But for you to be effective in leading, what God needs is for you to focus on the things you can do that nobody else around you can and delegate the rest. Professor Peter Drucker, the world famous business consultant, tells about being in high school in the 1920s. His history teacher, who had himself been wounded while fighting in the war, gave his class a challenging assignment. They had to write a term paper about World War I, doing their research in the multitude of books about the war that had recently been published. After they had presented their papers orally in class, one of Drucker's classmates asked an insightful question: "Why is it that every one of these books analyzing the war says that it was a war of total military incompetence?" The teacher didn't even pause to think before he answered: "Because not enough generals were killed. They almost all stayed behind the lines and let others do the fighting and dying." Drucker concludes, "Effective leaders delegate a good many things; they have to or they drown in trivia. But they do not delegate the one thing that only they can do with excellence." Effective leaders are to be found in the thick of the battle, leading by example. [The Leader of the Future ed. by Hesselbein, Goldsmith, and Beckhard. The Drucker Foundation, 1996.] Find the thing that God has called you uniquely to do and concentrate on that thing!

And if you are able to do that, to find quality people and effectively give them the portion of responsibility they are capable of carrying, you'll see:

c. the results of delegation (23) Two things will happen. First:

(1) the load of responsibility will be bearable You'll be able to stand the strain of ministry without burning out and secondly:

(2) the job will get done The people will get their needs met. They won't have to stand in line all day waiting to see you. Their cry will be heard sooner and they'll be happier.

Moses' father-in-law left him in much better shape as he departed. Re-united with his family, strengthened by their spiritual sharing together and wisely delegating a bunch of things he didn't need to be doing that gave other people a chance at important ministry. Through Jethro's wisdom, God preserved him to last through 40 years in the wilderness and if you'll follow His principles, He will preserve you through many years of ministry also.

God Instructs A People - Exodus 19-24

The Seriousness Of God's Instruction - Ch. 19

I had originally planned to end this series with chapter 18, but somehow it just doesn't feel right to follow Israel all the way out of Egypt to Mt. Sinai and stop there. So, we'll go on over the next few weeks to Ch. 24 where we WILL stop before we get into the instructions for building the Tabernacle. In Chapters 1-18 we saw how God redeems a people; in Chapters 19-24 we'll see how God instructs a people. God had told Moses when He first spoke to Him out of the burning bush: Exodus 3:12 ...this will be the sign to you that it is I who have sent you: When you have brought the people out of Egypt, you will worship God on this mountain. And that is exactly where God led them when He brought them out. Chapter 19 is the story of their arrival and their preparation for what God was about to tell them and what you can't miss as you read this chapter is what a serious matter God's instruction is. But before we dive into that, let's just notice:

I. The Circumstances In Which God Instructed Israel (1-2) First of all notice:

1. the time of His instruction: They arrived on the first day of the third month of their year. Now remember the night of the Passover was the 14th day of the first month (and Hebrew months all have 30 days) so there are 16 more days in the first month plus 30 in the second month, meaning they arrived at Sinai on the 47th day. Then vs. 11 says that 3 more days pass until God appears to speak with them, so if I calculate it right God actually gave them His instruction, His law on the "50th Day" and that's what Jewish tradition says. Of course, in the Greek language the "50th day" would be called Pentecost! Does that ring a bell? There is a tremendous parallel here. Fifty days after the Passover lamb was slain and Israel was redeemed, God gave them His law to guide them; fifty days after Christ our Passover was slain on the cross and we were redeemed, God gave us His Holy Spirit to dwell in us and to write His law upon our hearts and guide us into all truth! So, the giving of the Law is both parallel to and also in direct contrast with the giving of the Holy Spirit and we'll need to keep that in mind as we study the Law in these next chapters. We ought to be looking for the meaning of the Spirit in what is going on! Please keep that in mind for next week. Now secondly notice:

2. the place of His instruction: Mt. Sinai In fact, two names are used to describe this location in various places in Scripture, Horeb and Sinai. It seems to me that in ancient usage Horeb was the name for the entire region where the mountain was located and it means "desolate or wasteland". Moses smote the rock at Horeb back in Ch. 17 and water came out. Sinai was more specifically the name for this particular mountain itself and it means "thorny". So, don't picture Israel coming to a desert of sand, but rather a wilderness of rugged rock formations and crags barren of vegetation and water, nothing growing but the hardiest of plants like thornbushes. And as they pick their way through this "badlands" they come out upon a plain where they camp at the base of a 7,000 foot peak, the highest in the region, and it is there that God has chosen to deliver His word. It is a theatrical stage of stern unmatched grandeur so that Israel would not soon forget what transpired there. Yet what's really important about Mt. Sinai is not the physical location, rather it is:

II. The Covenant Which God Made With Israel Let's read it in vs. (3-8) God called Moses up onto the mountain, gave Him the covenant and its terms and sent him back down to give it to the people and he brought their answer back up again. God says, "You have seen 2 things. First you saw how I destroyed all of Egypt, the mightiest nation on earth to rescue you. You saw My might and my power and my fierce wrath poured out. You KNOW who I am! Then you saw how I carried you all the way through this desert, just the way a mother eagle puts her chick upon her back and carries it on her powerful wings across the wilderness. I carried you here on my strong wings. I provided for you bread from heaven each day and water from the rock. I protected you when you were attacked by enemies and I directed you in a pillar of cloud and fire all the way. I brought you here; you didn't bring yourselves! And now I want to make a covenant, a sacred bond with you!" Now notice that this covenant had both a 3-fold promise and a 3-fold premise.

1. the promise of the covenant is in vs. (5-6): God would make Israel 3 things. First:

a. they would be His people: you will be My treasured possession Out of all the people groups, ethnic groups, on earth, He would choose Israel alone to belong to Him, to be claimed by Him, to be HIS people. And they would be His prized possession, His dearest treasure, His unique prize, the thing He valued most in all the earth, even though He owns the whole world. What an awesome privilege! Second:

b. they would enter His presence: they would be a kingdom of priests This does not mean that every Israelite would offer sacrifices at their tabernacle; they obviously couldn't. Rather, it means that they would all have the privilege of coming to Him, of approaching Him and knowing Him and, more specifically, of approaching Him and mediating on behalf of all the other peoples of the earth. They would be His priests who would spread the knowledge of Him to the world to bless all the peoples and would be the ones to bring them to God. What an awesome responsibility! Thirdly:

c. they would acquire His purity: He would make them a holy nation, a holy people. The Hebrew word is goy; the term for the Gentile or non-Jewish peoples of the world is the plural, goyim. Although they were one of the peoples just like all the rest, God would set them apart to Himself. He would make them holy. Through the sacrifices they brought their sin would be removed and through His instruction given to them on how to live, His holiness would become theirs. They would be a people living righteous lives, living out and modeling the very life of God in holiness and purity before a watching world. Again, what an awesome responsibility!

What a wonderful promise God made to them. But notice also that unlike the covenant that God made with Abraham which was completely one sided - God said "I will, I will, I will"- this Mosaic covenant also contains a premise, a requirement, an "I will but YOU MUST..." And:

2. the premise of the covenant was obvious: obedience (5a) You must obey Me fully and keep my covenant! You see, this covenant:

a. it was conditional "I will if you will." "You will be my people IF you obey fully what I tell you. If you don't, you forfeit the promise; I am released from My obligation." This fact that it was conditional upon obedience was what was wrong with this first covenant. Heb. 8:7 says For if there had been nothing wrong with that first covenant, no place would have been sought for another. Jesus wouldn't have had to come and make a new covenant with His own blood if they could actually keep the first one! The New Testament teaches us that one of the purposes of the law was simply to teach us that we can't keep it, to show us that our works can't possibly save us. It is our schoolmaster to show us how sinful and flawed we are and how much we need Christ! Secondly, I want you to notice that:

b. it was national (5b-6) It was not about personal salvation for individual Israelites. That has always been by grace through faith. This is a covenant between God and an entire people. God would make Israel special and treat her in a way that was different from every other nation. To break the covenant meant for them as a nation to be set aside from this special place of privilege which is exactly what happened to them many times throughout their history and it happened with finality when they rejected Christ as their Messiah. Israel was set aside from her place of privilege and the church was raised up as a new people to carry out the plan of God to bless all the peoples of the earth. Then lastly:

c. it was mutual This was not forced upon Israel. They were offered the terms and they agreed to it. And notice how Israel was quick to agree to it when Moses told them, how hastily they said, "Sure, that sounds great. Everything you say we will do!" It was an answer of ignorance, a shallow response. What they should have said was, "We can't possibly do that. We know ourselves. We know how we grumble and complain and become unfaithful every time we have a problem. We remember our moaning at Marah and our complaining at Rephidim. If this covenant depends on our obedience, we will certainly default on our end, probably sooner rather than later, and we will bring punishment on ourselves! God, help us only by grace!" But they didn't say that. They said (8) we will do everything the Lord has said! So, God then had to hold them to it. And He did. But before we move on let's take a quick look at the New Testament and check out:

3. what God has made us to be in Jesus Christ - 1 Pet. 2:9-10 Did you hear that? Everything that Israel was supposed to be, WE ARE. We are His treasured possession, the thing He values most in all the world. Think about this: Chuck Swindoll points out that even the most ordinary items can become extremely valuable if they belong or belonged to somebody important. Napoleon's toothbrush sold for $21,000. Hitler's car was sold for more than $150,000. People will pay thousands to become the owners of a pipe that C. S. Lewis smoked, Winston Churchill's desk, sheet music written in Beethoven's own hand, or a house that Ernest Hemingway once owned. When Sotheby's auctioned off Jackie Kennedy Onassis' personal belongings, somebody shelled out $211,500 for her fake pearls and a set of JFK's golf clubs were sold for $772,500! None of these items were that valuable in themselves. They acquired great value because they belonged to somebody important. We fit that bill, too! Think of the value of something owned by God. What incredible worth that bestows on us, what inexpressible dignity! We belong to Him. [Hope Again by Charles Swindoll. Word Publishing, 1996. Page 71.] We are His chosen people who belong to Him! And we are a kingdom of priests, a royal priesthood who enter His presence and stand before Him on behalf of all the peoples of the earth, and a holy people composed of some from every people, living out His righteous life before a watching world because of His Holy Spirit that He put in each of us! Only our privilege is not conditional! It is not based on how well we perform, though sometimes we perform pretty lousy! These privileges were bought for us at the cross and bestowed on us when we believed! What awesome privileges! Glory in them! But, oh what awesome responsibilities we have! Now quickly let me go over with you in the rest of the chapter:

III. The Setting In Which God Instructed Israel (9-25) because in it we can pick out:

1. the lessons God sought to impress upon Israel at Sinai Let's begin with vs. (9) The first lesson is that:

a. God is the source of His Word He appeared to them in a dense cloud, a huge visible manifestation, and spoke to them in an audible voice that every one of them heard so that they would know it was from Him. The law was not something Moses cooked up or invented; it was not some unimportant message. It was the word of Almighty God

Himself and must be treated as such. How lightly we treat this Book sometimes! Yet it is the very Word of God, not the writings of men! The next lesson is that:

b. God must be approached in personal holiness (10-11, 14-15) God gave them 3 days to get clean, to physically wash their clothes and their bodies. But I'm sure his intent was not just for them to show up in clean clothes with dirty hearts! I'm sure He meant for them to ponder their own sinfulness and uncleanness and put away from their lives everything that was displeasing to Him. The lesson is in Ps. 24:3-4: Who may ascend the hill of the LORD? Who may stand in his holy place? He who has clean hands and a pure heart, who does not lift up his soul to an idol or swear by what is false. How lightly we take our privilege of approaching Him sometimes! The third lesson is one that we already know:

c. God's penalty for sin is death (12-13) God told them to set a boundary somewhere at the base of the mountain so no one would go closer and the penalty for violating that boundary was death. No one was to even rush in and grab the offender and pull him back; he was to be instantly stoned or shot with an arrow or spear! It reinforced the lesson of Rom. 6:23 The wages of sin is death! That is how serious sin is to Him. Because of our privilege in Christ, we take it so lightly; we forget just how serious it is and why He had to die for us! Next, we see that:

d. God's wrath is a fearful thing (16) When God's presence appeared on that third morning everybody trembled in their boots. Heb. 12:21 tells us The sight was so terrifying that Moses said, "I am trembling with fear." He showed them visibly what 10:31 says: It is a dreadful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. His wrath is an awful thing and that is what He rescued them from by bringing them to Himself. He taught them that even though they were His people, they ought to remember who it was that loved them and treasured them. Not so they would be constantly afraid of Him, but so that they would give Him the reverence and respect that He deserves. We could use a little more of that ourselves, couldn't we? And finally, He we see Him emphasize here that:

e. man is too foolish to grasp this (20-24) Moses has already been up the mountain, then down with the covenant then back up with their answer and down again to tell them to get ready for the third day. So now he goes up the third time and God tells him to go back down and make double sure that the people don't cross the boundary markers. And Moses says, "Aw God, they can't get up here. We already did like you said and put out markers and warned them. Nobody would be dumb enough to cross them now!" And God says, "God down and warn them again! I know these people better than you do; they need a double warning!" Isn't that something? God knows that even after all of that awesome display and people trembling with fear that they will still be foolish enough to disobey and die for it! Truly God knows what is in man, doesn't He? We are foolish critters. We don't learn from our mistakes. We ignore repeated warnings! But as we close, let's turn to Heb. 12 and make sure we don't miss:

2. the lessons God seeks to impress upon us through Sinai God takes up the meaning of this whole event and describes it all over again, applying it to us: (18-24) We get all impressed at the awesomeness of this setting and what God did there to impact Israel but the real truth is that:

a. we have experienced greater realities than they did They saw a visible, earthly, outward demonstration suited to their miserable spiritual condition. We have a better mountain, Mount Zion, the heavenly city that is our home. We have a better assembly, the church of the firstborn, a new covenant and greater promises bought by the blood of the Redeemer Himself! What we have is better than what they had! Our privileges are greater than theirs by far. Our relationship to God is on a higher plane than theirs! So, his point is that:

b. we bear a greater responsibility than they did! (25-29) Oh, if they should have obeyed and served God after their experience, how much more should we after knowing what we know and having the privileges that we have! We ought to serve Him with all reverence and awe, laying our lives at His feet and expending them in His service. How we ought to dread even the thought of displeasing Him who died for us!

Syndicated columnist Dale Bourke wrote: "Recently I rode home in a taxi with a driver who prominently displayed the Koran. We chatted briefly about his life and beliefs, and finally I asked him a question that had puzzled me for some time. "You seem like a wise and moderate man. Can you explain why the writer Salman Rushdie should be condemned to death for writing what the Muslim world considers blasphemy?" "The driver paused and then said, 'Yes, I do understand, but I'm not sure I can explain it so you will. You see, in America you seem to believe that freedom of speech is more important than the fear of God. If you are truly a Muslim, you know better.' Dale says, "I thought about his words for a long time. As a Christian, I may not agree with pronouncing a death sentence on a man for his writings, but if I believe what I say I believe, the fear of God should be more real in my life than anything else." ["We Have Nothing to Fear But God" by Dale Hanson Bourke. Religion News Service, 1996.] Is it?

God Instructs A People - Exodus 19-24

The Core Of God's Moral Instruction - Ch. 20

In Exodus 20 God gives Israel His Law, the terms of their covenant. We call them the Ten Commandments, literally the Ten Words. We memorize them in Sunday School and hang them in our courtrooms. To this day they form the core moral guidelines that undergird all of human society and our laws are based on them. To most of us they are "old hat", old axioms we've heard before and take for granted. But I'd like to take a fresh look at them today, yet before we do, let's look briefly at two facts about:

I. The Law That God Gave To Israel

First of all, you need to notice that:

1. He spoke it directly to all the people (1, 18-23) God spoke to the whole congregation out loud with an audible voice from heaven before Moses went back up the mountain. These commands were not delivered by Moses or received first in writing. Heb. 12:19 says plainly that they heard a voice speaking words that so frightened them that they begged not to have God speak any more. Vs. 22-23 tell us why He did. He says, "You have heard My voice speak to you; you know these are MY commands (then He reinforces the very first thing He spoke to them) DO NOT have any other gods!" It was designed to impress upon them once for all that HE alone is God and that these are HIS commands and they MUST be obeyed! On the other hand, you MUST know this about the Law:

2. He gave it to Israel; NOT to us. Notice the premise in vs. (2) God did not bring US out. He brought THEM out. It was a covenant and a law given to Israel as a nation, not universally to the whole world. We are NOT under the law; we are not bound by it. Listen to Rom. 6:14 ...you are not under law, but under grace. And Gal. 5:18 ...if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under law. In fact, Rom. 10:4 (NASB) says For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes. This system of relating to God by obeying the Law was given to Israel, not to us and now in Christ it is done and over with. We relate to God by grace and by His Spirit in us.

So why do we study it? Because it does reveal to us the mind of God on moral issues. Many of the things spoken here were already considered wrong even in pagan societies; they are not new. Here God put them down in a concise code of law to be easily remembered. And all of the principles embodied in the ten commandments are repeated in various New Testament scriptures for us and deepened there and we are commanded to keep them there out of love for Christ. Now just as the law was later written on two stone tablets, it appears to divide cleanly into what we call two tables.

II. The First Table Of The Law, the first 4 commandments, has to do with Our Relationship To God. The first commandment has to do with:

1. God's person (3): He is not admitting the possibility that other gods exist; what He means is "I am the only God; do not worship any other!" Don't let me see you worship anyone or anything else but ME! I am not one among many gods. You can't add Me to the gods of Egypt or the gods of Canaan. I alone am God; acknowledge NO OTHER! Paul re-stated this truth nicely for us in 1 Cor. 8:5-6 For even if there are so-called gods, whether in heaven or on earth (as indeed there are many "gods" and many "lords"), yet for us there is but one God, the Father, from whom all things came and for whom we live; and there is but one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom all things came and through whom we live. Our God is unique, the only One. The god of Islam is an aberration of the true God. The gods of Hinduism and Buddhism and the gods of the tribal peoples are not gods at all, but idols invented by demons. The earth and the sun have often been worshipped, and curiously, our culture ends up back there talking about "Mother Earth" and "Mother Nature" and deifying the world as though it created and evolved itself; But no created thing is God. There is only one God, the God we worship, the Father of our Lord Jesus. When you worship anything else, it's idolatry. And by the way Eph. 5:5 says that a greedy person is an idolater; a man can worship money or power or sex or anything else. Whatever you give the loyalty of your life to IS your god. The second command has to do with:

2. God's worship (4-6) You might think this command is the same as the first, but what God is really saying is: "Do not represent Me by an image and worship it!" What it is forbidding is exactly what Israel did 40 days later. When they figured Moses was not coming back, they made a golden calf and said, "This is your god who brought you up out of Egypt". They weren't electing to worship a new and different god; they were representing God by the statue of a bull and worshipping the statue, breaking the second commandment. Now why God is so adamantly against that you can read for yourself in Deut. 4:12-19 which basically says the reason God never appeared to them in a definable shape was that they would end up making an image of the shape and worshipping the image rather than the God it represents. We always do. That's why Paul repeats the warning in 1 Cor. 10:7, 14 Do not be idolaters, as some of them were....my dear friends, flee from idolatry. Sadly, it happens in Christianity too! How often in history and even today has the church ended up bowing before statues or crucifixes or relics of the saints or other objects instead of the Living God these things should point them to! John warns us appropriately, Little children, keep yourselves from idols! The third commandment is about:

3. God's Name (7) "Do not misuse My Name" Do not use it in an empty meaningless fashion. God's Name represents His Person, His Being. It is not merely an identifying word. So, when you misuse it, you reject the Person. Think about Acts 4:12 Salvation is found in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given to men by which we must be saved. Paul said in 1 Cor. 12:3 ...no one who is speaking by the Spirit of God says, "Jesus be cursed," and no one can say, "Jesus is Lord," except by the Holy Spirit. You don't go around using Jesus' name as a curse word or an exclamation. That Name, the Name of Jesus saved me! It is precious to me! God is my Heavenly Father who loves me and sent His Son to save me. When you mock His Name or use it irreverently, you show disrespect to my Father. The way we treat His Name is a measure of the respect we show His Person and God says if you misuse His Name you are held guilty! The fourth command is about:

4. God's day (8-11) "Remember to keep the Sabbath day holy" The sabbath day is the seventh day that we call Saturday. Now God says plainly that:

a. the Sabbath principle of resting existed from creation God worked 6 days in creating the universe and rested on the seventh. Why? Because He was tired? No, to demonstrate for human beings a universal principle, that man needs a day of rest at the end of every week of work! However here in the Mosaic covenant:

b. the Sabbath day was made a sign to Israel Turn with me to Ex. 31:12-17. Just as the sign of circumcision was given to Abraham to indicate that his descendants were God's chosen people, so the sign of keeping the Sabbath day was given to Israel to be an indicator to the world around them that they were His people. While everybody else's shop was open 7 days a week, theirs were closed on Saturday. While everybody else was out in the fields 7 days a week trying to earn their bread, Israelites were home resting on Saturday, just like their God did. It was an indication of their trust and belief in Him and that's why the penalty was so stern for violating it. Now let me be very clear; we are not Israel:

c. we're not obligated to keep the sign (Col. 2:16 says that no one can judge us as to whether we keep the Sabbath day; we are free to keep it or not keep it) but we still need the rest! Man has always needed a day of rest; violate that and sooner or later, you'll pay a price. But it is no longer a sign for us; we are not bound by the Sabbath regulations. And, by the way, Sunday is NOT the Sabbath. It is the Lord's Day, the day that was hallowed by Jesus because on that day He rose from the dead, a day we voluntarily set aside every week to worship and honor Him. Yes, you can do some homework on Sunday; you can play some ball or do anything else your heart wants to, but above all your heart ought to remember Whose day it is and set aside a time for worshipping Him! Well, now we come to:

III. The Second Table Of The Law: 6 commandments that deal with Our Relationship To One Another And it's interesting that Jesus made comments on the meaning of almost all of these in His teaching. The fifth commandment deals with our relationship to:

1. our parents (12) "Honor your father and mother" The Hebrew word for honor means to make heavy. We preserve its opposite in our idiom "to make light of" something. It means make them important, respect them, listen to them, value what they teach you. Of course, we do that, don't we? Well listen to:

a. Jesus' comment - Mt. 15:3-6 ...God said, 'Honor your father and mother' and 'Anyone who curses his father or mother must be put to death.' But you say that if a man says to his father or mother, 'Whatever help you might otherwise have received from me is a gift devoted to God,' he is not to 'honor his father' with it. In other words, it is a responsibility issue! You're responsible for their care, not just to tip your hat and give lip service to respect. Honoring them means committing yourself to caring for them. And then in Ephesians Paul repeats this and makes it:

b. our command - Eph. 6:1-3 - Children obey your parents in the Lord! It's a really a spiritual thing. Take up their faith and value it and follow them in it and if you do, you will not only respect them, you will care for them not only physically but with all your heart! Now it doesn't sound so easy, does it? The sixth commandment is about:

2. our life (13) The Hebrew word here is very specific and can only mean "Do not commit murder" God is not a pacifist. He is not saying, "Never kill an enemy in a war" or "Never execute a criminal" or "Never shoot the criminal who broke into your home with a crowbar and is coming for you". This commandment forbids murder, deliberately taking the life of another without valid reason. It establishes the sanctity of life. Well, that's pretty easy to keep, right? But listen to:

a. Jesus' comment - Mt. 5:21-22 You have heard that it was said to the people long ago, 'Do not murder, and anyone who murders will be subject to judgment.' But I tell you that anyone who is angry with his brother will be subject to judgment. Again, anyone who says to his brother, 'Raca' is answerable to the Sanhedrin. But anyone who says, 'You fool!' will be in danger of the fire of hell. In other words, this command is not simply an issue about physical killing, the spirit of this command is a love issue! You break it every time you don't act lovingly toward your neighbor, or get angry with him and swear at him or hate him in your heart. Turn with me to Ephesians 4 and leave one hand there as we continue. God didn't have to tell us not to murder; that's obvious. Any pagan knows that just by conscience. Look at:

b. our command - Eph. 4:29-5:2 - live a life of love! That's what God is after! Living out a life filled with love to others, love to other believers, love to our family, love to the people around us at work or school and love to our enemies! Living out the love that God has for us, that Jesus showed us; that is the heart of this command. Now are we breaking that? The seventh commandment deals with our relationship to:

3. our spouse (14) “Do not commit adultery” and the Hebrew word here specifically designates a sexual transgression by a married person. This is not to say that other forms of sexual sin are not wrong, but here God is specifying the sanctity and the permanence of marriage and the holiness with which we are to treat our own spouse and everybody else's spouse. In the pagan world of that day sex was everywhere. Ritual sex was even a part of pagan worship ceremonies. Just like it's everywhere today and affairs abound, not to mention sex without any intention of marriage at all. Still, it would be easy to say, “I keep this one. As long as I don't sleep with someone else's husband or wife, I'm good with God! I can't touch, but I can look!” Well, remember:

a. Jesus' comment - Mt. 5:27-32 You have heard that it was said, ‘Do not commit adultery.’ But I tell you that anyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart.“It has been said, ‘Anyone who divorces his wife must give her a certificate of divorce.’ But I tell you that anyone who divorces his wife, except for marital unfaithfulness, causes her to become an adulteress, and anyone who marries the divorced woman commits adultery. Jesus said, it's not about the physical act of sex, it is a faithfulness issue! Be faithful in heart, soul, mind and body to the woman or the man that you married! Don't imagine sex with someone else in your mind, don't look at pornography. Don't divorce this spouse and find another so you can legally be with someone else. Love this one! Be faithful! Again, Paul gave us:

b. our command in Eph. 5:25 Husbands, love your wives! Love them the way Christ loved the church. Lay down your life for them. Cherish them. Nourish them. Cleanse them. Lead them to holiness by being holy. And wives, follow your husbands in that! That's what this command is really all about! Now how are you doing on this one? The eighth commandment deals with:

4. our property (15) “Do not steal” Don't take what belongs to another by force or by deceit. What belongs to a person belongs to them and it is not yours. This is the basis of the concept of private property and the core of a viable work ethic. If you want what you do not have you must work for it or earn it; you can't just take it from somebody else. Well, again, that's pretty simple to keep, right? That is until I start talking about cheating on your taxes or getting paid under the table to avoid having to pay them or taking stuff home from work that belongs to the company.

a. Jesus' comment - Mt. 6:19-21 Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust destroy, and where thieves break in and steal. But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust do not destroy, and where thieves do not break in and steal. For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also. And v. 24 adds you cannot serve both God and money! The fact that a man steals means that material things have a grip on his heart, that he treasures them more than the person he takes them from. You see, it is a value issue! What does your heart love? Does it value things so much that it is willing to take them from others. By way of contrast, look at:

b. our command Paul tells us in Eph. 4:28 - *work hard so you can give to others! That's the point, not simply to refrain from taking, but to work hard and love others by giving! That's the life God wants! Be a giver, let generosity pour out of you! That's His life! Now the ninth commandment concerns:

5. our word (16) “Do not give false testimony against others!” Technically this is a courtroom command. Never accuse someone of something they didn't do for your own advantage. Don't perjure yourself; don't be a false witness. Of course, we don't do that. But again, listen to:

a. Jesus' comment - Mt. 5:33-37 ...you have heard that it was said to the people long ago, ‘Do not break your oath, but keep the oaths you have made to the Lord.’ 34 But I tell you, Do not swear at all: either by heaven, for it is God's throne; 35 or by the earth, for it is his footstool; or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the Great King. 36 And do not swear by your head, for you cannot make even one hair white or black. 37 Simply let your ‘Yes’ be ‘Yes,’ and your ‘No,’ ‘No’; anything beyond this comes from the evil one. In other words, it is a truth issue! You shouldn't tell the truth only when you're under an oath. You should ALWAYS tell the truth. Let every word you speak be true; mean what you say. That's what Paul gave us as:

b. our command - Eph. 4:25 Putting away lying is not enough; speak truthfully to others! Always tell the truth. Always mean what you say. Be a man or a woman of truth the way God is a God of truth! And finally, the tenth commandment concerns:

6. our mind (17) The word covet means a strong desire to have for yourself. “Do not desire for yourself what belongs to others!” Whether it's someone else's wife or their animal or their house or their car. This is the command that takes all the others to the heart level. It means to not even WANT to steal, not to WANT to commit adultery, not to WANT to lie about them. Now try to keep that one! It's not so easy. Look what Paul said:

Eph. 4:17-24. Don't give in to your old desires, the desires of your flesh that want to pursue all those evil things. Rather allow God to transform your mind to have new desires! God made you a new person in Christ; allow Him to transform the way you think, to renew your mind so that you want what HE wants!

It is so easy to think that we're following the Lord and being obedient because we seem to be following the rules. When he was a teen, Louis Kanopka and a friend were hitchhiking home from school one day. It was a frigid outside and they were cold and discouraged when Louis saw a familiar car. It was his sister-in-law, heading in the same direction they were. "Oh boy!" he said. "We'll get a ride now." So he waved. His sister-in-law smiled and waved back, but to his surprise she kept on driving. The boys ended up walking all the way home. Puzzled, he called his sister-in-law and asked why she didn't pick them up. She explained, "My husband told me to never pick up hitchhikers!" She was following his "law" to the letter, but she did not understand its spirit. Remember Jesus said that all of the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commands. They were His summary of everything God meant in the Law. First, love the Lord your God with all your heart, soul, mind and strength. That's what Table 1 really means. Having no other gods, making no images, honoring His Name and His day - they mean love Him with every fiber of your being! Do you love Him that way? Then He said, love your neighbor as yourself. That's what table 2 really means. Not murdering, not stealing, not lying, these things mean loving the people in your life with all your heart. Do you love the people around you that way? When you think of the Ten Commandments like this, Jesus is the only one comes out spotless!

Civil Law Introduced - 21:1-11

Now let's move ahead to chapter 21 where we have:

II. The Civil Law Introduced - 21:1-11 [Read (1)] There is a lot that underlies this simple verse. In reality what happened at Sinai was this:

1. God transformed Israel, the people, into His personal Kingdom In patriarchal times the father governed the extended family. As family groups grew it was only natural that a tribal unit developed where the oldest member of the family group served as patriarch tribal leader. But now God is setting up a new type of rule, a Kingdom. 19:6 is the first occurrence of this word; you will be for Me a KINGDOM of priests. Israel will be more than a people; she will be a kingdom and will be ruled by a King. And who would this king be? God! By entering into this Mosaic covenant, God is now their King, their Sovereign, the One in absolute charge of them and Israel is a "theocracy" where God rules directly as King. So:

a. as King, God chose their leaders Other nations had kings but when they were in their land Israel had judges, men and women whom God raised up to lead them on His behalf. That's why it was an evil thing when Israel told Samuel years later, "We want a king like all the other nations!" They were rejecting total control by God to give that authority to a human and it often led to disaster! Then, of course:

b. as King, God decreed their laws In a monarchy the king makes the laws. There is no legislature; the people have no voice in them. The king's word is law. So, in these next 3 chapters we are reading the laws of the Kingdom that God declared Israel must follow as their Sovereign King. Now I'm sure you'd like to know:

2. how we benefit from studying these laws If we are not under the law and these laws were not given for us to keep then what good is it to study them? Well, first of all as we study them:

a. we recognize God as the universal source of righteous law When you take the time to ponder it and look around at all the nations of the world, it is amazing to realize that the majority of these laws or the principles behind them exist today in most of the cultures of the world. How did that come to be? Paul explains it like this: Indeed, when peoples, who do not have the law, do by nature things required by the law, they are a law for themselves, even though they do not have the law, since they show that the requirements of the law are written on their hearts... - Rom. 2:14-15. People and cultures everywhere know that kidnapping and rape and theft and bribes and incest and things like these are wrong! How? That comes from God; He wrote it in the hearts, the consciences of men. Of course, humans make many unjust and evil laws, but wherever there is true and righteous law, it comes from God. He is its source! It's in the world because of Him. Second, by looking at these laws:

b. we have a basis for forming and evaluating our own laws Here we have God directly ruling a nation on earth and making its laws; that ought to say a lot about the kinds of laws and the penalties that are wise for any government to make! And if you read over these chapters you find all the principles we consider the basis of our own system of law, principles like being responsible for your actions, like intent (i.e., whether you intended to do harm or it was an accident), like punishment fitting the crime, like criminal negligence or willful neglect, the duty of restitution to those wronged and equality of all persons before the law. The very fabric on which our law rests was given very simply over 3000 years ago by God Himself. When we make laws that get away from this basis, we're in trouble as a society! And thirdly, in these laws:

c. we have God's direct evaluation of particular actions We have God's declarations on moral behavior and social interaction and these haven't changed. Sodomy is no more right today that it was in Sodom or in Israel. Witchcraft and occult practices are still evil. Kidnapping and bribery are still detestable. So even if we are not bound by this particular law code, it can still help us know what is morally right and what is morally wrong and most of the things stated here are restated in the New Testament for us in even broader terms. So, with that in mind, let's put our toe into the water a bit and look at the first section which is:

3. laws about Hebrew servanthood (2-11) I deliberately avoided using the term slavery because of what that means to us from our history. The two are not the same; vs. 2 makes clear that this section is for Hebrews who become servants to Hebrews only. People always ask why the Bible does not condemn slavery outright; what I want you to notice is that:

a. it was not commanded but rather regulated Nowhere do you find a command to make or get servants. It was a practice that was already happening and had been for centuries and it was all around them everywhere. God tolerated it (like He tolerated polygamy), but He strictly regulated it to make it different from way Egyptians and others practiced it! In Israel servanthood:

b. it was entered on an economic basis V. 16 says that forcibly enslaving another person was punishable by death; there was no slave trade in Israel. The four ways to enter servanthood for a Hebrew were (1) to survive poverty one might indenture himself or a son or daughter (Leviticus 25:39), (2) insolvent debtors might be sold as punishment to make restitution to a creditor (2 Kings 4:1), (3) a thief could be sold as punishment to make restitution (22:3-4), and (4) one could be born to parents who were servants. So basically, servanthood was entered much like the way a hired hand would sell his services to an owner and he was treated much the same. The master was buying the services of the servant, not ownership of his body and soul like property! That's why thirdly:

c. it was kept temporary and could be voluntary (2) says that a servant could only be kept 6 years and in the 7th, he went free whether any obligation remained or not. Further there was continual right to be redeemed by a kinsman who might have the money. There was always a way out; it was never meant to be for life. Further, (5) says a man could choose NOT to go free when time was up. That says something about the good treatment received. God must have thought it likely that some servants would have such a good relationship with their master they would want to remain voluntarily in his household! Lastly, servanthood:

d. it involved rights The rights of release and redemption I just mentioned, but (9-10) show us plainly that in the case of female servants it is clear that she is not counted as property but rather as a wife. Evidently a man could only take a Hebrew woman as a servant with the idea of being a wife to himself or his son (7-8). However, she is not to be released lightly like male servants but treated as wife or daughter. V. 8 in the NIV uses the word selected her; the KJV says betrothed her, that is, he has brought her into this arrangement but if before their marriage is consummated, he decides he doesn't like her, he must see to it that she gets properly redeemed and restored to freedom. And she is never to be regarded as a lesser wife because she came through servanthood.

Clearly Hebrew servanthood was different from all we know of slavery and even it was designed as a perishing institution which would eventually die out. New Testament slavery was largely similar and many of the early believers were actually slaves. So, when Paul addressed the issue, here's what he said, Slaves, obey your earthly masters with respect and fear, and with sincerity of heart, just as you would obey Christ. Obey them not only to win their favor when their eye is on you, but like slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from your heart. Serve wholeheartedly, as if you were serving the Lord, not men, because you know that the Lord will reward everyone for whatever good he does, whether he is slave or free. And masters, treat your slaves in the same way. Do not threaten them, since you know that he who is both their Master and yours is in heaven, and there is no favoritism with him. - Eph. 6:5-9. Now we don't have slaves and masters, but we still have bosses and employees; we have owners and workers and we still have plenty of people who serve us because we pay them. How do you treat those who work under you or those who sell their services to you? How do you treat the waitress who brings your food or the receptionist who handles your call or the plumber who fixes your pipes? We all have a Master in heaven to whom we answer as His servants! Does your treatment of those you lead or those you serve reflect that?

God Instructs A People - Exodus 19-24

Civil Laws: Personal Injury - 21:12-35

How many times do we as believers commiserate about the steps that our lawmakers and judges take? We have for years, of course, lamented the Roe vs. Wade decision that annually allows thousands of babies to be aborted. the latest wave of decisions has to do with trying to introduce homosexual marriage as a legality. We're thankful that in the recent election 7 more states adopted a Marriage Protection Amendment. However, recently a New Jersey court ruled to allow benefits for homosexual couples in that state. Up and down we go; laws punishing evil; laws permitting evil. Have you ever wondered what the United States would be like if God Himself wrote our laws directly? Well, that's exactly what He did for the nation of Israel as they were gathered at Mount Sinai. He directly gave them a code of civil laws that would govern their nation through Moses. This code was never meant to be a bunch of rules to follow in order to get to heaven. It was a set of rules intended to teach a human society how to live in a day when kings made whatever laws they wanted. So, it's useful and helpful for us to study because it teaches us principles to apply in our own society and indeed many of the principles that form the basis of our own legal system come from biblical passages like the one we'll study today in Exodus 21. The laws in the majority of this chapter concern personal injury, where one person hurts or harms another. The first thing we find is a list of:

I. Some Offenses Punishable By Death In Israel (12-17) In fact there were many offenses punishable by death including idolatry, witchcraft and being a false prophet, all things people have a right to under our laws because our country is NOT a Theocracy where God is king and serving other gods is not high treason here - though in actuality it is the highest treason! But here three capital crimes are mentioned. First:

1. murder was punishable by death (12-14) In spite of the fact that twelve of our states plus the District of Columbia have abolished the death penalty at this time, God has always taught us that the principle of taking the life of the person who takes a life is foundational to human society. When Noah got off the ark to re-populate the earth God laid down the rule that was meant to keep the world from ever falling into moral chaos again: Whoever sheds the blood of man, by man shall his blood be shed; for in the image of God has God made man. - Gen. 9:6. Human beings are God's highest creation; like Him they live forever. Human life is God's life and is to be held sacred under all circumstances. I'm not so sure we believe that any more. Have you heard that the leadership of the Church of England just last week came out publicly with the position that severely disabled babies should be allowed to die after birth and that the cost of treatment is one of the reasons for their position? Well, when God was literally running His own country on earth, He made it clear that:

a. an accidental slayer must be protected, no matter what What does that phrase but God lets it happen mean? Cp. Deut. 19:4-6 There it is. Death that was not intended. It was an accident beyond the person's control. The axe-head flew off and hit the other. The car had a blowout and the driver couldn't control it and hit another car or a pedestrian. That person has killed another but doesn't deserve to die. It was unintentional and unpreventable. He must be protected. That's why in Israel 6 cities of refuge were appointed where he could go and live under official protection. Society must protect him, no matter how angry and upset the dead man's relatives are. However, God makes it clear that:

b. an intentional slayer must be executed, no matter what He deserves to die. And no matter where he hides, even if it's in God's sanctuary, or what he offers to pay, he must be put to death: Num. 35:31 Do not accept a ransom for the life of a murderer, who deserves to die. He must surely be put to death. That's not popular, but that's how God sees it. And what's really been developed here is our modern legal:

c. the concept of malice aforethought: that's the difference between murder and manslaughter. If it is known that a person had malice toward the other beforehand, hated him and deliberately killed him, he is guilty of premeditated murder. If there is NO malice beforehand, no intent to kill, it is true that he has taken a life but it is not murder and should not be punishable by the taking of his own life. By the way, there's a personal lesson to apply here, isn't there? There's a difference in someone doing something to you intentionally and doing something accidentally. There's a difference between your child doing something intentionally and doing something accidentally. How do you respond to either of those situations? Do you treat them the same? When your teenager wrecks the car, do you stop to discern whether it was truly accidental or if it was brought about because of some wrong intent? Or do you just react? Now in addition to murder, in Israel:

2. kidnapping was punishable by death (16) Kidnapping is the stealing of a life and was punishable by the taking of your own. Here in the US it is, but only if it results in the death of the person. I wonder how many children's faces would appear on milk cartons if we outright executed convicted kidnappers swiftly? Then in Israel, it may surprise you to learn that:

3. striking or cursing parents was punishable by death (15, 17) The blow doesn't have to be fatal; in fact, it can be simply a blow with words, pronouncing a curse. God singled out parents in the 5th commandment and said "Honor them that your days may be long!" Here He says, "Curse them and your days will be short!" God intended to instill in each of his people a valuing of parents that was as deep as life itself. Godly parents were God's means of preserving faith and holiness from one generation to the next. In Israel parents could bring a rebellious son who would not listen and lived immorally to the elders and he would be stoned! I think God's point is that spiritual life as well as physical life is to be passed from one generation to the next and that process itself is so vital, so necessary to the preservation of human society that it must be guarded with the death penalty! Now why the death penalty for these crimes? Why not life in prison? Well Scripture is pretty clear that:

4. enforcing the death penalty acts as a deterrent Go back to: Deut. 19:20. When you know you can kill somebody and know that it will take years before your trial is over and the worst thing that can happen is that you'll be jailed for life and that you could get out on parole early for good behavior, if you're angry enough, you just might do it. Only

1,076 persons have actually been executed in the US since 1976! Even though 6,807 persons were sentenced to death! There's a 6 to 1 chance that even if convicted and sentenced you still won't die! But if you knew you would be tried immediately and the moment you were convicted you would be taken out and executed, you might just think twice and stop yourself before taking ANY life unless you had a death wish! God said, the rest of the people will hear of this and be afraid! Don't get brainwashed by all the liberal hype the media and the education system are feeding you about this subject! Now let's move on to:

II. Principles For Dealing With Assault And Battery (18-27) Assault is when you threaten someone with harm and battery is when you do the harm, when you hit them and hurt them. Now the rule that God laid down for Israel here is that:

1. a person is responsible for physical harm done to another (18-19) Now if you hit him and he dies, you're back under the statute for murder in v. 12, but if you simply injure him so that he takes a long time to recover the use of his body, he doesn't need insurance. He's got YOU! You have to pay him the income he needs to live while he's laid up and you have to cover the cost of his care all the way until he's fully recovered. You hit him, you did the damage, you provide for him until he's over it! You are responsible for your actions and must do whatever you can to repair what you have done. Now Israel was unusual among the nations of that day in that there this principle:

a. it applies even to the treatment of slaves (20-21) By the way, I don't happen to think this is referring to Hebrew servants because Leviticus 25:39-46 makes it very clear that they must never be treated harshly. But God did tolerate Israel holding slaves from the nations around her and evidently, they could be disciplined with a rod by being beaten. But they could not be killed at will like they could in Egypt. That put the owner under the law of murder. And if they were seriously injured, look at (26-27). If you hurt them seriously you have to release them; you lose your investment entirely. So, the effect of this law was really to elevate the position of slaves in Israel and ensure them humane treatment because a master is responsible for the harm he does to them. This same rule also:

b. it applies to injured bystanders (22) In the process of your rage, if you hurt an onlooker, you are responsible for what you do to them. If it's a pregnant woman and she gives birth normally, you get fined. If the baby dies, you die. If you damage property you pay for it. You did it; YOU bear the consequences. Now here's the basic:

2. the principle of punishment: do to the offender what he has done (23-25) If you kill a person, you should be killed. If you deliberately cause a permanent injury to someone, what you did to them should be done to you. If you blind them, you should be blinded. If you cripple them, you should be crippled. If you knock their teeth out, your teeth ought to be knocked out. The punishment should be according to the offense. Now please note that this is not teaching that you should go around doing back to others everything that they do to you. It is not teaching personal retaliation, living life by getting even with everyone for what they do. Jesus said, "Turn the other cheek, forgive, love your enemies" and lots more. This is a principle given for judges, for people in authority to operate on in meeting out penalties for crimes. Now often, as in the case of the slave, it would be of little value to put out the offender's eye or smash his foot. I suspect that if a slave could be set free instead that perhaps other equivalent penalties were used for serious injuries. By the way did you ever notice that Israel had no jails? Nobody was ever locked up or put in prison. If you kill you die; if you steal you pay back; if you hurt someone you provide their care, you work on their behalf. The punishment is always determined by the nature of the offense; it is not some huge "time out" from life, the way we do it. But the point is that:

3. punishment according to offense acts as a deterrent Look again at Deut. 19:18-21 Show no pity! That's not a personal command. That's for judges. A person must experience the direct consequence of what they have done; they must be punished according to their offense. Justice must be served, even if you feel sad for the offender who must pay the price.

And there's another good personal lesson right here. People need to face the consequences of their actions. So many times, we want to rescue the people that we love, especially our kids or our spouse. They do wrong and we want to cover it up or bail them out. A person who doesn't experience the pain of the consequences of what he does will do it again! When you keep them from that, you end up enabling their behavior and the lesson takes longer. Dale Robbins tells about the day he was sitting in a fast-food place eating lunch: "A mother and two small children sat down at a distant booth in the restaurant. As the mom left briefly, probably to the ladies' room, the boy and girl, maybe about eight and six, went into action. They were apparently arguing over possession of the onion rings, when the boy went into a fit of anger and began throwing food! The splat of hamburger patties could be heard slapping the face of his sister; the spray of mustard and ketchup hung ominously in the air before raining over the floor and nearby tables. Not to be outdone, the little girl, with every ounce of her strength, heaved the tray along with the coveted onion rings down his shirt. And to top it off, she poured the full 20 ounces of her Dr. Pepper on his pants. Her face beamed with pride, as though awaiting the applause of the spectators. By this time, the entire dining room had stopped in mid-bite, forks in hand, awaiting round two. But then the real drama began as the mother had returned to the scene of the crime. The dining room was still--every eye and ear was open. Surprisingly, there was no reprimand. 'Could we have another order of sandwiches over here,' she said calmly while wiping the faces of her fast-food gladiators. Soda and condiments dripped steadily down the kids' hair and clothing. Food and splatterings were on the walls and at least ten feet in every direction from the impact zone. The manager emerged with a frown on his face. 'Lady, I'm not gonna tell you how to raise your kids, but don't you think a little discipline is in order here?' "If you mean a spanking, I'm afraid we just don't believe in that. The children are just a bit grumpy to-day,' she said. "There was seemingly a simultaneous gasp from all the diners. [Pulpit Helps, Jan 1995] I wonder if those kids had to apologize to the manager and get down on their hands and knees and scrub up the mess and go home and wash their own clothes whether they would think twice before doing that again? Well, we end this chapter with some:

III. Principles For Dealing With Indirect Injuries (28-36) Sometimes instead of being directly injured by us, people are injured indirectly as a result of something we have done. I leave your gate open and your dog gets out and gets run over by a truck. Am I responsible? Well, there are 2 principles here:

1. a person is NOT responsible for what happens by accident (28, 35) If your dog who has always been friendly suddenly goes berserk, jumps the fence and bites somebody, or if your dog and another dog get into a fight in the park over a bone they find and one gets hurt, it wasn't under your control. If you loan me your car and the tire blows out and I am hit and killed, that wasn't your fault. You couldn't predict it or prevent it. Things that happen by accident are just that, accidental and while there may be great and deep sadness over what has occurred, there need not be guilt over what is purely an accident. However:

2. a person IS responsible for what they SHOULD have done: If another person is hurt or injured in some way through something that I knew about and could have prevented, I AM guilty. This is the concept of criminal negligence. I dig a 4 foot hole in the middle of my sidewalk and don't put up any barrier and in the dark, you walk by, fall in and break your neck. That IS my fault; I was negligent and I am responsible for what it caused. Now:

a. when it results in loss of human life, he can be treated either as a murderer or manslayer (29-32) If I knew my dog was vicious and didn't keep my fence repaired and he gets out and kills you, I deserve to die. In Israel I could be treated as a murderer and put to death but the judges could in cases like this lower the penalty to manslaughter and levy a heavy fine as a ransom for my life, simply because I did not do it maliciously. But either way, I am still responsible; I have taken a life by my actions. If I drive drunk and kill somebody, I've still killed somebody, even if I didn't set out to because I chose to do what I did that resulted in death. And when someone is negligent and:

b. when it impacts property, he must bear the loss (33-34, 36) If I dig a hole in the street to fix my water line and don't mark it and your car goes into it and sustains damage, I'm liable for the damage. If I know my dog is vicious and I let him near your dog, I owe you for your dog!

But oh, how we try to deny responsibility when we've been negligent, when we should have done something and didn't, or when we knew better than to do it and we did it anyway. Most of us have seen the movie Titanic. It was the most luxurious ocean-going vessel of its day. It was said to be unsinkable. On her maiden voyage in 1912, as the ship was proceeding at great speed, the operator in the wireless room received a radio message from another vessel. It warned that icebergs were in the immediate vicinity. The operator wrote the message on a slip of paper, placed it under a weight at his elbow, and continued about his duties. The message never reached the captain. More than 1,500 lives were lost in the icy waters that night. Is that operator responsible? Yes, and so is the man who decided to put too few lifeboats on board. A number of others probably share it too. James put it like this (4:17): Anyone, then, who knows the good he ought to do and doesn't do it, sins.

Civil Laws: Property and Morality - Ch. 22

Let me remind you that we've been studying the code of laws that Israel was given at Mt. Sinai. These are the laws by which Israelite society was to function and the basis on which her judges were to make their decisions. We study them not because we want to make our laws exactly the same as theirs but because there are some fundamental principles that we can learn from God about right and wrong in them, principles that apply both in our society and in our personal lives. Chapter 22 focuses on laws that deal with property and with morality or ethical behavior and it divides into 3 sections. The first section is:

I. Israel's Laws About Stealing The Property Of Others (22:1-4) Now the bottom line here is that when you steal something from somebody:

1. the practice of restitution is mandatory A thief MUST pay back what he took. But if merely giving back is all he had to do, it might still be tempting to try and get away with it. So, God increased the return amount!

a. if the item that was stolen can't be returned, restitution is 4 or 5 times what was stolen! If you take someone's ox, that ox is like the man's tractor. It plows his field and pulls his wagon. So, an ox is a pretty expensive animal; even today an ordinary cow sells for more than $1,000 so you get the picture! But if you steal it and sell it or kill it and eat it, you're going to have to come up with 4 oxen to give back so maybe you'll think twice about stealing it! Or if you only steal a sheep, the sheep in that day are the man's investment, his money. In Kyrgyzstan you can still pay a debt in sheep instead of cash! A sheep may only be worth $100 today (it's a lot smaller than a cow) but if you steal it and eat it you'll have to pay back 5 sheep so maybe you'd better think twice before you do it. I think these rules were specifically meant to stop trafficking in stolen property. However, notice that:

b. if it can be returned, restitution is double what was stolen If you simply keep the animal or the item for yourself, you not only have to give it back but another one like it or of equivalent value! Paying back double acts as a deterrent because under these rules sin literally costs more than it's worth! It's not only unprofitable, but if you don't have enough of your own to make full restitution, you get sold as a servant to the victim and have to work it off! And he might not be a very pleasant master after you stole his stuff! You know, if you think about it, there might even be some principles in here that would work for teaching your kids not to steal! If you make restitution mandatory and make it double or more, it might just break them of the habit quickly. Then we also learn in 2-3 that:

2. economic crimes must be punished monetarily not violently As much as you might feel like it, you can't kill a man for stealing from you. Now at night when it's dark and an intruder breaks in, you don't know what his intentions are and whether your life is in danger but if it's light and you can see that the person is purely intending to rob you, not hurt you, you can't beat him to death or within an inch of his life. Stealing is an economic crime and should be punished with economic loss. Now let's move to the second section of the chapter which is:

II. Israel's Laws About Responsibility For The Property Of Others (22:5-15) There are 3 cases here, 3 basic rules. The first one is:

1. if I damage the property of others... I must replace it (5-6) When I was a kid, we lived on 3 ½ acres that backed up against a small farm and the farmer always had a herd of heifers he was raising in the pasture and the fence was ancient and easily broken by falling limbs or forceful cows. So at least once a year growing up, I'd look back along the creek at our huge vegetable garden and there would be the neighbor's cows trampling it down and munching stuff! Generally, we called him and he simply chased them back, but I remember one fall he was nice enough to bring over a few pounds of one of them after he butchered. However, by this principle, he should have given us all HIS tomatoes or paid the going rate. If I damage your stuff, I pay for it! If I hit your parked car, I pay for it. If I light a fire to burn the stubble in my field (which is a method I saw still being used in Kyrgyzstan this fall) and it spreads into your field and burns up your standing crop, I owe you a whole crop! What I damage, I'm responsible to replace; that's still a good way to live. Now what about:

2. if I take care of the property of others... If they give it to me for safe keeping. (7-13) Now all of that essentially boils down to this. When I've been entrusted with something that I'm supposed to keep safe for someone else and something happens to it:

a. I need not replace what is accidentally lost If your car is parked in my garage and there's a terrible storm and the roof caves in on your car, I can't help that. I'm not responsible. If I keep your cow or your sheep (or dog) to take care of it while you're away and it gets out and runs off and is lost or simply dies, I can't help that. I'm not responsible. Now, if you doubt my word, I have to settle it by taking an oath before God that I didn't steal it for myself. That way if I'm lying you can count on God to kill me for taking His Name in vain and you know I wouldn't risk that! But if the loss is not my fault, I don't have to replace it. However:

b. I must replace what is lost through negligence If it is definitely stolen and I could have prevented it, if I didn't lock it up, I left it lay outside, didn't put it away and somebody takes it, then I have to replace it because I was negligent and it was my fault! If I'm doing my job in caring for your stuff, I'm not responsible for what I can't control but I AM responsible to do my job as caretaker! But here's a third scenario. How about:

3. if I borrow the property of others... I must repay any loss (14-15) If I borrow your wrench and I break it, I buy you a new wrench! If I borrow your new dress to wear and get a bad stain on it, I owe you a new one. But if I hire you to bring your truck over to plow my driveway and you break a hydraulic line, you were with it and you broke it; it's not my fault. The cost of repairs should be figured into the price you charge in the first place. And that's not a bad principle for someone in business, to figure in equipment repairs. But if you borrow my computer and drop it and it smashes, you owe me a new one.

These are righteous principles and frankly I'm amazed at how little regard people have in this generation for the property of others; these would make great lessons for teaching our children. Anyway, let's move on to:

III. Israel's Laws About Moral Behavior (22:16-31) Here are some of the ethical standards Gods laid out for Israel. First of all:

1. sexual misconduct was not to be tolerated Here is a man and a woman who are not married to each other who have sex with each other. What's the penalty? Well, if either one of them is married or betrothed (engaged) to someone else, the penalty would be death! So that is not what's in view here, it's just two unmarried people and look at this:

a. the penalty for sex without marriage was marriage (16-17) This was the basis of the old "shotgun wedding" idea: "You had sex with my daughter and now you're gonna marry her!" In fact, some older thinking says, "if you had sex, you're already married in God's eyes!" That's not true. Please notice that if the guy was a real schmuck her father could actually refuse to let her marry, but the guy still has to pay a dowry as though he married her and that would be the equivalent of probably thousands of dollars today. God's real point here is simply this: sex belongs in marriage AND NOWHERE ELSE. Because two unmarried people sleep together doesn't mean they ARE married nor that they MUST marry. It means they have sinned and should repent before God and stop their behavior. But we must fight this message that is being drummed into our heads everywhere through television and movies that sex before you're married is a normal and natural and beautiful thing, that marriage can come later. God's standard Old Testament or New is extremely clear: ABSTINENCE! Sex is ONLY for people who have made a lifetime commitment of marriage to one another. Don't become lax on that message. Drum it into your kids. Drum it into yourself! Now on the other hand note in v. 19 that:

b. the penalty for sexual perversion was death (19) This is so bizarre we wouldn't even think of it, but trust me, people did it then and people do it now, even right here in Philadelphia. In Israel's law this was a perversion and was in the same category as homosexuality and voluntary incest (Leviticus 20:12-13). All were punishable by death in Israel. There were no "gay rights" parades in Israel! Now I need to be clear: I am NOT saying that we should hate homosexuals or that violence toward them is OK. They are people, lost people who need a Savior, just like anyone else. The point to grasp is this: none of these things are "alternate lifestyles" as we are told today. One of the biggest lies in our society is that people are "born gay or straight" like there is some gene for it. That is simply not true; usually these folks carry some sort of emotional baggage that has caused them to reject the opposite sex and cling to their own.

All these practices including immorality are perversions of the way God has made us as human beings and when any society begins to tolerate and even endorse them, it is headed for trouble! Byron Paulus of Life Action Ministries tells of being on a commuter airline flight to Knoxville: "Shortly after I got on the plane, the copilot's voice came over the intercom with an announcement that jolted me: 'When the captain boards the aircraft, please applaud. He just learned that his fiancée is pregnant with twins!' 'I could hardly believe my ears! As the dozen or so other passengers broke out into cheers and applause, I felt a sickening thud in my stomach. 'Has it come to this,' I wondered, 'that we would be encouraged to applaud an act of fornication? Has our society really drifted this far from her spiritual and moral moorings?' 'Something that would have been a shame to mention a generation ago is now flaunted and cheered. I found myself grieving over a society that is practicing and promoting casual sex.' [Revival Report, Nov 1993. Page 1.] What are we doing, grieving or clapping? Well, along with sexual misconduct in Israel:

2. religious sacrilege was not to be tolerated In Israel God was king and there was no freedom of religion. In fact:

a. the penalty for witchcraft was death (18) A sorceress or witch who dabbled in the occult, who cast spells and consulted spirits and foretold futures was to be killed on the spot in Israel. God knows how devious and dangerous and powerful involvement in occult things is, how it sucks people in and drags them away from God. Yet today we openly promote it. Seances, Ouija boards, astrology readings, tarot cards - you don't have to look far to find them. Just look at the movie previews that scroll by on TV while you're watching a show and how filled they are with images of skulls and gruesome murders, things Jesus would never watch! Our culture is fascinated with it. But in case you're tempted to laugh it off as nothing, just look how seriously God takes it! That's a warning for us. Yet occult practitioners were not singled out alone:

b. the penalty for any idolatry was death (20) Anyone who worshipped any god other than the true God Jehovah was to be utterly destroyed from Israel. Why? So that they would not lead Israel astray into worshipping other gods which is exactly what happened in their history.

Again, let me be clear that I am NOT saying that our society should adopt these laws, that only Christians should live and everyone else be killed. That is the philosophy of radical Islam today. We want everyone else to be saved, to come and worship Christ and find freedom from their sins. What I AM saying is that there is great danger in us falling into the liberal brand of so-called Christianity that is everywhere around us that says Jesus is not the only way, that all religions are roads to the same heaven, that people are free to choose who and how they worship and God will accept them all. That doctrine is a cancer that we must be careful to root out of the church. Next, we read that, along with sexual immorality and religious sacrilege, in Israel:

3. social injustice was not to be tolerated (21-27) If there is one thing that Scripture makes clear everywhere, it is that God is on the side of the poor and the oppressed. He is the Champion of the orphan and the widow and the stranger. These verses tell us that:

a. God will not tolerate the oppressing of the powerless (21-24) This is more than just a law; it is personal. God says, "When you mistreat someone because they're a poor immigrant who doesn't understand your culture and language, when you foreclose on a poor widow who can't make her mortgage or throw a helpless orphan out into the street who has no parent to meet his needs, I take it personally! They have no one to help them, to stand up for them and when you oppress them I get angry and I will take action against you!" And in like manner:

b. God demands compassion toward the poor (25-27) "Don't loan money to poor desperate people to make money off them through interest. If a man's so poor that the only collateral he has is his cloak, then don't take it; let him have it so he can keep warm at night! The poor are not a nuisance; they are not Scrooge's "excess population" that needs to be reduced! I have compassion on them and if you are like Me, you will too!" He who is kind to the poor lends to the LORD, and he will reward him for what he has done - Prov 19:17. Even James wrote Religion that God our Father accepts as pure and faultless is this: to look after orphans and widows in their distress and to keep oneself from being polluted by the world - James 1:27.

No society should tolerate these kinds of injustice, but so many do. Just to use one example: Human Rights Watch says, Street children throughout the world are subjected to physical abuse by police or have been murdered outright, as governments treat them as a blight to be eradicated-rather than as children to be nurtured and protected. They are frequently detained arbitrarily by police simply because they are homeless, or criminally charged with vague offenses such as loitering, vagrancy, or petty theft. They are tortured or beaten by police and often held for long periods in poor conditions. Girls are sometimes sexually abused, coerced into sexual acts, or raped by police. Street children also make up a large proportion of the children who enter criminal justice systems and are committed finally to correctional institutions (prisons) that are euphemistically called schools, often without due process. There are, the UN says, maybe 150 million of them, not counting millions more child soldiers and child laborers! Do we care about the poor and the oppressed of the world? And the saddest thing is that 2 billion of them still have never heard that there is a Savior who loves them. Does their plight touch our hearts? Well, lastly, we read how in Israel:

4. reverence for God was to be continual (28-31) It was to be part of everything His people did.

a. it was to show in their speaking (28) They were always to speak respectfully of God and of their leaders.

b. it was to show in their giving (29-30) They were to freely give their tithes and their offerings to the Lord from their hearts. They were to set aside and dedicate their firstborn children and sacrifice all their firstborn animals to Him to show their love and allegiance. And:

c. it was to show in their living (31) Israel was His holy people. It was even to show in what they chose to eat. Nothing impure or unclean.

Well, today you're free. You can eat roadkill if you want to. But the principle of continual reverence for God in everything we do is still a good one. Peter said, Live such good lives among the pagans [literally among the nations] that, though they accuse you of doing wrong, they may see your good deeds and glorify God on the day he visits us - 1Pet 2:12. You can only do it through the power of Christ. How close are you living to Him?

Civil laws: Final Responsibilities - Ch. 23

We have followed the progress of Israel as God brought them out of Egypt and through the wilderness to Mt. Sinai. On the third day God began to give them His law, starting with announcing the 10 commandments out loud to them, but then proceeding to give an entire digest of civil laws to Moses for Israel to follow as a society. In Ch. 23 we are now approaching the end of those civil laws and God lays out the final responsibilities that He wants Israel to remember and begins to prepare them to go in and conquer the land of Canaan. In the beginning of the chapter, we see clearly that:

I. Israel Was To Reflect The Character Of God In Her Behavior (23:1-9) As you read this list of specific rules, two things become immediately obvious. First:

1. they were to assure true justice for everyone The rules must be the same for all people and everyone must receive punishment alike without preferential treatment. Accepting a bribe or biasing a decision before or against a person because of their economic status or race or allowing a wrong to go unpunished just because many people are involved in it, none of these things are acceptable. There is no room in God's economy for ethics that change according to the situation or are forged by social pressure or societal opinion. God is a God of truth and righteousness. Right is always right and wrong is always wrong; that's how God wants His people to live. They are not to change like the shifting shadows, to send mixed messages to the world; they are to reflect His character and live as just and righteous people in the midst of a very unjust world. But at the same time:

2. they were to show true compassion toward everyone Vs. 4-5 say that if you see even your enemy in need of help, you must give it. To modernize a bit, if his car is stuck in a ditch, you can't drive by rejoicing; you have to stop and pull him out! V. 9 says that you ought to remember how an alien, a foreigner or immigrant, feels; you know what that's like so you ought to have compassion on him and warmly receive him. Don't ignore the plight of the poor; put yourself in their situation and care. You see, that's how God is! He sends His rain on the just and the unjust. He sends His Son to die for His enemies in order to save them. He is filled with compassion on the poor and the needy. And our lives ought to reflect His character in the midst of a cold and uncaring world!

What a healthy balance God displays: a burning desire to see true justice in every situation and a burning love that cares about all people. That balance should be displayed in us. A few years ago, I was watching a 48 Hours news program about the death penalty one night where the cameras followed the last 48 hours of the life of a death row inmate who was executed by lethal injection. This man was a Hispanic who had been involved in a robbery shooting with two other guys when he was young and on drugs, but at this point he'd been in prison so long he had a grown son who had his own children. On top of that, he had found Christ in prison. He had become a model inmate and was liked and trusted by the staff and had been restored to his family, his wife, his mother, his children and grandchildren. They loved him and visited him. The warden of the prison was also a believer and became a good friend of this fellow. The two of them spent his last 2 days together, ate a last meal together and said goodbye before the warden had to give the order for the injection in tears and watch him die. To me that warden was displaying the character of God; justice must always be done; but it must be done with full compassion. Outside the gate of the prison where the son was waiting with the family and bawling his eyes out holding his little toddler for word that his dad was dead, right there beside him was an older couple, most likely Christians, camped out in their lawn chairs and with their picnic cooler and blankets, a couple who come to that prison gate for every execution and hold signs that say "We support the death penalty!" And when the son went over to them and in agony said, "But that's my dad they're going to kill..." they ignored him. Not a shred of compassion. To them it was just "one more criminal executed and good riddance." Beloved, that is NOT the character of God; in Him... Mercy and truth are met together; righteousness and peace have kissed [each other] - Ps. 85:10 KJV. And that's what He wanted in Israel and what He wants in us! Now in the second part of the chapter we read that:

II. Israel Was To Carefully Observe The Sabbath (10-13) The sabbath was invested with the character of a sign between the Lord and Israel (Ex. 31:13); it was a special thing observance that set them apart from all the other peoples of the earth and marked them as His people; that's why v. 13 adds the instruction that the name of no other god is ever to be heard on their lips. Now Israel actually was to have two kinds of sabbath observances. The first is a new concept introduced to them here, the idea of:

1. the sabbath year (10-11) Every seventh year they were not to plow and plant their fields but to give them a year of rest. What an unheard-of custom! Anybody then or even now who depends on the land for income would likely starve (or go bankrupt) if they took a year off and did not plant a crop! In all honesty, I don't think Israel ever actually DID this once they arrived in Canaan, but they were supposed to. Why? Well, first of all:

a. it taught them dependence on God - God answered their primary objection in Leviticus 25:20-21, You may ask, "What will we eat in the seventh year if we do not plant or harvest our crops?" I will send you such a blessing in the sixth year that the land will yield enough for three years. If they would obey Him, God promised to do a perpetual miracle. He would give them such an abundance every 6th year that they could live until the crop was harvested in the 9th year and so they could take a full year off! But to do that meant one thing: you were betting on God coming through! You had to trust Him to do what He said. You literally had to stake your life, your well-being, your daily bread on His word if you obeyed Him and rested. So, it taught them very simply: man does not live by bread alone but by every word that comes from the mouth of God! We live not by the labor of our hands but by His grace; the food we eat, the air we breathe; it is all a gift from His hand. Second:

b. it taught them that God provides for all alike Through God's blessing the poor would have food to eat. Even the wild animals would have something to carry them through. The promise held good for every Israelite, no matter if they had a million dollars in the bank or only the shirt on their back. God provides for all and all have to trust Him. Thirdly:

c. it provided opportunity for spiritual reflection - Deut. 31:10-13 At the end of that 7th year after the harvest when they have seen how abundantly God has provided without their labor, they would all gather in Jerusalem and the Law would be read to them all, young and old alike so they would never forget it. That seventh year was to be a year of reflection on the goodness of God and the necessity of obeying Him. And that same thing was to happen in miniature every week as they rested on:

2. the sabbath day (12) The seventh day, Saturday, like the seventh year was to be a day of rest, to provide a day of refreshment and rejuvenation for people and animals alike. Again, it set them apart from all other nations; every other people worked non-stop 7 days a week, while God's people trusted His provision enough to rest one day each week and reflected on His goodness to them.

How about us? We are not under this law; we don't take every 7th year off (though I'd like to!). We don't celebrate a sabbath day but a Lord's day where we reflect on all that Christ has done for us and worship Him. But are our hearts really resting in complete dependence upon Him? What if God asked you to take a year off to go serve Him on the mission field and trust Him for your income; would you do it? Or if He laid you aside with sickness or some circumstance where you couldn't work for a long period, do you really trust Him? Do you recognize that every nickel you receive, every bite of food you eat comes directly from His hand to you? HE is your provider, not you! Well, in the third section of the chapter we read that:

III. Israel Was To Annually Observe Three Feasts (14-19) Here God introduces them to the 3 great celebrations of the year, each one a week long. Every Israelite got 3 weeks vacation - but they spent it all in Jerusalem! In the spring there was the Passover and the 7 day Feast of Unleavened Bread. Fifty days later there was the feast of harvest or firstfruits, also called the feast of weeks or Pentecost which also lasted a week. Then in the fall after all the crops were in there was the feast of Ingathering or Tabernacles which lasted another week. The details are spelled out later in Leviticus 23 but through these their calendar formed an annual reminder of the 3 great events of their history: the Exodus from Egypt after the Passover lamb was slain, the giving of the law fifty days later at Sinai and the wilderness journey where they lived in booths or tabernacles. Through these they would never forget what God had done for them. Now just notice here 3 principles:

1. they were to worship with giving (15,19) Nobody is to show up empty-handed but to bring an offering of what God had blessed them with. Not only that, they were to bring the first and the best, not the leftovers with diseases. As He blesses them, God expects His people to give, to give of the first of what they receive and the best of what they receive from Him! That's still true today! Secondly:

2. they were ALL to come and worship (17) Every male had to go to the Tabernacle wherever it was located in Israel. It was not optional; it was required; God expected it. No exceptions and no excuses. It kept Israel unified. It kept her in contact with her priests and taught by her Levites and drew her together in the proper worship of God. Much the way being part of a church family does the same things for us today! Worship together is still for ALL of God's people! Let us not give up meeting together, as some are in the habit of doing, but let us encourage one another--and all the more as you see the Day approaching. - Heb. 10:25. Thirdly:

3. they were to worship in purity (18) They were not to offer ANY yeast. Yeast is a picture or a symbol for sin; we're not to come offering any of it to Him. We're to come in purity and holiness, not with impure thoughts and self-centered motives in our hearts, not out of a begrudging attitude as though fulfilling an obligation, but with hearts that sincerely love God and want to serve Him with our lives.

Well, now God is basically finished with the code of laws and He explains to them how He was going to get them to the Promised land and what they must do in the process. In the last part of the chapter, we read that:

IV. Israel Was To Go from Sinai And Conquer The Land Of Canaan (20-33) Now right up front:

1. God made to them four promises in verses (20-26) First He promised them:

a. His personal Presence with them (20-21) This was not just any angel that God would send with them. This was the angel or messenger who bore HIS NAME; this was Jesus appearing in the Old Testament. He was the one in the cloud and the fire, the one who went before them in all their journeys. His very presence went with them. And what did Jesus say to His disciples as He sent them out with His last command? And surely I am with you always, to the very end of the age. - Matt 28:20. As we go on our journey of life serving Him, He is ALWAYS with us. He will never leave us nor forsake us. In fact, He dwells INSIDE us so that wherever we are, He is; wherever we go, He goes! That should be enough! But secondly, He promised them:

b. His protection and guidance on the journey (20) He would guard them along the way in all the hazards of the wilderness. And He would guide them; he would bring them to the place; He would show them the way and bring them safely there. What a great metaphor for our life! His Spirit will guard us and guide us all the way through our life's journey until we reach heaven, our promised land! Thirdly He promised them:

c. victory over their enemies in the conquest of the land (22-24) He would drive out and wipe out all their enemies that lived in the land so that they would conquer and occupy it for Him. They didn't have to be afraid they weren't strong enough or numerous enough or skilled enough. He would do it for them. What an encouragement as Jesus sends us out to spiritually bring the whole earth under His Lordship by preaching the Gospel and making disciples! The enemies out there are tough and strong and filled with venom and hatred. At every turn they are fighting against the growth of the church. Yet Jesus says, "I WILL build my church and the gates of hell will NOT stand before it!" When we look at the Muslim world and the Buddhist world and the forces that stand against our efforts we could be easily discouraged like Israel, except for the fact that HE will do it. We've read the end of the book and we KNOW that some from every tribe, tongue, people and nation end up in heaven; the victory is ours and is guaranteed! Now here's a fourth thing He promised Israel:

d. prosperity in their personal lives (25-26) God says they will have health and wealth and long life as His people in His land. But I need to be clear that this is where we part company with Israel. These promises are NOT repeated and duplicated for us in the New Testament. In fact, if you read carefully what Jesus said to us, He repeated over and over that we would face tribulation, suffering, hatred and persecution for His sake. He warned us to expect the hatred of the world and to accept these things as normal for a Christian. Israel had earthly promises of an earthly paradise. We have heavenly promises of a heavenly paradise but we are NOT promised health, wealth and long life! And yet so much preaching that is out there today says we are! Sadly, there is a "Gospel of prosperity" that is preached both here and around the world that is doing an incredible amount of damage in leading people astray and then when they come to Jesus and don't find health, wealth and long life they become disillusioned and fall away. And that false gospel is based on texts like this one which was never meant for us. Our citizenship is in Heaven and, like Abraham, we're looking forward that city whose builder and maker is God, not to an earthly reward. But then:

2. God explained to them three processes that He would use to give them the land in verses (27-33) First:

a. He would use a mental process of sheer terror to drive their enemies out (27-28) Have you ever disturbed a hornet's nest or a wasp nest? I remember one time some tree trimmers on our property cut right through a hollow limb with a yellow jacket's nest in it. They came down that tree like greased lightning, sprinted for the creek and dove in clothes and all. There is a sheer terror you get when you know a swarm of bees is about to get you! God was going to put their enemies into that same kind of terror and confusion, not knowing which way to run. But God isn't talking about physical hornets here. The hornet He planned to use is the fear and dread of Himself. When the spies were hiding in Jericho years later, Rahab said to them, "I know that the LORD has given this land to you and that a great fear of you has fallen on us, so that all who live in this country are melting in fear because of you. We have heard how the LORD dried up the water of the Red Sea for you when you came out of Egypt, and what you did to Sihon and Og, the two kings of the Amorites east of the Jordan, whom you completely destroyed. When we heard of it, our hearts melted and everyone's courage failed because of you, for the LORD your God is God in heaven above and on the earth below." - Josh 2:9-11. That fear, that terror of His own reputation, is what He planned to use against their enemies. Who can fight God? Secondly:

b. He would use a physical process of gradual conquest (29-31a) He would not do it all at once so the land would be left empty and fields overgrown. Rather He would drive their enemies out gradually over time until they occupied the land from the Red Sea to the Mediterranean, from the desert of Arabia to the Euphrates River, a vast territory. Israel came close to that years later under David and Solomon but never really got it all because they became disobedient. Lastly:

c. He would require a spiritual process of total elimination (31b-33) A clear warning: do not spare the inhabitants of the land. They can leave in terror before you get there, but if they stay and fight, wipe them out. Eliminate them completely. Don't let them stay and live among you! Why? They will lead you to worship their gods. Sadly, Israel proved God right by her history because she didn't and they did.

God gave her great promises but what He required of her was total commitment. I leave you with these words from A. T. Pierson: Suppose you had a thousand-acre farm and someone offered to buy it. You agree to sell the land except for one acre right in the center which you want to keep for yourself. Did you know that in some areas the law would allow you to have access to that one long spot? And that you would have the right to build a road across the surrounding property in order to get to it? So it is with us as Christians if we make less than a 100-percent surrender to God. We can be sure that the devil will take advantage of any in-road to reach that uncommitted area of our lives. And when this happens, our testimony will be besmirched and our service will become ineffective. Christian, have you given your entire being to the Lord? By a definite act of your will, have you presented yourself to Him for His control and use? If not, do so right now! Just pray, "Lord, I've already given you my heart, but here is my body. I hold nothing back. Use me for your glory!" When you do, your sacrifice will be acceptable, and Satan will have no access to your life!

God Instructs A People - Exodus 19-24

The Covenant Of Law - Ch. 24

Moses has been up on the mountain with God since 20:21, when he went up to God after the 10 commandments were given, and God has been giving him all these civil laws in the intervening chapters for Israel. Now in Ch. 24, God sends him down the mountain again to the people to read them the laws we've studied and to invite their leaders to come up onto the mountain and ratify a covenant with Him. Now God had already offered this covenant to Israel back in 19:5-7 and they had affirmed it. However, now that they had heard ALL the terms, all the laws they were expected to obey:

I. God Ratified His Covenant With Israel once again in almost exactly the same words (3-8) This covenant that God made with Israel He would hold them to for their entire history until Jesus came. It was a covenant of law; God says, "If you do these things, if you obey My laws, then you will be My people and I will bless you above all peoples on earth." It was conditional and it was based on their performance. Now notice 3 things about it:

1. its terms were delineated and written in a book (3-4, 7) Notice how careful God was to make sure that the people understood. First, they heard Him personally give the 10 commandments. Then Moses came down to them in v. 3 and told them verbally all the laws God had given him on the mountain. Then evidently, he wrote them all down in v. 4 and the next day in v. 7 he read this "Book of the Covenant", this set of laws which sets forth the terms of the covenant, to them all over again. God wanted to be sure they knew what they were agreeing to and also to be sure they would never forget it so it was written down. Secondly notice that:

2. its conditions were reaffirmed by the people, not once but twice. In vs. 3 when they heard it, they said Everything the LORD has said we will do! Then in v. 7 after he read it to them the next day, they said, We will do everything the LORD has said. We will obey! Israel made a vow here. She entered it with her eyes wide open. She KNEW what she was agreeing to. And God held her as a nation to that vow throughout all of her history. Thirdly notice this:

3. the covenant was sealed by blood (4-6, 8) Moses actually finalized the covenant like this: he set up an altar to represent God and 12 pillars to represent the tribes of Israel. Then sacrifices were offered and half the blood was sprinkled on the altar and the other half directly on the people after they had promised to obey. This blood was the seal of the covenant. Now why is that important? Look with me at Heb. 9:16-20. To make a covenant required the shedding of blood; it required death, the giving up of life. Now that says something about:

a. the depth of a covenant A covenant is so much more than a mere contract or agreement. It is the binding of two parties together by a holy vow into a bond and relationship that is as sacred as life itself. Think about marriage as an example. Marriage is not a contract, not a piece of paper, not an agreement. It is a covenant, a sacred vow that takes two parties and binds them into one for life before God. Two become one flesh we're told. Well, that same thing is true of any covenant whether it is the covenant that God made with Abraham that through him all the families of the earth would be blessed or the Mosaic covenant that Israel would be His chosen people or the New Covenant that God made with us through Jesus. These covenants are as deep as life itself and thus we could think about:

b. the guilt of breaking a covenant When Israel a short while later made the golden calf, do you now see how horrible that was? It was not simply a mistake, an error of judgment. It was not simply a failure to live up to the terms of an agreement. It was a violation of the sacred bond between God and His people. They would be His people and He would be their God. A covenant is sealed with blood and is as deep as life itself so breaking it is worthy of death, of instant destruction. Look at Heb. 10:26-29. Sinning deliberately when you know better is not just sinning. It is not just a mistake, a failure. It is trampling underfoot the blood of the covenant which was shed to save us, in our case the very blood of Jesus! It is treating His blood, His life, His death, as an unholy thing, as having no meaning or value! And that's a scary thing! If it was scary for them, how much more should it be for us!

*Martinique is a French island in the Caribbean Sea, a few islands south of Puerto Rico. With a beautiful large bay where the waves are almost perfect, and the tropical vegetation creates a paradise, it had become the playground for the rich of Europe who often came to spend their holidays in revelry. In Easter season of 1902 twelve big ships from Europe were docked in its bay, while the passengers were on shore celebrating Lent with all the wickedness that often accompanies Mardi Gras. Two young men from Canada arrived on another boat in Martinique and when the immigration officer asked them what they intended to do while in Martinique, they answered 'Preach the Word of God.' The islanders did not want this because it would interfere with their reveling so the officer told them, 'You will not soil our land by even stepping on it. You stay on your boat, and when it pulls out of the harbor, you pull out with it.' Meanwhile, on land the people were given to drunkenness and gross immorality, with open scoffing and blasphemy against anything religious. It was discovered later that a sow had been sacrificed on Good Friday in a cathedral as a burlesque of the crucifixion of Jesus.... Almost immediately the tall mountain, Pelee, overlooking the bay, started to smoke, as though a volcano was going to erupt. It had been inactive during historic times except for two minor eruptions in 1762 and 1851. They ignored the warning signs for weeks. But the people were frightened and sent a committee up to investigate the possibility of an eruption. They were unanimous, 'It was as cool as ever--there is no danger.' Once again the music and revelry broke loose in full swing. Three days later the Canadian boat pulled out of the harbor with the two evangelists on board. They had just passed the three-mile limit when the whole side of that huge mountain blew out and in 60 seconds covered the entire city with a fog of superheated gases and glowing, incandescent particles. So extraordinary was the intensity of the electrical manifestations associated with the violence of the blast that magnetic disturbances were transmitted as far as the North and South Poles within two minutes. The entire city of St. Pierre, 29,000 people, was instantly annihilated. There were two survivors. Two. [Life's Ultimate Privilege by DeVern Fromke. Pages 81-83.] Do I know for sure that God destroyed that city, like Sodom and Gomorrah, for their sins? No, not for sure, but I do know that it is a striking picture of what God is talking about here, of what a people deserves when they violate the very covenant of God. God was telling Israel, "I want you to be MY people, but if you violate My covenant you will deserve death!" Do you still want in? And yet they said, All that the LORD has spoken, we will do! They entered into this covenant knowingly and when they broke it, they broke it knowing the penalty. So, then we move on to read in the second half of the chapter how:*

II. God Revealed His Glory To Israel (9-18) But before we read that, let's back up to vs. 1-2 while Moses is still up on the mountain before he comes down and see:

1. their invitation to behold His glory (1-2) Up on Sinai God told Moses to go down and get Aaron the high priest, and his two sons Nadab and Abihu and 70 of Israel's elders and bring them up on the mountain close to the glory of God. It was an invitation to see Him, to meet him, to behold His glory firsthand. It reminds you of what Jn. 1:14 says about Jesus: The Word became flesh and made his dwelling among us. We have seen his glory, the glory of the One and Only, who came from the Father, full of grace and truth. Just as God revealed Himself in the person of Christ so that we could see Him and know Him, so God invited Israel up into His presence to see and know the One they were entering into covenant with. So, Moses goes down and reads them the law and builds the altars and they ratify the covenant and then we read about:

2. their vision of His glory (9-11) Whoeee! They saw the God of Israel. The description is deliberately left unclear but He apparently has some sort of human-like form; He has feet and hands and appears to be standing. He is more than just a bright glow of light. Now 1 Tim. 6:16 says that no one has seen or can see God. That is, no human can see God in His full essence and glory. So, what were they seeing? Jesus! Christ is the visible manifestation of the invisible God. He was there on the mountaintop in all the splendor of His preincarnate form perhaps just as He stood in John's vision in Rev. 1 glowing and brilliant in all His glory. And they sat at a table and ate and drank in His Presence to celebrate the joy of the covenant, of being His people. What an experience THAT must have been! The elders of the whole nation, invited into His presence, beholding His glory, seated at His banqueting table, celebrating His joy over them as His redeemed people. Now just hold that thought for a minute and let's quickly look at:

3. their instructions following this revelation (12-18) Moses and Joshua went on further up the mountain and left Aaron and the elders there to wait. They went near the top and stayed 6 days. On the 7th day God called and went alone into the cloud which looked like a consuming fire to the Israelites below. And there he stayed with God 40 days, 5 weeks, almost a month and a half while God gave him the tablets of stone and the vision of and the specific written instructions for the construction of the Tabernacle which follow in chs. 25-31. And it is here that we're going to leave Moses on the mountain and stop our study, but not before we look at:

4. the lessons we can learn from this experience The first one is a lesson about:

a. the sin of unauthorized approach In v. 1 God issued an invitation to Israel to come up into His presence. If you remember they had been told to set boundaries around the base of the mountain and nobody could touch it, not even an animal under pain of death. But now they are invited up and in that list are Aaron's 2 sons, Nadab and Abihu. They were next in line for the priesthood. They dined at His table on the mountain. But do you remember what happened to them? Leviticus 10:1-3. Somehow their privilege went to their heads. They felt they could approach God any way they chose instead of in simple obedience at His invitation. And they died for it. Yes, they had seen the glory of God, but when they disregarded the Word of God and disobeyed it, judgment fell, none-the-less. No one can simply enter the Presence of God; we must be invited there! And that underscores the tremendous privilege we have:

b. our tremendous privilege of approaching God Look what v. (2) says about Israel. They can't come near! But oh, look with me at Heb. 10:19-22. We can come into His presence with confidence, with boldness, openly, freely. He has made a new and living way for us to come into His Presence and that way is Jesus. By His death on the cross, He removed our sins once for all, forever, and now He invites us to come boldly to Him without reservation any time we need His grace or any time our heart desires to worship. We don't need to tremble in fear. We don't need to see worship Him as a far-off distant God. He dwells right inside us and we ARE His very sanctuary. We are ALWAYS in His presence and can freely interact with Him. It's like living in a continual banquet if we simply take the time to eat and drink of Him, to experience Him through prayer and the Word! Then do notice:

c. the backsliding of Aaron and the elders through impatience In v. (14) Moses told Aaron and the elders to wait there on the mountain that whole long month. But where were they? When Moses comes down again in Ch. 32 they are down in the camp. They slid back down the mountain physically and they slid spiritually back down the mountain from eating and drinking in the very presence of God all the way to making an idol. Why did they do it? Cp. 32:1. Simply, it took too long. They were impatient; they couldn't wait on God's time and forged ahead on their own or rather slid backwards into disobedience. It sounds to me like there's a lesson in there somewhere about how we ought to be willing to wait on God, to be patient with where He has us, to endure wherever HE has asked us to be regardless of how long the time seems to grow!

Now as we close this chapter and this series, let's take a step back and look at this entire scene again and see how:

III. Christ Is Pictured Through This Whole Experience Just as Moses made this covenant of law between Israel and God and sealed it with the blood of sacrifice:

1. Christ has made for us a New Covenant sealed with His own blood - Heb. 9:11-15 He is our mediator, our go-between, who entered into the very presence of God having given His own life for ours. And when He went in there, He took us with Him. He made for us a new covenant, a covenant, not of law but of grace. A covenant that is NOT contingent upon our obedience. Israel would remain God's people IF they obeyed; we will ALWAYS be God's people whether we obey or not. For us obedience is an act of the heart in gratitude. We obey out of love and gratefulness because He has given us freely the salvation we did not deserve. We have ETERNAL REDEMPTION, not simply earthly deliverance like Israel had, and it is guaranteed through HIS blood, not the blood of goats and calves! And that blood was sprinkled upon us, as it were, the moment we trusted Christ. From the moment we believed, we entered into that covenant and our covenant is as deep as the very blood of Christ upon which it rests. Then through that New Covenant, just as Israel was invited to come and enjoy His presence and eat and drink:

2. Christ has secured for us an eternal fellowship at His table Jesus talked about it this way: "The kingdom of heaven is like a king who prepared a wedding banquet for his son. He sent his servants to those who had been invited to the banquet to tell them to come...." - Matt 22:2-3. That's His description of what all of history in this age is about. God is making a great wedding feast for His Son and inviting people to come. The Kingdom is like a banquet, a great eternal feast, a gathering of all God's people in His Presence to worship, to praise and to enjoy Him and all the good things He has prepared for them. Jesus told His disciples: I say to you that many will come from the east and the west, and will take their places at the feast with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. - Mt. 8:1. At the Last Supper He encouraged them to look to the future saying, I will not drink of this fruit of the vine from now on until that day when I drink it anew with you in my Father's kingdom." - Matt 26:29. And He added, ...I confer on you a kingdom, just as my Father conferred one on me, so that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom.... - Luke 22:29-30 So John wrote in Revelation, ...`Blessed are those who are invited to the wedding supper of the Lamb!' - Rev. 19:9. Hallelujah! What Israel got to do only once, only temporarily and at a distance, we will do forever. We will be in His Presence and fellowship at His table throughout all the long ages of eternity!

And yet meanwhile we still have the tremendous privilege of guaranteed access to His presence any time we want right now. The story is told that back in the 1860's an elderly gentleman sat outside the main gate to the White House in Washington, D.C. one day. His threadbare clothes were covered with dust, and his eyes were filled with tears. A young boy who was passing by stopped and sympathetically asked why he was crying. The man said that his son was in the Army and was condemned to be shot because he had deserted his post. "The guards on the White House grounds will not let me see the President," said the distraught man. "Mr. Lincoln is so kind and generous. If he heard the full details of my son's desertion, I feel sure that he would pardon him." "I can take you to the President," said the boy. "You?" asked the man with surprise. "Yes, he's my father. He lets me come in and talk with him anytime I feel like it." So, the little fellow took the man into the White House; and after Lincoln heard the story, he did indeed pardon the condemned soldier. The Son is continually in the Father's presence and we can go in with Him. He invites us to go in with Him.

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Our Worship Of God - Ex. 20:1-3

Today we begin a new study on what is perhaps one of the most well-known and often quoted portions of the Bible, the Ten Commandments. For observant Jews, they have always been the very core of moral teaching and practice and the Ten Commandments have also played a central role in the life of the church. For centuries, every youngster and every Sunday School child has memorized them. Many traditional churches have them posted somewhere in the building. In fact, for years we've had pictorial posters representing each one on our walls, have you noticed? Many of us could quote most of the commandments from memory, though probably few of us could name all ten and in order. We regard them highly and profess to live by them, yet we intentionally break at least one of them repeatedly every week without ever thinking about it. So, before we actually study them, it's important that we understand:

I. The Nature Of The Ten Commandments Look with me at Ex. 34:27-28 In Hebrew that last phrase is literally the Ten Words. In the Greek language it is translated as Decalogue, another term by which we often refer to them. But what you should notice in v. 27 is that these Ten Words:

1. they were a covenant that God specifically made with Israel A covenant is a sacred vow, a holy agreement. God vowed that if Israel would keep His Words that they would be His people and He would bless them. Israel, in their turn vowed that they would obey God's Words. Now if you remember the story, you know that:

a. they were first spoken to all the people by the voice of God at Mt. Sinai Moses said in Deut. 5:22, These words the LORD spoke to all your assembly at the mountain out of the midst of the fire, the cloud, and the thick darkness, with a loud voice; and he added no more. And he wrote them on two tablets of stone and gave them to me. So, all the people heard them spoken by the very voice of God Himself. Of course, when Moses came down and saw the people worshipping a golden calf, he broke those original tablets and was told to bring two other tablets when he went back up to the mountain, so by his own hand:

b. they were then written on tablets of stone and placed in the ark of the covenant in the tabernacle, in the Holy of Holies where God's very Presence dwelt. God's voice showed everyone how deadly serious God was about them. Engraving in stone showed their permanence and their placement in the ark showed the holiness with which they were to be regarded. So, these Ten Words, first given in Ex. 20, together:

c. with the judgments and ordinances that follow in Exodus and Leviticus became Israel's law. In the US we have a constitution that forms the basis of our law code which all citizens are bound to obey. Likewise, God gave Israel these commands and the ordinances and the sacrificial system as a law code that all Israelites were bound to follow. God prescribed for them a way of life, a way to act and behave that would be beneficial to them all and result in His blessing, not only them, but all the peoples of the earth. However, the Scripture says clearly that:

2. they could not impart eternal life or true righteousness ...if a law had been given that could give life, then righteousness would indeed be by the law. - Gal. 3:21. Keeping these commandments was never intended to be a means of giving eternal life to anyone. Yet one of the replies you get, even today, when you ask people why they expect to go to heaven is: "Well, I'm a good person; I keep the Ten Commandments!" A couple weeks ago we had a church-going electrician here working and in the process of conversation, he said something like, "Ten simple rules; I don't know why people make it so hard!" The rich, young ruler who came to Jesus was counting on that when He asked, "What must I DO to inherit eternal life?" When Jesus mentioned the Commandments, he quickly said, "All these have I kept from my youth!" So, Jesus gave him a quick test on the very first one, "Go give away everything you own and come follow ME!" And he went away sad, because he loved his possessions more than he loved Jesus. They had become the god that he truly worshipped. None of us can keep even one of these perfectly once we understand what they truly mean. So, they could not give us life and they were never intended to. Rather:

3. they fulfilled the function of a guardian until Christ came - Gal. 3:19 says, [The law] was added [after God's promise to Abraham] because of transgressions, until the offspring should come to whom the promise had been made...and vs. 24 concludes, So then, the law was our guardian [our school teacher, our instructor, our tutor] until Christ came, in order that we might be justified by faith. You see, these Commands:

a. they imparted the knowledge of sin - Rom. 3:20 says it clearly, ...through the law comes knowledge of sin. God's law shows us how sinful we really are. In fact, 7:7 explains, ...if it had not been for the law, I would not have known sin. For I would not have known what it is to covet if the law had not said, "You shall not covet." As Phil Williams put it, The law is the light that reveals how dirty the room is, not the broom that sweeps it clean. [Dr. Phil Williams, DTS, 1976]. Somebody has to tell us right from wrong. Through these commands God explained to us, He clarified for us what is good and what is evil and:

b. that knowledge showed us our need of a Redeemer The more we try to keep them, the more we fail and the more we realize how sinful we truly are and how much we need forgiveness. That's the great lesson of the whole sacrificial system that followed them: you can't obey God; you need a substitute, a Redeemer to pay the price for your sins! And so, when we realize our sinfulness, we come to Jesus and find forgiveness and eternal life. That's what the law was intended to show us. But now:

c. we who believe are no longer under the law - Gal. 3:25 ...now that faith has come, we are no longer under a guardian. Rom. 6:14 ...you are not under law but under grace. Now that we have Jesus, we don't need the guardian any more. We are not Israel and we are not under the covenant God made with Israel. He gave us a New Covenant, a covenant of grace paid for with the blood of His Son, rather than that of bulls and rams, complete with a new heart and empowered by His Spirit. We are not bound to keep the law that He gave to Israel.

So, what do we do? Throw the Ten Commandments away? Hardly! Look at what Jesus said in Mt. 5:17-20. The scribes and Pharisees were like the rich, young ruler. They kept only the barest, rudimentary understanding of the Commands. Jesus said, "You've got to do better than that! I didn't come to get rid of the Law; I came to fulfill it. I came to show you what it really means and to empower you to live out what God truly intended by the power of My Spirit so that you end up fulfilling each of these in the way that God meant them!" You see, these Commandments:

4. they contain important eternal principles for us ...the commandment is holy and righteous and good, Rom. 7:12 says. These commands spell out for us the very character of God which should be ours, but not simply at face value:

a. all were meant to be followed at a heart level For example, look at Mt. 5:21-22. God meant something deeper than the letter. Anybody could obey "Do not murder". But that command was meant to convey far more, to convey something about our relationships with each other, something about the sanctity of life and the desire to harm others. And it goes still deeper than that. Eight of the commands are negatives, "You shall not..." and the:

b. negatives were meant to cultivate the converse positive Paul said, For the commandments, "You shall not commit adultery, You shall not murder, You shall not steal, You shall not covet," and any other commandment, are summed up in this word: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself." Love does no wrong to a neighbor; therefore love is the fulfilling of the law. - Rom. 13:9-10. God is not simply prohibiting things; He is telling us to love our spouses and to love everyone else by valuing their life, respecting their rights, and so on.

There is a deeper, eternal principle in each of these ten commands that we must find and treasure, so that when taken together they embody the essence of God's entire value system for the human race. They are the values that God intended to make human life possible and even beautiful now, the values that exist in heaven and that will exist on earth ultimately when Jesus comes. And not the smallest letter will pass away from them until they are all brought to pass some day! Now let's turn to Exodus 20 and look at:

II. The First Command (1-3): You Shall Have No Other Gods Before Me Simple words, but there is much more here than meets the eye. First of all, in giving this command:

1. God reveals His eternal nature He names Himself here, I am the LORD your God...you shall have no other gods. The word LORD in all caps in English represents God's proper name, Yahweh or Jehovah, in Hebrew. Nobody is sure exactly how to translate it because the original Hebrew has no vowels, however its root is the verb "to be". When Moses asked God His Name, God said, I am that I am. Tell the Israelites 'I AM' has sent me. In His very Name, God is declaring Himself to be eternal, the One who IS, who ALWAYS IS. Jehovah has no beginning and no end. He is eternal, the eternal God. And that is the first qualification for the position! If anyone or anything else is going to be god, he must be eternal with no beginning and no end or else he is an impostor! The Lord is saying "I am the only ETERNAL GOD, the only TRUE GOD, the only REAL GOD" and on that basis:

2. He demands exclusive allegiance The words before me do not mean "ahead of me" as though Jehovah was first in a line of others. The Hebrew literally says "before My face", which is an idiom that means "in My presence". God is saying, "You shall have NO [none, zero] other gods in My presence; I don't want to see or hear of you having ANY other gods, period! I am the only true God; therefore, there is no room for any other." Our God makes an exclusive claim. Jesus made an exclusive claim, I am the way, the truth and the life! He demands that we follow Him and no other. And notice this:

3. He demands it of each person individually To whom is He speaking? V. 2 makes clear that it is corporately to those He had brought out of Egypt; to His people Israel. This is not a command He expects the world to understand or follow. It is a demand of allegiance from His own people whom He redeemed, who know and have seen that He is the only true God! He is saying, "You KNOW I am the only true eternal God; you have seen Me redeem you! Don't ever let Me see you give allegiance in any degree to any other god!" And yet, each occurrence of you in these commands is singular. The text literally says. "There shall be TO YOU [personally, individually] no other gods!" The command was given corporately to a people but it must be fulfilled individually by each one of them. Now let's try and apply this. Of course:

III. The Important Principle In This Command is that:

1. there is no other God That precept is found all over the Bible. It is part of Israel's great confession, the Shema, that they repeated every day from Deut. 6:4, Hear O Israel, the Lord our God, the Lord is One. A Jewish Rabbi interpreted that for us in Mk. 12:32 when Jesus quoted it to him saying, "Well said, teacher, you are right in saying that God is one and there is no other but him." That's what the Lord is One means. The truth is that this universe only has one God. And who is He? I am the LORD, and there is no other, besides me there is no God... - Is. 45:5. Jehovah, Yahweh, the God of the Bible, the God who revealed Himself to Abraham and Moses and David and Isaiah and who revealed Himself most fully in Jesus Christ, He is the only God that exists. However, it is obvious that:

2. there are many false gods that seek to claim our worship Look with me at 1 Cor. 8:4-6. There is only one true God, but there are many other "so-called gods", things that human beings put into the place God should rightfully have in their lives, and there are many of them. Obviously, some are:

a. the "gods" or idols of false religions The Egyptians had a whole catalog of gods. The Canaanites had their Baals and Ashtoreths. The Assyrians and Babylonians had their own gods. The Greeks and the Romans had a whole pantheon of their own. People after people all over the world and down through history have made their own gods to worship. India is said to have 330 million of them and when you go there with our team, they are absolutely everywhere. But all of the other gods who have ever been worshipped are false gods who have taken the place that our one True God should have. The old adage that there is one god who is worshipped in many ways under many names is a detestable lie. And when you see the kind of worship they demand and the practices that go on as part of it, it becomes blatantly obvious that they are not the True God. That's why every people on the earth must be told about the True God and eternal life in Jesus Christ. Another set of false gods that human beings worship are:

b. the demons of the spirit world Look at 1 Cor. 10:20. Behind every idol is a demon promoting its worship. But in many of the more primitive cultures of the world the spirits themselves are worshipped. The whole goal of life in many jungle and mountain peoples is to appease the spirits, of whom they are deathly afraid. And in many more cultures ancestors are worshipped, which is simply another way of worshipping demons. As Romans puts it, the whole race, it seems, has exchanged the truth of God for a lie! But even here in western culture where we don't tend to do it so blatantly, we worship false gods too. They are:

c. the things we devote our lives to in this world Paul said, ...many, of whom I have often told you and now tell you even with tears, walk as enemies of the cross of Christ. Their end is destruction, their god is their belly, and they glory in their shame, with minds set on earthly things. - Phil. 3:18-19. For many people in this world, their god is their belly, their material possessions or money, their prestige and power or their personal pleasure. Whatever they set their mind to have above all else in this world becomes their god and they devote themselves to the pursuit of it, instead of the True God. And, sadly, their end, like that of all idol-worshippers, is eternal destruction - unless they come to Jesus.

None of these other gods, idols, spirits or earthly pursuits are to have any allegiance from us who know Him:

IV. The Intent Of This Command is expressed in the second half of the Shema, Deut. 6:5. I must love the LORD my God with my whole being Turn with me to one last place, Mk. 12:28-34. That's what God really meant in the first and greatest commandment, "I am the only God and because of that you should love me with your whole being, with everything you have and are." That's what worship really is, devoting my whole self to the True God who made me and redeemed me. Yet we violate that principle all the time. J.I. Packer wrote, *What other gods could we have besides the Lord? Plenty. For Israel there were the Canaanite Baals, those jolly nature gods whose worship was a rampage of gluttony, drunkenness, and ritual prostitution. For us there are still the great gods Sex, Shekels, and Stomach (an unholy trinity constituting one god: self), and the other enslaving trio, Pleasure, Possessions, and Position, whose worship is described as "The lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the pride of life" (1 John 2:16). Football, the Firm, and Family are also gods for some. Indeed, the list of other gods is endless, for anything that anyone allows to run his life becomes his god and the claimants for this prerogative are legion. In the matter of life's basic loyalty, temptation is a many-headed monster. [James Packer, Your Father Loves You, Harold Shaw Publishers, 1986]* That's why in the last verse of John's first letter, he concludes by admonishing us, Little children, keep yourselves from idols. We have great and constant need of that warning for all of these things tug at us constantly seeking our allegiance, begging us to choose them over our God. G. Campbell Morgan, the great expositor, issued this powerful challenge, "Let men take five minutes to shut out everything save the great fact that they stand alone with God. If they will, if they dare, let them ask as they stand in the light of that first commandment, "What is my god? To what is my life devoted?" If their answer indicates anything that puts God into the background, then in the name of heaven and of their own safety, let them 'break down every idol, cast out every foe' and let the God Who will be, Who is, and Who was, be their God." Let's take that challenge. Let's look at our lives honestly and ask, "What is my god? What am I most devoted to?" And if anything rears its ugly head above Jesus, let's determine with all our hearts to cast it down and make Him truly Lord of all.

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Our Relationship With God - Ex. 20:4-6

At a first reading it would appear that the second of the Ten Commandments is simply a repeat of the first one. The first said "Have no other gods"; the second basically says "Make no idols", which seems the same. By the way, did you know that there are actually THREE different traditions of listing the Ten Commandments? Roman Catholics (and Lutherans following their lead) actually combine what we Protestant and Orthodox churches call the first and second commandments, holding that our second one is actually still an explanation attached to the first one. Thus, in their listing, not taking God's name in vain is the second commandment, but then in order to get ten, they split the last one about coveting into two, not coveting your neighbor's wife and not coveting your neighbor's goods, following the word order of Deut. 5. The Jews actually make the preface in vs. 2 their first command and still combine our #1 and #2 as their second. So, who's right? Well, God never specified how to number them; He just said there were ten and to keep them all! Now why do I tell you this? Maybe so that your Catholic neighbors won't think you're ignorant when you don't know what the second commandment really is! But in reality, their view does have a point: verse 3 focuses on telling us to worship ONLY the True God; verses 4-6 focus on telling us HOW to worship Him. Let's read (4-5a). Condensing those thoughts:

I. The Command is: You Shall Not Worship Any Man-Made Image But why would we ever want to? Well, it seems that ever since our first parents were separated from the direct presence of God by their sin, human beings have always longed for some visible representation of God. Think of this way. Can you imagine Adam and Eve in the garden making a statue of God and bowing down to it in order to worship Him? Of course not! They had God himself; they saw Him with their eyes and talked with Him and heard Him, perhaps even touched Him. But since the fall, mankind has never had that blessedness again. We have not been allowed to walk by sight, yet we long for it; we long to see and to know God. Therefore, we have always been prone to aid ourselves in the worship of God by trying to picture God somehow. This command literally says you shall not make any carved image, anything you create with your own hands that looks like any part of creation, like something in heaven or on earth or in the sea to use it to worship God. Very clearly:

1. it does not prohibit the making of statues or pictures in general In the very Tabernacle where God was worshipped, he commanded that there would be pictures of angels woven into the curtains and there would be two statues of angels molded into the very mercy seat where His presence dwelt. He had the shape of almond blossoms molded into the lampstand as a decoration and little cloth pomegranates hanging from the hem of the High Priest's robe. In Solomon's temple, the bronze sea sat upon the backs of the statues of twelve bulls, all facing outward and God didn't mind it. Jewish coins had pictures of various objects on them for centuries and nobody even remotely thought it might violate the second commandment. So, on the window behind me is a lovely stained-glass picture of Jesus as the Good Shepherd. Are we violating this command? Well, the Orthodox Presbyterian Church says we are. They don't put drawings of Jesus in their children's Sunday School materials and I'm quite sure won't support the viewing of the Jesus film, let alone other movies that have been made for theater or TV about the life of Jesus, all because in their view these things violate the command. In my view, Jesus actually did come to us in a human body so it's not wrong to picture Him in that way, even though He probably looked nothing like most of the pictures we use, and the church down through the centuries has agreed with me. For centuries pictures were a great means of helping millions of illiterate people see, understand and remember the stories of the Bible. As I understand it, this command was given to prohibit two things. First of all:

2. it prohibits representing God by an image and worshiping Him through it God later spelled this out explicitly in Deut. 4:15-18, if you'll turn there with me. "God was careful not to show you any form when He appeared to you at Mt. Sinai, so be careful not to try to create an image of Him based on anything that you see in the physical world!" So, what was the very first thing they did? God had hardly finished writing the second commandment before Israel broke it in Ex. 32:1-5. While Moses was up on the mountain, Aaron made them a golden calf to worship. Why? Were they changing gods? Were they trying to worship one of the gods of Egypt? No, verses 4-5 say Aaron ...made a golden calf. And they said, "These are your gods, O Israel, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt!" ...And Aaron made a proclamation and said, "Tomorrow shall be a feast to the LORD." This calf was a representation of Jehovah, the LORD to them. They could not see Him and they thought Moses was dead and gone and they felt they needed that visible representation, so they made this image, then bowed down to it, sacrificed to it and began to celebrate before it the way they used to celebrate before bull statues of the gods in Egypt, with partying and orgies. However, the people had ALL heard God give the second commandment in Ex. 20 out loud with a voice like thunder. They KNEW not to do this, so God was extremely angry and 3,000 of the worst offenders were put to death. Whenever you make a statue or an image to represent God and you actually worship it, no matter how much good intent you may have, very soon the worship becomes worship of the image itself and not of God! All over Latin America, in the Philippines and many other places, every year statues of Jesus are dressed in certain ways and paraded through the streets as part of an older traditionalized Catholicism that was forced upon these peoples centuries ago. Though I'm sure the intent was to increase their worship of Jesus, I'm also quite certain that for thousands of poor villagers it has long since become simply the worship of the statue itself, just as they had worshipped statues of other gods earlier. They also do it with statues of Mary and often people look to the statues to bring healing or perform other miracles in their lives, the same way

Hindus do to their idols. For good reason then, this command clearly prohibits worshipping any statue made to represent God. But it goes further than that:

3. it prohibits worshipping any image as a god Moses continued explaining this command in Deut. 4:19. ...the likeness of anything in the heaven above, then, means not only birds, or perhaps angels, but the heavenly bodies, the sun, moon and stars. Many, many cultures have a sun god and a moon god. Centuries later godly King Josiah was reforming the religious life of Judah and cleaning out the Temple, And he deposed the priests whom the kings of Judah had ordained to make offerings in the high places at the cities of Judah and around Jerusalem; those also who burned incense to Baal, to the sun and the moon and the constellations and all the host of the heavens.... he removed the horses that the kings of Judah had dedicated to the sun, at the entrance to the house of the LORD... And he burned the chariots of the sun with fire. - 2 Kings 23:5, 11. Israel was always prone to worship images. When they were disobedient in the wilderness, God punished the people with a plague of poisonous snakes. So, in mercy God told Moses to make a bronze serpent and put it up on a pole so that whoever was bitten and looked at it would live. But centuries later King Hezekiah ...broke in pieces the bronze serpent that Moses had made, for until those days the people of Israel had made offerings to it (it was called Nehushtan). - 2 Kings 18:4. Invariably Israel made anything that they assumed had power an object of worship, rather than worshipping the True God alone. And it is not just Israel; for all human beings:

4. the tendency is always to worship the image itself as god and that is the history of the entire human race Look with me at Rom. 1:21-23, 25. This is a history of what happened to the entire human race. When they got off Noah's ark, all 8 human beings on earth knew God in a personal way, but as they multiplied, soon they didn't worship Him as God and as a result ended up worshipping images of created things. They ended up serving created things rather than the Creator of all things. And within a few generations man was deeply involved in idolatry as he still is today. All over east Asia there are statues of Buddha and people bowing before them in worship, though that was the farthest thing from the Buddha's own mind and teaching in the beginning. All over India there are millions upon millions bowing before statues of elephants and monkeys and the various gods who look like people, offering rice and flowers and coins every day, praying in vain for help that will never come because they are only man-made images. It is so sad. God knows human beings and that's why He prohibited the making of images for worship among His people! Now let's go back to Ex. 20 where God explains:

II. The Reason For This Command (5b-6) God is a jealous God. We more often use the word jealous in a negative way as an equivalent to the word envy; we are jealous or envious that somebody else has or gets something that we don't. But that's not what it means here. God is not simply envious that some other object might get worship and He won't, as though He is some self-absorbed being. In Hebrew jealousy also means the rightful passion or zeal to guard what belongs to you. For instance, if another man makes attempts to seduce your wife, you are rightfully jealous for her and will passionately do whatever it takes to stop him and protect her because she is yours alone and rightfully so. In the same way:

1. God rightfully and zealously guards His honor Moses said, ...you shall worship no other god, for the LORD, whose name is Jealous, is a jealous God - Ex. 34:14. Zeal for the guarding of His own honor as God is an essential part of who God is. He Himself says, I am the LORD; that is my name; my glory I give to no other, nor my praise to carved idols. - Is. 42:8. God is passionate and zealous that He alone should be worshipped and that is not selfish. He is the only God there is; no other being or object deserves to be worshipped. To share that glory of being worshipped with others would be to embrace a falsehood, a lie; it would be to deny His own nature. So, He passionately and zealously protects it. In fact, verse 5-6 go on to explain that:

2. He deals sternly with multiple generations of those who reject Him This does not mean that He makes 3 or 4 generations of children pay for the sin that their ancestor committed. It means if you hate and reject God by worshipping idols, that awful attitude and practice will be passed on to your children and by them to your children's children and so will the stern judgment of God that goes with it! If you reject worship of the True God, you will suffer for it, but you will not suffer alone; your children for generations to come will pay a heavy price that begins with your foolish choice until one of them dares to turn to God and break the cycle! On the other hand:

3. He deals lovingly with ALL the generations of those who love Him. A thousand generations is the poetic Hebrew way of saying an infinite number of generations. If we love, worship and obey the True God, we will pass that on to our children and they to their children and we will experience the love, mercy and forgiveness of God and so will they and this process can be passed on down forever as long as each generation chooses to love Him. Our children for generations can be blessed by our wise choice to love God and worship Him rightly! That's what makes the choice so important!

Now I'd like you to turn with me to Jn. 4:23-24. Even though this command was given to Israel:

III. The Principle Within This Command is for all time. [READ] This is what the command is really meant to convey: God Must Be Worshipped In Spirit And Truth God is spirit. He is not a material being; He is a spiritual being and He cannot be worshipped through material means. Now think about:

1. the nature of worship The common Greek word for worship means "to kiss the feet", to literally fall down at someone's feet and kiss them. The best way I know to picture this is the story of the sinful woman that came to Jesus in Lk. 7:38, ...as she stood behind Him at His feet weeping, she began to wet His feet with her tears. Then she wiped them with her hair, kissed them and poured perfume on them. THAT is worship. Worship is when we lay ourselves at the feet of God and kiss them as it were. Now that image of worship involves 3 elements. First:

a. it involves an attitude of submission to God It is done in the spirit of humbleness and submission. It is to the kiss the feet as a humble servant, rather than to kiss the face as an equal. Worship means coming to God with a sense of His great worthiness and our own unworthiness apart from Christ, a sense of His perfection and of our failure apart from Christ, of His power and glory and our utter dependence on Him. It is an act of submission, of yielding, an act of handing myself over to God and saying "I'm yours; body, mind, and spirit, I'm yours; do with me what you will." There is no worship without that attitude in your heart. Second:

b. it involves the expression of love to God It is not merely washing the feet as a servant but kissing the feet in love. Worship is adoration; it is being taken up with the One you're worshipping. You shall love the LORD your God with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your might. - Deut. 6:5. Worshipping is saying "I love You, I love You, I adore You!". And third:

c. it involves an eagerness to serve God Notice how often the Old Testament says Israel served other gods. Worship is service; it is responding to what the One being worshipped wants or needs or commands. The woman did not just say "You are my Lord, I love you." She washed His dusty feet and dried them with her own hair. Worship says "I exist to serve You, what will you have me to do?" And therefore, true worship always results in obedience to God.

So, God wants worshippers; He seeks them. But that worship must occur in the realm of the spirit. In other words:

2. worship happens when our spirit communes with God Worship occurs in the human spirit. Our body is His Temple, the place where He lives, and true worship is a personal communing between our spirit and the Spirit of God. Worship occurs when in the depths of my thought life, my inner self, I consciously come into the presence of God and express my submission to Him and my love for Him and my readiness to obey Him. That may go on during a worship service, during the singing of a hymn or as I pray or as I respond in my heart to a message like this one. Or it may occur at home during my quiet time as I pray or praise God or read His Word. But not all singing or praying or praising or reading or listening is worship. There is one last factor that Jesus mentioned:

3. worship must be true, that is, genuine or sincere It is one thing to say with your lips "I love you"; it is another to really mean it. In Mk. 7 the Pharisees were complaining to Jesus about His disciples not following the tradition of washing their hands before eating and He replied, ...Well did Isaiah prophesy of you hypocrites, as it is written, "This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me; in vain do they worship me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men." - 6-7. God cannot be fooled. He knows our hearts. He knows when we're genuine, when that "I love you; I lay myself before you" is real and when it is just words. Sadly, an awful lot of what is called worship is merely going through the motions of singing or reciting prayers. Real worship is done in your heart and it is done sincerely, genuinely, in truth, not to be seen by others but because you love Him with your whole being. That's what God is trying to teach in the 2nd commandment! "When you worship don't use any material means; come straight to Me with your heart. Bow down in it to Me and love Me and yield to Me. Any other method is unacceptable! I am the only God and there is only one way to worship Me, with your heart. Love Me with your whole being!" So, let's make personal application:

III. The Intent Of This Command is obvious: I MUST Worship God In Spirit And Truth And what does that mean? It means that:

1. I must commune with God personally both at home and with others I must have time with God regularly when I am consciously communing with Him in my heart and mind. That's what I was created for and if I'm missing that, I'm missing the whole purpose of my existence. I was created to know God and worship Him. I was redeemed to know God and worship Him. Every day I must do that; every day I must have time when in my heart I go before Him and tell Him of my love and of His greatness and of my submission. Do you? Do you regularly commune with God on a personal basis? And do you love to come together and worship together with us? David prayed a lot personally but he couldn't wait to go to the Temple and worship with others. Coming to church should not be just a religious habit; we should long to be together in the house of God to give Him the worship He deserves! And then, of course this command means that:

2. I must love God sincerely and truly When you spend time with God, is it simply reading Him your list of requests or is there any real worship, any falling down before Him and kissing His feet, any tears of love as you revel in His love in saving you, any expression of your ultimate loyalty to Him and willingness to be used of Him? When you come together here to worship Him, is it genuine? Do you sing from your heart? When we pray, are you praying and agreeing together in your mind? When we study are you listening for the Spirit to show you things from the Word? When you serve God, when you teach or when you care for the children, do you do it out of a heart full of love for God? Or is more like an obligation, a chore? God knows our hearts. He knows when we're really worshipping Him and when we're just saying words, just going through motions. I must love Him with all my heart and I must worship Him in truth because my heart wants to and not because I have to. Finally, this command means that:

3. I must never let anything usurp the place of worship You know the familiar story about Jesus visiting the home of Mary and Martha. Mary... sat at the Lord's feet and listened to his teaching. But Martha was distracted with much serving. And she went up to him and said, "Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to serve alone? Tell her then to help me." But the Lord answered her, "Martha, Martha, you are anxious and troubled about many things, but one thing is necessary. Mary has chosen the good portion, which will not be taken away from her." - Lk. 10:38-42. We get distracted by so many things. We're anxious and troubled and have so much to do, but only one thing is truly necessary: to sit at the Lord's feet in worship. We must never let anything take the place of that; when we do, it becomes an idol.

A young lady who was asked to explain how to read the Bible devotionally, said: "Yesterday morning I received a letter from a man to whom I have given my heart and devoted my life. I freely confess to you that I have read that letter five times, not because I did not understand it the first time, nor because I expected to commend myself to him by frequent reading of his letter. It was not a question of duty, but simply one of pleasure. I read it because I love him who wrote it. That's how to read the Bible." I would add, that's not only how to read the Bible, it's how to worship God. Love Him as you read, love Him as you pray, love Him as you sing, love Him as you give and love Him as you listen to the Word. Love Him as you do it over and over again. Then you will be worshipping Him in spirit and in truth!

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Our Respect For God - Ex. 20:7

In the First Commandment God warned us to worship no other gods because there are none, but rather to love Him with all our being. In the Second Commandment God warned us never to represent Him by any man-made image in order to worship, but rather to worship Him in spirit and in truth. In the Third Commandment God tells us about the respect that we should show to Him (7):

I. The Command sounds simple enough: Do Not Misuse God's Name. But maybe we ought to start by asking the question my grandkids would ask, "Why not?" It was none other than Shakespeare's Juliet who spoke the famous quote, "What's in a name? That which we call a rose by any other name would smell as sweet." She meant that a name is an artificial and meaningless identifier; it doesn't matter what you call a person but who they actually ARE that matters. Well, it seems that God doesn't share her opinion! He is deeply, deeply concerned about His Name and how it is used. And the reason is that:

1. God's Name is an extension of His Person Today it doesn't seem that names are very important. In our culture it seems so many simply want to pick out unusual or unique or nice-sounding names for their children. In older cultures, however, a person's name was of utmost importance. The name of a person stood for everything about them, for who they were, their entire reputation. The name of Adolf Hitler will live forever in infamy; as soon as I say it the Holocaust is brought to mind, the awful cruelty, the death of 6 million Jews. By contrast, the name of Abraham Lincoln will always be held in reverence by his countrymen for his brave leadership to our nation in the awful civil war to abolish slavery and preserve the union. As a person goes through life, all that they are and do becomes attached to their name. And that is even more true of God:

a. His Name conveys everything that He is and has done. For instance:

(1) His Name is holy Jesus taught us to pray, Hallowed be Thy Name in Mt. 6:9. God's Name is to be and should be regarded as holy by the entire human race. Why? Because HE is holy and His Name stands for everything that He is! We read in the Psalms that:

(2) His Name is majestic O LORD, our Lord, how majestic is your name in all the earth! - Ps. 8:1, 9. Why is it majestic? Because His Person is majestic, glorious, matchless. There is nothing like Him in heaven or earth. His name is what He is because it stands for Him. In Proverbs we read that:

(3) His Name is powerful The name of the LORD is a strong tower; the righteous run to it and are safe. - Pr. 18:10. Why? Because God is our Refuge and Strength. HE is our strong tower that protects us with His might. His Name is what He is.

Therefore, in a positive sense:

b. using God's Name identifies me with His Person When I use the name of God, whether I speak it or claim it or relate to it in some other way, using it identifies me with His own person. For instance, in the New Testament we read that:

(1) we are saved in His Name ...there is no other name under heaven given to men by which we must be saved. - Acts 4:12 It is not the word Jesus that saves me but the Person, Jesus. When I call upon the Name of Jesus to save me, I'm calling out to the Person. Whoever shall call upon the Name of the Lord shall be saved (Rom. 10:13) means whoever calls out to Jesus for the forgiveness of their sins shall be saved. Then, here's something we do all the time:

(2) we ask in His Name Jesus said, I will do whatever you ask in my name...you may ask me for anything in my name and I will do it. - John 14:13-14. But praying a prayer in Jesus' Name does not mean merely tacking the words "in Jesus' Name" onto it as we finish. When we ask in His Name it means that we realize that the basis of our asking is in Him and not in us. We ask on the basis of what He has done and not on what we have done. And it means coming on His behalf, asking Him for what He wants us to have, asking according to His will. Never assume you are praying in His Name just because you said the words! The use of His Name is an appeal to His person. And here's another concept:

(3) we act in His Name In Acts 4 Peter and John healed the lame man and when they were questioned, By what power or what name did you do this? Peter answered in vs. 7-10, It is by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth... that this man stands before you healed. In other words, "HE did it; I was just His instrument! I did it in the power and authority of His person." When we act as believers under the direction of the Spirit, we act in Jesus' Name; that is, we act under His authority, by His power as His personal agents.

Do you see what I'm saying? The Name of God is an extension of the Person of God and to use the name of God conveys my connection not simply to the Name but to the Person. How I regard His Name is how I regard Him! How I treat the Name of God is how I treat the Person of God! It is far more than just saying words! And that brings us to the second concept in this command:

2. using His Name in vain means using it without any regard for His Person This act is most commonly referred to as blasphemy in the Bible and we find examples of people doing it in several ways. For instance:

a. God's enemies actually curse His Name as He sends plagues upon them in Rev. 16:9, 11, 21. They were scorched by the fierce heat, and they cursed the name of God who had power over these plagues... [They] cursed the God of heaven for their pain and sores... they cursed God for the plague of the hail, because the plague was so severe. Notice that the phrase, Name of, is missing in the last two verses, yet all three say the same thing. Cursing His Name is their way of attacking Him, fighting back against Him, rejecting Him. Even today, there are plenty of people on earth who curse the name of God, curse the name of Jesus, because they hate Him, because they're bitter at Him for something they blame Him for, or because they see Him as an enemy who is taking people away from their false religion or belief system. On the internet YouTube actually has a channel called "The Blasphemy Challenge" where young people and others post clips of themselves cursing God and indicating willingness to accept eternal damnation if He is real! Can you believe it? Well, that is one way to use His Name in vain; here's another:

b. His Name is often used with disrespect People use His Name in a way that shows they don't respect His person at all. An Assyrian general stood outside the walls of Jerusalem taunting King Hezekiah, "Who is the Lord? No other god of any other nation has delivered them from my hand and yours won't either!" So, in Is. 37:6 God told Hezekiah "This man has blasphemed Me". That is, he has treated Me with total disregard, as if I didn't exist, in utter pride. You can blaspheme God:

(1) by intimating that He doesn't exist or is powerless After I was first saved at 15, I had a deep concern for my brother and his family to be saved and even gave them a Bible and a written note about it one Christmas. And I will never forget one day being in their home and hearing his wife jeering at the Name of Jesus, in a mocking voice saying, "Jesus is gonna save me!" How many people taunt believers, saying, "If your God is real, then why doesn't He stop war, why does He allow such awful poverty and natural disasters when He could prevent the suffering of millions?" Our whole educational system is practically geared to declaring that He is not real and challenging any who believe in Him, especially our colleges and universities. The God's Not Dead movie made a big point of that. The learned pundits of today who treat His Name disdainfully are no different from that Assyrian general centuries ago (and you know what happened to him and his army - if you don't, just look at the last three verses of Ch. 37!) Another way you can disrespect God is:

(2) by turning His Name itself into a curse How many times do you hear somebody use His Name emphatically to "damn" something or hear someone in anger exclaim the phrase, "Jesus Christ" as an expletive. These have become pretty common in our culture. You guys who work in the trades especially hear this all the time from rough men. They use His Name without any real thought that there is a Divine Being really connected to it who hears what they say and that they are using His name for their own vile intentions. Sadly, you even hear it from the mouths of some who call themselves believers or at least go to church regularly; they have so absorbed the culture that they don't even realize the depth of their offense. Of course, one very obvious way to disrespect God's Name is:

(3) by perjury under an oath taken in His Name For centuries any person testifying in our courts has been asked to swear that what he says is "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help me GOD!" In other words, "I swear before God Himself that I am telling the truth and may HE punish me if I am not!" So, if, after that, you lie, you're not only committing the crime of perjury, you're committing the sin of blasphemy! For millennia people regarded oaths as deadly serious business. Heb. 6:16 says For people swear by something greater than themselves, and in all their disputes an oath is final for confirmation. A person would never swear before God something untrue out of genuine fear that He would punish them! Now people don't seem to care. His Name being invoked doesn't matter. By the way, yesterday many of you heard Sarah and Brandon take their wedding vows and what did they say? "In the Name of Jesus, I take you to be my wife..." The traditional vows use, "in the Name of God the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit." Marriage is a vow made before Almighty God, appealing to Him as the witness to the oath! Yet people today so lightly break the vow that they have made without any thought to the Name and the Person before whom they made it. And, of course, the Name of God is commonly disrespected:

(4) by flippant usage such as saying "Oh my God!" or "Jesus..." when we are surprised or shocked. We even have a shortcut for it in text messaging; we type OMG! Sometimes we are flippant by joking about Him. I remember a line from the TV show "Last Man Standing" where a girl is bragging about her prowess as a hockey goalie and she says, "Only Jesus saves more than me." I cringe every time I hear a line like that or a joke about God and letting people into heaven. Any time we use the Name of God, we are referring to His person and if He actually IS our God, we should only ever use it with true reverence and respect. These are all ways to use His Name in vain and here's a last one:

c. His Name is often blasphemed because of us David committed his great sin and Nathan came to him in 2 Sam. 12:14 saying, "You have given the enemies of the Lord occasion to blaspheme." That is, they will say "What kind of God is the LORD anyway if his servants go around murdering and committing adultery with others' wives!" Peter points out that we bear the name "Christian" and we should glorify God because of it! When we don't, we bring dishonor to His Name. Jesus prophesied that many would prophesy and cast out demons and do miracles in His Name, people who actually never knew Him! - Mt. 7:22-3. I can't think of anything worse than being a religious charlatan, someone who uses the Name of Jesus to get profit for themselves and how many do we know of who have done that!

Well, we often quote the first half of this Commandment but somehow never finish it, ...the Lord will not hold Him guiltless who takes His Name in vain.

3. God will surely punish those who misuse His Name Turn over to Lev. 24:13-16. Do you remember this? This man misused the Name of God, somehow using it in a curse and they didn't know what to do. God answered, "Stone him to death!" That's how seriously God takes misusing His Name; in Israel it carried the death penalty. The Jews became so impressed by this Command that they would never speak or write the Name of God and orthodox ones still don't today. When they come to His proper name, they say "Lord", meaning "Master" or simply say, "Ha Shem, the Name". They even write God as G-d. That's why no one today remembers how His actual Name, in Hebrew YHWH, is to be pronounced! They have such reverence for His Name and a fear of misusing it somehow, a fear almost totally lost on us.

Yet it is not fear that God intended to create by this Command, but rather the exact opposite:

II. The Principle In This Command is that We Must Hold God Most Precious to us. It is not really about misusing a Name; it is about honoring the Person whose Name it is and regarding Him as precious, as having the highest, the ultimate value to us. Turn with me to 1 Peter, will you? Peter says that:

1. Jesus is precious to us above all else (2:4-7a) That last phrase in other translations is, Now to you who believe, this stone is precious. Christ is the Living Stone, God's Cornerstone for the church He is building. He is precious to God and to us who believe, He is precious. He is the Person we value most. He is more important to us than anything else in our lives. Of course, we all have people that we feel are precious to us, like our spouse or our child. If I said something bad about your spouse or your child, would it not make you angry? Why? Because they are precious to you! And Christ is more precious to us than anyone! We have a greater love for Him than for anybody and anything else in the world. And:

2. the sacrifice Jesus made for us is precious above all else (1:18-19) We were redeemed by the most costly thing of all, the precious blood of Christ. What Christ did on the cross, shedding His blood and giving His life for mine is the most precious thing, the most important thing, the most valuable thing I know. It is worth more than all the silver and gold in the world. It is my very life. And:

3. our faith in Jesus is precious above all else (1:7) Our faith, our trust in Jesus is more valuable, more precious than gold. Our relationship with Him is worth more than the whole world.

That's what God is trying to teach in the Third Commandment: If there is only one God and the only way to worship Him is in spirit, and if my relationship with Him is the ultimate thing in my life, the thing that matters most, then I would never misuse His Name! I would never treat Him in any fashion with disdain or disregard. Every mention of Him, every thought of Him, every action in His Name would be done with the utmost respect, love and devotion. So, turn with me to Eph. 5 let's make some personal:

III. The Application: If I am truly a believer, I Must Value God Above Everything Else in my life. And if I DO value Him:

1. I will talk in a way that brings honor to God (4) If Christ is the most important thing in my life, I will never speak unkindly about Him. I will never use His name as a curse word, certainly. I will never use it lightly and without reverence. When I say the name of God, I will think of Him and how much He means to me. When I say the Name of Jesus, I will think how precious He is to me. He is the love of my life and when I mention His name, I will mention it only in love. Beyond that, filthy talking, foolish clowning around that makes light of God, crude joking, saying things Jesus would never say - all of that stuff is out of place; it's not proper for one who loves Jesus. Our lips should honor Him in everything we say. Secondly, valuing Him means:

2. I will act in a way that brings honor to God (3) I claim the name of Christ, I say that I love Him but then sometimes I deliberately choose to sin. I choose to hate my brother. I act in pride or self-centeredness. I involve myself in things that I know are dishonest in business or in things that are immoral. Those things have no place in the life of a saint, a holy one. When I continue in those things, I'm just pretending that He means everything to me; He really doesn't. If He does mean everything to me, I will demonstrate how precious He is in the character of my life every day. My actions will honor His Name. And lastly, valuing Him means:

3. I will love in the way that He has loved me (1-2) If I love Him with my whole being, I'll be like Him. I'll love others the way He has loved me. If I don't, John says, the love of God doesn't dwell in me; I really don't love Him like I profess to do. His Name will be honored in the way that I love.

I've told you before the story of John Newton. He was a rough, dirty sailor with a foul mouth and an appetite for rotten living. He hated life and life hated him. He was captain of a slave ship. But he also had the gift of a good mother who told him about the Savior when he was young. On a return voyage to England in 1748 the ship encountered a severe storm off the coast of Donegal, Ireland and almost sank. Newton awoke in the middle of the night and, as the ship filled with water, he called out to God. The cargo shifted and stopped up the hole, and the ship drifted to safety. He immediately began to read the Bible and eventually gave his life fully to Jesus Christ. From his heart and his rescued life came our beloved song, Amazing Grace. He became an ordained minister and served for many years. In old age, he had to have an assistant stand in the pulpit with him on Sundays. He was nearly blind and spoke in whispers, but nothing could keep him from preaching while he still had breath. One Sunday, while delivering his message he repeated over again the sentence: "Jesus Christ is precious." His helper whispered to him: "But you have already said that twice." Newton turned to his helper and said loudly, "Yes, I've said it twice, and I'm going to say it again." The stones in the ancient sanctuary fairly shook as the grand old preacher said with all his force: "Jesus Christ is precious!" Beloved, Jesus Christ IS precious! Honor Him with your lips, with your life and with your love.

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Work And Rest - Ex. 20:8-11

All of the first four commandments concern man's relationship with God. The First Commandment is to worship no other gods, but rather to love our one True God with all our being. The Second Commandment God is to never to represent Him by any man-made image in order to worship, but rather to worship Him in spirit and in truth. The Third Commandment God is to respect His Name because He is most precious to us. But now we come to the Fourth Commandment, which, at first glance, doesn't sound like it has anything to do with God (8). What's that about? We've been talking about how we relate to God and all of a sudden, we're talking about setting apart the seventh day, Saturday, as a day of rest. Well, what we'll find is that God is teaching us a very deep lesson about our relationship to Him, but that will have to wait until we understand:

I. The Command itself: Keep The Sabbath Day Holy The word sabbath itself means to cease or to rest from labor. Every good Jew knows that means from sundown Friday to sundown on Saturday, all work must cease! Don't do any work on that day; it is a day of rest, of ceasing labor. But the origin of the concept goes back to the very beginning:

1. it is a principle taught in creation You remember the story from Gen. 2:2-3 which is summarized in verse (11). God did His work of creating the world in six days and on the seventh He ceased His work of creation and rested because it was finished. Adam and Eve were created on the sixth day, so this was something they literally heard God do. He pronounced a blessing on the seventh day and set it apart or made it special. By the way, do you realize that one of the best arguments for the existence of God comes from this very fact? How does the human race count time? From time immemorial almost every human culture that counts time has divided it into 7-day weeks! We know that the early Babylonian peoples who lived in the so-called "cradle of civilization" used it well before the time of Abraham. Why do so many cultures measure time in 7-day weeks? Where did they get the idea? It has no basis in astronomy like the concept of a "day" or a "year" or even a "season" does. It can be nothing other than the lingering memory of God and His creation rest! But, back to the story. It does not say that mankind could not work on that day nor do we find any biblical record of the seventh day being observed as a day of rest by anyone before Moses. The Hebrew simply says that God set apart the seventh day and made it different by resting on it. Man knew that God rested on it and he counted his time units accordingly, but that seems to be all until:

2. it was a command given to Israel (9-10) In this command, God took that creation rest of His own, which they all knew about, and He said "Now Israel, you're going to do exactly what I did." Why? Well, if we look carefully, we can find three reasons. First of all:

a. it provided them needed physical rest Look at Ex. 23:12. God instituted this practice so that the people along with their servants and their animals could rest. God didn't rest on the seventh day because He was tired, but He knew that human beings and all earthly creatures need rest. We still need it. Most people who try working seven days a week don't last very long at it. Our bodies and our minds grow weary. Just on a practical level, we do need at least one day of rest in every seven. But its significance was much deeper than that. In Deut. 5 where Moses repeated the Commandments, he added this note in vs. 15, You shall remember that you were a slave in the land of Egypt, and the LORD your God brought you out from there with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm. Therefore the LORD your God commanded you to keep the Sabbath day.

b. it reminded them of deliverance from slavery In Egypt where they were in bondage, there was a non-stop grind of work, day after day without ceasing, making bricks and building cities for Pharaoh. That ceaseless work took its toll on their bodies and depressed their spirits until they cried out to God for mercy. So, in mercy He delivered them and gave them rest. And every Saturday as they rested, they were to remember that God had delivered and rescued them and given them rest. It was a reminder of their national salvation. Then at the same time:

c. it taught them a weekly lesson of trust Even before He gave them the official command to keep the Sabbath day, God taught them an important Sabbath lesson. Look at Ex. 16:22-23, 29. From the very first day he did it, God sent them manna for six days, not seven. But He sent enough on the sixth day to last through the seventh. So, each week He proved to them over and over for 40 years that they could trust Him to provide enough for them to rest on that seventh day. When they entered Canaan, the manna stopped falling, but they still had the lesson. God would provide enough in six days for them to rest on the seventh. The sabbath was a powerful reminder that God was the One who provided for all their needs and they could trust Him to do it. You can do the same. If you're walking with the Lord, you can trust Him to provide enough in six days so that you don't have to work on the seventh to make ends meet. You can take a day to worship Him and to rest; He will provide for it. But the meaning of the Sabbath went deeper still:

d. it was a sign that God had set them apart as holy Look at Ex. 31:12-17. The Sabbath was more than just a day off each week. God elevated it to the status of a sign to Israel. They were to do what He did in creation, to rest on the seventh day and that set them apart from all the peoples of the earth. That practice said that they alone were God's people. In all the nations round about them, people worked all seven days. Nobody got a day off each week. When people saw Jews not have their shops open and not be out working in their fields, keeping the Sabbath on Saturday, they knew they were worshippers of Jehovah who had commanded this. That's why the penalty for breaking it was so serious. Now the reason why God chose this particular thing to be a sign is in vs. 13. I, the LORD, sanctify YOU! "I am Jehovah who MAKES YOU HOLY!" Resting on the sabbath was an object lesson that their status before God as holy and set apart was HIS doing and not their own. They were to REST because He had chosen them, not to STRIVE to get Him to choose them. All the peoples of the earth strive to be accepted by their gods; the people of God REST because they know He has chosen them. The Sabbath is a powerful symbol and we'll talk more about that in a few moments, but first we have to look at the New Testament and there we find that:

3. its observation as law was cancelled by Christ Of course, the first Christians were all Jews and I'm sure they continued to observe the Sabbath for some time, but as the Holy Spirit sent the Apostles out to the Gentile world and the church began to be made up mostly of non-Jews, they were never forced to observe the Sabbath rule. Paul's statement on the issue is Col. 2:13-17. The Sabbath was part of the Law and Christ nailed that law to the cross in Himself by fulfilling it completely. Everything about that law was only a shadow, merely a dim earthly object lesson that pointed to Christ who is Himself the fulfillment of it all. The rule of the Law given to Israel is over for us; we are no longer bound by it and nobody can judge us for not keeping it. Even during His ministry:

a. Christ claimed Lordship over the Sabbath When the Jews were chiding Him because His disciples were picking some grain with their hands and eating it as they walked on the Sabbath (by the way, I admire them for that; I've tried it and, believe me, uncooked grains of wheat are basically inedible!) at any rate, when they chided Him, He said, The Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. So the Son of Man is lord even of the Sabbath. - Mk. 2:27-28. God gave the Sabbath rule to benefit people, not to enslave them and be some measure of their religious piety and as Lord, Jesus had the right to choose how and whether it should be kept! And when He rested from completing His mighty work of redemption on that last Sabbath day when His body was in the tomb, that was it! It was fulfilled and over! The thing to which the Sabbath day pointed had come! Therefore:

b. Christians are no longer REQUIRED to observe it Paul says, Who are you to pass judgment on the servant of another? It is before his own master that he stands or falls. And he will be upheld, for the Lord is able to make him stand. One person esteems one day as better than another, while another esteems all days alike. Each one should be fully convinced in his own mind. The one who observes the day, observes it in honor of the Lord. The one who eats, eats in honor of the Lord, since he gives thanks to God, while the one who abstains, abstains in honor of the Lord and gives thanks to God. - Rom. 14:4-6. If you want to rest on the seventh day in order to honor God, do it! Fine! If you see no need to do that, then honor God every day! But don't judge those who do. And those of you who do, don't judge those who don't! It doesn't matter because whether you rest on Saturday or not is no longer an issue of obedience to God. It may be a health and common sense issue but it is not an issue with God at all! So, what about Sunday? Isn't Sunday NOW the Christian Sabbath as many of our Presbyterian friends have said? No!

c. Christians early on designated Sunday as the Lord's Day, a day on which they would gather to worship him. That term is mentioned for the first and only time by John in Rev. 1:10, which shows that it was already in common use. Sunday is the first day, not the seventh. Within weeks of Christ's resurrection from the dead, His disciples began to gather specially on Sunday to celebrate it and worship, not because any command was given, but because they wanted to and they loved Him so much. Sunday is one day in our week that we VOLUNTARILY give to the Lord and say, "Lord, this is your day; today I will worship You specially with my brothers and sisters." That's all. No more and no less. Can you play ball or shop on Sunday afternoon? Do whatever the Lord leads you to do! Nobody can judge you for it. We have no law, but I will say this: if you really love the Lord Jesus, you WILL be excited in your heart to worship Him and to be with other believers whenever they gather, and that's usually on Sunday!

But what's really important for us to understand is:

II. The Principle In This Command. It was an object lesson to teach us that We Must Rest In God Look with me at Heb. 4:9-11. According to verse 9:

1. the Sabbath pictures a rest that we can experience as believers today. That word Sabbath rest in the Greek is a unique word which occurs only here in the New Testament. It means a "state-of-resting". Without looking at all the argument of chapters 3 and 4, let me just say that the Israelites thought when they got into the promised land that they would experience God's rest. But that physical rest was not the real kind of rest. It only pointed to another kind, a special kind of rest that we as Christians experience. We find in the New Testament that there are really two kinds of rest that we experience. First there is:

a. a present resting of our souls that Jesus mentioned in Mt. 11:28-30 when He said, Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest... you will find rest for your souls... He did not promise us rest for the body, that is, peaceful circumstances; He promised rest for our souls. So, when we come to Jesus, we actually find soul rest in two ways. First of all:

(1) we rest in Christ's work for salvation - Rom. 4:4-5 says When a man works, his wages are not credited to him as a gift, but as an obligation. However, to the man who does not work but trusts God who justifies the wicked, his faith is credited as righteousness. To be saved we stop working. We take an eternal sabbath rest. Christ did all the work at the cross by dying for us and ever after He is resting from that work. It is done, complete! When we trust Him to save us, we quit once and for all trying to save ourselves and REST in what He did for us. What a rest that brings to us, knowing our salvation is complete and sure, knowing there's not a single thing that we have to do to be accepted by God because Christ did it all! Our souls are at rest. Then the second way that we learn to rest is this:

(2) we rest in Christ's power for living How do I live this life I have to live in this body? Paul said in Gal. 2:20 I don't! I no longer live, but Christ lives in me and through me! I live by faith in the Son of God; I simply trust Him to do in and through me what He wants done. I don't depend on myself to live the Christian life; I learn to rest in His power and His ability. In other words, I quit working; I cease trying to do things on my own. In every circumstance I learn to cry out to the Lord and say, "You do it; not me". So, I rest FROM my striving to live the life and rest IN His doing it through me. And what a rest that is when you discover it! It's an ever-deepening rest that grows daily. But there's still one more type of rest for us:

b. a future rest from our earthly labors - Rev. 14:13 says, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from here on for they rest from their labors and their works do follow them. When we die and are in His Presence, we will have a final rest from all of the struggles and problems and difficult circumstances we have had to endure in this life. One day we WILL actually get that external peace we so desire, but for now we only have rest for our souls.

Now let's go back to Heb. 4:10 because there we find the secret of:

2. how we enter into that rest ...whoever has entered God's rest has also rested from his works as God did from his.... How do we do it? It's simple. We enter His rest:

a. by ceasing our work as God did God stopped working on the seventh day. In order to know His rest, we must stop working like He did. We must completely give up working for our salvation. We must quit striving in our own strength to live a holy life. To enter rest means to stop. As long as we're trying to save ourselves or to live a holy life in our own strength, our soul will have no rest, but will rather be in constant turmoil. And the second half of the equation is this. We enter His rest:

b. by believing God to do the work Look back to 4:3. It is by faith. We who have believed enter that rest... We trust God to save us. We trust God to live through us. We rest in complete trust that HE will save us, that HE will live through us the life He wants. So now we're ready to make:

III. The Application: I Must Rest In God - Heb. 4:11 Let us therefore strive to enter that rest... In other words:

1. I must work hard at resting! Isn't that ironic? We are to make every effort, to work hard, to strive... to do what? Not to achieve salvation, not to live godly, but to what? To rest! Did you know that it's hard to rest! Not physically but spiritually! We are so used to trying harder, striving to do better, that it's difficult for us to simply rest. That's why we have to work hard to learn to do it! Now in practical terms, here's what that means:

2. in every situation I must learn to depend upon Christ You remember what Paul said, ...I have learned in whatever situation I am to be content [that is, to rest]. I know how to be brought low, and I know how to abound. In any and every circumstance, I have learned the secret of facing plenty and hunger, abundance and need. I can do all things through him who strengthens me. - Phil. 4:11-13. In whatever situation I find myself, I simply stop and pray, "Lord, I'm trusting You. I give this to You. You live through Me. You forgive that person through me. You control my angry feelings. You take care of my problem; I can't fix it." And you may have to stop and pray like that a dozen times in a day, but when you do, when you rest in Him and His power, His power IN you provides the strength to endure and His peace which passes all understanding floods your heart and mind, your soul. You enter into His rest. I have to work hard to develop this habit of resting in Him every day in every circumstance, But the rest of 4:11 is a warning,

3. if I don't, I will fall into disobedience We make every effort, we strive to enter that rest, so that no one may fall by the same sort of disobedience that Israel did in the wilderness. If we don't rest in Him, we end up disobeying Him and often suffer serious consequences.

A local pastor in the Philippines shared this story to help his people understand what we've been talking about: The driver of a wagon pulled by a carabao [a water buffalo] was on his way to the market when he overtook an old man who was carrying a heavy load. The driver had compassion on him as he struggled, so he invited the old man to get up and ride in the wagon. Gratefully the old man accepted, sat on the wagon and the driver continued. Then after a few minutes, the driver turned around to see how the man was doing and to his surprise, he found him still straining under the heavy weight. He had never taken the burden off his shoulders and placed it in the wagon. [Larry Chell] It sounds crazy, doesn't it? But that's exactly what we do in life. We climb into the wagon by resting in Jesus to save us, but we still keep holding the heavy burden of our struggles in life on our shoulders instead of laying them down and letting Him carry them. The fourth commandment says to us, "Remember the sabbath rest that Christ has provided. His work is already done and He has provided everything you need. Rest in Him, not just on one day, but every day!"

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

The Value Of Parents - Ex. 20:12

The first four of the Ten Commandments have to do with God and they lay out God's value system for the relationship between Himself and mankind. The remaining six commandments have to do with human behavior and they lay out God's value system for the relationship He intends human beings to have with each other. These six core values form the basis of all human civilization; virtually every culture in the world, including our own, honors them in whatever code of laws or traditions it has. These fundamental precepts are what makes it possible for us to live together in society and not have the world degenerate into the depths of evil that preceded Noah's flood. Without the recognition and reinforcement of these precepts, life degenerates into the sort of revenge-killing, murdering, baby-abandoning, woman-stealing, immoral, lying and deceiving nightmare filled with violence that dozens of isolated tribal peoples like the Sougb or the Yanomami lived for centuries before the missionaries came. The first of these six principles, Commandment #5, is in (12):

I. The Command: Honor Your Father And Mother This is one of the few commandments that is quoted directly and is imported straight into the New Testament by Paul and given to us directly as a command for Christians to keep. So, it is important for us to understand what it means to honor our parents. The Hebrew word literally means to "make them heavy". Obviously, that doesn't mean to literally "fatten them up"; the image is that of weighing something on a two-sided scale as you would in the market. If one pan goes all the way down, the object in it is heavier than what's in the other one and thus of greater value.

1. this command means that we must regard them as having great value to us. In quoting this in the New Testament, Paul used, the Greek word time, also translated as honor and, again, it means to count something as being of great value. We are to place great value upon our mother and upon our father. But what exactly does that mean? The answer is that it means different things at different stages in our lives and also in their lives. However, we are not left to speculate because other passages spell out very clearly what it means. For instance:

a. in our childhood it means that we must obey them Look with me at Eph. 6:1-2. The connection couldn't be more obvious. When you're a child, honoring or valuing your parents means obeying them. Now that word obey in the Greek is a military term and it means "to hear under". Any of you who have been in military service understand quite clearly what it means: to listen as one who is underneath authority, that is, to listen and to DO. To honor your parents means that you see them as God-given authorities in your life and when they ask you or tell you to do something, you pay attention to it and say, "Yes, I will" and you do it! When you, as a child, rebel against your parents, you are not simply being lazy or ungrateful or inconsiderate, you are saying, "I don't care very much for you; who you are and what you say is not important to me; I don't honor you!" Kids, I want you to think about that. God Himself wants you to do what your parents tell you to do! He put them in your life to protect you and direct you and train you so that you will know how to do life in a way that pleases Him! That's their job and you make it much easier when you obey! But eventually we grow up and reach adulthood and the way we honor them changes, especially when we get married. God says in Genesis that there is a "leaving" of father and mother that has to occur and the couple is to now cling to one another; they form the nucleus of a new family, a new set of parents-to-be. In adulthood we are no longer supposed to obey everything our parents tell us to do as though we were children; by this time we are supposed to be able to relate directly to God for His guidance. So how should adults honor their parents? Prov. 23:22 says, Listen to your father who gave you life, and do not despise your mother when she is old.

b. in our adulthood it means that we must respect them We still listen to what they have to say. We value their opinions and their experience and wisdom. We don't look down on them and say, "They're just old-fashioned and ignorant and don't know what they're talking about!" They may not understand smartphones and Facebook and Twitter and be up with the latest in technology, but they understand something more important; they understand life because they have lived it a lot longer than we have! So, you respect them; you ask their advice; you spend time with them; you do things for them that they may need some help with. You show them you still care, that they're still important to you. And then:

c. in their old age it means that we must care for them Look with me at Mt. 15:4-6. Here Jesus denounces the Pharisees because some of them were being "spiritual" and were donating all their possessions to God instead of caring for their parents, vowing to leave them to the Temple (that is, after they died) and using that vow as an excuse not to take care of their parents in the present. In those days there was no social security, of course; there was no government pension fund. The only means available for your care when you could no longer work and your money ran out or you needed someone to physically care for you was that your children took care of you! In much of the world, it's still that way, as it is in many, many people here who will never be able to afford the astronomical cost of their own care in their last years! Jesus said that to not care for the needs of your parents is to break God's command; therefore, honoring them means giving physical help, providing for them, seeing that they are cared for in their old age and their needs are met. Jesus even took time to obey this command as He hung on the cross by asking John to take care of His mother Mary as if she was his own, because He would no longer be there to care for her. Your parents cared for you as a child and if you value them, you will do it for them when they need it!

That's what honoring your father and mother means, pure and simple: obey them when you're a child, respect them when you're an adult and care for them when they are old! Now I want you to notice that:

2. God placed great importance on enforcing this command in Israel. Lev. 20:9 says that:

a. cursing them was punishable by death We just read a loose quote of it in v. 4. For anyone who curses his father or his mother shall surely be put to death; he has cursed his father or his mother; his blood is upon him. Whoa! That's how serious God was about honoring parents! In fact, In Israel:

b. rebelling against them was punishable by death If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son who will not obey the voice of his father or the voice of his mother, and, though they discipline him, will not listen to them, then his father and his mother shall take hold of him and bring him out to the elders of his city at the gate of the place where he lives, and they shall say to the elders of his city, 'This our son is stubborn and rebellious; he will not obey our voice; he is a glutton and a drunkard.' Then all the men of the city shall stone him to death with stones. So you shall purge the evil from your midst, and all Israel shall hear, and fear. - Deut. 21:18-21. Aren't you glad we live under grace? There are a few of us who might not be here today if we lived under Israel's law, am I right?!

My point is that God is serious enough about this command, about the honoring of parents by their children, to make it an issue of life and death! Why? Because parents teaching their children to love and worship God and modeling for them how to live His way is THE core process He designed for the human race to stay in relationship with Him. By commanding us as children to honor our parents, He was safeguarding that essential process and ensuring the passing down of the faith from generation to generation! And that is the most serious matter there is! Now the other thing I want you to notice is that:

3. God gave a promise along with this command - Eph. 6:2 None of the other commandments had a promise connected to them, but in this case God promised, ...that your days may be long, and that it may go well with you in the land that the LORD your God is giving you. Paul is quoting the version of the command found in Deut. 5:16. And vs. 33 adds, You shall walk in all the way that the LORD your God has commanded you, that you may live, and that it may go well with you, and that you may live long in the land that you shall possess. Quite clearly, this promise:

a. it meant Israel would remain in her land and prosper It didn't mean that an individual would be guaranteed to live a long life if they honor their parents. God actually meant the same thing to apply to all of the commandments. If Israel would keep these laws, would honor these basic principles, God would prosper her as a nation and she would remain a long time in the land of Canaan that God was giving her. But she didn't keep them and lots of Israelites died and they were conquered by other peoples and eventually they were taken out of their land into captivity. These commands and this one in particular were intended to prevent that; they were intended for Israel's good, to give her a long and prosperous history as a society. The United States would do well to take heed to that; when we stop honoring our older people, stop honoring our parents, our days are numbered. Our growing departure from the values put forth in the Ten Commandments does not bode well for our future as a society! However, as individuals:

b. we may apply the spiritual aspect of the promise God didn't give this command, or any of these commands for that matter, to make life difficult for us and keep us from enjoying ourselves:

(1) keeping it is for our good Verse 3 implies that it will go well with us. Obeying, respecting, and caring for our parents will result in good for us. It will enrich and bless our lives, as many a young person has found out who tried to go their own way and ignored their parents' pleadings. But beyond the personal benefit it has for us:

(2) keeping it is righteous and pleasing to God In verse 1 Paul says ...for this is right. In Col. 3:20 Paul gives the same command and says, ...for this pleases the Lord. It is right because it pleases the Lord. This is a standard God has put into place in the world for human benefit and it is right and good and pleasing to Him! When we honor our parents, we do the right thing and we please Him!

Now I need to inject some thoughts here because I know that some of you are thinking, "But I don't have a godly parent; I have a parent who hurt me deeply." You may come from a broken home where a parent deserted you and ran off with someone else; you may have a parent who abused you or who constantly belittled or berated you; you may have a parent who is an addict or a criminal or who neglects you or urges you to do ungodly things. Maybe you are living in this situation right now. How do you honor a parent who is abusive and ungodly? Well, at any age, obeying God always trumps obeying any human being, even a parent. As a child, you NEVER obey when a parent who tells you to do something God says is wrong, and that includes being quiet about their misbehavior when they are mistreating you. Tell someone safe what is happening! As an adult you may need to set healthy boundaries if a parent continues to try to hurt you. One internet author puts it so helpfully like this, ...honoring a parent does not mean I must accept unrighteousness. Honor will keep me from answering back in kind when someone is treating me inappropriately because, as a person created in God's image, he does not "deserve" that, no matter his behavior... because I respect him as God's creation, I will not and cannot enable him to continue in sin by doing nothing when he has persistent sin against me and against God that he will not address or acknowledge. I respect him enough to attempt to turn a sinner from the error of his ways. In a respectful manner. ...honoring is not:

- Staying in relationship with someone who will hurt me or those for whom I am responsible.
- Never saying anything to anyone about the other's "faults."
- Enabling a sinner to remain in sin by my silence and inaction.
- Thinking a person is "wonderful" when they are not.
- Having feelings of love. Giving honor is a choice, not a feeling.

...I can value my parent as a person and as a person who gave me life, without being in any type of relationship with him whatsoever. Honoring a parent is about my attitude toward him – that is all that is required by the Word.

<https://dannimoss.wordpress.com/2009/02/26/how-can-i-honor-an-abusive-parent/> I hope these thoughts are helpful to some of you who have "difficult" parents and I would encourage you to talk to Pastor Jim or myself or Rob or someone if you need to talk about your personal situation.

However, this commandment actually looks well beyond the parent-child relationship. Like of each of the commandments, there is an eternal:

II. The Principle In This Command: It teaches us that We Must Value ALL Those In Authority Over Us I want you to turn with me to Rom. 13:1-5 and while you're doing that, let me explain that:

1. relationship to all human authority is learned in the home The parent-child relationship is the means by which God has planned to teach each one of us that we must submit ourselves to the authority of other people in our lives. If we don't honor our parents, we're not going to honor our teachers in school and we're not going to honor our boss at work and we're not going to honor policemen or the laws of our land or any other kind of authority, except when we are forced to. And we're certainly not going to honor God! Parents are stand-ins for God during those first years of our lives. The ultimate goal of honoring parents is to learn to honor all authority and to honor God Himself. Now read the text in Romans. You see:

2. God has appointed all human authorities to serve His good purpose Human beings in their fallen state, whether saved or unsaved, cannot exist without authorities to govern their lives as they relate to the lives of others.

a. they are His means to control the spread of evil In the times before Noah, there was no governing authority. Everyone was left to fend for themselves and the behavior of the human race fell so low that God found it necessary to destroy it and start over. But after the flood He instituted the rudiments of human government; He clearly told us that we must collectively take responsibility to purge our ranks of evil. Governmental authority, ruling authority is established by God for our good; it is necessary to keep evil in check and we must respect it. Now those IN authority are not always right and not always nice or reasonable; in fact, they may be downright evil themselves. But whatever they are like, remember that:

b. He puts specific people in places of authority and removes them, just as He has given you the parents that you have. Whoever is in authority is His choice and because of the God-given position they hold, we must honor and value them. And that means that:

3. we must submit to all those in authority over us, whether that is our parents, our teachers, our employers, our lawmakers, or our law-enforcers, whoever they may be.

a. if we do not, we can expect to receive the penalty for it Just as our parents disciplined us because that is their God-ordained role and it was good for us, so the other authorities in our lives will do the same. We should expect that. If you drive over the speed limit and get stopped by a policeman, you should not complain when he gives you a ticket. If you cheat on a test, you should expect to be flunked when you are caught. If you refuse to pay your taxes, you should expect the IRS to come after you and garnish your wages. Authority only works to contain evil behavior in society when there is a penalty involved and that penalty is enforced. However, we should respect the authorities not simply because we're afraid of the penalty, but because it is the right thing to do before God. And just like the situation with bad parents:

b. we can only refuse if the authority forces us to disobey God When the Sanhedrin ordered the apostles to stop preaching about Jesus, they said, We must obey God rather than men. - Acts 5:29. If anyone in authority orders me to disobey God, I have the responsibility to disobey them and I should expect to receive their penalty for it. But in every other case, I am to submit with respect. So, here's:

III. The Application Of This Command: I Must Greatly Value all the Authority that God has place in my life. That means:

1. I must respect the authority within my family Kids, that means that to obey God you have to obey your parents. We grown children have to respect and care for our parents. Wives have to respect the authority of their husbands in the home because it is God-given. All that is implied in this command. So, am I doing that? And am I doing that with my heart or simply outwardly because I don't want to get in trouble? Secondly:

2. I must submit to the authority within my society, to my teachers in school, the boss at work, the foreman on the job, the policeman who gives me a ticket, and so on. Am I doing that? Do I obey the rules, the laws that have been set over me at school, at work, by the government? Paul said, Pay to all what is owed to them: taxes to whom taxes are owed, revenue to whom revenue is owed, respect to whom respect is owed, honor to whom honor is owed. - Rom. 13:7. I must have the highest regard for all authority, because it comes from God. And:

3. I must ultimately recognize and obey the authority of God How I view authority on earth reflects how I view His authority. Do I respect His right to govern my life and humbly submit to Him?

So, value all the authorities God has put into your life, but especially, value your parents. They're God's gift to you. An anonymous author writes, We had the meanest parents in the whole world! While other kids ate candy for breakfast, we had to have cereal, eggs, and toast. When others had a Pepsi and a Twinkie for lunch, we had to eat sandwiches. And you can guess our parents fixed us a dinner that was different than other kids had too.

Our parents insisted on knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were convicts in a prison. They had to know who our friends were, and what we were doing with them. They insisted that if we said we would be gone for an hour, we would be gone for an hour or less. We were ashamed to admit it, but they had the nerve to break the "Child Labor Laws" by making us work. We had to wash the dishes, make the beds, learn to cook, vacuum the floor, do laundry, and all sorts of cruel jobs. I think they would lay awake at night thinking of more things for us to do.

They always insisted on us telling the truth the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. By the time we were teenagers, they could read our minds, and life was really tough. They wouldn't let our friends just honk the horn when they drove up. They had to come up to the door so they could meet them. While everyone else could date at 12 or 13, we had to wait until we were 18.

Because of our parents we missed out on lots of things other kids experienced. None of us have ever been caught shoplifting, vandalizing other's property, or ever arrested for any crime. It was all their fault. We never got drunk, took up smoking, stayed out all night, or a million other things other kids did. Sundays were reserved for church, and we never missed once. We knew better than to ask to spend the night with a friend on Saturdays.

But now that we have left home, we are all God-fearing, educated, honest adults and we are doing our best to be mean parents just like our parents were. You know, it seems the world just doesn't have enough mean parents anymore. Beloved, your parents are a gift from God, be sure you honor them!

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

The Sanctity Of Life - Ex. 20:13

The six commands that deal with human relationships concern the very bedrock issues of human existence: the value of parents, the sanctity of marriage, the right of personal property, the practice of honesty, and so on. On these things all of human civilization is founded, yet no issue is more basic than the one which the sixth commandment deals with: life itself. God has gone to great lengths in Scripture to show that human life is sacred. It is something that only God can give and something only God should have the right to take away. It belongs exclusively to God. And so, we have this sixth command in God's value system for humanity in verse (13):

I. The Command: Do Not Murder Now a great problem has arisen out of this simple phrase because for hundreds of years the King James Version, which everyone quoted, said Thou shalt not KILL. That phrase has been misused by sincere people who become conscientious objectors in wartime or protest the death penalty for criminals, as well as by people who want to protest the killing of animals. In India, Jainism takes this concept to its extreme of not killing any living creature, down to the level of not swatting a fly or stepping on an ant. But there is no hint of that in this commandment. The ESV, NIV and every other modern translation interpret the Hebrew word much more precisely, You shall not MURDER. Let me assure you that this command has nothing whatsoever to do with animals. Whether it is killing a domestic animal for the table or hunting a wild one or even putting your aging dog to sleep, the Bible clearly states that man has the right to kill animals, that God Himself has given them to us for food. In fact, the Hebrew word used here is never used of killing animals; there is a different word for that. This command is about taking the lives of human beings. Moreover:

1. this command does not forbid all taking of human life There are ten or more Hebrew words which mean to kill. The word ratsah used here is only used six other times and it is always with the meaning that we would translate in English as murder. Further this command is quoted in the New Testament by Jesus, Paul, and James and in each case, they always use the Greek word phoneuo which specifically means to murder. All taking of human life is killing but not all life-taking is murder, the thing God is prohibiting here. Sometimes human life is taken by pure accident; look at Deut. 19:4-5 which says, If anyone kills his neighbor unintentionally without having hated him in the past— as when someone goes into the forest with his neighbor to cut wood, and his hand swings the axe to cut down a tree, and the head slips from the handle and strikes his neighbor so that he dies... That is not murder. Sometimes life is taken through neglect, even deliberate neglect and the Old Testament law even speaks to that. It commands the building of a railing around your flat rooftop to prevent people from falling off and dying or the penning up of an animal that is known to be dangerous and might gore someone. If someone is killed through neglect it is not murder. The passage that most clearly spells out the difference is Num. 35:9-25 where God commanded the designating of cities of refuge in the land of Israel where someone who had killed a person by accident could flee and be protected. Let's take time to read this long passage together. Now notice clearly:

a. life-taking becomes murder when two conditions are met First:

(1) the slayer must have the intent to kill V. 23 says ...he was not his enemy and did not seek his harm. It is the intent to harm, the intent to kill that makes man-slaughter murder. So, we are not to intentionally take a human life, but there's still more to it. If the man WAS a murderer, the avenger of blood (that is, the nearest relative of the victim) was commanded to kill him. There was no refuge designed to hide that type of person. Here the intentional taking of life is actually commanded, just as it is in many other places in the Old Testament. So, there is a second factor involved in murder:

(2) the slayer must have no right to kill the victim. There are times when life can and even must be taken justly, that is, because God says that it is right, because He Himself commands us to do it. One who has murdered another is to be killed. That killing is just; it is right. It makes human existence possible because it keeps life sacred and precious to all.

So, in simplest terms, murder is the unjust, intentional taking of life. Then think about what God is really teaching us here:

b. this command teaches the tremendous value of human life Turn back with me to Gen. 9:5-6, the clear command that God gave Noah and his family after they left the ark to begin the human race all over again. It was intended as a command to all of the human race from its second inception [READ]. God intended from the very beginning that all human beings should know and understand that human life is sacred and all taking of it that is not legitimate must be punished in turn. Why? Because:

(1) murder is a direct strike against God's image A human being is the image of God, created in His likeness. To kill that image is a direct strike against God Himself and should not be done unless it is commanded by Him.

Under Israel's law, even the accidental manslayer had consequences to face. He had to live in the city of refuge until the high priest died. And that, of course, is a symbol of Jesus, our High Priest dying, and it says to us that even the guilt of unintentional wrongs was paid for at the cross. But the taking of life is never what God intended, even though sometimes it may be necessary. Every human life has value; it is a direct creation of God and it is sacred, holy. That's why the New Testament tells us that:

(2) murder is Satanically motivated Jesus Himself told the Jewish leaders, You are of your father the devil, and your will is to do your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning... - Jn. 8:44. The reason Satan hates people is because they are images of God and from the very beginning he has wanted to destroy them, to murder them, because he hates God and anything attached to him. It was he who incited the very first murder; We should not be like Cain, who was of the evil one and murdered his brother... - 1 Jn. 3:12. It was Satan who whispered in Cain's mind, "Go ahead, kill your brother Abel! He deserves it!" And Cain listened to him instead of to God; he joined forces with Satan and struck at the image of God, with whom he was angry for not accepting his sacrifice, by killing Abel. When you intentionally and unjustly take a human life, any human life, you are motivated by and have entered a league with Satan and are doing his bidding, just as surely as those leaders who plotted to murder Jesus.

Now all that being said, let's think through some of:

2. the implications of the command These are things that many people debate and have strong opinions about but they become clear when you understand the definition of what murder is. First of all:

a. capital punishment is not murder It is governmentally necessary and was directly commanded by God for all human beings for all time long before the law of Moses was ever given. Capital punishment, the taking of the life of one who murders, is God's deterrent to maintain the sacredness of life. Yes, it is unpleasant and it is not to be done arrogantly or lightly or cruelly, but if we in the United States actually DID execute murderers and did it swiftly, there would be a radical change in the crime rate! When you can commit murder and only risk imprisonment, there will always be people willing to make that trade. As we saw earlier:

b. killing someone by accident is not murder If you are involved in a car accident or an industrial accident and someone dies, it is not murder. You had no intent to harm the other person. Moreover:

c. killing someone in self-defense is not murder If a person breaks into your home with the intent of harming you and your family and you have a weapon and kill him in self-defense, that is not murder. You are not his enemy with unjust intent to harm. You are defending your own life and the lives of others. It is not murder. It is terribly serious and you certainly ought to avoid taking an intruder's life if you can, but if there is no other alternative, it is not murder and all 50 states agree with God in that. Now here's the big one; what about war?

d. killing someone in war may or may not be murder For ISIS to make war against Syria and Iraq in an aggressive fashion in order to take over their population and territory and kill people at will is certainly murderous. To defend against an attack by an enemy or to rescue others being unjustly attacked and kill the attackers is certainly not murder. A believer can go to war and fight and kill the enemy, and countless of us through the centuries have, even though it is an awful thing to have to do and many come home severely traumatized by it. And I must quickly add that even in a justified war, there are many unjustified and even murderous acts of taking human life that occur. A state of war itself does not justify unnecessary killing; human life must always be treated as sacred and taken with reluctance and regret. And I can't avoid mentioning this serious application of the command:

e. killing an unborn child is murder A human being is a human being in the womb from the time of conception. Psalm 139 says clearly that God knows and forms together each person in their mother's womb. To intentionally kill an unborn baby is murder and we in the United States have reportedly aborted some 58 million babies since the practice was legalized in 1973. May God have mercy on our nation; we certainly don't deserve it! Of course, in some few cases, the life of the pregnant mother is in great danger and the doctor must take the child to save her life; that is sad but it is not murder. And I must also add that this abortion thing too is not all so cut and dried. In any crowd of this size there will almost certainly be at least some woman who has experienced an abortion in her past and has kept it her secret. Many times, young women have been forced into having an abortion by parents or boy-friends or even husbands who made threatening demands and they were not strong enough to resist at that time even though their hearts did not want it. In fact, ALL women who have had abortions are themselves victims; they pay a heavy price for it, whether they realize that price or not. We must have great compassion for women who have suffered in this way; most are not the blind and callous, "it is my right to do what I want with my own body" type and using the phrase "Abortion is murder" lightly, traumatizes them all over again. Nevertheless, we must tell God's truth about the subject, especially in our society, and hold human life sacred in every way.

We could go on and mention that suicide is murdering your own self and assisted suicide and euthanasia are all forms of murdering someone else, no matter how much it appears that the person would be better off dead. These are all the intentional taking of a life that we have no right to take. Dr. James Dobson mentions an article by Dr. Leo Alexander in the New England Journal of Medicine, written in 1949 which argued that so-called "compassionate killing" of the terminally ill inevitably set the stage for the Holocaust. He wrote: "Whatever proportions these crimes finally assumed, it became evident to all who investigated them that they had started from small beginnings. The beginnings at first were merely a subtle shift in emphasis in the basic attitude of the physicians. It started with the acceptance of the attitude ...that there is such a thing as life not worthy to be lived. This attitude in its early stages concerned itself merely with the severely and chronically sick. Gradually the sphere of those to be included in this category was enlarged to encompass the socially unproductive, the ideologically unwanted, the racially unwanted and finally all non-Germans. [J. Dobson and G. Bauer, Children at Risk, Word, 1990, p. 145]. Whenever we begin to deviate from God's truth that every life is sacred, we head down a slippery slope that justifies murder. However, the bottom line is that God did not give this commandment simply to prohibit murder. The New Testament repeats this command on several occasions and points out that the intent of this command was to teach a far greater eternal principle. Turn with me to Rom. 13:8-10:

II. The Principle In This Command is Love Others As Yourself In fact, according to this, all of these six commandments did not simply prohibit something; they were all expressions of one rule that God was trying to teach, that of love toward other human beings. Honor your parents is to teach love for parents. Not committing adultery was to teach love for our spouse. The others taught love for our fellow human being in general and this command leads them all. You are to love the life of every human being and value it. That means:

1. negatively, not to simply not murder anyone, but we are to do no harm at all to others. You remember what Jesus taught? You have heard that it was said to those of old, 'You shall not murder; and whoever murders will be liable to judgment.' But I say to you that everyone who is angry with his brother will be liable to judgment; whoever insults his brother will be liable to the council; and whoever says, 'You fool!' will be liable to the hell of fire. - Mat. 5:21-22. What is Jesus telling us? It's not just that God doesn't want us to physically murder another person; He doesn't want us to hate them or even to insult them. He doesn't want us to look down on them and scorn them and call them an "empty-head". He doesn't even want us to have a hostile attitude toward them and be angry with them. Those are all smaller degrees of the same sin of which murder is the ultimate expression. He wants us to intend nobody any harm, any ill; that's what God really wants of us! But then:

2. positively, this command is teaching us that we are to care about others and act to help them. James said, If a brother or sister is poorly clothed and lacking in daily food, and one of you says to them, "Go in peace, be warmed and filled," without giving them the things needed for the body, what good is that? - James 2:15-16. And John's comment was, ...we ought to lay down our lives for the brothers. But if anyone has the world's goods and sees his brother in need, yet closes his heart against him, how does God's love abide in him? - 1 Jn. 3:16-17. God wants us to love each other, to care about each other's life and the quality of that life. He wants us to care that the other person loses their home in a fire or loses their job because of downsizing, to care that they suffer physical pain or that they are going through a heart-wrenching divorce. He wants us to care that their hearts are hard and they don't know Him and they're going to spend eternity apart from Him. This is the bedrock of all human society. If all human beings care only about themselves and their own life, they cannot exist together. Man must care about his fellow man for human life in this world to work. And how much more is it the bedrock of the church; the New Testament commands us over and over, "Love one another!" So here is:

III. The Application Of This Command: I Must Love Others As I Love Myself I must value their life and everything about it as I value my own. I must treat their life as I treat my own: with love. Now let's just think in the physical realm about:

1. how I naturally love myself Paul said, For no one ever hated his own flesh, but nourishes and cherishes it, just as Christ does the church - Eph. 5:29. Now I know there are people who actually hate their own bodies and deliberately try to starve them or hurt them or even kill them. But those folks are sick; their experiences in life have made them into something that is not normal or natural. Nobody is born hating their own body; we are born loving our own bodies and there are two things we take great pains to do for them:

a. I always nourish my body by meeting its needs The NIV uses the word feed but that's a little limited, though most of us obviously feed our bodies three times and more each day. Nourishing means I see that my body has everything it needs. I clean it; I groom it; I rest it in sleep. Perhaps I exercise it. I do for my body what God does for me; I meet all of its needs. And the other thing I do for my body is that:

b. I always protect my body by shielding it from harm The Greek word for cherish comes from the concept of a mother bird gathering its young under its wings for shelter and keeping them warm. I love my body so much that I do that same thing. I protect it from the cold and keep it warm. I go to very great lengths to keep it from experiencing pain. That's how I naturally love myself and that's:

2. how I must love others I must love them AS I love myself. AS is a funny word. When you use it to compare two things, it can indicate either manner or degree and here it probably means both. I must love others:

a. in the same way that I naturally love myself That is, I must nourish and cherish others in the same way that I nourish and cherish ME. I must care that their needs are met and they are protected from harm. Their life is precious just as mine is and I must value their well-being just as I do my own. Furthermore, I must love them:

b. to the same degree that I naturally love myself That's the tough part, isn't it? It's one thing to care but how MUCH should I care. God is teaching me that He wants me to care about the well-being of others, their nurture and their protection as much as I naturally do my own, which is quite a bit! Who is the center of my life? Is it me? Is it my needs, my protection? Or is it the well-being of others? Does their life really matter to me? Is it sacred to me because it is given by God and belongs to Him? And do I care about them even if I don't like them or they are my enemy?

The second most widely recognized genocide in the world after the Holocaust is the extermination of between 800,000 and 1.5 million Armenians who lived in Turkey by the Turkish government during World War I and it led to the brief Turkish-Armenian war in the autumn of 1920. The story is told of an Armenian nurse who had been held as a captive along with her brother by the Turks. Her brother was slain by a Turkish soldier before her very eyes. Somehow, she managed to escape and later became a nurse in an Armenian military hospital. One day she was stunned to find that the same man who had killed her brother had been captured and brought wounded to the hospital where she worked. Something within her cried out "Vengeance". But a stronger voice called for her to love, so she nursed the man back to health. Finally, the recuperating soldier asked her, "Why didn't you let me die?" Her answer was, "I am a follower of Him who said, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you." (Luke 6:27). Impressed with her answer, the young soldier replied, "I never heard such words before. Tell me more. I want this kind of religion." The sixth commandment is not merely about letting a man die by refusing to help him; but it is about nursing him back to health. It's about valuing the life of someone else, anyone else, everyone else, as much as I do my own, and caring for their well-being. It's about love.

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

The Sanctity Of Marriage - Ex. 20:14

I have mentioned previously that the final six commandments form the fundamental bedrock upon which all human civilization is based and the seventh commandment, which concerns marriage, is no exception. Have you ever thought about the fact that every human culture on earth recognizes the permanent bonding of a man and a woman belonging exclusively to each other, which we in English call marriage, and sees violating that as taboo? I wonder why that is? I think it is like the concept of the seven day week; it is evidence of a memory that mankind collectively has that in the very beginning God created one man and one woman and he brought them together in a one flesh relationship that should not be shared with anyone else. From that very first generation it has been passed down over the centuries into every people that there is something about marriage that sets it apart and demands that its boundaries be respected. And so, God gave Israel His seventh commandment, a statement of what the whole world already knew is proper:

I. The Command: Do Not Commit Adultery In English, the root of the word has nothing to do with the word adult, but rather comes from the Latin term adulterare which means to add something other. It has also come down to us in the verb adulterate which means to corrupt, debase or make impure by adding another substance. So, in essence:

1. this command means to not corrupt or violate the marriage vow by adding another person into the relationship, thus making it impure. Technically, it is something that can only be committed if at least one of the parties is a married person. In plain language, if you are married:

a. it means not being sexually involved with anyone except your spouse and it further means that you (whether married or not) cannot be sexually involved with a person who is the husband or wife of someone else. The marriage bond is exclusive; it is a Divinely instituted boundary that no one is to venture outside of when they are in it and no one from outside is to venture into. But that doesn't seem to mean very much to us in America today. One author in 2011 quoted a then recent George Barna survey saying that 4 out of 10 Americans believe that adultery is morally acceptable. For Christians, that number was 1 out of 10. He went on to quote research that over a third of married men will cheat on their wives and nearly a quarter of all married women will cheat on their husbands. Further, more than 50% of all marriages will be impacted by one of the spouses being unfaithful. A University of Chicago study discovered that a third of all marriages end in divorce because of an affair! And if you think Christians are different, another study from Christianity Today shows that 45 percent of Christians indicate having done something sexually inappropriate, and 23 percent indicate having extramarital intercourse. www.kellybonewell.com/adultery-just-the-statistics/ It appears that in America a large percentage of us, Christian or not, have thrown this command right out the window. Marriage as an institution is becoming less and less respected. But hold on a moment. Mankind is great at looking for loopholes. So, if I want to obey this command, how about if I just UN-marry my spouse and marry someone else? That way I'm not breaking the command; I'm only involved with the person I'm married to. That's what was happening widely in Jesus' day and it's why He introduced another level of depth to this commandment. Look with me at Mt. 19:9. Not committing adultery also:

b. it means not breaking the marriage to get another spouse Unless there is a serious breach of the relationship by the other person (like them committing adultery or abusing you or deserting you), YOU can't marry someone else without committing adultery! Marriage is not some sort of contract or business deal where you can break off your relationship with one partner and choose another because you think you'll get a better deal. But that's exactly what this generation of Americans has come to think it is. Though the actual divorce rate is very difficult to calculate, the Witherspoon Institute says that scholars are able to project that the risk of divorce for those marrying in this current time frame is between 40-50% in the US [<http://www.thepublicdiscourse.com/2015/12/15983/>]. That's scary! You see, Jesus was teaching us that:

2. this command reveals the sacredness of marriage Go back and read Mt. 19:3-6. Marriage is a permanent institution; it is for life and always has been since:

a. God established the relationship of marriage in the very beginning He created human beings to be either male or female, both in his image, and then instituted this relationship of marriage in which:

b. God joins husband and wife in the deepest possible bond of union They become one flesh. The very physical union of their bodies joining together is meant as an object lesson to teach us that God has made them one. The prophet Malachi was speaking to Israel against the rampancy of divorce in his day and said this in the ESV, ...the LORD [is] witness between you and the wife of your youth, to whom you have been faithless, though she is your companion and your wife by covenant. Did he not make them one, with a portion of the Spirit in their union?... - Mal. 2:14-15. The Hebrew of that text is very difficult to interpret, so translations vary, but I think the ESV has done a good job of capturing the essence of it. When a man and a woman enter into the sacred covenant of marriage, they make a sacred vow before God Himself and He not only declares that they are now one, a unit together, but the Holy Spirit is also actually involved in that joining in some mysterious way so that it is more than just words; it is the deepest possible bond of union at the spiritual level, not just the physical. God says that husband and wife are actually ONE, that He has joined them together inseparably and Jesus' conclusion is that therefore:

c. human beings have no right to divide what God has joined! In fact, Malachi 2:16 goes on in most translations to say, I hate divorce, says the LORD God of Israel... Now please note carefully that God does not say, "I hate divorced people." God loves all kinds of people who do things that are against His commands. If he didn't, none of us could be saved. He is saying, "I hate the ACT of divorce, the breaking up of that sacred marriage bond!" When the Pharisees pulled out Deut. 24 and said to Jesus in v. 7, "Well, why then did Moses say that a man can give his wife a writing of divorce?", look at His reply in vs. 8. It was never God's plan, never His intent that people should be allowed to break the marriage bond. Yet it does happen because human beings are sinful and flawed and have hard hearts. And if it has happened in your life, know that God loves you, that if you are His child, He has forgiven you for anything there may have been to forgive and if you are now married once again, be faithful to the spouse you are NOW married to. But the point is that we must be careful to hold the marriage bond as sacred and inviolable in any sense. In fact:

d. God holds the marriage bond as sacred as life itself - Lev. 20:10 says, If a man commits adultery with the wife of his neighbor, both the adulterer and the adulteress shall surely be put to death. In Israel adultery carried the death penalty. When they brought the woman taken in adultery to Jesus to test Him, He acknowledged that under the law she would normally be stoned, but He forgave her instead. God was saying that adultery is murdering a marriage; it is killing a life-bond and the penalty for it should be death. This is a profound thing. If we would only stop and think, "If I do this thing, if I violate my marriage vow, I am doing something for which I would have been sentenced and killed in Israel.", that would quickly sober us up and keep us chaste!"

So, the commandment forbids cheating; it forbids divorce, but there is still a deeper level of understanding to it:

3. this command was intended to limit all sexual activity to marriage Paul takes that one flesh statement and shows how it applies to sexual immorality. Look with me at 1 Cor. 6:13-18. When God says "two become one flesh in marriage" He meant that's the ONLY time they are to become one flesh! God never meant our bodies for immorality, to have sex randomly at will, as opportunity may arise or for money. We are to flee, to run away from any type of sexual immorality. In the Greek that word is porneia, from which of course, we get our word pornography, and it refers to any type of sexual activity in which the participants are not married to each other. Jesus Himself told us that this command was meant to:

a. it excludes mental sexual activity You have heard that it was said, 'You shall not commit adultery.' But I say to you that everyone who looks at a woman with lustful intent has already committed adultery with her in his heart. - Mt. 5:27-28. You'll hear men say something like, "I can look as long as I don't touch!" Jesus said, "No you can't!" Adultery is an act of the heart; it begins there. It begins with the desire to have sexual activity with someone who is not your spouse and that is just as evil as the act itself! Lust is a battle that everyone, especially men, must fight! And the biggest way that happens today with the availability of the internet on our computers and even our phones, is pornography. By 2017, a quarter of a billion people are expected to be accessing mobile adult content from their phones or tablets... 24% of smartphone owners admit to having pornographic material on their mobile handset... And get this: 64% of Christian men and 15% of Christian women say they watch porn at least once a month. [<http://www.covenanteyes.com/pornstats/>] Whether you look at a live person or a picture of a person and desire them sexually, you are committing immorality before God, just as if you were doing it physically with them. I didn't say that, Jesus did! And once you start, it's a hard addiction to break! If you've become ensnared in it, I'd advise you to seek help, to go to a counselor and work on the things that drive you to it. Further, this command was meant to:

b. it excludes casual sexual activity, whether that is temporary involvement with a boyfriend or girlfriend or full-blown living together over a period of time. Jesus told the woman at the well to go and call her husband, but The woman answered him, "I have no husband." Jesus said to her, "You are right in saying, 'I have no husband'; for you have had five husbands, and the one you now have is not your husband. What you have said is true. - Jn. 4:17-18. Living with somebody, staying with them and cohabiting with them does not make you married; it makes you immoral. And on top of that, everybody thinks if they live together first and get used to each other and THEN marry it will enhance their chances of the marriage lasting, but, According to statistics gathered by US Attorney Legal Services... A couple who does not live together prior to getting married has a 20 percent chance of being divorced within five years. If the couple has lived together beforehand, that number jumps to 49 percent. http://divorce.lovetoknow.com/Divorce_Statistics_and_Living_Together God never meant for human beings to pursue sexual activity apart from marriage, period! And finally, this command was meant to:

c. it excludes unnatural sexual activity Look with me at Rom. 1:26-27. Look at the words God uses here. The passion of lust for the same sex is dishonorable. Women having relations with women is contrary to nature. Men having relationship with men is a shameless act. Human beings are not created that way. God creates each person male or female and He makes no mistakes. There are no men trapped in a female body nor women trapped in a male body. You don't have to figure out what gender you are; God created you with it and it is obvious, in spite of the fact that the White House directive to public schools issued on May 13 was to allow transgender students to use whatever bathroom matches their gender identity. God's directive is that one man marry one woman and that sexual activity should be confined to that relationship alone.

Listen, in 1 Cor. 6:9-11 God says: Do you not know that the unrighteous will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived: neither the sexually immoral, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor men who practice homosexuality, nor thieves, nor the greedy, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor swindlers will inherit the kingdom of God. But then He adds: And such were some of you. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Spirit of our God. Sexual sin is like any other type of sin. It's morally wrong and it separates us from God. But God loves to wash sinners clean and make their lives holy and pardon all their transgressions when they come to His Son Jesus by the power of His Holy Spirit! I dare say there are a great many of us sitting here this morning who could testify, "Yes, there was a season in my life when I was sexually immoral in one form or another, but by His power and His grace, God has washed me clean, taken that out of my life and made me a new person!" Amen? Well, like all the rest of the commandments, this one was not merely meant to be negative, but to teach a positive eternal principle and:

II. The Principle In This Command is simple: We Must Love Our Spouses Supremely Paul spells out for us clearly what that passage about becoming one flesh in marriage is supposed to mean. Turn with me now to Eph. 5:25-33. In vs. 31-32 he says clearly that:

1. the marriage bond pictures the unity the we have with Christ Just as husband and wife become one in the deep human bond of marriage, so each of us becomes one with Christ when we believe. But what Paul derives from that fact is that:

2. the marriage partners should mirror the love Christ had for His church Husbands love your wives as Christ loved [YOU], vs. 25. And it applies in reverse too. Titus 2:4 says, ...train the young women to love their husbands... Both husband and wife should love each other supremely, the way that Jesus loved us. Well then, how did He love us? Vs. 25 says He gave Himself for us. So:

a. that love involves sacrifice, giving up ourselves for each other, putting the needs of the other ahead of our own and meeting them without regard to what it costs us. It means laying down my life for my spouse, perhaps not literally, but in a million smaller ways throughout my lifetime, giving up what "I want" for her or for him. Then in vs. 26 we see:

b. that love involves purification Jesus' great love purifies us; He washes us clean with the cleansing water of His Word because of His great love for us. So, we must do all that we can to purify our spouse and build them up in our most holy faith, helping them to mature and grow and become the person God intends them to be. Then in vs. 29 we read:

c. that love involves nourishment Jesus loves us and so He nourishes us; He meets all of our needs according to His riches in glory. We don't marry to get our needs met by our spouse; rather, we marry to make our life mission to meet the needs that she or he has. And finally, we see there also:

d. that love involves protection Because He loves us, Jesus cherishes us; He spreads His wings of love over us and folds us safely into His protection. Husband and wife do all they can to protect one another, to shield one another from all the many things that life throws at them.

So how do I apply this command; how do I fulfill it in my life?

III. The Application Of This Command: I Must Love My Spouse Jesus said so. First of all:

1. I must love my spouse exclusively I must be extremely careful to "keep myself only unto him or her", not just physically but in my mind. I must guard my mind against all impure thoughts and desires toward others. I must let no other person intrude upon the relationship that I have with my spouse, develop no emotional attachment, no loyalty, no joy in any other person that even begins to eclipse that which I have with my wife or my husband. And if I am single, I must love that person whom I may someday marry by keeping myself morally pure and saving that full commitment of myself for that special one that God may bring into my life someday. And finally:

2. I must love my spouse well, doing my best to imitate the love of Jesus Himself for him or her and depending on His power to do it. I must do all I can to purify and nourish and protect that one I love, always sacrificing myself and putting him or her first. And if I am single, I should realize that this is what I'm signing up for if I should marry and make sure I'm ready to love in that way.

Dr. E. V. Hill, served as senior pastor of Mt. Zion Missionary Baptist Church in Los Angeles for 42 years and was one of the most well-known and dynamic pastors of that generation. In 1987 he lost his wife, Jane, to cancer and as he preached her funeral message, Dr. Hill described some of the ways she had made him a better man. As a struggling young preacher, E. V. had trouble earning a living. E. V. came home one night and found the house dark. When he opened the door, he saw that Jane had prepared a candlelight dinner for two. He thought that was a great idea and went into the bathroom to wash his hands. He tried unsuccessfully to turn on the light. Then he felt his way into the bedroom and flipped another switch. Darkness prevailed. The young pastor went back to the dining room and asked Jane why the electricity was off. She began to cry. 'You work so hard, and we're trying,' said Jane, 'but it's pretty rough. I didn't have enough money to pay the light bill. I didn't want you to know about it, so I thought we would just eat by candlelight.' Dr. Hill described his wife's words with intense emotion: 'She could have said, "I've never been in this situation before. I was reared in the home of Dr. Caruthers, and we never had our lights cut off." She could have broken my spirit; she could have ruined me; she could have demoralized me. But instead, she said, "Somehow or other we'll get these lights back on. But tonight, let's eat by candlelight."' E. V. continued, 'She was my protector. Some years ago, I received quite a few death threats, and one night I received notice that I would be killed the next day. I woke up thankful to be alive, but I noticed that she was gone. I looked out the window and my car was gone. I went outside, and finally, saw her driving up. I said, "Where have you been?" She said, "I...I...it just occurred to me that they could have put a bomb in that car last night, and if you had gotten in there you would have been blown away. So I got up and drove it. It's all right."' [Dr. James Dobson's monthly letter to Focus on the Family supporters, Feb. 1995. Page 3.] What an example! Jane loved her husband well, didn't she? Let's commit to love our spouses exclusively and love them well as God wants us to.

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Honesty - Ex. 20:15

The eighth commandment, like all of the final six, affirms another piece of the bedrock of human civilization. In the animal kingdom the strongest take whatever they want! The strongest male in the herd gets the rights to all the females or the largest share of meat from the kill. If a lesser animal has something, a stronger one can take it away from him at any time. Animals have no concept that what's mine is mine and what's yours is yours and when any human society begins to function that way, the result is chaos, fighting and lots of suffering. That's why God commanded His people Israel in v. (15):

I. The Command: Do Not Steal That hardly needs to be explained. To steal is to take something that belongs to another person as your own without any right or permission to do so. Therefore, by forbidding it:

1. this command affirms the right of private property ownership. Its underlying principle is that what is mine belongs to me and what is yours belongs to you and no one has the right to simply take it for themselves. By way of contrast, communism says that all property is publicly owned. In other words, what's mine is ours and nothing I have is really mine; it is simply an allotment given to me by the state and I have no private right to it. Suffice it to say that God is not a communist! He says that if I own a field or a house or an animal, it's mine and nobody has the right to take it away from me. That principle just seems basic to human life and the laws of practically every society on earth, including ours, agree. But stealing can assume many forms; God went on to show that this command:

2. it is meant to forbid all types of stealing For instance, look with me at Lev. 19:11, 13. These two verses spell out four different types of dishonest interactions, all of which fall under the heading of stealing and all of which were part of what God is forbidding in this command. First of all:

a. it forbids clandestine stealing, that is, taking others' things secretly. The common word for stealing carries a secondary sense of taking something away by stealth. When I was a little kid, we lived in the country and we boys played a lot outdoors with toy guns and bows and arrows and those sorts of things. Well, the neighbor boy who lived up the hill had a nice red fiberglass bow with curves on the end; I had a plain wooden one that was straight and not very powerful, strung with a piece of twine instead of a real bowstring. Well, I wanted his bow and I saw that he kept it on his outside porch, so one day when nobody seemed to be around, I simply snuck over there and took it for myself. That's clandestine stealing. Of course, others steal by shoplifting; some young people even regard it as cool to walk out of a store with merchandise and get away with it. In the adult version, secret stealing can become burglary if you're inclined toward crime or driven by addiction, or maybe just taking company property home for your own use if you're more of a blue-collar employee, or if you're more of a white-collar type, it becomes embezzlement. The bad news is that whether you're a little kid with a bow or an executive with his fingers in the corporate cookie jar, sooner or later you get caught; somebody always figures it out. But vs. 11 mentions that this command goes further:

b. it forbids false dealing, that is, cheating others. There's a good example down the page in Lev. 19:35-36. All you need to do to steal is to adjust your scale to weigh 15 oz. to the pound instead of a full 16; if you've withheld an ounce from 16 customers you've stolen a full pound worth of whatever to keep for yourself! That's why we have a bureau of weights and measures that inspects and standardizes gas pumps and store scales! God hates when we deal falsely with others, when we lie to them in the deals and transactions that we make. Not long after we arrived here in our bright red Chevy wagon with 2 year old Andrea back about 1980, I took the car to the transmission shop that was on the corner where Sloane Toyota is today to get my fluid changed. They told me there was metal in the pan and that I needed the transmission rebuilt to the tune of $400, which in those days was a small fortune. We gulped and did it, only to be told a year afterward by a mechanic who used to work there that it was a racket and there was nothing wrong with my car, that they did it to people all the time. It doesn't look like stealing but misrepresenting a product or an item for sale is dealing falsely and stealing just the same. And so is cheating on your taxes, hiding portions of your income from the government so you won't have to pay what you legitimately owe. Recently I heard of two employees working the night shift in a hotel who were caught actually sleeping through most of the night instead, thus cheating their employer out of their services. We definitely don't want people to cheat us but we sometimes find it pretty easy to cheat others, especially if the other is a company or the government. It's dealing falsely, stealing. Then in vs. 13 God indicates that this command:

c. it forbids exploitation, that is, taking advantage of others when they are in need or helpless. Flip over a couple pages and look at Lev. 25:35-37. Here's a brother who becomes poor for some reason and is struggling to survive. He needs some help, a loan, to make it. Well, people discovered a long time ago that when someone is desperate, they will agree to anything and you can charge them an exorbitant rate, 100% or even 200% for their services. In India poor laborers have been kept in bondage this way for centuries. They need money for a wedding or a funeral and the local money lender "generously" helps them out with a few rupees, for which they must pay back double. When they can't, the debt grows and is even passed down to their children when they die until all hope of ever being free of it is lost. When a man runs out of gas in the middle of nowhere, charging him triple its value because you have it and he needs it is exploitation; it is stealing from him. God says, "Don't lend the poor brother money; instead, take him into your home and let him live with you! Help him! Don't exploit people; be generous to them!" Then, of course 19:13 says this command:

d. it clearly forbids outright robbery, brazenly and openly taking things from others, whether it's the bully at school taking lunch money from smaller kids or the thug demanding that the store clerk empty the cash drawer or the gang that waylaid the man going up to Jerusalem, beat him and stole his money, leaving him lying in the ditch for the Good Samaritan to find.

God says, "Don't take what belongs to someone else, whether you do it behind their back, by cheating them in a deal, by exploiting their need or by outright robbing them! Don't steal!" And in Israel's law:

3. God gave it a penalty to act as a deterrent Listen to Ex. 22:1, 7, If a man steals an ox or a sheep, and kills it or sells it, he shall repay five oxen for an ox, and four sheep for a sheep... If a man gives to his neighbor money or goods to keep safe, and it is stolen from the man's house, then, if the thief is found, he shall pay double. Under the law:

a. a thief was to pay back far more than he stole At least double and in some case 5 or 7 times the amount. I don't know if you ever noticed, but Israel had no jails or prisons. The penalty was always directly related to the crime. If you murdered, you were killed. If you stole, you paid back, and not just what you stole but multiple times over. So, you had to work harder than ever and pay off this huge debt you now had or maybe lose everything you had or even be sold into debt slavery to pay it off. That made stealing a very dangerous venture; the risk was not worth the reward. Then here are some very interesting verses, People do not despise a thief if he steals to satisfy his appetite when he is hungry, but if he is caught, he will pay sevenfold; he will give all the goods of his house. - Prov. 6:30-31. We can understand someone being desperate to feed their family or in some other awful position and yielding to the temptation to steal. We feel for their plight and think that we would probably do what they did under the circumstances, yet God says:

b. even if theft is understandable the penalty must stand That right of ownership MUST be respected in all circumstances or the whole system breaks down and right and wrong become relative to circumstances, rather than absolutes based on God's character and Word. God's standard is complete honesty in all our dealing with material things.

Now, like all of the other commands, this one was not simply meant to be a negative prohibition; especially in this case there are multiple eternal:

II. The Principles Inherent In This Command First of all:

1. it warns us against the love of material things The root temptation that drives us to steal is the strong desire to have what we do not have. Paul warned us about that. Turn with me to 1 Tim. 6:6-10. That desire to be rich, to have more than we have, is a deadly thing. Paul says that:

a. we must learn to be content, satisfied with what God gives us That doesn't mean we can't ever buy a better car or get a bigger house, or that we must always work the same job and never advance ourselves. If God gives us the opportunity and the direction, those things are fine. It means that we must never let that desire to have more, to get more, become a driving force in our lives. Jesus warned us that:

b. whatever we value most is what our heart loves ...where your treasure is, there your heart will be also. - Mt. 6:21. Whatever we treasure, whatever we value most, that's what our heart is in love with. If our heart is in love with Him, material things will be secondary. We won't seek after them with a passion. We'll pray and ask for our needs and be content and satisfied with whatever God gives to us. But if we love things, if we love money, Paul says:

c. this wrong love is at the root of all kinds of evil including stealing For the love of money, people kill each other, they hate each other, they hurt each other and they steal from each other. And even mature believers are not immune to it. In the 1970's a couple of genuine Christians by the name of Jim and Tammy Bakker started a TV show called The PTL Club. It grew rapidly to 100 stations and some 12 million viewers and then they established The PTL Network which eventually delivered programming 24 hours a day by satellite over the entire nation. In the 80's they built Heritage USA in Ft. Mill, SC, the third most popular theme park in the nation and sold time shares for vacations there. Contributions from viewers grew to a million dollars a week. The message they preached did include the message of salvation through Christ but it went on to add that God wants His children to prosper financially, to have health, and so on. They lived a lavish lifestyle. But eventually the love of money caught up with them. Jim was convicted of embezzling several millions of dollars for personal use and sentenced to 45 years in prison. It came out that he had been involved in an affair. Their huge empire of properties went bankrupt and was sold for a portion of its worth. Tammy divorced him. He ended up a broken man with a ruined life. He was paroled in 1993 for good behavior and in 1996 published a book with the title, "I Was Wrong". When God says, "Do not steal!" He is teaching us, "Be very careful not to fall in love with material things! Secondly, this command:

2. it teaches us that we must work in order to get things Look with me at Eph. 4:28a. The point is not just that we ought to stop stealing, but that we should labor, we should work hard with our hands in order to get the things we need in life.

a. this is a principle God ordained from the beginning Right after the fall, he told Adam, By the sweat of your face you shall eat bread, till you return to the ground, for out of it you were taken; for you are dust, and to dust you shall return. - Gen. 3:19. In other words, "In the garden I provided everything for you to simply take and eat, but now in this fallen world you're going to live in, you'll have to earn what you eat. You'll have to work and work hard to meet your needs, all of your life." Laziness will lead to hunger and need, so don't steal; work! Labor with your own hands. Be diligent and hard working.

b. this is the example given to us by Paul When he heard that some of the believers in Thessalonica had quit working and were sitting around depending on others to feed them, and just waiting for Jesus to return, he wrote, Now we command you, brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you keep away from any brother who is walking in idleness and not in accord with the tradition that you received from us. For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us, because we were not idle when we were with you, nor did we eat anyone's bread without paying for it, but with toil and labor we worked night and day, that we might not be a burden to any of you... For even when we were with you, we would give you this command: If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat. - 2 Thes. 3:6-8, 10. Paul always worked hard to support himself throughout his ministry and he trained new believers to work hard. God says, "Don't steal; work hard to get what you need.", but this command goes further yet:

3. it encourages generosity Look again at Eph. 4:28b. We work hard, not just to accumulate a bunch of wealth for ourselves, but so that we can be generous, freely sharing the things we have. We work hard so that we can have more than we need so that God can use us to meet the needs of others who are struggling, so that we can help our neighbors, so that we can help victims of natural disasters, so that we can help the billions who have never heard the Gospel around the world hear of Jesus! In fact, Paul says this command, like all of these last six:

4. it means that we should love others as ourselves For the commandments, "You shall not commit adultery, You shall not murder, You shall not steal, You shall not covet," and any other commandment, are summed up in this word: "You shall love your neighbor as yourself. - Rom. 13:9. If we love our neighbor, we won't steal from him; we'll work hard so we can give to him and help him when he needs it! Saying "Don't steal!" is just another way in which God is telling us to love other people. Work hard and be give freely to meet their needs! Now with all that being said, there are some obvious:

III. The Applications Of This Command The first one is obvious:

1. I must be honest in all dealings with material things When he was delivering the large offering that the Gentile churches had collected for the believers at Jerusalem, Paul was careful to take along with him a number of representatives from those churches and he wrote, We take this course so that no one should blame us about this generous gift that is being administered by us, for we aim at what is honorable not only in the Lord's sight but also in the sight of man. - 2 Cor. 8:20-21. He went out of his way not merely to deal honestly, but also to APPEAR to everyone to be dealing honestly. He made himself accountable to others to make sure he could not be seen by anyone as dishonest. That's how important honesty was to him and so it should be to me. I must be honest in all my dealings. Secondly:

2. I must work heartily at whatever God gives me to do Paul told the Colossians, Whatever you do, work heartily, as for the Lord and not for men, knowing that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward. You are serving the Lord Christ. - Col. 3:23-24. In your daily work, you are serving Jesus, whether you're flipping burgers at McDonalds or driving a truck or entering data in a computer or designing a building or helping a patient. Whatever you do, every day you're working for Jesus so do it with all your heart and He'll not only use your work to provide for your needs but He'll use you as a witness for Him while you're working! And lastly:

3. I must be generous and eager to share what I have Paul wrote to Timothy, As for the rich in this present age, [and that's us, by the way; we have so much more than most of the world!] charge them not to be haughty, nor to set their hopes on the uncertainty of riches, but on God, who richly provides us with everything to enjoy. They are to do good, to be rich in good works, to be generous and ready to share - 1 Tim. 6:17-18. We have so much and we are to use it to do good for Him, to be generous with it and ready to share it so that others can have their needs met and so that those who have never heard of Jesus can have the opportunity to know Him!

John Wesley is a name every believer should know. He led a revival movement that swept through England in the mid-1700's and spilled over into America to become the Methodist Episcopal Church. Thousands of people were brought into the Kingdom through meetings held by circuit riding preachers and molded into genuine disciples through classes that met in those locations. What is not so commonly known is that Wesley eventually began to receive a significant income from the sale of his writings, one year amounting to 1400 pounds (probably the equivalent of several hundred thousand US dollars today). What did he do with it all? He lived humbly on 30 pounds and gave 1370 away! That was the rule he both preached and practiced all his life; he gave away everything above what he needed to live. In a sermon on Luke 16:9 Wesley spelled out his understanding of money: "It is an excellent gift of God" he claimed, "answering the noblest ends. In the hands of his children, it is food for the hungry, drink for the thirsty, raiment for the naked: It gives to the traveler and the stranger where to lay his head. By it we may supply the place of an husband to the widow, and of a father to the fatherless. We may be a defense for the oppressed, a means of health to the sick, of ease to them that are in pain; it may be as eyes to the blind, as feet to the lame; yea, a lifter up from the gates of death! It is therefore of the highest concern that all who fear God know how to employ this valuable talent; that they be instructed how it may answer these glorious ends, and in the highest degree." And how should we handle it? Wesley had three rules. 1) Gain all you can! Work hard. Be diligent to earn as much as possible in an honest way. Don't be lazy. 2) Save all you can! Buy what you really need and be sure to pay all your debts, but be careful never to waste money. Live frugally. And 3) GIVE all you can! Give what you don't need to meet the needs of others. All of your money belongs to God, not just a part. Use it to bless others and the work of God as He directs. In 1744 Wesley wrote, "When I die if I leave behind me ten pounds...you and all mankind can bear witness against me, that I have lived and died a thief and a robber." When he died in 1791, the only money mentioned in his will was the miscellaneous coins to be found in his pockets and dresser drawers. Most of the 30,000 pounds he had earned in his lifetime he had given away. [Sources: Mission Frontiers, Sept.-Oct. 1994; Christian History Newsletter, Nov. 2001]. You may not be called to do exactly what Wesley did, but you can't argue with what he taught. That's what God is really after in the eighth commandment: honesty, hard work and generosity. May He make you to abound in all three!

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Righteous Speech - Ex. 20:16

Another plank in the bedrock of human civilization is the commitment to truthfulness in communication. If you've ever read the book Peace Child, Don Richardson describes the culture of the Savi tribal people of Indonesia in the '60s as one where lying and deception were actually epitomized as virtues. To deceive someone from another village, to "fatten them with friendship" through kindness and invitations to meals over a period of time and then at the right moment kill them was the height of achievement. When Don shared the Gospel with them, they thought Judas was the hero and Jesus was the fool! No culture like that can long survive. For human beings to live with one another in society they must be able to trust what other people say. And so, in giving His core principles to His people Israel, God gives them this ninth commandment in vs. (16):

I. The Command: Do Not Bear False Witness against your neighbor. And lest that last word seem like a limiting factor, remember that when someone asked Jesus, "Who is my neighbor?", He told the story of the Good Samaritan, the point of which is that anyone and everyone is your neighbor. Neighbor simply means your fellow man. God is saying, "Don't bear false witness against anyone!" Now, of course, that command:

1. it specifically forbids perjury. And what is that? Perjury is a court term and as I'm using it here, it means deliberately accusing another person falsely. The NLT says, You must not testify falsely against your neighbor. It is what happened at Jesus' trial before the Sanhedrin. Many false witnesses spoke against him, but they contradicted each other. Finally, some men stood up and gave this false testimony: "We heard him say, 'I will destroy this Temple made with human hands, and in three days I will build another, made without human hands.'" - Mk. 14:56-58. Jesus didn't say that and He didn't mean that by what He did say. Those who were giving evidence against Him deliberately twisted and added to His words in order to convict Him and get a sentence passed upon Him. Wicked Queen Jezebel used this same tactic to have Naboth killed and to steal his vineyard for her husband, King Ahab. She hired two false witnesses to testify against Naboth and got him executed for something he never did. Evidently thousands of years ago human beings figured out that you can lie about somebody either to hurt them or to benefit yourself and people still make false accusations today for the same reasons. That's why our criminal justice system operates on the principle that a defendant is always presumed innocent until PROVEN guilty. We know that people will lie for their own benefit, sometimes even under oath and even in Israel no one was ever to be put to death on the testimony of a single witness for that reason. However, this command goes far beyond demanding honesty in a court setting:

2. it was intended to forbid all forms of speaking falsely against people Flip over to Ex. 23:1. This command:
a. it includes spreading a false report about someone You don't have to be in a legal setting or before some council; you can lie about somebody anywhere. You can do it:

(1) through open slander In Lev. 19:16 God said, You shall not go around as a slanderer among your people... I am the LORD. A slanderer is a talebearer, one who goes around telling tales, saying bad things about someone to other people that are not true. Politicians do it all the time; just listen to their campaigns. We call it mud-slinging, twisting the facts in a way to misrepresent and malign your opponent in the eyes of the public. Of course, we'd never do that, would we? Yet how many times do we openly and thoughtlessly repeat and pass on things that have been said to us about someone without really knowing that they are true or bothering to investigate. We don't care; we simply pass it on because slander comes easy. Further, you can spread a false report:

(2) through secret slander which the Scripture calls whispering or gossip. You can privately and quietly repeat and pass on disparaging things that are not true about someone. Prov. 16:28 says, A dishonest man spreads strife, and a whisperer separates close friends. You can ruin a person's reputation or get them labeled in an offensive way simply by making a comment or passing on a rumor.

By the way, written slander is called libel and you can be sued for it. Today libel is even easier because of electronic media! Simply make a negative or derogatory remark about somebody on your Facebook wall or blog and dozens, maybe hundreds, of people see it immediately and believe it to be true because they're your friends! In Melbourne, Australia, a woman took to social media to share a photo of a man she'd seen taking a picture near some children. On Facebook she labeled him a "creep" and claimed police were investigating. The post was shared 20,000 times, and the following day came to the attention of the man himself. He immediately turned himself in. It turns out that he'd been taking a selfie of himself with a Star Wars poster – to send to his own children.

[\[http://www.makeuseof.com/tag/think-tweet-can-sued-libelous-tweets/\]](http://www.makeuseof.com/tag/think-tweet-can-sued-libelous-tweets/) God wants us to be extremely careful and to make sure that whatever we say about others is true in any context, whether we say it openly or privately, whether we say it in person or write it electronically. Then, on the other hand, you really don't have to say anything to be a false witness because this command:

b. it includes withholding the truth when you know it In Lev. 5:1 God expounds further, If anyone sins in that he hears a public adjuration to testify, and though he is a witness, whether he has seen or come to know the matter, yet does not speak, he shall bear his iniquity. When somebody else says something that is false or wrongly accuses someone and you know the truth, but you don't speak up and tell it, you become a false witness by letting the false accusation stand! And that's not just in court. When somebody tells you a piece of slander or gossip about someone that you know is untrue, you have a responsibility to speak up and defend the person right there on the spot, instead of avoiding conflict by simply being quiet. But there is more. In reality this command was not meant only to encourage us to be truthful concerning other people:

3. it was intended to forbid all forms of lying Last week we read Lev. 19:11 which says, You shall not steal; you shall not deal falsely; you shall not lie to one another. You don't lie to others about taking things from them, you don't lie to them in business dealings, you don't lie to other people, period! Now maybe you've never thought about this, but what exactly is lying. You see:

a. lying is not merely speaking what is not true There are lots of people who say things that are not true because they sincerely believe they are true. For instance, the weatherman may say it is going to rain tomorrow and then it doesn't rain. He gave false information but he was not lying. He was doing his best to tell the truth; his predictions simply proved to be inaccurate because the forces of nature are fickle and unpredictable. There are many people who say that there is no God, that He doesn't exist. What they're saying is not true; the statement is a lie, but they themselves are not intentionally lying when they say it. Do you see what I mean?

b. lying is speaking something that is not true knowing it is false with intent to deceive, and I'm not talking about misleading somebody to protect a surprise birthday party. It is deliberately telling someone something that you know is not true in order to deceive them. Saying you'll show up to help me tomorrow at 9 AM and then not showing up because you forgot doesn't mean you were lying. But if you told me you'd be there and never actually had any intention of being there, that IS lying.

Deliberate deception is what God is really aiming at eradicating in this command. We are not to deceive one another. Now here's something else you may never have thought about:

4. when we lie, we align ourselves with Satan Jesus told the Jewish leaders, You are of your father the devil, and your will is to do your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning, and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks out of his own character, for he is a liar and the father of lies. - John 8:44. He is the original deceiver. He came to Eve and intentionally lied to her to deceive her into disobeying God and that has been his primary tactic ever since. He and his demons whisper lies into people's minds nonstop, all the time, trying to deceive them into believing things that are not true and acting on them. Rev. 12:9-10 calls Satan the deceiver of the whole world and says that he is the accuser of our brothers...who accuses them day and night before our God. So, when we lie, we act like him! We align ourselves with his method of lying and with his purpose of deceiving by becoming little deceivers ourselves. In a sense we make him our father by carrying out his desires instead of acting like children of the true God for whom it is impossible to lie! Jesus also said that:

5. lying stems from a wrong state of the heart ...what comes out of the mouth proceeds from the heart, and this defiles a person. For out of the heart come evil thoughts, murder, adultery, sexual immorality, theft, false witness, slander. - Mt. 15:18-19. When we set out to lie, to deliberately deceive someone, something is not right in our hearts! Something is not right in our relationship with God. There needs to be true repentance before Him. And if you want to know just:

6. how serious God is about this commandment, remember Ananias and Sapphira, believers in Acts 5 who agreed to lie to the apostles and were both struck dead as a warning to all. And listen to Rev. 21:8, ...as for the cowardly, the faithless, the detestable, as for murderers, the sexually immoral, sorcerers, idolaters, and all liars, their portion will be in the lake that burns with fire and sulfur, which is the second death. Lying is as wicked as any other sin and unless we find forgiveness in Jesus, it will bring eternal punishment upon us. But the wonderful thing is that when we do come to Jesus, not only are we forgiven for lying (and the Lord knows we've all done our share of it) but His Spirit and nature in us actually transforms us into truth-tellers! It becomes impossible for us to habitually and continually practice lying! But I believe there is still a deeper underlying eternal:

II. The Principle In This Command, which we find as we come to the New Testament. God's desire is not only that we must always speak truthfully but that We Must Always Speak Righteously. Turn with me to Jas. 3:2, 5-8. To put it mildly:

1. speaking is extremely powerful and difficult to control It is the most difficult of all the things in our lives to control. We sin more often in what we say than in any other way and lying is merely one form of unrighteous speech. Angry harsh words, sarcastic cutting phrases, name calling, it all falls under the category of the wrong use of our tongue which does incredible and sometimes life-long damage in the lives of others. What God is after is the right use, the righteous use of our mouth to speak words that glorify Him. Now turn with me to Ephesians 4 where God has spelled out for us the various aspects of what righteous speech is. First of all, just as the commandment says:

2. we must always speak truthfully to each other - Eph. 4:25 We are members of each other, brothers and sisters who are one in Christ. We should put away all falsehood and deception and always speak the truth. However, vs. 15 qualifies that, ...speaking the truth in love... You can speak the truth but do it in a mean-spirited or uncaring way that is just as hurtful to the other person as if you had lied! As I mentioned the other week, you can say, "Abortion is murder.", which is the truth, and say it in a condemning way that makes women who have had one feel like they have committed an unpardonable sin and can't ever be forgiven and that you are so much better than they are. Or you can say the same true thing in an attitude that is filled with compassion and caring and wants to bring hope and forgiveness. Tim Keller said in one of his sermons: "Truth without love is imperious self-righteousness. Love without truth is cowardly self-indulgence." Both are selfish. Wish I could think of wise sayings like that! Secondly, Paul says that:

3. all of our words should benefit the other person - Eph. 4:29 That word corrupt means rotten or putrefied. Several translations say unwholesome. Our words should not be unwholesome; they should not corrupt people; they should not tear them down. As Paul put it back in verse 4, Obscene stories, foolish talk, and coarse jokes—these are not for you... They're out of character; they're not wholesome. We should be careful to only speak words that will build up or edify the other person, words that will be beneficial to them, good for them, helpful to them. That's a tall order! So much of what we say can be critical, sarcastic, complaining, nagging, and just plain unwholesome; how are we ever going to be able to control our words like this so that they are righteous speech? Well, look what Paul goes on to say in vs. 30. Evidently:

4. this requires the power and control of the Holy Spirit He is in us and He is wanting to empower us to speak righteously, to speak wholesome things, and we ought not to grieve Him, to make Him sad, by refusing to let Him do it! In every situation we need to learn to stop and silently pray, "Lord, give me Your words; Holy Spirit speak through me; let me say the words You want me to say, words that please You and serve Your purpose." It takes a lot of practice, but if we learn to do that, even if it's 20 or 30 times a day, then look at all that will happen in verse 31. First of all:

a. He will keep us from words of bitterness, from saying those hateful things that we say because we've been holding something against someone for a long time and we just want to keep on jabbing them because of it. If He's in control, He'll melt that bitterness and keep us from that kind of talk. Further:

b. He will keep us from words of wrath or anger or outbursts All the forms of anger get expressed through our words. From quiet angry words to loud angry words to fits of uncontrolled shouting. When He's in control, so is our temper and we don't speak out of our anger, but rather in truth and love. Thirdly:

c. He will keep us from words of slander and all evil intent That word malice in Greek is a general word for all types of evil. The Holy Spirit isn't going to call people names or give them ugly labels or say awful things about them or hurtful things to them. And if He is controlling our mouth, neither will we. Instead:

d. He will help us speak kindly, tenderly and with forgiveness Look at vs. 32. Those are the sort of words He will speak through us, words that are kind, words that come from a tender heart that cares about the other person, words of forgiveness toward the other instead of condemnation. That's the speech of the Holy Spirit. So:

III. The Application Of This Command is clear: I Must Always Speak Righteously On the one hand:

1. I must put away all negative speaking, including lying Turn ahead with me to Col. 3:8-9. All those sorts of negative speaking we've mentioned are part of the old me, not the new me in Christ. They must go; I must put them away, like I take off my dirty clothes and put them away from me. Then on the other hand:

2. I must speak graciously and wisely with every individual Look over at Col. 4:6. I realize that we have villainized salt in the US and made it a "bad thing" in the diet, but universally for centuries and in much of the world today, salt is the ingredient that makes meat savory and pleasant to the taste. It also preserves it from decaying. It is one of the staples of life; even animals crave it. So, the picture is that all of my speaking should be "seasoned" with grace and wisdom, and I should specially tailor that "seasoning" for the needs of the person I'm speaking to. I must always be thinking, "What will bless this person and be helpful to them; how can I say it so that they will regard it as coming with love and genuine care?" And finally, I'm sure you know Jas. 1:19, Know this, my beloved brothers: let every person be quick to hear, slow to speak, slow to anger:

3. I must be slow to speak so I can pray and think before speaking So often I just say the first thing that comes to mind and that's often the wrong thing. The secret to speaking righteously is to stop and ask the Lord what to say before you respond to someone, ask the Spirit to control your tongue and speak His words, words that the other person needs to hear.

No doubt most of you know the name of Nelson Mandela. He is almost universally regarded as a hero who opposed the awful practice of apartheid by the government of South Africa. What I didn't know and what most people don't is that in his younger years he came to see violence as necessary to his cause and cofounded the Umkhonto we Sizwe, (MK), the terrorist wing of the African National Congress which waged a campaign of terrorism against the state. Many innocent people, including women and children, were killed by Nelson Mandela's MK terrorists. Most think he was imprisoned for opposing apartheid, but at his trial, according to Crisis Magazine, he confessed to participation in 156 acts of public violence including mobilizing terrorist bombing campaigns, which planted bombs in public places, including the Johannesburg railway station. For his crimes he was sentenced to life in prison in 1962. After 27 years he was released from prison in 1990 and went on to become the President of South Africa in 1994, serving until 1999, and died in 2013. I tell you this, not to condemn him, but because I want to share something, he said which has value. In addressing an AIDS Conference at Durban in the year 2000, he said this, It is never my custom to use words lightly. If 27 years in prison have done anything to us, it was to use the silence of solitude to make us understand how precious words are and how real speech is in its impact on the way people live and die. [Nelson Mandela, Closing Address at the 13th International Aids Conference, 7/14/2000]. Whatever his earlier crimes or later accomplishments, his words on that occasion are worth hearing. May we all understand how precious words are and how powerfully speech impacts the way people live and die. And may we continually ask God to control our speaking, make it righteous and use it for His glory.

Ten Words: God's Principles For Living

Evil Desire - Ex. 20:17

At last, we come to the end of our study of the Ten Commandments and this tenth command is the proof that God never intended any of His commands to be obeyed merely by external compliance. In fact, it is entirely possible for a person to outwardly worship no other god, make no idol, never misuse God's name, do no work on the Sabbath, to respect and take care of his parents, to not murder, commit adultery, steal or lie and yet violate every one of these commands internally in his mind and heart. That's what Jesus was saying when He taught that you commit adultery by lust in your mind and murder by hate in your heart. And that's why in the 10th commandment God prohibits this time, not an outward action, but an inward attitude. Look at vs. (17):

I. The Command: Do Not Covet Covet is an older word and not one which we use much anymore; in the New Testament it is often translated greed:

1. to covet means to desire for yourself something which belongs to another, something which you have no right to. It is not merely wishing you had a house LIKE your neighbor has; it is wanting HIS house to be yours, knowing it is his and you have no right to it. It is not wishing you had a wife or a husband LIKE so and so has; it is desiring their wife or husband to be YOURS, knowing you have no right to them. Of course, these are not things we would ever say out loud; coveting:

a. it is an internal act in the mind which occurs in secret It's hidden away where no one can see it; it's a desire which is harbored only in your thought life and no one can know you're doing it, except God Himself. And He was specific to spell out what kinds of things coveting can apply to. For instance, He mentions that:

b. coveting can mean desiring a person who belongs to another, desiring another man's wife or husband or his male or female servant. It is saying in the privacy of your own heart, "I want that person to be mine, not his!" and beginning to think about that person as though they belonged to you. And, of course:

c. coveting can mean desiring a possession that belongs to another, his house or his ox or donkey or anything else he has, maybe his car or his money or even his job. It is saying in the privacy of your own heart, "I want that thing, whatever it is, to be mine, not his, and beginning to think of that thing as though it were yours!"

Now the reason why coveting is such a serious thing is that:

2. coveting is the first step in the process of choosing to sin All outward acts of sin begin with the inward desire first. Look with me at James 1:14-15. The root of all temptation is desire. If we have no desire for something, it's not tempting to us. For example, I'm not tempted to bunji jump; I have no desire to do it. All our outward acts begin with inward wants or desires and there is a process by which those internal desires grow into acts of sin:

a. desiring what is forbidden attracts or lures us The idea of it comes to our minds. We begin to feel the want and to think, "I'd like to have her!" Or "I'd like to have him!" Or "I'd like to have that!" And allowing our minds to dwell on that desire is disastrous because:

b. entertaining that desire for what is forbidden grows it and eventually entraps us. The desire grows stronger and begins to morph from an idea which is easily dismissed into more and more of an obsession which says "I MUST have him or I MUST have her or I MUST have that thing!" Now coveting has a real hold on us; it begins to exert control. We read about David's son Amnon that he had such a strong desire to have his half-sister Tamar that he made himself sick because of it and he didn't think there was any way he could have her. Every day he moped about and thought and thought and thought about her and the desire grew into more and more of an obsession that controlled his life. But then his friend suggested to him that he pretend to be sick in bed and privately entice her to sleep with him when she came to take care of him. And that idea introduced the element of will. James likens it to pregnancy:

c. when our will concedes or says "Yes" to desire a sinful act is conceived. That's where it begins, when I decide, "I WILL have him or I will have her or I WILL have this!" And the fruit of that union between desire and will grows stronger and matures, maybe for a long time, a whole gestation period, but finally:

d. when opportunity presents itself an outward act of sin is born Tamar actually came to Amnon's bedside to feed him and he raped her, as he'd been thinking about doing all along! His coveting grew until it became reality in outward action. So, you see:

3. breaking this last command is the first step to breaking the others Wanting somebody else's husband or wife or simply wanting some other man or woman than your own is the first step to and is the miniature version of adultery. Wanting somebody's money or car or possessions is the first step to and is the miniature version of stealing and lying. Wanting somebody to suffer or to die is the first step to and is the miniature version of murder.

a. God is showing us that the desire or the intent to sin is as evil as the act itself! Now that may not be so in an earthly court of law. A person who "thought about doing it" but didn't actually "do it" will be acquitted and declared innocent here, but not in God's courtroom. The Bible says that He judges the thoughts and the intents of the heart, not just our outward actions. Just "wanting to" is enough to condemn us forever. Revelation says that those who love and practice falsehood are barred from the eternal city (22:15). Loving it and doing it are all the same to God! In fact, Paul said that:

b. coveting is actually a form of idolatry Listen to Eph. 5:3, 5, ...sexual immorality and all impurity or covetousness must not even be named among you, as is proper among saints.... For you may be sure of this, that everyone who is sexually immoral or impure, or who is covetous (that is, an idolater), has no inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and God. Covetousness is idolatry; it is setting up a false god and worshipping it in your mind. It is loving someone or something more than God who says "No, this is not yours!". It is giving allegiance and commitment and ultimate loyalty to someone or something other than Him!

Leona Mindy Roberts Helmsley was an American businesswoman born in 1920. At the time of her death in 2007 she was worth 8 billion dollars and owned the Empire State Building and a chain of some 23 posh hotels. She was married four times, divorcing the first, then divorcing, remarrying and divorcing the second, and finally getting the last to divorce his wife in order to marry her. She became popularly known as "The Queen of Mean" for her tyrannical and intolerant behavior. She refused to pay contractors who did work for her. When her only child, Jay died in 1982, she sued his widow and was awarded almost all of his comparatively small estate, some $142,000, leaving his family almost nothing. Despite her wealth, in 1989 she was convicted of 32 counts of money-related crimes including tax evasion, filing false personal documents, assisting in the filing of false corporate tax returns and mail fraud. She was quoted at the trial as saying, "We don't pay taxes; only the little people pay taxes." The jurors were appalled at her naked greed. She was sentenced to 16 years in prison, of which she served 2. When she died, she left $12 million dollars in a trust to care for her dog and gave separate instructions that the balance of her huge trust be used to care for dogs. Fortunately, a court overturned her wishes and the Helmsley Foundation today supports health, education and human services around the world. [Source: Wikipedia] I share her story because it is an extreme illustration of the degree to which covetousness or greed, the desire to have money or material possessions, can become a person's god and rule their life. The inner desire always leads to outward acts of sin and becomes a controlling force in life. It really IS idolatry and that's why the Scripture warns us so strongly against it! But as with each of the commandments, this last one is not meant to be merely negative. Within it is an eternal principle that God means for us to live by.

II. The Principle In This Command is straightforward: Instead of desiring what you don't have, learn to Be Content With What God Gives you. The New Testament talks a lot about this whole concept. One day Jesus was teaching a crowd of people and one man shouted out, Teacher, tell my brother to divide the inheritance with me! After refusing, Jesus warned the whole group, ...he said to them, "Take care, and be on your guard against all covetousness, for one's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions." - Lk. 12:15. There it is:

1. life does not consist of abundant possessions Material things do not satisfy the inner craving of a human being's heart. Wealthy people have testified to this time and time again. Getting more money doesn't bring true happiness. Even getting that other woman or other man doesn't really satisfy the heart. And one primary reason is that:

2. everything we have in this world is temporary Look with me at 1 Tim. 6:7. As Job so plainly put it after the loss of everything he had, including all his children, Naked I came from my mother's womb, and naked shall I return. - Job 1:21. Or in modern parlance, you never see a U-Haul behind a hearse. Despite the fact that ancient Egyptian Pharaohs and Chinese Emperors all tried to be buried with possessions and even terra cotta warriors to take with them to the next life, those things always stay behind. They're only temporary. You can only enjoy and use them for a season while you're here. Jesus went on to tell the crowd in Lk. 12:16-21 the parable of the rich fool, ...The land of a rich man produced plentifully, and he thought to himself, 'What shall I do, for I have nowhere to store my crops?' And he said, 'I will do this: I will tear down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store all my grain and my goods. And I will say to my soul, "Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; relax, eat, drink, be merry."' But God said to him, 'Fool! This night your soul is required of you, and the things you have prepared, whose will they be?' So is the one who lays up treasure for himself and is not rich toward God. Building bigger barns, accumulating more possessions so that you can relax and eat, drink and be merry, does not satisfy. Sooner or later, you die and in an instant it's all somebody else's. Jesus called the person who thinks like that a fool! They're laboring under a false delusion. The only thing that truly satisfies is, as He put it, being rich toward God. The only thing that can fill that gaping hole that is in every human heart is a living, vital relationship with God Himself. A life lived in relationship with Him is truly life. Everything else is temporary and coveting it will not satisfy our hearts, therefore:

3. we must learn to be content with what God gives Now look at 1 Tim. 6:6, 8. God's goal for us when it comes to material things is the exact opposite of coveting; it is contentment, the sense that I have enough with what I have and I'm thankful that God has provided it. Paul even says that if we have our necessary food and clothing and maybe a place to lay our heads, the basic necessities of life, that should be enough to satisfy us so that we're not always desiring more and more. And the bottom line reason is this: we have Him! I'm sure you remember the last half of Heb. 13:5 because we quote it all the time, but listen to the whole thing: Keep your life free from love of money, and be content with what you have, for he has said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." That verse is saying:

4. the root of our contentment is knowing we have Him We can choose to be content with whatever we have because we have HIM, the very source of all things and He has promised never to leave us! I've had the privilege of traveling to India and to Kyrgyzstan and being with believers there who live in simple one room houses, some of them even in huts with thatched roofs, who eat simple meals of rice, maybe with a little meat, once, maybe twice a day and whose hearts are full of gratitude, who are truly satisfied because now they have HIM and having what we have in the west really doesn't matter! Material things are not what's really important! HE is! And if I have Him, the longing of my heart is satisfied and I can be content with whatever He provides for me. He's a good, good Father! That's why Paul goes on to warn us that:

5. the idolatrous passion for more leads to all kinds of evil You're still in Timothy so look at 1 Tim. 6:9-10. When we let covetousness, that desire to continually have more, dwell in our minds, look what it leads us into. It leads us into temptation; it makes us tempted to get what we want illegitimately. It snares us; it catches us in a trap from which it is difficult to escape. It becomes an addiction that we can't satisfy or get rid of. It leads us to pursue and run after things that make no sense, but we just have to have them, even things that are harmful to us in the long run, things that will ruin and destroy our lives. We're driven to go after those things and almost always we end up piercing ourselves with pains of our own manufacture. And maybe even throwing aside our faith in the process.

*Russian author Leo Tolstoy once wrote a story about a successful peasant farmer who was not satisfied with his lot. He wanted more of everything. One day he received a novel offer. For 1000 rubles, he could buy all the land he could walk around in a day. The only catch in the deal was that he had to be back at his starting point by sundown. Early the next morning he started out walking at a fast pace. By midday he was very tired, but he kept going, covering more and more ground. Well into the afternoon he realized that his greed had taken him far from the starting point. He quickened his pace and as the sun began to sink low in the sky, he began to run, knowing that if he did not make it back by sundown the opportunity to become an even bigger landholder would be lost. As the sun began to sink below the horizon, he came within sight of the finish line. Gasping for breath, his heart pounding, he called upon every bit of strength left in his body and staggered across the line just before the sun disappeared. He immediately collapsed, blood streaming from his mouth. In a few minutes he was dead. Afterwards, his servants dug a grave. It was not much over six feet long and three feet wide. The title of Tolstoy's story was: How Much Land Does a Man Need? [Bits and Pieces, November, 1991.] Covetousness makes us do crazy things that make no sense and, in the end, it kills, while contentment gives me time in life for the things that really matter like deepening relationships with people and with God. So, let's ponder:*

III. The Application Of This Command What does it mean TO ME that God says, Do not covet? First of all, it means that:

1. it is not enough for me to outwardly abstain from sin Look with me at what Jesus told the Pharisees in Mt. 23:25-26. I may not be as insincere as they were, but still there is a strong admonishment here, even for me, that I must always make sure that my inside matches my outside. You wouldn't think of washing the outside of your coffee cup and stopping there, would you? You wouldn't think of washing the outside of your soup bowl and stopping there, would you? Why not? Because the part that's dirty is on the inside! Without cleaning the inside, the cup and the bowl are still dirty! Just cleaning up my act on the outside, doesn't please God. Simply not murdering and not committing adultery and not stealing and not lying are not enough to please Him. He doesn't look on the outside; He looks on the inside, in my heart. He wants me not to WANT all those things, not to desire them, not to secretly covet those forbidden things. But that is a tall order, even an impossible order! That's why the law was never meant to save us; it was meant to show us what sinners we are and how much we truly need Jesus. So even as a believer:

2. I must ask God to search and cleanse my heart Look with me at those familiar verses, Ps. 139:23-24. That's what I need to pray, regularly! "God, here's my heart; I open it to you. I know what it's capable of. I know my flesh is capable of loving other things more than You and making idols out of them. So, show me what is in me that YOU would like to see gone and give me YOUR power to let go of it. Cleanse me! Wash me! Take these things out of my life so that I might be a pure vessel for Your service."

And you know, you don't have to be poor for God to do that. You can have a heart that pleases Him and values Him, even if He has chosen to make you rich materially. John Pierpont Morgan was one of the most important financiers and bankers in the US at the turn of the 20th century. Twice, during the Panic of 1893 and the Panic of 1907, J. P. Morgan personally rescued our country's economy, preventing crashes like the one that occurred later in 1929 which began the Great Depression, through his powerful influence with government leaders and use of his personal assets. When he died, he left an extensive will which contained about 10,000 words and incorporated 37 different articles, all of which were necessary because a vast fortune had to be properly disbursed. What Morgan valued most, however, was indicated by Article I of that legal document. It read: "I commit my soul into the hands of my Savior, in full confidence that, having redeemed it and washed it with His most precious blood, He will present it faultless before the throne of my Heavenly Father; and I entreat my children to maintain and defend, at all hazard, and at any cost of personal sacrifice, the blessed doctrine of the complete atonement for sin through the blood of Jesus Christ, once offered, and through that alone." Amid all his money and possessions, covetousness never got a foothold; he remembered what was most important, His relationship with the Savior who would never leave nor forsake Him, and he was content in that. Let us learn, whether rich or poor, to be like him.

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

Introduction

There are large portions of the Old Testament that most people don't like, usually because they're dry and boring and don't seem to have any relationship at all to life! The Book of Leviticus happens to be one of them. For the same reason, you also hear very few sermons based on Leviticus. But there is a principle that I have learned in many years of studying the Bible on a more or less full time basis: the very passages that seem on the surface to have so little life in them are usually gold mines full of truth when you make the effort to dig beneath the surface. Leviticus, for instance, tells me all about my relationship with God. The Book of Genesis tells how God created His people Israel; the Book of Exodus tells how God redeemed His people from bondage; the Book of Leviticus tells how God's redeemed people can now have a relationship with Him. Well, I've been redeemed too. I'm saved. And if I read it right, Leviticus tells me how I as a redeemed person can have a relationship with God. Let me begin with:

I. The Premise of the Book - Leviticus 19:2 Be holy because I the Lord your God am holy. You'll find that several times through the Book, in Ch. 11 and again in chs. 20-22. 1 Pet. 1:15-16 quotes this verse and says it applies to us as Christians too. God is a holy God. That means He is absolutely separated from sin. He is light and in Him is no darkness at all. He is of purer eyes than to look on sin and tolerate it. The cherubim before the throne constantly cry out "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty". We forget that. We are so used to being forgiven for our sins that sometimes we begin to think of God as the great Overlooker, that because He forgives our sins so easily that they are easily overlooked, that the matter of sin is not so important to Him. Listen, God is holy, absolutely pure. He dwells in unapproachable light. Nothing unholy can be tolerated in His presence. If you're going to have a relationship with Him, then you have to be holy too. The Bible declares that there is not a righteous or holy human being on earth; there is no man that does good and does not sin. So how can you have a relationship with a holy God? Somehow you must be separated from your sins. That's why you can't go to heaven in this body. This body has a sin principle dwelling in it and the corruptible cannot inherit incorruption. Flesh and blood cannot inherit the Kingdom of God. That's why we die and at last put off the final traces of sin before going to heaven where we are absolutely holy and without sin forever. But what about here and now? How can a human being born with a bent toward sin and with sin dwelling in his members have a relationship with a holy God? Leviticus answers that question.

The first half of the book tells me the basis on which I can approach God. It talks about my position and what it takes to maintain that position. My ability to approach God and belong to God at all is based on two things. First, I have a once-for-all perfect sacrifice which has been offered for me in the person of Jesus Christ. And if you want to understand all of what that means, then you have to see all the aspects of it which are pictured in the 5 offerings the Israelites offered. That's why we come to the Father in Jesus' name. We come on the basis of His perfect sacrifice or we don't get to the Father at all! Second, I have a Great High Priest who is constantly in heaven to make intercession for me in the person of Jesus Christ. And you can see that as we look at the Israelite priests in chapters 8-10. You see, Christ is our way of approach to a holy God. In Him we are holy. So, the first half deals with our position before God and the second half deals with our walk with God. If we are holy people in relationship with God then we have to live each day in a holy fashion, separating ourselves from sin. And that applies to our morals, our bodies, our relationships, and a whole host of other things, in fact to every area of our lives.

Next week we'll begin a direct study through the book with Ch. 1 (not quite verse by verse or we'll be at it for a long time but in an expository fashion). Right now, I'd like to get you ready to understand the first part of the book so let's talk about:

II. The Purpose of Sacrifices - Leviticus 1:2-6 This is specifically describing the burnt offering but the process is basically the same for all the offerings. Now let's look carefully to see why on earth God ever instituted animal sacrifice anyway. Pagans have always done it. In most cases they have some vague notion that the sacrifices are actually the food of their gods. That may have been the case with the nations round about but it was not the case with Israel and with our God. They had 3 major purposes:

1. they restored fellowship (4:20) When the sacrifice was complete, an atonement had been made for sins and the worshipper was forgiven by God. Now think carefully. Israel was already a redeemed people, a people who had the position of being chosen by God as His people. They did not offer sacrifices to get into that position. God in His sovereign love and mercy chose them as His own. All any individual Israelite had to do was to trust in his heart in Jehovah, the God of His fathers. Sacrifices were offered by people who were already trusting in God but who had sinned and needed restoration of fellowship with a holy God. Isn't that the position we have? We are saved through simply trusting in Christ. We are declared holy and made children of God. But then we still sin and when we do it breaks our fellowship (not our position) with God. And 1 Jn. 1:9 tells us that we need to come and confess our sins as believers and God will forgive us. That's what the Israelite worshipper was doing. He had to bring a sacrifice to accomplish it along with his confession. We don't, because our Sacrifice is already made once for all on the cross. But we can look at his sacrifice and see that it is only on the basis of Jesus Christ that we as believers can be restored to fellowship when we sin!

2. they demonstrated substitution Key is the phrase in vs. 4 "on his behalf" or in his place. Simply put, the animal took the place of the worshipper. The man was to put his hands on the animal's head. 16:21 tells us what this meant. On the Day of Atonement there was a verbal confession of sins and the laying on of hands was a symbol that the sins had been put on the animal; the animal was to take the place of the worshipper. And then the animal was killed. So, God taught them over and over each day of their lives that they couldn't pay for their own sins, that the penalty was death and it had to be taken by another for them to live and walk forgiven with Him. Look at 1 Pet. 2:24 and 2 Cor. 5:21. That's what Jesus did for us; He took our place! And it's only because He took our place on the cross that we can be forgiven and walk with God as a holy people!

3. they demonstrated identification Identification is one step beyond substitution. Identification means simply "that is me". If the animal is my substitute, then what is happening to it is in actuality happening to me and the benefit of what is happening to it is my benefit. Then notice what happens. Who kills the animal? Not the priest! It wasn't a neat little no-pain operation out of sight. The man had to kill the animal, then skin the animal and cut it up into pieces all himself! It was very plain to the worshipper that in order for me to be forgiven, I have to die for my sins or somebody has to die for me. My sin kills them. But when the substitute has died, I have died, my penalty is gone and I am therefore forgiven. When Christ died, my sins put Him on the cross. I killed Him. But when He died, I died in Him and therefore I am now forgiven and can walk with God as a holy person! Do you see how the sacrificial system was just tailor made by God to prepare the way for Christ and when John the Baptist cried "Behold the Lamb..." how it all should have fit together! But we can't stop without pointing out:

III. The Limitations of Sacrifices - Hebrews 10:1-10 It's obvious that the sacrificial system was intended by God to be a temporary thing or we'd all be bringing lambs to church today. It was only a shadow, a picture, a faint outline of the real thing that would come in Jesus Christ. So, the sacrifices commanded in Leviticus had great limitations:

1. they were not all accepted (8-9) That is a quote from Ps. 40 which makes it clear that there were many times when God was not pleased with and did not accept sacrifices. It was the heart of the worshipper which was committed to the will of God, not the sacrifice itself which mattered. In Leviticus 26:31 God clearly warned the Israelites that if they disobeyed His commands, he would take no delight in their sacrifices; they wouldn't matter. But we know our sacrifice was accepted because after the penalty was paid, God raised our Sacrifice from the dead! We have a perfect sacrifice. Our position with God is not based on our ups and downs. I can walk with God because there is a once-for-all perfect sacrifice that has already been accepted in my behalf!

2. they did not cover all sins Now I never looked at this closely before but you check it carefully. There were sacrifices for sins done in ignorance or by accident, carelessness, for ritual defilement, or minor property violations. But there was no personal sacrifice for major sins willfully committed. Compare Num. 15:30-31. Serious matters like murder or adultery carried the death penalty. No sacrifice prevented that. For other things the person was banished from Israel. For less serious transgressions that were willful and intentional, if the person became repentant he could only repent and confess his sin to God. That's why David in Ps. 51 didn't bring God a sacrifice for sin but only a broken and contrite heart. The atonement for that kind of sin had to wait till the fall until the Day of Atonement when the High Priest made atonement for the willful sins of the whole nation! Aren't you glad that Christ's sacrifice covers all your sins, great and small, willful and unintentional? And there is no waiting since your Day of Atonement is already past! Your High Priest has already been to the mercy seat and sprinkled His blood and all your sins are remembered no more.

3. they were limited in extent (1) The deal was this: just like one coupon per customer, one sin per sacrifice. That's why they had to offer them over and over and over, day after day, year after year. Forgiveness was case by case. But v. 12 tells us our Sacrifice was offered one time for all sins. Jesus didn't pay in part; He paid it all. All my sins, past, present, and future were laid on Him!

4. they had no intrinsic value (4) Here's the bottom line. It is not the blood of bulls and goats that takes away sins. Those sacrifices had no real value in themselves. The worshipper got real forgiveness, but not because that animal actually paid for his sins. Compare Rom. 3:25. Here's what God did. Christ was the true sacrifice of atonement. God left the sins committed beforehand go unpunished until the cross. He issued forgiveness based on what He knew Christ was going to accomplish at the cross. It's like buying on a credit card. For example, if I buy this suit on my card, I have the suit the same as if it was paid for on the spot but the payment is delayed until later in good faith that it will be made. So, the Old Testament worshipper had forgiveness and the animal was the symbol pointing out to you and I that payment would be made at the cross later. But, hallelujah, we are forgiven the other way! They had unlimited credit; we have an unlimited bank account! Our sacrifice has already been made and it is sufficient for our sins and not only them but also for the sins of the world! Christ's deposit at the cross was big enough to forgive any sin problem I'll ever have. I'm assured that I can walk with a holy God through Him!

You see, these Old Testament sacrifices remind me that I am not redeemed with corruptible things like silver and gold or good deeds or human effort. No, I am redeemed by the precious blood of a Lamb without blemish and without spot. When a large religious service was being conducted at the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco, many people quickly became aware that the minister delivering the main address was not thoroughly orthodox. Although a gifted speaker, he began to direct most of his eloquence against the power of the blood of Christ. Ruth E. Marsden relates that when his fluent oratory ended, a timid, elderly lady stood up in the crowd and softly sang a hymn by William Cowper as a touching rebuttal to the modernist's remarks. A hush fell over the assembly as they heard those familiar words: "There is a fountain filled with blood drawn from Immanuel's veins and sinners plunged beneath that flood lose all their guilty stains." Before she could begin the second stanza, approximately a hundred people rose to join her. By the time she reached the third verse, nearly a thousand Christians all over the audience were singing that blessed song of faith. The triumphant, thrilling strains rang out loud and clear: "Dear dying Lamb, Thy precious blood shall never lose its power, till all the ransomed church of God be saved to sin no more." Many were deeply moved as that humble believer stood up for her Lord and with the light of Heaven upon her face gave testimony that she had found peace through the blood of His cross! [H.G.B.]

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Burnt Offering - Ch. 1, 6:8-13

Chapters 1-5 of Leviticus are the manual for the offering of the 5 kinds of offerings the Israelites were to bring to God. If a person wanted to know what sacrifice to offer for what purpose or how to offer it, this is where to look. Chapters 6-7 include additional instructions about each type of offering for the priests. In Ch. 1 we learn about the most common kind of offering, the burnt offering.

I. The Facts About the Burnt Offering

1. it was normally voluntary (2) Note first that it is simply an offering, something voluntarily given to God. The offerings fall into two types according to Heb. 5:1. There are gifts and then there are sacrifices for sins. Sacrifices are the sin and guilt offerings of chapters 4-5. When you sinned, you were required to bring them. But the burnt offering you brought because you wanted to. It was not required of the individual except in certain unusual circumstances. Normally it was something the person gave to God out of love and thanksgiving.

2. it was without defect (3) It had to be inspected to be sure that it had no flaws, no deformities, no sicknesses, no wounds. When the sacrifice was offered, it was, as far as humanly possible, a perfect sacrifice.

3. it was accepted in place of the worshipper (4) We looked at this last week. The worshipper could not provide what God required in himself so the offering was accepted by God in his place. What he could not provide, the perfect sacrifice provided.

4. it was completely burned (9) This is the emphasis of the burnt offering. The entire animal except for the hide was burned entirely on the altar. This was NOT true of the other 4 offerings. Some the priests ate, some the worshipper ate, some were burned outside the camp. This is the only one burned completely on the altar of sacrifice. In fact, you will see the term "whole burnt offerings" sometimes in other parts of the Old Testament. The whole offering would literally go up in smoke to God, leaving only ashes.

5. it was pleasing to God (9, 13, 17) Three times God says it is a pleasing aroma, a sweet savor. This is not said of all the types of offerings. It is acceptable to God; it is pleasing to God. It satisfies God. Really, it fulfills God's desires.

6. it was consumed by perpetual fire (6:8, 12, 13) Again three times, God points out one key thing about this offering. The fire is not to go out. The altar of offering in the Tabernacle takes its name from this offering: the altar of burnt offering. The priest was to offer a lamb as a burnt offering morning and evening every day, but the fire was never to go out; it was to be a perpetual everlasting flame. Now knowing all these facts about the burnt offering might make you a good Hebrew priest, but they will have little value for us unless we consider:

II. The Picture in the Burnt Offering What can God be telling us through this offering? The perfect animal was voluntarily offered, completely given to God, consumed in the eternal flame in the place of the worshipper and God was well pleased! Does that sound familiar? You see the picture:

1. in the offering itself is this: CHRIST WHOLLY DEVOTED TO THE FATHER'S WILL IN MY PLACE First we compare:

a. Eph. 5:2 Christ's death has two aspects: it was both a sacrifice for sins and a sweet-smelling offering to God. Yes, it was a trespass and a guilt offering that paid for my sins. But it was also a burnt offering that gave to God something I have never been able to, a perfect life willingly offered to God. We can see a little more in:

b. Heb. 10:5-7 The animals of the Old Testament weren't good enough. They were only types and shadows of what God really wanted. So God prepared a body for His Son and that Son voluntarily came to earth and there pursued one purpose and one purpose alone: "I have come to do your will, O God!" Christ was perfectly, wholly, completely devoted to the will of God. He said in Jn. 9:28-29, I do nothing on my own but speak just what the Father has taught me. The one who sent me is with me; he has not left me alone for I always do what pleases him. In the garden He wrestled and struggled and sweat great drops of blood, but in the end He said, "Not my will but Thy will; Thy will be done." And Phil. 2 tells us that, being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself and became obedient unto death --even death on a cross. The eternal flames speak of hell, of the eternal judgment of God. And Christ was so devoted to God's will that He gave Himself to become the object of God's eternal wrath and endured it all there on the cross to please the Father. That's the picture we have in the burnt offering but now let's deepen it by looking:

2. in the animals offered. Voluntary offerings were graded. God did not require what the worshipper could not bring. A wealthy Israelite could well afford to bring a young bull from his herd but the poor man probably didn't have a herd or even a flock, yet even he could afford or catch a dove or a young pigeon. 2 Cor. 8:12 says a gift is accepted according to what a man has, not according to what he does not have. God does not expect me to give Him what I don't have but He does expect me to devote to His will all I do have! That's true whether we're talking about money or abilities or whatever! If we look at the animals, we can see what pleased God so much about His Son's devotion to His will. The worshipper could bring:

a. a young bull or ox (3) KJV bullock. The chief characteristic of the bull or ox is ENDURANCE. Prov. 14:4 says the strength of an ox produces an abundant harvest. An ox or young bull was used for plowing, for his great strength, for his great ability to endure the pressure and the pain of labor and keep going to complete the task the master required. Remember Heb. 12:2? Jesus' devotion to God's will meant enduring the cross, both its shame and its pain. The ox is willing to endure suffering for the Master. Compare Is. 52:13-15. Look what Jesus endured for following the Father's will, yet He did not quit or turn back. But how many times do I quit when the going gets tough, when God's will leads me through some difficult place?

b. a sheep or lamb (10) The chief characteristic of the young sheep or lamb is SUBMISSION. In Jn. 1:29 John the Baptist positively identified Jesus as God's Lamb who takes away the sin of the world. In what way was He like a lamb? Compare Is. 53:7. A sheep doesn't bleat and complain when the master shears it. A lamb doesn't object when the owner grabs it by the neck and slits its throat as a sacrifice. I saw in a documentary on TV a goat about to be sacrificed that was calmly eating beforehand; it didn't know what was about to happen. But Christ did! And still He quietly submitted Himself to the Father's will. Yet how many times do I complain and balk and try to get out of God's will?

c. a goat (10) The symbolic meaning of the goat is harder to identify. However, over in Mt. 25:33, 41, Jesus talked about separating the sheep from the goats. The sheep were those whose sins were forgiven. The goats were those He rejected and they went into the everlasting fire. On the day of atonement, a goat became the scapegoat. The sins of the nation were symbolically laid on him and he was sent away into the wilderness. So the goat seems to picture REJECTION. And Jesus' devotion to the will of God meant taking the sins of the world upon Himself and being rejected by the Father. Compare Is. 53:12. He was counted the scapegoat, the bearer of sin, the transgressor. Devotion meant rejection for Him.

d. a turtle dove or pigeon (14) The chief characteristic of the dove is INNOCENCE. Jesus said in Mt. 10:16 we are to be harmless or innocent as doves. Doves are the symbol of innocence and purity. Compare Is. 53:9. He was innocent. He knew no sin. He had done not one thing to deserve going to the cross; even the thief beside Him said that to Him. Yet He went! His submission to God's will was so thorough that He never once fell into sin. How contrary to what I'm like! Now we obviously need to make:

III. The Application of the Burnt Offering I can see here clearly two things:

1. God's desire for my total devotion God wants me to do His will. Completely and wholeheartedly. Not just mechanically and grumbling the whole time. He wants my heart to be utterly devoted to serving and pleasing Him of my own accord. And He does not want to get to that place by command but rather by showing me His love and mercy in the hope that I will respond with full devotion. Compare Rom. 12:1. That's what God wants of me, a life wholly and utterly devoted to His will in every aspect and no matter where that might lead. Can you say "I am on this earth to do Your will, O God" and mean it? Is that what you live for? Is that what you are really devoted to? But you know, even if it is, I fall woefully short! Again and again, I just don't do it; I can't make it. Self wins too many times. I do not have an unblemished life of devotion to present to God. That's not to say I should not work at it but there's good news:

2. God's provision and my confession The Israelite knew he could not offer himself as a perfect specimen of devotion to God out of love and thanksgiving. Somebody had to pay the price for him. His burnt offering was his simple acknowledgement of the fact that he could never be enough to please God in himself, but God would be pleased in the sacrifice. So, we will never be enough in ourselves to please God but God already provided for that at the cross! The desire of His heart for me is satisfied in Jesus Christ! When He looks at me, He does not see me faltering and frail but as who I really am in Jesus Christ. And all He expects of me is what He did of the Israelite, that I freely admit that I am not perfectly devoted to Him as He wants and I praise Jesus for being my Substitute!

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Grain Offering - Ch. 2, 6:14-23

Chapter 2 of Leviticus is given to the description of the grain offering. Some translations call it the meal offering. The original KJV said "meat" offering and I always wondered about that as a kid because it was made from flour! It is unique among the offerings in that it is the only one that is not an animal sacrifice. It is simply a meal made of ground wheat or barley which was then most often cooked or baked and the result is probably what we would call an unleavened bread or a cracker, which was then offered to God on the altar. It might easily be called a bread offering. Now last time we saw that the burnt offering pictured Christ wholly devoted to the Father's will, even unto death. Here is:

I. The Picture in the Grain Offering: CHRIST PERFECTLY PLEASING TO THE FATHER IN LIFE The burnt offering emphasizes His devotion unto DEATH. The Grain Offering emphasizes His perfect life lived on earth. How do we know that? Is there anything to confirm it? Compare Jn. 6:51-58. Speaking in symbolic terms, Jesus says "I am the bread of life", the bread which gives life. If that's true, then notice that the bread of life was offered up on the altar which is a symbol for the cross. Christ was our bread offering, our grain offering. He spoke of Himself in a similar analogy when He spoke about the grain of wheat that falls into the ground and dies! So, Jesus deliberately chose bread as a picture of Himself and therefore this offering is a picture of Him and what we know about it is a picture of His life. We'll look into that more deeply in a moment. But first notice this:

1. no atonement - His perfect life does not SAVE us It is never said anywhere about the grain offering that it makes an atonement for sins like the other offerings do. It is simply offered to God voluntarily in thanksgiving but it in itself does not result in forgiveness. When Christ said "I am the living bread", His death was still future. It was only when He died that atonement could be made. And so please note that Jesus lived a perfect life, but we are not saved by His life on earth. We are saved by His resurrection life, not earthly life. Yet there are a lot of teachers out there who will tell you that Jesus' earthly life is all there was to it, that that was the real value. Jesus taught us how to live; He gave us the great example. And I believe He did, but that in itself is not enough to save us. A perfect life without an atoning death brings no forgiveness. And that leads me to point out that although the grain offering could be offered by itself, it was normally offered:

2. with other offerings - it accompanies his DEATH It was offered with the animal for the fellowship or peace offering and also for the burnt offering. Num. 15:1-5 tells us that every day when the priest offered the lamb for the burnt offering, there was a grain offering, not by itself, but with it. Now notice something interesting in Jn. 6:51. Somehow this bread has flesh and blood. The bread is a symbol of Jesus' body. Sound familiar? At the Last Supper Jesus spelled out the symbolism. Bread symbolizes His body and wine symbolizes His blood. Num. 15 also tells us that with every burnt offering there was not only to be a grain or bread offering, but also a drink offering of wine poured out to the Lord. Do you know what that means? In almost every voluntary offering, you had Christ's perfect life there represented by the grain or meal, His body by the animal's body, and His blood by the wine poured out. Put another way, you had His perfect life going hand in hand with His devotedness unto death! His perfect life on earth was the necessary and perfect prelude to His atoning death on the cross! Now let's examine that perfect life a little more closely by looking at:

II. The Composition of the Grain Offering (1) The grain offering had 3 elements:

1. fine flour - the perfect BALANCE of His life Now remember in those days there were no big flour mills. Grain was ground rather coarsely between small millstones and for many people by hand with a mortar and pestle kind of thing. There was a Hebrew word for coarse flour or meal, but the word here is a special word meaning finely ground flour with no lumps or bran. To get fine flour of the type we so easily buy in the store was a lot of work and to eat it regularly was a sign of wealth. The flour God wanted to be used had to be like the animals, without defect, every grain perfectly balanced with the rest, with no rough edges or unground kernels. Have you noticed the beautifully balanced life the Lord Jesus had? His priorities were always in order; His emotions were always exercised under perfect control; His thinking was always clear, even in life-threatening circumstances. J. Vernon McGee in his commentary on Leviticus (p. 27) says he once took a class in abnormal psychology and felt that he had some symptoms of every problem they studied. So he went to see the professor and told him. The professor laughed and replied, "We all do!" Rom. 3 tells us that we all fall short of the glory of God. We are all lumpy people. We all have too much of this or too little of that. Jesus was a finely blended mixture of all the perfections of humanity.

2. oil - the HOLY SPIRIT in His Life Oil throughout the Bible is a symbol of the Holy Spirit. As you read through this chapter, you'll find it applied in two ways:

a. mixed in The oil was mixed with the fine flour to form a meal or dough. So, we find that Jesus was UNITED with the Spirit. We read in Matthew and Luke that the Holy Spirit played a role in His conception and we read in Jn. 3:34 that the Spirit was given to Him without measure or limit. Lk. 4:1 says that Jesus was full of the Spirit and led by Him. The Spirit was active in all the works Jesus did, for He accused the Pharisees of blaspheming the Holy Spirit when they said He worked by Satan's power. Heb. 9:14 says that Christ offered Himself to God on the cross through the Spirit and we are told that He was raised from the dead through the Holy Spirit. There is no question that Christ was indwelt and filled with the Holy Spirit in every area of His life. And by extension, we like Him as believers are INDWELT by the same Holy Spirit.

b. spread upon In some cases the oil was not only mixed with the meal but was poured or spread on the cooked mixture. So, Jesus was not only indwelt by the Holy Spirit but ANOINTED. Compare Is. 61:1-3. The miracles that Jesus did, were a result of the Spirit's action upon Him so that He did all that He did in the power of the Holy Spirit. In like manner we are not only indwelt but EMPOWERED by the Spirit for works of service to the Lord! Our ability does not come from us. It comes from the Holy Spirit in us!

3. incense, or more properly frankincense, is a gum or resin produced by trees, an expensive imported item. It was not edible but was used for the purpose of fragrance. Note vs. 2 says that all the incense was burned on the altar; it was only put in the part that was burned, not in the whole offering. It was the burned frankincense that created the pleasing aroma of v. 2 and so it symbolizes the PLEASINGNESS of Christ's life to God. Of that there can be no doubt because the Father spoke from Heaven even as the Holy Spirit was descending on Him at His baptism and said "I am well pleased!" That same scene was repeated in symbol again with every grain offering, the flour being Christ, the oil the Holy Spirit, and the frankincense the voice from heaven indicating that God was pleased!

III. The Consumption of the Grain Offering This offering was consumed in 2 ways:

1. a handful was burned on the altar (2-3, 8-10) A handful of the dough or bread was taken and incense added and then burned on the altar together with the burnt offering. This pictures Christ's perfect life OFFERED TO THE FATHER upon the cross as we talked about earlier.

2. the remainder was eaten by the priests (6:18, 23) Ch. 6 makes it clear that the remainder became holy and could only be eaten by the priests unless the one who brought the offering was himself a priest, in which case it was all burned. So, the remainder became their bread and they consumed it; it was inside them. Well, today we are all priests according to the Word; we are a Kingdom of priests and a royal priesthood. We looked earlier at John 6 about consuming Christ the Bread of Life and that is a symbolism that goes beyond just believing. Christ does actually take up residence inside us and so in the grain offering we have a picture of Christ's perfect life NOW IN US. Compare Gal. 2:20. Christ is now in me and living out His perfect life through me. It is no longer I that do the living, but Him! His life is inside me, seeking expression through my life! Now quickly let's note:

IV. The Preparation of the Grain Offering (4-7,14-16) It could be offered as plain dough or meal but was most often prepared by cooking, either by baking in an oven, frying on a griddle or cooking in a pan. Verses 14-16 say that if the grain offering was also an offering of firstfruits, that the heads of grain were to be roasted and crushed. But in every case, the heat was applied and, in some cases, the finished wafer was even crumbled or broken. Something happened to that perfect life before it was offered to the Father; it was prepared through the heat and crushed. So, we see:

1. Christ's preparation in life - Heb. 2:10, 5:8-9 This is a deep and unexplainable truth but Christ was made complete or perfect through suffering. His already perfect life was brought to its final state of proven purity through the fires of suffering and at last being broken like the bread of the Last Supper. I think there's a lesson in that:

2. our preparation through SUFFERING Paul said in Rom. 5 that suffering produces perseverance and character and genuine hope. James 1 says the same thing, that trials grow you in such a way that you are mature and complete, not lacking anything! Sometimes you wonder why God allows suffering to come into your life and why you have to put up with it. God is creating in you the perfect life of His Son and this is His way of bringing you more and more into the image of Jesus. You profit by the things you suffer!

V. The Regulations for the Grain Offering (11-13) Three additional items mentioned here, two to be always excluded, one to be always included. They form for us a final picture of what God saw in Christ that pleased Him and what He wants to see in our lives:

1. no yeast Yeast or leaven is always a symbol of sin (refer to 1 Cor. 5:8). So the grain offering was unleavened, picturing the PURITY of Christ's life, absolutely holy and without sin. That's the life Christ wants to produce in you, a holy life, a pure life, a life where sin is excluded. You need to cooperate with Him in that process.

2. no honey Honey is often used as a symbol because of its sweetness, but before that, it is a naturally occurring product. God never accepted things found in the wild as offerings, no game animals, flowers, etc. Only things which the Israelites had to labor and care for and depend on God to bless as He had promised could be offered. Prov. 25:27 says eating too much honey is like seeking one's own honor. I think "no honey" pictures Christ's DEPENDENCE ON GOD. He never sought His own honor or tried to do anything independently of the Father on His own. And that's the life God wants to produce in us, a life of total dependence where every step is taken in knowing dependence and collaboration with the Father.

3. always with salt All the offerings were to have salt included. It is called the salt of the covenant of God or the promise of God. The ancients commonly held that salt could not be destroyed by fire and so Num. 18:19 speaks of the EVERLASTING covenant of salt. So, salt pictures the ETERNALITY of God's promise of redemption, on which basis all the offerings were brought. It pictures the fact that the value of the offering survived the flames of the altar. So, Christ is still continuing His PERFECT LIFE in heaven and we will have our lives perfected there forever!

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Fellowship Offering - Ch. 3, 7:11-38

The third type of offering the Israelite worshipper could bring was a fellowship offering, also called a peace offering because its root is the Hebrew word Shalom. Like the burnt offering and the grain offering, it was a voluntary offering that was brought to God as the worshipper was moved, particularly on occasions of thanksgiving for particular blessings or the keeping of vows made to God or just out of the sheer desire to give something to God. The offering of the animal was followed by the eating of a meal where the family sat down there at the Tabernacle in the presence of God to eat, as it were, with Him. In the Middle East to eat with someone is a sign of acceptance and commitment to one another. For man to eat with God means that he has a bond of fellowship, a bond of peace, an open and free relationship with God. So now let's go to the New Testament and see:

I. The Picture in the Fellowship Offering - CHRIST THROUGH DEATH PROVIDING FELLOWSHIP WITH GOD - Col.

1:19-22 The fellowship offering assured the worshipper that he could commune with God. That was not always possible for us. Before salvation, every human being that comes into the world comes in at enmity with God and grows up an enemy of God, not that all unsaved people intentionally hate God, but they act as enemies of God by sinful behavior. Sin separates man from God. However, by Christ dying in our place and removing that barrier of sin that separated us, we are now brought into a different state. We are reconciled to God. We now have a nature that is capable of and craves fellowship and communion with God. Christ was our peace offering who by shedding His blood procured that for us and so

1 Jn. 1:3 says, ...our fellowship is with the Father and with His son Jesus Christ. We hardly recognize what a privilege that is. To most of the world, if they have any kind of belief in a god, he is someone up there, separate, unapproachable, somebody you have to placate and manipulate and somehow convince to let you into heaven, not somebody you sit down to eat dinner with as a close intimate friend! Now in Lev. 3 we have:

II. The Description of the Fellowship Offering - Ch. 3 You could outline the chapter by mentioning:

1. the animals of the fellowship offering

a. cattle (1-5)

b. sheep (6-11)

c. goats (12-17)

Each section is basically the same, no matter what animal was offered. Just like the burnt offering, the worshipper brings the animal and kills it and skins it and cuts it up. The priest sprinkles the blood on the altar and places the portion to be burned on the fire. But notice:

2. the distinctions of the fellowship offering There are 2 things remarkably different about this offering:

a. the flesh is eaten (3-4) A careful description is given of where to find the fat on each type of animal and all the fat is burned. What happens to the carcass? We're not told here but it is not burned; it is eaten. The message is: SACRIFICE PROVIDES FELLOWSHIP. The emphasis of this offering is not the offering itself but the meal that follows. Yet this meal was not cheap; it required the death of a victim. Jesus Christ gave His very life to provide for us fellowship with God and apart from that we would have none. Then the second distinction is that the animal could be:

b. male or female (1) The burnt offering is always a male without defect. The One who died for us was a male, Christ. But here the animal seems to symbolize the type of worshipper who can come, who can have fellowship. The whole family sat down to have the meal after this sacrifice, male and female alike. It seems to be a symbol of the fact that FELLOWSHIP IS FOR ALL. Compare Gal. 3:28. There are no longer distinctions in who God will allow to fellowship with Him. We are all one in Christ and distinctions of male/female, rich/poor, bond/free don't matter. Our fellowship is by the shed blood, not by virtue of our position! Now let's go over to Ch. 7 and discover:

III. The Meaning of the Fellowship Offering - Ch. 7 Here you find the details of the offering of the fellowship or peace offering:

1. the FACT of fellowship: the bread (11-14) The fellowship offering was not usually offered by itself. It was accompanied by a grain or bread offering as we discussed last week. But it forms a unique and beautiful picture for us. The bread offering was of 2 kinds:

a. unleavened (11-12) First there was a regular grain offering with parts of it prepared every way you could prepare a grain offering, raw dough, cakes, and wafers, but all without yeast. We saw last week that this symbolized CHRIST'S PERFECT LIFE. It was burned on the altar and eaten by the priest. This part the worshipper never touched; it was given to God. But along with it came bread that was:

b. leavened (13) Loaves of regular leavened bread were also brought. No part of them was burned on the altar, but a portion was given to the priest and no doubt the rest became part of the meal eaten by the worshippers. Leavened bread symbolizes OUR IMPERFECT LIFE, a life that is not perfect but fraught with sin. Yet look, it is UNITED WITH HIS in this offering! The perfect and the imperfect are able to be along with one another, to have fellowship with one another. Because the blood is shed, the leavened bread can be dedicated to God and accepted by Him as part of the offering. That is the fact of this offering: a HOLY GOD communes with SINFUL MAN because of Jesus Christ! We have fellowship with God! But now see:

2. the CONDITIONS of fellowship: the meal they ate The animal was divided into 2 portions:

a. the priest's portion (28-34) The priest got to keep the breast of the animal and the right thigh, i.e., hindquarter, as his portion to eat. These portions were first waved before the Lord and so symbolically presented to Him. What you have to remember is that a priest is one who goes between man and God. Sometimes he goes to God to act in man's place; other times he goes to man act in God's place. In the grain offering the priest represented the man, eating the grain offering in his place. Here the priest represents God. What was waved to God, he ate, so he was symbolic of God eating and what did the worshipper give him? Let me ask: what part of the chicken do you like best? The breast and right thigh were the best part of the animal. So, the worshipper could not approach God for communion without offering Him the best portion. The meaning is obvious: OFFERING OUR BEST as we approach God. Even though Christ has died, you still can't approach God in true fellowship unless you're giving Him your best. You can't be putting Him off on the periphery of your life somewhere and flipping Him some leftovers of your life and expect Him to commune with you. It won't work. Some folks give God a dollar if they have one left, an hour to come to church if they have nothing else to do, 10 minutes to read or pray if there are no other activities. Notice that God got His portion FIRST and it was the BEST the person had. It's like being married and giving your spouse no time and no attention and no help and expecting him/her to really be close to you when you want it: it doesn't work that way! Now let's look at:

b. the person's portion (15-27) The worshipper ate the remainder of the carcass and the bread together with his family as a meal. And there were careful regulations even about that. First was:

(1) the time for eating it (15-18) If it was brought for one purpose, it had to be all eaten the same day (that was hard if it was an ox!). If brought for another, it might be eaten on the second day as well but in no case, was it to be eaten the 3rd day; If it was the whole offering was unacceptable. Why is that? Well, the first answer is because God said so! I'm sure the Old Testament worshippers never got to know why; they just had to obey by faith. But does the third day ring a bell for you? This sacrifice is supposed to be a picture of Christ and Christ is no longer dead; on the 3rd day He rose. To continue longer was to ruin the entire symbolism and to essentially presume that this is just another meal where you can keep and eat the leftovers. And this reminds us there can be NO PRESUMPTION as we approach God. You can't just fellowship with Him as though it were anytime and anywhere you want to, whenever you get good and ready as though it depends on you. You come in the Name of Jesus Christ. It is not a light thing. It's not something you do as a routine like all the other things in life. It cost a great deal to bring you into fellowship. Always count it a great privilege and never presume upon it!

(2) the conditions for eating it (19-21) There really was only one: the meat and the worshipper had to be clean, free from defilement picked up along the way and not dealt with. And that reminds us there can be NO UNCLEANNES as we approach God. You can't have known sins in your life that you've picked up along the way and never dealt with if you want to have real communion with God. You have to apply 1 Jn. 1:9 regularly to maintain close fellowship. And lastly:

(3) the prohibitions for eating it (22-27) There are 2 major prohibitions that apply to this offering and to the Israelite diet in general:

- NO FAT (23) They were never to eat fat. Why not? First of all, God knew it was unhealthy! But actually, you have to realize that our culture says fat is bad. In their culture fatness was a sign of blessing! They talked about the "fat of the land" meaning the best of the land. A fattened animal was the best animal. A person with a few extra pounds was a blessed person who had an abundance to eat instead of poverty. The fat was a symbol of blessing and it belonged to God. To eat it was to take the credit for what God had done for yourself. So, you see in this that God is the source of BLESSING. If you're going to be in fellowship with God, you have to recognize Him as the source of every blessing you have and acknowledge that all the credit goes to Him! Likewise:

- NO BLOOD (26) Scripture makes it clear that blood is a symbol for the life of the person or animal. The life of the flesh is in the blood and that life had to be poured out to God who gave it. To eat blood is to take the credit for life for yourself. So, you see in this that God is the source of LIFE. If you're going to be in fellowship with God, you have to recognize Him as your very life, the one in whom you live and move and have your being. In short, you have to come to God in dependence on Him. God does not have fellowship with independents, people who think or act like they are running their own show in life.

You know, we have a neat reminder of the fellowship offering that Christ has given us. It is the Lord's Supper. We eat the bread, the symbol of His body. And we drink the cup, the symbol of His life, something an Israelite could never do, showing that His life is in us. Just as they had to be clean to eat this, so Paul reminds us we must be clean to eat the Lord's Supper. But the bigger picture in it is this, we eat with God! Through Jesus Christ, we are sitting at His table, in fellowship with Him. What a privilege it is to walk with God!

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Sin Offering 4:1-5:13, 6:24-30

I told you before that the five offerings of the Hebrew people were of two types according to Hebrews. The 3 we've studied previously were all gifts, things brought to God by the worshipper on his own initiative. The other 2 are sacrifices for sins or, more exactly, ON ACCOUNT OF sins. The sin offering and the guilt offering were not optional but mandatory. When a person sinned, that sin caused an offering to be brought to effect atonement and forgiveness. Now different ways have been put forth of distinguishing the sin offering from the trespass offering. I myself have made some simplistic distinctions in the past that have a hard time fitting the text. But in studying closer you find:

I. The Purpose of the Sin Offering

1. explained: (4:1-2) The sin offering is only offered for "unintentional sins". The word unintentional seems to have a fairly specific meaning in Hebrew. It could simply mean doing something you didn't know was wrong at the time like breaking the speed limit because you missed seeing the sign. But it's more than that. It could mean doing something without intent or by accident such as your axe head flying off and killing your neighbor. But the best distinction is made in Num. 15:27-30. Unintentional is the opposite of defiant in v. 30. A defiant sin is where you set out deliberately to break the law of God. You say "I'm going to steal, to kill, to commit adultery, etc." Please remember there was no sacrifice for that! You couldn't decide to sin and then decide to go and offer something to get forgiveness. If you broke most of the 10 commandments it was a capital offense; your penalty was death so there was no need to think about what sacrifice to bring! If the offense wasn't capital and you were sorry for it, the atonement had to wait until the fall, until the day of Atonement when forgiveness came once for all the year. That's what Christ did once and for all on the cross. He paid for our defiant sins, our deliberate sins, took our death penalty for us. But that is not the picture in the sin offering. In the Sin Offering we see CHRIST BY HIS DEATH MAKING ATONEMENT FOR OUR NON-DEFIANT SINS. Now if you'll permit me the comparison, the Israelite worshipper was very much like us. He was already in a relationship with God. His defiant sins were covered along with the whole nation once and for all on the day of Atonement. But there were still those non-defiant sins that crept in daily for which he had to ask forgiveness by bringing a sacrifice. So, we are saved people, already in a relationship with God. Our sins were paid for once for all at the cross but there are still those sins that creep in because of our humanity and for them we need to come and ask forgiveness. You can see the kind of sins we're talking about:

2. illustrated: (5:1-6) Here God mentions 3 of them specifically:

a. failure to testify (1) Suppose you see a robbery but instead of staying on the scene and rendering information when the police arrive, you're scared to get involved, you don't know what to do. So, you leave. You didn't set out to defy God and break his law. But on the other hand, you don't feel right about it either. At the time it looked OK but now you realize it was wrong. That's the kind of sin we're talking about.

b. failure to purify yourself (2-3) God had given very strict cleanness laws. Maybe you would touch a person with leprosy or who was otherwise unclean but you didn't know he was and then you find out. Or maybe somebody dies and you have to touch them. So, you acquire uncleanness. Normally you would wash and be unclean until evening. But maybe you don't. You forget to purify yourself or something comes up. Again, you haven't set out to defy God but it was wrong by neglect.

c. failure to keep an oath (4) You say something you don't really think about, don't really mean. But you make a promise, take an oath on it. But then it slips your mind or is just not going to work out and you don't keep it. You didn't set out to dishonor God but it turns out that way and it's wrong. I don't suppose you commit any sins like these, do you? I would say most of the sins you and I commit fall into this category, sins that we didn't start out high-handedly to commit but fear gripped us or we forgot or we spoke out of line. The sin offering says to us that those are sins too and they require a sacrifice! Somebody has to die to make atonement for them. Jesus died for these as well as the big sins, the defiant, willful sins! Sin is sin to God and just because it is not high-handed does not mean it is not sin! So, the worshipper had to come and ask forgiveness and so do you. But he had to bring an offering.

II. The Presentation of the Sin Offering This section is most easily outlined in terms of:

1. the animals required Depending on who had committed the sin, a different kind of animal was required as a sin offering.

- | | |
|--|----------------|
| a. for a priest: a young bull | 4:3-12 |
| b. for the congregation: a young bull | 4:13-21 |
| c. for a leader: a male goat | 4:22-27 |
| d. for an individual | |
| (1) a female goat or lamb | 4:28-35 |
| (2) two birds | 5:7-10 |
| (3) fine flour | 5:11-13 |

There are two things I want you to notice. First, the sacrifices decrease in value down the list. A bull was much more costly than a male goat, than a female goat, than birds, etc. Second, notice that the difference between the cases is not in the sin committed but in the person's ability to bring a sacrifice. There are accommodations made for the poorest of the people.

2. the lessons illustrated

a. leadership increases the price of sin (4:3a) If the high priest sins, he is the one who represents all the people, the whole nation before God so he brings guilt on all the people. A tribal leader has a sacrifice that applies not only to him as an individual but he pays an additional price for being a leader. I'm reminded of the words of James 3:1, Not many of you should presume to be teachers, because you know that we who teach will be judged more strictly! It is one thing for an individual to sin but suppose I, a pastor, commit a sin; it affects not only me but all of you and the community. Suppose the president does! Responsibility multiplies the seriousness of even non-defiant or unintentional sins! You parents need to think about that in regard to your children, you teachers and elders and employers should too. But on the other hand:

b. repentance is expected of all, from the High Priest right down to the very poorest person who cannot even afford to buy a pigeon and can only bring a half-gallon of flour. Compare 5:7, 11. Literally it says, "if his hand does not reach..." God keeps lowering the net until he can reach it but there is still a net. That means no one has any excuse. The poor cannot excuse his sins on the basis that he is poor and underprivileged; he has to repent. The leader cannot excuse his sins on the basis that he is a leader and leaders get leeway or special dispensation to do what others are not allowed. The sin that doth so easily beset us besets us all and God expects all of us to come the same humble way and ask forgiveness when we sin.

III. The Procedure of the Sin Offering The procedure does not differ very much at first from a burnt or fellowship offering. The worshipper brings his animal and lays his hands on it symbolizing that it is taking his place. Then he kills the animal and skins it and cuts it up. The priest burns the fat and the kidneys on the altar just as in the fellowship offering. But I told you that every offering has its distinguishing feature. The burnt offering is all burned on the altar, the fellowship offering has a meal with it for the worshipper. The chief distinction of the sin offering is what the priest did with the blood and the body of the animal. Actually, there were 2 procedures, depending on who the sacrifice was for:

1. for priest or congregation A bull would be brought and its:

a. blood sprinkled in the Holy Place (4:5-7) For the other offerings, the blood was simply poured out in the courtyard of the Tabernacle at the base of the altar of burnt offering. But here the priest takes the blood and enters the private part of the Tabernacle, the Tent of Meeting, where only the priests can go, the Holy Place with the table on one side and the lampstand on the other and the altar of incense right in front before the curtain that separated the Holy of Holies where the ark was. There he would sprinkle the blood 7 times to signify completion and put some on the horns of the incense altar to ascend to God with the fragrant incense! This reminds us that Christ's death was: A HEAVENLY TRANSACTION - Heb. 9:6-9. The Tabernacle is an earthly picture of heaven. The earthly priest could not go all the way in to God's presence because Christ had not yet died. But when He died, He went all the way in! He ascended to heaven and presented Himself to the Father as our substitute and is seated in the Holy of Holies. God is satisfied! Listen, as a believer, your sins defiant and non-defiant are paid for. The heavenly transaction has been completed before God. But notice the:

b. body burned outside the camp (4:11-12) The carcass was completely burned in this case outside the camp. Well, just compare Heb. 13:11-12 This action is a symbol to show that Jesus would be crucified outside the city of Jerusalem. You see the transaction that was made in heaven was ACCOMPLISHED ON THE CROSS! He shed His blood on earth but the results cleared you and I of sin in heaven! You can see that again if the sin offering was:

2. for individuals In this case the:

a. blood smeared on the altar of burnt offering (4:25,30) The priest simply smeared the blood on the altar in the courtyard. This altar is a symbol for the cross. It is where the victims died and their blood was poured out. Col. 1:20 says Christ made peace by His blood SHED ON THE CROSS. It was AN EARTHLY TRANSACTION. But notice this time the:

b. body eaten by the priest (6:24-30) Do you notice the word repeated over and again? Holy..holy..holy. The blood shed makes the sacrifice holy and then the priest eats it and it makes him holy. The priest in this offering is a stand-in for the people; he represents them. So, the symbolism is this: the blood shed on the cross, when we receive Christ, take Him into us, MAKES US HOLY. Compare Heb. 10:10. By His death we are made holy, the sin is removed, we are set apart and belong to God; we are acceptable in His presence!

What sinners we are! We sin even when we don't intend to, when we don't set out to do it! It's in our nature, our very makeup as human beings. We can't get away from it. How could we ever be acceptable to a holy God? Yet Jesus went outside the camp and died on a cross and shed His blood for our sins and then went into heaven and said "There Father, it is finished; the sins are all gone; these who believe in Me are now holy! They can come into your Presence!" What a Savior we have!

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Guilt Offering - 5:14-6:7, 7:1-7

The last type of offering to be brought by the Israelites was the guilt offering or, as it is in the KJV, the trespass offering. The section describing it actually begins in the middle of Ch. 5 at v. 14 and continues through 6:7. The word penalty in 5:14 is literally guilt offering. The sin offering and the guilt offering are very similar in many respects. But the sin offering was for non-defiant sins, sins that you sort of got into without really meaning to. The guilt offering, however, is for a different kind of sin, the kind that violates somebody else's rights. People put up signs on their property that say, "NO TRESPASSING". When you go on their property, you commit a trespass; you are violating their right of ownership, particularly if you do any damage to the property. The guilt offering has to do with where I have hurt you in a way that has caused visible damage or injury to you or your property.

I. The Occasion of the Guilt Offering Three examples of sins requiring a guilt offering are listed:

1. sins against God's property (5:14-16) "the Lord's holy things" refers to things that rightfully belong to God. E.g., Josh. 7:1. God had said that everything in Jericho was His and was to be burned. Achan literally committed a trespass;

he took something that belonged to God as his own. Malachi chastises the Israelites for robbing God in tithes and offerings. So, if you failed to give God the tithe of your crops, or to give required offerings, or to give to Him something you had vowed, you were guilty and had to bring a guilt offering. I think there might be a lesson in there somewhere: when you are not giving, it is not just failure, it is sin; it is appropriating God's property for yourself, stealing from God!

2. sins against God's commands (5:17-19) God not only has the right to His property but to obedience to His commands. If a man failed to keep the Passover for instance or cultivated his land in the 7th year or didn't go up to Jerusalem for the required feasts or muzzled his ox while treading grain or broke any of the other dozens of commandments that God had given, then he was guilty and had to bring a guilt offering. He had violated God's right of sovereignty over him. Some of the sins we commit are like this. We know what God says but we don't do it, not in high-handed defiant things like murder and adultery but in things like not forgiving our neighbor, in speaking harshly, in failing to gather for worship, things where we just decide to say no to God in a small way.

3. sins against a neighbor's property (6:1-7) Basically when you take something that belongs to somebody else, whether you lose it by carelessness or deliberately appropriate it or find it and lie about it, you sin and become guilty. There are all kinds of subtle ways to take what belongs to somebody else. You can do it by not paying a bill that you've agreed to pay, by making a pirated copy of a video you rent, or by cheating on your taxes. These are all sins which bring damage or injury to someone else, either to God or your neighbor. And they require a guilt offering to make atonement. So, the picture in the guilt offering is CHRIST BY DEATH MAKING ATONEMENT FOR OUR SINS OF INJURY. Compare Is. 53:10. Christ was our guilt-offering. He went to the cross not only to pay for our defiant sins that were worthy of death, not only for our non-defiant sins that we sort of fall into by nature, but also for all the sins where we have injured someone and violated their rights. These things are sin too. They are not just little oversights, things everybody does now and then. They are things that are sinful before God, that Christ had to die for! Now let's look at:

II. The Procedure of the Guilt Offering - Numbers 5 This is a simple one-shot overview of the guilt offering in three stages:

1. confession of the sin (5-7a) For the sins covered by the sin offering, the worshipper might be able to say, "I'm sorry; I didn't really mean to, it just sort of happened." For these sins he had to admit "I did it; it was wrong. I have sinned against the Lord." Joshua made Achan confess his trespass and tell what he had done once he was caught. I'm reminded of 1 John 1:9. The word confess means to agree with God, to agree with His assessment of the situation, to agree with His viewpoint that what you've done is wrong! Without that attitude the sacrifice is not accepted and fellowship is not restored.

2. restitution of the damage (7b-10) I told you that every offering has its distinguishing feature. This is the mark of the guilt offering. A payment has to be made. The wrong has to be righted. First, there must be a full restoration of the value of what was taken or the cost of the damage done. If I drive recklessly and knock down your fence, I should pay to have it put up! But God required more than that; the sinner had to add 1/5, 20% more, on top of that, presumably to make up for the trouble it had caused the owner. If the owner was dead then restitution was made to a close relative. If there was no close relative, then it was made to the Lord by giving to the priests. But the point is that it had to be made. And then and only then came the:

3. offering of the sacrifice (8b) Lev. 7:1-7 describes it in more detail. The animal was killed and its blood sprinkled at the base of the altar just like a burnt offering. Then its fat was burned on the altar like a fellowship offering but the priest ate the carcass like a sin offering and it was most holy. Nothing new there. What stands out about this offering is that all the other sacrifices were graded. The worshipper could bring different animals according to his ability. But for the guilt offering, only one animal is acceptable (5:15), a ram from the flock. A male sheep, in perfect condition, and worth a given value (tradition says 2 shekels). This is the one animal not used for a sin offering. And of course, it pictures Christ, God's perfect Lamb, fully mature and of full value to meet the penalty required for sin. So, what can we learn from the guilt offering?

III. The Lessons from the Guilt Offering First we can learn something:

1. concerning the nature of sin (6:2)

a. it is always against God You think you're doing it to your neighbor but you are sinning against God. David said in Ps. 51:4 against Thee, Thee only..., though his sin was against Uriah and Bathsheba, and so on. When you hurt somebody, take advantage of somebody, do damage to somebody, you're sinning against God! Why? Because:

b. it is the violation of an agreement Israel was a covenant people. God had promised to be their God but they had promised what? To OBEY His law! All the Lord has said...we will do! When you come to Jesus Christ, you call Him Lord, confess Him as the LORD Jesus Christ and whether you realize it or not, that means you have made a promise to obey Him. When your mouth said Lord..., you entered an obligation. And when you mistreat others or break His commands in any way, you are violating that covenant. And so further:

c. it is unfaithfulness to God It's like breaking your marriage vows. In fact, right after the guilt offering, in Num. 5:12 God says, If a man's wife has been unfaithful to him... and it is the same Hebrew phrase as here in 6:2! The wife breaks her promise to her husband and is called unfaithful. The believer who breaks his promise of obedience is unfaithful to the Lord and betrays the Lord in just the same way! So, let's continue thinking:

2. concerning sin as against God

a. even sin in ignorance brings guilt (5:17) To be unfaithful or commit sin makes us guilty before God. And even if we don't know at the time that what we're doing to injure the other is wrong, the injury is still done and it makes us guilty before God. Now what can we do about it?

b. the removal of guilt requires a sacrifice The restitution did not remove the guilt. Going back and fixing the wrong did not remove the guilt of doing the wrong. So many people think that they can be saved by doing good things because they can kind of make up for the bad things. Well, the guilt is actually not toward the other person; it is before God almighty! Only one thing can take it away, a sacrifice!

c. all guilt requires the same sacrifice It all requires a perfect ram of full value to pay the penalty. It requires the death of Jesus Christ! The once for all, only acceptable sacrifice for our guilt before God was made on the cross by the spotless Son of God! And it is His death that pays the penalty for our sins both as an unbeliever before we are saved and as a believer after we are saved. But the big difference for us is that our sacrifice has already been made. It was made before we sinned! All that is left for us as far as our guilt before God is concerned is to come to God in confession. But there is still the other aspect:

3. concerning sin as against man If our sin has done injury to someone this offering demonstrates that:

a. confession is not enough It is not enough just to tell God you're sorry and you won't do it again. That would be awful easy, for example, to rip off something from work and then be sorry and just keep it anyway. That's no good:

b. there must be a restitution You must undo the damage you've done. And we're not living under the Old Testament law so I can't say that you must add exactly 20% or whatever. We're not bound by that. But I can say that you'd better go back and do your best to fix up the damage in such a way that your testimony for Christ is not hindered but is enhanced. A lot of times restitution is not a matter of money; it's a matter of love, of going back and making up for the hurt with kindness and love and consideration. You can make up for the wrong you've done to someone but you can never make up for the guilt of that wrong before God. But you don't have to. Jesus paid it all. "Your guilt and despair Jesus took on Him there and Calvary covered it all."

It is said that Napoleon only showed mercy once. He had conquered Prussia and was spoiling Berlin but a local prince had proved to be a traitor and was sentenced to execution in two days. His wife waited 5 hours in the street to see Napoleon and when he came out, she begged him, "I know my husband is innocent!" Saying nothing, he turned to his aide who gave him a letter and he handed it to her. As she recognized her husband's writing, she let it drop and began to cry. "Is this his writing?" Napoleon asked. She cried and he asked his aide "What other evidence do we have?" "None, sir." he replied. "Well princess, put that letter in the fire over yonder and then we shall have none!" That's how it was with us. There is no forgiveness when we claim innocence. We weren't innocent. We were guilty. But when we admit our guilt Jesus becomes our guilt offering and now there is nothing against us. We have complete pardon. "Guilty, vile and helpless we, spotless Lamb of God was He, full atonement can it be? Hallelujah, what a Savior!"

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Priesthood - Chs. 8-10

How can you have a relationship with some great person, especially when you need forgiveness from them? What does it take? Let's set up a hypothetical situation. Suppose you stole the President's limousine. You haven't been caught yet but you become sorry and realize it was wrong and you want to now have a normalized relationship with the President. What's required? Two things. First, the crime must be dealt with. You probably return the car but that's not enough. The court must be satisfied. You must serve your time or pay the fine so that the guilt of what you've done is paid for. However, you will still probably never get within a mile of the President unless there is someone the President knows and respects who will represent you and plead your case and convince him that you're a sorry and changed person. That's how it is with us and God. We sinned against Him and now we long to know Him and have a personal relationship with God. Leviticus 1-5 told us that there had to be an offering, someone to pay the penalty of our sins for us so there is forgiveness. But chapters 8-10 tell us that more is necessary. There had to be someone to go to God on our behalf, to represent us to God, a priest, a Great High Priest to plead our case before God and usher us into that relationship. And so, as we study the Israelite priesthood in these chapters, we see CHRIST OUR GREAT HIGH PRIEST PICTURED IN THE PRIESTS! What the High Priest did for the Israelite, Jesus Christ did for us. Now we're only going to highlight some things from these 3 chapters. The first thing we see is:

I. The Ordination of the High Priest - Ch. 8 The High Priest God chose was Aaron. This is the record of his ordination day, when he began his priesthood. It was nothing like the ordination services we have today. Now let's see what God has Moses do to Aaron to make him a fit high priest.

1. He must be clean (5-6) He can't have dirty feet or any speck of dirt on him. Dirt, of course symbolizes sin. The High Priest must be pure. That's why in the next chapter he has to first offer a sin offering for himself before he can offer one for the people. He can't very well represent us to God to be forgiven for sins if he himself is a sinner before God. Every human priest had that problem. but our High Priest doesn't have that problem. Compare Heb. 7:26. He is holy, blameless, pure, totally set apart from sinners in regard to any participation in their deeds! Who gets to ascend into the hill of the Lord according to Psalms? He that has clean hands and a pure heart! Jesus did. The Scripture says He knew no sin; He was perfectly qualified.

2. He must be clothed (7-9) Now they had made special garments for Aaron (so he would better symbolize Jesus). On his head they put a turban with a gold plate on it that read "Holiness unto the Lord", showing that He was holy and set apart to God. But on his body, they put an ephod, which is like a vest. And on the chest area of the ephod hung a breastplate, a little square pouch of cloth that held the Urim and Thummim, the sacred objects by which God made known His will. Now compare Ex. 28:9-12. When Aaron went into God, he symbolically carried the children of Israel with him on his shoulders! But that's not all, compare verses 17, 21, and 29. He also carried the sons of Israel on His heart in the breast piece! When Aaron was clothed, he put on the Sons of Israel, identified himself with them, took their cause and carried them with him. That's what Jesus did for us! Compare Heb. 2:14a,17-18. You can't really represent somebody's case unless you're identified with him. Jesus clothed himself with humanity so He could represent us to God and here's what that means, compare 4:14-16. Jesus is one of us. He knows and understands our weaknesses and failings and temptations. He has stood where we stand. And He's now in heaven to represent us. That should give us great confidence to come to Him with all our needs and failings!

3. He must be chosen (10, 12) Moses took the special sacred anointing oil and poured it on Aaron to consecrate him, literally to make him holy, to set him apart unto God. Anointing was a sign of chosenness. For example, Saul was anointed, David was anointed. Being High Priest was not a job you signed up for at civil service, something you aspired to be and worked your way up to. The high priest did not volunteer; he was chosen, hand-picked by God! Compare Heb. 5:1-5. Christ was the High Priest that God chose to represent us. This text quotes Ps. 2:7, God's decree "you are my Son". Remember, oil in the Bible always symbolizes the Holy Spirit. After Samuel anointed Saul, the Holy Spirit came upon him. Do the words You are My Son, ring a bell? At Jesus' baptism two things happened simultaneously, the Holy Spirit came down from heaven upon Him and the Father's voice said This is my Son. God was showing to all men, "This is the One, this is the One I choose to represent you to Me, this is the One to make atonement for your sins. No other can do it!" We have a chosen High Priest!

4. He must come with blood (22-23) After a standard sin offering and burnt offering, there was a special offering, a ram of ordination. It actually seems to be a type of fellowship offering but with a special act. The blood was not simply handled by Aaron. It was put ON Aaron, on his ear, his thumb, his toe. He was identified with the blood. Whenever he came before God, he came on the basis that the blood had been put upon him. Compare Heb. 9:22-26. Christ doesn't appear before God with the blood of someone else's sacrifice. He appears with the blood on Him, His own blood, His own once for all sacrifice. So, He has constant access and a continual reminder of the payment He made for us.

5. He must continue in office (33-36) He had to stay in the courtyard of the Tabernacle 7 days, the number of completion. If he left, he would die. There's a symbol in that. It symbolized his continuing, perpetual priesthood. Compare Heb. 7:23-25, 8:1. Our High Priest stayed there; He sat down in the Holy of Holies, the very presence of God. That is why He can save us to the uttermost, completely to the end. He lives forever in the presence of God to represent us. He is a perpetual priest with a sacrifice of perpetual value! That's who I want to plead my case, to go before God for me. Not a man, but Jesus Christ Himself, the only One who can really be my go-between with God. Now let's look at:

II. The Inauguration of the Priesthood - Ch. 9 Here's the record of how Aaron began his priestly work the very same day he was ordained. Three things happened:

1. the offering of the sacrifices The first thing he did was to offer sacrifices for himself, which of course Christ didn't need to do, showing that Aaron was only a man and in need of a Savior too. But then he offered a series of 4 offerings for the people and taken together they picture what Christ our High Priest did on THE CROSS. We've already studied them. First was:

a. the sin offering (15) which symbolizes HIS PERFECT PAYMENT for our sins. His infinite life was given for ours.

b. the burnt offering (16) which symbolizes HIS PERFECT DEVOTION to the will of the Father even unto death. That devotion we never had and can't attain, He displayed for us in dying according to the Father's will.

c. the grain offering (17) which symbolizes HIS PERFECT LIFE offered up to God on the cross without any imperfection or sin of any kind, something we could never be.

d. the fellowship offering (18) which symbolizes THE PERFECT PEACE He purchased for us with God on the cross, breaking down the barrier of sin that kept us from God so that now we have fellowship. And when Aaron the High Priest had finished his work for the people, atonement had been made and they were forgiven. So, at the Cross our High Priest made full atonement for us but that's not the end:

2. the approval of God (23-24a) The Lord then appeared to all the people in the glory-cloud, the Shekinah glory, and fire from God fell on the sacrificial altar. Aaron stepped out of the Tent in the Glory. That's what showed God's acceptance and approval of the sacrifice. It symbolizes THE RESURRECTION. Our High Priest stepped out of the tomb in GLORY, in a glorified resurrection body. It was that resurrection that proved for all time that our sacrifice was accepted and we are forgiven. Atonement has been made on our behalf and God has accepted it! And look at:

3. the reaction of the people (24b) It is not fear but joy, because they know God has forgiven them! Their high priest has done his work well and God has accepted it! Compare Lk. 24:52. When we understand what Christ has done for us, that He has made the eternal atonement for us, we ought to be overcome with joy! A Jew once said concerning a neighboring church that was a little noisy, "If I believed as these Christians do that my Messiah had come, I would shout it from the housetop and on every street in this city with all the enthusiasm I could muster and nobody could stop me!" If a Jew knows when to shout and be full of joy, shouldn't we when we know our High Priest has made full atonement for us!

III. The Desecration of the Priesthood - Ch. 10 A very tragic and sad thing happened on the very same day Aaron was ordained and began his work.

1. the act of disobedience (1) Aaron's two sons Nadab and Abihu took it upon themselves to burn incense in the presence of God. They had no command to do it and they took their own fire and put it in a little pot and put incense on it.

2. the act of discipline (2-3) The same fire that had consumed the sacrifice now consumed the two sons. God says in that way He was displaying His absolute holiness to all the people. It was not a frivolous or unreasonable display. God taught a serious lesson.

3. the lessons displayed Two of them:

a. Lev. 16:12-13 tells us that when the incense was brought before God, the priest was to take a handful of burning coals from the altar of sacrifice and to put the incense on them. Where'd they come from? God started that fire and Ch. 6 told us that that fire must never be let go out. Nadab and Abihu didn't use God's fire, they brought their own. They didn't come God's way, the way of the Sacrifice, the way of the Cross. They tried to please Him another way. But God demonstrated THERE IS NO OTHER WAY! And then:

b. Ex. 30:7-8 tells us that Aaron was to be the one who burned the incense. Maybe I'm wrong but I haven't found any reference where any of the other priests were to burn incense. See what God is saying? THERE IS NO OTHER ONE who can approach me, who can bring the people into My presence. Only the Rightful One, only Jesus can, John 14:6! My relationship with God is not only built on the cross, although that is the basis of it. It is built on a Living Person, God's Chosen One who is seated in the Holy of Holies in heaven just waiting for me to join Him.

R. Moffatt Gautrey tells the story of an elderly Christian who lay dying in the hospital. She was not afraid of death but looking forward to heaven. A priest, mistaking her for one of his parishioners came into her room. "Madam," he said, "I have come to grant you absolution," And she, in her simplicity, not knowing what the word meant, inquired, "What is that?" "I have come to forgive your sins," was the reply. "May I look into your hand?" she answered. Gazing for a moment at the hand of the priest, she said, "Sir, you are an imposter." "Imposter!" the surprised man exclaimed. "Yes, sir, an imposter. The Man who forgives my sin has a nail print in His palm." My relationship with God is not resting on any human act or any human intercessor. It rests solely on the Lord Jesus Christ who gave Himself for Me and who now lives to perpetually usher me into God's Presence.

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

A Clean Body - Chs. 11-15

At Ch. 11 we move into the second major section of the book. Chapters 1-10 have been concerned with the Way to God through offerings and priests which we know point to Christ's death and His Priesthood representing us to God. That's the Way to God, the basis of my relationship with God. But chapters 11-20 talk about:

II. The Walk With God 11-20

1. personal purity 11-15

2. spiritual purity 16-17

3. moral purity 18-20

Almost everything in chapters 11-15 has to do with your body. When you hit chapter 11, the first words that really strike you are clean and unclean, and you see them over and over again in the next 5 chapters. Certain persons and things are clean or unclean. What does that mean? The term is not exactly literal. The "unclean" person did not necessarily have a "dirty" body in a literal sense. Nor did it mean that he had sinned, for instance, a mother was "unclean" after having a baby which certainly was not a sin; it was commanded by God! So, let's talk about:

I. The Principle of Personal Purity First:

1. the Old Testament Principle These chapters give us 2 factual clues as to why certain things were unclean:

a. a Holy God dwelt among the people - Lev. 15:31 God's tabernacle, His dwelling place was in the middle of the camp and later on it would be in Jerusalem in the middle of the nation. A holy God lived there; His presence was among them every day. And:

b. His presence demands personal purity - 11:44-45 Because He is holy and is among them, they have to be holy! Their bodies have to be pure in His eyes so that His holiness does not wipe them out in their uncleanness! To walk with God their bodies had to be fit for His Presence. We often use the term ceremonially clean or unclean to describe what these chapters talk about. That's theological jargon for saying that certain things were clean because God said they were and unclean because God said they were. Certain things were forbidden by God for whatever reason and doing those things or contacting those things even by accident or necessity made one's body unfit for God's presence, not because those things were sinful in themselves but because He said so.

2. the New Testament Principle - 1 Cor. 6:12-20 This is the most complete New Testament passage I know on the importance of the body. Christians could easily be accused many times of over-emphasizing the soul, but your body is very important if you're going to walk with God. Here's why:

a. a Holy God dwells in your body (19) The temple is no longer just AMONG you but IN you. The same God who dwelt in the Holy of Holies in unapproachable glory now has taken up personal residence inside your body in the person of the HOLY Spirit. It is His home, His dwelling place. But it's more than that:

b. Holy God owns your body (19b-20) It's not yours anymore. He bought it on Calvary at a great price. Accepting Christ as your Lord means turning over ownership of your body to Him. It is His home and His tool to use to serve His purpose. V. 13 says your body is for the Lord, i.e. His to do with as He pleases. You're simply the steward in charge of upkeep and maintenance and the program director in charge of carrying out instructions for its use! But it's more than that:

c. Holy God identifies with your body (15) Your body is His body so what your body does, He does! If your body commits adultery, it is in effect taking Christ's body and making Him commit adultery. If your body yells and curses, He does it. What you do, He does! That's why it's so important that your body be "clean" or pure and I'm not talking about dirt. Your body must avoid the things He forbids and do the things He commands to make you fit to walk with Him. Otherwise, you are in mutiny, stealing command of His ship, and in that case, you aren't fit for daily fellowship with Him! Now in Leviticus we have:

II. The Practices of Personal Purity First:

1. rules concerning diet - Ch. 11 God made explicit dietary regulations as to what they could and couldn't eat. If you read it, you'll discover they couldn't eat camels and coneys and pigs and eels and vultures and eagles and insects and rodents and animals that died of themselves. And you say, "Wowee, who'd want to eat them?" Well, you've got to realize that we're talking about an entirely different culture and about people who knew nothing about the existence of germs and who sometimes were very poor and had little to eat. So, it's obvious to me that God made these rules in wisdom and they have a:

a. direct value: protection against contaminated food Pigs carry trichinosis; carnivorous animals and birds are notorious germ carriers because they consume rotten food; rodents carry disease and so do insects. In a very practical sense, a wise and benevolent Father was protecting His children against something they didn't understand. Now from that we can make an:

b. application: God cares about diet We are not under the law. We do not have to forgo eating pork. But God still cares what you put into His body! Compare Rom. 14:14-18. He cares about it for two reasons. First He cares because He doesn't want His body to die young because you filled it with tar and nicotine or gluttonized it with fatty foods until it is hard for Him to use. But more importantly, because He doesn't want your eating and drinking to be a source of offense and stumbling to other people. You represent Him! And He wants people to be saved and grow, not to be lost or turned off! But there is another level of interest here. By these rules God also taught a:

c. spiritual lesson: learn to distinguish (47) Having to distinguish what they could and couldn't eat at every meal taught them that everything in life was like that. There were the things God permitted, that were fit for His presence, and the things He did not. You can't just float merrily along doing to this body whatever you will or what feels good. Everything that comes your way, you must distinguish, you must evaluate: Is this pleasing to God, fit for His presence, will it bring glory to Him? Here's a good acid test: "If Jesus were me, would He do this?" In one sense He is! He's in you and you are making Him do it! Now the next 4 chapters contain:

2. rules concerning disease and discharges - chs. 12-15 They covered things like bleeding and female type problems, both after childbirth and on a normal monthly or even a chronic basis. They cover men too with emissions and even venereal diseases may be hinted at in some of the language. They covered skin diseases which are called in the KJV leprosy but really were probably any kind of skin disease from psoriasis to cancer. People with these types of problems were unclean and were not to be touched but rather were isolated in varying degrees until the problem stopped. Now obviously these laws had a:

a. direct value: prevention of contagious disease The Israelites knew nothing about bacteria and disease transmission and the regulations here are actually very similar to what we would practice today with all our knowledge. Keep individuals who are sick or diseased or germ carriers away from others and those who have contact wash in water and wash their clothes. A loving Father was basically protecting His children against the spread of contagious diseases and infections and unsanitary conditions. For the most part, He was teaching them elementary hygiene! And from that we can make this:

b. application: God cares about health We're not under these laws but God still cares about your hygiene; he cares that you take care of your body and see that it's cared for when it's sick and that you do what you can to prevent getting sick. God may not always have you be healthy but He certainly wants you to do whatever you can to promote health. This is His body, His tool, and it doesn't work very well if you don't take proper care of it, for example, if you push it too hard or don't rest it or don't get help for it when it's sick! God cares about the health of your body. But by these rules God also taught for us some:

c. spiritual lessons:

(1) the principle of depravity (12:6-7) A mother was unclean after childbirth due to her bleeding. Now there certainly was no sin in having a child yet the strange thing is that purification required not just washing but a sacrifice, a sin offering. There is no sin committed by either mother or child but sin is here just the same! A sin offering was for sins of ignorance, sins that you just kind of fell into because you're human, sins that come of your sin nature. You see, I think this is a reminder for us that we are born in sin, born with a sin nature, that sin is a part of us from birth and is transmitted by birth and we can't escape it! Before we ever do anything, we are sinners.

(2) the principle of contamination (15:7) When clean touches unclean, which thing rubs off? What happens to a drop of mud in a bucket of clean water? A well person does not infect a sick one with wellness! Sickness is not sinful but it is always a picture or symbol of sin. Paul taught the same lesson illustrated here when he said "evil company corrupts good morals!" We need to understand that sin rubs off, that it is a corrupting influence and we must associate with sinners but we must also be ever so careful in our associations and ministry and witness that it does not rub off on us! And that naturally leads to:

(3) the principle of separation (13:45-46) The diseased person was isolated from the community. It was not his fault but it protected the community from infection. The same thing applies to us in the spiritual realm. Paul warned that the leaven had to be thrown out before the whole lump got contaminated, that the man in Corinth living in sin had to be separated from the community of believers for its own protection. Jesus taught the same in Mt. 18. Church discipline has to operate for the protection of the body!

(4) the principle of cleansing (14:4-7, 10) All diseases and discharges required some kind of sacrifice for cleansing afterward showing they are a picture of sin. But this one is especially interesting. It requires two birds; one is killed and sheds its blood while the other is dipped in the blood and released to go free. Then the person washed and could enter the camp and normal sacrifices were offered later. One bird pictures the death of Christ, the other His Resurrection. And that's what it takes to cleanse from sin. Washing was not enough. Changing our ways and sinful habits is not enough. The blood of Jesus Christ cleanses us from all sin! And His resurrection life seals it. When we sin and are precluded from fellowship with God, we must first come for forgiveness by way of the blood! Then we get washed and can walk with Him once again!

Are you clean? Pure? Fit for fellowship with God? Have you been treating your body as God's temple and God's property? Has sin rubbed off on you from somewhere and taken root in your life so that you're a Christian who is not walking with God? Christ has already died and risen. All that remains is for the blood to be sprinkled on your sin problem and then to wash through God's power of change.

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Day of Atonement - Chs. 16-17

Memorial Day is a day we've set aside to remember. First of all, to remember all of those who have gone before and have given their very lives to protect us. Then to remember all our departed loved ones. It's a humbling day, a day to think about the seriousness of life and freedom, and the supreme cost it took to provide that for us. Memory is important. To forget the source of our freedom is a dangerous thing. And I'd urge you parents to make sure you tell your kids what Memorial Day is all about each year. Israel too had a Memorial Day. It occurred in late September every year. It was called in the Hebrew Yom Kippur, the Day of Covering or the Day of Atonement. It was the most serious day in the whole year, a day of fasting and mourning, the day when the Israelites remembered their sins of the past year and when atonement was made for all their sins. Now I want you to notice 2 aspects of the Day of Atonement:

I. The Inclusiveness of the Day of Atonement This was not a personal but a national holy day. Compare 16:5-10 In addition to the regular sacrifices, on this day two special goats were brought before the Lord which together form a sin offering. The high priest cast two lots so the Lord could show which one He had chosen to be slain as an actual sacrifice to Him for sins and the other to be a scapegoat on which the sins would be carried away. Now in these two goats we have two pictures.

1. the picture in the slain goat (15-17) There really were 2 stages in the offering of this goat. First:

a. the goat was slain which pictures JESUS DYING ON THE CROSS. But I want you to notice why this goat was slain:

(1) for all the people All the other offerings we studied were individual. If a person sinned, he brought an individual sacrifice; if he wanted to give something to God, he brought an individual offering. It was one person, one sacrifice. But on this day, there were no individuals. This goat died for all the people, for the whole community at once. Simply put: One died for all! And that all includes everybody: priest and pauper, clean and leper, rich and poor. The one goat was for all. Isn't that just what Romans says about Jesus? By the One man's death, the many were made righteous. One for all. Go so loved the WORLD that He gave His ONLY Son. But notice further it was:

(2) for all the sins (21) Now if you're a quick thinker, you're thinking that if an Israelite kept up with offering sin offerings through the year, he would not have any sins left on the Day of Atonement. Well, my opinion is (and I might be wrong because I haven't seen anybody else say this) that probably the individual sacrifices provided a covering for sin (e.g., the sin offering is said to make an atonement for sin, literally a covering) until the once for all sacrifice on the Day of Atonement when the sins were actually sent away by the Final Sacrifice on the Scapegoat! If that's so then every year you have a picture of what Heb. 10 says. All the animal sacrifices of the Old Testament years could not take away sin in themselves. They just covered it until the Lamb of God came to take away the sins of the world! But notice, the normal pattern was 1 sin, 1 sacrifice. On this day it was 1 sacrifice, all sins. Big and little, intentional and accidental, ceremonial and personal, against God and against man, every sin was included. Jesus' death is the one sacrifice for all sins! Now after the goat was slain:

b. the blood was sprinkled The High Priest would then do what He could never do any other time. He would enter inside the veil to the Holy of Holies where the Ark of God was and on top of that ark was what the NIV calls the atonement cover, but I like the KJV term mercy seat! And he would sprinkle the blood of that goat in the presence of Almighty God and come out alive! Here's what we usually miss: the fact that He came out alive indicates that now man had fellowship with God, could be in His presence through the shed blood. Of course, this pictures JESUS ENTERING HEAVEN FOR US. Compare Heb. 9:7-8, 11-12. He entered right into God's presence in Heaven with His own blood and stayed! He sat down at the right hand of God. So, the Judgment Throne is for us a Mercy Seat and we can now boldly enter with Him any time! Now the effect of what this meant was spelled out in:

2. the picture in the scapegoat (20-22) which is obviously JESUS TAKING AWAY OUR SINS. There are two actions here:

a. the transfer of sins Aaron laid his hands on the goat's head and confessed the sins; after that the goat carried the sins. There was a Divine Transfer. Their iniquities were laid on the goat. Remember Is. 53:6. Our iniquities were laid on Him! We had sinned but God in His Divine reckoning transferred our sins to Christ on the cross. Then came:

b. the sending away of sins That goat was led out and released in the wilderness somewhere, far from the presence of God and the people. In later years they led the goat to a cliff about 10 miles from Jerusalem and pushed it over to its death. The symbolic meaning was that their sins were gone and would never be remembered anymore. Compare Heb. 10:17-18. We have the same privilege in reality! Our sins are forgiven and the Greek word forgiven means "sent away". They are no longer remembered against us by God. Think of it! Every sin of every person, all taken away by one sacrifice forever. That's what we have in Jesus Christ and that's what enables us to walk with God! That's the joyous inclusiveness of the Day but now I want you to see:

II. The Exclusiveness of the Day of Atonement This day was absolutely unique in every aspect. This atonement could be made:

1. no other time (16:29a, 2) Only on the 10th day of the 7th month. If Aaron walked into the Holy Place on any other day he would die. Fellowship with God was provided only at God's one specific time. At Calvary! Then there could be:

2. no other work (16:29-31) On this day nobody worked but the High Priest. Nobody could add to it or aid him in attaining forgiveness. Jesus did it all! And there could be:

3. no other one (16:32-33) Only the one God picked, only Aaron. Not just anybody could make atonement, only the Lord Jesus Christ! And it could be made in:

4. no other place (17:3-5) Ch. 17's regulations applied to all sacrifices but they certainly applied to the Day of Atonement as well. No Israelite could go out into a field anymore and offer a sacrifice or on a hill or under a tree. They had to come to God's place. The offering had to be made on God's chosen spot, on the Hill of Golgotha! And lastly it could be made:

5. no other way (17:11) The high priest could not come in with armloads of produce or of gold to give God. He had to come with blood because blood represents the giving of life and it is only the giving of life that can pay for sins. There is no other way.

The Day of Atonement was absolutely exclusive. It accomplished what could not be done at any other time in any other way. There was nothing else that could do what it did! That's how important this memorial day was to them and to us. Without it there is no forgiveness of sins! But before we quit, let's make application by looking at:

III. The Observation of the Day of Atonement - 23:26-30 First note:

1. the participation required The Israelite had nothing to do with the offering of the sacrifice. He probably didn't even get to see it or watch the goat led away. No Israelite participated in the sacrifice but every Israelite who wanted fellowship with God had to be doing two things on that day:

a. humbling himself The NIV says denying; it means on that day he fasted, gave up eating, probably put on sackcloth and ashes. It's a sign of sadness, of humbleness before God. It means recognition of my sin, remembering how I've failed God, recognizing the awful cost of my sin and how I can only come into God's presence because of His mercy in providing a way!

b. resting This day was a sabbath, a rest day, a day when no one could do any work. The meaning of that is made clear in Heb. 4:9-10. Rest is the recognition of God's work, the recognition that He's done it all and I can't add to it. And here you also have:

2. the penalty specified The person who did not acknowledge this day, who did not humble himself before God, who did not rest and recognize God's work in forgiving him, was cut off from his people. That may mean he was killed, or at the very least sent into exile. At any rate he could not walk in fellowship with God! Remember I told you last week that this whole section of the book is about the Walk with God, and that to walk with God requires personal purity, a body presented to God for His use. These chapters tell us it requires spiritual purity. If you want to walk with God then you've got to have every day the attitude they had on this one day, a heart that is humble and recognizes and confesses sin and absolutely depends only on Jesus for forgiveness. You can't walk with God and have unconfessed, harbored sins that you refuse to humble yourself about. You can't walk with God and try to impress Him with how good you are and all the wonderful things you're doing for Him. To walk with God means to come humbly in Jesus' Name and in Him to come right into the Holy of Holies and have communion with God.

Two geese about to start southward on their annual autumn migration were entreated by a frog to take him with them. When the geese expressed their willingness to do so if a means of conveyance could be devised, the frog produced a long stick and got the two geese to take it at each end, while he clung to it by his mouth in the middle. In this manner the three were making their journey successfully when they were noticed from below by some men who loudly expressed their admiration of the device and wondered who had been clever enough to discover it. The vain-glorious frog, opening his mouth to say, "It was I," lost his hold, fell to the earth, and was dashed to pieces. You see, he forgot who was carrying whom. The danger on Memorial Day is to think that we got all this just because we're nice people and that we deserve it, forgetting that somebody gave his life to give us what we have. The danger in the Christian walk is exactly the same, to forget that Jesus paid it all, a great price that we could never pay for the forgiveness of our sins and to focus on how good and great and wonderful we are. We are required to walk humbly with our God. Are you?

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

A Clean Life - Chs. 18-20

Let me remind you that in Leviticus we're talking about what it takes for you to have a relationship with God. Chapters 11-20 tell us what it takes on our part if we're going to be able to walk with God. Chapters 11-15 told us it takes personal purity, a clean body presented to the Lord as His tool. Chapters 16-17 told us it takes spiritual purity, a clean soul kept that way through repentance and confession of sin. Now chapters 18-20 tell us it takes moral purity, a clean life. Now please don't get me wrong. Don't think that you are saved by living a clean life because you can't do it! You are saved by trusting in Jesus Christ alone to give you the eternal life you don't deserve, but if as a child of God, you want to walk with God, your life must be morally clean. Now just what does that mean? Well, that's what these chapters are all about. They give us God's mind about what a morally clean life is and His mind hasn't changed on morality even though our society's has:

I. The Areas of a Clean Life Ch. 18 tells us that in God's eyes, a clean life is one that is clean in three areas:

1. clean sexual behavior This chapter is very explicit and probably very repulsive to you. You may even wonder who would do these things and think surely no one does, but they do! And not just in some jungle somewhere but right here, all around you. Clean sexual behavior means:

a. no incest (18:6-18) Read 6. Basically, you are not to marry your parent or child or grandchild or sister or aunt, etc. You might say, "why mention that?" But it's all around. Just watch the news and listen to the statistics of how incestuous type things are prevalent. The church at Corinth in Paul's day had a member committing incest with his father's wife! Some time ago, I had a radio call from another state from a poor girl who now knows Christ but she said, "My husband slept with my mother and I'm trying to forgive him." And what's even more prevalent is:

b. no adultery (18:20) It's openly portrayed on TV and talked about and joked about. It's everywhere: husbands and wives having affairs, young people living together or teens and adults involved in all kinds of sexual relationships outside of marriage. God says it's wrong! Sex belongs in marriage and nowhere else. Not before, not outside of it! And it gets worse:

c. no deviant sexuality (18:22-23) You think surely nobody would get into things like vs. 23. You just talk with some folks that know the city. These things happen here! And homosexuality, regardless of how accepted it has become, is still wrong according to God; it is still a detestable act. Why does God warn about these things? Because this is what man naturally gravitates toward. And Christ gives the same advice to His church Compare 1 Cor. 6:13,18-20. You don't have to flee from things that don't tempt you; I can walk by a plate of liver and not even turn my head but not a plate of cake! These things tempt us. If you think Christians don't have problems in the area of sexual temptation just because they're saved, you're kidding yourself. I've talked to too many of them. They always want to know "Is this OK, is that OK" but God says "Flee!" Run from it. Keep your life clean so you can walk in tune with the HOLY Spirit of God who lives in you. But having a clean life also means:

2. clean social behavior (Ch. 19) Here are laws God gave His people regulating their relationships and interaction with one another. He expects:

a. financial honesty (11a, 13, 35-36) You don't steal. And that means you don't gyp somebody or con somebody into buying something and you don't hold back what belongs to somebody. In short you are to be scrupulously honest when it comes to finances. Wouldn't it be nice if you didn't have to worry about a garage cheating you on car repairs or about buying merchandise that's junk? With Christians that's how it ought to be! But there's also:

b. personal honesty (11-12,16) To walk with God your mouth has got to be as honest as your hands. You've got to tell the truth, not just when it's convenient but always. That's how God is and how He expects us to be with other people. But He also expects:

c. kindness (9-10, 14, 33) To the underprivileged and the needy who are not so fortunate as you are, to the handicapped who have special needs, to the stranger who is lonely and unfamiliar and needs help. Those issues are as fresh as today's news but they are not new. Isn't it a shame that the needy and the handicapped and the immigrant have to cry out for help for their own cause instead of us initiating kindness and compassion! But that's how God is and how He expects us to be. And beyond that there is:

d. respect (3, 32) For your own parents, for the elderly, indeed for the feelings of all others.

Now lest you think God only expected this kind of walk of the Israelites, compare Eph. 4:25-32. Did you notice what's mentioned in there: honesty, truthfulness, kindness and compassion, building others up, the very things in Lev. 19. A clean life worthy of walking with Jesus Christ is one where you love your neighbor as yourself.

3. clean religious behavior (19:26-31) All of these things are practices of the heathen religions commonly practiced by the people around the Israelites who worshipped the gods of Egypt or Baal or Ashtaroah or Molech. They practiced mutilation, sacred prostitution, contacting the dead. 20:2 talks about sacrificing children to Molech; they used to heat the idol red hot and throw the child into the fire inside! Now we don't know many folks who do those things but there is a principle or 2 to gather here. God wants:

a. no adoption of pagan practices What's the first thing Israel did when they got into the land? Adopted these things! Does it happen in the church? We've got gay churches, ordained homosexuals, ministers on every hand indicted for immorality and thousands of churches which believe and support things like evolution and abortion which is nothing more than sanitized child sacrifice! And God also wants:

b. no dabbling in the occult Every one of the things mentioned here is practiced openly in Satan worship and that is everywhere today, not just in N. Mex. or California. It is in Phila., in Abington. It is exposed on the news. Yet how many Christians want to get their fortune told or their cards read or follow their horoscope or play with Ouija boards or seances. Listen to the advice of I Cor. 10:14. Flee from idolatry. All those things are the worship of false gods. And you can't adopt them, even in small measure and walk with the True God! A clean life means that you are dedicated to the worship of God through Jesus Christ and Him alone. Now why. Why does God want this clean life of us?

II. The Reasons for a Clean Life

1. our God is a holy God (19:1-2) The Lord is a holy God. He has not set for us standards that are different than His own. In fact, the opposite is true. These standards arise out of His nature. He is absolutely pure and without fault and further:

2. we have a relationship with God (18:1-2,4) He is our God; we have a relationship with a holy God and a holy God only walks with holy people, people whose attitude and behavior matches His own. Let me illustrate: you and I still sin, do we not? But could you be best friends with a rapist or a child abuser who was continuing to do it? No way! You know why? Because there is something in you that is utterly repulsed by that (it's even in people that don't know the Lord). And marred though it may be, that's a part of the image of God showing in you. Now escalate that sense to its fullest. God is absolutely pure; He cannot walk with someone who is continually living a dirty life.

3. we have left the old life (18:3, 20:26) In Egypt where they used to live, the Israelites saw all the things in these chs. In fact, they used to do them. In Canaan where they were going, these things are the way people lived. It was so bad God had all the Canaanites exterminated. But Israel had left that old life in Egypt through trusting in the Lord and they were not to return to it in Canaan. They were set apart to the Lord and not to be like all the people around them or like they used to be. They had left that. And I recollect a verse that says if any man is in Christ, he's a new creature, the old things pass away and all things become new. You're not the person you used to be. Those things don't fit your nature. They're being done by people all around you but they don't fit you anymore; they're not who you are. To do them is to copy after people who you don't want to be!

4. it is for our good (18:5) The man who obeys them will live. That's not talking about eternal life. Ch. 20 is the penalty manual for the crimes of Ch. 18 and it says the man who doesn't dies! If the individual did them, he was either killed or cut off from Israel. If the nation refused to keep those standards, they would be kicked out of the land; the land would spue them out or spit them out. You see there is only one way to really live and that is in fellowship with God. To walk with God is to live and experience the blessings of God. To walk any other way is to die whether on the spot or slowly. Paul said to Timothy that to live the wrong way is to be already dead while you live! Cp. Rom. 6:20-23 Sin always leads to death. The people around you who are up to their necks in these things will tell you "this is living!" But it isn't; it's dying, slowly but surely! There is a way that seems right to a man but the ends thereof are the ways of death! Jesus came to give us real life, abundant life. And the walk that He has laid out for us is not just arbitrary, it makes for the best and most fruitful human life; it is for our good.

Now having said all that let me tell you a story: A young boy asked his mother if he could help her wash the windows. She welcomed his offer and told him to begin with the one in the kitchen because it was the dirtiest. He went outside and worked diligently until he thought it was clean. Then with a dry cloth he rubbed until his arms were tired, but the pane of glass still had many smudges. Frustrated, he called his mother and asked her what was wrong. Looking at what he had done, she said with a smile, "Why, you have been spending all your time washing the glass out here. What's wrong is that the dirt is on the inside!" The boy went into the house, and soon his efforts made the window clean and sparkling. I confess that as we study what makes a clean life, I'm convicted. Child sacrifice is no problem to avoid but I don't always show respect or compassion or hold my tongue in check, do you? In fact, the more you study the law, the more that you find you can't keep it. And you can't if you're just washing the outside, trying to change your life by your own efforts. But the dirt is on the inside; it's in our hearts. The drive toward these things is bound up inside of us. To live a clean life first of all you need Jesus Christ to give you a new heart. But beyond that you need His power to live it out through you, you need to rely on Him every moment to empower you to live a clean life. But you know what? When you do, you'll find it's possible!

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Law Of The Priests - Chs. 21-22

At Chapter 21 you come to what I consider to be the third major division of the Book of Leviticus. Chapters 1-10 explained the Way to God and we saw there how Christ's sacrifice and His Priesthood make it possible for us to have a relationship with God. Chapters 11-20 showed us the Walk with God and the kinds of purity it takes on our part if we're going to walk in fellowship with God. Chapters 21-28 will show us the Worship of God. Now worship is an interesting concept; in fact, both in Hebrew and Greek it is a dual concept. Our church once had a hymnal whose title was WORSHIP and SERVICE Hymnal! The one concept is to bow down and offer adoration and praise to God. The other is to yield yourself by serving. One who worships God also serves God and that's what these chapters are about, not so much about the sanctuary type of worship, but about the worship we yield to God by serving Him. Now chapters 21-22 are the Law of the Priests. It tells the priests how they were to go about serving God. But before you say "Big Deal! What does that have to do with me?", let me give you a little introduction to:

I. The Study of the Servants of God The priests were God's special servants in Israel and what God has to say to them is very important once you understand three things:

1. the priests are pictures of us - 1 Pet. 2:2-5 In the Church of Jesus Christ, there is no longer a priesthood, or, more accurately, every true believer is a priest. He can come directly and personally to God through Jesus Christ without anyone else to represent him. But the other thing this tells us is that the priests are Old Testament pictures of each one of us. If we look at them and how God wanted them to serve Him, we can see some things about how God wants us to serve Him. Notice a few points of correlation:

a. we are born spiritually into our priestly position (21:1) How did they get to be priests? Did they apply for the job and submit a resume? No, they got it by birth; they were born into the job. Every son of Aaron was a priest and so are we. 1 Pet. 5:2 speaks of us as newborn babes who grow up into spiritual priesthood. We are priests to God through our new birth, through receiving Jesus Christ. And Peter also says:

b. we offer spiritual sacrifices to God Not animal sacrifices like they did but spiritual ones. Like what? Well, Heb. 13:15 says that when you offer praise to God with your lips, it is a sacrifice of praise. Paul told the Philippians (4:18) that their money gift to him was an acceptable sacrifice to God. He wrote to the Romans (12:1) that our reasonable service or our spiritual service of worship is to present our bodies to God as a living sacrifice. And that is something we carry out daily as we use our body to do God's will. You see, the sacrifice that we offer to God is not just our worship but also our service. Now notice this:

c. our development affects our service and communion but not our position In 21:16-24 you'll find that some of Aaron's sons were born priests but as they grew up, they turned out to have defective development. Read vs. 21. One might turn out to be blind or lame or a dwarf and if so, he could not serve. Does this mean that God doesn't love the handicapped? No, the reason for it is the symbolism; only a perfect priest can approach God. Jesus was the only True Priest who could approach God for us. But the thing I want you to notice is in v. 22. This person was born a priest and defective or not he was still a priest and the evidence was that he could eat the offerings. However, he could not serve God like the others. There's a lesson in that. As we mature and develop in Christ, we serve Him as a holy priesthood. We are born spiritually as priests but some of us have defective spiritual development. Some just stop growing and become spiritual dwarves or they become blind to important truths or something hinders their walk or they grow up out of proportion and unbalanced. You know Christians like that. But they are still Christians; they are still saved. They may be disqualified from serving God or at least hindered a great deal, but they are still priests! Our development affects our ability to serve God but nothing can ever affect our position.

2. the High Priest pictures Christ (21:10) I don't need to remind you how many times Hebrews tells us Christ is our Great High Priest. The thing that strikes me here in Ch. 21 is that the standards for the High Priest were well above the standards for the regular priests. He had to basically be ceremonially perfect so that he might picture Christ our perfect High Priest. I wish we had more time to look at that but as you read on your own, just try to see Christ pictured in him.

3. the priests were spiritual leaders They were the spiritual leaders, the preachers and teachers, the clergy, the ones whom God had called from among the body of His people to special responsibilities of service. So, in that sense they also picture for us those who are leaders in the church of Jesus Christ. And as leaders, God set up standards for their behavior. Remember this: What God DESIRES of all, He DEMANDS of leaders! The point is that God does not have two standards, saying, "it's OK for regular Christians to do this but not for leaders." God desires all Christians to behave in a holy fashion. But in leaders He demands it. They cannot serve unless they meet the standards. Now what are:

II. The Standards for a Servant of God (Ch. 21) There are 3 things God demanded of the priests or they could not serve. It's interesting that you'll find the same 3 things in Titus required of those who would serve in the church as elders or overseers. So here is a challenge for you church leaders. But these are also the 3 things God desires in anyone who wants to be used of Him. First:

1. a pure personal life (1-4, 11-12) Read 1-2. A servant of God must be clean. He must have a personal life that is free from the defiling influence of sin. Compare Titus 1:7-8. God wants our personal life to be blameless i.e., pure enough that no one can accuse us of being hot-tempered or drunk or greedy or irresponsible or unkind. You see, when those kinds of things creep in through contact with the world, they hinder our ability to serve God.

2. a perfect adherence to the faith (5-6, 10) As far as I can tell, shaving the head and cutting the body were customs that were practiced in the idol worship of the day, customs for mourning the dead (19:27-28). The high priest wasn't even allowed to tear his garments or neglect his grooming like other Israelites did. You see, to adopt those things was to leave the true worship of God and to accept the customs of idolatry. That was not acceptable in a servant of God. He had to have a strict adherence to the faith. Look what God wants in us. Compare Titus 1:9-11. He's not going to use us if we blow back and forth with every wind of doctrine, if in one hand we hold our Bible but in the other we're reading new age materials or flirting with weird ideas. He uses those who adhere to the faith once for all delivered to the saints.

3. a proper marriage and family (7-9, 13-15) Read 7-9. We don't have time to get into the whole subject of divorce and remarriage and if we did, I think we'd miss the point I'm trying to make. That priest couldn't serve God unless his marriage was in order and unless his children were in order! Sound familiar? Compare Titus 1:6. You can't serve God with a messed up and improper marriage. Your prayers are hindered. Your testimony is shattered. You can try but it won't work. And you can't serve God with messed up and unruly children in the home for the same reasons. I know people who genuinely want to serve God but their families are a wreck. If you want to be used of God, these areas must be put in order first. Leaders, these things are what God demands of you if you want to be in leadership. Brethren, these things are what God desires of you if you want to be used by Him! Now let's sum up by talking about:

III. The Service of a Servant of God (Ch. 22) What must I do to serve God? Two things:

1. you must serve in a clean state (1-16) That means first:

a. you must be one born into God's family (10-16) Read 10. You must be born into a priestly family before you can serve as a priest or enjoy the privileges of a priest. So, you must be born as a child in God's family before you can enjoy the privilege of service. Simply put: if you're not saved, you can't serve! But for those who are saved it means:

b. you must not serve while unclean (1-9) Read 6. The priest who became unclean for whatever reason could not serve until he was cleansed. He could not offer sacrifices in a state of uncleanness. So, if you become unclean through sin, don't serve until you make it right. Simply put: if you're soiled, you can't serve! Exercise 1 Jn. 1:9 and make whatever amends are necessary. Be a vessel that's clean and fit for the Master's use. But there is another thing:

2. you must present an acceptable offering The priest had to be right but the offering also had to be right. It had to be:

a. an offering without defect (17-25) Read 20. Of course, symbolically that is true because the animal pictured Christ who was the perfect sacrifice. But what was true with their sacrifices must be true with ours also. What you do for God must be done right. When you praise and worship Him it must be sincere, not just going through the motions. When you give, it must be your best and in the right attitude. When you teach or help someone, it must be the best job you can do, not the least you can get away with! God accepts feeble service but He doesn't accept flawed service. You may not be able to do much and that's OK, but it must be your best! And finally, it must be:

b. an offering presented in obedience (26-33) Read 28. This section says the offering must be presented and eaten at the right time and in the right manner. In short, v. 29 says that in this, as in everything, the person must keep God's commands. Saul wanted to give God an offering so he spared the best of the animals from the Amalekites to give to God, but God wanted obedience, not sacrifice! It's not enough to offer God service. It must be service according to His will, at His direction, in obedience to His commands in your life!

A village in Greece learned that the king would pay them a visit! How honored the village officials were. They decided to hold a feast. So that every villager could offer the king something, everyone was to bring a pitcher of the finest wine and pour into a vat from which the king would be served. Behold the king arrived! The moment came for him to taste the rich wine from the vat. However, when one of the officials turned the spigot, out came water! How embarrassing! Each villager assumed that the others would pour in their best and their one pitcher of water would not make any difference! The result was dishonoring for the king. You are a servant of God. Only your best service will bring honor to the king. What kind of servant will you be?

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Law Of The Feasts - Ch. 23

This third section of the book deals with the Worship of God. Now the worship God commanded for Israel followed a pattern. There was the weekly observance of the Sabbath Day or Rest Day mentioned here in v. 3. There were some monthly celebrations of the new moon and that sort of thing which are mentioned but never seem to be commanded. Then, of course, the Israelites offered individual sacrifices whenever they had need or desire. But over top of all their worship God superimposed a master plan, a pattern of 7 feasts or festivals that were to be celebrated by the entire nation each year. 3 together in the spring, 1 at the beginning of summer, and 3 together in the fall, so that 3 times a year all of Israel would go up to one spot, to Jerusalem to worship and celebrate these feasts together. Now each of these feasts has two kinds of meaning for us. First, as you study it becomes clear that each of these feasts pictures a future historical event, so that by the time you finish all seven each year, you have displayed God's entire plan for the whole history of Israel. But secondly, each of these feasts reminds us of some aspect of our personal walk with God, both today and in the future. So, let's examine them one at a time. The religious year began in the spring around our March-April with:

1. Passover (4-5) Not much is said about it here because all the details of how to celebrate it were laid out in Ex. 12. For the Israelites it was an annual reminder of how the death angel passed over them in Egypt when God brought them out of Egyptian bondage. It reminded them of their national salvation, their redemption from slavery in Egypt. But when we come to the New Testament, we find a:

a. prophetic meaning: 1 Cor. 5:7 - THE CRUCIFIXION Christ's Sacrifice is the real Passover! The lamb is a picture of the Lamb. The blood on the door pictured the blood on the Cross. And as with Israel, that's where the history of God's work really begins. But for us it has a:

b. personal meaning: 1 Pet. 1:18-19 - our redemption The world has an empty way of life, a life of bondage, a life of slavery to sin, a life that goes nowhere and it's passed on from generation to generation. It's being lived by people all around you, but you were redeemed from it. You were bought out of that slavery, not with money, but with the precious blood of the spotless Lamb of God. The Israelite could look back and say, "But for the grace of God, I'd still be a slave" and you can look around you at every empty life enslaved to material things or drugs or sex or whatever and say, "But for the grace of God, there go I".

2. Unleavened Bread (6-8) The next day after Passover, the 15th of the month began a 7 day festival called Unleavened Bread. It was a reminder to the Israelites that when they came out of Egypt, they had no time to put yeast in their dough, so they ate unleavened bread. Really it pointed to the effect of God's Passover deliverance. But it has a:

a. prophetic meaning: 1 Cor. 5:7 - SANCTIFICATION The key feature was "no yeast" and yeast or leaven in the Bible is always a symbol for sin. Indeed, the context of this passage speaks of removing sin. So, the feast of Unleavened Bread points to the effect of the cross: Sanctification, the removal of sin. As a result of the cross, we, the church, are a new batch without yeast before God; sin has been removed. And there is an obvious:

b. personal meaning: 1 Cor. 5:8 - our holy walk Since we're a new batch, the way that we keep the feast is not to let any of the old leaven back into our lives but to fill them with a new kind of leaven, sincerity and truth and righteousness, and let those things permeate our lives. This feast says to us that we are redeemed people and we ought to act like it, like sanctified people. We ought to be progressing in holiness.

3. First fruits (9-14) The first three feasts are actually one long celebration. Passover was the 14th of the month, the first day of Unleavened Bread was a sabbath or rest day on the 15th and on the next day was the offering of the first sheaf of grain from the harvest. So, it was on the third day that the first fruits of the harvest were brought to God and waved before Him, before any new grain could be used or eaten. Obviously, there is a:

a. prophetic meaning: 1 Cor. 15:20 - THE RESURRECTION This picture is even complete to the very Day! The third day Christ rose from the dead and became the first fruits of all the dead! Before His resurrection there were no resurrections! Oh, there were resuscitations, people restored to human life only to die again, but He was the first to rise from the dead with a resurrected body. And that has for us a very:

b. personal meaning: 1 Cor. 15:23 - our resurrection The first sheaf of grain was the guarantee that the harvest was successful, that more would follow. So, Christ's resurrection guarantees our own! There is an order here. Christ went first and at His coming, we too will have glorified resurrected living bodies forever!

4. Pentecost (15-22) Now 50 days pass and it is the beginning of summer. Seven full weeks and on the next day, the 50th day there is another celebration, the feast of weeks, or as the Greeks later called it, Pentecost. There can be no mistaking its:

a. prophetic meaning: Acts 2:1 THE SPIRIT'S COMING That phrase fully come means far more than we realize. Through the centuries, the day of Pentecost had been celebrated but this time it was full and final and brought to completion. Exactly 50 days after the Resurrection of Christ, the Holy Spirit came and indwelt the disciples! But for us there is a more:

b. personal meaning: the Church It was the beginning, the very first of what Christ predicted He would build, His church. Now did you notice that now there is, not have a single sheaf of grain, but one offering composed of two loaves of bread and, not unleavened, but leavened bread. Compare 1 Cor 12:13, Eph. 3:6. Here's what the Spirit's coming did. It created a brand new body, the Church. But in doing it He took two loaves, two groups of believing people, still in earthly bodies and mingled with sin, and made them one offering, one loaf to present to God. When you think of Pentecost, think of the unity of the church. We are not divided; all one body we. I am part of a body of true believers that extends all over the world.

Then comes the long hot summer alluded to in v. 22. During this time the grain harvest continues and comes to its conclusion. Then there is the harvesting of other crops like grapes and figs and dates. It is when the Israelite is to think of the alien and the stranger. The mind is to be focused on the Gentiles. And so, we live in the great harvest age of history, the church age, a time when God is calling out from among the Gentiles a people for His name. But soon the fall will come and with it the Feast of:

5. Trumpets (23-25) Nothing much specific is said about this day except that the first day of Tishri, the 7th month (our Sept.-Oct.) was to be a day of rest and of the blowing of trumpets. We live in an age with too much technology to appreciate the symbolism, but for centuries it was the trumpet or shofar, the ram's horn or some metal instrument that was used to call together large groups of people and give directions. Even our cavalry used a bugler in times past. To sound the trumpets meant that it was time for the people to gather, in this case to get ready to travel once again from wherever they lived up to Jerusalem a few days later. Since the first four feasts have such specific prophetic fulfillments, this one also must have a:

a. prophetic meaning: Jer. 32:37 REGATHERING When the church age is all finished and the harvest all in, God is going to blow His great trumpet and gather all Israel back again to her land. I know there are 3 million Jews in Israel now but there are millions more still scattered all over the world. In that day it will be, as Ezekiel says, that they will soon come home! And what will trigger that mass immigration of God's people? The very thing that gives the feast of Trumpets a:

b. personal meaning: 1 Thess. 4:16 The Rapture The trumpet that calls Israel to begin assembling so God can deal with her once more is the same trumpet that calls the Church out of the world, the Trumpet at the Rapture of the Church. Listen, one day that Trumpet's going to sound and even if I'm dead and in heaven already, I'm going to be there and get my new resurrection body and join the saints of all the ages as we're gathered home to Jesus. And then what a feast we'll have! But just 10 days later came the:

6. Day of Atonement (26-32) We already studied this in Lev. 16 in great detail. It was a feast that was a fast, a day when the whole nation would mourn and sorrow over their sins. You can readily see how this event has a:

a. prophetic meaning: Zech. 12:10 THE TRIBULATION We're talking about the Tribulation Period. After the Rapture, God will take 7 years to bring Israel to her knees in repentance at last and, as a nation, at the end of that time they will at last understand and acknowledge that they pierced their own Messiah and they will receive and turn to Him en masse with great mourning and sorrow of heart. But here is the:

b. personal meaning: Heb. 4:9-11 our faithfulness The primary thing that Lev. 23 said about this day over and over was that it was a day of complete rest, of no work at all. We have already entered that rest as far as salvation is concerned. Our once-for-all atonement is made. But v. 11 says in another sense the fullness of that rest is still in front of us and we are to make every effort to enter into it. How? By being careful not to fall away from our faith in disobedience like Israel did! Israel fell away from the Lord through disobedience and became unfaithful and God had to set her aside for 2000 years now and He will have to deal with her severely to bring her back to Himself in the future. Until that time, she has no rest! Don't make God have to do the same with you! Be faithful so that God does not have to put you through the weeping and mourning to bring you back to Himself. And at last, you will come to the Feast of:

7. Tabernacles (33-44) Read 33-34, 39-43. Five days later the Feast of Tabernacles or Booths began and lasted 7 days. During this time the Israelites would live in little lean-tos made of branches to remember the way they lived in the wilderness when God brought them out of Egypt. But this celebration capped off and finalized the whole year and the keyword for it is in v. 40: REJOICE! The last of all the harvests had been gathered in, the barns were full and they were to take 7 days to celebrate God's goodness, all the while remembering the humble beginnings of it in the wilderness where they had nothing.

a. prophetic meaning: Zech. 14:16 THE KINGDOM This is the feast that will be celebrated in the Millennial Kingdom when Jesus reigns on earth. All the nations will come up to Jerusalem to celebrate it and rejoice together in what God has done. So, this feast too will have its literal fulfillment in the Kingdom when Israel will have a full thousand years to rejoice in what God has done and remember her humble beginnings! And yet for us there is a:

b. personal meaning: Rev. 21:3-4 our final joy At the same time that Israel is entering her millennial joy on earth, we'll be entering something special too. We'll be above the earth in our New Jerusalem entering into our eternal joy. And God will wipe away all the tears of the memories of earth and we will be with Him in joy forever and ever.

Seven feasts bring the year to completion; Seven events bring the history of the world to completion. Seven feasts take Israel from deliverance to final rest; seven events take the church from the cross to the throne; seven events take me from salvation through sanctification to glorification. The plan is laid out. The only question is how I will behave along the path! God taught Israel to remember each year through celebrating these seven feasts. Jesus only gave to us one feast to celebrate but it too is a time to remember, to remember the cross, our salvation, our sanctification, our resurrection, our fellowship in one body with other believers, our Rapture, and our eternal home. The Lord's Supper hints at all these things. Let's remember them as we celebrate it together.

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Law Of The Land Chs. 24-26 (Part 1)

The Worship of the Israelites extended far beyond sacrifices and celebrations. Their service to Jehovah affected the way they treated their neighbor and the way they treated their possessions. And that's true for us also. Our faith is more than just attending church or reading our Bibles or praying. Our service to God is lived out in the way we treat others and the way we use our possessions, just as theirs was. Now in these three chapters we have the Law of the Land. Israel was God's people and He was going to place them in His land. And He gave them a law to go with that land, a set of Divine rules for them as a people to live by in that land as His servants. I want to emphasize that. These are not rules intended for every nation in every time. They are God's rules for His people Israel living under His direct control in His land of Palestine. They were never intended for the Church of Jesus Christ, but there are plenty of principles here that we can apply to our lives and our service for God. As we enter Ch. 24, we find it deals with:

I. Justice In The Land (Ch. 24) Strangely enough, its first 9 verses seem to be out of place because they talk about daily and weekly ceremonial tasks. But really, I think they are showing us:

1. the basis of justice: God's presence (1-9) Vs. 1-4 tell us that the lamps on the lampstand in the Tabernacle must be kept burning continually. The oil and the lampstand and the light are symbols for the Holy Spirit, showing us that He is constantly at work, active. The darkness hides nothing from Him. Vs. 5-9 tell us about the 12 loaves of bread that were placed each week on the table in the Holy Place in the presence of God. 12 is Israel's number and the 12 loaves represent the 12 tribes. And it says to us that God's people are continually in His presence. Wherever they may be physically, they are before Him. And that is the basis of all justice. It may be dark and nobody else sees but God sees. You are always in His presence. Nothing is hidden from the eyes of Him with whom we have to do. I have to laugh when people swear in my presence and then excuse themselves. I always say, "If you don't mind doing it in front of God, don't worry about me!" God is always watching and so we are always accountable to do justice toward our fellow men. You may think you can get by with a little grudge here or a little hateful behavior there or a little taking advantage here but God's watching! Now in the rest of the chapter you will find:

2. the principles of justice (10-23) They are introduced by a narrative incident of a half-Israelite who got into a fight and cursed the sacred Name of God. By the way, that's the problem with marrying an unsaved person. It's so easy for your kids to grow up on the wrong side of the line! Anyway, they weren't sure what to do with him, so they asked God and God said "Take him out and stone him to death." So they did in v. 23. You know, if that rule was enacted here in the USA, our population would be reduced by 2/3! Of course, we're not Israel; we're not God's nation, and it would be wrong of us to enact such a law in America, but there is a principle here of:

a. regard for the Lord (10-16) Read 16. An alien could live in the land and he didn't have to believe in God but he had to respect God and the use of His Name. That is the basis of all law. All concepts of justice emanate from the nature of God. How else would we know that it's wrong to kill or to steal? Those things have been universally accepted as principles of justice but they came from somewhere. Animals don't have them. They came to man from God. And when we lose respect for God in our system of government, in our laws and in our courts, we are well on the way toward anarchy! There follow three more direct principles that form the basis of proper justice anywhere:

b. capital punishment (17) For justice to be done there must be a death penalty and one that is carried out, not just pronounced. Not just because it is the only effective deterrent to the most violent crimes, but because it is morally necessary. The only true justice for the taking of life is to have life taken. We would do well to remember that. But further:

c. punishment must fit the crime (18-21) Read 19. This is the old eye for an eye passage. It has nothing to do with personal vengeance or primitive cruelty. It simply teaches that whatever punishment is handed out must be equivalent to the offense committed. Our whole legal system is built on that premise, but you can use it even in the discipline of your own children. Not that you ought to punch them when they punch the neighbor kid but you ought to be sure that your discipline is fair, that it is proportioned to the offense. The same applies in church discipline and employer discipline and many other areas. Then there is:

d. equality before the law (22) Justice knows no favorites; it applies to all! All are equal in the eyes of God and are equally responsible for their actions. That means you treat all your kids equally. It means you treat your fellow believers with the same fairness, not being hard on one and too easy on the next. Remember these things when voting time comes around and you have to pick people to make the laws and to enforce them. But also remember them in your personal life. God is a just God and He wants those who serve Him to be just in their treatment of others! Now in Ch. 25 we'll get into some things that may be even more personally applied because it talks about:

II. Ownership In The Land (Ch. 25) This chapter puts forth two principles that are extremely clear.

1. God owns the land (1-33) Read 23. The land is God's. God gave it to them but not in the absolute sense. It was not theirs to do with as they pleased. They were actually tenants or stewards of the land God had given them but He remained the ultimate owner. And as the ultimate owner, God instituted some rules for the use of the land, the first one being the institution of:

a. the Sabbatical Year (1-7) Read 4. Every seventh year was to be a year of rest for the land just like every seventh day was a day of rest for the people. The land was to lie fallow and uncultivated for the whole year and the people were only to eat what might grow by itself. They didn't know it but that made good agricultural sense, allowing the land to replenish its nutrients. Deut. 15 tells us the Sabbath year was also a year of canceling all debts and freeing all indentured Hebrew servants, but the emphasis here is the land. Then there was:

b. the Jubilee Year (8-24) Read 10. Every 7th 7 of years completed a full cycle and the next year, the 50th year would be a year of release or Jubilee for the land. In that year, basically all land purchases would revert to the original owner. This is how God intended to keep the inheritances of the various tribes intact. Land could only be permanently acquired by inheritance, not by purchase. So, in effect, every purchase was a lease and the price should be valued according to the time of the Jubilee year. However, in between the Jubilee years there was always the right of:

c. the redemption of property (25-34) Read 25. Land was always sold with the right to buy it back. A relative could buy it back for you or, if you prospered, you could buy it back for yourself and the new owner could not refuse to sell it. Now in point of fact, I doubt whether Israel ever kept a Jubilee year one time and probably not even a Sabbath year. In fact, God says that's one of the reasons they spent 70 years in captivity in Babylon, so the land would get its rest, one year for each Sabbath year they'd missed, 490 years worth of missing! Why didn't they? compare 20-21. They were afraid to trust God. Why? They thought their well-being, their food, their material possessions depended on them and on their labor. But it doesn't; it depends on God. That's what I'd like you to apply. James 1:17 says every good and perfect gift you have is from God. Your material well-being does not depend on your hard work, though God does want you to work; it depends on God. You can earn plenty of wages and God can make it seem you're putting it into a bag with holes in it, it slips away so fast. On the other hand, you can obey God and go to the mission field, for instance, and wonder how your needs will ever be met, but you can trust God. Everything you have, your house, your car, your money, your possessions, all of it, is God's; you're just a caretaker, a steward. It came from Him and God has the right to tell you what to do with it, how to use it! In fact, you ought to ask Him! They wouldn't do what God said with His land and God took it away from them! All the things you have, God can take away from you in a moment of time if He wants to. Be a good steward! Look at your things as God's things and ask His direction in how to best use them for His glory! But God owns more than the things:

2. God owns the people (35-55) Read 55. The land belonged to God and the people also belonged to God. He had brought them out of Egypt and because of that, they were His! And that applied to all of them, rich and poor alike and so you have His instructions for:

a. the treatment of the poor (35-46) Read 35. When a fellow Israelite is in trouble, help him. If he's in debt and has a financial need, don't loan him money and charge him interest. If you're the fellow he's in debt to and he can't pay and you make him work it off instead, don't treat him like a slave but rather the way you would a hired hand, with respect and care. And then let him go when the debt is paid or in the year of Jubilee. And then there is:

b. the redemption of the poor (47-55) Read 47-48. If he's in debt and has already become a servant to somebody who's a non-Israelite living in the land, then buy him back! Redeem him. Pay his debt and get him out if you can. And make sure his master treats him fairly. You see, God's people belong to Him and you are not to mistreat them but rather to help them in their time of need as much as you can. Does the church have problems with this? In 1 Cor. 6:6 Christians were suing each other over property and money and debts, etc. and going to court to settle it. In James 4:1-3 there were more problems and arguments over things, over wanting things but never getting them. Why? because they wouldn't ask God but instead picked on their brother! That happens today. Christians take advantage of other Christians and it ought not to be. Now those are active things but then there is 1 Jn. 3:16-17. There are plenty of times when our brother or sister is in a crisis and has a great need. Do we just sit by and say "I'll pray for you or I hope you'll be OK" or do we get out the checkbook and write a check or go to the store and buy the groceries and take them over? Remember 1 Cor. 6:19. Every believer is bought with a price, including you. God bought us and He owns us! And so, we ought to treat fellow-believers as God's property, in love and caring and helping as much as we can!

American poet, Edwin Markham, told about a cobbler, a godly man who made shoes. One night the cobbler dreamed that the next day Jesus was coming to visit. It seemed real and he got up early to decorate his shop for his Guest. He waited, but the shop remained quiet, except for an old man who limped up to the door asking to come in for a few minutes of warmth. While the man rested, the cobbler noticed his worn shoes and gave him a new pair. In the afternoon, an elderly woman came, and seeing her struggling earlier under a heavy load, he invited her in to rest and gave her a nourishing meal. At night, a child was heard crying outside his door, lost and afraid. He went out, soothed the child, and took the child home. When he returned, the cobbler was sad, convinced the Lord had come while he was away. Now he lived through the moment as he had imagined it: the knock, the latch lifted, the radiant face, the offered cup. He would have kissed the hands where the nails had been, washed the feet where the spikes had entered. Then the Lord would have sat and talked to him. In his anguish, the cobbler cried out, "Why is it, Lord, that Your feet delay? Have you forgotten that this was the day?" Then, soft in the silence a voice he heard: "Lift up your heart for I kept My word. Three times I came to your friendly door; Three times My shadow was on your floor. I was the man with the bruised feet; I was the woman you gave to eat; I was the child on the homeless street." When you do it to the least of these you do it unto Me. Pure religion and acceptable before God is this: to look after orphans and widows in their distress and to keep oneself from being polluted by the world. That's the kind of service God wants.

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Law Of The Land - Chs. 24-26 (Part 2)

We continue today looking at this section of Leviticus which I call the Law of the Land. It deals with their behavior when they arrive in the land God had promised them, the land of Canaan. In Ch. 24 we looked at Justice in the Land, how they were to treat one another in a just fashion. Then in Ch. 25 we looked at Ownership in the Land and saw that God owned both the land and the people and they had to treat both their possessions and other people as things belonging to God. Now we come to Ch. 26 which talks about:

III. Blessing In The Land (Ch. 26) How many times do we pray for God to bless someone? All the time! But have you ever thought what that would mean or how you would know if God answered your prayer? Can you define blessing? Well, for Israel, God spelled out pretty clearly just what it would mean for Him to bless them in the land. But first you have:

1. the condition of blessing (1-3) Obedience! It's as simple as that. If they obeyed the laws and rules God had laid down for them, He would bless them. And though we are no longer under the same set of obligations nor the same set of promises, that principle remains the same for us! God blesses us (whatever that means) when we obey! A lot of people want God to bless them while they live life their own way, while they live in disobedience and ignore His requirements. But it doesn't work that way, not for Israel or for us! Now what are:

2. the promises of blessing (4-13) Just for information, this chapter is a close parallel to Deut. 28 which has an even more specific and very detailed list of blessings and curses. Lev. 26 is more of a summary and so all the blessings God promised them can be summarized in the three found here. First, He promised them:

a. provision (3-5, 9-10) I don't think we have any idea how important rain is because we get our water out of a spigot and our food out of a grocery store. To us having no rain means you can't water the lawn, but in a farming society in an arid sort of land, no rain means no food! And abundant rain means abundant crops and full barns. In short, God promised to provide well for them. Now it is at this point that I must reemphasize again that these promises are specifically for Israel and not for us! There are too many preachers walking around preaching and too many Christians walking around believing that if you obey, God will bless and prosper your business and you'll get wealth. You'll succeed; you'll climb the ladder... And that IS what God promised Israel but it is not what God promised us. Compare Phil. 4:19 God will supply all our NEEDS when we're being faithful and obedient. He will provide for our material needs. And not only that, compare vs. 13; He will also provide for all of our other needs, power, strength, endurance, all the things it takes to make it through the tough spots in life! When you're obeying, you can count on it! God will provide for all the genuine needs you have! His blessing means Provision. But it also means:

b. peace (6-8) Physical, external peace. They would beat all their enemies with ease and then have rest and security without fear of other nations. In short, God would take away all their external problems. But that's not what God has promised us. Compare Phil. 4:7. He's promised us a peace inside in our mind and heart that will keep us through every problem we have to face! If we're obedient, if we're following the way of life that He has laid down for us, then we will have the same peace and security that God has because we know that none of these things can really harm us! Oh, He promises us peace, but most importantly He promises us His:

c. Presence (11-13) He promises to have a relationship with them, to walk with them, to be among them. What a wonderful thing that is but compare Phil. 4:9. When we walk His way, God is with us too! Now we know that He continually indwells us and we are still saved, even when we disobey, but the real promise is that He will have a wonderful personal relationship with us, that we will sense His presence and know that He's working in our lives and speaking to us through His word. That's what it means to be blessed, to have a wonderful sense of walking with God every day and to be flooded with His peace about what's going on in your life and to have full confidence that He will meet every need. That's a blessed way to live. But not in most folks' book. To them blessing is to have lots of THINGS and to have all their problems go away. If that's what you want, become a Jew and wait for the Millennium because you'll never get it here! But oh, our blessing is so much greater than theirs was. They had the earthly but we have the heavenly blessings in Christ Jesus. They had earthly security but we have eternal heavenly security in Him! They had a national walk with Him, but we have a personal walk with Him! When we obey and walk with Him, we live on an entirely new plane of life. But what happens when we don't? Well, that brings us to:

3. the warnings of discipline (14-39) Here God told them exactly how He would discipline them. And you know, these verses read like a prophetic history of Israel written ahead of time. Time after time they disobeyed God and forsook Him and every one of these things befell them at one time or another. For us, it reads like a manual of discipline. If provision, peace, and presence define what blessing is, then this section defines for us what discipline is or at least what things God uses in disciplining us. NOTE THIS: Just because 1 or more of these things may be happening to you does not mean you've sinned and are being disciplined for it. If you're walking with God and get sick or have a loss, that's God's training ground in your life and He'll walk you through it. We're talking here about believers who are knowingly disobeying God and not walking with Him.

a. defeat, disease, and dread (14-17) He would let their enemies rule over them (NO PEACE), He would make them sick, and make them afraid. And what do you read just after Israel gets into her land in the book of Judges? You read how time after time she forsook God and God let oppressive nations rule over her. You read how Israelites hid themselves in rocks and caves from the fear of their enemies and threshed their grain at night so as not to be seen. And when you stop walking with God, the first thing you find is defeat. You try things but they don't work. You try to serve God but it doesn't succeed. You begin to live in dread and fear of your circumstances instead of victory because your peace is gone. 1 Cor. 11 tells us God may even allow you to get sick and have physical problems. In short, God begins to get your attention by messing up your life and making it miserable so you realize how much you need Him! Now if that doesn't work:

b. drought (18-20) Remember how much wickedness Ahab and Jezebel led Israel into in the days of Elijah? God shut up the heavens so there was no rain for 3 1/2 years. The ground got hard like iron and crops didn't grow. The brooks dried up. There was famine in the land and it didn't rain until Israel up on top of Mt. Carmel cried out, "The LORD, HE is God!" And that's what God does with us when we forsake Him; He begins to take away His provision and let us fend for ourselves. Maybe He takes away our job or makes us unable to work or lets some big expense come our way. Then comes:

c. deprivation (21-22) God would begin to take away things: their cattle, their children, things they held dear. He would deprive them of things dear to them. That happened in the days of Shamgar, the third judge of Israel before Deborah and Barak defeated the Canaanites. The roads were deserted and normal village life ceased. Travelers snuck through winding paths out of fear. So, God may begin to deprive us of the things we care about, begin to take them away to show us that we should care about Him more. Then comes:

d. devastation (23-26) Now it would not just be enemies ruling over them but enemies out to kill them and they would be forced to withdraw inside walled cities and be besieged and then impoverished as provisions ran out. God would back them into a corner so there was no other way to look but up! That's what God did with Jonah and that's what He'll do with us if He has to, back us into a set of circumstances where He is our only hope. And if that doesn't work:

e. degradation and destruction (27-31) In the siege of Samaria the famine was so great that women boiled and ate their own children! In the siege of Jerusalem, they did the same until the Babylonians broke through the wall and slew heaps of people and destroyed the people. God can let you get reduced pretty low when you backslide; He can let you degrade yourself with immorality, drugs, or alcohol, with low things. Then for Israel there was one final step:

f. dispersion (32-39) Read 33, 38-39. This ultimate discipline was fulfilled twice. First, God sent Israel to Babylon for 70 years to see if they would learn their lesson. But they didn't. They rejected His Son and so through the Romans in 70 AD God crushed the city and scattered the Jews to the winds. And they have remained in this diaspora, this dispersion nearly 2000 years. The final discipline for not behaving in the land was to be taken out of the land. And John says there is a sin unto death for believers. At the last, if we persist in backsliding, God can take us out of the world to prevent us from dishonoring His name any further.

Oh, isn't it better to be in the place of blessing than the place of discipline, to obey and to know peace and provision and His Presence than to forsake Him and know His discipline? But what if you have strayed away? What if you're backslidden and under His discipline right now? What can you do? Well, along with His discipline comes:

4. the process of repentance (40-46) God made a way back to the place of blessing. And no matter how far down the ladder of discipline you've gone, there are some rungs to climb back up. The first is:

a. confession of sins (40-41a) This is 1 John 1:9 spelled out in the Old Testament. God wants us simply to wake up and admit what we have done, how we have rebelled against Him. And it must be done in:

b. humility of heart (41b) It's pride that leads us into sin, thinking I can do what I jolly well want even though I belong to God. But it's humility that is the route to restoration, sorrow for what you've done, realization of how wrong it is. That's what God wants to see. Now there still may be some:

c. suffering of consequences (41b, 43) Don't think that just because you humble yourself and confess sin that all your problems brought on by discipline will vanish instantly! You may still have some things that God knows you need to go through because of what you've done. But eventually there is:

d. restoration of blessing (42, 44-45) Israel, no matter what they'd done, was still Israel and God's covenant with them still stood. He could not help but honor it. The door back to blessing was always open. So it is for us. No matter what we've done as His children, we're still His children and He can't forget that and so the door back to blessing, to peace and provision and His Presence, is always waiting and available to us.

A tourist in Scotland was driving along and saw a flock of sheep in a field. But one sheep was far away from the flock, limping along with a broken leg, bleating and crying. The tourist stopped and the shepherd came over. She asked what had happened to the lone sheep. With tears in his eyes the shepherd said "I had to break its leg. It always kept wandering away from the flock and I could not keep chasing it all the time. I find that when a sheep's leg is broken and I care for it and nurse it back to health, it always comes when I call." The sheep could either follow and be blessed or get its leg broken so it would be blessed later. Blessing as we've used it is not something that God arbitrarily chooses to give. It is something we determine. God stands ready with all the peace, provision, and Presence we need. Whether we get it or not is up to us. But I'll tell you one thing: it's a whole lot easier to follow and be blessed than to try the other route.

LEVITICUS: MY RELATIONSHIP WITH GOD

The Law Of Giving - Ch. 27

We're going to close our study of the Book of Leviticus the way the Lord closes it with a message on the subject of giving. This last section of the book has dealt with the Worship of God. We studied Israel's celebrations of worship, the feasts. We studied that worship is in the daily service you do for God; the way you live is a part of worship. And Ch. 27 stands here to tell us that giving is worship. I say that practically every Sunday at offering time but I don't know whether we fully grasp it. Let me ask: when you put that envelope or that money in the offering, do you stop and think, "I am giving this to God?" You ought to because that's what you're doing. In the same way that the Israelite brought an animal to the Tabernacle or the tithe of his crops to give to the Levites and that was worshipping God, so when you give out of your paycheck to the church or to missionaries, you are worshipping God! Now, the first 2/3 of the chapter talks about:

I. Things That You Can Dedicate To God (1-25) It speaks about vows that a person might make to voluntarily dedicate something to God, not because they had to or it was commanded, but when their heart moved them. Maybe God had blessed them in a special way (e.g., with an unexpected gift or a particularly good crop) and their heart was moved to voluntarily give something or dedicate it to God. Or perhaps there was concern; maybe they faced a problem or a difficulty and they wanted to be sure God knew how much they were depending on Him and so they would dedicate something to God, give it to Him. Aren't there times like that in your life, times when you are just moved to give to God? Maybe He touches your heart with the particular need of a visiting missionary. Maybe you get an unexpected blessing and your heart is moved to give part of it. Or maybe you're struggling and you want God to know you trust Him and so you promise to give to Him, not out of compulsion but because your heart loves God and you want to worship Him. Well, what can you dedicate to God? Almost anything but three things are mentioned here:

1. persons (1-8) The person could dedicate himself, a spouse, a child, or a servant to the Lord. Now I guess there was sometimes the option to actually take them to the Tabernacle and give them up to the Lord's service like Hannah did with her little boy Samuel, remember? But there was a problem with that: after while there would be hundreds of people all serving at the Tabernacle and needing to be cared for and fed. So instead of actually giving the person themselves, God established a system of equivalent values so that the person who genuinely wanted to worship God by dedicating themselves or someone to the Lord could do so by giving the equivalent value of their service in money. Now the thing that grabbed me was how expensive this was. A shekel was 2/5 of an ounce of silver and nobody really knows how much buying power that had in Moses' day. But later on, the shekel became an actual coin which was approximately a day's wages. So, at the equivalent of about $75/day that made a man in his prime worth almost $4000 and even a baby worth almost $400. Be honest. If we charged $400 to dedicate your children, how many of you would do it? Even if the rate was totally different, my point is that this was a serious thing. To dedicate a person usually meant laying out thousands of dollars. A person was of great value to God! But why the different values for different ages and sexes? I think you'll find here a:

a. principle: God values ability It seems to me God set the value by the amount of manual work they'd be able to do, infants, young people, and older people being able to do less than persons in the prime of adulthood. Now please don't think that if you can't do much, God doesn't love you as much or can't use you. But the lesson here is that your ability to serve has great value to God. A baby may be very precious to God but he can't do much to win the lost world. The prime years of your life, when you have the most capacity to serve are of great importance; it is important that you serve God during that time even though you continue at all times! Now let's make an:

b. application: God wants you What's the difference in the Old Testament between a person just deciding to give God $4000 as a gift or dedicating themselves to God and paying $4000. The point is in 2 Cor. 8:5. God doesn't just want your money; He wants you! He wants you dedicated to serving Him and then that will affect your giving. Are you dedicated to serve God however He leads, to do His will and be His servant every day? That's real worship! And have you dedicated your family the same way (I don't just mean in public but in your heart and mind!)? It's a serious thing!

2. possessions (9-13) In those days people's chief possessions were animals, not cars and computers and stereos. Wealth was most often measured in camels and cows. A clean animal, a sheep, goat, or bull could be given to God by devoting it as a sacrifice. An unclean animal like a camel or a pig obviously could not be sacrificed so it could be given to the priests or sold and the money put into the Tabernacle treasury. But the point to me is that you can dedicate your possessions to God. I guess you could do that outright by selling your favorite chair and putting the money in the plate. People have done that as God led and a special need was at hand. Or they have given their possessions to others with a need in Jesus' name. But I'm thinking even along the lines of dedicating to God the possessions you don't sell or give away. Telling Him "God this is your car; I'll use it as you tell me" and then being ready to give others a lift or telling Him "God this is your kitchen and your food" and being ready to feed somebody who needs it. But I don't want to miss here a:

a. principle: God counts what is vowed as His If you changed your mind, you couldn't take your animal back or swap it for another. What you promised to God He already counted as being His. If you tell God something is His, He takes you at your word so here's an:

b. application: don't promise and not give In Acts 5:4 you have the story of Ananias and Sapphira who sold a possession and pretended to give the whole of the proceeds to the Lord but they lied about the price so they could keep part of it back. Peter says "It was yours, nobody made you give it, even after you sold it nobody made you give it all but once you promised it all and then lied about it, you've lied to God!" God doesn't force you to give anything to Him. But don't promise God you're going to give and then not do it. Don't promise Him you'll use your car or your kitchen for Him and then not do it! God counts it His! Then you could dedicate:

3. property (14-25) Vs. 14-15 talk about giving God a house in a town. Vs. 16-25 talk about dedicating to Him a piece of property, a field from the inheritance of your fathers. Sure, you might donate property to the church or to a mission. But I wonder whether you've thought about dedicating your house to the Lord while you still live in it, telling Him it's His house and using it to win neighbors and to shelter those with a need. Now the problem with donating property is the same as with dedicating people. The priests would end up owning all the land. So, God set up a system of equivalent value where you continued to live on the land but you gave to the Lord a money value instead. Then in the Jubilee year when all land reverted to its original owner, it would become the priests' or if a redemption price was paid it would be kept by the owner. Now that money value thing is interesting and you can find in it a:

a. principle: time limits usability The dedication price was figured on the number of years remaining until the Jubilee when it would be released. For every year that passed the value to God was less. Time limits usability. That is true of your life. It is true of your possessions. The less time God has to use it, the less value it has to Him and His purposes. So, let's make an:

b. application: the importance of now Now is the time to give whatever you're going to give to God, whether yourself or your possessions. Tomorrow it will do Him one day less good. Compare Eph. 5:15-16. The KJV says redeeming the time! "Lord, someday I'm going to get saved, someday I'm going to get baptized, someday I'm going to really start giving, someday I'm going to serve You..." NOOO! Now! Today! This is the most important time of your life and if God moves your heart to dedicate something to Him for His use, do it now! But did you know there are some things you can't dedicate to God? The rest of the chapter tells us about those. They are:

II. Things That Already Belong To God (26-34) You can't promise to give God voluntarily something that He has already laid claim to and is His. If I loan you a tool and over the years you forget whose it is and think it's yours and then you come to me and say "I'd like to give this to you as a present!", wouldn't that be ludicrous? Some things are already God's like:

1. His portion of your income Now Israelites did not get paychecks usually. Their income was in the form of baby animals that were born and crops that were harvested. Can you imagine if they had income taxes? "Dear IRS, enclosed is one baby goat; keep the change!" But on that income God had already staked a claim. He claimed:

a. the firstborn of animals (26-27) The first offspring of every animal was claimed by God. By this God taught them PRIORITY. The first part of what they got was His, not the leftovers! Second, He claimed:

b. the tithe of crops and animals (30-34) 1/10 of all the grain harvested, of all the grapes picked, of all the fruit picked and 1 in every ten animals, these things were God's, not voluntary but required. And by this God emphasized AMOUNT. He didn't claim just an occasional tidbit but a tenth of everything they got, a serious requirement. But the point is that these things were not given, they were claimed; they were already God's. Voluntary giving started only over and above these things. Now let me make it clear that we do not live under the law. You cannot show me anywhere in the New Testament where it says that we as believers must give a certain required percentage of our income to God. But I do believe that God has a prior claim to part of everything you get. I don't pretend to know what that part is. But I know this command: 1 Cor. 16:2. There is a portion which you and God need to work out, which you need to give every week to God's work somehow. I think it needs to be set aside from your income first as belonging to God before anything else is done and I think it needs to be a significant amount of what He gives you. I always say that if God required 10% of His Old Testament people who saw only through a glass darkly, how much more will He expect of us who see clearly His love in Jesus Christ. I strongly believe that that first significant part is His. You can't offer it to Him. It's His already. Your special dedications and offerings are above that. We'll let vs. 28-29 go because they deal with a special kind of vow or curse, in Heb. the herem, which often means "devoted to destruction", under which certain things could be placed and I've given you in your outline two references to check out.

2. His devoted things (28-29)

a. things He claimed for His own - Num. 18:14-17

b. things devoted to destruction- Josh. 6:17-19, 7:1

Just let me point out again that giving is worship. Their worship began by giving what God required. But it was completed as they gave beyond that from their hearts to Him. Years ago, it was the custom for people to bring their gifts to the front of the church building. A preacher was making an appeal for people to give for a good cause. Many came to present their offerings, among them, a little crippled girl who hobbled along at the end of the line. Pulling a ring from her finger, she placed it on the table and went back up the aisle. After the service an usher was sent to bring her to the preacher's study. He said, "My dear, I saw what you did. It was beautiful, but the response of the people has been so generous that we have enough to take care of the need. We don't feel right about keeping your treasured ring, so we've decided to give it back to you." To his surprise the little girl vigorously shook her head in refusal. "You don't understand," she said. "I didn't give my ring to you; I gave it to God!" That's what I want you to understand. You don't give to me or to the church. Real giving is worship. Giving is to God. Are you worshipping God genuinely in this way?

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Numbers, like Leviticus which precedes it, is a pretty much forgotten book. It gets its English name from the Greek and Latin titles which were given because in it the people of Israel were counted. But the Hebrews name it more appropriately by its third word: b'midbar which means in the wilderness (NIV desert). It is the record of Israel's experiences in the wilderness. Or to put it another way, it is the record of Israel's journey from Mt. Sinai to the edge of Canaan, from the time of their redemption to the time they actually entered and enjoyed the land and the life they had been promised by God, what they had really been redeemed for. So it was a record of their passing through a stage, a temporary experience, a tent-kind of experience where God never intended for them to stay but which was dragged out to 40 years. Now if you go to the Book of Numbers and the only thing you see there is historical record, it will be extremely boring and useless to you. What I hope to show you is that God intended this book to be a picture that relates to your life and when you read it that way, you'll find some life-changing truths here. So before we actually look into the text, let me give you somewhat of an:

I. Introduction To The Book First we must think about:

1. what preceded the journey Numbers is set in a particular chronological sequence event-wise between the events of the books of Exodus and Joshua. The books of Leviticus and Deuteronomy are sit-still books; they are books of teaching but no time passes in the history of Israel during them. When Exodus ends, Numbers begins; when Numbers ends, Joshua begins. So let's back up. God has done 3 great things in Israel's life as a nation that precede this wilderness experience:

a. the Exodus God brought them out of slavery in Egypt through the shed blood of the Passover Lamb and passing through the Red Sea. That was their REDEMPTION. And it pictures ours. We are redeemed people, bought out of the slavery of sin by the blood of the Lamb shed at Calvary and buried with Him through the Spirit's baptizing us into the Body of Christ. Then they came to:

b. Mt. Sinai where God gave them the Law and made His Covenant with them which stated "I will be your God and you shall be my people". Here God put them into a new RELATIONSHIP with Himself. And so God has given us a new relationship with Himself through Christ; we are His sons and daughters, His children, bound into an eternal relationship with Him through the New Covenant. But there's another thing of importance that happened and that was:

c. the Tabernacle God let them stay about 2 years around Mt. Sinai and it was during that time that He gave them instructions and had them build a Tabernacle, a place where He would dwell in the midst of the camp. He would no longer just be a God who was above them controlling or around them protecting but a God in their midst INDWELLING them! And of course that pictures the glorious fact that at salvation we are also indwelt personally by Christ and the Holy Spirit; God comes to dwell, no longer outside of us, but in our very being, joined to our spirit as one. So now here they are, redeemed, related, and indwelt and they are ready to move on. To what? To Canaan, the land of promise. Now most often Christians think of Canaan as heaven and so the wilderness represents our journey through this life. The hymns say so. But think for a minute. When they get to Canaan in Joshua, what do they experience? Peace, plenty, rest, solitude? NO, WARFARE! And if that's what heaven's like, I don't want to go! And I'll tell you what else, if what I see in Numbers represents what my life on earth is going to be like, kill me now! It's miserable! If you think about it, you'll see here another way of looking at:

2. the symbolism of the journey Now to understand it, we need some New Testament background. And there Paul tells us that there are:

a. two stages of Christian life - 1 Cor. 3:1-4 The NIV says "worldly" but the KJV has a better word: carnal. Carnal and spiritual. He parallels it to the phases of life of a human being. There is infancy and adulthood. You are not born for infancy. You are not born to stay a baby. It is meant to be a temporary passing experience. In fact if you stay an infant, you're sick; you're diseased. So for us spiritually, there is an infancy and an adulthood. Now what is the chief characteristic of infancy? Self-centeredness! The infant's world centers around himself and what he wants and desires. That's the way the Corinthians were living: fighting and bickering and getting ahead of one another in everything. They were saved but living basically no differently than unsaved people, acting like "mere men" ie. like unsaved people act. And Paul calls this phase:

(1) carnal: life controlled by flesh (self) And this is how many, many Christians are living daily. They understand salvation as being for the future. They've been to Sinai and have a nice list of things they know they're supposed to act like but they really don't. They try and fail alot and give up. Sounds like Israel in Numbers, doesn't it? But there's a second stage which Paul calls:

(2) spiritual: life controlled by Holy Spirit This is when God has taken absolute control of their life and is living out in it His purpose so that the person's life is displaying the fruit or the result of the Holy Spirit's activity. This is spiritual adulthood. This is Israel in the book of Joshua, now living a different life, dependent on God and His power, following His direction at every step and experiencing one victory after another. And that is the Promised Life God has saved us for, a life controlled completely by Him, serving His purpose, revealing His glory to the world. So let's look again at:

b. the relationship to Israel's experience - 1 Cor. 10:1-6,11 Notice he mentions their priveleges of redemption and even refers to the Red Sea experience as a baptism. And then he goes on to mention particularly the wilderness experience, the Book of Numbers, and some of the experiences and backslidings there. And his comment is that God ordered these things to be illustrations for us. That is not a good word. It is literally "types", Old Testament prefigurings. Now the average person comes to Numbers and says "They did this and those things were wicked; I must not do those things". And that's true, but it is not just the individual events that are a type but the whole wilderness experience. Look at the chart in your outline:

Egypt----->	Exodus----->	Wilderness----->	Canaan
unsaved	saved	carnal	spiritual dead	alive	flesh control	Holy Spirit control

The whole time they lived in the wilderness, they lived in a carnal state, acting under the will of their own flesh, time after time. But once they crossed Jordan they lived out the will of God. They became spiritual people. And that's where God wants us. He doesn't want us to stay in the baby Christian, carnal state all our lives. He wants us to make the journey to the life lived under the control of the Holy Spirit, to the life He saved us to live, the abundant life, the life that counts for eternal things. Now notice:

3. the characteristics of the journey

a. it was lengthened by choice, not design The distance they had to travel was short. It was only a short time until they arrived at Kadesh Barnea at the border of the Promised Land. But they chose to turn back, to live the kind of life they wanted to live, to turn back in their hearts to Egypt, to the unsaved life and it kept them in the wilderness

40 years. God never intended for it to take years and years for you to experience the kind of mature Spirit-oriented life He planned for you, but you can choose to drag it out! You can choose to live a wilderness existence all your life and still be saved but God never planned it that way.

b. it was characterized by failure, not victory If I had to choose one word to sum up the Book of Numbers it would be "failure". Time and time again Israel failed to be what they were: God's people. Then they would repent but it would happen all over again, a roller-coaster experience. Any victory they had was only brief and fleeting. If you choose to stay carnal, you're choosing failure; you're choosing a roller-coaster of obedience and disobedience, ups and downs, not at all the kind of life that God can use to accomplish His will! So in the first 9 chapters God laid out the principles for this journey, the principles which (if they would learn them) would take them to the life of victory God wanted them to have. I gave you a brief outline of this first section of the book. So let's quickly look at:

II. The First Principle: Christ's Centrality - Chs. 1-2 The first lesson we have to learn is that Christ wants to be at the center of all we are and all we do. That's what He showed Israel. We're not going to begin to attempt to read through these chapters verse by verse, but notice 2 key things:

1. the numbering of the people (ch. 1, compare vs. 1-3) God commanded a census to be taken and gave Moses 12 helpers to count and the rest of the chapter tells us the results, 603,550 men over age 20 able to be in God's army. It would be easy to leave this record without asking, "So what?" Let me point out two things:

a. they knew their ancestry (17-19) The people knew their ancestry. They knew which family they belonged to and how that traced back to Jacob. So they could confidently say they belonged to God; they were part of His people. They knew it. And God wants us to have that same kind of ASSURANCE that we are saved, that we belong to Him. Without that assurance we'll never have the life God wants us to have. If you don't have it, talk to me afterward! The second thing God did in this numbering was:

b. God indicated His purpose (45) - SERVICE God wasn't out to put the Israelites in paradise on earth to enjoy it and get their wants and desires met. He wanted an ARMY. He had a job to do. He had foes to vanquish and territory to take. I'm tired of people painting the Christian life with this "God'll give you everything you want" message. The Christian life is not about you; it's about God and what He wants. And what He wants is an ARMY to carry out His will, to take the Gospel to every living person on earth in this generation and reveal His glory to every living creature. When you come under the control of the Holy Spirit and are living that way, that's where you'll find yourself: SERVING GOD! Now the second important thing to notice here is:

2. the arrangement of the camp (ch. 2, compare vs. 34) This verse is the summary of the chapter. It tells how Israel camped when they were at rest and how they marched when they were on the move. We're not going to read it but here's the summary. (E,S,W,N - 1st,2nd,3rd,4th - vs. 3,10,18,25) Now notice where God's presence (the Tabernacle) always is: AT THE CENTER! And that's where Christ wants to be in our life. When He's at the center, we live the life He wants. When He isn't, we live a carnal life. Now each of these pictures makes a point:

a. when resting: Christ is central to our life (2:2) Look at the diagram. God wanted to be at the center! Listen to what Paul says, compare Phil. 1:21, Col. 3:4. He doesn't just want to be a piece of your life or a part of your life. He wants to BE your life. He wants to be the center and the core and the source in such a way that your life becomes His life or rather that His life becomes your life! And then capture this thought:

b. when moving: Christ is central to our service (2:17) When they moved out, God still stayed in the middle. And Christ wants to be central to our serving and the activities of our life too. Compare Gal. 2:20. The life you live is to be lived by Him as you completely trust in Him. It's not that you do something and ask Him for help. He wants to be at the very center and core of all you do!

Now it's time to quit but just let me ask you a question: Where is your life? Which kind of life are you living, the wilderness life, the carnal life which centers around you or the spirit-controlled life that God saved you for? Well, if you're ever going to live it, this is the thing you must grasp first: Christ is central to your life and service. He is your very life.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Principles: The Dynamic of Service - Chs. 3-4

Chapters 1-2 picture us as God's WARRIORS; chapters 3-4 picture us as His WORKERS. 1-2 teach us that Christ indwells us and is central to our life and our service; 3-4 explain to us the dynamic of that service. Most of us think of service like this: I do something for God. It is precisely that thinking that keeps us living a wilderness life, a carnal life, a life lived under the direction and power of the flesh, of self. Service is us making ourselves a channel through which God can work to accomplish His purpose in the world. Chs. 3-4 are about the only tribe omitted in the census of 1-2, the Levites. But before we get into the text, I want to show you:

I. The Lesson of the Levites The tribe of Levi occupied a very special position within Israel. They were wholly given over to the service of God's tabernacle. And as such we can see:

1. their picture in serving: us - Num. 8:10 says that before they could serve, the rest of the Israelites came and laid their hands on their heads. That's a symbol of identification. It said, "You serve in my place; you represent me; your service to God represents my service to God". 3:7 says the same. So all of Israel was not only God's army but also God's servants and the service of the Levites pictures in miniature how God sees the service of all. And God has chosen to call US Levites. The church is a Kingdom of Priests and a holy nation. Peter says priests are first levites and then Aaronites! If Israel as a whole pictures us as God's people, then the Levites picture us as God's workers.

2. their platform: grace - Gen. 49:5-7 Why on earth did God ever choose the tribe of Levi to be His workers? Look at their past. Their father Levi was cruel and vicious. He and his brother murdered an entire town over the defiling of their sister Tamar. God did not want to be close to them. He chose to scatter them in Israel and not give to them a set inheritance like the other tribes. Yet this is the tribe that came to have the high and holy privilege of serving God, of touching what no others could touch! How? Grace! It is only by the grace of God that I am God's servant, that I can work for Him! I was lost and dead in trespasses and sins before my redemption, an enemy of God. My platform of service is the same as my salvation; it is all of grace! Well, what changed them? Of course, the redemption of the Exodus but look further at:

3. their preparation: surrender - Ex. 32:25-29 There came a time when God called, "Who is on the Lord's side?" The camp was filled with idolatry and God needed somebody, somebody who was absolutely surrendered to Him, somebody who loved Him more than father, mother, sister, and brother, who would turn and kill his own idolatrous brethren. And the Levites said "Here I am!" to a man. It was that act of surrender that set them apart to God among all the people, that surrender of everything near and dear, that commitment to obey God no matter what the cost. And that is also our preparation for service: absolute surrender. Until you come to the place where you say "Lord, I will do whatever you want me to do; I give up all rights to direct my life and choose my course", you are not really serving God, you're just doing something for Him and it will be a wilderness kind of service, up and down, not the victorious service of Canaan.

4. their principle: dependence - Num. 8:5-11 For now let me just point out one simple thing. Before they could serve, they had to shave! First they were sprinkled with the special water of cleansing so the shaving symbolized the result of the sprinkling. As a result of the cleansing Christ has done in us, we are to remove from ourselves everything of the natural. We are to cast ourselves totally on Him, to serve Him not on the basis of our own strength and abilities, but on the basis of His cleansing power which is in us. And then note:

5. their performance: faithful and fruitful We don't have time to look up these references but I wish you would later: Num. 25:7-13, Mal. 2:4-6, Deut. 33:8-11. It was a Levite who stood up for God when Israel sinned with the Midianite women and because of that God made a special covenant of peace with the tribe of Levi. Malachi even refers to it and warns them not to violate it. And Moses in his dying remarks indicates that Levi has been used to teach righteousness and will be. So the Levites turned out to be both faithful and fruitful and so will you if you follow these principles for service. So with this basis, let's look at:

II. The Service of the Levites (ch. 3) The pattern I want to follow in the rest of this message is to draw some facts out of the text and then to look at the lessons for us later. We'll begin with:

1. the gift of the Levites Chapter 3 says that the tribe of Levi was actually a gift in two respects:

a. to the priests (1-10) Read 5. They were given to the priests to assist them. Why? How many priests were there? V.4 tells us: only 3! They needed help to offer the sacrifices for 2-3 million people! So God gave the Levites as a gift to the High Priest Aaron. Read 9. To do his work. And the Father has given us to our High Priest, the Son, to do His work. We are a gift to Jesus from the Father that His work on earth might be accomplished! More later. They were also a gift:

b. to the Lord (11-13) They were claimed by the Lord on behalf of, or in the place of, all the firstborn sons that were spared in the tenth plague. They were given to the Lord to be wholly dedicated to His service by the claim of their redemption. And Hebrews calls us the church of the first-born; our whole assembly, all of us, are first-born, all laid claim to by God to be wholly dedicated to His service. And verses 40-51 go on to tell us how God had every Levite from a month old counted and had all the firstborn of the tribes counted and made the numbers match by making the extra firstborn pay a silver redemption price. The point is clear: God has laid claim to service from every last Israelite, from every last one of us. Not one is exempt!

2. the organization of the Levites (14-20, 39) There were 3 families or clans and God organized them. He gave each a particular place to camp and a particular responsibility.

- a. Gershon - 7500 - West (21-26)
- b. Kohath - 8600 - South (27-32)
- c. Merari - 6200 - North (33-37)
- d. priests - 6 - East (38)

Now let's leave that for a moment and look at:

3. the lessons from the Levites First:

a. our service accomplishes His work If we are the Father's gift to the Son, then we have a purpose in living. We are here to accomplish His work; our work is His and His ours. The New Testament has another analogy for that:

(1) we are His body Compare Eph. 1:22. Christ could not accomplish all His work from heaven. He needed a visible body on earth and you and I are that body, given to Him to carry out the work He wishes to do. And that means:

(2) we are under His direction We don't come to God and tell Him what we'll do. We're His to direct. He's the Head and He has the brains and He knows what needs done. We're the body; we carry out the instructions just as surely as Aaron said to the individual Levite "put that over there, skin this animal here, etc." And further we learn that:

b. our service was claimed at the cross - 1 Cor. 6:19-20 We don't belong to ourselves anymore. Christ bought us at the cross, lock stock and barrel, every part of us and we have only one purpose in life, to use all of our faculties to glorify God. And how do we do that? They did it by carrying the Tabernacle around through the wilderness which represented the presence of God. We do it by bearing about in our body the Lord Jesus Christ and displaying Him to others! That is the work we have been claimed for! And so:

(1) we are ALL appointed to service Service is not for some, or for those who want to. God has a place for you to serve, a work for you to do. Every believer has a place of work in God's economy and that means YOU! Have you found it yet? And note:

(2) it is a responsibility (25,31) Note the phrase, they were responsible for the care of... Serving God is not an option. It is a responsibility that comes with salvation. God places certain pieces of His work under your care. If you don't do it, God holds you responsible!

III. The Work of the Levites (ch. 4) In this chapter we find:

1. the divisions of service The actual service of each clan was spelled out and specified:

a. the Kohathites - the holy things (1-20) read 4 - They are to carry the holy things, the ark, the table, the altar, the incense altar, after the priests cover them properly.

b. the Gershonites - the curtains (21-28) read 24 - They carried all the cloth materials of the Tabernacle, the outer cloth wall of the courtyard, the 4 curtains that covered the inner wooden sanctuary, etc.

c. the Merarites - the wood and metal (29-33) read 31 - They carried the boards of the inner tabernacle, the posts, the stakes, and all the other heavy materials. And finally you have:

d. the counting of the workers (34-49) read 46-49 The difference here is that only those from 30-50 years old are counted. So only 8500 Levites actually participated in the carrying of the Tabernacle. Now what's important here is:

2. the lessons about service

a. our service is not our choice God had a special assignment for each one. They didn't volunteer, nor choose. We don't come to God and tell Him what we'd like to do for Him. We come to Him and say "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" We set a poor example when we ask our child, "What do you want to be?". It's, "What does God want you to be?!"

b. our service is diverse Some carried tent pegs. Others carried cloth items. Others carried the handles of the holy objects. Not everybody did the same thing. I'm reminded of 1 Cor. 12 and the diversity of the gifts. There are lots of ways to serve God and they are as different as can be but:

c. our service is interdependent The Kohathites could show up with the ark but if the Merarites weren't there with the tent pegs, the whole thing would fall apart. Some folks got to carry one small pin, others a holy object. Yet every part was necessary and fit together to make a whole. Eph. 4 says that in the body of Christ every joint supplies a part to make up the whole. Every service is needed and depends on our working together.

d. our service is a precious privilege No matter how menial it may have seemed to carry a pothook, they were carrying the dwelling place of the King of Kings. There was no higher service, not in Egypt or Canaan. To be a doorkeeper in the tent of our God is a precious privilege, unknown to the world. What a privilege to bear about the Lord Jesus and to reveal Him to others by our humble, Christ-directed service! And so:

e. our service should bring contentment We don't have to envy one another. The foot doesn't have to envy the hand. The Gershonite doesn't have to envy the Kohathite. We should be content to serve at His direction wherever He places us. What counts in life is not how great a thing you are able to do but how faithful you are at doing the thing God has given you to do.

What is it for you my friend? Are you absolutely surrendered and yielded and letting Him direct you, serving in His strength, doing your small part? Then rest in it and hear His words, Well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will put thee in charge of many things. Enter into the joy of Thy Lord.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Principles: The Maintenance of Purity - Ch. 5

Now let me refresh your memory a bit. Numbers is the story of Israel's journey through the wilderness to the promised life God had for them. It is therefore the story of our journey to the victorious, spirit-controlled, Christ-centered life God has designed for us. In the first 10 chapters God is laying down to Israel some basic principles for their journey and thereby some basic principles we must learn in order to live the life God has planned for us to live. Chs. 1-2 taught us the principle of the centrality of Christ; He must be the center and source of everything we do and are. Chs. 3-4 taught us the dynamic of service, that God has chosen all of us to service on the basis of His grace and called us to a particular place of ministry. Tonite we'll see in ch. 5 the third principle: purity. In order to have a spirit-controlled life, we must be pure. There is no way around it. Now the first thing we notice here is:

I. The Basis of Purity (3) Israel had to be pure, not simply because God had given them some rules to follow, but because His presence was in their midst. The fact was simple: no purity, no Presence. If you want the Presence, there must be purity. Light and darkness cannot coexist. I'm not saying that you'll never sin when you live under the Spirit's control. I'm saying that for the Spirit of God to rule and control your life, there must be purity. Known and harbored sin must go. It must be removed. You see:

1. we are corporately indwelt by God - 1 Cor. 3:16 This verse is not about us as individuals. God dwelt in the midst of the camp of Israel. Today He dwells in the midst of His church, wherever two or three are gathered in His name. To keep His presence in the midst, the group must maintain its purity (more later on). But since Israel is a picture of us as individuals, note that:

2. we are individually indwelt by God - 1 Cor. 6:19 Individually and personally Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit actually dwell inside of us. Think about that. Thrice holy God who is of purer eyes than to behold evil lives inside me. Now I know He's not leaving, but I also know that I cannot expect His presence to fill and control every part of me while I am at the same time letting sin reign in my mortal body and yielding my members as instruments thereof. It won't work. There must be a maintaining of purity. and so we see in this chapter:

II. Three Kinds of Purity First there is a section dealing with:

1. physical purity: the law of disease (1-4) All of those who had certain types of disease or defilement had to leave the main camp and live alone outside it. On the surface this sounds cruel and much like ill treatment of the sick. But there is a very:

a. the practical reason for this law: protection From our standpoint we can see what was going on. The KJV word leprosy covers any kind of rash, swelling, growth, etc., any kind of infectious skin disease. This whole ordinance was an ordinance for the quarantine of disease. People who had contracted what we now know as possibly contagious things were isolated from contact with the population until they were healed. God was protecting His people from epidemic. But there is also:

b. the spiritual lesson of this law: sin Everywhere in the Bible disease is a picture of sin, not that sick people have sinned, but their exclusion from God's camp and from the Tabernacle are a spiritual picture for us that no unclean person, no person defiled by sin, can come into the presence of our Holy God. Instead, the sin has to be removed, taken outside the camp! Now in the second section we find the subject of:

2. moral purity: the law of restitution (5-10) Here God talks about what happens when somebody does wrong to another person, steals from them, lies to them, etc. There are really two general lessons here:

a. the practical effect: relationships God would not tolerate sin in the area of relationships. It could not be held and harbored. It had to be dealt with. There had to be purity in relationships with other people. And if you want the life God wants for you, you have to be pure in your relationships with others. You have to have moral purity. And here's something else neat:

b. the spiritual lesson: unfaithfulness (6) When you wrong somebody else, you're being unfaithful to the Lord. Did you know that? It's not just between the two of you. You are being unfaithful to Him, to His Word, to His presence in You. And so it must be purified. Then the third area in this chapter is:

3. marital purity: the law of jealousy (11-31) We won't take time to read all of this, only 11-14. Here's what the priest would do. He would take dust from the tabernacle floor and mix it with holy water to make a kind of spiritual milkshake and make the woman drink it after taking an oath before God. If she was faithful, it would have no effect. But if she was guilty her thigh would waste away and her abdomen swell. I guess we're not sure exactly what this means, but perhaps it means she would never be able to have children. However you can see here:

a. the practical application about marriage God evidently doesn't want any doubt or suspicion to exist in the marriage relationship. He doesn't want any jealousy to exist without cause. He doesn't want any unfaithfulness to exist nor to go undetected. God's intent is that your marriage relationship be one of absolute fidelity and trust. But there is also here:

b. the spiritual application of marriage Throughout the Old Testament God pictures Himself as Israel's husband and her as His wife. And He further describes Himself as a jealous God. He will not tolerate any unfaithfulness on Israel's part toward any other god! Nor will He on our part! He is a jealous husband! Now let me briefly ask you to notice here:

III. Three Levels of Purity

1. removing sin obvious to all In the case of the diseased person, the picture is one of sin obvious and up front, seen by all. That must be removed. So in our lives. Sin that is seen and known by others must be put away. But that is not enough.

2. removing sin hidden from view In the case of the one who wrongs another, it does not say "when he is caught". It says "he must confess..." It is sin that was hidden from view, sin which the person to this point had managed to keep hidden. That sin has to go from our lives too to have real purity. But that's not all:

3. removing sin only suspected In the case of the jealous husband, God does not tolerate even the suspicion of sin. Purity means there is no room in our lives for even having a wrong attitude or a false suspicion toward another. That too must go. Purity is purity. And God wants us to be PURE. To receive the full blessing of God's presence and control in our lives we have to be willing to let Him really search our hearts and clean house! Then lastly in these three laws we also find:

IV. Three Principles of Purity which are illustrated for us here in the life of Israel but are clearly delineated for us in the New Testament. They tell us the ways purity is accomplished in our lives. The first is the principle of:

1. corporate judgment God accomplishes purity in us through the corporate body of His people to which we belong, the local church, in the same way He did in Israel.

a. the community removes the unclean party (3a) It was the responsibility of the body to send the unclean outside the camp to prevent the contamination of the others. It was the body's responsibility to protect its own purity. And here's the reason:

b. the unclean party defiles the whole (3b) How? In two ways. First by contamination. Sin spreads and multiplies. Evil company corrupts good morals. If the body tolerates sin, it will spread to others. But secondly, if a part of the body is unclean, the whole is defiled. We are a unity, a body. And one corrupt part corrupts the whole before God, just as Achan's sin defiled Israel as a whole in the book of Joshua. Compare 1 Cor. 5:1-7. This teaches the very same principle, that the church body must purify itself by putting out those individuals involved in gross sin because a little leaven leavens the whole lump. And I don't think this passage means that we should wait until someone is living with his mother before we deal with them. There are other commands about confronting our brother and admonishing and rebuking and correcting. When the body is doing its job, it helps to keep us pure. But then there is the principle of:

2. individual self-judgment You can see here that if the individual who wrongs another deals with his sin, the community wouldn't have to deal with it. Compare 1 Cor. 11:31. This is what God also tells us. If we judge ourselves, God doesn't have to discipline us and neither does the community we are part of. Every one of us maintains our purity in this way. And here is the process you use:

a. confession - I admit my sin (7a) and in this context it is not talking about admitting it to God privately. It means to the party you wronged. Removing sin begins with owning up to those you wronged and with it goes:

b. restitution - I correct my sin (7b) Notice under the law that the repayment was 120%. I don't think you can mandate that in the New Testament but I think we can learn that it is not enough to apologize. We must correct what we did. And we must be generous in doing it, thinking of the hurt and inconvenience it caused the person! Now some things aren't correctable by payment. It is not always so simple. Sometimes it means going back and correcting rumors you passed, etc. But then and only then is there:

c. atonement - I am forgiven for my sin (8) Then the trespass offering is acceptable to God and forgiveness comes. This is the part some of us leave off. It is not enough to deal with the person. We have to deal with God. We have to then come and confess our sin to Him and ask His forgiveness on the basis of our Trespass Offering the Lord Jesus Christ. Then finally there is the principle of:

3. Divine judgment Those things with which we do not deal and the community does not deal, God will deal with, even for believers. Compare 2 Cor. 5:10. We're all going to stand before Him. He sees all that is going on; He knows. Now the law of jealousy teaches us that:

a. some judgment we must leave to God (11-16) Sometimes there is no way to know if there is sin in a person's life, to know if they're being honest or not. In those cases, though you can't administer a direct test like this one, you must still leave the judgment up to God and remember this:

b. God's judgment cannot be avoided (21-22) Once the woman drank the water, that was it. There was no escaping judgment for sin whether anybody else knew or not. When we stand before Him, we can rest assured that all things are naked and open before the eyes of Him with whom we have to do! That ought to move us to want purity just as much as knowing those things are keeping us from the victorious abundant life God wants us to live.

In closing let me just emphasize this: there is no being full of the Spirit without purity. There is no Christ-centered life without purity. There is no abundant, victorious life, no spirituality, no maturity without purity. How is it in your life, my friend? What is it that has to go? Get rid of it. It's not worth letting it keep you from the life you were saved for!

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Principles: The Concept of Giving Chs. 6-8

At first glance, you might wonder what these three chapters have to do with each other. Chapter 6 is about the Nazirites, chapter 7 is the record of an offering, and chapter 8 is the dedication of the Levites. Well, the thread that pulls them together is the concept of giving. Each chapter deals with a different aspect of the giving that God expects from us. The promised life God has for us, the Canaan life, the life where He is in full control and we walk in victory, is not a life of receiving; it is a life of giving, a life of perpetual giving! And as the prayer of St. Francis says, "It is in giving that we receive." People living a carnal, self-centered life have the idea that blessing is receiving. God is blessing them if good things happen or if they get a gift or if they get everything they want. But Paul tells us in Acts 20:35 that Jesus said, It is more blessed to give than to receive. The happiness and the joy and the blessing is not in the getting nearly as much as in the giving! So the spiritual life, the life controlled by the Spirit, is a life that reflects the life of God who is by nature a giving God and we will not have the life He wants to give us until we adopt and enact His concept of giving. Now there are three aspects of my giving dealt with here. The first is:

I. Giving My Will For His Purpose: The Nazirite - Ch. 6 There was a special vow that one could voluntarily enter under the law called the Nazirite vow. It was a vow of special consecration to God for a period of time and in this vow is a picture of what God wants of me. Now let me ask you a question. Was Jesus a Nazirite? No, He was a Nazarene (the English letter Z is a different Hebrew letter in each word), a person hailing from Nazareth. He did things a Nazirite was forbidden to do: He drank wine, He touched the dead, and, as far as we can tell, cut his hair like everyone else. The only Nazirite we have any real record of in Scripture is Samson who broke all of his vows and is a terrible example. Yet Jesus who was not a Nazirite by the Law was in another sense the only true Nazirite that ever lived, a person wholly consecrated to God. So let's talk about:

1. the meaning of self-consecration (1-2) The Hebrew nazar means to separate or set apart. The Nazirite was one who promised to set himself apart from certain things that the other Israelites did unto God and His purpose. It was not a matter of purification, of eliminating sin like we saw in chapter 5; it was an above and beyond what was required kind of thing, a voluntary giving over of self to God. And so we learn here a lesson about consecration to God:

a. it is not the elimination of what is wrong That's purification; that's mandatory. That's commanded. That is a matter of obedience. That is a bottom line, required necessity, which if you fail to obey, God has to discipline you for. It is not that but rather:

b. it is the setting aside of good for better It is the willingness to put aside that which is OK, that which everybody else is doing and enjoying, that which is even good, in order to follow the will and purpose of God which is better. If we would really get hold of that concept it would solve a thousand of those little "Is it right to do this?" questions. For a consecrated person, that is not the question. The question is, "Does God want me to do this; is this His plan in my life?" Those are two entirely different questions. It might be perfectly OK, absolutely alright, but totally out of God's will for you. So let's look at the three aspects of the actual vow and get a more concrete idea of:

2. the areas of self-consecration Consecration means I am willing to give up:

a. my joy for His purpose (3-4) The Nazirite could have nothing whatever to do with wine, from the seed to the plant to the liquid. Now wine in the Bible is usually in the Old Testament a symbol of joy, compare Ps. 104:15. Wine gladdens the heart. You'll find that repeatedly. The epitome of joy in Israel was a feast, not to get drunk, but to enjoy the bounty of the land and rejoice in God's blessing. And the good wine is said to make the heart merry. That was OK for everybody else but not for the Nazirite. He had to be willing to give up what would please him in the flesh for that which pleased God, for God's purpose. That's what God wants of us: a willingness to set aside the things I like, that please me, that I have my heart set on, to do what pleases Him, what serves His purpose. For example, there are an awful lot of missionaries who would rather be home enjoying their families in the States like the rest of us but have chosen to do God's will. They've chosen the better part. Jesus talked about giving up houses and lands and family for Him. That's consecration. But it also involves giving up:

b. my dignity for His purpose (5) Somehow we always picture people from ancient times as having long hair. That is not so. It seems to have been normal for men to cut their hair short in one degree or other for most of recorded history. The Nazirite was abnormal. He didn't do what other men did; he left his hair grow uncut. Now compare 1 Cor. 11:14. Paul said that it is by nature a disgrace or an indignity for a man to have long hair like a woman in his day. Yet that's what God commanded the Nazirite: to look different from everyone else, to lay down the dignity of how he'd like to look, of being like everyone else, to be obedient to His purpose. And that's what God wants of us, to be willing to give up the right to look good in the eyes of everybody else, to be willing to be different and to appear shameful or despised to do His will. Hudson Taylor took it literally; in China he dressed and looked like the Chinese to reach them, something few understood at the time. What is it in your life that may be beneath your dignity, that others may not understand and mock you for, but you know God wants you to do it? And then consecration means giving up:

c. my dearest ties for His purpose (6-8) Now you have to understand what this means. To us death is so far removed and the thought of touching a dead body is repulsive. But it was not so then. It was the loved ones who washed the body and prepared it for burial. That was an honor and a duty. And it's natural. If your husband or wife died suddenly, would you not touch the body just because they're dead? Sure you would. But not the Nazirite. No matter who it was or how much he loved them, he could never touch them again. God's purpose and will had to be more important to him than the dearest of human relationships. Compare Lk. 9:59-62. Consecration to Jesus means willingness to part from an aging father or maybe not getting the chance to say goodbye to family. It means loving and obeying Him above every human tie.

But what about when you fail? Nobody maintains that level of consecration every moment. The Nazirite vow was only temporary and for a time and then the person could go back to normal life like everybody else. Well, let's talk about:

3. the failure of self-consecration (9-12) God had a provision for the Nazirite. When he broke his vow accidentally, he could start over. God could forgive and his vow would not be violated. I would just point out two things:

a. once the vow was made, failure was sin Accidental or intentional didn't matter. What wasn't wrong before the consecration was now wrong! The consecrated person is now living on a new level. Wrong and sin are no longer just a matter of the law, the basic externals. Failure to do the will of God is sin. Failure to obey that call to go, failure to keep that practice that God has led you into, now is sin and must be forgiven. There must be cleansing. But also notice this:

b. once the failure came, the past did not count Failure wiped out the past days of keeping the vow. It meant a fresh start. It did not matter how long you had kept the vow before; what mattered was how long you kept it from now on. And that's a good way to look at consecration to the Lord. When you fail and sin, it's not just a glitch in your consecration. You need a whole brand new return to it, to start all over again committing yourself to obey from here onward. Well, we have to move on to chapter 7 which tells me about:

II. Giving My Substance For His Use: The Offering - Ch. 7 This is a very boring chapter to read because after the first few verses it is a line by line repeat of the record of the offering which the twelve leaders of the 12 tribes brought for the dedication of the Tabernacle, the beginning of its functioning. I would just like to point out 3 things:

1. what was given (2-5, 10-11) First they gave oxen and carts for the Levites to use in transporting the heavy items connected with the tabernacle. Then each of these 12 men brought an identical offering, one each day.

2. the value of what was given (84-88) The silver plates were worth about $260 apiece currently, the bowls about $1800 [Bible Knowledge Commentary] plus all the various animals. These 12 men gave the equivalent of a small fortune! It was not because it was commanded, not because anybody said they had to. This was a voluntary offering of dedication unto God made by people who just two years before were slaves in Egypt, who were living in tents in a desert, who didn't have much but what they had begged from their Egyptian neighbors. Yet they were willing to give sacrificially of their substance for God's use! Consecration to God means being willing to give Him all I have for His use. And look at:

3. the record of what was given Why didn't God just put down the summary at the end? Why all the individual repetition in the middle? Our God is a record-keeping God! This is like a page out of His account book in heaven. It's all there. God notes and remembers individually who gives and what we give to Him. Compare Mk. 12:41-44. It's not how much that impresses Him but whether we are willing to give all that we have for Him to use at His direction! Then before we quit, let me just mention the third aspect of giving:

III. Giving My Life For His Service: The Levites - Ch. 8 Now we've already talked about the Levites and their service as a picture of our service to God back in chapters 3-4. Let me just point out two additional things from this chapter:

1. their presentation as a living offering (11) A wave offering is something you hold up and present to God by waving because it was not permissible to actually burn it on the altar. It was done with sheaves of grain, for instance. So now the Levites (who picture us as servants of Christ) are the offering; literally they are presented as a living sacrifice. Their lives of service to God are the sacrifice! Sound familiar? Compare Rom. 12:1. Our spiritual service is to offer God our bodies, our lives, to be absolutely dedicated and consecrated to his service, not our own! And notice that:

2. presentation prepares for service (15-16) Once they were presented, then they could serve. You can't really serve God effectively until you have presented your life to God as a living sacrifice, til you have said and meant it, "Take my life and let it be consecrated Lord to thee; take my silver and my gold, not a mite would I withhold..." "Take it all Lord".

That is the giving that leads to the victorious life of blessing. No giving, no blessing. I wonder have you given your will to God like Jesus did in the garden. Have you given your possessions to God like the widow did? Have you given Him your very life, made His service the primary function of your existence?

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Principles: The Process of Guidance Ch. 9

The promised life God has for us, the life of victory, the spiritual life is not only a pure life as in chapter 5 and a giving, surrendered life as in chapters 6-8 but, as chapter 9 will show us, it is a guided life. You can never live the real Christian life, the one God intended for you by your own resources in any sense and that includes choosing your own direction whether in matters small or large. This is illustrated for us here very clearly as we have the record of the Israelites receiving God's guidance in two matters. The first incident in the chapter shows us the process of:

I. Guidance In The Matter Of Obedience (1-14) It was the first month of the new year and God told Moses to get ready to celebrate the second annual Passover on the 14th day. But there was an unforeseen problem. There were some people who couldn't do it. They had buried a loved one and were by God's own decree unclean and therefore unfit to offer sacrifice to God until the proper days of their cleansing. They wanted to obey God and keep the Passover but they could not because of circumstances He had allowed and because of obedience to another of His own laws. So we have the question, What do you do:

1. when you do not know God's will (8) Verse 8 clearly gives us three principles that you can apply when you don't know how to obey God's will in a certain situation.

a. admit your ignorance The answer to this problem had never been clearly revealed by God. So Moses didn't pretend to know it! Don't choose an answer just to have the appearance of being spiritual and to avoid the embarrassment of admitting ignorance. Moses was the leader of the entire nation, a man who talked with God face to face, and he admitted that he was unsure of the right thing to do. So admit it. Then:

b. wait until you do know Stand still, the KJV says. Don't go ahead and do one thing or the other until you do know what God's will is. Don't say, "Well, it could be either so I'll choose one." Sit still. Wait. Don't act on the matter until you know what God wants and you can do it in faith because whatever is not of faith is sin! And while you're waiting:

c. inquire of the Lord These people did the right thing. They went to ask God through Moses. Inquire. Search the Word. Read whatever you can get your hands on. Inquire of other godly spiritually mature people and get their view of the situation. And above all, pray! Pray til the answer comes and then do it!

Now this whole incident teaches us another complementary set of lessons on the subject of what you do:

2. when you can't obey God's will, when you know what God wants done but circumstances have prevented you from doing it, when there is a plain command in His Word but you can't keep it. I don't know how this might come up in your life, for example you might become disabled or shut-in and unable to keep the command to assemble or to provide for your family or you may be separated or divorced and unable to reconcile or rebuild that relationship because of the circumstances of the spouse or danger to the family.

a. do not willfully neglect God's command (13) We're not talking about circumstances where you choose not to obey, where you could but you don't want to. There is no excuse for that. That is sin and the man bears the consequences of it! So please never make up excuses to keep from obeying God that are not valid. That will bring discipline and judgment until God gets you to be honest about it! But when you honestly can't obey:

b. determine to obey from here on (10-11a) Maintain that attitude of readiness to obey. Know that there is a path of obedience to God that starts right here and now, right at your feet. You may not have been able to do THAT but there will always be a THIS for you that goes on from here. Then:

c. ask God to make the new manner known (6-7) These people came to God to admit their desire to obey God and their confusion about how to do it and to ask Him how they might obey. You have not because you ask not. Ask Him to make it plain but:

d. do not lower the standard (11-12) They were allowed to obey the command at a later time but they couldn't lower the standard. It had to be kept in the same way, by the same precise regulations, with the same degree of obedience. Just because you can't do one thing God wants you to do doesn't mean that you can lower the standard and settle for second-rate obedience. You must obey as whole-heartedly and completely from where you are right now as you would have in the first place if you could. And then here's something to be thankful for:

e. God's grace always provides a way (10) God always makes a way that you can still obey Him. He will not deny you the privilege of obeying. By His grace there is always a way to obey Him for you in your situation, right where you are. Circumstances can never prevent you totally from wholehearted obedience! But before we leave this half of the chapter, I can't fail to mention that there is here an obvious:

3. application to the Lord's Supper - 1 Cor. 11 The Passover Meal was the memorial of redemption. It was celebrated in Egypt in Exodus, in the wilderness in Numbers, and in the promised land in Joshua. It was the perpetually commanded memorial of redemption to the Israelites. And out of it Jesus gave to His church a new memorial celebration, the Lord's Supper and if we read what the New Testament teaches, we'll find:

a. it is not to be neglected (23-26) It is a command of the Lord Jesus. He said "DO THIS" until He comes. I fear that in our day of wanting to get away from anything that appears to have ritual and form we have minimized the importance of the Lord's Supper. I daresay many Christians would never care if we stopped doing it altogether; they would not miss it and do not mind that they miss it. But it is a command of Jesus. It is the precious memorial of redemption, of the blood of the Lamb without blemish and without spot. The Israelite who refused to celebrate was cut off from his people. God takes it seriously and so like the Passover:

b. it is not to be done in uncleanness (27-29) These Israelites knew they could not celebrate the Passover in an unworthy condition. Neither can we celebrate the Supper. God takes it so seriously that when we fail to recognize its holiness and come with unconfessed sin in our lives, He may discipline us bodily! That's a stern lesson!

But we must move on to the second half of chapter 9 and there we find a beautiful picture of:

II. Guidance In The Path Of Life (15-23) Israel was guided not only in matters of daily obedience but in the path she took through the wilderness. God did not put 2 million people in a vast desert to wander at will. He provided for them and He also guided them by His own presence in the Shekinah glory cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night. Now in this we can see:

1. the features of the guided life

a. the upward look (15) They had to look up for guidance, to watch the cloud. The guided life is one that has its eyes fixed upward, is constantly looking to the Lord for direction every day. But the reason there is an upward look is because of:

b. the constant Presence (16) There was never a day, never a moment when God didn't show up for duty. He was always there. The cloud and fire were always visible; they continued. And we have something even better, the constant indwelling presence of the Holy Spirit to guide us. He never leaves. There is never a moment of our lives that He is not there to guide us!

c. the daily dependence (17) The Israelites had no planned program of their own. Each day when they got up, they looked up to see if the cloud moved. If it did, they traveled that day. If not, they stayed put. This is how they lived for 40 years and by it God taught them a principle that would remain after they reached Canaan and weren't traveling anymore, the principle of daily dependence. That is the guided life, each day, each moment, looking to God, depending completely on Him for the wisdom to know what to do next. And it's a blessed life, a privileged life, resting completely in the Savior's hands! So here are:

2. the principles of the guided life

a. it never chooses its own path (18a) It only stays or goes at God's command. It never presumes to make its own decisions but waits on God's decisions. That's how God intended your Christian life to be; that's what really makes it His life.

b. it stays until God leads elsewhere (18b-20) This is a tremendous principle. Look all around and you'll find people trying to get out of where they are, looking for ways and opportunities to leave where God has put them, whether it's to leave their marriage or their job or their circumstances. God's principle is to stay where the cloud has settled, whether it's overnight or a day or a month or a year or the rest of your life. If you got where you are by following the Lord, then you are where He wants you. Stay there until He begins to make it clear to you that He wants you to move elsewhere. But by the same token:

c. it stands always ready to move (21-23) There is also the opposite tendency in us, to put down roots so deep that we're not ready to go on with God when He leads to some other step. When the cloud lifted they didn't drag their feet; they set out! When God makes it plain and confirms it that He wants you to change directions in the path of your life, whether it's in your job or where you live or work or in what you're doing with your life, then be ready to go.

That's a guided life, daily depending on God, staying when He says stay, even if He parks you at Marah where the waters are bitter and you don't like it, and going when He says go, even when you've been at Elim in the oasis of palm trees and you hate to leave. That makes your life His life or rather His life your life and that's what living is really all about.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Problems: Wrong Desires Ch. 11

Chapter 10 of Numbers is a turning point. Up to that point God has had them sitting still at Mt. Sinai teaching them the principles for the life He has planned for them. In chapter 10 they organize and march out following the cloud, on their way to the promised land at last. But immediately in ch. 11 you are struck with this one thing: failure. And it's repeated every step along the way: failure, failure, failure... Most of the failures in chapters 10-21 arise simply from within themselves, from their own flesh, their own self-dominated lives. But if that's not bad enough, in chapters 22-25 they are led into failure and sin by external temptations.

I. The Principles For The Journey	1-9
II. The Problems Of The Journey	10-25
1. the works of the flesh	10-21
2. the works of the Enemy	22-25

There is a lot to be learned here in the wilderness journey. But before we look at it, let's turn to the New Testament and think about the source of:

I. Frustration In The Wilderness Life - Gal. 5:16-24 As I told you before, there is a wilderness life that is also led by Christians and the Israelites' wilderness life pictures it vividly and graphically for us. Let me point out three things about it:

1. the conflict of flesh and Spirit (17a) The NIV uses the words "sinful nature" to translate the Greek word sarx which is literally flesh, as it appears in the KJV. I don't care what you call it but it is that part of me which is self-centered and drives me toward sin. When I got saved God the Holy Spirit came to live in me, in my spirit, and my spirit was born again. But my flesh wasn't; it's still there. So there is this conflict going on inside of me; there's the Spirit and the new me, the new nature in me, wanting and desiring to obey and please God, but there's also this flesh of mine rearing its ugly head and trying to get its needs met apart from God. Isn't that what happened to Israel? They were walking along following God, wanting to obey Him, but every so often their selfish, wrong, human desires would pop up and rebel. And so you see:

2. the constant failure (17b) They end up failing and failing and failing God. They do not end up doing what they really want. And they had no choice because they were not individually regenerated as we are. The Holy Spirit did not personally indwell them. They lived under the principle of law which means: God commands; I try my best to do what He says, but the law is weak in that it gives me no power to obey and so flesh wins again and again. That's the difference between law and grace. Under grace, Christ came to live in us to not only make us want to please God, but to empower us to please God. Anyway, their wilderness walk was characterized by many of the things found in verses 19-21. And God literally didn't let them inherit His kingdom of Canaan; they died in the wilderness. But there are a lot of Christians living that try and fail, try and fail kind of life because they are trying to please God in the flesh and it doesn't work. What we need instead is:

3. the crucifixion of the flesh (24-25) And we have it! In the person of Jesus Christ, who by His cross not only removed the penalty of our sins but destroyed the power of sin over us so that we no longer have to live out of the motivating force of the flesh, we can live by the life-giving power of the Spirit through yielding ourselves fully to Him. And that will produce the promised life of victory, the Joshua life.

So with all that in mind let's examine the first flesh problem they faced in Num. 11:

II. Frustration In Marching: Wrong Desires (1-9) Read 1-6. It happened twice right at the beginning of the march. The trek was not easy. It was hot in the day and cold at night. There were no restaurants with a varied bill of fare to whet their appetites. There was monotony and fatigue. And they began to complain. So God started a fire in the camp and scared them a bit. But before long they were back to complaining again, this time even worse about their food supply! Can you imagine hundreds of people standing at the doors of their tents wailing out loud over the monotony of their diet? It's almost ridiculous to think of! Yet how many times do you hear Christians complaining about the difficulty of the life God has led them into? I was doing it myself the other day, wishing I had a 9-5 job at a computer, tired of the difficulty of dealing with people! But do you see where their problem came in?

1. forgetting the hardships of the world (1) Do you remember what it says about them in Egypt? They groaned under their taskmasters! How soon they forgot the whip and the lash and the brutality and cruelty and all their newborn babies that were thrown into the Nile! Sometimes we focus so much on the difficulty before us now that we forget how hard it was back there in the world without Christ. We forget what we were redeemed from. Listen, if you want to know hardship just turn your back on the Lord and live in the world for awhile. There's pain out there, misery, agony you can't imagine. But the flesh doesn't see it that way; it forgets. Christ's yoke is easy; don't forget that! But they were also:

2. remembering the delights of the world (4-5) Fish and onions and leeks and melons all tasted good. Some of the things out there in the world felt good and when the flesh doesn't like the way things are going now, it wants to feel good and so it remembers and longs for some of those delights that used to give it pleasure. The flesh has a selective memory. It erases the bad and remembers the good and pushes us to long for some of it. But along with that they were:

3. failing to appreciate the blessings of God (7-9) They were not unfed. They were not hungry. It was not as though God had provided for them. They had all they could eat. And it was not as though God had given them a supply of something that tasted like liver without onions. The manna was hard and they ground it into flour and prepared it in a variety of ways and it tasted good, like something made with olive oil. God was not mean to them, putting them on stale bread and water. And compare Ps. 78:23-31. Manna was the grain of heaven; it was the bread of angels. I guess that could mean that angels in heaven eat manna but I rather think the phrase refers to the miraculous manner in which they got it: it came down to them from heaven daily carried and distributed by the angels themselves. It was a daily miracle that had become mundane and unappreciated by them. So, in our flesh we can fail to appreciate God's daily blessings for us. But they had still another cause:

4. failing to separate from wrong company (4,10) When they came out of Egypt, some Egyptians converted out of fear and came along. They really didn't know the Lord and were the first to complain but soon, because of being around them, the Israelites began to complain and soon it was being done all over the camp. Wrong company had stirred up wrong desires. It still does. Satan uses wrong associations and wrong company to stir up the desires of the flesh against God. Now there's a second frustration here:

III. Frustration In Ministry: Wrong Dependence (10-25) The people were not the only ones frustrated by the hardship of the journey. Moses was too. Listen to him:

1. the frustration in ministry: why me? (10-13) Hear the key word? I, me... He has wrong desires too. He wants out! Serving God sometimes begins to appear just as hard as following Him. There are times in serving God when you feel just like Moses. But that reveals:

2. the failure in ministry: Me-dependence Who was Moses relying on to do the job? Himself! He was forgetting the power and presence of Almighty God to do the job just like the people were forgetting the provision of Almighty God for them. Moses had flesh too! Fortunately, he did not operate in this mode all the time. I may be wrong but I think this is the only place in the whole journey where he complained. But in dealing with his frustration, God demonstrated for us:

3. the foundations of ministry

a. the utter failure of my own strength (15) That's where God wanted Moses to end up, didn't He? "I am not capable; I have no power; I cannot be what you want me to be." And that's where God wants all of us to get to, to admit our failure, to admit that in our fleshly resources we cannot live the Canaan life and then to be:

b. drawing fully on the Spirit's power (17) God took the Spirit who was upon Moses and put Him also upon 70 of the elders. Now that teaches something about the principle of multiple leadership, but more importantly it reveals Moses' problem. At the very moment he was complaining, he was forgetting the Spirit who was upon him! He was not drawing upon the power of the Holy Spirit. However, from here on he did and so must we. Success in life or ministry is in drawing nothing from the strength of the flesh and living moment by moment in the Spirit's power. But the whole incident is not over yet. As you know, God sends them quail to eat. He gives them their desire but he also sends a plague and kills a number of them. That's what we're told in the closing section of the chapter and here I would like to make just points about the:

IV. Frustration Of Wrong Desires (26-35) What lessons are there in this for us about the problem of wrong desires in our lives?

1. the Spirit filling all (29) Moses spoke more than he knew in this verse. If every Israelite had the Holy Spirit, then they would have the possibility of victory over their wrong desires as he did. Isn't that what God has done for us? In the church every believer has the Holy Spirit and the potential to have a life filled and controlled by Him. And therefore these wilderness experiences are avoidable for us, if we will walk in the Spirit and not in the flesh.

2. the results of craving (33) If you give in to wrong desires, God may give them to you but along with them will come His discipline. Now compare Ps. 106:13-15. God gave them what they wanted but along with it came something else. The Hebrew says literally a wasting of soul. Now that could be a reference to the plague that came, but it is deliberately ambiguous and it can refer to leanness of soul as KJV puts it. You may get what the flesh wants but your soul, your spiritual life, will suffer for it. You can't have both the joys of heaven and the lusts of earth.

3. the graves of craving (34) The name is significant: Kibroth Hataavah. It means the graves of craving; it's the place where they buried the ones who lusted the most among them. In essence, it's where they as a nation buried their wrong desires, only in them it wasn't a permanent burial. In us it can be. We can have a Kibroth Hataavah, a place where we come to the Lord and confess the sinfulness of all our wrong desires and yield ourselves to the filling of the Spirit so that we walk in the Spirit and do not fulfill the lusts of the flesh.

Wrong desires need to die. And that isn't only desires for things that are bad. Onions and leeks are not sinful. But anything outside of the will of God for you is bad and the desire for it is wrong and sinful and it needs to be buried. You can't do that but God can and He will if you let Him.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Problems: Pride Chs. 12, 16-17

Well, no sooner had the graves been filled at Kibroth Hataavah and the camp moved to Hazeroth than the next flesh problem arose in the camp, the problem of pride. The flesh in man is proud! It is self-seeking, self-centered, self-exalting, and selfish! And I'm not just talking about someone else; I mean YOUR FLESH! You may appear to be the humblest of people but I can guarantee that if you give me a half-hour to fish a little and find the right button to push in your life, pride will come out. And if you're thinking "I am NOT proud", I've just found it! We all are! And just when you least expect it in living the Spirit-controlled, Christ-centered life, the flesh tries to rear its ugly head and pride comes out and it's always in relationship to other people. Since they describe virtually the same thing, we're going to look at:

I. Two Cases Of Pride The first is the story of:

1. Miriam's Resistance (ch. 12) Miriam led her brother Aaron in lodging a charge against Moses (the verb is feminine, and she spoke) and Aaron, follower that he was, went right along with her. Now note:

a. the charge: violating the ministry (1) Moses married a Cushite woman. The term cushite in this period is used to describe peoples that lived beyond Egypt in Ethiopia but also those in the direction of Arabia. This could mean that Moses took a new wife who was non-Israelite. If that is the case, neither she nor any children by her are ever mentioned. I rather think this was a reference to his current wife Zipporah who was a Midianite, not an Israelite. And I see the connection to chapter 11 this way. It was the mixed multitude, the non-Israelites in the camp, who had begun the complaining and led to the death of hundreds of people at Kibroth-Hataavah. Now here is Moses and he's married to one! So Miriam started speaking to the people about this and saying that Moses was not fit for his leadership position because of his union with a non-Israelite wife. They charged him with violating the qualifications of the ministry. But you can quickly see:

b. the intent: seeking the prophetic office (2) They wanted to share the prophetic office with Moses, to also speak for God to the people. Now don't forget one small fact; Moses is their baby brother! Miriam helped save his life when he was just a baby in the river. Aaron's the one who stayed in Egypt and endured 40 years of slavery while Moses was off tending sheep in Midian. They didn't think it was fair that Moses exercised the sole leadership of the people. After all, Miriam was a prophetess too according to Ex. 15:20 and Aaron had the Urim and Thummim in his ephod through which God spoke to the people. You see, it's pride, isn't it? It's not the marriage; it's pride.

c. the punishment: defilement (10,14-15) God sets the record straight and then strikes Miriam with leprosy and makes her sit unclean and defiled outside the camp for seven days. What a lesson! Here she was seeing herself high and lifted up and God saw her as a leprous, defiled woman, unfit to approach. Miriam's view must have changed because we never hear of her pulling this again. Let's hope she had a new attitude, one that said "There but for the grace of God I would sit, forever unclean!" Now let me just throw in a quick aside:

d. the allegory: Moses and Christ; Miriam and Israel Isn't this a spiritual picture of Israel and Christ? Check the book of Acts. Israel could not stand Christ and the Christian message. Why? Because Christ was busy taking to Himself a Gentile bride; Gentiles were coming to faith. So what happened? God set Israel aside outside His camp, leprous and defiled spiritually until the time is completed and one day He will cleanse her and call her back in! But now we're going to skip ahead to look at a second occurrence of this same problem:

2. Korah's Rebellion (ch. 16) Korah was a Levite of the clan of Kohath which carried the holy things. And he found three buddies by the name of Dathan, Abiram, and On who were Reubenites and together with them he got 250 of the leaders of the people to join his cause and led a rebellion against Moses and Aaron. Here is:

a. the charge: usurping the authority (3) "Moses and Aaron, you have taken unjust authority to yourself. You have no right to lord it over the rest of us this way. We are all holy; we are all God's people. We should all have a right to approach God in the same way you do." But Moses saw right through their pious-sounding speech to:

b. the intent: seeking the priestly office (8-11) Kohath was a Levite but he wanted to be a priest. He couldn't, because he wasn't of the line of Aaron. So he accused Moses and Aaron of making the whole thing up in order to set themselves up in superiority and preserve for themselves the right to approach God and thus impose their will on the people. Do you hear the pride? "I want what you have!" Well you know:

c. the punishment: death (31-35) God opened the ground and buried the leaders alive. Then He sent fire from heaven and burned the 250 to ashes. I think that says clearly that there is no room for pride in God's economy! So let's begin to make application and talk about:

II. The Manifestations of Pride Gal. 5:20 lists for us the works of the flesh and notice how many of them are simply manifestations of either the wrong desires of the flesh or of pride. Yet pride itself is not listed. Pride doesn't walk around with a sign on itself saying, "I am a self-loving, self-seeking, egotistical, proud, person". It comes out in the things you say and think. We have at least four manifestations of it right here in Numbers.

1. criticism of others' service (12:8b) God was upset that they would presume to speak against His servant. But isn't that how pride comes out in us? We talk about the way other Christians live and serve and criticize them. We say, "Why is so and so a teacher; he does this or that..." Jude 11 calls Korah's crime in the Greek, not rebellion but antologeo, that is, speaking against. Speaking against God's servants is a manifestation of pride. Compare Rom. 14:4,9-13. A servant gives account to His own master. We are to stop passing judgment on each other. Now that doesn't mean there isn't a place to lovingly correct a brother or sister; we're commanded to do that. It doesn't mean there isn't a place to discipline sin in a life. But Moses hadn't done anything wrong. This criticism arose out of pride. Most criticism does. How do you talk about others who are serving God? Do you speak against them regularly? If so, you're proud. Then pride goes a level deeper to:

2. coveting the office of others Both Miriam and Korah, as we saw, coveted the office held by Moses. They were jealous of the position that God had put Moses in. They saw how he was looked up to and listened to and how he had power from the hand of God. And they said, "I want some of that." Like Simon the Magician and Diotrephes in 3 John, they loved to have the preeminence, to be first. When you see someone God has on center stage at the moment, do you get jealous? It might be a lead role in a drama, a solo in the choir, the authority exercised by elders or the public ministry of a teacher or a pastor. Are you jealous that it's not you? Do you want it for yourself so you can be first instead of somebody else? That's pride. But it usually moves on one step further to:

3. claiming an office for self (16:10) Korah vocalized his pride, claiming that he had a right to be a priest as much as Aaron. Well, compare Heb. 5:4. Nobody can presume to be a priest; that is a calling given by God. Let me add to that. Nobody can presume the right to occupy any of God's offices. In the New Testament, offices like that of apostle, evangelist, pastor/teacher, missionary, elder, deacon, and so on are not offices of man but callings of God, callings that are recognized by God's work in the life and recognized by the believers in the local body. To try and make yourself what God has not called you to be so that you can have the preeminence is pride! You might say to yourself, "I have this qualification and that qualification, this experience and that experience; I should be this or that." That's the sin of Korah! And its end result is:

4. causing division in the body (16:2) That's how it works in the church. You begin to push yourself and gather a following and split the body. It's been done time after time. Two leaders disagree and one starts a campaign and leads off his followers. They had that problem in Corinth, compare 1 Cor. 1:10-12. The reason is in 3:3: carnality, living in the flesh instead of the Spirit. Pride promotes division in the body. What influence do you have on the body? Do you divide it? Do you separate brethren by what you say and do? Well, fortunately Moses was walking in the power of the spirit here and in Him we can see:

III. The Remedy for Pride - Gal. 5:22 The eighth fruit of the Spirit is gentleness, literally meekness, which is the biblical opposite of pride, a synonym for humility. It is a fruit of the Spirit, which means that the more you yield your life to the control of the Holy Spirit, the more He will produce it in you. In fact, you see in Moses:

1. a continual spirit of meekness (12:3) What a statement! Moses was the least presumptive, least self-seeking, least proud man on earth. That doesn't mean he had no spirit, no fire, no oomph. It means that the Holy Spirit had such a hold on his life that he never took or sought any of the credit for himself but gave it all to God. He never took anything upon himself and in fact, objected when God tried to give it to him! He simply obeyed God, knowing that everything in his life was all of God, not of him! That's how we need to live, to open our hearts and say, "Spirit of God, fill me with your meekness, your humility." The second thing you see in Moses is:

2. a constant praying for sinners (12:13, 16:22) Israel sinned and sinned and complained and complained but Moses prayed for them. He would never stand back and say "Lord, go ahead and give them what they deserve; teach them a lesson!" Instead he was ever ready to fall on his face and beg for mercy for them. It's so easy to criticize in return, but pray. When people oppose you and are jealous of you, pray for them, beg God for them. You can't be proud on your knees. Then the last thing you need is:

3. a conscious acceptance of God's calling You need to accept and be content with God's calling, first of all:

a. for you (16:9-10) Korah already had a precious and high privilege; he carried the holy things. But he could not accept anything except what looked to him like the top position. The thing he couldn't see is that in God's economy there are no top and bottom positions. 1 Cor. 12:18 says that God has arranged all the parts of the body just as He wanted them to be. Wherever God has put you is a precious and holy and privileged spot. Be content with it, accept it and do it well. But that means you also have to accept God's calling:

b. for others (17:1-10) God made it plain. He had them bring 12 rods and He made Aaron's dead stick bud and bring forth blossoms and bear ripe almonds overnight! He made it clear that Aaron hadn't chosen his own office, that he hadn't picked it for himself or usurped it; God had chosen him. Nobody questioned that ever again. That's how we have to see others. They are all God's servants; God has called them to the positions and offices they occupy. That is His business and there is no need to be jealous.

Pride is a deadly thing. Ask God to make you aware of it in your life. Ask Him to show it to you in your own heart. Ask Him to take it away and fill you with meekness.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Problems: Unbelief Chs. 13-14

After some months, Israel finally arrives at their destination, a place called Kadesh Barnea, at the southern edge of the Promised Land. It is from here that they should have entered in to possess the land, to claim all the blessings that God had promised them. But instead they left this place turned 180 degrees in the opposite direction, heading south to the Red Sea. And what made the difference? Unbelief. They simply refused to believe God, even after He defeated Egypt before their eyes, and after all the miracles in the wilderness. They still refused to believe wholeheartedly in Him. And unbelief is another factor that keeps us from having the Spirit-controlled life of victory that God has promised us. You see, our flesh is not only full of wrong desires and pride; it is full of unbelief. The flesh does not believe God. It does not trust God. It trusts only what it can see for itself and then it is selective about it! Now in ch. 13 you can see:

I. The Roots of Unbelief (ch. 13) It is the story of a spy mission and at first it sounds very daring and intriguing. Twelve men are chosen out of the tribes to go up and spy out the land. For 40 days they roam its length and breadth and see what it is like. They come back safe and sound, carrying a cluster of grapes so big that they have to hang it on a pole between two men. Quite a story but let's look more closely at:

1. the sending of the spies (1-20) READ 1-3. It sounds like a prudent idea: check out the land first, prepare well. Indeed it is a command of God. But what we don't see at first glance is that:

a. it originated in unbelief - Deut. 1:19-23 Here's the fuller story. When they got to Kadesh Barnea, Moses said, "Come on, let's go take the land, we're here. God will give it to us as He said." It was the people who said, "Let's send spies first!" What did they need spies for? They had just trekked through miles and miles of deserted wilderness, not having any road map, any idea where they were going next. They just followed the cloud. Why did they have to know what lay in Canaan? Why not just follow the cloud to the next spot and begin to take it step by step at God's direction? There's unbelief creeping in, unwillingness to simply trust God, under the guise of planning ahead. Now understand this: there's nothing wrong with planning ahead, with checking out the turf. After all, in the end God sent the spies. But their response to the spies' report makes it clear what was in their heart. They didn't want to know how; they wanted to know whether or not to go! And that's unbelief! So:

b. it became a test Much like when the people asked for a king and God said, "OK, give them a king; they'll regret it." So God said to Moses, "Send the spies. To you it's a good idea but we will see whether they will believe ME!"

The spy mission became a test to draw out the unbelief and rejection of God in the people and it did just that after they heard:

2. the reporting of the spies (21-33) First of all, I want you to notice:

a. what they saw They saw 2 things at the same time:

(1) the goodness of the land (27) It was a good land. It was everything God said it would be. It was a bountiful and plentiful land, a land of good harvests. And that filled them with joy, but they also saw:

(2) the size of its inhabitants (28-29) There was a race of very tall people living in some of the hill country at that time, called the Anakim. They saw cities fortified with high walls. They saw the seven nations of Canaan living all through the land. They would have to fight for every inch of it and that filled them with fear. But the real problem was not WHAT they saw, but rather:

b. how they saw

(1) two saw the eternal things (30) Caleb and Joshua were men of faith. They said, "We can do it; we are well able to do it because we have the Lord on our side. He is bigger than any Anakim giant, higher than any Canaanite wall." That's the reasoning of faith. Faith looks at the problem next to God and says, "no problem". But:

(2) ten saw the temporal things (31) They said, "We can't do it; they're stronger than we are." That's the reasoning of unbelief. Unbelief looks at the problem next to myself and my resources and says, "big problem". Let me take you to the New Testament. Compare 2 Cor. 4:18. Here is the remedy for unbelief. Here's the way to keep the unbelief of your flesh from creeping in and ruining you. Fix your eyes on the unseen things, the eternal things. They are the true realities. That's what we're told Moses did, compare Heb. 11:27. He endured; He was not afraid when He left Egypt because He fixed His eyes on what eyes can't see, on God! And that's the test for you. Are you willing to obey God and do what He tells you, no matter what circumstances look like? Do you trust Him enough to do His will without having to see for yourself that you have everything you need to carry it out? And let me clarify this: faith is not deciding to trust God for something big; faith is obeying God when He asks you to do something big. There's a difference. Faith is looking to do God's will and trusting Him no matter what! Now in chapter 14 we have:

II. The Results of Unbelief (ch. 14) There were two of them; the first is:

1. rebellion against God's direction That's what Israel did when the spies gave their report. Unbelief took hold and they ended up in rebellion, not once but twice. First it was:

a. not doing what He has commanded (1-10) READ 1-4. They refused to go up to conquer the land as God had commanded. They refused to do His will, even though it was for their benefit and blessing. And when we don't believe God, we end up saying "NO" to what He wants us to do. What things are there in your life that you know God wants you to do but you're refusing and you know it? That's not stubbornness; it's unbelief! You're failing to believe God! But it can also happen in reverse by:

b. doing what He has forbidden (39-45) Now, because they got scared after God killed the ten unbelieving spies, they were ready to go up. However, now God had said, "Don't go; turn around and go the other way." But again they wouldn't listen. Unbelief can manifest itself in continuing to do what God has forbidden. What is there in your life that you are doing that you know God doesn't want? That's not stubbornness; it's not room for maturing; it's unbelief! And the really sad part about unbelief is that it leads to a consequence:

2. failure to enter God's rest (20-38) READ 28-35 God gave them their grumbled wish; all of them died in the desert. Every last man of that generation died, though they were forgiven as we'll see. The New Testament has another term to describe it. Compare Heb. 3:12, 16-19. They failed to enter His rest. God wanted to bring them into the land to give them, not conflict, but REST! Rest from their slavery, rest from their journeying, from their wilderness life, but unbelief kept them out. This is not talking about salvation. Their sin was forgiven, but they never experienced on earth the life of rest in His completed work that He had for them. And that's the worst thing about unbelief for us. God has for us a Canaan life, a life of rest, a life that knows only victory. But when we persist in unbelief we fail to enter it. When we keep looking at the circumstances instead of God, we fail to know the rest. When we refuse to do what He has commanded or refuse to stop what He has forbidden, we fail to know the rest. Instead, we know the wilderness life of struggle and failure and striving and trying and failing again. Let's not follow their example, rather let's follow:

III. The Example of Belief (14:11-19) READ 11-12. In the middle of all this, God gave Moses a test as well. He offered to destroy Israel and build a nation out of Moses. Now He couldn't do that; He had promises that related to each of the 12 tribes and it was already promised that Messiah would come out of Judah. To keep His word, He couldn't destroy them and start over, but it was tempting to a mere human. The thought of becoming another Abraham, of becoming the progenitor of the chosen people, was a tempting thing to the old flesh ego. Unbelief would have grabbed at it, ignoring what God had said earlier. But Moses was a man of faith:

1. He sought God's glory (13-16) He didn't want any of the credit or glory for himself. He was concerned about God's glory. And folks, I don't believe this was a put on argument, like he had to fish around and find some selfish reason to convince God not to do it. He really was concerned for God's glory. "What will the world think, Lord? What will the Egyptians and the Canaanites say? I can't stand the thought of your glory being tarnished!" That's the heart full of faith, centered on the living God. But notice also that:

2. He stood on God's promise (17-19) He prayed for and indeed claimed forgiveness for the people. Compare Ex. 34:5-7. Moses never forgot that day when God's glory passed by him. He remembered what God had proclaimed about His nature that He was loving and compassionate and forgiving. And he reminded God of His own Word; he stood on it and claimed forgiveness for unbelieving Israel!

Oh, if only Israel had that heart of belief! If only they could have simply believed God when He said, "Go up and take the land; it is yours!" If only we could believe God and stand upon His word and seek His glory alone, instead of seeking our own selfish interests and worrying about our own hides! The warning of Hebrews stands clear: beware lest there be found in any of us a heart of unbelief like theirs and we fail to enter into the life of rest God has for us!

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Problems: Willful Disobedience 15:30-41

The next wilderness problem we encounter in the Book of Numbers after wrong desires, pride, and unbelief comes at the end of ch. 15. It is the problem of deliberate willful disobedience. Now we understand the concept of falling into sin and it happens to all of us. We understand how we end up disobeying God through our wrong desires and pride and unbelief. We relate well to Moses getting angry and striking the rock or the people becoming afraid and refusing to go up or to David and Bathsheba. But what about those cases where a person, who to every appearance is a believer, just deliberately and cold-bloodedly decides to act as though God and everything He stands for doesn't exist? Well, let's look at:

I. The Principle of Disobedience (30-31) The whole chapter up to this point is about offerings and sacrifices which the Israelites are to begin to offer once they reach the land of Canaan. These two verses stand in stark contrast to the whole rest of the chapter as a dire warning of:

1. the danger of disobedience And the warning that is being given is this:

a. there is a sacrifice for sins of error (28-29) The word unintentional might be translated in error. There is a sacrifice for sins which are fallen into by temptation, for sins which are done without realizing they were wrong, for sins which may be deliberate but are not defiant, over which there is a sense of guilt and wrongness. But notice:

b. there is no sacrifice for high-handed sins That is the literal translation of defiant. The Lord brought Israel out of Egypt with a "high hand", that is, demonstrating His superior power and authority to Egypt and its gods. And a person can act that way toward God, high-handedly, showing no regard for God or His laws, acting as though they are the supreme being of the universe and God is somebody who has to reckon with them! Now here's:

2. the reason it is serious Notice three descriptions of it here:

a. it is despising the Lord's Word It is treating what God says as a thing of no consequence. It's like when a teacher tells a child to do an assignment and they ignore it and don't do it because they simply take the teacher's word lightly. Well, the reason you despise the Lord's word is:

b. it is defying the Lord's authority When you break His commands deliberately, you defy His authority over you. You shake your fist at Him and say, "You have no authority over me!" And so ultimately:

c. it is blaspheming the Lord It is an offense against His person. It is setting yourself up to be God and casting God down from His throne in your eyes. And so:

3. the penalty: death You were sentenced to die and you remained guilty. No sacrifice could atone for that. When you reject God and His authority over you, then you also reject atonement, His need or ability to forgive you. There is nothing left but to die under His wrath. Now let's look at:

4. the New Testament analogy: Heb. 10:26-31 This passage seems to be drawn right out of Israel's experiences, doesn't it? When I read passages like this, I don't know about you, but I come with a handicap. I believe strongly in the doctrine of eternal security of the believer. A saved person can't be lost. That is taught everywhere in the New Testament. But then you come to passages like this one which at first glance seem to say the opposite. What it's really saying is this:

a. deliberate sin is evidence of lostness He is not talking here about Christians falling into temptation or doing any of the things that the Corinthian church got into. He is talking about people who seem to have faith in Christ throwing it away under pressure, giving up their faith in Christ, going back to their former beliefs and lifestyles, apostasizing, if you will. The ability to trample on the Son of God, to count His blood shed on the cross as nothing and high-handedly sin without hesitation or remorse is indication that a person is lost, that they are not really regenerate, not really born again. Oh, God may have worked with him; he may have a profession of faith, have become part of the church, but he is lost. Jesus talked about this. He said there would be those shallow soil types who would start out looking like genuine believers but later when trouble came, like it had for the people in Hebrews, they would fall away. They had no root. They were not really in Him. He talked about the vine which had some dead branches on it that were pruned and cast into the fire because they were not connected with Him. Yet they looked like branches. He even said, Have not I chosen you 12 and one of you is a devil? Judas, it says, went to his own place. He looked to all appearances like any other disciple, yet in the crux it was shown that he never really did belong to Christ. You see, a believer can fall into sin and loathe it but he can never live in sin and love it! If he can sin in high-handed fashion like that he is none of His! And so:

b. deliberate sin leads to final judgment If the sacrifice of Christ is not being counted on to save, then what sacrifice is left? None! There is only wrath and judgment. And if a man who deliberately ignored and broke Moses' law died without mercy at the hands of the community, what do you think God will do to those who trample on the blood of His Son knowingly? The Lord does judge His people and sort out from among them those who are not really His, who are really His enemies. And there is a terrible judgment waiting for them. So:

c. this is a dire warning (23, 25, 35, 39) Now note verse 39. He doesn't say that these people had already done it, that they had sinned in such a way as to prove they were lost. He said the opposite, that they hadn't, but he was warning them against it. The evidence of true faith is continuation and that evidence is being written every day as we continue to love and serve Him. Yet every one of us can heed the warning to be sure of ourselves, to be sure that we really are in Christ and He in us, to hold fast to Him and not throw away that which we are trusting in. It has happened to more than one person whom you would have thought was securely in Christ! Now right after his statements on disobedience, Moses gives:

II. The Illustration of Disobedience (32-36) They catch a man out in the wilderness one day gathering sticks on the Sabbath day. The reason I believe Moses mentions it is because it's a direct example of the kind of sin he's been talking about, high-handed willful sin.

1. the problem examined (32-34) Now there were some specific instructions given from the very first about the Sabbath Day. Compare Ex. 31:12-15, 35:1-3. Why then was it not clear what should be done? Well, there are 2 possible reasons. First, it is not stated when this occurred. Moses may be relating something that had happened earlier on the trip to Mt. Sinai before the penalty for Sabbath-breaking had been given. That actually seems to make the most sense. Otherwise, they might have been unsure as to whether gathering sticks to make a fire constituted actual work, since he hadn't actually broken the prohibition we read about lighting a fire. At any rate here was a man who after clear warning decided to ignore it and sin high-handedly against God. And so we have:

2. the principle enacted (35) God identifies it as a high-handed sin and says "stone him". It may seem to us a small offense for such a harsh punishment, but you must remember it was an act of defiance against Almighty God who had given Israel the Sabbath as a special covenant sign of His favor. It was akin to trampling underfoot the blood of the Son of God! It is not the size of the sin we commit in our eyes but the sin in our heart which God condemns! And so you have:

3. the penalty administered (36) He was stoned to death and removed from among God's people, shown clearly for what he was. Now what may be of more interest to us is:

III. The Prevention of Disobedience (37-41) God gave Israel a visual reminder to help them understand and remember the importance of obedience:

1. their reminder: the blue cords and tassels On the borders of their garments they were to put blue cords with little tassels or petals on them. The blue signified heaven and the sight of them was to be a reminder that they were heavenly people and should live in obedience to the laws of God from heaven. The Pharisees managed to abuse this for the New Testament says they enlarged the borders of their garments. They wanted everybody to know just how "heavenly" they were, how much regard they had for the law, but it was all a show, a pretext. Well, we don't have to wear tassels anymore but we do have:

2. our reminder: the Word of God In those days, not everyone could have their own scroll of the law to read. So God gave a visual reminder to help think of the law and its commands. We have the higher privilege of having His actual Word in written form as our preventative! Somebody said, "Sin will keep you from this Book; but this Book will keep you from sin". Want to be sure of your salvation? Want to be sure you are not of those who will draw back in the crunch? Want to be sure you're not really a Judas in disciple's clothing? Stay in the Book!

Just as total disregard for God's commands signifies blasphemy against Him, so a love for His Word, is born out of a love for Him who wrote it. Jn. 14:21, 24 says, Whoever has my commands and obeys them, he is the one who loves me...He who does not love me will not obey my teaching. You don't obey to save yourself, but if you love Him you will obey, and you'll love His Word, and you will not be of those who shrink back to destruction.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Journey Problems: Anger Chs. 20-21

After some years of wandering, Israel meandered back to Kadesh on the southern border of the promised land and from there set out to the south to make a detour out around Edom and approach Canaan from the east side across Jordan. It was during this time that another flesh problem surfaced and was dealt with: ANGER. Compare Gal. 5:20. The NIV fits of rage is literally passionate angers and is plural. Actually the NIV is probably a good translation. It's not talking about righteous anger or any such thing here, though the same word is used to describe the wrath of God in many passages. What's in view here is the kind of anger we'd describe as the loss of temper, where there's impatience and then quarreling. One of the marks of spiritual maturity and qualifications for eldership in Titus 1 is that a person is "not quick-tempered". We are exhorted to be "slow to anger" in James 1:19. This flared-up kind of anger is a work of the flesh in us and it keeps us from the promised kind of life God has for us. Now in the two chapters before us we have:

I. Four Cases of Anger The first is:

1. anger at those trying to help you (20:2-5) Now consider this for a minute. Moses and Aaron have done nothing all along but help the people. They risked their lives in going in to Pharaoh. They were used of God to deliver the people from an intolerable life of slavery in Egypt where their own children were being killed. Every time Israel sinned, Moses fell on his face before God to beg for their forgiveness. He even offered to trade his own salvation for theirs! All the way along Moses and Aaron have done nothing but care for these people, yet now when things are a little difficult and discouraging, they get the blame. The people become angry at them and blame them! Isn't that true human nature? Don't we do the same? Aren't we ready to flare up at those who love and help us and blame them for our problems? It happens in our families; it happens in our church family. And it's just the old flesh flaring up!

2. anger at those you help (20:9-11) The people weren't the only ones who got angry. Moses, who's been a real model of virtue most of the time, got angry at them. I guess it wore him down, their constant complaining and griping, and he spoke to them in anger and struck the rock in his anger, even though he was commanded to speak to it. Compare Ps. 106:32-33. Moses spoke rashly. He was angry, angry at the very ones he loved and had been helping all along. Now I think we can easily understand his anger. In fact, we probably marvel at the fact that it didn't happen sooner. But you can't get around the fact that this was a sinful type of anger. And don't we experience it too? Don't we get angry at those we love and those we help and minister to when they don't respond, when they fail to appreciate us, or when they fail to follow the Lord the way they should?

3. anger at God (21:4-5) Now they were on the way out around Edom and the same old thing happened again. But you'll notice this time it doesn't just say that they were angry with Moses. They grew impatient because their circumstances were difficult and spoke against God. They blamed God for allowing all their troubles to come upon them and became angry at Him. That's in us too, isn't it? Sometimes when illness comes or financial upset or tragedy or death in our lives, we get angry too. The struggle wears us down and we get mad at God for allowing and sending these things. Now I've always said, "If you're angry at God, tell Him; He's big enough to handle it." But in case I've said it to any of you, I don't mean that it's a right attitude to have. Telling Him is just being honest and if you go to Him with your anger, it won't be long before you find yourself not angry anymore and asking forgiveness. Anger at God is another work of the flesh; it wants nothing to do with God in the first place and so becomes easily angry at Him. But we can't forget to think about:

4. the anger of God (21:6) In the first incident, the people were not punished, possibly because of Moses' failure. God in grace provided water for them. This time, however God sent snakes among them and many died. Why? Compare Ps. 106:32. God was angry with them both at Meribah and, no doubt, here. God has an anger too, but it is not an unrighteous flaring of temper. It is a holy wrath against sin. It is that same holy wrath that was vented upon Christ on the cross on our behalf. It is the same holy wrath that will be poured out upon the earth in the Tribulation Period. It is the just reaction of the holiness of God against the awfulness of sin. So let's see a difference between His anger and ours. Ours is usually of the flesh and self-centered. His is righteous and holy. That's how ours must become if it is to be legitimate!

Now let's take a moment to talk about:

II. The Nature of Anger There are some important facts in these two incidents that we don't want to miss:

1. difficulty is God's "testing" us - Ps. 81:7 He was testing them there at Meribah. You see, they had been in that position before of having no water and God proved to them He could provide. They had no reason to complain. They needed only faith to ask and to trust God to meet their needs. And difficulty serves that same kind of purpose in our lives. Through it God tests our faith and through it produces perseverance and then character and then hope according to Romans 5. Difficulty is a "proving ground" where the reality of our faith is tested and made sure. Anger is a failing of the test. Paul says he learned the secret of being content in any circumstance in Phil. 4:13, drawing on the strength of Christ. Anger is the opposite of trusting in Christ's sufficiency. But more than that:

2. angry reaction is our "testing" God - 1 Cor. 10:9 He not only tested them but, by being angry at Him, they were "testing" Him. Remember when Satan tried to get Jesus to jump off the Temple and let the angels catch him? Jesus said that would be "testing" or "tempting" God. What does that mean? It is true that angels did protect Jesus and minister to Him and had He fallen off the temple they would no doubt have caught Him. So why not jump? Because jumping deliberately carries an attitude, an attitude of rebellion, an attitude of self-centeredness and wanting to force God into doing what I want. Israel knew full well God could and would provide for them. He'd been doing it daily. Their anger was testing God, demanding of Him that He do something for them, something they wanted. And when we go angrily to God, isn't that what we really want, for the Eternal to bend to our mortal wishes? It's the old ploy, "If you really loved me, you'd do this..." If we look a little more carefully we can see just what is so bad about this kind of anger. Compare Num. 20:12. The flaring up of anger indicates two things:

a. it is a failed loyalty to God It indicates a lack of trust in Him, a kind of conditional loyalty that says, "Lord, I'll love you as long as you..." Compare Deut. 32:50-51. The NIV says they broke faith. The Hebrew says they sinned and the word for sin here means "to act treacherously; to be a traitor". This kind of anger is failure in our loyalty to Him. But it is more:

b. it is a flawed testimony to others - Num. 27:14 They failed to regard the holiness of God before the eyes of the people. They acted just like the people did instead of representing God to the people. Anger flaws your testimony, ruins it! One good flare-up can undo years of relationship building; it will cause people to think you're a fake and a phony. It's a miserable testimony that has to be remedied. But how? Well, we also have here:

III. Two Remedies For Anger The first you might call:

1. speaking to the Rock (20:6-8) God told them to give an example to the people of what they needed to do, speak to the rock. How many times do we read in the Psalms and in worship passages, "The Lord is my Rock". Well, in this case we know certainly:

a. the Rock is a type of Christ - 1 Cor. 10:3-4 Now this does not literally mean that that physical rock followed them around the desert giving them water and Christ was hiding inside it. No, that rock was to them a visual reminder of another rock, the one Moses had struck when they first came out of Egypt and God had brought forth water out of the rock. And that was a reminder that they had a greater ROCK, the Lord. Paul is telling us that the pre-incarnate presence of Christ was with them everywhere they went. Christ, their provider, their supplier, their rock, was with them. And:

b. speaking is a type of prayer People make a big deal of the fact that Moses struck the rock twice instead of once. That's not the point. He was not to strike it at all. God had already struck the rock; all that was needed now was to speak to it. So Christ has already been struck on the cross once and for all for us. All we need to do now when in difficulty is to speak to Him and that's:

c. the point: seeking God's power against anger Moses and Aaron did the right thing. When the people were angry at them the first time they came and spoke to the Rock; they fell on their faces before God! When anger welled up within them later they should have done the same. When we sense ourselves becoming angry and about to lose it, we have a Rock to speak to; we have a Savior from whom flow rivers of living water, the Holy Spirit who has the power to control even this. When you start to feel anger, stop and pray. Call out to God for His power so that you might not betray Him and flaw your testimony. But there's a second action here:

2. looking to the Cross (21:7-9) When the people were dying of the snake bites, God had Moses make a bronze serpent and suspend it on a pole. Now we know:

a. the Snake is a type of the cross - Jn. 3:14-15 Jesus said that the snake on the pole was a picture of Him being lifted up on the cross. And therefore:

b. looking is a type of faith The Israelite had to look. The New Testament person has to believe. Looking is believing. It is trusting in the one hanging there to save you. You see, verse 7 tells us that when the snakes came, the people realized the sinfulness of their anger. They knew it required forgiveness. How could they get forgiveness? By looking to the snake, by trusting that through the snake on the pole God would forgive them and they would be made whole. So by looking to Christ, we trust that in Him we find forgiveness for sin because of His death on the cross. Now here's:

c. the point: seeking God's forgiveness for anger We not only need God's power against anger, but His forgiveness for wrong anger. And it is always there. We can come to Him saying "Lord, it was wrong to be angry; I've sinned against you and given a bad testimony. I need your forgiveness." And when we do, the forgiveness is already there because of what Jesus has done for us at the cross!

My friend, how are you dealing with your anger? Do you just excuse yourself by saying "Well, I'm just a hot-tempered person" and keep on blowing up?" Or do you speak to God and ask for His power to conquer it and when you fail, do you ask His forgiveness? Make no mistake, failing to deal with anger will keep you in the wilderness life. You must deal with it in order to reach the promised life, the life of the Spirit instead of the flesh, that God has for you.

Journey Problems: Works of the Enemy Chs. 22-25

There is more than just our flesh that works to keep us in the wilderness life and to keep us from the life of victory that God has promised us. At the same time that internally our flesh is striving to keep us from yielding our lives to the Spirit of God, we have an outside enemy with the same goal. Satan himself is the sworn enemy of God's people and is committed to preventing them from living the kind of life they were saved for. In chapters 11-21 of Numbers we've been examining the works of the flesh as they manifested themselves in Israel's national life and kept her in the wilderness. Now in chapters 22-25 we can see the works of the enemy pitted against her. Now the principle character we meet here is:

I. The Enemy's Man: Balaam (22:1-8) Israel has traveled out around Edom, has met resistance from Sihon king of the Amorites and Og king of Bashan and conquered them. Now they have come into the plains next to the Jordan River across from Jericho in the land of Moab. The Moabites and the Midianites were confederate with each other and plenty worried about Israel. So the king of Moab, Balak, decides to send for a prophet he knows by the name of Balaam who lives more than 300 miles to the northeast in the Euphrates River Valley to come and curse Israel so he can defeat them. Just who was this man, anyway?

1. he was a pagan prophet We usually think of him as a genuine prophet of the Lord. But the evidence rather suggests that he was a pagan prophet. He lived hundreds of miles away from the land of Canaan where God had been revealing Himself over the last 500-600 years. Now there probably were believers at Haran in Syria left over from Abraham's brother's family and there were some in Midian where Moses spent 40 years with his father-in-law Jethro the priest. The name of the Lord was not unknown in these regions. Yet Balaam was literally in the "land of the sons of his people". He was native to that region and a descendant not of any of the lines connected with Abraham, but of the Syrians or Amorites inhabiting that area who were rank pagans. Further, we know that:

2. he practiced divination - Josh. 13:22 calls him a diviner. A diviner is one who tried to know the future in advance by examining the entrails of animal sacrifices, etc. Deut. 18:10-14 lists divination as a pagan occult practice and says that anyone who does it is an abomination to the Lord and should not live. A vast number of clay tablets were found at a place called Mari on the Euphrates in 1933 and they tell of a complex cult of prophets and seers just like Balaam who lived there. The Lord was not his God; He was the god of the people Balaam was to curse. And everyone knew in that day that a people's own gods had the most power over them. If Israel's God Jehovah had brought them out of Egypt and given them such victory, then He was the one by whom they would have to be cursed. The place he first went up to to curse Israel was Bamoth Baal, a high place dedicated to the worship of Baal. The altars and sacrifices he commanded were not the sacrifices of Israel but the pagan attempt to appease God and divine the future.

3. his motive was greed and everybody knew it. Balak sure did. And even though he seems so righteous in this account saying, "I can only say what God tells me", the only reason he even desired to go in the first place was for the money. That's why God was so mad at him and you have the story of the talking donkey. He wanted God to change His mind about going; he hoped by constant approach to get Him to change His mind about cursing Israel so he could get rich. Compare Jude 11, 2 Pet. 2:15-16. God spoke through a greedy pagan prophet to accomplish His purpose!

4. his heart was against God's people - Josh. 24:9-10 God refused to listen to him. Remember how Balaam set up all those altars and then went off by himself to pray. No doubt in those times he was doing his pagan thing, invoking the God of Israel to curse them, desperately trying to do what Balak wanted. But God refused to listen to him and made him speak blessings instead! There is no question that he was a man empowered of the Enemy to be used against Israel. Now let's step back and look more generally at:

II. The Enemy's Tactics When Satan opposes God's people he has many schemes to do it. But three major ones show up here:

1. opposition (21:21-35; 22:2-3,6) He tried a direct attack on God's people through Sihon and Og in chapter 21. They came out to fight. Balak himself wanted to attack Israel but was too frightened by her previous victories and the number of her people. Sometimes Satan will attack us directly. He will try to injure or hurt or even kill us. He is our sworn enemy and hates us. But for each of Satan's tactics God has a remedy. In the case of opposition the remedy is God's protection of His people (21:34). God protected them during attack and gave them victory instead. Note it was not Israel's superior fighting ability. Their hands had not been trained for war. They were former slaves who'd been wandering in the desert for 40 years. God handed over Sihon and Og. God supernaturally protects His own. Oh if we only had eyes to see how often and in what ways He does it! But these chapters are mainly about his second tactic:

2. accusation (chs. 22-24) That's where Balaam comes in. His function is to arouse the God of Israel against His own people. Look at:

a. the ruse (22:6) "Come curse them for me..." Compare Rev. 12:12. That is Satan's function. He accuses God's people before God constantly. He tried to do it with Job and you can be sure he's also doing it with you. But these chapters teach us that God has a remedy for that attack too:

b. the remedy: God's vision of His people (24:2-4) God doesn't see with human eyes. He doesn't see us, His people, from an earthly point of view. He sees us from the Divine point of view. You see, when He deals with us, He speaks to us clearly about what we are and our behavior and all that. But when He deals with the enemy, He sees us as we are made in Jesus Christ! The four visions that God gave Balaam are not the miserable day-to-day wilderness view of Israel's failures which were no doubt continuing even as the prophecies were uttered; they are God's view of His own people. Pagan Balaam's eyes have been opened to see as God sees and here's what He sees:

(1) their specialness (23:9-10) God says they are set apart. They are unlike any of the other peoples on earth. They are peculiar and special. They are the righteous and Balaam wishes he were one of them! We are God's chosen, peculiar people as believers. He doesn't see us like the rest of the world, lost sinners. He sees us as His own.

(2) their spotlessness (23:21-23) God does not behold their sins, doesn't see them as sinners. He sees them as righteous, justified. That's how He sees us! We are pure and holy and blameless in Jesus Christ. We are made the righteousness of God in Him.

(3) their sublimeness (24:5-7) He sees Israel as beautiful and orderly and bounteous. The whole message of the Song of Solomon is that Christ sees His bride as beautiful and altogether lovely! To Him she is sublime, the desire of His heart. That is how God sees us in Christ!

(4) their supremeness (24:17-19) There's a Star, a King, going to come out of Israel who will crush Moab some day and all the other surrounding nations. Of course, we know that as a reference to Christ and His return in glory and then His people shall reign supreme with Him. Not only will Israel be the ruling center of the world, but the church will reign with Him. His people are rulers, supreme, reigning with Him forever and ever! That's how God sees us. No accusation can stand against us. Satan cannot accuse us before Him because He sees us in Christ.

3. seduction (ch. 25) Here is Satan's third major tactic. When Satan could not attack them directly, nor accuse them before God and move God against them, he sought to deceive them and seduce them into sin so that God would have to discipline them! Here you have:

a. the ruin of Israel (1-3) Now they stayed there awhile and the young men began to check out the local women and vice versa. They began to invite them to their Baal worship. And the reason that worked was simple; Baal worship was a fertility cult and the worship involved sexual relations. The men were quick to fall for this open invitation to immorality, even if it meant bowing down to a statue a little bit to enjoy it. But why did this really come about? Here's:

b. the reason (31:16, 8) Balaam went home but he just couldn't stand the loss of that reward. He had figured out the one thing that would arouse God against Israel, idolatry, and he must have come back to tell Balak and get his reward because he was killed by the Israelites along with the Midianites. Lest you doubt that, compare Rev. 2:14. He deliberately taught the Moabites how to lure the Israelites astray and bring judgment on them. That's Satan; he knows that he cannot get God to abandon us and cut off our salvation. We are chosen and secure. But he also knows that if he can seduce us into sin that he can ruin our testimony and our service and bring discipline upon us. And yet God has:

c. the remedy: God's discipline of His people (4-5,9) God brought a severe measure of discipline so that long afterward His people would remember Peor and stay clear of that sin. God uses His judgment on His people as a means of discipline to turn their hearts back to Him and solidify them. Compare 1 Cor. 11:32. God disciplines us for our ultimate good and Satan's purpose is nullified. But rather than waiting for discipline, the real remedy is in v. 31. Be awake and aware. Watch out for that seduction. And when you find yourself starting to fall into sin, judge yourself; put a stop to it on your own so that God doesn't have to discipline you.

Make no mistake about it. Satan is out there like a roaring lion looking for someone to devour and that someone is you. You need to be careful, constantly vigilant. But remember you also have a Father who protects you and in whose eyes you are a great treasure. And that knowledge will help to propel you out of the wilderness and on to the promised life.

NUMBERS: JOURNEY TO THE PROMISED LIFE

Prerequisites For Promised Life Chs. 26-36

Tonite we're going to finish out the Book of Numbers. I must admit I don't think I've ever tried to cover 11 chapters in one message before, but I think we can do it because these chapters form a new and separate portion of the book.

- I. The Principles For The Journey 1-9
- II. The Problems Of The Journey 10-25
- III. The Prerequisites For The Entry 26-36

You see, the journey's over now. Israel is camped on the plains of Moab by the Jordan River ready to go into the land. 40 years of wilderness are already past. But God still has some things to say to them before they are ready to enter the Promised Land and live the Promised Life. These chapters are either instructions for when they enter the land or the taking care of yet unresolved matters before entering. So in a sense they form the preparations or the prerequisites for Israel to enter the land. The actual content of much of them is "boring" to us, lists of numbers and places and boundary lines and offerings, etc. But spiritually speaking, these chapters display to us the things that we must have in our experience before we can move out of living the wilderness life, the carnal life of a Christian who lives a self-centered, flesh-motivated, Romans 7 kind of life, and move into the promised life of victory in the power of the Holy Spirit. Now the first thing we need is:

I. An Experiential Death (Ch. 26) This chapter is the record of the second numbering of the people. In chapter 1 the fighting men were counted and found to number 603,550. Now after 40 yrs., verse 51 says there were 601,730, a difference of only 1820 that is almost insignificant. But why is that worth noting?

1. they experienced death in the wilderness (63-64) Get the picture. Every single male Israelite over 20 died in the wilderness. Yet the numbers are practically the same. The Israel that stood ready to go in was a brand new Israel. The old Israel had died in the wilderness, that unbelieving Israel, the one fraught with wrong desires and works of the flesh. Now follow me closely. 1 Cor. 10 says that the crossing of the Red Sea was Israel's baptism. Just like our baptism, it pictured that they were no longer the slaves of Egypt, but God's own people. What they were had been buried and left behind. They were a new people, the people of God. But that fact took time to work itself out in their experience. Their dying to sin and self, while accomplished at the beginning, took 40 years to work out in their experience of wilderness life. For us too, this is true. We died with Christ. The old man was put off and we were transformed at the moment we received Him. But that death must be made real in our experience so that:

2. we must live as those who have died - Rom. 6:8-13 You see, the fact of our death to sin is true but the reckoning of it is an ongoing process. Learning to count myself as being dead to sin and to yield myself completely to the Spirit and to face life that way may take a long while to happen on a constant basis in our experience. But it's necessary. The spiritual life cannot be lived by someone who's dead but doesn't know it and doesn't act like it! That death must become real in our experience.

II. A Changed Allegiance (27:12-23) Here God tells Moses it's time to die and appoints Joshua as the new leader. So the point is:

1. they now followed Joshua, not Moses (18-21) There's a beautiful truth hidden here. Moses stands for the Law; his very name is synonymous with it. Joshua, however is essentially the Hebrew form of the name Jesus and is what our Jewish believer brethren call Him, Yeshua, which means Jehovah is salvation. Now they would no longer follow Moses, because Moses was removed; now they would give their full allegiance to following Joshua. This is a type of the fact that:

2. we must live by grace not law - Rom. 6:14 In the wilderness we live by law; we try in the flesh to please God and live the Christian life by keeping a bunch of rules. And we fail and fail and fail. That doesn't work in Canaan. In Canaan you give your full allegiance to following our Joshua; you live by grace, allowing His power and His spirit to control your life so His life is lived out through you. You have a changed allegiance; your life is not law; it is Jesus!

III. A Constant Dependence (Chs. 28-29) These two chapters describe the regular offerings according to the calendar. 28:3 describes the daily sacrifice, vs. 9 the weekly, vs. 11 the monthly, and verse 16 on describes the annual sacrifices at the Feasts of Passover, Unleavened Bread, Firstfruits, Weeks, Trumpets, the Day of Atonement and Tabernacles. The point is in 28:1-2. The sacrifices pleased God and they were to be given at the appointed times. Well, those appointed times were daily, morning and evening, PLUS weekly PLUS monthly PLUS the 7 annual special feasts. You see:

1. they depended constantly on the act of sacrifice There was a constant reminder that the sacrifices were the basis of everything they did. And, of course, we know that each and every one of those sacrifices was a picture of Christ's work on the cross which would be done for man and which would please God. So, the application for us is:

2. we must live in dependence on Christ's work It is the work of Christ that made atonement for us. It is the work of Christ that pleased God. In HIM He was well pleased. His being pleased with us and accepting us is only IN HIM. We need to live in a constant consciousness of the work of the cross. It provides our forgiveness, our access, our pleasingness to God and our righteousness. The cross, and by the cross I mean Christ's death and resurrection, is the center of our life and work, the spring of all our blessings and we need to be in conscious dependence on it constantly!

IV. A Depth Of Commitment (Ch. 30) This chapter is the law of vows. I would just point out two quick things:

1. they had to keep their commitments (2) They were not to play games with God like so many people do. If they made a promise or told God something, they were to fulfill it without fail. Many times believers do not have this depth of commitment. They are emotionally moved and tell God things and promise this and that but when the emotion fades the action somehow never comes about. A spiritual life is a life of deep commitment and the second picture in the chapter teaches us a further lesson:

2. we must live in submission to His lordship (13) A wife had to submit to her husband's lordship. Her vows and promises were subject to his will. Well, spiritually we are the bride of Christ and He is our husband. Our will and our vows and promises are subject to Him. He may choose to disallow them. We may decide to commit ourselves to do something that is just not what He wants, so He has the right to prevent it or change it. The point is that depth of commitment means that we must be submissive to His Lordship in everything.

V. A Deliberate Separation (Ch. 31) Now God sends Israel to attack the Midianites who had led them into idolatry through their women at the advice of Balaam. They conquered them, killed them, and divided up the spoils. The point is:

1. they severed all sinful association (6,15-20) This is God's war; the High Priest leads the battle. See, the point is purification. They were severing all association with sinful practices and persons who were leading them into sin. Hence:

2. we must live a separated life - 2 Cor. 6:14-7:1 We ought not to yoke ourselves with anything or anyone who will lead us into sin. Those things we have to be willing to put away from us. You can't live the Canaan life with a sinful skeleton in your closet that you hang on to. There has to be a deliberate separation from sin and from that which pulls you into it!

VI. A Consuming Desire (Chs. 32-34) These three chapters are about the land. Chapter 32 tells how some settled on the far side of Jordan in Gilead. Chapter 33 summarizes the journey and tells how they got to the land. Chapter 34 gives the boundaries of the land. When taken altogether, though, they say to me that a person living the spiritual life must have a consuming desire to have it! First, he must have a consuming desire:

1. to not settle for less than God promised (32:1-5) Reuben, Gad and half of Manasseh decided they didn't want to go into Canaan after all. They'd settle right here in already conquered territory, in Gilead and Bashan. Now that was not God's intent. The boundaries He described in chapter 34 had the Jordan as an eastern boundary. Moses longed to go over and see the land God had promised. It was over there; this land was second best. It was OK. It was appealing as far as its situation in this world went, but it was not God's best, the land of milk and honey! Moses was adamant about that! But when they offered to go over and fight with their brothers before settling it, Moses gave in. However, the fact remains that the circumstances of this world distracted them from pursuing God's best, His perfect place for them. And a lot of Christians stay on the edge of the wilderness that way, loving the Lord, worshipping Him, but not willing to go on and really be where God wants them because they are in pleasant circumstances. The spiritual life demands a burning desire to go all the way to have the best, to be in the center of God's will and also:

2. to not lose it by compromise (33:50-56) Some people go all the way with God and are doing well but some Canaanite attraction along the way grabs them and they compromise. Instead of getting rid of it and separating it out, they let it be and it grows and becomes a snare and pretty soon the wilderness life is back! The spiritual life takes a deep desire for God and for all that He has for us.

VII. A Careful Justice (Ch. 35) This chapter describes the Levitical cities and especially the cities of refuge. I don't have time to delve into it now. It has several lessons. Suffice it to say for now that a careful, considered sense of justice is part of the spiritual life.

VIII. A Walk By Faith (27:1-11; Ch. 36) These two sections tell the story of a man named Zelophehad who had only daughters and no sons. The first part tells how they came to Moses and wanted to be included in the inheritance. Ch. 36 tells how the tribes were worried that since they were included, that their portions of inheritance would be amended to other tribes. But what stands out to me is:

1. they counted on what God promised as real (27:4, 36:4) Here they are sitting on the far side of Jordan. The land they're talking about is inhabited by seven nations with fortified cities and big walls. Jericho is in view. The only thing they had to count on was a promise from God that it belonged to them and they counted that as being as real as if they were already settled in it. That's faith. Unbelief wouldn't have worried about such questions! These people believed God and arranged their daily walk by faith. So too:

2. we must live by faith - 2 Cor. 4:18, 5:7 The spiritual life demands that we must fix our eyes on what we cannot see and count it as being real. We must not depend on our eyes and live accordingly. We must walk by faith, counting every word of God as being true and anything contrary as a lie!

Well these are the prerequisites to real spiritual life. May God grant that they can be developed in each of our lives so that we might be done with wilderness living and live the promised life of Canaan.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

Today we begin a new series of studies through the Old Testament book of Joshua which will take us through the summer. For those who may not be familiar, Joshua was Moses' younger assistant through the last 40 years of his life and God chose him to become the leader of Israel in Moses' place when he died; this book is the story of Israel under his leadership. To put it in perspective, Genesis is the record of how God created the people of Israel; Exodus is the record of how God saved the people of Israel from their slavery in Egypt; Leviticus is the record of how God taught the people to live at Mt. Sinai; Numbers is the record of how God led the people of Israel through the wilderness; Deuteronomy is the record of what God again taught Israel on the border of the land of Canaan and Joshua is the record of how God conquered the land of Canaan and gave it to Israel to possess forever. So:

• The Book of Joshua is the record of a historical war which Israel fought and won about 1400 BC at God's direction, against the seven idol-worshipping peoples who lived in the land of Canaan at that time. She attacked and defeated them in a series of battles and took possession of their entire land, placing it under the rule of God, in effect making it His kingdom! Now if you think about it, the same process has essentially been going on for the last 2,000 years. John wrote, We know that we are children of God, and that the whole world is under the control of the evil one. - 1Jn. 5:19. But God sent His Son Jesus (whose Hebrew name, by the way, was Yeshua, i.e., Joshua) to save and create a new people for Himself, the Church. And throughout the record of history Jesus has been leading the Church, His victorious army, against the whole world and waging war against Satan's rule over every part of it and taking it back for Himself to make it God's kingdom! So, like it or not:

• Your life as a Christian is participation in a spiritual war! Only it is not a war against people. Paul said, ...our struggle is not against flesh and blood, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the powers of this dark world and against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly realms [Eph. 6:12]. And The weapons we fight with are not the weapons of the world. On the contrary, they have divine power to demolish strongholds. - 2 Cor. 10:4. Our war is not against human beings like Joshua's was; rather it is against Satan and all the systems he's established and the demonic forces which he uses to hold the world of people captive and to attack us. And we don't fight our war with swords and spears and shields like Joshua did or the crusaders tried to do, nor with guns and bombs as Muslim radicals do wanting to physically take over the world; rather we fight our spiritual war with spiritual weapons that are Divinely energized to fight these spiritual powers, pull down the strongholds they've established in the world and in people's lives and place their territory under Jesus' control. Like it or not, you and I live in a continuing war all our lives that is just as real as World War II and, living in that environment, we need to learn to fight spiritually or we'll get creamed! And that's what the Book of Joshua is going to teach us. We are told that:

• Israel's experiences are intended to teach us important spiritual lessons In 1 Cor. 10:6, 11 Paul says twice that all These things happened to them as examples for us. They were written down to warn us who live at the end of the age. [NLT] We're supposed to study them and learn important lessons from them so that we don't mess up! And that's why we're going to study Joshua. Now the Book divides very simply into four parts:

- I. Preparing For Combat chs. 1-5
- II. Fighting The Battles chs. 6-11
- III. Dividing The Territory chs. 12-21 [we're omitting these]
- IV. Maintaining The Victory chs. 22-24

So, we begin by looking at how God prepared Israel to face combat in order to learn how we need to prepare ourselves to face our spiritual battle and the lesson we're going to learn in Chapter 1 is a very important one:

We Prepare For Battle Through the Word - Ch. 1

Notice that the first thing God gives us at the very beginning of the book is:

I. Our Personal Command To Engage In The Battle (1-2) Literally God says to Joshua, Arise! "Get up, you and all these people, go cross the Jordan and take the land! You've camped here long enough, now accept your responsibility. Rise up and go!" That's the first step, accepting that there truly is a war upon us and that we personally must deliberately rise up and take a role in it! It is not somebody else's battle; you can't choose to sit it out. For 40 years Joshua had simply been a servant to Moses, hearing God speak to Moses and doing whatever Moses said. But now God speaks to HIM and tells him "Moses is dead. He's not here anymore! YOU are going to have to go over and fight this war; nobody else is going to be able to do it for you!" In the days following the attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, hundreds of thousands of Americans rushed to enlist in the armed forces. All across the country, in urban and rural communities, military recruiting offices were jammed. Some offices announced they would stay open 24 hours, seven days a week to accept enlistments. Veterans of the first World War wanted to enlist, even though most were too old! ...Before the war ended, well over 16 million men and women were enrolled in the armed forces, over 12 percent of the total U.S. population at the time! [\[http://www.livinghistoryfarm.org/farminginthe40s/life_02.html\]](http://www.livinghistoryfarm.org/farminginthe40s/life_02.html). Contrast that attitude with the time of the Vietnam War where we originated the term "draft dodger", wrote popular songs about how to get out of serving and 100,000 people actually left the country to evade military service! People wanted to go on living their own secure, safe, happy lives and ignore the war their country was engaged in! Listen, in large measure the generation before us had that "eager to serve" attitude. Many believers you once knew and were taught by gave and sacrificed unselfishly to the cause of Christ; they went to the ends of the earth with the Gospel as well as to the hearts of our decaying cities to start rescue missions. They prayed like crazy, gave to the bottom of their wallets and worshipped together every time the church door was open. Why? They recognized there was a war on and God needed them in it! They served well, but now they're dead and gone and it's our turn! Yet so many in our generation would like to ignore the war and go about our self-oriented lives and not worry about the cause of Christ. And to us God says personally, "Arise! Go take the land!" Like the old recruiting poster of Uncle Sam, God says, "I want YOU!" "Rise up!" Put on the full armor of God so that you can take your stand against the devil's schemes. - Eph. 6:11. There's no opting out; to refuse is to lose already, so accept your command to engage in battle! Next, we read about:

II. The Provisions That Have Prepared Us for Battle (3-5) God told Joshua three things to prepare him. Knowing these three things, I'm sure, made all the difference. At least I know that if God told ME these three things, I'd be ready to rise up and go to war! Oh, but in reality, He has! Listen:

1. God has already declared us victorious (3) Even though he was young at the time, David knew this truth and it's what made him willing to fight Goliath, ...it is not by sword or spear that the LORD saves; for the battle is the LORD's, and he will give all of you into our hands. - 1Sam. 17:47. It doesn't matter who has the most men or the best weapons; the outcome of the battle belongs to the Lord. HE declares the winner and determines the outcome. The Canaanites had already lost the war before the battles started! The outcome was recorded in the annals of heaven as a "done deal". Joshua could not lose, no matter what it may have seemed like at the moment. In like manner you should know this, Heb. 2:14 (NASB) Since then the children share in flesh and blood, He Himself likewise also partook of the same, that through death He might render powerless him who had the power of death, that is, the devil. Listen, the devil is fighting this battle with blank ammunition! All his weapons can't kill you, not eternally! All his forces can't stop you and the cause you fight for! I've read the end of the book. I know how the war turns out! And I see you there along with millions of us from every people on earth standing before His throne for the victory celebration! We're fighting a war we KNOW we'll win! Second:

2. God has given us His almighty power (5a) What a promise! Remember how the 10 spies had gone over to check out the land and said, ...All the people we saw there are of great size. ...We seemed like grasshoppers in our own eyes, and we looked the same to them? God says, "No enemy, no matter how huge he is or how large his force appears will be able to withstand your attack. Not one! And not just on a good day, but all the days of your life!" I'd go to war on that, wouldn't you? Well, what did Jesus tell us? ...I will build My church; and the gates of Hades shall not overpower it. - Matt 16:18 (NASB). No power on earth can stop us! No barricade the enemy puts up can long prevent our advance! He said, Submit yourselves, then, to God. Resist the devil, and he WILL flee from you. - Jas. 4:7. Why? Not because of our own strength, of course, but of His. That's why in Eph. 6:10 Paul exhorts us, Finally, be strong in the Lord and in his mighty power and then tells us about all this armor that God has given us and how we need to put it on. Our weapons have Divine power to demolish strongholds! Third:

3. God has given us His constant Presence (5b) Wow, God Himself says, "I will be with you AND I'll never take a vacation or a break from being with you and I'll never abandon you!" Look at vs. (9) "This promise is good wherever you go! So, you NEVER need to be afraid!" Oh, don't you wish YOU had a promise like that? Well, just maybe does it sound a tad familiar? You know Heb. 13:5b-6 ...God has said, "Never will I leave you; never will I forsake you." So we say with confidence, "The Lord is my helper; I will not be afraid. What can man do to me?" God meant it for us too and He told us so directly. He is with us in this war; He's right here in our camp! He actually dwells right inside of us and He's not going anywhere!

So, when I tell you that we live in a war, I'm not trying to scare you; I'm not trying to make you afraid. We DO live in a perpetual war but our God has told us that we're going to win, has given us His Divine power to fight with and has promised to be with us personally every second of it! Look at v. (6). "Joshua, you WILL do this! You will lead them over there and take the land. So don't be afraid; be brave and strong! I keep My promises and I am not about to default on them! BUT... there is one specific thing you need to do." (7-8) Joshua had something that none of the great men of faith before him had. He had straight from Moses' own hand the Book of the Law, the Pentateuch, the first five books of the Bible which Moses had written down. He no longer had to rely simply on remembering what God said. He had God's instructions and promises in writing! And with that privilege now came a set of instructions. God told him to prepare himself for battle by using the Book! And just like Joshua, we still have:

III. The Book That Prepares Us for Battle, only we have the finished and completed work with ALL the information that we will ever need. But we still must use it the same way Joshua was instructed. First of all:

1. we must be committed to following the Word of God (7) If God's army doesn't follow His commands, how can it succeed? If your feet decide to just do whatever they want instead of doing what the head tells them, you're in trouble, aren't you? God is in charge and He knows what He's doing, so when you don't do what He tells you, you mess it up. You end up defeated in that particular battle. Joshua had to come to the Word of God with the mindset that he was going to do whatever it said to do regardless of the consequences in every situation. To experience victory, you have to approach the Word of God with an attitude that says, "When I find out what God says to do, I'm going to do it! I'm not going to do what I feel like first or turn to the right and try that or turn to the left and try this. I'm going to do what God says." Is that how you approach it? Secondly:

2. we must be constant in thinking the Word of God (8a) Of course, that means you have to READ it first to know what it says! God told Joshua that he had to have the Word of God constantly in his mind. He was to be saying it with his mouth, talking about it to other people and meditating on it. He was to be thinking about what it says and what it means all the time, day and night. You can't DO it without KNOWING it! And that's what He wants for us. We've got to read it regularly, every day and then think about what we've read, maybe research some things we don't understand. We've got to keep it constantly fresh in our minds. You know, I have discovered over the years the sad fact that what you don't use, you lose! Verses that used to come to me readily 20 years ago don't now because I haven't used them! We must be constantly immersing ourselves in the Word of God if we want to be ready for this war we're in! And finally:

3. we must be careful in doing the Word of God (8b) Joshua had to be careful not to neglect any part of the Book but to do everything written in it. We cannot neglect the portions we don't like but must be careful, meticulous, with the Word of God, constantly on guard for blind spots in our lives. It helps if we choose to read it in a balanced pattern over and over so that we clearly end up following the whole counsel of God.

And that's what causes us to succeed in the war! Without the Book and without immersing Himself in it, Joshua and Israel would never have succeeded in taking the whole land! In fact, when they were NOT careful to obey the Word of God, they lost the battle or they ended up in trouble, as we'll see later on. Ephesians calls the Bible the sword which the Holy Spirit uses. Hebrews says it is living and powerful and sharper than any two-edged sword because it pierces right into the heart of man. It was the Scripture that Jesus used in His battle against Satan in the wilderness. It is the Scripture that filled Jesus' mind and which He used time and again in His battles with the Pharisees. Chet Bitterman, the Wycliffe missionary who was kidnaped by Colombian terrorists in 1981, was held for 7 weeks and then killed. Before he was captured, he had memorized all of 1 Peter, a book written to encourage first-century Christians who were suffering for their faith. During Chet's captivity, he wrote a letter to his wife in which he quoted 1 Peter 3:15 and 16 indicating that he was using God's Word to guide and strengthen him in the way he responded to his captors. The Word of God sustained him during the long days of his trying ordeal. But as he was memorizing that passage months earlier, he had no way of knowing how soon he would be needing it. Listen, we've been given a powerful tool which will prepare us for all of life's battles if we put it in our minds and hearts all the time. What are you doing with it? Beloved, do not let this Book of the Law depart from your mouth; meditate on it day and night, so that you may be careful to do everything written in it. Then you will be prosperous and successful. - Josh 1:8.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua God Prepares For Our Battle; We Must Pray - Ch. 2

We live in a war and our lives as Christians are filled with spiritual battles. Have you ever noticed that many of the great hymns of the past are songs like "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "A Mighty Fortress" which point that out? We are in a war against Satan and all his hosts who seek to wreck and ruin our lives and to keep the unbelieving world under their control. The daily circumstances of our lives are, in fact, battlegrounds where Satan seeks to defeat us and stop our efforts to serve the King. There are battles where we face temptation and discouragement and fear and deception and much more. And to go into this combat we must be prepared. Last time we saw in chapter 1 how God told Joshua that in order to have victory he had to prepare himself through the Word of God, through saturating his life and thoughts and mind with the Word. Now in chapter 2 we come to:

I. The Wonderful Story Of Rahab You can read the story in (1-7, 15), but it goes like this. Israel was camped across the Jordan from Jericho to the east. In verse 1 Joshua sent out two spies to cross the river, enter the city and bring back intelligence on its situation. After slipping through the gates, they encountered a prostitute by the name of Rahab who took them to her home but not for the immoral purpose for which she usually took men home. Amazingly, she sheltered and protected them when the King of Jericho heard of their presence and began searching for them. Instead of turning them in, she took them up on the roof, hid them under the stalks of flax drying there and sent the pursuers on a wild goose chase. Then she shocked them by confessing her faith in their God, let them down through her window outside the city wall since they were trapped inside and hung a scarlet rope in the window as a visible sign so that her life would be spared when Israel attacked. When you ponder it, the story is truly astonishing, but I want to get to the heart of what's going on in it. What you see in this story is:

II. The Key Lesson: God Prepares For The Battles We Face In Life! Joshua and Israel are not the only ones preparing for battle. When we listen to the voice of Rahab, we find out that God has been at work preparing for Israel's battles too! And that's what I want to point out to you this morning: whenever you face a spiritual battle in the circumstances of your life, Almighty God has already been at work to prepare you with the provision, the information and the help you need to face that battle AND also to prepare the circumstances surrounding the battle itself. When Jacob came home from 20 years in Syria, he was extremely worried about how his brother Esau, whom he had cheated before he left, was going to receive him. So, he prayed and made all kinds of contingency plans, expecting the worst, but when Esau arrived, he threw his arms around Jacob and kissed him! God had already been at work in Esau too and took away that hatred and animosity! Listen, you cannot enter a situation that God does not know about and has not already been at work preparing for! If that's hard to believe, just look at what He did in this story. On a personal level:

1. He prepared Rahab to be saved before Israel arrived (8-11) Now remember this woman is a Canaanite, a citizen of Jericho. All her life she has worshipped idols. For most of it she has never even heard of the God of Israel, and if she had, she probably would just have considered Him as another god like Baal or Ashtaroah or whatever other idol men worship. Plus, her lifestyle was base and immoral. Some have tried to paint her as a friendly innkeeper (there's even a note in the NIV margin) but when James mentions her in the New Testament, he calls her in the Greek a porn-ee, a prostitute, a woman who regularly engaged in sexual immorality. This was the lifestyle she knew and practiced daily in that pagan society. In Israel she would have been stoned to death, but here she is practicing her sin openly in Jericho, a haughty city with strong walls, proud and pompous. There is no reason on earth for God to save her soul; she should by rights be left to destruction with all the rest. Plus, there is no way on earth, it seems, for God to save her if He wanted to. But He did! Look at God's amazing work in her life. First:

a. He caused her to hear the news of His mighty acts She had heard how the Lord dried up the Red Sea for Israel to cross and how He had completely destroyed the land of Egypt and its army 40 years earlier. Somehow the news had filtered north to Jericho. Then, more recently she had heard also how Israel had whipped Sihon, the King of the Amorites, and Og, the King of Bashan on the other side of the Jordan and taken their land. That was pretty close to home and God had caused that news to be told in Jericho and allowed her to hear it. Of course, news travels, especially big news, but what is more amazing is that He caused her to believe the reports! Think about it. If someone told you that a path opened up in the middle of an ocean that was big enough for a couple million people to cross on dry land, would you believe it? Would you believe that every firstborn child in Egypt died in the same night? Or that the Nile River had turned to blood or that the vegetation of Egypt was destroyed by hail mixed with fire? Such acts had never been heard of! Her gods had certainly never done anything like that! And yet, when she heard it, in her heart she genuinely believed that the Lord had indeed done all those things instead of doubting! That is truly the mercy of God at work in her! Yet here is the most amazing thing:

b. He caused her to understand His true nature Look at the last half of verse 11. She believed that Jehovah, the God of Israel was the one true God, the only God, and that He was in complete control of heaven and earth. She was renouncing her gods and choosing to believe in the God of strangers. And notice this belief didn't come from some lecture she got from the spies after they arrived; this was something she had already come to believe on her own before they got there! She had true faith; she was reaching out to the True God before any messenger ever got near her. And by the way, do you know God is still doing that? South American missionary Donald Richards in the Central Amazon Basin tells this story: "So we started doing some quick fact-finding about the area, we found the government knew of at least two tribal groups in the sections donated to us. No one had ever been granted permission to enter these areas or contact these groups. So...we began praying and planning for contact with these unreached people groups. Three of us took this trek, not sure where we were heading. All the aerial maps showed nothing; but we knew there was a tribal group here somewhere. After five hours and 27 rivers crossed, it was pitch dark as we drove into the village of the cabana-type huts of the Karitiana [people]. Several of them had been out to trading posts, so a few of them knew some Portuguese. But we were the first outsiders they had seen in ten years. We finally understood they were having some kind of gathering in large huts made of mud bricks. All the other huts were of palm branch. Near the door there was fish roasting over a fire, with the smoke wafting inside. Several of them insisted we enter. With no idea what we were getting into, we ducked inside. There were candles made of gum flickering everywhere, shining off the faces of about 30 or 40 men, women and kids. A man sitting in the center spoke in Portuguese and said he would stop what they were doing to tell us a story. So, the three of us squeezed in and sat on the ground. 'This is where we celebrate Jesus,' the man said. I know my jaw dropped and my eyes must have bugged out. I asked him to repeat it and he told me in rough Portuguese that these 35 Karitiana were following Jesus. So he stood in the hut and gave us what amounted to a testimony. He said it was almost a year ago that he had a vision. He said Jesus came to him and took him to heaven. Somehow, he knew who it was - Jesus - and knew he was seeing heaven. It was beautiful, filled with more people than he had ever seen. But he didn't see many Indians and didn't see any Karitiana. So he asked Jesus why. And he says Jesus told him, 'Because you are serving demons, not Me.' And then Jesus asked him his name and he said, 'Francisco.' Then Jesus said, 'No, that is what you are called in Portuguese. What is your Karitiana name?' He replied, 'Rual.' Jesus said, 'I made you a Karitiana. You are worthy of the Karitiana. I made you a nation and I want you to worship Me as Karitiana.' And immediately he's back in his hut. So Rual has spent the last year telling everyone in the tribe what happened and what Jesus said. And so far, 35 of them have quit worshiping spirits to follow Jesus. There are only 156 Karitiana. But there's going to be a good showing of them percentage-wise around the throne of the Lamb." [Run With A Vision, p. 44-45] "Imagine the awesome privilege of getting to tell these folks the whole story! Listen, God is still preparing people's hearts, not always in such dramatic ways, of course, but just as He did in Rahab, He is at work making them ready to believe in Christ before He ever sends you to share the Gospel with them! And then notice this:

c. He led the spies to her door Of all the people in the city of Jericho they might have bumped into, they immediately met Rahab and she recognized them as Israelites and whisked them into her house. For weeks she'd been waiting and agonizing, convinced that she was about to die with all of Jericho when the Israelite army crossed the Jordan. Maybe she was praying to the God of Israel to hear her and spare her! And suddenly here stood two Israelites, people who actually knew and worshipped the God she had come to believe in without knowing Him! Oh, how her heart must have jumped for joy! She knew this was no accident and it wasn't. God sent those spies to a prepared person in a Divinely pre-arranged meeting to bring her to fully trust in Him and save her life. And what's even more fantastic is that:

d. He moved her to trust Him at the risk of her own life Please understand, this is an act of treason, one punishable by death. This is betraying your own people and King and siding with the enemy. To protect the spies was to risk life itself on her newfound faith in the God of Israel; that's how deep her faith was! Heb. 11:31 says, By faith the prostitute Rahab, because she welcomed the spies, was not killed with those who were disobedient. And James 2:25 adds, In the same way, was not even Rahab the prostitute considered righteous for what she did when she gave lodging to the spies and sent them off in a different direction? She demonstrated the depth and the reality of her faith by protecting those spies; it was genuine and God memorializes it forever in His Word! Truly God had been at work through circumstances preparing her for salvation before Israel ever arrived, but that's not the whole point. Through her words we can also see that:

2. He prepared the Canaanites to be destroyed before Israel arrived God had been working not just in Rahab but in all the people of Jericho, indeed, in all the inhabitants of Canaan. He had a plan that He was working out on behalf of Israel. He had already told Moses that:

a. He planned to terrify them before Israel He said, This very day I will begin to put the terror and fear of you on all the nations under heaven. They will hear reports of you and will tremble and be in anguish because of you." - Deut. 2:25. And Moses told the people, No man will be able to stand against you. The LORD your God, as he promised you, will put the terror and fear of you on the whole land, wherever you go. - Deut. 11:25. God made it so all the Canaanites heard about the Red Sea and about Sihon and Og across the river and that they all knew that Israel had but one objective: Canaan. He wanted them to be in fear and terror of Israel and her God and here's why:

b. that terror was designed to cause confusion He said, I will send my terror ahead of you and throw into confusion every nation you encounter. I will make all your enemies turn their backs and run. - Ex. 23:27. Terror would confuse them. You don't fight well and bravely when you're convinced you're going to lose and die. You take the first opportunity to run or you hesitate in following orders or you are constantly unsure of what to do to preserve yourself. God's plan was to defeat the enemy before the battles ever got started, right in their own minds. And in Rahab's words you can see that:

c. His preparation worked (9, 11) The whole city is shaking in their boots! They don't know what to do except shut the gates and try to hold out the best they can. Now look down to (23-24). You see, this whole incident does a marvelous thing for the people of Israel. They know they're going to win because they hear that God has been at work! Listen, dear one, whatever battle you're going to face in life, this story is a message of assurance to you from God. He has already been at work! He has already prepared the circumstances. The entire thing is in His hands and under His control. Know this! Count on this! Then because of this, it seems to me there is something you and I must do:

III. We Participate In God's Preparation Through Prayer Since we know that God is at work in any situation we face, it is only natural that as soon as we're aware of the situation, we will begin praying and asking Him to be at work! You see:

1. our praying acknowledges our dependence upon God You remember the story of King Jehoshaphat, one of the godly Kings of Judah. One day he got word that a large army composed of three enemy peoples had gathered against him. Not only that, but they had rounded the bottom of the Dead Sea and were already at En Gedi, just 25 miles to the south of Jerusalem before any word reached him. Talk about being faced with a battle! Yet his first response was not to panic, but to gather whoever he could and pray! Look at 2 Chr. 20:12-13. That's where we should stand always! When we pray:

a. it is an admission that we are not trusting our own strength We have no power to face this on our own. It is not in us. We can't do it; we don't know WHAT to do! We cry out to Him because we have no trust in ourselves. Prayer says, "Our eyes are upon YOU!" And so:

b. it is our assurance that He will get all the glory from the victory As you know a prophet stood up and told them, "God says go out tomorrow and take a stand against the enemy. You won't even have to fight!" And they didn't. God put such confusion among the enemy troops that they fought one another and destroyed themselves! Well, guess who got the credit for that battle! When we pray, knowing that the battle belongs to the Lord and He is completely in control, it is the sure sign that when He delivers us and enables us to come through our situation unscathed, with our faith whole and following Him with all our hearts, that He will get all the credit! But what we must truly realize is that:

2. our praying is part of fighting the battle Turn with me to Eph. 6:18. In verse 12 we are warned about the spiritual battles we're going to face in life. In verse 13 we're told to get ready for those battles by putting on the things God has given us, His armor, and piece after piece is listed. In verse 17 we come to the need to saturate ourselves with the Word of God and then we arrive at Eph. 6:18. Prayer is part of fighting the battle! If you really believe that God prepares the battles of life and sets the stage for them, you PRAY! You build a prayer life, a daily communion with God where you spend time with Him talking about the issues of life you face ahead of time, anticipating coming difficulties and needs and bathing them in prayer so that as you come to them both you and the circumstances are prepared and you enter them with the confidence that God is at work and you will have victory, no matter what the outcome! Paul tells us four things. First:

a. our praying must be real It must be in the Spirit, not the chanting of empty words, but real communication of our heart with God. Second:

b. our praying must be continual It must be all the time, every day. Communion with God is not something you can walk in and do on Sunday. It is learned and worked out in a daily quiet time alone with God. This is vital. Third:

c. our praying must be vigilant We must be alert and watching for what God is trying to do in our life and others' lives. We must be alert and watching for what Satan is trying to do, anticipating his moves, anticipating how he will try to use pain or bad news or that new responsibility at work. Will he try to fill us with pride or to discourage us because finances are tight? We must be alert when we pray and ask the Holy Spirit to help us to pray on a spiritual plane and not merely about the physical and the obvious. And finally:

d. our praying must be persistent We must keep on in it. Even when we don't feel like it. Even when it looks like a particular situation may be hopeless. We must persist and keep on praying, never giving up, if we're going to be effective.

Listen, God is at work preparing for the battles that are coming in your life. You can participate with Him in that by praying, by developing a consistent prayer life. It's important. I know you don't have time. Neither do I. But we must. In the 1700's there was a man who ran a cobbler's shop in England. He was once reproached by someone for spending so much time in prayer that he neglected his business. He replied, "Prayer IS my real business! Cobbling shoes is just a sideline; it helps me pay expenses." He knew that prayer was more important in his life than laying up treasures on earth. And the Lord later used him greatly as a missionary to India, Burma, and the East Indies. His name was William Carey, the founder of modern missions! He prepared for the battles he was to face with a life of prayer. Are you? Oh, by the way, would you like to know what happened to Rahab? She lived and later married a godly Israelite by the name of Salmon and together they raised a godly son whose name was Boaz, the redeemer, the husband of Ruth, the grandfather of King David, and ultimately of whom came the Savior, Jesus Christ. So, pray! Rahab did! You never know how great the reward can be.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

We Prepare For Battle Through Following - Ch. 3

In our study of the Book of Joshua we've been learning that life is war, that we live in a continual spiritual battle with the enemy of our souls who is seeking to defeat and deter us in every situation from advancing Jesus' Kingdom. And in these first five chapters we're learning how to prepare ourselves for this spiritual combat. In chapter 1 God told us that we must saturate our lives with the Word of God; His Book comes before all else. Then in chapter 2 God showed us powerfully through the story of Rahab that He is always at work preparing for the battles we face and that we must recognize that and join with Him through a lifestyle of prayer. Now in chapter 3 we come to another of those landmark stories that became the bedrock of Israel's faith for all time. Before Israel entered the Promised Land and engaged in the battles that lay ahead of them, they faced a formidable obstacle. The Jordan River lay between them and land of Canaan. Of course, this was no accident. God had deliberately led them in a circular fashion around the east side of the land of Edom and back to the plains of Moab on the east side of Jordan to enter the land of Canaan from the middle instead of the southern bottom.

But that caused them to have to cross the only major river in the region. Why? God knew what He was doing; He had a preliminary lesson that He wanted to teach them in preparation for the battles to come, a lesson about following Him. And that's a lesson we need to learn also to prepare us for the spiritual battles we will face in life. You will not be well-prepared to face temptation or fear or discouragement or any of the other spiritual attacks Satan will make against you unless you have solidly learned the lesson of following God without hesitation. God showed that lesson to Israel very graphically in a grand object lesson, a symbolic picture, in the crossing of the Jordan. So, let's look at:

I. The Lesson Which God Set Up About His Leading (1-5) Israel had been camped for some time at Shittim about 7 miles from the river's edge and it was while there that Moses spoke to them our book of Deuteronomy, climbed Mt. Nebo to look across to the Promised Land and died. From there Joshua had sent out the spies and after they returned, he moved the camp to the very edge of the river and waited three days to cross. Joshua had instructions from God about how they were to go across and on the third day the officers passed out the instructions for the crossing. Now please notice:

1. the uniqueness of the physical arrangement On this march:

a. the ark would lead the way forward The priests would carry the ark of God at the head of the column. That was new. In their wilderness travels the ark was always in the middle of the camp and the middle of the marching order of the tribes and it was always covered up and carried by the Levites. The ark symbolized to Israel the very presence of God; it was the visual icon God had given them of His presence. It was His seat, His chair, His throne, as it were. But this time it was to go in front of them, to lead the way. And it was to be carried, probably uncovered, by the priests, denoting what an important occasion this was. It literally symbolized God Himself leading the way forward and:

b. the people were to follow behind Verse 3, "When you see the ark going forward, you are to move out and follow it!" Now they were to be careful to leave about a thousand yards between, I'm sure to emphasize the holiness of God, but also so that every Israelite could see it (remember there were probably some 2 million of them!) Nevertheless, when it went forward, they were to rise up and follow where it led. It was a command to follow God without question or hesitation and that's:

2. the lesson it taught for us. You see:

a. we do not know the way God wants us to go Verse (4) made it clear; they had never been this way before. Not a single person standing there had ever been to that region. The Jordan was not a small creek; it could not be crossed just anywhere. All through the centuries the Jordan has been crossed only at fords, at known places where the river is shallow enough to wade and the bank gentle enough to permit an easy crossing. The Israelites did not know where the fords were; they did not know which way was the right way to go to get across the Jordan or for that matter which way to go about fighting the battles they were to face in Canaan. And that's also true in our lives, isn't it? There are many ways we can go in our lives, many choices that we can make. The way most people handle life is to size up the situation in front of them and pick the way through it that looks best to them at the moment. But they haven't waded across at that exact spot before and may not realize, for instance, that in the center of the stream is a hole 12 feet deep and they're going to get swept away. Or they may be lucky and pick a good spot and get through OK. But that's not how a believer is supposed to live. The reality is that what truly matters to us is which way GOD wants us to go, His path for us, the one that will bring us to victory and Him the glory and none of us knows in and of ourselves exactly what that path is. So, the lesson is that:

b. we must willingly follow where God leads Our responsibility is not to decide which way to go but to do like Israel in verse (3), to watch carefully what God is showing us and to rise up immediately and simply follow the way that God directs as He goes before us. We are "followers" of Jesus; that is a tremendous way to describe and look at the Christian life. It means simply that we watch Him and listen to Him and then go where He says and do what He says. That's the lesson God was teaching Israel there by the Jordan. But here's the kicker:

II. God Led Israel Directly Into An Insurmountable Obstacle (6) and God said to Joshua, (8). Now that doesn't sound like much to us, but if you were standing there that day, you would realize:

1. the unsolvable predicament of crossing the Jordan (15a) Israel had arrived at the Jordan in the spring when all the snow melted on the mountains of Lebanon up north and engorged the river. The Jordan was at full flood stage, overflowing all its banks and would be so for weeks. One commentary says, The river about Jericho is, in ordinary appearance, about fifty or sixty yards in breadth. But as seen in harvest, it is twice as broad; and in ancient times, when the hills on the right and left were much more drenched with rain and snow than since the forests have disappeared, the river must, from a greater accession of water, have been broader still than at harvest-time in the present day. [Jamieson, Faucett and Brown] So while it may have ordinarily been, let's guess, 2 to 4 feet deep at the normal ford, on this day it was way deeper than their heads, more than the length of a football field wide and raging past them at a rapid pace. I grew up living next to a creek in Annville PA that was normally 3 or 4 feet deep and 10 yards wide. But one day in 1972 we got 12 inches of rain and that creek rose 17 feet, out of its banks, completely inundated our driveway level floor and rose 3 feet into our main living area. As I stood there at its edge it was now well over a hundred yards wide and flowing with such force that it completely knocked down the ranch house that sat on the opposite shore from us. I would NEVER have tried to cross that water; to do so would have meant being swept away and probably drowned. That's exactly what the Jordan was like; how could more than two million people with wives and little ones and belongings and livestock ever get across? It was an insurmountable obstacle they faced. And yet God led them directly into it! But here's:

2. the inconceivable solution that God promised (9, 11, 13) God's solution was simple; Joshua said, "You get up and follow the ark; God is going to dry up the river; it's simply going to stop flowing!" Now you realize, that was absolutely inconceivable to them! If someone had told ME that, as I stood on the hill watching our creek flow through the middle of my house, I would have said, "You're nuts!" No power on earth could do that short of a bomb blast (and they didn't know about bombs!) Yes, they had seen God providing for them every day and helping them in the battles they won on that side of Jordan, but this was calling upon them for a new level of trust. It was exactly like their parents' generation, huddled on the shore of the Red Sea, having to trust God to make a way where there was no way, only with no Egyptians behind them. Could they believe that God could part the waters once again? That was:

3. the critical test: would they believe Him and follow? Would they follow His leading even though it went against their own judgment, even though it took them to a place they were scared to go, or didn't want to go, and even though it looked like God had brought them to an insurmountable obstacle, one that might sweep them away to destruction? That's the test for all of us, isn't it? When He leads us, will we believe Him and follow? A young woman named Mildred Cable grew up in Great Britain and fell in love with a man who felt strongly that the Lord had called him to be a pastor in that country. Mildred, however, was firmly convinced that the Lord wanted her to serve as a missionary in China. So, when the man asked her to marry him, she faced an agonizing decision. One night after much praying, talking, and weeping, she told him that she could not accept his proposal, that she had to follow where Jesus was leading her. With heavy hearts they said goodbye and went their separate ways. Vernon Grounds writes, "That night she died to her own desires, her own hopes, her own humanly legitimate dreams. She died to her own will and chose to carry out the will of God. She went to China where God gave her an extraordinarily fruitful ministry." [Yes, But How? Getting Serious About Your Faith by Vernon Grounds]. Mildred chose to rise up and follow at great cost and God blessed that choice. Will you choose that also? Will you make that your way of life? Israel chose to rise up and follow, too and look what happened:

III. God Moved The Immovable For Israel As They Followed Him (14-17) He did something so awesome, so beyond human comprehension, that we sit here reading about it today:

1. the priests set out carrying the ark and stepped into the water (14, 15b) They didn't wade in up to their knees; as soon as their feet touched the water the miracle happened. Up to that moment everything looked exactly the same as it had since they set out. But in that moment the most amazing thing happened:

2. the waters completely disappeared before their eyes (16) We often picture this like the miracle of the Red Sea as though the Israelites walked through with a wall of water beside them, but that wasn't the case. The town of Adam was some 16 miles to the north and there God dammed up the river so the waters began to mount up as though behind a huge invisible dam. But Israel never saw the waters pile up. All they knew was that when the priests stepped in, the waters started to go down instantly until they disappeared completely and all that lay before them was an empty river bed as far as they could see in either direction! It was absolutely amazing! What moments before had appeared as an insurmountable obstacle now disappeared altogether and:

3. the entire nation crossed the Jordan on dry ground (17) Did you see that? Twice it says, on dry ground! They didn't even sink into the wet muddy river bottom. God dried it and hardened it so they could all cross! What a wonderful miracle! Wouldn't you have loved to be there? The whole nation moved forward past the ark and through the riverbed and onto the shore of Canaan just as dry as if they were walking down a normal road!

Now God could simply have had them wait a few weeks until the spring melt was finished and the river went down. He could have taken them into the promised land by another route, but He chose to lead them straight through a raging river and dry it up, so I gather there was a tremendous purpose in doing such a tremendous thing. Here's:

IV. What God Accomplished By This Miracle Obviously:

1. He got Israel across the river where He wanted her She was now in position to conquer Jericho and the land of Canaan, but some more important things are mentioned here. Through this miracle:

2. He exalted Joshua in the eyes of the people (7, 4:14) He said He would exalt Joshua and He did! For 40 years the people had followed Moses, had listened to Moses because they knew Moses was hearing God. The miracles done by his hand confirmed it, but Moses is now dead. Joshua is the new man in charge and God needed to prove to all the people that He would be with Joshua the same way He was with Moses and this certainly did the trick! You don't find the Israelites grumbling against him the way they did against Moses earlier. God honored Joshua by this miracle in the eyes of all Israel. Moreover:

3. He assured a new generation that He would do ALL He said (9-10) There's an important fact here you have to remember. The Israel standing here beside the Jordan is not the same Israel that stood on the banks of the Red Sea 40 years earlier. What happened to all the men of that generation? They died in the wilderness. Only people who had been little kids or teens at that time lived through the wilderness experience. That means only those who were now over the age of 60 had actually seen God do the great miracles of Egypt, watched the parting of the Red Sea and heard His voice at Sinai. There was a whole new generation here who had grown up with the daily miracle of manna and who had been taught to obey God and had even seen God's help in battle, but by and large they had never seen a major miracle, never had a personal experience of God making a way out of no way. Look at what God calls Himself in verse 10, the Living God. They needed to know that God was living and powerful and would act for them, and not simply a bunch of theological truths taught them by their fathers. God knew they needed that personal experience, so He gave it to them by leading them smack into an uncrossable river. And that is what convinced them that God was able to do the rest of what He'd promised to do, to give them the land of Canaan. If God can dry up a raging river, He can surely defeat an army! And, by the way, you need that too! Hearing how God worked in your parents' time or for somebody else is not enough to prepare you for the battles of life. You need personal experiences of following God and watching Him work in your behalf to do that. That's why, as you follow Him, God will often lead you through difficulties, sometimes insurmountable obstacles, just to show you that He can ALWAYS make a way through for you! When you follow God and He leads you right into the middle of an illness or the loss of a job or some other seemingly insurmountable difficulty and you watch God carry you through and make a way for you, that's when you know that God is living and real and at work on your behalf and you're ready for battle! Then an added blessing was that by this miracle:

4. He terrified their enemies even more (5:1) If their hearts were melted, as Rahab said, from hearing about the Red Sea and about the conquests across Jordan, just think how terrified they were now! They were counting on the fact that the Jordan was uncrossable to spare them for a while! When scouts came back with reports of what happened, surely, they thought, "What kind of God can do this?" And that's the fifth thing:

5. He got glory among all peoples for Himself (4:24) God did this so that all peoples would hear the story and give Him glory as God and turn their hearts toward Him. God's heart is always after the nations.

But all of this began with Israel being willing to simply rise up and follow Him. If you will do the same, I don't promise you that it will be easy, but I do promise that you will see His glory. Chuck Swindoll writes: "For a number of years after I became a Christian, I messed around with spiritual things. Just messed around. I ran around with church folks, I learned the God-talk, I sang the hymns, I even memorized the verses. I prayed pretty good prayers, I carried my Bible to church Sunday after Sunday, I sang in the choir, and I added to my schedule a Bible class every now and then. But my life was MY life. I did not let all that religious stuff interfere with things like my career, my home, my strong will, my pursuit of things, my determination to go my own way, or my own personal plans. I wasn't a wife beater, or a criminal, or an alcoholic, or some awful notorious sinner. No, I was just a selfish man. I knew how to get what I wanted, and nothing was going to stand in my way...including God. I was a Christian, but certainly not a disciple. Then shortly after joining the Marines (another evidence of my determination to be tough and self-assured), I was transferred overseas. For once I was faced with a major decision I could not change. Alone and lonely, I was forced to entrust my wife to the Lord, since she couldn't go to the Orient with me, and to lean on Him for numerous things I had always been able to handle myself. While overseas I met a man who saw behind my tough mask and was determined to help me come to terms with the Christ I claimed as my Savior. He disciplined me. Month after month, we met together, talked together, played ball together, laughed together, wept and prayed together, studied the Scriptures and witnessed for Christ together. Like Jesus with His men, this man took the time to help me peel off my mask of religion and absorb the authentic message of Christ. I found myself slowly changing down deep inside. I got to the place where I hated the hypocrisy of my former religious lifestyle. I got into the Scriptures on my own, and they became my bread and meat. I even addressed the priorities, the goals, and the objectives of my life. I opened each door of my inner house to let Christ in, room after room. Not suddenly, but slowly. Quietly. 'Things' became less important to me. My stubborn will came under the scrutinizing eye of the Spirit of God. And I began to meet each day with my Lord, asking Him to deal with my ugly selfishness...and did He ever!" [Strengthening Your Grip by Charles Swindoll. Word, 1982. Pages 123-125.] Chuck Swindoll learned what it really means to follow Christ, and look at the fruitful ministry he has had all these years. What about you? Are you willing to rise up and follow Him wherever He leads? Have you learned that vital lesson and submitted your stubborn will to His? If you haven't, the enemy is winning, dear one, and you don't even realize it!

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

We Prepare For Battle Through Remembering - Ch. 4

Chapters 3 and 4 of Joshua are two halves of the same event. Chapter 3 tells us how God dried up the Jordan River so that Israel could cross into the land of Canaan; chapter 4 tells us how God concluded that crossing and returned the Jordan to flood stage as it was before. In chapter 3 God taught Israel and us the lesson of how following God prepares us for battle; in chapter 4 we will learn the lesson of how remembering what God has done prepares us for battle. God memorialized this landmark event of crossing Jordan in an unusual way. He could have set up an ornately carved obelisk or an ornate monument describing the whole incident in detail. He could have had a huge altar built or a fine building. But instead, God orders the setting up of the most common ordinary thing you could imagine, a pile of rocks, in fact two of them! And that is the focus of this chapter. So, let's look at:

I. The Setting Up Of Stones While Crossing The Jordan (1-5) God is still holding back the waters miles upstream and the millions of Israel have all crossed safely to Canaan's shore while the priests carrying the ark still stand in the middle of the dry riverbed. Now God orders Joshua to have 12 men, one from each tribe of Israel, who had been chosen ahead of time according to 3:12, and who have probably been waiting on the riverbank wondering what their assignment was, to cross and pick up twelve large stones from the middle of the riverbed and carry them out on their shoulders. And they did it (8):

1. twelve stones were taken FROM the river and carried to the place where they made camp that night, a place they eventually named Gilgal, and there they were set up at Gilgal as a monument (19-20) They were set up, perhaps in a circle, maybe upon a raised mound of earth, but almost certainly in some kind of special configuration that would serve as a permanent monument left there for all to see. But that is not the whole story. There is another pile of stones:

2. twelve stones were left buried IN the river (9) By the way, I've been reading to you today from the ESV, English Standard Version, and this verse is the primary reason why. Your NIV doesn't say that but look at the NIV marginal note: Or "Joshua ALSO set up twelve stones" ...in the middle of the Jordan. The translators of the NIV chose to indicate that it is referring to the same 12 stones. By almost every other translation indicates that the Hebrew means that Joshua himself made a second pile of 12 stones in the middle of the riverbed and the text says that they were set up where the ark had stood, the very spot where God's presence held back the waters so they would cross. Evidently, they remained there for some time, at least through the lifetime of Joshua and probably longer, and were probably visible when the Jordan was in its normal low-water state. I wonder if they were still there when Elijah and Elisha also crossed the Jordan at Jericho on dry ground. I wonder if John the Baptist baptized near them; he was at Bethabara on the east bank of the Jordan, the side on which the priests would have stood. In fact, I wonder if Joshua didn't unwittingly mark the very spot where Jesus Himself was baptized! What a wonderful symbolic connection that would make! But what's really important is:

II. The Significance Of The Stones For Israel (6-7, 21-24) These stones were to have a perpetual meaning to the nation of Israel. Notice the two words Joshua used at the beginning of verse 6 and the end of verse 7. First of all:

1. they were a sign of the miracle God had done What is a sign? Well, remember when the Jews demanded that Jesus give them a sign? They wanted Him to do a miracle before their eyes to prove Himself. They wanted a visible proof that the words He said were true. These stones were the sign, the visible proof that God had indeed done the great miracle of drying up Jordan. If later on anyone doubted it, one could point to the monument and say, "There are the very stones that we took out of the middle of the riverbed!" and to the heap of stones in the river and say, "That is exactly where it happened!" They were a sign, a tangible object that declared that God had done this glorious thing. But they were more than that:

2. they were a memorial of the miracle God had done What's a memorial? It's a means of remembering. Maybe you've been to Washington and seen the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, that black wall of rock which was set up to honor the 58,267 men and women who died while serving our country in the Vietnam War. We built the wall so that we would remember, so that we would not forget the sacrifice they made. We go there and visit to remember and the wall is the visible means that jogs our remembering. On the 30th we'll celebrate Memorial Day. Did you know that every year our President makes a proclamation about that? Last year's read in part: In honor of their dedication and service to America, the Congress, by a Joint Resolution, approved May 11, 1950, ...has requested the President to issue a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to observe each Memorial Day as a day of prayer for permanent peace and designating a period on that day when the people of the United States might unite in prayer. The Congress, by Public Law 106-579, has also designated 3:00 p.m. local time on that day as a time for all Americans to observe, in their own way, the National Moment of Remembrance. NOW, THEREFORE, I, BARACK OBAMA, President of the United States of America, do hereby proclaim Memorial Day, May 31, 2010, as a day of prayer for permanent peace, and I designate the hour beginning in each locality at 11:00 a.m. of that day as a time to unite in prayer. I also ask all Americans to observe the National Moment of Remembrance beginning at 3:00 p.m. local time on Memorial Day. I know most people ignore its purpose, but we have created a means of remembering each year because it's important! These stones were Israel's means of remembering. Of course:

a. they were a means of personal remembrance In years to come, whenever an Israelite would pass by Gilgal or ford the Jordan and see the stones, he would remember the miracle God had done in his life and how he had crossed over Jordan on dry ground, and no doubt worship in his heart. It was a visible symbol to jog the memory of each Israelite so they would not forget God's power. But this generation would soon grow old and pass away and then what of the stones? Well:

b. they were a means of parental teaching Parents, particularly fathers, were to teach their children about the stones and about the miracle they were connected with. They were a visible object lesson that endured. Each generation was to pass on their meaning to the next so that they would be a perpetual memorial. And so, every Israelite for all time to come could look back and be reminded of the awesome power of God, even though he hadn't been there personally. I love the pronouns you and us in vs. 23. Joshua says, "What God did for me and my generation in drying up the Red Sea, He did for you and your generation in crossing the Jordan and tell your children so that they'll know that He will do great and mighty things for them in their generation if they will follow and obey Him!" Sounds like a good sermon! But on a larger scale, these stones:

3. they show us the importance of remembering Stop and think about it a moment. This act is like a time out, like a parenthesis, right in the middle of a miracle:

a. after the stones were set up the miracle was completed (10-11, 15-18) The priests had been standing still all this time. Now they walked across the riverbed themselves and the moment they stepped out on the bank water instantly began to appear from upstream faster and faster until the Jordan was overflowing its banks once again, a mighty torrent! Think about not only the power of holding back that river, but the timing of it. The place where God dammed the river up was 16 miles upstream. For the waters to recede when the feet of the priests touched them, God had to dam up the waters ahead of time with split-second timing so that they would begin to recede 16 miles downstream at the right moment. And the same in reverse here; He released the waters 16 miles away ahead of time precisely so that they would begin to appear there at the second the priests stepped out on shore! Oh, what a mighty, all-knowing, glorious God we have! But what I'm trying to show you is that:

b. God built the act of remembrance right into the miracle! The taking out of the stones and the setting up of the stones was part and parcel of the miracle; it was smack in the middle. And I think that God is showing us just how important the act of remembering His works in our lives is! The works of God are important and He doesn't want them forgotten; He wants us to remember them. Why? Yes, so that He will get the glory He deserves, but it serves a purpose for us too. Memory is important to victory!

c. remembering this miracle prepared Israel for battle; it made her ready to go out and conquer Canaan for her King! Do you realize that it was because Israel quickly forgot the miracles of Egypt and the crossing of the Red Sea that they so easily grumbled and complained in the wilderness and when they got to the border the first time, they refused to go up and take the land? If they had remembered how God dried up the Red Sea, those big tall Anakim wouldn't have frightened them a bit!

One of the reasons that you see believers who are struggling so hard with temptation or with fear or with discouragement is because they've forgotten for the moment what God has done in their lives before, how He changed them, how He rescued them, how He provided for them when they didn't have it, how He strengthened them in grief, and so on. Do a word search and you'll find that God says over and over again in Scripture, "Remember! Remember! Remember!" It is vital that we remember the things God has done, both in history and in our own lives! We need to remember the cross. We need to remember the things God did in Scripture. Those things are important! If God could do those things then, He is sufficient for my battle too! But we also need to look back and remember our own salvation, the wonderful answers to prayer and all the incredible things God has done for us personally. It helps some people to keep a spiritual diary and go back and read it once in a while! But whatever means you use, whether it is a pile of stones or a notebook or simply setting aside time to have your own personal "Memorial Day" with God, make no mistake, looking backward at what God has done is essential to getting victory in the battles you face today! Now let me show you:

III. The Symbolism Of The Stones For Us There is another picture here that you do not see at first glance. Why 12 stones? V. 8 tells us there was one for each tribe. Those stones symbolized not only the power of God, but the people of God. They tell us something about the people. Now follow me carefully:

1. the crossing has a connection to baptism Verse 23 says that what God did in drying up the Jordan was exactly like what He did in drying up the Red Sea 40 years earlier. Now what did He do? 1 Cor. 10:1-2 says, For I want you to know, brothers, that our fathers were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, and all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea. The crossing of the Red Sea was a sort of baptism. Passing through the sea they were baptized into Moses; they were united with him. They went into the sea a people in bondage, in slavery to Egypt and came out on the other side as the people of God, united with Him and His leader. In the same sense Israel was baptized into Joshua by crossing through the Jordan, Look at v. 14. They were bound to him like they were to Moses and again there was a transformation here. They went into Jordan having been a wandering, disobedient people for 38 years and they came out into a new phase of their corporate life, a phase of conquest and victory instead of complaint and failure. So:

2. the crossing of Jordan is a picture that is similar to baptism for us and I am positive the Holy Spirit had that in mind when He used that word to describe it. The symbol of the stones is almost identical to the symbolism we are given in Christian baptism. Look with me at Rom. 6:3-7. You see, Jesus is our Moses, Jesus is our Joshua, our Savior and when we were identified with Him in salvation, two things happened to us. First:

a. our old self was buried The stones buried in the Jordan say that Israel was in type and symbol left buried there! The old Israel was left under the waters! The going under water at our baptism reminds us that the same thing happened to us when we accepted Christ. Our old self died and was buried with Christ. The person we were before we were saved, that person who was an enemy of God, a slave to sin, separated from God, spiritually dead in trespasses and sins, THAT person is dead and buried. The person I used to be died with Jesus Christ on the cross and was buried forever. But Paul said, I am crucified with Christ, nevertheless I live...

b. we now live a new life (the stones erected at Gilgal) The stones erected at Gilgal say that Israel was in type and symbol living a new life from here on! The wandering was over, the manna stopped, and from this moment she was the army of God going in to take the land! The coming up out of the water at our baptism reminds us that the same thing happened to us! If anyone is in Christ, the Scripture says he is a new creation, the old things have passed away and all things have become new. I have a brand new quality of resurrection life, the very life of Jesus Christ, living in and through me from the moment of my salvation. I am raised with Him in His resurrection to a brand new kind of life, a life that loves God and walks with God and serves God. As it mirrors baptism, the buried stones remind me that I died. The set up stones remind me that I live a new life. This is a fact, both of history and of my personal experience. Are you still with me? Now here's my point:

3. remembering our "crossing" (our miraculous transformation) prepares us for battle We use remembering to prepare our minds to face the battles of life. Look with me at Rom. 6:10-14. To have victory, you must look at yourself, you must view yourself in a certain way.

a. to count yourself [NIV] or consider yourself [ESV] means remembering the miracle God did in you. You see:

(1) you, like Christ, died to sin once for all What does that mean? Christ died with respect to sin. He bore our sins on Himself all the way to death but having died once, the connection was severed. Sin and death no longer had any mastery, any rule, any power, any control over Him. And the same thing is true of you, dear one! That connection where sin was lord and master and exerted its power over you is severed. It's broken. You died so you're freed and loosed from the reign and rule and control of sin over you. And:

(2) you, like Christ, live a new life unto God Just as Christ rose from the dead in a new quality of life, you now have a living relationship with Almighty God as His child through faith in Jesus Christ. What I'm saying is this: remember, you are not who you were. You are a brand new person, a redeemed, justified, sanctified, glorified person, a person in relationship with God and fitted for heaven. The old you is buried there with Christ in the tomb and the you that is living is brand new. And that brings us to the second thing, if you remember who you are, it affects how you act.

b. to offer yourself [NIV] or present yourself [ESV] means choosing to act like who you are now You see, sin still lives in your body, though not in your spirit. The power of sin is still resident inside you and it is always trying to get you to bow down and yield control to it, but because you remember who you are:

(1) you refuse to allow sin to govern how you use your body You stop offering yourself for sin's service; you quit saying "OK sin, here I am, use me to do your bidding". That's who we were, not who we are. We're no longer slaves to sin. We've been set free from its power so that it cannot force us any longer to do its will. It can only rule us and control our lives if we let it, if we give it permission and offer ourselves to it. Paul says, "remember who you are. That's not you. You are a servant of Christ, so:"

(2) you continually choose to allow Christ to use it for His glory Since you passed through Jordan, since you passed from death to life, you were united to new master, Jesus Christ who is Lord, who rules and controls your life. And you need to constantly offer yourselves to Him, saying, "Here am I, Lord, use me!"

Listen, someday the battle of strong temptation is going to come along in your life. Some Potiphar's wife is going to grab you by the garment and tempt you to be immoral. Or some wedge of gold is going to come along that will tempt you to steal like Achan. Or someday suffering or persecution will come and the battle of doubt and skepticism or fear is going to come with it like it did for Job and for Elijah. And you cannot win unless you remember who you are! I've told you before the story of St. Augustine. When he was still an unbeliever and living a really profligate life, the Holy Spirit convicted him through Paul's words in Romans 13:14, "But put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its desires." Augustine acknowledged his sinfulness, placed his faith in Jesus as his Savior, and became a different person. His entire outlook on life changed because of his new nature. One day he had to attend to some business in his old haunts in Rome. As he walked along, a former companion saw him and began calling, "Augustine, Augustine, it is I!" He took one look at the poor, disreputable woman whose company he used to enjoy, and he shuddered. Reminding himself of his new position in Christ, he quickly turned and ran away from her, shouting, "It's not I! It's not I!" Now don't run away from people; witness to them, but whatever you do, in every situation remember who you are! God has done a mighty work! You died to the old way of life. You now live on the other side of Jordan! Count it that way; remember God's miracle in you. And then choose to present yourself to Jesus to be used by Him.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

We Prepare For Battle Through Complete Obedience - Ch. 5

In chapter 5 Israel has now crossed the Jordan River and is camped at a place named Gilgal about two miles from the city of Jericho. The great miracle of the crossing has, no doubt, prepared her to launch into battle with the Canaanites, but in God's eyes she is not yet ready. There is one more preparation that must be made, one more thing that must be done to make them ready for the battles to come and it is the about the most unlikely thing you would think of. In fact, it is the very last thing that you would choose to have done to an army that is all ready to march into battle. God now commanded:

I. The Circumcision Of Israel At Gilgal (2-3) Notice those first words At THAT time... He could have spoken to them about the need for circumcision long before, in fact, any time during the last 40 years of wandering. He could have spoken to them as they lay camped on the plains of Moab on the other side of the raging Jordan, well away from Jericho, but He didn't. God very carefully chose His specific time to command Israel to be circumcised because He had another lesson He wanted to teach them on the very eve of battle. Look at:

1. the reason for the circumcision (4-7) Did you see that? ...they did not OBEY the voice of the Lord. The generation of Israelites that came out of Egypt disobeyed God and refused to go up into the land of Canaan and conquer it as He commanded. So, they were given the punishment of wandering for 38 more years and dying in the desert. That was bad enough, but there was something more. All the males of that generation had been circumcised according to God's law, however, during these last years of wandering:

a. Israel had disobeyed God by neglecting it During that time they had not bothered to circumcise any of the male babies who were born. When they came out of Egypt, all the men were circumcised but all those over the age of 20 died in the wilderness. That meant as they stood there across Jordan, only those over the age of 40 were circumcised. Practically every fighting man in their army was going into battle uncircumcised. And God simply would not have that!

b. God insisted upon them obeying His command before He led them into battle. Now that sounds a little bit unreasonable, doesn't it? After all, couldn't it wait awhile, at least until the land was conquered and settled? Or maybe couldn't they just start circumcising all the babies born from here on? Well, God's answer to those thoughts was no; all Israel must be circumcised! I am reminded of an incident in Moses' life back in Ex. 4. At that point in the story, God had already called Moses to be His deliverer. He had been living in Midian for 40 years and had a wife and two sons, but he had evidently neglected to circumcise one of them. So here he is, enroute to serve the Lord and do battle for the Kingdom in Egypt when this happens: compare Ex. 4:24-26. That looks REALLY strange, but if we read between the lines, evidently Moses' Midianite wife had given him a hard time about circumcising their son. So, he gave in to her and didn't do it. But God wouldn't let him go to Egypt and deliver the people, He wouldn't let him go and do spiritual battle against Pharaoh and his hosts until this was done, until Moses displayed complete obedience in this matter. And the same was true for Israel; God would not let them go into battle until they had been completely obedient to the Lord in this key facet of their lives. Of course, it's true for us as well. I remember back to the spring of 1974 when I was 19 and I knew God had called me to be a pastor. In fact, He had already arranged for me to start pastoring a little country church in the middle of June, but I had never been baptized. It wasn't that I was being totally rebellious; it was just that baptism was something we didn't have very often and I had never thought much about, even when I was diligently reading the Scriptures. But now it seemed those verses seemed to jump off the page at me. The Spirit of God seemed to say to my heart, "How can you pastor a church and teach others about salvation and then about baptism, when you yourself haven't obeyed My command to be baptized?" So, I went to my pastor and said, "Look, I've got to get baptized! I've only got a couple weeks until I'm the pastor of a church!" So, two weeks or so beforehand, we held a little service by a creek out on a farm and when I came up out of the water, I had this tremendous exhilarating sense that I had obeyed God, that I was now ready to serve! Listen, God INSISTS on obedience in your life too, if you want to make a difference in the world for His Kingdom. Now, the riskiest thing about this for me was the herd of cows wading across upstream in the pasture, but I want you to see for Israel:

2. the tremendous risk involved in the circumcision (8) Circumcision requires healing. Think about it for a moment. This:

a. it was extremely dangerous from the human perspective Nearly every warrior in the Israelite army was circumcised. An infant only days old may scream for the moment and heal quickly, but in an adult circumcision is a horribly painful, debilitating process and takes a long time to heal. Do you remember back in Gen. 34 two of Jacob's sons, Simeon and Levi, deceived the men of the town of Shechem into being circumcised. Then on the third day they went through the town and the two of them killed every man in the whole place because none could defend himself! That's exactly the condition that obeying God put Israel into; it made them virtually defenseless and Jericho was only 2 miles away! Suppose its army had ventured out to attack! They could have been slaughtered! You know, sometimes obedience to God, being completely willing to obey Him means doing something that from our perspective looks awfully dangerous. Sometimes it looks like it's going to cost you your job or cause you to lose a lot of money or in many places in the world, bring persecution upon you. But what I want you to see is:

b. their safety was ensured from the Divine perspective (1) God knew it was absolutely safe for them because he had put such a deep fear into the people of Jericho and the rest of the Canaanite cities by drying up the Jordan that they hid behind their high walls and were never coming out! From God's perspective Israel was absolutely safe when she was most vulnerable! Listen! You are never safe unless you are fully in the center of God's will. Nothing can touch you there unless God allows it. But if you're outside of God's will, if you choose to disobey, no matter how pristine and secure your circumstances look, you're not safe for a moment! It is ALWAYS safe to obey God! He's got your back! Truthfully, HE IS your safety! Now why is this such a big issue anyway? Let's look at:

3. the significance circumcision held for Israel (9) The place where they camped, they named Gilgal, "rolling", because there God said, Today I have had rolled away the reproach of Egypt. He had rolled away the shame, the scorn, the disgrace which the Israelites had carried. You see, circumcision:

a. it was the sign of God's covenant Listen to Gen. 17:9-14 Circumcision was the sign of the eternal covenant between God and Abraham and all his descendants after him. To be circumcised was a sign that you were a child of Abraham and an heir to the promises God had made to him. It was to say "I belong to Jehovah, the God of Abraham; I am in covenant with Him and I worship Him alone." It was not even to be done with their normal metal knives; rather they were to make special knives out of flint to carry out this sacred ritual, just like no iron tool was ever used in building God's Temple. You don't get into this covenant by human effort. This is a holy privilege, a God thing from first to last. But in Egypt, however, the Israelites had lived lives of sin and bondage and even idolatry. Naturally they carried some of that with them into the wilderness as redeemed people, for instance, the golden calf and all the grumbling and complaining, and being unwilling or uncaring enough to circumcise their children was part of that shameful past! Of course, we do that too, don't we? We carry over some of those shameful things from our past lives right into our lives as believers, things that ought to be rolled away. And so, this circumcision at Gilgal:

b. it completed their obedience to God It was their act of total surrender to the Lord, saying, "Lord, we know this seems dangerous, but we trust you. We want to carry nothing of our old selfish sinful lives with us. We will obey!" Throughout the Old Testament, circumcision:

c. it always symbolized a state of the heart God had already told Israel when they were camped across the Jordan that it was really their hearts he was interested in. Deut. 10:16 says, Circumcise therefore the foreskin of your hearts and be no longer stubborn. Jer. 4:4 says the same thing. Those who lived in Egypt lived sinful lives even though their flesh was circumcised. True circumcision was a matter of the heart, not simply of the flesh and that's what was going on that day at Gilgal: an act of their hearts, surrendering completely in full obedience to the Lord and that's why:

d. it prepared them for the battles to come Dear friend, you can't go into the spiritual battles of life, knowing there is a key area of your life where you have not obeyed God! Ps. 66:18 says, If I had cherished sin in my heart, the Lord would not have listened. God demands holiness in His people. It is those who are holy that He listens to; it is those who are holy who can stand in His Presence and it is those who are holy that He uses to fight His battles. If you want to be prepared to face doubt and temptation and discouragement and deception and all the things Satan is most certainly going to throw at you, you've got to be completely obedient; you've got to deal with those habits and patterns of disobedience that you're still holding on to and carrying out from your past life. And that's exactly what you find when you move on to the New Testament and examine:

4. the symbolism circumcision hold for us This matter of the necessity of circumcision is, in fact, the earliest problem we know of in the early church. A group of believers from Jewish background started going around preaching that non-Jews had to be circumcised in order to enter the faith and be true followers of Christ. In essence they believed you had to become a Jew in order to follow Jesus. Paul had to fight this heresy in several locations and here's what he tells us about this issue. First:

a. outward circumcision no longer matters - Gal. 6:15, Neither circumcision nor uncircumcision means anything; what counts is a new creation. Circumcision was a physical sign given to Israel as a sign of God's covenant with them as a nation. It did not save Israelites and it does not save us. Whether we are circumcised or uncircumcised physically does not matter; what matters is a circumcised heart. Look with me at Rom. 2:28-29. Now Paul goes on to tell us that:

b. we all experience an inward circumcision There is a circumcision that each of us who believes experiences, whether we are male or female, Jew or Gentile. It is not outward; it is not done in the flesh. It is done inside of us, in our hearts. And:

(1) it is done by Christ Turn with me to Col. 2:11-12. This circumcision of ours has already been done. It was done by Christ at the very moment we received Him as our Savior. It is an accomplished fact. In circumcision a part of you gets cut off, removed and thrown away. It is "put off", completely separated from you. And exactly what is it that was put off from us?

(2) it is the cutting off of the old self ruled by sin The NIV says the sinful nature, and it's right. It is our old life, our old self, that person we were before we were saved, that old, dead spirit in us that loved and served and was enslaved to sin. That old man, that nature that I got from Adam, was cut off and cast away and a brand new nature was put in its place. I am literally a new man. You see how:

(3) it is a parallel symbol to baptism Remember Ch. 4 last week, how the stones in the river symbolize that my old self is dead and the stones at Gilgal symbolize that I live a new life, just the way baptism symbolizes that for us? Notice that it is at Gilgal, the very same place the memorial stones were set up, that they were circumcised, that the reproach of their old life was rolled away! A dual symbolism! God was saying, "You're not who you were! You are brand new! Now get out there and live like it and fight My battles!" I am a brand new person in Jesus Christ from the moment of my salvation. I am not the same person I was. My old life is cut off and cast away. But the point is that:

c. this cleansing, therefore, enables and obligates us to obedience - Look down to Col. 3:5-10. There are still things, wrong habits, neglected duties from the old life that cling to us after we're saved, that we still carry around with us as redeemed people, even though our old self has been crucified with Christ and we're not the same person any more. We have to do like Israel. We have to stop living like what we used to be and start living like what we are! We've got to repent of those things and remove them by God's grace so that He will be ready to use us in His service. That's what Israel was doing at Gilgal, surrendering the last vestige of their old life that they had clung to, coming to a place of complete obedience to the Lord. That's exactly where we have to come to before we're ready to face the battles of life.

Now, returning to our text, after the circumcision of Israel at Gilgal we find:

II. The Celebration Of The Passover At Gilgal (10-12) Circumcision wasn't the only thing they hadn't done for the last 38 years. They hadn't kept the Passover either, not since they were camped at Mt. Sinai in Num. 9. The overall impression is that:

1. God had suspended Israel's life purpose in the wilderness When she refused to go into Canaan, it's like she was now set aside. She wandered aimlessly about in the wilderness focused on her daily needs waiting to die instead of serving God. She didn't circumcise her children, didn't celebrate the Passover, didn't accomplish anything of the Lord's purpose. You know, that's how life is when you're disobeying and you're out of God's will! It's this aimless round of working and eating and sleeping and hobbies and family and whatever else, but you don't accomplish anything of value for the Kingdom! But at Gilgal, once they came to a place of complete obedience:

a. He now qualified them for Passover through circumcision - Ex. 12:48 says that no uncircumcised person may eat of it. So now, through obedience to His Word, at long last they enter back into the joy of their salvation from Egypt. And here at Gilgal:

b. He now kept His Word to them after 40 years God told Israel when they disobeyed Him in Num. 14:30-35 that they would wander about in the desert for 40 years, a year for each day they spied out the land, until that entire generation was dead and then God would bring their children into the land. The tragedy of the whole thing is in Deut. 1:2-3, 2:14-15. Did you see it? When they left Sinai, they could have been in the Promised land in 11 days. Instead, they arrived 38 years later when all of that generation was dead. What a waste of time and life! But right on His timetable:

2. God now launched them forward into the conquest of Canaan And as He did so, notice two things. The first is that evidently:

a. He healed their bodies in supernatural way. 4:19 says that they crossed the Jordan on the tenth day of the first month and here they celebrated the Passover on the 14th day, three days later. On the third day, not a single Shechemite could defend themselves against Simeon and Levi, as we said before. I read somewhere that the recovery time from adult circumcision is more like 3 weeks! There's no way they could have celebrated a normal Passover the third day unless God honored their step of obedience by supernaturally speeding up their healing process. Yet at the very same time:

b. He stopped the manna and began providing food by normal means All the inhabitants of the region around Jericho had fled into the city, leaving their houses and grain bins at Israel's disposal. Plus, God had brought Israel into the land at harvest time, in the very beginning. That whole year they reaped the harvest of the land of Canaan which was standing there ready for them to gather in. So, the manna, the supernatural daily bread from heaven stopped; it wasn't needed any more, yet His daily provision continued. God can provide for us either way, by supernatural means or by simply arranging very natural means, but either way, HE does it as He sends us forth on His mission!

Well, has God spoken to your heart this morning? Is there some reproach you're still carrying that needs to be rolled away? Don't waste your life. Give it to Him this morning and get rid of it. There's an old story about a chicken, a pig, and a cow who were going to a carry-in dinner. The chicken said "I'll bring the eggs. Cow, why don't you bring the milk? And Pig, why don't you bring the ham?" The pig thought a moment and said "Wait a minute, for you to bring the eggs and for Cow to bring the milk is involvement; for me to bring the ham means total commitment!" That's exactly what God is looking for: complete obedience.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

The Battle Of Doubt: Jericho - Ch. 6

When we come to chapter 6 of Joshua, all the events of preparation have been completed and Israel now begins to face her enemies. I can't help but remember King Théoden's line in Lord of the Rings as he stood on the wall at Helmsdeep looking at 10,000 enemies and said, So it begins. The King of the city of Jericho may very well have said the exact same thing as he looked down upon the 600,000 fighting men of Israel arrayed against his city. At the point where Israel crossed the Jordan, Jericho was the gateway to the land of Canaan. This is a view of the modern city of Jericho. It lies on the low plain of the Jordan River, but look at the ridge behind it. Here's another view looking from the Jordan west toward the city. Again, look behind it. This is what lies to the west of Jericho, a huge mountainous ridge that extends for miles north and south. There was but one major rift, one ravine, one path, that led 5 miles up from the plain along the Jordan to the top of the ridge where Jerusalem was situated, and it was still there 1400 years later when Jesus walked that Jericho road. The city of Jericho stood directly in Israel's way, between them and the conquest of the promised land. Yet actually it didn't. You see, God knows no obstacles! Nothing stands in His way; nothing threatens to thwart His plan! What threatens to stop His people is actually a battle that occurs within their minds; they begin to doubt! They look with their eyes at the circumstances and they begin to doubt His ability, to doubt His wisdom and the battle is lost before it ever begins. The story of the battle of Jericho is the perfect illustration of the kind of:

I. The Situation Which Satan Uses To Create Doubt in our lives. The first thing that you need to understand is:

1. the impenetrable security of the city of Jericho (1) Other translations say it was tightly shut up. Now Jericho is one of the oldest continuously inhabited cities in the world and has provide archaeologists with much valuable information. Many ancient cities in this region were built on mounds; as there was destruction or fire, the next generation built on top of the old until there was a mound or tel many feet high. The site of ancient Jericho is today called Tel es Sultan, the Sultan's hill and here is an aerial view of the site of ancient Jericho looking south. You can see the marks of the various digs that have explored it over the last century and what archaeologists have discovered is that:

a. it had an unbreachable system of 3 tiered walls that looked something like this. The city of Jericho was surrounded by a great rampart or embankment of earth. At the base of it was a retaining wall made of stone that was 12-15 feet high. Standing on top of that was a second wall of mud bricks six feet thick and 20-26 feet high! So, as you stood at the base of the wall the first obstacle was between 32 and 41 feet high, much higher than the ceiling of this room. And that only got you onto the embankment (which did seem to be inhabited in that day, however). But then at the top of the embankment was another mud brick wall similar to the one below! From the bottom, it's base would have been some 46 feet above your feet and it's top some 70 feet, that's like looking at the top of our steeple from the street and wondering how you're ever going to get an army over that! Here's another drawing to give perspective. No wonder the doubting spies reported to Moses 40 years earlier, ...the cities are large with walls up to the sky, and gave up all hope of conquering them! To make matters worse:

b. it had only one strongly fortified gate The New York Times reported in 1998 that an archaeological expedition had finally located the gate of Jericho and was convinced that it is the "only one". Here's a picture of the spot, of the base of one of the ancient towers. They reported, "The gateway is on the southeastern side of the site.... it was built in a zone with difficult access and was protected by two towers with walls about 23 feet thick, and a base about 10 feet wide." When it was shut, there was truly no going in and no going out! It could be easily defended against any force. It didn't matter that the army of Jericho was heavily outnumbered:

c. Israel's resources were totally inadequate to take the city Jericho had a good-sized spring inside the walls for water and it was harvest time; their coffers were filled with grain. They could simply outlast any siege laid against them! To get in there you'd need an army like the Roman legions, one that could build a long earthen ramp to breach the walls like they did at Masada centuries later, a professional army that had siege engines and catapults and battering rams and ladders. Israel was an army of shepherds with swords and spears; what good are they against stone and brick walls, from the top of which archers can shoot! Now let's turn to look at:

2. the orders that Joshua was given Look back to (5:13-15) Joshua must have been sitting alone out there that night, looking at the city in the distance and contemplating how on earth to attack it when suddenly there is this man standing there, holding a drawn sword in his hand. Now I don't know about you, but my first reaction would be to draw mine! But Joshua doesn't; he can sense there is something supernatural going on, and when he approaches and asks, "who are you?", the answer is, "take off your shoes; you're standing on holy ground." Now where had Joshua heard those words before? From Moses when he told the story of his own encounter with God in the burning bush! This strange man was:

a. Jesus, the second person of the Trinity, the One who takes on human form, who appeared to him personally in a theophany, an appearance of God Himself as a man. He did this many times in the Old Testament. He walked up to Abraham who was sitting at the door of his tent; He wrestled all one night with Jacob and put his hip out of joint; He showed up to walk around with the 3 young men in the fiery furnace in Babylon and kept them from being burned. And here He came to Joshua and said, "I am the commander of the armies of God! That is, I am the LORD of Hosts! And I am neither for you nor for your enemies; I am for ME! I am here to get glory to Jehovah!" So, Joshua fell on his face and worshipped and took off his sandals. Then he was told the battle plan:

b. Jesus ordered him to simply march the army around the city (2-5) It was just like when they crossed Jordan, the priests were to carry the ark, the very throne of God around the city wall, to let the inhabitants see it and know who was opposing them, and blow trumpets to announce His presence. The army was to follow without shooting an arrow or saying a word. They were to do this for a week and then on the seventh day to do it seven times and then:

c. Jesus promised that HE would collapse the wall and give them the city They would have to exert NO effort to breach the wall at all He would knock it down and all they would have to do is go up the hill and slay the terrified and confused inhabitants. David knew the same truth Jesus told Joshua and shouted it to Goliath: the battle is the LORD's, and he will give all of you into our hands. - 1 Sam. 17:47.

Now right there is where doubt comes in. When we find ourselves facing a roadblock in life like Israel did, we look at the circumstances and we doubt that the battle is the Lord's and that He can make a way through for us. Your Jericho might be facing a terminal illness or an accident that disables you. It might be the loss of your job and the inability to find another. It might be the traumatic death of a loved one or the heavy responsibility to care for an elderly parent. It might be the calling of God to go to the mission field or enter the ministry, but whatever it is, the obstacles appear overwhelmingly insurmountable. That's when doubt creeps in and here are:

3. the ways that Satan tempts us to doubt God First:

a. he tempts us to doubt the greatness of God's ability "Can God really knock down walls that reach up to the sky? Can He really provide for me as He says? Can He really provide enough for all my bills if I give Him a tithe first? Can He really sustain me through this awful ordeal and give me strength to face it? Can He really heal my mind after what I've lost? Can He really protect me from the enemies who are trying to hurt me? Can God really do what He says He's going to do? Is He really God enough to be God?!" Or if we're too pious to allow these kinds of thoughts, then Satan:

b. he tempts us to doubt the wisdom of God's methodology "Walls can't possibly fall simply by walking and shouting; I've got to DO something! Does God really realize what I'm up against? How can He possibly meet my needs when I give this much away? How can He ever solve this conflict by me forgiving the other person when they don't even want it? How can He ever make a way for me to do that when I don't have X or Y or Z?" God's ways are never our ways! He never does things the way that we would choose to do them; His methods almost always seem to be the exact opposite of normal human sense! That's why we're tempted to doubt them, but remember this:

God is never the author of doubt; Satan is and he's been using it against man ever since the garden. "Did God actually say this? You will not surely die! God is just trying to hold you back and keep you from knowing what He knows! Eat! Enjoy! How could eating one little piece of fruit kill you?" He comes to you today exactly the same way, but fortunately, we have:

II. The Weapon Which God Has Given Us To Defeat Doubt What knocked down the walls of Jericho? Look with me at what the New Testament says in Heb. 11:30. Did you see it?

1. the walls of Jericho were felled by faith, not by effort, coincidence or positive thinking, but by faith. And what exactly is faith? Let me give you a simple definition: Faith is (1) believing what God says is true and (2) acting on it. It is not some magical, mystical thing; it is a simple choice. It is choosing to believe what God says is actually true and choosing to act on any instructions He gives, period. Look at Joshua:

a. Joshua believed the Lord without hesitation (6-7) He didn't blink an eye. He didn't ask a question. He didn't hesitate to think about it. The next morning, he called the priests and the people to get marching! He chose not to listen to any doubts that may have been floating in his mind the night before; He believed Jesus, period. And began to do what he was told to do (8-15).

b. Joshua and the army obeyed the Lord repeatedly Every day they got up and marched around that city, even though it looked like nothing was happening, even though the people on the wall may have been jeering at them by this time! Now the area enclosed by outer wall of Jericho was approximately 9 acres, so to walk around the perimeter of the city was a walk of almost exactly half a mile. Israel had 600,000 fighting men and if they all followed the ark, even walking several abreast, the column would be streaming around it all day long! Only a portion of them could possibly have walked the circle 7 times on the last day, but they obeyed the Lord's instructions to the letter and when they did, God did exactly what He said He would do, vs. (20):

c. God supernaturally collapsed the walls and Israel conquered The walls simply collapsed, crumbled and fell down, and the army which surrounded the city simply clambered up over the rubble from every direction and in short order the city was theirs. How? God could have used an earthquake, but it doesn't say so. Or He could simply have swished His finger like you do on the touch screen of your phone and knocked them down. It was no problem to Him. Corrie ten Boom said, God has no problems; only plans! He has plans to glorify His Name in all the earth and our problems are simply opportunities for Him to do it. Turn with me to Eph. 6:16.

2. God has given us faith to use as a shield against doubt You see:

a. Satan shoots doubting thoughts into our mind like flaming arrows I just finished reading a Zane Grey novel about the attack by Indians and the British on Fort Henry in what is now Wheeling, WV in 1782. One of them managed to get close enough to shoot a flaming arrow into the dry roof of the block house and it caught fire. It would have burned the whole thing down had not a willing volunteer run out across the roof through a hail of rifle fire, kicked the arrow loose and doused the flames with a bucket of water. If you don't put the fire out, your whole fort will burn down! If doubt lodges in your mind and you let it there, it will systematically destroy your faith one aspect at a time. But:

b. we can extinguish those doubts through faith before they wound us The Roman soldier had a shield, a wooden frame covered with leather in the shape of a door, about 2 1/2 by 4 ft. When the arrows began to fly, he could hide his whole body behind the shield and the arrows would glance off or stick in it and none of them would touch him! That's what faith is like! That conviction that every word of God is true, that God has both the power to do everything He says and the wisdom to know what we should do, will put out the fire every time. However:

c. we must choose to exercise it in each circumstance by obeying We must raise the shield! We must choose to stand on our conviction. Paul said, Against all hope, Abraham in hope believed and so became the father of many nations, just as it had been said to him, "So shall your offspring be." - Rom. 4:18. Humanly it looked like God could never keep His promise of a child. Abraham was 100 years old! But Abraham lifted up the shield and chose to say, "God said it so I believe it!" and God made him the father of many nations. It's a choice. That's what Israel did. Despite everything their eyes could see, they believed God and marched as He commanded and the wall fell! So must you if you want to know victory! And just in case you want more:

III. The Evidence That God's Word Can Be Trusted

1. archaeology confirms all the details of this story (20b-24) tells us that the wall collapsed and the army went straight up the hill into the city but that Rahab's house, which was evidently built into the outer wall remained standing and they brought her out safe and afterward they burned the city. Do you know what the archaeologists have found in their digging? All the collapsed brick from wall number two fell down over the lower retaining wall and formed a ramp by which the Israelites could easily clamber up over and ascend the hillside. However, one small section of that second wall including the remains of several houses remains standing today on the north side closest to the mountains; it could very well be Rahab's house! And further, at that level in the mound of the city there is an entire layer of burned ash and debris three feet thick. This is no fairy tale, no myth of ancient history. God actually DID this thing, this tremendous miracle, and left it lying there buried for us to find and declare His glory! For years scientists shouted loudly that there was no proof that Jericho had walls during this time period. They're not shouting that today! Let God be true and every man a liar! The last detail of the story is a curse, actually a prophecy, declared by Joshua on that occasion (26-27) Do you know what?

2. history confirms God's fulfilling of Joshua's curse - 1 Kin. 16:34 says, In Ahab's time [600 years later], Hiel of Bethel rebuilt Jericho. He laid its foundations at the cost of his firstborn son Abiram, and he set up its gates at the cost of his youngest son Segub, in accordance with the word of the LORD spoken by Joshua son of Nun. Listen, Prov.

30:5 says, Every word of God proves true; He is a shield to those who take refuge in him. If you will choose to believe that and act on it in your life, you will see the glory of God!

Alexander the Great, the Greek general who literally conquered the world by the time he was 30, is said to have had complete confidence in his personal physician, even when he had reason to question his loyalty. On one occasion, when he was ill, he received an anonymous letter advising him that the medicine which his doctor prescribed contained a poison. (Poisoned food or drink was a common way of trying to assassinate kings for centuries and all important officials were wary of it). However, when the physician arrived and gave him the drug, Alexander said, "Friend, I trust you," and drank it all. So thorough was his reliance that, despite the doubts placed in his mind by the letter, he was willing to risk his life by doing whatever his doctor recommended. Even though he had no concept of the true God, Alexander's example demonstrates the lesson God is trying to get across in our text. The shield of faith in his doctor whom he trusted quenched the doubts an enemy was trying to put there. Whatever Jesus says to you, whether it is a word from the Bible or a personal word you hear in your heart, say, "Lord, I trust you" and act on it, whether it seems reasonable or not. Choose to lift up the shield of faith. All the doubts will be extinguished and you will see the glory of God revealed in your life.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

The Battle Of Temptation: Achan - Ch. 7

The second type of battle that we face in living the Christian life is a very obvious one: the battle of temptation to sin, the urge to do what we know God has commanded us not to do. Satan's oldest scheme is to set before us some forbidden object or opportunity and to make it seem so desirable that we will rebel against the will of our Heavenly Father, and thus create a rift between ourselves and God. He did it with Eve in the garden. First, he induced doubt, Did God really say...? And then when he had her doubting God's integrity, she only had to look at the forbidden tree and ...when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was a delight to the eyes, and that the tree was to be desired to make one wise, she took of its fruit and ate. So did Adam, and immediately they were cut off from God. Therefore, it is no surprise that as we come to chapter 7 of Joshua, we learn that, even as the walls of Jericho were falling in that tremendous miracle of Ch. 6, Satan was hard at work using this very attack of temptation in a bid to separate them from God. And it worked! Let's look together at:

I. The Story Of Achan Yielding To Temptation At Jericho But first we need to understand something that happened before the walls fell. Look at (6:17-21). Together with all the people, Joshua made:

1. the vow that Jericho was devoted to destruction before God This is a special term in the Hebrew, cherem, and in the Law in Leviticus it is mentioned as a vow that a person can make. It is a vow that means the irrevocable giving over of things or persons to the LORD. The vow was applied differently depending on the object of dedication. A clean animal, for instance, would be killed and offered as a sacrifice. Gold or silver would be put into the Lord's treasury at the tabernacle. In the case of persons, a firstborn would be redeemed by a sacrifice, but an enemy would be killed. And the idea was that once the thing or person was dedicated, it belonged to God and was holy; it was banned from personal use. In the case of Jericho, it is possible that Jesus told Joshua to make this vow, but we don't read that in the text. God's clear instructions in Deut. 20 said that Israel could normally keep the spoils from the cities they conquered but in the cities of Canaan all the persons were to be under the vow and devoted to destruction. So I rather think Joshua was voluntarily vowing all the plunder of Jericho to God as a kind of first-fruits offering, that he wanted the first city they took to be given completely to God in every aspect. In Jericho:

a. all living things were to be killed, all perishable things burned and all precious metals placed in the treasury of His Sanctuary. So, Joshua warned the soldiers to be careful not to take any plunder for themselves or they would break the vow. All the items in the city, no matter how valuable, were banned from being kept for personal use. And Joshua explained specifically to them that:

b. violation of this ban meant both personal and corporate destruction God takes this vow very seriously. To take a devoted thing would set God Himself against them and bring about their own destruction. To take what should be destroyed or given, meant YOU should be destroyed! And in some measure, it merited the destruction of the whole nation because Joshua was making this vow collectively for all Israel and they were acting together in it. Now while I'm on the subject, let me say:

c. a word about the morality of the destruction of the people of Canaan The question that often comes up in modern 20th century minds is, "Wait a minute; how is it right that God commands his people to invade a whole land and completely wipe out every person? Isn't that genocide?" First of all, God clearly says in the 10 commandments that murder is wrong and He declares that the penalty for murder is death so He clearly values human life. However, under certain conditions, He also declares that human life MUST be taken, not only for murder, but for witchcraft, idolatry, kidnapping, rape, as well as all kinds of sexual sins. Certain things are an abomination to God and their practitioners deserve to and must be killed. When God told Abraham that his descendants would go down to Egypt, become a great nation and be brought back again to the land of Canaan 400 years later, He gave his reason for that delay in Gen. 15:16, And they shall come back here in the fourth generation, for the iniquity of the Amorites is not yet complete. The seven peoples who lived in the land of Canaan were descending deeper and deeper into idolatry and abominable practices of all sorts. You know how bad things got in Sodom and Gomorrah, so bad that in Gen. 19 God wiped them out Himself! The other cities of Canaan were fast following in their footsteps, growing deeper and deeper in iniquity, until by this point in history they reached the epitome of what God was willing to tolerate in a society and:

(1) God used Israel as an instrument to punish their sin. This invasion by Israel was an act of Divine justice upon the Canaanites, just as God used Babylon to punish Israel for her idolatry centuries later. God has always been at work through history raising up nations and judging others with destruction based on the moral level to which they fall. It is part of His governing of the universe and if He didn't do it, the world would be overwhelmed by evil as it was before the flood! But is it right? One need only ask, "Who made whom?" God created the human race and He has the ultimate right to demand standards and to destroy those who violate them! But why destroy every last person? Wouldn't destruction of their cities and reducing them to servants be enough? Look at Deut. 20:16-18.

(2) God knew the Canaanites would corrupt Israel if left alive. That's exactly what had just happened not long before in Num. 25 where Israel was camped in Moab on the other side of Jordan. Moabite women invited Israelite men to the sacrifices of their gods and they dove right into the idolatry and the sexual debauchery that went with it without hesitation. 24,000 Israelites died in that disaster. God knew how prone Israel was to idolatry and rebellion and that she would quickly turn her heart to become like those she took captive so He declared them all under the ban, all the inhabitants of Canaan to be devoted to destruction for the sake of His people and of His purpose on the earth and He had both the moral and the Divine right to do it.

OK, let's return to our story and look closely at:

2. the violation Achan committed by yielding to temptation (1) When his offense is revealed later on, Achan himself describes what happened (20-21). This ought to sound very familiar because this is the same process that happens to us when we are tempted, isn't it? First of all:

a. he saw In the rubble of Jericho he stumbled across some things that caught his eye. He must have been in some rich man's house because there was this beautiful imported Babylonian robe lying there that must have cost its owner a bundle. And there was a 5 pound chunk of silver. Today that would be worth $35 an ounce or nearly $3,000. And near it was a pound and a quarter wedge of solid gold. At $1,530 per ounce today, that would be worth more than $30,000! I have no idea how much they were actually worth then, but I think it's safe to say that for a guy who had lived in a tent in the desert all his life, he had stumbled upon a veritable fortune. You know he didn't just glance at it; you can see him staring and doing all the mental calculations and imagining what life would be like if these things were his. He looked at and considered forbidden things. That's how temptation always starts. We turn our eyes on the forbidden fruit and think about what it would be like to eat it. King David was strolling on his palace roof in the cool one evening when he looked down on the roof next door and saw a beautiful woman bathing. But he didn't avert his eyes; he looked! He stared. He pondered. If he had binoculars, he got them out! And soon he wanted! Job knew how that worked and he said, I have made a covenant with my eyes; how then could I gaze at a virgin? - Job 31:1. He said, "I have a habit. I made a vow to myself. I change the channel. I shut down the computer screen. I turn my head away at the beach. I don't gaze; I don't stare; I don't ponder." In his book Three Steps Forward Two Steps Back, Charles Swindoll wrote, "Do not try to co-exist peacefully with temptation ...If you are weakened by certain kinds of music, you are playing into the hands of Satan himself to listen to it. If you're weakened by certain ...pictures that bring before your eyes things that build desires within you that you can't handle, then you're not counteracting sin and temptation. You're tolerating it. You're fertilizing it. You're prompting it. If the newsstand [or the internet, I might add] is something you can't handle, stay away from it! Quit clucking your tongue and shaking your head as you linger over the pages. If you're weakened by relationships with certain people, abstain from them ...There's a word for those folks who linger and try to reason with lust: victim." Achan stared and pondered at the expensive things he'd found and as he did:

b. he coveted them. That is, he developed a strong desire for them, a lust for what he knew he shouldn't have. That's how temptation works. Look with me at James 1:14-15. It's desire that's the problem. The problem lies inside me. Looking stirs up desires that reside in my flesh; when I look, I want! I want the things. I want the person. I want the recognition. I want, I want, I want, and the longer I look, the stronger that want becomes. And when desire gets strong enough, it's like a baby growing inside the womb, it has to come out, to be born. It gets too strong for us to control, to stop. That's why, thirdly, Achan:

c. he took. He chose to act out his desire, to take the robe and the silver and the gold that he wanted so badly. There was the act of sin. He took for himself what belonged to God; he stole from God just as surely as if you had emptied the offering plate into your pocket this morning when it passed by. David looked until he wanted so badly that he abused his privilege as King and sent a servant to go get Bathsheba, who was another man's wife. Under God's law, the penalty for that was also death and he knew it, just like Achan did, but at the moment the desire was so strong that he chose to act anyway, to sin. And then Achan:

d. he hid the things he'd taken in his tent. He buried them underneath it. He covered up his act so it would not be known, just like David tried to cover up what he'd done and ended up committing murder. For a whole year David lived a lie, pretending to be a righteous king to everyone but knowing in his heart what he really was. You see, sin always has consequences and you can see here in the story:

3. the vast consequences of Achan's act First of all:

a. it caused irreversible collateral damage Joshua and Israel, not knowing what had occurred, set out to attack the next little city, the town of Ai (4-5). Achan's sin prevented God from helping Israel. They lost the battle and 36 men died. 36 wives became widows. 36 sets of children had no fathers to care for them. All because one man wanted a bar of gold! When you yield to temptation, your sin affects others! God only knows how deeply affected children are when their families split up because someone yielded! And then, it's kind of hard to bury something under the bare floor of your tent without your family at least asking, "What's with the fresh dirt?" They had to know and he led them into sharing in his sin, into helping him cover up and in the end, they died with him. And none of this was reversible. Going back and saying "I'm sorry" couldn't bring those men back to life. When you yield to temptation it does irreversible damage to your life, to the lives of your family, to your church and to others. And while you can always be forgiven, most of the time the damage is already done! Second:

b. it created intense spiritual confusion (6-9) Not only did all Israel's hearts melt in fear from losing the battle, but even Joshua, who had just met God face to face, ends up on his face in despair and asking God why He hasn't kept His promise! Oh, the confusion that is created when someone who is openly known as a believer, especially as a spiritual leader, chooses to yield to temptation. Nonbelievers scoff and say, "so much for that religious mumbo-jumbo." Children say, "If that's where this road of Christianity leads, I don't want any parts of it." Others leave the church or give up their faith and God gets blamed for it because people can't reconcile what you've done with what you professed to believe and be. Third, notice that:

c. it was inevitably discovered (10-12) Listen, here's a tip: whenever God doesn't do what He SAYS in His Word He will do, the problem ISN'T HIM! God is faithful. He can't lie. He can't forget. He can't fail. He can't change His mind. He's God! So, when it looks like He's shifted, you can bet that ...the LORD's hand is not shortened, that it cannot save, or his ear dull, that it cannot hear; but your iniquities have made a separation between you and your God and your sins have hidden his face from you so that he does not hear - Is. 59:1-2. And He will be quick to show you! (13-19) The whole time Achan stood there silent, just hoping against hope that somehow someone else would get blamed as the lot got closer and closer and finally landed on him! Remember Num. 32:23? ...be sure your sin will find you out! God knows what you did and sooner or later He will point it out and reveal it no matter how deep you bury it! And finally, notice that:

d. it led to eventual destruction (22-26) Now it is possible that he was repentant but I doubt it. He only confessed under duress. He persisted in the sin till the last possible moment. And when you do that, it may not kill you physically like it did him (though it might), but it will ruin and destroy your life in many ways. I know a young man who was a manager in a large store chain for years but one day Satan caught him at the right moment and he stole $2400. He was taken out of the store in handcuffs and hasn't been able to find a real job in several years. Yielding to temptation will destroy your service to God and probably your family along with you. That's why Satan loves it so much. It's so powerful and so effective in ruining lives and stealing God's glory! But, praise God, we are better equipped than Achan was for:

II. The Battle Of Temptation We Face because we have better promises than any of the Old Testament fathers had. First we have:

1. the external promise of God concerning our temptation - 1 Cor. 10:13 There are two astounding facts in that verse concerning temptation itself. It says:

a. God always regulates the temptation God is faithful. He's on the job. He will never allow you, His child, to be tempted by Satan in a way that is too strong for you to endure. He controls it; He regulates it. Like He did with Job, He says "Satan, you can only do this much and no more!" So, you can rest in this as long as you're walking obediently with the Lord: whatever is in front of you that might tempt you, God knows you can resist it, if you rely on Him. And what's more:

b. God always provides a way of escape He always makes a way out. And the way is often that of v. 14, "FLEE from it!" He always makes an exit from the situation. David could have run inside and covered his eyes and been with his own wives instead of standing there lusting after Bathsheba. If you're tempted to steal, you can quit your job! If you're tempted sexually, you can get away from that person. God always has a way of escape made for you. You can never say "I couldn't help it, I had to sin, it was too much for me!" Externally God supervises and controls any temptation you face and makes a way out. There are no excuses. But we have something even better than that:

2. the internal weapon God has given us to face temptation - Eph. 6:14b says we're to stand against the enemy ...having put on the breastplate of righteousness. You see, since we have God's Holy Spirit and have been born again:

a. God has placed HIS righteousness in us - Col. 3:9-10 says you have put off the old self with its practices and have put on the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge after the image of its creator. Eph. 4:24 adds put on the new self, created after the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness. There is a new nature inside us, one that is righteous like God. It hates sin. It wants to be pure and holy. So, Satan is now really working against odds. He has to tempt us to do something that at the core of our being we really DON'T want to do! That's our breastplate! That's our true protection against temptation, but how do we put it on? Rom. 6:12-13 says, Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, to make you obey its passions. Do not present your members to sin as instru- ments for unrighteousness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life, and your members to God as instruments for righteousness. Our part is simple:

b. we must invite Him rule our bodies We must present them, devote them to Him as a living gift, a living sacrifice and say, "Lord, this body is yours. I don't want to do this thing that Satan is suggesting to me. I don't want him to use me. I will not depend on my own strength. Holy Spirit, you are stronger than this temptation. I yield myself to you. Fill and control me right now. Let your power flow through me. Deliver me from the evil one. I ask You by your power to strengthen me right now to look away and to walk away and to bring glory to your Name!"

That's the key to winning the battle of temptation. When you are tempted, you immediately stop looking and start praying! Yield yourself to the Holy Spirit within you and His power will carry you through. Two years after receiving Christ, Jean Zeiler was still shackled by a habit of chain-smoking. Repeated attempts to stop had failed miserably. Finally, she decided, as she said, "to lay my cigarettes at the foot of the cross." In a church service she told the people she was surrendering her all to Christ. For three months Jean felt no serious craving to smoke. But then one beautiful July morning the test came. As she entered the kitchen, there on the table was a package of her husband's cigarettes. Instantly the most powerful craving consumed her. Jean recalls, "I stumbled toward the table. I knew I was going to smoke. I ached with the craving and began to whimper like a child. Then suddenly I went to the floor on my knees and began praying, 'O dear God, I can't take it. Do something!'" Lady, her big black Labrador retriever, had come to her side, sensing that something was wrong. By now Jean was crying her heart out, hugging Lady. Then followed an unusual stillness. As Jean got to her feet, everything seemed the same. The cigarettes were still on the table. Then it hit her--the craving was gone! "Oh, thank you, Lord!" she exclaimed. That victory had lasted 28 years at the time this story was written down. I tell it to you not because smoking a cigarette is evil in itself, but to show you what to do when you're tempted, whether it is money or sex or alcohol or drugs or lying to your boss or cheating on a test, the method is still the same. Stop pondering sin and pray. Cry out to Jesus! He understands your temptation and tells you to come boldly to Him for help in time of need. He is able to strengthen you, to empower you, and to quench your burning desires with His presence so that your true righteousness shines forth.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

The Battle Of Discouragement: Ai - Ch. 8

Let me remind you that life for us is war. We are engaged as soldiers in Christ's army in a worldwide campaign to bring the human race under His rule, to advance His Kingdom against the kingdom of darkness ruled by Satan. And we're studying the book of Joshua because it illustrates for us in the literal experiences of Israel in conquering the land of Canaan, the kinds of spiritual battles that we face. In their first battle at Jericho in chapter 6 we saw how Satan will attack us with doubt and how we overcome that by holding up the shield of faith. Then in chapter 7 we saw how Satan attacked Achan at Jericho with temptation and how he caused Israel to lose their first battle against Ai. Plus, we learned how we overcome temptation through asking the Holy Spirit to empower us with our breastplate of righteousness. Now through that defeat, Satan launched a third attack against Israel, and it too is one that he attacks us with, the attack of discouragement. We need to begin by going back to chapter 7 and studying more closely:

I. The Defeat Of Israel At Ai (7:2-5) Joshua's scouts started their exploration from their camp at Gilgal by the Jordan up through the mountain valley behind the smoldering remains of Jericho. The next place they came to was a smaller town called Ai, about 10 miles to the west. The exact location of Ai has been debated and still is not settled conclusively, but the best candidate for it appears to be a tel, called today Khirbet Nisya, which is situated in this valley and was excavated extensively by David Livingston who happens to be a relative of our Saurman family. The circled area is the mound of the ancient city. Here's a closer look. Almost all of the cities of Canaan were walled cities and this one enclosed about 7 acres and housed about 12,000 people according to 8:25. As Ai's army came out to fight and Joshua's 3,000 men began to lose, they turned and fled eastward down the rocky valley, the Shebarim [NIV margin], until it closed to a narrow passage, the morad, in English the going down or slopes. There they had to turn and hold off the enemy while their army squeezed through and 36 men died in the attempt. Just picture thousands of men fighting desperately with swords and spears and shields hand-to-hand in this terrain! What an awful day it must have been! They dragged themselves the long miles back down to the camp at Gilgal with their heads hung to report their defeat. Sometimes in life, we too, as believers experience defeat. Albert and his wife Aigul were SO excited to be the second set of Kyrgyz missionaries sent by into China. They and their 2 young children couldn't wait to get there; for 5 long years they prayed and saved and at last they entered their promised land. They didn't last a full year. Things were more expensive than they'd thought; they ran out of money; their kids had some problems. They ended up barely existing and had to come home in defeat. Bob Givens shared with me about the pastor of his home church who served there faithfully for many years. Because of a financial crunch he took over as the administrator of the church's Christian school for the last year in addition to his pastoral duties. And recently they called him in and told him they were letting him go, that they didn't think he was the one to lead the church forward. He had no inkling that was coming, especially after pouring his heart into service, and he and his family are just crushed. Defeated. Maybe you know what that's like. Maybe you've put your heart into something, maybe training your children, or reaching your loved one who is unsaved, maybe working hard for a promotion at work, or teaching your class and giving your all to reach them, maybe trying to defeat a dread disease, but nothing has worked out as you hoped. The very prayer of your heart has seemingly gone unanswered. You've been defeated. And if you haven't been yet, don't hold your breath because you will experience this somewhere in life somehow. Now why does that happen to us? Well:

1. sometimes we are defeated because of obvious sin That was the case here (7:1). Achan's sin had caused their defeat. Now listen carefully: this does not mean that every time you are defeated you have necessarily sinned; nor does it mean that every time you suffer defeat you have to search your life for some hidden sin that you can't quite think of. I am simply saying that when you do sin, you can expect that defeat will come as a result of it. And, as in this case, it may be in the life of someone else who is partnered with you and you don't even know about it. But there are other reasons for failure:

2. sometimes we are defeated due to self-direction When they went to Jericho, God had given Joshua instructions. But here in verse (2) Joshua gives his own instructions. God had not told them to go up nor how to go up. Simply failing to seek God's will in a matter will lead to failure, if you have directed yourself to some place He doesn't want you to be. Then:

3. sometimes we are defeated due to self-confidence Having succeeded against impossible odds at Jericho, the spies in verse (3) looked at little Ai and thought, "We can handle that! It's so small that we don't need many men at all!" Joshua himself didn't even bother to go with them, it seems. Somewhere along the line they forgot Who knocked the walls down at Jericho. They began trusting in their own ability which was obviously far greater than that of Ai. And when you do that, God often lets you fail just to show you how much you need Him! And:

4. sometimes we are defeated due to self-imposed ignorance In verse (3) they said, "They are few!", but as I mentioned, 8:25 mentions 12,000 men and women at Ai so there had to be at least 5,000 fighting men and they only sent up 3,000. They made the odds nearly 2:1 against themselves simply because the spies came back with an under-exaggerated guess rather than a count! Sometimes we are defeated simply because we don't do our homework; we don't count the cost; we don't prepare properly; we don't take the time to find out all we need to know or to do things in the right way. Israel failed at Ai for all these reasons but what about when you haven't sinned and you are following God's direction and depending on Him and you've done the best job you can possibly do using everything you have, and you still suffer defeat. What then? Well hear this:

5. sometimes we are defeated because it is the will of God - Peter encouraged persecuted believers in 1 Pet. 4:19, Therefore let those who suffer according to God's will entrust their souls to a faithful Creator while doing good. Sometimes it has nothing to do with you at all; it is simply God's will. His choice. His plan. He has something in mind that you have no idea of. He needs this defeat to happen and He needs you to suffer through it for His glory. The problem is not really the circumstance itself; it is how you choose to react to it!

II. Israel Became Discouraged Through Her Defeat Verse 5 says their hearts all melted like water! Joshua fell on his face and said, "God, why have you done this! Why have you failed us? Now our cause will be lost!" HE was discouraged. But look at the first thing God says after the situation with Achan was taken care of. (8:1a)

1. God does not want us to be discouraged Stoning Achan did not remove their fear and their discouragement. They were still afraid as they thought about going off to another battle. The Hebrew word for discouraged here means literally to be broken, to be confused and dismayed and demoralized. That's what Satan wants, but God does not want us to sit and wallow in our discouragement! That's what my friend Albert is doing today after his China experience. He goes to church but he has no heart to serve God at all. He no longer has passion to see the world reached. He has given up and is living in a state of discouragement. That's exactly what Satan wants to do with this attack, to immobilize you, put you out of commission in the service of God through deep discouragement, but that is not what God wants!

2. God wants us to go forward using all the resources He has given us (8:1b-2) God says, Go back up to Ai and take the whole army... You know, sometimes God tells us to go right back into the situation where we have been defeated, right back to the place where we've been suffering, but even if it is not there, He still wants us to get up and go forward and serve Him! And He wants us to do it with all the resources at our command, to use everything we've got. Furthermore:

3. God wants us to go forward knowing He is in control He says, I have given Ai into your hand... "Go on and serve Me and trust that I am in control. I let you be defeated the first time. This time I will not. Know that your success or defeat is absolutely in My hands. Go ahead and do what I tell you and trust Me with the outcome!" And notice this:

4. God wants us to go forward obeying His every command "Destroy all the inhabitants of Ai just like you did at Jericho; only this time you can keep all their stuff for yourselves! And, by the way, here's the way I want you to beat them this time: set an ambush!" This time God didn't want them to march around the walls and shout! He gave them a different plan. The idea is to be sure you've got the plan from Him as to what He wants you to do next and then carry it out to the letter! That's what He wanted of Israel and that's what He wants of you! "Get up off your face, Joshua! Go back up there and do it MY way all the way and watch what I will do in the end!" And that's exactly what they did:

III. Israel Pressed Forward Through Discouragement And Defeated Ai We are not going to take the time to read all of (8:3-28); I will try to summarize the battle for you the best I can. First:

1. Joshua explained the plan of attack to the army in vs. (3-8). 600,000 fighting men wouldn't fit into that little valley and if they did, the men of Ai would never open the gates and come out against such a superior force. Joshua hand-picked 30,000 of his best troops to go. The blue oval in the middle is Ai. By night he and the main body of his troops went up and set themselves in the valley on the north side of the city. But off to the west of the city, there is a ridge and Joshua had 5,000 of his men go around and hide there on the back side. When Ai's army marched out to meet the main army, they would run away down the valley just like last time and the men of Ai would chase them. Then the soldiers in ambush would rise up, run into the city, take it, light a huge fire and rush out into the valley. Ai's troops would end up trapped between two large armies with no place to run. Well:

2. the ambush was successful in vs. (9-23) Israel's army got into place that night and in the morning Joshua and his elders and his army stepped out into the open on an open area, an obvious challenge, "Come out and fight us!" The men of Ai, still riding high on their previous victory, all came running out of the gates. It seems as though they had also gotten reinforcements from neighboring Bethel on the hill across the valley and out they came; every last man wanted to get in on the battle. But Joshua and his troops turned and ran down the valley with the men of Ai on his heels. But when they were far enough away, he put some kind of signal flag on the end of his javelin and waved it on high and the ambushers rushed up over the ridge into the undefended city and lit some of it on fire. When Joshua's men suddenly stopped running and turned around to fight, the men of Ai knew something was up. They turned around and looked and black smoke was pouring up from inside their city and here was an army of 5,000 men running at them from behind, screaming the battle cry! They were caught in a circle of enemies six times their own number and they were slaughtered to the last man. Now:

3. Israel obeyed God completely in vs. (24-27). After finding the last of the soldiers trying to climb out of the canyon, they went back to the city and destroyed all its inhabitants, exactly as God had told them to do. But they kept the live-stock and the other plunder because this time God had told them they could. And, according to verses (28-29):

4. Ai became a heap of ruins He burned the city and while it was burning, he impaled its king on a stake as a sign and then took him down, threw his body in a hole and raised a heap of stones over it. Ai remained a heap of ruins throughout Joshua's lifetime, at least. A village was rebuilt there for a time; we read its name again nine centuries later after the captivity, in Ezra and Nehemiah's day, but that did not last and you see what it looks like today, a perpetual mound of ruins, which, incidentally seems to be the meaning of its name.

In one day, Israel's discouragement was gone because in the face of defeat, they pressed forward and were careful to do it in complete obedience. This lesson so impressed itself on Joshua and his army that right after this battle they did something extraordinary. Joshua took the whole body of Israel on an overnight journey. They marched up past the ruins of Ai onto the path that leads north through the mountains toward Galilee. They boldly went about 20 miles further on until they came to a pair of mountains, Mt. Ebal and Mt. Gerizim, with the town of Shechem in front and there the whole nation held a special ceremony:

IV. Israel Renewed Her Commitment to God's Word As He Had Commanded (30-35) Here are the two mountains, Ebal on the right and Gerizim on the left with the little town of Shechem, later called Sychar in Jesus' day, at the foot of Mt. Ebal. On the southern summit of Mt. Ebal Joshua built an altar. Today you'll find this one standing there which dates to about 200 years after Joshua's time, but when archaeologists excavated underneath this one, there on the bedrock of the mountain was a round circle of stones which, as Joshua set them up, may have looked like this. Joshua offered sacrifices to God there and he wrote portions of Moses' writings on the stones. Then he went back to the valley. Between the two mountains there is a hollow, a sort of natural amphitheater a mile wide in which sound can be heard amazingly well from one side to the other. And there, with half the tribes in the hollow against one mountain and half against the other, the Levites proclaimed out loud the blessings and curses written down by Moses in Deut. 27-28 and all the people on one side and then the other shouted "Amen!" "So be it!" This was a pretty impressive, extensive thing, but they did it because they were commanded. You can read it for yourself, but God told them when they crossed Jordan to go to this exact place, to make this altar and to confess their commitment to doing the Word of God. And once the way was clear after Ai, they lost no time in hastening to do it. Their discouragement was replaced with a peace and a calm that emboldened them to walk 20 miles into enemy territory with all their wives and little ones and obediently worship the Lord. And never again in this whole war do we read of them shrinking back from battle in fear or see them wallowing again in discouragement. The secret was the simple thing they learned at Ai: find out what God says to do and do it, trusting Him. Period. Now we can't leave this story without mentioning:

V. Our Weapon Against Discouragement - Eph. 6:15 says that we're to stand against our enemy like this: as shoes for your feet, having put on the readiness given by the gospel of peace. The Roman soldier didn't go into battle barefooted. He wore sturdy fighting sandals which had thick leather or wooden soles studded with nails on the bottom bound securely to his feet with leather thongs about the ankles. A soldier with his shoes on was ready for battle. And Paul says that what makes us ready for battle is God's Peace. It is true that through believing the Gospel we have peace WITH God, but I think what Paul is saying here is that we can also have the peace OF God. Look with me at Phil. 4:7. The same peace that God has is given to us for spiritual battle, to guard our hearts and minds when we are defeated and discouraged and broken. It defies human understanding. It is the very confidence and assurance that God Himself has when He looks at a situation, that everything is alright and He has it under control, even though it doesn't look that way at the moment! And this peace is given by God to us for those very times when Satan would discourage us! So how do we put it on? Well just back up three verses to Phil. 4:4:

1. to have it we must rejoice in the Lord in all circumstances This is a matter of focus. You may have nothing to rejoice about in your circumstances; there may be only failure, defeat, frustration, and fatigue. But God hasn't changed. His love for you hasn't changed. The cross hasn't changed. All the wonderful answers to prayer and provisions all of your life haven't changed. You can still rejoice in HIM and keep your mind fixed on Him rather than your circumstances. That's the first key; the second is Phil. 4:6:

2. to have it we must replace our anxiety with prayer Stop being anxious and start praying. In practical terms that means every time you start to get frustrated and discouraged, you stop right then and there and talk to the Lord about it and thank Him for what He's already done for you and tell Him your problem. And if you feel discouraged again five minutes later, do it again and again and again. Do it all day long, until the discouragement gives way and the peace of God comes, until you have the assurance that even in your defeat and your discouragement with your circumstances, God has it all under control and is working it all together for good somehow.

On October 29, 1941 Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Great Britain visited Harrow School, his alma mater, to hear the traditional songs he had sung there as a youth, as well as to speak to the students. Britain had already been the prime target of Hitler's war machine for some time and the US had not yet entered the war. Here is a portion of that famous 4 1/2 minute speech: "The ten months that have passed have seen very terrible catastrophic events in the world--ups and downs, misfortunes-- but can anyone sitting here this afternoon, this October afternoon, not feel deeply thankful for what has happened in the time that has passed and for the very great improvement in the position of our country and of our home? Why, when I was here last time we were quite alone, desperately alone, and we had been so for five or six months. We were poorly armed. We are not so poorly armed today; but then we were very poorly armed. We had the unmeasured menace of the enemy and their air attack still beating upon us, and you yourselves had experience of this attack; and I expect you are beginning to feel impatient that there has been this long lull with nothing particular turning up! But we must learn to be equally good at what is short and sharp and what is long and tough.... for everyone, surely, what we have gone through in this period... this is the lesson: Never give in. Never give in. Never, never, never, never--in nothing, great or small, large or petty--never give in, except to convictions of honor and good sense. Never yield to force. Never yield to the apparently overwhelming might of the enemy.... These are not dark days; these are great days--the greatest days our country has ever lived; and we must all thank God that we have been allowed, each of us according to our stations, to play a part in making these days memorable in the history of our race." I don't know whether Churchill was a believer but his leadership kept Britain from discouragement and enabled them to persevere unto victory. His advice is nearly like scripture: When dark days happen refuse to be discouraged. Thank God for how He has sustained you; rejoice in the Lord. And pray through to peace. Then keep on going forward as He directs. Never give in!

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

The Battle Of Deception: Gibeon - Ch. 9

The spiritual war that we face as believers invading the world of Jesus Christ to turn all nations to Him is every bit as real as the physical invasion that Israel made against the nations of Canaan who occupied God's promised land. So, we can learn lessons for our battles by looking at theirs. At this point in our series of studies, Israel has crossed the Jordan River from the east side and destroyed first Jericho and then Ai there in the center of the map. Then they marched north all the way up to Shechem and held a special celebration of the law of God at the end of chapter 8 and returned to their camp at Gilgal by the river. The land of Canaan is not a big land; the whole is maybe 170 miles long and 50-60 miles wide. You could fit it into the state of Pennsylvania 5 times side by side and have space left over. The major cities are only a few miles apart with smaller towns in between; you can see them from each other. News traveled fast. So, it is no wonder that in chapter 9 we begin to read about:

I. The Reaction Of The Canaanites To Israel's Invasion (1-2)

1. the Canaanite peoples were all uniting to fight against Israel Canaan at that time was a land filled with little independent city-states. Each city was ruled by its own king. In normal times they would quarrel and fight with each other to assert dominance, but with the threat of the Israelite invasion upon them, they saw the size of Israel's army and realized there was no single city in the whole land who could stand before such a force. You can see on the map the various areas where the 7 ethnic peoples lived throughout the land. Messengers were sent out and kings who disliked each other made pacts to join forces. You can also see by this arrow God's strategy with Israel. He brought Israel into the land from the middle and by taking them from Jericho by the Jordan to Ai up on the ridge and now up over the top to Gibeon He was driving a wedge straight through the middle of the land and dividing it in half so they could not all unite together. However, in their line of march, in the center of the hill country was this city called Gibeon which decided to take a different approach. Look for a moment at 10:2. Gibeon, like Jerusalem or Jericho or a number of others, was one of the larger cities in the land and it had a powerful army. In fact:

2. Gibeon led a 4 city alliance (9:17) Chephirah, Beeroth and Kiriath Jearim were smaller towns who looked to Gibeon for protection. Here is the hill on which Gibeon was built; in that day the city occupied the bare south side which is toward us in this view and the others were close by. Here is a better view. I'm not sure what the other towns in view are today, but you can see how they are clustered on the hills and in sight of one another. Now these Gibeonites somehow knew fighting was futile (9:3-4a). They did not miss the significance of what had happened at Jericho when the massive walls fell down! I'm sure they heard about the drying up of the Jordan too before that! They did not miss the clever leadership that drew out the men of Ai by an ambush. Plus, it appears that they had done their homework. In their own words they later tell us that:

a. they heard what God had done in Egypt and across Jordan (9-10) Even though it was 40 years beforehand, the story of the destruction of the land and the army of Egypt by the God of Israel had made a deep impact upon them. And then when Israel conquered the two kingdoms of Sihon and Og on the other side of Jordan, it was clear to them that the God of Israel was still acting in all His power, that Israel was an unstoppable force. They reasoned, "If Egypt couldn't stop them and two kingdoms couldn't stop them and the river and the walls of Jericho couldn't stop them, then we won't be able to either!" And somehow:

b. they knew God had commanded Israel to wipe them out (24a) I don't know whether spies were listening in when Joshua had them read the law shortly before at Mt. Gerizim and Mt. Ebal and they got the report, but amazingly they know that Israel's God had commanded Israel to destroy them. They knew information from our book of Deuteronomy and instead of proudly brushing it off because of their size and all their valiant warriors:

c. they believed Israel's God and became desperate to save their lives (24b) They saw the handwriting on the wall and they didn't ignore it. It terrified them. They believed they were going to die and in some sense that was an expression of faith in God. However, the solution that came to their minds was not simply to flee their cities and find places to live outside the land, nor was it the honest response of peaceful surrender to Israel and willingness to leave the land in which case they surely would have been spared. But rather Satan suggested to them:

II. The Ruse Of Gibeon Which Deceived Israel (4-13) They decided to deceive the Israelites using Israel's own commitment to the law of their God against them.

1. they developed a well-informed plan (6) They pretended to be from a far-off distant land instead of from close by. Now the fact that they would even think of that is incredible. Somehow, they had knowledge of God's plans for Israel. Look at Deut. 20:10-11, 15-16. With a distant nation they could make a peace agreement but not with the cities of Canaan. Somehow the Gibeonites knew that and based their plan on it! Listen! Satan is not stupid. His attacks against you are well-informed and when he lays a trap to deceive you, he does his homework! That's why there are so many New Testament warnings that tell us to be alert, be vigilant! Constantly remember that he's out there and after us and scrutinize the landscape of your life carefully! So, knowing this:

2. they carefully crafted a false appearance (4-5) These Gibeonites really put on an act. They made it look like they'd been traveling for weeks when it was only hours! Everything about them appeared to be legitimate and to verify that they did indeed live far, far away. We don't expect that. We expect people to be what they seem to be but there are plenty of them that aren't! That's why we teach our children not to go with strangers, but we don't always realize it in the adult world for ourselves. And, of course:

3. they cleverly rehearsed an appealing story (7-13) From the first:

a. they adopted a submissive attitude (7-8) They said that twice in their speech and they based it right on the Deuteronomy passage. They voluntarily offered to become servants to Israel, to be under her rule and do forced labor or whatever she deemed right, if she would offer them her protection in a treaty of peace. There is something really appealing and attractive about humility, isn't there? Our hearts go out to the person bowing before us. And the Gibeonites knew to use that. Then look again how clearly:

b. they professed a reverence for Israel's God (9-11) They expressed a belief in the power of Israel's God; what better way to endear themselves! But notice how careful they were in what they said. They professed to have heard of the old events, of Egypt and the battles on the other side of Jordan. Now we saw in verse 3 what really moved them, the defeat of Jericho and Ai, but they tailored their words to hide their location. A nation far away couldn't possibly have known about Jericho and Ai yet. Even though they were telling the truth about this, they were hiding behind it by omitting part of it. And, naturally:

c. they presented compelling evidence for their claim (12-13) "Look, look, look! See with your own eyes! How could we be from nearby? Does anybody travel with worn out stuff like this and eat old dry bread like this if they have a choice?" Oh, Satan will lie to you! I've been lied to many times, by businesses, by church members, especially by telephone salesmen! Satan will be quick to tell you things that are not true, things that seem to have all the evidence in the world behind them, but things that will endanger your soul and wreck your life!

So, through these tools of deception, Satan made it look to Joshua and the leaders of Israel like signing a treaty with these people was very much the will of God. But I want you to underline this next verse. Here is:

III. The Mistake Through Which Israel Believed The Deception (14)

1. they trusted in their own perception They looked at the bread and the clothes and the wineskins. They even ate some, which was a sign of friendship. So often we do this. We go by outward appearances; we go by what we hear and see. The only problem with that is that, as we've seen, Satan is a master of disguise. Appearances are often deceiving, especially when he has something to do with it! So, our perception may well be wrong. But here's the point:

2. they failed to ask God for His direction They could have asked God. They had access to Him through the high priest who carried the Urim and Thummim in the ephod. He would have told them. But they didn't bother to ask, even though they had just learned that lesson about not asking at Ai! And there are Christians upon Christians today, and I daresay that it would include some of us all the time and all of us sometimes, who make decision after decision, major decisions without ever stopping to seriously ask God about them, decisions about important things like dating and marriage, like making a large purchase, like taking a job, like leaving a church, and on and on, without ever bothering to ask God! So often, we simply trust our own perceptions!

IV. The Consequences Of Israel's Wrong Decision (15-21, 26-27) Eventually the ruse was discovered, as all ruses are sooner or later. The Gibeonites did live nearby in the land, but now Israel could not attack them because of the oath they had made to God. And the lesson of Achan disobeying God was still fresh in their minds. They were not about to break an oath they had made in the name of the Lord, even if it was based upon a lie, so:

1. Israel ended up having to disobey God because of their oath The result of trusting their own perceptions and not asking God was that now they were bound in a situation that God didn't want them to be in and they couldn't get out of. I can't tell you how many believing women I know that are stuck for life in a difficult marriage through the vow they made because at the time they weren't interested in listening to God and went ahead on their own perceptions. How many believers have ended up in a mountain of debt that now they are obligated to pay and are struggling, because at the time they bought the house or the cars or took the loan, they didn't really bother to listen to God. It just seemed like such a good idea at the time! The consequences of not bothering to listen can be disastrous and lifelong! On the flip side of the coin:

2. the Gibeonites ended up in a life of perpetual servitude Their ruse worked, but not as well as they'd hoped. Joshua did spare their lives, but he took them at their word and they literally became perpetual servants to the rest of Israel and particularly to the Tabernacle, assigned to gather firewood and carry water. One commentary pointed out that both of those activities were normally "women's work". So here you have all these strong warriors of Gibeon doing for the Israelites the very thing they were used to expecting their wives or children do for them. They lived their lives in a perpetual state of dishonor and were never really free again. Keep that in mind when you're tempted to resort to lying or deception yourself! It will never really get you what you hope it will, even if you think it does. Ponder that one a moment. Then let's turn to the New Testament now and look at:

V. The Weapon God Has Given Us To Conquer Deception: the weapon of Truth Paul warns us clearly that:

1. Satan commonly disguises himself in false appearances - 2 Cor. 11:13-15 Satan many times disguises his servants as apostles; he disguises his servants, his workers as people sent by God! He won't send you somebody who looks like a gang member and uses foul language to deceive you as a believer. It wouldn't work. Rather he will send somebody who looks like a good godly person to teach you false truths that will kill your soul or will lead you astray and, in the end, keep you from serving God. There are millions of godly-looking and sounding people who are busy doing Satan's business and many of them are so deceived themselves that they don't know it and think they're doing God's work! The dear Jehovah's witnesses and Mormons that knock on our doors are agents that Satan is using to lead people AWAY from genuine faith in Christ alone, yet they so sincerely believe they are serving God with all their hearts! So are the thousands of Protestant pastors who don't believe the Bible is true and Jesus is the only way of salvation. These folks appear as messengers of light and truly believe that's what they are and they need our love and prayers to rescue them from that because they themselves are deceived. But that's the kind of person Satan will more likely send into your life to deceive you! And he so often disguises what they are doing as righteousness, having them do things that look right and good and, indeed, much of what they do may actually BE right and good in and of itself, yet the effect of it is to take people AWAY from faith in Christ and cause them to trust in their own good works. Lies that are obvious don't fool many people; lies that look like truth, that are half-truths or contain a piece of truth, those are the most effective! Jesus warned us in the New Testament time and time again that many false Christs and false prophets are out there in the world and many of them have actually been part of the church at one point and left and some are still part of it organization-wise! So how can we recognize them? Eph. 6:14 tells us, Stand therefore, having fastened on the belt of truth...

2. God has given us a belt of truth which we can put on The Roman soldier wore a belt, a broad leather belt around his waist. It held the bottom of his breastplate in place. It held up his sword and scabbard. And when approaching action, the bottoms of the soldier's tunic could be tucked up under it to give him increased mobility and readiness for action. God says we have a belt that we should put around us so we'll be ready for Satan's attack of deception and that belt is truth! Now we have God's truth in two forms. First of all:

a. we have the written truth of God's Word God has been gracious enough to give us His own words in a written form that can be preserved accurately from generation to generation. Look at how Jesus prayed for His disciples in John 17:15-17. How is God going to set us apart from the world and keep us from being absorbed by its lies? How is He going to protect us from the deception of the Evil One? By the Word of God! We can measure anything that anyone tells us against this precious book and if it doesn't measure up, it is not truth, but a lie! This is our first line of defense. You will not be easily deceived if you read your Bible and know it well and determine that you will truly make it your final authority for everything. But in many of the things we face in life, there are choices where we need personal guidance that goes beyond the clear principles of Scripture and for that:

b. we have the living Presence of God's Spirit to guide us Look back at Jn. 16:12-15. The Holy Spirit is the Spirit of Truth and He now lives personally inside each one of us who believes. He is there to take the thoughts and the will of God and make them known to us. He is there to help us understand and apply the truth of the written Word and He is there to guide our hearts and minds to the truth of what God wants us to do, to enable us to actually live out the will of God for our lives. Now turn over with me to 1 Cor. 2:9-12, 15-16. Did you hear that?

c. we have the mind of Christ Himself available to us, living inside us. And it is ours if we but listen! The prerequisite on our parts is simply seeking it. The very mind of Christ is ours if we want it. We can know everything He wants us to know about our situation. Every day in every decision, in every situation, we need to do what Israel failed to do; we need to stop and take the time to seek His will, to ask Him what His mind is, to give Him the opportunity to speak to us and reveal His will. And if we truly seek that kind of wisdom, James 1:5 promises us that we won't be denied! God will give it to us freely! In fact, He is more willing to tell us than we are to ask Him!

Neil Anderson tells the story of a young pilot who had just passed the point of no return when the weather changed for the worse. Visibility dropped to a matter of feet as fog descended to the earth. Putting total trust in the cockpit instruments was a new experience to him, as he had only recently qualified for instrument flying. His destination was a crowded metropolitan airport that he was not familiar with. In a few minutes he would be in radio contact with the tower. Until then he was alone with his thoughts. Flying with no visibility, he became aware of how easy it would be to panic. Twice he reached for the radio to broadcast "Mayday!" but he forced himself to go over the words of his instructor instead. His instructor had practically forced him to memorize the rule book. He did not care for it at the time, but now he was thankful. "Finally, he heard the voice of the air traffic controller. Trying not to sound apprehensive, the young pilot asked for landing instructions. 'I'm going to put you in a holding pattern,' the controller responded. 'Great!' thought the pilot. However, he knew that his safe landing was in the hands of this person. He had to draw upon his previous instruction and training, and trust the voice of an air traffic controller he could not see. The words of an old hymn, 'Trust and obey for there's no other way,' took on new meaning. Aware that this was no time for pride, he informed the controller, 'This is not a seasoned pilot up here. I would appreciate any help you could give me.' 'You got it!' he heard back. For the next 45 minutes, the controller gently guided the pilot through the blinding fog. As course and altitude corrections came periodically, the young pilot realized the controller was guiding him around obstacles and away from potential collisions. With the words of the rule book firmly placed in his mind, and with the gentle voice of the controller, he landed safely at last. Neal comments: "The Holy Spirit guides us through the maze of life much like that air traffic controller. The controller assumed that the young pilot understood the instructions of the flight manual. His guidance was based on that. Such is the case with the Holy Spirit: He can guide us only if we have knowledge of God's Word and His will established in our minds." [Walking Through the Darkness by Neil Anderson. Regal Books, 1989.] Listen, be like that pilot. Don't trust your own perceptions. In all your ways acknowledge Him, ask Him to show you, and He will direct your paths.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

The Battle Of Reliance: The Southern Campaign - Ch. 10

Success breeds self-confidence. When you try something challenging the first time, you're nervous and you ask for help and you pray a lot, but if you succeed in it, the next time you tend to be less anxious and less ready to ask for help. And if you keep on succeeding a few times, you soon begin to relax and feel confident in your own ability, that you're pretty good at it and that you'll always succeed. Of course, in more mundane things like changing your oil or using your new computer or balancing your checkbook or finding your way to a new job, that's pretty normal. But when you're in a war, self-confidence is a dangerous way to live. Dropping your guard and trusting in your own strength and skill leads to a false sense of invincibility that can kill you! Imagine what it would be like if you lived in a city in Afghanistan right now. You'd live in a consciousness that the enemy is out there all the time. You'd pray every time you left the house, even for a routine trip to the market. Well, as believers, we live in a war zone spiritually. Through us God is advancing His rule and Kingdom into the whole world, but our adversary, the devil, is always prowling about looking for the opportunity to devour us. We must live in an attitude of moment-by-moment reliance upon God. Israel might have been tempted by this time to start relying on herself. She had taken first Jericho and then Ai. Gibeon, a major city, and its three smaller towns had already surrendered without a fight, and made a treaty of peace with Israel, even though they did it through a deceitful ruse to protect themselves. She could easily have begun to let her guard down and develop confidence in her own abilities. But thankfully, she didn't. Even though Israel had a really large army, there were dozens of cities in the land of Canaan. While her army was way bigger than that of any one city, if they all united together as we read in Ch. 9 they were trying to do, they could have presented a truly formidable opposing force. So, God used Israel to drive a wedge through the middle of the land as I showed you last week and this separated the southern cities from the northern ones. Now as we enter chapter 10:

I. An Alliance Of Five Canaanite Kings Attacked Gibeon (1-5) Here are the 5 cities. Jerusalem is only 5 miles or so from Gibeon so no wonder their King got worried and called for help from other major cities. He figured he was the next in line and he wanted help. Hebron was about 20 miles south of Jerusalem, Jarmuth was about 16 miles west, Lachish about 25 miles southwest and Eglon is down there somewhere too. These kings readily joined together to help him because:

1. they were greatly alarmed at the defection of the Gibeonites Gibeon was a major city with lots of seasoned soldiers. Not only would that lessen their own defensive capability against Israel and possibly lead other cities not to fight, but now the Gibeonites would be obligated to fight WITH Israel against them! They were cut off from help to the north and afraid for their very lives! So, while Joshua's army was back down in the camp at Gilgal resting, they decided to attack Gibeon quickly and eliminate its potential threat to them. Their troops gathered from city to city and camped in the valley below the hill of Gibeon ready to attack it. And immediately:

2. the Gibeonites appealed to Joshua and Israel for help (6) They sent swift runners down to Gilgal to the camp to plead with Israel to uphold their end of the treaty and come to their rescue. And Joshua responded immediately (7) Now I want us to think for a moment about:

II. The Disadvantage Israel Faced In Entering This Battle First of all:

1. they faced a multiplied enemy greater than any previous To this point they had faced one city at a time; this was 5 at once, and together their army was larger than any that had opposed them. Satan has a way of doing that, of causing the people and the things that stand against us to in some sense join forces, of multiplying problems against us so that we may be facing a physical illness at the same time we're facing the loss of our job and the death of a close relative and a rebellious teen who gets in trouble. Life does not tend to come at us in a nice organized linear set of difficulties that can be handled one at a time in neat succession. Or to put it another way, when it rains, it usually pours! If we are relying on our own strength instead of God, the next wave to hit might be the one that sweeps us under. Secondly:

2. they lacked the energy needed to engage in the battle Gibeon is some 20 miles away from Gilgal and in that distance, there is an uphill ascent of over 3,000 ft. It's an 8–10-hour strenuous march and verse 9 tells us Joshua's army marched all night to make it up there in the morning with no time for rest. When they arrived at dawn, they were foot-sore and weary, having had no sleep, and they faced an army fresh from its tents. Left on their own, they would almost certainly not have had sufficient energy to rout the foe or if they did, they absolutely wouldn't have had the energy to chase and destroy them for another 25 miles over the next 36 hours without sleep. Many times, we just don't have the energy to fight the battle Satan faces us with. He wears us out physically, mentally, emotionally and if we don't depend on God, there will be no energy to make it through without becoming a spiritual casualty. Third:

3. they lacked the time to accomplish what needed to be done There was no time for a routine march to battle. If they didn't get there by morning, Gibeon would fall before the invaders and there would be no Gibeonites left to rescue. Plus, it appears that even as the battle was going on, Joshua figured out by noon that there was not enough time left in the day to stop the fleeing enemies in their retreat. Isn't that one of our biggest issues in facing the problems that come to us in life? There is just not enough time to deal with them! There are deadlines that we can't meet. We don't have time using our own energy to accomplish all the things that must be accomplished in the time we have. That's why we need God so much! Thankfully, Joshua and Israel seemed to be keenly aware of the difficulties they were facing at this time and:

4. they entered the battle at God's instruction and trusting in Him (8) They talked to God! They consulted Him right away! And God spoke this reassurance to Joshua personally. They were not to be afraid to enter this battle, but to go and trust that God would do what He said, that not a man of them would be able to remain standing against them! God promised He would fight their battle, that He would defeat their enemies through them. So they marched up trusting His Word and:

III. God Acted Mightily On Behalf Of His People Even as they arrived:

1. He threw the enemy into confusion and routed them (10) When suddenly the sound of Israel's trumpets rang out and the lines of their soldiers began running into the valley at dawn, the Canaanite army stumbled up out of their sleep in a panic. They had not dreamed that Israel could get there that day! They grabbed their weapons but there was no time to form a battle line or organize. They were utterly confused and didn't know what to do. Some stood and tried to do battle but many were slain right there in the valley. Others who were left began to run and soon the whole army was fleeing for their lives. They ran away uphill out of the valley to Beth Horon, over its pass and down the road to lower Beth Horon and turned southward and downward into the valley of the Aijalon River Israel, of course, gave chase, but having marched uphill all night, when they hit the downhill the Canaanites began to pull away and God stepped in again:

2. He sent a hailstorm that killed many (11) As Israel topped out the pass and looked down on their fleeing enemies the very heavens opened and it began to hail huge hailstones, the type that fell in Egypt and killed man and beast. I don't know how long it lasted, but in that wave of hail thousands fell, though not a single Israelite was hit. The survivors fled faster down into the valley which was a huge open area and from the height at noon Joshua could see that they couldn't catch and destroy the rest of this army by nightfall. So, Joshua prayed and then God did something that ranks as probably one of the greatest miracles of all history:

3. He answered prayer and lengthened the day (12-15) At this spring season the sun was behind him toward Gibeon and the crescent moon was still visible at the edge of the horizon in front of him over the valley of Aijalon and Joshua prayed that God would have them stand still, that God would lengthen the day so that there would be time to catch their enemies before they reached the safety of their cities. And God heard him and did it. These verses are a quote which Joshua inserts in his record here from another ancient book that is now lost to us, the book of Jashar, but they are inserted as fact. God literally lengthened the day about the length of a full day. Of course, skeptics and critics have attacked this passage as proof that the Bible is a man-made hoax. "Stop the sun? Or halt the earth's rotation? Come on!" And defenders of the Bible have advanced all kinds of theories desperately trying to give some kind of explanation that fits with scientific reasoning somehow. There was even a hoax that is now widely circulated on the internet about NASA's computers finding a "missing day" in the spectrum of time, one believer's attempt to create "evidence" for this miracle. Don't ask me how God did it; I would only submit that if you can believe that God created the entire universe out of nothing simply by speaking, it is no harder to believe that He caused the sun to stand still in the sky for a whole day! Is it? What IS interesting is this, primitive societies in many places in different areas of the world in the lore of their ancient myths have stories that indicate that in the long ago at some point there was (and this is the neat part) either a long day that was about twice as long as normal or a long night where it stayed dark that long! Peoples in that area of the world have legends of a long day and the native peoples on the opposite side of the world have legends of a long night. And the icing on the cake is two peoples in the Pacific Islands who have legends of a long sunrise! It seems that Joshua's long day was noticed all over the world and ancient peoples all made up their own stories to explain it! But as in any miracle, you either believe God or you don't; the point is that God heard and answered Joshua's prayer and He bent the very rules of the universe to do what cannot be done. And in the end:

4. He vanquished their enemies so thoroughly all opposition ceased (19-21) I like that last phrase, not a man moved his tongue... Nobody even cursed them from the walls of their cities or out of the door of the houses in the villages they passed by. Everyone hid from their presence. The upshot of the great victory that day was that:

IV. Israel Conquered The Whole Of South Canaan In One Campaign which is summarized for us in (40-42a) We don't have time to read all the details this morning but in the process of that first long day:

1. they killed the five kings who had joined against them. (16-18, 22-27) The kings hid in a cave and Joshua brought them out and put the feet of his generals on their necks and encouraged them to trust God, saying, "This is what God will do to all your enemies!" And before sunset of the long day, they were slain. Then Israel camped at Makkedah and rested and over a period of some days:

2. they conquered and destroyed six cities one after the other in verses (28-39) Some were part of the confederation and some were not, but by taking out these key cities, Joshua basically removed all the military opposition in the southern part of Canaan in one campaign. God arranged it faster than anyone could have imagined it. Of course, the land remained to be occupied. They did not invade every village and people who hid out from their army certainly came back after they were gone, but there would be no more great battles from this direction. The backbone of the opposition was broken in one fell swoop. But what's important is:

V. The True Reason For Israel's Victory You'll find it if you look back again to vs. (42):

1. God Himself fought for Israel Yes, in much of it He used their arms and legs, their swords and spears, but He did the fighting through them. And He also fought through circumstances and the use of nature for His purposes and even bent the rules of time. Friends the taking of the battleground of this world for Jesus is GOD's campaign. HE fights through us. He uses our feet and hands and mouths. And He arranges our circumstances and coordinates the very weather and even does supernatural miracles to aid us in our task at times. But the key is that:

2. Israel remained continually conscious that God was fighting as they fought and relied on Him (8, 12, 14, 19, 25, 30, 32, 42) Look at all these verses in the record. From moment one Joshua knew it and all Israel knew it. The LORD fought this battle; it was His, not theirs. They were just to be willing instruments and rely completely upon Him. And that, dear ones, is how He wants us to live too! Now look with me at:

VI. The Weapon God Has Given Us To Keep Us Reliant Paul describes every piece of armor God has given to protect us: truth, righteousness, peace, faith and then he closes by saying these words in Eph. 6:18. This armor must be put on with the weapon of Prayer! We rely upon God consciously by praying, by bringing to Him all our feelings, our inadequacies, our problems and relying on Him to do what needs done! First, Paul says:

1. it must be exercised in every circumstance ...at all times A person who is really depending on God prays all the time, not just at the table after meals, not just at bedtime, but all through the day. And he prays about everything, big and little. When praying becomes as automatic as breathing, then I'm really depending on God. When I can't find a parking place and I automatically pray or when I can't get through to somebody that really needs my help and I automatically pray, then I am beginning to live a life that is dependent on God moment by moment. Then:

2. it must be exercised in true communion ...in the Spirit True praying doesn't simply mean telling God what I want over and over again until I get it. It means listening to God and looking for what God really wants to do in my life. It means coming with the attitude that I don't really know what to pray for as I should but that the Holy Spirit in me really knows God's mind and I need Him to guide my prayer and to make intercession through me according to that will. Prayer born of the Spirit seeks God's glory and asks that His will be done. When my praying is not characterized by the word "I" but by the word "You", then I am really learning to depend on God to plan and arrange my life instead of trying to do it myself. Third:

3. it must be exercised in an attitude of combat ...keep alert I must be alert when I pray. I must be always looking for what Satan is doing and praying against it. I am stopping his work; I am defeating him when I pray. And when I see myself praying "Lord, Satan is really trying to blind Fred to the Gospel or Satan is really trying to stop Sally in her walk with you and make her drop out of church, or Satan is really trying to discourage me with this or to tempt me with that," then I'm really praying; I'm depending on God to bring His power to bear against the enemy instead of my own feeble strength. And finally:

4. it must be exercised steadfastly ...with all perseverance Real prayer is not once and done. It does not give up; it does not quit. I must be patient and persistent and keep on praying whether I see immediate results or not. Many times, defeating Satan in some matter takes weeks or months, even years and I must pray on! When I find myself not giving up on God's ability but willing to pray and pray and pray until His answer comes, then I am really relying on God in the way He wants me to.

Now my friend, when you and I learn to pray like that, all the time, seeking the help of the Holy Spirit, battling Satan and keeping on and on, then we will be living a life that is truly relying on God. Every digital device you own, and that includes your CDs and player, iPad, computer, phone, TV and just about anything else that communicates, you owe to the tedious research and work of one man, Samuel F. B. Morse, who patented the first commercial telegraph. His invention changed the world and made possible rapid long-distance communication for the first time. Samuel was the son of a pastor and his faith governed his life. Following the deaths of his wife and parents he became determined to find a means of long distance communication using electricity. After long experiments to create the device and then struggling for years to find funding, congress finally saw the value of his invention and gave him the grant he needed. The very first message he sent over the telegraph from the US Capitol Building to the B&O railway office in Baltimore was the last phrase of Num. 23:23, "What hath God wrought!" The last one he sent at the age of 80 to offices the world over simultaneously was, "Greeting and thanks to the Telegraph fraternity throughout the world. Glory to God in the Highest, on Earth Peace, Goodwill to men." Four years before his death he wrote, "The nearer I approach to the end of my pilgrimage, the clearer is the evidence of the divine origin of the Bible, the grandeur and sublimity of God's remedy for fallen man are more appreciated, and the future is illumined with hope and joy." The true secret of his life was revealed on one occasion when he was asked by Rev. George W. Hervey, "Professor Morse, when you were making your experiments at the university, did you ever come to a standstill, not knowing what to do next?" "Oh, yes, more than once." "Then what did you do?" "I've never discussed this with anyone, so the public knows nothing about it. But now that you ask me, I'll tell you frankly--I prayed for more light." "And did God give you the wisdom and knowledge you needed?" "Yes, He did," said Morse. "That's why I never felt I deserved the honors that came to me from America and Europe because of the invention associated with my name. I had made a valuable application of the use of electrical power, but it was all through God's help. It wasn't because I was superior to other scientists. When the Lord wanted to bestow this gift on mankind, He had to use someone. I'm just grateful He chose to reveal it to me." The early years of his life were a tremendous struggle, but his life bears all the marks of a person who has learned to rely on God and to cultivate a habit of prayer. That's what God wants for you so that He can accomplish through you what He wants to do in the world.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

The Battle Of Fear: The Northern Campaign - Ch. 11

Our study today completes the story of Israel's conquest of the land of Canaan. It is the story of the last major battle Joshua fought and of the prolonged campaign that followed it. We're studying these battles because they illustrate for us the very strategies that Satan uses to attack us as we take the world for Jesus Christ to make it His Kingdom. So far, we've looked at his tactics of inciting us to unbelief, discouragement, deception and reliance on self, all of which will have extremely serious consequences in our lives. This last battle illustrates for us Satan's attempt to use the weapon of fear to intimidate God's people and keep them from doing His will. We saw last week the story of the Southern Campaign, how in one fell swoop God had divided the land of Canaan down the middle and given Joshua and Israel military control over the entire south. But news of that went quickly throughout the northern region and while Israel was resting and regrouping back in Gilgal, the north was quickly preparing to defend themselves. As we enter chapter 11, we read first of:

I. The Northern Army That Massed Against Israel (1-5) A little geography lesson: the chief north-south passage in this region is the valley of the Jordan River which is 156 miles long. We often don't realize that it begins way up in Lebanon on the slopes of Mt. Hermon and flows in a 47 mile run down the Huleh Valley into what for centuries was a shallow marshy lake known as Lake Huleh, or Merom in biblical times. It covered about 12 mi² and in the 1950's Israel got the brilliant idea to drain it all for agriculture. They soon realized the negative impact on the ecology of the region and ended up re-creating several artificial dams in its place. Out of Lake Huleh it flowed another 15 miles through the valley into the Sea of Galilee or Chinnereth (as it was also known). From Galilee it meanders another 65 miles down the valley past Gilgal and Jericho into the Dead Sea which, as you know, has no outlet. It is the lowest elevated river in the world and today 70% and more of its water is diverted by Israel and Syria for agricultural purposes. Now the dominant city in this entire region in Joshua's day was Hazor, which was located on the west side of the Huleh Valley, on high ground overlooking Lake Merom. It was very large and covered about 200 acres, as compared to the 9 acres of Jericho, with an estimated population as high as 40,000 or more. Now:

1. Hazor forged a confederacy of dozens of armies from the entire region These were usually all independent groups, squabbling and vying with one another, but they recognized their common danger from Israel, so literally the entire region laid aside their differences and each sent all the men they could to Hazor to form a common army to oppose Israel and they camped on high ground by the waters of Lake Merom. Chapter 12 lists the names of 31 kings that Israel defeated. 8 of them were defeated in the southern campaign, so 23 cities with kings were part of this confederacy, along with many troops from peoples whose cities are not mentioned. In the end:

2. the size of their combined numbers approached that of Israel It was huge. Joshua says it was like looking at the grains of sand on the seashore, that is to say, it was too large to count easily. Josephus, a Jewish historian from just before the time of Christ, when he tells the story of this battle, guesses that the Canaanites had 300,000 foot soldiers alone. How he would know, I can't say, but it is not beyond reason. Israel's men numbered 600,000 from age 20 to 60, but some were left across Jordan with the women and children of the 2 ½ tribes who were to receive their inheritance there and I'm sure some of the older no longer went out to battle. This is the first time Israel faced an enemy that was anywhere near their own size. The kicker is that:

3. they had weaponry vastly superior to Israel They had very many horses AND chariots! In fact, Josephus stated that they had 10,000 mounted troops on horses (i.e., cavalry) and 20,000 chariots! Even if his numbers are exaggerated by double the actual number, that was still a significant force. Israel had no horses and they surely had no chariots. That may not mean much to you, that is until you're the guy standing there on the plain with a line of horsemen like this charging straight into you! Picture the charge of the horsemen in the third Lord of the Rings movie and how they swept through the enemy infantry. A Syrian or Hittite chariot was the ancient equivalent of a tank. It was drawn by two horses and carried three men, one driver and two armed to the teeth with bows and spears and swords all stored nicely inside. Picture a line of thousands of these coming at you full force and you on foot! Israel was a bunch of shepherds with spears and swords; they had nothing to go against this! Now you can imagine:

II. The Fear That These Circumstances Could Have Produced Notice the first words God says to Joshua in v. (6). DO NOT BE AFRAID OF THEM! That would be the natural reaction! Josephus' interpretation of this verse is, the multitude of the enemies affrighted both Joshua himself and the Israelites; and they, instead of being full of hopes of good success, were superstitiously timorous, with the great terror with which they were stricken. Whereupon God upbraided them with the fear they were in, and asked them whether they desired a greater help than he could afford them; and promised them that they should overcome their enemies... You see:

1. we become afraid when we focus on the weakness of our ability Fear comes when you compare your small self to the size of your opponent, when you compare your own meager abilities to the size of the task God has asked you to do, when you compare your faltering strength to the requirements of the problem you have to endure. You seem so little and insignificant and weak, so you become afraid! And:

2. we become afraid when we focus on the scarcity of our resources Fear comes when you compare your income against the size of the debt you have to pay, when you compare the size of the job you have to do with what little time and energy you have to do it with. You seem to have nothing or at least not near enough in comparison and so you become afraid! And when we are afraid:

3. Satan tries to use that fear to keep us from obeying God When we are afraid, what do we do? Sometimes we do nothing. We are too afraid to move, too scared to take the next step in the direction God is pointing. 400 years later in Saul's day the army of Israel was encamped in another valley, the valley of Elah, and the battle line was drawn up against another coalition of enemies, the Philistines from the coast. Every day this 9 ft. 6 in. giant soldier named Goliath would come out and taunt them to fight and what did they do? They stood there! The Bible says they were dismayed and terrified. For 40 days this giant came out morning and evening and challenged them and they made no movement to attack! They were too paralyzed by fear to do anything! Sometimes that's us! In our life, in our marriage, at our work, in our ministry, we are scared by the challenge that faces us and we just sit where we are and don't do what we know God is telling us to do. Elijah, one of the greatest prophets who ever lived, gave up his ministry because he was afraid. After all his mighty miracles and his triumph over all the prophets of Baal where he called down fire from heaven, Satan attacked him with fear and it worked. When wicked Queen Jezebel sent him a note containing a death threat, He fled for his life. He ran away and got out of the will of God. He forsook God's plan; that's why 40 days later when God spoke to him down at Mt. Sinai, the first thing God said was, "What are you doing HERE, Elijah?!" "You're out of My will, out of My plan." Sometimes fear makes us run away, literally. We may run away from our marriage, run away from a relationship, run away from a job or from an opportunity that God is calling us to. That's what happens if Satan can get you to compare YOURSELF to the challenge before you. But that's the wrong comparison! God continued in v. 6, ...tomorrow at this time I will give over all of them slain to Israel. You shall hamstring their horses and burn their chariots with fire. You see:

4. our fear disappears when we compare what we fear to God God repeatedly told Joshua, "Don't be afraid, I will do it..." He said it in 1:9, 8:1, 10:8 and again here. "Don't compare yourself to the challenge of conquering the land, of taking the city, of facing the enemy, focus on ME!" You see:

a. God does not need numbers God had already told them this. He had told them: You shall chase your enemies, and they shall fall before you by the sword. Five of you shall chase a hundred, and a hundred of you shall chase ten thousand, and your enemies shall fall before you by the sword. - Lev. 26:7-8. Numbers mean nothing to God. "Gideon, so what if 22,000 of your men were afraid and went home! Your 300 are more than enough for me to use to defeat the Midianites who are thick as locusts and their camels like the sand on the seashore!" Brave Jonathan saw this when he and his armor bearer attacked a whole outpost; he said, ... nothing can hinder the LORD from saving by many or by few. As the old saying goes, ONE WITH GOD IS A MAJORITY! God is vastly bigger than any task He gives you, than any barrier you face, than any problem you have. And moreover:

b. God does not lack resources When everybody else stood by quivering, a teenage shepherd boy named David went up against that giant Goliath with only a rock and a sling and here's what he shouted: You come to me with a sword and with a spear and with a javelin, but I come to you in the name of the LORD of hosts, the God of the armies of Israel, whom you have defied. This day the LORD will deliver you into my hand, and I will strike you down and cut off your head. And I will give the dead bodies of the host of the Philistines this day to the birds of the air and to the wild beasts of the earth, that all the earth may know that there is a God in Israel, and that all this assembly may know that the LORD saves not with sword and spear. For the battle is the LORD's, and he will give you into our hand. - I Sam. 17:45-47. God doesn't need spears and shields and bows or horses and chariots to defeat the enemy. He even told Joshua not to keep the horses and chariots but to burn the chariots and disable the horses so Israel wouldn't get dependent on newly found weapons! It doesn't matter to God what you have on hand. He can make your little jar of oil and handful of flower feed you until the drought is over!

Fear comes from making the wrong comparison. Compare your problem to God and you will find Him vastly superior, in fact, supreme! And that focus is what will take away your fear. You can do anything He asks! You can face anything He brings your way! He is big enough to handle it! And that is demonstrated in:

III. The Victory That God Gave Israel (7-12) Joshua and the troops marched up the Jordan valley from Gilgal. Josephus says it was a five day march.

1. they thoroughly defeated the huge army (7-9) They ran away for miles to the north, some up along the coast toward Sidon, some to the north and then east toward Syria. But it was to no avail; the Israelites caught and killed them all. There would be no army left to mass against them again. Then:

2. they totally destroyed Hazor and took all the other major cities (10-14) Now it is easy to say all of that in a few sentences, however in reality:

3. it was a long campaign that gave them control of all Canaan (16-18, 23) The conquest lasted 7 years in total so it took years to get to all these cities and destroy them. But the end result was that the whole of the land from the farthest point south to the farthest point north was now under the military control of Israel. They didn't live in it all yet; it still remained to be occupied, but there was no military opposition left to them; the land was completely theirs. And even:

4. the very peoples they first feared were destroyed (21-22) In Num. 13:32-33 the original 12 spies talk about this race of huge people, the Anakim, the ancestors of Goliath, who lived in the hill country and how, "we seemed like grasshoppers in their sight!" Fear of them kept Israel from invading at their first opportunity, but now Joshua conquered and destroyed even them through the power of God. But what's important is:

5. the reason God gave Israel this complete victory On one hand verses (19-20) tell us that:

a. God justly punished the intolerable iniquity of the Canaanites He hardened their hearts to come against Israel so they would be destroyed instead of running away. He accomplished His purpose. But on the other hand:

b. God graciously rewarded the complete obedience of Israel (15) Joshua OBEYED every single thing God told him to do. He didn't let Satan use fear or unbelief or discouragement or anything else stop him from obeying God. And so, he accomplished God's purpose for his life.

Now let's to the New Testament and look at:

IV. The Weapon God Has Given Us To Repel Fear - Eph. 6:17 tells us as soldiers of Christ to ...take the helmet of salvation. The Roman soldier's helmet was especially important. It was in essence a metal shield that protected his head from stray arrows and from the blows of the enemy's sword or battle axe. The Scripture never speaks of the head as being the seat of your spirit, but rather the heart. So, when God is talking about protecting your head, He's talking about protecting your mind. And what I think He means is: Our mind is shielded by the helmet of the complete assurance of our salvation. And you and I have that same assurance! Look with me at what our Bible says:

1. we are SAFE in His hand - John 10:27-30 Our relationship with Jesus has placed us in God's very hand and nobody, not the devil himself, is strong enough to pry open God's hand and take us out of it! They can kill our bodies but after that there is no more they can do. We are safe! Further:

2. we are SHIELDED by His power - 1 Peter 1:3-6 From the moment we are born again, we are guarded, we are shielded by the very power of God all the way to the end, to the day we receive that glorious eternal inheritance that has our name on it and is waiting in heaven for us. God Himself guarantees we will get there and see it even though we have to go through many trials, many battles down here! And then listen to this:

3. we are SECURE in His love - Romans 8:31-39 There is not one thing in all creation big enough or strong enough to take me away from His love. His love for me is greater than anything in the whole universe, no matter what my circumstances tell me!

And John wrote that perfect love casts out fear. God loves me with that perfect love. There is absolutely no room for fear; I do not need to be afraid! So where do I end up? At verse 31! If God is for me, who can be against me? If I know that I belong to God, then when I have a problem or a difficulty or a trial. I just look at Him and how great He is and know that He can handle it and I cease being afraid and I am free to keep on doing what He says one step at a time. Listen to David's thinking: The LORD is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear? The LORD is the stronghold of my life; of whom shall I be afraid? When evildoers assail me to eat up my flesh, my adversaries and foes, it is they who stumble and fall. Though an army encamp against me, my heart shall not fear; though war arise against me, yet I will be confident. - Psalm 27:1-3. David's mind was shielded from fear because of his absolute assurance in his relationship with the Lord. A boy who lived in Holland when it was occupied by the Nazis during World War II wrote the following entry in his diary: "Last week three German officers stopped my dad in the hallway. They held him at gunpoint and forced him to open the steel door leading to the basement. One of them ordered Dad to show him the crawl space under the hallways. He said if he didn't tell him where the hidden weapons were, he would be shot. Dad usually is not a great hero. He's even afraid of the dentist. But this time he was not afraid at all. One of them cocked his Luger and held it against Dad's temple. Dad recited the Bible verse that was on his mind, 'And fear not them who kill the body, ...but rather fear Him who is able to destroy both body and soul in hell.' The Germans looked at each other, shrugged their shoulders, and then left. The steel heels of their boots made a clanging noise on the iron stairway." You can't intimidate and control people who are not afraid to die. Listen, whatever situation you face today, no matter how difficult and frightening it may seem, look at Jesus, look at His great love for you, look at His great power over all things and go forward to the victory He has planned.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

We Must Guard Against Division - Ch. 22

Though we have completed the story of the battles Joshua and Israel fought in conquering the Land of Canaan, we have not yet completed our study of the book. From our last study in Chapter 11 we are going to skip all the way to Chapter 22 where the narrative of the story picks up once more, however I do want to briefly outline for you the content of:

The Intervening Chapters:

1. the summary of the conquest - Ch. 12 It lists the 2 kings Israel conquered on the east side of Jordan and their land plus the 31 kings they defeated in the land of Canaan. There were many more small towns and villages to occupy but they now had military control of the whole land.

2. the dividing of the territory - Chs. 13-19 Moses had already given the tribes of Reuben, Gad and half the tribe of Manasseh the conquered land on the east side of Jordan. Joshua now divided the land of Canaan between the other 9 ½ tribes and designated the boundary lines. Then he designated:

3. the cities of refuge - Ch. 20 These were cities where a person who killed someone accidentally could flee for protection and get a fair trial, 6 of them, 3 on either side of Jordan, within easy reach of each part of the land. Then he designated:

4. the Levitical cities - Ch. 21 Israel actually has 13 tribes because Joseph's sons, Ephraim and Manasseh were each made a tribe. The tribe of Levi was set apart for the service of the Lord at the Tabernacle, but they needed places to live and 48 cities were given to them out of the allotment of the other tribes.

So now the victory was won, the land conquered and the territory divided. But the final three chapters of the book teach us important lessons about maintaining the victory in our spiritual lives. Let's consider first of all:

I. The Contented Situation At Which God's People Had Arrived - 21:43-45 They were gathered at the city of Shiloh and in a wonderful place spiritually.

1. God had fulfilled all His promises to them After 7 years of battle, they had no more enemies in sight and all the provision that they needed from the spoil of all those cities; the war was over and it was time to go home and focus on their families and farms and houses. It was a time of rest and peace and joy and the discovery of all that God had in store for them. It was particularly so for the soldiers from the tribes of Reuben, Gad and half of the tribe of Manasseh. Back in Num. 32:16-22 Moses had told them that they could have their inheritance over there on the east side of Jordan, but ONLY if they would send their men over with the army of Israel to conquer the land of Canaan. And they did it. They left their families in walled cities with some men to guard them and, The sons of Reuben and the sons of Gad and the half-tribe of Manasseh passed over armed before the people of Israel, as Moses had told them. - 4:12. And now:

2. the 2 ½ tribes had fulfilled their commitment to fight They stuck at it for 7 long years until the war was over without going home and:

3. they were now to return home to their inheritance across Jordan (1-4) Oh the joy of going home, now that the war was over! These guys hadn't seen their families in 7 years, can you imagine? On the internet I found a Life Magazine photo gallery of soldiers coming home from war and being greeted with wild hugs and tears by their loved ones. Some of you have experienced this personally and it was no different back then. You can just imagine all that these men were looking forward to as they broke ranks and headed back down to the Jordan and home.

This was a good day! This was a high point in the life of Israel! This was the day they had waited and prayed for so long. The goal was not to win the battles; it was to live in the new land flowing with milk and honey, to live free and worship in peace as God's people under their vines and fig trees, to grow old and watch their children and grandchildren come along and enjoy a better life than they had known. You know the kind of season in life that I'm talking about, when everything is going right and you're close to the Lord and there are no real problems in sight, a season when you're just full of joy and peace and the devil seems a million miles away. But he wasn't! Paul, having spent time talking about examples from the life of Israel in 1 Cor. 10, summarized his thoughts in verse 12 by saying, Therefore let anyone who thinks that he stands take heed lest he fall. And then comes that verse 13 about temptation coming upon us. These kinds of seasons are when we are naturally the least cautious, yet they are when Satan can sometimes do his most devious work and we need to exercise continual vigilance. No matter how peaceful things may look, the world we live in is still a war zone with Satan's own demonic "Al Qaida operatives" at work everywhere all around us, seeking the opportune moment to strike. This joyous going home day led Israel dangerously near to the brink of a civil war! This day of celebration nearly divided Israel right down the middle and pitted brother against brother. Chapter 22 is really a deep lesson about:

II. The Potential For Division That Exists Among God's People Divide and conquer is one of the oldest battle strategies known to man. Satan has used it against God's people ever since Cain and Abel and he sure has used it in the history of the church, hasn't he? In that same letter Paul wrote the Corinthians, ...in the first place, when you come together as a church, I hear that there are divisions among you. (11:18). They were divided in whose leadership they wanted to follow. Some said, "I follow Paul"; others said, "I follow Apollos" or other people. They were divided when they came to celebrate the Lord's supper and Paul warned them sternly about it. From that day to this division has plagued the church of Christ. It plagues the church today! The church that our team helped in Gloucester MA is suffering because of a division where a group left with antagonism some years ago and started their own church and only recently is there beginning to be real reconciliation between the two. Imagine the tremendous negative effect on the witness of that body before a watching community! The church I came to serve here in Glenside in 1979 nearly went under through an awful division just before that time. There was tremendous pain and hurt in the body; friends turned against friends, harsh words were said that were remembered for years! We seem so easily to turn a deaf ear to the plea of our Savior's heart the night before He died, [I pray] for those who will believe in me ...that they may all be one, just as you, Father, are in me, and I in you, that they also may be in us, so that the world may believe that you have sent me. - Jn. 17:20-21. Dividedness is not the heart of our Savior, whether it's in the church or in a marriage or in personal relationships, but the potential for it is constantly among us, so now let's turn to the story and look at some of the factors Satan may try to use to divide us. First of all:

1. physical separation can become a source of division (7) The Jordan River was a big dividing line geographically. Canaan was the promised land; the land on the east was a gift of God but not THE land. God's house would be in Canaan; it would be very easy for the tribes IN the land to feel superior to the tribes across the river or the others inferior; even the tribe of Manasseh itself could be torn in two, with relatives living on either side. Absence, being apart from each other, not seeing each other can take our hearts away from each other if we're not careful! Certainly that's true in marriage! And it's true in the church also; that's why the writer of Hebrews warned us strongly not to forsake the assembling of ourselves together! Then notice in verse (3) that:

2. time can be a factor in creating division The warriors in those 2 ½ tribes had been away from home 7 years; they had not seen their families in 7 years. They had fought side by side as equals with the rest, but they had made a sacrifice the others did not have to make to the same degree. Fortunately, they did not let that growing ache of time away cause them to desert the army and go home but rather remained faithful. When something drags on and on and we grow weary of it, it is then that Satan loves to tempt us to throw in the towel and give up and walk away from our brothers. Of course:

3. growing lax in spiritual things will certainly create division (5) Joshua warned them not to let their spiritual fire go out, to stay close to the Lord. If you begin to lose your zeal for the worship of the Lord and begin to let other idolatrous things take His place in your life, it will certainly drive a wedge between you and those for whom Christ is everything. Ramesh, one of the evangelists who pastors two small village groups of believers with Hebron Believers Assemblies in India, has a wife who left him because he felt called of God to be in ministry and she did not want him to be in it. I think she is actually a believer but her heart did not love the things of God like his did and she left months ago while he still plods forward alone. (Marriage is traditionally rather loosely held among the Yenadi.) Pray for her heart and for this marriage, but it is true in any relationship: the closer you are to Christ, the closer you will be to one another. Then:

4. jealousy over material things can create division (6, 7b-8) The homeward bound warriors were laden with spoils to take back for themselves and their families and Joshua solemnly warned them to divide the spoil with their brothers who stayed behind to guard their families. Imagine what would have happened if they had refused! There is nothing that can divide people, even Christians, like money! Those that have nothing so easily resent their brothers whom God has blessed with things and those who've been blessed are so easily tempted to hoard what they've been given and not share it. Generosity goes a long way toward preventing division! Now here's a biggie:

5. lack of communication always creates division (9-10) They had been at Shiloh, but on their way home before they crossed the Jordan, the departing soldiers stopped and built a huge altar there by the River. We don't actually know what it looked like or exactly where it was but it was very large and obviously intended to last through time. And we later find out that they did it for a very good reason; the only problem is they didn't tell anybody! They kept the reason to themselves, went on home, and that left others to draw their own conclusions, which they did, only they drew the opposite conclusion. A struggling mother gives her child up for adoption out of sincere love because she can't care for her. But nobody tells the child who grows up thinking her mother gave her up because she didn't love her! One act; two interpretations. Unless we communicate, unless we share our hearts with others, our actions are always prone to be misinterpreted and misunderstood. And the reverse side of that coin is that:

6. drawing conclusions without information always divides (11-12) You see, God's Law said clearly that Israel was only to have ONE altar for sacrifice and that was the altar at the Tabernacle. The Israelites jumped to a conclusion, that the 2 ½ tribes intended to use this altar as their place of sacrifice because they were too far away from the Tabernacle. It seemed to them like an act of idolatry, of disobedience to God and rebellion against His command! So, they all gathered ready to make war based on a false assumption. It seems to me that we are always ready to make war with somebody based on false assumptions! We're always ready to assume the worst instead of the best about someone. We're always ready to repeat what we think to others, even if we have no valid information to base it on. Now praise the Lord, there was NOT a civil war that day! And the reason is because the children of Israel decided to use a very wise process that we would do very well to imitate. There is a:

III. The Process Which Prevents Division Among God's People Jesus talked about it in Mt. 18:15-17 and again in 5:23-24. Jesus' command to us is to actively seek reconciliation with the other person rather than to allow ourselves to be divided from them. And His first word in both passages is "Go!"

1. we must approach the person rather than ignore the problem That's what the Israelites did in (12); they chose to do something rather than ignore it and hope it would go away. They may have been thinking wrong, but at least they acted! So many times we are content just to let things go and let our wrong assumptions cut us off from fellowship rather than counting the relationship worth restoring. Then look what they did when they began to act in (13-14). Wasn't that wise? They sent a commission to investigate the matter, to find out what was going on and to plead with the others to change their minds! Listen:

2. we must investigate with an open mind before reacting We must go to the person and tell them how we feel and what we think because of what they have done, before we make war, before we react, before we do something we will regret later when we find out the truth! We must seek to understand the truth of the matter completely and make sure that we are reacting based on truth and not assumptions. Not only that, but:

3. we must speak openly about the problem and how we see it (15-18) "Here's what we think you did and here's how we feel about it and how we think it will affect us!" You can't say, "You know what you did!" and make the person guess at the nature of their offense and simply yell at them. That's not going and showing them their fault. We have to explain clearly in a way they can understand why we are upset, what hurt us, and why we think they did it! Furthermore:

4. we must be willing to offer a solution that shows we care (19-20) The Israelites said, "Look, if you're feeling cut off from God by being over here, come on over and we'll divide everything we have with you!" They were willing to make a sacrifice to keep the relationship! We can't come to a person simply expecting them to grovel and apologize when we point out their fault. We have to come saying, "I want a relationship with you; I don't want this to divide us. What can I do to help you so that together we can change the way things are and be one!" And, of course, for the process to work:

5. we must be willing to listen, to understand, to believe the other and even to change our minds (21-29) The Israelites found out they had it all wrong! They found out the Reubenites and Gadites weren't trying to rebel against God; they were afraid that their children would be driven away from worshipping God by Israel's children! They were not trying to divide; they were trying to prevent being divided! They built a monument to stand as a witness to all generations that they worshipped the same God as the Israelites on the other side! It was an expression of their unity in the faith! Whew! Sometimes when you take the time to investigate and be honest, you find out you were dead wrong; in fact, YOU were wrong rather than them and have to apologize! But that will never happen unless you're willing to actually listen to what the other tells you and to believe what they're telling you. If you go with your mind made up and are unwilling to change, reconciliation will never happen. And that leads to the last point:

6. we must be willing to fully reconcile, releasing all hard feelings (30-34) Once there was true understanding, both sides praised God and dropped the matter, once and for all. There was genuine forgiveness. The 2 ½ didn't blame the 9 ½ for jumping to conclusions and the 9 ½ didn't harp on, "You should have told us what you were doing!" They let it go. They released it totally. They went on as brothers serving the Lord side by side, put the incident completely behind them and that altar stood there for generations as a monument that bound them together, an imposing silent witness that said to both sides, "the Lord is our God".

George Whitefield and John Wesley were the brightest stars in a widespread movement where multiplied thousands came to Christ in the mid-1700's. They were in school together and both were converted near the same time and served together in ministry. Whitefield became a renowned preacher, a "Billy Graham" who preached to crowds of thousands both in England and America. He persuaded John Wesley to preach in the fields to the common people and out of that began the Methodist awakening that swept England and later, America. However, as time went on, George Whitefield and John Wesley diverged on the theology of grace. In 1740 John Wesley published a sermon "Free Grace," saying that Christ's atonement was universal, that He died for ALL, rejecting the concept of divine election. But Whitefield was a Calvinist. He once wrote, "God, himself, I find, teaches my friends the doctrine of election. If I mistake not, my dear and honored Mr.

Wesley will hereafter be convinced of it also." Whitefield thought Wesley's preaching implied universal redemption whereas Wesley thought Whitefield's preaching implied Christians need not take moral responsibility. They parted ways and ministries and out of conscience wrote treatises against each other's works, but managed to the end, to maintain a respect for each other in that their hearts were the same in terms of unity in Jesus Christ. In 1740 Wesley wrote, for a time you are suffered to be of one opinion, and I of another. But when his time is come, God will do what man cannot, namely, make us both of one mind. Then persecution will flame out, and it will be seen whether we count our lives dear unto ourselves, so that we may finish our course with joy. I am, my dearest brother, Ever yours. Whitefield responded, God only knows what unspeakable sorrow of heart I have felt on your account since I left England last. Whether it be my infirmity or not, I frankly confess, that Jonah could not go with more reluctance against Nineveh, than I now take pen in hand to write against you. Was nature to speak, I had rather die than do it; and yet if I am faithful to God, and to my own and others' souls, I must not stand neutral any longer. I am very apprehensive that our common adversaries will rejoice to see us differing among ourselves. The two men never did agree on divine election throughout their long ministries. Whitefield died in 1770 and John Wesley preached a memorial sermon honoring Whitefield's life and ministry. His text was Num. 23:10, "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his!" He said, ...the name of GEORGE WHITEFIELD will long be remembered with esteem and veneration. What an example of the heart that Jesus wants in us, never truly dividing despite our differences, never holding things against one another, faithful together in serving the Lord until the end! Pray that the Spirit of God may give each of us such an attitude that we may constantly guard against the spirit of division.

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

We Must Guard Against Forgetting - Ch. 23

It is hard to believe that today 10 years have passed since the awful tragedy that happened to us in America on Sept. 11, 2001. It is a day on which we have chosen to consciously and deliberately remember our past. You see, forgetting is easy; remembering is tough. Forgetting comes naturally to us; it happens without any effort on our part; it happens without us thinking about it or even noticing it many times. But remembering requires conscious effort! Remembering is something that we must choose to do deliberately, something that we must choose to do repeatedly. And God's timing is so awesome because the day recorded in Chapter 23 of Joshua was for Israel a day much like today and the lesson that Joshua teaches the leaders of Israel in this chapter is the one we are trying to put into practice ourselves this very day: we must guard against forgetting! Look with me at vs. (1-2). On this day Joshua called together all the various leaders of Israel to one place, representing the whole nation, because he wanted to talk to them seriously about this very thing. But before we look at what Joshua actually said, let's pause to consider the situation in which Israel found themselves that day and think together about:

I. The Factors That Continually Work Against Our Memory First of all, you should know that between the end of chapter 22 and the beginning of chapter 23 there is a time gap. Caleb and Joshua, two of the twelve that Moses chose to spy out the land, were the only two men over the age of 20 that God allowed to survive Israel's wilderness journey. When Caleb was given his inheritance in 14:10 at the end of the conquest, he says, ...I am this day 85 years old. If we assume that Joshua was roughly the same age as Caleb and we know that Joshua died at 110 in the next chapter and these words were spoken in perhaps the last year of his life, then "a long time afterward" means probably between 20 and 25 years (you might want to make a note of that in your Bible). And there is the first reason Joshua called this meeting:

1. the passing of time tends to dull memory Ten years ago at this time we were in the church office when we heard the news that a plane had flown into one of the World Trade Center buildings. We got hold of a little TV and put it on the counter and watched in horror as the news tried to report what was going on. Then a plane flew into the second tower and by the time they collapsed someone had a camera on it and we saw the towers fall. And then came the news of the Pentagon and of Flight 93 crashing. That whole day was consumed with wondering what was going on, who had attacked us and how many had died that day. It was vivid, it was shocking, it felt like it was life-changing. Ten years later, those feelings are gone for most of us and 9/11 seems more like a piece of history, like an event in our past to be recited and talked about. Well, it was now twice that long since Israel's war of conquest. The younger men who had fought in that war now had grandchildren; the older ones were nearing the end of their lives. The tremendous events of that season in their lives were fading slowly. Plus:

2. the current difference in our circumstances tends to dull memory Back then they were soldiers in an army living in a war, concerned about their very lives every single day. But for 20+ years they had lived civilian lives. There had not been a single battle anywhere and no enemy was on the horizon. Their lives were peaceful and enjoyable. They cultivated and harvested their crops; they sheared their sheep and tended their cattle. They practiced their trades and they offered the yearly sacrifices to God. There was nothing to remind them of what they had lived through; life was different now. The memory of that seven year war was gradually buried deeper and deeper in the memory vaults of their minds, much the way that the memory of the Vietnam War has been buried in most of ours. And, obviously:

3. the aging process tends to dull memory, does it not? The older you get, the harder it is to remember things, even important things, the more you have to deliberately do to make SURE that you remember them. You should see the notes I write myself for every little thing! If LuAnn calls and says, "Bring home some milk." and I don't write a note and paste it on my computer bag, I promise you no milk will arrive! Well, in marked contrast to that, here stands Joshua at the age of nearly 110 to remind Israel and us about:

II. The Important Things That We May Allow Ourselves To Forget Verse (3):

1. we may forget how powerfully God acted for us Twenty years ago they had seen the Jordan River at flood stage literally dry up for them and let them pass! They had seen the impenetrable three-tiered walls of Jericho fall down at their shout so they could take the city! They had seen huge hailstones rain down from heaven upon their fleeing enemies while they stood untouched and they had seen the very sun stand still in the sky for the space of a whole day so they could vanquish them completely! They had literally seen God fight for them! In seven years of battles in hand-to-hand combat they hadn't lost a man that we know of, except the 36 who died at Ai as a result of Achan's sin. After 20 years these precious things were now becoming dim memories. I cannot begin to tell you how many powerful things God has done in my life, how many times He has been there in tough moments when I cried out to Him, how many times He has answered my prayers in specific, even miraculous ways, that I never expected. I couldn't begin to count them, but the sad thing is that many of them I can hardly remember anymore! The place that we've arrived at now in life is a place we've gotten to through many battles where the Lord fought for us and it is important that we never forget that. God has given us those powerful experiences of Himself for a reason; they are an incredible gift that we have to be careful to preserve! Then as memory fades:

2. we may take for granted the blessings God has richly provided us (4) Joshua says, "Look at all God gave you! Look at all the land! Look at the houses you live in and the fields and the vineyards you cultivate! All of this belonged to your enemies! You were homeless shepherds living in tents and God literally gave you everything you enjoy this day as your inheritance from Him!" Moses warned Israel about taking their blessings for granted years before, You may say to yourself, "My power and the strength of my hands have produced this wealth for me." But remember the LORD your God, for it is he who gives you the ability to produce wealth.... - Deut. 8:17-18. I can't count how many times God has provided for us, how many times money has come for school, for trips, for cars, even for things we just wanted! But how easily we can forget that it was God and not us that got us here to this good place in life where we are! And what's worse:

3. we may lose sight of the mission that God has given us (4-5) Joshua was saying that, "In 20 years you still haven't finished the job God gave you! You took the key cities of the land and occupied them, but you still have not driven out the Canaanites from all the villages and all the corners and all the boundaries of the land! You've grown content to let them live there; you've grown used to conflict-free life and have avoided taking the whole land which God is planning to give you just as surely as He gave you those initial victories!" They forgot what they were about; their lives became about them instead of about accomplishing the assignment God had given them. How like us! Jesus gave us a commission to take the Good News of salvation to every person on the planet, to every tribe, language, people and nation. But we forget what we're here for, what our lives are really about and we live for us, thinking God exists to meet our needs and give us a nice life! How easily the Church has forgotten its purpose over the years; how easily WE forget it personally! Now here is:

III. The Effect That Forgetting These Things Could Have On Us if we let it happen. First of all:

1. we will be tempted to turn aside from God's commands (6) Joshua knew that if they kept on forgetting what God had done and taking their blessings for granted and not pursuing their purpose that the next step would be to gradually stop following the commands that God had given, to turn aside from them to the things that our flesh incites us to do. If we forget Whose we are, when our neighbor's wife appeals to us like Bathsheba did to David, we will be tempted to engage in immorality like he did rather than to run like Joseph did from Potiphar's wife because he could not do such a thing and sin against the Lord his God! If we forget, we will be tempted to keep back part of the money for ourselves and lie about it like Ananias and Sapphira did. If we forget how much we have been forgiven and the great debt Jesus paid to save us, we will be tempted to hold a grudge like the unmerciful servant in Mt. 18 who would not forgive someone else who merely owed him a little bit. Staying true to God's commands requires staying spiritually strong and that requires remembering. Secondly, if we forget:

2. we will be tempted to give allegiance to the idols that others serve (7-8) When you actually see an idol, a stone statue or a painted figurine like we did in India, you think, "Who would ever worship that?" Especially when you've heard the very voice of God speaking out of a cloud from the midst of a fire that burned the entire top of a mountain! Yet before they crossed into Canaan, Israel did just that in Moab. The Moabite strategy was simple, to have the young women invite the young men of Israel to their feasts before their idols and show them a good time and before long they were doing all that the Moabites did and bowing down and worshipping the gods of Moab. When we forget who we are and begin to not care about God's commands, it is not long before we begin to adopt the practices and the morals and the behaviors of the people around us; we begin to live like they live and live for what they live for. New idols rear their heads in our lives and we bow down to them, idols like money and pleasure and self, meeting our own needs. And certainly, if we forget:

3. we will be tempted to allow our love for God to diminish (9-11) When we forget what He's done in our lives, we tend to stop loving Him! When Jesus wrote a personal letter to the church at Ephesus, in Rev. 2:4-5 He said this: Yet I hold this against you: You have forsaken your first love. Remember the height from which you have fallen! Repent and do the things you did at first.... The believers there were busy; they were still doing lots of good things, but they had let their passionate adoration of Jesus wane and die. Oh, what zeal you and I had when we were first saved, when we first understood the great thing that Jesus had done for us in saving us. Oh, how we loved Him and wanted to talk to Him and wanted to obey Him! Oh, how passionate we were when He healed our sickness or saved our lives or showed Himself so powerful and strong in our lives! But oh, how easily we let that love that drives our lives fade into the empty shell of going through the motions of good things. So, what's the remedy? How do we keep this from happening? Jesus says what Joshua was saying, REMEMBER! Memory is the key to passionate love, the key to unwavering commitment, the key to complete obedience. And finally, here is:

IV. The Warning That God Gives Us Through Joshua (12-13) His point to Israel was to remember their purpose and get busy and pursue their charge to completely drive out the inhabitants of the land, rather than dallying and beginning to ally themselves with the Canaanites. If they didn't, their commitment to the Lord would wane and they would suffer dire consequences. Likewise, if we choose NOT to remember and let our passion die, then we will suffer:

1. the awful consequences of allying ourselves with nonbelievers as well. Paul lived in a different age but in the midst of a pagan society that was filled with unbelieving idolaters. Look with me at what He said in 2 Cor. 6:14-7:1. Now what does that mean? Well, we don't have time to take it apart this morning, but it's something like this: "You are God's holy people and your love and worship belong to Him alone. But you live in a world full of people who worship ungodly things and live in ungodly ways. Unlike the Israelites, you can't physically be separated from them, but God's goal is still the same. You can't join yourself to them and adopt their values and follow their practices and live the way they do! You must live among them, live in a pure and holy fashion, because God dwells in you and He wants to win them to Christ the way He won YOU to Christ! So, you must be different! You must be the people of God!" But if we forget who we are and we plunge together with them into the same flood of debauchery (as Peter put it), Joshua warned that three very serious things would happen. The first in verse 13 is:

a. desertion - Not that God will throw us away and stop caring about us, but God will no longer fight our battles for us. If we're engaged in doing His will, He is willing to underwrite the full ride. He is committed to provide and strengthen and sustain and see us through. But when we strike out on our own against His will, the whole tab is on us. God says, "OK, let's show you how well you do without Me so you can see how much you need Me!" And in that process will come:

b. discipline - The very things we run after in verse 13 become whips to chasten us and thorns to prick our stubborn will. In other words, not doing things God's way is ALWAYS painful; the way of the transgressor is HARD! And God will use the pain of circumstances to draw us back, to drive us back to Himself, if we are willing. But if we aren't, it may actually lead to:

c. death - Joshua said Israel would perish from the very land God had given them. What a waste of the life they had been so graciously given. The Apostle John wrote, there IS a sin that leads to death [1 Jn. 5:17] and says it can be committed by one who is a brother, i.e., a believer. God is not above actually taking his children off this planet because their lives have fallen so low and they have so stubbornly persisted in their ways that He maintains His own honor by allowing them to physically perish as a result. What a waste of the precious gift of life He has given us. But the saddest thing is:

2. the certainty of these disastrous consequences (14-16) In other words, "You've personally experienced the fact that God ALWAYS keeps His promises. Not one of all the good promises has failed; He keeps every one! And that means that just as certainly He will keep the promises of discipline that He has made!" There is no "maybe" about this. There is no, "well, He might choose to discipline you, but He might not..." For the Lord disciplines the one he loves, and chastises EVERY son whom he receives. - Heb. 12:6. You can count on it. So there in verse (14) is:

V. The Point of the whole chapter, of the whole meeting, of the whole speech Joshua gave on that occasion: You KNOW, So REMEMBER! Guard yourself against forgetting what Christ has done for you and who you are in Him! Heed Joshua's words in verse 11, Be very careful to love the Lord your God! The Hebrew says take exceeding care to guard yourselves. Make sure you keep loving Him! And do you know what the best way to do that is? It's simple. Make sure that each day you're having a fresh experience of being with God so that there is no real lull, no real spiritual down time. Meet with God every day and listen deeply as you read His Word and spend time in prayer, both talking and listening. Ask Jesus to make your time with Him each day living and powerful and beseech Him to give you the sensitivity to know when you are becoming forgetful. If you don't remember daily, in time you won't remember. But it also doesn't hurt every once in a while, on days like today to simply stop and look back over your life, thanking God for what He's done. Don't think you won't forget! On August 7, 1974 a young Frenchman, Philippe Petit, committed the artistic crime of the century. In an elaborate plan, he and two teams of accomplices snuck into the two completed, but not yet occupied, buildings of the World Trade Center and strung a cable across the 200 foot span between the towers. At 7:15 AM he stepped out on that highwire 1368 ft. in the air with no net underneath and for 45 minutes entertained a growing crowd by crossing eight times and in the process sitting, lying down, jumping and even running and dancing on the wire. Everybody was spellbound watching it. You can see pictures of it on the internet [Do a Google image search for "Philippe Petit world trade center"] and even video of the original news clip on YouTube [<http://youtu.be/IAVj2IVC9ko>]. Of course, he was arrested afterward, but was immediately forgiven and it became a world-renowned feat, one that can never be repeated. However, sometime later he joined the circus as the headline act in the Ringling Brothers' original Greatest Show on Earth. It was there that Philippe had the first and only fall of his long career. He fell during a practice walk in St. Petersburg from 45 feet up, broke several ribs and suffered internal injuries. As he lay there, he is reported to have said, "I can't believe it! I can't believe it! I never fall!" In 2008 a documentary was made about his story and he insisted to a Newsweek reporter, "It was practice. And practice is a very different field. Wire-walking in performance is one thing - I never fell, of course. If I had, I wouldn't be here talking about it." Listen, thinking it will never happen to you, is the first step in assuring that it will, because your guard is down. Thinking you will never forget what God has done and who you are in Him and what your life is all about, that your passion for Him will never wane, is a huge mistake. The Bible says the exact opposite: guard yourself extremely carefully; forgetting can happen to you!

The War We Live In: The Book Of Joshua

We Must Guard Against Idolatry - Ch. 24

Today we come to several "ends", the end of the Book of Joshua, the end of our series of studies through the Book and the end of Joshua's life. Chapter 24 is the record of the very last thing Joshua did (1). This time he gathered not only the leaders of Israel, but the entire nation together at Shechem in the middle of the land. You remember this place! It is the very place where Israel had gone in Ch. 8, immediately after defeating Jericho and Ai when they came into the land 20+ years earlier. Shechem is the town located between the two mountains, Ebal and Gerizim, the very place where the all the tribes of Israel had stood to renew their covenant with God by standing on both sides of this natural amphitheater and saying "Amen" and agreeing to the promises and blessings of the Law. And now, just before his death as an old man, Joshua calls them all back here again. It seems like he may even have had the tabernacle moved here for this special occasion (it's mentioned in verse 26). Before he died, Joshua wanted to call God's people one last time to surrender themselves fully to God and give them a final warning. His message to them and to us? We must guard ourselves against idolatry! If we are to continue to live in the place of blessing and service that God intends for us, we must guard ourselves against division as we saw in chapter 22, we must guard ourselves against forgetting as we learned last week in chapter 23, and now we learn that we must guard ourselves against idolatry. Joshua began that day by reminding all Israel, and us by extension of:

I. What God Has Done For His People (2-4) He speaks on God's behalf, in the first person, as though through him God Himself is telling us what He has done. First of all:

1. He has drawn us to conversion Here we learn something we read nowhere else in Scripture. Abraham's ancestors had fallen away from the truth and were already worshipping false gods. Abraham was raised to adulthood in a pagan idolatrous home in a major urban center called Ur, somewhere in northern Iraq and was in all probability an idolater himself, when God appeared to him in some sort of vision and spoke with an audible voice, commanding him to leave his city and family and follow Him a thousand miles to a new land and become a shepherd living in tents. God drew Abraham to give up idols and worship only Him; it wasn't his doing! We don't often think about it, but those of us who are white Europeans, our ancestors were pagan forest-dwellers worshipping trees and spirits and nature gods until God sent the Gospel to Europe and drew people to worship Him! Those of us who are black, our ancestors did the same thing in Africa, and those who are Asian, ours worshipped their false gods there. If God had not done something, ALL of us would be without hope and without God in the world; Jesus said, No one can come to me unless the Father who sent me draws him... - John 6:44. I don't know about you, but I wasn't raised in a Christian home and if God hadn't stepped into my life in the form of a Christian friend in seventh grade to draw me to Himself, I would be out there with the rest of the world giving my life to the same gods the rest of our culture follows! It wasn't my idea; it was His! God gave us the immense privilege of the knowledge of Himself which so many in the world don't yet have! Then Joshua goes on speaking for God (5-7):

2. He has provided our redemption The people of Israel were slaves, chained to a living death in the land of Egypt, the mightiest power on earth, when God broke in to rescue them. With a mighty hand and an outstretched arm, He destroyed the whole land of Egypt, leaving it completely devastated, and when the chariots of Egypt tried to go after his people and take vengeance, He opened the waters of the Red Sea and drowned every last one. He provided a great salvation for His people. Likewise, through the cross we who were dead in our trespasses and sins, cut off altogether from God, have been made alive together with Christ! We have been redeemed at a great cost; we have crossed over from death to life; we have been translated out of the kingdom of darkness and into the Kingdom of the Son He loves, and it is all His doing, not ours! To use the words of Hebrews, it is so great a salvation that no human being can escape if they don't receive it! Then God continues through Joshua (8-10):

3. He has given us protection When they drew near to enter Canaan from the east, Sihon, king of the Amorites, came out and attacked them and God defeated his army. Then Og, the king of Bashan, attacked them and God defeated his army. And when Balak, the king of Moab, tried to have Israel cursed, God only let Balaam bless them. Time after time God protected His people, just as He has protected us all through our lives to this day! How many of us would not be here this morning if God had not intervened somewhere in our lives to protect us from a serious illness or a fire or a flood or an accident or even an enemy bullet, from any one of a thousand things which could have claimed our lives, but for His grace. I dare say that many of us could testify directly to that and I'm confident that ALL of us have been protected on many occasions we're not even aware of. But Joshua's not done (11-12):

4. He empowered us to do all His will Now Joshua called back to mind all the events of the great war of conquest, the crossing of the Jordan, the falling of the walls of Jericho, the great battles at Ai and Gibeon and all the cities of the south and then Hazor and the northern campaign, the conquest of seven nations, of peoples mightier and stronger than they were. God says, "You didn't do this with your weapons! I did this! I sent my hornets of the fear and dread of you [compare Ex. 23:27-28] ahead to terrorize and weaken their armies before you even attacked, and when you did, I gave them into your hands. All that you have accomplished in your lives to this day, I did it!" How true that is for us as well! In all your years of service to Him, in all that you have done as a believer, all that you have accomplished in His work, all that you have endured for His sake, the life of Jesus was being revealed in your mortal body, as Paul said. It was not you! And finally, Joshua said (13):

5. He has given us abundant provision That was so literally true for Israel. For 20 years they had been living in houses they did not build, in cities they did not create, eating fruit from vineyards and trees they did not plant. God literally handed it all to them as they drove out their enemies. Yet Paul reminded the Corinthians, What do you have that you did not receive? [1 Cor. 4:7]. Of all the good things we enjoy, family, friends, church family, material possessions, job, the very air we breathe, you name it, everything we have is a gift of God!

Joshua's monologue is like the André Crouch song we used to sing, How can I say thanks for the things You have done for me? Things so undeserved yet you gave to prove your love for me. The voices of a million angels could not express my gratitude. All that I am, and ever hope to be, I owe it all to thee. To God be the glory, to God be the glory, to God be the glory for the things he has done! Hallelujah! But all of this was building to a punchline in verse (14). Over these 20 years, in spite of ALL that God had done, Joshua had observed:

II. The Continuing Presence Of Idolatry Among God's People and he called this special meeting of the whole nation to challenge it! The insidious creeping presence of idolatry has always been a problem for God's people. You hear in Genesis about:

1. the household idols of the patriarchs Jacob went to Syria and married Rachel. Her father Laban and his family were believers, but they had teraphim, little household figurines which in that culture often signified the right of property ownership and sometimes were consulted about the future. If you remember, when Rachel and Jacob left Haran, Rachel stole her father's household idols (Gen. 31:19) and hid them. Later on in 35:2-4 God called Jacob to go up to Bethel and he commanded his whole family to get rid of the teraphim they had and they buried their idols under the oak or the terebinth tree near Shechem. It could have been the very tree by which Israel was standing this day hundreds of years later (verse 26). These are our ancestors in the faith and they were committed worshippers of the true God, but somehow they still made room in their homes and lives for the other little gods followed by their culture. In his speech to the Sanhedrin, Stephen made reference to:

2. the downward-spiraling idolatry of Israel - Acts 7:41-43 ...they made a calf in those days, and offered a sacrifice to the idol and were rejoicing in the works of their hands. But God turned away and gave them over to worship the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the prophets: "Did you bring to me slain beasts and sacrifices, during the forty years in the wilderness, O house of Israel? You took up the tent of Moloch and the star of your god Rephan, the images that you made to worship; and I will send you into exile beyond Babylon." The first thing Israel did at Mt. Sinai while Moses was up receiving the law was to break the second commandment and make a golden calf idol to represent God, because that's what they were used to back in Egypt! And here God says, "I know that during those 40 years in the wilderness you secretly had other gods. You had little images of Moloch, the bull god, hidden away in your tents and little stars because you secretly worshipped the planet Saturn, even while you were following Me." Here, after the conquest of the land, Joshua tells Israel to throw away the gods they still had among them, just like Jacob did centuries earlier on that very spot! Israel's history is filled the worship of other gods, many times openly, but often in secret, even when they were following God. Saul's household had teraphim in it and her daughter Michal who married David had a person-sized one in the house that she put in their bed and pretended it was him to save his life. Wise Solomon tolerated the idolatry of his many wives and foolishly joined them in it in his later years. Of course, Israel's worship of other gods eventually became so open, pervasive and evil that God sent them into captivity to Babylon to break them of it, but lest we feel too superior, the New Testament makes reference to:

3. the virtual idolatry which can creep into the church The idols we give allegiance to while we claim to follow Jesus are not generally the physical kind our Hindu friends worship. Paul said twice [Eph. 5:5, Col. 3:5] that greed is idolatry. The love of money is not only the root of every kind of evil; it is serving a false god! Materialism, seeking after fame, pursuing our own pleasure or the American dream, are all forms of idolatry. In some men's lives a sport or a hobby claims their allegiance while some women may be obsessed with beauty and appearance. Whatever you choose to serve with your life is truly your god. Does that make sense? Look with me at Mat. 6:24...or sex or golf or the sports channel or shopping or anything else! You can't serve two masters; you will ALWAYS choose one; you'll always end up loving one over the other; you will always end up being devoted to one rather than the other. That's why Joshua was pointing out to Israel:

III. The Choice God's People Have To Make Now read (14-15). Now you know what he is saying. "Make the choice. Determine to serve God ALONE. Throw away your idols! Make up your mind. You've seen all that the true God has done in your lives; if you want to go back and serve the worthless gods your fathers served or the powerless gods you used to serve back in Egypt or the impotent gods of the nations you just conquered, go ahead! Waste your life if you want! But don't sit on the fence and say, 'I follow the Lord God' and expect that He is going to tolerate you using your life for the other things that have crept in!" The Lord is a jealous God; He will not see His glory go to another; He will not let the praise of His people which belongs to Him be given to idols!

1. we must choose as Joshua did, as Israel did on this day, to serve HIM ALONE! That's what we are called to and: a. we must be really SURE because He will hold us to it! (16-22) When they said, "Of course, we want to serve the Lord!", Joshua said, "Are you sure? Are you double-dog dead-strait sure? Because if you tell Him that, God is going to hold you to it!" It's like being married. God is not going to tolerate you going out with other people when you feel like it once in a while. His discipline will fall! It has to be Him and Him alone. Whatever He asks, whatever He wants, our answer must be "Yes, Lord!" And if it is:

b. we must throw away the idols that we have retained (23-24) Throw the teraphim away! Ask yourself: What is it that I choose over and above God in my life? Is it my job? Is it my financial security? Is it a hobby I have? Is it pleasure? Is it a person, a man or a girlfriend or even a spouse? Is it perhaps a ministry that I have developed on my own and come to take much pride in? What is the thing on which I'm spending most of my time, my thoughts, my money? What is the thing which always wins when I have a choice to make between it and something else? Whatever it is, that's my idol. That's what has begun to take God's place in my life. And it has to go. It has to be removed from its place of idolatry and put back into whatever normal place it should occupy in my life, if any. Moreover, it can't be mechanical. Look at (23b):

c. we must give our very hearts to the Lord The sacrifice that God truly desires is not some outward offering but a broken and a contrite heart, one that truly loves Him above all else. He doesn't want you to just follow His rules! He doesn't just want you to DO what He says even though you don't want to. He wants you to come to Him and say "OK Lord, here's my heart, here's my deepest affections, here's the center of my life, now fill it with Yourself"! That's what Joshua called Israel to do that day, and that's what they did (25-27):

2. Israel made a covenant with God and they sealed it in writing and with a monument, a huge stone that they set up next to the tree where the idols were buried so they would always remember. We use the phrase, "drive a stake"; do something that will mark this as the time and the place here and now where you decide once and for all that you are going to give God His proper place in your life!

That's what Joshua had done with his whole life. As the book closes you can see:

IV. The Tremendous Impact Of Joshua's Life And Leadership (28-30) Pious Jews still go to Joshua's tomb today to honor him and pray to God for their nation, even though Arabs have covered the tomb with graffiti. And then there is a note in vs. (32). You see, Joshua:

1. he died at 110 having passed the faith to a new generation The faith that came into Egypt with Joseph nearly died out but was revived by Moses who handed it off to Joshua and he passed it to the whole new generation who would live in the land as God had promised. Joshua was the one to bury Joseph's bones in Canaan as he had asked by faith. Joseph's tomb is also still honored today. My point is that by his undying, unwavering, wholehearted, no-idols, commitment to God, Joshua:

2. he kept a whole nation faithful to God during his life and beyond (31) Eleazar, Aaron's son, the High Priest was his friend and coworker and outlived him by a little bit, verse (33) His tomb also is still visited 3,000 years later. The contribution made by these men of God has not been forgotten to this day.

If you want your life to impact your generation like that, if you want your faith to be embraced by those around you as well as those who come after you, your life has got to be like Joshua's, single minded, like Paul, determined to know nothing except Jesus Christ and Him crucified. Nothing else can be allowed to take His place, no teraphim. William Booth was born in 1829 in relative poverty in a suburb of Nottingham, England. His parents were not religious and his father died when William was just 14. By that time, William was helping to earn the family income as a pawnbroker's apprentice. But sometime during his fifteenth year, William was invited by a Wesleyan couple to attend chapel, where he was converted to Jesus Christ. At the age of 23 he entered full time ministry in the Methodist Church and became an evangelist. However, in 1865 he gave up settled ministry and began to preach to the poor in East London wherever he could in the face of harsh and often violent opposition. The work was slow but in 1878 the movement he was leading took the new name of The Salvation Army. By the time Booth was promoted to Glory in 1912 the Salvation Army was at work in 58 countries. After he died, 150,000 people filed by the casket over three days, and 40,000, including Queen Mary, attended his funeral. He was called "the world's best-loved man". The Mayor of South Shields had described him as "The Archbishop of the World." King George wrote: "Only in the future shall we realize the good wrought by him for his fellow creatures. Today there is universal mourning for him. I join in it." He was truly another Joshua in his own day, but if you would like to know the real secret of the impact which he had on his generation, I believe it is the same as Joshua's. Sometime after his conversion at the age of 15 he wrote in his diary, "God shall have all there is of William Booth." I leave you with the last words of the Apostle John in his first letter which are remarkably like those of Joshua, Dear children, keep yourselves from idols.

"The Worst Of Times" - The Age Of The Judges An Age Of Compromise - Chs. 1-2

In describing the period of the French Revolution, Charles Dickens wrote these famous words: IT WAS the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair, we had everything before us, we had nothing before us.... He could just as well have been referring to the age of the Judges. From the death of Joshua around 1350 BC to the crowning of Saul as Israel's first King around 1050 BC stretches three hundred awful years of Israel's history that could easily be called "The Worst of Times". These years were an up-and-down seesaw combination of spirituality followed by apostasy as you'll quickly see in our study of the Old Testament Book which bears the name and contains the record of this period. But all that said, could not Dickens have just as easily been writing about our own time and people, about 21st century America? We too live in a real time of wisdom and foolishness, belief and unbelief, light and darkness. In fact, that's why we're going to study the Book of Judges together! So, before we begin let me just share with you three:

I. Ways In Which The Time Of The Judges Is Like Our Time so you don't tune out, thinking Old Testament stories like this are irrelevant! What kicked off this period for Israel was:

- 1. the passing of a spiritually-oriented generation and culture - 2:7-10 A great die-off occurred. You see:
 - a. the previous generations had experienced the reality of God Moses' generation had all experienced the mighty power of God in the nation of Egypt. They had watched the very hand of God destroy Egypt until it was left a de-foliated desert with its entire army lying dead upon the shore of the Red Sea. But that generation all died in the wilderness as they wandered for 40 years. Joshua brought the generation of their children into the Promised Land. They too saw the power of God dry up the Jordan River before their feet and the walls of Jericho come tumbling down at the shout of their voices. They had won mighty military victories over strong cities and mighty alliances of Canaanite armies formed against them. They knew God and they had experienced first-hand the mighty things He had done for Israel. But:
 - b. the current generation had not lived through the same experiences Once those generations were gone, when Joshua and all the elders who outlived him were gone, the generation of their children did not have the same personal knowledge and experience of God and all the mighty works He had done were in their past and quickly forgotten.

And I would dare to say that the culture we live in today is much the same. You can trace the impact of the Christian faith upon generation after generation of Americans from the earliest days of our country. Christian values were built into the very fabric of our society. They were printed on our coins, framed in our Constitution and hung in our public buildings. And the first generations went through difficult and bloody wars that shook our whole land and kept driving them back to their faith, the Revolutionary War, the Civil War, WWI and at last WWII. The impact of the experience of God at work in that terrible war lasted 20 years, into the 1960's, but gradually another generation was born and moved into the mainstream of life that did not have the Christian base of the generations before it. Taken as a whole, they knew not the Lord nor the things He had done! Our American culture is rapidly adopting a different world view from all of the generations before us, a view without God at the center of life. Now at the same time Israel suffered from a second factor:

- 2. the lack of a strong central leader The phrase In those days Israel had no king is repeated four separate times in 17:6, 18:1, 19:1, 21:25. I think God's trying to make a point! Moses had led Israel strongly at the direction of God. He had been followed by Joshua. These men and their personal connection with God and Divine leadership had held the people to their faith and to obedience. But now there was no strong central leader, no person commanding authority to follow. With proper respect for our current President who has shown both faith and strength, these years in America have been in many ways "leaderless" years for us. Leader after leader in all spheres of life falls from grace. Presidents resign or are investigated and shown to be immoral in public office. Key, well-known clergy do time for embezzlement or themselves fall into immorality. There's nobody to trust, to look to, to follow. Where are the leaders; where are the heroes; where are the outstanding men and women whose footsteps will lead us to faith and righteousness? They're sadly lacking. And that has led to a third factor:

- 3. the embracing of relativistic individualism -Twice the writer says, In those days Israel had no king and everyone did as he saw fit - 17:6b, 21:25b Every man did that which was right in his own eyes, the King James says. Relativism. What's right is what I think is right, what's right for ME. Stealing is right if you can get away with it. Sex outside of marriage is right as long as you're not hurting anybody and YOU want it. In these years for the first time, I'm running into younger people who genuinely believe that it is normal to have sex with people you're not married to and honestly don't know God says that it's wrong. That's scary! There are no standards, no absolutes; everyone does what seems right to him.

So you see, while materially we're prospering just now, we could well be living in our own "Worst of Times" before long! But how did Israel fall into this terrible 300 year period? What sent them into those troubled years? Well, chapters 1 and 2 tell us plainly that:

II. It Was An Age Entered Into By Compromise And by compromise I don't mean that kind of innocent meeting the other person half way that we have to do in relationships to get along. LuAnn wants a red car and I want a blue car so we buy a two tone. You want a banana split and I want a cheesesteak so we go to Dairy Queen where both of us can get what we want. You like hymns; I like praise songs, so we sing some of both. That's not compromise; that's consideration for the needs and desires of the other person. By compromise I mean: Incomplete Obedience, obeying God, but not fully, not carrying it all the way, starting out to do what He wants but ending the matter really by doing what you want. That's the danger a time like this one holds for us. In the case of Israel the instructions were clear. Moses gave them:

1. the command of God - Deut. 7:1-6 When they conquered the remaining peoples of the land of Canaan their instructions were summed up in the phrase: destroy and drive them out. Sometimes people object that this sounds very cruel, but remember two things. First, these peoples had become exceedingly idolatrous and immoral and it was God's time to bring judgment upon them so He was using Israel to do this. And second, all they had to do to spare their lives was leave! Go live somewhere else! But they wouldn't; they kept standing against God and His people and God's instructions were to destroy them totally, to not show mercy or let them stay. The reason is in verse 4. YOU will fall into THEIR idolatry if you don't! You were chosen to be set apart to God from among all the nations, to display His glory to the world and you won't do that if you intermingle with them (verse 6)! Well, that sounds much like our own calling, doesn't it? 1 Pet 2:9 says, But you are a chosen people, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people belonging to God, that you may declare the praises of him who called you out of darkness into his wonderful light. God has set you and I apart to Himself, to show all the peoples of the world the holiness and the glory of the Lord Jesus Christ, to declare His praises. And the thing that endangers that process is the same thing God was warning Israel about. And look what they did, look at:

2. the compromise of Israel (1:28): God said destroy and drive them out. Israel's actions were the opposite: tolerate and live among them. Let's take a quick tour through chapter 1. It begins with:

a. the initial victories of Judah and Simeon (1:1-20) You can see:

(1) their initial obedience to the Lord (1-3) They even inquired of Him who should go first and obeyed what He said. And look at:

(2) the victories they won (4, 8, 9, 11, 17) As they trusted the Lord and obeyed Him time after time they won victories. Their enemies fell before them and they drove them out of their cities. But it did not last long before compromise began. Almost immediately we read of:

(3) the incomplete obedience of Benjamin (21) And please don't think failed means tried but failed. The Hebrew simply says, they did not drive out the Jebusites. They didn't do it! They didn't carry out what God said to do but chose to live among them instead. Next, we read of:

b. the victory of Joseph (22, 25) Joseph, you may remember, is the name for the two tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, Joseph's sons. Initially they took Bethel and were obedient in destroying it completely. But right away notice:

(1) the incomplete obedience of Manasseh (27) It was too hard, too difficult. Their enemies in those cities were too determined. So they left them there. And two verses later we read of:

(2) the incomplete obedience of Ephraim (29) They did the same thing at Gezer! And the rest of the chapter reads like a veritable catalog of compromise. You have:

c. the incomplete obedience of Zebulun (30)

d. the incomplete obedience of Asher (31-32)

e. the incomplete obedience of Naphtali (33)

f. the incomplete obedience of Dan (34-35)

It seems to me that they followed one another's example. Each tribe seemed to say, "If they can let that city go, we can let this city go. If they can live among those people, we can live among these people." And so, compromise spread. They attacked and won but they did not destroy and drive out. They mingled with their enemies and lived among them. And that led to:

3. the chastisement of God (2:1-4) He sent His Angel (who was really Jesus appearing - notice how he speaks in first person!) to warn them: your compromise will become a trap! A snare! Since you live among them, you'll become LIKE them. Your sons will marry their daughters and vice versa. And eventually they'll influence you to worship their idolatrous gods! You'll be caught in a noose of your own making! Your incomplete obedience will lead not only to direct disobedience, but to the worst imaginable thing: they exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images made to look like mortal man and birds and animals and reptiles....They exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshiped and served created things rather than the Creator--who is forever praised. - Rom. 1:23, 25. God said, "If you're going to choose that, I'm not going to help you anymore! You're on your own!" No wonder they wept and named the place "Weeping"! And so it is that this practice of compromise led directly to:

4. the cycle of defeat into which Israel entered for 300 years (2:11-19) The text spells it out for us. First:

a. God's people would fall into sin (11-13) They started to worship those other gods, the Baals, the other "lords". But God could not tolerate that in His people so secondly:

b. God would allow suffering as a consequence of their actions (14-15), great suffering. They were conquered and ruled over by their enemies. Some were killed. Others had their goods and possessions taken. They were forced to pay tribute and some to live as slaves. God allowed the consequences of their actions to bring deep pain upon them. but when He did, thirdly:

c. God's people would offer supplication when distressed (15b) It doesn't say so directly here but compare 3:9. They would cry out to the Lord. Pain jogged their memories. Baal would never help them. But they remembered the Lord God and what they had done and they repented and cried out to Him. And when they did, God would have mercy on them and, fourthly:

d. God would provide salvation by sending a leader or judge (16) God would send a Gideon, a Deborah, a Samuel, a strong leader with trust in Him. And the leader would gather them and lead them to victory and they would be free again! But you know what happened every time?

(1) they would serve God during the life of the leader (18) As long as the judge was around to lead them and to remind them who the Lord was, they would serve Him, but:

(2) when the leader died the cycle would repeat (19) Sin, suffering, supplication, salvation, over and over and over again. Up and down, up and down, up and down, spiritually. For 300 years!

Now surely there has to be a lesson in there for us somewhere! Compromise, incomplete obedience, is a trap that will lead to this horrendous cycle of spiritual ups and downs, of not obeying all the way and falling into sin and suffering because of it and crying out to God for forgiveness and being helped, only to repeat it all over and over and over again. Sadly, doesn't that sound like the way many people live the Christian life? They're serious about God, but then they compromise and sin and they suffer for it and then they're sorry and then they're serious again. And round and round they go for a lifetime. When Paul thought about himself living like that in Romans 7, he cried out: What a wretched man I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death? (24) And his answer was, JESUS will! He said: ...through Christ Jesus the law of the Spirit of life set me free from the law of sin and death. - Rom. 8:2! The very Spirit of God lives in me and I choose to live according to the Spirit! I choose to listen to the Spirit, to do what the Spirit tells me to do, to depend and draw upon the power of the Spirit to do it. And that's what frees me from that awful cycle! When I am completely obedient to the Spirit, I walk in continual victory. When I compromise, when I do not fully carry out what the Spirit has said and instead stop short to do what I myself want (which is idolatry!), the door is opened for that awful cycle of up and down to begin. Now before I quit, let me just make two applications. First:

To the American protestant churches of our time: A century and a half ago, virtually EVERYBODY believed the Bible was a Holy Book, the very Word of God and true in every way. But about a century ago, the false teaching began to creep into the church that the Bible was merely a book written by men, inspirational, but NOT verbally without error. And when the church confronted this issue, she made a choice. She did NOT drive out those who held this heresy and destroy their teaching. Rather she decided to tolerate those who held it and live among them. They were too nice; they were too educated; they had too much influence. It was too hard to call them what they were and send them out. So gradually we became like them. The church adopted in large measure the idolatry the world had introduced. The Episcopal diocese in this area has a bishop so liberal that he would deny the absolute Deity of Christ and the fact that He literally rose from the dead. He openly advocates ordaining practicing homosexuals to the ministry and blessing marriages between persons of the same sex. When one local church in Huntingdon Valley refused to serve him communion because he is a heretic, they were forced out of their own denomination and lost their building! A United Methodist governing body decided recently to de-frock an openly-announced practicing homosexual pastor in this area; her local church fought to re-hire her! The Lutheran Church in America is wrestling at its highest level with this identical issue of recognizing same-sex unions. Their publishing house is dying on the vine and they are losing a million members a year! Even the Southern Baptist Church nearly lost all of its theological schools to this kind of teaching in recent years but the grassroots people and churches and people rose up and voted out those folks at the last minute. They called it an "evangelical takeover"! And yes, I know that there are genuine believers and pastors who love truly love the Lord Jesus in all these mainline denominations and I pray weekly with several of them, but in our day compromise, the failure to obey completely, has nearly sunk entire denominations, hidden the message of eternal life from millions and, worst of all, it has marred the name of Jesus Christ in the same way that Israel marred the name of Jehovah by its behavior so long ago! But before you wipe the sweat from your brow and say, "I'm glad that's them and not me!", let me just apply this:

To you and I personally: "As a young executive, Charles Olcott seemed to have it all--a loving wife, three strapping boys, and all the perks of a successful corporate career. But when the family was transferred to Miami in 1983, they discovered the one element that was missing in their otherwise full lives-- Jesus Christ. As Charles' spiritual life was beginning to blossom, his professional career was soaring. In 1986, at the age of 39, Charles was named president of a five-billion-dollar corporation. In the ensuing months and years, Charles set about making company changes based upon his commitment to Christ, however, just two years after becoming a Christian, Charles' faith was put to the test. Rumors of the takeover had filled the company break rooms for weeks, but that day the word became official. The parent company was negotiating with a British corporation for control of the fast food empire. As president, Charles was assigned the task of substantiating certain figures that the company would use in conjunction with their defense posture, but something was wrong. The numbers didn't work, and Charles knew it. 'The next day the management team gathered in New York to make final presentation plans. Charles recalls the scene with vivid clarity, 'Here I was at the top of my career... I'd waited a long time and worked hard to get to that position. Suddenly, I saw my whole career about to vaporize in front of my face if I didn't go along with the management defense strategy.' During the course of the planning session, Charles again voiced his concern about the numbers that were to be presented. The visible response of those at the table made it clear that he alone held this opinion. The meeting dismissed and Charles was told to 'sleep on it.' 'I didn't sleep that night. I went back to my room and prayed, 'Dear Lord, I didn't know that I'd be asked to do something like this. I ask You to direct my feet, my lips, my mind.' 'The next morning came and so did the ultimatum. 'I remember walking into that room,' says Charles, 'with the total and perfect peace that only comes from your relationship with Christ. I told the chairman that I wasn't able to support the figures, and he said, 'You're off the team.' I turned and walked down the stairs and called my wife and told her I just got fired.' 'A dramatic brief moment, a few short words, and it was over. Charles refused to support the questionable figures and severed all claims to his career, his title, and the 'golden parachute' that would cushion his fall. Charles admits that before his relationship with Jesus Christ, he easily could have rationalized the numbers and participated in the huge severance package offered to those who stayed. He says, 'I learned that the God of the Bible is 100% trustworthy. I'm not going to say 'Why me?' but rather 'What can I learn from this?'" [Market Place Perspective, First Quarter, 1994. Page 2.] OK, so you're not an executive but where is God calling you in your life to obey completely, to stand for Him fully? In what area are you being tempted to compromise? Is it in your work? Is it with your friends? Is it with your girlfriend or boyfriend? Is it in what God has called you to do or to be in life? Does it have to do with your honesty? With your sexual purity? With your money, perhaps your giving? Of course, if you stand for Him and obey completely, it will cost you something. But if you will yield to the Spirit of God, call upon Him for His strength and trust Him, you'll find that He is absolutely trustworthy. If you won't, get ready for that awful cycle; the consequences will catch up with you and around you'll go. Learn from the Judges; don't let this become "the worst of times" for you. Choose wisely.

"The Worst Of Times" - The Age Of The Judges

An Age Of Mercy - Chs. 3-5

The 300 year period of the Judges was truly for Israel "the worst of times" as we saw last week in chapters 1-2. It was an age that displays for us Israel at its worst, going off into the sin of idolatry and experiencing God's discipline time after time. Yet ironically this age also displays for us God at His best, showing mercy, forgiving and delivering His people. One writer expressed it like this: "The Christian life is like the dial of a clock. The hands are God's hands, passing over and over again-- the short hand of discipline and the long hand of mercy. Slowly and surely the hand of discipline must pass, and God speaks at each stroke. But over and over passes the hand of mercy, showering down a twelvefold blessing for each stroke of discipline and trial. Both hands are fastened to one secure pivot: the great unchanging heart of our God of love." The age of the Judges was an age of mercy and as we celebrate our own country's anniversary this weekend, the fact of God's mercy gives us great hope for our own time. In chapters 3-5 we find:

I. The Story Of The First Four Judges of Israel. And remember that four step cycle we learned about last time? It occurs three times in these chapters. Let me briefly review the story for you.

1. Cycle 1: is associated with a Judge named Othniel and occurs in 3:5-11. First you see:

a. the sin Israel committed (5-7) They did the very thing God had warned them against. Instead of driving out and destroying the Canaanite peoples of the land, they tolerated and lived among them and eventually intermarried with them and eventually forsook the Lord and worshipped their gods. Then you see:

b. the suffering God allowed (8) God caused them to be oppressed by the king of Syria to the north for 8 years. That's how long it took for them to realize their sin and come back to God! Then you see:

c. the supplication Israel made (9a) They cried out to the Lord in their suffering. But did God fold His hands and say, "Well, you made your bed; now lay in it!" No, He had mercy on them; He displayed compassion and next you see:

d. the salvation God provided (9-11): He raised up a godly leader named Othniel who led their army and through Him God brought deliverance that led to 40 years of peace. As long as Othniel was alive, his leadership kept Israel faithful to the Lord but when he died the cycle began all over again and we have:

2. Cycle 2: is associated with a Judge named Ehud and occurs in 3:12-30 Again you see:

a. the sin Israel committed (12a) which means they were back to idolatry again and, of course, next you see:

b. the suffering God allowed (12-14) God caused them to be oppressed by the King of Moab to the east across Jordan for, not 8 but this time 18 years! It's strange how this time it took them more than twice as long to realize their sin and come back to God. But they did and you see:

c. the supplication Israel made (15a) And did God fold His hands and say, "Well, I rescued and forgave you once, that's all the mercy you get!" No, His mercy was still there and even greater! You see:

d. the salvation God provided (15-30) [read 15 and 30] He raised up a godly leader named Ehud who gave them deliverance from the Moabites and brought them 80 years of peace, twice as long as the first cycle! Now do note in verse 31 that this time of peace was:

e. extended through a third judge named Shamgar who may have taken over leadership as Ehud grew older (31) Evidently there was trouble with the Philistines who lived on the coast to the southwest and Shamgar defeated them. The only thing said about him is that he killed 600 Philistines with an ox-goad, i.e., a long pointed stick used to poke an ox in the back end to make him walk! Sounds like Samson and his jawbone! God must really have been at work in that one! But eventually Ehud died as did Shamgar, I imagine, and Israel spiraled down again into:

3. Cycle 3: is associated with a Judge named Deborah and occurs in chapters 4-5 And just like the first two, you can see:

a. the sin Israel committed (1) Back to idolatry again. And then, of course:

b. the suffering God allowed (2-3) God allowed them to be oppressed by Jabin, a Canaanite King from the city of Hazor, north of Galilee for 20 years, even longer than last time. He had a technological advantage; he had iron chariots, the assault vehicles of their day! But eventually Israel once again awoke out of their spiritual stupor and you see:

c. the supplication Israel made (3b) Again they remember the Lord and cry for help, but does He say, "Well, twice is enough, don't you think? I'm getting really tired of this!" No, His mercy is still there and you can see:

d. the salvation God provided (4-23, 5:31) [read 4, 5:31b] He raised up a godly leader named Deborah, a woman, through whom He eventually brought Israel deliverance and another 40 years of peace. Now in chapter 5 you have:

e. Deborah's song of deliverance - Chapter 5 which describes the story poetically and actually adds to it the missing details. You see, through Deborah:

(1) God raised up a leader or commander named Barak and an army to fight (12-15) Barak gathered an army of 10,000 men out of several of the tribes on the slopes of Mt. Tabor to fight against Sisera, the commander of Jabin's army whose chariots were gathered on the plain of the Kishon river which flows west from Tabor to the Mediterranean Sea which was below them. Israel's troops followed Barak and rushed down the mountain to meet their enemies, however what really happened is in the song:

(2) God actually disabled the enemy through a storm (4-5, 20-21) There must have been a tremendous, violent thunderstorm which poured down rain. The river swelled and flooded its banks and Sisera's 900 chariots were left bogged down in mud. They couldn't move and were easily over-run. That's why Sisera himself literally abandoned his chariot and fled on foot! He made it 40 miles north to the tent of the only ally he thought he had, a man by the name of Heber the Kenite and his wife Jael. And you know the story of how:

(3) Jael bravely killed Sisera, the enemy general (24-27) She drove a tent peg through his temple into the ground while he slept!

That's the story. Three cycles, three judges, round and round and round. But it will all just be so much information to us unless we stop to glean:

II. The Lessons From The Story Each cycle has a less for us. The cycle of:

1. Othniel is uncluttered with details; in fact, I think God left them out on purpose and made it short to show us graphically the cycle Israel went through. We often call it the cycle of sin and repentance. But I'd rather call it the cycle of MERCY because it simply reminds us of God's continual mercy on His people Listen to the words of Ps.78:34-39 (TLB), Then at last, when he had ruined them, they walked awhile behind him; how earnestly they turned around and followed him! Then they remembered that God was their Rock--that their Savior was the God above all gods. But it was only with their words they followed him, not with their hearts; 37 their hearts were far away. They did not keep their promises. Yet he was merciful and forgave their sins and didn't destroy them all. Many and many a time he held back his anger. For he remembered that they were merely mortal men, gone in a moment like a breath of wind. Oh, how merciful God is!

Now the list of our national sins is pretty long too. To their credit, in 1963 Abington School District appealed all the way to the Supreme Court a case brought against it by a unitarian from this community whose name was Schempp stating that mandatory devotional Bible reading and prayer in a public school violates the First Amendment. They lost and the precedent was set; prayer and Bible reading were eliminated from our public schools. It was a major step in creating a whole culture without respect for or reference to God. Today you can't even use the word "Christmas" to describe the vacation students get around Dec. 25! In 1973 the Supreme Court heard a case by a pregnant single woman and declared our laws against abortion unconstitutional. In the years since then we have averaged 1.4 million unborn children aborted each year. And while I have a great deal of sympathy for the women who have also suffered as victims of this process, this decision set the tone for a whole culture without respect for life! The great challenge of our day is now whether to legalize unions between persons of the same sex. We have already developed a culture without respect for marriage! Immorality is everywhere and our media can be credited with fueling much of that. And just last Wednesday our Supreme Court ruled that 2 displays of the Ten Commandments inside Kentucky Courtrooms were unconstitutional, while a monument of them in Texas could stand outside. Their opinion is that each case must be treated individually. That reminded me of a story I read where Chuck Colson was invited to a luncheon by the publisher of a major American newspaper chain. It was a meeting of the editorial board, and the topic for discussion was criminal justice. Before the actual program began, the publisher turned to Colson and asked, "You're one of those guys who go around talking about the Bible, aren't you?" When Colson admitted that was true, the publisher went on, "I suppose you think it's a good idea to post the Ten Commandments in school classrooms." "Yes, I do," said Colson. "Well, we sponsored a campaign in this city to take the Ten Commandments off the walls of every classroom." Colson asked him why they did that when Jews believe the Ten Commandments, Muslims believe in the Ten Commandments, and Christians believe in the Ten Commandments.... The publisher responded with a lame statement about needing to be enlightened. "Enlightened?" replied Colson. "How about teaching them history? Teach them that the Ten Commandments are the basis for our laws. That's why there's a portrait of Moses just above the Speaker of the House in U.S. Congress." "We can't do that in this country," said the publisher, "if we want to be enlightened." Then, just a few minutes later, in the middle of the program, the same man cited statistics showing that 50% of public school students steal from each other. He lamented this as a terrible situation and asked the group, "What can we do about this?" Colson spoke up: "Maybe we should post a sign on the wall that says, 'You shall not steal.'" [Citizen, Jul 22, 1996. Pages 6-7.] We don't get it, do we? Friends, if God allows us to continue in this direction, He'll owe Israel an apology! But the lesson of the Judges is that with God there is always mercy! No matter how far we plunge, how deep into our own idolatry we go, or how often we turn from Him we can still turn our hearts toward Him and find mercy. And that's true in our own personal lives as well! No matter what you have done or how often you have done it, there is mercy at the cross of Jesus Christ for you! That's lesson one; now in the cycle involving:

2. Ehud we find another lesson: God's principle of using champions Let's go back to the story in chapter 3. Did you notice:

a. Ehud's courage? He was involved in a solo assassination behind enemy lines! He brought tribute money from Israel to Eglon, King of Moab in his palace. But on the way home he sent the rest of his companions on and returned personally to see Eglon and asked for a personal audience. Look at his daring deed (3:20-23). And he escaped and got away clean. Do you realize what a risk that was, to single-handedly attempt to kill a king in his own palace with soldiers everywhere? I'm betting that he wasn't counting on making it out alive, that he was willing to sacrifice his own life, if need be, to bring liberty to his people. But God honored that and let him escape undetected; that's a miracle! But notice what happened afterward:

b. Israel's willingness to follow him to victory (3:27-28) For 18 years Israel had not been willing to stand up against the Moabites, to fight them. But when they had a leader who was unafraid and committed in front of them leading the way, they followed willingly! And the end result was that the situation was reversed and Moab became subject to Israel (verse 30). Now there's a principle in here somewhere:

In the days of Ezekiel God said this, Ez.22:30 "I looked for a man among them who would build up the wall and stand before me in the gap on behalf of the land so I would not have to destroy it, but I found none. God was looking for a champion, for a leader, for someone who would stand up and risk all to be committed to do what He wanted done. That's what He is always looking for! Someone who is so committed to His will and His cause that they are willing to stand up alone, if needed, and do it at all costs. That's when others follow! Tomorrow we celebrate the signing of our Declaration of Independence. That was a radical step! Have you ever wondered what happened to the 56 men who signed it? Five signers were captured by the British as traitors, and tortured before they died. Twelve had their homes ransacked and burned. Two lost their sons serving in the Revolutionary Army; another had two sons captured. Nine of the 56 fought and died from wounds or hardships of the Revolutionary War. They signed and they pledged their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor. What kind of men were they? Twenty-four were lawyers and jurists. Eleven were merchants, nine were farmers and large plantation owners; men of means, well educated. But they signed the Declaration of Independence knowing full well that the penalty would be death if they were captured. Carter Braxton of Virginia, a wealthy planter and trader, saw his ships swept from the seas by the British Navy. He sold his home and properties to pay his debts, and died in rags. Thomas McKeam was so hounded by the British that he was forced to move his family almost constantly. He served in the Congress without pay, and his family was kept in hiding. His possessions were taken from him, and poverty was his reward. Vandals or soldiers looted the properties of Dillery, Hall, Clymer, Walton, Gwinnett, Heyward, Rutledge, and Middleton. At the battle of Yorktown, Thomas Nelson Jr, noted that the British General Cornwallis had taken over the Nelson home for his headquarters. He quietly urged General George Washington to open fire. The home was destroyed, and Nelson died bankrupt. Francis Lewis had his home and properties destroyed. The enemy jailed his wife, and she died within a few months. John Hart was driven from his wife's bedside as she was dying. Their 13 children fled for their lives. His fields and his gristmill were laid to waste. For more than a year he lived in forests and caves, returning home to find his wife dead and his children vanished. A few weeks later he died from exhaustion and a broken heart. Norris and Livingston suffered similar fates. Such were the stories and sacrifices of the American Revolution. These were not wild-eyed, rabble-rousing ruffians. They were soft-spoken men of means and education. They had security, but they valued liberty more. Standing tall, straight, and unwavering, they pledged: "For the support of this declaration, with firm reliance on the protection of the divine providence, we mutually pledge to each other, our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor." They stepped up to the plate, willing to pay the price, and the nation saw their courage and followed them. And the result is the United States of America and the freedom in which you and I live! God has always used champions to move His people forward. He is always looking for men and women of courage who will do His will, who will start a new ministry, who will go into a new area, who will defy their fears and doubts and hesitations, who will risk everything they have to be obedient to Him! And when there is a champion, His people willingly follow! The question is, are you one of them? Is He calling you to something? Will you step up to the plate? Now quickly before we close, there is one final lesson here from the cycle involving:

3. Deborah: and that is God's blessing of female leadership Because we have reacted against the radical feminist element in our society, I think we evangelicals have often gone too far the other way and minimized female leadership. But if you look at Scripture, God uses women in leadership. Miriam led the women of Israel; Rahab's courage led to the fall of Jericho; you know the stories of Ruth and of Esther, both of whom impacted their people greatly. In the early church there were key women like Lydia and Priscilla whom God used greatly. Paul wrote in Phil. 4:3, Yes, and I ask you, loyal yokefellow, help these women who have contended at my side in the cause of the gospel, along with Clement and the rest of my fellow workers, whose names are in the book of life. Women have always been greatly used of God in His program for His people. Notice a couple of things in the story of Deborah. Evidently:

a. women can have a ministry role AND a family (4:4-5) Deborah was a prophetess and a wife and a judge who held court for Israel all at the same time. Deborah, Miriam, Huldah, Isaiah's wife, and Anna are all mentioned as being used of God as prophetesses, the female equivalent of male prophets and had some sort of public ministry. In China today there are many, many "Bible women" who have started churches, who teach small groups, who are advancing the church alongside men. I'm not saying that's easy and doesn't require some real balancing; what I AM saying is that women can be involved in real and important leadership in God's work. Second, notice that:

b. women are often more willing to believe God than men (4:6-7) Whatever God told her she was ready to believe and act on. On the mission field and even here at home, they are always the first to believe in Christ while husbands refuse. In the church it is so often ladies who are the first to jump up and volunteer in a cause. Their hearts seem to be more tender and open to God; how precious that must be to Him! And because of this:

c. women are often used of God to greatly encourage men (4:8-10, 14) If not for Deborah's encouragement, Barak would never have gone, would never have led Israel to victory. Women, the very openness of your hearts can be used by God to greatly encourage your husbands and the men of the church to obey and follow God. We need it. Don't sit back and be quiet; push us toward Him, encourage us. And finally:

d. women are often willing to risk their lives for God's cause Jael killed Sisera, the enemy general, single-handedly. She didn't go call her husband. (4:21) Do you realize what a risk that was? If a noise had woken him, if her first hammer stroke was not true and strong, she would likely have been overpowered and killed with no one to rescue her. Many women, like Jael and like Esther have obeyed God and said in their hearts, "And if I perish, I perish!"

You see, not all of those champions God is looking for are men. He wants and needs women too! Women who will stand up and make a difference in our country and for the gospel. Women like Shirley Dobson who organizes the National Day of Prayer every year. Women like Phyllis Kilbourne who saw the suffering of children around the world and founded the arm of WEC known as Rainbows of Hope that now spans the globe and like our friend Thirza Schoots who went alone to Kyrgyzstan to found the ministry to street children there. Women like Tara Siegle who will take a year of their lives to go to West Philadelphia and live among the poor to touch their lives. Friends, we do live in a declining age, yet there is mercy! God will hear us when our hearts are turned to Him. But he needs those champions, Ehuds and Deborahs, men and women who will stand up for Him so that others will follow them to His feet and into His will!

"The Worst Of Times" - The Age Of The Judges

An Age Of Fear - Chs. 6-8

Chapters 6-8 take us deeper into the life of one single person who lived during the time of the Judges than have any of the previous chapters. They give us more of a glimpse of what life was like during these days when Israel would step out of the will of God.

I. Gideon's Situation was basically the same as that of the Judges who had preceded him: It was Another Cycle Of Sin And Mercy (6:1-10) In verse 1 you can see:

1. Israel's sin: which, of course, was idolatry (1a) Again they worshipped Baal and Asherah, as we'll see in the story. And naturally, that led to:

2. Israel's suffering (1b-6) Two words stand out to me. The power of Midian was SO oppressive (2); the Midianites were nomads and they would wait until harvest time and come across the Jordan and camp all over the land and take all the harvest for themselves, ruining whatever was left. There were so many of them that Israel couldn't stop them. And they became (verse 6) so impoverished and starving after seven years of this that they finally cried out to Jehovah for help! But this time, before He sent help, he sent one of those unnamed servants of his, a prophet, to give them:

3. God's rebuke and an explanation of what was happening (7-10) "You are impressed and impoverished and living this way because of your own sin. You're worshipping false gods, idols, and you're paying for your unwillingness to listen to Me!"

Now just how were they living during these days? The one word that jumps out at me from the story of the man named Gideon is fear. As we read on, it becomes really clear that:

II. Gideon And His People Lived In Fear (6:11-7:15a) The time of the Judges was truly an age of fear, a time when all of the people of Israel lived in constant state of dread. God had warned back in Deut. 28 that one day he would scatter them among all the nations because of their sin; listen to what He said, Deut. 28:65, Among those nations you will find no repose, no resting place for the sole of your foot. There the LORD will give you an anxious mind, eyes weary with longing, and a despairing heart. You will live in constant suspense, filled with dread both night and day, never sure of your life. In the morning you will say, "If only it were evening!" and in the evening, "If only it were morning!"--because of the terror that will fill your hearts and the sights that your eyes will see. Truly, the Jews have lived that way down through all the centuries since they were driven from their land in AD 70. But those same words characterize the way they were already living IN their land in the days the Judges. Terrified, fearing for their lives and their futures, hiding in mountain clefts and caves and strongholds. And Gideon was nobody special; he was just another citizen of his age, living in fear and trying to get by somehow. But God took him from fear to faith and raised him up to lead Israel to freedom. From the moment we meet him, it's clear to see that:

1. he feared the power of his enemies (6:11-13) Jesus comes to visit Gideon. He appears in the form of a man, a stranger walking up, and he sits down under a tree. Gideon is busy threshing wheat --in a winepress! Now normally you thresh wheat on a big flat open area, a threshing floor where teams of oxen are driven round and round to trample it and separate the heads of grain from the stalks. Gideon's doing it in a little winepress where you're supposed to walk around and squish grapes with your feet. It says two things to me: 1) he's hiding wheat where his enemies aren't going to look and 2) he doesn't have much wheat to thresh! He is so afraid of them that it governs how he acts. And because this stranger greets him using the name of God, (the LORD, Jehovah, is with you) Gideon quickly spills his thoughts:

a. he ignorantly blamed God for Israel's troubles "If Jehovah is with us, why am I threshing wheat in a winepress?! I know about Jehovah; my grandparents told me about all His signs and wonders, but where are they now?! He's abandoned us and left us! He doesn't care about us!" Is that not how people react, even today? "If God is real then why has he let more than half of the children in the world be devastated by poverty, war and AIDS? He isn't real or He doesn't care!" Even believers start to think like this: "Why did God let me get cancer or take my child from me? He doesn't care; He has left me!" Nobody ever stops to think just who abandoned WHOM! As America declines rapidly, it's easy to worry about the circumstances around us and what's going to happen to us and our children. Terrorists fly planes into buildings and explode bombs in pizza shops. Life is not secure and safe and it would be easy to live in fear! But notice Jesus doesn't even bother to answer the question; in his very greeting he has already given:

b. God's assurance: I am with you! And in Gideon's case that was "visibly" true; Jehovah was sitting under the tree talking to him! And Jesus made that same promise to us: Lo I am with you ALWAYS! Even to the end of the age! The Psalmist knew that assurance: Psalm 27:1, The LORD is my light and my salvation-- whom shall I fear?

The LORD is the stronghold of my life-- of whom shall I be afraid? If you know He is with you, you need not live in fear! But that's not the only fear Gideon had:

2. he feared his own weakness (6:14-16) Jesus had an assignment for Gideon, to go and lead Israel against the Midianites. He knew about Deborah and Barak and Ehud and Othniel before him and how they had saved Israel. But all he could see was his own weakness, his own inability. He was a nobody with no influence whom no one would follow! Maybe you can relate to that fear! You know what God wants you to do, but all you can see is how you can't do it! You're too weak, too young, too old! You don't have the money; you don't possess the gifts for it. You're afraid, not so much of the task, but of your own weakness and inability. But again, Gideon had already been given:

♦ God's assurance: *I am sending you! "The success of your leading Israel does not depend on your ability, but on MY sending! If I SEND you, I will SUPPLY all you need. I will do it, not you!" Paul learned that secret: Phil 4:11-13, ...I have learned to be content whatever the circumstances. I know what it is to be in need, and I know what it is to have plenty. I have learned the secret of being content in any and every situation, whether well fed or hungry, whether living in plenty or in want. I can do everything through him who gives me strength. If you know that God has sent you and you're doing what He wants, then you can rest assured that He will supply all you need and you need not fear your own inadequacy! But Gideon was not done being afraid yet:

3. he feared that God wasn't really speaking to him (6:17-22) "How do I know this is really of God, that this is really YOU telling me to do this and not just some crazy idea I'm having?! Give me a sign!" You've been there, haven't you? "God, is this really You telling me to do this thing? If it is, can you just show me, make it plain in a way I can't miss?" We're not used to walking so close to God that we know His voice instantly, that He can guide us with His eye. So, Jesus does give him a sign. Gideon brings an offering and He touches it with the end of His staff and it goes up in flames and suddenly it really dawns on Gideon, "O my gosh, I've been talking with God! That man was really Him! I've seen Him face to face; nobody can do that and live! And look how irreverently I spoke of Him!" But out of thin air comes the voice of:

♦ God's assurance (23-24): God's assurance for us is His peace. Gideon's name for that altar says it all: The LORD is peace! When it is really God speaking to me, I have His peace, this unexplainable peace that passes all understanding that He's in control and I'm in His will and I am not afraid. Col. 3:15 says, Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts.... Let that be the thing that rules your life and tells you when you are where God wants you, not your logical calculations. During World War II while the Germans occupied his country, Bishop Berggrav of Norway was at his home with a friend when he heard a knock at the door. He opened it, and there was a German officer with a guard. They told him he was under arrest. Putting on his overcoat, he followed the soldiers to the waiting car. Just before it sped away, his friend called to him, "Remember 1 Peter 3:13." The bishop said he immediately reached in to his pocket, pulled out a small Bible, and read the passage. "And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?" As he read those words, he experienced an indescribable peace. He testified later that the reality of Christ's nearness came to him through this verse, that reality of Christ's nearness, that inner peace that the world can't give and can't take away, that sense that HE is here and everything is OK. When you have that peace, rest in it and all fear will be gone! So off went Gideon determined to obey God, however, it was not long before he got specific instructions and fear surfaced again. This time:

4. he feared the reaction of his family and peers (6:25-32) [read 25-27] Gideon lived in an idolatrous family. His father had his own personal altar to Baal and his own Asherah pole, and I'm not talking little miniatures on a shelf somewhere. It took 10 men to tear this stuff down! Not everybody could afford that; his father must have been some kind of village leader. So, the Lord tells him to tear it all down and build an altar to Jehovah! Of course, he's afraid of how his father and his family and everybody else around will react, and with good reason; check out verse 30! That's why he did it at night, hoping no one would know who did it! He knew the threat that was coming; no wonder he was afraid. In Kyrgyzstan when you come to Christ, your family may kick you out and disown you; it takes new believers a long while sometimes to get over this fear of what will happen if their families find out! And what about us? Do you live in fear that if you obey God and do what He wants that your family or your friends or your coworkers will reject you somehow? That's a fear that many of us have. But in this case:

♦ God's assurance came in a strange way: his own idolatrous father stood up for him! (31) He said, "If Baal is really a god, then he ought to be able to kill somebody who tears down his altar!" You could probably have knocked Gideon over with a feather! Who would have dreamed this? But God has a way of changing hearts, of doing the unexpected and winning the respect, even of those who dislike what we're doing when we're willing to trust him and do it anyway. It reminds me of Prov 16:7, When a man's ways are pleasing to the LORD, he makes even his enemies live at peace with him! Trust Him, do what He says, and commit the reactions of others into His care.

So now it's harvest time and here comes the huge swarm of Midianites into the land like a locust plague. But God moves in Gideon and he begins to gather an army together. And while his messengers are out gathering the other tribes for battle, he has yet another fear left before the battle:

5. he feared that God might not keep His promise (6:33-40) Look at the expression in 36a, IF you will do as you've promised, I really need to know it, to be sure of it. So, he proposed a test to God. Please note that this is not something you should try at home because I guarantee that if you set out to make God prove Himself to you, you'll end up in trouble, but God is merciful and, in this case, gave His:

♦ God's assurance: God stooped to his self-proposed fleece - twice! When Gideon asked for dew to be on the sheepskin and not on the ground around it, God did that. But then he wondered whether somehow that could happen naturally so he asked for the reverse, dew on the ground and not on the sheepskin. Do you see that it was not an act of faith; it was an act of doubt! It was asking God to reconfirm over and over what He had already said and it was setting up a test for God. So don't put out fleeces for God, asking Him to have this boy ask you out if you're supposed to marry him or something! What God has promised, God will do. Just count on it! There is no promise of God that has ever failed nor will. Just trust Him! And Gideon does.

However, turnabout is fair play so now that God has confirmed Himself over and over and Gideon is sure what he's to do, He puts Gideon to the test. You see, God knew that down deep Gideon still:

6. he feared to do what God had commanded (7:1-15a) so:

a. God drew out his fear by reducing his army (1-8) He has 22,000 men. 12,000 of them are afraid of battle so God says "Send them home". The remaining 10,000 He sifts out by the way they drink, whether they get down and stick their face in the water like a horse or bring water up to their mouths in the palm of their hand a little at a time so they can watch carefully around themselves. You'd know that only 300 do it the hard way and God says, "Those are the ones I want, they're enough; send the rest home. Now do you trust Me?" It's easy to trust God when the odds look more reasonable. When there's almost enough money, it's easy to trust Him for the rest. When you have almost enough strength or time, it's easy to trust Him for a little bit. But when He sends you with 300 against more than 100,000, when the odds are impossible, do you still trust Him or are you afraid? James M. Gray wrote about a traveler in Portugal who saw a fisherman's wife at the water's edge holding a small child by the hand. Just beyond where they were walking was a sharp drop-off. Still the mother kept leading the boy toward the brink. The frightened youngster clung to her, but with affectionate words she led him to the same spot again and again. Finally, encouraged by her reassurances, he toddled along the edge by himself. Gray said, "The traveler trembled at the risk, . . . a few feet farther the water deepened dangerously. But there was no real cause for alarm. The mother's eye was on the boy, and her hand was ready to catch him before he went too far. 'What are you doing?' the traveler asked. 'Drawing out his fear,' the woman answered. Beloved, God has a way of drawing out our fears, of putting us in places where we have to face what we're afraid of so that our fears truly come to light and He can remove them by His love. So again God stoops to Gideon's weakness and gives His:

b. God's assurance (9-14) Gideon creeps down there in the middle of the night and what does he find? That God put fear into the enemies' hearts! They're all quaking in their boots at his own name and scared to death! And the punchline is in (15a). You know what that was? That was:

c. the final removal of all fear From that moment on, it seems that Gideon never hesitated, never doubted, not once in the rest of the story. He runs back to camp, gets his men ready and says, "Let's go!" He is finally convinced that God said it and it WILL be so, no matter what the odds are, no matter what the consequences may seem to be! God and I are a majority anywhere, anytime! I say it again, Psalm 27:1, The LORD is my light and my salvation-- whom shall I fear? The LORD is the stronghold of my life-- of whom shall I be afraid? That's the confidence Gideon finally came to and in that faith:

III. Gideon Led His People To Victory (7:15b-8:21) The story is familiar so we won't read it. You know about:

1. the miraculous battle (7:15b-25), how his 300 surrounded the enemy camp in the middle of the night with torches concealed under pitchers. And when suddenly 300 trumpets sounded all around camp and lights blazed and men shouted, "The sword of Jehovah and of Gideon", pandemonium broke loose. Enemy soldiers fought and killed each other in the dark and the whole bunch just started running and fled, overcome with fear! In chapter 8 we have the story of:

2. the mop-up operation (8:1-21) We won't read that either, but Gideon and his 300 chased the Midianites across the Jordan 100 miles or more, all the way to Karkor, where the last 15,000 of them made a stand. But they were routed there and all the Midianite kings were captured and slain. Verse 28 is the summary of the result. Midian is gone and there are 40 years of peace. You know, that would be a nice, story-book ending, but the sad fact is that in the end:

IV. Gideon Became A Snare To His People (8:22-32) You see, after he won the battle, they came to him and offered to make him king, but:

1. he recognized God's right to rule over his people (22-23) He had learned the principle at last. God is in charge. He is King. He is Lord. The way to live is simply to do what He says! That was a great lesson for Israel, just as it is for you and I. But unfortunately, we also read that:

2. he symbolically transferred his reverence into an object (24-27a) Well-meaningly, he got a little bit of gold from everybody and thought he would make a symbol to commemorate this lesson. So, he made an ephod. Remember what an ephod is? It was a garment, like a vest, that the High Priest wore at the Tabernacle. And on its front was a pouch in which were the Urim and Thummim, the holy lots. That was how Israel would ask God what to do and how He would show His will. He showed his will through the casting of the lots and Israel did it. So, Gideon made a vest like this out of gold, not to wear but to put up on a stand. Why? I suppose, to remind people that we need to do the will of God and to trust Him, to remind them that what God says, He means and it's true and you should trust His Word and obey Him! But, as nearly always happens when you make an object to represent God:

3. he and his people ended up worshipping the object, not God (27b) The very object intended to produce trust became itself an idol and Israel worshipped it. They worshipped Jehovah as represented in a piece of gold. And it wasn't far to step from that back into idolatry again once Gideon was gone.

Sadly, the church has so often done that very thing. It has often taken objects that we originally meant to be symbols to remind us of the power and the grace of our God and ended up seeking them to give us life. That's how we ended up having holy places and venerating holy things. That's how so many have come to believe that in the water of baptism or in the taking of communion people receive life from God. We can venerate the physical Book more than the words it contains and think that it protects us or value the cross that we hold in hand more than the death of the Savior upon the real one. Idolatry is not just something that crept into Israel; it has crept into the church and gained a powerful hold. That's why the last words of the Apostle John's first letter are 1John 5:21, Dear children, keep yourselves from idols. That's good advice. Let's beware of anything that creeps in to take HIS place in our lives.

"The Worst Of Times" - The Age Of The Judges

An Age Of Betrayal - Ch. 9

The apostle Paul wrote this to us: You may as well know this too, Timothy, that in the last days it is going to be very difficult to be a Christian. For people will love only themselves and their money; they will be proud and boastful, sneering at God, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful to them, and thoroughly bad. They will be hardheaded and never give in to others; they will be constant liars and troublemakers and will think nothing of immorality. They will be rough and cruel, and sneer at those who try to be good. They will betray their friends; they will be hotheaded, puffed up with pride, and prefer good times to worshipping God. (2Tim 3:1 TLB) Does that not sound like a vivid description of the days we're living in? All around us we find people who care only about themselves and do only what benefits them. Relationships don't mean anything to them; there is no loyalty. They stab their own friends in the back when it suits their purpose; they turn against their own parents, totally ungrateful for all the care they've given them. Well, that certainly is what it was like in the days of the Judges in Israel. It was an age of self-centeredness, an age of betrayal. And nowhere do you see that more clearly than in the life of the man named Abimelech whose story is given to us in chapter 9. Abimelech was not a judge raised up by God; in fact, he was probably an idolater. He was a man who lived by the sword, forced his way to power, and eventually died by the sword. He was a true product of his age and God has recorded his story here in Scripture as a strong warning to us. Let's begin by looking at:

I. The Circumstances That Framed Abimelech's Life (8:29-35) First of all:

1. he was shaped by a sordid family life (29-32) Abimelech's father was Gideon (nicknamed Jerub-Baal), the great judge who delivered Israel from the Midianites and led them back to God. He told Israel that he refused to be their king, though it's funny he gave his son a name that means "my father is king"! At any rate he sure acted like one in this respect: he built a harem for himself. He took many wives. And as a result, he had 70 sons and who knows how many daughters! Now do you think they all lived in one house? Not likely unless you're a rich king like Solomon. Ask our friend Yallah from Liberia how this works. Different ladies live in different houses with their children; the husband visits them in turn. The wives and children all vie for his time and attention. How much input do you think each of his 70 sons got from their father? Abimelech's mother wasn't even a wife; she was a concubine, actually a slave or servant he purchased. Gideon lived in the town of Ophrah. She and Abimelech lived 20 miles north in Shechem, probably in her parents' home. How do you think he grew up feeling about his father? You know, in our culture today we have a whole generation growing up with single mothers and absentee fathers. We have children growing up having to cope with two or sometimes three people in the role of moms or dad as their parents have been divorced and remarried, even multiple times. In 1996 Hillary Clinton wrote a best-selling book based on an African proverb called "It Takes A Village", expressing her personal view that it takes a village to raise a child, that the community, by which she really means the government and all its programs, play a primary and vital role in raising a child. Just this July 4 Senator Rick Santorum put out his rebuttal in a new book entitled "It Takes A Family". However, years ago Sen. Robert Dole was the first to rebut her publicly in a speech where he said, "After decades of assault upon what made America great, upon supposedly obsolete values, what have we reaped, what have we created, what do we have? What we have, in the opinion of millions of Americans, is crime, drugs, illegitimacy, abortion, the abdication of duty, and the abandonment of children. And after the virtual devastation of the American family, the rock upon which this country was founded, we are told that it takes a village -- that is, the collective, and thus, the state -- to raise a child. The state is now more involved than it has ever been in the raising of children, and children are now more neglected, abused, and mistreated than they have been in our time. This is not a coincidence, and, with all due respect, I am here to tell you: it does not take a village to raise a child. It takes a family. If I could by magic restore to every child who lacks a father or a mother, that father or that mother, I would. And though I cannot, I would never turn my back on them, and I shall... promote measures that keep families whole." We are growing a whole generation of children, many of whom, like Abimelech, have no idea what a nuclear family is and to whom the bonds of family are no longer sacred. Secondly, Abimelech:

2. he was shaped by an idolatrous culture (33-34) Israel forgot their God again and picked a new one. So, Abimelech was raised in the midst of a community without respect for the true God who were following the practices that went with worshipping Baal. One ritual they practiced was the "sacred orgy". The people would get together, get very drunk, and engage in promiscuous sex. The stated reason for this ceremony was to celebrate fertility: By acting out acts of reproduction, they thanked their gods, Baal and Asherah, for their success at bearing children, breeding animals, and growing crops, and prayed for more of the same. Another ritual was child sacrifice... which I won't even describe, but how convenient with all the children their worship would produce! In that culture you would grow up worshipping sex and without respect for human life. Sound familiar? Glorify sex and abort the babies that result. That's what our kids are being raised in; no wonder that many turn out like Abimelech. And finally:

3. he was shaped by a thankless community (35) For Gideon's whole struggle and great deliverance they had no gratitude. In today's parlance we'd say, "They used him when they needed him and then forgot him". And that breeds people like Abimelech who think only of themselves. We are raising up a generation like that, in which many are "users", who have no gratitude for anything, no matter how much you do for them; rather they expect it and think they are entitled to it.

Frankly, if we don't turn this ship around in America, we really are going to find ourselves in our own "worst of times"! But with all that background, now let's look at:

II. The Saga Of Betrayal In Which Abimelech Was Involved First notice that:

1. there was betrayal within the family (9:1-21) After his father Gideon died:

a. Abimelech murdered his own brothers in order to rule (1-6) Abimelech used the influence of his mother's relatives to gain influence within Shechem and the Shechemites gave him their allegiance. He became a little warlord of sorts with his own personal band of mercenaries to protect his turf. And his first act was to go to Oprah and ritually murder all of his own half-brothers so that none of them could claim a right to his throne! Now it's not all that unusual in history for a king to do this; many others have. Queen Athaliah even murdered all of her own grandchildren so she could rule! But it sure is without natural affection, isn't it? Doesn't it scare you a bit when you see several cases of young people in recent years who have actually murdered their own parents - in their sleep?! But betrayal doesn't have to involve killing the body. How many wives in our generation have had their husband come home and out of the clear blue tell them, "I'm divorcing you. I have found someone else." Or maybe it's vice versa. It's like being stabbed in the heart; the person who vowed to always be true to you is now saying, "I don't want you; I never loved you in the first place." How many older people have children who have rejected them and want nothing to do with them or else who put them in a home and then never come to visit them. As the institution of the family breaks down, increasingly we're seeing less and less regard for family ties. Family members betray one another without any sense of how wrong it is. Fortunately, Abimelech couldn't find one half-brother and in 7-21 we have the story of how:

b. he was cursed by his brother Jotham (7-21) We won't read it but Jotham's heart was broken over the injustice of what Abimelech and Shechem had done. So, one day he climbed up on a rock and shouted a parable down to the people of Shechem. It was a story about how one day the trees were looking for a king, but all the tall and useful trees refused so in the end they chose the ugly and useless little thornbush as king. It pricked everyone who touched it. The only thing the thornbush was good for was that everybody burned it; they used it to kindle their fires. So Jotham says, "You've chosen a thornbush as king; may fire catch on him and spread to all of you until you burn up together; you deserve it!" Jotham spoke a curse on them and then ran away and hid the rest of his life! I continue to stand amazed at the thornbushes who manage to push their way to power in the countries of the world, the Idi Amins and the Pol Pots and the Saddam Husseins! They destroy their own people and end up destroyed themselves. And if we're not careful, one of these days, we're liable to choose a real thornbush to lead us! At any rate, in those days there was not only betrayal within the family:

2. there was betrayal within the city (9:22-49), the community, the culture. It was not long before:

a. the people tried to sabotage their own leader whom they had chosen (22-23, 25) During this time Abimelech was asserting his authority over other towns in the region and had already moved his headquarters 5 miles away to Arumah, leaving a deputy named Zebul in charge of Shechem. Shechem was on the intersection of three key trade routes and now to oppose Abimelech, the Shechemites set up a system of organized piracy to rob travelers, from whom, no doubt, Abimelech was collecting his own tolls or tribute in some way. No doubt this also had the intent of keeping Abimelech from coming back to town! So, the people of Shechem turned against the very leader they had chosen, hired and supported. Not to compare the two men at all, but that thought does make me wonder how President Bush feels some days, knowing that the same people who believed in him and elected him can so easily stand against him and work to undermine him just when he needs their support most! You can't trust the people! And, of course, almost immediately:

b. another leader wooed them with false promises (26-29) Another would-be warlord named Gaal moved into Shechem with his band of thugs. They placed their trust in him and he became their drinking buddy. And, trying to get the job, He boasted of how if he were king, he would get rid of Abimelech once and for all, which he, of course, did not really have the military strength to do. Sounds like many a political speech, doesn't it? "If I am elected, I will do this and that and so on, ad infinitum," none of which could he or she possibly do! And yet we follow it, we believe it, we put our confidence in yet someone else instead of God alone. But as the saga continues:

c. a deputy of the first leader betrayed the second (30-41) [Read 30-35, 38-41] Zebul was Abimelech's deputy. He was part of that drinking party the night before and though he was angry inside, he didn't show it on the outside. Gaal probably thought he was turned against Abimelech like everyone else. But Zebul slyly sent word secretly to Abimelech to come and get rid of this Gaal and his band. And when they lost the battle and fled back into the city, all his boasting now obviously false, Zebul himself drove Gaal right out of the city and the citizens who followed him didn't stand up for him! Are you getting the picture that in this town nobody can really trust anybody? Well, if not yet, check out the end of the story:

d. the leader exterminated his own people (42-49) [Read 42-43, 45] You would have expected Abimelech to come back into town and assert his rule but instead he just wanted revenge and wiped them all out. In fact, as part of that battle, about a thousand men and women locked themselves inside a strong tower where their idol's temple was and Abimelech burned it to the ground and burned them all to death. The one who said, "I'm your own flesh and blood; I care about you!", killed them all when it suited him. Not unlike what warlord leaders do today in many nations. Two months or so ago more than 1000 people died in the city of Andijan, Uzbekistan near the Kyrgyz border when protesters marched in the streets against President Islam Karimov and he simply ordered his troops to open fire on the crowd. Thousands fled for their lives. I guess there won't be any more protests!

But what's the point? It was a day when leaders couldn't trust their people and people couldn't trust their leaders, when family members betray each other, an age where there was no loyalty, no commitment that means anything, no ties that were sacred. An age when there was nobody you could trust! It's like that in a lot of the countries of the world today. And as we continue down this path of allowing the family to erode, following after the idols of immorality and cheapening human life and breeding that self-centered ungrateful view of life, that's where we're headed. May God help us! Yet, lest we get too lost in the details, there is one more key thing we can see in this story:

III. The Cause Of Justice In Which God Is Involved (9:23-24, 50-57) Where was God while all of this was going on, while all of Gideon's sons were murdered and this saga was played out? Read verses 23-24. God had not forgotten. God was at work. God actually used Satan to accomplish justice; He sent an evil spirit, a demon, to bring about that betrayal and unrest which would eventually bring just retribution to both wicked Abimelech and the wicked people of Shechem. You can read in the end of the story how:

1. God repaid the wickedness of Abimelech (50-56) Abimelech moved 10 miles north to attack the city of Thebez and thought he'd repeat his "burn 'em up" tactic when the citizens went into their tower. But this time he got too close to the wall and a woman threw down a stone that cracked his skull and he had his servant finish him off with a sword. The punchline is verse 56. Justice was done. The violence of the murderer came back on his own head. And in this story through Abimelech:

2. God repaid the wickedness of the people of Shechem (57) The fire that started in the thornbush did burn them all up in the end. God caused their own ungratefulness and seeking after false gods and lack of respect for life to come back on their own heads. And that brings us to the first of the three:

IV. The Lessons We Can Learn From This Story The first one is obvious:

1. we will always eventually reap what we sow God has a law, an abiding principle that He wrote out for us in Gal. 6:7-8; turn there and read it with me please. God cannot be mocked. He, literally, IS not mocked. You may deceive yourself into thinking that He doesn't know, doesn't care or doesn't see what you do, that you can do whatever you like and God will have nothing to do with the outcome. But God's law is that whatever you plant you WILL reap. Every choice you make will have consequences. If you live according to the desires of your flesh, if you live in a way that is self-centered and immoral and ungrateful, chasing after other things instead of God, it will eventually bring destruction in your life, one way or the other! But if you listen to the Spirit of God who dwells in you and live out what pleases Him in caring about others and valuing them and doing good to them in righteousness and morality, then you will live a life that is truly living and that stretches on into eternity. The life you live here will be like the life you'll live there forever, one continuous age-enduring life! God will see to it! Don't think you can thumb your nose at His principle and get away with it! Learn from Abimelech that you WILL reap what you sow. Secondly, if we're going to make any difference in this kind of an age in which we live:

2. we must mature to become genuinely trustworthy Listen to what Paul wrote about Timothy in Phil. 2:19-21, I hope in the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon.... I have no one else like him, who takes a genuine interest in your welfare. For everyone looks out for his own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. Paul needed a Timothy, someone who was trustworthy, someone who genuinely cared about the church, someone who was only concerned to do what pleased Christ instead of himself, to send to the Philippians. And in this age in this country where everyone is looking out for his own interests, God needs Timothies that He can use, people that are dependable and trustworthy and filled with genuine love. He can send us into the lives of others and it will make a difference. It will draw them to faith! Integrity may get laughed at sometimes but in the end, it draws people! In an age of betrayal people hunger to know integrity. Let them find it in you! And finally, how are we going to survive in an age when it seems that you can't trust anybody?

3. we must continue to trust God when we can't trust others Listen to 1 Pet. 4:19, So then, those who suffer according to God's will should commit themselves to their faithful Creator and continue to do good. What do you do when people betray you right and left? When family members turn on you or maybe even desert you, when the people that work on your car rip you off, when your company renigs on all the promises they've made to you or terminates you, when your best friend lets you down, when it seems like everywhere you turn, there's nobody you can trust? You rest in this: GOD IS STILL FAITHFUL! He will NEVER let you down. Commit yourself and your path to Him. Trust Him and keep on doing good anyway! Keep living His way. Keep on being trustworthy and righteous; don't give in and become like all the people around you. The very next verse in Galatians right after God says you WILL reap what you sow says Gal. 6:9, Let us not become weary in doing good, for at the proper time we will reap a harvest if we do not give up. Billy Graham's daughter Anne tells the life story of a man she met in a country that is hostile to the gospel. She calls him "Professor Hill" but that's not his real name: "[Many years ago] he was serving on the staff of a church when he was turned in to the authorities by another staff member for preaching the gospel. He was imprisoned for 25 years, much of it in solitary confinement. During his imprisonment, the manuscript of the New Testament commentary that had been his life's work was seized and destroyed. When he was finally released from prison, the authorities declared him a 'nonperson,' which meant it was impossible for him to find a job. He was effectively stripped of everything and lived in poverty. His testimony, as well as his life, seemed insignificant. Then the same church where Professor Hill had previously served and been betrayed reluctantly invited him to come back on staff because he was the only one the church could find who knew Greek, Hebrew, Latin, and English as well as his native language. The professor agreed, and when I had the privilege of meeting him 15 years later, he was still serving in that church alongside the same staff member who had turned him in to the authorities 40 years earlier! I looked at Professor Hill and knew I was seeing someone who had been afflicted, who was poor, who had been slandered by the religious community--yet he was rich! The smile on his face went from ear to ear! His eyes sparkled with the joy of the Lord! He told me of the peace in his heart, of his renewed sense of purpose in ministry, of the fresh vision he had for reaching his people for Christ! He was committed to being faithful to Christ, even unto death!" [Vision of His Glory by Anne Graham Lotz. Word, 1996. Page 80.] Betrayed, yet faithful to death. That's the kind of person this age needs and that's the kind of person God wants to grow you into.

An Age Of Conflict - Chs. 10-12

One of the most obvious factors about this age of the Judges in Israel's history is that it was an age of continual conflict. An age of battles, of one war after another, rather than an era of peace like Solomon knew later on. When asked about His return, Jesus told His disciples: You will hear of wars and rumors of wars, but see to it that you are not alarmed. Such things must happen, but the end is still to come. Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom.... - Mat. 24:6-7. And that is pretty much how the last 2000 years have gone. While everyone's desire and longing is for peace, that is just not realistic. One internet site listed some 95 wars in the century between the US Civil War and 2003 in which 160 million people died. And while during that period the world has made the greatest advances in technology and communication and everything else that should lead to peace, it has essentially been the bloodiest century in history! But, Jesus said, don't be alarmed. That is the way the world is going to be until He comes to straighten it out! We live in an age of conflicts, one after the other, just like Israel did. But right in the middle of their "worst of times" there rose a shining star, a judge by the name of Jephthah. About a number of the Judges we have very little information recorded, and several of the ones that we do see in detail have feet of clay. Samson is hardly a flawless hero and even Gideon doesn't finish well. But Jephthah seems to have been a man with a clear and unwavering devotion to God. The story of his life covers three chapters and we begin in chapter 10 by getting a sort of aerial view of:

I. The Situation Into Which Jephthah Came (Ch. 10) After the madness of Abimelech's crazy rise to power and subsequent fall, there were:

1. 45 years of relative stability following the Lord under the judges Tola and Jair (1-5) We know virtually nothing about them but it seems clear that they led Israel in the right direction of trusting in the true and living God because it is only after they are gone that we read about yet:

2. another cycle of idolatry and 18 years of oppression by the Ammonites (6-9) For some crazy reason, Israel always seemed to want to adopt the gods of the very nations that she had defeated! And then God would allow her in turn to be defeated by one of the surrounding nations. The Philistines down on the southwest coast began war with them, as we'll see later about Samson. But the major oppressor at first was the Ammonites on the far side of Jordan. Just think of today's Amman, the capital of modern Jordan, Israel's neighbor to the east. Now in those days, Israel not only occupied all the land in Palestine, west of the river, but, if you remember, 2 ½ tribes settled on the east side of Jordan also. They occupied the land known as Gilead, a strip stretching pretty much from the mouth of the Dead Sea north to the Sea of Galilee. The Ammonites invaded Gilead and ruled it for some 18 years. Then they turned their sights westward across the Jordan to invade Judah and Ephraim. The Israelites were in big trouble and they knew it. And as usual, they turned back from all those other gods to the Lord yet again. So, in the next verses we have:

3. God's reaction to His people's genuine repentance (10-16) [Read 10-14] This time God doesn't jump up and say, "Sure, glad to have you back!" Look at:

a. His feigned refusal: He says: "I will no longer deliver you!" I say "feigned" because if He really meant it, he would not have delivered them, period! He was trying to make a point, "Hey, where are all these other gods you've been worshipping. They've had your time and attention for years. Go call them! See if they can help you!" What's He saying? "There's a pattern here! You keep running to them when things are good and to ME when things are bad. If those things were helping you, you'd run to THEM! I'm not here just so you can do whatever you want and then pull ME off the shelf to bail you out of trouble!" You know, an awful lot of people do see God that way. As long as things are good, they live life their own way and do what they want, but when they get in real trouble, they want to come to Him with crocodile tears and make promises to do better, which they turn around and forget the minute the pressure is off. And God says, "I ain't buyin' it! You can't manipulate ME with cheap repentance, with sorrow over getting caught. It's got to be real." But you know what? [Read 15-16a] Their hearts were so broken they changed their lives. They started serving Him. They began worshipping Him, even though they had no promise of help or forgiveness, without any sense that they would get anything in return. True repentance means life-change; it is not just saying "I'm sorry" to God but changing your life to live His way! And tucked away in here is a wonderful:

b. the truth: His heart cannot bear the misery of His people (16b) When they are really sincere, when they are really genuine, when they really turn back to Him and mean it, God's heart can't stand to see them continue to suffer alone. He can't bear it! He comes to them, He helps them, He answers their prayers - no matter how many times it's been, even 70 times 7! Never let Satan convince you that you are beyond the mercy of God, that you have sinned once too many times! But He will not turn to you and hear you and help you unless you are for real, unless you've had a true change of heart that shows in your life.

In Israel's case God had ALREADY done something. He had in place and on the scene His answer to their cry in the person of Jephthah. Now in chapter 11 we have:

II. The Areas Of Conflict Which Jephthah Experienced First we read that:

1. he was forged in a time of intra-family conflict, conflict within the family (11:1-3) You see:

a. he lived in a confusion of family origins His father had him as the result of a visit with a prostitute. But to his father's credit, he did not walk away from him but took Jephthah as a son in his home. He grew up with the other boys, but he was different from them. Their mother was not his mother. You see, Jephthah was a constant reminder to his brothers that their father had violated his commitment to their mother and hurt her, a constant evidence that their father was not the man he should have been and they loathed him. You can imagine the types of things that were said to him and how he was treated behind his dad's back. I don't think we have any idea how much impact the profusion of stepmoms and stepdads and stepbrothers and stepsisters has on children today. "You're not my dad!" is what comes out of their mouths when they're upset. Blended families do not often really work out as well as "The Brady Bunch" made it look on TV when I was a kid! There can be deep alienation in the midst of family and in our day there often is. So as the children grew older:

b. he experienced jealousy over family possessions It began to dawn on the half-brothers that he would get an equal share of their father's land and possessions one day. In the end it came down to money, as it so often does. How many times do children end up at odds with each other over their inheritance when their parents die? How many times have I heard that they are jealous over this one or that one who didn't deserve what they got? So finally, as the brothers grew strong enough and their father too old and too weak to prevent it, Jephthah:

c. he was driven from his family in weakness They literally ran him out of town. They forcibly expelled him with violence and he was not strong enough to resist them so he fled from them in fear and went and lived out in Tob, a town way out east on the edge of the desert. Now you would think that all of that would result in some real psychological damage. You would think that Jephthah would become another self-centered Abimelech who was abandoned by his father and hated his brothers and became consumed with gaining power and getting revenge! But he didn't! Instead:

d. he became a spiritual "warrior" who learned to use power for good Instead of paying thugs to become his bodyguards, he naturally attracted men to him because he was a leader. Like Abimelech he became the leader of a band of men, but instead of using them to go and wreak personal vengeance, he welded them into an army to protect their town against the Ammonite invaders. He developed a reputation and became known throughout the entire region as a valiant “warrior”. And as we’ll see soon, the thing that really made him different from Abimelech was that despite all the wrong done to him, somehow, he had developed a love for the true God that ruled his life! Maybe that was the true legacy he got from his father! Listen, there may have been much wrong done to you within your family context. You may have been rejected terribly by your siblings or even your parents. But you are not doomed to let that pain control your life and determine who you become, living a self-centered, self-protective life. You can receive healing for that and you can rise above it. You can choose to walk with Jesus and become a true force for the kingdom of God and a leader in His campaign against the enemy! Now not only was there conflict within Jephthah’s family, but:

2. he served in a time of inter-national conflict (11:4-40) As we’ve already mentioned, the Ammonites were beginning to invade the main region of Israel across the Jordan and they called every man they could find into service and gathered an army. But we read in the end of chapter 10 that they had no commander, no one to lead this army into battle. So, they turned to Jephthah:

a. Israel’s need for a leader vs. the Ammonites (10:17-18, 11:4-8) [read 4-8] They were gathered at Mizpah which is not too far from Jerusalem and they went 70 miles across the Jordan northeast to Tob to get Jephthah. They knew they needed somebody with courage and they knew Jephthah’s reputation, so they went to get him and offered to make him their leader, their head man, the chieftain of the region of Gilead. He says, in essence, “You didn’t want me before! You helped my brothers drive me away. How do I know I can trust you now? How do I know you’re not lying?” So, they settled it by an oath and what I want you to notice is:

b. Jephthah’s reverence for the Lord (9-11) When they are willing to swear before the Lord, the true and living God as witness, he’s willing to go back with them. And when he gets back across Jordan to Mizpah where the army is gathered, he makes them repeat the oath all over again. Now we don’t think much of oaths today but the ancients took oaths very seriously. To swear before God was to make Him the keeper of the oath and if you violated your promise, it would be His obligation to punish you for it! To say something like, “May the Lord do so to me, if I do not do as I promised!” was like signing your own death warrant if you didn’t mean it. The oath settled things. And that’s how much reverence and respect Jephthah had for God. He expected and trusted Him to enforce this promise on their part. That’s the ONLY thing that would induce Him to accept! So, Jephthah becomes commander in chief and takes charge to begin to deal with the Ammonites. But notice that he doesn’t attack right away. Instead, what we read next is:

c. Jephthah’s attempt to avoid conflict through truth (12-28) [read 12] We won’t read the rest but the Ammonites answer back, “Israel is occupying our land on the other side of Jordan; give it back and we won’t attack you!” So, Jephthah sends back a long and detailed answer about the history of the Exodus and how the Israelites back in that day the Moabites and Ammonites did not let them pass and they had indeed gone “out around” their territory, leaving them alone! Then when they were attacked by the Amorites and Bashanites to the north, they defeated them and took their land and they had been living in it for 300 years! The Ammonites had no claim to that land! What impresses me about this is not only his desire to avoid unnecessary bloodshed by diplomacy if possible, but:

(1) his knowledge of the scriptures Where in the world did he learn all that? He didn’t have a Bible laying around to read. That information was found in the scrolls of Numbers and Deuteronomy. It was passed on by the teaching of Levites and priests. Somebody had taken time to teach Jephthah the things of God, perhaps his own father! But he had not forgotten them. He treasured them and learned them and stored them up and they were on his tongue in an instant. He knew the Word of God. And what also impresses me is:

(2) his witness to the enemy (23, 27) Several times he talks clearly about Jehovah, the LORD, the God of Israel. He defeated their enemies; He gave them their land; and He is the true Judge to decide whose land it is! Jephthah puts it all on the line: “I have absolute confidence in the LORD that He will see that our cause is upheld!” He didn’t say, “We have more men than you’ve got. We’re more experienced than you are. We have this or that.” He was saying, “It doesn’t matter what we have or what you have; we have God and HE is all that matters!” And that wasn’t just some nice-sounding words. You can see:

d. Jephthah’s obvious dependence on the Lord (30-31) Before he went out to battle, he made a vow to God. “Lord, if YOU will give them to me...YOU are the one in control. YOU are the One I’m counting and depending on. This battle is not mine, but YOURS! And I will praise you afterwards by offering to you the first thing that comes out of my house to meet me!” My friends, I am afraid that we in America place way too much confidence in our military superiority and feel like we have all the resources. Jesus said, that in this age there are going to be continual wars. International conflict is never going to cease; just or unjust it will go on and on. We will always live in the midst of it in some form or fashion. Peace on earth is just a pipe-dream until Jesus returns. So how can we live in such an age? Jephthah is here to show us that “the battle is the Lord’s!” Any confidence we place in ourselves is misplaced. We need to get back to where we fight battles on our knees before we ever set foot on the field and place all of our hope and all of our confidence in Him as a nation! And that's true in our personal lives as well. That's what Jephthah did and look at his:

e. Jephthah's God-given success in battle (29,32-33) God did what Jephthah asked. He gave his enemies into his hands, and they were completely defeated, something Israel had been unable to do for 18 years! When you trust God, even the impossible is possible. But in the end as Jephthah comes home, we see:

f. Jephthah's ultimate devotion to the Lord (34-40) Now the meaning of this passage has been debated for centuries; did he literally offer his daughter as a human sacrifice or did he dedicate her to the service of God to remain unmarried as a perpetual virgin? But before I give you my opinion on that, don't miss the point:

(1) he could not break a vow he had made to the Lord (35) He loved his daughter. She was his only child. There would be no more and he cherished her with all his heart. But he loved God more. He would not, he could not, break a promise he had made to God, no matter how much it broke his own heart. And what's even neater is that he had raised his daughter to love God the same way and agree with him, even though it was her life on the line! Jephthah was another Abraham laying his son, his only son whom he loved, on the altar and lifting the knife because God said so! He was so devoted to God that he spared not his own daughter but offered her up on behalf of the land! Of course, since you asked for my opinion, I believe (along with many others) that:

(2) he did not sacrifice his daughter; rather she was devoted to the Lord Besides the fact that human sacrifice is utterly abhorrent to God, all the language in the passage indicates that she is mourning the fact that she will have no children, and the punchline is that she was a virgin. She spent the rest of her life devoted to the service of God, probably at the Tabernacle, and never married or had children. It meant the end of Jephthah's family line and in that culture, that in itself was a tremendous sacrifice.

3. he faced a time of inter-ethnic conflict (12:1-7)

a. the continual tribal jealousy and threat of Ephraim (1) compare 8:1

b. Jephthah's consistent attempt to make peace through truth (2-3)

c. Jephthah's self-defense and unnecessary death of Ephraimites (4-7)

You can read for yourself that in 12:1-7 that Jephthah faced yet another type of conflict: inter-ethnic conflict, jealousy between the tribe of Ephraim and the tribes over which he was now the head. You know how much of that we see in our own time. Just get the movie "Hotel Rwanda". Civil conflicts and ethnic strife have killed millions. But even in this Jephthah tried to make peace through laying out the truth, only defending himself as a last resort. Alas it didn't work as it often doesn't. In this world you will have tribulation. There will be conflict. But the point of Jephthah's life is that in a time of tremendous conflict, he was utterly devoted to the Lord and that's why God listed his name in that special roll call in Heb. 11:32-34. Turn there and look at it with me. There he is right alongside Abraham and Noah and Samuel and David and all the great prophets. By faith Jephthah conquered a kingdom and administered justice to his own people for six more years before he died. By faith he escaped the edge of the sword in fight after fight until all 20 towns of the Ammonites had been subdued. By faith his weakness was turned to strength, he became powerful in battle and routed a foreign army. And that, dear friends, is how you and I must also live in our own time of conflict, whether it involves our family members, our nation or our race. It is the only way to face conflict in any area of life. Some trust in chariots and some in horses, but we trust in the Name of the LORD our God [Ps. 20:7], like Jephthah did.

An Age Of Self-Love - Chs. 13-16

We've been studying straight through the Book of Judges but there is an important thing you need to know:

I. The Book of Judges is not chronological after Jephthah in chapter 11. From there on the events that are recorded do not simply occur one after the other. During these days the nation of Israel had no unified king or leader over the whole and functioned more in a fractured and fragmented fashion.

1. many of the events and Judges are regional in nature and simultaneous We already saw that Jephthah was head over the tribes in Gilead across the Jordan. In 12:8-15 we read about three more judges. Ibzan lived in Bethlehem and probably primarily led the tribe of Judah in the south. Elon probably led the tribe of Zebulun way north up in Galilee. Abdon lived in Pirathon in the middle and seems to have led the tribe of Ephraim. They may not have come strictly one after the other as the text appears to read, but have served in their own regions more or less at the same time. When we come to the life of the last judge, Samson, in chapter 13, it's important to know that:

2. Samson's 20 year judgeship is parallel with Eli and Samuel's lives Samson lived in Zorah, a mountain village about 14 miles west of Jerusalem at one end of the Sorek valley and overlooking the coastal plain where the Philistines had settled in a confederation of five cities. We read back in 10:7 that at the same time the Ammonites were oppressing Gilead across Jordan, the Philistines came against Israel from the west side. It could be that while Jephthah was delivering Israel across the Jordan, Samson was already forming a barrier to the Philistines on the other side. In any event we do know that during Samson's days Eli was serving as the High Priest for 40 years at the Tabernacle up in Shiloh in the middle of the land and even Samuel had begun his ministry as a prophet at Ramah further south. During Eli's days we read in 1 Samuel that the Philistines had actually captured the Ark of God in battle and kept it for a time. So as Samson came on the scene there was this kind of uneasy peace where the Philistines were acknowledged rulers over the southern tribes but let them continue some semblance of normal life. Samson never led an army like many of the other judges. In fact, he never delivered Israel at all; they remained an oppressed people. Instead, Samson formed an effective one-man barrier that God used to keep the Philistines in check for 20 years until the time of Saul and then David who finally defeated them for good. The other thing I'd like you to think about is the fact that:

3. Samson's life forms a picture of Israel's life (and by extension ours!) Samson was born a man who was dedicated and set apart to God but chose to live for himself, pursue things God had forbidden and ended up destroying himself. Just so, Israel was born as a nation dedicated and set apart to God in the earth to declare His glory. But she too lived for self; she pursued her own ways and fell into terrible idolatry. And she ended up destroying herself. Samson was a product of that age; he lived the way his people lived. And the same path lies before us. WE are people set apart and dedicated to God through the new birth to declare His glory. But we face the same choice. Like Samson, we live in an age where everyone did what was right in his own eyes. Paul said: Mark this: There will be terrible times in the last days. People will be lovers of themselves... - 2 Tim 3:1-2. That is, they will choose themselves and what they want over God and every other thing. People all around us are living exactly that way. But I can't think of anyone who pictures it better for us than Samson. As you know:

II. Samson Was Born A Nazirite: Set Apart To God's Service - Ch. 13 In the story of his birth we have:

1. his prohibitions explained (2-5a) The Nazirite vow is detailed back in Num. 6:1-8. An Israelite could make a special vow to serve the Lord for a specified period and during that time he was not allowed to do three basic things. The most obvious one is that he was not allowed to cut his hair like other men so the long hair became his obvious trademark; it was the visible sign to show that he was set apart to God. (And you know it does make me wonder what Samson must have looked like if he had never cut his hair from the time he was born until he was 35 or 40 years old. Guinness says the world's longest documented hair belongs to Xie Qiuping of China at 18 ft., 5.54 in. when measured on May 8, 2004. She has been growing her hair since 1973 from the age of 13 [31 years]. Can you imagine Samson with 18 or 20 feet of hair curled up on his head? Kind of changes your mental picture of him, doesn't it!) Secondly, during the time of his vow he could not drink wine or eat anything associated with grapes or grapevines. And he could not become unclean by touching a dead body. Now Samson did not choose to do this; God chose it FOR him. He was set apart and dedicated to the service of God from the time of his conception. His mother even had to follow the rules while he was growing in her womb! And it was to continue, not for a period but for his entire life. Now why would God do that? Well, at the end of verse 5 we have:

2. his purpose declared: to begin delivering Israel from the Philistines (5) God had one purpose for his life. He was the beginning of a great task, a great deliverance that God was working for His people. God planned to use him to begin to protect them against and set them free from their enemies, the Philistines. Others would later complete the task, but the plan was that he was to maintain his dedication to the Lord so that God would get the glory and God in turn would empower him for the chosen task. In the next verses we see:

3. his parents reassured (6-23) The angel of the Lord who is speaking with them is actually Jesus and basically, He does a miracle in their presence to reassure them that they really have been speaking with God and they realize it. But the footnote at the end of the chapter is interesting because here we read of:

4. his power experienced (24-25) This reads almost like what Luke says about Jesus' own growing up years! As Samson grew up, he was blessed of God and he began to experience a miraculous gift of strength that God had given him. He would find himself "stirred", literally moved, impelled, driven. He would find that at times the Spirit of God would take control of him and when that happened, he would have the strength of ten men, or perhaps of fifty or more! He could do things he never dreamed of by God's power, things no man could do! What a gift! And God intended it for His glory, for Samson to use it against the Philistines to protect his people and to display the power of the God of Israel, in the same way that a little shepherd boy with a sling named David displayed it to them years later! But sadly, as we read the record of Samson's life, we find that's not what he did. Instead:

III. Samson Lived A Dual Life: He lived life Serving Self But Used Of The Spirit anyway. Instead of acting like a man set apart to the service of God:

1. he regularly did what he wanted to do, despite God's command We read the first example of this right away in (14:1-3). Now, of course God had made it really clear in His law that His people Israel were not to marry non-Israelites. They were not to take wives for themselves from any of the other nations in the land of Canaan because, as we've seen, they would be led into idolatry through it. Just like we're warned in the New Testament that believers should not marry unbelievers, but only other believers. Samson's parents even tried to remind him and set him straight. But Samson was enamored with this girl and he did what he felt like doing, despite what God had said. He served himself rather than God. Of course, a lot of Christians do the same thing, and I'm not just talking about the fact that they will often choose to marry someone who's not a genuine believer, despite what the Word says. Our society has told us pretty clearly that the chief question to ask in life is "What do YOU want?" It starts with, "What do YOU want to be when you grow up?" and moves on to "What do you think is best for YOU?" in all areas of life. Yet we're Christians. We call Jesus Lord, our Master. But nobody ever teaches us to ask, "What does Jesus want? What does God want?" So, we end up with this disconnect and so many believers go through life making their own choices, doing what they want and by it serving themselves, all the while believing that Jesus is their Savior! Just like Samson! Now the amazing thing about Samson is that:

2. while he served himself, God used it for His purpose anyway (4) That doesn't mean that God WANTED Samson to disobey Him, but simply that in God's plan He was already counting on using Samson's very act of disobedience as an occasion to accomplish His will, which in that day was to punish the Philistines and set his people free. So, as we'll see, this whole occasion of Samson's self-centered, disobedient marriage to a Philistine girl became God's opportunity to begin to move against them. You see, God doesn't waste anything! He wants you to obey Him, but He will use even your self-centered disobedience to get done what He wants to do if He has to! Of course, He'd rather have your cooperation and your submission! He will work through you or even in spite of you if He has to. Yet still in the process, you can see that:

3. whenever he served God's purpose, the Spirit empowered him (5-6) At that moment a young lion jumped out of the bushes and his life was in danger, but God still needed him so the Spirit of God took control of him and filled him with supernatural divine power so that he literally grabbed that lion by the legs and tore its body in half! We read that phrase about the Spirit of God coming upon him five times in all. Whenever he was doing something in line with God's declared purpose of opposing the Philistines, that would happen. The Spirit would take over and he would have supernatural strength. Likewise, didn't Jesus tell us in Acts 1:8 that we would receive POWER when the Holy Spirit came upon us to indwell us? The same Holy Spirit who came UPON Samson has come to live permanently in each one of us! And in Him is all the power of ten men, of a thousand men, indeed in Him is the very power of Almighty God! That's why Paul could write literally in Phil. 4:13, For all things I have strength, in Christ's strengthening me. All the power you need to accomplish God's purpose and will is already there in Him inside you and as you need it, it will be there for you, just as it was for Samson! What a priceless gift, but Samson didn't see the value of it and:

4. he often paid a sad price for his self-centered choices As we follow his story, you'll see that the very things he strove for in order to please himself ended up being taken from him. In the end he lost everything of value to him and eventually his very life. Indeed, you CAN choose to live a self-centered life like Samson, but every self-centered choice you make to disobey God will cost you, sooner or later. Now as we skim through the record of Samson's life, you can easily see that:

5. this process happened repeatedly for 20 years (according to 15:20) while he was a Judge. He would disobey God, choose self, God would use him in spite of it, but he would pay a price. You can see it:

a. at his wedding (14:7-20) Later on his way down to the wedding, he stopped to check out the carcass of the lion and found a swarm of bees had made a nest in the skeleton and there was honey which he took out and munched on (and I would imagine that violated God's prohibition about touching a dead body!) Well, that was kind of a unique thing and Samson saw an opportunity to profit by it so he made a selfish bet with his wedding attendants to solve a riddle about it. They pestered his bride to get the answer out of him which she did and told them and he had to pay off. Verse 19. He was so angry that he killed 30 Philistines and never did marry his wife. And it cost him: his wife was given to another! But he didn't know that right away and the cycle occurred again:

b. when he tried to visit his wife (15:1-8) Evidently this could have been one of those kind of marriages like Abimelech's mother had where the woman continues to live with her family and the husband "comes for a conjugal visit" regularly! Of course, he brings a present; wouldn't you ladies love a young goat? Well, when he finds out that the girl is now married to someone else, he says verse 3. He's mad again so he comes up with a plan. He goes out (and no doubt spends a long time) catching 300 "foxes" (probably jackals, wild dogs), ties them tail to tail in pairs with lit torches and turns them loose in field after field. So, he burns up the grain of the Philistine harvest to get revenge. But now they're angry and when they find out why he did it, they come and burn his "wife" and her father to death. He loses her for good now! And that makes him really mad, verses 7-8. Well, that was more or less a declaration of open war and:

c. when the Philistines invaded Israel to capture him (15:9-17), His own countrymen, instead of standing behind him, come with their own army to take him and hand him over to the enemy! He lets them tie him up but once he's near the Philistines the Spirit of God comes on Him and he breaks the cords, grabs the nearest handy object which happens to be the jawbone of a donkey lying on the ground and kills 1,000 Philistines with it! Look at his self-centered take on it: verse 16. He's only serving self, getting personal revenge, using God's gift for his own desire, but God is putting fear into the Philistines and they begin to stay away from Israel. In fact, now Samson can go anywhere he wants in Philistine territory and even though they're always plotting to kill him, nobody will openly try to stop him. You can see that:

d. when he goes to Gath (16:1-3) He visits a prostitute, again following self and forgetting God's command. His enemies lie in wait outside the gates to attack him and, in the middle of the night, he gets up and literally tears off the city gates with his bare hands and carries them up to the top of the nearby hill. Can you imagine? This kind of thing went on, I'm sure, for all of his 20 years but the last cycle occurs:

e. when he falls in love with Delilah (16:4-21) And you know the story of how he loves this wicked woman and she finally gets him to betray the secret of his strength, which is that it comes from God because he is set apart as a Nazirite and the sign of that separation is his long hair. She shaves it off while he sleeps on her lap and the Philistines finally have him. They put out his eyes and blind him. They put him to work grinding grain with a millstone like a slave. They bring him out during a festival to their god Dagon to make a buffoon out of their enemy and his god and he ultimately dies there. Gary Inrig writes: "Some time ago there was a news story about 300 whales that were found marooned on a beach. Scientists could only explain the mystery by speculating that the whales had been chasing sardines and became trapped in shallow water when the tide went out. For most of his life, Samson was like a whale chasing sardines--a great power pursuing small goals. He was finally beached by his pursuit of the sardine of sexual pleasure." [Hearts of Iron, Feet of Clay by Gary Inrig. Moody Press, 1979. Page 231.] The price for his life of self-serving was really high. But despite all of that self-centeredness, there were times when:

6. in dire straits he would recognize his dependence on God It happened:

a. when his resources were exhausted After he killed those thousand Philistines with the jawbone (15:18-19). When he had used up all of his strength, in the end he knew where it came from and he cried out to God to meet his need. He prayed for water and God opened up a spring in the ground for him. And it happened again at the very end of his life:

b. when he was too weak for the task (16:22-31) He was standing in that pagan temple with thousands of Philistines jeering at him. His hair was growing back, but he knew it wasn't the hair he needed. Verses 28-30. He lived for self to the end, but every time he reached the end of his rope, he cried out to God expectantly for help. It is amazing to me that his name is included in that blessed roll call in Heb. 11:32-34. What is he being commended for? Which part of his life are we to imitate? Which one of these feats points to Samson? I believe it's the last one: out of weakness were made strong. That's the only thing about his life worth imitating. When you are weak, when you are not strong enough for the task, cry out to God in faith, cast yourself on Him and trust Him for strength. That is actually the model of our daily Christian life! You see:

IV. We Face The Same Issue As Samson (Turn to Galatians) You see:

1. our "self" (flesh) is always warring against the Spirit in us - 5:17 There is a continual war going on in our minds. Our self-centered, self-serving flesh is always pushing us to displease and disobey the Spirit of God, to do what "we" want, instead of what HE wants. Whether those desires are in the sexual area like Samson's were, or the area of greed for money, lust for power and control or whatever. There's always a pull to ignore what God says and do what we feel like. And:

2. the lesson from Samson's life is: we must choose to live in obedience to the Spirit - 5:16 Instead of waiting until your choices get you in trouble and then crying out to God for rescue, call on Him right away every day for the power to choose what the Spirit wants, to moment by moment opt to please God, to obey God, to be pure, to be holy, to live a life that represents well the fact that you belong to God. His power for us to live out HIS life is there in us and available to us every single day. But as Samson's life shows us:

3. every time we choose self, we reap destruction - 6:8 When we choose to act selfishly and do what "WE" want instead of what we know God wants, we think we get what we want, but we actually pay a heavy price, sometimes right away, sometimes later, but we ALWAYS destroy the value of our own lives to one degree or another.

In 1779 the famous preacher John Newton composed this poetic fable which I think conveys the lesson we should take away from Samson's life well:

*"Once upon a time a paper kite Mounted to a wondrous height,
Where giddy with its elevation,
It thus expressed self-admiration:
'See how the crowds of gazing people
Admire my flight above the steeple.
How they would wonder if they knew*

All that a kite like me can do!

*Were I but free, I'd take a flight
And pierce the clouds beyond their sight;
But ah! like a poor prisoner bound,
My string confines me to the ground!
I'd brave the eagle's towering wing,
Might I but fly without the string.'
It tugged and pulled while thus it spoke--
To snap the string--at last it broke.*

*Deprived at once of all its stay,
In vain it tried to soar away;
Unable its own weight to bear,
It fluttered downward through the air.
Unable its own course to guide,
The winds soon plunged it in the tide.
Ah! foolish kite, thou hast no wing,
How couldst thou fly without a string?*

*My heart cried out, 'O Lord, I see
How much this kite resembles me!
Forgetful that by Thee I stand,
Impatient of thy ruling hand;
How oft I've wished to break the lines
Thy wisdom for my lot assigns!
How oft indulge the vain desire
For something more, or something higher!
But for Thy grace and love divine,
A fall this dreadful had been mine!"*

"The Worst Of Times" - The Age Of The Judges

An Age Of Idolatry - Chs. 17-18

If you remember, last time I told you that the Book of Judges is not written in purely chronological order from chapter 11 on, that the stories overlap and occur simultaneously. Well, here's another:

I. Important Note: In a sense the Book of Judges ends with the death of Samson, the last judge; Samuel was already on the scene and the story line moves ahead to him. Therefore, Chapters 17-20 are actually an epilogue placed at the end of the book by the author who was led to append two stories that demonstrate what life in that era was like. Chronologically both stories occur early in the period of the judges; in fact, it is quite probable that the story of the man named Micah we'll study today happened way back in the time of Othniel, the very first judge. But this story is appended here, I think, to give us a vivid picture of how Israel so rapidly fell into the practice of idolatry. At the end of Joshua's life, she was serving the Lord only. But within one generation she was worshipping Baal and Asherah. And you have to ask, "How is that possible?" Of course, one factor, as we saw early in our study was mixed marriages, marrying a person from the other idol-worshipping peoples and "converting" directly to that idolatry through them. But there were also other factors that paved the way for it. And, not surprisingly, those same factors are rearing their ugly heads in our own culture here in America also. So, let's look at:

II. Three Factors Involved In Israel's Idolatry in The Story Of Micah - Chapter 17 The first factor is:

1. religious syncretism (1-5) Doesn't that leave you scratching your head? Micah's mom dedicates a 5 lb. hunk of her silver to the Lord for what? To make a carved idol (out of wood plated with silver) and a pure silver idol cast in a mold. Micah had in his house literally "a house of gods", a "god-room" or shrine and besides these two items he had teraphim, literally "household idols or gods" and an ephod, a vest like the Israelite High Priest wore at the tabernacle. What's going on? Micah isn't a worshipper of Baal; his family worships Jehovah. But the way they choose to worship God is the way the other peoples around them worship their gods! They make images and idols to represent Him. Syncretism is the fusion of differing beliefs; it means I take what you believe and add it to what I believe and mix the two together. 2 Kin. 17:33 has a great description of what happened when Assyria brought colonists to live in Israel many years later but it pretty well defines syncretism: They worshiped the LORD, but they also served their own gods in accordance with the customs of the nations from which they had been brought. They fused belief in the Lord with the beliefs and practices of their own culture. Now Micah was violating a direct command of God and perhaps we ought to review:

a. the purpose of the second commandment - Ex. 20:4-5 The first commandment implies clearly that there is no other god; the Lord is the only true, real, actual God! The second commandment says that we are not to represent him or worship Him by making an image or an idol to which we bow down and worship. Moses explains why in Deut. 4:15-19. God is not like anything else in His creation and as soon as we try to make an image of Him, the temptation is immediately there to worship the image itself as though it were Him! Micah was taking the way that other cultures worshipped their gods through images and idols and trying to worship the Lord in that same way in his own little “house of gods”, instead of following the pattern God had laid out of going up to the Tabernacle with sacrifices and offerings. In a sense it is doing what many people say they do, “worshipping God in my own way”. Unfortunately, you can’t do that; God will not be worshipped in “your way”; He must be worshipped HIS way, in spirit and truth! If you look around the world, you’ll soon find that:

b. similar syncretism persists in many cultures today I’m going to read you a letter written directly to us back in April by a national missionary that we support. Urias is the first missionary sent out by the Sougb people of West Papua to live among and reach the Irarutu people. He writes: We entered a new village by the name of Yaru. In 2004 I led a man, named Topilus, to the Lord. He speaks Irarutu, the same as Aroba, but he is from Kaimana, which is a different language group. This man took himself away from bowing down to idols. He is alone in this. All the others in Yaru village bow down to idols like those in Aroba. Pray for Topilus. Also pray for those in Aroba. I have preached to them for 8 years already. Pray for fruit from these 8 years. The village is planning to build their jungle huts and have feasts for their idols in September and October this year. I have preached and shown them God's voice about their worshipping idols many times. And I have brought many to Jesus from Aroba. But their flesh still remains inside their own fences (the pastures of their idol worship places). My heart is greatly saddened at this. They have not given this up totally yet. Syncretism, the fusion of beliefs. All over Latin America there are faithful Catholics who literally worship the statues of Jesus and Mary that stand in their cathedrals and then sacrifice chickens out in the hills as an offering to the spirits and see no contradiction at all. Sounds terrible and primitive, doesn’t it? Well, let me give you:

c. examples of syncretism as it appears in our own culture One of the most obvious is:

(1) the popularity of New Age thought and practice The New Age Movement of the last 30 years or so is really nothing new at all; it’s just a re-make of ancient Hinduism and Buddhism with a 20th century face and espoused by a hodge-podge of differing organizations, cults and popular figures like Edgar Cayce or Shirley MacLaine and her books or movie star Tom Cruise and his devotion to L. Ron Hubbard and his Scientology writings. “God is not a being; god is IN everything. God is in YOU; in fact, you ARE god; you just have to become conscious of it!” It incorporates beliefs and practices like reincarnation, angels, channeling the spirits of the dead, out-of-body experiences, the use of the power of crystals, astrology, transcendental meditation, chanting and dozens of others. But, of course, there is room for Jesus too! Say, did you know that Jesus was a man who was a great teacher. Why, during his first 30 years he traveled to India and learned divine “God-consciousness” and total control of His mind and body from Indian guru masters. That’s what made him the Christ! And you can be just like him! That’s what they’ll tell you! And in case you don’t think this is having an effect, what’s scary is that according to the polls 25% of Americans now say they believe in reincarnation and 36% believe astrology is scientific! Today you can pray to Jesus, talk to your personal angel while you meditate holding your crystal and read your future in the stars! Just fuse it all together! Then there is:

(2) the common pursuit of occultic practices How many, even those from Christian background will go visit a fortune teller’s booth on vacation or check their horoscope regularly? We play with Ouija boards to get answers to the haunting questions of life and get psychics to read tarot cards to divine our future. Folks, this stuff isn’t just gimmicks and nonsense; it’s serious! It’s occult; it’s demonically energized. It is opening the door to demonic infestation and control in our lives just as surely as worshipping an idol in the forest would. Yet many see no harm in it and see no conflict with attending a church and hearing the teachings of Jesus on Sunday. Syncretism is all around us and coming from another angle you can see it in:

(3) the humanistic restructuring of Christian theology The whole movement of liberal theology which has taken over so many of our mainline denominations is simply the fusing of Christianity with humanism. Man is basically good; he doesn’t need a savior; he needs a great example of how to live which is what Jesus was. While the Bible is important as the record of what the ancients believed, it is a human book and contains lots of factual errors and outdated notions. We must use our reason to sort out the timeless truths like love and tolerance from the antiquated concepts like eternal punishment. It’s all syncretism, fusing the worship of other things to the worship of the true God and thereby losing it, just like Micah and so many other Israelites did 3000 years ago in the time of the Judges! Syncretism always ends up in idolatry and along with it is another factor:

2. moral relativism (6) There was no authority to set standards so everybody did what they wanted. Micah wanted to have a “god house” and make his own priest; well, why not? Without a clear defining authority, there is no absolute right and wrong; you can do whatever you want! What’s right is what’s right for you! Without the clear defining authority of God through the Bible, if you're a man and want to marry another man the church should do the ceremony for you! It's archaic for the church to tell you that its wrong for you to live together outside of marriage or to tell young people that sexual activity before marriage is sinful and wrong. It leads to idolatry and the true idol here is self! But there's a third factor that enters in:

3. overt materialism: the desire for financial gain (7-13) Now what's that about? The young Levite's true job should be to serve at the Tabernacle of the Lord in Shiloh, to teach the Law and help in the arrangements for sacrifices, but never to offer them. No Levite could ever be a priest unless he was a descendant of Aaron. I'm sure this young man knew that. Then why did he agree to Micah's offer to be a priest in a personal shrine and offer sacrifices to idols? The answer is pretty obvious: money! It was a decent job and this young man was out of work. Materialism led him to idolatry, as it always has and still does. One obvious way you can see this is in:

a. charlatanism: the practice of religion to make money Paul said in 2 Cor. 2:17 Unlike so many, we do not peddle the word of God for profit. On the contrary, in Christ we speak before God with sincerity, like men sent from God. There always have been and still are people out there using religion as a means of making money. Frauds. Con-men who promise the favor of God in response for financial gifts. Not every person on your television or radio who shouts the name of Jesus is a sincere person sent from God. I won't name names, but simply beware of people who promise things God doesn't promise (like miracles and healings and getting material things) and strongly ask you to send them money! But you see, the reason people actually send it is because the materialism in our culture has infected us too. We want to GET something, just like Micah did! That's what accounts for:

b. the popularity of the "prosperity Gospel" "God wants His children to have the best! He doesn't want you to be poor; you are to be the head and not the tail! He will give you a nice house and a new car. Just claim it by faith. If you don't get it, you must not believe enough! And He doesn't want you to be sick either; He WILL always heal your body. And He doesn't want you to have any other problems either! He'll take them all away if you believe!" That's what you hear on TV and radio, but that doesn't sound anything like the New Testament! Yet that message is sweeping the world and it's natural for people, especially poor ones who are suffering to flock to it! In 1 Tim. 6:5 Paul mentions people...who think that godliness is a means to financial gain, people like Micah who say, Now I know that the Lord will be good to me since I have...done this or that! No, He IS good to you, ALL THE TIME! And Paul goes on to say: But godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into the world, and we can take nothing out of it. But if we have food and clothing, we will be content with that. People who want to get rich fall into temptation and a trap and into many foolish and harmful desires that plunge men into ruin and destruction. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil.... (6-10) The desire for material things leads to idolatry; it leads you to do the things that will get you what you want. It may begin with bending the Scripture but it will end in making an idol out of what you want and serving money rather than God. For thousands of people all around us, material well-being is the very thing that is making them feel self-sufficient and blinding them to their utter lostness and their need of Christ. And if you let it, it will grab your heart too and blind you to His purpose for your life.

Now let me quickly trace for you in chapter 18:

III. The Growth Of Israel's Idolatry: The Story Of The Tribe Of Dan - Chapter 18

When God divided up the land of Canaan through Joshua, Dan was given a portion west of Jerusalem in the area where Samson later lived. But we read back in 1:34-35, The Amorites confined the Danites to the hill country, not allowing them to come down into the plain. And the Amorites were determined also to hold out in Mount Heres, Aijalon and Shaalbim, but when the power of the house of Joseph increased, they too were pressed into forced labor. They were not able to kick the Amorites out of their inheritance but instead of trusting God and persisting in His will, they took a step of:

1. compromise (1-2a) They decided to go find themselves an easier place on their own! Idolatry always begins with compromise, with seeking to meet needs your own way instead of God's way, with taking a step out of His will because it looks easier or better. But then, if it works, we often make an:

2. assumption (2b-10) Their scouting party ran into Micah's Levite priest and asked him to check in with God. I don't know how he did it, but his answer was "Sure, God is with you." and when they get all the way north beyond the boundaries of Israel, they find this city of Laish which looks like a guaranteed easy target. And they report, "Look what God has given us!" The assumption is that success is a sign of Divine approval; if it works for me, then God must be in it. I try things my way and if I get some benefit, it must be that God is OK with it. "I'm sleeping with my girlfriend but we're committed to each other; we'll get married someday and look how great I feel!" So, I keep on and prosper in my disobedience and that leads to:

3. influence (11-21) Now a whole bunch from the tribe of Dan, 600 armed warriors and their families set out to go conquer Laish and, of course, on the way they stop by Micah's house. They steal his idols, invite his priest to be priest to their whole tribe and take him along with them. Why? Because the experience of a few infects the majority. The 5 told the 600 how the Lord had blessed them this way and now the 600 fall into the same idolatry because it worked for them! That's how religious syncretism spreads! That's how moral relativism spreads. And that's how materialism spreads. That's just how idolatry spreads, from the few to the majority and that's how it has been spreading in America too. Well, once it is embraced by the majority, they have:

4. power and the majority begin to impose their will on everyone else (22-29) As you can read:

a. they intimidate any who oppose (22-26) Micah gathers some men and goes after them and says, "This isn't right; you've stolen my idols and my priest!" And they reply, "If you want to live, go home!" Once idolatry is the religion of the majority, they put pressure on anyone that stands in their way and that's what we are beginning to feel here today. Today it is the evangelical Christians who have begun to be labeled right wing fundamentalists, bigots, extremists, hate-mongers and things like that! And the stronger idolatry becomes, the more we'll be seen as enemies! And at the same time, that majority will:

b. they eliminate the innocent for their advantage (27-29) This was a quiet and unsuspecting people far to the north. They hadn't fought with Israel at all but were just minding their own business when the Danites fell upon them and wiped them out to take their land and city. What's happening here? We already eliminate millions of innocent unborn because it's to our advantage. On the table today is the whole "right to die" and "assisted suicide" thing. I believe the elderly and the infirm are next. You see, afterwhile the end result is:

5. institutionalization where idolatry becomes a way of life

a. Dan became a national center of idolatry (30-31) The renamed city of Dan in the north became a rival center of worship for Israel and it stayed so for centuries. Years later when Jeroboam went to set up a golden calf to keep people from going to Jerusalem to worship, where did he put it? Here in Dan! The whole nation was influenced and eventually judged by being conquered by Assyria. And here's the kicker: did you notice who that young materialistic Levite was? His name was Jonathan and he was Moses' own grandson (or possibly great-grandson)!

b. Moses' own descendants became idolatrous priests for centuries and it only took one generation, maybe two, to move from serving the Lord to leading the nation in idolatry! That's why we've got to teach our children to love Jesus, why we've got to model before them a living faith that's real and draws them in. Otherwise in just a generation they will be swept up in the idolatry that's all around them!

Tourists throughout the centuries have visited the famous Acropolis, the ancient hilltop religious citadel in Athens. Thousands of sightseers from all over the world have picked up marble chunks as souvenirs. Why hasn't the supply of pieces been exhausted long ago? The answer is very simple. Every few months a truckload of marble fragments from a quarry miles away is scattered around the whole Acropolis area. So, tourists go home happy with what they think are authentic pieces of ancient history. That's what Micah did in his faith; he went home happy with a fake substitute for God, thinking it was the real thing. In a society awash with idolatry, we'd better be sure we're taking home the real thing. Religious language and music, religious objects and services may fool us into imagining that we are experiencing a firsthand relationship with God when in reality many people are simply going through empty routines that amount to idolatry. And we must guard ourselves carefully or before we know it, we'll join them. The apostle John concluded his first letter with these words: 1 John 5:20-21 ...we are in him who is true--even in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life. Dear children, keep yourselves from idols. Amen.

"The Worst Of Times" - The Age Of The Judges

An Age Of Immorality - Chs. 19-21

In 1991 America was shocked when the story broke of a serial killer named Jeffrey Dahmer who over a decade had deliberately tortured and killed 17 men to perform sexual acts with their dead bodies, kept their bodies in his apartment in vats and a refrigerator and actually ate parts of them. I mention that only for the feeling of horror and disgust it creates. The last three chapters of Judges are that same kind of story, the story of a horrible and revolting atrocity that occurred in one of the towns near Jerusalem, an atrocity that was defended by its own immediate society and ultimately resulted in a civil war that killed thousands. It is perhaps the most repulsive story in the whole Bible, yet I believe it is recorded here in brutal honesty to reveal the low moral state into which a significant portion of Israel had fallen. And sad to say, many of the same factors we see in it, we see all around us in our American society right now. Timewise, strangely enough, it occurs not at the end, but very early in the period of the Judges because Phinehas, Aaron's grandson is still alive and serving as High Priest at the tabernacle. And that in itself stands as a warning to us: when a culture departs from God's standard, it does not take long for people to plummet to the very depths of depravity. Those depths will be very clear as we examine:

I. The Atrocity Committed At Gibeah which is recorded for us in Chapter 19. In all of Israel throughout this period:

1. sexual morality had severely degenerated just as it has here. Many of the same things we see in this story are common today. God's ordained plan of one man and one woman for a lifetime and sex belonging only in the boundaries of such a marriage is being ignored and defied in many ways. One is:

a. the legitimization of multiple partners (1) Concubine, now there's a word you see throughout the Old Testament, but maybe you never thought about what one is. A concubine is sometimes described as a "secondary wife", but if you boil it down, a concubine is a female servant legally "purchased" or "contracted" for sexual purposes. She is not a “mistress” nor a prostitute. She is legally bound to the husband but never given the status and voice of a wife, yet is provided for by the man and in return is expected to be exclusively his sexual partner alone. Now God never invented or sanctioned this practice but it evolved early on in this region of the world; even Abraham had one as did this religious Levite. It was a way to legitimize a man having multiple women. Of course, we don’t have concubines today; but we have come to view marriage in much the same manner, as a contract made that can and will be broken legally when and if I want a different partner. Divorce has become for many a legal way to have two, three or more partners. As I say this, some of us here have been through the pain of a horrible and messy divorce and God has given you new loving spouses and godly homes and I hope that you know I love you and am not talking about you personally, but about our culture. 1997 statistics say that 50% of all new marriages end in divorce. 43% of all weddings are a second marriage for at least one partner. And 60% of all remarriages end in divorce again! And these marriages, first or second, last an average of seven years. Our culture’s view of marriage has definitely been lowered to that of a contract. We have found our own way to legitimize multiple partners. On top of that, God’s design is being violated by:

b. the prevalence of marital unfaithfulness (2-3) This girl became tired of her arrangement and had a fling with another man. Then she fled from the Levite’s home in the hills of Ephraim in the middle of the land back south to her father’s house in Bethlehem, I assume to avoid the wrath of her husband. A 1994 study says 28% of American men age 50 have had extramarital affairs as have 17% of women. But honestly, if you had, would you tell the truth to a pollster? The real number is likely somewhat higher, but still, more than a quarter of American men admit to cheating on their wives despite their promise before God to “keep myself only unto you”! That’s shocking! Our standards of sexual morality are degenerating. This tells me that we are no longer seeing unfaithfulness as being so wrong, so awful. It’s being accepted, even expected. I guess it wasn’t so bad to the Levite either, because he wanted her back. He traveled down to her father’s house four months later to literally speak to her heart. It must have worked. He was greeted warmly and her father wined him and dined him for three days, then drug it out through a fourth day and into the morning of a fifth day. And finally in the afternoon, the two of them left to go home but the trip was too long and now they would have to stay overnight somewhere in the middle. They didn’t want to stay in Jerusalem because it was still inhabited by Jebusites and they didn’t feel safe, so they pushed on four miles further to the village of Gibeah so they’d at least be among Israelites from whom they might expect better treatment. But they didn’t get it. In the end an old man coming in from working in his field invited them to stay in his house and that’s when the atrocity happened. In this town morality had fallen to a new low and there was:

c. the presence of flagrant homosexuality (22) The men of the town had seen this stranger in the square and they gathered as a mob to demand that, of all things, not his concubine, but he be surrendered to them so they could sodomize him! Now homosexuality has always existed in every culture, but it’s usually been quiet and secretive and viewed by the majority as repugnant and unnatural. However, in this town, it is not simply out of the closet and in the open; it is a way of life parading in the streets, militant and demanding fresh victims to use for its lust! Somehow Gibeah had slid all the way down the moral slope to exactly where Sodom was centuries before! And though we are a bit more civilized, we’re pretty far down that same slope ourselves to where homosexuality has not only come out of the closet but is loudly demanding equal status and recognition. The debate is on among the states as to whether a homosexual partnership can be recognized as a legal marriage. And sad to say, it is on even in the churches. ALL of the mainline denominations that I know of are engaged in hot and heavy debate about not only ordaining practicing homosexuals to the ministry, but also whether they can be married in the church. Evangelicals in those denominations are losing the battle and this issue will likely divide some of them. I am certainly not accusing every homosexual of being the type of violent person these were; many of them are nice and decent people and I care about their souls. But the fact is that this practice is morally wrong according to the Scripture and its acceptance as a valid lifestyle is a huge step down the slope to no sexual morality at all! Now before we move on, let me back up a second to point out that it was not just sexual morality but:

2. public morality had totally disintegrated, period! The first thing you notice from the moment they arrive in town is:

a. the evaporation of common hospitality (15) There were no motels in those days! And most towns had no “inn”. So, the duty of hospitality was one recognized by the whole population. A traveler would wait in the square and some passing resident would take them in for the night. It was a cultural system, but not here. Not a single person approached them with an offer of help; rather, it seems that everyone who passed by noted them with the intent of victimizing them later on! At last, one old man who still held to the ancient code of hospitality took them in quickly because he knew the danger they were in. Jesus warned that in this age as His coming approaches, Because of the increase of wickedness, the love of most will grow cold - Mat. 24:12. When people stop caring about others and think only about themselves, when they will turn their back on someone in trouble and say, “it’s not my problem”, society is in deep trouble. That’s how life in much of the former Soviet Union under communism had become. No one trusted anyone; everyone took advantage of others. That’s the first step toward:

b. the devaluation of human life Whether people live or die doesn’t matter. What matters is who has power. People you don’t know are to be used. The mob around that house in verse (22) was demanding the surrender of a life to them basically. The old farmer made at least a show of protest but see (25-27). Some husband. He shoved his concubine out the door to the crowd to save his own neck, rather than dying to protect her. The frenzied crowd gang-raped her all night until she fell down dead on the doorstep. She wasn't a person; she was an object to be used; what became of her was of no consequence. It never fails to amaze me how cruel and inhumane human beings can be to one another. The thing that has always set America apart from so many societies is that human life is sacred. We don't torture and kill our prisoners of war and shoot the wounded; we don't kill women and children and innocent bystanders to accomplish our ends. Even in war we treat human beings like human beings. Massacres have always horrified us. But once you stop believing that every human life has value it's really easy to get to the place of dealing pretty cruelly with people whom you see as valueless! Some of the incidents that occurred in the south during the civil rights movement are proof of that. The other thing you can see in this story is:

c. the degradation of women First the thinking was: "Send out the woman; she's worth less!" But then look at (28). Can you believe that? She's raped outside all night while he rests inside; he finds her fallen on the doorstep and he says, "Get up, let's go!"? No tears. No remorse. No tearing his garments in agony over her. No wonder she left him in the first place! He loads her body up and goes home but then look at (29). He doesn't even give her a decent burial. He literally cuts her body into 12 pieces and sends each with a message to each of the tribes of Israel for the shock value of it. Folks, the message that our society sends over and over again in these last years is that women are not people; they are objects to be desired and used. There are no longer thousands; there are literally millions of pornographic websites that can be viewed from the comfort of your home portraying women doing every conceivable kind of sexual act. You can't watch the cleanest TV show without being interrupted by a commercial portraying a woman for her sexual value or watch the Superbowl without fear of being exposed to direct nudity at half-time! A woman is the most beautiful and precious thing God ever made to give to man as a sacred partner in life. Yet more than 25% of women in America have been sexually abused by men. We're sending the wrong message in every direction.

My friends, our morals aren't all that different from Gibeah; we're just a little further up the slope still but in a heartbeat we could be down where they were. Well, the Levite's heinous act worked (30) and now we see:

II. The Response Of The Nation To The Atrocity - Chapter 20 The Levite was making a call to the entire nation, to all the tribes, for justice and it worked. They came together to deal with this atrocity as he explained it to them. They did something about it. They responded, but their response was both a good thing and a bad thing. As it starts out, I want you to notice:

1. the commendable aspects of their response First of all:

a. they had a united desire and commitment to administer justice (8-11) They had a resolve to see that justice was done and that this evil was removed. Oh, we need that! I wish we had it! We need to unitedly rise up and stand against the disintegration of morality that is all around us. Secondly:

b. they attempted to hold only the guilty parties accountable (12-13a) The ones who committed the atrocity were the ones who should be punished. That's always just, always fair, always right. The one who commits the act is the one who must be punished, not his family, not his friends, not his town. But their attempt to punish only the guilty didn't work so:

c. they also held accountable those who protected them (13b-17) The tribe of Benjamin rallied to protect its own, the men of Gibeah. But Israel believed in what is today called "The Bush Doctrine", that is, "we will make no distinction between the terrorists who committed these acts and those who harbor them!" If you shelter and protect the guilty, you aid them in their evil and are just as guilty. That's why we invaded Afghanistan and why the Taliban are no longer in power today. Israel applied that same principle and it's a good one, a valid one. Benjamin massed an army to protect the evil in their midst and the other tribes massed an army to fight them if necessary! And the other good thing is that:

d. they sought the Lord for direction in the process (18-19) They still had a sense of the need to seek God at this point in their history. It hadn't been lost yet. Oh, if only we would seek God's wisdom in administering justice! In this they did well, but on the other hand are:

2. the tragic aspects of their response First of all:

a. it escalated into a civil war in which thousands died The first day, verse 21 says, 22,000 Israelites died in battle. The second day, verse 25 says another 18,000 died. But on the third day, Benjamin was finally defeated and verse 35 says 25,000 Benjamites died. How sad that what started out as a decision to leave too late in the day killed 60,000 men! Evil can become really entrenched in a society if it is left to take root and grow and the cost to finally root it out can become tragically huge. But what's worse is that for Israel:

b. justice degenerated into vengeance and over-reaction (41-48) They didn't just win the battle and quit. Their grief over their own huge losses was so great that they wiped out the enemy nearly to the last man and then they killed all the innocent women and children left behind and burned the cities to the ground. A 'scorched earth' policy, we call it. Justice had turned into vengeance, into getting even, into doing them one worse than they did to me. That is always the danger with justice; it's only one small step to vengeance, to over-reaction; we must be so careful to know the difference. When it was all over, the Israelites woke up and realized what they'd done. They had almost literally wiped out one whole tribe. Only 600 men of Benjamin were left with no women or children. And they went back and cried before God! But in chapter 21 we read that:

c. salving their guilt led to two further atrocities (Chapter 21) Because they had taken an oath before God that anyone who didn't show up to fight would be put to death, they ended up:

(1) wiping out an innocent town (10-11) They committed their own atrocity to get terrorized wives for 400 of the Benjamite survivors. And because they had sworn another oath that none of them would ever give their daughters to anyone from the tribe of Benjamin, they ended up:

(2) kidnapping unsuspecting women at a harvest festival (20-22) And that's how the other 200 kidnapped their wives. In the end the Israelites didn't act much better than the men of Gibeah, did they?

So, what can we learn from this shocking story?

III. Lessons From This Immoral Age First, you might notice that the story ends with the same words it begins with in 19:1 (21:25). It's here to make a point. You see:

1. God puts government in place to restrain evil - Rom. 13:1-4 You may complain about the government and not one of them is perfect, but without it the world degenerates into the age of the Judges. Everyone does what they want and might makes right, survival of the fittest. Government serves God as an agent to punish evil and keep it under control, making life in the world tolerable. Secondly from this story we can learn that:

2. God will act to punish national evil Centuries later Hosea the prophet said to Israel in Hos. 9:9, They have sunk deep into corruption, as in the days of Gibeah. God will remember their wickedness and punish them for their sins. 10:9, "Since the days of Gibeah, you have sinned, O Israel, and there you have remained. Did not war overtake the evildoers in Gibeah?" Gibeah became a perpetual example for Israel that God will not let evil go forever; He will punish it. And that doesn't apply just to Israel. Listen to the words of Jer. 18:7-10. God is constantly at work among all the nations of the earth, restraining evil and administering justice. If we slide down the slope to where Gibeah was, there is a day of reckoning coming for us too. And that's why from this story we should learn that:

3. God needs His people to pray and act or we will indeed end up there. Paul said this: 1 Tim. 2:1-3. First priority, number one is pray! But what do we do most often? We complain a lot, but seldom do we pray for those in authority or about issues that are on our legislative table. In America, since government is by the people, God needs Christians to get involved and be part of the government, to run for public office and get on school boards and into township positions! He needs Christians to make godly views and opinions known. Yet many of us don't even bother, as simple as it is, to vote. Edmund Burke once said, "All that is necessary for the triumph of evil is that good men do nothing."

On the wall of the Holocaust Museum in Washington DC is a shortened engraving of these words by Martin Niemöller, a Christian pastor in Nazi Germany: When the Nazis came for the communists, I did not speak out because I was not a communist. When they came for the trade unionists, I did not speak out because I was not a trade unionist. When they came for the Catholics, I did not speak out because I was not a Catholic. When they came for the Jews, I did not speak out because I was not a Jew. Then they came for me, and there was no one left to speak for me. God has put us here to speak, to pray and to act. The only thing that stands between us and scenes like this one occurring right here is you and I.

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Tragedy: "Without Her Two Sons And Her Husband" - 1:1-5, 19-21

The little book of Ruth is a mere 85 verses long, yet it is absolutely revolutionary if you stop to think about it. First of all, this book is the record of the lives of two women, a mother-in-law named Naomi and a daughter-in-law named Ruth. While the landscape of the Old Testament is populated with the stories of men, one after the other, the lives of women normally come into view as they are related to the men. Yet here the men involved pass quickly off the scene in the beginning and are only secondary in the end; the heroine of this book is a woman who stands and acts on her own faith in God and, as a result, is used by Him to impact, not only the history of the nation of Israel, but to become part of the preparation for Christ's coming into the world. Then secondly, against the Old Testament backdrop of God's dealing with Israel, we find that Ruth is not even an Israelite! She is a Gentile, a Moabite who comes to faith in the True God, and in her we see early on God's heart for the nations, His desire that all the peoples of the earth should come to worship Him, that Jesus expressed so clearly as He commissioned His disciples. The story of Ruth is familiar to most of us, but we're going to look at it piece by piece in small sections and attempt to mine out the hidden treasures that God has buried in each one. I found that each section of the book contains a key phrase that sums up its point and I've tried to give each a one-word title to express that point succinctly for us. For instance, you can't read the first five verses without seeing that you are looking at a tragedy, which the dictionary defines as an event causing great suffering, destruction, and distress, such as a serious accident, crime, or natural catastrophe. Tragedies are one thing when you read about them, but they are something else again when they occur in YOUR life. So, as much as possible, I'd like us to try to put ourselves into the story and live through its Naomi and Ruth, so that we can more fully understand what God needs us to when tragedy invades our own lives or the lives of our loved ones or of those we minister to. Let's begin the process by thinking about:

I. The Tumultuous Time In Which Naomi Lived (1a) That tiny phrase says a mouthful. The period of the Judges is the segment of the history of Israel that lasted about 350 years. From the death of Joshua to the time of Saul becoming its first King, Israel was led by a series of men and women called Judges, temporary leaders that God raised up to deliver His people at various times. But the reason they were needed in the first place is that Israel perpetually went after other gods and between each deliverer the Lord made them live as a helpless conquered people impoverished by the surrounding nations, 8 years under the Syrians, 18 years under the Moabites, 20 years under the Canaanites, 7 years under the Midianites and 18 years under the Ammonites, and then came 40 years of oppression by the Philistines. Their conquerors demanded heavy tribute, impoverished them, and even destroyed and stole their livestock and crops wholesale in Gideon's days. Though scholars are divided, my best guess (based on the genealogy in chapter 4) is that Naomi lived around 1100 BC, which would place the beginning of her suffering during the 18 years of Ammonite rule before Jephthah was raised up to free Israel. The record says, they crushed and oppressed the people of Israel that year. For eighteen years they oppressed all the people of Israel who were beyond the Jordan in the land of the Amorites, which is in Gilead. And the Ammonites crossed the Jordan to fight also against Judah and against Benjamin and against the house of Ephraim, so that Israel was severely distressed. [Jud. 10:8-9] We have no concept of what it is like to live in a land that is continually subject to war and conquest, of the fear and uncertainty that creates. There was no central government to organize anything, no standing army to protect anyone, no recourse to turn to when suffering came and no way to predict what would happen next. That's why we have this sad summary in Jud. 21:25. For these centuries everyone was on their own and they did whatever they thought would help them the most. That is the environment in which Naomi lived and is really what begins:

II. The Tragic Litany Of Naomi's Sufferings (1b-5) For longer than ten years Naomi was struck with one sorrow after another. One author has called her a "female Job" and comments that she "out-Jobed Job". Her sufferings were every bit as deep, but instead of coming all in one day were stretched out over a decade. Of her early life and marriage to Elimelech we are told nothing, but likely she was thirty-ish and the mother of two teen boys when:

1. she was driven from her home by a famine On top of the poor economic conditions created by Israel's enemies, either a major drought occurred or God intervened through some other factor to create at least one and probably multiple years of crop failure in the region of Judah. The town of Bethlehem where she lived has a name that means "House of Bread", and is a strong agricultural region, what we might call a "breadbasket" area, known for producing food, and Elimelech and Naomi:

a. they were an agricultural family, dependent on their field's produce They lived in a house in the village and Elimelech and the boys went out to their family property in the surrounding countryside to work the crops and tend livestock every day. Their lives depended in a very real sense on the crops growing well every year. They ate what they grew and sold the rest to live on the remainder of the year. A season, and especially more than one, with little or no crop meant not simply financial ruin, but hunger and, potentially, starvation, since everyone in the whole region would be in the same straits. Let me illustrate with a more familiar picture from Aug. 2012: For the third time in ten years, drought is raging in the Sahel region of West Africa. The resulting famine could be the worst humanitarian crisis in history. Those living in the Sahel region of West Africa, which covers parts of [8 nations], have always had it tough... however, the current famine, which is expected to get much worse before it gets better, is even more serious than those in the past and aid organizations are struggling to cope. More than 18 million people are facing a food crisis and more than 1 million children under five risk severe acute malnutrition. To complicate things, this is an area where hundreds of thousands of people have already been displaced due to internal conflicts. [<http://metro.co.uk/2012/08/03/sahel-drought-in-west-africa-leading-to-crisis-as-millions-of-lives-at-risk-521534/>] You've seen pictures. The situation has not improved much in 2013. We hardly know what it's like to be in a situation where you're afraid you'll not have food for yourself and especially for your family, though for some of us it begins to hit home when you're out of work and can't get a job and unemployment runs out, or when you're a single mom with no one to turn to and you can't make enough to support the kids. In times like that people get desperate and tend to take whatever option they can find. This family sure did:

b. they "pawned" their property to finance their survival and moved out of Israel altogether. That's the best word I can think of to describe the fact that they sold their property (and probably their house in town) to someone else but retained the continuing right to redeem or buy it back at a future time under Israelite law. Then they took what money they scraped together from this and headed east down the mountains, across the Jordan River and around the far side of the Dead Sea about 60 miles, and then climbed again to the 3,000 ft. plateau of the country of Moab (in modern Jordan) to try to start a new life for themselves. It was not a good thing for people of faith to do, to forsake the land God had given them, their God-given inheritance, the place that He had assigned to them and in which their needs had always been supplied. But fear does powerful things to people, even Christians, driving them to do things they know are not in God's will, things they would never otherwise consider. Verse 2 makes it sound like it was mostly Elimelech's doing; maybe Naomi never did like the idea. We don't know, but at any rate it didn't pan out well.

2. she experienced life as a foreigner in Moab Now you need to understand that:

a. the Moabites were long-time enemies of Israel This was not like one of us moving to Canada or to England. It was more like moving to Russia during the cold war of the 60's! Even though they were cousins to the Israelites, the Moabites:

(1) they had opposed Israel in Moses' time before Israel entered the land. They had hired Balaam to curse Israel and because of their scheming, some 24,000 Israelites had defected to false gods and died. And to make matters worse:

(2) they had oppressed Israel in Ehud's time, some 250 years earlier according to Jud. 3:12-13. For 18 long years Moab had levied a heavy tribute upon Israel and oppressed them. They were hated enemies so Moab was not a place where they would expect a warm welcome or an easy adjustment. And, even if there was no famine and there were opportunities for employment:

b. the Moabites worshipped false gods, primarily their national god Chemosh, a god to whom his worshippers would actually offer their children as sacrifices in times of great distress, the ultimate abomination to the Israelites. Plus, like the worship of most Semitic gods, his worship involved ritual prostitution and sexual immorality. To a godly Israelite Moabites were immoral pagan idolaters.

Just imagine trying to start life over in a strange place where you are an outsider, where everyone is suspicious of you and talks about you behind your back, where they won't let their kids play with yours, where you don't dress or talk quite like they do, where you'll never fit in and "be one of them". And you don't want to, because you are repulsed by the very things they practice as necessary and normal to please their gods! Peter says that when Lot moved into the city of Sodom, that righteous man, living among them day after day, was tormented in his righteous soul by the lawless deeds he saw and heard (2 Pet. 2:8). I'm certain that Naomi felt the same way living in pagan Moab daily, but then, suddenly it seems, Elimelech died and:

3. she became a middle-aged widow with no husband Somehow, we always portray Naomi as an old woman, but if her sons were teens and married soon after the move, she was probably widowed at about 30-ish. Not only was that shocking and unexpected, it was totally devastating. It left her without a means of income and without a man's protection. And in Moab what man would ever marry a widowed Israelite with two extra mouths to feed, not that Naomi would ever want to marry such a pagan idolater anyway! In her eyes she had no future. Some of you know the devastation of losing a spouse. You prayed for our neighbor, who just this summer lost her husband at 52 with 2 older teens at home. Finances don't seem to be an issue with her, but you can see how much she realizes that the other half of her life is suddenly missing. Losing a spouse is hard, but at least Naomi had her two boys and they were nearly men. This was her saving grace, but very soon:

4. she watched both her sons marry Moabite women Now how this happened, I have no idea. You didn't just "fall in love" and marry in those days. Parents arranged marriages for their children, but:

a. there was no father and no wealth to arrange their marriages in Naomi's case. Usually, the boy's family would pay a significant dowry for the girl. How it was arranged we don't know, but as one writer put it, you can rest assured that Orpah and Ruth were not the "cream of the crop" in Moabite terms. And as a genuine believer, it must have broken Naomi's heart. If you remember:

b. Moabite women had led Israelite men into idolatry back in Num. 25:1-2 by inviting them to the sacrifices of their pagan gods and having sex with them. This is the reputation that Moabite women had to Israelites. And this is the cultural and religious climate that Ruth herself was born into; it was her norm, just the immoral way things were in her world! Oh, how many of us know the heartache of watching our children make poor choices, marrying unbelievers, being drawn away from the faith by it. But at least Naomi had a means of support and care in Mahlon and Chilion as ten more years went by, but then:

5. she watched both her sons die early and without children First one, then the other either became ill or were victims of tragic accidents or perished somehow. If the pain of losing a spouse is awful, the pain of losing a child may be even worse. And in Naomi's case, this seemed the very end of her world. In ten years neither marriage had produced grandchildren. Elimelech's line was at an end. The young widows were still bound to her as family but eventually they would remarry and there was nothing left for her, nothing. It is hard to convey the degree of sadness contained in the last words of verse 5, and the woman was left without her two sons and her husband.

Truly Naomi did suffer deeply, just as Job suffered. Yet while much of the entire long book is devoted to the expression of his feelings, here only a few verses reveal:

III. The Profound Reaction Which Naomi Experienced It is not until she returns to Bethlehem and speaks with her former neighbors that her true feelings fully come out, so let's skip ahead to verses (19-21). Now notice first of all that:

1. she openly expressed the painful thoughts her suffering produced She did not hide her pain from others or bury it, as we so often do. Somehow, we think that's the right thing, even the godly thing, to paste on a smile, get on with life and cry in private. But it's not. When suffering comes into your life, tell somebody how you feel. Yes, tell God! Tell Him all; He knows what you're thinking anyway! Come boldly to His throne and yell at Him if you need to! But certainly tell those you're close to or tell a counselor. Let people into your suffering; let them share in your suffering. They will help carry you and bear your burden! Look at the feelings Naomi was having:

a. she felt her life was now empty She was not rich materially when she left but in another way she was "full". In her world a woman's value lay almost solely in having a husband, supporting him and giving him sons that would carry on his name, so Naomi felt she had lost her whole meaning and purpose in life. It was all over. There was nothing left for her but to wait to die at 40 plus. She could not see how greatly God had already used her and the wonderful gift already standing by her side in Ruth, nor conceive that He had a further plan for her life. Suffering blinds us to so many things God wants to show us. Then notice that:

b. she felt God was against her and punishing her Because He had brought these things into her life, He must have found some evil in her; He must be punishing her for her sins. At every step He opposed her and didn't help her and made suffering worse. He didn't love her! Oh, how often has Satan sold us on that lie! Nonbelievers say, "If your God is real, why are you suffering so much? He's supposed to protect you from stuff like that!" And down deep, we tend to believe that very thing! Suffering blinds us to His great love and keeps us from coming to Him. On the other hand:

c. she felt God had ruined and shattered her life That word calamity or misfortune is literally "bad" and its root means to shatter. The phrase contains the sense of unfairness, "God is treating me as I don't deserve; He's punishing me without a cause; He's ruined my life without reason. He is wrong, unfair, unjust." Oh, dare we even say that as Job and Naomi did? Yet we experience that feeling. And to sum it all up:

d. she acknowledged the bitterness this had produced in her She said, "My name Naomi means the pleasant one. Don't call me that anymore; call me Mara, the bitter one, because God has acted extremely bitterly toward me and it has caused me to be bitter! It has changed me. I know that I'm resentful and angry because of all He's done!" Oh, that's where these feelings go if they're left to fester and grow. We become bitter people, hardened by suffering.

In his book Night, Holocaust survivor Elie Wiesel wrote, "Never shall I forget those moments which murdered my God and my soul and turned my dreams to dust. Never shall I forget these things, even if I am condemned to live as long as God Himself. Never." [Night, p. 32]. Tragedy will change us profoundly, and it can be for the worse, but if we will allow Him to walk with us through it, God will change us profoundly in the better direction of His own image. Lastly, I want you to notice that, even having confessed all these feelings, Naomi:

2. she confidently retained her faith in God in spite of suffering We see glimpses of it as she is talking to her daughters-in-law in (8-9). The name of the Lord is still boldly on her tongue as it always was and she still has hope that He will bless them, even though she sees nothing for herself. We see it in the clear difference she makes in verse (15). "Orpah has gone back to her gods. I still worship Jehovah, the only true God, and I'm going back where He is worshipped by all!" Like Job, her faith is shaken, but not destroyed. It is wounded, but it is not dead. She is angry with God and the way He has chosen to do things, but she will not turn to any other. That's a good place to be. God can work with that, as we'll see.

Some of you will recognize the name of Anita Bryant. She's 73 now, but at the age of 18 she was Miss Oklahoma and second runner up for Miss America. She was an outspoken believer, a career singer who entertained our troops overseas with Bob Hope, who sang for millions her rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and who did Florida Citrus commercials for 12 years. But in 1977 she along with others took a public stand against an ordinance that would allow homosexuals to teach in private and religious schools. The full venom of the Gay Rights movement was unleashed against her personally as a scapegoat. Personal threats, public humiliation in the media, and ultimately the loss of all her contracts brought so much pressure into her life that it broke her marriage in 1980. Her world caved in... She was caught between those who opposed her stand and the church which condemned her divorce. 11 years later she wrote a book called "A New Day" and here's what she said: "When disaster strikes your life or mine – or that of your pastor, neighbor, parent, son or daughter – God stands fast. The world may seem to sway and shift beneath your feet. Friends may desert you. Strangers may judge, curse or abuse you. Even Christians may at best misunderstand, or judge you, and at worst actually become malicious. Nevertheless, I'm here to tell you from firsthand experience: you are not alone. Despite the most horrifying, poor, hopeless circumstances, you need not be washed-up, finished or beyond hope. God is there, even when you cannot pray and desire not to pray. He knew your name before the foundation of the world. He holds your life in His eternal hands, and He will not let you fall, I know. Eleven years ago, amid the spectacular wreckage of my life, viewed before the whole world, my mind knew these things. At the same time, however for the first time in my experience, my mind also knew deep depression, fear, suicidal thoughts, anxiety, and grief. I had said I'd never divorce and when it occurred, I felt self-hatred in all its force, and with it the negative conviction that never, never, never could God ever restore the mess my life had become.... In desperate times, you either give in and give up or you get up and get out... Men's evil intentions could succeed in temporarily destroying my career, but what people mean for evil, God has used for good. I was to learn the unspeakable depths of God's richest love toward Anita Bryant - and you – not because of successful careers, fame, or fortune or any other such temporal thing, but that His love for His child surpasses all else in life and stands throughout eternity. Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Security: "Go Back... Find Rest" - 1:6-13

Last time we looked at the decade-long tragedy that had come into Naomi's life, living in a war-torn land, driven from her home by famine, struggling as a stranger in the pagan land of Moab, the untimely death of her husband and finally the death of both her sons. One after the other these things slowly stripped Naomi of absolutely everything in life. She had no means of supporting herself, no male to protect her and no heir to continue her family line. She felt like she was left with nothing, that she no longer had any value and her life was essentially over. She decided to do the only thing she could think of to do, even though she felt God was against her. She would go home to Bethlehem and take her chances at finding charity among her own people. Now let's pick up the story in verses (6-9). I want you to notice that word rest in verse 9. Rest is really what Naomi is seeking for herself; it's what she desires for her daughters-in-law and it is what we all want.

I. We Are On A Continual Search For Security It is one of our two most basic human needs, to know that we are safe. The other basic need is significance, to know that we matter and that we have value, something Naomi had obviously already lost and saw no opportunity of getting back. But the drive to find security, at least for others, was still on her mind. Let's think for a moment about

1. the concept of rest, a concept we find in a number of places in the Bible. The Hebrew word is menuchah, a resting place, a refuge where a person is safe and secure and can cease from anxious activity and be restored. We find the term used again in the same sense in 3:1. For a woman in Hebrew culture, the only true place of rest was in the house of a husband. Lange comments: The possession of a menuchah, an asylum of honor and freedom, is the highest happiness; the want of it, a terrible misfortune. Israel is told that that if she proved disobedient to God, she would have no menuchah, no place of rest, in Deut. 28:65. The holy land, was, as it were, the earthly house to which Israel had come, like a wife comes into the house of her husband. "Hitherto," says Moses in Deut. 12:9, "you have not yet come unto the menuchah, the resting place, which Jehovah your God gives you." The desert had no place of rest, properly speaking: it was only the way, not the goal. At the end of his life, David said, "The LORD, the God of Israel, has given rest to his people, and he dwells in Jerusalem forever - 1 Chr. 23:25, and Solomon echoed his sentiments in praising God for the complete gift of menuchah, of rest, to his people: Blessed be the LORD who has given rest to his people Israel, according to all that he promised - 1 Kings 8:56. In English the word security conveys the concept better. We all seek it; we all need it and people who lived 3,000 years ago seemed to seek it in the same ways we do today. Notice here several of:

2. the places where people have always sought security First of all:

a. we seek security in better economic situations In verse (6) it specifically mentions that Naomi was in the fields of Moab. Perhaps she was trying to glean grain for herself or maybe working as a day laborer for some Moabite landowner cultivating or harvesting, barely able to survive. But in the midst of her struggle, she heard news that came from home. After what must have been some 10 years of poor crops, the famine in Judah had ended and this season and maybe the previous one, the region of Bethlehem had been blessed with an abundance of crops. The harvest looked good. And, of course, the reason given by the writer is that it was the Lord's doing; it was Him looking on His people and caring about them and giving them bread once again. But to Naomi struggling in the field, this news was a dim ray of hope. She thought, "If I just go back home, at least maybe I can find a way to eat." Now let's pause a moment to highlight the plight of the poor. We come from a heritage of plenty and never think about what it's like for almost half the world, nearly 3 billion people, who live on less than $2.50 a day. 22,000 children die every day due to poverty. Three quarters of the people who live on less than a dollar a day live in rural areas in country villages struggling to survive any way they can like Naomi or like the Yenadi people we saw in India living under sheets of plastic draped over a framework made from tree branches. And worldwide the poor are doing what Naomi did, fleeing to the cities where rumor has it that they will find bread, a job. Yet there are none and so the slums in the large cities of the world are also growing at an alarming rate. We who have much tend to blame the poor for being poor because of our experience in the US, but in much of the world they work extremely hard, have nowhere else to go and no means of getting there if they did. They simply have no opportunity to improve their situation. Yet God cares about the poor and He hears their cry, especially the millions who are believers and somehow sustains them. We should hear it too and respond; Whoever is generous to the poor lends to the LORD, and he will repay him for his deed. - Prov. 19:17. God delights in using the poor, like Naomi, to serve His Kingdom purposes! But the point I would really like to make is that, poor or not, human beings always think security can be found simply by improving our economic situation and it can't. Secondly:

b. we seek security in marriage That's what Naomi is expressing in verse 9. "To have security, Ruth and Orpah, you young widows need to remarry. You need a husband. It's too late for me, but you're young. Go home and let your parents find you another. Then you'll find menuchah, rest." Let's consider for a moment the plight of widows. By the way, I would highly recommend a book by Carolyn Custis James called The Gospel of Ruth which you can get on Amazon. It has been very helpful in these studies. She writes, Without a father, husband, son, or other male relative to speak and act in her defense, a woman had no voice, no legal rights, and no recourse against injustice. Widowhood threw Naomi in with the weakest members of society — the widows, orphans, and foreigners. These at-risk individuals were defenseless because they lacked the necessary male connections to ensure their safety. In a world where the strong have historically (viciously at times) preyed on the weak, the dangers Naomi faced were not imaginary, but a brutal reality that Jesus exposed when he denounced the religious leaders of his day for "devouring widow's houses" [James, Carolyn Custis (2009-08-30). The Gospel of Ruth: Loving God Enough to Break the Rules (p. 62).] That is still true in much of the world today. A widow is a non-person, she basically ceases to exist when her husband dies. In India the government in recent times has outlawed the ancient practice of sati in which a widow would throw herself onto her husband's funeral pyre and burn to death with him! We don't think about the plight of widows much, but we ought to since the statistics are that 9 out of 10 women will spend some portion of their lives in widowhood! Jesus ministered to widows often during His time on earth and the early church took up the responsibility of caring for them almost immediately in Acts 6. James called attention to their need and Paul even wrote to Timothy extensive instructions for their care as part of church life. God loves widows. God values widows and He uses widows like Naomi and Ruth to advance His Kingdom on earth! But again, there is a caution. Human beings tend to believe that security can be found by getting married, by finding somebody else who will commit themselves to take care of me. But it can't. Then thirdly:

c. we seek security in children In biblical culture, Ruth and Orpah were in an even more desperate situation. Both had been married for roughly 10 years and never produced a child. Their prospects for remarriage were zilch. Let's take another moment to consider the plight of barren women, which is much the same today in many places in the world as it was then. Carolyn James asked a Tanzanian friend what happens in his country when a woman fails to conceive. He answered gravely, "She's in trouble. Her husband has grounds for divorce." He went on to explain that the problem extends beyond my question, for a woman is not simply under pressure to bear children, she must give birth to sons. In patriarchal cultures, sons are prized. Daughters are not. A daughter leaves to build another man's house. But a son will carry on his father's name, build his father's house, and inherit his father's wealth. A man must have a son. If his wife lets him down in this, his family will press him to discard her — either by divorce or polygamy — and find another wife who can produce a son. [James, Carolyn Custis (2009-08-30). The Gospel of Ruth: Loving God Enough to Break the Rules (p. 77)] No one even considers that the problem might lie with the husband. This practice is normal all through the Middle East. It happens routinely in Kyrgyzstan and many, many other places. A woman who cannot bear a child is of no value to much of the world, and even here, so many women feel that having a child is what will fulfill them, complete them. Or else it will give them someone from whom they will get the unconditional love they seek. How many go to intensely desperate measures to try to conceive, yet even having a child will not provide the security they seek. The bottom line everywhere in Scripture is that God opens the womb and God closes it; He is the giver of life who chooses to send each child into the world. And God uses and values childless women like Ruth! Despite the heartaches they endure, they play a major part in His story. Think of women like Sarah and Rebecca and Hannah and Elizabeth who faithfully loved and served Him for long years and only by a miracle conceived at last which declared His glory. God's word to the childless woman is Is. 54:1, "Sing, O barren one, who did not bear; break forth into singing and cry aloud, you who have not been in labor! For the children of the desolate one will be more than the children of her who is married," says the LORD. You are tremendously valued and God will bring forth more spiritual fruit from your life for His Kingdom than from many who have lots of physical children! Your menuchah is not in having children!

You see, there is always a:

II. The Choice That Always Lies Before Us Concerning Security and to understand it, let's go back to the story and examine:

1. the difficult choice that Ruth and Orpah faced (10-13) Keep in mind that society was different then than it is now. Orpah and Ruth were widows, but:

a. they were bound to their husband's house When they married, they left their family and became part of their husband's family and his line. The only survivor of that line was their mother-in-law Naomi and they were bound to her as family. They had the obligation to stay with her and care for her as their own mother. And on the other hand:

b. they were all the earthly security Naomi had She had nothing left but them, nothing, no money, no men, no children, just these two daughters-in-law, but at least she would not be alone to face the world. They would face it together. And so, the three started out on this journey to Bethlehem together, but even if that was her thinking as she started, she just could not press forward with it. Somewhere along the way she stopped and tried to send them home. Why? Because:

c. Naomi loved them enough to release them to give them a future In so many cultures the daughter-in-law is the slave of the mother-in-law. In Kyrgyzstan when a man marries, the wife moves into his parents' home and she becomes the family slave doing all the household work. She is often treated harshly and nobody thinks about her well-being. It seems this attitude has prevailed in many times and places. One ancient Roman writer says "that all mothers-in-law have ever hated their daughters-in-law". Another says that matrimonial peace is inconceivable so long as the mother-in-law lives. Germans have ancient maxims like "the mother-in-law has forgotten that she was ever a daughter-in-law" and "the best mother-in-law is one on whose gown the geese feed", i.e., who is dead. [Lange on Ruth 1:11]. But there is none of that among God's people, and certainly not in Naomi's heart. She cannot bring herself to think of binding Ruth and Orpah to meet her needs the rest of their lives. She loves them too much and they love her too much to be glad to go back. They weep over the thought of parting with her. Her love has touched their lives for a decade. They are drawn to her. They want to go with her. They love her. But let's understand the choice before them:

2. to go with Naomi to Bethlehem meant a loss of all security First of all:

a. it would probably mean a life of poverty Naomi, of course, could not provide for them financially and as widows bound to her, they would be forced to accept her lot in life, maybe even reduced to begging to survive, and that in a strange place where they would meet with the same negative reaction that Naomi had gotten when she came to Moab years earlier. And second:

b. it would probably mean foregoing marriage and children That's what Naomi is trying so pointedly to tell them. If they go home to their mothers, their families could potentially arrange another marriage in Moab for them. In Israel, first of all it is unlikely that anyone would want to marry a Moabite widow, much less one who had failed to produce children in 10 years! Naomi could provide no sure means of their ever being married. The only thing she could even imagine is the law of the Levirate marriage which says that in the event that a man dies childless, his brother (or nearest kin) must marry the widow and have a child to carry on his name. (By the way, keep this law in mind because the end of the story hinges on it.) But Naomi by this point was right at menopause and could not guarantee that she would ever have another son to marry them and even if she got married that very night, they would never be able to wait another 15 years for her son to be old enough to marry. They would be old themselves! In the natural their case was hopeless; in Israel they would have no future:

3. to go with Naomi was to cast their entire future upon Naomi's people and their God Their very lives would depend solely upon the mercy of the people of Israel toward them and upon the favor of Israel's God, Jehovah. And that wasn't a sure thing. In those days people conceived of their gods as being tied geographically to their lands. To the Moabite mind Chemosh was the god of Moab but he wasn't god in Israel, Jehovah was. Chemosh would be no help there. To survive there they would have to worship the God of the land, become worshippers of Jehovah like Naomi and hope that Naomi's god would accept them and help them! And out of love Naomi put that choice squarely in their laps, rather than forcibly dragging them with her.

That was a pretty sizeable wager to make! Do I choose to run to the security that I can see with my eyes, that lies, I believe, within my grasp? Or do I cast myself upon the love and grace of a God I can't see but whom I am told loves me? Every one of us must make that choice! We must either spend our lives running after things we believe will give us the rest we so desperately want as Orpah did or:

III. We Must Choose To Rest In God For Our Security as Ruth did. Look at the end of verse (16).

1. Ruth chose to trust in the God of Israel Over her ten years in Naomi's family watching and listening to her tell about her faith, even though she was in a bitter state at the moment, Ruth knew that Chemosh and the life he imposed upon his people was not worth it. It held no security. She chose Jehovah, the God of Naomi and Israel, the people of Naomi. When we meet him in the next chapter, Boaz understood that clearly (2:12). Ruth chose to seek her refuge, her rest, her security in God Himself and so must we. David testified in Psalm 62: My soul finds rest in God alone; my salvation comes from him. He alone is my rock and my salvation; he is my fortress, I will never be shaken.... Find rest, O my soul, in God alone; my hope comes from him. He alone is my rock and my salvation; he is my fortress, I will not be shaken. My salvation and my honor depend on God; he is my mighty rock, my refuge. Trust in him at all times, O people; pour out your hearts to him, for God is our refuge. Then listen to the words of Jesus Himself, Come to me, all who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest... I am gentle and lowly in heart, and you will find rest for your souls. - Mt. 11:28-29.

2. Jesus invites us to come to Him to find true rest, rest from all our anguished striving and struggling and trying to find our own ways to make ourselves secure in this world. Everything in our world and in our lives depends on Him and when we recognize how much He loves us, we can truly rest in Him. St. Augustine put it like this: Thou hast formed us for Thyself, and our hearts are restless till they find rest in Thee.

Kay Arthur writes: "The muffled, distant sound had broken the quiet reverie of his walk across the meadow. The sharp barking of a dog almost irritated him. It was abrasive in that tranquil setting. As the barking grew louder, his eyes scanned the meadow, looking for the culprit. Suddenly a small doe broke through the edge of the woods. Now he understood. Leaning against the fence post, the man watched with compassion as the doe cut across the broad expanse of meadow. She was running straight toward him. He stood motionless, not wanting to add the fear of man to the animal's frustration. As the frightened deer leaped the fence, she staggered. The chase had taken its toll. Her wet coat gleaming in the sun, the doe stopped, took a few steps in one direction, then, ears held high, looked back toward the sound of the barking. The dog had broken through the woods. Eyes wide with fright, seemingly confused and worn out, the doe surveyed her surroundings until she discovered the man standing beside the fence. Looking back again at the dog in hot pursuit, then at the expanse of open field before her, she turned weakly and walked straight toward the man and buried her head in his jacket. Compassion filled his eyes. She had found a protector." Where do you run in time of need? When the hounds of trouble, worry, and fear pursue you; when the dogs of temptation, corruption, and evil seek to overtake you; when your energy is spent; when weakness saps you and you feel you cannot run away any longer, where do you turn? "The name of the Lord is a strong tower; the righteous run to it and are safe" (Pro.18:10). [Lord I Want to Know You by Kay Arthur. Fleming H. Revell, 1984. Page 15.]

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Love: "Where You Go, I Will Go" - 1:14-22

At its core, the Book of Ruth is a love story. Only it is not the common type of love story about the romantic love of a man for a woman or vice versa, rather, it is the story of the extraordinary supernatural love of a daughter-in-law for her mother-in-law. Ruth loved Naomi in a way that astonished and amazed all who heard it and when we understand the depth of it, it will touch our hearts as well. Somewhere on the road leading out of Moab toward Jericho, there is a very special spot, the place where Naomi stopped to rest with her two daughters in law, Ruth and Orpah, and where she, out of great love for them, released them from their obligation to care for her so that they could to return home to their parents and have a chance to make a new life for themselves in Moab. And on that spot in that moment both Ruth and Orpah made a choice, a life-altering choice that would set the direction of the rest of their days. That choice is recorded powerfully for us in verse (14). Orpah kissed Naomi, but Ruth clung to her. Both of them loved Naomi, but Ruth loved Naomi in a much deeper way; she loved her with the sort of love that Jesus and Paul talked about in the New Testament, agape love, the kind of love that willingly sacrifices itself for the other's well-being whether or not the other deserves it or returns it. John Piper commented in one of his blog posts that while we often say, "Love is a choice", love is more than a choice and he points out: [\[www.desiringgod.org/blog/posts/love-is-more-than-a-choice\]](http://www.desiringgod.org/blog/posts/love-is-more-than-a-choice)

I. Three Important Facts About Real Love Yes, love:

1. it is a deliberate choice made with our will It is more than a warm emotional feeling toward someone. Piper comments that we say, "I fell in love" like love is some kind of ditch you stumble into, like love is something that just happens to you, that you have no control over. The truth is that love begins with a choice. You love people that you choose to love. It is an act of your will. You can choose NOT to love certain people even if your feelings want to and you can choose to love certain people that you don't really feel like loving. While we were still sinners, Jesus chose to love us and to die for us. Ruth made a choice to love Naomi enough to cling to her, to go back with her to Judah, to do what was best for her rather than for herself. But love is more than simply a choice:

2. it is based on a genuine desire of our heart Paul pointed out that you can give away everything you have and even deliver your body to be burned but without love it's of no value. There has to be true caring in the heart behind the decision. Jesus did not die for us simply because that was the right thing to do in God's eyes. His heart loved us and wanted to save us! Ruth did not simply stick with Naomi because that was the right thing to do, so she could say "I've done my duty". Her heart was in it. She truly wanted to protect and care for Naomi. She loved Naomi deeply, from the heart, just as 1 Pet. 1:22 admonishes us to do toward one another. And thirdly, this kind of love we're talking about:

3. it is produced by God Himself, not merely our own efforts In New Testament terms love is a fruit of the Spirit; it is something that the Spirit of God Himself produces in us, not something we generate. Rom. 5:5 says, ...God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit who has been given to us. That kind of love is a God thing, something He creates in us, not something we simply work up ourselves. And as we'll see, it was something that He created in Ruth.

Now let's go back to our text and look at:

II. The Natural Choice That Orpah Made (14-15) Orpah is often caricatured as being shallow and self-centered, but I don't think that's true at all. It seems obvious that:

1. she had great human affection for Naomi After all, she was packed up and already on the road with her to Bethlehem. She had every intention of going with her, just as Ruth did. And when Naomi first released them and told them to go back in verses 9-10, she wept and wailed just like Ruth did and both of them said to her, "No, we're going back with you to your people!" Orpah had come to love Naomi and have great affection for her. She didn't want to be separated from her and was surely concerned about what might happen to her. But:

2. when pressed, she ultimately chose a more certain future for herself Naomi argued harder in verse 13 and declared pretty clearly that they would have no future in Israel, no husband and no marriage and urged them more strongly to go back. So Orpah wept again, together with Ruth and Naomi; she was deeply grieved, thinking that she would probably never see Naomi again, yet in the end she embraced her mother-in-law, kissed her goodbye and started back down the road to Moab where she had parents waiting for her and maybe someday another husband and another life. And I wonder whether that last thing Naomi said is what tipped the scale for her, ...the hand of the Lord is gone out against me. I wonder whether Orpah believed her enough to think, "Her own god is against her and if I go with her, I might share with her in his displeasure. Is his displeasure with her what took away my husband from me already? Do I want to go to Israel and bet my future upon the favor of a god who has treated one of his own people like this, taking away everything from her?" We can only speculate about her thoughts, however Naomi does make it clear in verse 15 that in returning to her people Orpah was returning to her gods! With Naomi's urging and full approval she naturally chose a future that felt more secure to her, a future among her own people worshipping gods she knew and understood. But her choice stands in blazing contrast to:

III. The Amazing Choice That Ruth Made (16-17) Ruth's answer is one of the finest expressions of love that you'll find anywhere in Scripture. It rivals what the Scripture tells us about the love of Jonathan for David when it says ...the soul of Jonathan was knit to the soul of David, and Jonathan loved him as his own soul. - 1 Sam. 18:1. These verses are often used in weddings to express the depth of the love that should exist between husband and wife. In fact, I would bet, although I haven't been able to confirm it, that the promises Ruth made to Naomi probably helped the church form at least portions of the traditional wedding vows that it developed in the Middle Ages, especially the "until death do us part" line.

Ruth:

1. she had a true selfless love for Naomi and in this vow, she makes to her, she expresses it point by point. "Stop telling me to leave you and to quit following you. No matter how many times you say it, I won't do it. Where you go, I will go... She's saying, first of all, that:

a. she would never abandon Naomi She would never desert her or leave her to pursue her own interests. And think about what that meant for her. For Ruth to go where Naomi is going meant leaving her family behind permanently. It meant probably never seeing her father and mother or any siblings again. But no matter what the cost to her personally, she vows that she would not abandon Naomi. Real love does not abandon the one who is loved; it does not leave them when the going gets tough or forsake them when the strong pull of opportunity arises. And just think, is that not the love that God Himself has declared to you? ...for he has said, "I will never leave you nor forsake you." - Heb. 13:5. You have a promise from Almighty God that He will never abandon you, not for any reason, not under any circumstance, never, never, never. And that is the love that we are to have for one another! Then Ruth added, ...and where you lodge, I will lodge. By that she was promising that:

b. she would live in Naomi's circumstances That Hebrew word usually means "to stay the night". She means, "whatever place you find to stay, I'll stay in it with you; whether it is a tent or a palace doesn't matter. I will share whatever circumstance you encounter." Thus, in our vows we say, "for richer, for poorer". And for Ruth, joining in Naomi's circumstances probably meant poverty. In fact, we're not sure where Naomi and Ruth lodged when they arrived in Bethlehem. It is highly improbable that Naomi and Elimelech's house just sat there empty for a decade awaiting their return. It is more likely that it was sold, just like their land, before they left. When Francine Rivers tells the story of Ruth in her book, Lineage of Grace, (which I highly recommend, by the way), she pictures Naomi and Ruth finding shelter in one of the caves that the shepherds used near Bethlehem, and that could well have been the case. Real love for someone does not waver with circumstances, but rather endures in spite of them, just the way God's love for us endures no matter what befalls us. Then Ruth shares her deeper intent, ...your people will be my people.

c. she would leave her people to join Naomi's people, Israel In going with Naomi, she was not merely fulfilling the obligations of her marriage vows, nor simply acting out of personal love for her mother-in-law. She is vowing that she will become what Naomi is, a Jewess, with all that that entails. She will dress as the Jews dress; she will live as they live, practicing their culture and their customs. She will observe their holy days and feasts and obey their laws, and of course, there is the most important thing of all, ...and your God, my God.

d. she would leave her gods to worship only Naomi's God, Jehovah For her the choice she made that day was about far more than the choice to love Naomi; it was choosing Naomi's God to be her own, forsaking Chemosh and Baal and all the other pagan gods she had known growing up in Moab. She was forsaking them all to follow Him. Ruth is almost a female version of Abraham, who lived in pagan Ur and whose family worshipped other gods. But in that pagan place God revealed Himself to Abraham and the writer of Hebrews says, By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place that he was to receive as an inheritance. And he went out, not knowing where he was going. By faith he went to live in the land of promise, as in a foreign land, living in tents with Isaac and Jacob... - Heb. 11:8-9. Like Abraham, Ruth left behind her pagan culture, placed her trust in Jehovah, the true God, and set out to pursue Him in a land she didn't know at all and in circumstances that would probably prove to be poor and temporary. Only, unlike Abraham, she did it without any promise to claim! This moment on the road to Bethlehem is the moment of her true conversion, of her placing complete trust in Jehovah God. And look what she vows next, ...where you die, I will die and there will I be buried! Think about that for a moment. Obviously, Naomi is older and they both know that Naomi would normally die before Ruth. She's saying:

e. she would never go back even after Naomi died "And when you die, I'm staying. I'm never going back home to Moab and back to my pagan gods. I'm becoming a Jewess and a worshipper of Jehovah forever. I will be buried there in Israel, just like you! No matter what happens to you, my commitment is permanent and will not change!" And by the end:

f. she sealed her vow with an oath to Naomi's God She called on Jehovah Himself to be the witness to her promise and to punish her to the severest extent possible if she violated it. The writer of Hebrews explains, Men swear by someone greater than themselves, and the oath confirms what is said and puts an end to all argument [6:16]. When the ancients swore an oath before God they fully expected Him to enforce it; nobody would dare to lie under oath for fear of God's retribution. For Ruth to seal her vow with an oath to Jehovah settled the matter permanently as far as both earthly parties were concerned; to renig on such a vow was tantamount to forfeiting life itself in their eyes. Thus verse (18). It was settled. Ruth was going, end of story.

What an amazing choice Ruth made, not only to selflessly love Naomi, but to love Naomi's God and to do it forever! And here's:

2. what makes this choice truly amazing (19-22) We've already looked more closely at verses 20-21 when we talked about Naomi's attitude. The amazing thing about Ruth's choice is that:

a. she made it in spite of Naomi's own bitterness toward God Naomi wasn't in the best frame of mind to represent God well. She was angry at Him. She blamed Him. But Ruth chose to worship Him anyway! And:

b. she followed through without further encouragement from Naomi Verse 18 literally says that when Ruth swore her oath, Naomi ceased speaking to her.

(1) Naomi expressed no joy or gratitude over her choice If that was me, I'd have been jumping up and down thanking God for Ruth sticking by me, thanking God for Ruth's conversion, thanking Ruth for loving me, saying something! Naomi just turned in silence and walked on toward Bethlehem while Ruth fell in step! And then you'll notice that when they finally arrive after their long journey:

(2) Naomi did not acknowledge her to the women of Bethlehem All the women gather round her and she boldly declares how empty her life is and how bitter she is and how she has nothing left, and there stands Ruth off to the side, ignored, probably snubbed by the women. I'd be thinking, "But what about me? Am I not SOMETHING? Am I not the one positive thing you have left?" Naomi doesn't even mention her presence and yet Ruth proves true to her choice in spite of it all, true both to Naomi and to God!

Nobody but God can produce a love like that for someone else or for Himself. That kind of love is truly a work that only His Spirit can do. Father Maximilian Kolbe, was a Catholic priest who was a prisoner at Auschwitz in August 1941. One day a prisoner escaped from the camp, and in reprisal, the Nazis ordered that ten prisoners would be chosen to die by starvation. At the risk of being shot, Maximilian Kolbe spoke up and requested that he be allowed to take the place of one of the condemned men who was weeping over his family. Strangely, his request was granted. The Nazis kept Kolbe in the starvation bunker for two weeks and then put him to death by lethal injection on August 14, 1941. Thirty years later a survivor of Auschwitz described the effect of Kolbe's action: "It was an enormous shock to the whole camp. We became aware that someone among us in this spiritual dark night of the soul was raising the standard of love on high. Someone unknown, like everyone else, tortured and bereft of name and social standing, went to a horrible death for the sake of someone not even related to him. Therefore, it is not true, we cried, that humanity is cast down and trampled in the mud, overcome by oppressors, and overwhelmed by hopelessness. Thousands of prisoners were convinced the true world continued to exist and that our torturers would not be able to destroy it. We were stunned by his act, which became for us a mighty explosion of light in the dark camp." [A Book of Saints, Anne Gordon - BILL Norman Markham, Ontario]. Ruth's act of self-sacrifice for Naomi is likewise stunning and is an explosion of light in the midst of the tragedy and suffering in her and Naomi's lives, light that was likewise born out of the faith in God she had come to embrace. Carolyn James writes: Ruth is a powerful reminder that the most important thing in all of life — the purpose for which we were all created — is to know the God who made us and to walk through life as his child, no matter what it costs us. Even when we are standing at ground zero — when we are hurting, God is silent, and our suffering makes no sense — we have no other place to go. And so, Ruth clings to Naomi and turns her face toward Bethlehem. [James, Carolyn Custis (2009-08-30). The Gospel of Ruth: Loving God Enough to Break the Rules (p. 52)]

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Toil: "Let Me Go To The Fields" - 2:1-9, 14-18

Let's rejoin the story of the book at 1:22. That sounds simple enough, but the journey that Naomi and Ruth made in returning from Moab to Bethlehem was not an easy one. The distance was more than 60 miles and they made it on foot while carrying whatever possessions they could. I'm guessing it took them nearly a week, camping by the road or in small villages each night. Their path included the infamous 5-mile steep uphill climb up the mountains from Jericho to Jerusalem where Jesus talked about a man attacked by robbers and being helped by a Samaritan. Indeed, the entire journey was dangerous for two women to attempt alone and unprotected and I'm sure that their arrival was due in large measure to Ruth's strength and courage, as well as God's watchcare over them. But at last, they arrived to find:

I. The Improved Situation In Bethlehem Naomi had heard in the fields of Moab that the Lord had visited His people with food, with abundant crops once again and they found it true. They arrived in Bethlehem just after the Passover and the Feast of Unleavened Bread in April. The Feast of First fruits, seven days after Passover, was the official beginning of the barley harvest when the first sheaves harvested were offered to the Lord. Barley is a grain crop like wheat, but ripens earlier. Fields of barley surrounded Bethlehem with their amber waves of grain blowing in the wind as Naomi and Ruth walked by, ready to be harvested. Actually:

1. Israel had several seasons of harvest As an agricultural society, her year revolved around them. The barley harvest came first, beginning in mid-April on our calendar. It was followed by the wheat harvest in June, which was celebrated by the Feast of Pentecost seven weeks after First fruits. Finally in late September came the harvest of fruits, especially the grapes in the vineyards which was celebrated at the Feast of Tabernacles in October. From the beginning of the year to its end Israel celebrated God's goodness in providing for them; in fact, the traditional Jewish blessing at table that has been used from antiquity is, Blessed art thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who bringest forth bread from the earth. It is a reminder that food does not magically appear in plastic bags and containers in a store. It comes to us through the hard work and labor of many, but ultimately God is the one who feeds us; it is He who makes grain to grow so we can have bread and vegetables and fruits and all the good things we enjoy eating. They come from His hand. But even as God gave good harvests to His people:

2. Israel had a mechanism to care for the poor: the process of gleaning which Ruth seizes upon in verses (2-3). When a field of grain was harvested, a line of men with sickles would go first. They would cut the stalks of standing grain and lay them in piles. Then would come a group of women who would tie the bundles together into sheaves and stand them upright to dry. Later they would be collected and taken to a threshing floor where the sheaves were beaten or trampled to separate the grain from the straw and the chaff. But in the process of harvesting God built into His law a way for poor people who did not own land or those had fallen on hard times, like widows, to share in the bounty. And when you reap the harvest of your land, you shall not reap your field right up to its edge, nor shall you gather the gleanings after your harvest. You shall leave them for the poor and for the sojourner: I am the LORD your God. - Lev. 23:22. When you reap your harvest in your field and forget a sheaf in the field, you shall not go back to get it. It shall be for the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow, that the LORD your God may bless you in all the work of your hands. When you beat your olive trees, you shall not go over them again. It shall be for the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow. When you gather the grapes of your vineyard, you shall not strip it afterward. It shall be for the sojourner, the fatherless, and the widow. - Deut. 24:19-21. The poor were allowed to go into the fields during all the harvests and gather for themselves whatever was left. Now this was a creative system:

a. it gave those with much the obligation to be generous. They were to deliberately leave the grain at the edges and corners standing and not to be thorough in picking up every last stalk or sheaf on purpose. It was a means of being generous and helping the poor. And at the same time:

b. it gave those with little the opportunity to earn their way They were not handed a welfare check; they had to go out and pick it up and thresh it themselves. They had to go out and invest their own sweat and toil to feed themselves; it gave them the opportunity to work like everyone else, an opportunity they would not otherwise have had. And so, Ruth saw the bounty in the fields around them and immediately seized upon this custom of gleaning as the means for her and Naomi to survive. Now this morning I want us to focus on:

II. The Industrious Character Of Ruth Naomi is not old, but she is older and perhaps weakened by the long journey or even still too depressed by her circumstances to do much about her situation. But Ruth is a go-getter. She is a woman determined to survive and to care for the mother-in-law she loves. She is an example to be emulated. First of all:

1. she displayed initiative in verses (2-3). That phrase, Let me go to the fields, pretty much characterizes Ruth's attitude. It was her idea to go into the fields to glean. She came up with it, not Naomi; she was ready to go and work and do something about her situation. And it was not without its risks. Not all landowners followed the law or were generous. She could be driven away, or worse, she was a foreign woman alone in the fields and she could be harassed or even molested by the men. It was not as easy as it sounds for Naomi to say, Go, my daughter. But Ruth had the courage to brave the hazards and take the step to go anyway. Are you willing to step out of your comfort zone and seize the opportunities that God puts before you? Yet in the process:

2. she interacted with humility Listen to how the overseer in Boaz' field describes Ruth's approach in (5-7a). She did not just assume her right to glean but approached the man in charge and humbly asked to be allowed into the field to glean. Indeed, we'll see later in all her interactions in this chapter she always speaks with humility, never assumes anything for herself, and everyone is greatly impressed by it. I'm sure there were other poor people out in the fields gleaning and I can just picture it, rushing to garner the largest uncut spot or to grab up the biggest pile of missed stalks for themselves, maybe even shoving others out of the way in their desperation. Have you ever seen video of food trucks delivering supplies in a refugee camp and how they're often swamped by hungry people all shoving to be first? Initiative is good, but it must be combined with humility in our interactions with others. Then notice how Ruth:

3. she labored with vigor (7b) She had worked hard all morning. The Hebrew here is difficult to translate; some versions say with not even a brief rest, while others take it as with only a brief rest. Either way, she had worked for six solid hours bent over in the hot sun, pretty much without stopping. She had a strong work ethic; she didn't just do enough to get by for the day but she gleaned all she could while there was opportunity. I'm reminded of Paul's words: Now we command you, brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that you keep away from any brother who is walking in idleness... For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us, because we were not idle when we were with you, nor did we eat anyone's bread without paying for it, but with toil and labor we worked night and day, that we might not be a burden to any of you. It was ...to give you in ourselves an example to imitate. For even when we were with you, we would give you this command: If anyone is not willing to work, let him not eat. - 2 Thes. 3:6-10. Ruth embraced the principle of working hard and:

4. God blessed her labor (17) She worked until it was growing dark, then found a rock and beat the huge pile of stalks she'd gathered against it and gathered the barley into her shawl and it amounted to a whole ephah, about 3/5 of a bushel basket or perhaps about 30 pounds. Picture a 30 pound sack of rice or bag of dog food as she carries it back home! Now she had a little help as we'll see, but one source says that old Babylonian records from that era indicate that a male worker's take-home pay for a day's labor was rarely more than one or two pounds. So, in one day Ruth gleaned the rough equivalent of a half-month's wages or more, a minimum of fifteen times what Boaz's harvesters were [probably] pocketing as a fair day's wage. James, Carolyn Custis (2009-08-30). The Gospel of Ruth: Loving God Enough to Break the Rules (p. 112). God tends to bless hard labor. Solomon said, Lazy hands make a man poor, but diligent hands bring wealth. - Prov. 10:4. And I think God blessed Ruth especially because:

5. she had an unselfish purpose (18) She did it all for Naomi, not herself primarily! She did it to care and provide for her. She even saved her a portion of her own lunch that she'd been given! She didn't just work in order to get; she worked in order to give! And finally note that:

6. she persevered in her labor (23) She kept this up every day from the middle of April until the end of June when the wheat harvest finished and there would be no more gleaning to do! For more than two whole months she didn't stop; she gathered all she could to store it up because she knew leaner times would be coming!

What a woman! She was a true Proverbs 31 woman of great virtue and well worth imitating. But meanwhile another character has entered the story line. The field she ends up gleaning in happens to belong to a man by the name of Boaz, who happens to be a relative of Naomi and Elimelech, and we can learn as much from:

III. The Generous Nature Of Boaz as we can from the industrious nature of Ruth. Now verse 1 literally says that:

1. he was a "great" man (1) That specific phrase is translated a mighty man of valor some 40 times in the Old Testament and almost always refers to a person distinguished in battle. So maybe in his younger days, Boaz had actually served admirably in the military actions of Israel against her oppressors. At any rate he had become a man of standing in Bethlehem, a man respected and well known, and certainly a prosperous and well-to-do man in these last years with the reversal of the devastating famine. But more importantly:

2. he had a genuine love for God that permeated his work life Look how he greeted his workers as he arrived at his field that day (4). All his workers knew he was a man who loved God and operated according to His laws. He was not ashamed of his faith and as you read the book, the name of the Lord is often on his lips when he speaks. It was just a natural thing to him. Now I realize that many of us work in environments where we need to exercise some caution in sharing our faith, but for the most part we're free to mention the Lord as a natural part of our daily personal conversations and really, our love for God should permeate our work life. It should govern our principles; we should pray for our coworkers and realize that God has put us into their lives to bless them, just as Boaz was a blessing to those who worked for him. But what really shines here is that even though Boaz was wealthy, he did not get that way by being stingy.

3. he displayed true generosity to the poor When he noticed a strange woman in the field and learned that she was the daughter in law of his relative Naomi, there was no romantic interest, as we often try to read into the story. The whole town knew that these two poor widows had come back from Moab and were struggling to survive. He knew Ruth was a poor woman struggling against huge odds to care for her mother-in-law so:

a. he made sure that Ruth was protected (8-9) He realized the dangers she might face in the fields of others so he encouraged her to stay in his field and he strictly warned his reapers to let her alone because he knew what could otherwise happen. He even invited her to share the water that had been carried to the field for the workers. When the midday break came:

b. he made sure that Ruth had food and rest as she labored (14) Boaz had put up a simple shelter to provide shade for his workers and he invited her to come eat with them and share their bread and roasted grain. He actually served her personally, as though she was his guest, and gave her more than she could eat. And because he knew how desperate her situation was:

c. he made sure Ruth would glean more than normal (15-16) He instructed his workers to let her come right in among them and glean, not to keep her away and even to intentionally drop stalks for her to pick up. That's how she accumulated so much by the end of the day! He was making sure she would begin to lay up a store for her and Naomi.

What a generous man! He was not thinking of himself and greedily hanging on to his property to accumulate more. And he gave not only that day but all the way through the seasons of the harvest. In God's economy hard work and generosity go hand in hand. Paul used the analogy of sowing and reaping to encourage US to be generous with what He provides to us: ...whoever sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and whoever sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. Each one must give as he has decided in his heart, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound to you, so that having all sufficiency in all things at all times, you may abound in every good work.... He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the harvest of your righteousness. You will be enriched in every way to be generous in every way, which through us will produce thanksgiving to God.

There is a legend that one day a beggar by the roadside asked for alms from the famed Greek conqueror Alexander the Great as he passed by. The man was poor and wretched and had no claim upon the ruler, no right even to lift a solicitous hand. Yet the Emperor threw him several gold coins. One of his attendants was astonished at Alexander's generosity and commented, "Sir, copper coins would adequately meet a beggar's need. Why give him gold?" Alexander responded, "Copper coins would suit the beggar's need, but gold coins suit Alexander's giving." How you give to others, how generous you are with what God has given you, is a reflection of your own character and heart. In whatever situation God has placed us, let us determine to be industrious like Ruth and at the same time generous like Boaz. God wants both.

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Trust: "Under Whose Wings You Have Come To Take Refuge" - 2:10-13

In our study of chapter 2 last time, we looked at Ruth's industrious character, going out to glean in the fields and working hard and also at Boaz' generous character, caring for a poor widow struggling to support her mother-in-law. But, if you noticed, I deliberately omitted the best part, the beautiful dialogue between Ruth and Boaz which occurred that morning as Boaz began speaking with her to encourage her to stay in his field and not go elsewhere in verses 10-13, and I did that so that we could give it our full attention today. It is here that we learn the full truth about what has really happened in Ruth's life in her choice to come to Israel with Naomi. Now even in the first words she speaks to Boaz we are reminded that:

I. Ruth Was A Foreigner (10) In fact, five separate times in the book when her name is mentioned the author deliberately calls her Ruth the Moabite as in verse 2. There is a continual reminder that she does not belong, that she is not an Israelite, that she is different from the people of Jehovah and has no status in their eyes. Even as Boaz speaks kindly to her, she seems to be astonished that he is treating her that way and openly calls herself a foreigner.

1. she realized that she had no right to anything in Israel There was a long negative history between Moab and Israel and God Himself had decreed this in Deut. 23:3-4, No Ammonite or Moabite may enter the assembly of the LORD. Even to the tenth generation, none of them may enter the assembly of the LORD forever, because they did not meet you with bread and with water on the way, when you came out of Egypt, and because they hired against you Balaam the son of Beor from Pethor of Mesopotamia, to curse you. Now the Jewish commentators, wanting to explain the exception for Ruth, say that this applied only to men, not women, but I doubt Ruth understood it that way. She accepted her place and knew she had no right to any kind of mercy in Israel, and:

2. she was humble enough to be thankful for the grace she was shown She did not share the animosity of her people toward Israel. She did not rail against the animosity and coldness that she surely must have felt from others. She simply fell on her face before Boaz with an attitude of thankfulness for him taking notice of her and helping her in a way that she had not expected from anyone. And:

3. she was insightful enough to inquire the reason for it, to ask him why, Why are you treating ME, a foreigner, with such undeserved kindness? What a humble unassuming heart she had! Paul had that same attitude. Looking back at his past, he wrote the Corinthians, For I am the least of the apostles, unworthy to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God. But by the grace of God I am what I am... - 1 Cor. 15:9-10. And to the Ephesians he wrote, To me, though I am the very least of all the saints, this grace was given, to preach to the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ - Eph. 3:8. In spite of his many accomplishments and his hard labor and his enduring of great suffering, Paul never forgot that he didn't deserve anything that he had received; any standing or status that he was given was purely by God's grace, just as Ruth's was. And that helps us realize that Ruth:

4. she is a picture of all of us non-Jews We were all foreigners and strangers. Look with me at Eph. 2:11-12. Do you realize Paul is talking about us! We are Gentiles; we had no part in the privileges that God gave to His people Israel through His promises to Abraham. We were Moabites - and Philistines and Germans and Italians and Indians and Chinese; we were strangers, aliens to God's people. Truly:

a. we were without God and without hope in the world, to me the saddest words in the Bible. We were just like the Yenadi in the villages of India or the Yanomami in the jungles of Brazil before missionaries and evangelists came to tell them about Jesus or like thousands of other unreached peoples are still today, without knowledge of the true God and without any hope at all for eternity. That was our corporate history; it IS our corporate history! It is the state of our people among whom we live, even though they do know information about God. Apart from Christ, they are without hope and without God in the world, just as we personally were at one time. But look at verses 13, 19. Hallelujah!

b. we have been made members of God's own people We've been grafted into God's people, even though we didn't belong and had no right to it. We've been taken into His household and given full status as His very children, sons and daughters, made part of His family. What God did for Ruth in taking her into His people and receiving her as a worshipper of His, He did for us, even though we didn't deserve it, even though we all sinned and fell short of the glory of God, even though there was nothing in us or about us that would merit Him giving His Son to save us! Now in verse 11 we have Boaz' answer to Ruth's question (11). In a small town like Bethlehem, everybody knows everything about everybody and Ruth was evidently the talk of the town. Boaz had never met her, but he had already been told the whole story of how:

II. Ruth Forsook Everything Native To Her and how behind it all:

1. her driving motive was love for her mother-in-law Now ladies, if your husband died, what would your deepest concern be? Your kids, I know, but if you didn't have any, like Ruth, would caring for your mother-in-law be at the top of your list? And even if you did feel the weight of having to care for her because there was no one else to do it, wouldn't you be more likely to fit her into the plans that you knew you had to make for yourself to survive? An ordinary person in Ruth's situation would have stayed in Moab, depended on their parents and sought remarriage there and maybe found a way to help Naomi in the process. But nobody forsakes everything to go follow her mother-in-law on a wild goose chase to an unpromising future! Everybody who saw what Ruth had done, saw the same thing, how much she loved her mother-in-law, Moabite or not! It was striking to them. For the love of Naomi:

2. she left every relationship she had in life including her family Her own mother and father had always been right there, had always been part of her life, even during the 10 years of marriage to Mahlon. Her brothers and sisters had been nearby and all their children. Her childhood friends, the other young wives in her village whom she met at the well every day, the older couples who helped her and her husband get started in married life, every last person who meant anything to her, she left behind and never expected to see them again. All for the love of Naomi! In fact:

3. she left everything associated with her native land. Any missionary can tell you that leaving your people to live among another is a difficult thing. It means speaking the rest of your life in a new language (or in this case a different dialect). It means eating someone else's traditional foods instead of what you like and following another culture's rules and expected behaviors rather than the ones you're familiar with. And some of those may be radically different. Israelites lived by a stringent set of laws. One day each week they didn't even work! Everybody had to celebrate seven festivals each year and give away a tithe of their yields to others. Ruth even left behind the worship of the gods that had been familiar to her since childhood, and to a Moabite that would have been a scary thing. What if Chemosh or Baal became angry? What would they do to me if I stop offering sacrifices to them? Everybody could see plainly the great price that Ruth had paid because of her love for Naomi! And she left it all without any assurance of what she was going to; she left it to come to a people that she did not know before, that she had no experience with. Essentially:

4. she did it entirely on faith, just like Abraham did. In Gen. 12:1, The LORD had said to Abram, "Leave your country, your people and your father's household and go to the land I will show you." And Heb. 11:8 comments, By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to go out to a place that he was to receive as an inheritance. And he went out, not knowing where he was going. Like Abraham, Ruth took a great leap of faith; she left behind everything that held any certainty for her to go to a land she'd never seen, to a people she'd never known except as enemies and to a God she had never prayed to. On all counts she was hoping against hope that this land, this people and this God would accept her but even if they didn't, she was willing to die trying to care for her mother-in-law in the process! Now in that respect, God has given us a great illustration in Ruth of the fact that:

5. Jesus expects us to forsake all to follow Him He said it very clearly in Mat. 10:37-38, Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me, and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me. And whoever does not take his cross and follow me is not worthy of me. Jesus may not call us to move to a strange place and to physically leave everyone and everything familiar to us, but He still demands of us that same love. We are called to love Him supremely, above all else, so much that it supersedes our love for anything else, even our own families and even our very life itself. In the words of Ps. 45:10-11, Listen, O daughter, consider and give ear: Forget your people and your father's house. The king is enthralled by your beauty; honor him, for he is your lord! The example of Ruth's great love for Naomi, her willingness to give up everything for her, encourages us to do the same for Jesus. And the great leap of faith she took is also what we must do. You see:

III. Ruth Sought Refuge In Jehovah, The God Of Israel Boaz continues in verse (12). There is the key phrase in this whole section, ...the God of Israel, under whose wings you have come to take refuge. The King James says, under whose wings you have come to TRUST. That's what Ruth had done; she, a foreigner, had taken a leap of faith into the arms of Jehovah, the God of Israel. And so do we who were without God and without hope in the world. We take a leap of faith into the arms of Jesus; we cast ourselves completely upon His mercy and grace. There are two beautiful metaphors here in Boaz' words that describe it. First, he says that:

1. God is our refuge and the word refuge has two shades of meaning. First of all, it can mean a place where protection is to be found, only in this case the protection is not a physical place but a person, God Himself.

a. He is the One we flee to in danger I probably shouldn't tell you this but when LuAnn was in her lower school years, her younger brother was a lot smaller and weaker than she was but he tended to have a big mouth and get himself in situations where kids wanted to beat him up. So, when he was in danger, he would come running to LuAnn because she was bigger and stronger and the other kids were afraid of her. She was his refuge, the one he ran to for protection. You know Ps. 46:1, God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble. When we recognize that we are in danger, we run to Him because He is mightier than we are and He is always close by. But secondly, the reason you run to a refuge is because you trust in its ability to protect you. So, God:

b. He is the One we trust in to save us from destruction - Ps. 57:1 Be merciful to me, O God, be merciful to me, for in you my soul takes refuge; in the shadow of your wings I will take refuge, till the storms of destruction pass by. Ruth ran to the God of Israel and placed her trust in Him to protect her from destruction. She rested in that protection. And that is exactly what we did when we first recognized that we were lost and in eternal danger; we ran to Jesus and trusted in Him to save us from that everlasting destruction. By faith we rested in the truth that His death for us on the cross took away the guilt of all our sins and saved us from the hell that awaited us. We have taken refuge in HIM! Then, just like the Psalmist, Boaz says in the same phrase that:

2. we seek refuge "under His wings" Now the metaphor is about birds and how a mother bird will use her broad wings to enfold her vulnerable, defenseless young underneath herself and keep them shaded from the harsh sun, warm in the cold night, dry in the rain and safe from all attackers. The wings most often referred to throughout the Old Testament are the wings of the eagle, the most powerful bird of prey, the strongest of all. Picture a nest of young eaglets, high on a cliff, gathered safely under the mighty wings of their mother. In the same way:

a. we trust that we are sheltered "under His wings" - Ps. 36:7 says, How precious is your steadfast love, O God! The children of mankind take refuge in the shadow of your wings. And I'm sure you know Ps. 91, He who dwells in the shelter of the Most High will abide in the shadow of the Almighty....He will cover you with his pinions [that is, the outer edges of his wings with the flight feathers], and under his wings you will find refuge; his faithfulness is a shield and buckler. - 1,4. Think how safe those helpless baby eagles feel and are in the shelter of their mother's wings; in the same way, as God's children we abide continually under His mighty protection. In fact, Jesus used a similar metaphor to show us that:

b. He desires to gather us "under His wings" Speaking to Israel, He said in Mat. 23:37, ...How often would I have gathered your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing! A mother hen does the same thing as a mother eagle; she uses her outstretched wings to sweep her chicks to shelter, to gather them underneath herself. She wants to protect them; she wants to keep them safe, but they keep trying to run out and explore the dangerous world on their own and she has to keep sweeping them back to the safety of her wings. So even more than we may want to run underneath the refuge of His wings, HE wants us there! He is constantly trying to keep us there trusting Him while we so often try to push outside and go our own way! But not Ruth, she ran to Israel and hid under Jehovah's wings, trusting her very life to His protection. What a beautiful way to put it! And in verse 12 Boaz assures us that:

3. God will fully reward our trust both in this life and eternity He will repay us for what we have done here out of love for Him and give us a full reward of glory in eternity. Just as God rewarded Ruth's leap of faith as we'll soon see in this story, so Jesus will reward ours both in this life and eternally.

Now in vs. 13 we have Ruth's response to Boaz (13) You see:

IV. Boaz Genuinely Accepted Ruth You have to realize that:

1. His words are Ruth's first assurance of acceptance by Israel and her God He is the first person she meets in Israel to receive her warmly, to speak kindly to her, to treat her with the same care as one of his own. And he is the first to tell her that the God of Israel wants her too, that she is acceptable to Him, that her huge leap of faith has not failed, that both Israel and God WILL have her because of her sincere heart. She says his words:

2. they comforted her and [literally] spoke to her heart. Her use of the word comfort gives us a hint of the great anxiety she must have had all these days of her trip and even as she went out to glean. "Will I be accepted? Will anyone receive me or will they all hate and despise me? Will anyone help me? Will Jehovah God want me?" And as Boaz speaks to her and answers yes to all of the above, you can just see all the anxiety drain away. She knows she is safe, she is protected, she will have food and she has found favor with God, even though she is a foreigner. Peace has come, just as it does to us when we realize that:

3. Christ genuinely accepts all who come to Him Look with me at Jn. 6:37-40. What assurance! It is the will of God the Father that you, the one who has come to Jesus for refuge, the one who has looked on the Son and believed in Him, should never be lost. It is His will that YOU should have eternal life, that you should rest securely under the shadow of His wings.

Queen Victoria of England once heard a sermon in St. Paul's Cathedral that greatly impressed her. Later she asked her chaplain, "Is it possible to be absolutely sure in this life of eternal safety?" He replied, "I know of no way that one could be absolutely sure." This incident was later published in the "Court News", widely circulated, and came to the attention of a minister of the gospel by the name of John Townsend. After much thought and prayer, he sent the following letter to the Queen: "To her gracious Majesty, our beloved Queen Victoria, from one of her most humble subjects. With trembling hands but love-filled heart, and because I know that we can be absolutely sure even now of our eternal life in the home Jesus went to prepare, I would ask you, Most Gracious Majesty, to read the following passages of Scripture: John 3:16; Romans 10:9-10. These passages prove there is full assurance of salvation by faith in our Lord Jesus Christ for those who believe and accept His finished work." Several days later Townsend received this note: "Your letter of recent date received, and in reply would state that I have carefully and prayerfully read the portions of Scripture referred to. I believe in the finished work of Christ for me and trust by God's grace to meet you in that home of which He said, 'I go to prepare a place for you.' (Signed) Victoria Guelph." Queen Victoria died on January 22, 1901 after a reign that lasted nearly 64 years! She was laid to rest beside Prince Albert in the Frogmore Royal Mausoleum at Windsor. Above the Mausoleum door is inscribed the following words from Victoria, "Farewell best friend, here at last I shall rest with thee, With thee in Christ I shall rise again." Are you resting in the finished work of Christ for you? Have you fled to Him for refuge and trusted Him to save you once and for all? Are you resting, assured and safe beneath His sheltering wings?

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Providence: "His Kindness Has Not Forsaken" - 2:19-23

The story of Ruth is short, but it is important not to be in a hurry to move through it too quickly because we miss the beautiful treasures that God has embedded in the midst of it for us to find. Last week we looked at Ruth's conversation with Boaz out in the field that first day when she went out to glean and there discovered the deep meaning of the trust she had come to place in God. Today we're going to focus on the conversation that Ruth had with Naomi that evening when she got home from gleaning all day. And the reason we're going to focus on it is that something occurred in that moment that is little short of amazing:

I. Naomi's Bitter Attitude Was Transformed By Ruth's First Day Blessing (18-19) Ruth arrived home that evening at the door of their humble abode carrying 3/5 of a bushel of barley in her shawl, about 30 lbs. worth. That in itself would have been reason to rejoice. Yet supper was still a long way off after roasting or even grinding the grain and baking a loaf. But when Ruth reached into her garment and pulled out the already-roasted and ready-to-eat leftovers from her noon meal, Naomi could hardly have asked for anything better. Someone quipped that it was the first fast-food meal in the Bible. Truth be told:

1. she was utterly amazed at what Ruth brought home to her She might have expected a pound or two of grain, enough to get by for the next day or two, but this was like a month's worth of grain. And this complete with an MRE (meal-ready-to-eat in military parlance)! She was shocked at the success Ruth had found and she immediately knew that:

a. it could only have been possible through someone's special generosity No ordinary day of gleaning could have yielded all this, so immediately she sensed that some field owner had seen Ruth, taken special notice of her need and been extremely generous with her, which is, of course, exactly what Boaz had done. That's why she blurts out, Where on earth did you glean today, where have you worked to get all this? And:

b. she naturally prayed God's blessing on the one who would do this May God bless the man who would take such special notice of you and our need and help us in this way! She didn't even stop to think about it; it came as natural as breathing. She asked God to bless and reward the one who had blessed them. But then Ruth innocently lets the other shoe drop, The man's name was Boaz. It would have been neat to be a fly on the wall that day to watch Naomi's reaction:

2. she was completely shocked at the mention of Boaz' name I'm sure her eyes got wide and her mouth hung open. Ruth had no idea that he was anyone special other than a kind man she'd met, but at the mention of his name, Naomi suddenly remembered what more than a decade of suffering in Moab had caused her to forget. "Boaz! Why didn't I remember him? How could I forget? I thought we were all alone here with no family to help us!"

a. she had forgotten him even though he was a close relative She explains to Ruth in (20b). Boaz was of the same clan as Elimelech her husband, part of his extended family, according to verse 1, certainly not a brother, but perhaps a cousin or even a second cousin. However, the point for Naomi was not the specific relationship but rather the responsibility this relationship gave him:

b. she immediately recognized him as a goel, a redeemer who would have responsibility to care for them

You see, in Israel family was everything. There was no social security or disability system provided by the government. The closest relative had the responsibility to take care of those in need. If a man became poor and was sold for his debt, his nearest relative had an obligation to buy him back out of it or to redeem his property if it was sold.

Lev. 25:35 says, If your brother becomes poor and cannot maintain himself with you, you shall support him as though he were a stranger and a sojourner, and he shall live with you. And the first one with the responsibility to rescue and support him is the nearest relative, the goel, the redeemer. Boaz must have recognized that immediately when he learned who Ruth was. Yes, he was truly generous, but he also realized it was his God-given duty to do something to provide for these two poor widows who were his relatives. By the way, we still have a similar responsibility. Paul put it succinctly: ...if anyone does not provide for his relatives, and especially for members of his household, he has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever. - 1 Tim. 5:8. And a few verses later in verse 16 he added, If any believing woman has relatives who are widows, let her care for them. Let the church not be burdened, so that it may care for those who are truly widows. The primary responsibility to care for a widow or for anyone in need falls first and foremost on their own family. The church has enough to do to help those who have no one to take care of them.

But there is something much deeper than that going on here. Look what Naomi says first when she hears the name Boaz (20a). In that instant a deep transformation took hold of Naomi. The bitter attitude she so openly held toward God for so long suddenly evaporated and she practically shouts, "Hallelujah! God has not forsaken me!!" What produced that? In that moment:

II. Naomi Suddenly Saw Clear Evidence Of The Providence Of God That's a word we don't use much anymore, though in colonial days in America the word Providence was virtually a synonym for God and was often used instead of His Name. Our Declaration of Independence concludes, ...with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor. Ben Franklin defined it succinctly at our Constitutional Convention when he said, I have lived, Sir, a long time, and the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth - that God governs in the affairs of men.

1. providence means that God sovereignly arranges all things to accomplish His good purpose and that includes, not only the rise and fall of nations, but even the events of our personal lives. It is a doctrine perhaps best stated in Rom. 8:28 which says, And we know that God causes all things to work together for good to those who love God, to those who are called according to His purpose [NASB]. Even when we can't see Him, God is at work behind the scenes, in control of the scenes, arranging all things by His powerful hand. Even when our lives are flooded with misery and suffering, like that of Job or Naomi, God is right there, in control of it all, carrying out what He knows to be good, advancing His Kingdom. When everything looks so awfully wrong to us, so devastatingly bleak, God has all things right on track. And that's what Naomi suddenly saw:

2. Naomi realized that God had led Ruth to Boaz' field Verse (3) says, she happened to come to the part of the field belonging to Boaz, as though it was chance or fortune or luck or fate. But it was none of the above; it was GOD! It was a Divine happenstance, a Divine appointment or as we put it today, a God-thing! Of all the hundreds of fields surrounding Bethlehem, she landed on that one. The odds are completely against it, but using her thoughts and her legs and her vision and the road and the location and time and a dozen other factors, God SENT Ruth to that very field on that day just as surely as if He had commanded it out loud! That's what Naomi saw and, in the abundance of grain that lay on the floor:

3. Naomi recognized that God already had in place a way for her and Ruth to survive and protection for them She didn't think, "Look what Ruth did!" She thought, "Look what GOD DID! He sent us enough grain for weeks in one day!" And then Ruth went on in verses (21-22). And the bounty of this one day would now stretch into 2 full months of bounty. They would not starve! They would eat! They would have grain to sell and buy other necessities! They would not die but live and God had seen to it already! In fact, God had already taken care of her worst fear, that after losing everyone else in her life, something awful would happen to Ruth! But here God had arranged for her protection by putting her in the field of a mighty man of valor who was her close relative. No one in Bethlehem would dare to touch her! God had arranged everything. He gave Ruth the love in her heart and brought her to faith. He brought both of them safely back to Bethlehem. He gave them a place to stay. And now He gave them a way to live and protected them! She saw it all in an instant! She saw the hand of God clearly at work directing the circumstances of her life, but more than that:

III. Naomi Saw Fresh Evidence Of The Love Of God Through His Providence She says, His KINDNESS has not forsaken the living or the dead! That word kindness in English does not do justice to the meaning:

1. In Hebrew it is the word hesed which means the steadfast love of the Lord for His people It is the word used in Ps. 103:17, ...the steadfast love of the LORD is from everlasting to everlasting on those who fear him, and his righteousness to children's children. It is the word repeated in every one of the 26 verses of Psalm 136, Give thanks to the LORD, for he is good, for his steadfast love endures forever. We sing it in the praise song: His love endures forever! It is used 241 times in the Old Testament and in the great majority of those verses it is ascribed to God Himself. In fact,

God repeatedly proclaims it of Himself as one of His own character qualities and it seems to have three facets of meaning which are always intertwined. First of all, it means that:

a. God cares about the well-being of His own Sometimes hesed is translated as mercy. God sees when His people are in trouble and suffering and He has mercy on them, He is deeply moved with compassion for them. He cares deeply about them, but it is always more than just an emotion or an attitude. Hesed means that:

b. God acts with His powerful might on behalf of His own He does something about their plight. God saw the suffering of His people in Egypt. He heard their groanings. He told Moses, "I have seen their oppression, I have heard their cry and I am doing something about it - I'm sending YOU to deliver them!" God is never a passive observer; when He sees His people in trouble He cares and He ACTS on their behalf. Now His acting doesn't always look like what WE want it to look like. Joseph was sold into slavery at 17. Joseph loved God and God loved Joseph but He didn't bail him out of slavery for 13 long years. Instead, He engineered a chain of circumstances that seemed to be getting worse but which actually thrust him into a position to rule all of Egypt and save his own family! God acts, He engineers, He controls all that happens to us with His sovereign power out of His deep caring for us. And here's the third part of hesed:

c. God is constant in His caring and acting; He never changes That's why the ESV translates it steadfast love. Love never stops, it never ceases, it never fails, it never runs out. It is always there, even when we can't see it, even when it is hidden by the dark shadows of our difficult circumstances. His love endures forever! You see:

2. in her suffering Naomi felt God had withdrawn His love from her That's what we learned when we looked at her earlier words: 1:13, 20-21. "God hasn't gone away somewhere, He's still there. God isn't too weak to do anything about it, He's still powerful and sovereign. I still believe in Him and worship Him, but He has stopped loving me! He has stopped caring about me and stopped helping me. He has stopped being my Redeemer, the one who takes care of me!" But in that moment when she saw how God had arranged Boaz to care for them:

3. she suddenly understood that God did NOT stop loving (20) She exclaims, God's steadfast love has not forsaken the living or the dead! She suddenly saw that:

a. He continued to love the living (and by that she meant herself and Ruth) by providing for them. His love had a plan for their care all along and He was working on their behalf. Suddenly she had hope that there could be a future for her and for Ruth. But in that moment, she saw something else, something profound:

b. He also continued to love the dead (and by that she meant her deceased husband Elimelech, and her two sons Mahlon and Chilion who had died in Moab). She saw that He hadn't stopped loving them because they died as she thought; He still loved them by caring for their loved ones, the beloved widows they left behind! I can't help but think of our two dear friends, long time members of this church whom many of you knew, Gus and Esther Rufino. Their picture hangs fondly in our office. All their lives they prayed for their son who was not walking with the Lord; it was a deep burden on their hearts. They died without seeing it realized, but here sits Frank today in church having given his heart and life to Jesus! Of course, they're enjoying being in heaven with Him, but God has not stopped showing His steadfast love to them here on earth by working in the life of the son they left behind! That's what Naomi is saying! Even when we're gone from this world, His love for us and acting on our behalf continues. It never stops! But the best thing is this, once Naomi realized once again that God loved her:

4. God opened her eyes to a door of hope for the future that she hadn't been able to see previously (23-3:1) For two months Ruth went back to Boaz' fields every day to glean barley and then wheat and stored up provisions for them. But Naomi began to see something much deeper. When she had tried to send Ruth back to Moab there on the road, she was utterly convinced that she could never find a husband for Ruth in Israel, that no one would ever accept her and she had no more sons to marry her. Now she begins to see that Boaz himself is the answer to her prayers. He has the right to be the goel, the redeemer who marries the widow of the deceased, provides a home for her and raises up a son to carry on his name. The threads of a plan begin to come together in her mind. There is a future! It was there all the time, but she couldn't see it, couldn't even imagine it, because she believed the lie that God didn't love her any more and had stopped working on her behalf.

Don't ever believe that lie! It will blind you to God's providence, it will keep you from seeing His working in your life. Believe that His love for you is constant, that it is deep and that it is always at work on your behalf! Morgan Roberts was the pastor of a church in Pittsburgh for many years. As a surprise birthday gift, he was given a boxer dog, which he named Churchill. The dog was always at his side and could be counted on to meet him at the door whenever he returned home. Roberts said, "He existed to be in my presence." The dog, of course, could not understand what Roberts was thinking or why he would leave to go to church meetings, or why he would feed him a certain way, or why he would take him for a walk at certain times but not at others. "As with God and man, so it is with man and dog," observed Roberts. "My ways were higher than his ways, and my thoughts were beyond the reach of his thoughts. Still, he probably thought that I existed for the sole purpose of caring for him and spending time with him, just as I often think that God's principal business is that of listen to me and taking care of me." Churchill had no way of understanding why his master let certain things hap- pen to him. Certainly, he wouldn't have been able to comprehend why Roberts would let the veterinarian stick needles in him. All the same, the boxer would enthusiastically jump into the van whenever it was time to take him in for his annual injection. After a number of years, Roberts took him to the vet for the last time. He had found out that the poor dog had incurable cancer. Churchill didn't know what was happening or why. With great difficulty, he shuffled out to the van and climbed in. His weakly wagging tail said that he was glad simply to be going on an outing with his master. He didn't know it would be their last ride together. Said Roberts, "He lived without answers. He did not know what was next. All he knew was what he had always known: he knew whose he was (mine) and that he was traveling with the master he loved (me)." All we need to know is whose we are and that we are traveling with our Master who loves us. [Clergy Journal, Feb. 1997. Page 35.] Dear ones, God loves you with His steadfast love and is working absolutely everything in your life together for good through His Divine Providence. Rest in that.

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Selflessness: "A Woman Of Noble Character" - 3:1-11

2:23 tells us that two whole months have gone by since Ruth and Naomi returned to Bethlehem from Moab. Every day Ruth has gone out and gleaned in the fields of Boaz, first through the barley harvest, then through the wheat harvest, and brought home to Naomi an armload of grain. They have enough to make it through the summer and to trade for other things they need for now, but it's coming to an end. In the fall there will be the harvest of the fruits which Ruth could glean, but after that comes the long winter season with no crops, so their long term outlook is still bleak unless circumstances change. Over these months Naomi has clearly been thinking and pondering and praying about the future, yet at this point no visible answer has come, so as we enter chapter 3, we see that Naomi has developed a bold and daring plan and has now decided the time has come to carry it out (1-4). The scene that plays out in this chapter has three actors, Naomi, Ruth and Boaz, and as they act and react, the common characteristic that you'll notice about all three of them is selflessness. None of the three act out of their own interests or desires; every one of them seeks the good of others first and is willing to sacrifice personally to see it happen. In these verses we see:

I. Naomi's Selfless Care For Ruth Look again at (1):

1. she desired to seek a secure future for Ruth There's that word rest again, menuchah, a safe place, a secure place, a refuge. Naomi realized that she was probably at least 20 years older than Ruth and would in all probability die long before her. The only claim Ruth had to being treated well in this community was her tie to Naomi. If Naomi should die, Ruth would have no future at all. And in the world in which they lived, the only tangible security that a woman could have was to be found in marriage. Apart from the protection and provision of a husband or a male relative a woman had precious little hope of any kind of decent life and of avoiding being victimized. That's just the way it was. And Naomi realized that it was her responsibility to seek that security, not for herself, but for Ruth; it is not her own future that matters to her, but that of this precious daughter in law who has become a true daughter to her and loves her so deeply. Ruth cannot do this for herself and she has no father here to arrange it for her, so it falls to Naomi and she suggests this to Ruth (2a). What it means is that:

2. she sought to arrange Ruth's marriage to Boaz as a redeemer You see, in the law God had told Israel that:
a. the nearest relative is to marry the widow of a deceased relative and raise up a son for him to receive his inheritance. This is referred to as the law of Levirate marriage which we find in Lev. 25:5-9 if you'll turn there and read along. Now this may seem repulsive to our 20th century mindset, but in a society where property is inherited only by males and passed down within the family, this was a procedure that guaranteed a male heir as well as a means of caring for the widow. It kept the property within the family to whom God had originally assigned it. And you'll find that it was not only practiced in Israel, but it has been practiced in many tribal societies throughout the world, including the Kyrgyz and it was commonly practiced in India even down to the recent past, just to mention two places where we are engaged. Now this duty was assigned to the husband's brother, but it is obvious that by the time of Ruth, in the absence of an actual brother it had been extended further to the nearest male relative (in Hebrew, the goel, the redeemer). So in Naomi's eyes, this is a duty that would fall to Boaz. Since she herself was probably past childbearing, it would be his duty to marry Ruth, buy back Elimelech's family property and hopefully produce a son to inherit it. Now notice one more thing in the passage we read:

b. the woman has the legal right to demand this if the man hesitates If he won't marry her, she can go to the elders at the gate and get them to pressure him to do it and if he still won't, she can publicly shame him before the whole town. She has a right to this marriage, to this redemption, and she has the privilege to demand it. This is what Naomi is counting on. Boaz has been kind and generous and provided but he has not stepped up and offered to do what the Law commands, so in her thinking Ruth must demand it of him and:

3. she devised a bold plan to accomplish this Notice three things in verses (2b-4). First of all:
a. Ruth is to put off widow's garb indicating she is ready to marry Normally, we might think that Ruth is being told to dress attractively or even alluringly, but that's not really the case. In ancient cultures widows often dressed as widows for long periods after the death of their husbands, perhaps even the rest of their lives. Even in Victorian England widows wore black for an entire year. Naomi was telling her to put aside the outward indications of her widowhood, to anoint herself and dress normally as an indication that her time of mourning was complete and that she was now ready to marry again. Secondly:

b. she is to approach Boaz in the absolute privacy of night Think about it. When is she supposed to talk to him? In front of all his workers in the field where she will seem to be trying to advance her own case. Boaz has a house in town. He's got servants. In fact, though we often assume that he is single, in Jewish culture it's very probable that Boaz already had a wife and even children. He would be an odd duck if he didn't. Old Testament culture never endorsed multiple wives and it shows the inherent dangers of it but it was neither forbidden nor uncommon. To Boaz this might have been a request to take a second wife so another woman can't simply go and knock on his door and propose marriage! Yet somehow through the town social networking opportunities Naomi learns that Boaz is winnowing grain today and knows he'll sleep on the threshing floor in the field tonight. After all are asleep, he can be approached privately without anybody being witness to the event and making assumptions and giving him opportunity to answer honestly without any pressures. Thirdly:

c. she is to approach him in the humble posture of a servant To wait until he's asleep, uncover his feet and lie down below them as a servant would. She is not to come demanding her rights, pressuring him to what he ought, but humbly letting him know that SHE is requesting him to do it.

Now you can't argue with the fact that Naomi's plan was bold! It was gutsy, risky, even dangerous. And like they say on all the reality shows, "DO NOT TRY THIS AT HOME!" It is not something to be imitated; this is not God's intended method for procuring a husband, young ladies, but in that time under those circumstances, it just might work! What's even more incredible to me than the plan is the fact that Ruth agreed to do it! (5-6) She did what Naomi told her to do, do you believe it? To the letter! Now let's concentrate on looking at:

II. Ruth's Selfless Obedience To Naomi Think what this means from Ruth's standpoint. First it means that:

1. she relinquished all personal choice in the matter of marriage Granted in her culture parents arranged all marriages anyway, but usually the daughter at least got SOME say in it. Naomi told her to marry a man who is probably 20 years her senior, likely old enough to be her father and maybe one who already has another, older wife! Yes, he may have been kind and generous, but even he himself is greatly surprised in verse 10 that she did not go after a husband her own age. Second, following Naomi's instructions meant:

2. she was willing to risk her reputation if she was seen or misunderstood What if someone saw her sneaking in to lie down by Boaz at night? What would they think? Surely, they would say, "Ah, I knew that Moabite woman would act like all Moabite women act sooner or later! They all seduce their men!" Or for that matter, what would Boaz think? What if he wakes up to her lying there and thinks she is offering herself to him sexually? What if he, as a godly man, misunderstands her intentions, drives her away and castigates her as an immoral woman before everyone to show how pure and righteous he is? But then, what if he reacted just the opposite?

3. she was willing to trust Boaz to act honorably in a vulnerable situation Here they are alone in the dark of night, lying next to each other, and her proposing marriage. What if he is overcome with desire and reaches out for her and they violate God's command? Oh, he'd have to marry her then according to the law, but everyone would assume it was because she came to him to offer sexual favors! She had to bank on the fact that he would listen to her and understand her and believe that she was making an honorable request of him. That's a big gamble! And then what if she goes through all this and he does listen and understand but simply says "No!"

4. she was willing to risk Boaz being unwilling to marry her What if he won't marry her because he's already married and his wife will kill him or because she's a Moabite and he doesn't want to defile himself or because he thinks she's after his money or etc., etc., etc. If he says no, she'll be humiliated for having put herself out there in such a flagrant way and have to live with the rejection of knowing she just wasn't good enough for him to want her. What a pile of risks, what a huge stake is riding on this gutsy plan of Naomi's, but she simply says, "Yes" and does it all without question. Why?

5. she did it all out of love for Naomi She didn't do it for herself. She didn't risk all this to get herself a secure future. She did it to get NAOMI a secure future! When Boaz responds in verse 10, he says, You have made this last kindness [this last hesed, this last act of steadfast love] greater than the first! What does that mean? He's talking about her love for Naomi! Her first act of love was to come with her back to Bethlehem and gleaning to provide for her. Here second act of love was to choose to marry him for her sake, so that she would be taken care of in the process as a relative, rather than running off to marry some young handsome guy outside the family! She risks it all for Naomi. This is not some romantic meeting; Ruth is sacrificing herself and her future to care for Naomi! She's doing something she may not have wanted at all to do, may have been terrified to do, to secure a future for her mother-in-law! Now at verse 7 we read the details of:

III. Ruth's Courageous Approach To Boaz (7-9) All goes according to plan. She hides by the threshing floor. Nobody sees her. She creeps over to where Boaz is sacked out, lies down and uncovers his feet. And, sure enough, he wakes up and is startled by her presence, but once reassured in the darkness that it's her, he listens to what she says. There is a beautiful play on words in the Hebrew here:

1. she literally requested him to spread his "wing" over her. The term used for the outer edge of a wing is also used to mean the corner of a garment. She's asking him to spread his garment over her, to take her under his protective wing, just as he had earlier mentioned that she had come to take refuge under the wings of God! Listen to what God says about the nation Israel in Ez. 16:8, When I passed by you again and saw you, behold, you were at the age for love, and I spread the corner of my garment [my wing] over you and covered your nakedness; I made my vow to you and entered into a covenant with you, declares the Lord GOD, and you became mine. Boaz knew this was a clear request, not to sleep with him, but for him to marry her, but she added to that, for you are a redeemer... It was more than an offer of herself as a wife:

2. she requested him to fulfill his duty as a goel which also involved buying back Elimelech's property and trying to raise up a son to inherit it in his name. That was a heavy responsibility. It meant spending a potentially large sum of money for something that would never be his own, but would always belong to a son that he fathered and yet would be regarded as the son of another man. It was a challenge, a call to an act of sacrifice that was equal to her own. And Boaz rose to the challenge! Look at:

IV. Boaz' Wonderful Response To Ruth (10-11) He is not put off and repulsed. He does not misunderstand:

1. he sees her actions as righteous before the Lord He doesn't think she's trying to seduce him or take advantage of him. He prays a blessing on her because she's acting in a godly way in asking him to do this rather than going off trying to find a young handsome husband to please herself! And rather than being flattered by his own ego:

2. he recognizes the sacrifice she is making for her mother-in-law He knows she isn't asking this because she is smitten with love for him and can't help herself. He knows she's doing this because she loves her mother-in-law! He perceives the whole thing exactly right, and, just like Naomi and Ruth, he acts selflessly. He doesn't think about what it will cost him or how it might upset his life or what people will think. All he cares about is what's right before God and what will help others. Right away:

3. he calms her fears and promises to do his complete duty toward her "I'll do it!" You can just hear her sigh of relief. She now has a guarantee, a word of promise from a man she knows she can trust that her future will be secure. But that's not the point; look at that last line, all my fellow townsmen know that you are a worthy woman:

4. he declares her to be a woman of noble character [NIV], a chayil, a woman of valor, just as he himself is called a worthy man, a mighty man of valor, in 2:1. In God's eyes and in the whole town's eyes, she is what he is, a person of great virtue! Interestingly, the other place we find that word used of a woman is in Prov. 31, if you'll turn there with me. This is God's portrait of a virtuous woman, a wife of noble character. Look at verses 10, 29. The woman Solomon describes is the greatest sort of woman, the most excellent kind, and if you read the text in between, what is the characteristic that makes her noble and virtuous? It is that she is selfless like Ruth. She does her husband good; she makes clothes and buys food for her family; she works hard and helps the poor and the needy. Her actions are always for others, not for herself! Selflessness: that's what makes a person noble and virtuous and excellent and honorable in God's eyes!

And that's the noble quality God wants to develop in you. Paul admonishes us: Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility count others more significant than yourselves. Let each of you look not only to his own interests, but also to the interests of others. - Phil. 2:3-4. And then he goes on to tell us that we should have the very mind of Christ, who did not hold onto privilege for Himself but made Himself nothing and went to the cross for us. THAT Christ-like selflessness is excellence in God's eyes! In Ernest Gordon's true account of life in a World War II Japanese prison camp, Through the Valley of the Kwai, there is a story about a man named Angus McGillivray. When he died, the news of Angus McGillivray's death spread throughout the camp. No one could believe big Angus had succumbed. He was strong, one of those whom they had expected to be the last to die. Actually, it wasn't the fact of his death that shocked the men, but the reason he died. Finally, they pieced together the true story. The Scottish soldiers took their buddy system very seriously. Their buddy was called their "mucker," and these Scottish soldiers believed that it was literally up to each of them to make sure their "mucker" survived. Angus's mucker, though, was dying, and everyone had given up on him, everyone, of course, but Angus. He had made up his mind that his friend would not die. Someone had stolen his mucker's blanket. So, Angus gave him his own, telling his mucker that he had "just come across an extra one." Likewise, every mealtime, Angus would get his rations and take them to his friend, stand over him and force him to eat them, again stating that he was able to get "extra food." Angus was going to do anything and everything to see that his buddy got what he needed to recover. But as Angus's mucker began to recover, Angus collapsed, slumped over, and died. The doctors discovered that he had died of starvation complicated by exhaustion. He had been giving of his own food and shelter. He had given everything he had -- even his very life. The ramifications of his acts of love and unselfishness had a startling impact on the compound. As word circulated of the reason for Angus McGillivray's death, the feel of the camp began to change. Suddenly, men began to focus on their mates, their friends, and humanity of living beyond survival, of giving oneself away. They began to pool their talents and help one another instead of living every man for himself, struggling to survive. The place was transformed; an all but smothered love revived, all because one man named Angus gave all he had for his friend. For many of those men this turnaround meant survival. Jesus said, "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends" (John 15:12). [Tim Hansel, Holy Sweat, 1987, Word Books Publisher, pp. 146-147.] Naomi laid down her future to provide security for Ruth. Ruth laid down her future to save Naomi. And Boaz laid down himself to honor God and to rescue both of them. All three looked not on their own things, but on the things of others. They displayed in advance the very attitude of Jesus Christ. But you've seen what they couldn't, the greatest act of selflessness the world has ever known. Jesus laid down His life for you so that you could do the same for others in radical ways that He can use to change the world. Are you willing?

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Integrity: "The Man Will Not Rest" - 3:12-18

At this point in the story Boaz comes into the spotlight and becomes the main actor. Naomi gave Ruth a daring plan to request Boaz to redeem her through marrying her and buying back her property. She has gone to him in the night as he slept on the threshing floor, awakened him and privately called upon him to fulfill his duty to her. Now the ball is in his court. He must choose what he will do and in verse 11 he says he will do it. As I read what Boaz said and did in the verses that follow, the word that jumps out at me that best describes him is integrity. Simply defined in Christian terms, integrity is the unwavering commitment to do what God declares to be right, no matter what. The Bible regularly uses a different word that means the same thing: righteousness. Boaz was a righteous man, a person of integrity, and the kind of person that God would have all of us to be. As Boaz responds to Ruth in the dark of that night, his integrity shines brightly as an example to us in at least three different ways. First, Boaz illustrates for us that:

I. A Person Of Integrity Refuses To Neglect God's Commands (12-13) Just when you think that all has gone well, that Naomi and Ruth's risky plan has paid off and the happy ending is in sight, we find out that there is:

1. the glitch in Naomi's plan: there was a relative nearer than Boaz, another man who would be first in line to serve as a redeemer. Boaz says, "I will do it, BUT..." You can just see Ruth's heart sink and hear her sigh of anguish as she finds this out. We don't know whether Naomi had forgotten about this other relative or whether she simply knew that Boaz was a better man and hoped that he would forge ahead and marry Ruth without regard for the other guy. But that is exactly where Boaz' integrity shines:

2. Boaz refused to neglect the rightful claim his relative had According to the law in Israel, the closest relative had the responsibility and the privilege to redeem. By rights, Naomi sent Ruth to the wrong man and Boaz knew that the right thing to do was to inform his relative of the situation and offer him the opportunity to be the redeemer first and:

a. he allowed neither his nor Ruth's desires to deter him from it Of course it seems clear that this is not what Boaz wants to do. His first response to her is like a "Praise the Lord!" statement. He is genuinely glad that she has made this offer of marriage to him. And I don't know where this other guy has been for the past two months, but Boaz said the whole town knew about Ruth and her situation and regarded her as a woman of noble character. Surely, he hadn't missed that but he didn't step forward to help in any way. And I'm sure the mention that there was another man who had a right to marry her must have struck fear into the heart of Ruth. Even if she wasn't excited about marrying Boaz, at least she knew his kind heart and his love for the Lord and trusted him. She wanted him, not the other guy, but integrity does not let feelings get in the way. A person of integrity does what's right whether he or she feels like it or not and whether any other party feels they should or not. In fact, Boaz' integrity was such that:

b. he was willing to lose Ruth in order to do what was right If the other guy wanted to redeem her he said, "That is well and good." In other words, "It is right and proper and we have to accept that - even if it's not what we want!" You know, it's one thing to lose some money or some material thing because you choose to do what's right, but to lose someone you want to marry? To just hand her over to the other guy (who might be a schmuck!) on a platter, as it were, and stand by and watch, just because it's right? That's painful, but that's integrity! But on the other hand, just as Boaz refused to neglect this relative's rights:

3. Boaz also refused to neglect the rightful claim that Ruth had. We like romantic stories and always try to make this into one, but we can't truthfully presume to know the feelings and the thoughts that Boaz or Ruth had from the information we're given. It is possible that the exact opposite was true. Maybe marrying Ruth and buying back the land was a hard thing for Boaz; maybe it was something he really DIDN'T want to do. Maybe he already had a wife and this would really upset his apple cart! Maybe he liked life as it was and just didn't want to see it disrupted with a new wife and a hoped-for baby. We can't know for sure, but in any event, Boaz recognized that Ruth had a right to demand this redemption and:

a. he assured her strongly that he would fulfill his obligation He said it verbally twice in verses 11 and 13, "I will do it!" and he sealed his promise with an oath before the living God. I think he was assuring her that he was not simply trying to get out of his obligation by shoving it off on the other relative. He knew that this was the right thing to do before God and was committed to do it, whether he wanted to or not, if the other was not willing. And in the process:

b. he assured her that he would immediately present her claim to the other relative He does not say to her, "You're asking the wrong guy. Go check with Joe and if he refuses, come back to me." He actually takes up her case for her. He intimates that he will find out for her the very next morning so that one way or the other she WILL get the help she has requested. Boaz was a man of integrity and:

4. we are called to follow his example and do the right thing whether we want to or not, whether we feel like it or not. James admonishes us: So, whoever knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, for him it is sin. - Jas. 4:17. Ray Floyd is a professional golfer who has won numerous tournaments and four major titles on both the PGA Tour and Champions Tour. He was inducted into the World Golf Hall of Fame in 1989. On one occasion, as he was getting ready to tap in a routine 9 inch putt, he saw the ball move ever so slightly. According to the rule book, if the ball moves in this way the golfer must take a penalty stroke. Now on this day Floyd was among the leaders in a tournament that offered a top prize of $108,000. To acknowledge that the ball had moved could mean he would lose his chance at big money. Others might have scanned the crowd to see whether anyone had noticed and simply tapped it in, but Ray Floyd didn't do that. He assessed himself a penalty stroke and wound up with a bogey on the hole. What would you have done? That's integrity, doing what is right because you know it is the right thing to do, even if nobody else will ever know the difference. God will.

Now secondly, in this passage Boaz illustrates for us that:

II. A Person Of Integrity Refuses Sexual Immorality (14) Now try and picture this situation. The two of them were totally alone in the dark, lying close to one another. She is much younger, perhaps beautiful, and smells freshly washed and anointed with oil. She asked him to marry her by saying, Spread the corner of your garment over me... Her whole future depends on him wanting her. I think it's safe to say that:

1. Boaz and Ruth were probably sorely tempted to cement their relationship right then and there in a sexual act. Boaz says, Lie down until morning. And look where she lays, not beside him or with him but at his feet! Why? They both refused to violate God's command. They knew it was wrong to have sex without being married and they thought, "We will wait until we are legitimately married." They didn't even consider giving in to temptation. They were people of integrity like Joseph. He was alone in Potiphar's house that morning. Potiphar's wife had been openly propositioning him for weeks, saying "Sleep with me!" Now she is literally starting to tear his clothes off and you have to know that this must have been tempting to him. He's a young, handsome, virile man but he's a slave. He has no wife. He's never had an opportunity like this. Surely his hormones are racing, but he says, [My master] is not greater in this house than I am, nor has he kept back anything from me except you, because you are his wife. How then can I do this great wickedness and sin against God?" - Gen. 39:9. Wow! What a man of integrity! Not only would he not betray his master, but he saw clearly that this was great wickedness and a sin against God Himself, just as Boaz and Ruth did! Then notice in v. 14 that:

2. Boaz was concerned to protect Ruth's person and her reputation He could not send her back to town in the middle of the night alone without a light. It was not safe for her, so he kept her there to protect her. And yet he made sure that they got up very early and she left before anyone saw her in order to protect her reputation. He did not want her intentions misunderstood. He did not want her thought of as a harlot, an immoral woman. He did not want to risk any stain on her noble character, any appearance of evil, even if it wasn't accurate. Notice that he was focused on her well-being, not the satisfaction of his own needs. Both he and Ruth are people of integrity and:

3. we are called to follow their example and refuse sex outside of marriage Now we live in a culture that puts the thought of sex before us in every TV commercial, where having sex without being married is the norm, not the exception. We live in a time when I end up having to explain to young couples that having sex without being married is wrong before God; they don't know because nobody has ever told them that! We used to have a name for it in the King James. We called it fornication but nobody even recognizes the word any more. So let me say it clearly that to have sex with somebody you are not married to, whether it is before marriage, outside of marriage or with no thought of marriage, is morally wrong, sinful and wicked before God. Now inside the bond of marriage it is blessed, beautiful, immensely pleasurable and one of the deepest connections that two human beings can have. But God is wise enough to know that without that permanent life commitment, it can create the deepest wounds and scars a human being can carry, and he forbids it. The city of Corinth in Paul's day was a terribly immoral place, probably even more so than our culture. Sexual immorality of every description abounded and flourished; it was normal. That's why Paul made it so clear to the Corinthians that:

a. we're commanded to flee it for God's sake - 1 Cor. 6:18-20 The Greek word is porneia, which should sound familiar, and it meant everything from religious cult prostitution to homosexual acts and bestiality. It would certainly include pornography, whether internet or movie or paper types, adultery and simple casual sex. If it is not inside a committed marriage relationship, God says "Run away from it! Treat it like you found a bomb about to go off and run for your life!", not "see how close you can get to it without crossing the line!" Young people, please hear what God is saying. Your body belongs to God; it is His and He says, "Follow the example of Ruth and Boaz and WAIT until you're married. Save yourself for that one whom you will be with for life! You'll be glad you did! And if you find yourself tempted, just say "NO" and run away from it; get yourself out of that situation!" And let me add this: young men, YOU should be like Boaz and be the one to protect the honor of the young lady and preserve her purity, not trying to take advantage of her for your own pleasure like so many of your buddies! I know it's not easy; I know that drive inside you is strong, but remember this:

b. God has promised to help us resist temptation - 1 Cor. 10:13 You are not the only one! We all face sexual temptation, but God is always there with you. He will not let you be tempted beyond your ability to resist by His power. He will give you the strength to say "No!" and He will always make a way of escape for you, a way out of the situation. And so often that way out is the verb in verse 14. Flee! Run away! Get out of the situation. Get out of the relationship if you're being pressured. God will help you to be a person of sexual integrity if you really want Him to. And then I want to be sure to give a word of comfort along with it:

c. God will forgive those who have fallen in this area - 1 Cor. 6:9-11 Such were some of you.... If you have fallen, if you have crossed the line, God will forgive you. God will wash you. God can make you holy if you ask Him. You can't undo the past, but you can start over again right now, be cleansed of your sin and walk forward in holiness, purity, integrity, from this point on.

And lest you have trouble believing that, just look at the last verse of the book, 4:21. Boaz' father, or more likely his grandfather or perhaps great-grandfather was Salmon, one of the spies Joshua sent into the city of Jericho. And Mt. 1:5 tells us that Salmon was married to Rahab. Rahab was a prostitute who sheltered the spies because of her new found faith in the God of Israel. James calls her a pornee (2:25) but proclaims that she was justified before God. Her works proved her faith. In whichever generation she actually was, God used a woman He rescued from a life of prostitution to shape the integrity of not only a man named Boaz, but to have him pass it on down to a King named David and ultimately to have the honor of being in the lineage of Jesus Christ Himself. God is a god of second chances who, instead of rubbing your nose in your sins the rest of your life, lets you start over again clean right where you are. Hallelujah! Now lastly, in this passage Boaz illustrates for us that:

III. A Person Of Integrity Keeps His Promise (15-18) Somehow Boaz realized that this whole plan was not Ruth's doing, but Naomi's, so:

1. Boaz sent Ruth home to Naomi with a large present The Hebrew doesn't specify what size of measure is meant, but most interpreters think it was a seah, which is 1/3 of an ephah. Therefore:

a. six measures of grain was probably 60 lbs. worth. It was all she could carry and note that it says that Boaz lifted it up and put it on her, that is her head or shoulder. It was a huge amount, twice as much as she had gleaned and brought home on her first day. Now why did he do that? Because somehow:

b. it communicated to Naomi the depth of commitment behind his words He did not want Ruth to go home to her mother-in-law empty handed with merely a verbal promise. He sent something tangible, the biggest thing he could give as a sign to her that he meant what he promised Ruth. And Naomi understood the message; look what she says in verse 18, the man will not rest, he will not forget and he will not stop until he has settled this. He is a man of integrity, a man you can trust to keep his word.

2. Naomi was convinced he would keep his promise without delay She knew he would not neglect it and not put it off but would pursue it right away. And that's exactly what he did (4:1a). While Ruth was walking back home to Naomi with her heavy load, Boaz was walking to the gate of Bethlehem. While Ruth was talking to Naomi, at that very moment Boaz was talking to the elders of the city, keeping his promise. Boaz was a man of integrity who did what he said he would do and:

3. we are called to follow his example and keep our promises James tells us that:

a. we should always mean what we say But above all, my brothers, do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or by any other oath, but let your "yes" be yes and your "no" be no, so that you may not fall under condemnation. -

Jas. 5:12. In other words, when you say "yes", when you make a promise or a commitment, make sure you mean what you say and carry it out. You shouldn't have to swear an oath to prove it like the pagans do. And when you say "no", "I will not!", then don't. Speak the truth. Mean what you say like Jesus did, like Boaz did. And when we do make a promise, like Boaz:

b. we should not intentionally delay fulfilling it - Prov. 3:27-28 says, Do not withhold good from those to whom it is due, when it is in your power to do it. Do not say to your neighbor, "Go, and come again, tomorrow I will give it"—when you have it with you. Now sometimes the commitment you make you can't fulfill right away. It may involve a goal that you have to save for or work toward over time. But when you have the power to keep your commitment right now, don't put it off, don't delay on purpose out of reluctance. Do what you said you'd do! And do it as soon as you can.

In his book Up From Slavery Booker T. Washington describes meeting an ex-slave from Virginia: "I found that this man had made a contract with his master, two or three years previous to the Emancipation Proclamation, to the effect that the slave was to be permitted to buy himself, by paying so much per year for his body; and while he was paying for himself, he was to be permitted to labor where and for whom he pleased. Finding that he could secure better wages in Ohio, he went there. When freedom came, he was still in debt to his master some three hundred dollars. Notwithstanding the fact that the Emancipation Proclamation freed him from any obligation to his master, this black man walked the greater portion of the distance back to where his old master lived in Virginia, and placed the last dollar, with interest, in his hands. In talking to me about this, the man told me that he knew that he did not have to pay his debt, but that he had given his word to his master, and his word he had never broken. He felt that he could not enjoy his freedom till he had fulfilled his promise." [Douglas E. Moore] That's the kind of integrity Boaz had. He kept his word. He kept himself pure. And he did what was right whether he felt like it or not. I want to be a person of integrity like Boaz. How about you?

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Redemption: "You Are Witnesses" - 4:1-10

At the beginning of chapter 4, we come to what seems to our western minds to be the most boring part of the book, but is in actuality the very crux of the whole story. Boaz is a goel, a near relative who is a redeemer and this is where his redemption is accomplished; this is the record of how Boaz actually redeems! The point of the whole book is expressed really well in verse 17 where the women of Bethlehem say to Naomi, God has not left you without a redeemer! In spite of all the suffering which Naomi's family endured and all the hopelessness they felt, God did not leave them without a redeemer in the end! And here he is in the very act of redeeming. Then of course, when we study this as believers, we can't help but see in this story a glorious picture of OUR Redeemer, Jesus Christ Himself, but we'll save that until we look at the details of the story. First notice:

I. The Setting Of The Redemption (1-2) The redeeming was done at:

1. the city gate Why? Because this was the place of public transactions. Bethlehem did not have a courthouse building or a township office. By the gate of the city, through which so many of its people would pass every day to their fields or flocks, there was an open area where public transactions took place, where court was held, where appeals were made and judgments handed down, where transactions were officialized. So, early in the morning Boaz, as one of the influential men of the city, took a seat in the gate and one by one as the elders of the city began to pass by, he hailed them and asked them to sit with him for an official purpose. Why? These 10 men served as:

2. the witnesses They were the means of official ratification. This was an era before the use of deeds and documents. There was no paper and scrolls were not yet common. The notary public of that day was literally the public itself, represented by ten of its most respected members. They certified that there would be an official public memory of the transaction that took place. And as Boaz was sitting there, he also hailed:

3. the relative as he passed by, the other potential redeemer that he spoke of to Ruth. He calls out to him literally, Turn aside "so and so" and sit here. No name is given. Why? Boaz certainly knew his name and surely didn't simply say, "Hey YOU!" But the author who wrote down this story deliberately left out the man's name and referred to him as "so and so", avoiding his actual name. I think it is because this man selfishly refused to do his duty as a redeemer to perpetuate Elimelech's name, so the author refused to perpetuate his name. It seems somehow extremely ironic that here we sit 3,000 years later and a world away and we know the name of Elimelech, but this relative who was so concerned about preserving his own inheritance has been for all these centuries the man with the unremembered name. Next let's look at:

II. The Means Of The Redemption in verses (3-6). But first let me help you understand something that we don't realize. Who is:

1. the person in need of redemption? Our western minds shout, "Ruth! Naomi! They're the ones that need rescued and a future provided for them!" But in Hebrew thinking it is neither Ruth nor Naomi who is being redeemed. It is Elimelech (3). Note that redemption involved A Purchase, a buying back. But Naomi isn't selling the property itself; Elimelech had already sold it to someone else before they left for Moab a decade earlier. She's selling the right to redeem the property, the family's right to buy it back. You see, in Israel, property, the land itself, was a sacred trust given by God. Elimelech is the one whose God-given property has fallen into the hands of a stranger and will be taken away from the family forever once Naomi has died. Elimelech is the one who has no son, no posterity to inherit his land and continue his line. In Hebrew thinking, even though he's dead, Elimelech is the one who is just a hair's breadth from having everything of enduring meaning about his life be swept away into oblivion unless somebody rescues it by redeeming both his land and his line. This is what Boaz is proposing to do. First of all:

2. it required the redemption of Elimelech's property (4) Boaz makes Mr. No Name aware of his opportunity and responsibility to buy back the land. By paying the current landholder a purchase price, the land would revert back to Elimelech's family as represented in the redeemer. And, unexpectedly, the relative says, "Yes, I will redeem it; I will restore all that belonged to Elimelech to the hands of his family". It is in the hands of another and will soon be lost permanently but the redeemer will buy it back and restore the possession to its rightful owner. This the man is prepared to do, primarily because that means that when Naomi dies, it becomes his permanently to pass on to his own children! So whatever money he lays out, he ultimately gets the benefit of; he is in effect probably doubling his own inheritance. But Boaz masterfully waited to share that there was a catch. Redeeming the property was not enough by itself. To serve as a redeemer:

3. it required the redemption of Elimelech's posterity (5) Elimelech's line was not yet beyond the possibility of rescue. Naomi was too old to have children, but his son Mahlon's wife, Ruth, was not. Through her there was the possibility that a son could be born to Elimelech and to Mahlon through the family redeemer marrying her. To redeem is to say, "I will raise up a son to perpetuate Elimelech's name on his property." He will not be forgotten; his family will not die out in Israel. I will marry his son's wife and have a son who will not be called mine but will be called by his name and who, when he is of age, will be given the property that belonged to his father and grandfather! Well, the land was one thing, but now we have:

4. the refusal of the relative to redeem (6) Suddenly there is a change of heart, a change of attitude. At the mention of having to marry Ruth, he is no longer willing to be a redeemer. Why? Well, some have said that he was obviously already married and didn't want trouble at home or that he wasn't willing to marry a foreigner. But the reason he himself gives is that it would spoil or ruin his own inheritance. Think about it. He already owns one field. If he has the money to buy Naomi's field back, he'll have two fields. He just has to support her until she's gone, then he's got twice as much to leave to his own children. But if he marries Ruth and produces a son, he'll put out all that money and when the son comes of age it will be his so he'll effectively LOSE probably half of what he has now and have much less to leave to his children. In other words, it seems to be a financial decision made on selfish grounds. But Boaz doesn't care that his relative said "No"; he's glad of it. He stands ready to redeem and now, there in front of the witnesses at the town gate he is ready to carry out:

III. The Sealing Of The Redemption (7-10) In later centuries a paper deed or contract would be written and a blob of wax would be placed on it and his own seal would be pressed into the wax, in effect making it an official signature. But at this early date transactions were all done verbally and visually. First came:

1. the symbolic action: the handing of the sandal (7-8) The sandal symbolized walking on the land which symbolized ownership. It probably stems from God's repeated promise to Israel, Every place on which the sole of your foot treads shall be yours... [Deut. 11:24, Josh. 1:3, 14:9]. When No Name took off his sandal and handed it to Boaz he was symbolically saying, "I officially give you the right of ownership, the right of redemption that is mine." Then the symbol was followed by:

2. the public proclamation (9-10) He tells them all: "you are witnesses that I have redeemed! I am paying the money for the land and I am taking Ruth as my wife, right now, in your presence. I call you all to attest to the truth of what I am saying and doing right now! I have redeemed Elimelech and you are my signature to verify it!"

And with those words the great transaction was done. Redemption was accomplished for Elimelech and his family. Their property was bought back out of alien hands and the promise of posterity to come established. But what's most important here is not the rescue of one family in Bethlehem; rather it is:

IV. The Picture Of OUR Redemption that this story so beautifully revealed ahead of time. You see, just as Elimelech's inheritance needed to be redeemed:

1. WE were God's inheritance in need of redemption In Eph. 1:18 Paul prays that ...the eyes of your hearts [be] enlightened, that you may know... what are the riches of HIS glorious inheritance in the saints. God has an inheritance! He has a wonderful possession that belongs by right to Him. And that possession is US! But through the famine of sin, we sold ourselves to another master; we became part of the kingdom of darkness ruled by Satan, the prince of this world, walking in the ways and the patterns he had established. We were in his hands and under his dominion but we were not rightfully his. We belonged to God and God wanted back what was rightfully his so He sent a Redeemer, His own Son, to rescue us! Now, not just anyone can be a redeemer. A redeemer must be a near relative, part of the same family in order to have the right to redeem. So, we read in Hebrews that:

2. Christ was QUALIFIED to be our Redeemer Look with me at Heb. 2:14-15, 17. He had to be made like us. He had to take on flesh and blood and become one of our human family so that He would qualify to rescue us from Satan's grip by paying the price for us. And out of that comes the Christmas miracle, the Divine Son of God taking to himself a human body in the womb of a virgin and being born as a man who is our very Brother, so He could be our Redeemer. He was eminently qualified to redeem us but being qualified is not enough. The nameless relative in the story was qualified to be a redeemer but he was not willing to be one! A redeemer must WANT to redeem, must CHOOSE willingly to redeem. Aren't you glad that:

3. Christ was WILLING to be our Redeemer You remember Paul's words about Christ in Phil. 2:6-8, who, though he was in the form of God, did not count equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, by taking the form of a servant, being born in the likeness of men. And being found in human form, he humbled himself by becoming obedient to the point of death, even death on a cross. Like Boaz, Jesus was selfless. He did not count his position and privilege as God in heaven something to be selfishly grasped for his own benefit. He emptied Himself! He set it all aside and let go of it to become a human being in order to redeem us. And even then, He did not seek any earthly prominence or advantage but humbled himself and gave up everything he had, even his very life in order to redeem us. He said, no one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord! - Jn. 10:18. Oh, praise God, He was willing! When the opportunity was before Him, like Boaz He said, "Yes, I will redeem!" And then just as Boaz had to pay a large price to redeem Elimelech's inheritance, so:

4. Christ PURCHASED our redemption, but not with money. Look with me at 1 Pet. 1:18-19. Christ redeemed us with His own blood. The ransom, the purchase price which could set us free from the bondage in which sin had enslaved us, was beyond the reach of gold or silver. It required the sacrifice of a perfect sinless lamb who was one of us, who would shed His precious blood and die in our place, who would give His life for ours and take our punishment upon Himself so that we might be set free. The cross is the "city gate" of our story, the place where Christ went up and made the great transaction to redeem us and His last words were, It is finished! Or they could also be translated, It is paid! In that moment our redemption was accomplished once and for all; the price of the precious blood that set us free was paid. It was done, accomplished, just as Boaz loudly proclaimed that morning, "I have bought it!" Now let's think about the effects of it. Just as Boaz' redemption restored Elimelech's land to his family once again, so:

5. Christ restored to the Father His rightful POSSESSION - Titus 2:14 says that Christ ...gave himself for us to redeem us from all lawlessness and to purify for himself a people for his own possession..., a people that are His very own, to restore to God his rightful inheritance for all time. You see, God is not gratified by the fact that He owns the cattle on a thousand hills. He is not satisfied that the very heavens and the earth are His handiwork. His glory, His crown, His trophy, is His PEOPLE, a people that He has called out from among all the tribes and families of the earth to be restored to Him and belong to Him forever. That's what He wanted from the very beginning and it's why He created everything else. He wanted a world full of people who were like Him and belonged to Him and communed with Him with whom He could share eternity. Satan derailed that dream and stole what belonged to the Father, but Jesus redeemed us and restored to Him what was rightfully His! That is His thrill and His joy! Then, to look at the other aspect of it, just as Boaz restored to Elimelech the possibility of posterity, of children who would perpetuate his name, so:

6. Christ raised up for the Father CHILDREN to bear His Name - Gal. 4:4-5 says that, ...when the fullness of time had come, God sent forth his Son, born of woman, born under the law, to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as sons. We're not simply God's possession, His inheritance, we're His sons and daughters, His children who will bear His image and His name forever! Hebrews tells us that in the plan of salvation God's purpose was to bring many sons, many children, to glory and Romans says that the whole universe is waiting with bated breath for that amazing day when God reveals His children in all their glory. What a day that will be when He points to all of us and shouts, "These are My sons and daughters; these are My inheritance forever!" Hallelujah! But we're not done yet. Just as the unknown relative gave Boaz his sandal as a sign that the transaction was sealed and certain, so Christ gave us a seal:

7. Christ SEALED our redemption with His Spirit In Eph. 4:30 it says, And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, by whom you were sealed for the day of redemption. In one sense our redemption is complete because the purchase price was paid, just as Boaz' redemption was complete that morning. Yet in another sense the fullness of our redemption does not come until our very bodies are redeemed in glory, just as Elimelech's redemption is not complete until Boaz and Ruth's child is born. But for this in between time, God has given us a sure proof that it will be fully completed; He has put His very signature on us by putting His own Holy Spirit inside each one of us. Just like that sandal, the Spirit is our seal, our guarantee, of the fullness of our redemption! It cannot fail to occur and His Spirit in us is the proof of it! And then finally, just as Boaz called the 10 elders of Bethlehem to be witnesses of his redemption, so Christ has called us:

8. we are the WITNESSES of His redemption But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you, and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and to the end of the earth. - Acts 1:8. "You will go and tell and testify to the whole world about the fact of My redemption! You'll be the ones to declare it wherever you go and attest to the fact that I have redeemed and call people everywhere to accept the blessing of being redeemed and reconciled unto God."

And really, we should want to do that out of thankfulness. Just as Ruth, I'm sure, couldn't wait to throw her arms in gratitude around Boaz who had just changed her future forever, our hearts should cling in love and thankfulness to our Redeemer. Leslie Flynn illustrates with this story: An orphaned boy was living with his grandmother when their house caught fire. The grandmother, trying to get upstairs to rescue the boy, perished in the flames. The boy's cries for help were finally answered by a man who climbed an iron drainpipe and came back down with the boy hanging tightly to his neck. Several weeks later, a public hearing was held to determine who would receive custody of the child. A farmer, a teacher, and the town's wealthiest citizen all gave the reasons why they felt they should be chosen to give the boy a home. But as they talked, the lad's eyes remained focused on the floor. Then a stranger walked to the front and slowly took his hands from his pockets, revealing severe scars on them. As the crowd gasped, the boy cried out in recognition. This was the man who had saved his life. His hands had been burned when he climbed the hot pipe. With a leap the boy threw his arms around the man's neck and held on for dear life. The other men silently walked away, leaving the boy and his rescuer alone. Those marred hands had settled the issue. Our Redeemer has purposely left the nail prints in the hands of His glorified body and the wound in His side so that we'll never forget how it was that He redeemed us. Oh, let's cling to Him in gratitude and serve Him in thankfulness.

Ruth: From Ruin To Redemption

Legacy: "Better Than Seven Sons" - 4:11-22

Today we come to the end of the story of Ruth and of the book. Elimelech's family has now come all the way from utter ruin to complete redemption. And the bold actions of the young Moabite widow named Ruth who placed her trust in God are the catalyst that God used to bring it all about. If Naomi is pretty much a female version of Job, then this last portion of chapter 4 is similar to the ending of the book of Job where we read how God blessed the latter days of Job more than His beginning. It is the record of how God blessed Naomi, and Ruth, in the end of their suffering and indeed it seems to be a greater blessing than the beginning. Now we love to hear stories that have a happy ending as this one does, but I don't want to leave you with the false impression that God always brings about a happy ending after we go through difficult suffering on this earth. Many times He does. He loves to bless His children. Often great blessing comes out of suffering and we see it later on. As a simple example, in 1992 our building burned and it seemed at the moment like a tragedy and a hardship as we lived in temporary quarters for a year. But by the end of 1993 we recognized what a great blessing it was that God had burned our building down because He gave us this much better new one! However, God doesn't always choose to do that. Sometimes the person we love dies without a happy ending. Sometimes the illness grows worse and we leave this earth in suffering and pain. Sometimes the passionate missionary dies as a martyr. The true legacy of the story of Ruth is not to assure us that there is always happiness at the end of suffering, but rather to convince us that God uses our suffering to accomplish His great Kingdom purposes, that He redeems all things, even if we endure what seems to be utter ruin, by causing them to work together for His good purpose of saving the world. Nevertheless, in this particular story God DOES bring about an ending filled with visible blessing. The first thing we read in this passage is:

I. The Blessing Pronounced Over Boaz by all the people at the city gate as he finished his act of redemption (11-12) A blessing in biblical terms is not simply a wish, but a prayer. The people and the leaders were awed at the selfless act that Boaz had just done in committing to redeem Elimelech's land and to marry Ruth and raise up a son to inherit it and they prayed that God would use Ruth to do three things. First, that He would use her:

1. to "build a house" for him like Rachel and Leah "built" the house of Israel. This is interesting. In our minds Jacob (who was renamed Israel) is the progenitor of the nation of Israel. He had 12 sons who multiplied into the 12 tribes. But in the eyes of the people of that day, God used Rachel and Leah, his two wives to do it. Do you remember the story of what I call their "baby wars"? Leah kept trying to get Jacob to love her by having babies one after the other. Rachel couldn't conceive so she got Jacob to have babies through her servant. Then Leah retaliated by giving him her servant and finally Rachel had a son and then another so that in the end there were 12. It's basically a story of selfishness to us, but God was at work in and through it the whole time; He used these two flawed women to build a nation for His glory and that nation remembered them as their "national mothers", so to speak. And the people prayed that likewise God would use Ruth to build an enduring house for Boaz, a lasting family of descendants far beyond the small beginning that would start with one child in Bethlehem. Now here's where it gets tricky; most translations make it sound like the people have switched objects and are telling Boaz to do something at the end of v. 11, which doesn't make sense to me. Literally the words seem to be saying, and may she make you a chayil (a mighty man) in Ephrathah, one whose name is called out in Bethlehem. In other words, they prayed for Ruth to build his house and:

2. to make him mighty and well known among his people He was already a mighty man of valor, a gibbor chayil, according to 2:1. But they prayed that through the household which Ruth would build for him, he would become great in the eyes of the eyes of the whole region, one whose name was on the lips of everyone in his town. When Solomon describes the ideal woman, the wife of excellence in Prov. 31, he says, Her husband is known in the gates when he sits among the elders of the land. In other words, her behavior and the way she builds her household will cause him to be renowned in the eyes of the whole town. That's what they pray for Boaz, that Ruth would be the kind of wife that would make his reputation great, and then they ask that God would use her:

3. to produce a clan of descendants for him like Tamar did for Judah You remember the story of Tamar in Gen. 38, don't you? Like Ruth, Tamar was a non-Israelite that Judah chose to marry his son Er. But Er was wicked and God killed him, so his brother Onan married her but wouldn't give her children, so God killed him too. Judah refused to marry her to his youngest son, so finally, like Ruth, she demands her proper right to continue the family line, though she does it in a less righteous way, by posing as a prostitute and Judah himself makes his own daughter in law pregnant. That's all a story for another day, but she had twins, one of whom, Perez became the ancestor of a full one-third of the tribe of Judah to which Boaz belonged and the ancestor of most of the people living in Bethlehem and his twin brother produced another third. Two thirds of the tribe of Judah came through Tamar and her bold action. God used a much younger woman, Tamar, to produce an entire clan of descendants for Judah through her son Perez and the people regarded her as their "mother". So likewise, the people pray that God would use young Ruth to produce a whole clan of descendants for Boaz.

Hey, have you noticed how God uses women to accomplish His purposes! Yes, the stories we have are often about the men, but all over the Bible there are women, often quietly and behind the scenes, but sometimes boldly and prominently serving His purpose and changing the world around them like Ruth! Boaz was blessed through her. The fact that we even recognize his name today and know who he was and what he was like is all because of Ruth! SHE made him a mighty and a famous man in the eyes of his people because of HER bold acts of faith which seemed so minor and insignificant at the time! Ladies, take heart; God has plans to use you! You may say, "But I'm just a mom, all I do is wipe noses and wash clothes all day!" or "I'm just a clerk; I just work a cash register and smile at people!" or "I'm just a single; I took care of my parents and I just work a job to make it!" No, no, no! God has plans for you! God is using you! You might feel like you're just a Ruth gleaning in some field, just struggling to make it day by day in a life that has no real meaning! But if you love and obey Him, GOD is at work doing so much more than you can ever think or imagine! In Jesus we are all one and He will use you just as much as the mightiest man that ever believed! Boaz was indeed blessed by Ruth, but now look at:

II. The Blessing God Gave To Ruth (13) A simple enough statement of fact, but think about what this meant for Ruth.

First of all, God:

1. He caused her, a despised foreigner, to become the wife of a godly man She was after all, a Moabite, living in the darkness and idolatry of the land of Moab. But God reached into that darkness by sending Naomi and her family into Ruth's life and their love touched her and brought her to choose faith in the true and living God, whom she never would have known. He made her to sorrow through widowhood and then by that same faith, He caused her to choose to stay with her mother-in-law and come to live among His own people, who would have rejected her outright. Yet by that same faith, God changed everything and gave her a husband and not just any husband, but the most respected, the most godly, the best one in all of Bethlehem, I dare say. God brought Ruth into the Kingdom of light among the people of light and gave her a husband full of light to share it with. And then think about this:

2. He caused her who had no children in a decade to conceive and bear a son For 10 years she had been married to Naomi's son Mahlon and had no child. Her culture saw her as defective; who would ever have married her? Yet by faith Boaz is willing to marry a proven-to-be-barren woman with the intent of producing a child to continue Elimelech's line, trusting that God will change that. And He did! God opened her womb; He gave her conception. After all these long years He gave her the joy she longed for of bearing a child, and a son at that, an heir to the estate of her deceased husband! Despite the suffering she had to endure, in that moment she must have known the same joy as Mary, who when she was assured she would be the mother of the Messiah said, ...My soul magnifies the Lord, and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior, for he has looked on the humble estate of his servant. For behold, from now on all generations will call me blessed! - Lk. 1:46-48.

Well just think what God has done for us! Paul prayed that we would be giving thanks to the Father, who has qualified you to share in the inheritance of the saints in light. He has delivered us from the domain of darkness and transferred us to the kingdom of his beloved Son [Col. 1:12-13]. Peter exhorts us, ...you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for his own possession, that you may proclaim the excellencies of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light. Once you were not a people, but now you are God's people; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy. [1 Pet. 2:9-10]. Ruth reminds us that despite whatever suffering we may have had to go through along the way, we were without hope and without God in the world and now from His fullness we have all received grace upon grace, one blessing after the other that we did not deserve! Ruth was indeed blessed by God but now look at:

III. The Blessing God Gave To Naomi (14-17) Nine months go by and the baby is born. And all of Naomi's neighbors and women friends in Bethlehem gather around her on this festive occasion and in verse 17 they actually take to them the privilege that is usually reserved for the child's father; they give the baby his name, Obed, which means a servant. And as they surround her with the baby lying on her lap, they bless and thank God for all that He has done for their friend Naomi. First, they say that:

1. He gave her who had no one a redeemer (14-15) Now who is the redeemer they are talking about? Not Boaz now, though he was the redeemer that rescued the family. The redeemer they mean is the one that Ruth gave birth to, they say at the end of verse 15. It is the son, the child, Obed. Naomi had nobody. Her family was gone. Her possessions were gone. Her life was gone, by her own admission, but the women say this baby:

a. he would "restore" her "empty" life He would fill her life back up with joy and meaning and purpose. She would have someone and something again to live for. And they say:

b. he would care for her in old age There was no social security system, no pension plan. Sons and grandsons after them were the only security in the end of life and still are in much of the world. Though Boaz would take care of her for now, when he dies there would still be one who would care for her; Obed would become the surety for her future and that of Ruth. Why? Because:

c. her daughter in law's amazing love would continue through him God gave to Naomi the wonderful gift of a daughter in law who loved her more than any daughter. If to have sons was the greatest blessing in that culture and to have the perfect number of sons, that is 7 sons, was the ultimate blessing, then what can it mean for her to have Ruth who is better to have than seven sons! That unbelievable tenacious love that Ruth had would surely live on, in and through Obed toward her. Then note this:

2. He gave her who had no child a child to raise (16) Remember, Naomi's two children were both dead. She was childless. But now she became Obed's caregiver. Yes, Ruth would nurse him, but she would rock him and play with him and change his messes. She would coo him to sleep and soothe his tears. And as he grew older, she would teach him and instruct him and admonish him to love the Lord who was the true God and never worship idols. God made it possible for she who was no longer a mother to be a mother once more! And likewise:

3. He gave her who had no son a son to preserve her line Notice what the women say in verse (17a) Not, Ruth has a son, but NAOMI does! Naomi's sons were dead; Elimelech's line was finished. His memory would be blotted out of Israel and his property belong to another. But now, through the miracle of God, Naomi has been given a son. Her line will live on. Elimelech will not be forgotten and his property dispersed. Through this miracle baby, he, along with Naomi, has been rescued from oblivion. And then comes the icing on the cake for Naomi. God:

4. He made her the great grandmother of Israel's first king (17b) It turns out that Naomi's line, ends up being the royal line of Judah, the line through which the Ruler would come, and in just three generations the son to be born would become David, King of Israel. And by the way, where do you think David learned to face lions and bears and giant Philistines unafraid? Where do you think David learned to have enduring faith in God that carried him through 10 years of being hunted in the wilderness as a fugitive? Where do you think David learned to express himself to God so beautifully in the Psalms through all the thick and thin of life, sharing both his complaint and his praise? I wager that he learned it from his father Jesse and his father Jesse learned it from his father Obed who, I'm sure got much of it sitting on the lap of his grandmother Naomi and listening to his mother Ruth tell her story. The reason that David was such a great king can probably be closely traced to what his grandfather told him about his own mother and grandmother, the story of Ruth and Naomi! Their legacy produced a man after God's own heart and the greatest King Israel ever had. And now as we close, I'd like us to step back and look at the bigger picture:

IV. The Legacy God Gave To Us Through Naomi and Ruth It's expressed in the form of a genealogy in verses (18-22). The writer omitted some generations to make the number an even 10 for easy memorizing. It starts with Perez, the generation that was born in Canaan and moves through the generations who lived in the suffering of Egypt to the generation of Salmon the spy who went with Joshua into the promised land and then through Boaz to those who lived in the dark days of the Judges to David who ushered in the Kingdom. Through all these generations, God had a plan and was accomplishing a purpose. I'd sum it up in the words of Jer. 29:11, For I know the plans I have for you, declares the LORD, plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future. The story of Ruth teaches that God has a plan, a good plan that leads to a certain and better future. First of all, in this story we see that:

1. through Naomi's dark years of suffering, God was preparing a blessing for her that she could not imagine And God is doing the same for you. Paul said, Therefore we do not lose heart. Though outwardly we are wasting away, yet inwardly we are being renewed day by day. For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all. So, we fix our eyes not on what is seen, but on what is unseen. For what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal. - 2 Cor. 4:16-18. When you suffer in life, don't look at the things you see; instead gaze at God whom you can't see, who is achieving an eternal glory through what you're enduring right now and wait with hope to see it. Second, in this story we can see that:

2. through Israel's darkest era of the Judges God was preparing a great King for Israel The book begins in 1:1 with, In the days when the judges ruled... and it ends in v. 17 with David. And when Matthew repeats this genealogy in 1:6 he adds two words, David the King. The era of the Judges was 300 years of the worst of Israel's history, unfaithfulness, being conquered and overrun by enemies. But in the midst of it all, God was preparing to send His King to set Israel straight. They weren't even supposed to want a king; it was wrong for Israel to ask for a king, but even so, God knew they would and had been preparing all along to send one and the story of Naomi and Ruth was a large part of that preparation. Even when you can't see Him, God is faithfully at work carrying out His good plans! In fact, it goes deeper than David:

3. through the daring faith of Ruth in her suffering, God was rescuing the lineage through which He planned to send our Redeemer, Jesus If you read that genealogy in Matthew 1, it goes on from David the King through another

14 generations to say, and Jacob the father of Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ. - Mt. 1:16. Elimelech's line is the line through which God planned to send the Savior of the world and it was almost lost; it was nearly extinct. But Ruth, by her bold choices to follow God, rescued it! And it earned her eternal mention in the record of Christ's line in Scripture, along with brave Tamar and bold Rahab whom God used before her. Friends, we are all part of a way larger plan that God is carrying out, a plan we can't see and couldn't comprehend, but which is part of His bringing salvation to the world! And finally in this story we can see that:

4. God deliberately uses the weakest and most despised of us all to advance His Kingdom Powerless destitute widows, despised Moabites, they become God's finest instruments. God chose the foolish things of the world to shame the wise; God chose the weak things of the world to shame the strong. He chose the lowly things of this world and the despised things--and the things that are not--to nullify the things that are, so that no one may boast before him. -

1 Cor. 1:27-29. That's His principle! If God delighted to use Ruth and Naomi for such grand purposes, then He can use YOU to advance His Kingdom on earth, no matter how little or weak or young or old or poor or sick you may be. In fact, He delights in doing it because He gets all the glory.

St. Francis de Sales said, Some men become proud and insolent because they ride a fine horse, wear a feather in their hat or are dressed in a fine suit of clothes. Who does not see the folly of this? If there be any glory in such things, the glory belongs to the horse, the bird and the tailor. Sadhu Sundar Singh was converted by a vision of Christ which he had as he contemplated suicide. He roamed the north of India and Tibet in the early 1900's, dressed as a sadhu, an Indian holy man, but sharing his faith in Christ. He said, "I am not worthy to follow in the steps of my Lord," he said, "but, like Him, I want no home, no possessions. Like Him I will belong to the road, sharing the suffering of my people, eating with those who will give me shelter, and telling all men of the love of God." His life was given to sharing the love of Christ with the poor, but his reputation became known worldwide and he received wide acclaim by the church. Twice he had opportunity to travel abroad. Corrie Ten Boom writes of her experience in the early 1920's: When I saw Sadhu Sundar Singh in Europe, he had completed a tour around the world. People asked him, "Doesn't it do harm, your getting so much honor?" The Sadhu's answer was, "No. The donkey went into Jerusalem, and they put garments on the ground before him. He was not proud. He knew it was not done to honor him, but for Jesus, who was sitting on his back. When people honor me, I know it is not me, but the Lord, who does the job." [Corrie Ten Boom, Each New Day.] Naomi and Ruth were simple, ordinary, suffering people who loved God and dared to follow Him. They had no illusions of grandeur, yet God used them to shape the very faith that we hold so dear and to Him goes all the glory. Let's give Him the praise and ask for His grace to be like them.

1 SAM. 1-7 THE RESTORATION OF A NATION

We are not going to commit selves to study whole of 1 Samuel now, only chapters 1-7. The reason is that it was a time and situation much like our own. Unfortunately we often read Bible books in isolation from one another. Remember that this book follows Judges! Israel is not the obedient and successful nation she once was. She has decayed morally and spiritually and lost her greatness in the eyes of the nations, becoming a servant to the Philistines and their iron chariots. This is the story of how God reclaims and restores her and makes her the great nation that under Solomon ruled the whole Near East. The purpose of our study is to make application to our own nation, even though we are not God's chosen people like Israel, and also to make application to our own spiritual lives.

Israel's Ruin: The Family Deteriorated 1:1-8

There is a progression in thought here. The deterioration of the family leads to decadence in the church (and also vice versa!) and that in turn leads to a defeated and miserable nation! O have we not seen this process at work in America? We'll take it apart and see the things that are pulling our society downhill; today we'll look at the family. 1 Samuel begins with the story of an Israelite family, perhaps more or less typical, the family of Elkanah who lived in Ramah in the hill country of Ephraim. It was not a heathen family who had fallen into idol worship, but a believing family who worshipped the Lord. Yet notice here:

I. The Breakdown of Family Structure When God designed the family, He designed it tight and close-knit; it was to be one man, one woman, and their children. God instituted an order of responsibility in the home, making the husband the head and wife the helper, forming a complementary whole, permanently knit together as one flesh. But note the structure of this family:

1. the plurality of wives (2) This was never God's intent and plan although He did tolerate it in those days, just as Moses conceded the procedure of divorce to Israel, though Jesus said it was not God's plan from the beginning. But if you will notice, in every case of polygamy in the Old Testament, you will see that breaking God's intended family structure always leads to unhappiness. You can see it in Rachel and Leah, in Hannah and Peninnah, in David and Bathsheba and Solomon and the trouble they had with David's other sons by other wives. Solomon's many wives were his downfall. By Jesus' day polygamy was gone but another method had become common, divorce for any cause. There were schools of thought built around just what it took to divorce a wife and marry another. Evidently the practice of having two wives in succession was common but not like in our own day! I read that the current statistic in the US is that half of all marriages end in divorce! God's intended family structure is being violated on every hand. Further, note:

2. the utilitarian view of marriage Notice in verse 2 that Hannah is mentioned first. It is probably because she was the first wife. See in verse 5 how much her husband loved her and sought to comfort her, in spite of her barrenness. She got the double portion but her sister wife Peninnah always taunted her about having children. It is very probable that Elkanah married Hannah first for love and, after finding her barren for some years, married Peninnah to have children. It is much like Abraham and Sarah and their plan with Hagar or like Rachel giving Jacob her handmaid as a wife, where the second woman was taken simply to have a child. And because marriage was something that could be entered into for very utilitarian reasons, there was a low view of family structure. People all around us marry with a low view of marriage; they want money, sex, and the American dream. But when people view marriage as serving their own purpose, it is all too easy to break and change partners. Marriage is no longer a sacred covenant merging two lives into one, but a contract that can be broken for $75 by a lawyer for any reason. In Jesus' day Rabbi Akiba taught that a husband might divorce his wife simply to marry another fairer than she and still fulfill the Law. Today it happens all the time. Then notice:

3. the tension in the home (6-7) See the jealous rivalry here. Think how it must have hampered the husband. Think of the children, how Peninnah's kids must have felt. They have two "moms" who are at war and dad likes other one best! How many children are there today that now have two sets of parents, even Christian homes. We see it in our Nursery School and Pioneer Clubs so often. When the family structure is broken or cracking, the home is full of tension and falls apart. Is it any wonder that here there is also:

II. The Neglect of Family Religion Note two interesting things about this family which seems really devout at first glance, like so many church-going families today there is:

1. neglect of proper worship Compare 1:7, 2:19. They lived in Ramah, approximately 20 miles from Shiloh where the Tabernacle was (one day's travel), yet they only came up to worship once a year, perhaps like some "Easter Christians"! Remember the command in Exodus? All males were commanded to appear three times each year to celebrate the three great feast times; they came only for Passover! I can hardly conceive of Elkanah teaching the children about the Lord, having a family prayer time with them and so on. O, in Christian circles today there is a dearth of families seriously devoted to God. How many of US go to worship regularly, take time to teach our children about the Lord and pray with them?

2. adoption of improper values verse 2 seems to say that Elkanah was an Ephraimite, by which it means that he lived in the territory of Ephraim. Compare 1 Chr. 6:27-28, 31-34. Elkanah was actually a Levite of family of Kohath. That means he was supposed to be engaged in a life work of aiding the priests in the service of the Tabernacle and of knowing and teaching the Law to the people. Evidently he gave that up for some secular work; it seems there were no Levites at the Tabernacle in Eli's days. The only helpers the priests had were some women who had taken over the Levites' function! That says to me that Elimelech is a man who has adopted improper values, who loves the Lord but has no intent of serving Him in any serious way. We have churches full of people like this, folks whose priorities are mixed up, who choose anything else over serving God, who worship when they feel like it, and pray and read when they feel like it. But what are:

III. The Sources of Family Deterioration? What caused this sad state of the Israelite family? The same things that cause family to deteriorate today:

1. the environment Compare Jud. 21:25. Remember this is the time of the Judges. The whole society has a me-centered mentality and lives to please themselves first above all. No wonder that some of this has crept in to real believing homes. We have a whole society that has changed its values from freedom and truth and justice to materialism and pleasure-seeking. No wonder Christian families begin to act that way too.

2. the failure of fathers to lead Compare verse 8. Elkanah couldn't rule his own home; he couldn't bring things into line, he could only console the loser. Look at Eli in 2:12. His sons were wicked men who didn't know the Lord. Even the high priest wasn't able to lead his own children into a real walk with the Lord. Men today are not doing their job in the home; they are not leading, but simply moderating, if that!

3. the lack of spiritual leaders (3) Eli was now too old to really do much actual work; the only spiritual leaders left were his sons. How tragic! The faithful had nobody to challenge them and model a godly life for them. Exemplary leaders are hard to come by even today!

4. the lack of discipline Compare 2:29, 3:13. Eli indulged his sons. He said, "Now boys, don't do that!" but took no steps to correct them and probably hadn't corrected them all their lives! Did you ever notice how Samuel had the exact same problem in 8:3, probably because he was raised by permissive old Eli and was never disciplined either! I am appalled at what kids get away with now, how many Christian parents believe it's actually wrong to spank a child. They give them everything they want or let them miss spiritual opportunities just because they don't feel like going!

Do you see that we're in trouble? As goes the family, so goes the country. O let's get our families in order, give our kids an environment where they learn to love and serve God and be holy! Over 150 years ago five young men from Pennsylvania left their homes as pioneers to go west. After many years one returned to visit his parents. He had become a strong Christian. When asked why he had not followed the sinful ways of his four companions, he said "Because I carried in my heart a picture of my Christian home. Our last morning together after breakfast Father took down the old family Bible (like always) and started to read a favorite passage. He was soon choked up by tears. Mother finished the passage and we all knelt to pray. Father cried again and Mother put an arm around me and asked God to keep me in His care. The vision of that morning in my godly home and that tender petition has steered me right. I couldn't bear the thought of breaking the hearts of my Christian parents and dishonoring the Savior they taught me to love.

Israel's Ruin: The "Church" Decadent 2:12-36

Let's talk now about the religious institution in Israel and compare it for our purposes to the organized church in America. It is obvious from reading the text that it had become decadent. Webster defines decadent to mean marked by decay! Oh how differently this chapter reads from the days of Moses and Joshua! The same decay that had deteriorated the family had also been at work among the priesthood and religious leaders. Spiritually speaking, Israel was ruined by this! There has been a horrendous decaying in the church in the USA over the past century. We still have a tremendous Christian presence and impact on the world, but there is a tremendous spiritual downward trend that has a death-grip on our major church denominations. I have watched it at work in the one I grew up in and talked to others who have seen it in theirs. It is not pulpit talk or hearsay but cold hard fact as real and serious as the desecrations in this text. Let's consider three things. First:

I. The State of Religious Leaders The task is easy because in the story it seems there were only three, Eli and his two sons, Hophni and Phinehas. (By the way, in Hebrew Hophni means fists, that is bully and Phinehas means mouth of a serpent! How appropriate!) All the rest seem to have disappeared and gone back to secular life, like the Levite of Judges 17 who was out of work and looking for place to stay! You can see four things here:

1. laxness among older leaders (29) How different is Eli from Moses! Every time you see him it says he was old and couldn't see and he's sitting in a chair or lying down! He probably loved the Lord very much, but we saw last time that he didn't discipline his sons. This verse implies that not only is Eli letting his sons desecrate the offerings, but he's eating the meat with them, tolerating and participating in what he knew was wrong. I have sat amazed at older pastors who tolerated false doctrine for the sake of unity or peace and worried only about getting their pension! I have watched them sit in denominational meetings where things like divorce and homosexuality and inerrancy were brought up and not say a word! As young person I left my denomination over things I could not overlook!

2. unsaved leaders in high positions (12) The KJV calls them Sons of Belial which means worthless men, but it does not just mean useless; it means wicked. They didn't know the Lord by experience. They knew a lot about Him and how to lead worship and offer sacrifices, and so on, but they never entered into a relationship with Him. Instead they practiced wickedness, yet they were allowed to continue in holy office! Need I say that many major denominations are run by people who do not genuinely know Christ. It is difficult today for an evangelical to hold a high church office without compromising beliefs.

3. entrance of the profit motive (16) Their needs were met by the people giving, so they became aware of the profit to be had in the priestly office and became greedy for it. In profit hungry America, Christianity has attracted all kinds of charlatans like these whose chief aim is to get ahead. One man who had a program on the radio used to say outright, "Send me your tithe..." But even in more or less legitimate churches, you would be surprised at way pastors look at the size of the congregation and the salary package and the niceness of the parsonage as primary factors in deciding whether to serve in a particular church!

4. involvement in immorality (22) From the time of Moses there were women who served at the entrance to the Tabernacle in helpful ways, godly and pure. Hophni and Phinehas saw them as an opportunity for personal gratification. O how many of our esteemed clergy have dirty laundry like this. Clergy divorce is rampant and seminary students are carefully warned about the dangers of counseling women because it's happening again and again. The pastor that I followed at a church in Ohio during seminary had had an affair in the church and the man that followed me as pastor left his wife and three children to have an affair with and then marry a divorced counselee. Examples abound.

And as go the leaders, so go the people. Do we wonder why immorality abounds in Christian circles, why Christians seem concerned for material things, why unsaved people join churches and nobody says anything? It's our religious leadership! We'd better start being careful about the kind of people we ordain to the ministry! Now let's consider:

II. The State of Religion itself. Note some real peculiarities about things going on in this story; they show that overall there is:

1. disregard of the commands of God (3:3) Notice just couple of little things, like what happened to the lampstand. It was evidently normally allowed to go out at night. But compare Ex. 27:20-21. It was never to be allowed to go out, specifically from evening to morning. And where was Samuel bedded down? Probably in the Holy Place, and the implication is even that it was near the Ark of God. Perhaps the veil had been removed! That would never have been done in Moses' day! That was a holy place and those were holy things and only to be touched and worked with as commanded by God. But the commands of God didn't seem to matter very much anymore, not to Elkanah who only came to Shiloh once a year, not to Eli who did what he pleased in the Tabernacle, not to the sons who broke the seventh commandment, even though 4:19 says that Phinehas was married and had pregnant wife who was about to deliver! They don't seem to matter much to lots of Christians in our day. Young Christians marry unbelievers, adults fail to have a devotional life, parents fail to teach children, church members forsake assembling together or lose their tempers in public, even though all of these things are against the commands of God. Somehow that doesn't matter so much anymore. And along with that there is:

2. disrespect for the things of God Look at two examples:

a. the treatment of offerings (17) They treated sacrifices offered to God with contempt, as a common ordinary thing. Compare Lev. 7:28-35. God has proper treatment spelled out there. The worshipper is to bring the Lord's part of the fellowship offering with his own hands, that is, the fat to burn and the breast to wave, and then give these to priest along with the right thigh. Well, Eli's sons instituted a new custom (13-14) You might call it "fork lotto", taking whatever the fork brings up, and Eli's sons abused even that to take what they wanted when they wanted it! Further it was not cooked before offering it to God. They just had no respect for God's things. I'm reminded of the Christians in Corinth who treated the Lord's Supper with contempt and I know a whole lot more do now! Communion is just a pretty service, a wedding is just a gorgeous ceremony, an offering is almost a necessary evil. No, all of these things are holy to God!

b. the treatment of worship (1:13-14) Why would Eli accuse Hannah of being drunk if that were not common to some degree? Who would think of coming to the Tabernacle drunk in Moses' day? No one! The House of God was a holy place, the worship of God a sacred thing. Too often today it seems to be a play, a show, a drama to watch. No, it is the divine worship of Almighty God! It springs out of a personal relationship with Him, focuses on Him and is directed to Him. Now here is overall:

III. The State of Affairs Two very sad statements are made here about the general state of things from God's perspective:

1. the withdrawing of God's Presence (3:1) Is it any wonder that God's Word was scarce, that nobody could say "thus saith the Lord"? The Bible plainly says, Draw near to Me and I will draw near to you, but it also works in reverse! True messages from from the inerrant Word are fairly scarce today; not many preachers take stands on moral issues anymore. And the evidence of God's power seems scarcer too. Where are the people falling on their knees under conviction of sin like in Jonathan Edwards' day? Where are the revivals and transformed lives of the latter part of the 1800's and the early part of the 1900's. Of course God is doing things today, but God's power is not nearly as evident in the church in the USA as it once was and in many churches not at all!

2. the judgment to fall (25) God cannot allow this state of things to go on forever. When you sin directly against God there is no one to decide the case in your favor; God's will win and punishment will eventually come. I would not want to be in the shoes of some church leaders of today when they stand before God individually. Historically and biblically, God seems to often use suffering to purify His people, both Israel and the church. I wouldn't doubt that if there is no real revival in this land, the church here will see suffering before the Lord comes.

Let's set an example as a church. Let's be godly; let's treat God's things with respect, His commands with obedience, His worship with sincerity and His leadership with gravity!

1 SAM 1-7 THE RESTORATION OF A NATION

The Ruin of Israel: The State Defeated Chs. 4-6

It is only natural that the third phase of Israel's ruin after the deterioration of the family and decay of the "church" is the defeat of the state. Compare Deut 28:1-2, 15, 25. This law is not just for Israel but God has a law ordained for all nations, Jer. 18:7-10. The whole book of Jonah shows how God applied this to Nineveh, a pagan city-state. When a nation ignores even the most basic levels of Divinely ordained morality and rejects the light it has, there is grave danger of calamity! So see how:

I. God deals with Israel (ch. 4) - He cannot let her go on in the downward trend she has pursued and so:

1. Israel is defeated before her enemies (1-2) Israel got haughty and set out to attack her enemies, the Philistines, but God turned it into a great defeat. Now they expected a victory; they had been used to victory. After all they still had the Tabernacle among them and worship of Jehovah. But God wanted to teach them a lesson and allowed a minor defeat first (compared to v. 10!). The USA was used to winning every war we'd gotten into, but then came the tragedy in Vietnam, then the Iran hostage crisis, then our men in Lebanon being killed. I wonder if God isn't trying to tell us something, that is, if we do not return to God and obey the light we have, our nation's future is in grave danger! But look at the effect this had:

a. effect 1: pondering (3a) They evidently felt militarily well-matched; they didn't try to blame circumstances, but attributed it directly to the Lord. This much was good and so is the real questioning going on in hearts of many people today, "What is God doing with America?" But it led to a wrong effect:

b. effect 2: religion not repentance (3b-4) They sent for the ark, thinking that if it went before them like it had at Jericho, that God would bring victory. But they put their confidence in the thing rather than God. They displayed no sorrow for their sin. The apostate priests Hophni and Phinehas still carried the ark! They still had no concept of the holiness of God. I'm so afraid that this is what's happening today. There's a movement toward conservatism across the land, a return to some basic convictions and that's well and good, but where is repentance, where is confession of sin, sackcloth and ashes? I fear we'll have renewed religiosity but it may not mean repentance and change in our nation! And if not look at:

c. their final defeat (10-11) It's an even greater calamity; 30,000 men die, the army is dispersed and the Philistines rule over Israel. Furthermore, the ark is captured and the priests are slain. Let's pray and work mightily so God doesn't have to bring a greater calamity here! But there is another, more serious effect:

2. God is dishonored before their enemies - Israel alone is not at stake here; they are known as God's people, the people who trust in Jehovah, not Dagon or Baal or Allah or Buddha. Like David's sin, their sin gave occasion to the enemies of the Lord to blaspheme. Notice:

a. their initial respect of God (6-9) The Philistines had not forgotten what they heard about how God brought Israel out of Egypt. They also hadn't forgotten the days of Samson not long before and the collapse of their temple of Dagon. They initially had more respect for God than Israel did and they redoubled their efforts to win the battle. So you can imagine the effect on them when they won:

b. their new contempt for God (5:2) They took the ark, symbol of His presence and set it as the booty of war in temple of their idol Dagon. By doing that they ascribed to him the glory for their victory. When we are defeated, as we suffer humiliation, because the world sees us as a Christian nation, they blasphemes. They extol their religion or lack thereof. When you are identified with God, your sin brings Him dishonor. That's true nationally but also personally! When you sin, the enemies of God who see it are confirmed in their negative thoughts about God!

3. the summary: Ichabod (19-21) Phinehas' wife in her dying moment names her son Ichabod, the glory is departed. It means that the Shekinah, the glory-cloud, the visible presence of God is gone. God has withdrawn His Presence from Israel and left her to herself, not that God is not there in His omnipresence, but He will no longer help Israel. Oh, pray that we don't get here, that Ichabod is never written on the tombstone of fallen America! But there's a whole second lesson here:

II. God deals without Israel! (chs. 5-6) Israel was not indispensable. God had gotten glory through Israel to this point, but God was well able to get Himself glory, to make Himself known and defend His reputation among the Philistines without them! Some of us harbor the secret opinion that we are indispensable to God, that He needs USA to get the task of world evangelization done, to reveal His glory among the nations. We're not! More and more God is using other nations, third world countries, raising up missionaries from other places. See how:

1. He teaches the Philistines a lesson (ch. 5)

a. about their god (1-5) The Philistines worshipped Dagon the fish-god; he had head and chest of man and the body of a fish. God knocked his statue over prostrate before the ark the very first night as though he were worshipping Jehovah! The next night God cut off his hands and head and laid them by the door so only the fish part remained. That made a lasting impression, verse 5!

b. about His power (6-12) He taught them He didn't need an army to defeat them; He could do it all by Himself! He sent a plague of field mice or rats to ruin the crops and some kind of serious disease that caused tumors (perhaps a cancer?). Everyplace they took the Ark, destruction and misery followed. They came to fear Jehovah and decided to send the ark back; they could not stand before this God, Jehovah! And they sent it back with a guilt offering (6:4-6)! They never came to true faith, but this is better than Israel's treatment of God; at least they honored Him while Israel treated Him with contempt! Oh, if we go down the tubes, God will still win; the nations will still be reached and Christ will still return on schedule! Then, He not only teaches this lesson to the Philistines, but:

2. He teaches Israel a lesson (ch. 6)

a. the return of the Ark (10-13) Just imagine the surprise of the men of Beth Shemesh standing in the fields when the ark tops the hill followed by a Philistine delegation who stop reverently and watch. Hear them singing glory to God! Can't you just hear the lesson of Is. 59:1, Surely the arm of the Lord is not too short to save nor his ear too dull to hear! It is not that God couldn't have delivered them. He showed His power to them this way but also:

b. the holiness of His Presence (19-21) God put some of them to death and they learned that their God was a Holy God, at last! Hear the lesson of Is. 59:2 coming through loud and clear, Your iniquities have separated you from your God and your sins have hidden His face from you so that He will not hear! God showed them the missing ingredient: His holiness and their sin, and with that comes the first step toward a revival!

Oh let's pray that this lesson will come to us without the disaster, that once again we as a nation will recognize the holiness of God and how offended He is by the filth on our TVs and the magazines on our shelves and our 1 ½ million annual abortions and our exaltation of homosexuality. It has happened here before, you know. I believe it is time for a third Great Awakening!

1 SAM. 1-7 THE RESTORATION OF A NATION

Israel's Remaking: God Sends a Man 1:9-2:11

The first three messages in this series dealt with the Ruin of Israel, that is, the deterioration in the family, the decadence in their religion, and the defeat of the state before the Philistines. She was in a pitiful condition, but God was not finished with her yet. God in His Sovereign plan wanted to bring her back to Himself and to blessing and so into this mess God sends a man named Samuel. It seems like that is how God works. When He wants to bring revival in a nation, it comes through a man. In Egypt God sent Moses; in later years it was a king like Hezekiah or Josiah; after the return from Babylon it was the priest Ezra and the governor Nehemiah along with prophets Haggai and Zechariah. When God has a job to do He chooses and sends a man or small group of men. Jesus chose 12! Now we're a bigger nation that covers a much bigger area so it'll take more but if God is going to turn the USA back to Himself, He will still do it by raising up a bunch of godly leaders. Now how does God raise up godly leaders like these? IT BEGINS IN THE HOME!! Let's look at the unusual circumstances through which God sent Israel her man for this hour:

I. Hannah's three-fold desire (1:10-11) You remember the problem in Elkanah's home with the jealousy of the second wife and her constant digging and badgering poor Hannah for not having children. Finally one year she takes her problem to God and prays for a son. Now analyze her desires:

1. to silence her constant torment (1:6-7) It sounds childish but this kept up year after year, not just on a daily basis at home, but especially when they would go up to Shiloh to the Tabernacle to worship each year and when the sacrifice was divided up Peninnah would say something like, "Too bad the Lord has cursed you and kept you from having children; after all they are the heritage of the Lord and if you were blessed like me your quiver would be full of them!" Her husband would give her portion for two as if to say, "I love you just as though you had children!" and then lean over and kiss her and say, "Aren't I better than 10 sons?" But it wasn't enough; the misery was more than she could bear. However, note the kind of person she was. Compare 2:3. She didn't pray for God to strike Peninnah or her children or for her husband to divorce her to show that He loved Hannah. Her heart was not full of hatred but she did want to be free from this misery, so she prayed for a child.

2. to be a mother in Israel (2:5) She really did want a child. Israelite women felt the bearing and raising of children was a primary goal in life. Plus, the hope of every Jewish wife was to be the mother or at least in the line of the promised Messiah, the Desire of Women. However, if motherhood was her only desire, wouldn't a daughter to love and cherish have been enough? Yet she prayed specifically for a son.

3. to have a son God could use (2:1,4,10) I believe Hannah was not just praying selfishly. Look at what she says when Samuel is born. What's on her mind goes beyond her family quarrel to the deliverance of Israel and victory over her enemies. She knows it is not enough to want a son just for herself; she has to want him for God, a son that God can use to change the deplorable state of things. So she pledges him to the Lord before he is ever conceived. I tell you it is time for some godly Christian women in America to start praying for God to give them sons He can use, to pray that their sons will become great men of God and leaders of the faith who will turn many back to God. Think of the blessedness of Billy Graham's mother or Susannah Wesley whose 2 sons shook all England. That could be you! Why not pray for that privilege, for your motherhood, your parenthood to be used of God to change the course of this land!

II. God's gracious answer (1:19-20)

1. He answered her prayer Samuel's very name means "God heard"; in short order God granted her a son but not only this:

2. He granted the desire of her heart (2:20-21) in two ways:

a. in regard to children He gave her five more! He blessed her with a family.

b. in regard to Samuel He stayed there before the Lord and grew up in the presence of the Lord! Oh what a privilege! She wanted him to be used of God and here he is growing up with the High Priest Eli at the House of God. Even in the midst of the decadence, God's presence was still to be found there. I think sometimes we spend too much time praying our kids will stay healthy and do well in school and forget to pray that God will impact their young lives and shape them for His purposes! But He would do it if we would ask!

III. Hannah's Godly Actions Prayer is not enough. Hannah took some very difficult but essential steps with Samuel that made him the one God could use:

1. she raised her son as a perpetual Nazirite (1:11) That's what this vow means; he would be a Nazirite from birth. You remember what this meant. He could drink no wine nor touch any grape products, He would have to leave his hair uncut and never touch anything dead to defile himself. From his earliest days he knew he was different from other boys, that he belonged to God. Now that was a rather external distinction for him and that is no longer necessary but don't you think the way godly leaders come about is not by accident, but rather by godly mothers that teach them from little on up that they belong to God and the sole purpose of their life is to serve Him? I don't mean teaching them that the purpose of their life is keeping a bunch of rules for God. Think a moment about another Nazirite, Samson, and listen to what Alfred Edersheim says, "Samuel was God-granted; Samson was God-sent. Samuel was God-dedicated; Samson was God-demanded. Both were Nazirites, the one spiritually, the other outwardly; both prevailed, but the one spiritually and the other outwardly. The work of Samson ended in self-indulgence, failure, and death; that of Samuel opened up into the royalty of David, Israel's great Type-King." Hannah's one desire was for her son to know and be used of God and so to that end:

2. she surrendered him to the Lord (1:24-28) Probably at age three or so she weaned him and took him up to the tabernacle and did the hardest thing she ever did in her life; she left him there to be cared for and raised by Eli and the women who helped serve at the tabernacle. Now very seldom does God want this kind of physical surrender from us and yet He wants us all to do what she did with him, to let go. Let God take and guide and use our child's life in whatever way He sees fit. It may mean being far away or never having much success in worldly terms as they grow older. It may mean their being unpopular or not getting to see very much of your grandchildren. It may mean a sword piercing your heart like that of Mary as she stood by the cross. Yet the only way God can make spiritual giants who can change the course of a nation and of history is for parents to let go. Moses' mother let him go into the home of an Egyptian princess; Jesus' mother let Him go into an itinerant ministry and a cross. So must we. How do you pray for your children? How are you training them? How are you doing at surrendering them? How badly do you want to see God work in this land?

1 SAM. 1-7 THE RESTORATION OF A NATION

Israel's Remaking: God Uses A Man (ch. 7)

Having looked at the sad state Israel was in, we saw last time how God in His Sovereignty and Omniscience sent a man into the midst of it, Samuel. We saw the role godly parents can play in bringing spiritual leaders into the world. Now we're going to see how God finally brings about spiritual revival in Israel and remakes and restores her. But first we have to see God's plan at work over a period of years, simultaneously in the life of Samuel and in the life of Israel.

I. God Prepares Samuel (2:26) God continued to work in Samuel's life after he was brought to live at the Tabernacle. He grew not only physically but spiritually; he became more and more prepared to be God's instrument. Not only that, but God worked in his relationship with other people. Does this verse sound familiar? Compare Lk. 2:52. It was just like the Lord Jesus; indeed Samuel is a type of Christ in many ways:

- both had a special birth; both grew in wisdom
- both served God from a young age
- both came to decadent time in Israel's history
- both were prophets with true words
- both were priests of different order (Samuel was a Levite but not of the priestly line of Aaron); both were appointed by God

God prepared even His own Son. Spiritual leaders do not just happen; God grows them. In fact He could do it with you or with your children if serving Him is your foremost desire.

1. God taught him to hear and transmit His Word (3:1, 21) Remember the decadence of the time; God was not talking to anyone; nobody was listening with a pure heart! Yet you know the story of how God first talked to Samuel and taught him to listen to His voice; He showed Samuel to listen carefully and then pass on His Word to Eli and others. Verse 21 says God continued to do this with Samuel all through his growing up years. Of course, God rarely speaks in an audible voice or a vision, but a spiritual leader must still learn to hear His voice in the written Word and in his heart and discern what He's saying and transmit it clearly.

2. God taught the people he was a prophet (3:19-20) God built a reputation for Samuel among the people. What he told them from God, God did, until the whole land from Beersheba in the south to Dan in the north knew that he was God's spokesman. Compare 9:6. See his reputation years later, "What he says comes true!" God not only has to build up a spiritual leader personally, He has to build him up in the eyes of people so they will listen. He told Joshua (3:7), Today I will begin to exalt you in the eyes of all Israel so they may know I am with you. This is important. It usually takes God years to raise up a spiritual leader, not only because he must grow him, but he must also grow a reputation of trustworthiness and integrity for him. Now at same time God was preparing Samuel to be used:

II. God Prepares Israel for a time of revival How?

1. through 20 years of hearing (3:21-4:1) You must read the Old Testament carefully because often the small phrases are important. At the same time God was building Samuel's reputation, Israel was hearing God's Word from him. What did he say? We don't know but He probably denounced the worship of Baal and Ashtaroah that abounded everywhere and was encouraged by the Philistines who dominated them. He might have used words like Is. 59:1-2. This message went out year after year and God used it; it did not go out in vain. It began to have an effect on the hearts of Israel.

2. through 20 years of suffering (7:1-2) Note the words a long time! Remember in chapters. 5-6 Israel had fought the Philistines and lost the ark of God. They returned it but they didn't stop dominating Israel. They exacted tribute, confiscated their iron weapons (13:20) and removed blacksmiths who could make them. I'm sure they were harsh taskmasters and Israel lived in the shadow of fear and suffering. God let this go on for 20 years; that's a long time! That's how long it took before they began to mourn and seek God. But the Word of Samuel combined with their daily suffering finally began to make an impact and produce in them a new attitude almost like those at Pentecost who understood their sin and said to the apostles, "What shall we do?" Israel finally came to Samuel to seek God. God used this pattern with Israel a number of times, combining the Word with suffering to bring revival. He has also done it in other lands, China, for example. I would not think it unreasonable that God would use it here. The Word is going forth clearly by every possible medium, so I would expect God to use suffering to impress us with it! If economic woes are not enough, who knows what it may take! Pray that revival will come before this is necessary!

III. God Now Uses Samuel See how God used Samuel when the time was right and what a blessing he was:

1. in the spiritual life of Israel When they realized their spiritual need they came to him and:

a. he led them to forsake their sin (7:3-4) He told them exactly like it was. All the Baals and Ashtaroths had to go; their shrines had to be torn down. God is a jealous god and will not share his glory with another. They have to worship Him and Him alone. There has to be whole-hearted commitment to Him which includes readiness to obey. To be honest this is what I don't see in the Christian church in large measure just now. There may be many coming to Christ as Savior, but I see in life after life a real resistance or disregard for things of God even among the most pious of families both here and elsewhere. Either Jesus is Lord of all or He's not Lord at all, and that's what God used Samuel to show Israel.

b. he led them to confession and prayer (7:5-6) He called a national assembly at Mizpah in Benjamin and they had a time of genuine confession and fasting. They drew water and poured it out to God as a symbol of their repentance:

- of their utter helplessness - 2 Sam. 14:14

- of their dedication to God - 2 Sam. 23:16-17

They were saying, "God we've sinned! You are righteous; we are wicked and do not deserve mercy!" They got a proper view of God as righteous, holy, and just and of the vileness of their own behavior. If revival comes to us it must begin with this both nationally and publicly!

2. in the national life of Israel (7:8-10) The Philistines evidently didn't like that Israel was holding a big national meeting, no matter what it was for, and sent out their army. Through Samuel's prayer and leadership God routed the Philistines before Israel. Look at 13-14. God blessed the nation and restored its freedom and tranquility and bounty once again. So his ministry had an effect on the national well-being. Don't forget that your ministry is important. The ministry of a spiritual leader is important because it affects the course of history and the world!

3. in the continuing life of Israel Samuel didn't retire and go fishing in the Sea of Galilee, but continued to serve God as prophet, judge, and priest.

a. he gave them a lifetime of service (7:15-17) All his days he led Israel in worship, judged her people with all their civil problems, and brought them the Word of God. A man's ministry is never done. But more than that:

b. he gave them a perpetual example Compare Heb. 11:32-33. By faith he administered justice. Not only was he a spiritual example to them all the days of his life, but later generations looked back to him as the first of the prophets. His name was mentioned in Ps. 99:6 along with Moses and Aaron as one who called on God; it's mentioned in Jer. 15:1 along with Moses as an example of a righteous man. And finally, when God had the roll call of the saints written in Hebrews, there he was, an example for all time of a man consecrated to God. His influence was never forgotten.

Lord, send us some Samuels today! Raise up some spiritual leaders that you can use in this land to turn us back to righteousness! Let's determine by God's grace to be like him, to let God use us and raise our kids so God can use them! Let's change the course of history!

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Serving Heart: 1 Sam. 16

Today we begin a series of twelve messages or so on the life of David. If you had to pick out the most outstanding characters in the Old Testament, they would be Abraham, Moses, and David. A greater volume of Scripture is given to the record of their lives than any other. They are the ones that stuck in the Jewish mind for centuries. The Jews of Jesus' time regarded Abraham as their Father, Moses as their Law-giver and David as their King. Each was known for their special relationship to God. Abraham was said to be God's friend, Moses was said to speak with God face to face, but David was said to be a man after God's own heart. Turn with me to 1 Sam. 16 please: (read 1-13)

Introduction: As we begin, please notice with me two things:

1. what God looks for in a person (7) He's not concerned about the outward appearance, how tall and strong and handsome you are, how beautiful and charming and fair you are. God sees through all that. When God looks for a person to use, He looks at their heart. He looks for the right kind of heart. God chose David not because he was ruddy and handsome but because his heart was right. Now look:

2. what God found in David (Acts 13:22) He looked down deep and found a heart after His own heart, literally, a man "according to" his own, that is, with a heart that was like His own or at least that was in agreement with His own. That's what God wants to find in you. He's not so much looking for talent, for ability, for appearance, for qualifications and degrees. He's looking at your heart and whether it is like His or not so that He can use you. And of course, the kind of heart David had was displayed in the incidents of his life. So, over the next few weeks we'll study the major incidents of David's life in the hope that it will tell us something of the heart God wants to produce in us. When David comes on the scene, the first thing we notice about him is that he has a serving heart, a heart that was dedicated to the service of others above himself. And that service began right at home:

I. His Service at Home (1-13) Now you may never have thought about it before, but David's home life must not have been easy. He was the youngest of eight brothers. Do you know what it means to be the youngest of eight? In my experience, the younger you are, the more of a servant you get to be. For David you can see the kind of things he had to do:

1. the manner of his service

a. tending sheep (11) Now notice, there is a party going on, a sacrifice and a feast. Somebody has to stay with the flocks. Guess who's elected? Now if you think shepherding is exciting, think again. Mostly it is days and days of sitting and watching sheep eat or leading them from pasture to pasture. Sure, there may be emergencies but probably only rarely. And compare 17:14-15. Wartime comes with the Philistines. The oldest sons get to join the army and go fight. Where's David? Tending the sheep, even though by this time he's been employed by Saul as a singer; he still has to go home to the sheep.

b. running errands (17:17-19) No doubt this incident was typical. You know yourself that as your kids grow older it is the youngest who you get to do errands like get the mail or let the dog in, a lot of thankless jobs. A lot of David's service was in typical everyday things just like you may be called on to do. But the important thing is to see:

2. the nature of his service Look how he did it:

a. he did it whole-heartedly (17:34-35) I would probably have taken off at the first sight of the bear and said, "Dad, sorry about that, but this bear came along..." Not David. He tended those sheep well, boring as it may have been normally. He loved them and cared for them. And when the chips were down, you can see his heart was in it. That's what God wants to see in you: no matter what kind of service you are called on to do, that you do it with all your heart! Listen kids, how well do you do your chores? Do you sweep the dirt under the rug or throw the toys into a closet where they're hidden and say the room is clean?

b. he did it good-naturedly (17:28-29) Of course, having come all that way with the goodies for his brothers, they get mad at him when he asks curious questions! Sound familiar? Yet he didn't bring that up to them, didn't act hurt or get angry, he just talked to others. He was good-natured. He did what he had to do without complaining and griping about it. And that's what God wants to see in you: not just that you do what you must do well, but that you do it willingly and without complaint. And all this service begins at home, begins right where you live in the day to day seemingly unimportant things. That's where God tests you. But it is not in vain. Look at:

II. His Promotion to Greater Service (14-20) Now I want you to compare Prov. 22:29. This is not to say that every skilled person who serves well will end up working for the President, but simply to say that faithfulness at home in the everyday things will be noticed and lead to greater things. For David it was literally true. From his service at home, he came to serve Saul the King of Israel, all because one of Saul's attendants knew him and observed him. I would point out three things:

1. his skills were noticed (18) This man saw David playing and singing to the sheep and was impressed that here's a man that knows how to play and sing. People notice your skills, the things you do well.

2. his service was noticed The man must have seen David take on a bear or a lion and knew the kind of bravery and faithful service he performed. People not only notice what you do but how you do things; they notice whether you are a genuine servant or not.

3. his spirituality was noticed The man knew David loved God and was close to Him. If you're letting your light shine, people notice your relationship to God as well. And when people notice these things, opportunities for greater service and more important things will probably start to come your way. And whether they notice it or not, God does and as He sees in you the kind of heart that He wants, He will begin to provide you with greater opportunities for serving Him. That's what God did with me. I started out assisting in teaching Sunday School, then a campground ministry, then a church ministry, then a bigger one, and so on. Now before we quit let's look at:

III. His Service at the Court (21-23) Now David comes to stay at least for a while with Saul and to exercise his skills and service in a new realm. Let me point out three things about it:

1. it was surprisingly like his service at home At home he played and sang Psalms for sheep; now he did it for a troubled king. And it had the same effect! He was also one of Saul's armor-bearers. Now since there was no war on just at that moment, I suspect that meant carrying the king's weapons around and having to help the king dressed in armor every day. Pretty mundane stuff. We always think it must be so exciting for those who serve at some higher level than we do, but it's just as tough and full of boring tasks as where we are now!

2. his service at home prepared him for it The sheep-tending and errand-running made him a good attendant for the King. The things you do in your daily home life to serve others and serve God are God's training ground for you; He's preparing you and molding you.

3. it in turn prepared him for sovereignty His service as Saul's attendant here and later prepared him to be the kind of wonderful King he was later in life. He saw what a King's responsibilities were. He saw in Saul how not to act! His place of service prepared him to be the greatest king Israel ever had. And it all began with tending sheep.

Well, my friend, how is your heart? Do you have the heart of a servant or is your heart a selfish heart that insists on its own way or does its daily tasks in a grudging fashion? I would leave you with these words from Phil. 2:5-8. That is the mind and the heart that were in Jesus Christ. Let that same heart be in you!

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Humble Heart: 1 Sam. 18

The trail of David's life leads now from the sheepfold to the army. Having proved himself in battle against Goliath, he now moves into the service of King Saul, living the life of an army officer. He is also still playing the harp and singing for Saul. As I read this 18th chapter in the NIV, a word kept jumping out at me, the word success (5, 13-16, 30). David in this period of his life was a man for whom everything went right, who never seemed to mess up or fail. But what impressed me so much was that in spite of all the success, David remained humble to the end. And that can only be because his heart was humble in nature. That's another aspect of the kind of heart God wants to find in you. So, let's trace:

I. The Trail of Prosperity Notice that:

1. David succeeded in whatever he did First, verse 5 shows us that he succeeded within the army. He was given a high rank there. Verses 13-14 tell us he was later given command over a thousand men and stationed away from the palace on his own. He led the troops in battles against the Philistines and defeated them repeatedly. Verse 30 says this continued and David was able to win more battles than the rest of Saul's officers. In essence, David rose in a very short time from being a young lad who stoned Goliath to being the most valuable person in the army of Israel.

2. David behaved wisely (with insight) If you're reading the KJV, you have probably been sitting there wondering where I keep getting the word success from. In all those verses your Bible reads that David behaved wisely! The reason for that is this. The Hebrew word in all those spots means to act with understanding or insight of the situation and therefore to succeed or prosper in what you do. The reason David was so successful as a military leader was that he had great depth of insight. He knew his men and their capabilities and their limits. He knew his enemy and how they fought. He did not rush into battle with cocky confidence but carefully thought out his actions. And with each battle his insight was increased. But that's not the whole story:

3. David's secret of success (12, 14, 28) The Lord was with him! Yes, his own effort played a part in it, but it was the Lord who increased it and worked with Him in everything. Now it's not the point of this message, but there's the secret of success. You have to behave yourself wisely; you have to think and pray over your actions. But you also have to walk close to the Lord in a daily fellowship and depend on Him for wisdom and understanding and for the end result. Now once things begin to go well, the trail of success can lead to:

II. The Trap of Popularity David was a general; his successes were not done in a corner somewhere. Everyone saw it and here is what happened:

1. David pleased the people (5) He was a hero. They were elated by the triumph he had brought about in slaying Goliath. Further:

2. David was praised by the people (6-7) They began to sing to him and about him. They credited him with the success of the whole thing. They gave him more credit than Saul the King!

3. David was loved by the people (16) This continued on. It was more than just one occasion; the more David led the troops, the more the people of Israel loved him. And so, there was:

4. the obvious temptation (8b) Saul recognized it right away. Why not the Kingdom? Why not overthrow Saul or wait until he is old and then take it from him? After all he is a lousy king and disobedient to the Lord. You see along with success can come pride and when pride simmers awhile it leads to sin. You've seen examples of that. It's true in all of life and even for Christians. Perhaps the reason Saul was so suspicious of David was that this very thing had happened to him! He had started out with good success and was loved by the people but became proud and intruded into the priest's office and didn't obey God fully in the slaying of the Amalekites. So, God set him aside. But David never fell into the trap! One of the reasons God chose him to be the next king, I believe, is that his heart was genuinely humble. Now let's look at his own actions and reactions during this period and try to find:

III. The Marks of Humility They may surprise you.

1. not retaliating when attacked (9-11) Saul was jealous of David from the very first and now that the Holy Spirit had left him and he was troubled by this demonic influence, he actually stooped to trying to kill David in an unsuspecting moment with his spear. The thing that gets me is that it was not once but twice! David must have come back! Now if David ever needed an excuse to attack Saul, this was it. But David wouldn't raise a hand against him. Why not? compare 24:6. He knew it wasn't right before God! Humility means putting up with being wronged! Are you humble? Do you fight back all the time, get even with people, feel like you always have to come out on top?

2. forgiving when wronged The fact that David came back to play for Saul after the first time shows that he was willing to forgive. Not only did David never attack in return, he never became bitter, never spoke evil of Saul, never hated him. But the capstone is that he forgave him and went back! Is.53:7 says of Jesus He was oppressed and He was afflicted yet He did not open His mouth! He was led as a sheep to the slaughter and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb so he opened not His mouth. How about you? Do you get vindictive or hateful when someone does you wrong? Do you hold it against them? Or do you forgive them, knowing that you too have sinned and done wrong and been forgiven!

3. estimating oneself truly (17-18) Saul's second attempt at getting rid of him had to do with offering him one of his own daughters in marriage. It happened twice. The first time Saul simply gave the daughter to someone else. The second time Saul got the idea of requiring David to kill 100 Philistines as a bride-price, hoping he would get killed in the attempt. However, note David's words in the midst of all this. "Who am I?" David doesn't see himself as the great hero like everyone else does. He says "I'm not an important person; I don't come from a famous family; why should I qualify to be the king's son-in-law?" David never forgot who he was, just a shepherd boy from Bethlehem. Paul wrote, Do not think of yourself more highly than you ought, but rather think of yourself with sober judgment... (Rom. 12:3). Think of yourself the way God can see you, right down to the heart. Remember you are only a sinner saved by grace and when you see someone else sin, think, "There but for the grace of God, go I."

4. recognizing the honor of opportunity (23) Now most people would jump at opportunity, whether it's to marry the king's daughter or to receive an award. David thought about whether he deserved the opportunity! Why should the king be related to a common man with no money? Now David did accept, but he did it with the attitude that it was a gracious undeserved blessing. If we were honest, most of us really feel we deserve everything and anything we get. Prov. 27:2 says, Let another praise you and not your own mouth; someone else and not your own lips. If I could adapt that a bit I would say, "Let your praise come from others, not from your own heart!" Jesus said So you also, when you have done everything you were told to do should say, 'we are unworthy servants; we have only done our duty'. Be humble about the blessings that come your way.

5. not seeing yourself as the exception to the rule The mention of money here goes a little deeper. In those days the groom paid the bride's father a bride-price (not quite like shopping for the cheapest one). David knew he had no money and the king would surely want a high price. If you or I were David, we might have thought, "Oh well, the king shouldn't require that of me; after all, look at all I've done for him, slaying Goliath, winning battles, etc." That's the American way of thinking, "Why should I have to...". David didn't see himself as above others or above the rules of the day; he saw himself as subject to the same rules as everyone else. Do you?

6. doing more than is required (24-27) Saul didn't want money. He required only proof that David had slain 100 of the King's enemies, the Philistines. How many did David bring? 200! He went the second mile, literally! So many times when we try to please people or do what is required, we try to see how little we can get by with. We do things half-heartedly. We do them grudgingly. David had a willing heart that responded to the spirit of the request, not the letter. Real humility is pitching in with all your heart wherever and whenever you're needed, not strictly carrying out orders in the letter of the law.

Well, my friend, is your heart a humble heart? Are you a forbearing person, a forgiving person? Do you see yourself and the things that come your way as God sees them? Are you little in your own eyes? And you know that's tough to answer because humility is a paradoxical thing: thinking you have complete humility is a sure sign you don't! It's something we keep working at and praying for God to cultivate in us all our lives. Let me just close with an illustration of humility. A traveling man arrived at a hotel late one evening and was told there was no room available and other nearby hotels were full. As he was dejectedly leaving a man approached and offered to share his room with him. He accepted. Before retiring, the host knelt and prayed aloud, asking God to bless the stranger by name. In the morning he told the guest it was his habit to pray and read the Bible at the start of each day and asked if he would care to join him. The Holy Spirit had been working in the stranger and it was not very long before he willingly received Christ as Savior. When the two were ready to part, they exchanged business cards. The new believer was amazed to read "William Jennings Bryan, Secretary of State".

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Faithful Heart: 1 Sam. 20

David's unbeatable success in the 18th chapter soon gave way to problems. The more David succeeded, the more Saul hated him and determined to kill him. In chapter 19 Saul tries three times. First he tells his attendants to kill him but Jonathan talks him out of it, then he tries again with his spear but David runs out and then he sends men to David's house to kill him, but David's wife Michal helps him escape out a window. So now David becomes a fugitive and for the rest of the book he is living the life of a hunted person, always in the wilderness or somewhere looking over his shoulder and fleeing from Saul. In chapter 20 it is just finally being made clear to David that his relationship with Saul is totally over. But the bright spot in all of this is the relationship between David and Saul's son Jonathan. What makes it so noteworthy is that it goes against nature. Usually it's "like father, like son". If your father hated someone and despised them, chances are good you would side with him! And if someone's father was trying to kill you, you probably wouldn't like them either! But Jonathan and David remained true and faithful to each other while living on opposite sides of what amounted to an open war. And that quality of faithfulness is one of the things that made David a man with a heart like God's own, for after all, God is faithful, isn't He? Then certainly, faithfulness is not only one of the fruits of the Spirit that God plants in us when we are saved but something He wants to see come to maturity in us so that He can use us. Now notice first that David and Jonathan had:

I. The Covenant of Faithfulness There must be something to be faithful to and that something is a covenant. A covenant is a sacred promise or vow. Jonathan and David made a covenant with each other when they first met and renewed it on several occasions. See first:

1. it's basis: love (18:1-4) Twice it says, He loved him as himself. Compare 20:17; 2 Sam. 1:25-26. This love that David and Jonathan had for each other was fierce, self-sacrificial, putting aside all thought of personal well-being for the other. And that love was the basis for the covenant they made with each other. We too are involved in a covenant. Compare Mt. 26:26-28. Even as in the Old Testament the making of a covenant usually involved sacrifice, so the Lord Jesus shed his blood to seal a New Covenant with us. Now notice that the covenant is not just between Him and us, but He says, "Drink from it all of you". We are not in this thing alone with Him. We are in it together with each other. And look at Jn. 13:34-35 to find the basis of this new covenant, a new commandment which is to love each other as Christ loved us! With the self-sacrificing, giving, total agape love of God. 1 Jn. 4:19 puts it like this, We love (not Him as in the KJV) because He first loved us. What I'm saying is this: this relationship between David and Jonathan is not some special unique thing; it is the kind of relationship that should exist between us, between you and every brother and sister in Christ, between you and every person in this church! You're part of a Covenant with them by being in Christ. That's why we have a Church Covenant as an outward reminder of what is already true. We are bound too in a sacred covenant with each other in Christ. Now what are:

2. it's terms: unfailing kindness (20:12-17) Verse 14. The Hebrew word is hesed, a special word. It means God's love and mercy and faithfulness all wrapped up in one. It is the agape of the Old Testament. So, David and Jonathan promised to treat each other with same unfailing kindness and love that God had shown to them. Despite the animosity of Saul, they would never become enemies and never do anything to harm one another. David would never cut off Jonathan's descendants when he got the throne, which was the normal kingly custom to kill all potential rivals. And, of course, the expectation is that we are to treat one another with the same unfailing kindness that God has shown to us. Compare Rom. 12:10. Here is the key to loving actions: to honor the other above yourself, to consider him above you, to think first of his needs and welfare ahead of your own. That is what it means to be part of the body of Christ. Now what if you don't? In a covenant someone has to be the keeper, the one to see that it is made good:

3. it's keeper: the Lord (20:13, 16) Jonathan calls on the Lord to deal with him severely if he failed to love and help David and vice versa. The covenant that binds us is sealed in Christ's blood; He is its keeper and if we fail to be faithful in our covenant of love, He is obligated to discipline us and bring us to the place of faithfulness.

II. The Aspects of Faithfulness Just what does it mean to be faithful to one another in Christ. How does it work out in our actions? Well, if we look at how David and Jonathan treat each other in these chapters, we'll see an example of it in action. Surprisingly, or perhaps not so surprisingly, this list reads very much like 1 Cor. 13!

1. interceding for the other (19:4) Here's the first time Saul tells Jonathan and attendants to kill David and Jonathan goes to bat for him right away. He speaks on his behalf and turns away Saul's wrath. You know, sometimes being faithful to another means speaking up for them! It means taking their side and not letting them sit there and take the consequences all alone. It means defending them to others. For example, in Jer. 38 the officials of Judah were mad at Jeremiah for his prophecies and got permission from the king to throw him into a cistern and leave him to die. But Jeremiah had a faithful friend named Ebed-melech who found out and went to the king and interceded for Jeremiah and got him pulled out! That's how we need to be for our brothers and sisters!

2. believing the other (20:2-4) This time Saul kept his intent secret from Jonathan and he just couldn't believe it when David came and told him his dad was trying to take his life again. Yet in the end he said in effect, "I believe you; I will do whatever you want". Paul wrote, Love always trusts. Faithfulness means believing somebody until you are dead certain they're wrong and have facts to back it up. It means not being suspicious or quickly offended but trusting the intent and motives of the other.

3. helping the other (4) Jonathan was ready to do anything to help David, whatever it took. That's what being faithful to someone means: you're there to help when they need you. If they're sick, you're there with a meal. If they're sad, you're there to support them. If they need a hand, you're there to lend it.

4. warning the other (9) Jonathan knew this was a part of being faithful to David, warning him of any danger he knew about. A person who is faithful to us will never let us walk into trouble if he knows about it without at least a word of advice. We may be ignorant of the thing; we may have a kid on drugs and be too blind to see it but a friend knows and lovingly warns us. We may be about to make an unwise decision but a faithful brother stops and says, "Be careful!"

5. empathizing with the other (34, 41) Jonathan checked things out with his dad and almost got himself speared against the wall for it. Then he went out and warned David in the field by the incident of shooting the arrows and sending the boy to find them. But the point I want to make is that he was incensed at his father's treatment of his friend. Then he and David wept with each other. They wept because of injustice, of separation from each other, of their being forced to be on opposite sides. But David wept the most! He felt for Jonathan having to live with a father who would try to kill him in a fit of temper and who might well one day get him killed through his own disobedience to the Lord. Being faithful means empathizing with the other person, not just sympathizing, saying "Aw, isn't that too bad!" but feeling what they feel, hurting when they hurt, weeping when they weep, rejoicing when they rejoice.

6. encouraging the other (23:17-18) Later on David is hiding from Saul in the wilderness at Horesh and who comes but Jonathan, and what for? To encourage him in the gloom of his problem! To remind him of God's promise that he would be King and that God's word never fails. Isn't that what faithful brothers and sisters are for, to say, "Hang in there!", to get out the Bible and remind us of God's faithfulness, to encourage us when the chips are down?

7. continuing for the other Jonathan eventually died in battle against the Philistines along with Saul. But on two occasions, even after he became King, David continued faithful even though death had intervened. Compare 2 Sam. 9:7, 21:7. Love never fails; it never runs dry or quits. It continues. And so does being faithful. God's faithfulness is expressed to us in Heb. 13:5, I will never leave you nor forsake you. That is how we are to be to one another.

And that's what was in David's heart that made God use him so. Saul was a powerful warrior King but he was not faithful to his loved ones and not to God either. David was faithful to others and by that God knew he would be faithful to Him also. If you can't stand by your brother whom you can see, how will you stand by God whom you can't? Are you faithful to your brothers and sisters? Can they count on you? God wants to use you so much but you must prove faithful! But when you do, just think of the joy of one day hearing him say Well done, thou good and FAITHFUL servant, enter into the joy of thy Lord!

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Forgiving Heart: 1 Sam. 24 and 26

David was no more than 20 when he was driven out of Saul's court and began the life of a fugitive in the wilderness. And since he was 30 when he became king, that very difficult period was about 10 years long! Now 10 years of scurrying about like a rabbit being hunted by a fox should tend to do some obvious things to your personality. It should tend to breed bitterness and hatred for the one oppressing you and a desire for vengeance. But David had something that is very hard to come by, even among Christian people today, a forgiving heart. In fact, that forgiveness was so genuine that you can look at what David said when he heard about Saul's death in battle. Compare 2 Sam. 1:22-24. Then he executed the man who claimed to have slain Saul! You see, God couldn't put a man on the throne of Israel who was vindictive and self-seeking. He wanted a man with a forgiving heart, a heart just like His own, one who would see the sin of others and reach out to them in love anyway. And that's the heart God wants to grow in you so He can use you too. Now, of course, we have the record of only a few of the major things that happened in those years, but two of the incidents are nearly identical and get right at how David's heart was in the midst of his suffering. From the first incident we learn that:

I. Forgiving Means Forbearing (Ch. 24) Out in the little oasis of En-Gedi by the shores of the Dead Sea David had an amazing opportunity, one that is almost unbelievable:

1. the opportunity (1-4) Above En-Gedi, rising to the heights are rocky crags and rough terrain. There are also caves there, one of them reputedly large enough to hold 30,000 men. Some of them seem to have been used as sheepfolds. David and his following that had grown to 600 in number had chosen one of these as a hiding place. And as Saul and his army passed by, Saul needed a private place, not to take a nap as we usually think of it but actually to go to the bathroom! So here he comes trotting in all alone and probably without weapons to the very cave where David is hiding! What an opportunity this is for vengeance, to end this chase once and for all. The pressure was on, from the old nature, and from the men next to David who even told him it must be from the Lord! It was from the Lord, but it was a test to see what kind of heart David had!

2. the restraint (5-7) David held back both himself and his men. The only thing he did was to sneak up and cut off a piece of Saul's robe that he had laid aside for the moment. And this kind of restraint and forbearance is exactly what God wants to build in you. Compare Rom. 12:17-21. Justice and punishment are God's personal realm; it is not up to us to pay people back for the wrong they do! Verse 18 tells us to do what we can to live at peace with others. David turned this situation into an opportunity to do just that.

3. the proof (8-11) David used the piece of robe to prove his own innocence of any desire to harm Saul or take his kingdom. You may have to find ways to do the same thing. Often when people have something against you or wrong you, they really don't know you; they've read their own kind of thinking into you. You may have to look for ways to show them what you're really like. What did we just read? If your enemy's hungry, feed him" Find a need in his life and meet it! True forgiveness doesn't content itself with enduring the wrong but with patching the relationship!

4. the motive (12-15) David wanted to be true to the Lord. Saul was the Lord's anointed king and David wanted to please the Lord so much that it bothered his conscience that he had even cut off the corner of Saul's robe. Yes, there ought to be concern for the person; Jesus said "love your enemy". But there also ought to be an intense desire to please God in the matter and to do right. Two wrongs never did make a right and when you return wrong for wrong, even if you seem justified in doing so, your wrong is still not right! However, there may be:

5. the reward (16-22) Saul was repentant; his heart was touched, though in his case, it was short-lived. Sometimes your brother will hear you and you have gained your brother! But in any case, forgiving means forbearing, enduring the wrongs of others without retaliation, trusting God to work out the situation and leaving it in His hands. But it also means something even harder:

II. Forgiving Means Repeating (Ch. 26) Doing it over and over again if necessary. Chapter 26 is almost identical to chapter 24. Note:

1. the repeated offense (1-2) Saul's promise was short-lived and before long his remorse was forgotten and he was back out in the wilderness hunting David again. Having a forgiving attitude toward someone is no guarantee that they won't wrong you again!

2. the repeated temptation (5-8) David and Abishai sneak down to Saul's camp and make it all the way in past the guards and sleeping soldiers. Once again temptation presents itself, "Kill him, go ahead, he's hunted you..." And you know, I think temptation in this area is harder the second time around! When someone wrongs you after you've just finished forgiving them, it's much harder the second time. But see:

3. the repeated response (9-12) David still won't lay a hand on him! He still wants to trust the whole thing into the Lord's hands and not take it into his own. What a heart David had, a heart that would not only forbear retaliating against an enemy, but would do it repeatedly. I'm reminded of Jesus' words, compare Mt. 18:21-22. Not once or even seven times, but as many times as the offense was repeated. And that causes us to notice that:

III. Forgiving Means Patience In order to have a forgiving heart, we must have a patient heart. There are three kinds of patience:

1. patience with others (27:1) David knew Saul's heart and knew that he would be back again. So he set himself to cope with that the best way he knew how. We've got to be patient with others; sometimes it takes many years for them to change and sometimes they never do. But we've got to patiently continue forbearing and forgiving in our heart and loving.

2. patience with circumstances Ten long years David had to wait before things changed, before he could show his face in Israel and breathe freely. But we get so impatient with our circumstances! If things aren't the way we want them, we want them changed now. If we're sick, we want health tomorrow; if we have a broken relationship with someone, we want it fixed today. But the Bible says that trials produce patience in us and perseverance. God uses them to build in us things that can come in no other way. So, we must be patient with our circumstances.

3. patience with God (26:10) David was resolved that the Lord would settle it in his own time. One of the negatives of suffering is that we can become angry with God for not doing something, for not changing things for us. Oh, we must learn to do what David did and what David said to do in Ps. 27:14, Wait for the Lord; be strong and take heart and wait for the Lord! Paul said, Therefore we do not lose heart...for our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us and eternal glory that far outweighs them all. So, we fix our eyes not on what is seen but on what is unseen. For what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal." (2 Cor. 4:16-18).

That's what God wants, a patient heart, one that does not take things into its own hands but is able to leave them in God's hands and be forgiving toward others. After Jesus told Peter about forgiving seventy times seven, he told a story about a man who had a servant who owed him money and couldn't pay, so the master was kind and forgave his debt. But the servant himself had loaned some money to another servant and grabbed him and choked him and had him put in jail. When the master heard about it, he was furious and had the unforgiving servant put in jail himself. Jesus concluded the story with Mt. 18:35. This is what God wants, forgiving from the heart and forgiving from the heart means not just once but repeatedly and truly. And it begins with knowing just how much God has forgiven us, how repeatedly we have sinned against Him and He has forgiven us time after time. David didn't know it yet but there was coming a time in his life when he would need the forgiveness of God even more than Saul, for he actually killed an innocent person, the very thing Saul was attempting to do. Oh my friend, the very things people do to us, we are inclined to do to others! Our hearts are deceitful and wicked above all things! The heart God wants recognizes how much it has been forgiven and stands ready to forgive and to patiently bear with the sins of others.

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Correctable Heart: 1 Sam. 25

If you're not careful, it might be easy to get the impression that David was a kind of superman. After all, he had such patience with his own family in his early life. He had such faith that he killed Goliath. He had such love for Jonathan, his enemy's son. He had such restraint that he wouldn't harm Saul who was oppressing him when he had the opportunity. But David was human like the rest of us are! And one of the beautiful things about the Bible is that God shares with us the flaws of its characters as well as their faith. Sooner or later, we'll see David was prone to lust, pride, grudge-holding, being unappreciative, and even capable of plotting to cover sin and arranging a murder. But the thing that made David a man after God's own heart is that his heart was correctable. When he was headed for sin, he was willing to take the advice and the warning of others. God could use other people, his close friends and associates, and even strangers to straighten his thinking and either keep him from sinning or at least from continuing in it. And that's what is shown to us graphically in chapter 25:

I. An Incident of Correction This is the story of David and Abigail. Now from chapter 24 (Saul in the cave), it is clear that David knew the principle of not taking vengeance but letting that up to God. However, not long after, God tested that forgiving heart of his by allowing him to be offended by someone who wasn't the King, who wasn't God's anointed, someone whose name was Nabal, which means "fool", and who acted just like his name! You know, it's one thing to forgive people you know you really have to, like family, friends, or fellow-believers. But what about those rank fools out there with no love of God who try to cheat you out of money? David nearly failed the test had it not been for Nabal's godly wife Abigail. Let's look at the overall story and see first:

1. the personal offense (2-11) David and his small army of 600 men had been circulating in the south of Judah and down into the upper Sinai area. This was a sheep-grazing area and one of the good things David and his men did while there was to protect the shepherds of that area from the marauding raids of some of the desert peoples to the south and east. Nabal was evidently a rich man with lots of flocks and David had given repeated protection to his shepherds and their flocks. Now it was sheep-shearing time, harvest time, a time of feasting and celebration. David sent some men to humbly ask for a little contribution to help their survival in the wilderness. But instead Nabal, not only refused, but railed against David and his men in spite of all they had done! Doesn't ingratitude get to you? Don't you just flare up in anger when someone spits in your face after you've just helped them? David did. See:

2. the natural response (12-13, 21-22) Listen to his thinking. David didn't pray; he didn't think of the Lord; he didn't recall the scriptures. He operated on his emotions. He was ready to kill for ingratitude. He had put the lives of his men on the line for Nabal and in himself he couldn't see forgiving that. It's surprising what you and I are capable of when we are controlled by the flesh instead of being filled with the Spirit! But God did something about it:

3. the providential rebuke (18-20, 23-31) God used a woman, Abigail, Nabal's intelligent and godly wife (How those two wound up together is beyond me; it must have been an arranged marriage!). She heard of the offense and took it upon herself, not only for the sake of her husband but for the sake of David! Evidently many Israelites already knew of David's anointing and, having seen God's hand on him, knew he was going to be the next king. She didn't want to see David the future king with blood on his hands. So, she sent a present and she spoke to him from the heart. Sometimes God needs to use us that way. Sometimes we need to go, we need to be His instrument to turn another from sin. But other times God will send folks into our lives to do the same thing. It's a two-way street and we have to recognize it. It was just what David needed. See:

4. the grateful repentance (32-35) Oh look at him melt; look at the emotions drain away. See the conviction in his heart and the change in his thinking. He was so glad for Abigail and he changed his behavior immediately. He left justice in God's hands instead of taking it into his own and, in the end, you can see:

5. the judicial recompense (36-39) Foolish Nabal reminds you of the rich fool Jesus spoke of. His soul was required of him and what good were his riches then! In ten days, he was dead. David left it in God's hands and God showed David clearly that that was the right thing to do. But while we are looking at this incident, beautiful and meaningful as it is in general terms, we want to go back and look at the details because here we can see in Abigail and David:

II. The Principles of Correction from both sides, first:

1. how to give correction The writer is correct; she was intelligent. She knew just how to help someone see their problem and in that there are four suggestions for us:

a. do it swiftly (18a) She lost no time. Don't wait to see if they will discover it for themselves. Too much damage might be done in the meantime. I know it's not pleasant but the longer you wait, the harder it will be. Bad actions become bad habits quickly and habits die hard.

b. do it sweetly (18b) She sent a present ahead, one fit for a king, one her husband should have sent. It was designed to make David hesitate and think. The way to correct somebody is not to walk up to them and say "Hey, you have a problem! Why don't you get your act together." I don't say you have to give them a present like she did, though buying them a new car wouldn't hurt! But do it sweetly. Take them out for coffee or invite them over. Do it in a setting of friendship and caring, not animosity. That even applies to your spouse!

c. do it submissively (23-24) She didn't come off as a big spiritual know-it-all, a better-than-thou kind of person. She fell at his feet and called herself his servant. She asked for the privilege of speaking to him. Paul called himself the chief of sinners, which I doubt was true in fact, but it was his attitude toward himself. It has been said that witnessing is one beggar telling another beggar where to find bread. Correction is just like that! Be humble. Admit your faults too. Speak the truth but speak it in genuine love that shows!

d. do it spiritually (26, 30-31) She points out the spiritual principles involved: (1) the principle of not avenging yourself, (2) the promises of God to establish David as king and (3) the effect this would have on his conscience later. Don't simply offer your opinion. If a person needs corrected, it's because of the Word and you ought to use the Word to do it. 2 Tim. 3:16-17. That's what the Word is useful for! Don't neglect to use it; it is the Word that the Spirit will use to bring about change! But the greatest thing we can see here is not how to give correction to others but:

2. how to receive correction It's a tough thing to do. Your natural reaction is to flare up with a "Who do you think you are!" But swallow that and apply these four things:

a. recognize it as being from God (32) Now I'm not talking about the unjust criticism of enemies but about what you know is the loving correction of godly friends. Look at it as being from God. It is God keeping you from sinning, sparing you from misery and problems. It is not the nosiness of a fellow believer butting in, but the hand of God so:

b. praise Him for sending it (32) When you look honestly at your life and see that what the person is saying is right and you are convicted, then you must praise God for sending the person. David saw it in an instant and broke out in praise. I thank God for a person who spoke to me in college about pride, telling me that I seemed to think I was "the only Christian on campus". I had no idea I was acting like that and I have tried to remember it to this day!

c. bless the person for speaking it (33-34) Thank the person for correcting you. Reward the risk that they took. Let them know God used them in your life. What an encouragement it will be to them to be open to letting God use them in the future!

d. enact it in your life (35) Change! David did. You can. Seek God's forgiveness and ask His help; He'll give it. But don't let Godly advice and correction go ignored. Act on it!

My friend, is your heart a correctable one? God didn't want a man on the throne of Israel who would persist in his own way and always think he was right. God doesn't want it in His servants today either. You know non-correctable is spelled p-r-o-u-d! And pride is the deadliest thing I can think of in the Christian life. It leads to sin and keeps God from using you. Prov. 29:1 warns, A man who remains stiff-necked after many rebukes will suddenly be destroyed without remedy. I read this in Our Daily Bread: "I remember my 9 yr. old cousin who refused to heed his mother's warnings about hitching rides behind cars in his wagon. He would grab the rear bumper as a car pulled out and be towed for a block and then coast a long distance at high speed. One day he was late for dinner and grabbed the back of a huge dump truck which he thought was going his way. The driver couldn't see him and shifted into reverse. It happened so quickly that he had no chance to move and the double wheels of the heavily-loaded truck rolled over him, killing him instantly. He had been told of the terrible danger of this practice but failed to heed his mother's warnings." Correction is never pleasant but always profitable. In God's economy of disciplining His children, it is His way of speaking before spanking, but it only profits those who listen. Do you?

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Listening Heart: 1 Sam. 30

I was about ready to skip over the rest of David's wilderness experiences, but something in chapter 30 caught my eye; look at verses 7-8. David inquired of the Lord, asked Him what to do on this occasion. That sounded familiar to me so I got out a concordance and found that he did it time and again in his life, from the time he first ran from Saul to the very end of his life as King. Over and over, before doing anything, David stopped to ask God what to do, to listen for God's instructions. He was like the Israelites in the wilderness. When the cloud was taken up from the Tabernacle they set out and followed but if it was not taken up, they did not set out until it was! They made no moves except God's moves. And that's the kind of heart that God wants in us, a heart that is tuned and listening to Him, asking Him what to do in every situation. In short, God wants a person who knows that his life is not his own but that Christ wants to live out His own life through Him! So, we must train ourselves to listen to God at all times. However, there are some times when we had better be listening especially carefully and we can see some of them in David's life:

I. Times to be Carefully Listening to God Now David had a way to listen to God that you don't. Compare 23:9. Abiathar the priest had fled to David for refuge from Saul and brought with him the High Priest's ephod or vest and on its front was a pouch and in that the sacred lots, the Urim and the Thummim. No one knows exactly what they were, whether stones with two colored sides, or whatever. But to inquire of God one would ask a yes or no type question and cast the lots and God would cause them to fall in a certain way to make His will known. And to them it was just the same as if God were speaking audibly. Sometimes you might wish you could just draw straws like that but you have something better today. You have the written Word by which God can place His thoughts in your mind and the indwelling Holy Spirit whose very purpose according to 1 Cor. 2 is to take the things of God and make them known to you, that is, to plant God's thoughts in your mind. But you need to be listening like David was and sometimes you need to listen extra hard:

1. listen in fear - 1 Sam. 23:1-5 David's men were afraid. They had been avoiding Saul in Judah and were afraid doing that. Now the Philistines attacked Keilah and David wanted to go save the city with his 600 men and they were really afraid! But they did the right thing; they inquired of the Lord. They asked God what to do. So many times when we're afraid, the voice of fear tells us what to do and we listen without asking God! Suppose David had done that here; hundreds of lives would have been lost. When you're afraid, don't just react; ask God what to do!

2. listen in distress - 1 Sam. 30:1-8 At this point David and his men and families had been living at Ziklag in Philistine territory. He and his men returned home on this occasion to find Ziklag burned to the ground and all their families missing. What distress it caused them! What anguish of heart this tragedy brought! But in this distress David took time to listen to God and ask Him what to do. Do you? When tragedy strikes or sorrow or grief do you ask God or do you do what your feelings tell you?

3. listen in indecision - 2 Sam. 2:1 Now Saul is dead and David could consider returning to Judah openly once again. But he didn't know whether he should and where he should go when he did. So, he asked God. He had a feeling that this was the time but there was a bit of indecision there between alternatives. You know the feeling, don't you? There are two or three possibilities before you. It might be houses to buy or cars; it might be a career to choose or whether or not to marry a certain person. That's the very time to be sure to ask God, to be sure that you get his best for you.

4. listen in danger - 2 Sam. 5:17-25 David is no sooner anointed king over the entirety of Israel when the Philistines decide to attack him. They want his head for betraying them because he had been among them for about a year. They're out in full force. He's in danger and what does he do? He asks God. Then after he beats them once they come back. Does he assume he knows what to do? No, he asks God again. Oh, when there is danger, only God knows the right thing to do. You must ask Him!

5. listen in perplexity - 2 Sam. 21:1 Now we're much later in David's life, years into his reign and after Absalom's rebellion. There was a famine in the land, a dry spell. The crops wouldn't grow and food became scarce. David couldn't figure out what was going on, why God was allowing this. He was perplexed but, rather than jump to conclusions, He asked God and God revealed it to him. Oh when you're confused and perplexed and don't understand, when your life is a puzzle and you can't see how the pieces fit, that's the very time to go to God and ask Him! We need to listen all the time but we need to make a special effort when tough times come. Probably there was no harder time for David to listen than his experience in chapter 30 and if we examine it, we can see clearly some of the:

II. Factors That Hinder Listening to God - Ch. 30

1. weariness (1a) David and his men had been marching for three days. They were so weary that later in pursuing the Amalekites they came to a ravine and 200 of his men couldn't make it across. Being tired does funny things to you. It changes your disposition; it makes you avoid putting forth any further effort. All you want is rest and relief. Your kids know they can get away with more when you're tired because you won't bother to discipline them. And Satan knows that if you're weary enough, you won't take time to listen to God, to ask Him what to do, or perhaps even to do what He says. So, when you are weary, be careful!

2. sorrow (4) Their families were gone, taken captive. Their homes were burned. Their hearts were filled with anguish and sorrow and they cried till they couldn't cry any more. The story might have ended right there if they hadn't listened to God. For a lot of people, it does. Sorrow comes into their life and they grieve and they hurt so bad and they stop listening, stop looking for God's direction, and wallow in their own sorrow. So, when you are sorrowful, be careful to listen!

3. love for others (3, 5) Their wives and children were in trouble. David's own wives were taken. If there's ever a time when we react on pure emotions instead of listening to God, it's when a loved one is in trouble. And sometimes our acting and reacting is not in accord with the way God would want us to act. So, when your loved ones are in trouble, whether it's your child at school or whatever, be sure to listen first!

4. anger (6) The men were bitter in spirit, they were angry and when you're angry, you don't listen to God; you listen to your anger, your flesh. You say and do things you wouldn't normally do. So when you're angry, be careful to listen to God like David did. However, it is not enough simply to stop and pray and ask God what to do in every situation. If we look at a few of the times David listened, we'll see three:

III. Things to Remember About Listening to God

1. listen for certainty - 1 Sam. 23:1, 4 On this occasion David asked twice. He kept asking until he was sure of what God wanted him to do. He wanted to make no mistakes. Be sure when you pray for God's direction that you pursue the answer from all avenues. Search the scriptures, ask the advice of other godly people you trust, listen clearly to the thoughts God places in your mind. Don't play the old Bible flip and point game, just opening the Bible randomly, choosing a verse and trying to see in it a sign.

2. listen in detail - 2 Sam. 5:22-24 For this second battle God had a detailed plan and it was not a straightforward attack like the first time. He was careful to listen and follow the small points and set an ambush. Pray about the little things, the fine points. Don't worry about bothering God with small matters; He loves it!

3. listen to obey - 2 Sam. 5:25 Listen, but listen with the intent to do what you hear! Listening is not so much for information as for action. Have ears that really hear, that stand ready to act on what God says.

That was David's secret. That's what made his heart so pleasing to God. He listened to God. Do you know why Saul was rejected by God? Compare 1 Chron. 10:13-14. He didn't listen to God and it led to sin. Jeremiah knew the secret. Jer. 10:23, I know, O Lord, that a man's life is not his own; it is not for man to direct his steps. Do you know that secret? Do you pray and ask God constantly what to do? Or are your decisions your own? Do you really listen to God? A young man went into a church and started praying. He was so anxious to find God's will for his life that he took a piece of paper and wrote down all the things that he was going to do for God. Then he started to pray that God might reveal to him whether these promises were acceptable to Him. Suddenly he heard a voice speak to him saying, "This is not the way I want you to find My will. All I want of you is to sign your name and leave the paper for me to fill."

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Righteous Heart: 2 Sam. 1-4

The first four chapters of 2 Samuel move David along into another period of his life. The first period, of course, was at home as a shepherd, then a period of life in Saul's court, then ten years of life in the wilderness as a fugitive. Now with Saul's death David comes back to Judah and is anointed King over that tribe for 7 1/2 years before at last becoming King of all Israel. And just as God had lessons for David among the sheep and in the wilderness, there were some for him to learn while beginning to exercise kingly power. Now the key thing God wants in any person who has authority (whether king, senator, or parent) is righteousness, a recognition of and a love for that which is just and fair and pure. And that is what God wants in us too, compare 1 Jn. 3:6-9. If we are truly born of God, then there will be a righteousness in us; we will do and love what is right. And that righteousness will grow and grow throughout our lives. But just like in David's life, there will be some:

I. The Times in Which Righteousness is Tested For example:

1. a time of grieving (1:11-12) The news of Saul's death brought a time of real sadness and mourning to David. He was grief-stricken. Yet he was faced with what to do with the man who claimed to have put Saul out of his misery. Should he reward him or execute him! It was a test! Sorrow tends to fog and cloud your thinking; it tends to make you overlook doing what is right for doing what feels good. To do right in times like this requires more than a head knowledge of right and wrong; it takes a heart that loves righteousness.

2. a time of waiting (2:8-11) You remember that David was promised the throne by the Lord more than ten years earlier and now he has to wait another seven years because Saul's general Abner had managed to set up Saul's son Ishbosheth as King over the northern portion of Israel, even though he himself seems to be the chief power. Having Abner out of the way would surely have helped David's cause along and it so happened that Joab conveniently found a legitimate way to murder him. Again David was tested. I tell you, when you have to wait a long time, you're sorely tempted to help God along by cheating a bit, by breaking the rules. Only a righteous heart will sustain you.

3. a time of conflict (3:1) These years were a time of war between Israel and Judah, between Ishbosheth and David. Getting Ishbosheth out of the way would settle it, which two men did and again David is faced with doing right. But when there is conflict with someone, when someone doesn't like you or is after you, there is surely a great temptation to forsake righteousness. You see, it's the pressure points where you are tested and where your heart shows through, times of sorrow or waiting or conflict. Surface actions and thinking won't cut it in those times. Jesus said actions flow from within, out of the heart. And pressure wipes away the veneer and surface and lets the heart show. So, let's look at:

II. The Tests in Which Righteousness is Displayed During this time God allowed the righteousness of David's heart to be tested by three deaths, and in each one of them David shows a different aspect of true righteousness from the heart.

1. David recognized evil (Ch. 1) David was still at Ziklag after rescuing his family from captivity when a man arrived to report to him on the great battle between King Saul and the Philistines.

a. the Amalekite's alleged deed (6-10) Here is a biblical case of euthanasia. This man claimed to have happened to be on Mt. Gilboa when Saul was wounded and dying and to have put him out of his misery. Now David, who was three days journey away, couldn't have known what we know because we have God's account of what really happened in 1 Sam. 31. Saul fell on his own sword and committed suicide. This Amalekite had evidently seized an opportunity to strip the dead Saul of his crown and armband before the Philistines came to do it and had made off to find David, fabricating his story on the way and thinking it would get him great reward from the "new King". But David didn't know that and had to take him at his word, that he had slain Saul, albeit as a favor to him. What would you do?

b. David's righteous response (13-15) David kills him! Why? Because wounded and dying or not, killing is killing. On the surface it seems like he was doing Saul a favor and sparing him from eventual torture, yet at the bottom line David's righteous heart recognized that it was a sinful act and that is:

c. the test: to see evil though it seems good Our society is riddled with cases like this. We want to put old people or diseased people to sleep like we do animals. Many think abortion is OK if the mother was raped, but it's still killing the child. God wants our hearts to be so saturated with His Word that we learn to recognize evil, even when it comes in the guise of seeming good or benevolent! But David did more than recognize evil:

2. David rejoiced not in evil (chs. 2-3) Now David comes back to Judah and is anointed king over Judah. Ishbosheth, Saul's son, becomes king over the rest of the tribes of Israel, yet as I said, it is largely Abner, Saul's general, who is the real power figure in Israel. War ensues between the two kingdoms and Joab, David's chief general, and Abner are the real root of it. Joab particularly hates Abner because in chapter 2 we read how Abner kills Joab's brother

Asahel in battle. Yet after some time, Ish-bosheth the king and Abner his general have a falling out over a woman and Abner is so incensed that he vows to help David rule over the whole of Israel. And that becomes the opportunity for:

a. Joab's tenuous deed (3:19-27) Joab killed Abner to avenge his brother's blood. Joab could do that and get away with it because he could claim he was the avenger of blood, the nearest of kin seeing that justice was done when a relative was killed. Abner was not in a city of refuge and technically under the letter of the law Joab was still within legality. However, Abner had killed Asahel in time of battle and largely in self-defense after trying to dissuade and warn him to turn away. But look at:

b. David's righteous response (3:28, 31-37) He made sure everyone knew he didn't approve of this killing. It may have been legal but it wasn't right. Compare 1 Kings 2:5-6. David remembered this to his dying day and told Solomon to be careful and watch for an opportunity to enforce true justice upon him before God. He might have had to leave it go unpunished but it still wasn't right. And that is:

c. the test: to disdain evil though it is lawful There are a lot of things like that that come our way, well within the letter of the law but still wrong. Criminals who commit serious crimes walk free on technicalities. There are business practices which are entirely legal but morally wrong. There are a lot of divorces and remarriages today that are socially legal but biblically wrong. It actually would have been advantageous to David to have Abner out of the way but his righteous heart would not let him rejoice. God not only wants us to recognize evil but to actually to abhor and hate it with our hearts. But David went one step further:

3. David remedied evil (Ch. 4) The weak reign of Ish-bosheth did not last long after Abner due to:

a. Recab and Baanah's terrible deed (5-8) They assassinated Ish-bosheth on his bed, killed him outright, for no other reason than to please and to help David, so they thought, but they weren't ready for:

b. David's righteous response (9-12) David had them both killed immediately; he administered true justice. Now Ish-bosheth's death meant that the time had finally come when David could be King over all. It really did help him and was the final thing that brought this long period of waiting to an end, even though it was evil in character. The end does not justify the means and that is:

c. the test: to punish evil even though it helps you, to do something about it and not be content to let it slide by unnoticed because it was to your advantage. You might see another person cheat at school and let it go by because it helps maintain your friendship; you might see a fellow-worker cheat a customer and say nothing because it helps you keep your job. You see, God not only wants you to recognize evil and hate evil but to do something about it!

I wanted to think of an exciting example to leave with you to fix this message on a righteous heart in your minds. And the best one I could think of may prove to be unexciting simply because it is so familiar. But did you notice the uncanny relationship between David's three tests and the ones with which Satan tempted our Lord Jesus in the wilderness? The first was the temptation to turn stones into bread, but Jesus recognized the evil in it, even though seemed good to eat after 40 days! The second was the temptation to jump off the Temple, but Jesus disdained the evil though it was legal for Him, He could have jumped and been caught by angels and proved His identity, but it was testing God and that was wrong! He could not rejoice in showing off for Satan's benefit. The third was the temptation to gain all the kingdoms of the world by worshipping Satan. Jesus took action against Satan even though all those kingdoms were rightfully His and it would have helped shorten His wait and avoid the cross. Jesus had a truly and perfectly righteous heart. Do you? Well, certainly not like His, but is it growing in righteousness. Do you really love good and hate evil, no matter how innocent or enticing or beneficial the evil may be to you? You can be like that. Just pray with David, Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me.

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Worshipful Heart: 1 Chron. 13-17

As you know, Chronicles and Samuel are parallel accounts of the life of David. The events in our text are also covered in 2 Sam. 6-7 but I chose Chronicles because it seems to have been written from the point of view of the priests in Israel and records many more details about the worship life of David. You see, David had a worshipful heart, a heart that was full of adoration and worship and praise to God. And that's the kind of heart God wants in us also. Let me try to illustrate what I'm talking about. There are marriages and then there are marriages. To outward appearances they may be the same. Some have all the motions. The husband is a good provider, they're Christians who go to church, the wife is exemplary in caring and meeting needs, and so on. But there are other marriages that look exactly the same yet there is a joy in the heart, there is still the excitement in their eyes, still the sweet little nothings whispered in the ear. You know what I mean. There is not just love in terms of commitment but love in terms of feeling. And there are believers and believers. Some go through all the right motions, reading the Bible and praying and serving and teaching. But then there are those who do all the same things and yet there is more; they seem to be really in love with God. They worship Him with all the excitement of a teenager in love. David was one of those! Look at:

I. David's Great Desire to Worship God (13:1-6) Now David is finally king over the whole nation of Israel. The first thing he does is to get himself a secure and defensible capital city so he takes Jerusalem, an almost impenetrable city, and makes it his new home. Then after having to fight off the Philistines in a few initial battles, David finally has a moment to rest in relative peace and as soon as he does, the first thing on his mind is the worship of God; he wants to bring the ark up to Jerusalem. He had a:

1. desire to worship God centrally Where has the ark been? Well, if you remember it was captured 20 years earlier by the Philistines in the time of Samuel and then returned because it caused them so much trouble. All this time it remained in Baalah or Kiriath Jearim, 10 miles west of Jerusalem in a priest's house. The rest of the tabernacle with the altar of burnt offering, was in Gibeon, 5 miles north of Jerusalem. But David couldn't run to Kiriath Jearim or to Gibeon to worship God every day. He wanted the ark and the center of worship in Jerusalem with him where he could worship every day, where it would be central to his life! Do you see the connection? Worshipping God is not something you go off to church to do, something out on the periphery of your life that you do once a week or less! Worship is something you need to do every day in your devotional time and while you're driving and whenever you can, to talk to God and praise and thank Him and sing to Him and read His Word. That is worship! But he also had a:

2. desire to worship God corporately He wanted all of Israel to worship with him. He didn't just want to do it alone. So he gathered representatives from the whole land, hundreds of them, to worship with him as he brought the ark up. You see, it was more than personal. During the whole of Saul's reign there was no listening to God, no coming before the ark to find God's will, no established corporate worship. David wanted it started up again. And one of the things God does in growing believers is to plant in them a desire to worship with other believers. Coming to church should not be a chore nor even just a habit. It should be the desire of your heart to be with others and worship God, not just once a week but as often as possible. Yet a desire to worship is not the whole story. See:

II. David's Great Mistake in Worshipping God (13:7-9) You know the story of Uzzah's touching the ark from Sunday School. But are you able to identify:

1. the mistake: It is really two-fold:

a. putting zeal before the Word David was so zealous to worship God that he forgot to consult the Word of God. And so, his worship was unacceptable. But he did figure out the problem, compare 15:1-2. The ark was only to be transported by the Levites, carried on their shoulders, not on an ox-cart. The Word of God must be central to worship. In 1 Cor. 14 Paul lays down some rules for corporate worship. He says it must be done in an orderly fashion; its participants must take turns; it must not have confusing elements like the uninterpreted tongues of that day. And it would be quite possible to become wrapped up in zeal and overlook what the Word says like many of our brethren do. On the other hand, Paul also wrote in Eph. 5 that we should be controlled by the Holy Spirit and that our worship should be full of songs and hymns and spiritual songs and that it should come from the heart to the Lord. In our zeal to worship God in a perfect way, it would also be easy to fall into a dead lifeless ritual as so many churches have done and ignore the Word of God in the opposite way! We must test all of our acts of worship by the Word of God.

b. copying pagan practices Why did they put the ark on an ox-cart anyway? Compare 1 Sam. 6:1-2, 10-11. It was a Philistine idea, a pagan idea. And David and the others just adopted it wholesale without question. If we're not careful, we can do the same thing. For example, where do you find anyone in the Bible chanting repeated prayers over and over. It is not Elijah but the prophets of Baal who chant for hours, "O Baal, hear us!" It is a pagan concept and found in pagan religions across the world. And Jesus warned us against praying in vain repetition as the heathen do! We've got to be careful that our worship is truly the worship of God.

2. the lesson: You see, there is a real lesson here:

a. worship cannot replace obedience Saul found that out, didn't he? On two occasions. In the first he had gathered his army and was waiting for Samuel to come and offer sacrifice but Samuel was delayed and he got worried. He knew worship was important and he set aside the Word of God and intruded into the priest's office and offered the sacrifice himself and God reprimanded him for it. The second time he was sent to kill the Amalekites and told to destroy all the plunder. But he knew worship was important so he saved the best of the animals and other things to be offered to God. Hear Samuel's words, Does the Lord delight in burnt offerings and sacrifices as much as in obeying the voice of the Lord? To obey is better than sacrifice and to heed is better than the fat of rams. Worship and prayer and praise and singing is no substitute for obedience! We've all known people who worship like crazy but their lives are not in order. That won't work because actually:

b. true worship is obedience You wouldn't believe your child if he constantly said "I love you," but never did anything you said! Obedience is the first step in demonstrating love! And it is the first step in worship. Come with Paul's attitude "Lord, what will you have me to do?"

III. David's Great Zeal in Worshipping God Well, David finally did get to bring the ark up to Jerusalem and having pointed out the cautions about worship, I just want to point out the great zeal David had for worshipping God which should be ours also.

1. he displayed unashamedness (2 Sam. 6:14-16, 20-22) David put his whole heart into worshipping God and he didn't care who knew it. He danced and sang with all his might, laid aside his kingly dignity and dress and acted like a commoner. His wife didn't like it too much but he didn't care. He was unashamed to worship God. Are you? Are you afraid to sing too loud because someone might notice? Do you think that if you really prayed hard sometime and started to cry that you'd be embarrassed? And if you yelled "Amen" out loud once in a while when something moved your heart, would you feel self-conscious? Don't ever be ashamed to worship God. Raise your hands!

2. he displayed unselfishness (1 Chron. 17:1-2) David had put the ark in a tent, just as it was from the days of Moses. But David went home and began to feel bad. Here he was in a fine palace paneled with costly cedar wood and all God has is a tent. Now God, for His own reasons, didn't let David build the Temple, yet He was pleased that the thought was in his heart, that David would want to see God worshipped in a place that would bring honor to His Name and would be willing to foot the cost! See, David's first thought was not amassing wealth and material things for himself, it was worship. That was more important. How many times do we put other things, selfish things, ahead of worship? It might be working to make extra money, watching a TV show, or just plain tiredness and sleeping in that keeps us out of worship. I'm not talking about going on vacation or being sick, but when we consistently choose other things over worship, over being together to give God honor and glory, there is selfishness involved.

3. he changed the nature of worship (16:4-8, 37-42) What did the Levites originally do under the Law? Their primary duty was to transport the Tabernacle from place to place. Now, of course, that wouldn't be necessary. It would stay put. But David took it a step further. He instituted the organized function of praise and the singing of Psalms as part of the daily routine both at Gibeon and in Jerusalem. He wanted to see that praise and worship were not occasional but perpetual. Are they in your life? Are you in love with God and excited about it? Is worship something you love and do every day or is it just an activity you endure each week? The heart God wants is full of worship.

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Penitent Heart: 2 Sam. 11-12

If I had you name one incident from David's life that you remember more vividly than any other, most folks would say either the Goliath incident or this one, David's great sin. I don't think that I need to spend much time detailing the sin for you; you know the story. Rather, I think this story displays the thing about David's heart that sets him head and shoulders above almost anyone else that God used in the Old Testament. David knew what to do when he sinned as a believer; he had a penitent heart, a heart that God could touch when he sinned and he would repent sincerely and genuinely. Do you have a penitent heart? Well, if not, by the time we are done with this study, I hope you will. First let's see:

I. The Need For Repentance (Ch. 11) Repentance is not something only for unbelievers. The word repent in the original language means to turn about, to be going in one direction and to turn and go the other. And we as believers need that just as much as unbelievers do because:

1. we are all subject to sin (4) Now this is David, the sweet singer of Israel, the man after God's own heart, the one who was righteous and would not lay a hand on Saul. This great David committed adultery with his neighbor's wife, an offense punishable by death under the Law! David, for all the good qualities of his heart, was still subject to sin. He was not some super-human spiritual giant. He did not wrestle not with ethereal type temptations but with the gutter stuff like lust. And if David had flesh that tempted him and could fall, so can we. Don't ever look down on someone else involved in sin with the attitude that you could never do that. You could. The best of us is entirely capable of the worst of it, because we all have sin dwelling in us. So, it is a foregone conclusion that sooner or later you and I will sin in some way.

2. we are all prone to cover sin This is our natural reaction when we do something wrong. Now we can cover it in two ways:

a. by hiding it (8) Bathsheba turned up pregnant. David figured Uriah might be a little upset at the news because he'd been away fighting at Rabbah for a good long time. So David tried to get Uriah to come home and sleep with his wife so Uriah would not find out later they'd been messing around. He tried in the simplest way he could to hide it. Isn't that what we do? We don't tell anybody. We put on a smiley face and try to look as though nothing ever happened, because we wouldn't want anyone to know we'd sinned; they might tell God! And then if things get bad, we try to cover:

b. by compounding it (14) David murdered to cover his adultery. So often we'll lie to cover our cheating or commit some other sin just as bad or worse just to keep from having to admit the first one. We all do this by nature. There is something in us that absolutely hates to admit that we are wrong, that we have sinned. That's one of the things that makes it tough for people to get saved. Human nature doesn't like to say, "I'm wicked and vile and deserve hell"! And that is how oftentimes believers react to their own sins. We're too proud to admit them on their own but we see here another thing:

3. God will point out our sin When you sin, you know you would never have done it if God was standing there watching. But you forgot He is invisible! He WAS watching. You can't hide it from Him. And in fact, because you're His child, God will go to great lengths to point it out to you in two ways:

a. inwardly - Ps. 32:3-5 It was more than nine months that David covered his sins. And Ps. 32 is the record of what went on inside him during that time. He was miserable! It's called conviction and it's one of the functions of the Holy Spirit living in us. He does not allow us to enjoy sin, but makes us live with the gnawing knowledge of it. Whether it's murder or not, sin will still come back to haunt you! Every time you pray or read God's Word, it'll be there. That's God! But if that doesn't work God can do it:

b. outwardly (12:1, 7) God sent Nathan and he stuck his finger in David's face and said, "You are the man!" God can let us get caught. God can send a friend or even an enemy or even a pastor or elder. But inwardly or outwardly God will let us know that He knows that we've sinned. Now from David in chapter 12 we see:

II. The Way Of Repentance (Ch. 12) Instead of following our nature and covering our sin, God wants us to repent, to turn away from the sin and that means:

1. swiftly admitting the fact of sin (13) See how quick he was to own up! That's how we need to be with God. But it's not in our nature. When you argue with your spouse and know you have to apologize, how long does it take you? Don't you sometimes drag it on for hours or days instead of doing it immediately? When you sin don't wait admit it to God. Don't try to cover and hide it. Own up immediately.

2. humbly accepting the consequences of sin (21-23) David judged himself right out of his own mouth in verse 6. He said four-fold. And for one life he paid four-fold in the deaths of Bathsheba's son, Amnon, Absalom, and in the end Adonijah, his own 4 sons. Here is the first of those. David prayed for the child to live. But when he didn't, he got up and worshiped and said, "God be praised anyway". He humbly accepted the consequences of his sin. He acknowledged God's right to discipline him and left himself at God's mercy. True repentance is not just, "I'm sorry", but "I'm willing to take the punishment I deserve!"

III. The Steps In Repentance - Psalm 51 Our study of David's repentance would be incomplete unless we looked at David's heart during the process. And fortunately, we have David's inner thoughts and his prayer to God on this occasion recorded for us in Ps. 51. Repentance really involves three distinct parts:

1. confession (2-6) To confess means to admit, to agree with God about the sinfulness of your action and to tell Him so. "Lord, I've sinned!" It is not making excuses and saying, "Well, I really didn't plan to." or "It was all someone else's fault." or "It was only a little thing." God wants us to face our sin squarely and take responsibility for it. Compare 2 Cor. 7:10. The source of repentance is a Godly kind of sorrow. That is, you must know in your heart that you have wronged God and be truly sorry for it and that will condition your heart for true confession.

2. petition (7-12) Having admitted your sin to God, there are some things you need to ask God for:

a. for forgiveness (7, 9) That's the most obvious thing. You want to ask Him to "send away" that sin, to not let it come between you any longer, to cover it with the blood of Christ.

b. for change (10) There should be in you a holy dread of doing it again. David is praying for an inner change, for God to work in his heart to change and purify it, to keep him from being prone to the lust into which he fell. It is not only, "Lord, forgive me", but "Lord change and cleanse me and help me so that it will not happen again."

c. for restored fellowship (12) As you know, believers are not lost when they sin; we are not cast out of God's family. But we do experience a hindrance in our fellowship. Our prayers go unanswered; Bible reading becomes difficult. It is tough to communicate and walk with God. We do not pray to be saved all over again but we do need to pray for a restored fellowship, a return to close communion with God.

3. commitment (13-19) Now David made some promises to God, some commitments for the future. He has already asked God for the help to not repeat his sin in the future. But now he promises God some other things. He commits himself:

a. to singing (14-15) He will praise God. He promises to show true appreciation for his forgiveness. So many times, once our sin is forgiven and forgotten, we continue on but we forget that we've been forgiven. How many times do you hear somebody get up and testify, "God forgave me for a sin this week!" And it's not only that we don't like to admit we sin, it's that there is no real joy in being forgiven. It's matter of fact, a given that we take for granted. David promises to sing!

b. to service (13) He will testify of His mercy to others. Now he doesn't say he's going to go around spreading all the gory details of his sin. But he's going to use God's forgiveness as an opportunity to testify to others of God's grace and mercy and to teach them what God requires. He's going to turn this thing into an opportunity to serve God.

Well, friend, do you have a penitent heart, a heart that repents easily when you sin. As I said at the beginning, I believe this is the single most important quality David displayed above any other Old Testament person I can think of. You don't have to be perfect to be used by God. You don't have to preach like Peter or pray like Paul. You don't have to reach some level of sinless perfection before God will say "Now I can use you." Here is what God really wants, Ps. 51:17.

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

An Enduring Heart: 2 Sam. 15-17

If I could characterize the remainder of David's life after his great sin with Bathsheba in one word it would be: trouble. Nathan had told him in 12:10-11 that the sword would never depart from his house and that calamity would come upon him from his own household. And it did. Bathsheba was David's midlife crisis. He was probably somewhere in his late forties at that time and during the last 20 years or so of his life David faced one trouble after another. Chapters 13-20 of 2 Samuel give us the record. In chapter 13 his daughter Tamar was raped by her half-brother Amnon and Amnon was murdered by Tamar's brother Absalom. In chapter 14 Absalom, who has fled to his grandfather, returns. In chapters 15-17 Absalom begins to plot David's overthrow and leads a rebellion but is killed in the end. In chapter 20 David has no sooner returned to Jerusalem than another rebellion is led by Sheba. One trouble after another and yet somehow David did not become bitter, did not turn against the Lord. He endured. He made it through all his troubles with his faith intact. He had an enduring heart. That's something most of us could use, couldn't we? We need to know how to have an enduring heart. Well, fortunately we have David's secret. You see, Abraham chronicled his life with altars. On the special occasions in his life, he built an altar to God and those altars called the events to mind. David chronicled his life with Psalms. Every time something happened in his life, David wrote a Psalm about it. We have the 23rd Psalm from his life as a shepherd. When David was in the wilderness, he wrote Psalms about it. When he sinned, he wrote Psalms about his repentance. When Absalom rebelled and he had to flee, he wrote Psalms about it. And in those Psalms, we can find the secret of how he endured the various aspects of this difficult time of trouble in his life. The first thing we note in chapters 15-17 is that:

I. He Endured the Defection of Friends - Ps. 55

1. what happened Part of the pain of Absalom's rebellion was that many important people who had previously been loyal to David now switched and followed Absalom. But there was one that stood out:

a. the betrayal of Ahithophel - 2 Sam. 15:30-31 David and the men with him are leaving the city of Jerusalem going up the Mount of Olives. David is weeping and crying and one of the things that made him sad was that he had been told that his close friend and advisor, Ahithophel, had now joined Absalom. Ahithophel was a wise man. He gave Absalom a plan that would have killed David right away if Absalom had followed it. David knew that Ahithophel would be giving Absalom good advice and prayed that God would thwart it.

b. the end of Ahithophel - 2 Sam. 17:14, 23 I'm going to tell you the end of the story before the middle. Ahithophel knew his plan was Absalom's only hope and when it wasn't followed, he knew his goose was cooked so he cooked it himself by committing suicide. God answered David's prayer in the end. But for now, go back to sad David trudging up the Mount of Olives and turn to Ps. 55 to see:

2. how he felt (12-14, 20-21) He was crushed! Ahithophel was his close friend, his companion, the KJV says his guide, one who had given him advice, one who had fellowshiped with him before the Tent of Meeting. Can you imagine how you would feel? Imagine someone you are very close to now suddenly revealed to be a traitor who is trying to hurt and harm you! It would crush you too! God does not guarantee that you will have no trouble and that that trouble won't hurt. But David endured and here's:

3. how he endured He did two key things:

a. he brought his burden to the Lord (22) He cast his burden on the Lord and he advises us to do the same, compare 16-17. Pray! Morning, night, and noon, Pray! The Lord will sustain you. He knows what it is like to be betrayed and hurt by your own close friend! And then:

b. he trusted the Lord (23) He let it in God's hands and trusted God to take care of it, which He did! David not only prayed; he trusted God to care for him and to work out the problem.

II. He Endured the Opposition of Enemies - Ps. 3 Now in the inscription you see David was in flight here. You see, he did not have a large army with him in Jerusalem. Most were not professional soldiers but common people who would leave home and serve in battle. He had to get away from Absalom's troops so he could have time to muster an army. So he headed out over the Mt. of Olives and down to Jericho by the Jordan River, some 20 miles away. And verse 1 and especially verse 2 tell us what's going through his mind as he travels! See:

1. what happened - 2 Sam. 16:5-8, 13-14 All the way down the long dusty road there was this Shimei character, shouting and taunting and throwing stones, telling him God wouldn't do him any good, would never deliver him. And Shimei was just the visible reminder of Absalom and all his troops coming behind. Maybe you've been there too, when people have opposed you and fought against you and mocked you for your faith. Yet David endured and here's:

2. how he endured See if these two steps sound familiar:

a. he brought his burden to the Lord (4) He prayed; he cried aloud to the Lord. He told the Lord of all his fear and all those against him. And then:

b. he trusted the Lord (3, 5-6) What did he do when he got to the Jordan? In Samuel it says he refreshed himself. Here it tells us how. He lay down and slept! How could he sleep when Absalom might be hot on his heels with all his troops? The answer is in verse 3; he knew the Lord was his shield! He trusted the Lord to protect and care for Him. Now are you beginning to catch David's pattern for dealing with trouble? Let's look at it just one more time and see that in this time also:

III. He Endured the Oppression of Circumstances - Ps. 61 Look at:

1. what happened - 2 Sam. 17:22, 24-26 David crossed the Jordan during the night and continued on northeast 30 miles to the town of Mahanaim where he waited and gathered an army, just as Absalom was gathering his army. Look at his feelings in verse 2. He is at the end of the (not earth but) land, almost shoved out of his kingdom. His heart is overwhelmed, literally shrouded with darkness. He is just oppressed by his circumstances. Here he sits in a tent in the wilderness with his army of the faithful few gathered round. He is totally insecure and does not know what the future holds. Yet he endured and here's:

2. how he endured Our familiar two steps:

a. he brought his burden to the Lord (2) He cries out there in trouble at the end of the land as his heart grows faint. He prays to God, casts his burden on the Lord, carries it to God in prayer and secondly:

b. he trusted the Lord There are three very beautiful descriptive phrases which he uses in declaring his trust here. First, he trusted the Lord:

(1) as his Strength (2) He is the Rock higher than I, and when I am weary of swimming and the waves are too strong and my strength is all gone, then I see the high rock sticking out. But I am too weak to climb up so I cry out and God does for me what I cannot do; He sets me on the high rock of Himself where I am secure from the effects of my overwhelming circumstances, where they can't reach me. He said, "God I have no strength; be my strength; I trust You!"

(2) as his Shield (3) A tower is a fortress built for defense on the corner of a city wall. It was a strong secure place where the enemy could not reach you, where you were protected. David says, "Lord, I have no defense, no shield; be my shield; I trust You!"

(3) as his Security (4) The picture here is of a mother bird gathering her chicks and covering them with her wings and once they are covered they feel safe and secure. God has big wings! David prays, "Lord, I have no security here; be my security; I trust you!"

And that, my friends is the secret of how David endured all his troubles, from first to last. He would carry them to God in prayer and then trust Him to take care of it. The hymn writer Charles A. Tindley put it this way:

If the world from you withhold of its silver and its gold. And you have to get along with meager fare. Just remember in His Word that He feeds the little bird; Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!

If your body suffers pain and your health you can't regain, and your soul is almost sinking in despair. Jesus knows the pain you feel, He can save and he can heal; Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!

When your enemies assail and your heart begins to fail, don't forget that God in heaven answers prayer. He will make a way for you and will lead you safely thro' Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there.

When your youthful days are done and old age is stealing on, and your body bends beneath the weight of care. He will never leave you then, He'll go with you to the end; Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!

Leave it there; leave it there. Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there! If you'll trust and never doubt, He will surely bring you out. Take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!

That, my friends, is the only way you'll endure the storms of life. Your heart must learn the pattern: take your burden to the Lord and leave it there. There's a beautiful statement about Moses in Heb. 11:27. Like David he left Egypt with the chariots of Pharaoh's army pursuing hot on his tail. But he did not fear old Pharaoh's wrath. It says, "He persevered (KJV endured) because he saw Him who is invisible". Though he couldn't see God with his eyes, he saw God in his problem. How? By faith, by trusting Him. I don't know what your problems are in life, but I do know that it worked for David and it worked for Moses and it's worked for me. So, take your burden to the Lord and leave it there!

THE HEART THAT PLEASES GOD - The Life of David

A Thankful Heart: Psalm 18 (2 Sam. 22)

The remaining events of David's life are few. We've been attempting to follow the books of 1 and 2 Samuel as our outline for his life. 2 Sam. 22-23 are really the end of the story. Chapter 23 even contains David's last words. But then the writer goes back to pick up an event that actually occurred earlier in David's life, an event that set the stage for the building of the Temple by Solomon, so he tells it last. And, of course, 1 Kings goes on to detail David's dying days and the anointing of Solomon. But 2 Sam. 22-23 are really the end, the capstone. Chapter 22 is a Psalm that David wrote. It was preserved and used in public worship and so we have it as Psalm 18 with only a few minor changes, if you'll turn there. The inscription says David sang it when the Lord had delivered him from all his enemies and from Saul. 2 Samuel places it at the end of his life. Spurgeon calls it a Psalm of Retrospect, a Psalm of looking back over his life and remembering all that God had done for him. No doubt he had first composed it earlier in his life after the Lord spared him from Saul. He probably sang it often, perhaps after every victorious battle with the Philistines. But in the end of his life, he could look back and sing it again. And what this Psalm tells us about David is that he had a thankful heart. Now think about his life: 10 years hiding in the wilderness like a hunted animal, 7 years of reigning only over Judah with constant strife from Israel. Then years of having to fight off Philistines, Ammonites, and others. Then 20 years of troubles, his own children killed, two insurrections against him, even several years of famines and plague which we didn't study. Most of us would consider that a rough life! Yet David looks back on it all and sings a Psalm of Thanksgiving. How can that be? David had a thankful heart. He didn't look back at a situation and see the pain. He looked back and saw the Lord. That's the kind of heart God wants. Some of us here today have had pretty rough lives. There are some difficult things we've come through, some tough times. How can I have a thankful heart? Let's look at Ps. 18 and see.

I. I Must Remember What God Has Been To Me (1-2) There are eight things that David called God here, things that God had been and still was to him. If my heart is going to be thankful, I must remember, not my problems, but what God has been to me in my problems:

1. my strength O how many times have you not had the strength to hold up in the face of some problem. You thought you could never make it. You lost your husband or wife. You faced a serious illness or operation. You cared for a loved one who was sick or the weight of caring for your family just got to be too much. Yet somehow you found strength to go on; you prayed and somehow the strength was there to do more than the natural. And that was God! He was there by the Holy Spirit infusing Divine strength into your weary bones. He literally has been my strength.

2. my rock A rock is something that doesn't move, something solid, something you can step or lean on without fear, something you can depend on. David couldn't always count on Saul; one moment he loved him and another tried to kill him. He couldn't count on his own family or close friends; they rose up against him. But he could count on God. God was his security, his never-changing, never-failing friend. And you've found the same. Others have let you down but when you turned to Him, He's always been there for you. He is your Rock, your security.

3. my fortress The Hebrew word here is the same as the root of the word Masada. You remember the story of Masada, don't you? It was that walled fortress built on a high steep-sided plateau down by the Dead Sea where in later history a band of zealous Jews held off an entire Roman legion for something like three years. David was familiar with Masada (when he went down to "the stronghold", in Hebrew it masada) It means a fort, an impenetrable defense. But God was David's real defense. Look how many times his life was in danger, in battle, from Saul, from Absalom, and more. Yet no matter, it was just as though he were in Masada. God was an impenetrable defense all about and nothing could touch him. God has been the same to you. Despite near-accidents on the highway, service in battle, major surgeries and illnesses, you are here! God is your fortress.

4. my deliverer Here it means a rescuer, one who reaches down into your trouble and lifts you out of it. When David first fled from Saul, he thought of going down to the Philistines but when he got to Gath and presented himself before the King, he heard the servants whispering and suddenly realized the great danger he was in. Here he is surrounded with no way out, yet God is there and plants an idea in his mind, to act like a madman! How many times has God gotten you out of things, out of situations where you just needed supernatural intervention and He delivered you? It may have been physical, financial or whatever the crisis; God has been your deliverer.

5. my refuge Rocks are good not only for leaning on but for hiding in. David knew that. He had hidden for years in the rocky places in the wilderness. A large rock was a place of retreat, a place you could go to get away and find an hour of peace and clear your thinking and be free from worry. How many times was that place your prayer closet, that refuge the arms of the Lord Himself. How many times did you take your burden to the Lord and just leave it there? He has been your refuge!

6. my shield The Hebrew word means the warrior's small shield or buckler which he held in his hand to ward off sword blows or spear thrusts. It was mobile and turned this way and that to meet the next attack from whichever direction it came. How many times has God been your small shield, helped you in the little things of life, like finding a missing object or finding the right words to say or getting a ride or making the money come just before the payment is due. God has been your shield.

7. my horn A horn in the Bible is usually a metaphor for power, coming from the concept of the ram's horn, the strongest ram having the biggest horns for pushing. In this case the power is for salvation. The Hebrew is yesha, from which comes Yeshua or Jesus, who was so named because He would save his people from their sins! David may have been thinking of God's power to save him physically but we can relate it spiritually. God is the power of our salvation. If you have nothing else to be thankful for, this is enough. He is our salvation.

8. my stronghold The Hebrew here means a cliff or inaccessible place where nothing can touch you. It is another amplification of the thought that God surrounds and protects you so that nobody can touch you. We thought of it before in the physical sense but this reminds me of Jn. 10:27-30. God has big hands and nobody is big enough to take you away from Him. He holds you secure. He is your stronghold!

Well, now that we've covered the first two verses, let's quickly look at the rest. If I am to have a thankful heart:

II. I Must Remember What God Has Done For Me (3-29) Now David tells the story of a time when he was in trouble and God rescued him. He tells it in very symbolic, poetic terms rather than literal ones. And I suspect that rather than having a specific battle in mind, David may have in mind all the many times God had delivered him. What has God done for me?

1. He answered my prayer (6) Think of all the times and places in your life when you cried to God and He answered prayer. Can you even begin to remember them all?

2. He rescued from danger (16-17) Think of all the times and places in your life where He's rescued you and gotten you out of serious trouble.

3. He rewarded my righteousness (24) Here's a neat thought. Think of all the times and places in your life when God rewarded and blessed you for doing right. You did the right thing and were blessed for it. You gave and God blessed in return. You helped and God returned it somehow!

4. He helped me in difficulty (28-29) Think of all the times and places in your life when you've been in a tight spot, when your lamp was about out, when there was a troop too tough or a wall too high but God helped you and you advanced and you scaled the problem.

To be thankful just remember all God has done. You might keep a diary! Then finally if I am to have a thankful heart:

III. I Must Remember What God Has Given Me (30-36) Let me just list the things David mentions; God has given them to you also. They are precious gifts:

1. strength (32a) We talked about that earlier; you could never have done what you've done and accomplished what you have without the gift of strength.

2. guidance (32b) He's kept me off the wrong paths and on His right path. Think of those you know who are out in sin. The fact that you're not with them is purely God's gift.

3. ability (33-34) He gives me ability to use my feet and hands and arms to serve His purposes. If I can run like a deer or shoot like Robin Hood, it is His gift. The same goes for thinking, writing, playing an instrument, or you name it. All our abilities are His gift.

4. protection (35) The protection you've had is His gift.

5. prevention (36) So many times God has gone before and smoothed out the path of your life before you had to walk it. You've been exempted from so many troubles you might have had. That's God's gift.

Oh, if you're a Christian today, how can you not have a thankful heart like David had. He sang this song on the mountain-top, in a day when things had gone well. Some of you can sing it with him there today. Your life is crowned with blessing and happiness. But I think there were times David sang this in the valley, in difficulties and problems. Maybe that's where you are today. You say, "How can I?" Paul has a word for you in Phil. 4:4, "Rejoice in the Lord always. I will say it again, rejoice!" You don't have to love your problem, but you can rejoice in your Lord, in the fact that He is your Rock and your Fortress and your Strength. John Gray, a Methodist preacher of the early days, never failed to thank God for something, no matter how bad the times or how severe the trial. One day he had to battle through wind and sleet to his preaching appointment at a distant village chapel, and the small congregation wondered what he could be thankful for in such weather. When it came time for prayer, John prayed, "This is a wretched day, dear Lord, no doubt about it; but we thank Thee Lord that every day isn't as bad as this one!" Someone has said, "It's not what's in your pocket that makes you thankful, but what's in your heart." What's in yours?

1 Kings 17- 2 Kings 2 - ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ELIJAH

The Power of Prayer

Elijah lived in a very dark time. Ahab was the king of Israel and his wife Jezebel had led Israel into the worship of Baal and Ashtaroht. There were only 7000 worshippers of the Lord left in the whole country; prophets of the Lord were being sought out and put to death and then the land was plunged into a 3 ½ year long drought. How those dear believers must have felt, isolated, afraid, discouraged, perhaps ready to give up. And those are the same feelings that many of us may have in this dark time we're going through right now. But onto that scene God sends Elijah and in his very name there is encouragement for us because it means, "My God is Jehovah!". Even in the darkest of times our God is still here and still in control of all that is happening!

But the first encouragement I'd like to share with you begins in 1 Kings 17:1, Now Elijah, who was from Tishbe in Gilead, told King Ahab, "As surely as the LORD, the God of Israel, lives—the God I serve—there will be no dew or rain during the next few years until I give the word!" Of course, Elijah didn't just say that on his own; he was told by God to declare it, but what I want you to notice is how that was accomplished. We're told in James 5:7 that, Elijah was as human as we are, and yet when he prayed earnestly that no rain would fall, none fell for three and a half years! Imagine that: Elijah's prayer was so powerful and so effective that it stopped raining in all Israel for 3 ½ years. Dark times like this are a time to pray! And the most encouraging thing is that you don't have to be some specially anointed, super spiritual giant for your prayers to be effective! James assures us that Elijah was a normal human being like we are with all our fears and failures, yet his prayer rocked a nation. So, your prayers can have a huge impact! As you pray for our nation and for the other nations of the world during this current pandemic, if you're praying earnestly, God hears and your prayer can impact our state, our nation and the whole world.

But notice one more thing. Elijah's very words to the king are a challenge to point out God's power. He is saying, "The God of Israel lives and He is going to stop the rain!" Now Baal was an agricultural god, the god of who supposedly controlled the crops and the weather. And here is Elijah praying in a 3-year drought. For 3 years many of the people of Israel prayed, "O Baal, send rain!" as their crops didn't grow and their animals starved. But no rain came. The real purpose of Elijah's prayer was that the Lord would show Israel that He is the true God and draw them to worship Him once again. And that should be the major focus of our praying too, not just to protect ourselves and our loved ones, but that Jesus will use this time of danger and uncertainty and frustration to show the people in our lives as well as people all over the world that He is the true God and their only hope to have eternal life. Ask that through the peace you have and the help you give and the words you say, that those who are outside of Christ might be drawn to Him. And ask for that to happen for other believers all over the world.

God's Amazing Provision (Part 1)

When God led Elijah to pray that it wouldn't rain for 3 ½ years, it created a real problem for him. First, King Ahab was angry at him and wanted to kill him, so he had to hide for a long time. But the drought would also create a famine, a shortage of food and water that would affect Elijah himself; he would need a way to survive. I'm sure you know the story of how God provided for him in two amazing ways and I'd like to look at the first of them today. Let's read 1 Kings 17:2-6. Then the LORD said to Elijah, "Go to the east and hide by Kerith Brook, near where it enters the Jordan River. Drink from the brook and eat what the ravens bring you, for I have commanded them to bring you food." So Elijah did as the LORD told him and camped beside Kerith Brook, east of the Jordan. The ravens brought him bread and meat each morning and evening, and he drank from the brook. God sent Elijah across the Jordan river to hide in a remote gorge or ravine with a stream flowing through it and there, ravens actually brought him food twice every day, in the morning and again in the evening.

Now our current situation is much like a drought in economic terms. Many of us may be wondering how God is going to provide for us during this time. Maybe we've lost our job or been laid off or our company has folded and our income has ceased. Maybe our hours have been reduced or we're living on unemployment which is less than we need to pay our bills. Maybe we're on a fixed income that depends on our retirement savings and we've watched the value of our IRA drop severely. And we don't know how long this will be. And I think there are some encouragements for us as we look at Elijah's experience

First, notice in verse 4 God says, I have commanded them to bring you food. The ravens may have brought it, but God was the source. Don't ever lose sight of that. God has a plan for you and in that plan is providing for your needs in the drought times of your life. God knows just how and when He's going to meet your needs even when you don't!

Second, notice in verse 6 the ravens brought it ...each morning and evening. God provided food as it was needed. He didn't send a stockpile so Elijah could store it up and ration it out but just enough for each meal, one meal at a time. Now God may sometimes send you a lot of provision at once, but He doesn't have to do it that way. Much of the time He meets our immediate need just when we need it and that keeps us dependent on Him.

Third, notice that God often uses natural means. In one sense ravens picking up scraps of bread and meat is a pretty natural thing. So is having them feed morning and evening, and even having them fly to water daily is natural. But having them drop their food there for Elijah and to be so regular and dependable with it isn't! God used natural means and arranged them to suit His purpose and He often does this with us. He provides overtime or a side job just when a bill is due or sends a birthday gift just at a time of need. Or if you look at it another way, God often sends us provision in unexpected ways. Elijah would never have imagined that ravens would bring him food! And sometimes God just gives you an unexpected gift. A check shows up, maybe like the stimulus check that many of us received this week or an envelope with money left at our door or bags of food left on the porch.

In any event if you're following Jesus and trusting in Him, be assured that God is going to provide for you! He knows what you need before you ask Him and He will not forget!

God's Amazing Provision (Part 2)

Because of Elijah's prayer, it didn't rain for 3 ½ years in Israel and that drought created a serious famine in the land. Last time we looked at how God provided for him miraculously by having ravens bring him bread and meat twice each day as he hid by the brook Kerith. So now let's pick up the story in 1 Kings 17:7-16. But after a while the brook dried up, for there was no rainfall anywhere in the land. Then the LORD said to Elijah, "Go and live in the village of Zarephath, near the city of Sidon. I have instructed a widow there to feed you." So he went to Zarephath. As he arrived at the gates of the village, he saw a widow gathering sticks, and he asked her, "Would you please bring me a little water in a cup?" As she was going to get it, he called to her, "Bring me a bite of bread, too." But she said, "I swear by the LORD your God that I don't have a single piece of bread in the house. And I have only a handful of flour left in the jar and a little cooking oil in the bottom of the jug. I was just gathering a few sticks to cook this last meal, and then my son and I will die." But Elijah said to her, "Don't be afraid! Go ahead and do just what you've said, but make a little bread for me first. Then use what's left to prepare a meal for yourself and your son. For this is what the LORD, the God of Israel, says: There will always be flour and olive oil left in your containers until the time when the LORD sends rain and the crops grow again!" So she did as Elijah said, and she and Elijah and her family continued to eat for many days. There was always enough flour and olive oil left in the containers, just as the LORD had promised through Elijah.

For many of us right now, our brook is drying up or has already dried up. Maybe our job is gone, our income is gone, or what we now have coming in is not enough to sustain us. Well, when Elijah's water source dried up God sent him completely out of Israel to the north, to the village of Zarephath near Sidon. And, of all people least likely to be able to help him, God sent him to a poor widow and her son, about to make their last meager meal. And the lesson we learn here is that, not only can God provide for you by miraculously sending you what you need, God can also provide for you by stretching what you already have. God can take what little you may have and by His power stretch it and multiply it to meet your needs like He did with the widow's oil and flour. He did both things with Israel in the wilderness; He provided daily manna from heaven supernaturally, but they wore the clothes they already had and they lasted for 40 years! Jesus took a boy's lunch of 5 loaves and 2 fishes and stretched it to feed a crowd of 5,000 and more. He can do the same in your life in any number of ways.

Sometimes He chooses to shrink the need so that the current supply is adequate. Have you noticed that right now all of us are spending WAY less on gasoline and it costs way less! One friend joked, "I'm getting 3 weeks to the gallon of gas!" We're spending way less on things like eating out or shopping and buying things that aren't essential at the moment. It's suddenly costing us less to live and that is one way God can stretch what we have. Or He can stretch what we have to meet our needs in ways we can't quite understand!

When I graduated from seminary in July of 1979, we didn't have two nickels to rub together and didn't know what our next step was. The dear folks of the church I served there in Ohio raised a love offering of $1200, which was a lot of money in that day. Our only recourse was to move home to Pennsylvania and stay with my own widowed mother, who wasn't super well off herself. But that $1200 paid for our U-Haul move and all our remaining bills through July, through all of August while we were driving down to Philadelphia each week to preach here and to the day the good folks from this church drove up to get us with their U-Haul truck and move us into our new home here. God stretched what He gave us to meet our needs. But even as we were carrying furniture into our new home, I didn't have enough money to buy groceries and just at that moment the church treasurer showed up and said, "I thought you could use your first paycheck in advance!" Our brook dried up but we had enough until God sent rain on the land! It was a miracle! God has taught us this same lesson over and over again these 40 years. All five of our kids went to Christian school and between us working extra jobs and special gifts that appeared and scholarships being increased, God stretched what we had for 27 years so they could go.

What I'm telling you is that if you're following Jesus and trusting in Him, be assured that God is going to provide for you one way or the other! He is Jehovah Jireh, God your Provider and He will not fail to provide for you.

Problems Are Inevitable Yet Purposeful!

We tend to think of Elijah as sort of a spiritual superhero. His prayer stopped rain for 3 ½ years. God sent ravens to feed him and multiplied oil and flour endlessly for him. It would seem like everything always worked out for him and we long to be like that, but one of the first things you notice in his story is in 1 Kings 17:7, after a while the brook dried up! Right in the midst of God miraculously providing, there was a problem! But an even bigger problem occurred while Elijah was staying with the widow and her son at Zarephath, if you'll look at 1 Kings 17:17-24, Some time later the woman's son became sick. He grew worse and worse, and finally he died. Then she said to Elijah, "O man of God, what have you done to me? Have you come here to point out my sins and kill my son?" But Elijah replied, "Give me your son." And he took the child's body from her arms, carried him up the stairs to the room where he was staying, and laid the body on his bed. Then Elijah cried out to the LORD, "O LORD my God, why have you brought tragedy to this widow who has opened her home to me, causing her son to die?" And he stretched himself out over the child three times and cried out to the LORD, "O LORD my God, please let this child's life return to him." The LORD heard Elijah's prayer, and the life of the child returned, and he revived! Then Elijah brought him down from the upper room and gave him to his mother. "Look!" he said. "Your son is alive!" Then the woman told Elijah, "Now I know for sure that you are a man of God, and that the LORD truly speaks through you." Even while God was providing food miraculously every day, the boy died!

If anything, that shows us that problems and troubles are inevitable. If Elijah had them, you and I will too! If a man with the power to call down fire from heaven had problems, so will we. James says that Elijah was a man just like us, in every way the same. He probably felt the same way that you and I do when problems came up. Think how badly he must have felt as the boy got sicker and sicker and then died and the woman blamed him for her son's death. He probably felt like a failure and maybe wondered why God would let such a thing happen! Problems are going to come and when they do, with them will come the corresponding emotions of sadness, fear, anger, and so on. God gives us no promise of a problem-free life; in fact, Jesus said, In this world you will have trouble... We should expect it.

But the more important thing is what you do about the problems when they come up. Elijah did two very important things when the boy died. First, in verse 20 he cried out to the Lord, O Lord, why have you let this tragedy come upon this poor lady who is helping me? He poured out the agony he was feeling to the Lord. When problems come, that is the first thing to do, pray! Don't complain and mope or run to friends for sympathy. Pray first. Phil. 4 says we are not to be anxious but in everything we are to pray, to present our requests to God! So, the second thing Elijah did is in verse 21; he asked God to solve the problem. He took his request to God and realized that from that point on it was up to God to deal with the need. Now I don't suggest that you go to funerals and try to raise the dead like he did, but I do suggest that we learn to trust God, to look at how big He is and not at how big our problem is! God has chosen to allow that problem to enter your life, and because you are His child, He has made himself responsible to carry you through that problem. He already knows how He's going to do it!

And look at the end result in verse 24; God got all the glory. In the end the problem brought honor to Elijah as God's servant and ultimately, glory to God. That's why God sends problems into your life; they serve a purpose. God uses them to mold and to shape you. He uses you as you go through them to be a witness of His reality to others. And ultimately, he uses them to get glory for Himself because nobody can solve problems like He can. Jesus said, I assure you that there were many widows in Israel in Elijah's time, when the sky was shut for three and a half years and there was a severe famine throughout the land. Yet Elijah was not sent to any of them, but to a widow in Zarephath in the region of Sidon. - Luke 4:25-26. God planned to bless that particular widow and feed her through Elijah. There were many widows in Israel that God could have sent Elijah to and multiplied food for, but He had a plan for this particular widow's life and sent Elijah to her. He knew that this widow would believe in Him. Furthermore, He knew that she would be a perfect example to illustrate the teaching of Jesus hundreds of years in the future! Instead of bemoaning problems when they come, look to God and expect Him to use them!

God Can Protect You!

Here's another encouraging lesson we can learn from Elijah's life. When Elijah told King Ahab that the Lord said that it wasn't going to rain, I'm sure the king scoffed at that at first, but you can imagine his reaction later. As the drought began and got worse and worse, Ahab got madder and madder and, of course that anger was directed at Elijah. Elijah's very life was in great danger, but God protected Elijah. And the two ways God protected him are the same two ways in which God can and does protect us when we face danger.

First, God protected Elijah FROM danger. Let's read 1 Kings 18:1-15, Later on, in the third year of the drought, the LORD said to Elijah, "Go and present yourself to King Ahab. Tell him that I will soon send rain!" So, Elijah went to appear before Ahab. Meanwhile, the famine had become very severe in Samaria. So Ahab summoned Obadiah, who was in charge of the palace. (Obadiah was a devoted follower of the LORD. Once when Jezebel had tried to kill all the LORD's prophets, Obadiah had hidden 100 of them in two caves. He put fifty prophets in each cave and supplied them with food and water.) Ahab said to Obadiah, "We must check every spring and valley in the land to see if we can find enough grass to save at least some of my horses and mules." So they divided the land between them. Ahab went one way by himself, and Obadiah went another way by himself. As Obadiah was walking along, he suddenly saw Elijah coming toward him. Obadiah recognized him at once and bowed low to the ground before him. "Is it really you, my lord Elijah?" he asked. "Yes, it is," Elijah replied. "Now go and tell your master, 'Elijah is here.'" "Oh, sir," Obadiah protested, "what harm have I done to you that you are sending me to my death at the hands of Ahab? For I swear by the LORD your God that the king has searched every nation and kingdom on earth from end to end to find you. And each time he was told, 'Elijah isn't here,' King Ahab forced the king of that nation to swear to the truth of his claim. And now you say, 'Go and tell your master, "Elijah is here."'" But as soon as I leave you, the Spirit of the LORD will carry you away to who knows where. When Ahab comes and cannot find you, he will kill me. Yet I have been a true servant of the LORD all my life. Has no one told you, my lord, about the time when Jezebel was trying to kill the LORD's prophets? I hid 100 of them in two caves and supplied them with food and water. And now you say, 'Go and tell your master, "Elijah is here.'" Sir, if I do that, Ahab will certainly kill me." But Elijah said, "I swear by the LORD Almighty, in whose presence I stand, that I will present myself to Ahab this very day."

Now what I want you to notice is how well Elijah was protected for this three year period. God kept him FROM danger, that is, He kept the danger away from him. And God can certainly do that for us. God hid Elijah so well in that little ravine by the brook that all the army of Ahab couldn't find him! Then He hid him in a widow's house in a town far away. Yet in 3 ½ years nobody stumbled upon him and got his name and turned him in. Why? God's hand was protecting him! Sometimes God uses ways to protect us that are known only to Himself. He can use unseen angels to shield us or arrange amazing circumstances. How many times have I narrowly escaped an accident on the highway, thanking God that I was not a few seconds earlier or later? Surely, He was protecting me. Other times God will use people to protect us. God used Ahab's believing general Obadiah to protect His prophets. And sometimes God will have other people help you and protect you from the danger that would otherwise befall you. I think of how our ministry partners in India and Kyrgyzstan are protecting people from the danger of starvation right now by giving out food to the hungry. God can keep you away from the danger and the danger away from you if He chooses, but He does not always do it that way.

God also protected Elijah IN THE MIDST OF Danger. Read verses 16-19, So Obadiah went to tell Ahab that Elijah had come, and Ahab went out to meet Elijah. When Ahab saw him, he exclaimed, "So, is it really you, you troublemaker of Israel?" "I have made no trouble for Israel," Elijah replied. "You and your family are the troublemakers, for you have refused to obey the commands of the LORD and have worshiped the images of Baal instead. Now summon all Israel to join me at Mount Carmel, along with the 450 prophets of Baal and the 400 prophets of Asherah who are supported by Jezebel." As angry as he was, you would think Ahab would have had him instantly seized and slapped in irons, maybe taken back to the city and thrown in a dungeon or publicly executed. Yet he does none of those things. Instead, Elijah gives orders to Ahab and Ahab obeys him! Why? Obviously, God's hand is at work and Elijah is danger-proofed. Sometimes God supernaturally protects you as you go right through the midst of the danger, just as He took Noah safely through the flood or the three young men safely through the fiery furnace or Daniel safely through the lions' den. I vividly remember looking at a picture of a thoroughly demolished SUV in which our ministry partners in India were riding and marveling at how anybody could have survived, yet the whole family did, with only minor injuries. God protected them. He's protecting so many of our health care workers who walk right in the midst of danger from the coronavirus every day.

But you know, often we expect God to protect us by keeping danger away from us. Yet I think that God most often delights in protecting us right through the midst of danger because He gets more glory to himself by it! Either way, He is well able to protect us and we praise Him!

God Calls You To Trust Him!

In our little survey of Elijah's life, we now arrive at the famous contest on Mt. Carmel between Elijah and the prophets of Baal in 1 Kings 18. I'm sure you know the story, but what I want you to see is how vulnerable a position Elijah was willing to put himself in for God. He really went out on a limb, so to speak, and a really shaky one at that.

Not only does he stand before King Ahab who is his enemy and has been trying to find him and kill him for the last 3 years, but now he stands alone against 450 prophets of Baal and 400 prophets of Asherah who are gathered on the mountain against him. If nothing else, they could have mobbed him! But look at the incredible challenge he makes to them in verses 20-24, So Ahab summoned all the people of Israel and the prophets to Mount Carmel. Then Elijah stood in front of them and said, "How much longer will you waver, hobbling between two opinions? If the LORD is God, follow him! But if Baal is God, then follow him!" But the people were completely silent. Then Elijah said to them, "I am the only prophet of the LORD who is left, but Baal has 450 prophets. Now bring two bulls. The prophets of Baal may choose whichever one they wish and cut it into pieces and lay it on the wood of their altar, but without setting fire to it. I will prepare the other bull and lay it on the wood on the altar, but not set fire to it. Then call on the name of your god, and I will call on the name of the LORD. The god who answers by setting fire to the wood is the true God!" And all the people agreed. What a challenge! To call down fire from heaven by prayer, to call on God for an immediate impossible miracle! And Elijah makes it even more difficult by soaking his sacrifice with gallons and gallons of water!

But suppose God doesn't answer by fire! Suppose He chooses for His omniscient reasons not to! Elijah would lose the contest and his life! The Lord's Name would be disgraced before all Israel and they would worship Baal. Why would Elijah risk dishonoring the Lord and endangering himself like this? Well, the answer is found in his prayer in verse 36. As he calls on God he says, ...Prove that I have done all this at your command. He did it because God told him to; he was simply obeying God and trusting Him even though it looked like a crazy thing to do from a human perspective.

Listen, God calls you and I to trust Him and do what He tells us, even when it seems totally irrational or even dangerous. Are you willing to trust God and obey when He calls you to do something really difficult? For instance, there may be times when God tells you to give a large financial gift to His cause. Are you willing to trust Him and do it, even if you don't see how you can pay the rest of your bills? What if God calls you to talk to somebody about Him? Will you only do it if you think the person might be willing to listen? If God calls you to serve Him by taking on a task that seems too big for you, will you refuse? I guess the bottom line is this: Is safety and security most important to you or is trusting God and obeying Him most important?

Two more thoughts. Maybe God has already got you out on a limb in a precarious position today because you've obeyed Him. Don't worry; you are in the safest position there is! And finally, please don't think it is more spiritual to be out on a limb and be looking for limbs to jump out on! Only put yourself in a place like this when you are sure God has called you to do it.

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ELIJAH

Our God Is All-Powerful!

Let's go back today to that familiar story of the contest on Mt. Carmel between Elijah and the prophets of Baal. The text is found in 1 Kings 18:20-40, but I'll just summarize the contest. Elijah says, "You prepare an altar and put wood and a sacrifice on it, then call on Baal to send the fire to burn it up. I'll do the same and call on the Lord and the god who answers by fire must be the true God." That's the central issue, not just which god is greater but which is the one true living God, Baal or Jehovah. The test Elijah set up is simple and also fair. Baal is proclaimed to be the god of the fertility of the land and the crops and the god who controls the weather. He is said to control nature and rain and storms. It is already an embarrassment to Baal worshippers that he has not been able to make it rain for 3 ½ years, but Baal should easily be able to send a lightning bolt. Plus, those praying to him outnumber Elijah 450 to 1, yet after 6 hours of chanting and even cutting themselves, when the test is done, Baal can produce no fire. Then Elijah, after pouring many gallons of water on the altar and the wood to make sure everyone knows there is no trick, prays a simple prayer and God sends fire from heaven! It consumes everything, even the stones of the altar, all the water and even the dust underneath!

Listen, we have a God of power! The Lord can do the impossible, even when the wood is soaked! Sometimes we forget that. Sometimes we get so wrapped up in the truths that we must learn to endure problems and persevere in them, that we forget that the God who hung the worlds in space, who parted the Red Sea, who fed the Israelites in the wilderness, and on and on ad infinitum is our God! Ps. 48 says, "This God is our God!" Let's never forget that we have an all-powerful omnipotent God who can do anything He chooses to do so we can ask Him for difficult things!

In fact, God often proves His reality by displaying His power. Think about it. How can a spiritual Being prove to humans that He exists? Either by taking a visible form that they can see (which He did in Jesus) or by doing something that only a supernatural being could do. God often does this. It is the one evidence that cannot be disputed or argued away. As the Jewish leaders said about Peter and John healing the lame man, ...Everybody living in Jerusalem knows they have done an outstanding miracle, and we cannot deny it. When God heals someone miraculously or answers a prayer so clearly or transforms the life of someone who comes to Christ, people can't deny that God has done it.

So, God uses His power to vindicate the message of His servants. When Elijah prayed in vs. 36, he said, ...prove today that you are God in Israel and that I am your servant. Prove that I have done all this at your command. When God answered Elijah's prayer, the people knew his message was from the Lord. The last verse of Mark's Gospel says, ...the disciples went everywhere and preached, and the Lord worked through them, confirming what they said by many miraculous signs. When God healed that lame man, the crowd was ready to listen to Peter and John. This is still one of the ways that God proves Himself real and your message to be true. Our partners in India report that often God will heal a sick person in a village when believers pray and the people will see that Jesus is God and their idols are nothing and soon many believe and a church is started.

Now don't promise miracles to your friends and neighbors, but DO offer to pray for their problems, even extremely difficult ones. Often God will answer and by answering will give you the opportunity share your faith with someone who is now ready to listen because they've seen Him at work. He delights in doing this, in working with you by His power to confirm His own message! But you need the courage to speak up to people and pray boldly!

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ELIJAH

We Must Be Persistent In Prayer!

As we continue to follow Elijah's life, today we pick up the story immediately after his contest with the prophets of Baal on Mt. Carmel. Now it is time to bring rain on the land again after the 3 ½ year drought, so Elijah prays powerfully once more. Listen to 1 Kings 18:41-46 NLT, Then Elijah said to Ahab, "Go get something to eat and drink, for I hear a mighty rain-storm coming!" So Ahab went to eat and drink. But Elijah climbed to the top of Mount Carmel and bowed low to the ground and prayed with his face between his knees. Then he said to his servant, "Go and look out toward the sea." The servant went and looked, then returned to Elijah and said, "I didn't see anything." Seven times Elijah told him to go and look. Finally the seventh time, his servant told him, "I saw a little cloud about the size of a man's hand rising from the sea." Then Elijah shouted, "Hurry to Ahab and tell him, 'Climb into your chariot and go back home. If you don't hurry, the rain will stop you!'" And soon the sky was black with clouds. A heavy wind brought a terrific rainstorm, and Ahab left quickly for Jezreel. Then the LORD gave special strength to Elijah. He tucked his cloak into his belt and ran ahead of Ahab's chariot all the way to the entrance of Jezreel. It's interesting how he says to Ahab, I hear a mighty rainstorm coming! Nobody else heard it; it was the hearing of faith. Nobody saw it; the first sign of it was a cloud the size of a man's hand in the distance some while later. What Elijah is really saying is, "I believe God who said it will rain, so now I am going to pray for rain". And Elijah persisted in prayer; he kept on praying until God answered.

But wasn't he being presumptive? No, Elijah's persistence was based on a promise. Back in vs. 1, ...the LORD said to Elijah, "Go and present yourself to King Ahab. Tell him that I will soon send rain!" Persistence is not you nagging God to do what He doesn't want to do until you change His mind, like some child trying to get his own way. Nor is it simply about volume, that we must pray enough times for something before it will happen. Persistence has to have a root, a certainty that we are praying for something that is in line with God's will. In Luke 18 Jesus told His disciples a story to teach them to always pray and not give up or lose heart. It was about a widow who kept on coming to this uncaring, unjust judge who ignored her, yet she kept on coming to him and coming to him until he finally gave her justice. And the lesson He drew was that if an uncaring human being would be moved by persistence, how much more would our loving Father be moved by the repeated heartfelt coming of His own chosen children who cry to Him for justice. But he finishes the story in verse 8 by saying that the justice He's referring to occurs at the coming of the Son of Man. In other words, we're to keep on praying and praying for Jesus' coming to set the world straight and do away with evil and never give up until He comes. Why? Because we KNOW it's His will. He promised it. We are to persist in praying for things that we are absolutely certain are His will. John wrote, This is the confidence we have in approaching God: that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. That's why we keep on praying, because we know He hears us! Our persisting is not trying to nag God or persuade Him, rather it is a sign that we really believe Him.

Lastly, I want you to notice that Elijah was not merely persistent; he was earnest. You can tell by his posture. He knelt down and put his face between his knees. Of course, there is no certain prescribed posture for prayer; you don't have to fold your hands or kneel down. But you will find in Scripture that when people were really serious before God they often fell on their faces before Him. I am not saying that posture matters, rather that posture often indicates the nature of prayer. Elijah was praying intently because the honor of God was at stake once again. There is a big difference between persistence and empty repetition. Elijah prayed 7 times for rain and each time he probably asked the same thing, yet it was not empty repetition because it was the deep heart-cry of a child of God to his Father. Just like Jesus prayed the same thing 3 times earnestly in Gethsemane. When you determine to be persistent in prayer about some matter that you are sure is God's will, set about it with all your heart, not mechanically! And rest assured that He hears you!

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ELIJAH

We Must Be Prepared For Persecution!

The incident we look at today in 1 Kings 19:1-5 is totally uncharacteristic of anything we have seen of Elijah to this point. When Ahab got home, he told Jezebel everything Elijah had done, including the way he had killed all the prophets of Baal. So Jezebel sent this message to Elijah, "May the gods strike me and even kill me if by this time tomorrow I have not killed you just as you killed them." Elijah was afraid and fled for his life. He went to Beersheba, a town in Judah, and he left his servant there. Then he went on alone into the wilderness, traveling all day. He sat down under a solitary broom tree and prayed that he might die. "I have had enough, LORD," he said. "Take my life, for I am no better than my ancestors who have already died." Then he lay down and slept under the broom tree.... Something happens to Elijah here, something inside him snaps. The apparent cause is persecution by Jezebel. Now mark it down: anytime you take a stand for God you will experience persecution from someone. Jesus said that if we live godly, we WILL experience it. It may take various forms but to expect it not to come is like thinking Elijah could wipe out all the prophets of Baal and not incur Jezebel's wrath. But I want you to notice three things about persecution. First:

1. Persecution is not a cause for fear. Verse 3 says Elijah was afraid! Imagine that! The man who stalked boldly up to Ahab and called down fire from heaven is afraid. This is exactly what Jezebel wanted. In the first place when you're going to assassinate someone, you don't give them 24 hours notice! She wanted him to run, to leave her and Ahab and their kingdom alone. SHE was evidently a bit scared since all her prophets were dead and her husband had been impressed in such a way as to let Elijah go! But Elijah had been hunted for 3 ½ years and still did not fear to confront Ahab. Yet suddenly he had forgotten how God had worked miracles at Kerith and Zarephath and Mt. Carmel. When we fear, we stop trusting in God. So, you need not be afraid if you trust Him. Second:

2. Persecution does not demand fleeing. Elijah ran for his life; He ran all the way to southern tip of Judah (i.e., Beersheba) and then a day further and laid down to rest under a broom tree. Did God want Elijah to flee? No, He was using Him to turn Israel back to Himself! Sure, sometimes God may want us to run and hide but not always and perhaps not even most of the time. Our human instinct is to run, but usually God wants us to stand the test, to stay and stand firm and through it demonstrate His glory. Lastly:

3. Persecution does not mean failure. Under the broom tree we get a glimpse of Elijah's reasoning, "I am no better than my ancestors." That is, "I have not succeeded in the task given me, eradicating Baal worship from Israel." Elijah took the persecution as a sign that he had failed in his task and that all Israel was standing with Jezebel against him. It seemed to him that in spite of all that God had done by sending fire on Mt. Carmel and by sending rain on the land, it had no effect. So he says, "I've had enough, I can't take it any more, I quit, take my life away, I'm a failure!" What a wrong assumption! Next time we'll find out that he hadn't failed at all. There were at least 7000 in Israel who still believed in the true God. Just because you get persecuted doesn't mean you've failed in the task God gave you and that you are worthless. In fact, it often means the exact opposite, that you've succeeded and Satan is fighting back! So, when people stand against you or give you a hard time because of your faith, stand firm!

God Is Very Patient With Us!

If you remember from our last study together, Elijah ran away when his life was threatened by Queen Jezebel. He ran all the way out of Israel and Judah into the desert of Sinai. He was out of God's will and not following His direction, but today I want you to see how patient God was with him. 1 Kings 19:5-9, Then he lay down and slept under the broom tree. But as he was sleeping, an angel touched him and told him, "Get up and eat!" He looked around and there beside his head was some bread baked on hot stones and a jar of water! So he ate and drank and lay down again. Then the angel of the LORD came again and touched him and said, "Get up and eat some more, or the journey ahead will be too much for you."

So he got up and ate and drank, and the food gave him enough strength to travel forty days and forty nights to Mount Sinai, the mountain of God. There he came to a cave, where he spent the night. But the LORD said to him.... Now there are times when God has to treat us with sternness. Jonah directly refused to obey God and go to Nineveh and God had him swallowed and brought back by a great fish to teach him a powerful lesson. But Elijah's case is born out of discouragement. We saw his thoughts in verse 4 and they are more like, "I can't go on, I've failed, it's no use to try." Often we become weary and when we do, we can see through His treatment of Elijah that God has great patience with us.

First, notice that God refreshes our weariness. Elijah was a battle-weary soldier, tired and worn out from all he had been through. And look how good God was to him there in the desert. First, He left Elijah sleep and get rest, and then sent an angel to bring him needed bread and water. And not stale bread either, but bread freshly baked over hot coals, still warm! When God brought his weary people out of Egypt through the desert, He led them to a place called Elim where there were 12 wells of water and 70 palm trees for shade. Oh, He knows just when and how to send us times of refreshing in our lives and He does it repeatedly! The angel feeds him a second time to make sure he is refreshed enough. Then after God refreshed him, notice how:

God waits while we wander about. It doesn't take anywhere near 40 days to get from the region of Beersheba to Mt. Sinai. It's probably about 150 miles which means if he went directly there, he only walked about 4 miles a day, so either Elijah rested an awful lot or, more likely, he really wandered around a lot, like Israel did in the desert! But God waited patiently while he wandered! Oh, how God patiently waits for us when we get sidetracked out of His will and wander about trying to figure out what to do. Then notice that sooner or later:

God meets with us personally. At Sinai he found a cave and spent the night and in that cave God met Him and spoke to him. He hadn't heard God's voice since back before Mt. Carmel, yet God was there, even hundreds of miles out of His will. And why? To give him a personal revelation of Himself that would meet his need and restore him! Listen, God arranges to meet us in the spiritual deserts of our lives! He patiently waits until just the right moment and then reveals Himself to us in unique ways that turn us around and get us back on the right path and put us back into service for Him!

If we're honest, I think all of us could testify how patient God has been with us to get us to where we are today. So, let's praise Him today for His great patience and while we're at it, maybe we should think about being a little more patient with each other too, especially those who are worn out and weary and wandering. God isn't finished with any of us yet!

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ELIJAH

We Must Learn To See From God's Perspective!

If you remember, when Jezebel threatened his life, Elijah fled all the way out of the Israel and Judah and after making his way 40 days through the desert he arrived at Mt. Horeb, that is, Mt. Sinai the mountain of God and went into a cave there. I would assume that he went there intending to meet God. Now we need to understand that what caused Elijah to flee like this in the first place was his perspective. So, there in the cave God meets him and graciously tries to give him a new perspective. Let's read 1 Kings 19:9-10, There he came to a cave, where he spent the night. But the LORD said to him, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" Elijah replied, "I have zealously served the LORD God Almighty. But the people of Israel have broken their covenant with you, torn down your altars, and killed every one of your prophets. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me, too." Notice God's question, "What are you doing here? Why are you not back in Jezreel where I had sent you?" And how does he answer? He blamed Israel for sinning against God, listed all their sins before God, claimed to be the only one left who loved and obeyed God and then accused them of trying to kill him on top of everything else. Now those things actually weren't completely true. We know that because there were at least 100 prophets of the Lord left that Obadiah had hidden from Jezebel. In the contest with the prophets of Baal on Mt. Carmel not long before, the people of Israel had fallen on their faces and acknowledged the Lord as the true God. Only Queen Jezebel was after his life.

Of course, God knew all that; in fact, according to vs. 18 He knew that there were 7000 Israelites who loved Him and had never worshipped Baal. But He didn't point out to Elijah the true facts right away; instead, God told him to go out of the cave and watch because He wanted to give him a lesson that would change his perspective. Verses 11-13, "Go out and stand before me on the mountain," the LORD told him. And as Elijah stood there, the LORD passed by, and a mighty windstorm hit the mountain. It was such a terrible blast that the rocks were torn loose, but the LORD was not in the wind. After the wind there was an earthquake, but the LORD was not in the earthquake. And after the earthquake there was a fire, but the LORD was not in the fire. And after the fire there was the sound of a gentle whisper. When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his cloak and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. And a voice said, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" God showed him three great acts of nature: a mighty windstorm, a violent earthquake and a raging fire but as each passed by, God was not in them! God was trying to show him two things. The first was His great power, which Elijah had seen many times before. But this was a reminder. God is saying "Who is Jezebel anyway! Look at my power! Why are you scared?" But secondly, he recognized that these things were only signs from the Lord; Elijah recognized His actual presence clearly in the still small voice. Perhaps God is saying to Elijah that it is going to take more than displays of power like Mt. Carmel or the 3-year drought to bring Israel back to God. It will take the voice of the Holy Spirit working in hearts! And perhaps that still small voice will be Elijah and through his message the Holy Spirit would work among the people. Perhaps God was not going to use the grandiose displays of His power to win Israel; maybe He was going to use a gentle whisper, the voice of Elijah.

You know, it is so easy to get our thinking out of perspective when we are serving God. It is so easy to quit and give up doing what God tells us because we feel we are the only one that cares and everyone is against us. It's easy to feel that what God asks is too hard, that God expects too much of us. But when you're feeling overwhelmed like this, remember God is an omnipotent God! He has all power and can do even that which is impossible. There is no need to be discouraged or to be afraid! And maybe God is not planning to accomplish the result the way you expect it! Maybe it will not be some grandiose, all-at-once change but a change that will come through your faithfulness little by little over time! So, keep on! Because if you don't...Well, we'll save that for next time!

ENCOURAGEMENT FROM ELIJAH

Don't Make God Pass You By!

We pick up the story with God meeting Elijah in a cave on Mt. Sinai. I'm sure you remember from last time how God tried to change Elijah's perspective by showing him His mighty power by letting a great wind, a mighty earthquake and a raging fire pass by. I'm sure God hoped that these things would remind Elijah of His greatness and remove his fear and self-pity. But it doesn't seem to have worked. Look with me at 1 Kings 19:13-14, When Elijah heard it, he wrapped his face in his cloak and went out and stood at the entrance of the cave. And a voice said, "What are you doing here, Elijah?" He replied again, "I have zealously served the LORD God Almighty. But the people of Israel have broken their covenant with you, torn down your altars, and killed every one of your prophets. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me, too."

God asked Elijah the exact same question in verse 9 before God's great display of power, What are you doing here, Elijah? And Elijah's answer is exactly the same as it was in verse 10, I have zealously served the LORD God Almighty. But the people of Israel have broken their covenant with you, torn down your altars, and killed every one of your prophets. I am the only one left, and now they are trying to kill me, too. Nothing has changed; his answer is word for word identical; it actually sounds like a speech he had memorized, like Elijah knew just what he was going to say to God when he met Him! Neither God's patient care for him nor the powerful lesson of the moment before has had any effect on him! Fortunately, we get some extra help as to the meaning of Elijah's words from Rom. 11:2-3, ...Don't you know what the Scripture says in the passage about Elijah--how he appealed to God against Israel: Lord, they have killed your prophets and torn down your altars; I am the only one left, and they are trying to kill me? He was appealing to God against Israel. He was pleading with God in prayer against the very people that he was sent to reach, asking God to judge them. He actually got to where he could no longer pray FOR the people but only against them. Now we might think, "How could this happen?" but if we were in the shoes of some of the Old Testament prophets whose message was rejected over and over again and who were persecuted, we might understand. I'm thinking of believers in China or in the Muslim world who suffer so much at the hands of communist party members or zealous Muslims. I think it would be very easy to let yourself hate the very people God has called you to reach when you have suffered a lot!

But look what God says in verses 15-17, Then the LORD told him, "Go back the same way you came, and travel to the wilderness of Damascus. When you arrive there, anoint Hazael to be king of Aram. Then anoint Jehu grandson of Nimshi to be king of Israel, and anoint Elisha son of Shaphat from the town of Abel-meholah to replace you as my prophet. Anyone who escapes from Hazael will be killed by Jehu, and those who escape Jehu will be killed by Elisha!" He assigned Elijah a three-fold task. He never did do the first two things and they were later reassigned to Elisha. But the key phrase is "anoint Elisha to replace you". The same word is used in Gen. 22 where Abraham offers up a ram in the place of his son Isaac; it indicates a substitute or replacement. Elisha was not simply a successor to Elijah; he was a replacement! Essentially Elijah was fired! God said "If you will not change your perspective so that I can use you, then I will replace you; I will pass your position on to someone who will do what I want." What a sad thing, for such a valiant soldier to lose his usefulness to God after such a powerful ministry!

But why would God do that. Look at vs. 18, Yet I will preserve 7,000 others in Israel who have never bowed down to Baal or kissed him! God wasn't finished with Israel yet and if Elijah wasn't going to change perspective and get on with ministering to the people God planned to save, then He would use someone else. God's work will go on! He will not forget the ministry to the 7,000 for the sake of the one. He will build His Kingdom! But He will change builders if He has to!

Oh, don't ever let your heart get so hardened that God has to pass you by! Don't ever get so intractable and so angry at others and feeling so sorry for yourself, that God has to replace you and use someone else to do what He planned to do with you, and maybe even take you home early like he did Elijah. The fiery chariots and the whirlwind that took him up to heaven may have looked like a glorious ending to his career but they were essentially a recall to from the field to headquarters! God doesn't need you to get His work done, but He'd sure like to use you! When your heart is bitter and stubborn, don't resist Him; open it to God's Spirit and let Him heal you so He can use you.

God Prepares Those He Calls!

When we left off in our study last time, God had told Elijah that He was going to replace him with Elisha, yet it was several years before he was taken home. If we ask why, the answer that makes most sense to me is that Elisha was not yet ready to take his place! It seems to me that God did not take Elijah home until He had sufficiently prepared Elisha to take up his mantle and continue the ministry. So, this was God's primary task for Elijah before his homegoing and we should all think along these lines, preparing someone to take over for us when our time of service is done, no matter what our place of service is. But how did Elijah prepare him?

First, he made Elisha aware of God's call. Look at 1 Kings 19:19-21 NLT, So Elijah went and found Elisha son of Shaphat plowing a field. There were twelve teams of oxen in the field, and Elisha was plowing with the twelfth team. Elijah went over to him and threw his cloak across his shoulders and then walked away. Elisha left the oxen standing there, ran after Elijah, and said to him, "First let me go and kiss my father and mother good-bye, and then I will go with you!" Elijah replied, "Go on back, but think about what I have done to you." So Elisha returned to his oxen and slaughtered them. He used the wood from the plow to build a fire to roast their flesh. He passed around the meat to the townspeople, and they all ate. Then he went with Elijah as his assistant. Elisha evidently came from a wealthy agricultural family. When Elijah threw his cloak over him, he immediately knew what it meant, that he was called to be a prophet with Elijah. He responded enthusiastically, but notice that Elijah told him go back and think about it first! "Ponder what it means. Think about the cost, what you'll be giving up. Be sure you want to do this!" When God calls someone to serve, He wants them to think it through and do it freely, knowing what it means. And Elisha chose to give up everything to follow Elijah and his God.

Second, Elijah taught Elisha. How? According to 2 Kings 3:11 he was known as Elijah's personal assistant. He was by his side every moment, every day, watching and listening and learning and that's the best way to learn, life on life. Now what did he learn in the time they had together? Two things, primarily. First, he learned the certainty of God's Word. When God declares something, it always happens. No doubt he was there when Elijah pronounced King Ahab's doom in 1 Kings 21 after he murdered Naboth and then later heard how the dogs licked up Ahab's blood in chapter 22, exactly as Elijah had declared. He learned that God's word is sure and certain! And second, Elisha certainly learned the greatness of God's power. No doubt he was there when Elijah called down fire from heaven on King Ahaziah's soldiers who were sent to arrest him in 2 Kings 1, or at least he was very aware of it. He watched Elijah strike the river with his cloak and dry it up so they could cross and he understood that that power was to be his as God's prophet too.

Then, at last, Elisha was proved ready. When Elijah's final day came, he tried 3 times to get Elisha to leave his side, but he would not be dissuaded from following. He knew by the Spirit it was Elijah's last day and more than anything he wanted to fill Elijah's shoes and carry on his ministry. Nothing could keep him from it. He was ready to take Elijah's place. So, then God took Elijah home.

You see, God cares about His work! He cares about His ministry. He will see that it continues and raise up and prepare others to continue it when your time is finished. And just as surely, God always prepares those whom He calls to serve Him! To speak personally, I'm almost 66. I'm somewhere in the winding down phase after 46 years of pastoral ministry. What a comfort it is to know that God cares about his ministry right here and that He prepares other, younger people to carry it on when we're done. I love how God seems to be preparing and using Rob Lyons in the preaching ministry here and how He's using all of the next generation of younger adults in our music ministry and in fact in all of our ministries now. Many of our younger people have stepped up to serve in various capacities. That gives me hope for our future as a church! And if you're part of that rising generation, these thoughts should give you assurance also that God is preparing you so that He will use you effectively for years to come. Know that His Word is sure and know that His power is great! Once you know that, follow Him with all your heart and let Him use you!

We Will Live Even Though We Die!

The last lesson we'll look at in Elijah's life is his translation to heaven. You know, perhaps our most basic fear is the fear of dying. It's pretty well programmed into us as a basic instinct. When we're young, we don't think about it much, but as we grow older and particularly when we hear that we might catch a virus and die quickly or we face the news that we have cancer or some other dread disease, that fear often kicks into high gear. Well, maybe Elijah can help us with that. Look with me at 2 Kings 2:11-14, As they were walking along and talking, suddenly a chariot of fire appeared, drawn by horses of fire. It drove between the two men, separating them, and Elijah was carried by a whirlwind into heaven. Elisha saw it and cried out, "My father! My father! I see the chariots and charioteers of Israel!" And as they disappeared from sight, Elisha tore his clothes in distress. Elisha picked up Elijah's cloak, which had fallen when he was taken up. Then Elisha returned to the bank of the Jordan River. He struck the water with Elijah's cloak and cried out, "Where is the LORD, the God of Elijah?" Then the river divided, and Elisha went across. Elijah never died. In Genesis we read that Enoch walked with God and then simply was not because God took him. That's what happened to Elijah. God took Elijah to heaven without passing through death, though He did it a little more slowly and visibly than He did with Enoch. But remember, Jesus Himself said that we won't die either! He said, ...I am the resurrection and the life. Anyone who believes in me will live, even after dying. Everyone who lives in me and believes in me will never ever die. Do you believe this? We who believe don't die! We simply depart as Elijah did! Paul wrote to the Philippians, For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain... My desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better. Like Elijah, we depart this earth for a better place and, if we look at Elijah's translation closely, it seems to me to hold several lessons about what happens to us as we depart from this life.

First, a separation occurs. In Elijah's case a chariot and horses of fire appeared and passed between Elijah and Elisha. It did not pick Elijah up but simply served as a barrier to separate him from his friend who would remain on earth. These are angelic beings; in fact, they appear again in 6:17 where they surround the city of Dothan to protect Elisha from enemy soldiers. They are described as "the chariots of Israel" and are evidently a class of angels assigned to protect and display the mighty power of God on Israel's behalf. At any rate when we die God separates us from those who remain behind; death separates us from our loved ones and our surroundings on this earth. It does not annihilate us; it does not make us cease to exist. It merely takes us where others cannot yet go.

Second, notice that Elijah is transported; He is taken up to heaven in a whirlwind, literally in a storm wind, a mighty storm. The storm was God's vehicle, the means of Elijah's departure, of his going from one place to another. The Apostle Paul spoke of the time of his departure being at hand, literally his exodos, his going out of this world. And death is our vehicle, the storm that transports us between two realms of reality just as literally as Elijah was transported, only much faster.

And, of course, Elijah's departure had a destination. The whirlwind took him up to an actual place, a real place, to heaven itself to be in the presence of God. Jesus Himself said that heaven is a place, a place that He has prepared for us. It's a destination that He will come and take us to! Oh, what comfort that should give us. We shall not die, but live! We will simply leave this body and this world and be taken to heaven to be with Jesus forever. That is what lies ahead for us, but Jesus' question is the key, Do you believe this? I mean, do you REALLY believe this. We all give assent to it, but when death draws near in some form, that question becomes real. "Do I really believe what I have said I believe all these years?" And you have to make up your mind to cast yourself on Jesus in faith and say with Mary, "Yes Lord, I DO believe!" That is what will calm our fears.

Then lastly notice that Elijah's ministry continued. His mantle was left behind and Elisha picked it up and after some sorrow he used it and went on to continue the ministry Elijah had begun. So, there are those who will come after us and our God is their God and His power is unchanged so they will take up our mantle and continue His work. Thank God that He always sees to that.

2 Chronicles - The Flesh (Patterns) Of Kings

Solomon: Compromising Flesh - Chs. 1-9

One of the main reasons God gave us the Old Testament with its record of so many people's lives is that we can learn and profit from them and their experiences. The lessons from the life experiences of an Abraham or a Joseph are obvious to anyone. But there are dozens of other characters who also have valuable lessons for us. For about 400 years, from the time of David to the captivity of the nation, Judah was ruled by a single dynasty of 20 kings and the Book of 2 Chronicles is God's record of these men and His editorial on their lives. Less than half were good kings, but it is to these that God devotes the majority of the record, glossing quickly over the rest. And if you read the accounts of the 9 men that we'll study together, you'll quickly discover that even though they were kings they had some of the same basic problems in themselves that you and I do. In fact, let's look at this by way of an:

I. Introduction To The Series - 1 Pet. 2:9-12 Let me point out three truths here:

1. our identity: we are kings destined to reign eternally with Christ We are a royal priesthood, a priesthood of kings, chosen just as clearly as those earthly kings and entitled to the Divine Right of reigning with Him. Rev. 5:10 says literally that Christ (YLT) ...didst make us to our God kings and priests, and we shall reign upon the earth. We are destined for the Throne; the royal nature of the Spirit of Christ flows in our spiritual veins. That's who we are as we pass through this world. We may look like plumbers and carpenters and housewives and businessmen, but we're heirs with Christ to the throne of the world. Yet here's:

2. our problem: the desires of our flesh war against our spirit Verse 11 says literally the desires of our flesh. There's a constant battle going on inside us. We may be kings but we all have flesh. We have human self-centered desires inside us that are powerful and they are driven by the force of sin that dwells in our bodies. Some of those desires are just natural lusts, cravings to meet our physical needs and our emotional needs apart from God and His plan for us. Others are habit patterns that we've learned from the world around us, ways that we've learned or been taught to get our needs met in a sinful fashion that God never intended. And these desires make a constant assault upon our identity, who we really are at the deepest level. The flesh constantly desires things that are contrary to the spirit and the spirit, things contrary to the flesh. It's a continual battle. And different people come with different patterns they have developed, different sets of desires that bother them. So, we really are kings with flesh patterns, just as each of these kings in the Old Testament had a particular variety of temptation or disobedience that he was prone to. Now in verse 12 we see:

3. our purpose: we are to glorify God before a watching world, by choosing to abstain from indulging the patterns of our flesh, by walking according to the Spirit so that we will not fulfill the desires of the flesh, by His grace living lives that are good in front of a world of unbelievers so that they will give Him the credit and be drawn into relationship with Him!

Now Solomon is the first king we encounter in 2 Chronicles and the record of his life takes up nine chapters. He was the greatest King Israel or Judah ever had, though he was not the most godly. He loved God but he had an obvious flesh pattern that many of us also have:

II. Solomon's Pattern: The Tendency To Compromise Now what does that mean? Well, in some contexts, the word compromise is a good thing. For example, we get along in relationships by compromise, by each giving up some things that we would prefer for the sake of the other. But the kind of compromise I'm talking about is a concession that exposes to danger or disrepute. When you choose to drive under the influence of alcohol, you compromise the safety of everyone in the vehicle. You give in a little bit on an important principle and it exposes you and others to serious danger. When you lie to get out of trouble, you compromise your integrity. You give in and it exposes you to disrepute, to a reputation for wrong-doing. Compromise is giving in to the desires of your flesh in what you think are small ways here and there, giving in to the desire to disobey the principles God has laid down, because at the moment you think it's to your advantage or even to God's advantage for you to do it, but it puts you and others in real danger. Three weeks ago you all saw on the news how that pier collapsed on the Delaware River. It held a dance club and all the guests ended up in the water and some drowned. Some of those who worked there reported seeing cracks in the floor several inches wide days ahead of time and being told to cover them over with something. I could be wrong, but it sounds like the owner was willing to compromise the standard of public safety in what seemed like a small thing to him for the sake of profit and sooner or later the consequences caught up with him and others. Now there is no question that:

1. Solomon had a sincere dedication to the Lord He was not a phony playing games. He genuinely loved God. From the very beginning of his reign as a young man:

a. his heart desired to be a good ruler for Israel (1:7-12) What would you say to that offer from God? "Ask what you want and I'll give it to you!" A long life or a million bucks might be a tempting answer. But all Solomon could say was, "I want the wisdom to rule your people. I'm not able to do it and I need help." He wanted to be a good king like his father David; he wanted to rule well and wisely. His heart was humble and sincere. God even acknowledged that that was his true heart's desire in verse 11 and rewarded him for it. The greatest accomplishment of his life was that:

b. he built a magnificent temple to display God's glory (2:1, 5-6) What an attitude! The temple had to be great because God was great; it was to glorify His Name. He wouldn't live in it like the pagan gods were thought to, because all of creation can't contain God. It was simply a place to burn sacrifices before Him, a place where people could come to pray and to worship Him. And what we're reading in 5-6 is not a sermon; it's a business contract for the materials given to a neighboring pagan king! He really meant it! His heart wanted to glorify God. And we read later when it was completed that:

c. he humbly sought God in prayer and was heard (6:12-21; 7:1, 12) God did hear. God sent down fire to light the sacrifice! His glory cloud filled the Temple. God later said, "I have heard you." He wasn't repeating some ritual prayer written for the occasion; he was baring his heart to Almighty God, admitting his own smallness and that of the Temple, admitting the constant need for forgiveness, admitting that Israel would go astray and asking God to honor His name by hearing prayer. He was for real. In fact:

d. he desired God to be known by all the peoples of earth (6:32-33) He wanted all the peoples of earth to know and worship the true and living God, the God of Israel. His heart was not satisfied that only his own people would worship; he wanted to see the earth filled with God's glory! And God's response to that dedication was obvious in the typical Old Testament pattern:

e. he was blessed by God both spiritually and materially (9:22-24) He was elevated to a high and lofty position. The kings of the world came to hear him and seek his God-given wisdom. The Queen of Sheba came and went home in awe saying, "The half was not told me!" And everyone that came brought gifts. God brought vast riches and had them dumped in his lap plus all the business enterprises he was involved in. At that moment in history he was the greatest of the kings of the earth.

But the truth of the matter is that at many points along the way:

2. Solomon compromised several of God's key principles He gave in on things he knew weren't right, things that seemed like small things to him at the moment. He never stole another man's wife or murdered anyone like his father. He gave in a little here or there because it seemed like a good idea at the moment, because it seemed like the logical and best way to do something, because doing what God said just didn't seem to make sense. But this pattern of compromise increased in intensity the way the desires of the flesh always do when you give in to them and the end result of it all proved to be disastrous both to him and to the nation of Israel. It all began when:

a. he compromised in business dealings (1:14-17) Solomon used that God-given wisdom in the business realm. He found lots of ways to make money and one of his most lucrative business ventures was that he became, in modern parlance, an arms dealer. Instead of buying missiles and selling them to the PLO, he bought the most powerful weapons of his day, horses and chariots. He bought them from Asia Minor and from Egypt on the north and south and once he had accumulated all he needed, he sold them to Syria on the East. You say, what's so bad about that? It seems like a small thing, except that God had expressly warned against it in Deut. 17:14-17. Wow! You see, God already knew the spiritual dangers of a king being undefeatable and of having a vast fortune. He would forget God and his people and serve himself. He warned kings specifically NOT to accumulate horses and chariots and riches and especially not to go back to Egypt to get them. So, He wrote down the warning through Moses 500 years in advance. But Solomon either had never read it, or more likely, chose to compromise and give in to the desires of his flesh on this one because it was so lucrative. The sad thing is that as a result he ended up arming Israel's enemies. Within a few short years of Solomon's death Syria became the dominant power in that region and Israel's chief enemy. Solomon equipped his own enemies to fight his people for the love of money.

Listen, Kings! Our business dealings are where most of us live every day. And many times, they hold out to us the alluring promise of self-sufficiency, of having the means to protect and care for myself, of having all the things I want, if I'll just give in on some of God's principles here and there. It might be dishonesty in reporting our income or taxes; it might be offering an inferior quality product or service or cheating our employer by leaving early or taking things home; it might be giving ourself to our work so much that it takes us away from our family. It doesn't have to be much, but the more you do it the more it grows and in the end your enemy is the one who benefits; it is the glory of God that gets robbed when your behavior backfires and eventually becomes known. Secondly, Solomon:

b. he compromised in separation He set out to build the Temple but look at the method he chose to do it. (2:2, 8:7-8) Instead of the loving hands of faithful Israelites building a temple for God out of their hearts' devotion, Solomon simply found all the aliens who were living in Israel, those who were left from the original conquest of the land and had never been destroyed and he turned them into a slave labor force for his project. Just like Pharaoh enslaved the Israelites to build his projects! Sounds kind of like a good idea, doesn't it? The temple gets built and the Israelites don't have to do it; they're free for the good positions and to care for their families. What's wrong with that? Well, look with me at the warning God had given Israel when they first went into the land: Jud. 1:28, 2:1-3. God warned them, "You didn't drive these Canaanites out as I told you to; They were idolaters involved in the grossest of idolatry and immorality, but you left them here among you; now you're going to have problems because of their presence and the biggest problem is that you are continually going to be tempted to go after their gods!" Well now Solomon ended up finding and ferreting out all these families and instead of worrying about their spiritual effect on Israel and doing something to prevent it, he involved them in the most strategic project of the heart of Israel, the very building of the Temple itself ...and ended up preparing Israel for idolatry. What is the repeated problem in the land with all the kings who follow Solomon? Baal-worship. And how were the people so quickly influenced to worship Baal? Did they all one day just wake up and say, "We're tired of worshipping Jehovah; let's worship Baal today?" I don't think so. 150,000 Baal-worshipping Canaanite families lived among them, invited them over for dinner, talked with them in the marketplace every day, had kids playing with theirs every day, and even helped them build their Temple all the while telling them about the orgies and the drinking and feasting and the other "fun" they had worshipping Baal. Their influence paved the way.

Listen my dear kings, Paul gave us a similar warning: 1Cor. 15:33, Do not be misled: "Bad company corrupts good character." We need to build our relationships with the non-believers around us while in our mind understanding the spiritual difference between us and the spiritual danger that occurs as their influence is exerted on us. Peter says: 1 Pet. 4:3-4 (NIV) For you have spent enough time in the past doing what pagans [non-believers] choose to do--living in debauchery, lust, drunkenness, orgies, carousing and detestable idolatry. They think it strange that you do not plunge with them into the same flood of dissipation... They think you're weird because you won't join in with them and they will certainly pressure you to do it and you will definitely face the temptation to compromise, to give in this little area here or there, whether it's to stop with the boys at the bar for a beer after work or to spend Sunday mornings on the golf course with them pursuing recreation, or even to try the new eastern chanting and meditation technique they've learned about that relaxes them so much. It may seem innocent at first, like it's no big deal, but it paves the way for giving your life and your worship to the wrong gods. Thirdly:

c. he compromised in romance and marriage He began with this: (8:11) He did what kings normally do: he made a marriage alliance for the defense of Israel. He married Pharaoh's daughter, even though he knew that she did not believe and as an idolater could not go into either the Temple or his own palace where the Ark had been. Now God had clearly warned His people about intermarrying with unbelievers in Deut. 7:3-6, and in 17:17 He clearly warned that a king must be especially careful because in that part of the world, the idea of a harem was a common thing and that there was grave spiritual danger in it. His heart could be led astray. Yet Solomon compromised again. Surely the security of Israel is more important! But he: ...ended up worshipping other gods - 1 Kin. 11:1-4. It was only one at first and then another and then many (700!), and over time their influence took his heart away from God and the one who had built the temple for the only true God actually stooped to idolatry himself.

My dear kings, how many of God's people have failed to listen to His directions for marriage, have allowed themselves to be so smitten with emotional attachment or become so desperate to have a relationship that they deliberately choose to tie themselves to someone who either doesn't know the Lord or says they're a Christian but doesn't love and follow Him with all their heart the way they do. They have convinced themselves that it's not such a big thing, that after all they will have a tremendous influence on the other and yet in the end it is they who end up changed, whose heart is pulled away from God instead of pulling the other's toward Him. Or they pay the price of living a divided life and having a divided home all through the years, a continual heart-breaking struggle. Young people, single people, please listen to me. Of all the areas of your life, this is perhaps the most dangerous, the place you can least afford to compromise and let down your principles. Don't give in! And finally:

d. he compromised in serving his people Solomon's heart started out wanting to serve His people. But after he died and his son Rehoboam was taking over, listen to what the people said about him (10:4). Solomon eventually burdened his people, oppressing them with taxes, pressing them into laboring on his massive building projects, and making them serve in his army and palace. Instead of sharing his massive wealth with them, he got rich on their backs and kept it all, something God warned clearly about: Deut. 17:17-20. He started humble but something changed. He began to accumulate and soon he considered himself better than his people. You know if he'd have just done what it said and kept a copy of the law by him and read it regularly, none of these things might have occurred! But he didn't and ultimately ...ended up alienating and dividing Israel. The nation split in two when his son told them he was going to rule the way his father did.

You know, kings, the love of money is still the root of every kind of evil. Affluence will steal your heart from God if you begin to give in to it here and there and to feel that you deserve this or that and why should you give this or that away and why should you not have this and that and pretty soon you're no longer a servant. You're self-centered and self-serving.

I hate to say it, but we'd better not point the finger at Solomon too hard, because there's a little bit of his flesh in us. All of us are prone in some area to compromise, to give in on little things that expose us to grave danger. And for some of us it's a major pattern of life. Our heart loves Him and wants to serve Him but we give in all the time. Greg Laurie writes in his book The Great Compromise: "A giant 400-year-old redwood came crashing down one day and no one could figure out why. The tree had survived four centuries of storms, lightning, and earthquakes --what had felled it? On closer inspection, investigators found that tiny beetles had found their way inside its trunk and had begun eating away its life-giving fibers, weakening its mighty bulk from the inside out. In much the same way, the devil tries to bring Christians down through a steady drone of small, seemingly insignificant temptations [to compromise]. While we are fighting and resisting him in one area, he may be setting up house in another area of our lives. Satan will find ways to creep into our lives for the purpose of eroding our foundations until our fibers have become undone and we come crashing down to the ground. Show me a person who has fallen away from their walk with the Lord, and I will show you a person who started making compromises in his or her life long ago." [New Man, Jan/Feb 1995. Page 13.] My dear Kings and Queens and especially those who have compromising flesh, I have good news for you. You have a power Solomon never had because the Holy Spirit lives in you. And I have a promise for you from God. If you learn to walk in the Spirit, to live in the habit of calling on and leaning on His power instead of your own in each situation, the Bible says you will not fulfill the desires of the flesh. You have the power NOT to compromise available to you every moment, no matter how much pressure you may be under. All you need to do is to call upon Him.

2 Chronicles - The Flesh (Patterns) Of Kings

Rehoboam: Slow-Learning Flesh - Chs. 10-12

Solomon reigned 40 years over Israel and then he died and his son Rehoboam took over the Kingdom. Now Rehoboam is an enigma of a king. The book of 1 Kings doesn't have anything good to say about him but Chronicles shows us that, like most of us, he wasn't all bad. He actually seems to have been a king who worshipped the Lord. He even appears to have been a king who could learn and change (unlike some others). But his flesh pattern was this: he was a slow learner i.e.; he did learn but it was always too late and he always learned the hard way. He learned mostly from the pain of experience rather than from the wisdom available to him. And he paid dearly for it. The word stubborn comes to mind. Now it strikes me that Solomon is not the only one to have a son like that. Billy Graham's son Franklin was something of a rebel when he was growing up. [You might want to read his autobiography "Rebel With A Cause"; it's worth it.] When he was small, his dad was away a lot, and Franklin often gave his mother trouble. Her description of him was "stubborn but never villainous." Franklin began smoking as a child by picking up discarded cigarette butts, and it became a potent symbol of rebellion. His mother at one point attempted aversion therapy by making him smoke a whole pack, but she hadn't reckoned on his strength of will: 'By the time I finished all 20,' he writes, 'I must have vomited five or six times...but it gave me great satisfaction not to give in.'" [Time, May 13, 1996. Pages 68-69.] Franklin eventually came around and today is the leader of a great ministry called Samaritan's purse but for almost the first 30 years of his life, he just had to learn by experience; advice, warning, or wisdom were never enough. But you know, the trouble with being a slow learner is that by the time you learn, it's often too late; great damage is done. And if we were totally honest, some of us would have to admit that spiritual slow learning is one of the flesh patterns that wars against our kingly character too, wouldn't we? We are prone to resist wisdom and learn the hard way. So, this morning let's see what we can learn from Rehoboam's example instead of learning by his method. There are two major occasions of this slow-learning pattern laid out for us here. First, we read that:

I. Rehoboam Learned Too Late To Listen To People As you start in Chapter 10, you'll notice that Rehoboam was a pretty smart man in some ways. He seems to have known there was trouble brewing in the kingdom already. Oddly, verse 1 says he decided to hold his own coronation, not in Jerusalem, the capital city, but in Shechem in the north. Evidently there were already complaints from the northern tribes and rumors of secession and Rehoboam went to Shechem to affirm that he was going to be king over all Israel from Dan to Beersheba. And during the ceremonies there, the people had their popular spokesman Jeroboam ask Rehoboam in verse 4 for some relief from the harsh service which Solomon had laid on them. Now to his credit:

1. Rehoboam did exercise some very wise practices You'll notice:

a. he did not give an instant reply (5) He took three days to consider the issue. That's pretty wise. Most of the time when we're in a pressure situation, we shoot from the hip. When somebody puts us on the spot, we let our emotions fly or let out the first thought that comes to mind. We could learn from this, to wait before replying to important matters. What's more:

b. he sought the advice of others (6-7) He had enough sense to ask somebody else for input. He didn't want to be wrong. So, he asked a number of people for their advice on this issue. He remembered what his father Solomon taught: in the multitude of counselors there is wisdom. Not a bad idea. We're in a "I've got to make my own decisions" society and that's dangerous. Plus, notice that:

c. he sought advice from experienced sources He had enough sense to consult the advisors his father Solomon had. They were experienced people who had helped to run a successful kingdom. They knew how far you could push the people before trouble would occur. They recognized that Solomon had been pressing too hard and overstepping his bounds. So, they advised him to "lighten up". It's always best to ask somebody who's experienced, who's been through it, someone who knows. But at the same time:

2. Rehoboam chose not to learn from the practices he used For instance:

a. he rejected advice that he didn't like (8) Note the order of things. He rejected their advice before he heard what anybody else had to say. He rejected it purely because he didn't like it. It wasn't what he wanted to hear. He wanted to prove he was tough, that he was as good a man as his father. And so, he went looking for someone he knew would tell him what he wanted to hear, the buddies he'd grown up with, who thought like he thought! He sought good advice but wasn't really ready to learn from it. So, he ignored the value of experience, took the advice of his inexperienced friends and told the people he was tougher than his dad, that Solomon used whips on them but he'd use scorpions (i.e., a whip with bits of metal, the Roman cat-of-9 tails). But his real mistake was:

b. he did not listen to the people (15) He didn't HEAR them. He listened to their words but he didn't listen to them. They were tired; they were hurting; they had carried a burden. They were crying out for relief, compassion, and understanding. But he didn't hear that; all he heard was his own need to be king, to prove his power.

And that is the lesson: that we are often slow to learn in our relationships with people. They talk to us; they speak to us, but we don't hear them. We don't value their wisdom and experience. We don't stop to think from their point of view, to look at their needs, to feel their hurts and disappointments. We only hear ourselves and our needs so we go off and do what we want, without regard to them. But it has consequences:

3. Rehoboam's stubbornness split the kingdom (16-19) The north seceded and formed its own nation. At first, he thought they didn't mean it but ended up fleeing for his own life back to Jerusalem. And when we don't learn to listen to others, our relationship with them breaks too. But the really sad thing is:

4. Rehoboam eventually learned to listen but it was too late (11:1-4) He went home and got ready to make war but God sent a prophet to say, "Don't fight your brothers, this is My doing." And this time he listened. This time he took the advice God gave but it was too late; the damage was done; the kingdom was split.

I wonder how many marriages have broken up because the husband or the wife never learned to listen to the other, to hear their crying needs and now it's too late. The damage is done and the relationship is broken. I wonder how many children are alienated from their parents because the parents never learned to hear them but now it's too late; the damage is done; the relationship is broken. I wonder how many of us have had to learn the hard way to listen to the advice of others. One evening a few years ago, several tornadoes tore through the town of Andover, Kansas, and 13 people lost their lives.

A newspaper account of the tragedy said, "When police and fire officials, TV forecasters, and the weather service began telling people to take cover, some waited too long to respond. Others apparently ignored the warnings. At the Golden Spur Mobile Home Park, where more than 225 trailers were destroyed, many people never even left their homes. Only about 200 of the park's 700 residents headed into its storm shelter. All 13 victims were killed at the trailer park. For 40 years, Andover has warned its residents of tornadoes by sending police and fire vehicles into the streets, lights flashing and sirens wailing. This time the vehicles were out even before the weather service told people to take cover (about 20 minutes before the twister hit). Despite the warnings, many people were still casually walking along the street. The man in charge of the National Weather Service office in Wichita commented, "Researchers and sociologists have told us people don't do a thing when they hear a warning. They don't do anything until they perceive they are at risk." [Parables, Etc., Mar 1996. Page 6.] In other words, the pattern a lot of people have is that they assume they know best and don't really listen and learn unless their false sense of security is jarred pretty hard. But it truly pays to really listen to others, to really hear what they're saying, to value their experience. And you know, of course, it works the same way with God, but:

II. Rehoboam Learned Too Late To Listen To God (Ch. 11) Now as I said earlier, Rehoboam did not start out being ungodly. In fact, the text directly says that:

1. Rehoboam continued to worship the Lord (13-14,16-17) For three years Rehoboam walked like David and Solomon had before him. While Jeroboam up north was leading his people to bow down before golden calves, Rehoboam loved the Lord. He worshipped the Lord. He obeyed the Lord. All the Levites and priests from the Northern tribes came to Jerusalem to stay and support him because he honored the Lord. And he did act wisely in some things. For instance, (22-23) he prevented rivalry among his sons by choosing one but giving the others important positions and provisions. In many things he was a smart man but after 3 years he did a dumb thing:

2. Rehoboam abandoned God's Word (12:1) If you want to see how bad things got compare 1 Kings 14:22-24. They went whole hog after idols. Now, why? Why did Rehoboam who knew better fail to learn the lesson from God's earlier warning and go into idolatry like this. Well, I see a couple reasons. First, his father did the same thing later in life, then vs. 13 says his mother was an Ammonite, a foreigner, a worshipper of idols. And then look at the woman he married, 11:20-21. Now we're told in 15:16 that this Maacah was such an idolater that her own grandson Asa had her deposed from her position as queen mother! It's tough to keep on walking with God when your parents and your wife push you the other way. But the real reason he abandoned God's Word is 12:14. He didn't set his heart on seeking the Lord. Again, he listened but he didn't hear. He knew what God had said about idolatry, but he didn't learn from the warning. His heart wasn't worried about what God said, but about what he felt like doing. And as a result:

3. Rehoboam was attacked by Egypt (12:2-4) A new king came to power in Egypt. Shishak was of a new dynasty. It didn't matter to him that Solomon had been married to the old Pharaoh's daughter. He saw Judah as a plum ripe for the picking, the kingdom divided, the army greatly reduced. So up he came and took all the cities of Judah which Rehoboam had fortified and then marched on Jerusalem itself. When you abandon God's Word, God has to teach you another way. If instruction doesn't work, then correction will have to. If the warning doesn't sink in, then discipline will. And the real tragedy is that, once again:

4. Rehoboam learned to obey but too late (12:5-12) Now that Shishak is at his gates, he realizes what a jerk he's been. He humbles himself and says, "the Lord is just". But it's too late. Now he becomes a vassal or servant of Pharaoh and loses all his treasures in the process. If only he'd learned sooner! There was some good in Judah but there could have been lots of good, if only Rehoboam had been able to defeat that flesh pattern he had of listening and learning the hard way!

I wonder how many times you and I have learned to listen to God's Word but too late. This is how the relationship of a child of God with his heavenly Father works: whom the Lord loves He chastens and scourges every son he receives. In your relationship with God, you can't just ignore His Word and get by with it. God won't let that kind of relationship continue. He'll discipline and correct and chasten. And you can get back into a proper relationship. But it's too late to prevent the hurt and pain and damage that is done in the meantime. One night in 1986 there were two electrical engineers in the control room of the nuclear power plant in Chernobyl, Russia. The best thing that could be said for what they were doing is they were 'playing around' with the machine. They were performing what the Soviets later described as an unauthorized experiment. They were trying to see how long a turbine would 'free wheel' when they took the power off it. Now, taking the power off that kind of a nuclear reactor is a difficult, dangerous thing to do because these reactors are very unstable in their lower ranges. In order to get the reactor down to that kind of power, where they could perform the test they were interested in performing, they had to override manually six separate computer-driven alarm systems. One by one the computers would come up and say, 'Stop! Dangerous! Go no further!' And one by one, rather than shutting off the experiment, they shut off the alarms and kept going. You know the results: nuclear fallout that was recorded all around the world, from the largest industrial accident ever to occur in the world. God gives us warnings and instructions that are every bit as clear. Ignoring them endangers not only us, but other innocent people as well. [University of Pacific Review, Winter 1991.] One year ago, I sat in the courtyard of a school in Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan to talk with a lady named Alexandra. She had five children but her husband was a Chernobyl survivor and is seriously ill from radiation exposure. She had been caring for him and now she herself had developed serious effects in her kidneys. She knew one day she too would die and she asked me to please pray for her and I promised. Why? Because somebody had slow-learning flesh. They thought they knew best and wouldn't listen and persisted until it was too late. And she was paying the price. But the price of not learning to listen to God is even higher.

My friend, you are a King. You are a child of God, a royal priest, one of His chosen who will reign with Him forever and ever. But if inside you there is this pattern you've learned, this obstinate stubbornness that thinks you know best and refuses to learn to listen even to God unless you're really in a bind, then do something about it. If you're persisting in life choices you know are wrong, that you've been warned about by others, that you know God doesn't want for you, but you're making them anyway, then do something about it! Call out to God for grace. Ask Him to make you a humble learner and a quick learner. Ask Him to help you to learn to walk in the Spirit so you will have strength to abstain from that fleshly stubbornness that has a hold on you. Cry out to Him to make you humble, to make a listener out of you. Set your heart, firmly fix it, on listening to God and depend on the Spirit of God to produce that in you. But by all means, don't be a Rehoboam. Don't wait until it's too late to really listen to God and learn the hard way. It just hurts too much. Learn now.

2 Chronicles - The Flesh (Patterns) Of Kings

Abijah: Two-Faced Flesh - Ch. 13

Rehoboam reigned over Judah 17 years and died. His son Abijah then came to the throne to reign only 3 years. If you turn to 2 Chron. 13 and read about Abijah, you'll think he was a great king. It doesn't have one nasty thing to say about him. But then if you turn over and compare the account of his reign in 1 Kings 15, you'll discover that the writer of Kings didn't have one positive thing to say about him! One paints him good, the other paints him bad. How can that be? Is the scripture in error? No, Abijah was a man with two faces. Now I think we know what it means to be two-faced. It means you appear to be one way one moment and another way on another occasion. There is a story about a man who came down out of the Carolina mountains one day. He was all dressed up and carrying his Bible. A friend saw him and asked, "Elias, what's happening? Where are you going all dressed up like that?" Elias said, "I'm heading for New Orleans. I've been hearing that there's a lot of free-runnin' liquor and a lot of gamblin' and a lot of real good naughty shows." The friend looked him over and said, "But Elias, why are you carrying your Bible under your arm?" Elias answered, "Well, if it's as good as they say it is, I might just stay over until Sunday." [1001 Humorous Illustrations for Public Speaking by Michael Hodgin. Zondervan, 1994. Page 188.] Now that's funny and obviously overdone for humor, but haven't you known people somewhat like that, people who had a stated and declared belief in God, were active in the church, but at other times appeared to be engaged in all the same things as the world around them? Not all of them are simply hypocrites pretending and playing a religious game. Even the Apostle Paul confessed in Rom. 7 that there was a time in his life when the good that he wanted to do, he didn't do but he ended up doing the very things he hated. And if we're honest, there are moments when each of us, even though we love God and want to please Him, finds ourselves doing the very things we know in our hearts we don't want to be doing, whether it's in the way that we relate to our spouse or our children or losing our temper or whatever. But for some, that two-facedness is more than just a momentary thing, it has become a sustained pattern of life, a pattern of being controlled by the flesh instead of by the Spirit. And that's what we hope to examine in the life of Abijah this morning. What's going on is that 2 Chronicles gives us the record of a moment, a distinct and special occasion of crisis. Kings gives us the general overview of his reign and life. But let's not play down that wonderful moment. We need to clearly understand that:

I. Abijah Trusted In God - 2 Chron. 13 Ever since the dividing of the Kingdom 17 years earlier there was continual hostility between Israel and Judah and continual dispute over their border. On this occasion it has come to the eve of a massive battle. The text is not clear as to who was attacking whom. But after carefully looking at all the clues, it seems that Israel and their king Jeroboam was attacking Abijah and his kingdom. And as the battle lines were drawn up just north of the territory of Benjamin, King Abijah climbed up a hill and gave a testimony and a warning to the army of Israel.

1. the testimony of his trust in God (4-12) He told them exactly how he and all Judah were trusting in God. In fact, I think we could learn something from him about what trusting in God really means:

a. he believed the Word of God (5) In my estimation Jeroboam was seeking to be king over the whole nation, to remove Abijah and rule Judah as well as Israel. But Abijah says, "No, God made a promise to David, an irrevocable promise, an eternal promise, that only his descendants would sit on the throne. I am the rightful king according to the Word of God; you are a usurper and cannot succeed because God's Word can't fail!" Trusting God is believing that what God says will come to pass, no matter what! Check the battle odds in verse 3. That would be 2-1, wouldn't it? If you were a betting person, which side would you lay your money on? But you see, circumstances don't matter to trust. Trust says, "I know God's Word is true and it will happen, no matter what the circumstances look like!" Trust is the ability to look at the horde of difficulties that overwhelm you and to say, "I know Rom. 8:28 is true; God is going to work all these together for good." It is to say with Job, "when He has tried me, I shall come forth as gold". He trusted God's word. And he did so because:

b. he believed the Lord was the true God (9-10) Jeroboam had set up golden calves to worship in Israel so the people wouldn't go back to Jerusalem to worship the Lord. Abijah says to them, "Your gods are no gods! They have no power. Jeroboam made them! We worship the Lord, the true God." Abijah believed the Lord was the ONLY God, the only one who made a difference. It didn't matter what name or power anyone came against him in; his God was the only true God, the One who had true control over the situation. And these are not just words alone:

c. he obeyed the requirements of God (11) He made sure that the Temple worship was being carried out according to the Law, that the morning and evening sacrifices were made and the bread was put on the table and the lamps on the lampstand were lit. He knew his trust involved a responsibility. He had to carry out what God said and was doing that, at least in this area of the actual Temple worship. Trusting God means obeying Him; it means doing what He says to do even though it may be difficult or you may not feel like it or even understand it. And Abijah:

d. he was convinced of the presence of God (12a) Abijah said, "God is with us. He is our leader, our Captain, our General; we march to His orders". He was convinced that since Judah was trusting in God and following God's commands, that God was with them; His presence was there. As you looked around, it didn't look much like it. And it looked even less like it an hour or two later when in verss 13-14 Judah discovered that crafty old Jeroboam had sent troops around behind them and they were being attacked from the rear too. But they cried out to God. They were convinced He was there, that He was with them. Trusting God is being convinced of Heb. 13:5, "I will never leave you..." But it's even more than that:

e. he saw his identification with God (12a) This is a deep truth. He saw that Israel was not fighting against him but against God! In fighting God's people, they fought God. Here is real trust: "I belong to God, I'm obeying God and doing what He wants me to do; if anyone or anything opposes that, it is not me they are opposing, but Almighty God Himself!" He knew the truth of the meaning of his own name, "My Father is Jehovah"! And so should you: your Father is Jehovah! You're a child of God, a king in His eyes! What a wonderful thing for us to realize when we witness to somebody and they resist us or when we show love to somebody and they repudiate us or when we try to be honest and upright with other people at work or even in church and they get angry with us and accuse us and turn against us; it is not us but God! And nobody can fight Him and win in the end! Anyway, it appears to me that Abijah had a deep and abiding trust in God. You might wonder if he was sincere or if this was just a speech to try and frighten his enemies. I would say, look at:

2. the result of his trust in God (13-18) They cried to the Lord and the Lord routed Israel. He inflicted 500,000 casualties on their 800,000 man army, making sure it would be many years before they could raise a large army again. I don't think the Lord would have honored that speech if it was insincere, but the bottom line is verse 18 which says clearly they were all relying on God. But I would point out one thing to you:

3. the timing of his trust in God (2-3) Remember that:

a. it was a time of crisis and in times of crisis lots of our other props are stripped away and we are often driven back to trusting God. Also:

b. it was a time of incapability They had no choice. They were outnumbered 2-1 and outflanked in 2 directions. There was no way they could help themselves. They had to trust God or die!

However, as I said earlier, Chronicles gives us the picture of one glorious moment in Abijah's reign and a glimpse of the reality of his faith. But to understand him completely, you need also to see that:

II. Abijah Tolerated Idolatry - 1 Kings 15:1-8 Wow, what a different story. This is the overall impression of the three years Abijah reigned. Verse 3 gives us two keys to understanding Abijah:

1. his walk was not fully consecrated (3a) The KJV says, he walked in all the sins of his father, which most obviously means:

a. he continued to allow idolatry Even though he did not trust in idols, he allowed idolatry to continue and flourish in Judah. The sins of his father are listed in 14:22-24. You see, on one hand he kept up the Temple Worship and the proper sacrifices, etc., but on the other he tolerated all sorts of idolatrous practices in the land. And unfortunately, he did not just do it once or for a short time and then repent:

b. he did it as a habit or path of life The language indicates that this walk was the norm. The bright moment in Chronicles was the exception, not the rule. Even though at the bottom line he trusted in God, his daily life was filled with disobedience and the toleration of all kinds of idolatrous practices. How could this be?

2. his heart was not fully devoted (3b) Notice how God here compares his heart to that of David. David had a heart fully devoted to God. Now that didn't mean his every action was perfect. But it meant that:

a. to David sin was the exception (5) His heart loved God and wanted to please Him and generally did. Bathsheba was the exception in his life. Sin was the exception, the rarity, the thing that crept in unnoticed and was gotten rid of when discovered. His heart wanted not to sin. But:

b. to Abijah sin was acceptable It could coexist side by side with trust in God. It didn't have to be removed. Other gods could be there; you didn't have to believe in them really but there were a lot of fun things going on in idolatry. You could have your cake and eat it too. You could trust in God and still have the enjoyment of sin as though you were serving other gods. His heart was not fully devoted to God.

You say then, "Was he a phony?" No, he was two-faced. He was what you might call today a "crisis Christian". He sincerely trusted God when the chips were down but when the chips were up, he let other gods into his life and never saw a discrepancy between the two. It was the pattern of the way he lived. And I suppose it would not take much for us to look around and find some Christians we know who are genuinely saved and who go to church and who really call on God in a crisis but who normally live for money, or their job, or pleasure, or power, and think nothing of it. But it would probably do us more good to look inside ourselves and recognize that little pattern of two-facedness in us. Oh, it's probably not as flagrant as Abijah. But we might have to admit that sometimes it takes a crisis in our lives to really drive us back to just leaning on God. When somebody's sick or when the job is lost or when there's a death or a difficulty, then we lean on God, then we pray like crazy, claim the promises of the Word, and trust that God will get us through. But when the crisis passes the devotions get lax, obedience slacks off, and our lives get occupied with some other things like work or school or family and God is kind of left home in the closet and nodded to at meal times. Until the next crisis, that is!

The smooth, shiny lizard known as a skink doesn't ordinarily draw crowds at the zoo, but the little critter discovered by a homeowner in Jacksonville, Florida, created quite a stir because it had two heads, one at each end of its body. What an unusual spectacle! It was literally a two-headed skink. And what an illustration of absolute frustration! When it tried to run, its legs actually moved in opposite directions. Not unlike Abijah. James says a double minded man is unstable in all he does. You see, really trusting God means more than trusting Him to carry you through a crisis; it means having a heart that is completely devoted to Him all the time. It means coming to that place where everything else is nothing compared to the surpassing greatness of knowing Him. It means falling on your face and asking Him to make that stuff that you seem to believe in the crisis true each and every day in your life by His power and not by yours. It means learning what Paul discovered, to walk not according to or out of the power of the flesh, your own self-effort, but according to the Spirit, out of His power.

2 Chronicles - The Flesh (Patterns) Of Kings

Asa: Forgetful Flesh - Chs. 14-16

Though Abijah only reigned over Judah for three years, his son Asa reigned a whopping 41 years. He lasted through the reigns of eight kings of the northern kingdom of Israel. There is no question that Asa was a good king, really the best one since David. He loved the Lord and never once do we read that he had anything to do with idols like his father and grandfather and great-grandfather did. Asa probably took the throne as a boy of 10 or 11 and right from the start he was committed to the Lord. Until the time he was 46 or 47 he walked with the Lord and seems to have grown spiritually. But somehow out there toward the end of his life (he died at 51 or 52), he became forgetful. Now I don't mean forgetful in the sense that some of us develop a pattern of forgetfulness i.e., we can't remember where we put things, what we had for lunch, or what our wife sent us to the store for once we get there. When Asa got older, he developed a pattern of spiritual forgetfulness. He seemed to forget Who it was that had gotten him through all those early years. He seemed to forget that it was his reliance on the Lord that had prospered him. And he died, not as an idolater, but out of fellowship with the Lord instead of walking with Him all the way. As you read, you can clearly see:

I. Asa's Early Growth Process (chs. 14-15) I don't know where he learned to love the Lord so young. He sure didn't get much of it from his dad! Maybe from being under the care of the high priest. But anyway, he started with faith and the Lord grew it.

1. his initial commitment to the Lord

a. he was obedient to the Lord (14:2-3) He illegalized idolatry. He got rid of all the adult bookstores and shut down the pornographic websites in the kingdom. He closed the red light districts. He was only a kid but he knew how to act right! He ordered his life and his kingdom in such a way as to be pleasing to the Lord. And:

b. he influenced others to seek the Lord (4) He commanded that all his subjects should worship and obey the Lord. Of course, you can't legislate people into loving God, but he began to use his royal position to influence others as much as he could. On top of that, he was wise because:

c. he prepared for the future (6-7) His early reign was characterized by peace and he recognized that as an opportunity from the Lord to prepare for the future. They were depending on God but he knew they also needed to use the time and materials God had given them to do something to prepare for future emergencies. So, they built up the walls and fortifications in some of the towns of Judah that had been wrecked during Rehoboam's invasion by Egypt. He was wise young man: trusting in God, serving God, and wisely looking to the future. This went on for 10 years. And the young king became a man and God knew it was time for:

2. his testing experience (14:9-12) An Egyptian general named Zerah gathered a huge army and marched against Judah. (He was from the southern part of the Egyptian kingdom; that's why they called him a Cushite or an Ethiopian!) They drew up the battle line at Mareshah about 25 miles southwest of Jerusalem. Now notice:

a. he was overmatched The Hebrew says the Egyptians had literally thousands of thousands. You see, they ran out of numbers at 999,999 so instead of a million they would say a thousand thousand. So, we're talking about an army of at least a million men or more complete with chariots compared to Judah's 580,000 (verse 8). Now maybe this is one good thing Asa learned from his dad but at any rate:

b. he relied completely on God, verse 11. Look at him pray. "Lord, we rely on You; You help the powerless against the mighty." He knew he couldn't save himself but that God could, so he trusted God and God routed the Egyptians and they fled with great losses. Now all of this did not happen by chance. In it was:

c. his lesson (15:1-4) He didn't have the Holy Spirit living inside like we do so the Lord sent a prophet to play the role of the Holy Spirit in his life. And the message was, "Let this be a living lesson: the Lord is with you when you are with Him." When you rely on Him, He makes your life work! When you don't, you can expect that He will let you fall on your face. Learn it well. And sure enough, young Asa grew through this experience. Look at:

3. his strengthened commitment (Ch. 15) Now he's really on fire for the Lord. He's seen what the Lord can do. He's seen God answer prayer and do a mighty miracle. And it results in:

a. a strengthened consecration (8) Wait a minute, I thought he did that already! He already cleaned out the idols. Well, think of idolatry in Israel like illegal drug use here. You can make it illegal, jail all the promoters and suppliers, teach the kids to just say "no", and people are still going to do drugs! The war on drugs is a war, not a simple cleanup. In Israel idolatry was like that. Asa declared a war on idols and then went back and redoubled his efforts. He strengthened his commitment to obey God and made:

b. a strengthened covenant (12-14) Now it was not simply a command, but the people made a covenant to seek Lord under the penalty of death! A pretty strong motivation! I guess they had a lot of seekers for a while, however genuine! But notice the point: he had a strengthened sense of the importance of commitment to the Lord and it led to:

c. a strengthened application (16-17) He applied it closer to home. He deposed his own grandmother from her position of honor for being an idolater! His application became more personal. And his heart became fully committed to the Lord.

And this process is exactly what God wants to do in our lives. When we walk with Him, we grow in learning to trust Him. And then sooner or later God brings into our lives a test! And as we trust God to take us through that hard time, whatever it is, we're strengthened and we grow stronger and more committed and find new areas in our life where we need to commit to the Lord. And then another test comes, and we grow more and so on. That's how we grow when our hearts are fully committed to the Lord. You can see this in the lives of a number of God's people in the Bible, but I think of Joseph in particular. He was carted down to Egypt as a slave but He was committed to the Lord and he got to be in charge of Potiphar's house. He was faithful and obedient. But then came the test, Potiphar's wife who began to try to seduce him and at last threw herself at him one day. But he stood the test and wound up in prison. However, he had learned you can trust the Lord in bad situations so he trusted Him in prison and things went well and he learned to trust while being patient; more lessons. Finally, the test came again as Pharaoh called him to interpret his dream and he gave the credit to God and relied on Him and ended up on the throne of Egypt. Then came the test of the arrival of his brothers and he learned true forgiveness. He just kept on growing in his trust, in his reliance on God through each testing. That's how God wants to do it in our lives. He wants us to continually remember those times we've relied on Him and to keep on in that process. But it didn't keep on that way with Asa. As the years went by something happened to him. I don't know what. Maybe such a long time passed by until his next crisis came that he forgot the lesson. And what we see in chapter 16 is:

II. Asa's Later Forgetfulness (Ch. 16) 25 years went by in peace; we don't really know what happened during that time. But eventually along came:

1. his second testing (1-10) Baasha, the king of Israel, was getting tired of his people defecting to Judah. And he went down and started to invade Judah and captured Ramah, north of Jerusalem, thus gaining control of the two major roads into Jerusalem from the north and east. Of course, that was mighty close to home and Asa was pretty worried, but this time we're told that:

a. he didn't rely on God (7) He sent all his gold, and God's gold too, to Syria and made an alliance to pinch Israel in between. And when Syria attacked, Israel withdrew and Asa retook Ramah. All this he did instead of praying, instead of relying on God, instead of trusting that God was with him. You see, somehow:

b. he forgot his past experience (8) God sent a prophet to remind him of it. Somehow it didn't click that he'd been there before when the Cushites invaded and God had pulled him through. Why? perhaps too much time had passed in between tests. Perhaps Asa had lost his sense of neediness because everything went so well. Perhaps his success and prosperity lulled him into a false sense of security and he wasn't driven to God very much so that when the test came again after all that time, he'd forgotten Who his strength really was because he'd been relying on himself all that time! Aren't we like that sometimes in our lives? We learn to rely on God but then things go well for a long time and we slip back to relying on ourselves. And then God puts us back through the same test the second time and by then we're so out of practice that we forget to trust Him and try to go about solving the problem ourselves! Now God is a God of grace and He will find a way to point out our failure to us and draw us back to relying on him. But Asa's real problem was that:

c. his failure hardened his heart (9-10) Here is the difference between Asa and David. When the prophet pointed his finger at David, David said "I've sinned!" When a prophet pointed his finger at Asa, Asa said, "Put him in the stocks!" in Hebrew. Lock him up and see that he's uncomfortable. This was the turning point in his life, the most important moment. This was the moment that growth stopped. When he failed, he became proud and resistant instead of repentant and humble! And, of course, three years later came:

2. his third testing (11-14) It came in his health. He became diseased in his feet. It was a severe disease, one that eventually led to his death. But the thing to notice is the very direct comment the writer makes that:

a. he didn't even seek the Lord (12) Now there's nothing wrong with physicians or with seeking physicians. And I don't think you should wait and pray until you're half-dead before you do it. But the point is that you should be seeking the Lord and depending on Him the whole time. Doctors don't heal. They aid God in the healing process. God brings healing. And God brings death too. But Asa's heart was hardened. He didn't want to admit he'd been wrong. He didn't want to square things with God. And so, as he had lived those last years,

b. he died (13), after two years of suffering. It was an unhappy end to what could have been a glorious reign. You know, I think we're all a little bit forgetful like Asa. When tests come along in life it's so easy for us to forget the previous occasions that we've trusted God and He's brought us through. Instead of having grown enough that we can easily meet the test and keep on trusting and relying on God, enough time has gone by and we've forgotten enough that we have to learn to trust all over again or else we fail to trust the Lord and start to live out of our own resources. Whether it's in regard to our health or our finances or our relationships or whatever. But I want to leave you with this: it's one thing to be forgetful and to have to relearn lessons; we all do that and God is patient with us and teaches us to rely on Him over and over, but Asa's forgetfulness turned into spiritual Alzheimer's disease, if you know what I mean. It turned into a pattern that became permanent. When he refused to trust after being reminded and hardened his heart, there was no more remembering to trust God, no going back. Don't ever let yourself get there! Sure, you'll fail. You'll forget to trust God. But do the smart thing. Run back to your loving forgiving Father and confess your lack of trust. Don't persist in your mistake and harden yourself until you end up like Asa.

2 Chronicles - The Flesh (Patterns) Of Kings

Jehoshaphat: Joiner Flesh - Chs. 17-20

It seems as though the kings of Judah keep getting better and better. Solomon became an idolater in old age. Rehoboam tolerated idolatry and learned too late to obey God. Abijah at least trusted God in the crises of life. Asa loved God until 5 years before he died and then got out of fellowship. Jehoshaphat loved God all the days of his life and at a level deeper than any of the kings since David. He ruled Judah 25 years and all the way through we can see that:

I. Jehoshaphat Had An Unequivocal Love For God It is so clear. He is such an example to us in many ways:

1. he obeyed the commands of God (17:3-4) Asa had done his job well; he raised a son who loved his God. Jehoshaphat didn't want anything to do with the idolatrous practices of Israel. He was very careful from his early life on to obey God's Word.

2. he devoted his heart to the ways of God (17:6) It was not a front. It was not put on, just an act, just something he did to get ahead and rule successfully. His heart was in it. He loved God and he loved following God. He delighted in God's ways!

3. he taught the people the Word of God (17:7,9) He knew the Word of God was important for the people too. So he did something we don't read of any other king doing, he sent a teaching mission throughout Judah, officials and Levites taking the Scroll of the Law from the Temple and teaching it in every town! He had a round-robin Bible Conference!

4. he dispensed the justice of God (19:5-7) Later in his reign he made important judicial reforms. He realized what his name meant, "Jehovah is my Judge," and appointed judges in the land who would dispense justice from God's viewpoint and not take bribes.

5. he trusted the power of God (20:1-6,12) After a number of years of peace, testing came and he did the right thing. He trusted God. The invading army is at his southern heel; it is already at En-Gedi by the Dead Sea. And the first thing he does is to turn to God and rely on him. Look at that prayer. He knows who's in control here. He knows who gives victory. And God did honor that trust and give victory. They didn't even have to fight. The factions of the invading army turned against themselves and annihilated one another. All Jehoshaphat had to do was go get the spoils!

6. he rejoiced in the blessing of God (20:26-27) He was not ungrateful. He and the whole army went to the valley of blessing to thank and praise God. They gave the credit where it was due.
It would be tough to find a king who loved the Lord more than Jehoshaphat did. But even Jehoshaphat had his flesh patterns, just like all of us do. He had a way that he was prone to get his needs met and live out of his resources instead of trusting God in an area of his life and it was simply this:

II. Jehoshaphat Joined Himself Repeatedly To Unbelievers He was a joiner. The old saying says, "If you can't beat 'em, join 'em." and there was a measure of that tendency deep down inside Jehoshaphat. Time and again we find him, in spite of all his love of God, joining himself to people who did not, not for the purpose of being a witness to them, but to partner with them in some enterprise or other. Now the principle is set forth more clearly for us in 2 Cor. 6:14-18. The verb yoked in Greek is heterozugeo. Hetero means different; zugo means to couple together. The Hebrews were not to yoke an ox and a donkey together. They were two different kinds of beasts and didn't belong in the yoke together. So, believers and unbelievers are two very different species with different goals and values and purposes in life. And we can't serve God and plow His furrow straight when we choose to chain our life in a binding way to an unbeliever that keeps wanting to do things his way or go in his own direction. And this is the mistake that Jehoshaphat made over and over again. He wanted to plow God's furrow straight and true, but he kept on tying himself to some stubborn mules that didn't want to go God's way. It happened in three areas of his life. First in:

1. the area of marriage (18:1) Jehoshaphat made a marriage alliance with Ahab, the king of Israel. Now he didn't do it by marrying himself. Instead, he married his son to Ahab's daughter:

a. the story: Jehoram marries Athaliah (21:5-6) Now let me jog your memory. Do you remember who Ahab was? He was an idolater and hated Elijah's guts! His wife's name was Jezebel. She was a Phoenician idolater and she made it law in Israel to worship Baal and Ashtaroath. Their daughter's name was Athaliah and if you remember she was just like her mother. Some years later after her husband died, she murdered all her own grandchildren and seized the throne of Judah for herself! But at the moment this young fair lady is the princess of the realm of Israel and Jehoshaphat sets it up for his crown prince son Jehoram (whom I'm sure he wanted to follow the Lord) to marry her. Why?

b. the motive: to keep peace (17:10) Remember, through Rehoboam's and Abijah's and Asa's reigns there was war with Israel. Now Jehoshaphat had made Judah strong and had a large army of over a million men, the largest ever. So, everybody including Israel was leaving him alone. But he knew that that would only last until someone could put together a bigger army. He wanted permanent peace with Israel and thought, "what better way than if Ahab has my son for a son-in-law"! But it didn't work! Instead, he got:

c. the result: a corrupted son and kingdom We already read it. Instead of loving and serving God, Jehoram became an idolater because he married an idolater and he encouraged the nation to practice idolatry and from that point Judah had three idolatrous rulers in a row! What a sad lesson! Marriage to an unbeliever is an unequal yoke and once you're in it, you're in it for life. Listen to me, young people, single people. If you invest your life in building a romantic relationship with a person who's outside of Christ and you marry them, you are in dangerous spiritual waters. It doesn't matter how physically attractive they are; it doesn't matter how attracted and drawn you feel to them. If they don't love Jesus, they're missing the most important thing in your life! And there is a much higher likelihood that they will drag you away from an active walk with Christ than that you will win them to Him. I know it feels good to have somebody say they love you and to have somebody want you. But they're headed in an opposite direction from you. You're out to please God and they can't be there because they don't know Him. And sooner or later the two directions will conflict and if you're married there will be a heavy price to pay. And we have folks right in this room who would stand up and tell you that! Parents, don't be like Jehoshaphat was with his son; teach your kids how important it is to date and to marry someone who loves Jesus with all their heart. Don't encourage their relationship with some young man or woman from school just because it makes you happy to see them getting married or because they seem so happy and you want to keep peace. Cry out to God for grace to resist being a "joiner" and take a stand. If you want to plow God's furrow, it's really tough to do when you're tied to an unbeliever and you can't do it as straight as you could if you were yoked to a believer. Now the second area where Jehoshaphat joined up with a nonbeliever is in:

2. the area of cooperation

a. the story: Jehoshaphat joins Ahab (18:2-4) Now this is years later. Ahab has been having trouble with the army of Syria all along. Some of his border cities have been taken. He needs help. So, he calls on his in-law Jehoshaphat and says, "Will you help me?" and Jehoshaphat says, "Sure, count me in!" And you know the story of how they bring Micaiah the prophet who warns them but they go to battle anyway. So, here's Jehoshaphat risking the lives of the men in his army, killing his own people to aid an idolatrous king in taking back a city for himself. Why?

b. the motive: to maintain relationships Did you ever do anything wrong just to be accepted by your so-called friends or peers? It's the old ruse "if you want to be my friend, you have to help me..." That line comes in many variations. And when we get to where we are helping people to go on in their sin instead of helping them come to Christ, we are yoked!

c. the result: God dishonored and angry (19:1-3) Ahab died in battle. Jehoshaphat was divinely protected but almost killed. And God was angry. It was not just that His servant had ended up serving another master instead of doing His will. But Jehoshaphat had dishonored God's name. The forces of Judah had been defeated. In those days that meant the God of Judah had been defeated by the God of Syria. You see when you get tied into something you shouldn't, helping an unbelieving friend because you love them and can't bear to say no to them or don't want to offend them, it's God that is dishonored. When you tie yourself up in something, you tie God up in it in the eyes of others and, if it's the wrong thing, God's reputation suffers! Don't get yoked into helping unbelievers in their sinful pursuits. The third area where Jehoshaphat joined up with unbelievers is:

3. the area of business (20:35-37) Here's a little side note tucked in at the close of the record about Jehoshaphat. I think it's here because it again points out his flaw.

a. the story: Jehoshaphat joins Ahaziah Ahaziah is Ahab's son. Somehow Jehoshaphat and he got involved in a business enterprise together. They were going to build a fleet of Tarshish ships, big merchant ships, at Ezion Geber on the tip of the Gulf of Aquaba on the Red Sea south of Judah. They were going to sail down the Red Sea to Ophir in southern Arabia and bring back gold like Solomon had done and maybe on to India! Why?

b. the motive: to make money Maybe Jehoshaphat didn't have enough skilled people to build and sail the ships; I don't know. But the bottom line is money. He wanted to profit by this alliance in business. Now obviously, we're all involved with unbelievers in the marketplace somehow. We work with them, maybe work for them. But sometimes we give our allegiance deeply, we yoke ourselves in the area of business with unbelievers in such a way that we are bound and dragged in their direction. We want to serve and honor God in our business life, to plow His furrow, but they are always pulling in their own direction, pursuing their own goals and motives and ethics. We want to serve God; they want to make money and are willing to be dishonest or cheat in whatever way they have to. And we end up being dragged away after them. So it doesn't work too well:

c. the result: failure God sent a prophet to reiterate the lesson, "You've allied yourself with an unbeliever again; it won't work!" The ships were wrecked, probably in a violent storm before they ever set sail. And it won't work for you either and if it does, you'll probably wind up far from God.

Now Jehoshaphat seems to have learned his lesson. Compare 1 Kings 22:48-49. After the ships were wrecked, evidently he was going to rebuild and this time when Ahaziah proposed an alliance he said, "NO!" And we think, "Yay, he learned!" but compare 2 Kings 3:5-7. And God had to teach him the lesson over again. He nearly lost the battle and but for God's mercy he and all his army might have died. You see, he just couldn't keep from unequally yoking himself to unbelievers and running off with them in the things they were after. It was a pattern in his life. But all of us wrestle with that choice. It may become a pattern in yours as well. You may be a joiner. "Please the crowd, please the feelings, get your needs met! Just join up!" But my friend, God wants to be in the driver's seat of your life. And if you tie yourself to unbelievers whether it's in marriage or in helping them pursue their wrong goals or in business, God can't fully drive the yoked pair. Only one responds to the reins. And God's work and His will are hindered. You can't please two masters. You can't do what God wants and what your unsaved ally wants too. So you have to choose who your master is. The story is told of a ragged boy with a violin under his arm who roamed the streets of a great European city. Because he had no home or family, he wandered around for food and shelter. He had a strange gift for music and had somehow gotten hold of a violin, and would stand on the corners and play for the crowd. When finished they would toss some coins and this is how he lived. In the same city was a famous musician. One day he happened to hear the boy playing and was impressed by the quality of music. "Son, to whom do you belong?" he said, "I don't belong to anybody," the boy answered. "Well, where do you live?" was the next question. "I don't have any place to live. I just sleep on the streets or wherever I can." The man thought for a moment and then asked, "How would you like to be my boy and come to live with me? I'll teach you all I know about how to play the violin." The boy's eyes sparkled, and he said, "Mister, I'd love it." So the great musician took him to his own home, had him cleaned and dressed up, and the man became like a father to him. For several years he poured into the eager young mind and heart all he knew about the violin. Finally, the boy was ready to appear on the concert stage for his first public recital. The house was filled to capacity. At last, the boy came out, put the violin beneath his chin and began his concert. He played beautifully and there was much applause. The boy though, paid no attention. He kept his eyes turned upward and continued to play. The audience was mystified by his behavior until someone said, "I don't understand why he is so insensible to all this thunderous applause. He keeps looking up all the time. I'm going to find out what is attracting his attention!" Moving about in the concert hall, the observer found the answer. There in the topmost balcony was the old music master, peering over the banister toward his young pupil. He was nodding his head and smiling, as if to say, "You are doing well, my boy; play on! And the boy did play on, not seeming to care whether the audience laughed or applauded. He kept his gaze upward. You see, He was playing to please the master only. You can play the tune of life to please the crowd, to keep friendships or maintain relationships or to keep peace or to make money or a hundred other things. But God is seeking for those who will play it a different way, those who will play for only one purpose and reason, to please their Master only. What area in your life is God speaking to you about? Who will you please? Joiner flesh tries to please others and self, but God is patient and He'll painstakingly teach you the lesson over and over again like He did Jehoshaphat. Learn it by grace; learn it now. Live to please the Master only!

2 Chronicles - The Flesh (Patterns) Of Kings

Joash: Follower Flesh - Ch. 23-24

Fifteen years have passed, fifteen years of idolatry in Judah. Godly King Jehoshaphat was succeeded by his son Jehoram. His epitaph is in 21:20, "He passed away to no one's regret"! And his son Ahaziah only lasted a year before he was assassinated. But when that happened, Ahaziah's mother Athaliah saw a golden opportunity for herself. She destroyed all of her own grandchildren and seized the throne for herself. For 6 years Athaliah led Judah deep into idolatry and Baal worship. But she made one small miscalculation. When she had her grandchildren destroyed, she didn't count heads! There was one little baby grandson that she missed in her slaughter and his name was Joash. His aunt was married to Jehoiada the chief priest and when all the children were being killed, she rescued him and hid him in the Temple of the Lord. (Of course, that's the one place Athaliah never went!) So, all the while she was ruling the land, the rightful king Joash was growing up. And finally, when he was 7, Jehoiada and the captains of the army staged a coup. They placed young Joash on the throne and executed Athaliah. God's comment is 23:21. Now Joash was a good king; he loved the Lord and served him for at least 25-30 years of his long 40 year reign. But Joash had one glaring pattern of behavior that seemed to characterize his life; he was the kind of a person who built his life around the influence of other people. He was a follower. So, for those first 25-30 years, he naturally built his life around the godly influence of his priest uncle Jehoiada who had raised him from infancy. But eventually Jehoiada died and the sad fact is that he was just as easily influenced by people who didn't love the Lord and followed them. So, we're going to use Joash this morning as an opportunity to talk about the influence of other people and the effect it has on our lives and the danger of developing that pattern of being a follower. First let's look at:

I. The Influence of Jehoiada the Priest (24:1-14) Jehoiada had a profound effect on young Joash's life. Because of him:

1. he worshipped the Lord (2) Compare 23:16. I'm sure that for those 6 years of growing up, Jehoiada had daily devotional times with Joash. He trained him well. When he took the throne the people and the king together made a solemn agreement that they would be the Lord's people. From little on up Joash worshipped the Lord instead of Baal like his father and grandfather. And until he was over age 30, he obeyed the Lord and did all the things God approved of. As long as Jehoiada lived, his influence on Joash was so powerful that it kept him from the influence of the other officials who gave lip service to the Lord but were really idolaters at heart.

2. he cared about the Lord's honor (4-6) Verse 4 says literally, it was in his heart. When Joash grew to manhood he realized how badly the Temple had been left go during those 15 years prior to his reign. He must also have been studying the Law because he was aware of what the Law had to say about collecting money from the people for the Lord's house. So he set about a renovation project all on his own. He even had to chide his beloved Jehoiada (now an old man) for not getting on the stick. You see, he cared that the Lord have a proper house, that His worship be carried out properly, that He have all the honor and glory due to His name. And so:

3. he built up the Lord's work (12-13) The Temple, of course, was the chief project that God had going in Judah in those days. He restored the Temple to the glory it had under Solomon. He had a personal involvement in it and stuck it out until the job was done. He was involved in advancing the work of God. But then the inevitable happened; Jehoiada died and with him all of his godly influence on Joash, and a new influence began to pervade his life:

II. The Influence of the Officials of Judah (24:15-27) These were the leading men in his kingdom and with the very powerful force of Jehoiada out of the way, they were free to begin to put forth their own ideas to the king. And they must have been very strong, because look what happened to Joash:

1. he worshipped idols (17-18) Imagine that! The king who made a covenant with the Lord in his youth and served him for 25 years now worships the gods of his officials, Baal and Ashtaroah. He doesn't go to the House of the Lord to worship any longer but he goes to a shrine with an Asherah pole! Not only that, but what he cared about has changed. He used to care about the Lord's honor but now:

2. he cared about his own honor (20-22) Jehoiada's son (or rather probably his grandson) Zechariah was a prophet and God sent him to warn the people that they must stop worshipping idols. But the people were incensed and they stoned him to death right in the courtyard of the Temple itself. But note that they did it "at the king's command". Joash was incensed that anyone would oppose him. What had impressed him in the first place with the officials back in verse

17 was that they bowed down to him! And so now he murders the grandson of the man who had saved his own life as a baby! Why? Because now all he cared about was himself! And so tragically:

3. he destroyed the Lord's work (23-25) God sent the army of Syria against Joash. Judah lost against them and Joash himself was seriously wounded. Yet the Syrians withdrew without completely annihilating Jerusalem but Chronicles doesn't say why. Compare 2 Kings 12:18, But Joash king of Judah took all the sacred objects dedicated by his fathers- Jehoshaphat, Jehoram and Ahaziah, the kings of Judah--and the gifts he himself had dedicated and all the gold found in the treasuries of the temple of the LORD and of the royal palace, and he sent them to Hazael king of Aram, who then withdrew from Jerusalem. Joash stripped the Temple of all the gold and all the money collected in Jehoida's days and gave it to the enemy to save his hide! He tore down the very thing he had once built! All that he did for the Lord, he now undid, all because he was a follower! And ironically, he died at the hands of his own officials that he valued so highly! How sad, but the lesson will be lost on us unless we talk about the power of:
